Book Of Golden Deeds Is Awarded W.M. Scales, Jr.

W. M. Scales Jr.—better known by all who know him as "Booger"—Friday became the eighth chapter in the Greenville Exchange Club's Book of Golden Deeds.

Scales, outstanding Greenville insurance agent, was honored with the club's eighth annual Book of Golden Deeds award at the Exchange Club's annual Ladies Night banquet at the Greenville Country Club.

His selection as the award's recipient, kept secret until the moment of presentation, was made by a secret committee of the Exchange Club on the basis of community service "beyond the call of duty."

Scales' most recent service cited by Exchange President Luther Moore, who made the presentation, was his chairmanship of an eight-man committee that raised more than a quarter million dollars for the James S. Pickens Memorial Stadium to be constructed on the East Carolina College campus.

The Greenville native, famous at least in local circles for his dynamic and flamboyant personality, follows noted Greenville culturist Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, last year's Book of Golden Deeds award recipient.

The citation read by Moore credited Scales with a host of community service contributions including: —"singlehandedly" raising $1,400 in one day to meet a last-minute deadline for payment on a Greenville and Pitt County rescue truck several years ago.

—raising by "this Super Salesman" and one partner of $2,500 in two days to help finance the Greenville High School activity bus.

—chairmanship of the Pitt County Heart Fund in 1957 when the drive's collections more than doubled the total of the previous year and his co-chairmanship of a 12-member committee that raised $3,000 for installation of lights at Guy Smith Stadium and the East Carolina College Scholarship fund.

—co-chairmanship of the 1957 Pitt County Mental Health campaign that netted $7,500 within three weeks.

—membership on the Board of Directors for the 1961 Pitt County United Fund campaign, playing a "tremendous role" in the drive and serving as Advance Gifts chairman.

Among other Scales activities cited in the presentation were active support of the Greenville Little League baseball program; participation in Community Chest, Cancer Society and American Red Cross fund-raising and other activities; chairman of the Building Committee of Eighth St. Christian Church.

The citation noted the following honors Scales has received: the 1958 Distinguished Service Award of the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce; the North Carolina Jaycees' Gold Cup award; president of the President's Club of Security Life and Trust Co. each year since 1957.

In making the presentation, Moore said: "He is a very successful insurance man, having been elected to the Board of Directors of Security Life and Trust Co. in 1956 and thus becoming the youngest man in the United States to serve on the board of a major life insurance company."

Scales has qualified for life membership in the Million Dollar Roundtable, a top honor for insurance agents from all companies in the world. His consistent position as president of the President's Club since 1957 represents Scales' five-year tenure as his insurance company's top producer. He has been an annual million-dollar producer for nine straight years.

A life-long resident of Greenville, Scales attended Greenville City Schools and Fishburne Military Academy in Virginia. He is a U. S. Air Force veteran, having served with that branch of the Armed Services during World War II.

Castro Admits Marxist Faith, Leading Cuba Into Communism

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro, proclaiming, "I believe absolutely in Marxism," admitted publicly today he was leading Cuba down the road to communism.

"I am a Marxist-Leninist and will be one until the day I die," the Cuban prime minister declared in a midnight television speech.

"We must all study the experience in building up the world's first Communist society," he said. "Socialism is a world reality today as the force defeating imperialism."

Banks Permitted Hike Interest On Savings Deposits

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's 13,000 commercial banks have been granted federal permission to offer savers 4 per cent interest on $93 billion of deposits starting Jan. 1.

The present limit is 3 per cent and has been in effect for five years.

The higher maximum was authorized Friday night by the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. so that banks can become more competitive with savings and loan associations, which generally have paid higher rates.

Another motive for the move was to encourage foreigners and others to keep funds on deposit in the United States rather than move them abroad because of interest rate competition. This would help the U.S. balance of payments situation.

No bank will have to pay higher interest rates as a result of the action. They merely have permission to do so.

"Experience suggests that any moves toward higher rates are likely to be gradual," the Reserve Board said. Many banks have yet to adopt the old 3 per cent maximum.

The 4 per cent ceiling will apply to time and savings deposits left in banks for a year or longer.

Farmville Plans Longest Parade

FARMVILLE—The longest and most elaborate Christmas parade in the South's history is scheduled to begin its traditional procession here at 5 p.m. Monday.

Expected to appear in the annual entourage are some 35 units, including about 25 floats. The parade, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and local merchants, will originate on Horne Avenue near Farmville High School. From there it will make a deliberate loop through the business district and terminate at its point of formation.

The parade will kick off the Yuletide season for Farmville merchants. The town's Christmas decorations already hung on streets will be the first time as the traditional parade begins.

Castro's statements were in sharp contrast to declarations that "ours is not a Communist revolution" made six months after he seized power from dictator Fulgencio Batista Jan. 1, 1959.

Apparently in reference to his anti-Communist statements, Castro said Friday night that until a few years ago he was "biased against communism because of imperialist propaganda." He said the change in his political thinking began after he seized power.

Castro praised Lenin for "developing Marx' and Engel's theories and putting them into practice. Marxism or scientific socialism has become the revolutionary movement of the working class," he said.

Castro's assertion that he was a confirmed Marxist was one of his strongest public admissions that he had been converted to the Communist line.

He had implied as much by labeling Cuba a socialist state in a speech last May Day. The United States then declared for the first time that Castro was a full member of the Communist camp.

Castro, who ruled out elections in his May Day speech, declared Friday night that he was forming a single party that would unify all groups in his regime into a "strong and disciplined organization."

The Integrated Revolutionary Organization, embracing political, military, economic, labor and social groups, forms the foundation for the coming one-party system. The party will be called "the united party of Cuba's socialist revolution."

"There cannot be three or four movements," Castro said.

Castro asserted he favored collective leadership for Cuba under the new party instead of "personality rule," a role he presently holds.

"It would be absurd for a single man to make government decisions," Castro said, adopting the line of the recent 22nd Communist party conference, which denounced the so-called "cult of the personality." The Soviet move led to the widespread de-Stalinization program.

In a passing reference to his personal position in the new political structure, Castro declared, "I have never wanted to be a Caesar."

In the five-hour speech he declared his revolution has taken "the only honest road—the road of a socialist and anti-imperialist revolution."

Castro again charged that the U.S. Pentagon is training guerrilla forces "to stave off threats of what he called Cuban-style revolutions in other Latin-American countries."

"But," he added, "in the face of the revolutionary fight of the people there are no remedies except the disappearance of the conditions of exploitation" which he said were leading to popular unrest and discontent.

Indicated there is enough evidence to lead to limited production of long lead time items for the system.

A factor in the decision could have been what Pentagon sources said was firm information that the Soviets were making a strong effort to develop an antimissile system of their own.

The Army has contended that a start of production could cut from four to two years the expected time in which an antimissile defense could be deployed around a limited number of cities.

More Grief For Communist Boss

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Communist leader Gus Hall, already in trouble with the federal government, also is in hot water with local officials.

He was halted by police Friday and charged with three motor vehicle violations—driving across a white line, failing to have a New York driving license and driving with improper registration.

Now, it has been learned, Kennedy and McNamara have decided there is enough evidence to lead to limited production of long lead time items for the system.

Earlier this year McNamara told Congress there were "widespread doubts as to whether the Nike-Zeus system should ever be deployed."

U.S. And Soviet Gamble Prestige On Peiping's Bid

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union have decided to gamble their prestige on the outcome of Peiping's bid for a U.N. seat.

This was made clear Friday as the two big powers clashed head-on in the opening round of the China debate. Both demonstrated they were determined to fight every step on the issue of whether the Formosan government or Chiang Kai-shek or the Communists get the seat.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson warned delegates that "the whole future of the United Nations is at stake" with the China representation question. The United States has managed to keep the matter shelved for 10 years.

"If anyone still has any illusions about the Communists' qualifications for membership in this respect, let him be reminded of the use of force by the Chinese Communists in their border disputes with India," Stevenson declared in a no-holds-barred speech.

"In its present mood," Stevenson said of the Red Chinese regime, "it is a massive and brutal threat to man's struggle to better his lot."

"Its gigantic power, its reckless ambition, and its unconcern for human values," he said, "make it the major world problem."

In a bid to win over some of Peiping's supporters, Stevenson accused the Communist Chinese of operating camps for young guerrillas in Asia, Africa and Latin America so they could touch off revolutions in their home countries.

Stevenson warned that to admit the Reds would have only one meaning: That the United Nations had knuckled under to Peiping's plan to conquer Formosa and "overthrow and abolish the independent government of the Republic of China."

The Soviet Union's swift retort to the American charges against the Chinese Reds made plain the Kremlin has decided to go much further than token support for the Communists' bid.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin accused Stevenson of trying to make the assembly believe that the Peiping government had split with Moscow.

"They are very much in need of something new," Worthington stated.

Future Homemakers Win Float Prize

WINNING FLOAT . . . in Grifton's annual Christmas parade yesterday was sponsored by the Future Homemakers of Grifton High School. Above, the queen and her court. (Reflector photo by Stuart Savage.)

GRIFTON — The Future Homemakers of Grifton High School emerged as first place winners in the float competition of the annual Christmas parade here yesterday afternoon.

The winning float featured a queen and her attendants, dressed in evening garb. First place prize was $25.

Second place in the float division went to the Grifton Garden Club, who had a float with Santa's workshop — a little playhouse on a trailer. The club was awarded $15.

The Methodist Choir, with their manger scene, won third place and the prize of $10.

The parade, held during an afternoon of perfect weather, attracted the largest crowd ever to witness a local Christmas parade. Jimmy Herring, parade chairman for the Merchants Association, stated today.

A total of seven floats entered the parade, along with the Grifton High School band, Lenoir County band, East Carolina College drill team and the Color Guard from Kingston, the South Ayden High School Band and the Savannah Band.

Names of two boys who won $5 each in the bicycle division were not immediately available.

The parade, beginning at the high school, moved down the town's main street, and then followed a route back to the high school where it ended.

Herring today expressed appreciation to those who participated in the parade.

'We Tell The Truth' Says Murrow Of VOA

By HENRY HOWARD

Edward R. Murrow professes an acute awareness of the mission of the U. S. Information Agency, his most recent responsibility.

Leaving a lucrative network television position, Murrow assumed his duties as director of the agency with the feeling that his new job would present his greatest challenge.

At intervals during his busy trip around the construction sites of the Pitt-Beaufort County Voice of America installation Friday, the veteran mass media personality paused momentarily to give newsmen who followed an insight into his philosophy of what the agency is all about.

In a brief address to a group of about 65 Greenvilleites at a luncheon, Murrow quietly but firmly explained the mission of "the Voice": "We tell the truth about America; it's up to Americans to make the truth something worth listening to for the peoples around the world."

What draws a man of Murrow's public stature and acclaim into a business like that of the agency? How can he be satisfied to produce a product never consumed by the American people, his audience throughout his career?

When asked if he misses his long-popular network television show "Person to Person," Murrow replies quickly: "Not a bit. This business is much too interesting."

Though a North Carolina native, Murrow's visits to the Tar Heel state in recent years have been necessarily limited. His family moved from a Guilford County farm to the West Coast when Murrow was only eight. He completed his formal education there upon graduation from Washington State University. His widowed mother still lives in the nation's most northwestern state.

Murrow carries with him an impressive appearance. Alternately cool and warm dark eyes peer through bushy eyebrows as he discusses his new business. A gray pinstripe suit draped his rugged-looking six-foot-plus frame during Murrow's visit here. A pastel blue shirt was a reminder of his on-camera days.

Clock-like cigaret smoking, long a trademark of the Edward R. Murrow personality, drew questions from Greenvilleites eager to learn the man. "I smoke four or five packs a day, depending on the length of the day," he told one newsmen, then added: "Filthy habit, isn't it?"

He remembered in the pre-World War II days when he quit smoking for one month each year. "Just to practice self-discipline," he said. "But, when I was in London in 1939 and the war broke out, I gave that up. There were just too many other things to worry about."

Before sitting down to a quail dinner at the Greenville Country Club Friday, Murrow took time to visit the kitchen and watch the cook prepare the birds. This morning he tried his own hand at tagging quail as he was the guest of a Beaufort County hunting party.

At one point during his Friday morning tour of VOA Site A at Leggett's Crossroads, Murrow commented on the recent publication in the Soviet newspaper Izvestia of President Kennedy's interview with Khrushchev's son-in-law: "I doubt that this means any great breaking down of the Iron Curtain as it concerns us. But Izvestia has a circulation of about four or five million. The Communist Party leaders read it. One thing was significant about it to us: the reaction to it in the rest of the world was quite remarkable."

He said Russian radio was busy Thursday and Thursday night answering the points Kennedy made in the Izvestia interview.

Throughout his visit here, Murrow quietly but firmly emphasized the advantage of his agency's opportunity to accentuate the positive. "We're lucky," he said. "We don't have to spend our funas on programs to jam Communist broadcasts. Whatever they want to send into America is all right with us. We're not afraid for Americans to hear the Communist lies."

But a reversal of the situation reveals a quite different tale. Murrow points out. He told newsmen the fact that the Russian budget for jamming VOA programs exceeds the entire USIA appropriation "seems to be clear evidence that the Communists fear the truth . . . and that's all we can send over there."

All About Town

With Anne Mattox

Announcement is made today of the forthcoming nuptials of Rosalie Moore and John Trotman of Greenville.

The couple met at the Daily Reflector, where Rosalie is employed as a staff member and John in the composing room. Working at the Reflector, the couple have known each other several years, but only recently became interested in each other.

Rosalie received her engagement ring August 31 and they are now planning a February 3 wedding in the Immanuel Baptist Church. The wedding date is significant due to the fact that they began dating on the third of the month.

Betty Faye Moore will marry Greenville's Roy Martin December 23 in Raleigh. They started dating last year when Bob Johnson of Ayden and Janet Arnold of Raleigh were married, both Betty Faye and Roy were in the wedding party.

Alumni of East Carolina College graduating Spring quarter, Betty Faye now teaches in Winterville and Roy flatboats it in the Army. Roy was once a member of the Sports Staff at the Reflector and was editor of the Rebel, a college literary magazine. Betty Faye was a marshal and President of the Sigma Sigma Sigma at ECC.

William De La Mater of Balboa, Canal Zone, will arrive Sunday for a short visit with his mother, Mrs. Ann De La Mater, after which he will go to California for Christmas with his sister and friends, and then return to Panama by way of Mexico City and Guatemala City. Bill is employed by the Panama Canal Company as Management Engineer and is a member of the Executive Planning Staff.

Being the first ones to complete their home in Lakewood Pines, Richard G. Culbertson, better known as Dick, was dubbed the Mayor; but upon the subdivision being taken into the city, he is now the ex-Mayor.

The Culbertsons who live at 223 Pineview Drive, have made their home here since 1952 coming from Martinsville, Va. "Woodleaf" as their home is called, is derived from Mr. Culbertson's birthplace, a town near Salisbury.

Mrs. Culbertson said that "we just liked this section to build in because of the woods and it was convenient to the Dupont plant." She said "there never was a time that we brought up the subject of whether to retire in Greenville, Dick just liked it and I do too."

Being a retired Navy captain and a Dupont, Mr. Culbertson has had a lot of training during war years with being content wherever he was sent, and he is content with retirement, Mrs. Culbertson said. He has a workshop in back of the garage where he spends many hours, as well as gardening. He makes frequent visits to the Dupont plant.

Mrs. Culbertson, who likes to pickle, enjoys refinishing furniture and loves to go "antiquing" as is evident in the lovely antiques she has in their home. A member of the Lakewood Pines Garden Club she likes to arrange flowers and sew for their three grandchildren.

The Culbertsons have one son Richard K., a Lt. Commander in the Naval Reserve stationed at Norfolk.

"Retired" in word only, the Culbertsons stay busy with their many pleasures, relaxing and just enjoying life.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Foley are spending the weekend with former neighbors in Winston-Salem. While there they will attend the Moravian Candle Tea held each year at Old Salem. On Sunday they will go to Sedgfield Inn in Greensboro for the annual Savings and Loan Managers Conference.

Buddy Murray's "Buccaners" supplied the music for the annual Sophomore Dance Friday at the Moose Lodge.

Using the theme "Sophisticated Swing," the sophomores, who sponsored the dance, decorated the lodge with a nightclub atmosphere, using silhouettes of musical instruments and dancing couples on the wall and a huge black record with the theme written on it to decorate the stage. Favors of miniature top hats and canes were given to each person.

Nancy Tribble, Myra Dupree, and Betty Lee Carr presented the winning theme, and therefore helped to head the steering committee. Miss Deane B. Haskett was faculty chairman of the dance.

Judy Webb and Eileen Stell co-chaired the decoration committee while Jean French headed the advertising committee. Miss Maude Ann Webb and Miss Nancy Brown were faculty advisers of the dance.

In charge of decorations: Mrs. Christine W. Tripp advised the advertising committee.

Margaret Rumley headed the chaperone committee under the direction of Miss Deane B. Haskett, and Chuck Blissett chaired the clean-up committee with Robert G. Mulder as faculty adviser.

Mrs. Mary A. Hendrix was in charge of the refreshments.

Talent Show Sponsors

The Haskett chapter of the National Honor Society and the 1961 marshals sponsored the first annual talent show and hobo convention November 28.

After the members of the organizations, dressed in hobo outfits, had entered the gymnasium, William Allen, master of ceremonies, introduced Jake Gaskins who played "Concerto in F."

Martha Henderson, Pat Carter, and Anna White sang "Young and Foolish" and "Moonlight" after which Frankie Lamm performed an acrobatic routine. Brenda Thippen, who accompanied the trio, played "Exodus."

Underscoring Worth Of The VOA

The visit of Edward R. Murrow to Pitt and Beaufort Counties to inspect the Voice of America radio transmitter facilities being constructed here emphasizes the importance of these installations to this country and the free world.

As head of the U.S. Information Agency, Mr. Murrow is responsible for the Voice of America which is a division of the agency. And, as he explained to local citizens at a luncheon yesterday, the facilities, when completed, will be the most powerful instrument in the free world to broadcast truth to people throughout the world.

The conflicting ideologies of democracy and communism are in a battle for men's minds, and the outcome of the struggle will be determined by which wins dominant support of peoples throughout the world. In contrast with the gigantic propaganda machine used by the communists, the U.S. Information Agency, Mr. Murrow said, uses and will continue to use truth.

So long as the United States follows this course, it may be sure that the confidence of the people of the world in what the official voice of our government says overseas will continue to rise. If, on the other hand, we should depart from this course, the time and effort put into building the information program would be lost. That the world is hungry for truth and that the communist tyrants are afraid for their people to have access to the truth is borne out by the fact that the Soviets are spending more each year to jam American overseas broadcasts than the United States is spending to broadcast its programs.

In the long-range struggle between freedom and communism, the battle of words and information will play an increasingly large part in the outcome. And this locality, as the site of the most powerful transmitters in the free world broadcasting truth to captive and uncommitted countries, will have an increasingly important role in the efforts.

Every Possible Route To Thwart The Law

Refusal of the communist party in the United States to register in accordance with a ruling of the Supreme Court is a clear indication that the Reds, who have made such an issue over their "constitutional rights" in the past, are interested in the constitution only as it helps them to obtain their goal of overthrowing constitutional government in this country.

Through 10 years of litigation between the time Congress passed the McCarran Act and its affirmation by the Supreme Court last June, the communists have made a big to-do about their individual rights under the constitution. They have explored and exploited every possible route to thwart the law which the Justice Department now seeks to enforce. And now that the Supreme Court has declared the act a part of the law of the land under the constitution, they seek to defy it.

The American people are thus provided a clear example of the double standard policy that is a part of the communist philosophy. For years they have said the constitution guaranteed them the right to carry on whatever activities they wished with immunity to the law. Now that the highest judicial body of the land has upheld the law requiring party officials to register with the Justice Department, they show their contempt for constitutional government by open defiance of the law.

Certainly the Justice Department should exert every possible effort in enforcing this law which the communist organization in the United States seeks to defy. The department has that obligation to the other Americans who not only live under the constitution, but believe in it and support it.

Neither Taking Shots At Other

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev, despite all the heat over Berlin, have kept their own personal relationship as restrained as a minuet.

Nevertheless, the No. 1 mystery is why Khrushchev has quieted down. The meeting between the two men in Vienna last June 3-4 was, on the surface, a pleasant session in which they sought to know each other. Underneath it was about as tough as a meeting can be.

It was there, face to face with Kennedy, that Khrushchev began the Berlin crisis by demanding the city be henceforth "free." He predicted the eventual triumph of communism through wars of "liberation."

For months afterward Khrushchev worked overtime to force Kennedy back on his heels with speeches, talks, bombast, and building the Berlin wall, and finally, resuming nuclear tests.

Kennedy, reporting on his meeting when he returned home, said the United States would stand firm. He added that Khrushchev should not be blamed for all the world's troubles, outlining a program to resist communism by election, and began a military buildup.

Since then Kennedy has talked repeatedly of his determination not to let Khrushchev get away with Berlin.

But never, in all this long-range and often long-winded dialogue, has either man said an unfriendly or derogatory word about the other. This has left the door open for future reasonable dealings.

Khrushchev even sent his newspaperman son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubei, over here to interview Kennedy at White House request, giving the President a chance to state his position in full in the Russian government newspaper, Izvestia.

Khrushchev had the same relationship with President Eisenhower until the American U2 spy plane, brought down over Russia, embarrassed him. Then he belittled Eisenhower and broke up the 1960 summit meeting.

In the current situation, this is the big puzzle:

Why Khrushchev, from about the time the 22nd Communist party congress met in Moscow last October, suddenly quieted down on Berlin and even postponed indefinitely the deadline for a settlement which he wanted by year's end.

There have been suggestions he did it because he was having so much trouble at home.

That makes no sense. He was master of the congress, got endorsement for humbling old diehard Bolsheviks like Molotov and so thoroughly discredited the image of Stalin that the old dictator's body was removed from its tomb.

A more reasonable assumption might be that he had so much work to do at the congress that he needed a vacation from Berlin.

Nor could his troubles with Red China and tiny Albania, which seem to think he's not aggressive enough, look like a factor in cooling off his ardor on Berlin. He's not about to have war with Red China, Albania hardly counts.

It would be more reasonable to think Khrushchev's show of determination persuaded Khrushchev not to push the Berlin business to an explosion.

Any suggestion about Khrushchev's motive for quieting down on Berlin is sheer guessing.

Here is another: That when he put up the wall shutting off West Berlin from East Berlin and the West failed to do anything about it—he had won a major point anyway and could relax.

Meaning: He wanted to make the West acknowledge that communism completely controls East Germany and East Berlin—and the West isn't going to do anything about it. By bowing to the reality of the wall, the West admitted his point.

From the very beginning of this dispute the Russians have

All Thirty-Six Pictures

TV viewers who remember watching Ed Murrow interview personalities via camera, were often struck by Murrow's consistent cigarette-smoking.

If there was ever any doubt in anyone's mind about whether this was an "identification gimmick" or a real habit, read further.

Yesterday, two Reflector staffers (Savage and Howard) trailed the visiting USIA Director from the time of his arrival in Washington until shortly before press time. This was done in relays. Between the pair, thirty-six pictures were taken of the visitor being greeted, speaking, listening, seeing, and what not. In every one of the pictures, Edward R. Murrow had a cigarette in his hand.

Somebody's curiosity evidently got the best of them, because Henry Howard says the word is that Murrow smokes four or five packs of cigarettes a day. "depending on how long the day."

Manufacturers of his favorite brand would have a small treasure with the Murrow endorsement.

The story-teller was laughing when he told it; but his point was that it may, and may not. . . be Clarence Stasavich you see on the street.

No less than three persons greeted Howard Stasavich one day this week, mistaking him for East Carolina's new coach.

One thing Stasavich and Stasavich do have in common: both played football.

Presuming that pay scales in this country are (relatively) highest in the world; what would you guess to be the American scale for orbiting the world twice in outer space?

Well, I'll tell you. It's two oranges and two apples.

That's what Enos, the chimp, received as his bonus for the feat. And because the little fellow was the first "on our side" to make the trip, he set a precedent for pay scales in the field.

Come to think of it, though, the two astronauts who rode their Mercury capsules downrange at Cape Canaveral, only got flying time pay for their jaunt. They weren't airborne very long, either.

If economies were the principal goal, the chimps would have a small talking point for the honor. At least one went a long way for two oranges and two apples.

Music is not for the softies. Years ago my teacher told me that; and an hour of learning his kind of music proved his point.

His pupils were wrung out and hung up to dry after each session.

He'd say that athletes, . . . all other things being equal, . . . holding the best potential of becoming musicians if they weren't lazy. He never put it into so many words, but I've often suspected there was a hidden emphasis on the phrase "if they weren't lazy"; because music and learning to play an instrument calls for physical endurance, a single-minded approach, dedication to the cause of perfection.

The athlete with these qualities most frequently devotes them to sports; he can't serve two masters. And "the professor" couldn't quite forgive this age-old failing.

All this was recalled on watching Leonard Bernstein conduct the New York Symphony last evening. Bernstein is anything but a softy.

But during his concluding numbers the perspiration was flowing at a rate that reminded me of an all-star basketball forward who had been playing every minute of a crucial game in 100-degree temperatures.

No wonder the Better, Red-Dead people can find writers, as well as scientists, to sign their petitions.

Two authors probably think of the proposition as "Better read than dead." But these are men who have earned their fame by disqualifying themselves as spokesmen of the human race. Such languid and literary sleepwalkers are already dead. It would be superfluous to make them Red.

Now A Soviet Puppet

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn may not recall me but when she was a very young girl, in her early twenties, I knew her fairly well. When she was an excited, enthusiastic young woman who went to Paterson, New Jersey, as many of us did, for the silk workers.

Silk was then a dying industry in this country. It was the beginning of new fabrics, not quite as devastating as rayon, nylon, orlon and the numerous new fabrics which have altered industrial life throughout the world. But silk was having a very hard time and both the employers and the workers were being pushed to the wall. The Paterson strikes were taken over by the I.W.O. and the leader was Big Bill Hayward. Carlos Trescott and the youthful Elizabeth Gurley Flynn. They were not Communist; they were syndicalists, closer to anarchists than Socialists. However, Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, in due course, became a Communist and is now Chairman of the Communist Party of the United States.

She has just returned to the United States to be arrested in accordance with a Supreme Court decision and she has written a pitiful letter to "The New York Times" in which she describes her plight:

"I wonder if you will entertain the same admiring attitude toward the writer of this letter (as to Molotov), who at the age of 71 is returning to face my accusers under the McCarran Act. The simple truth is that I risk a life sentence since, the penalties under the McCarran (Smith) Act gave five years imprisonment and $10,000 fine for each day I refuse to register under the terms of a law that brands me a foreign agent."

The reference to the Russian who has returned to be sentenced for life is to Molotov and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn compares herself to Molotov who has for years served Soviet Russia as Minister of Foreign Affairs and a short time as Premier, although our lady has never served this country well or at all. She writes:

"Some may be facetious about my returning and suggest that possibly I should have remained in the Soviet Union. But it happens that I am an American. I love my native land and feel confident that there are millions of Americans who, whatever their political views, are also horrified at such monstrosities as the McCarran Act."

We usually assume that any course we set upon is right because we set upon it. Elizabeth Gurley Flynn was first arrested in Spokane, Washington in 1909, in a free speech fight. She has consistently fought for Leftist causes. It was shocking to many libertarians when she joined the Communist Party which is a totalitarian organization that abhors liberty and the rights of the individual. However, that was her choice and she has been consistent in following the Communist line through every twist and change she adored and abhorred Stalin and was a minion of Earl Browder, until he was thrown out of the Party. This is the disciplined life of a Party member, who emerges to a high position.

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn rejects the Congress of the United States; she rejects the Supreme Court of the United States; but she obeys the authority of the Communist Party. She is no longer free to think for herself, to choose for herself. Hers is to obey. She turned on her God and her church and she obeys Khrushchev and her Party. She obeys without the slightest deviation from the Party line.

This is a sad picture of a once free spirit, of a human being who once dared to assert herself and to take great risks. Those days are gone. They call her the Chairman of the Communist Party of the United States but she knows, as every Party member knows, that she is not the top official of the Party; that she is a front, to make speeches and write articles, but the instructions come from Moscow, from the Kremlin. And those orders are always designed to damage the United States.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

FOR GOD'S SAKE, THINK THIS OVER.

Shall we have world disarmament?

The word "disarmament" rings pleasantly in our ears. Because great armament has usually resulted in war, it is assumed that absence of armament will result in peace. But this is a delusion. The heart of man being as it is and the world organized as it is, disarmament at the present time would appear a dangerous delusion. Whether or not disarmament might be possible some time in the future no one can tell. To advocate its adoption now would be for the free world to extend an invitation to communism to come in and either cut our throats or fasten the iron collar about our necks.

The principle underlying disarmament is that if we do not pay any attention to war it will go away. This is not true. Communism could secretly hide, (regardless of any inspection system), enough bombs to blow the free world to pieces; and we can be sure that they would do so. Communism is a criminal conspiracy. It exists for the avowed purpose of bringing the whole of humanity under the domination of a few men for the benefit ostensibly of the workers of the world, but in reality for the purpose of allowing a few to dominate the life of the many. As a matter of fact it is only another instrument of tyranny.

Let us eagerly embrace every opportunity to reduce armament, but not to abolish it. Swords will someday be beaten into plowshares and spears into pruning hooks, but not under communism—under the Lord, working his powerful and righteous purposes in the hearts of men.

Disarmament is a mirage. It is the most dangerous of modern delusions.

A sharp rise in demand for steel is developing. The heavy demand for 1962 model autos combined with the gradual step-up in military requirements is pushing demand higher.

However, before the increase becomes fully effective, the holiday cutbacks will occur, and steel production during the Christmas and New Year's weeks will slump.

After that, look for a sharp rise in steel demand which, in turn, may see the establishment of the long-overdue steel price increase.

Here are other look-for's in business:

Truck sale rise: Demand for trucks as well as autos will rise after the first of the year. The need for replacements is reaching a cyclic high and new businesses are increasing, all pointing to higher demand for trucks.

plants. This has resulted in what may be called the "tertiary boycott," by which unions boycott products made in non-union plants.

Two recent decisions by the National Labor Relations Board found, in effect, that the distribution of "don't patronize" leaflets does not constitute restraint or coercion against truck companies. These rulings, if upheld, may completely change labor tactics. Unions, instead of maintaining secondary picket lines need only maintain leaflets—which may be more effective than secondary picketing.

Coal rising: Demand for coal is rising partly seasonal, partly because of the increase in demand for steel, hence coal. Look for marginal price increases in the next few weeks.

Tariff challenges: The Administration appears determined to lower American customs duties to permit freer trade with friendly nations. However, every industry, every business, should re-assess its own position in prospect of lower tariffs. If the penalties are more than can be borne, the best first step is to write, wire or phone local Congressmen and Senators. Many are accessible while home for the holidays.

COSTLIER POSTAGE: Business has long staved off increases in postal rates; it seems unlikely that even the massed power of magazine and direct-mail advertisers can avert increases during the next meeting of Congress. The two best bets for affected businesses are: (1) contact Senators and Representatives early and give them documented reasons for not raising rates and (2) plan to cope with higher rates when they become effective.

Costlier canned fish: Tighter supplies will tend to increase the price of both salmon and tuna in the canned fish market. Both consumers and distributors may profitably buy on price dips.

Higher poultry: You may have eaten your last 27-cent broilers, your last 35-cent turkey. Government curtailment of production next year may result in higher prices, but prices not exceed current prices for hamburger and boloney. See the good ads.

OLD PROMOTER PROPOSES THE ZERO-HOURS WEEK: "I have a great idea I'm sure the AFL-CIO will go for in a big way," the Old Promoter said when he dropped in today.

"A new fringe benefit, such as a champagne break every afternoon?"

"No, better than that. You know the unions are talking about a 32-hour or a 30-hour week. I have a sweeter idea: the zero-hours week."

"How can we get the nation's work done if nobody works?" I asked.

"Oh, everybody will keep on working, just as they do now. But they will do everything at time-and-a-half rates for overtime. Everybody will get a 50 per cent wage increase right away," the old one said.

Don't laugh, folks. Labor leaders read this column too.

Ayden Defeats Bel-Falk 74-41

The Ayden Tornadoes came out victorious last night in the first game of the season by downing Belvoir-Falkland 74-41. Ayden took an early lead and outscored the visitors throughout the game. At the end of the first half they were leading 36-15 with 23 of the first half points being scored in the second quarter.

Belvoir-Falkland made a good effort, but they were out-manned by Coach Stuart Tripp's Tornadoes. The outstanding defensive and offensive players for the Ayden club were Clem McLawnhorn, Wayne Dall, William Edwards and substitute Duane Gwynn. For Belvoir Falkland the outstanding boys were Allen Worthington and Melvin Nelson.

The high scorers for Ayden were McLawnhorn, Edwards, and Dall with 12 points each. Worthington led the scoring for Belvoir-Falkland with 14 points, 10 of which were scored from the foul line. Nelson also hit in the double figures for Belvoir.

Earlier in the night the Belvoir girls took a close game over the Ayden girls in the first overtime period when they scored one point to break the tie and win the game 33-32. Ayden took the lead in the first quarter, but the Eagles managed to pull ahead in the second quarter to lead at the half by one point. Oddly enough, the final margin was also one point.

Topping the scoring column for the Tornadoes was Dennis with 12 points. The high scorer for the visitors was Stepp with 22 of the 33 points scored for the victory.

The next game for Ayden will be at Winterville on Tuesday night while Belvoir-Falkland will host Chocowinity on the same night.

East Carolina College came out on the losing end last night in their first conference game in the '61-'62 basketball season.

The Pirates lost to the Catawba Indians by a score of 78-74. Coach Earl Smith and the Pirates had their hands full as Catawba proved to be an extra powerful opponent.

Behind at halftime 40-32, the Bucs came back strongly in the last stanza to cut Catawba's lead to two points. However, the Indians were able to keep the game just out of East Carolina's reach because of the fine shooting of Al Johnson and Tom Childress.

Pirates Take Early Lead

At the start of the game, East Carolina surged in front of the Indians with a six-point lead. This lead was short lived as the Indians made three quick baskets to tie the game. From this point through the first 14 minutes of play, the game was a seesaw battle. Catawba caught fire in the last few minutes of the first half to take the lead 40-32.

The Pirates came back in the last period behind the brilliant shooting of Richie Williams, a freshman from Muncie, Indiana. The fine ability of this player was not enough, however, as the Bucs were unable to overcome their opponents. East Carolina did cut the Indians' lead to two points, but then Catawba rallied to stay ahead.

Williams Leads Scoring

Richie Williams, who led the Pirates in scoring 22 points, was outstanding defensively as well as offensively. Williams stole the ball from the opponents several times and then dribbled down the court to score. Shooting with eight right or left hand jump shots, Williams kept the Indians on their toes most of the night. Benny Bowes and Bill Otte, with 14 and 13 points respectively, also displayed plenty of ability in their losing debut.

Otte Gets Rebounds

Otte, who led the team in rebounds with a total of 13, scored most of his points in the second half, putting his team in reach of the Indians.

Even though the Pirates fought desperately to overtake them, the Catawba Indians were able to maintain their lead.

Al Johnson, who was daffy accurate at the foul line, sank 13 straight free throws in the last half to keep the Indians ahead. Johnson, high scorer for Catawba with 29 points, was amazingly effective with his well-timed jump shots.

Snow Second High Scorer
Catawba captain Roger Snow was second high in the scoring department for the Indians with 17 points.

The Pirates, behind at the half, came back in the second stanza prepared to even the score. The Catawba Indians, however, slowed the game down and refused to let the Pirates have the ball. After East Carolina had pulled within six points of the Indians, Catawba held the Bucs scoreless for four minutes. Richie Williams then stole the ball and sank a lay-up to set the score 56 to 51.

With eight minutes left in the game, Williams sank two foul shots to advance the Pirates within three points of the Catawba Indians. This is as close as East Carolina could come until the last minute when Bill Otte sank a field goal. Otte's two points set the score 74 to 72. Al Johnson and Jim Sessoms, a substitute forward, set the game out of East Carolina's reach with a field goal and two free throws.

Pirates Have Foul Trouble

East Carolina was badly crippled because Richie Williams and three Pirate starters fouled out in the last six minutes of the ball game.

The Pirates will have little time to contemplate the loss to Catawba, for tonight they go up against their first Southern Conference opponent. The Citadel, expected tonight for the loss they suffered last year at the hands of The Citadel.

Navy Has Won Nerve Battle

By BOB HOOBING

Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Regardless of the final score, Navy clearly has won the battle of nerves preceding today's Army-Navy football game.

The 62nd nationally televised service clash—ABC-TV, 1:30 p.m. (EST)—expected a sellout crowd of nearly 100,000 including President John F. Kennedy.

Pregame pressure on Army was tremendous. The Cadets had won only once in the previous five years and had lost two in a row. So electric was the atmosphere at West Point that Coach Dale Hall had to move the Army team to the Philadelphia area long before planned.

"We want to get the team settled down before the game time," Hall explained.

In a slightly more quiet if no less dedicated atmosphere at Annapolis, Navy Coach Wayne Hardin boldly answered West Point yells of "Sink the Navy" with a "Psych the Army" campaign.

Hardin said Army had the better personnel man for man while praising the hustle of his own players. He publicly thanked Hall for a "We'll beat Navy" statement which produced added ammunition in the Middle camp.

More than that, Hardin had some last minute revelations. Navy believes it knows what play Army will use the first time it has the ball.

"We've been practicing a defense against it for three weeks," Hardin added with a grin.

Hardin also said he expected Army to come out with some variation of the shotgun offense, making liberal use of George Kirschenbauer who has been injured most of the season.

Hardin also sent Navy hoppers soaring when he said hopped captain John Hewitt, out since the Duke game with a twisted knee, might play more than previously expected.

The teams, claiming identical 6-3 records, were rated even.

Cavaliers Have A Chance To Finish Near The Top

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Virginia's Cavaliers, who already have won more football games this season than in any season since 1952, faced North Carolina today with a chance to finish in the first division of the Atlantic Coast Conference for the first time.

A Virginia victory would give the Cavaliers a tie with Maryland and Clemson for second place in the conference. Clemson and Maryland have finished with 3-3 records.

The Virginia - North Carolina game at Chapel Hill, N.C., and Duke's game with Notre Dame at Durham, N.C., bring the ACC football season to an end.

The Virginia - North Carolina game is the 66th in a series dating back to 1892. North Carolina holds the upper hand in the series with 36 victories to 26 for the Cavaliers. There have been three ties.

Both teams had 4-5 records going into the game, while North Carolina had a 3-3 worksheet for conference play, and Virginia's 2-3 record.

A Virginia victory would give the Cavaliers a tie with Maryland and Clemson for second place in the conference. Clemson and Maryland have finished with 3-3 records.

Duke, the conference champion, was rated a slight favorite in the game with the Irish. The Blue Devils have won six of nine games this season, and Notre Dame has won five of nine.

The Irish beat Duke 9-7 in 1958, in the only previous meeting of the two teams.

Duke-Va. Both Win Openers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Duke and Virginia got the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball season under way by beating outside opposition Friday night, and the rest of the conference teams open tonight.

Duke, with Art Heyman tossing in 31 points, blasted Florida 80-58, and Virginia scored an easy 82-53 victory over Washington and Lee.

Virginia faces North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N.C., in tonight's only conference game.

In other games, North Carolina State plays host to Tennessee, defending ACC champion Wake Forest, ranked third in the pre-season AP poll, entertains Davidson, Maryland plays at Penn State, South Carolina at Lenoir Rhyne, and Clemson plays host to Virginia Military.

Duke, ranked seventh in the pre-season Associated Press poll, led by only 34-30 at the half, but the fast-breaking Blue Devils poured it on in the second half and quickly built up a commanding lead.

Heyman hit on 11 of 23 field goal attempts, and added 9 of 12 from the free throw line. Bob Mewhort scored 13 for the Blue Devils. Florida was led by Cliff Luyk with 27 points.

Virginia raced to a 42-23 lead at the half and was never in trouble. The Cavaliers were led by Gene Engel with 18 points. Dick Katstra, a 6-9 sophomore, tossed in 15 for Virginia.

Distrusts Soviet Nuclear Goals

NEW YORK (AP)—Arthur H. Dean, the chief U.S. delegate at the nuclear test-ban talks in Geneva, says the Soviets are not interested in easing world tensions. "They want world communism," he said.

Dean spoke with newsmen Friday after alighting from a jet airliner that made two passes over Idlewild Airport for a landing gear check before setting down without incident.

Dean, asked whether tension at the test-ban talks had been eased by the appearance in the Soviet press of an interview with President Kennedy, replied: "There is no such thing as easing tensions with these people—they want world communism."

Dean added, however, "in this game you have to be optimistic."

Dean said the United States would not accept an uncontrolled or unsupervised moratorium on nuclear testing as proposed by the Soviets.

He noted that the last moratorium had been violated by the Soviet Union, and said he believed the Soviets "want another moratorium until they are ready to test again."

Blame Shortage On Radio Station

BERLIN (AP)—There's a shortage of salt in East Germany. The Communists blame an American radio station.

Neues Deutschland, the official Communist daily, accused the radio station RIAS in the American sector of quoting "so-called scientists as saying that one should bathe in salt and put it on one's head in order to get protection against atomic radiation. People who listen to RIAS then go crazy and begin to lay away supplies of salt. And salt is temporarily sold out in our shops."

A spokesman for RIAS said the paper's charges are "sheer invention."

Student Claims A Record For Pogo-Stick Jumping

By PATRICIA MOORE

Reflector Staff Writer

Any challengers for the pogo jumping record?

James Shuman, 20, of East Carolina College is claiming the record in the eastern part of the state for jumping 501 times without stepping on floors or leaning against anything. His feat was witnessed by faculty members.

"I would like to see some people challenge me," he said. "Meanwhile, he'll keep right on jumping."

The whole business about pogo stick jumping started this year as college fads were being discussed, and somebody thought East Carolina College ought to get in on the act. The pogo stick apparently originated with Dr. C. H. Rickert, who is director of television for E.C.C.

Shuman went home to Charlotte for Thanksgiving and dug out his pogo stick, given to him for Christmas about five years ago. He practiced jumping twice at his home.

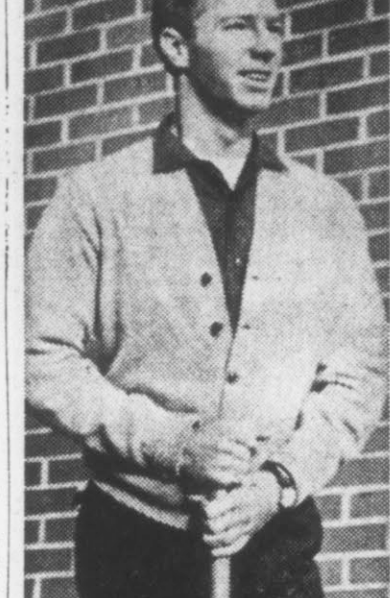

Then he returned to Greenville and the college and jumped 229 successive times. The second jump was longer—501 times.

Now he's challenging anyone to try to beat his record.

Nobody seems to know exactly what the world's pogo jumping record is, or exactly what classification you'd put pogo in. Sports says it's not sports; it's not exactly a society. Apparently it is a "thing."

The secret of successful pogo stick jumping is balance. Shuman says. A junior and industrial arts major at E.C.C., he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don W. Shuman of 254 Tranquil Ave., Charlotte.

And a pogo stick, in case you wondered, is a tall stick with two foot pedals. You get on and jump.

Three Charges Confront Driver

A 32-year-old South Carolina Negro woke up in Pitt County Jail today after being arrested for drunken driving, reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident last night by Highway Patrolmen.

Trooper W. L. Whitehead of Greenville said Lester Cooper, Jr. of Chesnee, S.C. was arrested on the three charges after he drove six miles from the scene of a collision, about five miles east of Greenville on N.C. 30.

Pit. Whitehead reported the Cooper vehicle struck the left rear of a car being operated by Curtis David Bullock, 32 of Route 5, Greenville, as it was attempting to pass the Bullock auto.

Cooper's car careened off the Bullock car, then crossed a ditch and traveled out into a field for 84 yards. The Negro then drove the vehicle back across the field and ditch, stopped to talk with Bullock for a short period, then drove off.

Pit. Whitehead said Cooper was located about six miles from the scene of the collision. His car had been stopped when a front tire blew out.

Damage to Bullock's car was estimated to be about $150 while an estimated $200 damage was done to the Cooper vehicle.

Cooper was placed in county jail under a $500 bond on the three charges.

Beaunit Mills Trainee Class Works Around Clock

By MARTI MARTIN
Reflector Staff Writer

At 3 a.m. in the cold of night the lights are on in the Robersonville Wilson building and there is an eerie whir of machinery.

This building, in the heart of downtown Robersonville, is presently housing the trainee classes for Beaunit Mills, Inc. In charge of the operation is J. Harold Love, who will be plant manager of the multi-million dollar Beaunit Mill which is expected to be completed by February in Hamilton.

This training facility is a branch of the Wilson Industrial Training Center in Wilson and the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction. In particular, this branch is for the express purpose of training knitting personnel for the Beaunit Plant.

Manager Love stated that the present class, consists of 12 knitting fixers who work on eight hour shifts, 24 hours around the clock. "The men must complete 480 hours of training," Love said, "and this generally runs into a 12 week training program for each class."

"The men have to learn the various parts of the different types of machinery and how to repair them. Not only must the knitting fixers be able to repair the machines, but they must also be able to operate them."

"Each man in the class must learn to distinguish between the different denier and yarns, for if they are mixed on the machine irregularities will occur. They must also learn to set stitches, make style changes in the knitting pattern such as ring cams, needle pressers and presser cams."

"There are very few workers," said Love, "in this area who are experienced with this type of machinery. We hope to employ approximately 500 workers in the eastern North Carolina area and the only way it can be none is through training."

The first class began in October and the next class, which will be for knitting operators, is expected to be started within the next few weeks. All other classifications will be trained in the plant on the job.

The present class of knitting fixers are coming from such towns as Williamston, Greenville, Washington, Oak City, Robersonville, and Hobgood. Some of the men are holding down regular jobs and still working the eight hour shifts, five days a week. Attending training classes from Robersonville are Murphy Smith, Richard Alexander and Kenneth Roberson.

Housed inside the training building are 42 machines used in the training program. Three instructors, Fred Pohlman, John Henderson and Thurman Leffell are on duty to aid in the training program.

Beaunit Mills manufacture sportswear, outerwear, under garments, upholstery padding, brush fabric for coat lining, pajamas, robes and etc.

"This training program is to teach the men to keep the machinery in order and to make the best cloth that we can produce," Love stated, "and I believe the plant is going to have an important place in the future economic well being of the county in as much as present many of the young people have to leave the area after school because of the lack of employment due to the rapid mechanization of farming."

The brick work is just about completed at the new Hamilton plant and other types of construction were being rushed. Some of the machinery has already been placed in the building and is being spotted for the erectors.

When the plant opens it is expected the Mills will have 500 knitting machines being operated at full capacity

Marksman, Gun Care, Safety Are All Part Of Junior Rifle Club

ASSEMBLY ROOM RIFLE RANGE . . . provides weekly opportunity for fledgling marksmen to practice accuracy and basic safety rules in handling firearms. Optimist-sponsored project has attracted 37 Greenville youngsters. (Reflector Staff Photo)

As the 1961 hunting season hits its stride, safety in the handling of rifles and shotguns again becomes a point for valuable emphasis.

Hunters quite frequently develop a "sixth sense" when it comes to handling their firearms. Consequently, many gamesmen during hunting season are blessed with a constant and acute awareness of the dangers inherent in careless handling or misuse of weapons that can be quite deadly.

While some may attempt to argue that this sense of "handle with care" will develop among hunters anyhow; quite likely very few would dispute the value of training in gun safety, especially among the youngsters.

At least one organization in the Greenville area goes about the weekly business of training and instructing local boys in the proper use of firearms.

The Greenville Junior Rifle Club, sponsored by the city's chapter of Optimist International, conducts its Thursday training-practice sessions in the U.S. Army Reserve Armory adjacent to the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

A recent head count shows a total of 37 Greenville youngsters between ages 12 and 18 participate in the program.

Launched by the Optimist Club — Greenville's newest civic organization — the rifle club provides an opportunity for fledgling hunters and marksmen to practice their gunmanship under capable supervision.

Gene Ward, a charter member of the Optimist Club, has engineered the organization for young riflemen from its beginning more than two years ago. Now a member in good standing of the National Rifle Association, the local junior rifle club divides its time between classroom work — urging and explaining safety in gunhandling — and closely-supervised target practice on the firing line.

Ward, who owns and operates a Greenville machine and metal work's business, generals the boys through their paces for about two hours each Thursday night.

They learn the fundamentals of handling and caring for weapons. In target practice they learn accepted, recommended firing position and the most practical method to be efficient in each. Progress records are kept.

The junior rifle organization is open to any Greenville youths within its age range. The Optimist Club and the Army Reserve join hands to provide equipment and facilities for the weekly meetings.

Thursday nights are busy and noisy ones at the armory. The modern structure's spacious assembly room serves as an indoor rifle range with targets mounted in traps at one end. Classroom work for the boys is conducted in the armory's classrooms.

Safety in handling the rifles is a paramount objective with Ward and others — including Optimist members and Army Reserve personnel — who help tutor the boys. It is the basic rule emphasized by the program.

While a by-product of the rifle club has been formation of competitive shoot-for-accuracy teams, a primary benefit from the weekly sessions has been the influence of the training of the youngsters when they become outdoors gamblers.

Ward sums it up: "The boys are interested in shooting practice and learn how to engage in a great sport. . . and they learn how to do it right. . . and safely."

That so-called "sixth sense" of safety in gunhandling may indeed be inherent in hunters; but the Optimists and Reservists are finding that the training program for youngsters, whatever it may do, most definitely does not cramp the young marksman's style.

Ward sums it up: "The boys enjoy it. We may not be doing them a great amount of good, but we're certainly not hurting them."

Education Chief Going To School

NASHVILLE (AP) — What is Tennessee's state commissioner of education doing these days? He's going to school.

Commissioner Joe Morgan has been attending classes at Peabody College the past two years, working for a doctorate in education. The 47-year-old commissioner, who has held the state post since 1959, received a master of arts degree from Peabody three years ago.

Gov. Buford Ellington, Morgan's boss, expressed pride that his commissioner is man "so tremendously interested in education."

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

Here it is, only eighteen more shopping days before Christmas.

But, thank goodness, there are also four non-shopping days in there, when the people who shop and those who keep shops can relax over a good magazine or book — if there are no Christmas cards to address or letters to Santa Claus to write.

The just-received issue of Harper's, for instance, is magnificent all the way from a stimulating collection of letters to the Editor to a new poem by Ogden Nash. And the new Atlantic is good too, especially an article analyzing Lawrence Sanders and his quartet of Alexandrian novels.

But to get back to Harper's, John Fischer in the Editor's Easy Chair column draws up his special list of Christmas honors for some special people who have performed meritoriously for mankind since the Christmas past. He pays tribute, for example, to the lady from Rockland County, New York, who persuaded some 75 scientists, artists, writers, and lawyers to help enrich the program in the local high school by acting as consultants for classes and individual students. The movement is spreading like a brush fire in dry weather. Let's hope that it spreads this way.

Fischer also passes kudos to Shell Oil for discontinuing its budget for billboard advertising, thereby withdrawing its support from the "Eyesore Industry," as he calls it, and at the same time throwing it to a vital American institution, the press.

In the field of sports, Fischer honors the witch doctors of Southern Rhodesia, who work with local soccer teams. They supply the teams with magic charms to insure victory for them. However, if a team loses too steadily it may fire its witch doctor and replace him with another. Nothing is said about character building.

According to the Saturday Review, proof has been tracked down that Stalin was a poet in his youth, and not a very good one, just as Hitler was not a very good painter. The tracker was Harrison Salisbury of the New York Times, and he found Stalin's verse buried in some obscure journals, written not in Russian, but in the language of Georgia; USSR, that is. One of them goes this way:

Now it is always night.
Let the moon shine to awaken all people.
Poor people live under the moon in cold and ice.

This was written in 1895, long before poor people started living under the fallout — or under ape-driven satellites which might be mistaken for the moon.

A current book which is receiving wide attention is "The Age of Churchill," written by a German called De Mendelssohn. The reviews are mixed, to say the least. In the Herald Tribune it is hailed as "one of the most electrifying biographies of our time." Denis Brogan in the Times, however, though he admits that the work has merits, calls the author "one of the most inaccurate writers I have read in recent years."

Anyhow, this book contains some good anecdotes, true or not. One of the best is an account of an exchange between Bernard Shaw and Churchill at a moment, 50 years ago, when Churchill's brashness had raised the ire of nearly everyone in the British Establishment.

Shaw sent Churchill two tickets for the first-night performance of one of his plays, along with a note saying, "Bring a friend if you still have one."

Churchill replied immediately, explaining that he was too busy to attend the first night but that he would come to the second performance "if there still is one."

The calendar for the week is full of dates to be circled. Here they are in order:

Dec. 5, Tuesday. George Garrett, a real live poet, will appear at the College to give a public reading of his works. Mr. Garrett, who teaches at Rice, has several books to his credit. His stop at the College is but one in his sweep through the major institutions of the State. Time is 7:30 in Austin.

December 7, Wednesday. Wolfgang Fetsch will give a piano recital in Austin at 8:15. Dr. Fetsch, who teaches at the College, is a fine artist with wide concept experience. The program will include works by Bach, Beethoven, Schumann, and other composers of stature.

December 8, Friday. In Wright Auditorium the Columbus Boychoir will give a concert as part of the College Entertainment Series. This is a veteran outfit which has sung with Toscanini and toured widely. It should be good.

Quick Checklist For Yourself

By DORMAN CORDELL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — A do-it-yourself test for mental health?

There are eight definite attributes of mental health, according to Miss Margaret Marshall, an instructor in psychological nursing.

By setting up a scale for each attribute and measuring himself against it, a person can get at least some idea of his own mental health, Miss Marshall told the New Jersey State Nurses Association.

Miss Marshall, who teaches at the Rutgers University College of Nursing, said the eight attributes are:

1. The ability to work productively at a job with a minimum amount of stress.

2. The ability to move about well with the members of one's community.

3. The ability to cope with emotions as they arise in daily living.

4. The awareness of the behavioral pattern used to reduce anxiety and the tendency to reinforce or perpetuate the pattern that proves to be most effective in preserving equanimity.

5. The ability to change or modify behavior to make it appropriate to the situation in which one finds himself.

6. The ability to move smoothly among the many roles involved in living.

7. The ability and self-assurance to form heterosexual relations.

8. A comprehensive and realistic knowledge of oneself individually.

Food And Flowers In His Pockets

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Wherever he goes, not grass but corn and marigold grow under the feet of James MacFarland, a Connecticut Yankee assigned to the American embassy here.

So much has come from the seed the amateur gardener has sown, in fact, that he has already become a legend in this young nation.

A former newsman, MacFarland joined the U. S. Information Agency after World War II ended, filling posts in Montreal, Istanbul, Ankara, Geneva, Frankfurt and Hamburg. After a two-year tour of duty in Washington, he was transferred here.

Everywhere he went he had seeds in his pocket which eventually blossomed into food and flowers.

In his backyard in a middle-class community some five miles north of here, his garden processes flowered into money for the Shalem, an Israel society for the care of 2,500 cerebral palsied children.

So much more tasty was his golden bantam American sweet corn than the original native variety, that he found a profitable market for it among other embassy staffers. The $150 proceeds were turned over to Mrs. Simeon Greenberger, treasurer of Shalem.

Now MacFarland is busily scattering his corn seeds over some 40 acres of the Greenberger farm. Shalem is expected to benefit handsomely next harvest time for Israeli hotels, restaurants and supermarkets have already put in orders for the corn.

Along the garden fences of the residential section here are more MacFarland signatures, bright patches of Hawaiian marigold. The seeds were distributed by the young American when this year's annual flower show was opened in Haifa in April.

The first progress report came from an amateur gardener at Ellat, Israel's Red Sea port, who said he had never seen such a marvel before.

Then came other enthusiastic reports from less tropical parts of the country. Although Israel has a local marigold, it does not compare with MacFarland's import—an immigrant plant that grows four to five feet high with a floral diameter sometimes half a foot.

MERGER TALKS APPROVED
KANSAS CITY (AP) — The International Convention of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) has agreed to discuss the possibility of eventual merger with the United Church of Christ, Mead a recent merger.

CORNY PLOT . . . James MacFarland and two Israeli youngsters visit flourishing new crop.

ANCIENT IRONS

POMPTON LAKES, N. J. (AP)—George J. Moss knows where to go if he wants his pants pressed. He has more than 200 antique flatirons in his home, some dating back nearly 200 years.

Moss estimates his irons are worth about $2,500 cash. But, he adds, they are also of value as conversation pieces.

Sales amount to a million television sets a year in Japan.

THE GREEN STONE

A suspense thriller by
SUZANNE BLANC

CHAPTER 32
The waiter brought drinks for Inspector Menendez and Sergeant Roberto.

"I really shouldn't," the sergeant said, but he took a sip and continued sheepishly. "Inspector, I've been thinking. It's just an idea, but it seems strange to me that out of all the tourists in San Luis, this one woman would have her purse snatched and her tires ripped both in the same day."

He had the inspector's attention now.

"I've been reading the series of lectures you gave at the University," Roberto said. "And over and over you stressed the fact that nothing in police work can be dismissed as coincidence."

The inspector was flattered. It had never occurred to him that the sergeant could be interested enough in his theories to dig old copies of them out of the files or, having found them, would consider them worth studying. "Yes, I did say something like that, something to the effect that hidden threads often tie together apparently unrelated events—but in this case what could the threads be?"

"Well," the sergeant began uncertainly. "It sounds pretty far-fetched. But what if this woman is a spy—or a smuggler? Let's say she's carrying something valuable, dope, maybe, or a large sum of money that someone knows about. Her purse is stolen but returned without being rifled. The woman is alarmed and will probably leave San Luis before another attempt can be made."

"And what better way to stop her," the inspector picked up the line of logic and carried it on, "than to damage her car in some way?"

The sergeant nodded. Already his reasoning was beginning to sound melodramatic and stupid.

"I said it was far-fetched," he ended doubtfully. "You said she was a friend of the mayor's."

"Everyone is a friend of the mayor's," the inspector commented dryly. "It would be amusing, wouldn't it, if the woman turned out to be some kind of a criminal? It wouldn't hurt to check with the border and find out exactly who she is." He drained his beer, threw some money on the table. "I think I'll go back to headquarters with you. I'd like to check that map, and there may be some difficulty getting the men we decide on."

Underneath he knew that he was grasping at an excuse not to go home, that tonight, of all nights, he did not want to face Theresa's complaints, that his worries and her aversion could spark an explosion that later he would regret. In his own world of authority, planning the hunt for the Jewels, he could at least maintain an illusion of optimism.

The sun had dipped behind the trees, its last rays trimming the leaves with shining lights. Cool shadows crept across the earth and, as always, after the torpid, silent afternoon, the Villa Serena came to life. The sprinklers were turned on in the garden. Tourists who had stayed over for another night returned from shopping or sightseeing in town. New tourists arrived.

In the kitchen the maids were getting ready for dinner. In the lounge Juan was polishing the cocktail glasses. At the gate Uncle Pedro was bowing to the newcomers, showing them where to park the cars and helping them with their luggage.

To Jessie Prewitt, who had spent the day waiting to hear from Ralph Burton, all the activity seemed faintly unreal, as if the tourists and the servants were players moving against the artificiality of a stage set.

Although the exaggerated specters of the night before had retreated, she continued to feel vaguely entrapped. Rose and Emily were leaving for the States in the morning. Burt was overdue in Mexico City. The prospect of remaining here after them depressed her. With sudden resolution she determined that, as soon as her car was available, she, too, would start for home.

"I won't think about what it will be like when I get there," she thought. "I'll just go back and face it."

The same desperate urgency that drove her to leave now impelled her to return. She went so far as to take her suitcase from the closet, realizing, only as she opened it on the bed, that since she didn't know when or how she could leave, it was ridiculous to pack. So she stood at her window watching the empty garden, and she was there when the first tourist arrived, still there when Burt returned from town.

As soon as he was walked through the gate her spirits were magically lifted. She dashed out of her room, up through the thirsty garden to meet him, while he waited for her at the top of the slope. When she reached him, she could see, through the open gate, that he had driven her car back, that it was in the parking lot beyond.

"You did it, Burt! You're wonderful!" Her eyes were shimmering with delight.

"The car?" Burt grinned. "It was nothing that anyone with my brains, charm, and extraordinary ability couldn't have done. Seriously, Jess," he said, taking her arm and leading her out where the convertible sat, "it's just a lashed-up affair."

He pointed to the front tires. "I could only get two new ones. And the others—well, the left rear's your spare and it's not too sharp. The right rear is one that our friend only punctured. For some reason it wasn't slashed like the others. Lucky for you or your car would still be up on blocks."

He opened the trunk. "This is an emergency spare—only that. It's the wrong size and bald, but if you have to, you can limp into a service station on it."

"Burt, I don't know how to thank you."

"Don't! You understand, Jess, this is only temporary. Replace that rear rubber as soon as you can."

"I understand. How far do you suppose it will take me?"

"Hard to say. Probably a couple of thousand miles. At least as far as Mexico City." He paused and looked at her intently. "You will go there with me, won't you, Jess?"

For a moment she thought he was joking, then she realized that he was seriously waiting for her answer.

"I don't know, Burt, I've been thinking about going home. It's what I should do. You told me that yourself."

"I did, but I'd like to have you go with me." He smiled wryly at his own contradictions.

Jess evaded him gently. "When are you leaving?"

"I should have left today. I'll have to leave tomorrow. Think about going with me, Jessie, he urged."

She did think about it. Until the cocktail hour she thought about it. Her mind teetered back and forth between the alternatives until her resolve to return home began disintegrating.

She became so irritated with her own vacillation that she almost despaired of the flaw in herself. It ended as it usually did, without her being able to make up any firm decision, and, when she finally left for the lounge, her suitcase remained open and untouched on the bed.

St. Paul's Episcopal Announcements

The men and boys of the Episcopal Church all over the world will gather Sunday for a corporate communion. The first Sunday in Advent is declared to be the day for this international communion.

In St. Paul's Parish on Fourth Street the service is set for 7:30 a.m. in the church. The Rector, the Rev. John W. Drake Jr., will be the celebrant for the Holy Communion to be assisted by the Rev. Richard N. Ottaway, Curate and Episcopal College Chaplain. This is the great witnessing act of Churchmen meeting at the Risen Lord at the holy table. The gifts of the body and blood of Christ are received to transform and renew the faith of laymen.

The Young Churchmen of the Parish will serve breakfast to the group after the service. The meal will be eaten in the Parish Hall in a fellowship gathering. Paul Scott is the president of the Laymen's Organization in St. Paul's Church. Gigi Guice is the president of the Young Church who will be serving. Mrs. Grace Allgood is the counsellor to the Youth and will be assisting them in the kitchen.

Regular participation in the Holy Communion is a portion of the devotional life of every Episcopalian. This is the sacramental expression of the food and drink for the spiritual nurture of hungry and thirsty souls. The males of the church now gather for the express purpose of demonstrating their loyalty and devotion to Our Lord in their annual corporate communion.

Other members of the parish will be present for this early morning service, for there is never a restriction from attendance by any member in good standing. The men and boys will commune in a group while other parishioners will receive immediately following.

told the West in effect that the two Germanies were not going to be reunited. Recently Kennedy admitted this was so, as long as the Russians wanted to keep them separate.

Eighth St. Christian Announcements

Woman's Day is observed throughout the entire Disciples of Christ Brotherhood Sunday, Dec. 3. The purpose of Woman's Day is to help the women of the church become more fully aware of the nature and mission of the church. It is a time for the whole congregation to once again consider its missionary task. Mrs. Agnes Settle will be the speaker during the Sunday morning worship hour at Eighth St. Church. She will use as her topic "For the Living of These Days."

The local congregation is in the midst of a pledging campaign. Members are reminded to mail in their pledge cards or bring them to church and place them in the offering plate.

Chi Rho will meet at 5:00 and the C. Y. F. will meet at 6:00. College students are invited to attend the light breakfast each Sunday morning at 9:45 and to join in the discussion-type lesson led by Mrs. W. J. Hadden Jr., teacher of the class.
