Mental Checkup Is Ordered For Young Local Bank Robber

Youth Assigned To Washington Hospital For 90-Day Period

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

NEW BERN—Trial of Roy Douglas Freeman on charges of robbing a Greenville bank was set for April 2 in Washington, N.C., after Federal Judge John Larkins Thursday signed an order sending the youth to Washington, D.C., for mental examination.

The order, signed after a court-appointed attorney told Judge Larkins he felt the 18-year-old Greenville Negro should be examined, sent Freeman to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington for 90 days.

U.S. District Attorney Bob Cowan of Williamston said Freeman's trial would be docketed for the April term of Eastern District Court in the Washington Division. The attorney, former state senator D. L. Ward of New Bern, was allowed to withdraw from the case after he had talked with the youth for about an hour and had made his recommendation to the court.

Freeman had been brought here Thursday morning from Raleigh where he had been held in Wake County jail since his arrest following the Oct. 25 robbery of Wachovia Bank's West End branch in Greenville.

Cowan had anticipated that Freeman would plead guilty to the armed robbery charges during a special "plea day" set by Judge Larkins to lighten the heavy case load in the 44-county Eastern N. C. District.

Freeman told this reporter just before his case was called that he would plead guilty to the charges that carry a maximum penalty of 25 years imprisonment or a $10,000 fine or both.

After consultation with Freeman and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Simmons of Greenville, Ward told Judge Larkins: "I cannot conscientiously recommend that the court accept this defendant's waiver of indictment or plea of guilty without mental examination."

Mrs. Simmons told the Daily Reflector that Freeman had sustained a head injury last May and "hasn't been the same since." She said another sister in Bridgeport, Conn., was in possession of medical information concerning the accident.

Before signing the order Judge Larkins said: "We do have a very young defendant here. And it is necessary that he give his consent" before the court could accept a waiver of indictment by a federal grand jury and a plea of guilty.

Cowan noted that Freeman had signed a written confession to taking from the Greenville bank $3,765 on Oct. 25. News media branded the bank robber a "bicycle beatnik bandit" in reports of the mid-morning robbery in which the thief made his getaway on a bicycle.

At 3:30 p.m. the day of the robbery, Freeman was arrested by highway patrolmen at a roadblock near Williamston. He was subsequently identified as the robber by bank employes, charged with the theft and placed under $25,000 bond.

Brought here Thursday in handcuffs by U. S. deputy marshals, Freeman was locked in a small, barred cell adjoining the New Bern Division marshal's office. He sat there quietly awaiting the calling of his case.

Dressed in brown slacks, black slippers and an olive-colored cardigan sweater, the 5-foot-5 Freeman stood with his hands deep in his pockets as he faced Judge Larkins and asked for a court-appointed attorney.

His sister, who was one of three non-officials in the 150-seat federal courtroom, brought Freeman a change of clothes and handed him a $1 bill through the bars of the small cell. "He wanted some (Continued on page 12)

U.S. 'White Paper' Cites Menace To S. Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States warned its Asian allies in an official report published today that war-torn South Viet Nam is threatened by "clear and present danger" of Communist conquest.

The State Department "White Paper" also warned that if South Viet Nam and neighboring countries fall to the Reds the power balance in Asia will be "tipped perilously" against the non-Communist countries.

The paper, a 53-page booklet with 102 pages of supporting documents, mostly captured from Communist soldiers, constituted a rallying cry by the United States for Allies and neutral nations alike to face up to the danger of an expanding Red military effort in Southeast Asia and to get ready to help resist it as may be necessary.

The United States through the report also clearly intends to bring pressure on the International Control Commission, originally set up to supervise the 1954 peace agreement in Southeast Asia, to take action on a huge file of charges by the South Viet Nam government against the Reds. These charges cover assassination, kidnaping, infiltration of armed forces from Communist North Viet Nam and various other forms of what the White Paper calls "covert aggression."

India is chairman of the three-nation commission of which Poland and Canada are the other members.

The report put the number of Viet Cong (Communist) forces seeking the overthrow of the South Vietnamese government at 8,000 to 9,000 elite fighting men organized in about 30 battalions with an additional 8,000 or more troops operating under Viet Cong officers in local areas of South Viet Nam. Furthermore, the report said, the Viet Cong is assisted by "many thousands of village guards, political cadres, special agents, bearers and the like."

"North Viet Nam, in guiding and supporting the Viet Cong effort, has had the full backing of Moscow, Peking, and the rest of the Communist world," the paper said. South Viet Nam has received extensive aid from the United States and other friendly countries, but "in the face of heightened efforts by the Viet Cong, more assistance may be needed," the report said.

In the last two days Assistant Secretary of State W. Averell Harriman officially handed copies of the booklet and its annex of documents to ambassadors of Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, Pakistan and the Philippines — allies in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. Copies were also given to the governments of Canada, India and South Viet Nam.

The pamphlet bears the title "A Threat to the Peace." Its official presentation to other governments gives it the standing of a diplomatic paper as well as a propaganda document in the cold war. It was not formally designated as a "White Paper," a term officially used by the British government for such detailed statements on some major situation. But, "White Paper" is the way the document is referred to generally by State Department officials.

U.S. Resumes Airlifting UN Troops Into Katanga

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP)—U.S. transports resumed the airlift of men and supplies today to U.N. troops battling stubbornly resisting Katanga forces.

As the fighting went into its fourth day, Katanga President Moise Tshombe charged that "cowardly and decadent" Americans had bombed schools, a church and hospital and residential areas, killing women and children. Tshombe, back in Elisabethville to direct his forces, declared Americans "send to the Congo their dollars, their planes and their diplomats — everything except their soldiers."

No U.S. planes have been engaged in combat duties in Katanga but Tshombe previously had attributed attacks by Swedish and Indian jet fighters on Katanga airfields to American planes.

In the fighting the Leopold Hospital for Africans was hit by 50 mortar shells during a night-long barrage, but none of the 700 patients was seriously injured.

Nurses and doctors said the shells came from a Swedish U.N. troop camp.

U.N. officials said the U.N. mortar fire was aimed at Camp Tshombe—a Katanga installation only 800 yards from the hospital.

In London, in response to U.N. requests, the British government announced it would furnish 1,000-pound bombs for use by Indian jet fighters for defensive purposes in Katanga. The bombs may be used only against Katanga airfields, the British said.

The United States had six Globemasters and fourteen Hercules transports on hand in the Congo for the airlift that was temporarily suspended when one Globemaster was hit by ground fire as it came in for a landing at Elisabethville.

The first planes to take off from Leopoldville at dawn today, as the airlift resumed, carried 200 Irish troops. Malaysian armored cars were being brought in on some of the nine flights planned for the day.

As Gen. Sean McKewen, the Irish commander of U.N. forces, flew here from Leopoldville for a firsthand survey of the situation, U.N. officials acknowledged that the Katangans seemed to be holding their own against the smaller but better equipped U.N. force.

Katangans seemed to be increasing their mortar and sniping fire on U.N. positions on the outskirts, particularly the U.N. headquarters and its nearby Gurkha camp.

Tshombe returned during the night from his private visit to Paris to take up personal direction of the fight. He flew to neighboring Northern Rhodesia and drove from there to Elisabethville with a small escort of soldiers.

Mortar explosions and machine-gun fire rang out during the night from a suburb bordering the vital highway between Elisabethville and the city's main airport, still held by U.N. troops.

A see-saw battle appeared in full swing for a strategic underpass—one of the main gateways to the capital from the suburbs.

Swedish troops claimed they had seized the tunnel Wednesday but a U.N. spokesman indicated Thursday night that they did not control the whole area.

Katanga forces held control of the center of Elisabethville, which the U.N. forces have made no attempt to penetrate. Fighting has been confined so far to the outskirts, chiefly in the northwest where the new and old airports and the U.N. headquarters are located.

The government radio sounded a new call to arms for the Katanga people to wage war with "bullets or poison arrows" for a fight to the finish until every last quarter of the U.N. is driven out of Katanga.

Humber Leaves To Accept Art Gifts To N. Carolina

Sen. Robert Lee Humber of Greenville, chairman of the Board of Trustees for the N. C. Museum of Art, left yesterday afternoon for Washington, D.C., where he will accept $2½ million in art gifts presented to this state by the Samuel H. Kress Foundation.

Sen. Humber will represent Governor Terry Sanford and the state of North Carolina in accepting title deeds to the works, which already had been placed in the state museum in Raleigh.

In a letter to Sen. Humber, Gov. Sanford stated, "It is appropriate that you act for the state in this matter, not only because you are chairman of the Board of Trustees of the N. C. Museum of Art, but because of the important role that you played in bringing the Kress gift to North Carolina."

Acceptance ceremonies for 18 museums in the country will extend over a two-day period. Sen.

Humber will be accompanied by Mrs. Humber and Dr. Justus Bier, director of the N. C. Museum of Art.

On Friday evening at 6:30, a reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Rush H. Kress given by the American Association of Museums will begin the festivities. Saturday morning, guests will be received at the White House, and then attend a luncheon at the National Gallery of Art. At 7 p.m. a dinner will be given at the Sulgrave Club of Washington.

The dinner is to be followed by formal ceremonies of presentation of title deeds to the works of art that the Samuel H. Kress Foundation has presented to different museums in the country. Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, Earl Warren will preside.

The Kress Foundation has presented over $40 million in gifts to 18 different museums in the nation from New York to San Francisco, including the National Gallery of Art in Washington.

The gift to North Carolina of $2½ million is the most important gift ever made by the foundation to any institution in the country outside the National Gallery.

The foundation asked each of the museums to loan to a special exhibition at the National Gallery of Art some of the most important paintings presented by the foundation to these museums. This exhibition, to be known as "Art Treasures of America," will open after formal ceremonies on Saturday.

Among these paintings requested from the North Carolina Museum of Art is Giotto's "Christ" — one of four authentic paintings by this artist in existence, the others being in Florence, Berlin and the National Gallery in Washington; a painting by Botticelli; Rembrandt's "Man With a Sword"; and others less known but vitally important due to historical value.

Officials are confident the blast will not disturb the Carlsbad caverns 34 miles to the west, or potash mines or gas wells in the general area.

But playing it safe, the caverns won't have any tourists underground at zero hour, set for 10 a.m. (Eastern Standard Time), and potash miners working on Sunday will be above ground also.

From Project Gnome, as this shot is named, scientists hope for much new knowledge, and have designed elaborate experiments. Some main objectives:

1. The explosion is expected to create a great underground cavity partly filled with molten salt and superheated steam.

They'll drill down to tap this hole, to bring up steam, perhaps after pumping down some water. One day, such steam might be vests of radioactive atoms invaluable in medicine, industry, agriculture, and for science.

Operation Plowshare, Next Atomic Blast, Keyed To Bible

The Sunday explosion is the first step to test such possibilities, and will be the world's first known blast intended purely for peaceful purposes. Foreign newsmen and observers will be among the witnesses.

The AEC dug a million-dollar hole a quarter mile under the New Mexico desert near here to explode a nuclear device equal to 5,000 tons of TNT. That's ¼ the energy of the Hiroshima bomb.

Experts do not expect it to blast a crack up to the surface, or to release any fallout into the air. They dug a shaft 1,200 feet straight down, then a horizontal tunnel 1.16 feet through salt rock ending in a chamber at the end of a fishhook bend.

used to run turbines at ground level to generate electricity.

2. They'll try to "mine" or recover many valuable isotopes.

3. They'll study carefully the blast effects in salt rock. All previous underground blasts, held in Nevada in weapons testing, have been in volcanic rock. Gnome could indicate effects in other types of rock where harbors might be blasted out, or ore-bearing rocks crushed underground at a cheaper cost than with TNT.

4. The "seismic signature" will be traced in detail, with instruments in the mine, and at seismic stations around the world.

Experts will look for differences between Gnome's shock waves and those of a natural earthquake. This and other data could be invaluable in setting up systems to detect any secret underground explosions in violation of a nuclear test ban.

5. Running the length of the tunnel is a 22-inch pipe, a vacuum tube, to analyze neutrons liberated by the blast. These atomic particles will strike a revolving wheel containing four chemical elements—gold, hafnium, thorium and uranium—to learn more about fission processes. Gnome will create millions of neutrons, more than great machines could produce in years of work.

6. Another vacuum pipe, running from the ground above directly into the blast chamber, will capture samples of gaseous isotopes rushing up the tube in the split second before the tube is crushed. This could provide the first sampling of such products created in an explosion.

Vote Tomorrow

GRIFTON—Citizens of Grifton will go to the polls here tomorrow to decide on a $155,000 school bond issue.

Approval of the bond issue would provide funds for six additional classrooms and a library, to complete a 10-classroom and library wing for the high school. Four classrooms have already been constructed.

The high school addition would include adequate science classrooms and laboratories. School officials here have termed the needs as "urgent" to meet population growth.

A total of 378 people registered to vote in the election.

N.H. Governor At Ft. Bragg To Hear Complaints

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—New Hampshire national guardsmen called to active duty to get a chance today to voice their complaints in person to the governor of their state.

In turn, Gov. Wesley Powell will have a chance to see at first hand the conditions under which the troops are living.

Maj. Gen. Francis B. McSwiney, commander of the New Hampshire guard, is expected to accompany Gov. Powell on the flight from Concord, N.H., to his big, busy military post. Their plane is due around noon at Pope Air Force Base, located on the reservation.

Tentative plans, subject to Gov. Powell's approval, call for him to visit with the New Hampshire troops this afternoon, and hold a news conference at 5 p.m.

The Ft. Bragg public information office said Gov. Powell will be free to "visit any place and see anyone he wishes."

Three units of New Hampshire guardsmen, about 1,500 men, are on the post.

Before his departure Saturday, Gov. Powell will see a parachute jump staged by the "Immediate Ready" force of the famed 82nd Airborne Division.

Gov. Powell will go to New Orleans. He said he expects to give a report of his Ft. Bragg findings to the Executive Committee of the National Governors' Conference, which he serves as chairman.

His trip climaxed a furor set off when a group of guardsmen aired their complaints in a letter published by the Manchester, N.H., Union-Leader.

Names of the men were withheld by the paper at their request. The letter contended the men received improper equipment, were housed in inadequate quarters, and fed insufficient food.

"We are not unpatriotic. We are just confused and dejected because of the way we are being treated," the letter added.

Russian Budget Voted Approval

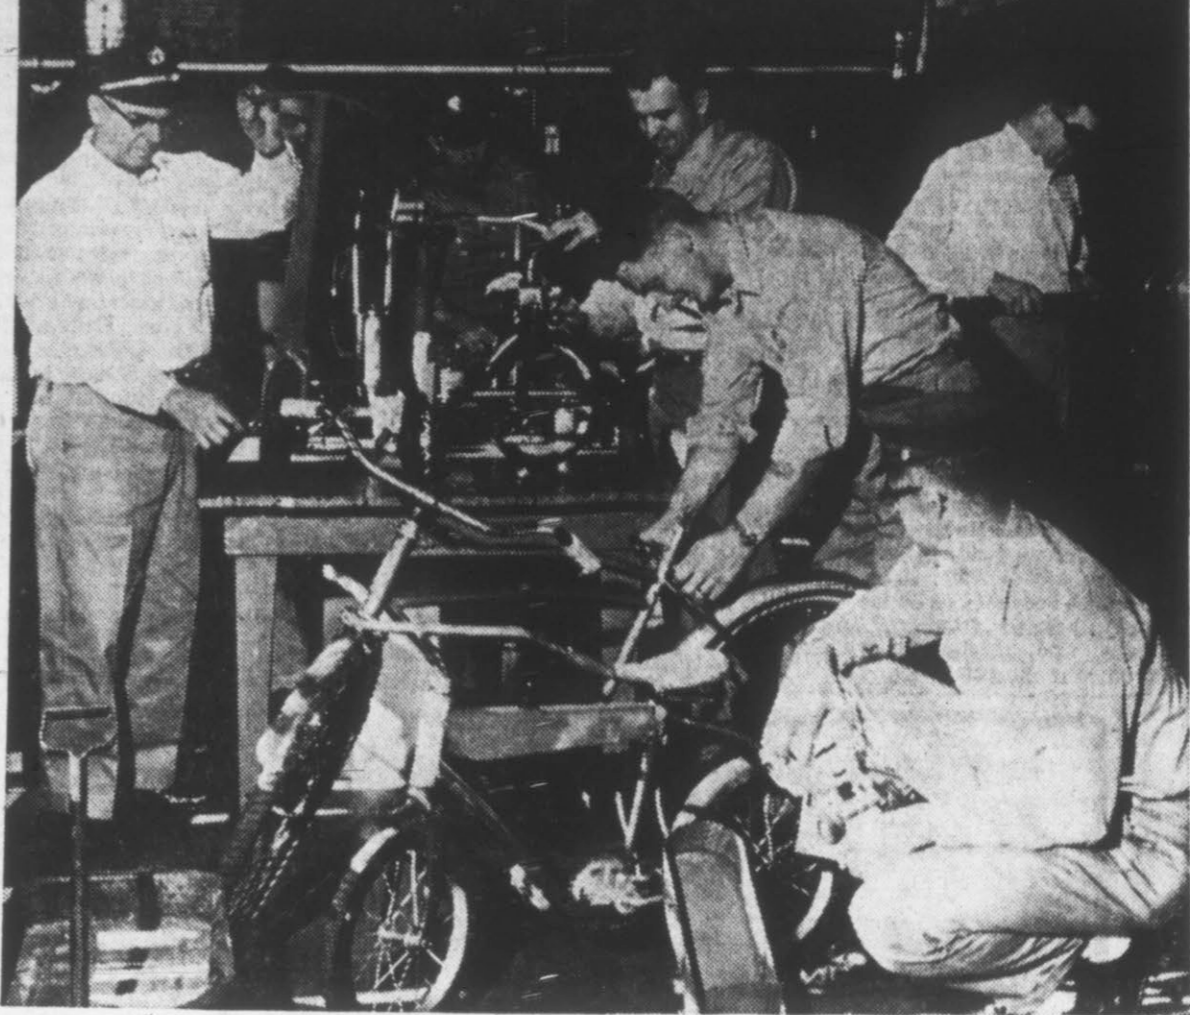

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Parliament today unanimously approved a record 1962 budget of more than 81 billion rubles. It gave Premier Khrushchev more money than he asked to run the country.

At the official rate of exchange one ruble equals $1.11.

The Khrushchev government originally submitted an overall budget of $1,300,321,000 rubles. Delegates upped it by $8,420,000 after several appeals for more money for their own districts.

Santa's Helpers Are Busy

SANTA'S WORK SHOP . . . or at least that's what Greenville's fire departments are looking like these days. The local firemen are in the midst of repairing used toys for distribution by the Salvation Army to needy families at Christmas. Fire officials requested that all toys be delivered by December 15 so "Santa's helpers" will have ample time to restore the gifts for delivery December 25. Pictured here at work are men at the Central Fire Station, Assistant Chief Berry Surrall; Carol Jordan; Amos W. Harrell; Dawson Nethercutt; Capt. Jenness Allen, Tony Brannon and Kenneth Hathaway.

Public Hearing Slated Saturday

A public hearing scheduled for last night's City Council meeting has been reset for 12:15 tomorrow, Mayor Charles M. King announced today.

The hearing involves the rezoning from residential to commercial property on Fifth St. from Pitt to the ACL Railroad.

Last night's regular monthly City Council meeting was postponed until next Thursday night because a quorum was lacking.

Mayor Charles M. King and Councilman Ralph Brimley were present for the meeting. However three of the five council members are required to transact business.

Councilmen Ford McGowan, James Lee and M. W. Aldridge were not present.

Approximately 30 citizens were in attendance for the regularly scheduled meeting last night.

Mayor King announced to the group that, due to lack of a quorum, the meeting would be postponed.

The public hearing had been legally advertised for last night. City Attorney R. B. Lee said such a situation is not covered in the law concerning public hearings.

Stray Children Were Unnoticed For Three Days

CHICAGO (AP)—An 11-year-old boy and his younger sister wandered around Chicago unnoticed for three days and nights earlier this week while police hunted them and newspapers circulated their pictures.

Lance Michael Geary and his sister, Shirley, 10, said they rode buses and elevated trains and sat in movie theaters, financing their way by selling empty pop bottles found in alleys. They said they slept in basements. The youngsters were found Wednesday.

"It's amazing to think they could ride around like that and no one asked why they were out past curfew," a family court officer said. "These days, everybody seems to look the other way."

The children, who disappeared from their Chicago home Sunday, remained in court custody today pending an investigation.

AFL-CIO Leaders Generally Back New Trade Policy

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP)—Labor union leaders generally look kindly today to President Kennedy's appeal for more liberal foreign trade policies but some like many businessmen, had their fingers crossed.

Kennedy delivered a plea Thursday to the AFL-CIO convention, as he had done the day before to the National Association of Manufacturers in New York, for support in Congress next year for broader tariff cutting powers.

The President's theme, as expressed to both groups, is that both business and labor are bound to suffer unless they bid successfully for a greater share in expanding foreign markets.

To business he warned that to do otherwise will mean dwindling profits, to labor he said the alternative is dwindling jobs. And he said lack of a favorable trade balance will mean that America will have to pull home its armies from abroad.

Kennedy himself seemed to acknowledge the more cordial reception he received from the labor audience when he said "it's warmer today than it was yesterday."

At least the AFL-CIO delegates took it that way.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, gave Kennedy a gilt-edged guarantee of "don't worry about us—we'll cooperate one thousand per cent."

But other influential labor chiefs said later they wanted to see the administration spell out the pledge he made in his speech that workers, industries and communities hurt by rising imports would be taken care of under a proposed new adjustment plan.

"Whatever is required," the President promised, "we will make certain that no community suffers unduly from trade. For, on the contrary, America must trade—or suffer."

David J. Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers, and Jacob Potofsky, the president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, were among the influential AFL-CIO leaders who, although staunch Kennedy supporters otherwise, didn't quite buy his foreign trade proposals. Both unions have import problems.

Over-all it was confidently predicted among convention delegates that the AFL-CIO convention here will adopt a resolution favoring more liberal trade.

The labor chiefs were more chary, however, of Kennedy's appeal for labor cooperation with business in holding wage-price increases to keep the economy healthy and fit for rugged foreign trade competition.

It was noted here that Kennedy refrained from mentioning in his remarks to his labor union audience of over 3,000 any reference to his commitment for a balanced budget, although this was part of a prepared text. Kennedy had made it a chief point in his talk to businessmen the day before.

Couldn't Stand 'Togetherness'

NEW ALBANY, Ind. (AP)—"This will give us a chance to know each other better," Edgar J. Bachman told his wife and four children when they started experimental living in a fallout shelter Oct. 13.

Mrs. Bachman blamed an allergy when she left the shelter a week later with the youngest child.

But she told a different story in the divorce suit she filed Wednesday—cruel and inhuman treatment by her husband, an unemployed state worker.

'Shot Down' By Juror's Question

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—An assistant district attorney was shouting at a Criminal Court jury in summing up his case when a juror interrupted.

"Do you have to talk so loud?" he asked.

"I'm sorry," said Robert K. Dwyer, after a startled pause.

Dwyer wound up his argument in another five minutes. He said later he had planned to go on for 45 minutes but the juror "shot me down."

Another Large Gift Of Blood

The Red Cross bloodmobile boosted its two-day blood collection from Pitt County this week to 470 pints of blood at the conclusion of a visit to the DuPont Plant on Thursday.

The DuPont operation yielded 206 pints of blood Thursday, and on Wednesday, students and faculty of East Carolina College gave overwhelming support in donating 264 pints of blood, believed to be the largest collection for the bloodmobile in Pitt County for a single day.

The DuPont visit, though actually in Lenoir County, counted for Pitt's quota.

A large collection "has contributed materially to alleviation of the shortage which we have built up over a period of years," Kenneth Wheelard, blood-program chairman for Pitt, said today. It puts the county in good standing so far this fiscal year with the blood bank, which has headquarters in Norfolk, Va for this region, the Tidewater district.

Since 1958, Pitt has lagged in collection of blood, with local requirements outdistancing the local collections.

At the conclusion of this week's visit of the bloodmobile, Red Cross and blood program officials have expressed optimism for the program and appreciation to those who cooperated.

13 SHOPPING DAYS LEFT USE CHRISTMAS SEALS AND HELP FIGHT TBI

Miss Roulston, Dr. Posey Are Entertained By Faculty Members

Miss Rosalind Roulston and Dr. Meredith N. Posey, whose marriage will take place Dec. 16, were honored guests at a dinner Wednesday night at the Greenville Country Club. Hosts and hostesses were faculty members of the Department of English at East Carolina College, in which both Miss Roulston and Dr. Posey teach.

Before the dinner, Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, Mrs. Claude Goodman, Dr. Hermine Caraway, and Mrs. James Poindexter were hostesses at a social hour at the home of Dr. Utterback.

Approximately 45 people attended the dinner at the Country Club. The table, arranged in U shape was gay with decorations suggestive of the Christmas season. Arrangements of holly and other evergreens centered with red candles made the scene a festive one. Dr. George Cook, acting as master of ceremonies, welcomed those present and extended good wishes from the group to the honor guests. During the evening he was joined by Mrs. Claude Garren in an entertaining skit "Brush Up Your Shakespeare."

As an expression of friendship from her co-workers in the Department of English, an embossed silver tray was given to Miss Roulston. Miss Lois Grigby presented the gift from the group.

Miss Roulston wore a sheath dress of red satin. Her white orchid corsage was a gift from the hosts and hostesses.

Weekly Shampoo Essential For Hair

Everyone's hair is constantly facing a double assault from dirt. While your scalp is secreting oil and perspiration from underneath, dust and soil from the air are also settling on your hair from above. This double threat is a double reason why you should carefully shampoo at least once a week—with plenty of sudsy lather, followed by thorough rinsing.

Cleanliness Essential For Baby's 'Guests'

Friends who come to "meet" a new baby should not be insulted if asked to wash their hands with soap before fondling the child. This advice comes from a noted doctor—because cleanliness must be practiced from the moment baby and mother arrive home from the hospital.

7:30 p. m.—Bridal shower honoring Peggy Jean Dixon at the Eastern Pines Community Bldg. given by Mrs. C. R. Hardee Jr., Mrs. Hugh Hardee Sr., Mrs. Glenn Hardee, Mrs. Johnnie Hardee, Mrs. Wyatt Highsmith, and Mrs. Hugh Hardee Jr.

On Sunday afternoon, Dec. 3, from 3:00 to 5:30, Mr. and Mrs. William Hutchen Ward were honored at an open house in celebration of their 50th Wedding Anniversary. Hosts for the occasion were their children, Mr. and Mrs. L. Eugene Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Rumley, and Mr. William Hutchen Ward, Jr.

Mrs. Clara Roberson of Bethel greeted guests at the door and introduced them to the receiving line which was composed of the honored couple and hosts. After signing the Register, which was presided over by Mrs. Ruby Finch, the guests were invited into the dining room where punch and cake, with party accompaniments, were served by Miss Deanie Boone Haskett, Mrs. J. K. Spivey, and Mrs. Julian White, Jr.

The home on Evans Street was decorated throughout with yellow and white chrysanthemums and the table cover and centerpiece carried the same color scheme, with golden wedding bells and ribbons being used. Assisting in serving were the granddaughters of the honored couple, Mrs. Charles Rumley, Jr., Miss Carolyn Rumley, Miss Susan Ward, and a friend, Miss Brenda Anne Edwards.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward were the recipients of many lovely gifts. At the door-to-bid goodbye to the friends who called was Mrs. William Andrews of Bethel.

Alpha Phi Sorority At ECC Initiates Sixteen Sisters

Sixteen women students have been formally initiated into Delta Alpha Chapter of Alpha Phi International Sorority at East Carolina College at services in the First Presbyterian Church in Greenville. Among the new initiates is Be- lina Smith of Greenville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Ted Smith.

The new sisters were entertained Dec. 2 at a semi-formal dance at the Greenville Rotary Club. The Alpha Phis attended the morning services of the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville Dec. 2. The Initiation Banquet was held at five o'clock on Sunday at the Cinderella Restaurant. Mrs. Kay Faucette of Mexico City and Morehead City, president, served as toastmistress and welcomed the initiates to the chapter. The response for the pledge class was given by Eleanor Poole of Rt. 2, Wake Forest, president. The address was given by Mrs. Frank Allen of Farmville, president of the Alpha Phi alumnae for this area.

The scholarship awards, Alpha Phi bracelets, presented by Pinky Loftin of Rt. 4, Mt. Olive, vice president in charge of scholarship, went to Nancy Compton of Sanford, for the past pledge receiving the highest grades during the last quarter.

Awards presented to the past pledge class by Rebecca Murphrey of Rt. 1, Snow Hill, vice president in charge of pledge training, went to Eleanor Poole for being the outstanding pledge and to Brenda Reges of Rt. 3, Rocky Mount, for earning the most merits. The pledge class sang the song which they had written for the chapter and the festivities ended with the traditional Alpha Phi closing.

Each night of the week prior to Initiation was filled with talks by Mrs. I. Griffith Morris of Silver Springs, Maryland, district governor, Miss Gay Hogan of the East Carolina College faculty, Chapter advisor, and Rebecca Murphrey, pledge trainer—as preparation for initiation.

John Clark Club Speaker

Mrs. J. O. Clark was hostess to the members of the Thetis Book Club Tuesday afternoon. Two new members, Mrs. Tommy Snowden and Mrs. William Cochran, were welcomed into the club.

During the business meeting, the social chairman, Mrs. Bill Laughinghouse, told of final plans for the club's Christmas party to be held Dec. 20.

The hostess introduced Mr. John Clark Jr., speaker for the afternoon, who gave a talk on the making of television commercials. He reviewed the making of a present commercial and showed how such an endeavor involved the efforts and talents of many people. The group held a discussion period with Mr. Clark about various phases of the television industry.

A dessert course was served and books were exchanged. Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Guy McClanahan, club member who is moving away.

+ Personal +

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barnhill, Greenville Rt. 4, have just returned from a trip to Big Spring, Texas after spending the Thanksgiving holidays with their son, A-IC Clarence D. Barnhill, and his family. While there they visited Mexico.

Youth For Christ
Saturday at 7:30 p. m. there will be a Youth for Christ rally at the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church. A young minister, Rev. Bob Smith of Ayden, will be the guest speaker. Pastor Crawford urges a large attendance.

Student From Vanceboro New Frat President

The East Carolina College Chapter of the Alpha Phi Omega, a national service fraternity, recently elected Harry E. Smith Jr. of Vanceboro as president. "Representing the fraternity as president is one of the highest honors of my college life," Smith stated. Alpha Phi Omega has over 300 national chapters on the college campuses across the country, more than any other similar organization. The purpose of the fraternity is to aid in the development of friendship and the promotion of service to humanity. A senior business administration major, Smith accepted the gavel of authority from past president Jerry A. Cummings of Tarboro. Since entering East Carolina, he has been an active member in the fraternity and has held the offices of social chairman, second vice president, and first vice president. He is Flight Commander of the East Carolina Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps and a member of the Arnold Air Society.

Dr. Batten Discusses Teacher Merit Pay

FOUNTAIN—Dr. James Batten of East Carolina College, discussing pros and cons of merit pay for teachers, told members of the Pitt County unit of the North Carolina Education Association here Wednesday that a good teacher has academic scholarship, genuine interest in children and a desire for a job well done. One recent study on the subject of merit concerned the academic role, and Dr. Batten cited this study, saying that the teachers who made the highest academic grades were not necessarily the best teachers. Other factors must be considered also. In order to have merit pay, "we have to measure what is merit," the speaker stated. Merit is measured in master teaching, which includes the characteristics of good teaching. A good teacher, among other things, is punctual, has a genuine interest in children, is interested in professional meetings and organizations such as the N.C.E.A. and N.E.A. is interested in in-service training. Though North Carolina does not have the merit system for teachers now, the state is hoping to try a system that will be as satisfactory as possible. Dr. Batten pointed out. Nine states now are using some form of merit rating but none are entirely satisfactory. Dr. Batten recommended that in the merit system, "we have a basic pay scale and then increments for travel, for writing scholarly articles, for summer schools, length of service and other things."

W. C. Wiggins, principal of Fountain School, gave the welcome. The Rev. Horace Thompson, pastor of Fountain Baptist Church, gave the invocation. Mrs. Jo Ann Jernigan of Williamson presented entertainment in the singing of "O Holy Night."

SHP Strongly 'For' Dry Holiday Parties

Highway Patrol Captain S. H. Mitchell, Commander of Troop "A," quoted Motor Vehicle Commissioner Edward Scheidt today as saying the state vehicle agency is squarely behind the National Safety Council's appeal to "dry" up holiday office parties.

Capt. Mitchell quoted Scheidt while commenting on the Patrol's special emphasis program for the holidays, Holiday DRY'S (Drinking Reduces Your Safety).

The National Safety Council is making its fourth annual effort to free the Yuletide highways from drinking drivers, the Patrol officer said, adding that the Motor Vehicles Department has coordinated similar attacks over the years.

Employers are urged to free themselves of a "burden of responsibility—the drinking driver, chief product of the "wet" Christmas office party," Capt. Mitchell said.

The appeal was directed to business, industry and government by Scheidt in North Carolina and was chiefly concerned with eliminating alcoholic office parties or dry them up, Mitchell commented. Most highway accidents occur, the Troop Commander said, "during the early hours of the holiday, and many can be traced back to the alcoholic punchbowl."

Capt. Mitchell said Scheidt told, "As one of the state's largest agencies, the Motor Vehicle Department feels an urgency in both complying with the Council's appeal and publicizing it widely." "Employers aren't legally responsible for employees after they leave the office or plant," Scheidt continued, "but employers are certainly morally responsible for accidents resulting from company sponsored events."

"Highway Patrol headquarters have issued special alerts to the

Kennedy Sets Stage For New Test

President Kennedy has set the stage for another major test of his leadership ability and political strength with his proposal that broad new authority be given the administration next year to reduce tariff barriers and effect new trade agreements between the United States and other nations.

In recent months many elements of organized labor and industrial management have pushed for higher rather than lower tariff barriers to protect American industry from the influx of cheaper, competitive goods produced in other nations. Many leaders, both from organized labor and from industry have declared that inadequate tariff barriers now existing are largely responsible for a high rate of unemployment in this country and grave economic straits in which some industries find themselves.

President Kennedy's new proposal—while it has not yet been spelled out in detail—envisions a lowering of tariff barriers in order to stimulate trade with other nations, opening up new markets for American products in return for making it easier for other nations to sell their products in the United States. It also envisions an increased demand for U.S. goods to handle new export trade and more jobs for American workers. The proposed new policy would allow the President to reduce tariff barriers on the basis of broad categories of goods rather than through the item-by-item method now in effect.

Although the President's new plan appears to offer an opportunity to increase American exports, it also will afford foreign producers easier access to U.S. markets. In many cases, leaders in both industry and organized labor will view the new proposal as a serious threat to certain segments of American industry. They will not be convinced that the long-range advantages offered by the proposals will outweigh the adverse effects of a greater influx of foreign goods into the American market.

The President will find his new program a difficult one to sell in many parts of the country . . . and particularly on Capitol Hill where Congress will have the final word in his proposals.

Governor Isn't Really Crushed

By LYNN NISBET

UP AND AT 'EM—It is quite obvious even to the casual observer that Governor Terry Sanford was somewhat chastened by result of the bond issue vote. He was first to admit that he had taken a licking, and he accepted large part of the responsibility for the failure of the bonds. Many people think he may be assuming too much blame, because he didn't have much help in promoting the issue.

A number of things have happened since November 7 indicating that the Governor is giving more thought to public reaction than he did before. He has declined several invitations for out of state trips which previously he had indicated he might accept. He is not filling, at this time, a high salaried vacancy in his office occasioned by transfer of Hugh Cannon to the Department of Administration.

But—anybody who thinks that Terry Sanford is cowed or beaten down need only look at the rest of the record. It was his prerogative under the law to appoint a director for the Department of Administration, the overall supervising agency of State government instituted at instance of Governor Hodges some three years ago. It is the agency through which the Governor acts in most of his routine and detail executive duties. He named to that position his former law partner and later assistant in the Governor's office, Hugh Cannon.

Cannon admittedly is one of the most brilliant young men ever to be identified with State government, and his scholastic attainments are far above the average for most scholars of twice his age. But—he is just 30 years old, and his only training or tutelage in government has been given by Sanford. As the final voice, next to the Governor, on matters of fiscal and personnel policy, Cannon has tremendous authority. In his inaugural statement he committed himself to carry forward the Governor's program.

COLTRANE—Then the Governor announced that David Coltrane, who was being replaced as Director of Administration by Hugh Cannon, would be retained on the State payroll as a member of his personal staff and also would be appointed to the Advisory Budget Commission with request that he be made chairman. The suggestion was protested by some members of the budget commission and questioned by a number of citizens. Question had to do with the propriety of the Governor naming a tax-paid State employee, especially one from his own personal staff to the "advisory" commission designed to recommend appropriations and taxes, and to exercise some control over expenditures of tax collected funds throughout the year.

The Governor met these protests head-on at his news conference this week. He reminded it is his prerogative to appoint two members of the advisory commission—as well as the Director of Administration and the chief budget officer in that department—and he believes Coltrane is well qualified to serve on the commission. If qualified for the commission he should be recognized as qualified for chairman. Any member ought to be qualified to serve as chairman, he said.

The Governor said he would not press his recommendation for the chairmanship, but would not withdraw it. And very definitely he will appoint Coltrane as a member of the commission. Never before has a full-time salaried State employee served on the Advisory Budget Commission. There will be one as soon as the Governor executes the commission for Coltrane. Whether he will be chairman is up to the other members, but as of now the odds are about 100 to one he will be.

MISSIONARIES—When the Department of Conservation and Development and the Travel Council of North Carolina first approved the program as a missionary tour to Europe to promote travel business in this state it was expected that Governor Sanford would head the mission. Later developments have made it unlikely the Governor can go and the mission will be headed by Charles B. Wade, Jr., vice president of R. J. Reynolds and chairman of the advertising committee of the C&D board, the Governor announced at his news conference this week.

Members of the party, presently scheduled to go to Europe early in February, will be invited by the Governor and commissioned as ambassadors of North Carolina. Each member of the party will go at his own personal or company expense. The State will contribute service of its advertising division and other promotional agencies, but no tax money will be spent for any purpose that is not included in the departmental budget allocations, and no travel expenses will be paid by the State.

This proposed mission is different from most such jaunts. It may be unique. North Carolina sponsored a mission to Europe several years ago to promote industry. Many other states have done the same. The textile industry has sent out missionaries, and the furniture people around Hickory are now planning a mission for February. So far as can be learned, this proposed mission is the first to be devoted mainly to selling the travel attractions of the state. That in itself is effective comment on the growing recognition of travel as a major part of the total industrial program.

Coming Requests For Capital Improvements

North Carolina will face in the next few years a severe capital improvements problem at its institutions of higher learning and other state institutions as a result of the loss of bond funds in the November referendum.

It is already evident, we think, that the 1963 legislature will receive capital improvement requests from these institutions that are unprecedented in state history. In all probability, the legislature will not be able to fill all the requests, and it is quite likely that the legislature will not feel that it is in the position to fill even all of the most urgently needed capital improvements.

Whether some of the institutions will seek to fill some of their most pressing needs—such as dormitories and the like—through federal loans to be repaid from student fees, remains to be seen. It appears to us that this would be a logical course which could at least make it possible for more of the increasing number of college-minded young people in North Carolina to gain admission to colleges in this state. At the same time, such methods of financing new facilities should not be carried to the extent that it will put the price of a college education out of the reach of young people of the state.

There is also the possibility that by the end of the biennium in June of 1963 the state will find that its current tax schedules have produced more revenue than was anticipated when the budget was adopted earlier this year. If that is the case, state officials might seriously consider applying whatever surplus of state funds exist at that time to meeting some of the capital improvement needs of the state's institutions.

In spite of the outcome of the bond referendum, we do not believe the people of North Carolina intend to ignore the needs of its mental, health and educational institutions. Feasible alternate methods of financing these needs over the next few years will, in our opinion, meet with approval from the people of North Carolina.

Who's Winning The Cold War?

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Today, 20 years after the United States got into World War II, optimists like to think this country is winning the third world war, the cold one. Plenty disagree.

Perhaps self-examination increases—as the years of struggle with communism stretch out with no end in sight—but always from a single starting point. How did communism, which could claim only 170 million people in Russia 20 years ago, manage to gather in one billion now extending from Eastern Europe, through Russia, and into Red China and Southeast Asia?

There is no single and no easy answer. Nor is there one to many other questions about this war which is deadly without shooting. For instance: How it started or how it could have been stopped?

In some cases communism was a response to wretched conditions, in some to intrigue, treachery, and military power. It is questionable any single action or series of actions could have choked it off.

Communism is more than just a political or economic system. It is a challenging idea and, like capitalism, almost inevitably would have had to find some way to run its course. Discontented men, perhaps for centuries, would have discussed it, perhaps tried it again if tomorrow it were crushed by an outside force instead of evolving into something quite different under its own power.

Capitalistic and communistic dogmatists tend to think of their pet beliefs in absolute terms as if they were unchanging. Perhaps nearer the truth is the thought capitalism or communism, if tomorrow it were crushed by the world without opposition, would in time evolve into something unrecognizable today.

And for a simple reason: The history of man is evolutionary and the one predictable thread running through it is that there will be change, subtle or sudden, because of new ideas, new ambitions, or new conditions.

From the moment communism emerged in Russia 44 years ago the most realistic reaction to it might have been not how to top it but how to channel it in a direction more reasonable for the West to live with.

That is exactly what the Western powers are trying to do today. No one today in a responsible position is talking of destroying communism. The emphasis is on how to get it to live as a good neighbor. Books have been written on how the great chance to overwhelm communism was lost at Yalta, or after the war when this country still had a monopoly on the atomic bomb, or when this country demobilized too fast.

The handwringing could go further back: To American isolation between the two world wars which helped make Hitler possible and, as a result after his destruction, made communist expansion possible.

But the isolationism was only evidence that this country, which emerged as the world leader after World War I, was too unprepared, too unimaginative and too unsophisticated for its role.

The same thing could have been said of it again after World War II when, once more it emerged as world leader and, failing to understand its problems and responsibilities, demobilized too fast.

But this is an endless story. The success of communism today could be blamed on the failure of the capitalistic West to unite and crush the Bolshevik takeover in Russia in 1917. Beyond that, too, was the failure of the West to try to compel the czar to establish for his people conditions which would have made communism unthinkable.

But the West, except for the United States, was made up of colonial powers who were in no position to preach good treatment of backward people. The West had to learn the hard way and give up its colonies.

And now, by one of the great ironies of history, Communist Russia and Red China, proclaiming their concern for mankind, have become the new colonial masters. They, too, will have to learn the hard way.

Opinions in Brief

"If you live within your income you will get along without worry, among other things."—Augusta (Kansas) Gazette.

"For years the people have heard Congress talk about revising the federal tax system, but the only result is more and more complicated laws and administrative rulings by the Internal Revenue Service. Even a small business and many individuals require a lawyer or public accountant to make out federal income tax returns. This amounts to an addition to the tax load."—Industrial News Review.

Can't Shake Off His Nuclear Cloud

By PATRICIA MOORE

Script Adhered To Story

Wednesday night Oscar Wilde greeted TV viewers with "The Picture of Dorian Gray." We will hold, in spite of some heated opposition, that this hour-long program was the best single one we have viewed on TV this fall.

Perhaps we were swayed by the fact that for once the script writers stuck to a plot and didn't try to make the ending "come out right," by changing it.

The main opposition to the production was that Dorian Gray was not sinister enough, that in his acting, the main character did not betray the evil that he really was. However, we would challenge this criticism on the basis that the character was a mirror of a painting and thus not supposed to change and show evil and murderous tendencies.

This was the premiere of the "Golden Showcase" series. It is hoped here that more such programs, whether liked or not liked because they suit individual tastes, will be put before the screens because they are at least interesting. Anything that provokes criticism and interest is worth seeing. It beats by far some of the hum-drum episodes we witness day after day, with the public complaining, because the limited number of existing plots are just plain being exhausted by different characters in different costumes.

Our only legitimate complaint about "Dorian Gray" was that in the end, the man looked so hideous—more like some of the Halloween masks we buy in the dime store—than perhaps like an evil thing. It was overdone. But, referring to the end of the actual novel, it may not have been overdone. The play was interesting because of the writer, Oscar Wilde. To this writer, Dorian Gray personified Oscar Wilde as he was supposed to have been.

A critic of Oscar Wilde (in case you are interested), Richard Aldington, has said that Lord Henry was Wilde as he hoped to remain, and Dorian Gray as he feared he might become.

Wilde's life in England evoked a storm of criticism, gossip and the end result of scandal, court trial and conviction of some not-so-pleasant accusations. Generally, these things are not disputed.

But reviewing them and having viewed "Dorian Gray" on television makes us more interested in reading some of Wilde again.

Other Editors Saying ... Strength Enemy On The Move For Today

(Richmond News-Leader)

In a good many ways, both the Eisenhower and Kennedy Administrations have breached the classic commandment which says: "Never underestimate the enemy."

The most recent infringement on this rule (following big mistakes in misjudging Russia's airpower, space and subversive capabilities) is the idea that the USSR is resting upon its ill-gotten gains in Europe. The theory goes that with the possible exception of Berlin, the Soviet Union is merely sparring on such European questions as NATO and the Common Market, and does not intend to hit hard enough to make the West angry.

This concept, inferential in many Administration moves and statements, does not take into account either the tactical or strategic actions of the enemy.

If past performance of European dictatorships tells anything at all, Russia already is making the initial swoops for a large encircling plan. One pincher has reached north into Finland. Despite Administration tendencies to look the other way, and say that nothing is happening, or can be prevented from happening, the Kremlin has now arranged for a one-party, pro-Soviet election next February in Finland. President Kekkonen is already in Khrushchev's pocket; he cannot lose the one-candidate election, and there is increasing reason to suppose that the local Communists will soon control the Helsinki government.

Hardly was the Finnish pincher in place, when a southern claw showed in Austria. Pravda has warned Austria that to join the Common Market would be to compromise the Austrian neutrality which is guaranteed by Russia and the West. But if Austria is forbidden by Russia to join the Common Market then Austria can hardly fail to gravitate in the other direction—toward the Soviet bloc.

These moves are tactical; they put Russia into position for a much bigger move. Strategically, Russia is maneuvering in Europe on a broad psychological front that is clearly labeled "Beware the Germans, Beware the Germans, Beware the Germans." The propaganda carries enough truth to be deadly effective all over Europe where Germans are still a hated race. To this day German license tags in the Lowlands will cause parking lot attendants to wave the car on, and cause children to call "German swine!" The experiment this past summer of training Panzer units in the British Isles achieved political acceptance but caused emotional reversal.

All this makes the arrangement for West Germany to buy $700 million of American military goods in 1961-62 a very dubious deal. Yes, we need the money in the balance of payments, and we cannot force the Germans to endure the humiliation of paying straight occupation costs of American forces there. But just the same, it is doubtful wisdom for American munitions makers to sell weapons to Germans who are cast by Communist propaganda in the role of villain—a role that fits, much to our disadvantage, all too well.

SUCCESS AND FAILURE

The great composer Handel started out to write operas and was, to put it mildly, unsuccessful. Then he turned to writing oratorical and became the greatest writer of oratorical in the world. How often God lets us fall in something by way of signaling to us that we should be walking in another pathway! Poor Abraham Lincoln failed at almost everything he did. He set his heart on being a United States Senator from Illinois and Stephen A. Douglas ran past him at the voting booth. As the election of 1864 approached it looked very decidedly as if Lincoln would leave the White House. Perhaps it was that shadow of defeat which caused him and his associates to put renewed energy into their political efforts.

In other words, failure is very often the prelude to success. There are types of success which are nothing but failure at their core. There are also types of failure which at their center are really successes. Nothing is more unfortunate than for a person to go through life apparently having everything his way or her own way. We need a few failures to keep us humble to arouse our faith, to stimulate our energy, to heighten our determination. Being turned back is just as much a part of success as being pushed forward.

Don't think you are a failure because you have failed in one particular thing. This may be the prelude to a greater success than you ever dreamed of having.

School Funds Scarce

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Governors find themselves in financial difficulties because of the continued faulty state financing since the glorious days of the Depression when the New Deal evolved the Keynesian doctrine that if private enterprise or private individuals cannot provide for themselves, the state must dip into the till and grab some of the available money to be used for any purpose as long as it is called welfare.

Now, in the 1960's, they find that money is not so available. Taxes have become too high and the state governments cannot compete with the Federal administration in depriving the citizen of his earnings. So educational institutions are being deprived of revenue. One of the worst examples of faulty educational revenue is the State of Michigan which is very short of funds. The State of Montana is considering closing its famous School of Mines.

One of the major problems that faces this country is that too many students are permitted to fill their schedules with "easy" courses which make it possible for them to get a degree without doing much work. One meets a student who majored in English and speaks and writes the language like an alien, or who has majored in history and knows about as much history as used to be acceptable for an eighth grader. That is not education; it is using time.

The student is intellectually impoverished and has little to show for four years of time spent in Ivy Halls.

Our national problem, however, is that we need more engineers, more physicists, more mining engineers, more scientists if we are to hold our own in a world when science is essential to the rebuilding of the civilization which has been damaged by war and revolution. The closing of a school of mines can only be justified by a lack of competent students. What seems to be essential is that students be encouraged to take the tough courses, particularly those heavy with mathematics, which are so essential for knowledge of the new sciences and for the safeguarding of this country.

The Montana School of Mines has special value because it lies close to some of the most important mining industries in the country. Technical schools need to be established where the students can find their work. For instance, it would not make much sense to establish an agricultural school in New York City, but Ames, Iowa, is an excellent place for just such a school. Similarly, medical schools situated where there are no hospitals do not serve the students well, but big cities like Boston, New York and Chicago attract medical students because it is practical to associate a medical school with a big hospital.

A School of Mines in Montana, at Butte, which is the center of the copper industry, makes sense. To close down such a school because the state may be short of money is stupid. The state ought to find the money. In the old days, the rich contributed such money out of the profits of their business. Today, income taxes and the limitations upon charitable contributions make it very difficult even for the very rich to contribute to charities or to education.

Nevertheless, there are men who assume the responsibility to share their earnings with beneficial institutions. They refuse to permit a brutal system of taxation to lower the moral and cultural standards of the nation.

Similarly, states must cut down on non-essential expenditures, on political expenditures and keep their educational institutions up to scratch. When the nation was young and weak and money was scarce, we developed one of the finest educational systems in the world. We somehow found the men and women who were willing to keep schools going.

What has happened to us in the middle of the Twentieth Century that we are ready to close down important technical schools in the face of Russian. (Continued on Page 6)

Growth Through Bible Study ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 4:16-21; 24:25-27; I Timothy 4; II Timothy 1:5-6; 3:10-4:5.

The importance of studying the Bible is indicated by the Son of God Himself when He begins His Ministry in Nazareth by reading from the scriptures in the synagogue. Thus He fulfills Isaiah's prophecy.—Luke 4:16-21.

After His resurrection, when Christ appears and walks with the two disciples to Emmaus, He dwells not only on the glorious fact of His rising, but on its prophecy in the Bible.—Luke 24:25-27.

Paul writes Timothy from prison, urging him to continue to be a good minister to the people, even though many will depart from their faith, giving heed to deceitful spirits and doctrines of demons.—I Timothy 4.

Paul tells Timothy that the Bible is the only true bulwark against such deceivers and against being discouraged by the paucity of other believers.—II Timothy 3:14-17.

GOLDEN TEXT: Psalms 119:11.

Growth Through Bible Study

OUR NEED TO BE CONSTANTLY PERSUADED OF THE BIBLE'S DIVINE ORIGIN AND ITS IMPORTANCE FOR OUR DAILY LIFE

Scripture—Luke 4:16-21; 24:25-27; I Timothy 4; II Timothy 1:5-6; 3:10-4:5.

By N. SPEER JONES
IF THE great struggle in the world today is between Communism and Christianity, between belief in state and belief in God, it is clear that the most important study we Christians have is that of God's word, the Bible.

In his other letter to Timothy, Paul preaches the importance of the Bible as a defense against those who would lead men away from the faith. His exhortation to read the Bible meant not only to read it in private, but to read it in public, as was the custom in those days and is still in some sects today. Christ Himself used this practice of public reading of the Bible by laymen to proclaim Himself, as we see in Luke 4:16-21.

In that passage Christ begins His ministry in Nazareth, the town where he was brought up, by going to the synagogue. There he is offered the scriptures, as any good Jew would be, to read aloud the day's lesson.

In this reading He fulfills the prophecy of Isaiah, and the conspired by or "inspired of" God. Edward J. Young feels ("Peloubet's," pp. 409-410) that this is an incorrect translation.

The original Greek word is theopneustos, meaning literally "God-breathed." Professor Young points out that such constructions are usually passive, so that the passage would not mean that God imbued man's work with His Spirit, but that He Himself literally breathed it forth through the Holy Ghost.

The remainder of the passage from Paul's second letter to Timothy includes an exhortation to renew his devotion to God (1:5, 6), and to preach His word (5:1-5), as well as a warning to those who would oppose gregation realizes it in some measure, for "the eyes of all in the synagogue were fixed on Him" and "all spoke well of Him."

It is significant that Christ begins His ministry in this way, pointing out at the very start the verity of the Bible.

He again returns to the Bible, placing its importance equal to His own. When He joins the two disciples after His resurrection, He does not dwell only on this glorious event, but on the fact that the scriptures had proclaimed it before, and teaches the disciples further in their interpretation.

AP All-American Team Led By Ferguson

EC Discussed, Loop Finally Out Of Red

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—For the first time in eight years, the Southern Conference was told today, its operations are breaking even financially. Ever since eight members of the conference, formed in 1921, pulled out in 1953, the conference has been in the red financially. But, D. S. McAllister of The Citadel, conference treasury secretary, prepared to report at the closing winter meeting, conference operations will show in the black this fiscal and school year. He said operation receipts will balance with operating expenses and the conference will have a cushion of $2,500 to $2,800 from investments. The general session was expected to agree to these items: A requirement, starting in 1964, that a football team play at least five conference games to qualify for the conference title. A limit on all-star game participation to seniors or those players who have completed eligibility. A policy covering contracts for televising conference basketball tournaments. The tournaments supply the conference with its principal source of revenue. Trophies for the conference championship in football and for the football coach of the year—selected by the Southern Conference Sportswriters Association—were on deck for presentation at a luncheon. The Citadel is champion and its coach, Eddie Teague is coach of the year. Items informally discussed at the conference included crowd behavior at basketball games and expansion of the conference to 10 members. Ray Duncan of West Virginia, conference president, advised faculty representatives and others at the meeting of an NCAA letter asking colleges to try to check unsportsmanlike conduct by crowds at basketball games. "We have found we can control it at West Virginia, and representatives of the other colleges feel they can do the same thing," he commented. East Carolina, now a member of the Carolinas Conference, has shown interest in joining the Southern Conference. Its enrollment is approaching 6,000, it is getting a new football stadium, and has plans for a new field house for basketball. It recently joined the NCAA, and after two years as a member, meeting NCAA standards, it will be eligible for conference membership. A survey of conference members indicated an East Carolina application would be welcomed.

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1961 Associated Press All American football team, led by Ohio State fullback Bob Ferguson, has the biggest line in history featuring honor students Alex Kroll and Merlin Olsen. Kroll, the Phi Beta Kappa candidate center who spurred Rutgers to its first unbeaten season, and Utah State's Olsen, top business administration scholar, are in a forward wall which averages an incredible 238 pounds. Lone repeater from last year, Ferguson is joined in the backfield by Ernie Davis—first Negro to win the Heisman Trophy—spectacular Jimmy Saxton of Texas and versatile quarterback Sandy Stephens of Minnesota. Rugged Jerry Hillebrand of Colorado and "Radar" Bill Miller of Miami (Fla.) man the ends. Billy Neighbors, best man on Alabama's national championship eleven, is at tackle opposite the 265 pound Olsen. Roy Winston of Louisiana State and Dave Behrman, Michigan State, are the guards. Nicknamed "the quiet man," Ferguson set two goals for himself in 1961—lead the Buckeyes to the Big Ten title and repeat as All American. Missions accomplished. Enroute he rushed for 938 yards and 68 points. Ferguson generated so much power he set up every phase of the Buckeye attack and was called by Coach Woody Hayes "practically indestructible." "He's the best fullback I ever coached and he's got to be the best in the game today," Hayes adds. Ferguson was thrown for only three yards in losses in as many games.

Davis, the Syracuse wonder boy who was the first player picked in the National Football League draft, led the Orange to a Liberty Bowl berth as the team's top ground gainer, pass receiver, kick hauler and scorer. He was among the nation's leaders in rushing (823 yards, 5.5 average) and points (94). Davis broke Jimmy Brown's school career records in total offense (3,414 yards), rushing (2,386), points (220) and touchdowns (25). Ernie touched the ball only four times against Colgate, scoring twice including a 36 yard run on which he shook off seven tacklers, and throwing a touchdown pass to roommate John Mackey on a play covering 74 yards. The driving force behind Texas' Southwest Conference co-championship, Saxton is master of the big play and dubbed by Coach Darrell Royal "the quickest athlete I've ever known." Jimmy covered 846 yards in 107 carries, scored 56 points, was a fine pass catcher, completed the only pass he threw for a 46-yard score and sent the only punt he tried for 54 yards. "Probably no player in the country carried such a big part of the load on a winning team," wrote one writer on the accomplishments of 215 pound Stephens of the Rose Bowl bound Gophers. Dankerous on either end of a punt and a superb safetymen, Stephens accounted for 1,281 yards in total offense. Pro scouts tabbed Olsen, tri-captain of the unbeaten Aggies, the finest lineman this year. Despite his size and 15ee shoes, Olsen has great agility and pursuit and is the main reason behind Utah State's outstanding rushing records, offensive and defensive. With a 3.67 grade average out of a possible 4.0, Olsen wants to try to mix pro football and graduate studies. Spectacled Kroll, owning better than a 92 per cent average in his advanced English studies, is a $500 Earl Bialik scholar-athlete award winner as is Olsen. The rawboned 228 pounder was responsible for Rutgers' unusually long gaining quarterback sneaks, was the team captain, called defensive signals and was an exceptional tackler. Hillebrand is a great defender, top pass receiver and the all important kicker for once-beaten Colorado. Jerry beat Missouri 7-6 with a conversion and Miami 9-7 with a field goal, scoring 49 points on four touchdown passes, a conversion loss, three field goals and 14 point-after kicks. Miller, who built himself into the fastest man on the squad with his own program of weights and wind sprints, "is great because he won't settle for less," according to Andy Gustafson who ranks Bill as one of the three greats he's seen. The other two are Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis. Miller turned in great defensive efforts against Northwestern and Georgia but his forte is pass catching. Miller grabbed 43 for 610 yards and two touchdowns this season. His career marks—all records—list 102 receptions, 1,448 yards, eight touchdowns. LSU's Winston, a five-star defender from the day he arrived at Baton Rouge, improved 100 per cent as a blocker this year, according to his coaches. Roy plays left guard on offense, right tackle on defense and havoc with the opposition. Behrman, lone junior on the team, is the biggest starting lineman in Spartan history and one of the most versatile as a guard, tackle and center.

Reflecting On SPORTS By George Bryant

Area Basketball

Pitt County high school basketball teams will be in full swing tonight with five games on schedule. Greenville's Rose High Phantoms will travel to Wilson tonight for their second non-conference game of the season with a 4-A school. The Phantom five lost their opener Tuesday night to Rocky Mount 69-46 as the locals experienced the usual early season jitters and made the mistakes that go along with opening games. Tonight Coach Bo Farley's boys will be ready for a victory over the Cyclones. In other high school activity tonight, Ayden was supposed to play at Robersonville, but the game was called off at noon today because of the 25 mile travel limit on Pitt County basketball teams. The Tornados have a 1-1 record in the two conference games played so far. Other games are Farmville at Bethel, Winterville at Belvoir, Stokes at Grifton and Chicod at Grimesland.

College Cagers

East Carolina also has a full weekend ahead of them as they tangle with Lenoir Rhyne in a home Carolinas Conference battle tonight. The Bears won the conference championship last year and have been noted as the team to beat this season. Last year the Pirates finished second in the conference standings with a 12-9 record. So far this season they have lost all three games played. Saturday night the Bucs travel to Richmond for a game with the University of Richmond of the Southern Conference. This contest will be the second outing with a Southern Loop team this season and is one of four such games. Last Saturday night the Pirates ran into foul trouble at the Citadel and lost 85-73 after holding a lead with seven minutes left on the clock.

Rose High Grid Banquet Dec. 14

The Rose High School football banquet honoring this year's championship high school team, the junior varsity squad and the Junior High School team will be held Dec. 14 in the high school cafeteria at 7 p.m. Sponsoring the affair this year is the Touchdown Club. President Joe Lughes has announced that the public is invited to the banquet and that an advance ticket sale is being conducted. However, tickets may also be purchased at the door. The emcee for the program will be Edwin Rawl Jr., and the main speaker will be Coach Earle Edwards of North Carolina State College. Awards to be presented to the players are the most improved senior, best blocker, best defensive player, most valuable player and a special award to be given by the Monogram Club. Coach Phillips will also give out perfect attendance certificates to those boys who attended practice every day.

No Major Issues At Stake As ACC Meeting Convened

By KEN ALYTA
GREENSBORO (AP)—No major or controversial issues loomed as the Atlantic Coast Conference convened today for a fall meeting that appeared to be of a routine nature.
A full day of closed committee meetings Thursday laid the groundwork for a speedy run-through of the business today. Adjournment by noon or shortly thereafter appeared likely.
The agenda, both old business and new matters, appeared nothing more than the picking up of a few loose ends.
Tightening of television regulations to avoid conflict with other events, the possible adoption of rifle shooting as a conference sport, and the addition of a sixth place in the conference swim meet point standings came under the heading of old business.

New items to be considered included a proposal to recognize the American college testing program as an entrance examination in addition to other requirements, a suggestion that the 440-yard relay be added to the track championships, and the spelling out of how to dispose of rained out games during the baseball season.
The conference was expected to accept the offer of an annual award to the school with the best record over the entire sports program.
The William Donald Carmichael Cup was offered to the ACC Thursday by the family of the late Consolidated University of North Carolina vice president and financial officer for consideration at today's meeting.
The cup would go to the conference school with the best record in all ACC sports competition each year. Points would be awarded on a basis of eight to the school winning a championship, seven to the runner-up and so on down to one point for the eighth place.
The purpose of the award is to promote participation as well as excellence in conference sports.
An 8-game schedule of basketball telecasts was announced, starting Jan. 6 with the Clemson at Wake Forest game. Thereafter each Saturday afternoon a regional network of 10 television stations will carry an ACC contest.

The balance of the schedule: Jan. 13, North Carolina State at South Carolina; 20, Maryland at North Carolina State; 27, Wake Forest at Duke;
Feb. 3, North Carolina State-West Virginia at Greensboro; 10, Wake Forest at North Carolina; 17, Navy at Duke; 24, Duke at North Carolina.

Virginia Meets S.C. Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Virginia's Cavaliers, trying to make a comeback after a disastrous 1960-61 basketball season, collide with South Carolina in an Atlantic Coast Conference game tonight.

A victory for the Cavaliers, who won only three of 23 games last year, would give them a 3-1 record for the young season. They've won two non-conference games but were beaten soundly (80-46) by North Carolina in a conference clash last Saturday. The Cavaliers meet Clemson Saturday night in another ACC game.
The Gamecocks also have won two non-conference games, the latest a 79-66 victory over Tennessee, and will be playing their first ACC game of the year. The game is at Columbia, S.C.

Duke, winner of two non-conference games, enters another outside foe, Louisville, in the only other game tonight involving an ACC team.
There were no games Thursday night for ACC teams.

The Saturday night slate is highlighted by the clash of Wake Forest and Ohio State, and it now appears that Ohio State will be at full strength.
All-America Jerry Lucas has been bothered by knee trouble, but the Buckeyes' trainer, Ernie Biggs, said Thursday the condition had improved and Lucas would be ready to play against the Deacons.

Appalachian, Newberry Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Appalachian and Newberry turned in Carolinas Conference basketball victories Thursday night, while Elon and Western Carolina beat outside opponents.

Appalachian, paced by freshman Wayne Duncan, edged Pfeiffer 66-63 for its first victory in three games. Duncan netted 16 points and grabbed 19 rebounds. Catawba fought back in the closing minutes after trailing Newberry by 10 points at the half. But Newberry regained the lead and hung on for a 65-64 victory. Phil Musgrave led Newberry with 21 points, but Al Johnson of Catawba led all scorers with 29 points.

Elon went ahead at the start of the game and went on to beat Wofford 77-61. Dewey Andrew led Elon with 27 points.
Western Carolina, with Mel Gibson tossing in 31 points, trounced

Post-Season Bowl Contests Get Underway Tomorrow

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The post-season football bowls, strictly year-end trimming only a few years ago, get underway Saturday with six games on the schedule, led by New York's first Gotham Bowl.

Four titles will be decided under the guise of the "bowl" title, in the Camellia Bowl, the armed forces title in the Missile Bowl, the mythical national Negro college title in the Orange Blossom Bowl and the junior college title in the Junior Rose Bowl.
The other bowl, Dayton, Ohio's Aviation Bowl pits New Mexico (6-4) of the Skyline Conference against Western Michigan (5-3-1). The Skyline's co-champ, Utah State, pits its 9-0-1 record against Baylor in the Gotham's first outing. A crowd of about 20,000 is expected at the Polo Grounds for the game that will be televised nationally (ABC-TV, 1:15 p.m. Eastern Standard Time).

Baylor's Bears finished 5-5 after a tough Southwest Conference campaign. The Bears, all in good shape, are led by All-America tackle Merlin Olsen, 6-foot-5, 265-pounder.
Utah State, whose defense was ranked second nationally, has a high-powered offense of its own, paced by halfback Tom Larscheid and quarterback Mel Montaibo.

The NIAA title game at Sacramento, Calif., pits Pittsburg (Kan) the No. 1 small college team in the final AP poll, against Linfield (Ore.) (No. 7). Both have 10-0 records.
The Missile Bowl, at Orlando, Fla., will be a replay of a disputed 9-7 victory by the Quantico Marines over Ft. Eustis earlier this season.

Unbeaten Florida A&M (9-7), tied for fourth in the final polls, plays Jackson (Miss.) State, which lost only once in 10 games, in Miami's Orange Blossom tilt.
New Mexico's Lobos will pit their ground attack, led by halfbacks Bob Santiago and Bob Morgan, against the precision-passing of quarterback Ed Chebech, who led the Mid-America conference in passing.

Cameron Junior College of Oklahoma, unbeaten in 10 games, meets Bakersfield (Calif.), unbeaten in nine games, in the Junior Rose Bowl.

ECC Football Team To Be Honored Tuesday Night

The annual East Carolina College football awards banquet sponsored by the Pirates Club will be held Dec. 12 in the south dining hall of the main campus cafeteria at 6:30 p.m.

Pirate Club President N. F. Merritt said that the banquet is open to the public and has urged all interested persons to attend. Tickets are on sale at the State Bank, H. L. Hodges Co., and in the athletic office at the college.

Some of the awards to be presented at the affair, according to Merritt, are the Rawl Memorial Award for leadership and ability, the best blocker award, the outstanding player award, the outstanding senior award and the most improved player award.
The recipients are chosen by the coaches and the players themselves. The awards are sponsored by the different organizations. The Pirates Club is the sponsor of the most improved player award.

In addition to the presentation of awards, the program of the night will include a guest speaker, Bob Cox of Chapel Hill. Cox was a football standout at the University of North Carolina during the "Justice Days."

After receiving an A.B. degree from the university, Cox served as a member of the Tar Heel coaching staff for three years. Presently he is in the clothing business in Chapel Hill.

Cox is a member of the President's Youth Fitness Citizens Advisory Commission, Past President of the United States Jaycees and North Carolina Jaycees, Director of American Good Government Society, Director Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Director Cerebral Palsy Foundation and a member of Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity.

THE GREEN STONE

A suspense-thriller by SUZANNE BLAND

CHAPTER 36
Inspector Menendez almost expected, when he opened the sack of stones, to find the emerald gone; expected Jessie Prewitt to deny that it had ever been there, but there it lay under the tissue-wrapped amethysts.

"You really didn't look them over," he said.

"No, not carefully. You see, I didn't want to buy them. He almost forced them on me. They're not valuable, are they? I remember now, the guide asked me about them too." Jessie's face twisted with bewilderment. "What is in that sack besides the amethysts?"

The inspector took the jewel out, holding it up between his thumb and forefinger so that it sounded like a piece of colored glass.

"This, Senora, is what the guide was after. To Luis Perez it was a road to wealth. To you it was a road to death. To my wife it's a reward."

He paused, as if there were more, and Jessie, captured by the fanciful pattern of his thinking, asked softly, "And to you, Inspector?"

"To me, from the very beginning it has been just one thing—the clue to a murder."

He had come back to sit on the bed's edge again, still staring at the green stone that shimmered in his hand so that he missed her expression when he said, "The Randalls, their murder."

"Maybe in the same way you knew about the guide. I've thought of them so often. They were killed the day I entered Mexico. I traveled the road they took . . .

As you see I held the clue to their murder." She paled suddenly as if with appalled understanding. "Is that why the guide tried to kill me? Did he do it?"

The inspector was taken aback. The idea that the Indians had killed and robbed the tourists was so stubbornly wedged across the opening in his mind that he was not able, immediately, to budge it. Luis, the murderer? He said doubtfully, "I don't know," then admitted reluctantly, "Nothing is impossible." Immediately he found himself assessing the extent of the guide's involvement, weighing possibility against probability, fact against theory.

He sat in rocklike immobility, staring at the emerald as if the answer lay there in one of the glittering green facets. "It's unlikely he fired the actual shot," he said at last.

"You mean he could have planned it," Jessie prompted.

It was the possibility the inspector was groping for and, with uncanny perception, the little senora had synthesized it for him. He was pleased with her and with the idea. It was, perhaps, only necessary to adapt his original theory, not to discard it completely.

"At least that's a definite possibility," she said cautiously. "We can't be certain until we question him. But this is one thing we can be certain of," he continued, holding up the stone. "Our guide knows where he got it—and he'll tell us! You can be sure of that!"

He dropped the gem into his pocket casually as if that ended its value and abruptly changed the subject. "About yourself, Senora. I hope this hasn't spoiled your holiday, that you won't be afraid to stay on in Mexico."

Jessie smiled pensively. "No, I'm not afraid to stay. You know, Inspector, it's only when you don't know why things happened to you that you're really frightened." She paused to study him searchingly, then continued, "Remember, Inspector, tonight on the terrace you said there are always reasons for everything? You've proved your point. I'm leaving Mexico and going home, not because of this, not even because I want to. I must find out the reasons why other things have happened to me."

Although he only vaguely understood what she was talking about, he realized that what she was saying had some personal urgency and felt impelled to warn her. "Senora," he said gently, "we can usually find the reasons for things, but we can't always change them."

"I know, Inspector. And if I can't change them, I'll probably be back."

She spoke more loudly than she usually did and he wondered whether her words were meant for him or the tall, gray-haired man who had stopped outside the doorway to talk with Sergeant Roberto. A sudden curiosity tugged at him. Why, out of all the thousands of tourists who entered Mexico each year, had fate, in its weaving, selected this particular woman? Obviously the experience had some unusual significance for her and he was reminded again of his own theory that nothing was unrelated, nothing happened by accident.

Later, when he had time, he would discuss it with Sergeant Roberto. Theresa would cook a meal for them on her new stove and they would talk about the case. . . the Randalls. . . the Indians. . . the guide. . . the little turista They would speculate about the lives of all of them and perhaps they would discover the reasons why the threads of their destinies were chosen to entwine.

The sun had not yet risen, but in the Indian village the women were already firing the kilns. Thinly clad children were huddling close to the primitive ovens gathering warmth against the morning chill or chasing the pro-

Finds Faults In Soviet TV Sets

MOSCOW (AP)—Nikolai Psurtsev, Soviet communications minister, complained Thursday that 60 per cent of the TV sets sold in the Soviet Union this year failed to work longer than six months.

Psurtsev, reporting to the Supreme Soviet, also complained of the quality of Soviet telephones and the lack of them.

Although the Soviet Union has an estimated population of 216 million, Psurtsev said there are only six million television sets in operation.

cession of scrawny brown chickens that paraded everywhere.

Like most everyone else in the village Manuel was awake before dawn. He squatted outside his hut, eating a handful of cooked beans, and watched the activity around the kilns.

Periodically when a truck passed on the highway below, bubbles of memory about the "accident" and the dead turista still burst against the surface of his mind, but they were less vivid today than they had been yesterday and his attention was easily held by the lusterless shapes of clay that were ready for baking.

The baking of the pottery always fascinated Manuel so he failed to hear the car climb the access road to the village, and realized that it was there only when the door slammed. He turned to see Luis Perez coming toward him down the narrow street. The guide was not alone. With him was another man, a large man, dark, like the Indians from the northern villages.

A twinge of uneasiness caught at Manuel's throat, starting the bubbles of memory again. The dead turista. . . the glass all over the highway. . . the police coming to look for the ring instinctively he hid his face, bending over to pick up a stick and poke at the dirt in front of him with studied concentration, but all the time he was watching them surreptitiously—the huge, dark man with the guide and the guide himself who was strangely disheveled.

Now they stopped to talk together. The guide was looking directly at Manuel and, even before his guilty mind told him that they were talking about him, even before the guide pointed to him, the tiny hairs had stiffened at the back of Manuel's neck. Nervousness washed over him. And as they drew nearer and nearer, his eyes grew darker and wider with apprehension.

More Christmas Trees This Year

CHICAGO (AP)—A forestry industry source predicted today that Americans will buy about 45 million Christmas trees this year—about 3 million more than last year.

And the trees may be cheaper. American Forest Products Industries, Inc., said, because increased acreage for tree plantations suggests increased competition for sales.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog prices mostly steady. Top of 17.25-17.75 Smithfield; 16.75-17.75 Nabuta, Wilson, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive, Newton Grove; 17.25-17.50 Murfreesboro, Robersonville; 17 - 17.50 Spring Hope, Rocky Mount; 16.50-17 Pembroke; 17.25 Clinton; Fayetteville, Elizabethtown, Pink Hill, Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck, Rich Square; 17 Greensboro, Albemarle, Goldsboro, Dunn, Siler City; 16.75 Lillington, Castle Hayne, Burgaw.

Wilson cash cattle prices steady: Steers and heifers, choice 23.50-25, good 21.50-24, standards 18-21; beef cows 13.50-16, heavy cutters 13-14; light bulls 12.50-15, heavy bulls 15-18.

Prices moved generally higher in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange. Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were steady in quiet dealings.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets steady to slightly stronger. Supplies barely adequate to sharp demand good. Prices paid producers for clean, unsized eggs, delivered nearby grading stations on a grade-yield basis, cases exchanged: Grade A large whites 35-36, medium, whites 29-30 1/2, small, whites 23-24.

NEW YORK (AP) — Noon stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — Selective gains by blue chips helped boost the stock market in moderately active trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .80 to 265.20 with industrials up 1.40, rails up .20 and utilities up .30.

Most advances were small and a good many leading issues were unchanged.

Renewed investment buying was drawn into the oils, possibly because of a widely circulated comment that the next market advance may be headed by such cyclical issues which are not yet "over-priced."

At the same time, however, tobacco posted a string of moderate gains as they recovered from some sharp profit taking of recent sessions. Steels did virtually nothing.

Motors, chemicals, rails and electrical equipments were generally higher.

Amerasia recovered nearly 3 points. American Telephone rose about 1 to a new high. General Motors and American Tobacco were up about 1.

Du Pont recovered about 4 points and Sears Roebuck rose more than 1.

International Business Machines lost more than 3.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 3.12 to 729.57.

OPTIMIST TREES ON SALE . . . Optimist clubbers Gordon Goodman (left), President Tom Money (center) and tree sale Chairman Roscoe Wheelless examine samples of 1,000 Canadian balsams.

1,000 Christmas Trees On Hand

One thousand Christmas trees went on sale here today as the Greenville Optimist Club's annual fund-raising maneuver to support its local boys work and youth development program got underway.

Workers were busy distributing the Canadian balsams for display on the Elm Street Park tennis courts.

The trees arrived in Greenville Thursday by train and were carried to Elm Street Park in bundles. Optimists will man the tree lot daily and nightly through Dec. 23.

Optimist President H. Thomas Money called on Greenvilleites who have purchased advance tree sale tickets to visit the lot early to select a Christmas tree.

Advance ticket sales are conducted annually by the Optimists in conjunction with the sale of Christmas trees, a project of most local clubs affiliated with Optimist International.

The tickets may be used toward purchase of any tree on the Optimist lot.

Money said this year's shipment of trees seemed to be of better quality than the trees sold by the Optimists a year ago. He said all sizes and price ranges are available.

Two Accidents Here Yesterday

Two traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police yesterday caused an estimated $550 damage, officers reported.

The first of the wrecks occurred at West End Circle about 11:28 a.m. and involved cars driven by Paul Edwin Whitley, 56, of Route 6, Greenville and Nina Oakley Bryant of 313 West Fifth St.

No charges were made by police who set damage to the two cars at a total of $350.

In the second mishap, which occurred on Dickinson Ave. about 6:55 p.m., Charles Vestal Wilkerson, 56 of 1043 East Rock Spring Road, and Tommy Henry Braxton, 20 of Route 2, Greenville were identified as the drivers involved.

Damages to the Braxton vehicle was placed at $50 while damage to the Wilkerson auto were estimated to be about $150.

Capt. Reagan Is Council Speaker

It is "hypocritical, celebrating the Birth of Christ with 'Christmas Spirit from a bottle'", according to Capt. Earl Reagan of the Salvation Army.

Capt. Reagan voiced his opinion while speaking on Christmas at the Pitt County Safety Council's monthly meeting yesterday.

Capt. Reagan outlined that "forgiveness, service, sacrifice and love" are the things that make the true meaning of Christmas and said that "forgiveness, service and sacrifice have their true foundation in love."

He explained that not only for the "safety of our souls" but for the safety of our lives, citizens should observe Christmas as a reverent time, rather than a time for drinking parties, fast driving and the like.

The members of the council, yesterday, contributed funds to be used for the Salvation Army's Christmas Cheer Program in Pitt County, and presented the gift to Capt. Reagan.

Program Chairman Sam Brooks announced that the program for January will be on Industrial Safety.

Council Chairman Luther D. Moore urged all persons interested to attend the meeting.

A Reminder To Tobacco Farmers

This is to remind you to vote in the flue-cured tobacco referendum to be held Tuesday, December 12. You will be asked to vote "yes" or "no" on whether you want to continue marketing quotas on flue-cured tobacco for the 1962, 1963 and 1964 crops. Any person who had an interest in the 1961 crop of flue-cured tobacco is eligible to vote. This is a question which vitally affects you as a flue-cured tobacco grower, and everyone else in Pitt County. Voting places will be open Tuesday from 8:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m. You are urged to take part in making this decision.
