Fighting Erupts Between Katanga And UN Forces

By JOHN LATZ

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP) — Widespread fighting broke out between U.N. forces and President Moise Tshombe's Katanga troops in Elisabethville today. Many people fled the city in panic.

Foreign Minister Evariste Kimba, ranking Katanga official in the absence of Tshombe, charged the United Nations started the shooting and declared, "Katanga will fight and defend itself."

He listed nine wounded so far on Katanga's side but said he did not know the extent of U.N. casualties.

The sound of mortar and other firing from several directions started a panic exodus from this capital of secessionist Katanga Province.

Contrary to U.N. reports that all Katanga ministers also had fled. Kimba held a news conference with all ministers present.

Just before shooting started, Brian Urquhart, special U.N. adviser, charged a Katanga battle plan for a sneak attack had been uncovered and that fighting was inevitable.

Resenting a new U.N. resolution calling illegal Katanga's secession from the Congo's central government, the Katangans Monday threw up roadblocks to the airport, vital for supplying U.N forces.

Contrary to the spirit of an agreement that appeared to have eased tension over the barricades, Urquhart said Katanga troops had been discovered advancing through thick bush toward the U.N.-held airport. He charged this was a "final act of bad faith."

Mortar fire and other heavy firing were heard outside the telegraph office, near U.N. headquarters, in the direction of the airport seven miles outside the city and elsewhere.

The Elisabethville radio antenna was damaged by shelling, halting communications with the outside world for a short time.

The firing later stopped and Elisabethville showed signs of slowly coming back to life again after the first shock of the afternoon fighting.

Board Approves

A Chicod School District election to determine whether the district's current expense levy will be hiked from 10 to 20 cents was given the nod Monday by Pitt County's Commissioners.

Earlier in the day the Pitt Board of Education had approved a request from the Chicod School Board for the election and passed it along to the commissioners during their afternoon session.

Chicod has asked that the election be held next spring. If approved, the additional current expense tax would be levied in the district for fiscal 1962-63.

Currently, residents of Chicod School District pay the second lowest cumulative tax rate in the county.

Levied in Chicod district for fiscal 1961-62 were identical 10-cent rates for school district capital outlay and current expense budgets. Added to the county-wide rate of $1.25 per $100 valuation, the school levy in Chicod district runs the total rate there to $1.45.

With dual approval of the Chicod request Monday, machinery to establish the election can proceed.

Regional Airport Boosted

Favorable Comments By FAA Administrator Indicated To Bonner

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Administrator N. E. Halaby of the Federal Aviation Agency has indicated he favors a regional airport for Eastern North Carolina if the Civil Aeronautics Board also approves.

Halaby's agency allocates federal funds for construction of airports. He made his thinking known in a letter to Rep. Herbert C. Bonner. The First Congressional District representative had made inquiries at the request of local officials.

Halaby's statement was a favorable step in the Wilson-Greenville battle to obtain area air service. The regional airport has been discussed for years among Eastern Carolina cities but various plans have fallen through as cities pulled out to seek individual service.

In the Piedmont Local Service Area Investigation before the Civil Aeronautics Board, Wilson-Greenville submitted a joint application for service.

It eventually developed that CAB Examiner James Keith recommended stops for Wilson-Greenville in a broad overall plan for increased service by Piedmont Airlines. However, Keith also recommended individual service for Goldsboro, Kinston and Rocky Mount—cities which had once been included in regional airport plans.

Now Keith's recommendations are before the Civil Aeronautics Board for its consideration.

There has been more delay in the CAB's decision than had been expected. This has led to speculation that the CAB might order service to a regional airport. This would be in line with recently announced CAB and FAA policy that the use of one airport to serve adjacent communities, where this can mean a saving to the Federal government and the communities and improved air service, "should be an increasingly important factor in considering applications for federal funds for airport construction purposes and applications for certificated airline service."

During the CAB hearings on Piedmont Local Air Service, Wilson-Greenville Counsel W. W. Speight presented a chart showing an area encompassed by a 25-mile radius area circle from the proposed area airport site. Such a circle embraces Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Greenville, Kinston, Goldsboro, Wilson and Farmville along with other towns. Speight at the time reported the CAB seemed very interested in the area airport concept.

Halaby's letter was the first official favorable comment on the regional airport concept for this area, however.

Halaby pointed out that he had discussed Bonner's inquiry with the congressman's representatives and it had been agreed on Nov. 6 that no money would be allocated for Federal aid to airport construction in Eastern Carolina until the CAB reached a final decision on Wilson-Greenville's application.

"The board's decision will need to include action on the resolution of these two cities to share service through a regional airport," Halaby said. "The Federal Aviation Agency would favor a regional airport in this locality should the CAB decision also indicate its desirability."

Speight expressed pleasure over Halaby's statement.

"I feel very encouraged over this decision and statement of policy on the part of Administrator Halaby," Speight declared. "This means, in my opinion, that if CAB gives us a favorable decision, an area airport is a definite possibility."

Speight said he wished to express his appreciation to Rep. Bonner for his support and in presenting Wilson-Greenville's position to both the FAA and CAB.

Commissioner Gardner To Serve As Chairman Of Pitt Board During 1962

B. Alton Gardner, seven-year veteran county commissioner from Pitt District IV, was named chairman of the official board for 1962 in Monday's afternoon session.

Gardner, prominent farmer and merchant of southeastern Pitt, was the only commissioner nominated to succeed Robert G. Little of Grimesland whose one-year term as chairman expired yesterday.

Bethel's Robert L. Martin, District II representative, was elected vice chairman as the commissioners went through their annual reorganization meeting.

In the first order of business after Gardner's election, the commissioners hired new farm and home economics agents for Pitt County's Negro Extension Service division.

Voting on a motion by J. Vance Perkins of Greenville, the commissioners concurred with a recommendation of the Extension Service presented by R. E. Jones of the state office that Leroy James and Miss Addie Gore be employed in Pitt as successors to James M. Goode and Mrs. Amelia Capehart. Their positions will become effective Jan. 1.

James, a Hertford County native and assistant Negro farm agent in Wayne County for four years, has "done an outstanding job in Wayne . . ." according to Jones. He also highly recommended Miss Gore, a former assistant home economics agent in Pitt County.

In making his presentation to the commissioners, Jones said, 'Pitt County is one of the most important in this state regarding our work."

Jones said the county should be staffed with four agents and pointed out that the entire slate of previous personnel had been removed. Goode was ousted in September; Mrs. Capehart was transferred to Moore County effective last Friday; assistant home agent Miss Gracie Cheek went to work in Richmond County Sept. 1; and assistant farm agent Warren G. Barnes was transferred to Martin County effective Dec. 1.

Jones said two assistants should replace Miss Cheek and Barnes "as soon as possible" and added "We have two recommendations in mind who we will tell you more about later.

The commissioners expressed to Jones their appreciation for his 'expert handling" of the investigation of the Pitt Negro Extension Service situation.

In other business Monday the commissioners:

—discussed with Second Division highway personnel a tentative plan for secondary road improvements in Pitt County during next fiscal year. A discussion of a protest over Highway Commission plans to remove a bridge in Pactolus indicated further hearings would be held before a final decision is reached.

—heard Tax Collector Robert S. Moye's report for November that showed a total of $112,998 collected during the month. The report showed collections from July 1 through Nov. 25 totaled $1,090,029, more than $36,000 above the $1,053,406.93 collected during a similar period a year ago.

—heard a report from County Auditor H. R. Gray on the condition of the fee collection account at the county Mental Health Clinic. Gray presented to the commissioners four recommendations for improving the clinic's system of day-to-day bookkeeping of the fees. The auditor routinely conducts periodical audits of the fee account's books.

—authorized Gray to advertise for bids on trading automobiles in the Sheriff's Department.

—approved for the Tax Department the list takers for 1962 county taxes and re-approved the valuation schedule for 1962.

—reappointed the following county officers: auditor (Gray); tax supervisor and collector (Moye); county attorney (W.W. Speight); building and grounds superintendent (W. G. Leggett); county home superintendent (Horace Hardee); electrical inspector (Guy Dunn); farm agent (S. C. Winchester) and home economics agent (Mrs. Sue B. May).

Chairman Gardner appointed the following committees for 1962:

Finance Committee — Gardner and Martin; Welfare Committee —Gardner and Bruce Strickland of Bell Arthur; Building and Grounds Committee—Little and Perkins; Agriculture and Industry —Perkins and Strickland; Courts and Constitutional Offices Committee—Martin and Little; Airport and Other Property Committee—Perkins and Gardner; Education and Elections Committee—Martin; Hospital Board of Trustees—Strickland and Martin; Board of Health chairman — Gardner; Overall Planning Committee chairman—Gardner.

The Red Cross bloodmobile will be stationed at East Carolina College tomorrow from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m., Pitt Bloodmobile Chairman Kenneth Whichard reminded today.

The bloodmobile is making a concentrated effort at the college.

Those people who are obligated for replacements are asked to take advantage of this opportunity, since the bloodmobile won't be back until February.

Might Get By If 2 Divisions Added

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr. has indicated that if the Army gets two more regular divisions it could cope with future cold war crises without calling up National Guardsmen and Reservists.

The indication came Monday when Stahr announced that the Army has corrected most of the clothing and equipment shorages, poor living conditions, and idleness problems which prompted complaints from citizen soldiers ordered to active duty.

Informed sources said the regular Army probably will be increased to 16 divisions, with an over-all strength of about 960,000 men.

The Army now totals more than a million men—14 regular divisions, plus two National Guard divisions ann more than 400 smaller Gcard and Reserve units mustered into active service.

In all, 119,000 Guardsmen and Reservists have been called to the colors since early October and Stahr said "an Army-wide survey showed only slightly more than 1,000 soldier gripes."

Field reports indicate clearly that "the morale of the overwhelming majority of individuals called to duty is high," Stahr told a news conference.

The need for an immediate increase in the Army's combat strength, Stahr said, "could only be met by calling up trained National Guardsmen and Reservists." Larger draft calls would not provide the needed strength in time, he added.

Good Shape

Pitt County's financial position was described Monday as "excellent" by Certified Public Accountant D. R. Hollowell, the county's accountant.

Hollowell, in his audit report for fiscal 1960-61, told the County Commissioners in their afternoon session yesterday: "The position of the county as of June 30, 1961, is as good as it's ever been since I've known anything about it." He has handled Pitt's annual audits on a regular basis since 1934.

The accountant said Pitt has during recent years been able to formulate a current fiscal year budget without the necessity of financing prior year deficiencies. "That," he said, "is an excellent position to be in."

Hollowell submitted the 60-page report with this overall comment: "Based on accepted standards of accounting and municipal government accounting methods, Pitt County is in an excellent financial position."

Kennedys Will Visit Venezuela And Colombia

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Kennedy will visit Venezuela and Colombia Dec. 16 and 17 to dramatize the Alliance for Progress program for social and economic development of the Western Hemisphere.

The White House announced the trip — long expected—and said Kennedy "hopes to visit other parts of Latin America in the future."

There was no elaboration as to how soon in the future such a visit might occur or what countries might be visited.

On the flying expedition to Caracas and Bogota, Kennedy will take part in the dedication of low-cost housing, primary education and rural community improvement projects begun under the Alliance for Progress which he outlined as a major 10-year goal for the United States during his presidential campaign.

"The purpose of the visit," the White House said, "is to dramatize and spotlight the cooperative effort being made by the United States and the republics of South America to accelerate the economic and social development of the Western Hemisphere."

The trip will cover four days.

Kennedy will fly from Washington to San Juan, Puerto Rico, on Friday, Dec. 15.

He will spend the night as a guest of Gov. Luis Munoz Marin.

Kennedy will leave San Juan Saturday, Dec. 16 for Caracas and spend Saturday night in the Venezuelan capital then take off Sunday morning for Bogota.

No Credence In Unsigned Letter

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — An Army spokesman said here today at Ft. Bragg authorities put no credence in an unsigned letter reportedly written by New Hampshire National Guardsmen complaining about conditions here.

Maj. Jim Corey, deputy chief of information at Ft. Bragg, said Gov. Wesley Powell of New Hampshire, who is expected to visit here this weekend to check on the reported complaints, will be free to see anything or talk to anyone.

Corey, commenting on the letter said, "We don't take much credence in anonymous letters. When we find out that the letter is a true letter signed by actual persons, then we can go ahead and investigate their complaints."

Corey said that Army officials felt the complaints were unfounded and added, "The same type of thing has happened before, and in each and every case when we've confronted the men who wrote the letters they said something like, 'Oh, I don't know, I just wanted to stir up something to get home.'"

Corey added, "We don't censor anything here, the press is free to go anywhere and even eat with men. Actually, we're rather proud of the way the Ft. Brag complex has absorbed more than 50 reserve units recently."

Duke University Raising Tuition

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke University's tuition rates will be increased $200 per year, effective with the 1963-64 academic year, Dr. Deryl Hart, Duke president, announced today.

The total cost of tuition and fees will jump from $1,000 to $1,200 per year.

Hart said there were "impelling reasons" for the increase. "The first and basic one," he added, "is that the matching of the generous Duke Endowment grant of $1 million for salary improvement during the biennium, 1961-63, will exhaust available university resources for such purpose."

Bethel Break-In Suspect Arrested

BETHEL—John Henry Acklin, 19-year-old Negro of Rt. 2, Box 50, Bethel has been arrested by authorities on charges of breaking, entering and larceny.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said Acklin is accused of entering the Jessie Manning Store, located on U.S. 64 west of Bethel Saturday night.

The front door of the store was forced and 60 to 70 quarters taken from the cash register.

Acklin will be tried in Pitt County Court.

Sheriff's deputies and Bethel police investigated.

Los Angeles Not Only Smog City

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles is far from being the only smog-plagued city in the nation, a U.S. Public Health Service official says.

Dr. Richard A. Prindle, deputy chief of the Health Service Air Pollution Division, said in an interview Monday that Washington, D.C.; Birmingham, Ala.; Tucson and Phoenix sometimes have oxidant measurements high enough to cause eye irritation.

He said plant damage from oxidants has been found in Maryland and in St. Louis, Mo.

Thousands Turned Out To See Farmville's Christmas Parade

FARMVILLE—A crowd of several thousand lined Farmville's business streets Monday to watch the town's largest and most elaborate Christmas parade.

Sparked by no less than 20 colorful and elaborately decorated floats, the parade began its processional at 5 p.m., just before sunset. Thirty-five minutes later, the parade had completed its tour of Farmville's business district under the glow of the town's Christmas decorations.

A "driverless" automobile and a pair of clowns delighted the youngsters bundled in obvious Christmas spirit for the traditional event.

Four high school marching bands added Christmas carols and "Here Comes Santa Claus" to the festive air. Participating were bands from Farmville High School, H. B. Sugg High of Farmville, Greene County Central High School and Winterville and Ayden High Schools.

While competition among local merchants for "best float" is absent from Farmville's parades—since one man-and-wife team (Vassar Fields and his wife) build most of the floats each year—the units in the processional imitated the various traditional Christmas scenes in elaborate display.

Competition among Farmville merchants for the Christmas season involves the awarding of prizes to the best decorated display window and two runner-ups. Prizes are scheduled to be presented to the winners Dec. 20.

As the 35-unit-long parade was being formed along Horne Ave., Farmville's Christmas lights were turned on for the first time.

Under the lighted arbor on Main Street, the 1961 parade made its debut before spectators lined five- and six-deep along the parade route.

In addition to the floats, bands and the comic car were bands of scouts and National Guardsmen, a delegation of prancing ponies, a long string of old-model automobiles and Santa himself.

Spectators seemed in general agreement Monday's parade was Farmville's best. One was glad "it started before dark and ended after the sun went down." Another thought "these floats are the prettiest we've ever had over here." Another was impressed like this: "It sure was a long parade this year, wasn't it."

New Charges Confront Beaufort County Boys

Three 16-year-old Negroes charged Saturday night with the theft of an auto from Washington after their capture here were charged yesterday with the theft of two other vehicles in the Washington area and a hit-and-run mishap which occurred here November 18.

Pfl. W. L. Whitehead said Sherman Crandall of Route 1, Grimesland and two Washington youths, Woodrow Wilson Jr. and Henry Rodman, both of Respess St., admitted the theft of two autos in Beaufort County.

One of the stolen vehicles was taken the night of November 18 from Route 3, Washington and involved in a hit-and-run collision here on 14th St. the same night. The second theft occurred November 25 within the Washington city limits.

In addition to the auto theft charges, charges of hit-and-run driving were lodged against Crandall while Wilson and Rodman were charged with aiding and abetting hit-and-run driving by Greenville Police Traffic Division officers.

The hit-and-run involved a car operated by Dr. Harold Hoke of 1605 Oaklawn Ave. Total damage to the two cars was set at $1,175.

The three were tried yesterday in a Pitt County Justice of Peace Court on charges of litterbugging, which stemmed from the Saturday night theft, and convicted.

Crandall, who was driving the auto when it was found, was convicted in Pitt County Recorders Court this morning on charges of carrying a concealed weapon, and sentenced to four months in jail suspended on payment of a $50 fine.

The trio will answer the three auto larceny charges in Beaufort County.

Nehru Discloses Peiping Threats

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Communist China has threatened to invade India's northeast frontier if India does not halt military activity in border territories more than 1,000 miles to the northwest, Prime Minister Nehru told Parliament today.

"Obviously," Nehru told a questioner, "if that is done, we shall resist and repel it."

Nehru said Peiping in a letter received Dec. 2 complained that India was "stepping up military positions and building new posts" in the disputed Ladakh area of Kashmir and also in such areas as Bara Hoti, in Uttar Pradesh State, west of the Tibetan border.

He said the Chinese hinted that "if our military activities are not stopped, they may have to take action by sending troops south of the McMahon Line."

The British-drawn McMahon Line has been the boundary between India's Assam State and Tibet—running from Bhutan east to the Burmese border—since 1903 but the Red Chinese have been claiming 39,000 square miles south of the line. Except for a single Chinese outpost, however, there have been no official reports of Chinese expansion south of the line.

The Reds already have occupied 12,000 square miles claimed by India in Ladakh, and the latest Peiping letter was in reply to an Indian protest that the Communists had pushed their posts even farther into Indian-claimed territory.

Americans Eating Less Vegetation

NEW YORK—(WNS)—Americans are eating higher on the hog than ever, but their nutrition is out of kilter because they consume fewer fruits and vegetables, according to studies reported by the National Vitamin Foundation.

The per capita nutrient intake has improved during and after World War II. This is due to the bread enrichment program, vitamin supplements, and increased consumption of meat and dairy foods, the Foundation said.

However the popularity of fruits and vegetables, which began about 1935 and continued through 1946, was followed by a decline in 1958 to the levels of 40 years ago.

As a consequence, many people, particularly the young, do not get the types and amounts of vitamins and nutritional elements to meet even two-thirds of the RDA (Recommended Dietary Allowances) which public health authorities consider desirable, the Foundation said.

Some Evidence Tension Is Easing

A few months ago Western observers were predicting the Berlin crisis would reach its worst period during the final month of 1961 and the early months of 1962. Now there is at least the suggestion that the most critical period in Berlin may have passed.

It is not likely that President Kennedy would choose this particular time to open the door for an invitation to visit the Soviet Union if he felt the Berlin crisis would worsen in the months immediately ahead. Such a meeting would of necessity bring about a summit conference—however informal it might be—between the President and Premier Khrushchev. It must be assumed that such a meeting already has the sanction of other leaders of the Western Big Three and that the President's statement was the first move in that direction.

It is not likely that the President would announce that reservists and National Guardsmen called to active duty in the face of the Berlin crisis will be released within a year after their recall to active duty, if he felt the Berlin situation were not well in hand.

Although Berlin has remained the focal point of East-West tensions, there have come in recent weeks these and other indications that the problems may be negotiated in the not-too-distant future in spite of flare-ups which have occurred along the border. One other primary consideration in this respect was the recent Soviet announcement that it will not hold to the year-end deadline for signing a peace treaty with the East German government.

If top officials still anticipated big trouble in Berlin during the winter months—which earlier had been viewed as the most probable time for a Soviet pinch on the divided city—the President would not be in a position even to suggest he visit the Soviet Union. Although he was careful to point that the problems of Berlin and Southeast Asia must be solved before a visit such as he mentioned could be a matter for practical consideration, there must be some indication that the top brass feels that the winter months may bring progress toward solution of these problems.

From the overall viewpoint, at least, the President's hint at an invitation to visit the Soviet Union suggests the new year may hold brighter prospects for an easing of international tensions.

Private Colleges Are Supported

By LYNN NISBET

TOTAL EFFORT—The generous support which North Carolinians have given to the cause of higher education in church-related and other non-tax colleges must be considered alongside the investment of public moneys to get anything like an accurate picture of the total effort.

There has been disposition in some quarters to criticise the people of the state for being backward and indifferent to the needs of the young men and women because the amount of public money derived from taxes or bonds did not meet all the established needs at state institutions.

Jesse Helms, editorial voice of WRAL-TV, in two recent broadcasts presented a partial list of capital improvements at non-tax colleges during the past few years. Incomplete as it was and vague in many details, the presentation was impressive, and completely refutes the charges of indifference and niggardliness.

Your reporter obtained script of the Helms talks and added a little research of his own. The survey was still far from complete and details are still missing. Sufficient information was obtained to justify the statement that substantially more money has been spent in the past five years for capital improvements at non-tax colleges than all the appropriations and bond issues for State operated institutions.

A prominent Methodist layman pointed out the other day that the significant item in connection with educational facilities is not the six to eight million dollars his church has spent in the past two years, but the commitment, implied and specific, of many more millions to complete the jobs. The same goes for other denominations and for a few institutions not directly related to any church, but rendering service to the cause of education.

ROLL CALL—Belmont Abbey, the principal Roman Catholic school in the state moved up just a few years ago from junior college status to the ranks of degree-granting four-year institutions, and launched a multi-million dollar expansion program which is still underway.

Campbell College at Buies Creek and Mars Hill College, long time stalwarts in the Baptist junior college group are moving into the four-year degree granting status, with additions to physical facilities. Gardner-Webb at Boiling Springs and Wingate College in Union county are retaining junior status, but with additional buildings and equipment running into the hundreds of of thousands of dollars. Chowan College at Murfreesboro has a record that reads like a fairy story. Twelve years ago there was serious thought given to abandoning the century-old college. Enrollment dropped to less than a 100. Now enrollment is around 800 and growing. New dormitories, dining halls, and other essentials have been built. The only graphic arts or printing school for which credits are given in any North Carolina college is at Chowan.

The folks at Meredith and Wake Forest might not like to have their university level institutions listed along with Chowan, but they have at least this in common. Of all the millions spent on the campuses at Meredith in Raleigh, at Wake Forest in Winston-Salem and at the seminary at Wake Forest, the only tax money is the statutory exemption from advalorem property taxes. The other money is provided by voluntary contributions of people concerned about education, and who gave the money without the legal pressure of a tax collector.

METHODISTS — Perhaps the Methodists have done more in the past two or three years than any other deonomination in expanding educational opportunities. Heading the list are the two brand new colleges at Fayetteville and Rocky Mount. Capital investment to date in these plants is only a token of what they will be. Contributions already made and commitments that can be counted on run to approximately $20 million.

That is new, on top of the multi-millions already invested in old established schools and expansions planned for them. Louisburg College, for example, was considered for abandonment and sort of integration into the Rocky Mount unit. The people rallied around, provided money for needed facilities to retain and enlarge the college.

Pfeiffer College at Meisenheimer moved recently into the four-year degree-granting list and more than a million dollars new construction was in order. Greensboro College and High Point College have gained stature by increasing facilities to upgrade service at substantial cost to individuals, not to taxpayers.

There is unfortunately rather general opinion that Duke University has all the money it needs from the Duke Foundation. A very short talk with any old Duke grad will dispel that idea. Although the allocations from the Foundation are private money (in the sense they are not derived from taxes, the fact is a very substantial part of the development at Duke University has come from donations received through promotional campaigns. The fact remains, that the millions invested at Duke, as at Wake Forest and other institutions, do not represent tax money—but the money comes from the same folks who pay the taxes.

One Could Take That Griping Too Seriously

It may not be the most popular thing to say, but we just can't get into a sweat about stories of complaints over military duty.

We've heard it all before; and accusations of "criminal negligence" sound as remote and far from the mark as a unanimous report that "everything is dandy."

Twenty years ago today, in military installations the length and breadth of the land, you could find square pegs in round holes, round pegs in square holes . . . and by golly, some pegs without holes.

Twenty years ago today you could find complaints about the food, about the cold, about old movies, about immunizations, about the sergeant, the lieutenant, the captain and the CO. There were, in every barracks, those who could not understand what they were doing in uniform when they were so obviously unneeded; there were just as many who figured twelve months of their personal life was literally down the drain.

Two days later there was a new sense of purpose and barring a few die-hard malcontents the complaints were no more.

There was room for complaining and griping one year later in the North African landings . . . but does anybody remember?

And three years later, almost to the day, there were no "letters to my congressmen" with a Bastogne postmark. And the sufferings and heartbreak of Bastogne were infinitely worse than anything experienced in training.

We suspect that behind today's stories of complaining there exists (or did exist) a feeling of purposelessness . . . a lack of understanding. Add to that a tendency to magnify; some hard thoughts about acquaintences who were not called up; a shade of homesickness; uninspired days and long lonely nights . . . a couple of weeks of that, and the best potential soldiers in the world are going to look for something to complain about.

No Free Voting Seen For Cubans

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy hardly had the words out of his mouth—about wanting to see free elections in Cuba—when Fidel Castro made it plain there won't be any.

Kennedy, in his interview with Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, said last week the United States would accept a Communist government anywhere if it was approved by the people of a country in free balloting.

The American dispute with Cuba, Kennedy said, is that Castro has not permitted "free and honest election," and until he does his government cannot claim to represent a majority of his people.

Castro, who took over Cuba almost three years ago and still has not allowed elections, said over the weekend he was leading his country into communism and would create a single political party with restricted membership.

This means he will pick the membership. The Cubans, like the people in Russia and the satellites, will have to mark yes or no on the candidates chosen for them.

Thus, any prospects of better relations with Cuba become even more remote particularly since Kennedy said: "What we find to be objectionable, and a threat to the peace, is when a system is imposed by a small militant group by subversion, infiltration and all the rest."

Kennedy's statement that this government was willing to recognize another government—in this case a Communist government—chosen by its people in free elections is not a new principle in American history.

But there is a certain contradiction in the yardstick he uses for finding a system objectionable when it is imposed by a "small militant group."

That's exactly—through a militant group—how Castro took over Cuba. It's also exactly how the Bolsheviks took over Russia. This country recognizes and deals with Russia but not with Cuba.

But communism is closer in Cuba than in Russia. And besides, Cuba is trying to stir up revolutions in this country's closest neighbors in Latin America.

This demonstrates the dilemma of American presidents when, faced by different and shifting situations, they first try to consider what they think are American interests.

Nathan Schachner, in his biography of Thomas Jefferson, who was George Washington's secretary of state and became the third president, said: "For all his philosophical and personal preconceptions, Jefferson followed in his handling of foreign relations a strictly American attitude.

"The test to him, as to Washington, was the advantage and benefit of the United States."

The most famous recent forerunner of Kennedy's principle—American willingness to recognize governments freely chosen—was in the Roosevelt-Churchill Atlantic Charter.

The third of their eight principles said they "respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live." That was 20 years ago.

Thirty years ago Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, under President Hoover, seemed to take a different view when he said American recognition did not depend so much upon a country's constitutional legiti-

Strength For Today

LET US PONDER THIS

Has modern marriage failed? In a recent year the number of those who secured divorces was one quarter the number of those who were married. This does not mean that 25 per cent of all marriages go on the rocks. It does mean, however, that a shockingly high percentage of marriages do go on the rocks. What, then, can we do about this situation?

First of all we can regard it for what it is, namely, a national menace. In the second place, we can counsel young people against too early and hasty marriages. Again we can assure ourselves and other that mere beauty, glamor and enticement are not sufficient to make a marriage lasting and successful. We can further bear in mind that the marriage convenant is taken "for better or for worse," and that in practically all marriages a little of the "worse" is sure to creep in.

Marriage is a project which two people agree to enter upon together. It involves sex differentiation, but it involves many other things beside. It involves mutual trust, dependability of character, common sense in the handling of money, high standards in the conduct of a home, patience, willingness to sacrifice, hope.

Maybe marriage hasn't failed, maybe men and women have failed. Only God knows the final answer to all questions. Most people take the marriage convenant in a church. The things the Church stands for must permeate and support marriage if it is to be successful.

The 1948 Stadium Drive

Greenville businessmen, ECC staff, students and friends of the college have just met success in a phenominal drive which has netted $260,000 for construction of the new James S. Ficklen stadium.

Headed by W. M. Scales, Jr., a committee approached local businessmen to raise the bulk of the money in one week's time. When the state bond issue failed, the committee went to work again and raised the additional money in a few days.

This, however, is not the first time such a drive has been conducted locally.

Way back in November, 1948, supporters of the college undertook a drive to raise funds for a football stadium.

At that time, the plan was not nearly so ambitious as today, although the need was equally as great.

This committee, with the late E. E. Rawl as chairman, sought to obtain $25,000 to erect the stands now located on the north side of College Stadium. This section with other bleachers would make a stadium to seat 3,000 persons.

ECTC had played football for years prior to that but with only a handful of men students there was no need for a stadium. Nobody came to see the games.

With the end of World War II the veterans returned and male enrollment shot upward. It became apparent that some type stadium was needed.

This was not to be a one-week campaign. In fact it was Feb. 14, 1949 before Rawl, whose name a men's dorm now bears, announced that $25,730 was in the bank. ECTC's College Stadium was to be a reality. Approximately 1,500 persons and 227 business firms had contributed to the drive, he reported.

Thus it followed that on Sept. 15, 1949—a Thursday night—ECTC's Pirates took to College Stadium field for the first time. Four thousand fans jumped the little stadium of 3,000 seats. Pres. John D. Messick called it a "momentous occasion in the history of the college."

Eugene Price, a college student and sports writer for The Daily Reflector who has since gone on to become managing editor of the Goldsboro News-Argus, described Coach Bill Dole's Pirates "devastating and dazzling aerial attack" which took the Buccaneers to a 24-0 victory over the Cherry Point Marines. The Pirates of that day were paced by Quarterback Roger Thrift.

East Carolina College's teams, of course, have thundered up and down College Stadium field for the past 13 seasons and, with a new stadium in view, appear destined for still greater things.

The efforts of that first committee won't be lost with the opening of Ficklen Stadium next season, however.

Plans call for moving the old stands and erecting them opposite the new concrete section.

It is fitting that this be so.

Other Editors Saying ...

An Inadequate Answer

(Washington Daily News)

Every day of our lives we hear, read, or learn that some youngster has been hailed into court charged with some serious crime.

A 16-year-old boy is charged with stealing an automobile, or a 15-year-old boy is charged with breaking and entering. It is an old, old story. The challenge today in North Carolina and in America seems to us to be greater than ever. And the answer seems to be more inadequate than ever.

People who are not directly affected by teen age crimes seldom take any real notice of what is happening. Law enforcement officers are very conscious of a growing threat in the direction of youthful crime.

The great challenge, it seems to us, does not come in determining punishment once a crime has been committed. We have adequate machinery set up in courts to mete out punishment. But before the court acts and after the court acts, we find ourselves woefully inadequate to do the job at hand.

The greatest challenge of all comes in finding some method of cutting down on teen age crimes. If somehow we can reach the youngsters before the crime is committed, we have met the challenge with the best possible answer.

To say that we have always had crime and that we always will have it is to take a passive and indifferent attitude toward a problem which is most serious.

If we could make a survey of the home lives of wayward boys, we might find that item of love missing in a majority of cases. Some might even conclude that poverty and teen age crime are definitely linked. But we have yet to prove that point conclusively. We might feel it and we might think it, and it might appear that way everyday when we open our newspapers.

The fact remains that in America today we are hardly doing enough to make life meaningful and attractive for boys who might have criminal tendencies. If we can reach those boys before the crimes are committed, then we have attained moral and spiritual greatness never before known in our time.

Then after the court acts, what happens then? Many boys are sent to either reform schools or to prison camps. Let a 16-year-old boy be placed on the roads for some crime he has committed, and the chances are that the boy is bitter and determined to get a sort of revenge against society. He more or less might accept the sentence as an invitation to "beat the rap" next time. And when he leaves the prison camp, in so many cases it is not long before he is back behind bars again. The story repeats itself time and time again.

To put a 16-year-old boy in company with hardened criminals is an education within itself—but the wrong type of education. The boys learns all right, but what he learns hardly helps make a better society.

America and North Carolina today do not have adequate facilities to punish the wayward boy. We are still groping in the dark, talking about an answer we know will hardly come, and in the same breath speaking sadly of "youth going to the dogs."

In reality the adult provides the example, the home, the training, the courts, and the prison facilities. And so often, if we would be true to our own selves, we ought to admit that juvenile delinquency and adult inadequacy are twin brothers.

Barrier To Free Speech

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It is difficult to understand the barriers erected by school and college management on the subject of freedom of speech. Generally there is no objection to Karl Marx but God is forbidden. The theory is that whereas it is sound to separate Church from State, it is not sound to separate the United States from its enemies.

I see an item that Dean Fritz Morstein Marx of Hunter College in New York forbids "The National Review" from holding meetings in this municipally-owned girls college. The reasons given by Dean Marx are most astonishing. One of them was that the views of Bill Buckley, the editor of "The National Review," reflected "the point of view of your organization as a political group presenting a distinct point of view of its own."

This is an astonishing attempt to say something in English. Naturally, an educated man, an editor and author, would have a distinct point of view or he would be a dope. It is true that many editors, writers and even professors are dopes, but that is no reason why Dean Marx should expect Bill Buckley to be one. Bill Buckley has long had a point of view which he has included in some books and in many articles and lectures. His points of view may be described as constructively conservative influenced by his religious beliefs. He is definitely anti-Marxist as is the publication which he edits.

If Dean Marx has at all read current publications, he must have witnessed the existence of "The National Review" and he must know that it has a distinct point of view which differs from "The Worker," "The Nation" and "The New Republic," each of which has a point of view of its own, which it advocates and defends.

Does Dean Marx, as an educator, expect only one point of view to prevail in a free country? Is it his theory that the United States is a monolithic country in which only the bombastry of the popular weekly magazines may prevail? Perhaps the Dean only likes such publications because of the pictures in them. Or should the students of Hunter be limited to McGuffey's Readers which were prepared for children of a free period in our civilization?

Another reason given by the learned Dean for excluding "The National Review" meetings from the auditorium of Hunter College is that the building was picketed during one of the meetings. Many public buildings are picketed. Recently I visited the White House in Washington and saw a shabby picket line marching outside. Should President Kennedy be excluded from the White House because some idiots picketed the building? In accordance with Dean Marx's logic, President Kennedy should leave the building to the pickets. Why, I cannot explain except that the Dean must be scared of pickets. His college is opposite the Soviet Embassy and send the boor, Valerian A. Zorin, back to the steppes whence he came.

Dean Marx also objects to the effort of the presiding officer at one of the meetings maintaining law and order. Maybe

TO THE EDITOR—

On Thursday night, 15 ladies received pins and certificates in a "ceremony" closing a course in Home Nursing, which was sponsored by the Pitt County Chapter of American Red Cross.

My thanks go to many people who helped make this course a tremendous success including: Mrs. Walter F. Taylor, Executive Secretary of the Pitt County Chapter of American Red Cross; Mrs. Lucy Bodkin, who was so kind in helping me set up some of the demonstrations; to Mr. J. H. Rose, who has so graciously supplied permanent class rooms for the various Home Nursing classes; and most of all to those wonderful ladies who kindly accepted me as their instructor and completed the course so successfully.

These ladies were: Mrs. Jessie Bell, Mrs. Magdalene Grimes, Mrs. Emma May, Mrs. Council Marshmond, Mrs. Mary Murrell, Mrs. Olga Myers, Mrs. Gertrude Pope, Mrs. Lillie Reid, Mrs. Betsy Hemby, and Mrs. Isadora Brennan, all of Greenville; and Mrs. Delores Hawkins, Mrs. Jessie Payton, Mrs. Fleeta, Kirkman, Mrs. Lillie Mills. and Mrs. Letha Howard, all of Grimesland.

The experiences we had the mistakes we made shall always be remembered along with the "surprise party" and the lovely gifts that they presented me, with Mrs. Myers as spokesman for the class.

This course was one of the nicest things that ever happened to me, and I do hope and pray that in some small and humble way I have partially repaid the American Red Cross for training me as one of the county instructors.

Thanks again ladies, because it sure was wonderful.

Very truly yours,
Mrs. Willie Mae Hawkins

Higher Bread Prices Inevitable

By ELMER ROESSNER

It looks as if we'll have to hang a baker or two. That ancient remedy seems to be the only way left to keep the price of bread from going up.

The hanging treatment, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica, was used in eighteenth century Turkey and Egypt to keep prices down.

Although there is a lot of air in some of the modern breads, there is little cushion in retail prices, and the rise in prices in wheat, maneuvered by the government, plus coming rises in wages for teamsters and other employees of the industry, make higher bread prices inevitable.

WHERE DOUGH GOES

The First National City Bank, in its December letter, reports that the average price of a pound loaf of bread in 1960 was 20.3 cents.

This, on the basis of government and industry data, was split as follows:

Farmer	2.8
Miller	.7
Baking, wrapping, etc.	5.5
Selling, delivery, etc.	5.7
Retailer	3.4
Other costs	1.5
Pre-tax profits	.7
Total	20.3

The bank points out that the government has had programs to support the price of wheat continuously since 1938 and, despite efforts to persuade the farmer to plant less and to sell wheat at bargain prices to foreign governments, the government holds 1.4 billion bushels of wheat, enough for 500 loaves for each man, woman and child in the country. The government could well afford to keep a bowl of pretzels on every income tax counter in the nation.

SOMEBODY PAYS

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman this last summer announced an increase in the support price of wheat from $1.79 to $2 a bushel, and wheat and flour prices promptly rose.

E. E. Kelley, Jr., president of the American Bakers Association, said that since flour prices had risen 35 to 40 cents per hundredweight, it would be "little short of a miracle" if bread prices did not rise. The average price of a pound loaf, he noted, has risen from 14.3 cents in 1950 to 20.3 cents in 1960.

Secretary Freeman countered with an angry statement that the bakers had taken every opportunity to increase the price of bread during the last decade, but had passed none of the savings on to the consumer when wheat prices fell. However, he did not recommend hanging.

Commerce Department figures show that the average weekly earnings of bakery product workers rose from $53.21 in June, 1950, to $83.55 in June, 1960. They have gone up since then.

It would appear that, in view of the fact that bakery wages have risen around 60 percent in the ten years, the industry did an amazing job in keeping the rise in the price of bread to around 40 percent.

At the same time, the profit margins of the six leading baking companies dropped from a 1947-49 average of 4.1 percent of the sales dollar to 1.9 per cent of the sales dollar in 1960. So far this year the companies report a further drop in earnings, two of them showing deficits.

However, if the right baking corporation officials are properly hanged, the rest of them will probably keep bread prices from rising.

ECONOMY GASES INTRODUCED IN BATTLE FOR MARKETS

Increasing competition, some from price-cutting independents, has brought forth "economy" grades of gasoline in certain areas. Gulf is selling Gulftane at 2 cents under the price of regular gas in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky areas; Humble is market-testing a third-grade gas in the Pittsburgh, Pa., and Norfolk-Newport News, Va., areas at 1.7 cents under regular prices.

Shower Given Bride-Elect

A miscellaneous shower was given Saturday night by Mrs. Vance Lloyd, Mrs. Zeno Hudson and Mrs. Bruce Buck at the Simpson Community Building honoring Miss Sue Morgan who will marry Lendy Edwards on Dec. 17.

Approximately 50 guests were greeted by Mrs. Vance Boyd who invited them to sign the guest book.

The building was decorated with greenery, wedding bells, and the traditional bride doll was used as a centerpiece carrying out a green and white motif.

Several games were played by the group with Mrs. Boyd directing. The honoree received gifts which she opened and displayed.

Mrs. Zeno Hudson invited the guests to the refreshment table which was covered with a cutwork bleach cloth over green and centered with an arrangement of white baby mums and wedding bells flanked by crystal candelabras with white candle tapers. The guests served themselves party sandwiches, mints, salted nuts and cake squares. Mrs. Linwood Edwards served the punch.

Goodbyes were said by the hostesses.

New Cocktail Is Old Hat

BOMBAY – (WNS) – Dr. I. S. Parboosingh has come up with a cocktail to ease labor pain, nausea and other distresses of pregnant women. He uses 20 grains of chloral hydrate in one half ounce of rum.

Some American bartenders have known about it all the time. Only they call it "knockout drops."

Laundry Facilities In '61 Autos?

"You can't take it with you" definitely does not apply to laundry equipment in '61 automobiles! Some new cars have deep-well cargo space in the trunk—suitable for use as a washtub.

Any enterprising traveler can fill this with water, tie a clothesline onto the raised trunk lid—and then go to work with a washboard, and soap or detergent suds.

One of our country's leading fashion authorities, Nancy White, who is editor of Harper's Bazaar, travels to the Paris openings with black-trimmed white luggage. Washable, naturally — so it can be kept sparkling white with just a sudsy sponge-off.

Showed A Profit In Her Haircut

DETROIT (AP)—Cecelia Barna, 18, a freshman at Marygrove College, displayed little emotion when a barber snipped off her 42-inch blonde tresses.

"Too much trouble to wash and manage while keeping up with my studies," Cecelia said. "But now it seems like there's nothing on my head. I think I'll let my hair grow a little."

Anton Riechl, a Detroit wigmaker, supervised the hair trimming. Riechl paid Cecelia $10 for the hair and paid for the haircut.

Hunted A Deer, Bring Home Dear

the Dean would have preferred that th chairman stimulate disorder and create a public nuisance. It is often difficult to grasp what the college managers really want the students and their speakers to do.

Personally, I do not mind when I am interrupted. It gives me a chance to switch from discussing what the students are interested in to the subject of good manners which, in this generation, have apparently been lost. This interests me.

Recently, I was speaking at Queens College in New York, also a free municipal college. A student was apparently bored by my comments; he interrupted me by waving his hand. I gave him an opportunity to ask a rather naive question and then he sought to waste my time debating with me. Gently, I pointed out to him that manners were as worthy as knowledge and that these young people seemed to possess neither which is indeed a pity because when they grow up they will regret that they have lost years that might have been used to acquire both knowledge and manners and that society is very rough on those who possess neither. I had a very good time but was sorry for a young lady who was a compulsive striker.

Phantoms Open Cage Campaign Here Tonight

By GEORGE BRYANT
Reflector Sports Editor

The Rose High School basketball team opens its 1961-62 season tonight in a non-conference game at home with Rocky Mount at 7:30.

Coach Bill Lundy's Rocky Mount Blackbirds have the jump on Coach Bo Farley's Phantoms this year as they have already played and won one game. They downed Andrew Lewis High School of Salem, Va., in Rocky Mount last Friday night and won 58-50.

Last year the two clubs played their opening game with each other in Rocky Mount and the Blackbirds came out on top 43-31.

Going into tonight's contest, the visiting cagers will have a definite advantage as far as height is concerned. Greenville is lacking in the height department for the second year in a row.

Both teams have been hindered as usual with the football season. Two of Greenville's veterans, Alan McArthur and Billy James, did not begin practice until yesterday because of playing in the Shrine Bowl in Charlotte last Saturday. Coach Lundy said that only two of his team members were involved with football and he gave them a week's rest before they reported for cage practice.

However, all of the Rocky Mount squad has had at least one full week of practice and one game compared to one day of practice for James and McArthur and no games.

Coach Farley said he has only seven or eight boys he can really count on this year and those include James and McArthur who might not be much help tonight. Those likely to see action tonight are Kroghie Andresen, James, McArthur, Rodney Knowles, Jack Foley and Kenneth Allen. However, there are others Farley might call on.

In commenting on the Blackbirds, Coach Lundy said he has a fairly balanced team. However, he noted that Danny Talbott, a 5-11 junior, is probably the best all-around player. Others who will most likely see action against the Phantoms are Wayne Dunn, 5-10, Harold Earnhardt, 6-2, Ricky Creech, 6-2, and Tom Parrish, 6-1.

A junior varsity game was originally scheduled for 6 p.m. prior to the varsity contest, but both coaches have agreed that the JV teams need more practice and decided not to let them see action tonight.

Phantoms Were Bottled Up, Too

By JIMMY ELLIS

CHARLOTTE — Saturday afternoon was a long one for Rose High School's two representatives on the North Carolina Shrine Bowl squad—just as it was for the rest of the Tar Heel team which lost 24-0 to South Carolina in Charlotte's Memorial Stadium.

Although quarterback Billy Neal James and halfback Alan McArthur were in the starting line-up, played most of the game on offense and saw considerable defensive action, neither got much of a chance to show the form which led Greenville to the Eastern 3-A championship this year.

James Had Hard Time

James had a particularly hard time with a fast-charging and heavy South Carolina line. He tried 10 passes without a single completion and had two intercepted. James also carried the ball six times but wound up with a minus six yards for his efforts.

McArthur, who beat out the state's highest scoring halfback —Eddie Barger of Hickory—for the first-string left halfback position, carried the ball eight times for a net gain of eight yards. He also caught one pass for 16 yards, returned two kickoffs for a total of 45 yards and returned two punts for a net of 44 yards. He threw one pass, which was intercepted.

Shining Moments

However, both had some shining moments on defense. James, playing safety part of the time South Carolina had the ball, knocked down one South Carolina pass which appeared to be good for a long gain and possibly a touchdown, and was involved in another South Carolina passing play which resulted in an offensive pass interference call.

McArthur's outstanding defensive effort was hauling down South Carolina's Bill Sharpe after the Columbia halfback had intercepted one of James' passes and returned it 37 yards. McArthur caught Sharpe from behind and forced him out of bounds on the North Carolina 26-yard line.

Rushing Efforts

James' rushing efforts for the day were the result of either keeping the ball on option plays or efforts to run after being trapped on passing situations. His rushing total of minus six yards came especially from losses of eight, six and 10 yards when the hard-charging South Carolina thwarted passing attempts.

James' longest single gain was 10 yards, which came when he rolled to his right all alone when a mix-up in signals sent other Tar Heel backs the other way and he was left with the ball.

Longest Gain

The longest rushing gain turned in by McArthur was for four yards. In addition, he made outstanding personal efforts to prevent long losses on at least two other occasions.

South Carolina's domination of the Silver Anniversary Shrine Bowl game is indicated by statistics. The Sandlappers rolled up 202 yards rushing to North Carolina's 84 in a game in which passing had expected to be a strong point for both teams. North Carolina got 42 yards passing and South Carolina got only 33.

The alert South Carolina secondary picked off four North Carolina passes — two from James, one from McArthur and one from substitute quarterback Gene Raxter of Canton. One of James' passes was returned for a touchdown, and the other two set up South Carolina scores.

Second Greenville Coach

Greenville Coach Bud Phillips was one of three North Carolina coaches for the game, handling interior linemen. He is the second Greenville coach to have participated in the Shrine Bowl series, Bo Farley having been an assistant in 1942 when Charlie Justice led North Carolina to a 33-9 victory.

James and McArthur were the fourth and fifth Greenville players to participate in the game. Hubert Musselwhite, a back, was the first, playing in the 1942 game. Halfback Bobby Perry was on the 1952 squad and end Layne Jorgensen was on the 1960 squad. Musselwhite was the only one to play for a winning team.

Rites Today For Louis A. Dysart

LENOIR—Louis A. Dysart, 73, prominent banker and civic leader for more than half a century, passed away at a local hospital Monday morning after an illness of more than two years, and a series of major leg operations.

At the time of his death he was senior vice president of the First Union National Bank of North Carolina, member of the board of directors of the local bank and member of the main board of directors. He was president of the Lenoir News-Topic, Inc., and a member of its board of directors for more than 25 years.

Funeral services were held at the Dysart residence here at 3 o'clock this afternoon, with Rev. Julian Holmes, pastor of First Methodist Church, conducting the rites. Interment was in Belleview Cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Augusta (Gussie) Tuttle; a daughter, Mrs. Joe D. (Mary Lee) Joyner of Farmville, N.C.; two grandchildren of Farmville; three sisters, Mrs. Jesse Greer, Mrs. James A. Marshall and Miss Mary Dysart, all three of Lenoir; two brothers, Waitsell Dysart of Morganton and John Overton Dysart of Greenville, S.C.

In addition to serving in many official capacities in Lenoir and Caldwell County, Mr. Dysart completed in last July a six-year membership as a member of the board of trustees of Appalachian State Teachers College at Boone. He had previously served on the boards of the State Hospital and State School for the Deaf at Morganton.

He was one of the early sponsors of the Boy Scout movement in Lenoir, and was one of the prime movers in the establishment of the Caldwell County Fair of which he had served as treasurer since its inception. He had served in official capacities in both the Merchants Association and Chamber of Commerce. He had been an active member of the First Methodist Church since childhood. He had also been a long time member of te Lenoir Kiwanis Club and other organizations.

A member of the Hibriten Masonic Lodge, he had served this fraternal order as treasurer for a period of 20 years and as secretary for 3 yeas. He was also a member of the Lenoir Chapter, Royal Arch Masons; Lenoir Commandery, Knights Templar, and Oasis Temple of the Mystic Shrine. He had been a member of Caldwell Lodge, Knights of Pythias for many years.

In addition to being active in drives for the United Fund, Red Cross, March of Dimes and American Legion and their activities, he was one of the leaders in the movement for the establishment of Caldwell Memorial Hospital here of which he had served as a member of the board of trustees.

He was a veteran of World War I, prior to which service he was connected with the Bank of Lenoir, and after returning from the service, he was connected with the old First National Bank as assistant cashier, a position he held until 1931 when this financial institution was reorganized into the Union National Bank of which he was named cashier.

Several years ago when the Union National was merged with the large First Union National Bank of North Carolina, Mr. Dysart was president, chairman of the board and the largest single stockholder of Union National. The Bank of Lenoir was merged with First Union National Bank of North Carolina at the same time.

Last year, Mr. Dysart was presented a 50-year membership certificate for a half century of service to banking in North Carolina.

Both Mr. Dysart and his wife are members of early and prominent Western North Carolina families. She is a native of this county, and he was born in Dysartsville. He moved with his family to Lenoir 57 years ago. He was the son of the late William W. Dysart and Mrs. Laura Cooper Whittier Dysart.

Mr. Dysart's father, W. W. Dysart, was a railroad contractor for many years. He was in charge of building operations of the Southern Railway Line from Waynesville to Murphy; directed construction work on the C.C.&O. Railroad and directed construction of the C.&N.W. Line from Lenoir to Collettsville.

CHAPTER 33

At Jessie Prewitt's table a waitress interrupted the cheerful conversation.

"Scuse, Senora." She was speaking rapidly in Spanish, but her eyes, wide in her thin face, were fixed on Jessie.

Ralph Burton appeared to be so puzzled that even before he started to translate, Jessie experienced the first knots of worry. "She says there are two men to see you, Jess. Would you like me to find out what they want?"

Jessie had already risen. "Something has happened to Dan," was her instant thought. Aloud she said, "No, thank you, I'll go. Where are they?"

"In the lounge."

Trying not to anticipate trouble, forcing herself to remain calm and walk slowly, Jessie left the dining room, climbed the few steps to the lounge, and, as soon as she saw the men, the foreboding that had started at the table crystallized into certainty.

The large man was very dark. In spite of his civilian clothes he was unmistakably a policeman. The man with him was in uniform, a young man, rather handsome with swarthy skin and startlingly pale eyes. They were standing uncomfortably near the door.

"Senora Prewitt?" It was the large man who spoke, his English very stilted and correct, with only a faint accent. "I am Inspector Menendes. This is my associate, Sergeant Roberto."

The young man clicked his heels and bowed smartly.

The inspector was opening the door. "If it is permitted, Senora, it would be more convenient to talk outside."

Without will of her own Jessie preceded them to the rustic chairs that were grouped on the terrace and sat down.

"We are here," the inspector began, "at the request of the commandant of police."

And Jessie, braced for bad news, had no way of knowing that the words were only partly true.

Actually a combination of circumstances had led the inspector to stop at the Villa. The arrangements for the morning's raid were completed earlier than he had anticipated and Theresa, he knew, would still be waiting up for him. Also, at Sergeant Roberto's insistence he had reread the police reports and perhaps because the idea had been successfully planted, he wondered if there were not, after all, some connection between the events on the Plaza and the incident at the Morales home.

It intrigued him to think how embarrassing an investigation would be to both the commandant and the mayor if the woman turned out to be a criminal. Sitting here, looking at her, it was hard to believe that this little woman with the anxious eyes and dignified manner could be involved in anything unsavory. But as the inspector knew, criminals come in all shapes and sizes.

"Tell me, Senora, about your car. Were you able to replace the tires?"

Jessie smiled with relief. "Oh," she said. "It's about the car."

"Why yes, Senora," the large man answered blandly. "What did you think it was about?"

"For a moment. . .I thought. . . perhaps something had happened to Dan. . .my husband," she explained

"I'm sorry if we alarmed you. No, it's not about your husband. We are concerned about what happened last night. It must have been a frightening experience following so quickly after the theft of your purse."

"It was," Jessie agreed, "I'll admit that I was pretty shaken up. It was a small boy who stole my purse. I saw him myself. . . But this other thing. . .not knowing who did it. It's true, it scared me."

Fragments of the experience returned to trouble her, the odd feeling that she was being threatened for reasons she didn't understand. Her perplexity showed plainly in her face.

"And now, Senora, you are no longer frightened?"

"No, I realize it could happen to anyone, anywhere I just was unlucky, I guess. My car was in the wrong place at the wrong time."

"There isn't any reason then why anyone would want to harm you?" The inspector was leaning forward, carefully studying her face.

"No reason at all." The question was obviously unexpected.

The door to the lounge opened and one of the maids came out onto the terrace bringing them a tray of coffee and pastry. While she served them there was a static silence in which all the frightening implications of the inspector's questions seemed to gather form and substance in the night. They peered at Jessie from the blackness of the garden while the wind plucked at her with chill fingers.

"Very kind of the Senora Alexander." The inspector's polite comment reduced everything to the commonplace. "These cakes are delicious. The sergeant and I haven't eaten yet."

The sergeant nodded as though he understood what was being said but was unable to answer.

Not until the maid had left the terrace did the inspector say anything of importance, and, when he did return to the subject, it seemed at first as if his mind had veered off in another direction.

"You know, Senora, coincidence is a word that a good policeman does not easily accept. Has it occurred to you that the damage to your car was not merelyt he result of accidental selection?"

"But that's ridiculous!"

"Is it?" He took out a package of cigarettes, gave Jessie one and elaborately lighted it for her. "Tell me, Senora, are you carrying a great deal of money?"

Jessie smiled wryly. "Scarcely four hundred dollars — barely enough to stay in Mexico a few days and get back home."

The sergeant interpolated something in Spanish. The inspector nodded and said, "Sergeant Roberto says, and it's true, four hundred dollars is a huge sum of money to most of our people."

"Oh, but you don't understand. No one else can use it. It's in traveler's checks."

The inspector nodded solemnly as if he agreed that that was the only way to carry money. "And you have nothing else valuable? Jewelry, for instance?"

"Only my rings — they're not really valuable."

"Inspector, I don't know what you're getting at." She was more angry than confused now. She had detected a veiled insinuation and, although she didn't understand its meaning, reacted against it. "Are you accusing me of something?"

She could not see the inspector's hands, but she had the impression that he had turned them palm up, much as a magician does to prove that he is concealing nothing. The expression on his face did not change, only his eyes seemed a little more penetrating.

"Senora, I'm simply searching for possible threads between these coincidences. There may be none. There may be some that you know nothing about. But I would be derelict in my duty if I did not try to discover them."

"She thought only of the need to escape, scratching at the hands that held her, trying to tear them away. . ." The story continues tomorrow.

Optimists Told Of Bowl Event

Rose High School football coach Richard G. (Bud) Phillips Monday described the recent Shrine Bowl game as he spoke to Monday's meeting of the Greenville Optimist Club.

Phillips, who was selected as one of the coaches for the North versus South Carolina schoolboy classic, told Optimists the Shriners of the two Carolinas netted a total of $202,000 for the crippled children's hospital in Greenville, S. C.

The Rose High coach said his party visited the Greenville hospital during their stay in Charlotte for the annual high school bowl classic.

Phillips said the Shrine Bowl game was a "very colorful event." He said the grass in the stadium had been painted green to add luster to the playing field.

Net profit by the Shriners of $202,000, Phillips pointed out, was realized after $20,000 in expenses for the game was paid.

Prior to Phillips' address, Optimist heard a report of the advance tickets sale for the club's annual Christmas tree campaign.

According to Optimist President H. Thomas Money, the local club's shipment of about 1,000 Canadian balsams was scheduled to arrive today. They will go on sale at the tennis courts at Elm Street Park. Advance tickets may be used toward purchase of any tree on the lot, Money reminded.

Jack Morgan was the guest of Optimist Walter Whitehurst for last night's meeting.

The world's largest Bible reading session is conducted each year by the American Bible Society on Christmas day. More than 100,000,000 persons throughout the world read Bible passages suggested by the society.

U.S. Trying Man-In-Orbit By Year's End

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The United States pressed ahead today toward its goal of orbiting a man around the world this year. Scientists, engineers and technicians worked round the clock and astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., the chosen pilot, began extensive preparation in a "ready room" not far from the launching pad.

If all goes right, the attempt could be made as early as Dec. 20. Technical problems could delay the launching, and major trouble could push it into 1962.

Glenn moved Monday into special quarters on the Cape so he could be near all key centers of Project Mercury operations.

Not far away are the launching pad where the huge Atlas booster rocket was erected Saturday; the hangar where Glenn's spacecraft is undergoing thorough checkout, the Mercury control center, nerve center of the operation, and a ground-based capsule where he can run through simulated flights of his projected three times around the world mission.

The "ready room" is the same lodging occupied by astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Virgil I. Grissom for a few days before their 15-minute suborbital flights earlier this year.

With a more demanding assignment before him, Glenn, 40, a Marine lieutenant colonel, entered the quarters early to prepare for the flight. He will undergo periodic physical and psychological examinations, bone up on space roadmaps so stars and ground features will be readily recognized when he looks out of his spaceship as it zips around the world at 17,500 miles an hour, and he will hold numerous consultations on progress of the missile and capsule.

Glenn will live in the quarters most of the time until launching. But he will be able to leave the Cape when his training does not restrict him. His wife, Anna, their two children will remain at their home in Arlington, Va.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has not announced that manned orbit will be tried this year. But it is known officials want to achieve it in 1961, the same year as the Soviet Union.

An NASA spokesman said the agency stands on last week's statement by Project Mercury Director Robert Gilruth, after the partially successful orbit flight of Enos the chimpanzee. Gilruth said a decision on whether man would ride the next capsule must await through evaluation of the chimp flight.

He said a complete study must be made of the capsule's cooling and control systems, which malfunctioned and forced scientists to return Enos to earth after two swings around the earth instead of the intended three.

But Gilruth reported a human passenger could have overridden the troubles and the flight carried out to successful completion. Apparently he was confident the troubles were minor—for he then named Glenn as the pilot for the intended three-orbit, 4½-hour whirl about the earth.

Physical and mental examinations showed Enos suffered no unpleasant after-effects from his flight. Atlas and capsule contractor personnel went on a three-shift 24-hour-a-day work schedule to prepare the vehicles.

NASA has asked the Atlantic Missile Range for support in a period extending from Dec. 20 to the end of the year in the hope of launching Glenn successfully in this time. Rep. Victor Anfuso (D-NY) a member of the House Science and Astronautics Committee, reported in New York last Saturday that Dec. 20 was the selected date for the firing.

Up In Arms Over Female Barbers

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A circuit court peitition filed Monday declares the public health and welfare will be "irreparably and adversely affected," if something isn't done to halt female barbers in a downtown hotel's shop.

The action was filed by Atty. Gen. Thomas F. Eagleton.

Legal forces in the city and state are attempting to prevent Miss Margaret McNeil and her female assistants at the Mayfair Hotel barber shop from presenting themselves to the public as licenses or qualified barbers.

Miss McNeil, who operates the shop, is seeking court sanction of the female barbers, who all are licensed cosmetologists. She claims that as cosmetologists they are entitled to cut a man's hair.

ECC Travel-Study Tour Scheduled In Northwest

East Carolina College's Fourth Annual American Travel-Study Tour, now being arranged by the Office of Extension, will be a field trip into the Northwestern United States. Scheduled as a special event of the 1962 Summer Session at the college, the trip will extend from June 11 through July 11.

The objective of the tour is to give student-tourists an understanding and appreciation of the geographical conditions that exist in a large region of the United States.

Dr. Robert E. Cramer, professor geography at the college, will for the fourth time act as director of the annual tour and will present the courses of study offered to those enrolled.

Travel will be by air-conditioned bus, and accommodations along the way will be in first-class or deluxe hotels and motels.

Upon completion of course requirements, those enrolled as students will receive nine quarter hours of either undergraduate or graduate credit, according to the type of work done. Those not wishing college credit may also join the tour.

Among highlights along the route will be a four-day visit in Seattle, Washington, where the World Fair will be in progress. The group will also visit the Yellowstone and the Glacier National Parks and the Waterton Lakes National Park in Canada; the Garden of the Gods, Pikes Peak, and the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado; Salt Lake City; St. Louis; Chicago; Portland, Oregon, and its famous rose gardens; and other places of economic, historical, geographic, scenic, and other types of interest.

Lost Her Fight To Save Tree

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP)—Mrs. Lester Becker has lost her fight to preserve a large oak tree in front of her home.

The Rockford City Council Monday night voted approval for removal of the tree so a contractor could move a house to a lot beyond Mrs. Becker's home.

Moving the house of Steve Bergeron was halted last Friday when Mrs. Becker refused to allow workmen to cut down the tree. Then she complained to city officials. They said that the tree was in the area between the sidewalk and the street, which they said was city property.

LONGER NOT BETTER?

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Richard Batchelder, former president of the Department of Classroom Teachers of the NEA, says longer school years won't make children learn more. He told a convention here his own city of Newton, Mass. has cut school to only four days a week.

Skeletal Remains Prove Valueless

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The fate of American aviatrix Amelia Earhart, last heard from as she winged across the Pacific with navigator Fred Noonan on July 2, 1937, remains shrouded by time and space.

Dr. Theodore McCown, a University of California anthropologist, said Monday seven pounds of bones and teeth dug up on Saipan were not those of Miss Earhart and Noonan.

He said X-ray and microscopic tests proved the bones and teeth were those of Orientals.

The remains had been unearthed by San Francisco radio announcer Fred Goerner who sent them to Dr. McCown for analysis.

Macmillan And JFK To Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan will meet in Bermuda Dec. 21 and 22 to outline final strategy for possible Berlin negotiations with the Soviet Union.

The White House announced plans for the conference late Monday.

In addition to their policy talks on Berlin, Kennedy and Macmillan are expected to discuss disarmament negotiations and a course for an agreement to end nuclear weapons testing under an international inspection system. They may issue some new call for cooperation by the Soviet Union to bring the nuclear race under control.

Diplomatic informants in London said Kennedy and Macmillan also were expected to discuss the negotiations now in progress to bring Britain into the European Common Market, ways of tightening Western defenses and the probable meaning of the recent Communist party congress in Moscow and the new de-Stalinization wave it launched.

Administration hopes for steady progress toward East-West negotiations on Berlin received a setback over the weekend with blunt Communist rejection of Kennedy's suggestion last week for international control of the access routes to West Berlin across East Germany.

Apparently Kennedy aides had expected a more positive or encouraging response. The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia which published an interview with the President last week said the idea of putting the supply lines to West Berlin under international administration was "doomed to failure."

Hint Action On Phosphate Beds

RALEIGH (AP) — A definite step to develop phosphate deposits in Beaufort County may come within the month.

Gov. Terry Sanford said Monday several concerns have shown keen interest in the project within the past 60 days. "It is reasonable to anticipate considerable activity within the month," the governor said.

The State Board of Conservation and Development was told last October new interest has been shown in the phosphate deposits, which could be used in the fertilizer industry.

Geologists say billions of tons of raw phosphate are lying under some 450 square miles of Beaufort County.

Explorations were made several years ago, but nothing ever came of it.

Social Security Service Offered Thursday Night

Social security representatives will offer services tomorrow evening in the Council Room of the Greenville City Hall for the convenience of people of retirement age who work during the day.

Hours of this service will be from 5 to 8 p.m. Both men and women are eligible for full payment of social security at age 65; nowever, benefits can be paid at age 62 at a reduced rate.

The district office of social security in Rocky Mount will be open Thursday evening, Dec. 7, and Thursday evening, Dec. 14, from 5:30 to 8:30 for the same purpose, it was reported by Kenneth Whichard of the Greenville office.

In announcing the special evening hours, N. A. Avera, manager of the Rocky Mount District Office, noted that many older people in the Greenville area who are still employed do not understand that recent changes in the social security law now make it possible for a good number of them to collect some benefits in addition to their earnings.

Older workers made eligible to collect some social security benefits for the year 1961 may lose some of the payments due them if they do not make application for them before the end of January, 1962, Avera said.

He stated that it is unfortunate that a number of older people continue to think they cannot collect any social security benefits at all if their earnings are over $1,200 yearly. He emphasized that this is not true.

Whichard noted that the social security representatives who will be here tomorrow will answer any questions people have dealing with social security.

No damage was reported by Staton-House volunteer firemen who answered a call Sunday to a trailer house near Parker's Chapel Church.

The call was recorded by Staton-House firemen at 12:10 p.m. Sunday.
