

Bombers, Jet Fighters Attack Katanga Defenses; Tsombe Urges Total War

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP)—Indian bombers and Swedish jet fighters swept over Elisabethville today to bomb and strafe Katanga troop positions. Newsmen watched the attack from the roof of the Prince Leopold Hospital, which was damaged Wednesday night by mortar bombardment. The jets screamed out of heavy clouds toward Kenya township, a district in the southern outskirts of Elisabethville where the main Katanga army headquarters are believed to be located. They appeared to drop bombs from about 6,000 feet. There were heavy concentrations of troops and vehicles in the district. It was not immediately known what the damage was. The attack, following up a similar raid Wednesday on the Katanga-occupied Hotel Lido, came

Federal Fallout Shelter Program Prepared For Congress' Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal Civil Defense program to be sent to Congress next month will cost about $700 million and include incentive payments for construction of fallout shelters in schools, hospitals, and public welfare institutions. Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric disclosed details in a news conference today. The program provides federal guidance but no money for individual, home shelters. The federal incentive program, Gilpatric said in a statement, is planned on the basis of aid for construction of shelter spaces for about 20 million persons in the fiscal year, beginning next July 1. It would make eligible for incentive payments projects started after next Jan. 1. A booklet on fallout shelters will be available to the public in early

January and to news media soon, he said. A "fact sheet" issued in connection with the news conference gave a look at the government's philosophy about the possibility of all-out attack on this country. "The likelihood of such an attack is very small, but it is possible," the sheet said. "If it comes, we know its consequences would be terrible. Therefore, we must take what steps we can to protect ourselves through an organized long-range, sensible program of Civil Defense." Gilpatric summed up the federal government's views about its responsibility for civil defense in this fashion: "An effective civil defense requires the participation of every citizen. It calls for advance planning at every level of government—local, state, and national. This

Venezuela Police Arrest Agitators

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Police Wednesday night launched a round-up of agitators trying to stir up trouble during President Kennedy's weekend visit. Authorities announced the arrest of 50 persons accused of painting "Kennedy No" signs on walls and said nightly roundups of others trying to stir up disorder would continue under a special police command set up for that purpose. The crackdown followed the planting of four crude bombs in various parts of Caracas Wednesday by terrorists bent on spoiling Kennedy's trip here to boost his Alliance for Progress program for Latin America. Only one of the bombs exploded, injuring two persons.

Brig. Gen. Antonio Briceno Linares, Venezuelan minister of defense, told newsmen that the Caracas military garrison had been reinforced and that he would call up additional troops as necessary to "preserve national honor and dignity by all possible means in guaranteeing President and Mrs. Kennedy's personal safety." Officials of both the Venezuelan and U.S. governments continued to express hope that there would be "no repetition of the violence that greeted Vice President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon on their visit here in 1958. A hostile crowd stoned and spat on the Nixons as they motored into the city. An employe of the U.S.-Venezuelan Cultural Center, operated by the United States, discovered the first bomb—its wick fizzling—on the porch in front of the center but the fuse went out before it could explode. Another bomb hidden in a garage can went off in the parking lot under a downtown landmark, the 26-story towers of Centro Bolivar. The parking lot attendant was critically injured and a driver suffered less serious injuries. Other bombs were found outside a shopping center used by U.S. citizens in the Las Mercedes section and in the Caracas Zoo, but both failed to explode. Bands of youths roamed Caracas Wednesday night pasting stickers on car fenders picturing Kennedy with fangs over the words "Kennedy Fuera" (Kennedy get out), and unconfirmed reports told of the burning of several buses in a working class district. Most Venezuelans appeared to be looking forward to the visit by the U.S. President and his attractive wife. U.S. flags flew over the city and pictures of Kennedy appeared on display. As anti-Kennedy agitators splashed walls with their messages, pro-Kennedy demonstrators followed writing "Jackie SI (Yes)." Newspapers featured articles and pictures of Kennedy and family. Informed sources said they believed the terrorists—apparently Communists and Castro sympathizers—would cause further disturbances prior to Kennedy's arrival but that they would probably limit their protests to shouts after his arrival. These sources speculated that the bombings were aimed at discouraging Venezuelans from turning out to greet Kennedy Saturday and again early Sunday when he departs for Bogota.

Objections Fail To Sway UThant View On Katanga

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Backed by the United States and the entire Asian-African bloc, Acting Secretary-General U Thant was expected today to press U.N. action against the Katanga government despite Britain's call for a cease-fire. U Thant told British Delegate Sir Patrick Dean he would turn Brit-

NATO Chiefs Take Up Study West's Defenses

PARIS (AP)—The top cabinet ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization today put aside the controversial issue of negotiating with the Soviets on Berlin and turned to the state of Western defenses.

Defense chiefs of the 15-nation alliance took over from the foreign ministers to review progress toward the goal of 30 combat divisions fixed seven years ago but still not achieved.

U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme commander of allied forces in Europe, told the Western European Union Assembly Wednesday that a strength of 25 divisions will be reached by the end of this year and possibly 23 of them will be fully equipped.

While the military buildup has quickened since the Communists walked off Berlin, he said more must be done to bolster the allied forces.

It will take "time, effort and money," he declared. "There is no way out of it."

The assembly, drawn from the parliaments of European NATO nations, endorsed Norstad's annual call for a NATO force of 30 divisions, which the NATO strategists say would be sufficient to meet a Communist attack without resort of nuclear weapons.

The assembly also urged the NATO council to give greater authority to allied commanders to deploy their forces and determine their own supply requirements. This now is entirely in the hands of the individual nations, and the allied commanders have the position, he said, to advise and coordinate.

Need for greater standardization of NATO arms and equipment was also expected to be discussed. There has been much criticism about the growing number of armament projects based mainly on narrow national considerations.

Another important military issue likely to be raised is NATO control over the use of nuclear weapons, now exclusively in the hands of President Kennedy.

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP)—State Democratic Chairman Bert Bennett has combined an accolade for women party workers with another plug for a proposed reorganization of the state Democratic structure. "The future of our party rests with women such as you," he told a group of distaff Democratic party workers at a meeting here Wednesday. Bennett said the proposed revision would give women seats on County executive committees. Under the plan, he continued, "our party will begin with individuals and go all the way to the top, and not be controlled and manipulated by just a handful of political bosses."

MEET TONIGHT The Redevelopment Commission will meet tonight at 7:30 in the City Council chambers.

AEC Announces Nuclear Test WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission has announced the firing of a sixth underground nuclear test shot. The detonation Wednesday at the AEC's Nevada test site was described as a low yield blast. This would indicate a strength equal to about 20,000 tons of TNT.

Reports Heard By Pitt Fair Board

FARMVILLE—Directors of the Pitt County American Legion Agricultural Fair at their annual meeting here last night re-elected Ford McGowan of Greenville as president and heard reports of the success of this year's fair.

Other officers elected included Sam A. Whitehurst, John Hill Paylor of Farmville and A. F. Rowe of Ayden, vice presidents; Lester E. Turnage, secretary; and Larry L. Averette, treasurer. Norman Y. Chambliss of Rocky Mount was re-elected manager for the 14th consecutive year.

The supper meeting was held in the American Legion Hut with a large attendance. The Pitt County Fair is owned and operated by the American Legion Posts of Greenville, Farmville and Ayden. McGowan presided at the meeting, during which reports were heard from him, Treasurer Averette and Chambliss. From the viewpoint of profit and exhibits, the 1961 fair was reported the most successful one ever held in Pitt County, with over 40,000 people attending.

During a discussion of the long range future of the fair, it was brought out that the association will be looking for a new location in the future, though it will remain at the present fairgrounds location for at least a few more years. In the meantime, directors authorized improvements to be made to the present grounds prior to the 1962 fair, including painting of the main exhibit building.

Arrangements will be made for Eagles, Larry L. Averette, Dr. J. L. Winstead, L. W. Cherry, J. Hicks Corey, M. E. Cavendish, Lester E. Turnage Jr., L. W. Gaylor Jr., Paul A. Scott, Ford McGowan, C. E. Williams, Sam A. Whitehurst, W. T. Kyser (honorary) and D. J. Whitehard (honorary), all of Greenville.

Also, Dr. Paul E. Jones, C. B. Mashburn Jr., J. B. Hockaday, C. F. Baucum R. D. Rouse Sr., John Hill Paylor, A. W. Bobbitt and Archie Cayton, all of Farmville.

Also, C. E. Hart, A. F. Rowe, Harry W. Stillman, Jack M. Collins, Stewart Sugg and Charlie Mohle, all of Ayden.

Those on the Executive Committee are J. Howard Moye, Lester E. Turnage, J. Hicks Corey, L. W. Gaylor Jr., C. E. Hart, C. F. Baucum and John Hill Paylor. Gaylor will be attorney and James R. Worsley the tax consultant.

Announcement was also made today that two men who failed to report for induction have been declared delinquent. Three others failed to report for pre-induction.

Bennie Gray Wilson and Wilbert Brown Jr. failed to report for induction and they will be reported to the U.S. Attorney for prosecution unless they report to this office immediately, Mrs. Rogers said.

The three who failed to report for pre-induction are Milton Carmack, Johnny Moore Jr. and Thomas Reddick. If they do not report to the local board immediately, they will be declared delinquent and ordered for immediate induction.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of any of these men, including the two who failed to report for pre-induction, is asked to inform the local board.

Those 15 men who were forwarded for induction today included the following: James C. Roundtree, Robert E. Wilson, William B. Cayton, Douglas L. Moye, Jimmie Spencer Jr., Billy Ray Bryant, Freddie G. Phillips, Hubert L. Evans, Matthew Dixon, Alton R. Chapman, Charles W. Wiggins, Sidney L. Powell, Robert L. Cox, Johnnie Junious Jordan and Bryon Williams Cole.

Police, saying the shooting occurred about 1:15 a.m., reported that Daughtry had been parked at the restaurant. An argument started, the lawmen reported, when someone asked that he move his car. The Johnston County man secured a .25 caliber revolver, be-

Colorado School Bus Is Hit By Train; 20 Dead

GREELEY, Colo. (AP)—A streamliner passenger train crashed into a school bus in northern Colorado today and at least 20 were killed.

Officials at a temporary morgue set up here said they had 18 bodies there.

At least 14 persons, some in critical condition, were taken to a hospital at Greeley.

Sheriff's officers said the driver of the bus apparently escaped serious injury and was given shelter in the county jail.

He was identified as Duane Harms.

The train was a Union Pacific Railroad streamliner which was traveling westbound. The bus was struck at a crossing two miles east of Evans, which is a short distance south of Greeley.

Greeley is about 50 miles north of Denver. After the accident the train was run on to La Salle, another small community near which declared the move was not feasible until "minimum U.N. objectives" are obtained in Katanga.

The 49-nation Asian-African group unanimously approved a declaration hailing the U.S. stand on Katanga and throwing full support behind Thant.

Group chairman Mehdi Vakil of Iran said the group decided in a closed meeting to express appreciation for both the material and moral support given the U.N. forces.

In a reference to Britain and France, Vakil said the group had voiced deep concern at lack of cooperation from some permanent members of the Security Council.

Britain's memorandum calling for a cease-fire said Britain was alarmed over "the course of military events of the last few days, which they found difficult to understand in the light of the acting secretary-general's assurance that the objectives of the United Nations forces are to restore freedom of communications and to defend themselves."

The Soviet Union and the United States in a separate move set the scene for new disarmament negotiations by proposing that the General Assembly ask a new 18-nation committee to start disarmament talks urgently and report back by June 1.

After months of private discussion, the two major powers submitted a joint resolution to the main Political Committee proposing that eight nonaligned nations—Burma, India, the United Arab Republic, Ethiopia, Nigeria, Brazil, Mexico and Sweden—be added to the 10 nations that previously talked disarmament without getting anywhere.

The bus was one of several from the Greeley School District serving Greeley High School, a junior high school and an elementary school, all in Greeley.

Officials said all of the children aboard the bus were from rural families.

The weather was clear with temperatures below freezing.

The crossing is marked by a sign but has no flashing lights to signal the approach of a train, an official said.

The bus, traveling northwest, apparently drove into the diagonal crossing just as the train approached.

The train struck the bus at its rear end and knocked it about 100 yards.

All parents known to have children on the bus were taken to the sheriff's office at Greeley. The temporary morgue was established at a former army in downtown Greeley.

Artist Grandma Moses Dies At Age Of 101

HOOSICK FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Grandma Moses, the spirited 101-year-old primitive artist whose work has appeared on 100-million Christmas cards, died 12 days before Christmas.

Grandma, who achieved worldwide fame after taking up painting in her late 70s, suffered from a chronic heart ailment.

Her health gradually faded at a nursing home, the Hoosick Falls Health Center, where she had been since July.

But on her 101st birthday, Sept. 7, the spunky, 100-pound farm woman vowed: "I'm going to live to be 200."

She was alone with nurses when she died at 3:15 p.m. Wednesday, her physician, Dr. Clayton Shaw, told newsmen.

She had been in an oxygen tent most of the day, the doctor said. Grandma recently expressed a desire to go home, he said, but she was "sort of indifferent to her surroundings, lately."

Only a few weeks ago, however, friends had described her as "bright as a button" most of the time, despite her confinement and doctor's orders against painting.

In death as in life, she attracted the attention of people from all walks of life. Telegrams expressing condolence streamed into her family home at nearby Eagle Bridge, where she had worked.

President John F. Kennedy said: "The death of Grandma Moses removes a beloved figure from American life. The directness and vividness of her paintings restored a primitive freshness to our perception of the American scene. All Americans mourn her loss." New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said: "She painted for the sheer love of painting, and throughout her 101 years she was endeared to all who had the privilege of knowing her."

The item appears on the agenda for tonight. Councilmen will consider a request from the Recreation Commission for hiring a professional planner to chart the course of the recreation program in the future. An Elm St. delegation will appear concerning their assessment for paving costs on the recently completed four-lane street. There will be changes in the Fire Prevention Ordinance and building ordinance to come before the council tonight. St. Paul's Episcopal Church will request that certain property belonging to the church be exempt from city taxes. There will also be requests for a pool room license, taxi franchise, installation of culvert and paving of a street.

Agenda Set For Council Meeting

Neighborhood Conservation committee recommendations will come before the City Council for consideration tonight when it meets in City Hall at 8 o'clock.

The committee had submitted an ordinance to the council last month but action was deferred until the city fathers could study it.

A 25-year-old Smithfield man was arrested on charges of discharging firearms within the city limits and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill following a shooting at the Riggs House Restaurant on Dickinson Ave. early this morning.

The victim of the firing was identified by investigators as Robert L. Abbott of 2511 Jefferson Drive. Abbott was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for the wound and released.

News And Notes From Grifton

Hold Open House
 The home of Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Quinerly on Sunset Blvd. was open on Sunday afternoon from 1 until 4:30 when the Grifton Garden Club sponsored their first "Holiday House." Throughout an air of festivity was noted from the holly sprigged door mat to the more formal decoration of the living room done in green and gold, the beautifully decorated tree sprayed with gold and all gold ornaments, the dining room in red with the table covered with a white linen cut work cloth and an arrangement of red carnations and tall red candles, the kitchen was done with traditional red and green of the yule-tide season, the table for breakfast set with pottery in green and white and a miniature tree and tiny packages for each place. A gum drop tree attached to a lazy Susan board, a sure delight for the children and tiny tapers in all green holders. The den too was done with the traditional theme. The bed rooms in pink and silver. The game room with the log fire and the refreshment table where hot spiced tea and cheese straws were served added just the right Christmas touch to the theme of the Holiday House. Members of the club were on hand to guide and serve as hostess for the afternoon. Over 125 interested persons called with a number of out-of-town callers being present.

Circle Meeting Held
 Members of the Johnnie Gardner Circle met for their Christmas meeting on Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. James Israel and from there went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George McArthur in Forest Acres for a visit with Mrs. McArthur's father, Mr. Harry Sweeney, who is a shut-in. The devotional was led by Mrs. Cecil Cobb and prayer by the Rev. Wayne Wegwart; singing of a number of Christmas hymns by the group followed. Mrs. W.E. Rasberry told the Christmas story of the "Little Gray Lamb." This simple though very heartfelt story pleased the listeners.

The business and social hour followed at the home of Mrs. J. M. Hart. Plans for the Methodist Men's supper meeting and other routine business was the order of the evening.

The refreshment table was covered with ice cream and coffee. Later in the evening, salted nuts, mints and cokes were passed.

Prizes for the evening went to Mrs. Joe Paget, Mrs. M.D. Allen and the consolation to Mrs. Joe Paul. Other guests were Mesdames Willie Padgett, Braxton Jenkins, Richard Whit, LeRoy Cherry, George McArthur, Denver Sasser, Floyd Harris, M. C. Batten, William Waters, Nick Sunjser, Ed Owens, Larry Pait, Jack Carson, Gordon Callcutt, Robert Mumford, Frank Davis, Charles H. Pace, Ralph Thaxton, Bill Jones, Maxwell Waters, Ray Denson, and Franklin Howes.

Mrs. Roberson Gives Round Table Program

The Round Table Book Club met with Mrs. A. A. Hines at her home in Lakewood Pines on Tuesday at 3:30. Arrangements for the Christmas season were placed throughout the house. The Madonna scene in the living room was a focal point of special interest. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. H. H. Duncan, served a salad and sweet course with coffee.

After a brief business session presided over by Mrs. Robert Fountain, president, Mrs. E. E. Rawl, program chairman, introduced the program leader, Mrs. Rodney Roberson. Continuing the Club's theme, New Frontiers, the leader presented a musical program featuring currently written Christmas songs. Then to emphasize the real meaning of Christmas, Mrs. Roberson read the parable story and directed the Club members in singing the traditional Christmas carols.

Gifts for the patients at Cherry Hospital, Goldsboro, were placed around the Christmas tree. The meeting adjourned as the hostess presented her guests with tokens of appreciation commemorating the approaching Yuletide.

Reflect Rising Business Activity

Comparative monthly sales and use tax collections by the state in the months since July have reflected throughout the state improving business conditions and at the same time the effect of the new three per cent sales tax on food and other items that were previously exempt from the state's sales tax law.

By way of illustration, the sales tax figures for Greenville for the month of September (the latest month for which figures are available) show an increase of more than $39,600 in the amount of tax collected compared with September a year ago.

All of this increase is not attributable to the new sales tax on food and other items because the gross retail sales for the county for the same month showed an increase of more than $1.5 million over the previous year, and a considerable portion of the increase came through Greenville businesses.

The figures do show, however, that whereas in September a year ago Greenville business firms reported sales tax collections totaling $65,517, this September they reported to the state sales tax collections amounting to more than $105,000. Among the 37 cities of North Carolina with populations in excess of 10,000 population, total sales tax collections for the month of September this year were $6.7 million compared with total collections of $4.6 million in September of 1960. Gross retail sales of both taxable and non-taxable items for the entire state for the same comparative months showed an increase of almost $116 million dollars.

More Tobacco $$$ Circulated

By LYNN NISBET
TOBACCO MONEY—The 1961 fine cured leaf tobacco crop put more money into circulation than any previous crop in history. A record production with unusually high prices filled the pockets and bank accounts of farmers and warehousemen to unprecedented degree. And everybody is happy about it.

But, and this is the most important part of the story, the larger amount of money circulated, the bulging pockets, did not mean that Eastern Carolina farmers had the most profitable season on record. The expenses of producing, harvesting and marketing the 1961 crop exceeded all previous records of cost by bigger percentage than the sales receipts led other years.

Fred Royster, head of the Fine Cured Tobacco Association, maintains close contact with growers and processors of leaf. He says there have been several other years when farmers cleared more dollars on less production than this year. Certainly there have been seasons when warehousemen fared relatively better. Merchants and other business men also report record breaking volume of dollar business with smaller margin of profit. The fact is inescapable, however, that the extra money doled out by the tobacco belt. One reason warehousemen did not make the usual margin of profit, for instance, was the mandatory raise in pay of common labor from $1.00 to $1.15 an hour. Not much for one worker or one warehouse but for a business that operates on 10 to 20 percent margin the addition to 15 percent to the major item of cost could make a lot of difference in the final balance sheet.

FACTORY—A group of men, including one zealous promoter of improved livestock, were talking about industrial development in Eastern North Carolina. They were happy about the announcement of the aircraft modification plant at Elizabeth City and its potential payroll of six million dollars a year. They recognized also the need for numerous smaller enterprises that could be distributed among the communities and provide employment for 10 to 200 persons each. One of the fellows then mentioned a story from State College the other day designating a tree as a "factory" and outlining some of the things it manufactured. Thereupon the cattle enthusiast came in with a description of a small factory that is one of the most amazing manufacturing plants in all the world—the ordinary milk cow. He can't understand why community developers get so hot and bothered about a factory that makes shirts or socks, or electronic gadgets, and ignore the easy availability of a "factory" that will produce from the most common types of raw material such diverse products as come from the cow.

Cow meat is a basic food in almost every section of the globe. The hide of the cow is a prime source of leather, and the hair for many items of dress and shelter. Bones and waste materials for fertilizer and other base chemical uses. These products also derive from many other animals—most of them in fact, both domestic and wild.

There is one area of "manufacturing" where the cow excels all other factories, and where the processes amaze and challenge the great scientists. That is the process by which rough feed is converted into milk somewhere between the cow's mouth and the udder.

FACT—While the most learned scientists do not understand this process every farm boy recognizes it. And the cow man in the discussion group wondered why more business men did not recognize the value of this kind of factory in the industrial development program.

Corporations are organized with huge capital structure to build plants that will take blocks of wood and produce paper pulp; or take soybeans and produce automobile bodies; or a pile of coal and produce a box of ladies' stockings.

Here is at hand a manufacturing plant that can be acquired for just a few dollars that will take dry hay and produce milk — through some process that challenges imagination.

Your reporter a long time ago heard William Jennings Bryan make a speech. He was talking about how some things had to be taken on faith, without support of scientific evidence. He used this illustration:

"No scientist has ever been able to explain how a black cow can eat green grass and give white milk with yellow butter in it. Or how the same grass can grow hair on a horse's back, feathers on a goose and bristles on a hog—but every farm boy knows that it does."

The moral, if any, to this little piece is that Eastern North Carolina can pull itself out of the economic doldrums by more attention to the little "factories" represented by pine trees and milk cows, while still working on the big payroll projects.

It is evident, therefore, that from the combination of increased business activity during the month of September and from the increase of the broadened base of the three per cent sales tax, the state realized considerably more in revenue during the month of September this year than was the case last year.

Fluctuating business conditions in subsequent months of the current fiscal year could change the present trend of much higher sales tax collections by the state, but the first months of this fiscal year, the state seems to be more than meeting the revenue estimates made by the legislature for this particular category of its income.

It at least holds out that the state may find at the end of this fiscal year—and perhaps at the end of the current biennium it has accumulated a comfortable surplus that can be wisely used. It holds out the hope that the state may also find that it will need no further upward adjustment in its tax structure in future years in spite of the growing needs of a growing North Carolina.

Rates Compare Well With Others' Charges

Rates for the new sewer charges in Greenville adopted by the local Utilities Commission this week appear reasonable in view of the increased cost of operating the city's sewer facilities when the new disposal plant is put into operation early next week.

The new rates will mean that utilities customers will pay a sewer charge of 50 per cent of their water bill with domestic customers paying a minimum of 75 cents per month and a maximum of $1.50 per month. For commercial customers the charge range upward from a minimum of $1 per month.

These rates, while they will represent an increase in what local residents pay for their utilities each month, compare favorably with similar rates of most other comparable communities in North Carolina which operate sewage disposal plants. One reason for this, of course, is that there will be no debt service levy necessary for the new sewer disposal plant in Greenville because the Utilities Commission was able to construct the plant out of funds that have been earmarked over a period of years for the facility.

Practically every other community which has built a sewage disposal plant has had to finance such facilities—ranging upward from a million dollars in most cases—by issuing bonds.

It will, of course, cost more to operate the plant than to dump the sewage of the city into the river as has been done for generations, but the city has been faced with a situation where state stream sanitation regulations for Tar River required construction of the plant. In addition to providing the city with a more sanitary method of disposing of its waste, this new plant, along with those of other cities along the Tar, will assure a better, cleaner river that will be an asset to the entire area.

In spite of the fact that the monthly budget of every family in Greenville will be affected by the new charges, it will prove a good investment for the citizens of the city.

Effort To Mend Strained Fences

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's quick trip to Latin America this week — a goodwill mission — is one more effort to mend fences in an area where the United States has often acted like a bull.

It may shock many people in this country, when Latin Americans riot against the United States, to realize not everyone loves us.

But the U. S. record in dealing with republics to the south has been less than ideal. It has been many things, not all of them nice. It has been indifferent, arrogant, unbearable, kind and forgetful.

President Monroe's doctrine in 1823 — that European powers must keep hands off Latin America — wasn't always as real as it was high-sounding.

European powers didn't keep hands off. Some, in fact, moved in and grabbed territory. The United States, despite the doctrine, didn't move in to throw them out by force.

In short, for most of the last century this country wasn't overly interested. There was contempt on both sides. The cultures were different, one largely Protestant and Anglo-Saxon, the other Catholic and Spanish.

In this country, President Theodore Roosevelt, speaking more contemptuously than any president of his southern neighbors, not only interpreted the Monroe Doctrine as a stay out of Latin American order order to Europeans but as a license for the United States to butt in.

And it did, more than just a few times. For example: American Marines were sent into Nicaragua under President Taft and into Haiti and the Dominican Republic under President Wilson. They stayed for years.

The United States finally got self-conscious under President Harding who tried to repair some of the damage. But it was under President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "good neighbor" policy that the relationship between the Americas entered a new era aimed at cooperation and good will.

Still, there were ups and downs even in Roosevelt's time although it was in this period that the United States shoveled money and other help into Latin America.

After World War II, when communism became a menace in Europe and Asia, the United States pumped money into both areas. In comparison it fed only dribbles into Latin America.

South Americans felt neglected and showed it with suspicion and in time anti-American demonstration. They have resented the help given by the United States to Latin American dictators, help which enabled them to stay in the saddle.

Through the last 30 years or so there have been a number of inter-American conferences to establish better hemisphere relations.

The United States under President Eisenhower, while not directly intervening, interfered in Guatemala in such a way that its government was overthrown and one more pleasing to this country was established.

Under the Kennedy administration, Washington backed a rebel invasion of Fidel Castro's Cuba. It also put warships off the Dominican Republic's coast to discourage the return of a dictatorship there.

Americans perhaps can, or can try to, justify some of the tactics of the U.S. government in the past. For some they can't — at least not on the grounds of being a good neighbor.

Understanding this makes it easier to understand why there is some anti-American feeling in Latin America.

Kennedy, with his program of Alliance for Progress, is trying hard now to create a better and new relationship.

Use Christmas Seals

By HENRY HOWARD.

Bustling Time Of Year

It's that busy season again and, par for the course, whenever people begin to really bustle they take their cars with them.

Of course it goes on the year 'round, but during the days of December before Christmas every year everything seems a little more urgent. People have a way of rushing just a little bit harder and, with their automobiles, taking a few more chances.

Christmas seems to be the highlight of many a person's year. It's the season when a feverish rush to the climatic Christmas Eve and Christmas Day — is just about universal.

Around Greenville for instance, by watching any one street corner for 15 or 20 minutes, it's easy to count a dozen or more discourtesies of drivers and pedestrians that perhaps would not have occurred without the rush.

Of course a most serious thought in connection with this situation is the possibility that innocent drivers or pedestrians could be hurt or possibly even killed in the rush. That's always the most serious threat.

But a secondary problem: In many instances the auto and pedestrian traffic is so clogged by numbers that the whole deal is slowed to a snail's pace. It's quite irritating to be in the midst of such, but the inability to fully execute the intended rush is perhaps the greatest blessing.

With everybody in a hurry — if there was ample room to actually travel at that break-neck speed — it could hardly be surprising if everybody was injured in one way or another.

What it all boils down to, apparently, is that the Christmas traffic snarl acts as the check-point on hustling people obsessed with the holiday mood. While extremely irritating to the individual, the bogged-down situation is perhaps a valuable lifesaver.

Speaking of traffic, people around Greenville seem to be destined to see a lot more of it within about three years.

The Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel Commission this week sent out news media packets describing the plans for a massive 17-mile project that will carry US Highway 13 over and under the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay.

With completion of the tremendous project scheduled for 1964, the Eastern North Carolina area can expect a noticeable increase in north-south traffic flow.

The bridge-tunnel project will serve to replace a ferry system over the same body of water that required more time than many north-south travelers could spare.

A more direct continuous motor route into the north, that just happens to extend southward through Greenville, is a sure bet to bring increased traffic and thereby more commercial activity to the area.

What does automation mean? Simply stated, it is the application of automatic processes to the production of goods. Actually, the cost of production cannot be reduced merely by automation. The cost of taxation, the value of currency, the interest rate are all factors in price. It is true that wages are an important factor in the formation of price, but as already indicated, no one factor is exclusive. When all the factors are considered, the conclusion must be reached that the number of jobs available are likely to decrease even though the quantities of goods produced and services used are liable to increase. In any calculation of jobs we have to consider that unemployment cannot be measured simply by the statistical figure or the number of workers employed, but by the hours of employment.

For instance, a 10 hour week employment is inadequate to keep a family going at present retail prices. To unemployment figures therefore, must be added partial employment figures. The individual who is partially employed, spends part of his time looking for a job which he does not find because it does not exist. He therefore lives in a permanent discouragement. Families that are affected by such conditions are liable to be as unsatisfactory as broken families. The children are dissatisfied and to a degree frightened by the dissatisfaction of the parents.

The employer is liable to say, quite correctly, that it is his function to produce goods for a profit and that he cannot say in business as an eleemosynary institution. Nevertheless, he could not long stay in business at all if increasing workers were unemployed and incapable of buying commodities.

The issue cannot be dodged on the assumption that the capitalist system accepts no social responsibilities. This has never been true of the capitalist system. It has always accepted very weighty responsibilities for its workers. In the earliest days of the apprenticeship system, the capitalist system assumed heavy responsibilities for its workers; in Japan, for instance, such responsibilities ex-

BIG SHOTS CONSTELLATE IN NEW FINANCE COMPANY
The Small Business Administration has licensed the Capital Growth Corp. of America as a small business investment company, enabling it to use government funds as well as its own.

The head of the company is General Nathan F. Twining, USAF retired, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. C. Robert Mathis, senior partner in the bigshot law firm of Davies, Richberg, Tydings, Landa & Duff; and other officers include Laurie C. Battle, former Alabama Congressman; Dan A. Weir, investment manager. The $20,055 starting capital has been privately subscribed.

More than 5,000 recipes were submitted in the contest staged by the American Society of Bar Masters, a captive organization of the "Early Times" distillery.

At the finals in New York, Judge Elmer Roessner complained that all of the 27 drinks submitted were too sweet, and which is in the process of taking over Philco. The tape plans appear to have given a great stimulus to Philco sales. But if it arouses the anger of the tens of thousands of dealers outside the plan, and they express their displeasure by downgrading Ford products, the Ford empire would seem to be bowling at a sticky wicket.

"FAN TANN" JUDGED BEST NEW BRINK
S. G. Mayer, Jr., a San Pedro, Calif., bartender, won the sixth annual National Mixed Drink Competition with a concoction he called the "Fan Tann." It consists of 1 ounce of bourbon, 1 ounce of coffee liqueur, 1/2 ounce of creme de cacao, and 1 ounce cow's cream.

Small retailers fear that housewives will refuse to buy their wares, hoping to get them for little or nothing through the tape plans.

Public Forum

TO THE EDITOR—

"Make no mistake about it, local self-government, or home rule as it is otherwise sometimes known, is gradually vanishing from the American scene. And with it is disappearing some of the boasted liberties with which citizens of this country have traditionally been blessed."

"Municipal and county government is giving in to the State and the State to centralized control from Washington. Who is responsible? All of us are who assent to these inroads of powerful hungry bureaucrats. When ultimately Washington gets the nose around our necks, there will be little difference from what they have in Soviet Russia and elsewhere. Along with these restraints will come, too, the tyrannies of rule from above, not from the grass roots."

The message carried in the above paragraphs, which appeared on the editorial page of the Friday edition of The Daily Reflector, is clear and its warning sound. —Americans, you are losing your individual freedoms. Wake up! Halt this trend before you are buried by it!

You can understand my concern, when on the same page, I read the following editorial from which I quote excerpts:

"Tobacco growers of this and other counties will collectively decide at the polls on Tuesday whether marketing quotas and the government support program for flue-cured tobacco will be continued for another three years."

"The Reflector has previously urged tobacco growers of this county to vote in favor of continuing the marketing quotas which have meant so much to the economy of this area, and to the economy so far as growers are concerned throughout the tobacco producing region."

I make no argument with the previous economic benefits derived from marketing quotas and the government support program. But could these same benefits not be made by farmers who grow and sell tobacco with the natural operation of the free market as its control? The issue at stake in Tuesday's election is far reaching and still basic: do we salvage our Constitutional right of "home rule," or take another step toward bureaucratic "Strong Government, Weak State, extinct individualism"?

Sincerely,
Charles W. Allen

Some Changes Due January 1

By ELMER ROESSNER
Important business reminders: Slower passports: After January 1, it will take three weeks instead of three days to get passports because of the 10 per cent cut in State Department personnel ordered by President Kennedy. If you'll need a passport in 1962, apply immediately!

Social Security tax rate jumps Jan. 1. It goes from three per cent to 3 1/8 per cent on first $4,800 for employers and for employees. Check payroll department to make sure machinery is ready to deduct higher rate and to pay Treasury both employees' and company's share, and prepare employees so they will understand why paychecks shrink.

Only two personal tax forms will be used in 1962. They are the familiar Form 1040 considerably simplified, and punch-card form 1040A. The brief "wage earners'" form 1040W has been discontinued.

Round out dollars in tax forms. If you want. Despite lack of mention in tax instructions, the Internal Revenue Service will accept whole-dollar accounting in reporting income for taxes. In this system, figures from 1 to 99 cents are dropped; from 50 to 99 cents count as the next buck. There is no saving but there is in accounting time.

The National Appliance Radio-TV Dealers Association is working on a plan whereby member retailers can work out cash-register tape plans with independent supermarkets.

Appliance retailers have been tossed into a tizzy because large appliance dealers, led by Philco, have set up plans by which supermarket shoppers' tape can be used as partial monthly payments for appliances, through selected dealers.

Small retailers fear that housewives will refuse to buy their wares, hoping to get them for little or nothing through the tape plans.

Social Problem In Jobs

By GEORGE E. KOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The principal social problem that faces the United States these days is Jobs. This affects foreign relations as well as internal problems.

For instance, the trade between Japan and the United States has many ramifications. Prior to World War II, Japan's economy was based upon an economic triangle, namely, Japan sold silk to the United States, bought cotton from the United States, manufactured both silk and cotton goods which were sold principally in China but also in other parts of South East Asia and in Africa.

Today, this triangle is smashed and Japan has to find another means to make purchases in the United States and other countries. The United States is particularly concerned that Japan should not become so absorbed with the trade of Red China and Siberia as to shift from a pro-American country to a Red Curtain country. To achieve this program, Japan must sell increasing quantities of goods in the United States. This affects many commodities which have been manufactured in this country but which the Japanese can manufacture more cheaply than we can.

This leads to a serious economic conflict, particularly as it applies to knitwear, ceramics, transistor products, etc. On the other hand, the purchase of American goods by Japanese is constantly increasing. Similarly whereas the produce of the Common Market is sharply affecting the sale of American goods in European and Asiatic markets, American goods are outselling any other country's commodities. Certain products have been hit hard by the Common Market, but American sales have continued to be high.

Nevertheless, the job problem continues to mount in this country. The answers are not easy to find. Automation is often given as the reason for the decline in employment but there is nothing new or different in automation. It is an industrial process that has been continuous throughout and since the Industrial Revolution.

What does automation mean? Simply stated, it is the application of automatic processes to the production of goods. Actually, the cost of production cannot be reduced merely by automation. The cost of taxation, the value of currency, the interest rate are all factors in price. It is true that wages are an important factor in the formation of price, but as already indicated, no one factor is exclusive. WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Pretty Lee Folsom would rather feel the satisfaction and independence that a modern young woman can get from using her brains to achieve something substantial than capitalize on the effect of her attractiveness to men. She has a happy glow over placing Bill and Jane Endicott in time for Christmas—and earning a substantial commission from the deal.

She is less pleased because "Uncle John" Purvis, the leading lawyer in their Georgia town, and Kermit Dalton, the man at the bank who wants to marry Lee, steered a wealthy prospect from New York, Martin Whitfield, to her office. They helped develop Whitfield's interest in buying the old Eastman plantation, "Oakland," on which the bank has a mortgage. Lee thought any man in his right mind who saw that property, which the Eastman heirs had let run to an uncultivated ruin, would turn away quickly. To her surprise, and in spite of her obvious reluctance to sell it to him, Whitfield said he would take it. Lee is not impressed with a man-millionaire or not—who makes such a decision on snap judgment, even though he is a handsome male obviously interested in her.

"I refuse to allow a nice young man, a stranger in our town, to be exposed to a girl like Hollace Eastman without warning him that she's a predatory mix!" Uncle John insisted.

Martin laughed. "Please don't disturb yourself on that score. Mr. Purvis, I'm thirty-five and still unmarried! I've met predatory girls before. I assure you I'm quite safe, no matter how dangerously lovely she may be."

"Oh," said Uncle John with the air of one upon whom a great light has just dawned, "so that's it! Now I understand! Hollace's been making feline jabs at Lee's intended, and Lee wants to get her out of his hair."

Martin looked faintly startled, and Lee's color rose.

"Uncle John, you're being spiteful and malicious and I don't like it a bit," she told him firmly. "I'll drive Mr. Whitfield to his hotel, and then I'll go home and get dressed for the party. And you stop trying to throw a monkey wrench into our private business."

"Sorry," Uncle John grinned. "Been a pleasure meeting you, Mr. Whitfield, and it's a privilege to serve you as attorney and to close this deal. I welcome you to Lewisville and hope you'll be very happy here."

"Thanks, Mr. Purvis, that's very kind of you," said Martin gratefully.

"I'll meet you at the bank in the morning, shall we say at eleven?" suggested Uncle John, smiling warmly.

"Fine! I'm anxious to get the deal rolling," said Martin, and followed Lee out of the office.

Beside her desk, he said cheerfully, "Don't bother about driving me to the hotel, Miss Folsom. It's a short walk, and I'd like to get a little better acquainted with my new home town."

Lee nodded and smiled as she put her hand in the one he extended.

"We'll pick you up at your hotel about seven, Mr. Whitfield, shall we?" she asked.

He thanked her and walked out, and Polly Wickett, the office secretary, watched the door close behind him.

"What a dreamboat!" she murmured wistfully. "So of course Holly Eastman latches onto him. Wouldn't you know it?"

"Well, he's buying her old home," Lee pointed out reasonably. "I thought it would be nice for them to meet."

"Oh, sure, sure," Polly agreed. "Be interesting to see how she handles him, won't it?"

Lee said thoughtfully, "D'you know something, Polly m'girl? I've a very strong hunch Martin Whitfield can cope with much more powerful artillery than even our fair Holly can haul into position."

Polly grinned wickedly. "Now that would be interesting to see, wouldn't it?"

"It very well might be," Lee agreed, and added, "We are a couple of cats, Polly, with sharp and cruel claws!"

Polly shrugged. "Oh, well, she's after your man, not mine. If she were after my Jimmy, I'd show her a fine set of claws. And you're a chump if you don't do something about rescuing Kermit from her clutches."

Lee eyed her with a twinkle in her eyes, though she was unsmiling.

"And may I ask why you think I invited Mr. Whitfield to double-date with Kermit and me tonight, and snagged him a date with Holly?"

Polly chuckled. "Oh, you're the devious one, Lee. I just hope it works!"

"It will work, make no mistake about that," Lee responded.

Lee moved swiftly to answer the doorbell's summons and opened the door to Kermit, who stood back and eyed her with delight.

"Boy, aren't you pretty?" he approved the way she looked in the smartly cut pine-green wool dress with its delicate collar of mink. "I seem to forget how pretty you are, and then all of a sudden when I see you again—"

Lee accepted his kiss, patted his cheek and said gaily, "Well, of course, you see so much more of Holly Eastman than you do of me—"

"A whopping lie," Kermit told her cheerfully. "I see as much of you as you'll let me, but somehow, Holly always seems to be there."

Lee surveyed his rugged, pleasantly homely features, the crisp sandy hair that would never lie quite straight, the gray-blue eyes that were studying her with such ardent warmth, and said lightly, "Well, from tonight on I have a hunch Holly isn't going to be there quite so much. I got her a date with Mr. Whitfield."

Kermit's eyes widened, and he whistled. "Now there's a combination," he admitted thoughtfully.

"We're picking them up at seven, Mr. Whitfield at his hotel, Holly at home."

Alarm registered in Kermit's eyes.

"Hi, I thought this was our date, yours' and mine!" he protested.

"Look, darling, Mr. Whitfield is buying Oakland and coming here to live, so we have to be friendly and give him a warm welcome, so he'll like it here and not feel like a stranger," Lee coaxed.

Kermit nodded reluctantly. "Well, yes, I suppose so."

"And after all, darling, you and I can have a lot of single dates from now on," Lee assured him, and could not restrain a chuckle. "Can you imagine Holly allowing him out of her clutches for a double date after tonight?"

"No," Kermit agreed, and added impulsively, "You know, I really am sorry for Holly."

"Wait a minute, mister. That's dangerous."

Kermit grinned at her. "Well, the poor kid is miserably unhappy, living there in that shabby little old house with her mother and Miss Cora."

"Somehow I can't exactly picture Miss Cora as dancing on a pink cloud with joy at having them there," Lee remarked dryly.

"No, I suppose not," Kermit agreed. "It does make things difficult for her. Begins to look as if she may have to put a mortgage on that house, in spite of all her efforts to avoid it. Her annuity simply will not stretch to cover all the things Holly and Mimi insist they need."

"Well, now that Oakland is be-

CHAPTER 5

John Purvis was chatting with Martin Whitfield when Lee came into the office. Martin stood up swiftly, looking anxiously at her.

"Relax, Mr. Whitfield; you've got yourself a date for the evening," Lee told him pleasantly. "Holly Eastman was delighted, as I knew she would be."

Uncle John drew his thick white brows together and asked, "You've gotten Mr. Whitfield a date with Holly Eastman?"

Martin looked at him, puzzled at his tone.

"We're double-dating, Uncle John," Lee explained, laughing. "Kermit and I, Mr. Whitfield and Holly."

Martin asked uneasily, "Is something wrong? Is Miss Eastman well, just what is she like?"

"Perfectly beautiful," said Lee. "And as dangerous as they come!" said Uncle John.

"Now, Uncle John, you sound like a gossip old woman!" Lee protested.

Murder Charged Six Ex-SS Men

BERLIN (AP)—Murder charges have been filed against six former Nazi SS leaders alleged to have killed 11,000 Jews during World War II in the Soviet Union, the local prosecutor's office said Wednesday.

The six, members of a special commando unit of SS, were identified as Dr. Alfred Filbert, a Berlin banker; Gerhard Schneider of Hannover, a government employee; Bodo Stuck, a detective chief inspector, also of Hannover; Wilhelm Greifenberg, of Toeving, a bookkeeper; Konrad Fiebig, a clerk from Munich; and Heinrich Tunnat, a business manager, of Oldenburg.

All were caught in 1959 and have been under detention since. The trial is expected to start next spring.

The social security systems of the United States and Great Britain, feared as invasions of capitalism, have become fixed.

But none of these systems have quite answered the problem of jobs. A man, to be independent, wishes to work at a substantial wage. The lack of a job can lead to real disaster.

Ayden Police List 42 Arrests

AYDEN—The local Police Department in its November report listed a total of 42 arrests during the month.

Thirty-seven of these cases were tried and 34 were found guilty, one case was not processed and two were referred to Superior Court. Amount of fines was $325.55, and amount of cost was $248.00, for a total of $573.55.

Five accidents were investigated, two funerals handled and there were five fire reports.

Lee pointed out, she glanced at the clock and said quickly, "Oh, we'd better go. I promised Mr. Whitfield we'd pick him up at seven."

Moose Christmas Party For Children Here Sunday

PARTY TALK—Chairman White and committee member Jack Wallace discuss plans for underprivileged.

The tenth annual Christmas party for underprivileged children will be held by Greenville Moose Sunday afternoon, beginning at 2:00 o'clock.

Preparations, under chairmanship of Jack White, have been underway for the past two weeks. According to White, "things are now pretty well lined up."

Capt. Earl Reagan, Salvation Army commander in Greenville, personally selected fifteen families for the Moose to assist this Christmas season.

In turn, a team of volunteers from the fraternal order visited each family to determine the children's needs and on Sunday they will transport the children to Moose Temple for the party, and take them home.

Chairman White disclosed "between 70 and 80" children will be guests of the Lodge.

The group will be welcomed by Governor Charles McAndrew, and Father Stephen Sullivan of St. Raphael's Chapel will be bringing a Christmas message. White said this portion of the program will be broadcast by WGTC.

Refreshments will be served, and—oh, yes, Santa Claus will be there.

There will be toys and needed articles of clothing for the youngsters; and when they are taken home, they will be accompanied by large-size food baskets.

Hotel Removing Beds For Guests

BOSTON (AP)—The Statler Hilton Hotel here has been requested to remove the beds from a number of rooms so 34 guests could sleep in them more comfortably.

The request was from the sponsors of a Korean orphans' choir, touring the United States and Canada.

The 34 children in the choir—ranging in age from 8 to 12—have never slept in beds and they refuse to get the habit now.

They carry their own sleeping bags and crawl into them each night in preference to luxurious comfort.

RAINING FISH

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—California air-dropped 2,729,877 fingerling trout into 804 remote lakes during 1961. Officials figured cost of the program at $1.41 per thousand trout as against $20 when the fish were hauled in by pack train.

Larger Number Immunization

The Pitt County Health Department gave approximately 13,000 immunization shots during the month of November for various diseases, including polio, whooping cough, small pox, diphtheria, tetanus and typhoid.

Dr. John Futrell, health director, said the number of inoculations given last month exceeded the number given during last year. He cited several reasons for the increase. One is that the Polio Foundation extended beyond the age of six further polio immunization for indigent children for Pitt County.

Other reasons are recognition by the N.C. Medical Society of importance of tetanus immunization, an increased emphasis on both the school health program and immunizations in compliance with law and health.

A 'Millionaire' For A Few Days

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP)—Being a "millionaire" for several days was fun, but John Egan III will return today to Dutchess County Community College as just another student.

Egan, 20, of Clinton Corners, N.Y., has a bank book showing he is worth $1,100,171.75.

Egan earned $181.75 last summer and deposited it in the Marine Midland Bank of Southeastern New York. Last Friday he withdrew $10 for Christmas shopping, and pocketed his bank book without looking at it.

Later he glanced at the book. Recorded mechanically was the million dollar-plus sum.

Today he is returning the book for correction, and it will show a balance of only $171.75.

Offer Christmas Cantata Friday

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sweet and bitter inducements to swift learning, fast-beating feminine hearts and the effects of high living standards on blood pressure are subjects in the medical news.

FAT OR RAP?
Various experiments have indicated that animals learn faster when they are punished for mistakes than when they are rewarded for correct responses. A combination of reward and punishment brings the best results.

But how about humans?
Drs. R. K. Penney and A. A. Lupton of Ancaster, Ont., Canada, ran 60 trials on children. The kids were told to distinguish between white and black sections painted on squares. A piece of candy was the reward for a correct answer. An incorrect answer triggered a loud, unpleasant noise.

rewarded group received candy only for correct answers. Children in the third group were given a combination of noise or candy, depending on the correctness of their answers.

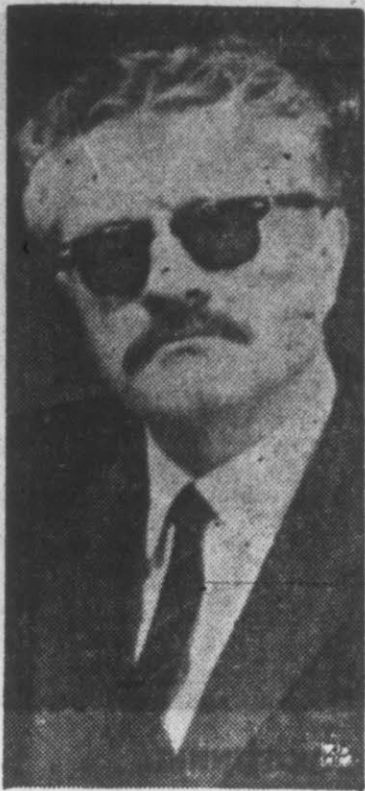

FLUTTERING HEARTS
A naval physician in a recruiting station in Los Angeles was puzzled to find heart murmurs in from 25 to 40 per cent of the Waves he examined. These murmurs were short and soft and varied with the position of the subject and the rate of her breathing. He rarely found these murmurs in men. So he queried the American Medical Association headquarters in Chicago.

An AMA consultant offered this opinion: there are some indications women have more murmurs than men the same age. But slight murmurs can be accentuated by rapid flow through the arteries. And a fast-beating heart speeds up blood flow.

HIGH LIVING
High blood pressure may be the standard price, world over, for a high standard of living.

One of the latest studies linking these two factors was made in the Fiji Islands. The doctors found that a group of Indian men in Suva, Fiji, who enjoyed a relatively high standard of living had higher blood pressures than the local rural male population.

"There is a graduation in the incidence of high blood pressure among several races of the Pacific islands that parallels the degree to which they have been influenced by Western culture," said the doctors' report to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

PRESIDENT—Carlos Julio Arresemena, 42, is the new president of Ecuador. He replaced the ousted Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra following a violent national crisis recently.

T. Lamar Caudle Is Accused Of Violating Securities Law

NEW YORK (AP)—The promoters of a movie about the life of St. Patrick have violated the State Securities Law and have been directed to appear in Supreme Court with their books and records Friday, said State Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz.

The promoters include T. Lamar Caudle, of Wadesboro, N.C., a Department of Justice aide in the Truman administration who was sent to prison for his part in a tax evasion case, the attorney general said.

In a court affidavit, Lefkowitz said that the promoters operated a scheme "so snavely" that they obtained a letter of cooperation from Robert Briscoe, the lord mayor of Dublin. The affidavit said that Mayor Briscoe, and others, endorsed the promotion "unwittingly."

Letters of endorsement were also obtained, the affidavit said, from Morris Dockrell, former Lord Mayor of Dublin, and the London office of Cardinal Godfrey.

The affidavit states that eight men — three of them ex-convicts — violated the State Securities Law by circulating a brochure seeking $500,000 to produce and promote the film. The brochure contained false statements, the attorney general said.

An investigation by the attorney general's office indicated that no commitments or firm offers were made by any of the organizations or companies mentioned in the brochure, the affidavit states.

Named in a court order, signed by Justice Arthur Markewich, to appear with books and records in addition to Caudle, are: Edward Lesser and Charles Lesser, both of Oyster Bay, N. Y.; Sam Avnet, Far Rockaway, N. Y.; A. Joseph Hartwick, Philadelphia, Pa.; George Patterson, address unknown; Robert S. Newman, address unknown; Norman Rankow, Forest Hills, Queens, and Federated Mortgages Corp., Brooklyn.

According to the court affidavit, Federated Mortgages was operated by Edward and Charles Lesser, brothers, each of whom has been "convicted of various crimes."

The attorney general's office said that Caudle was employed by Federated Mortgages but declined to elaborate on his part in the stock promotion.

Lefkowitz said that he will seek a permanent injunction barring all of the principals from engaging in the securities business in New York state.

Initiated Into Phi Beta Kappa

DURHAM—Mrs. Godfrey P. Oakley Jr., the former Mary Ann Bryant of Greenville, was initiated into Phi Beta Kappa National Honorary Scholastic Fraternity at Duke University on Dec. 5.

Initiation into the fraternity is based on highest academic standing. Mrs. Oakley has been a Dean's List student at Duke, where she was a member of Alpha Chi Omega Social Sorority, past vice president of Westminster Fellowship and a dormitory officer.

Having completed requirements for her college degree, Mrs. Oakley is now teaching in Forsyth County and resides with her husband in Winston-Salem. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Bryant of Greenville, and graduated as valedictorian of her class from Rose High School.

SHP Veteran Is Fired By State

ABERDEEN, N.C. (AP)—State Highway Patrolman J. Frank Swaim, 40, a 13-year veteran, was fired Wednesday for "conduct unbecoming to an officer."

Swaim was suspended two months ago. At a public hearing in November, it was brought out that he purchased land last June from Alex Rosy Jr. of Pine Bluff, who had been involved in an accident involving a car owned by Swaim and driven by his daughter.

Rosy was charged with hit-and-run driving, but the warrant was not served until after Swaim bought the 3.25 acres of land.

Swaim testified at the hearing he had nothing to do with serving the warrant, since another officer investigated the accident. Other witnesses said the $100 per acre Swaim paid for the land was not a low price.

Old Cake Recipe Still A Winner

SALINA, Kan. (AP)—Thirty-seven years ago Mrs. O. A. Grinage found a recipe for a "never fail" chocolate cake in the Salina Journal.

In 1924 her daughter, now Mrs. Earl Madison Jr. of Salina, won a school baking contest with it. Now her granddaughter, Susan Madison, has won a blue ribbon for a cake from the same recipe in the Tri-Rivers Fair.

Kenland Recognized
ITHACA, N.Y.—The Kenland Motel of Greenville has received national recognition in the 1962 edition of the Duncan Hines Travel Book "Lodging for a Night." Roy H. Park, editor-in-chief of the Duncan Hines Institute, has announced.

A native of North Carolina, Park is also chairman of the Board of the Alumni Association of N. C. State College. He will also be new owner of television station WNCT (Channel 9) which has an interest in WECT (Channel 6) in Wilmington, pending approval of the FCC and the stockholders.

The Kenland Motel is one of 4,800 lodging places in North America "Recommended by Duncan Hines."

"This is our 27th year of continuing publication and service to the American traveling public," Park stated. "It is also our fifth year of continuing surveys—our public opinion audit of eating and lodging establishments. This year we received 60,000 nominations of more than 12,000 restaurants, hotels, motels and resorts from 11,000 people who have the means to eat and stay at the best places in North America."

These survey results plus comments from the traveling public and an actual inspection by a staff field representative, Park said, provide the guides for making the final selection of the three out of 100 establishments in the hospitality industry listed in the three Duncan Hines Travel Books.

Pay Tribute To Bravery In Crash

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—The Air Force Wednesday paid tribute to the individuals and organizations who served bravely when a C119 flying boxcar crashed during an air show here Sept. 24, killing five persons.

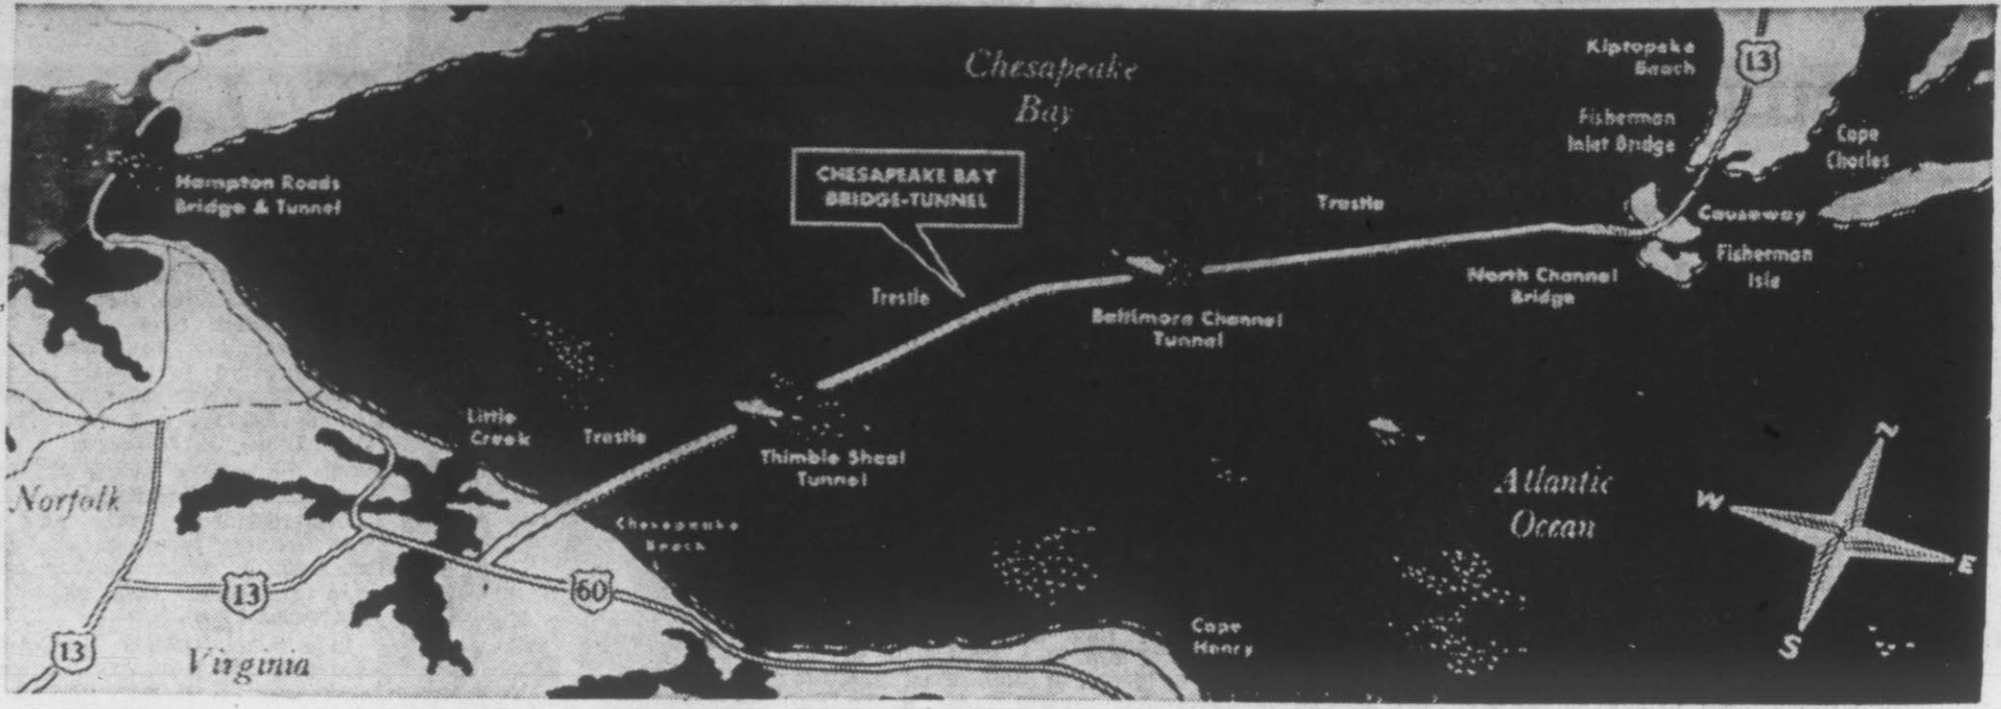

The Air Force's highest peacetime citation, the Air Force Commendation Medal, went to M. Sgt. Keith B. Ackerman, an Air Force recruiter stationed here.

Five civilians were presented the Air Force Medal of Bravery and scrolls of appreciation went to six organizations for their part in the rescue operations after the crash.

They were given by Col. Joseph J. Krugel of Myrtle Beach AFB, S.C., in the City Council Chambers.

The Medal of Bravery went to Charlie L. Nixon of Wilmington, Negro laborer who was injured as he pulled the pilot and co-pilot from the burning aircraft; A. B. Riggs Jr. of the Myrtle Grove Fire Department; R. A. Harrell, chief deputy of the Hanover County Sheriff's Department, David R. Guyton of Kinston and Bernie Carlisle of Jacksonville.

Receiving the scrolls of appreciation were the Castle Hayne Volunteer Fire Department; the Winter Parke Volunteer Fire Department; the Wrightsboro Fire Department; Civil Air Patrols from Wilmington, Cape Fear and Federal Point at Carolina Beach; and John Westbrook, manager of the New Hanover Airport, where the crash occurred.

CHESAPEAKE BAY BRIDGE-TUNNEL . . . two tunnels will provide major channels for largest of sea-going vessels to enter Chesapeake Bay port areas.

Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel Complex Shaping Up

More than 17 miles of bridge and tunnel are now being constructed across the Chesapeake Bay to carry U. S. 13 traffic from Delmarva Peninsula to the Tidewater area and thence southward.

Ranked as one of man's greatest engineering achievements, the bridge-tunnel is being built at a cost of $139,200,000. It involves 55,000 tons of steel, 550,000 cubic yards of concrete and 2,600 pilings.

It will replace a fleet of seven ferry steamers which now carries 2,000,000 passengers and 750,000 vehicles annually across the bay. The bay crossing will be designated U. S. 13 and will be a part of the Ocean Highway which becomes U. S. 17 south of the Tidewater area.

However, the Pitt County area can expect to feel the effects of the massive project. For in its first year the bridge-tunnel is expected to more than double the number of vehicles crossing the bay. Presently, the ferries are carrying an average of 2,000 vehicles daily. An estimated 5,027 will cross the bridge-tunnel daily when it is opened in 1963.

Most of this traffic will spill down U. S. 17 which passes through neighboring Washington, N. C., and Chocowinity at its closest point to Greenville.

It is reasonable to assume that some of it will continue on U. S. 13 to avoid the already busy U. S. 17 traffic.

U. S. 13 now continues to Ahiska, Williamson, Robersonville, Bethel and then to Greenville. From here it goes to Goldsboro by way of Farmville and Snow Hill. Recently it has been extended to near Fayetteville where traffic can tie in with I-95 and U. S. 301.

The Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel will open a new era for both the Delmarva Peninsula and the fast-growing Hampton Roads area. It will eliminate the last water barrier on the popular Ocean Highway and speed Eastern Seaboard travel.

Two tunnels are to be constructed in the long bridge to provide channels for the largest of sea-going vessels. The Baltimore Channel tunnel will extend 5,450 feet and the Thimble Shoal Tunnel will be 5,738 feet. Both tunnels will have a roadway width of 24 feet and overhead clearance of 11 feet, vertical clearance and 110 feet horizontal clearance.

In addition there are to be two bridges to allow passage of ocean going vessels. They are the North Channel Bridge with a 75 foot vertical clearance and 311 feet horizontal clearance and the Fisherman Inlet Bridge with 40 feet of vertical clearance.

Construction of the tunnels will require four man-made islands. A restaurant is planned on one of the islands and fishing facilities will be provided on one or more of them.

Ruritan Club Installs Officers

WINTERVILLE—Officers were installed here Tuesday at the regular meeting of the Winterville Ruritan Club at the community center.

Boyce Barwick was installed president by Elwood Davenport, lieutenant governor of the Greenville-Goldsboro District of Ruritan National. Davenport also installed three more officers and one director.

Willard Finch, vice president; Preston Corey, secretary; Vernon Teeter, treasurer; and Bernie Tucker, director, formally took their respective offices.

A Christmas music program was presented the club by a Winterville High School quartet composed of Misses Laverne Cayton and Carol Porter and Jimmy Wynne and Michael Worthington. Vernon White announced that a joint meeting of the Ruritan Club and the Winterville Kiwanis Club would be held Wednesday, Jan. 17. At that time, he said, the Pitt County Development Commission will conduct its January meeting as guest of the two clubs and the town of Winterville.

White said a tour of the Winterville Machine Works and other points of interest in Winterville is being planned.

President Barwick announced that the National Ruritan Convention will be held in January in Miami, Fla.

School Conducts 2nd In-Service Training Session

FOUNTAIN—North Fountain Elementary School held the second in a series of In-Service-Training sessions Dec. 6 with Supervisor F. D. Sledge as guest speaker.

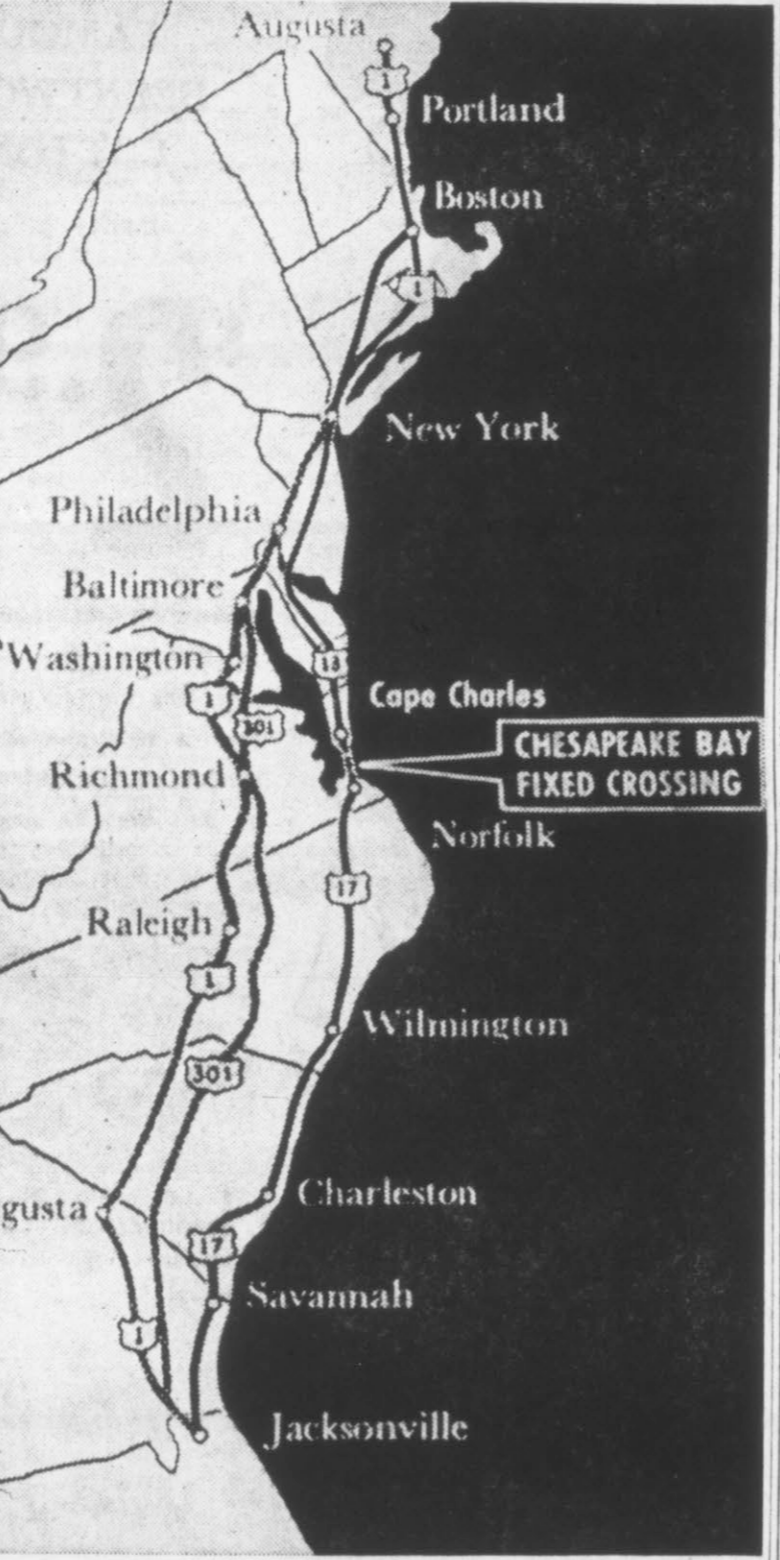

Sledge stated that an emphasis must be placed on planning in order to continue in the "complex civilization." He said in conclusion, that "to plan wisely one must think in terms of one's classroom, materials to be used and above all, the pupil."

Approximately 40 parents attended the meeting, held in the auditorium. During the business session, committee reports were presented and approved.

During a social hour, Mrs. Blanche Barnes presented a Christmas reading and a medley of Christmas carols was heard. Refreshments were served.

The meeting adjourned following remarks by Principal E. L. Smith.

JFK Trying To Turn A Pledge Into Reality

EDITOR'S NOTE—The promise of active, vigorous leadership was a persistent note in John F. Kennedy's campaign. How successful has he been translating pledge into reality? This is the fourth of five articles on the President's performance in his 11 months in office.

By ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON (AP)—No man can properly judge the leaders of his own time.

Few around Abraham Lincoln, so savagely ridiculed by his contemporaries, could have guessed that in 100 years he would be so venerated.

Even fewer of those around the respected U. S. Grant could have thought that history would rate the general's presidential ability so low.

To a politician, history is a luxury; he must make his decisions now.

And each of us—with our varying backgrounds that influence, and often imprison, our thinking, can render nothing better than on-the-spot judgments on our leaders. Over the long haul how well we judge determines how well and where we are led.

Yet when we try to answer the question—how is John F. Kennedy doing after 11 months as President?—we quickly run into something hard to pin down and impossible to prove: the quality of the leadership he offers.

It was Kennedy who put this emphasis on leadership. A couple of examples from his speeches will recall the tone of his campaign.

In Fort Worth, Kennedy said: "Lyndon Johnson and I do not promise a life of ease. We cannot promise a solution to the problems which disturb our lives, but we can promise that if we are successful we can move with vigor and vitality on the problems which disturb us here and around the world."

In Hamtramck, Mich.: "The function of the President of the United States is to build a strong society here, to maintain full employment, to educate our children, to provide security for our aged citizens; to provide justice for the people; to build an image of a society on the move, so that people around the world who wonder what road they should take will decide: 'We want to go with the United States; they represent the future.'"

Obviously these goals are too great for the most daring and imaginative leader to reach in 11 months. But in this town you can get a first rate argument over whether Kennedy has made a decent beginning.

Those around Kennedy, naturally, insist he is on his way. Naturally, this is the President's own view.

At a news conference he was asked about his campaign promises, and whether he would change them if he were campaigning again.

"No," Kennedy said. "It would be exactly what it was. We have met a good many of these commitments and I am hopeful that before our term is ended that we will meet the others."

Republicans dutifully pecked away at Kennedy, although few go so far as Rep. Walter H. Judd, R-Minn. "I say in dismay that he is a great deal weaker than I thought he would be," Judd told a GOP meeting in Minneapolis.

"Mr. Kennedy won't let others make decisions and he won't make them himself."

Possibly the complaint heard most frequently, sometimes from those friendly to the administration, is that for all Kennedy's talk about this nation needing a strong sense of purpose it still seems to be drifting.

One of President Eisenhower's closest advisers says Kennedy was so convinced that Republicans over-organized the White House that he errs in the other direction.

"How do they assess their strength and assign priorities when the President thinks Cabinet meetings are a waste of time?" this person asked. "What are their main goals? Why, they're all main goals under this arrangement."

He paused, and then delivered the unkindest cut of all. "What they need, maybe only for four or five months, is a Sherman Adams type to give direction to the operation."

No one in the Eisenhower administration drew as heavy Democratic fire as Adams, who served as a sort of assistant president. Here, of all places, Kennedy is least likely to copy his predecessor.

This same Republican says Kennedy's own behavior creates confusion.

"He is emphatic against a summit conference, and yet he goes to one. He is emphatic on Laos, and then he lets it trail off. He sends up a farm program, and says this is what he has to have, and when it's changed around completely, he says this is what he wanted after all."

"He says he wants a balanced budget and then he says, no, I don't. He talks about a missile gap and then one of his men says how strong we are. Which, of course, is true."

"It's no wonder the picture of Kennedy comes through a little smoky."

by complaints from some Kennedy supporters who feel everything is moving too slowly.

Complacently they point to a Gallup opinion poll that shows 77 per cent approval of the way Kennedy is doing his job, 12 per cent disapproval, with 11 per cent undecided.

Politicians praise a poll when it's with them, and kick it when it's unfavorable. This is no exception.

John M. Bailey, Democratic National chairman, says: "If Kennedy were running for office now, he'd win tremendously."

But Rep. William E. Miller of New York, GOP national chairman, says the poll merely proves that in a cold war each citizen prefers to say, yes, he supports the president. In a hot political campaign, he says, Kennedy's margin would quickly melt.

Even if Miller is wrong, the Democrats have an embarrassing contradiction.

When Eisenhower was rolling up big margins in similar polls, the Democratic reaction was: this only proves that Eisenhower is popular. It has nothing to do with leadership. Good leadership may require taking an unpopular stand.

At the very moment Kennedy was saying this country was standing still, and a driving leader was needed to get it moving again, Eisenhower was doing fine in the polls.

know says Kennedy is well pleased with his choices.

"Of course," he said, "he's more pleased with some than with others."

Of all the Democrats consulted on the Kennedy team performance only one had reservations.

After praising the brilliance of the White House help, he said: "My main complaint is, not one has had any administrative experience. They're really just boys."

But it's easy to criticize a President; it's harder to be one. And no one has learned that more quickly than John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

On July 25, at the end of a radio-television address, he said: "When I ran for the presidency of the United States I knew that this country faced serious challenges. But I could not realize, nor could any man realize who does not bear the burdens of this office, how heavy and constant would be these burdens."

Kennedy, who only six months before had spoken so confidently about leadership, now said: "I need your good will and your support and, above all, your prayers."

DETROIT (AP)—The garage mechanic wasn't fooling when he told Mabel McCoy of Detroit that "it sounds like you've got radiator trouble."

After lifting the hood, he found the entire radiator was missing. Mrs. McCoy said she believed it was stolen while her car was parked near the Detroit school where she is a lunchroom employe.

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP)—The moral of this story is: don't trust a donkey—even when he's part of a Nativity scene.

Mrs. Morford was treated and released at a hospital. The donkey is still on the job.

Phantoms Place Four On All-East Team

RALEIGH—Greenville's Rose High Phantoms placed two boys on the first team of the News and Observer All-East 3-A football team and two others on the second team.

Halfback Alan McArthur and end Jack Foley were both named to the first team, while quarterback Billy James and guard Russell Fields were placed on the second team. This is the third straight year that McArthur has been an All-East pick.

McArthur, a 170-pound senior, is the only repeater on this year's squad and is one of the nine seniors on the first team. Foley is one of the two juniors selected for the honor this season.

Both Greenville boys were highly instrumental in leading the Greenville Phantoms to their first Northeastern Conference and Eastern crowns in the history of the school.

In addition to the boys placed on the first two teams, Greenville had four players listed in the honorable mention column. They were Burney Morris at guard, Rommie Brock at tackle and Wayne Sumrell and Kroghie Andresen in the backfield.

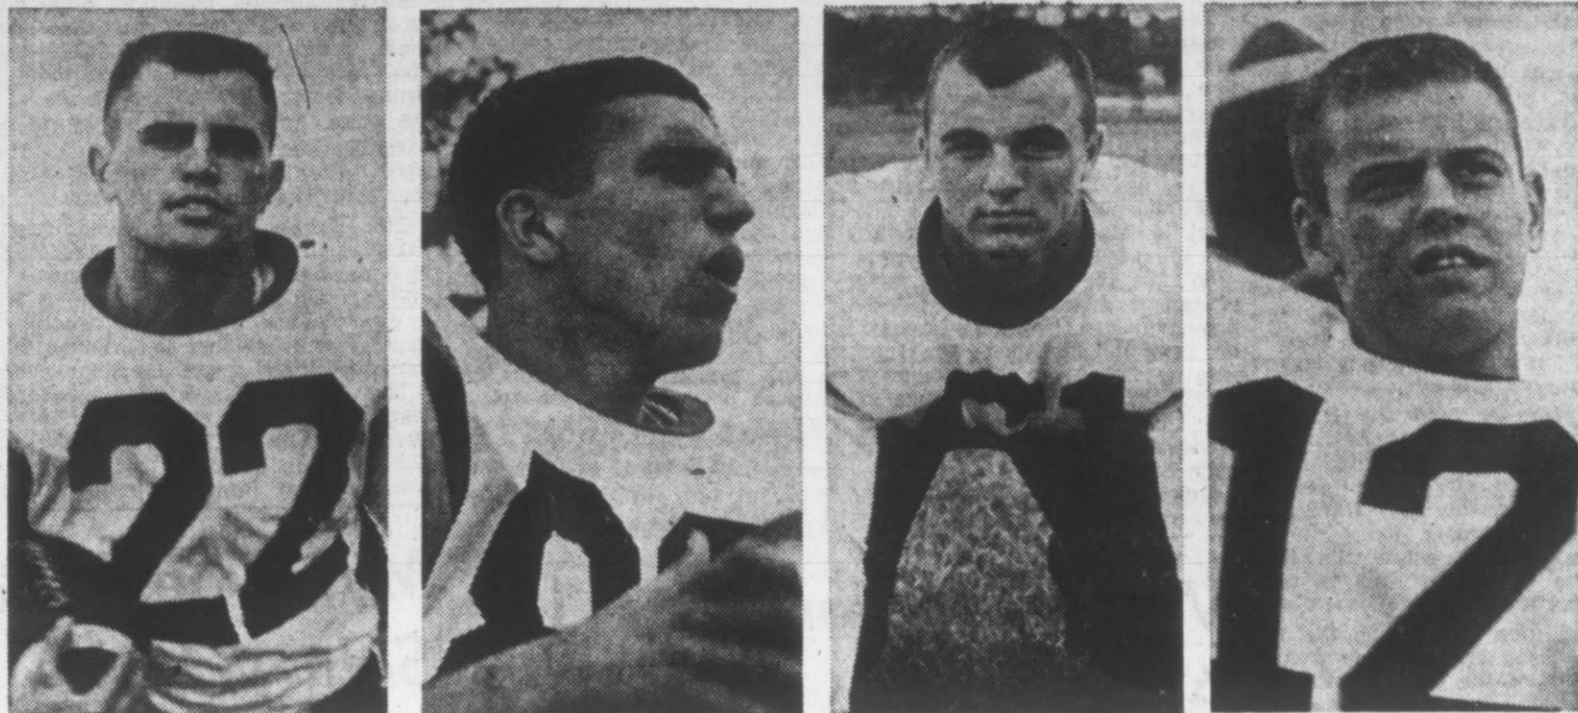

McArthur scored 10 touchdowns during the regular season activity and picked up 571 yards in 90 rushes for the Phantoms. This does not include his activity in the playoff games with Roxboro and Sanford.

The News and Observer described Foley as a "rangy operator," adding that he and Richard Such, Sanford end on the All-East team, both performed like "polished veterans" on defense and with the hitting power of a "Gino Marchetti."

The entire first and second team selections are as follows:

Gabriel Signed By Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams, who have personnel problems of a current nature, can face the 1962 season with a few more matters to iron out.

Today, for instance, they have four quarterbacks on deck.

Ostensibly, each is set for the National Football League scramble, and each supposedly is ready to guide a flock of halfbacks and fullbacks already too numerous to rate fulltime employment.

The latest quarterback is Roman Gabriel, a massive 6-foot-3½-inch 225-pounder from North Carolina State, who was signed Wednesday over the beats of the Oakland Raiders of the American Football League.

All Gabriel has to do to make the team is beat out another widely heralded rookie signed just 3 days ago — Ron Miller of Wisconsin — and two veterans of the pro wars, Zeke Bratkowski and Frank Ryan.

It might be noted that either of the four could well lift the Rams from their present embarrassment (4 wins-9 losses) if they could get adequate help from an offensive line — a line yet either too mature or to evolve from 1961's draftees.

Gabriel comes to the Rams in a four-club deal that even the late Professor Albert Einstein might pause to analyze.

But mixed up in the picturesque transaction are such well known football names as Del Shofner and Erich Barnes, now the chattel of the New York Giants; ex-Giant George Shaw, now of Minnesota; and a mysterious assortment of draft choices.

Also included might be the last will and testament of Minnesota's freshman coach, Norm Van Brocklin, who gave his all in future just to field a team this season.

Oh yes, there's another quarterback who figured in the intrigue, Billy Wade. He used to play for the Rams and went to the Chicago Bears because he complained of sharing duties with just one other quarterback. What Bill would do with three other field generals is something to wonder about. He might even demand to be traded to the Washington Redskins.

Ram Coach Bob Waterfield has been well scouted on his new rookie quarterback. And Gabriel joins the troupe with no prejudices against him.

Edwards To Speak At Awards Dinner

North Carolina State College football coach Earl Edwards will be the guest speaker tonight at the annual Rose High School football banquet.

EARL EDWARDS

The dinner tonight will honor this year's championship varsity squad, the junior varsity and the Junior High School teams.

Sponsoring the affair this year in the high school cafeteria at 7 o'clock is the Touchdown Club. President Joe Hughes has announced that the public is invited to the banquet and for those who have not already purchased tickets, they will be available at the door.

The emcee for the program will be Edwin Rawl, Jr.

Awards to be presented to the players are the most improved senior, best blocker, best defensive player, most valuable player and a special award to be given by the Monogram Club. Coach Phillips will also give out perfect attendance certificates to those boys who attended practice every day.

Presnell Mull Resigns As Catawba Grid Coach

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — Presnell A. (Pres) Mull announced today he is resigning as head football coach at Catawba College to return to the high school ranks.

Mull said he will leave Catawba at the end of the school year and will begin coaching at Lexington High School next fall. Mull, 39, came to Catawba after coaching five years at Lexington.

Catawba President A. R. Kepel said, "We didn't anticipate this and it came as a surprise. We regret Coach Mull is leaving. We think he did a very fine job for us here."

In three years at Catawba, Mull's teams won 7, lost 23 and tied 1.

Mull, a star at Appalachian, first coached at Lenoir High where his teams won 36 games and lost only 6. He was acting head coach at Appalachian during the 1951 season and posted a 6-3 record. He then moved to Lexington where his teams won 42 and lost 12 during a five-year span.

In 1950, Mull was the North Carolina Shrine Bowl coach and in 1955 he was a coach in the East-West game.

Western Carolina won the tournament, beating Pfeiffer last night 70-52.

Frank Silka of Detroit is captain of Michigan State's hockey team. He is a senior defenseman.

Pirates Get Third Victory, Defeat Appalachian 74-68

FRESHMAN STANDOUT . . . Billy Brodgen of Wilmington was the high scorer for the Pirates in last night's win over Appalachian. Brodgen hit two free throws late in the game to push the Bucs ahead and totaled 22 points in the contest.

BOONE—East Carolina's Billy Brodgen, a 6-foot freshman from Wilmington, tossed in two free throws to break a deadlock in the final minutes of the Appalachian contest last night to give the Pirates the lead and a 74-68 victory.

This was the third straight win for the Bucs after losing their first three outings of the year. They downed conference foe and favored Lenoir Rhyne last Friday and then traveled to Richmond where they defeated the Spiders of the Southern Conference.

The score was tied 62-62 with about four minutes left on the clock when Brodgen hit the two free throws to push the Pirates ahead. From here on they stayed in front for the win.

The Pirates held the lead at the end of the first half 35-31 after the Mountaineers had managed to tie the game several times during the first stanza. It was tied six more times during the second half before the East Carolina boys were able to take the final lead.

In addition to pushing the Pirates out in front, Brodgen also came out in the contest with the high scoring honors of the game. He gained 22 points for the winners, while the top man for the Apps, Jack Lytton, picked up only 16 points.

Other East Carolina boys who hit in the double figures last night were Bill Otte with 12 and Benny Bowes with 11. The double figure men for Appalachian in addition to Lytton were Thomas, Richardson, and Duncan.

Brodgen was also one of the standouts in the Richmond game. He pushed the Bucs ahead twice during the first half.

Heyman Scores 39 In Win Over S.C.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Duke University's Art Heyman literally outdid himself Wednesday night and scored a phenomenal 39 points as Duke beat the University of South Carolina, 76-69, and mopped up USC's perfect record.

But it had to be a hard one for someone to lose. Both the Atlantic Coast Conference teams went into the game undefeated.

Duke is 5-0 now, and South Carolina is 3-1, with the win, over Virginia, in the conference. Duke whipped Clemson in its only previous conference game.

Heyman's 39 points represent his best scoring night of the season, although he has been in the 30s twice before. He scored 33 against Louisville and 31 against Florida.

Heyman, a 6-5 junior, who averaged 25.2 points per game last year, made all seven of his free throw attempts and hit 16 of his 19 shots from the floor.

The high man for South Carolina was Art Whisman with 16.

Heyman, so far, is averaging 31.4 points per game this year. Last night's performance pulled it up from 29.4.

The other Atlantic Coast Conference teams were idle, and the midweek slack continues tonight. The only game on tap is Clemson at Florida State.

The Tigers have a 2-2 record. They are 1-2 in the conference. They have whipped Virginia and Virginia Military, and have fallen to Duke and North Carolina.

Western Carolina Downs Pfeiffer To Win Tourney

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Western Carolina College crushed Pfeiffer, 70-52, Wednesday night and won the third Western Carolina Holiday Tournament at Cullowhee.

But another Carolinas Conference team didn't have it so well in a tournament. Indiana State whipped Catawba, 85-61, in the first game of the Quantico Christmas Invitational.

High Point, meanwhile, beat Guilford, 65-56, in a regular conference game, on the 19-point scoring of freshman Dave Wickham.

Tonight, Newberry is at High Point, Atlantic Christian at Pembroke, Belmont Abbey at Lenoir Rhyne and Elon enters the Fort Lee Tournament.

In the first game of the WCC tourney Wednesday, Howard College of Alabama defeated Maryville of Tennessee, 85-68. Pfeiffer and Western Carolina had both defeated these two outsiders to get to the championship game.

After its victory over Catawba, Indiana State went on to take another victory in the Quantico tourney, downing St. Michael's of Vermont, 79-62.

Quantico crushed the Philadelphia Textile Institute, 86-70, then whipped Acadia of Nova Scotia, 118-57.

Catawba plays Acadia in the double-elimination tournament today, but the feature game will be the one between Indiana State and Quantico.

Jayhawk Coach Flies To Texas

HOUSTON (AP)—Coach Jack Mitchell of the Kansas Jayhawks flies into Houston today to speed up preparations for Saturday's Bluebonnet Bowl game with the Rice Owls.

The Jayhawk squad that will help Mitchell make his debut as a bowl game coach will arrive 24 hours later.

Bluebonnet officials, while preparing to greet Mitchell, expressed hope the nationally televised game will be played before a capacity crowd of 70,000 at Rice Stadium.

Two planes will bring the Kansas squad and official party to Houston Friday afternoon. Two more planes will complete the airlift from Lawrence with the 125-piece Kansas band.

A downtown parade and a Kansas-Rice bonfire rally formally launch the bowl game weekend Friday night.

Key Games Still Await Friars

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Providence Friars, winning solidly if not spectacularly, are still a week away from their first of two big tests in a bid for ranking near the top of the nation's college basketball teams.

The defending NIT champions, boasting one of the nation's biggest front lines, takes on touring San Francisco Friday, then next week makes a trip to DePaul and Xavier of Ohio.

That trip marks the first big hurdle for Coach Joe Mullaney's ambitious team. The Holiday Festival in Madison Square Garden the following week is the second.

So far the Friars have been playing—generally—just good enough to win. The only exception on their unblemished 4-0 record was a 75-51 rout of Mount St. Mary's. The next largest margin of victory was seven points, Wednesday night's 80-73 triumph over Brown.

Duke and Seattle, the only other ranked teams in action Wednesday night, also won. Seattle, No. 10, whipped Idaho State 76-64. Duke got a phenomenal shooting performance from Art Heyman in a 76-69 victory over previously unbeaten South Carolina.

Heyman hit on 16 of 19 field goal attempts and all seven free throws in racking up 39 points.

Another outstanding shooting exhibition was turned in by Holy Cross' Jack Foley. He scored 43 points in the Crusaders' 106-79 romp over little St. Anselm's.

In some of the other major games, St. Joseph's (Pa.) blasted Richmond 77-56 and Temple topped Princeton 65-55 in a Philadelphia doubleheader; Rutgers crushed Columbia 81-59, Harvard overwhelmed Wesleyan 94-78, Rhode Island beat San Francisco 64-54. Cornell came from behind in the second half for an 83-68 triumph over Syracuse, Loyola of Chicago won its fifth straight, 87-85 over Western Michigan, Villanova took a 69-48 decision over Fordham and Navy turned back Gettysburg 60-53.

Virus Infection Puts 19 Alabama Players In Bed

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—A viral bug has accomplished what ten big football teams have been unable to do this fall—it put a big chunk of Alabama's undefeated and untied football team flat on its back.

Nineteen members of the national championship team were put to bed with a virus infection Wednesday.

It's a mild illness but it put a crimp in drills for the Crimson Tide's New Year's Day date with Arkansas in the Sugar Bowl.

Dr. W. C. Baty Jr., team physician, kept 10 players in the University Infirmary overnight. The other nine were confined to dormitory beds.

Baty said they would miss practice today but would be allowed to go back to work Friday.

All of the ill players lie in the same dormitory but Baty said there was no indication of widespread infection.

"I think this thing is under control," he added.

All of the ill players are receiving medicine to combat nausea and diarrhea—the two most common symptoms—and all are on a strict diet. A few of the students ran temperatures a degree or two above normal.

Bill Battle, a 6-2, 197-pound end, was among those who caught the bug but he was released by the doctor Wednesday night.

"He was feeling good and he had a test he wanted to study for," Baty said.

Others missing practice because of the illness included ends Jimmy Dill, Dale Layton and Tommy Brooker; tackle Steve Wright; guards Bob Petty and Steve Allen; fullbacks Larry Wall and Ed Versprille, and halfback Gary Martin.

Fullback Mike Fracchia and end Butch Henry are still out of practice recovering from injuries received in the Auburn game Dec. 2.

EC Swim Team Meets Tar Heels

The East Carolina College swimming team will meet the University of North Carolina varsity team tonight at 8 o'clock in the college pool.

Bob Bilbro, of Greenville, and captain of the UNC team, will lead the Tar Heel squad against the local boys.

The top boys for East Carolina are Ed Zschau, Ed Shaw, Jim Roberts and Bob Kingrey. Last week Zschau set a new pool record at East Carolina in the 200-yard backstroke and Roberts also set a record in the 50-yard freestyle.

Kingrey is the national one and three meter diving champion of the N.A.A.

East Carolina has defeated Wake Forest and lost to VMI in the two previous meets this season.

Soviet Doctors Claim To Have New Sports Medicine

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—The Soviet Union has a group of doctors who have developed what they call sports medicine. They may tell American coaches and trainers about it here next summer.

Stanford University's track and field team is director of a meet scheduled here July 21-22 between the United States and the Soviet Union track and field teams.

Jordan has been corresponding with Gavrill Korobkov, coach of the Soviet national track team.

The Soviets plan to send a party of 78 men and women here nine days before the meet opens. Jordan said Wednesday there is a good chance the Soviets' track experts will conduct a pre-meet clinic on their sports medicine.

The United States dominated track and field until the 1956 Olympic Games, when the U.S.S.R. won at Melbourne. They won again at Rome in 1960.

Soviet men set three Olympic records at Rome and Soviet women set five Olympic track and field marks.

The United States set seven Olympic records in track and field at Rome in 1960, and Wilma Rudolph of the United States set the women's record for 100 meters with 11.3 seconds.

Jordan said there are doctors in the Soviet Union who are assigned by the government to study training techniques, diets and the psychology of athletes.

They analyze youngsters, their physiques and bone structures and recommend the sports and events they should concentrate on.

"By studying these things, including the particular emotions of the individual athletes, they often avoid the years of trial and error which many of our athletes often go through before they find the events for which they are best suited," Jordan said.

Maris Seeking A Big Salary Raise For '62

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Maris, batting behind Mickey Mantle for a change, makes his biggest salary pitch today while his slugger New York Yankee teammate fondles the "best contract I ever got."

Maris, who hit a record of 61 homers last season, also will ask for the best contract he ever received during a conference with General Manager Roy Hamey.

The hard-hitting outfielder was paid about $45,000 last season.

"I expect no trouble from Roger," said Hamey after signing Mantle for an estimated $82,000 Wednesday, a raise of about $10,000. "I wouldn't be surprised if he signs right away. I spoke to him briefly earlier this week and he didn't sound tough to me."

Mantle signed after a brief meeting with Hamey who said, "Mickey has reached Babe Ruth's figure." Later, he admitted, "it's a little over $80,000."

Mantle thus became the second highest paid player in Yankee history. Joe DiMaggio received $100,000 in 1951. Ruth got his $80,000 in 1932.

"It's the best contract I ever got," Mickey beamed. "I only hope I can live up to it. I'll be satisfied if I have another year like the last one."

Mantle had 54 homers, finishing second to Maris. He drove in 128 runs and his .317 batting average was the fourth highest in the American League.

"I figure Rod's home run record still stand for a while," the boyish Oklahoman said. "I had my shot at the record last year and couldn't make it. I think we'll both hit our share and it'll be another close race."

The switch-hitting outfielder predicted the Yankees would win the pennant again in 1962.

Mantle was the first Yankee to sign. Mickey, who lives in Dallas, Tex., and Maris, from Raytown, Mo., are also in New York on other business. They closed a deal with a clothing manufacturing firm Tuesday.

Duke Releases '62 FB Schedule

It will be the first meeting between Duke and the Trojans since the Blue Devils — undefeated, untied and unscored upon in the regular season — lost a thriller in the last 40 seconds of the 1939 Rose Bowl, 7-3.

Duke will be seeking a third straight ACC title.

The schedule: Sept. 21 (night), Southern California at Los Angeles; 29, South Carolina; Oct. 6, Florida at Jacksonville; 13, California; 20, at Clemson; 27, North Carolina State; Nov. 3, Georgia Tech; 10, Maryland; 17, at Wake Forest; 24, at North Carolina.

Ft. Lee Tourney Opens Tonight

FT. LEE, Va. (AP) — What may amount to the championship game will be played tonight in the opening game of the second annual Ft. Lee Invitational basketball tournament.

The opening clash sends Ft. Lee's defending champion travelers against Randolph-Macon's unbeaten Yellow Jackets. In the nightcap, Hampden-Sydney's Tigers tackle Elon College.

A round-robin schedule is played the four teams involved in the tournament, which winds up Saturday night.

Elon takes on Randolph-Macon in the first game Friday, while Hampden-Sydney meets Ft. Lee in the nightcap. The concluding doubleheader Saturday sends Randolph-Macon against Hampden-Sydney in the opener and Ft. Lee against Elon in the windup.

In last year's tourney — in which the teams were Ft. Lee, Randolph-Macon, Hampden-Sydney and Catawba College Ft. Lee won its three games while Randolph-Macon posted a 2-1 record.

Doubleheader Turned Down

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The University of South Carolina's athletic committee has turned down a proposal for a football doubleheader here next Oct. 20.

The plan would have matched North Carolina and South Carolina in the afternoon and Duke and Clemson at night. Both games would have been played at Carolina Stadium.

Warren Giese, USC athletic director, said the question of a football doubleheader during State Fair weekend "was thoroughly considered from every point of view" by the school's athletic committee.

Frank Howard, Clemson athletic director, and coach, favored the proposal to avoid having games in Columbia and Clemson the same afternoon.

AFL All-Star Game Jan. 7

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The first annual American Football League All-Star game matching players from the Eastern Division with the Western Division will be held at San Diego Jan. 7.

AFL Commissioner Joe Foss said the game will be played at Balboa Stadium under complete sponsorship of the San Diego Junior Chamber of Commerce and would be nationally televised by ABC.

Sid Gillman of San Diego will be head coach of the Western All-Stars while Wally Lemm of Houston or Mike Holovak of Boston, whichever team wins the Eastern Division title, will coach that squad.

Grady Wallace holds the season basketball scoring record for South Carolina. He made 906 points in the 1957 campaign.

VMI Will Meet Colonials Tonight

Virginia Military Institute's ambitious Keydets and George Washington's hopeful defending champions tangle tonight in one of the final Southern Conference basketball games before the Christmas holiday period.

opportunity to show the Keydets mean to escape the league's lower echelon after a long sojourn there. For the Colonials, the contest may offer Coach Bill Reinhart another chance to settle on a fifth starter.

Reinhart has no complaints so far with four of his starters—All-

Southern Jon Feldman, a senior; big Joe Adamitis, a sophomore; Gar Schweickhardt, an injury-plagued senior, and Don Ardell, a junior.

But the veteran GW coach so far has tried three different performers at the fifth starting spot — junior Jeff Feldman, sophomore Dave Sparks and senior Mike Herron.

The VMI-GW clash in Washington is the only one tonight for conference teams, and just two more league games remain before the holidays. Furman is at Davidson tomorrow night, while GW goes to Richmond Saturday night.

Berwick, Pa. Families Staggered By Losing Big Plant

EDITOR'S NOTE: ACF Industries has been the economic mainstay of Berwick, Pa., since 1899. It suddenly announced last month it was shutting its plant. What does this mean to the Berwick folks who worked at ACF? To their families? Lee Linder gives their reactions in the following story.

By LEE LINDER

BERWICK, Pa. (AP)—On top of a steep hill in northeastern Pennsylvania, washed by the waters of the Susquehanna, sits the quiet and pretty little town of Berwick. The lights of Christmas twinkle among strings of holly laced over its main business streets.

Berwick, with a population of 13,000, has a big heartache: its main industry, one which provides half its income, is going to quit, shut down, move out—and with it take jobs from 2,500 persons.

"It will be lousy," says one unhappy worker, the father of five children. His wife, hopefully, says "I guess we'll make out."

Another woman whose son has been unemployed since January views the closing as "a blessing because the plant never took care of the men."

Economically it will be a severe blow. Berwick men and women, however, are determined the town will grow—not die. To this end an organization called "SPIRIT" is being formed. If needed it will borrow money to build new plants for new industry.

The current dilemma resulted when ACF Industries, Inc. announced last month, with devastating suddenness, it would close its Berwick plant next October because of dwindling business and rising operating costs. It plans to transfer railroad and subway car building work to more modern and efficient plants at Milton, Pa.; Huntington, W. Va., and St. Louis, Mo.

When you talk to Berwick people reactions are both violent and relaxed. There remains an aura of sentimental attachment to the huge plant, worth about $25 million, that dominates the town. It has been the economic mainstay since 1899 for grandfathers, fathers and sons.

A potato chip plant, employing about 1,000, is the biggest industry next to ACF. There are tiny garment mills, a cigar factory, a lamp plant.

Some men, anxious to save their jobs and long pension rights, offer to take wage cuts. ACF officials reply firmly that the shutdown is irrevocable.

Jack Taylor, a welder, suggests the workers might unite and buy and operate the plant if the federal government loaned the money. The Berwick Industrial Development Association is looking into that idea.

The state has offered quick help. More is expected. State plant development loans totalling $57,600 were approved the day before Thanksgiving. These will provide 125 new jobs.

Wayne Schuyler, 36, the mayor-elect, says "the community has emerged from the initial shock and is beginning to think straight."

Schuyler takes over the part-time job of mayor (it pays $30 monthly) after New Year's Day. His regular work is a purchaser for ACF.

"We realize we've been hit very hard," he says. "But we are not crying. The local government and the public are rapidly banding together to see what can be done to rectify our pending economic disaster.

"I may have to take jobs I wouldn't want. But I am willing to commute. But I am willing to stay and stick it out."

The union has a big stake in prospective transition. Local 1864 of the United Steelworkers never figured ACF would ever leave. Just 19 months ago it dedicated a new $300,000 union hall.

Paul Simon, 40, union president who has four children, says "we'll fare out of it all right. We have a lot to offer here. We have a nice town, a low tax rate, a brand new high school, a brand new hospital, and a largely skilled work force."

Simon's wife, Margarine, a secretary, says, "Most women don't want to leave. At least I don't. Just because an industry moves out, it doesn't mean we should leave, too. But I do hope we get a plant that works 12 months a year instead of 6."

It is this on-off employment that long nettled the women. Peak employment always was at the start of the year. It slackened off in summer, picked up in the fall, then usually petered out for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Good pay, however, made this cyclical employment attractive. Today it averages $2.81 an hour—plus free hospitalization and a $5,000 insurance policy—compared to $1 or slightly more in other area industry.

ACF was formed through merger of 13 of the nation's biggest railroad car builders. Berwick is the parent plant, and the largest. It has over 10 miles of railroad track connecting its various buildings.

Mrs. Angie Melito, who runs a taproom across from the sprawling plant, says ACF's departure "will be a blessing. The plant didn't take care of the Berwick men."

Her son, William Krepich Jr., 31, idle since last January but hoping to get back on the payroll in 1962, says "I injured my hand in the plant and it is still stiff. This makes it hard for me to get a job anywhere else. For a young man like me, with low seniority rights, it is difficult to get more than 3 months work a year at ACF."

"Isn't that awful?" comments his wife, Betty. "I don't want my son to grow up like that. Why if it weren't for women working it would be worse, much worse."

John Simchock, who opened a bar when he couldn't get steady work at ACF—he has had seven months at the plant in the past seven years—says, "I think it is the best thing to happen to Berwick. It will give young men a chance to work in town."

Clarence Garrison and Michael Kurorlo, both 46, and Andrew Horvat, at 51, are typical of men caught between here and nowhere.

Garrison has five children, the youngest 2-year-old twins. His home faces the rear of the ACF shops and he usually rushes home for a quick hot lunch.

"It will be lousy," he says of the closing. "Yeah, I only worked 17 weeks this year but even so it's not so bad for me. I have 21 years' rights and where can I get a job at my age even though I have a trade? I will try to stick here. I think something will come in."

"Oh, I guess we'll make out," his wife Ann says unsmiling. "Maybe we'll go somewhere else. Maybe to Williamsport. Clarence has his mother living there."

Horvat sat in a taproom musing his future. He has three married children, a paid-off home and has worked 36 years at ACF.

"Now for me to go out to get a job, where can I get a job? I'm too young for pension, too."

Under the steelworker contract an employe can collect a pension if he is 55 and has worked at least 20 years. Otherwise his pension—figured at $2.50 monthly for each year on the job—won't begin until age 65.

Kurorlo hoisted a beer beside his wife. He has five children, the youngest 3, the eldest 25 and married. Kurorlo now is an industrial engineer, having shifted to management in 1957 after 18 years as an hourly worker.

"I won't move my family out," he says firmly. "I have hopes that within a period we'll be back in operation. It will take some time, sure. But I won't pull roots. Our people have guts to fight anything that comes up."

"They've got to be brave when work is seasonal," says George Laytar, who operates a big market with his two brothers, Paul and Pete.

"We've been here since 1936," he adds. "We lived through the depression. After that we cut our credit. So did most of the grocers. Sure, there will be tightening, but new industry will come in."

Retail business now is way off. "People have slackened off buying unnecessary," says Mayor-elect Schuyler.

Besides the hope for new industry—four major national firms already have inspected the ACF premises—there is another economic uplift in sight: the Keystone Shortway. When completed by 1963 this high-speed freeway will cross Pennsylvania from Stroudsburg to Sharon. It will open up the area to better, cheaper transportation—a prime industry requisite.

The section between Bloomsburg and Berwick is expected to start next spring. This road-building will provide jobs for many area people.

J. Donald Kile, a realtor, is optimistic. So is Warren Hause, executive secretary of the Berwick Chamber of Commerce.

"We shouldn't have trouble straightening out our problems," says Kile. "I feel the majority of the people are going to stay. Over 75 per cent own their homes. They are going to weather it."

Hause is in and out of town, are being made not only to replace ACF with another great industry but to attract other plants. And we will build them if needed," he says. "Great strides are being made not only to replace ACF with another great industry but to attract other plants. And we will build them if needed."

Best Thing To Save For Retirement: Yourself

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The best thing to save for retirement is yourself, says an expert on the subject.

Joseph R. Murphy, who has advised people on retirement for 25 years as manager of the Atlanta office of the Social Security Administration, is getting ready to retire himself Dec. 31.

"Unless you have your health and good life expectancy when you retire, you've defeated all your other purposes," he says.

"Too many people are afraid to retire because they don't have all the income they want. These people never retire until it's too late to enjoy it."

Murphy says it's a wonderful feeling to approach retirement, but to a large extent the whole thing is a myth.

"There's no such thing as retirement," he said. "Rather there is a change of pace, eliminating the demanding duties and fixed schedules."

But, he warned, many people don't know what to do with themselves once they collect that last paycheck. One man he spoke to recently said he planned to return to farming after 37 years away from it; another planned to spend all his time in Florida fishing.

"They don't know how tired they'll get," he said.

"A lot of people plan to travel all the time after they retire. It's nonsense. They've forgotten how hard living in a hotel can be. These things are dessert; they won't do for all the time."

The Murphys plan to stay at their home in Atlanta, close to relatives and friends. They both have hobbies and he plans to work parttime as an accountant. It's a mistake for retired couples to move off to a new state and a totally new way of life, says Murphy.

What about money? Income from Social Security and company retirement plans should be only the base of a retired person's financial structure, Murphy said—"they must be augmented by other income from investment, interest, rent, etc."

As for himself, "We're not going to make radical changes," he said. "The one thing I'm afraid of in retirement is running off looking for rainbows that aren't here."

Parents Giving Guns Advised To Teach Safety

Pitt Wildlife Protector J. O. Teel today gave a warning to parents of children who will receive firearms for Christmas, a warning that not only pertains to these, but to all sportsmen who have and use firearms. "Know the safety rules for handling guns and obey them."

Teel, saying the transition "between a cap pistol and a real gun that shoots bullets is quite a change," urged parents to instruct their children in the proper use of a weapon and the safe and correct way of handling it.

"Helpful hints on safe-handling to the eager boy or girl will know their gun and understand how it operates" is just as important for their personal safety as it is for the safety of others, he emphasized.

Some instructions on the use of firearms include: "treat the gun at all times as if it were loaded, and always point the muzzle in a safe direction." Teel urged. "When sportsmen go out to shoot, they should make sure of their target and what's behind it," he continued, "because if the bullet should miss the target it may travel a long way before it comes to rest."

Never put ammunition in guns while in the house, and never store a gun with ammunition still in it, are other important safety tips. Another important tip given by the Wildlife Protector is, "It would be a good idea to always store ammunition and guns in separate places because this could protect their inquisitive younger brother or sister of friends who may slip the gun out of the closet and dash to the backyard to protect their playmates from imaginary invaders."

Teel suggested that parents spend some time with the youngsters, "practicing how to carry, aim and fire the gun safely. This will do both much good," he noted. Others, including local police, highway patrol, sheriff's officers, as well as Wildlife Protectors, will be glad to help with any questions that may arise.

ECC Placement Bureau Chief Addresses Club

Greenville's Optimist Club Monday heard an address by Jack Edwards, director of the Student Placement Bureau at East Carolina College.

Edwards told Optimists his bureau last year received more than 4,000 requests from employers for ECC graduates qualified for various positions.

That position, Edwards said, compared with 800 graduating ECC seniors who had filed their names with the placement service.

Prior to the placement director's address, Optimist President H. Thomas Money again urged the club's members to promote the sale of Optimist Christmas trees on sale this month at the tennis courts of Elm Street Park.

Proceeds from the annual Christmas tree sale go into the local Optimist treasury for use in the club's local youth development and boys work projects, including the Greenville Junior Rifle Club, an annual public-speaking contest for Junius H. Rose High School seniors and summer camps for Greenville area Boy Scouts.

It was announced that scheduled Dec. 25 and Jan. 1 meetings of the Optimist group have been cancelled.

Albany Police Warns Arrest Will Follow If They Persist

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—Albany police warned more arrests would be made today if—as expected—Negroes resume their anti-segregation demonstrations.

Since Sunday, 555 Negroes and 5 white persons have been arrested in this southwest Georgia city. More than 300 remain in jail.

There has been no violence and little tension in the two days of mass demonstrations resulting from the arrest Sunday of two Albany Negroes and nine "Freedom Riders" out to test segregation on intrastate transportation facilities. White residents of this city of 56,000 have shown little close-range interest in the incidents.

The warnings of continued arrests came from Police Chief Laurie Pritchett after 200 Negroes, including many teenagers and children, were jailed Wednesday night as they marched in protest of earlier arrests.

Indications were that more demonstrations would be staged as the trial of the Freedom Riders group resumes in Recorder's Court.

The wholesale arrests brought from one Negro leader a charge that "a police state" exists within the city. The charge was made by M. S. Page, secretary of the pro-integration Albany Movement.

Page said the Negroes who had been arrested had done nothing but "walk the streets and pray."

Earlier 81 Negroes were herded into City Hall after refusing to halt a kneeling and singing demonstration on the sidewalk in front of the building. All but one was released.

Recorder Abner Israel imposed a five-day jail term on Slater King, a grocer, for contempt of court. King, the spokesman for the group, is a member of the Albany Movement's executive committee.

Police jailed 267 Negroes Tuesday for marching and singing in protest of the arrest of the Freedom Rider group. They were charged with disorderly conduct, obstructing traffic and failure to obey officers. The same charges were lodged against the 11 arrested Sunday.

Those jailed Wednesday night were charged on three other counts—unlawful assembly, parading without a permit and unlawfully congregating on sidewalks.

Nearly a dozen state troopers assisted 25 to 30 local officers in patrolling the streets downtown for an hour or more after the arrests.

The police chief blamed "outsiders backed by the NAACP" for the demonstrations.

Mayor Asa Kelley said that the peace would be preserved "at any cost."

Shortly afterward Dr. W. G.

Anderson, president of the Albany Movement, said he felt the demonstrations would continue "until such time as consideration is given to the Negroes of Albany."

"The minute some consideration is given to the Negroes of Albany and these people are let out of jail, then the demonstrations will stop."

Albany Negroes have asked for desegregation of bus and train stations, the city library, parks, hospitals and buses, addition of Negro policemen, better jobs on city payrolls, jury representation and better job opportunities with private businesses in the city.

Devises Humane Trap For Bears

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Black bears are destructive nuisances in tree farms by causing bark to peel from young trees, but a humane way of controlling them has been developed by trapper Jack Aldrich.

He has devised a light-weight foot snare that holds the animal unharmed until the trapper comes along and transfers it to another section of forest where young trees are not being nurtured.

Flu Outbreaks Said Beginning 'On Schedule'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A lot of people on an island off the coast of Alaska and in Potosi, Mo., have the flu and chances are the United States faces a siege of it.

"These outbreaks are occurring right on schedule—this is about the time for them to start," a spokesman for the Public Health Service said in Washington. The service predicted some time ago there will be a considerable increase in flu cases this winter.

"This spread faster than any flu outbreak I can remember in 38 years of practice in Potosi," said Dr. George S. Cresswell, county health officer. "It hasn't produced severe cases and many of the children are almost well now. The virus is just starting to hit the adults. The children are hit first, then the adults, then the old folks."

Potosi's schools closed Monday when 800 of the 2,400 pupils were absent and will not reopen before next week. Potosi is a mining town 55 miles south of St. Louis.

Another outbreak was reported 80 miles southeast and across the Mississippi River at Wolf Lake, Ill. Only 133 of the 325 high school pupils attended classes Wednesday. Flu was reported on the increase on the Missouri side of the river at Cape Girardeau.

The Coast Guard sent a cutter with vaccine to the village of Hydaburg on Prince of Wales Island west of Ketchikan.

Friends All Over The World Write To Boy

IONIA, Mich. (AP)—Five-year-old Richard Munschky has never been out of Michigan, but he has friends all over the world.

Ever since Oct. 16 when sparks from a trash barrel ignited his shirt and burned him badly, Richard has been deluged with gifts and letters from this country and abroad.

Army and Navy units all over the world have sent Richard enough foreign stamps and coins to start a first-class collection.

His first card came from the USS Intrepid and was signed by 3,000 men. Later mail deliveries brought paper money from Viet Nam, Turkey, England, the Philippines, France, Belgium and Italy, letters from Germany and an article from a French newspaper, telling his story.

It all started after Richard's paternal grandparents in California were notified of his serious burns. They got word to his uncle, W. E. Raine, who is stationed with a military communications outfit in Italy.

No one knows just how Raine got word of Richard around the world, but he did.

Blodgett Hospital at Grand Rapids, Mich., where the boy was taken for skin grafts, was deluged with cards, letters and gifts. An 18-year-old girl in Panama described how she was hurt badly when she was seven and still has scars. She told him to have courage and faith in God.

A French girl, burned badly during the World War II bombings, said Richard was lucky to live in a country where they have good hospitals.

Richard was made an honorary pilot of the 39th Troop Carrier Squadron, and he has a red pilot's cap complete with wings and patch. They were sent by a lieutenant colonel in France.

He also was made an honorary member of the 764th Radar Squadron basketball team of North Bend, Ore., and has free tickets to all games.

Richard's father, a pharmacist at Ionia County Memorial Hospital, and his mother, who have five children, are trying to decide how to thank all the people.

Hospital Trying Adolescent Unit

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Lankenau Hospital plans to open an "adolescent unit" early in 1962 specifically designed to accommodate 10 patients between the ages of 12 and 18.

Raymond F. Hosford, director of the hospital, said Wednesday special menus will be offered. There will be a telephone within reach of each bed and the unit will have its own "group activities."

Little Relief In Chilled Section

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unseasonable cold weather held a tight grip over most of the northern and central sections of the nation today from the Rockies to New England.

There was a little relief from the biting cold in the snow-covered sections of the Midwest. Temperatures, which dropped to zero and far below in 10 states Wednesday morning, moderated. But they were below the normal levels as the season's longest cold snap continued.

The mercury plunged to below zero again this morning in parts of North Dakota and Nebraska but ranged from zero to 10 above in South Dakota, some 20 to 30 degrees higher than Wednesday morning. In North Dakota, it was -12 in Dickinson and -8 in Minot.

Temperatures in the teens were general from the Rockies to the Appalachians and in northern Maine.

The cold air from the Midwest spread across the Ohio and Tennessee valleys Wednesday and moved eastward. Cold wave warnings were posted from the Carolinas into New York state and Connecticut.

Fulbright Plans To Run Again

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., plans to run for renomination in next year's Democratic primary.

Political observers were not surprised by the announcement Wednesday.

Fulbright heads the powerful Senate Foreign Relations Committee. His office announced his plans to run after Fulbright completed a 10-week, 50-county speaking tour.

Possible opposition from either Gov. Orval E. Faubus or Rep. Dale Alford, D-Ark., reportedly prompted Fulbright's hurry-up campaign which came nine months before the primary election.

SKILLED THRUST. Speeding past the spectators, Woodrow Morein spears the golden ring on one of his turns around the course of the Tournoi (tournament) at Ville Platte, La.

Parade of the riders through the town highlights the Ville Platte tournament.

Riders mill around at far end of stadium where the Tournoi is run. Since only one can run the course at a time, the others stay out of the way and wait their turn.

With thundering speed, Tournoi champion Audrey Guillory approaches post, top, and then spears the ring, bottom, on his third trip around the course.

On a field such as this, in another time and place, knights might have fought for their honor or the hand of a lovely lady.

But this was not a medieval tournament. This was "Le Tournoi de Ville Platte," Louisiana's own, held each year in the bayou country town of Ville Platte. But in it brave men still ride and their horses are swift.

They meet in a high school stadium to spear golden rings dangling from inverted L-shaped posts and compete for the Tournoi championship, a small check and a kiss from a Cajun beauty. Twenty riders from all corners of Louisiana's Evangeline country were back for this year's renewal.

The path on which they ride is a half-mile stadium track. They make three passes around one turn with seven of the bright yellow rings at spaced intervals waiting to be speared.

Each rider starts with 420 points. For each of the ring he spears with his five-foot lance, five points are deducted from his score. For each fifth of a second he needs to negotiate the course, one point is added to his score. The rider with the lowest score after three passes is the champion.

Audrey Guillory, son of a French Louisianian, won again this year, his seventh victory in the 11 stagings of the Tournoi. Guillory offered only a faint blush when he took the trophy and got his kiss from Tournoi queen Phyllis Ardoin.

Part of the celebration is a parade through the streets of Ville Platte and the Tournoi ball at night.

A smile from Tournoi Queen Phyllis Ardoin is reward enough for the rider who spears the ring.

A modern knight gets his reward. A trophy, a kiss from Tournoi Queen Phyllis Ardoin and a check for $100 goes to the victor, Audrey Guillory of Ville Platte.

First dance of the Tournoi Ball is danced by Champion Audrey Guillory and Queen Phyllis Ardoin. Ball, which climaxed festivities, was held at Evangeline Club near Ville Platte.

Coach Phillips Is 'Just Partial' To Gridiron Sport

R. G. "BUD" PHILLIPS . . . Rose High School football coach.

TEAM CAPTAINS . . . look over conference and AAA championship trophies.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A man "just partial" to football is Rose High School coach Richard G. "Bud" Phillips, who headed the "G-men" to both their conference title and the Eastern AAA title as well this season.

A native of Greensboro, Phillips graduated from high school in Burlington, then attended Wake Forest College for one year before entering the Army Air Force in 1943.

Phillips served in the military for three years, being assigned to an operations section in Africa and Tripoli, as well as in the U. S.

Following his discharge as a sergeant, the coach returned to the Baptist college and graduated from the school in the spring of 1949 with a degree in Physical Education. In 1951, after attending summer schools, he received his Masters Degree from Peabody College.

In 1957, following eight years of coaching and teaching in Alamance County, two of which were in Burlington, Phillips came to Greenville as a teacher and coach.

Now carrying a full teaching load of five civic classes, Phillips is coaching the school's varsity football squad, the JV basketball and baseball. But, of all of it, he likes football the best.

Phillips, saying, "I'm just partial to it," explained that the game is a good contact sport. "Other games require more skill," he noted, while anyone can play football who has the desire to.

Although Phillips enjoys his teaching duties, he finds his coaching "most enjoyable." "Being in contact with the boys . . . watching them develop into good and strong citizens is a pleasure. To see a boy off on the wrong foot, then see

Local Optimist Club Ranks 9th In N. Carolina

The Greenville Optimist Club has been ranked in the latest ratings as the ninth best Optimist Club in North Carolina, according to local Optimist President H. Money.

Money said the local club, Greenville's youngest civic organization, was in ninth position among the 56 clubs encompassed by District 18 of Optimist International that is comprised by the Tar Heel State.

Money said ratings are based on a comparison of each local club's participation in local civic affairs, boys work and youth development programs and programs sanctioned and encouraged by Optimist International. Another factor considered, the local Optimist president said, is membership maintenance, attendance and growth.

The ratings, tabulated and distributed by the district governor, showed that less than 15 district Optimist clubs are younger than the Greenville organization, chartered in March of 1959.

him get back, help him get straightened out, is a pleasure. I like to think we do some good . . . helping students to become better, well-rounded citizens."

" . . . happy to win it," was the comment made by the coach about the conference title and the AAA championship.

"We had a good team effort. The boys had a real fine attitude and that contributed a great deal to our success."

Having a "will to win . . . a lot of desire," made the difference, Phillips emphasized. It's "tough to pick the ones for awards and honors," he noted.

In addition to the championship, another "happy moment" in Phillips' life this year was his selection as a coach for the North Carolina team playing in the Shrine Bowl contest in Charlotte this year.

Again commenting on the football season this year, Phillips praised the public for its support of the team this year.

"We appreciate the support this year, as well as in the past. The Touchdown Club helped quite a bit too," he added, "as well as having the support of the administration."

Phillips, a member of the Civitan Club and the Lutheran Church, is a member of the North Carolina High School Coaches Association and both state and national education associations.

Topping his list of hobbies is fishing, both salt and fresh water, with "all sports" included in the list.

Phillips married the former Amelia Flowers of Burlington and they have one daughter, age three.

Pursuing Leads In Art Robbery

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The FBI said today it is pursuing more leads in the half million dollar art robbery from a suburban Whitehall home following the arrest of an unemployed salesman in connection with the theft.

Bernard C. Brown, special agent in charge of the Pittsburgh FBI office, said the investigation is continuing and more results are expected.

FBI agents apprehended Ralph Charlton Hobbs, 45, Wednesday. He was charged with transporting stolen goods from Ohio to the Pittsburgh area and was jailed in lieu of $5,000 bond following arraignment before U. S. Commissioner Alex McNaughton.

Ten contemporary paintings valued in excess of $500,000 were taken altogether, including six Picassos, two Legers, one Miro and one Matisse.

The FBI said it has recovered one of the Picasso paintings but declined to say whether the painting was the one Hobbs is alleged to have transported.

U. S. Atty. Wendell Stanton said Hobbs has admitted possessing the Picasso. But Hobbs, a father of six children who has been legally separated from his wife since 1953, told newsmen: "I have nothing to say. I know absolutely nothing about it (the theft)."

Hobbs said he has no permanent address. The FBI said Hobbs' wife and children live in a housing project in Beaver Falls, Pa., some 25 miles northwest of here.

HEAD-ON MEETING

TUNNEL HILL, Ga. (AP)—Two brothers met unexpectedly—head-on. Officers said Eugene L. Curtis, 25, and his brother, Jack, 31, each suffered a fractured jaw and dislocated left hip when their cars smashed together on U. S. 41 Tuesday night. Both are Tunnel Hill residents.

Meany Re-Elected To Top Union Job

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP)—George Meany emerged today with a new two-year term as organized labor's top leader and important new tools for dealing with labor's internal and racial problems.

Meany, 67, came out of the week-long AFL-CIO convention with his authority over the 12.5 million member federation more solidly established than ever.

His major accomplishment was in persuading rival building trades and industrial unions to agree on nailing down a tough new disputes settlement system as part of the AFL-CIO constitution.

"This will free us," Meany told the final convention session Wednesday, "free our energies and our time and our money to turn to the real problem, which is to defend the people we represent."

"We have come a long way, but we are still threatened by those who toy with the idea that America would be a better place if we had had no unions, or if potent and weak ones worse than no unions."

Besides establishing the new disputes-handling procedure there were other convention highlights.

Meany smoothed over a rift with A. Philip Randolph, Negro president of the Sleeping Car Porters Brotherhood. The split had aroused the ire of Negro organizations. Meany put aside a censure move against Randolph and the latter took back some harsh words against Meany.

The convention authorized a civil rights department at AFL-CIO headquarters in Washington to move on its own initiative to highest bidder for cash the following described tract of land, to wit:

That certain tract or parcel of land situated in Pitt County, North Carolina, and beginning at a corner, ford of a ditch; thence a westerly course to a corner stake; thence a southeasterly course to a short leaf pine and oak to a corner to a black gum; thence running an easterly course with the old right-of-way to a stake at a ditch; thence with said ditch back to the beginning, containing 12 acres, more or less, and being bounded on the north by Louis Cox, on the east by Willie Cox, the south by Louis Cox and the west by Rufus Cox, and being the same tract of land conveyed to Louis H. Cox Jr. by Louis Cox and wife, Hasty Cox, by deed dated February 9, 1925, and recorded in Book C-15 at page 509 of the Pitt County Registry.

Magistrate Was Not Convicted

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England (AP)—A lecturer on kleptomania—the irresistible urge to steal—was taken to court Wednesday for stealing.

Eletta Watts admitted taking $7 worth of goods from two stores but told the court: "I decided it would be nice to take some things from shops and bring them along to illustrate my lecture and point out how easy it is to shoplift. Then I planned to return the goods the following day."

The magistrate wasn't convinced by her excuse and fined her $28.

Hookey-Players Draw Publicity

NEW YORK (AP) — The last thing John Edwards and Michael Unger wanted was publicity. So what did they get? Publicity.

John and Michael, both 17, were playing hookey Wednesday from at least two classes at Manhasset High School. They figured they could cut a gym class and a study period, take a tour of the United Nations, and then get back to their school on Long Island.

They bought public tour tickets like everybody else, but Edwards happened to become the one-millionth visitor to the U.N. in a 12-month period.

As the millionth ticket holder, Edwards was given the VIP treatment — including newswall shots, press photographers, luncheon in the delegates' dining room, and a private tour of the premises.

Unger, No. 999,999, got in on the honors too.

It was great sport, but very embarrassing after the lads returned to school before afternoon sessions ended.

A school official reported by phone to Mrs. Edwards that her son had a "fantastic excuse" for his absence.

Mrs. Edwards said she considered her son's experience "absolutely hilarious," but quickly added she did not approve of his cutting classes.

Their big yen to see the U.N., said John and Michael, stemmed from a course they took in political and economic theory.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets steady to slightly stronger. Supplies generally short, demand good. Prices paid producers for clean, unsized eggs, delivered near grading stations on a grade-yield basis, cases changed:

Minister Plans Second Kneel-In

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Rev. David Andrews, arrested once for kneeling on the sidewalk in front of the White House, says he'll do it again as he seeks clemency for Morton Sobell.

Andrews, a 37-year-old Methodist minister of Boone, N.C., was back picketing the White House Wednesday after being freed of a charge that he obstructed the sidewalk when he knelt in front of the executive mansion Tuesday.

He kept moving Wednesday, but told newsmen he plans to kneel again this week. He said he is convinced that Sobell, who has served 11 years of a 30-year prison term for conspiracy to commit espionage, was unjustly accused and convicted.

Sobell was indicted with Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, who were executed for passing U.S. atomic secrets to Russia. Sobell was not linked directly with the Rosenbergs but was termed a recruiter for the spy ring.

Andrews carried a sign Wednesday stating "the only witness against Sobell was an admitted perjurer."

The minister was arrested under a regulation which permits picketing of the White House so long as the demonstrators keep moving on the sidewalk. A municipal judge dismissed the charge after being told that about a dozen people gathered around Andrews Tuesday.

Jackson, 49, and Helen Hardin, 28, of Albuquerque, obtained a marriage license Wednesday. They are to be married here Saturday.
