

Opportunities, Challenges For Eastern N.C.

AT AGRICULTURAL MEET... speakers, Dr. Kenneth R. Keller, ECC Pres. Dr. Leo W. Jenkins; Dr. J. W. Pou; Lorenz Neuhooff, III; Jack Kelly and Dr. Henry Garren converse before opening session this morning.

Agricultural Progress Held Most Meaningful Advance

The remarkable progress of American agriculture is much more meaningful to the developing nations of the world than progress in the space race with Russia, the administrator of the Federal Extension Service told Eastern North Carolina farm leaders here this afternoon.

"This progress is a product of teamwork between research and education, coupled with the hard work and ingenuity of American farmers in an economy based on free enterprise and personal incentive," said E. T. York, Jr., who recently returned from a 20-day, round-the-world tour with U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

He addressed a group of 250 farmers, county agents and farm suppliers from Pitt, Beaufort, Craven, Greene, Martin, Pamlico, Pasquotank and other North-east North Carolina counties at an Agricultural Opportunities Day sponsored by Wachovia Bank and Trust Company. The meeting was held in Austin Auditorium at East Carolina College.

York outlined major challenges in agriculture and expressed confidence that "visionary and imaginative thinking can translate these challenges into opportunities."

He cited three major challenges in agriculture today: (1) to help farmers adjust to an age of technology and, in the adjustment, to assure them an adequate return for their labor and capital, (2) to utilize our human and physical resources to their full potential and (3) to help the public understand the contributions of American agriculture to our economy and the importance of maintaining a strong, efficient agriculture.

U. S. farmers annually produce some 60 per cent more output on about one-third fewer planted acres and with only about one-eighth the number of workers employed in agriculture. This means that some six million persons working on U. S. farms turn out two-thirds more agricultural products than 48 million persons in Russian agriculture, he said.

American agricultural successes, however, have brought mixed blessings, York continued. Production exceeds consumption, and greater and greater efficiency of farmers is rewarded with less income for their capital and labor.

The opportunities for solving these problems rest in the hands of farmers themselves, he said.

Bus Didn't Stop At Rail Crossing

GREILEY, Colo. (AP) — Colorado officials searched today for the cause of the school bus-train collision that killed 20 children Thursday.

The Colorado Highway Safety Council was investigating the possibility that overloading and poor visibility may have contributed to the accident. The council's executive secretary, Merf Evans, said in a report to Atty. Gen. Duke Dunbar that "ninety per cent of all school buses in Colorado are overloaded."

Thirteen children are in a hospital. Four others among the 37 children aboard were treated and released. The driver, Duane Harms, 23, suffered minor injuries and shock.

They were in a late model, 60-passenger bus sliced apart at 8:05 a.m. by the Union Pacific's 16-car passenger train, City of Denver, at a rural crossing near here. The streamliner, 90 minutes late because of Christmas baggage delays en route from Chicago to Denver, was traveling 79 miles an hour. Railroad officials said that was normal speed.

Herbert F. Sommers, 64, a Union Pacific engineer for 22 years, said the bus did not stop at the crossing, marked by wooden crossarms and a road sign.

"He stepped on the gas and drove right in front of the train," Sommers said.

Harms, a school bus driver since last September, said "I think I did (stop). Well, I'm quite sure, because I usually do."

Fireman Melvin C. Swanson, 48, said "I thought he (Harms) was going to stop—hoping he was going to stop. Then he drove right in front of the train."

Jerry Hembry, 16, a bus passenger, said, "The bus stopped and then started up again."

Colorado law requires a school bus driver to stop within 50 feet, but not less than 10 feet from the nearest rail, look and listen for trains.

State patrolmen said the diesel locomotive struck the rear of the bus near the dual wheels. Those wheels and four rear seats were dragged 455 feet down the railroad. The main section of the bus was hurled 192 feet.

Redevelopment Commission's Time Extended

An 18-month planning period of Greenville's Redevelopment Commission was officially stretched into 22 months Thursday as three of the body's five members met to further consider its Shore Drive project.

James B. Godwin of Raleigh, the city planner employed by the commission, displayed a "rendering" of the land use plan for the 62-acre Shore Drive project after the commission action formally extended the project's planning phase from December until April 22.

The action means that the Commission must now complete the planning phase of the Shore Drive project and submit its documentary proposal to the Atlantic office of the Urban Renewal Administration before the April 22 deadline.

Involved in the action was the official acceptance of an offer by the federal government to increase operating funds — in the form of a loan — from the original $45,732 to $84,257. The funds became a loan only when requisitioned by the Greenville city.

The plan must be the object of a public hearing conducted by the Redevelopment Commission. Next the city's Planning and Zoning Commission must review the proposal for possible recommendation to the City Council.

The Council must then conduct a public hearing on the matter before taking action. William I. Cochran, the commission's executive director, said it is expected that the plan in its final form would go to Atlanta before the April 22 deadline, perhaps a month earlier.

The rendering, prepared by Godwin at a cost of $1,000 in excess of his $17,000 contract with the commission, included a 30- by 48-inch aerial perspective view of the Shore Drive area and four 22- by 14-inch perspective drawings showing possible structures within the 62-acre plot on the north side of Greenville's downtown area. At five presentations were colored in pastels.

The aerial presentation viewed nearly all the Shore Drive area from a point north of the Tar River and to the northeast of the 62 acres. Pastel colors within the Shore Drive boundaries distinguished the area in the plan from the remainder of the city, represented in black-and-white line drawings.

Included among the four smaller pictures were perspective views of a proposed department store, apartment buildings and (Continued on page sixteen)

Neighborhood Conservation Plan Earns Approval Of City Council

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor Neighborhood conservation — a plan for upgrading housing throughout the city — was approved unanimously by the City Council last night.

Councilmen voted into law an ordinance requiring property owners to bring dwellings up to minimum standards which the law establishes.

The ordinance was submitted to the council at its November meeting by Charles Cobb, chairman of a committee which Mayor Charles M. King appointed to make the study.

Action was postponed at the November meeting to give councilmen time for studying it. The ordinance follows closely, a proposed neighborhood conservation program presented to the City Council last March during the heat of the Urban Renewal-Public Housing referendum.

Among the requirements of the new law are inside running water, tub or shower, toilet, adequate wiring and heating, screens, structural soundness and minimum room sizes.

It also requires the occupant to keep dwelling and premises clean and provides penalties for malicious damage to facilities.

Councilman M. W. Aldridge led a losing battle to require installation of hot water heaters in the homes.

"I still want some hot water," Dr. Aldridge said of the ordinance. He stated he had talked to occupants of rental houses. "They say if they had it, they would use it."

Cobb replied, "The agreement among the property owners to upgrade property to this point represents a lot of work."

He suggested "taking a first step to get everything up to here."

Councilman Ford McGowan said, "Back before the war a lot of homes didn't have hot water in them. They didn't have cold water in them. There has been a remarkable improvement since the war."

Aldridge had proposed some other changes in wording of the ordinance and Councilman James Lee said he agreed to the changes with the exception of the hot water requirement.

Mayor King said he was willing to accept the ordinance without hot water "then maybe we'll get that later."

Aldridge conceded the point with three of the five councilmen against the hot water requirement. Councilman Ralph Brimley made the motion to accept the ordinance with other amendments proposed by Aldridge. The motion received unanimous approval.

Aldridge had requested the deletion of a reference to "within the meaning of the Build America Better Committee Report on Housing" in the law. He asked that the definition of a neighborhood be left to the City Council. He asked that section number 220 and 221 of the Federal Housing Act be deleted since future amendments could change these numbers.

Another section in the law provided that property owners with ten or more houses should not be required to upgrade more than 50 percent of them in one year. Aldridge suggested that the 50 percent regulation should also apply to property owners with less than ten houses.

At the outset of the discussion Cobb stated, "I'd like to say this is Urban Renewal. This is unassisted Urban Redevelopment. Referring to the Shore Drive Redevelopment program, which is administered by the Redevelopment Commission, Cobb said that is also urban renewal.

"At the moment their administrator is favoring that type of program over this one."

Neighborhood conservation was presented by a property owners group prior to the public housing-urban renewal referendum. It was presented as a program in lieu of public housing.

Both public housing and urban renewal were approved by the voters in the May referendum. Subsequently the neighborhood conservation program was resubmitted to the council, referred to the Planning-Zoning Commission and later given to the special committee appointed by Mayor King for study.

The ordinance approved last night was the result of the committee's study.

Provided in the ordinance are an inspector to carry out the program. A $50 fine is provided for each day of each offense under the requirements of the ordinance. Damage to property carries a $50 fine for each offense.

The law became effective immediately.

President, Mrs. Kennedy Depart; Appear Unconcerned Over Unrest

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and his wife took off today on the first leg of a flying weekend visit to Venezuela and Colombia to point up U.S. pledges of aid for Latin-American development.

As they boarded their plane, the President and First Lady were smiling and apparently unconcerned about protest demonstrations in Venezuela—some of them violent—against their visit.

The presidential jet lifted at 12:14 p.m. EST from Andrews Air Force Base, Md., bound for San Juan, Puerto Rico, and an overnight stop.

Saturday the presidential party, which includes several U.S. officials, will fly on to Caracas, the Venezuelan capital, scene of armed anti-U.S. outbreaks in recent days. On Sunday, the Kennedys will go on to Bogota, Colombia.

This is Kennedy's first trip to Latin America as president. The aim is to dramatize the Alliance for Progress, his 10-year, $20 billion program for economic and social advancement in the nations of the south.

The official view is that the "Kennedy no" demonstrations are actions of radical minorities which will be controlled by stable governments and overwhelmed in a popular welcome.

White House, it was disclosed he had talked by telephone with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who is in Texas, and had arranged for Johnson to be kept posted on all matters of importance while the President is away.

But officials said no significance was to be attached to this in relation to the anti-U.S. demonstrations.

Before taking off for the 1,725-mile flight to San Juan, the President shook hands with the dean of the diplomatic corps, Ambassador Guillermo Sevilla-Sacasa of Nicaragua and representatives of the embassies of Venezuela and Colombia.

In Puerto Rico the Kennedys will be overnight guests of Gov. and Mrs. Luis Munoz Marin. Mobs prodded by Communists stoned, spat upon and battered cars bearing former Vice President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon on their goodwill trip to Latin America in 1958.

Gun-wielding leftists seized a radio transmitter Thursday near Caracas and broadcast attacks against Kennedy. Echoing the charges of Communist Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba, they declared Kennedy was plotting another Cuban invasion with Venezuelan President Romulo Betancourt. Earlier, 50 persons were arrested on charges of painting "Kennedy No" on walls in Caracas.

More Aid Ordered For S. Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today ordered increased assistance for the defense of South Viet Nam in its desperate effort to repel Communist aggression from the North.

Government officials said this will not mean sending any American combat troops to Viet Nam.

Kennedy acted in response to an appeal from President Ngo Dinh Diem of the Vietnamese Republic.

Diem said his country "now faces what is perhaps the gravest crisis in its long history" and "we must have further assistance from the United States if we are to win the war now being waged against us."

Diem said the forces of international communism which are arrayed against his country are "more than we can meet with the resources at hand."

Kennedy reacted with words that: "We shall promptly increase our assistance to your defense effort as well as help relieve the destruction of the floods which you describe. I have already given the orders to get these programs under way."

The exchange of messages between the two presidents was made public simultaneously here and in Saigon.

Kennedy didn't spell out what he meant by increased assistance to the Vietnamese defense effort. Other administration sources said that this must not be taken to mean that U.S. fighting men will be dispatched to the area. There has been frequent speculation on this possibility in the past.

Winslow Elected Pitt Conservation Supervisor

Hugh C. Winslow of Greenville, has been elected to a three-year term as one of three Pitt County Soil and Water Conservation District supervisors, the Pitt Soil Conservation office announced today.

Winslow was declared elected after a final tally of votes cast in the county during a six-day balloting period last week.

In making the announcement, the office expressed appreciation to the county's eligible voters for their support of the county's conservation program.

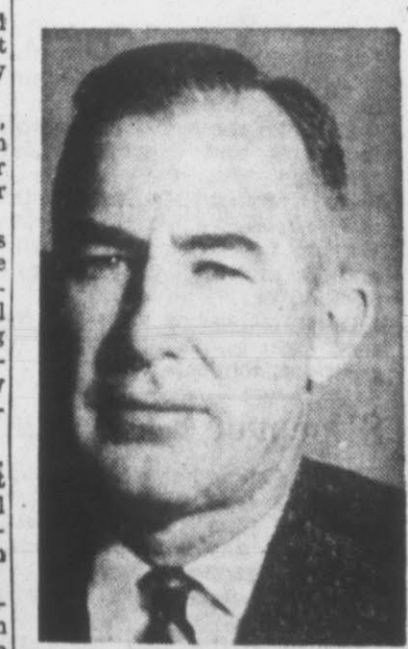

As a supervisor, Winslow joins Arch J. Flanagan of Farmville and J. Brantley Speight of Winterville as the county's official board for planning and carrying out an overall soil and water conservation program for the county and the Coastal Plain Soil Conservation District.

Winslow, Speight and Flanagan, who is chairman, will meet at regular intervals with agricultural agency representatives and others interested in the conservation programs.

District supervisors are non-salaried officials. They serve on a voluntary basis after election by eligible voters.

The new supervisor is an area native and has conducted a successful farming operation for a number of years. Currently, Winslow is engaged in one of the county's most prominent market-hog operations.

Eichmann Is Sentenced To Death On Gallows

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann, Nazi Germany's expeller of Jews to the gas chambers, was sentenced today to hang in Israel for "a crime of unparalleled enormity."

Moshe Landau, president of the special three-man Israeli court which tried and convicted the former Gestapo colonel, intoned: "The court sentences Adolf Eichmann to death for crimes against the Jewish people, crimes against humanity and war crimes."

Eichmann, now 56 and balding, stood stiffly erect for 15 minutes while the tribunal first gave its reasons and then condemned him to the gallows. Six hundred persons packing the courtroom were deathly silent throughout the brief session, then filed out with hardly a sound.

Still the "block of ice" Jewish survivors of the Nazi pogrom called him, Eichmann never even gulped visibly. He quieted the facial nervous twitch evident during the trial, and his hands hung loose and unclenched by his side.

Eichmann, who had scornfully refused to plead for mercy before the sentence was pronounced, was told he had 10 days to file notice of appeal with the court and an additional five days to draft his reasons.

Chief defense counsel Dr. Robert L. Servatius from West Germany was advised if he felt the time given him was too short, he could ask the president of the Supreme Court or his deputy for an extension.

Dr. Servatius, already at work on Eichmann's appeal, told the court: "Thank you for the guidance and I shall think it over."

Decision on the appeal is not expected before March. If it goes against Eichmann, he can apply to Israeli President Izhak Ben-Zvi for clemency.

Elm Street Residents Get Christmas Bonus---Can't Be Required To Pay

Elm Street residents received a Christmas bonus last night as they learned they could not be legally required to pay assessments for street work in front of their homes.

The group had appeared before the City Council to protest billings for the street improvements. Jimmy Wells, a spokesman, maintained that residents had paid the costs for the original paving.

Wells indicated that the group would be willing to pay the curb and gutter assessment since there had never been curb and gutter on the street.

However, City Attorney R. E. Lee pointed out that the city could not legally place a lien against the property if the property owners did not pay. Under the law, he said, a majority of the property owners along a street must sign a petition requesting improvements before legal steps can be taken to collect the assessments.

Normally the city schedules its paving as petitions come in, usually taking the projects in order of highest percentage of sign up.

Elm St. from Greenville Blvd to Tenth St. was set up as a special project in the recent bond issue, however. It provided a four lane divided drive to alleviate traffic problems created by the two schools and various subdivisions in the area.

Two lane paving was already provided along most of the street, although the city maintained that the paving through Elmhurst was improperly installed.

Wells told the council Elm Street was paved by the property owners prior to the annexation of Elmhurst subdivision. Later the property owners decided to come into the city limits.

"When we came in, nothing was said about the paving not being satisfactory," he pointed out. "If the billing stays like it is, we feel we will pay it for the third time." He said property owners originally paid the cost of paving the street; they would pay the present assessment; they would help pay off the bonds for improving the street.

Mayor Charles M. King pointed out that the only thing the council had to go by was the ordinances requiring property owners to pay their portion of the cost.

It was then that City Attorney Lee offered the opinion that the property owners could not be required to pay if there was no petition requesting the improvements.

"It looks like we're in the position of saying all contributions gladly accepted," Councilman Ralph Brimley put in.

A Recreation Commission proposal to hire a professional planner who will make recommendations for future recreation expansion won quick approval from the council.

made the motion to allow money, left from bond funds, "to be spent in this matter." It passed unanimously.

Councilmen approved the paving of a street alongside Blount Fertilizer Co. at a cost of $1,500. The street, recently opened, runs from 14th St. to Wyatt St.

W. W. Speight, representing Judson Blount, appeared to request the paving. There had been an apparent misunderstanding in the charge of administrations.

Speight maintained that his client had paid $5,056.24 for drainage with the understanding that the street would be paved to Center St. and Center St. would be paved to Dickinson Ave. He exhibited the cancelled check and also said that letters had been sent to the councilmen from former City Manager Leonard Bloxam confirming that the promise had been made.

In answer to a question by Mayor Charles M. King, City Engineer C. A. Holiday said that the drainage serves property other than the fertilizer plant.

For the present, however, Speight said his client would accept the paving from 14th to Wyatt. Councilmen approved the project subject to the funds becoming available.

The city fathers took under consideration a drainage problem on property owned by J. H. Boyd on Battle and Bancroft Sts. Boyd, represented by J. W. H. Roberts, said a ditch bank was washing since it was deepened and widened.

They amended the building code to require inspection of heating installations by the city building inspector. Fees for such inspections were set forth in the adopted ordinance.

Other council actions: —amended the Fire Prevention Ordinance to conform with 1960 changes made by the National Fire Bureau of Underwriters.

—released St. Paul's Episcopal Church from taxes on a recently purchased rectory.

—released a taxi franchise held by Henry W. Anderson and issued a franchise to J. E. Venter.

—approved a pool room application submitted by Garland Lancaster for 919 Dickinson Ave.

ECC Faculty Member Pickwick Club Speaker

The Pickwick Book Club met at the home of Mrs. E. Lee Jr. on Tuesday. The home was decorated in the Christmas motif with white and gold dominating. Mrs. Lee served members and guests. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Paschal, spicy Noel Punch opened-faced sandwiches and Christmas cookies.

Mr. Paschal, Associate Professor of History at East Carolina College, was introduced as speaker for the afternoon. As a result of his study and research, Mr. Paschal is widely recognized as an authority on North Carolina Indian history. In his talk, Mr. Paschal pointed out that Indians were not native to North and South America, but migrated to these continents from Asia. They may be classified as being of the Stone Age Culture. After their migration, the Indians organized into tribes based primarily on linguistic similarity and family connections.

Early settlers in North Carolina were faced with many difficulties from the Tuscarora tribe along the coast, the Sioux tribe in the Piedmont region, and the Cherokee in the western part of the state. The Tuscarora tribe resisted movement inland by settlers and in September 1711 staged a vicious raid on colonies along the Pamlico and Neuse Rivers, which developed into a three-day war. Assistance sent in by the state of South Carolina enabled the settlers to break the many forts built by the Indians and drive them out of the state.

There are about 3000 Indians living in North Carolina at the present time on the Cherokee reservation in the western section of the state and the reservation in Bertie County. Mr. Paschal concluded his program by answering questions presented by members.

Mrs. Louis Boyd, president, presided over a business meeting during which time the Social Committee reported that Dec. 29 had been selected as the date for the Christmas party. An informal party at the Country Club has been planned by the committee.

Final plans for helping a needy family at Christmas were made. There being no further business, books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. Smith Is UDC Hostess

The George B. Singletary Chapter of the U. D. C. met at the home of Mrs. H. T. Smith Thursday afternoon.

Arrangements of Christmas decorations were seen throughout the home.

Mrs. J. G. Lautares suggested that the chapter award given in honor of Mrs. J. L. Fleming be given to the chapter that erects the most markers locating historical Confederate sites. Mrs. E. L. Willard read an article on "Christmas During the Confederacy."

Mrs. Smith invited her guests into the dining room where from a beautiful Christmas table there were refreshments in keeping with the season. Assisting the hostess in serving were her daughter, Miss Mary Thomas Smith, Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Alice Keel.

Shower Given Anne Harris

On Saturday night of last week Miss Anne Harris, bride-elect of this month, was honored at a miscellaneous shower in the Falkland Community Building. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Gray Smith, Mrs. Rufus Jenkins, Mrs. Mack Allen, and Mrs. Jack Harris.

Upon their arrival the honoree, her mother, Mrs. Charlie W. Harris, and Mrs. F. E. Taylor, mother of the bridegroom-elect, were presented corsages to complement their dresses. Mrs. Gray Smith led a number of bridal games and entertainment.

Following a Christmas motif in decorations, the gift table was covered with a white cloth and centered with a Christmas arrangement that featured a large red candle encircled by ornaments in varying colors. The refreshment table was also covered in white with appliques of red poinsettias on the sides. Guests were served chocolate nut cookies, bridal mints, party pretzels, and salted nuts. Mrs. Mack Allen poured punch from a crystal bowl.

Approximately 30 guests were present for the event.

The plot is laid around a town, prosperous and filled with plenty, that drives from every door a little old woman asking for food and shelter in the name of Christmas. Because the people have forgotten the real meaning of Christmas a punishment comes to the town. For years they can have no Christmas. When the people atone for their selfish greed Christmas returns to the valley and the Christ reigns supreme.

The feature of the evening was "This Is Your Life," based on the life of the pastor of Red Oak, the Rev. Howard James. In her own inimitable way, Mrs. Tyson brought out the highlights of his life, beginning with his birth one mile from Red Oak, his varied experiences through the years, some sad, some happy, but through it all a feeling of nostalgia and, as Rev. James says, "I feel like I have truly come home since you have called me to Red Oak."

Greater Public Awareness Of ECC

Although East Carolina College for several years has ranked as the fourth largest college in North Carolina in terms of enrollment, it has only recently begun to gain appreciable recognition with the public in many parts of the state.

East Carolina College is, of course, well known in this section of the state and has for years been recognized as a major educational institution. In the Piedmont and Western sections of North Carolina, however, there seems to have prevailed only a vague impression that there is a little college down near the coast called East Carolina.

From reading of newspapers across the state in recent months, however, we get the distinct feeling that this vague impression of East Carolina College, its size in terms of student body, and its importance to higher education in North Carolina, is rapidly changing.

Considerable state-wide interest was generated by the fact that citizens of Greenville and Pitt County came forward this fall to contribute more than a quarter million dollars to the college for construction of the new James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium. A great deal of interest was shown throughout the state in the naming of Clarence Stasavich of Lenoir Rhyne, one of the outstanding coaches in the college field, as the new head football coach at East Carolina.

Just this week Gov. Sanford, at the outset of his regular news conference, took time to praise the efforts of the student body of East Carolina College their contribution of 264 pints of blood to the Red Cross bloodmobile at one visit.

Legislative appropriations for operations and capital improvements at East Carolina College have reflected a growing awareness by the state's lawmakers of the needs of this college and its increasing importance to the state.

This trend, plus what appears to be an increased public interest throughout the state in East Carolina, suggests that years after it moved from the ranks of small colleges into the ranks of the large colleges of the state, ECC is beginning to be regarded as such. This transition in the public impression of East Carolina College throughout the state should prove another important asset to the college in its efforts to meet the demands being made upon it and to achieve what it feels to be its rightful position in higher education in North Carolina.

Kinston Is Developing A Tourist Attraction

In our neighboring city of Kinston there has been undertaken a sort of community do-it-yourself effort to establish a historical tourist attraction.

We are speaking, of course, of the efforts to raise the Confederate Ram Neuse sunk near Kinston during the Civil War. The old ship has been at its present resting place for the better part of a century, and its presence has been through the years a well-known fact among Kinston residents. Only now, however, has the community shown any appreciable interest in seeking to share this rather unique historical item with the rest of the state... and of course any out-of-state tourists who might like to come see it.

In this era when historical attractions of all kinds are becoming so popular with the increasing number of tourists, many communities are looking with envy on those which have cultivated over a period of years attractions of a historical nature. Other communities like Kinston, are doing something positive by taking something of historical value they have had all the time and making it into a potential tourist attraction.

No many Eastern Carolina communities have old ships lying at the bottom of their streams, but most of them have sites or items of historical value which could be made into genuine tourist attractions if someone took the trouble to dust them off and put them in proper condition for public display.

Kinston is setting a good example for other Eastern Carolina communities by taking a long-ignored item of historical value and transforming it into a tourist attraction.

Disunity Could Stir Up Trouble

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Allies are a picture of disunity and confusion. They can't agree on how to deal with the Russians on Berlin, they're miles apart on what to do about the Congo.

This is so much graver for Premier Khrushchev. He began his rumpus on Berlin last June, kept it up a couple of months. By September the Allies were clearly split on how to handle him.

He quieted down then, has been quiet ever since, letting them wrangle. Driving a wedge between them may have been the most he ever hoped to accomplish from creating the trouble in the first place.

Rich Katanga Province in the Congo, with its huge mineral resources, is the economic backbone of the country. Without it the rest of the Congo is sick. Katanga's President Moise Tshombe pulled it out.

His native Katangese troops, who probably have no particular loyalty to Tshombe but are working for cash, are led by hired, white, outside professional soldiers, a band of mercenaries.

To restore peace the United Nations sent in troops to rout out the mercenaries. The United States backs this U.N. action.

The British, French and Belgians do not. Rich Britishers, Frenchmen and Belgians reportedly have enormous investments in the mines of Katanga.

This split showed up again Wednesday in the one place where it is most embarrassing: at a meeting of the NATO foreign ministers. NATO is the Western powers, military alliance against Russia.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, at the NATO meeting, assured this country's 14 Allies it would never:

Barter away the war-won right of Western troops to stay in Berlin, weaken free access to Berlin through Communist East Germany or permit damage to West Berlin's economic and political freedom.

But he said the West must exhaust every chance of a peaceful solution to avoid the possibility of war with Russia. This means he thinks it's a good idea at least to discuss the problems with the Russians.

The British agree. The West Germans are said to agree. But French President Charles de Gaulle apparently not only doesn't want any bargaining, he doesn't even want any talking.

He thinks even discussing Berlin with the Russians is a show of weakness. Rusk says patience is not weakness. This back-and-forth bit could go on and on.

The point is that six months after Khrushchev first stirred up the Berlin trouble, the Allies are at sixes-and-sevens.

There was a time before De Gaulle came to power that the United States could pretty well call the shots. De Gaulle, who has made a career of being his own man, is demonstrating he will decide for himself.

This is all very impressive. But Khrushchev, in the next moves he makes, will show whether it's also very practical. The allied disunity is an encouragement to him to push his luck a little harder.

Strength For Today

NATURE OF TRUE REFORM

On one occasion Jesus told of two men who went up into the temple to pray. One was a Pharisee and the other a publican. The Pharisee thanked God that he was not as other men. The publican beat his breast and cried, "God be merciful to me a sinner." Jesus declared that the publican went down to his house justified rather than the Pharisee.

Let us guard against trying to reform our neighbors before we have reformed ourselves. The Pharisee looked around about himself and was pleased by the contrast which he observed to exist favorably between himself and others. The publican, on the other hand, looked only into his heart.

stare to those people whose primary idea in life is to remodel society. Very often these people who spend so much time talking about the necessity of making the world over are only trying to hide from themselves and others the fact that they need such a transformation right within their own characters. The world certainly needs to be reformed, but the only people who have the slightest chance in the world of reforming it are the people who have reformed themselves. The kingdom of God begins in our hearts and extends to the furthest reaches of heaven. Reform begins in our own lives and goes out to society. We should distrust any proposed reform which does not follow this pattern. The world can only be reformed by reformed men.

Some Really Call It Art

In the event our readers have not been fortunate in being informed about a very different kind of "art" work, we wish to endeavor to bring some enlightenment.

There are two forms of this work—you could hardly call it painting or any of the conventionally accepted terms: one, the artist (and we use the term artist most loosely) takes something like a fiddle which he buys from a dealer, and he smashes it and stomps on it. Then, without disturbing its position, the artist begins the painstaking task of gluing, screwing and hammering the pieces to a blackboard exactly as they fell on it after the destruction.

Then the artist may sell this valuable composition for a very "handsome" price, which has not been defined in dollars and cents for us, but handsome is still handsome.

The second form of this work is more frenzied and many people might regard it as being executed by someone possibly mentally and emotionally disturbed. We might be one of those people.

At any rate, the artist collects an assortment of carefully selected items and meticulously places them on a background. This is merely the beginning. The items may include a shoe, a bunch of flowers, some fruit, an old pocketbook, and other things.

Then come the clinchers—some plastic bags of oil paint and a rifle. (That's right!) The artist puts the plastic bags of paint above the items on the background, stands back a few paces, lifts the rifle and begins to fire.

Bang, bang, bang and bang right on.

The artist shoots the plastic bags and paint streams down over the selection of items and there is a work of art.

The artist in this case believes the moment of truth in the creation is the destruction. There is beauty in death and destruction, in war. The one moment when the art is most fully realized is when the trigger of the gun is pulled and the paint streams down. At no other time will it be the same.

That's fine. We saw this with our own eyes during a program on TV the other night and since Greenville is an art-interested town, we though perhaps some who didn't see this might be slightly interested to know about it.

However, we always had the impression that art is something beautiful and lasting, something the painter creates of himself and which others may seek to enjoy because of the creativity by means of talent. Naturally tastes differ and people enjoy different things in art. At least that's what we always thought.

What madness is this? This is true but this is not what he said to Earl E.T. Smith when he indoctrinated the Ambassador. Nor is it what he wrote in "The New York Times" when his articles were influencing Americans to support Castro. Nor is it what he wrote in his book on Cuba. Too late, Herbert Matthews had discovered that his protégé is a man of evil; too late he has discovered that his support of Castro has been a betrayal of American interests.

Our only comment can be that it is most unfortunate when so-called authorities lack the depth of understanding and lead us in incorrect directions. It makes one wonder how often it happens. Certainly it must be happening. The article that Walter Duranty wrote about Soviet Russia at the beginning of the Revolution have not been justified by the course of events. It would be interesting to study the activities of the CIA during the past four years to discover whether what was told to the President and the State Department has at all been correct. Certainly, too many errors have been made and we have no explanation who made them or why. The Katanga activities of the United Nations are queer and are without explanation. That picture requires better explanation than we have had. Certainly, we do not know enough about the Katanga situation to justify our opinion as to what program concerning Katanga is correct.

Much needs to be disclosed and understood before we close our minds. Surely, we do not know enough to understand why so great a fuss is made over little Albania. Nor is it clear why the troubles in the Dominican Republic have developed into such a serious revolution. How much of the Dominican troubles are manufactured by Castro; how many of them are

Wrong Again On Fidel

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

According to a report in the New York "Herald Tribune," Herbert Matthews, an editor of "The New York Times," who in a large measure was responsible for the acceptance of Castro by the United States as the savior of Cuba, said, when Castro declared himself to be a Marxist:

"I don't believe anything he says. He's fantastic, incredible. Today Castro may believe he's a Communist, but tomorrow he may believe something else. I don't think you can give him a label. He's too wild, too disorganized."

This is not what Herbert Matthews said when he indoctrinated Ambassador Earl E.T. Smith. Smith was instructed to take lessons from Matthews in Cuban affairs upon his appointment. It was unusual for a diplomat to be instructed by a newspaperman; nevertheless that is what Smith was told to do. When he discovered that Castro was a Communist, Smith so notified the State Department but his notification was ignored and he was set aside. Now Smith's judgement has been verified by Castro himself and it is clear beyond doubt that Castro is a Communist. Matthews now admits that he may have made some slips in his judgement of Castro, but has he ever apologized to Ambassador Smith for his attitude toward the diplomat or is he like his newspaper which does not admit error? Ambassador Smith was rejected by Switzerland because of his difficulties with "The New York Times," an error of judgement that will never be forgotten by this Administration and by many Americans. We all make mistakes in the course of a lifetime of writing but it is indeed guilty of an error under any circumstances.

Matthews takes the position that if Castro is indeed a Marxist, "he is going to be a very bad and unruly one." This, of course, is a sentence of no significance, as he now says that he is, too, not a Marxist whether he is bad or unruly. What does matter is that he has become a peril to the United States. According to the "Herald Tribune" account Matthews said: (Castro is) "the most dangerous person to the United States who has ever arisen in the history of the Western Hemisphere."

That's true but this is not what he said to Earl E.T. Smith when he indoctrinated the Ambassador. Nor is it what he wrote in "The New York Times" when his articles were influencing Americans to support Castro. Nor is it what he wrote in his book on Cuba. Too late, Herbert Matthews had discovered that his protégé is a man of evil; too late he has discovered that his support of Castro has been a betrayal of American interests.

Wild Toy Market This Season

By ELMER ROESSNER

It's a strange and wild toy market this Christmas season. There has been a tremendous rise in production of higher priced toys; that is those costing from $10 to $49. One reason is the great interest in electronic, automated and motorized toys; the other is the greater ability of parents and uncles to pay for toys in these higher price ranges.

Toy merchandising, more than almost any other line, has become a donnybrook in pricing. Despite what the toy industry has done to level out demand throughout the year, with promotions of toys at Easter and other "give" days, an enormous part of the industry's consumer sales are still being made between Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Eve.

TV A THIRD FACTOR
Another basic is the role of television, a media on which certain toys, usually in the higher brackets, are artfully demonstrated on the receiving sets to the end that parents are kid-pressed into buying the strongest, highest mark-up toys.

Over the last 10 years, the median price of toys has constantly gone up. Personal income has been rising, and toy manufacturers, naturally, have been trying to fill the gap, just like the maker of every other product and the purveyor of every other service.

People have more money; why shouldn't toy makers get their share?

However, that pricing scramble has led to a new complex. Makers are asking not, "How much is this toy worth?" but "How much can retailers get for it?"

WHICH LIST?
That's a broad question because department stores, toy stores, discount houses, cooperative outlets, supermarkets, flower shops, 30-day stores, sidewalk vendors and mail-order houses are all selling toys this year—as well as newsstands, card shop, drug store, five-and-dimes and anybody else with an urge for a quick profit.

A friend, seeking a toy that had been exploited on TV, went to four outlets and found the toy with "list" prices ranging from $19.95 to $24.95, and each outlet offered a different discount. He found that the department store, not the discount house, offered the biggest discount and the lowest price. But, he found, there were toys in the other shops that were lower than the department store's price.

TELEVISION POLICING
Meanwhile, the National Association of Broadcasters is trying to keep toy demonstrations from kidding the kids. Of 97 commercials submitted, 47 were found to be under standard. Four were ruled off and the other 43 revised. However, commercials made earlier than last June were not subject to this scrutiny.

By the time the Federal Trade Commission, the Federal Communications Commission and Better Business Bureau get around to looking into toy promotions, Christmas will be over.

However, it appears that price-cutting competition among toy outlets has caused many to over-buy. This will lead to even deeper cuts after Christmas and, in many cases, dumping unsold toys for whatever they will bring.

Happy are the kids and ladies whose birthdays come in January!

CREDIT CARD BUSINESS NOT WELL BOOMING
Today's issue of Forbes Magazine reports that of the three leading credit card companies, Hilton and American Express lost money in fiscal 1961. The Diners' Club, it reports, is still making money, but earnings per share have made little progress since 1958, and for the first half of the current fiscal year were running 30 per cent behind 1960.

Forbes says Diners' wants to buy out rivals at bargain prices, but antitrust laws may make it difficult.

Now JFK Knows Depth Of Today's Problems

By ARTHUR EDSON
AP Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — During his presidential campaign John F. Kennedy often pointed out that, while the Republicans were in control of the White House, the iron curtain had been rolled down in once friendly Cuba.

"If you can't stand up to Castro," Kennedy said in Johnstown, Pa., "how can you be expected to stand up to Khrushchev?"

This is repeated not as a reproof—if presidents were judged by their campaign talk they would all be failures—but as an illustration of how far Kennedy may have underestimated the difficulties in modern international relations.

Not that Kennedy, even when the campaign was hottest, ever took these problems lightly. But example after example can be cited to show that he believed that, with proper diligence, answers favorable to the United States could be found.

Let's look at just a couple more from 1960.

"I am not satisfied with the drift of events today," he said in Granite City, Ill. "I am not satisfied to be reading every day that Khrushchev and Castro and the Chinese are on the upward march. I want to read that the United States is once again asserting its leadership as a great and free country, which offers a ray of hope to all those who wish to follow our example."

Or in Fargo, N.D.: "Can you tell me anywhere in a crisis, from Cuba to the Congo to Laos, where the United States has been ahead of events?"

For a man who had hoped to control the tides of history, the Cuban fiasco must have been as bitter a blow as any president ever received in what, theoretically, was a time of peace.

It shocked and dismayed his friends.

It loaded his enemies with ready-made ammunition, although a few rushed out to shoot during such a critical time for the nation. One prominent Republican, who never had liked the Kennedy picture of infallibility, commented recently that "Cuba was a godsend."

Those who believed that U.S. intervention in Cuba was immoral blamed Kennedy for being mixed up in it.

Those who wanted action blamed him for not following up with the strength that would have made the invasion successful.

Communists—and many who weren't Communists at all—claimed this as fresh evidence that Uncle Sam is an imperialist meddler, never to be trusted.

Out of this, one haunting question continues to arise: Hit with such a disaster so early in his term, has Kennedy been more timid, afraid of even mild risks, than he might otherwise have been?

A man close to Kennedy insists the answer is no, but that he has made sure it never happens again.

Those around Kennedy maintain this nation is doing much better internationally than is generally thought.

They make these points:

If Laos and the Congo remain as dangerous as ever, at least the Communists haven't taken over.

If Castro is still boss of Cuba, a more active interest in South America has helped to stem the spread of Castroism there.

If Berlin remains unsolved, intricate proings for solutions continue. Or, in the words of a White House assistant: "We're a long way from out of the woods, but at least we have some basis for negotiations."

If the international situation remains critical, the military has been strengthened—two-thirds of all money added to the budget has been in this area—and a start has been made on civil defense.

Yet even in its most favorable light, all this isn't seizing the initiative. And nearly all these explanations could have been made a year ago as well as now.

As Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, said in the Senate on Sept. 21: "What has happened that permits Khrushchev to act as he does? Let me repeat: What has happened that lets him do it?"

"Understand me, please. Not what he is doing. We know that only too well. Our national honor bears the scars and stains of what he is doing now and has done in the past. And he has warned us, arrogantly, of what he intends to do in the future, which is even worse. These things we know."

"But today—now—why does he feel free to do as he does? Why?"

William McKinley once commented to a visitor that, since he hadn't looked at the map, he had no idea where Manila was.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, during a war truly worldwide, had few thoughts about most of Africa.

Even Dwight D. Eisenhower took office in the pre-space age.

All our recent presidents have had to operate in a new, exciting and often bewildering world.

It has turned into a world of megatons, of moon shots, of new nations popping into existence so rapidly professional geographers must be in difficulties.

Whereas foreign affairs once took little of a president's time, they now threaten to consume all of it.

Whenever administration officials are asked why Kennedy has not pushed harder for his domestic program, or why he has not explained his—and the nation's—problems to the people more fully, the answer always is: The President is too tied up with foreign affairs.

There's no way to determine whether Kennedy really is this occupied, or whether this reply is designed to cut off further questioning. After all, Eisenhower had heavy foreign burdens, too.

But no one can doubt the enormity or the complexity of the problems created by an implacable foe and by Allies of widely differing aims and hopes.

On his recent trip through the West Kennedy tried to explain some of his difficulties in foreign affairs.

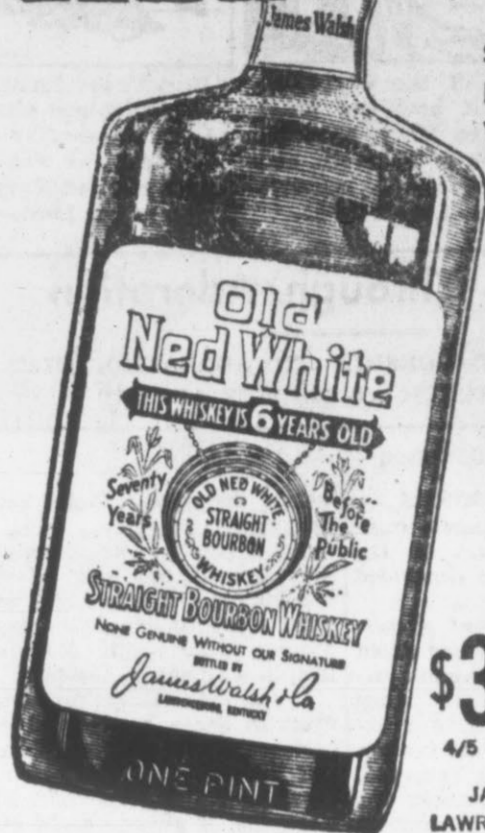

"We must face problems," he said in Seattle, "which do not lend themselves to easy, quick or permanent solutions."

"And we must face the fact that the United States is neither omnipotent nor omniscient, that we cannot always impose our will on the other 94 per cent of mankind, that we cannot right every wrong or reverse each adversity, and that therefore there cannot be an American solution for every world problem."

This is a far different tone than he used while campaigning in Johnstown or Granite City or Fargo. But responsibility is often humbling.

Growth Through Adoration ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 1:26-80.

In the beginning of the Christmas story we are told how the angel Gabriel appeared to Mary, a virgin betrothed to Joseph in Nazareth, and told her that she would conceive the Son of God.—Luke 1:26-35.

Mary went immediately to a kinswoman named Elizabeth, also miraculously blessed by God; although she was old she was with child. Elizabeth realized Mary was to give birth to her Lord.—Luke 1:36-45.

After Elizabeth's baby was born, she insisted his name was to be John. Those assembled were dismayed; they felt he should be named for his father, Zechariah, a priest who had been struck dumb.—Luke 1:57-62.

On a tablet Zechariah wrote that the baby's name was indeed John. Immediately he was able to speak again, and burst forth with a song of blessing.—Luke 1:63-79. GOLDEN TEXT: Luke 1:46-47.

Growth Through Adoration

THE SPIRIT OF WORSHIP AND ADORATION THAT BURST FORTH AT CHRIST'S ADVENT

Scripture—Luke 1:26-80.

By N. SPEER JONES THIS WEEK'S lesson comprises the first part of the nativity story, to be concluded in next week's.

As with most great events, the relating of which has taken place time and time again, different versions of the story have come into being. For example, according to the version Matthew heard and recorded, the first announcement of Christ's advent was an angel's annunciation to Joseph, several months after Christ's conception.

In the version of Luke, which we study today, the first word of this glorious event was the angel's announcement to Mary herself, immediately before the miraculous conception.

Notice the crescendo of importance of this announcement. First Mary is told that she will within themselves God's kingdom here on earth.

To return to our narrative, Mary immediately went to visit her kinswoman Elizabeth, who lived some four or five days' journey to the south of Jerusalem, in a village in the hills.

It was very natural for her to want to share her sacred experience and reaffirm to herself the fact that she had not dreamed the angel's visit. She knew that if anyone could give her this reassurance and close sharing, it was someone who was supposed to have been similarly blessed in a miraculous way.

We now come to that marvelous series of songs of praise and joy, recorded only by Luke, the artistic and learned Greek, who so typify the spirit of the whole New Testament to follow. Mary's magnification of the bear a son—a relatively normal bit of information. Then she is told that His name shall be Jesus, signifying the highest blessing; then, that He will be great.

Only then is Mary told that He will be divine—"Son of the Most High." Nor is this all; the great climax of the angel's announcement is the word that this Son of Mary's will reign over God's people on earth forever.

Many feel that this last part of the angel's prophecy has not yet been accomplished. Certainly Christ was rejected by the majority of the Israelites, those God had called His chosen ones; certainly He did not rule in the way we are accustomed to thinking of the term.

On the other hand, it may be argued that He did establish His kingdom forever, in that those who find Him and acknowledge His kingship find Lord and Zechariah's benediction have been the basis of much of the most glorious music by our great composers.

The former is one of the most pertinent parts of the text in regard to the title of this week's study. Mary, through her own humility, arrives at a new kind of stature; as her soul "magnifies the Lord" she becomes a reflection of all His greatness. She has grown to a greatness which is not egotistically her own, but the Christian epitome of maturity, a reflection of God Himself.

In another sense, Elizabeth grows through adoration. Without Christian maturity, she might well have been jealous to discover another woman more favored than herself. She is so filled with joy and adoration, however, that there is no possibility of such a petty emotion. She feels herself doubly blessed, instead.

Hoodlum Slang Of Larger Cities Now Widespread

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Have you ever seen "Batman" chasing a "bomb" being driven by a "turkey"? Then seen the "turkey" who was caught "dead-bang," get put in the "drum"? Well, if you have, you have lived.

It simply means: Have you ever seen a highway patrolman chasing a car being driven by a person? Then seen the person, who was caught in the act, get put in a jail cell?

of the jargon which is common to the mob part—to them all, the FBI explains.

Not only in larger cities, but even here, local police say law breakers here have their own lingo.

Just as a "Batman" is a highway patrolman, a "bomb" is a car (and how true that is many times) and a "turkey" is a person, or is a "flat" any uniformed officer, a "flvmug" a "pinc" (hesman) and the "fuzz" a federal officer.

A "booster" to the beatnik is not part of a rocket but instead a shoplifter or narcotic drug injection. "To bust a cap" means to shoot a gun or reach a degree of intoxication. If you are arrested you are "broke or busted" and if you are a coolie, you are not from the Orient but simply a non-gang boy.

In this world of gang slang, to be "heavy" is to be intelligent, to be "hung" is to be in love, to be a "deb" is to be a girl affiliate of a boy gang and to be a "yord strutter" is to be a chicken.

It is only natural for adolescents to produce a form of speech all their own. They often resort to a system of communication not readily understood by adults. This, according to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, evolves into a form of slang common to the group which, with each new generation, changes to meet the needs of the changing times.

The gang of young hoodlums who range the streets of some of America's larger cities have evolved a form of speech peculiarly their own, and though divided as they are in gangs rival to each other, there is no misunderstanding among them of the meaning

And, just as the hoodlums have nicknames for officers who are sworn to uphold justice and protect law abiding citizens, the police have names for hoodlums and law-breakers, many of which are not printable.

If you find a girl with "no furniture in her parlor," it's not that she is broke, it's just that she is a toothless immae. A "little bird" is an informer while a "kissing cousin" is a girl friend. A "scab," according to the ones in the know, is just a girl.

If you "swing with a gang" you are a gang member while if you're "toasty" you are a boy of girl from a nice neighborhood.

"Strangers" to these people are police and if you get "lost-ed," you have been deserted by a woman or your partner, and as you might have guessed from reading the many variations and forms of speech used by the underworld, a school-teacher is simply a "brain teaser."

A "school" is a prison to the hepster, and to be "made" is to be identified.

In the smartly dressed set, to wear trousers is to have on "strides", and to wear female clothing is "to wear drag".

But to end our story of the "turkey" who was caught "dead-bang"; he was "hit in the derby" (killed) when "two timed" (attacked by two persons) following a "rumbic" (gang fight) after his release from the "meatball hotel" (state penitentiary).

Ceramics Work Is On Exhibition

Ceramics by Forrest Matheson of Rt. 1, Taylorsville, now being exhibited in the Kate Lewis Gallery, Rawl building, at East Carolina College, are attracting the interest of visitors. The art show is one of a series sponsored during the school year by the college Department of Art and featuring the work of talented seniors. The exhibition will continue through December 21.

A ceramic screen of modern design is noteworthy in the exhibition for beauty and originality. The screen is made of ceramic shapes tied together with nylon cord and framed in a wood divider. A mobile with suspended ceramic designs is also a major work of the student artist.

Also included in the exhibition are pots in various shapes and colors and wooden plaques with designs of dried plants.

Nika-Zeus Anti-Missile Project May Not Get By

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army's Nike-Zeus antimissile project is closer than ever to the production stage. But it may not make it again this year—perhaps because of a budget squeeze.

President Kennedy and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara agreed less than three weeks ago that Congress should be asked for money to start preparing for production of the missile killer system which is still being tested.

Last weekend, budget and defense authorities again reviewed the military requests for next year.

Then two days ago, sources said, Army officials received informal word that tooling-up money for the Nike-Zeus may not be included when the budget goes to Congress next month.

Nobody would comment for the record.

The Army has spent more than a billion dollars since 1957 to perfect the Nike-Zeus, which would be employed to protect the nation's key cities and strategic bases.

It has been estimated a fully operational antimissile defense would cost at least $8 billion.

Just Thursday a Nike-Zeus rocket scored a fourth straight success in a flight planned as its longest to date. It shot out over the Pacific from Point Mugu, Calif. Distance and direction were not announced.

Death Of Three Ended Shopping

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP)—A Christmas shopping trip ended in death Thursday night for a mother and her two daughters when their car was smashed by a Long Island Rail Road train at a crossing here.

The victims were Beverly Hoffman, 39, and daughters Edna, 14, and Joan, 18.

The Hoffman apartment is only about 100 feet from the crossing. The father, Edward Hoffman, heard the crash and went to the accident scene. When he learned who the victims were, he had to be put under sedation.

Volcanic Power Hopes Dimmed

HONOLULU (AP)—Hopes of harnessing volcanic steam for cheap electrical power appear to be evaporating.

The Hawaii Thermal Power Co., has abandoned four of its five sites where drilling started five months ago.

A spokesman for the company said cracks and lava tubes have plagued drilling and expensive tools have been lost. One site was given up after drillers hit a stream of hot water.

The remaining rig is in the puna area on the slopes of much-active Kilauea Volcano.

Brock, Fields, Sumrell, Andresen Receive Trophies

By GEORGE BRYANT Reflector Sports Editor

All-Conference tackle Rommie Brock, fullback Wayne Sumrell, halfback Kroghie Andresen and guard Russell Fields were awarded trophies at the Rose High School football banquet last night.

Sumrell, Andresen and Fields were all starting seniors on this year's championship Phantom team and Brock was a junior.

Brock, a 5-foot 11-inch, 175 pound tackle received the best blocker award which is donated by W. L. Allen. The award was presented by Touchdown Club President Joe Lughes.

Fields, a 5-foot 9-inch, 175 pound guard, who was placed on the Charlotte Observer's All-State team, received the team's best defensive player award donated by H. L. Hodges Company and presented by Hodges.

Andresen, a 5-foot 10-inch, 160 pound halfback, was presented the most improved senior trophy donated by Forbes Transfer Company. In the absence of Wiley Forbes, the award was presented by Joe Lughes.

Sumrell, a 5-foot 8-inch fullback, was awarded the team's most valuable player award which was donated by the State Bank and Trust Company. The trophy was presented by John Ray Hardy.

Other awards presented at last night's banquet included a plaque given by the Monogram Club in the form of a special award. The award was presented by Co-Captains Wayne Sumrell and Russell Fields to Joe Lughes. He assisted coach Bud Phillips throughout the season during the practice sessions and at the games on his own time. The engraving on the plaque read, "To Joe Lughes in appreciation for his unselfish services to our team."

Phantom Coach Bud Phillips presented the entire team and the managers with gold footballs which were engraved, "Champions 1961." Team physician Dr. E. B. Aycock also passed out the perfect attendance certificate to those boys who had not missed a practice session.

Dr. Aycock said that this was the third season for the perfect attendance certificates and that they were increasing in number each year. He attributed the greater number to the fact that the "physical strength and training gets better each year."

O. E. Dowd, principal of Rose High School, presented certificates given by the Northeastern Conference to the four boys who placed on the All-Conference team. He told the group that the school and city were proud of the entire team and added that most of the boys are also good students.

Other presentations of the night were made to the coaches. S. Reynolds May presented an envelope to all of the coaches attending the banquet. They went to Earl Castleo, Junior high school coach, Bo Farley, coach of the high school junior varsity team, Don Bennett, assistant varsity coach and Wayne Davis, a college student who assisted Bo Farley with the junior varsity team.

The big coaching award of the night went to Coach Bud Phillips. May presented Phillips with an award that many of the local businessmen in town cooperated on. The key and a picture of a 1962 Ford Ranch Wagon were given to Phillips and the car itself will be delivered on or about the first of the year. It was hoped that the automobile would have been here in time for the banquet, but it did not arrive. Phillips commented was, "I was really surprised."

The automobile award came after the cheerleaders presented a scrap book to the Coach as a reminder of the year he and the team have had.

City School Superintendent J. H. Rose thanked the town for its support of the school this year in "bringing about this honor to our school." Rose added, "The boys have been a big credit to the school and the community in the way that they represented us."

Coach Phillips told the group attending the banquet that it was a real pleasure to work with this "fine" group of boys. "They worked hard and wanted the championship team that they had. If they play the game of life as hard as they did football, you will hear a lot about them in the future," Phillips said.

The guest speaker, Earle Edwards, head football coach of North Carolina State College, was introduced by Fred Webb. Edwards told the group "there is no finer meeting than one of young and old under the same roof."

In an entertaining after dinner speech, Edwards told the group "you and the coaches deserve a lot of credit." However, he noted, "The boys are the ones who really make a team, not the coaches. They just help."

Edwards told the group that he felt a little out of place when he compared his record with that of Rose High this year. "We had a magazine pre-season team this year and it would have been much better if we had not played this fall," he said.

The State College mentor told the group that the high school teams are getting better each year and so are the coaching staffs. However, he mentioned the fact that the academic work is also important and that it is getting more so each year, even for athletes. "It is not good to raise a boy who cares about his school work," Edwards said.

Edwards also told the group, "We feel very fortunate that one of your players, Billy James, has indicated a desire to come to State College."

The evening of entertainment also included a bar-be-que supper sponsored by the high school Touchdown Club and held in the school cafeteria.

JOE LUGHES . . . with the special Monogram Club award he won last night.

EC Pirates Among Seven Teams In Christmas Meet

CAMP LEJEUNE—Six Eastern States are represented by the seven college teams entered in the Fourth Annual Christmas Invitational Basketball Tournament which gets underway here December 27.

States represented by the various college teams entered in the holiday classic are Connecticut, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, North Carolina and Tennessee. The Camp Lejeune Marines will be the host team and are the only service squad entered in the three-day tourney.

The college lineup includes: Central Conn. St. College, New Britain, Conn., Georgia Southern College, Statesboro, Ga., Pikeville, Ky., University of Baltimore, Baltimore, Md., East Carolina College, Greenville, Elon College, Burlington, and Bethel College, McKenzie, Tenn.

First Time For Bucs The East Carolina College "Pirates" from Greenville will be making their first appearance in this tournament and are one of the two Carolinas Conference teams competing here this year.

So far this year, the ECC squad has a 3-3 season record and a 2-2 slate in conference play and are in ninth place in the 11-team Carolina Conference.

Elon's Third Crack Back for their third crack at the tournament title are the "Fighting Christians" from Elon College of Burlington. The "Christians," surprise team of the Carolinas Conference this year, are rated as a strong contender for this year's tournament title.

Coach Bill Miller has blended a relatively inexperienced squad into the only unbeaten team in the CC so far this year. The Elon starting five is made up of two juniors, two sophomores and a freshman.

The Christians started the season as a questionable club, but 6-foot-8 Dewey Andrew has taken a starring role and sparked Elon to a 4-0 overall record and 2-0 conference mark. Andrew has averaged over 20 points per game in all four of the Elon wins this year.

Elon has good height this season, averaging out at just a shade under 6-foot-five, with Jesse Branson, 6-foot-7 freshman, the team's tallest starter.

Baltimore Back Again Also, back for a third try in this tournament is the University of Baltimore "Bees." Boosting a veteran unit, the Bees should improve on their fifth place finish in this tournament the past two years.

Seven returning lettermen should make the Bees a tough nut to crack this season. Senior Jack Bychich, 6-foot-3 from Baltimore, is the team's top scorer, however, a lack of team height may hurt with Dick Mitchell, 6-foot-5 sophomore and 6-foot-5 freshman, Paul Nicholson, the tallest men on the squad.

Jayhawks And Owls Are Alike

By MAX B. SKELTON HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Jack Mitchell said today his Kansas Jayhawks and the Rice Owls, opponents in Saturday's Bluebonnet Bowl game, are very much alike. "I'd say they are about even," said the Kansas coach. "It ought to be a good offensive game."

Mitchell arrived Thursday, a day ahead of his Big Eight Conference team. He was worried because his Jayhawks have had only two practice sessions outdoors since their final regular season game with Missouri.

"The weather has kept us indoors and we really don't have a place to work indoors," he said. "We need work on blocking and pass defense. I really don't know what to expect."

The former Oklahoma quarterback said neither Rice nor Kansas has an explosive-type player who can break up a ball game in a hurry.

"Rice has Hutch Blume and we have Curtis McClinton but they aren't James Saxtons, Doak Walkers, or Billy Cannons," he said.

Kansas, with a 6-3-1 record, accepted its second bowl game invitation in history after finishing in a second place tie with Missouri in the Big Eight Conference. Rice claimed third place in the Southwest Conference with a 7-3 record.

In the first team are backs William Edwards of Ayden and Danny Dilda of Farmville. Named to the second team is tackle Carroll McLawhorn of Ayden.

The All-East team is picked by a poll of sports writers coaches in cooperation with the News and Observer.

Ayden's William Edwards is described by Coach Stuart Tripp as "the best back in our area—not only in my opinion, but that of the other coaches in our (Coastal) conference." Tripp cited such other qualifications as all conference quarterback last year and fullback this year. He also mentioned the fact that Edwards is a good punter with almost a 40-yard average and "at least 20 touchdowns."

Of Farmville's Danny Dilda, Coach Elbert Moyer said, "He is the finest all-round back we have ever had in Farmville—outstanding in all departments of play such as a punter, quick kicker, passer, pass receiver, runner, blocker and defender." Moyer added that Dilda is "deceptive and powerful." During the season Dilda scored 11 touchdowns and passed for seven more with most of his touchdown runs at least 20 yards out, and averaged about seven yards per carry.

In addition to the three boys who placed on the first two teams, four others from this area were listed as honorable mentions. They were end Rex Hodges of Farmville, center Eddie Boone of Robersonville, and backs Charles Forbes of Robersonville and Rudolph Cannon of Ayden.

Roger Maris Named As The Male Athlete Of The Year

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Roger Maris of the New York Yankees, the American League's most valuable player and home run champion and the man whose dramatic pursuit of Babe Ruth's record enthralled the baseball world, is The Associated Press' male athlete of the year for 1961.

The outfielder, 27, who hit 61 homers, a record for a single season, was the overwhelming choice in the balloting by 253 sports writers and broadcasters in the annual AP poll.
Paul Hornung, Green Bay's outstanding halfback, was second and Warren Spahn, Milwaukee's veteran southpaw pitcher, was third. They were followed by Ernie Davis, All-America halfback from Syracuse, and Mickey Mantle, Maris' slugging teammate.
Maris was named first on 160 ballots. Mantle was second with 18 firsts followed by Spahn with 14. On a basis of three points for first place, two for second and one for third, Maris collected 555 points, Hornung 108, Spahn 95, Davis 79 and Mantle 77.
Maris will receive the fraternal Order of the Eagles-Frederick C. Miller Trophy at a dinner in Milwaukee, Jan. 4. He is the first baseball player to win the trophy since Ted Williams in 1957. I was won last year by Rafer Johnson, the Olympic decathlon champion and world record holder. The year before it was Inemar Johansson of Sweden, then world heavyweight boxing champion.
Maris' pursuit of the games' most cherished record—Ruth's 60 home runs—swept the pennant races, expansion and the performances of the game's other stars into the background.

The deadline game set by Commissioner Ford Frick for breaking Ruth's standard in 154 decisions came on Sept. 29 in Baltimore. In his second time at bat, Maris drove the ball over the right field fence for his 59th homer. He failed in two more tries to tie the mighty Bambino's standard.
Then, on Sept. 26, Maris hit No. 60. And in his final game of the regular campaign on Oct. 1, he belted a fastball into the right field stands in Yankee Stadium off Boston's Tracy Stallard for No. 61.
Maris also recorded the most total bases in the league, 366 and the most runs batted in, 142. His batting average was .269.
Hornung, who led the Packers to their second straight Western Conference championship in the National Football League, is a cinch to win his third consecutive scoring title. With one game remaining in the regular season, Hornung has 146 points, 50 more than the runner-up, teammate Jim Taylor.
Spahn led the National League in earned run average (3.09) and complete games (21) while winning 21 games. He also pitched the only no-hitter of the big league season and boosted his lifetime total to 309 victories.

Davis was awarded the Heisman Trophy as college football's outstanding player. He plays his final college game Saturday in the Liberty Bowl against Miami (Fla.) in Philadelphia.
Mantle hit 54 homers and batted .317, fourth highest in the American League.
Rounding out the first ten in the voting were Y. A. Tittle, veteran quarterback of the New York Giants; Whitey Ford, 25-game winning pitcher for the Yankees; Ralph Boston, who set a world record in the broad jump with a leap of 27 feet; Valery Brumel of the Soviet Union, the world's leading high jumper, and South Africa's Gary Player, winner of the Masters golf tournament.

Bones Doesn't Understand What Happened To Deacs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wake Forest's Deacons, who were figured to be the class of the Atlantic Coast Conference this year, haven't performed as expected and Coach Bones McKinney doesn't understand it.

"We're just not playing basketball," said McKinney after Wake Forest's loss to Florida Tuesday night. The Deacons, who were ranked third in the pre-season Associated Press poll, now stand 2-2.

They beat Davidson and N.C. State. Besides Florida, they lost to top-ranked Ohio State.

"I wish I could put my finger on the reason or reasons, but I am just as surprised at the inept play as many of our followers," McKinney said.

"Wins at Virginia and Maryland could do a great deal to help the boys," said McKinney.

The Deacons play at Virginia (2-4) tonight and at Maryland Saturday night, winding up the pre-holiday schedule. "They'll have a week at home for the holidays before returning to get ready for our game with Duke," Wake Forest meets Duke at Greensboro Dec. 30.

Duke, winging along with a 5-0 record, faces Duquesne tonight in the Steel Bowl tournament at Pittsburgh. Pitt meets Arizona in the other tourney game tonight, and the winners meet for the title Saturday night. Duquesne is unbeaten in three games.

Maryland (0-3) entertains Minnesota tonight in the only other game involving an ACC team.

Meanwhile, Clemson edged Florida State Thursday night, 82-77 in two overtimes.

Nick Milasovich was the Clemson hero in the thriller at Tallahassee, dumping in six points in the second overtime. He finished with 20 points, high for the game.

The score was tied 69-69 at the end of regulation play. Each team scored just two points in the first 5-minute overtime. Milasovich hit two field goals and two free throws in the second overtime.

Davidson Makes Its Home Debut Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Davidson's basketball team, which hasn't come close to victory in four games on the road, makes its home debut tonight with Coach Lefty Driesell wondering whether his sophomores will ever come of age.

"We've got three of 'em in our starting lineup and if they don't begin coming through for us soon, it's going to be a real long season," says Driesell, now in his second year as Wildcat coach.

Even though they own the conference's highest scorer in Bill Jarman, who's averaging 29.8 points a game, Driesell admits to doubt that the Wildcats ever will become world-beaters this winter.

But he's sure they can win some Southern Conference games—maybe even tonight's skirmish with touring Furman (3-2)—"if we ever learn a little consistency."

"The only thing we've done consistently is lose ball games," says Driesell. "I think we must have set some sort of record for throwing the ball away, and our defense has been real spotty."

The trio of sophs in Davidson's starting five are 6-7 Terry Holland, 6-4 Bill Beerman, and 6-1 Lyman Dillon. Holland, with 50 points in four games, is the only one of the three averaging in double figures. Beerman has only 27 points, Dillon a mere 14.

Going into tonight's game the Wildcats are 0-2 in Southern Conference play. Furman is 0-1. Its loss was to West Virginia.

The game at Davidson headlines a three-game card for conference clubs tonight.

49ers Can Keep Alive Bowl Chance By Downing Colts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The San Francisco 49ers can keep alive their chances of making a January bowl appearance if they can beat the Baltimore Colts in Saturday's National Football League game in San Francisco.

tionally-televized contest (CBS, 4:30 p.m. EST) would knock the 49ers out of the running for the NFL's runnerup Bowl in Miami Jan. 6 and the Detroit Lions would represent the Western Conference against the Eastern Division's runnerup.

to sit back and await the outcome of the Lions' game in Detroit Sunday—last day of the NFL's regular season—against the Philadelphia Eagles, who still stand a chance of gaining a tie for the Eastern championship.

A Detroit victory not only would send the Lions to Miami but would also give the New York Giants the Eastern title regardless of how the Giants fare against the Cleveland Browns Sunday in New York.

The Giants-Browns scrap is the day's big clash. If the Giants, with a full game lead over the Eagles, beat Cleveland, they won't have to depend upon help from the Lions.

If the Browns whip the favored Giants, and the Eagles down the Lions, the championship in the East would be decided in a play-off game between New York and Philadelphia in Yankee Stadium Dec. 24.

The Green Bay Packers have already won the Western crown for the second year in a row and will be warming up Sunday for the Dec. 31 championship game with the Eastern kingpins in Green Bay.

All of the other six clubs definitely will drop the curtain on their seasons Sunday. The Dallas Cowboys play at Washington, where the Redskins will be trying to snap a 23-game victory famine; the Minnesota Vikings visit the Chicago Bears, and the Pittsburgh Steelers invade St. Louis.

Gabriel Has Denied Fabulous FB Offers

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State College quarterback Roman Gabriel has denied receiving fabulous contract offers from two American Football League teams.

Gabriel, who has signed to play next season with the National League's Los Angeles Rams, replied Thursday night to Oakland Tribune reports of the AFL deals.

Tribune sportswriter Scotty Sterling wrote that Gabriel had turned down a $95,000, three-year contract with the Oakland Raiders and a four-year, $170,000 pact with the Dallas Texans.

Raider General Manager Wes Fry declined to confirm the figures, but he did not report that the team gave Lamar Hunt, Dallas owner, permission to talk to Gabriel.

Gabriel was the draft selection of both the Rams and the Raiders. The News and Observer has said he signed a three-year, no-out, $80,000 contract with the Rams.

Gabriel said, "Oakland offered me about the same as the Rams did and it was certainly nothing like $95,000."

He said Hunt had tried to get a hold of him telephone but the contact never was made.

Gabriel said he never pursued the Oakland offer because "I had what I wanted with Los Angeles. It was nothing like $95,000 and what Oakland offered wasn't anything like that either."

Fry was quoted as saying that Oakland offered Gabriel more than the team has offered any rookie previously.

Syracuse And Miami To Clash

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Ground-minded Syracuse, led by All-America halfback Ernie Davis, clashes with air-minded Miami Saturday in the third annual Liberty Bowl with the Orange favored to win.

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder of Syracuse and Andy Gustafson of Miami pronounced their squads in good physical condition and ready to go.

Gustafson said passing star George Mira, a sophomore from Key West, Fla., who was held out of drills all week because of a slight case of flu and tonsillitis, definitely would start Saturday.

Both teams arrived Thursday and worked out in the 100,000-seat Philadelphia Stadium, site of the nationally televised (NBC) game which is expected to draw between 15,000 and 20,000 fans on the basis of advance sales.

Mira, who has completed 74 of 151 passes for 896 yards and 8 touchdowns, will arrive here today. He was kept in the infirmary an additional day as a precautionary measure.

The U.S. Weather Bureau forecast mostly fair weather with some afternoon cloudiness and a high in the low 30s.

Guards Eben Jones of Spencerport, N. Y., and Dennis Ehrenberger of Glenshaw, Pa., are co-captains of Allegheny College's football team.

Seven Rescued From Flying Boat Down At Sea

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Seven persons who had clung through the night to a flying boat tossed by choppy seas were rescued from their precarious perch today by the tug Maggie after a quick run out of Nassau.

The Coast Guard in Miami reported that all seven appeared to be all right. The plane, a converted Navy PBV Flying Boat, was taken in tow by the Maggie. She was headed for Green Cay, a tiny island 75 miles south-southeast of Nassau.

An attempt will be made to repair the plane at Green Cay, the Coast Guard said.

Crippled by engine trouble, the PBV was ditched in reef-cluttered Atlantic waters 65 miles south of Nassau Thursday night, and the passengers scrambled onto the top. A Coast Guard search plane reached the scene shortly after dawn and hovered overhead as the Maggie hurried out from Nassau.

The Maggie had to thread through treacherous Bahama Island reefs to make the rescue.

The castaways were believed to be A. Alex Shuford, a North Carolina industrialist, and his party.

They were returning from a business trip to Venezuela. Their plane, a converted Navy PBV Flying Boat, made an emergency set-down at dusk Thursday after one of its two engines failed.

No one was reported injured in the landing.

The Coast Guard located the plane Thursday night in the Atlantic about 65 miles south of Nassau but said tricky reefs and shallows at the scene precluded any rescue attempt in the darkness.

The Coast Guard said early today that the marooned group reported two-foot swells in the sea around them and a 10-knot wind which was edging the wreck toward a reef.

A Florida business associate said the plane took Shuford, president of Shuford Mills, Hickory, N.C.; a company executive, Hal Simms; and several other persons from Orlando to Caracas Friday.

Conay Kittredge of Orlando, the associate, said he presumed the same party was aboard on the return flight.

Coast Guard planes dropped a radio to the group but poor radio reception at Miami prevented search and rescue headquarters from confirming their names immediately.

"I was supposed to go on that trip myself," said Kittredge, "but I was delayed by business in the Bahamas and Miami and missed it by a day."

Kittredge said his connection with Shuford Mills is in real estate development. He owns considerable land in the area of Cape Canaveral, Florida east coast site of the U.S. missile test center.

The U.S. Coast Guard sent out search planes after commercial pilot, identified as Joe Brannock of Hickory, N.C., say he was going to ditch.

The PBV apparently scraped against a reef while landing. Those aboard reported they had "controlled" flooding of the cabin.

A patrol boat of the Coast Guard was dispatched from Miami and another rescue craft put out from Nassau.

CHRISTMAS PARTY—Members of the Gamma Rho Chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order at East Carolina College entertained a group of their young friends in Greenville Wednesday night at a Christmas party held in the fraternity's chapter room. Boys and girls enjoyed refreshments served by the brothers, and each guest received gifts. Hit of the entertainment was the appearance of Santa Claus who chatted with each of the youngsters and took orders for filling Christmas stockings.

'Misused Authority' Is Charged Wallace Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Federal Trade Commission examiner has ruled that the Wallace, N.C., Tobacco Board of Trade and its warehouse members misused their authority to allocate selling time, resulting in an illegal restraint of trade.

Edgar A. Buttle, the FTC examiner, issued an order Thursday that would require the board, its officials, and three warehouse members to discontinue the alleged practice.

Hugh M. Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the board, declined to comment on the examiner's finding before studying the document.

Other officials of the board are William L. Hussey Jr. and Granville Sheffield, Warehouse members are Hussey's Warehouse, Sheffield's Warehouse, and Blanchard & Parrior Warehouse, Inc.

The examiner's decision is not final and may be reviewed by the FTC or appealed by the board.

Morrison said he could not predict the board's course of action. He said that would have to be determined at a meeting of the board.

The examiner explained that the Wallace board has authority to allocate 5 1/2 hours of selling time each day, and does so through a floor space system.

Under the system, Buttle said, each warehouseman received a percentage of the total daily basket allotment for the market corresponding to his percentage of warehouse floor space on the market.

Buttle said evidence indicated the board and its warehouse members misused this authority by allocating selling time to sheds, poultry houses and other structures unfit for sale of tobacco at auction.

He said, "the result of the operation of this practice is to effectively foreclose the market to new tobacco warehouse competition . . . the eventual result of the foregoing practices restrictive of competition is monopoly."

Little Dog Still On Traffic Island

SALMON, Idaho (AP) — About a month ago, a little black dog-owners and ancestry unknown—took up residence on a mid-street traffic island in the center of town.

He has spent most of his waking hours and all of his sleeping hours on that small, unsheltered island. Temperatures as low as 14 below zero haven't made him move.

Employees of a nearby grocery take him food. He retreats when they approach but always returns for the food.

He never barks at passing automobiles. Once in a while he looks up expectantly, as though hoping for loved ones to pick him up.

If the loved ones should return before Christmas, they'll find him under a lighted Christmas tree which has been erected on the island—sleeping by night, just watching by day.

Somebody Taking Special Interest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov may joke about fallout shelters, but someone in the Russian Embassy apparently has more than a passing interest in the subject.

Earlier this week Menshikov told the National Press Club audience that umbrellas would be a good deal cheaper and just as effective as any fallout shelter in event of a nuclear war.

Wednesday Washington city Civil Defense headquarters said that on Oct. 10 two Russian Embassy officials signed out three films dealing with biological warfare and bombproofing of buildings. They came back two days later and asked for more films.

Flood-Harried Game Protected

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A special force of game wardens has been sent to southwest Alabama to keep hunters from illegally preying on flood-harried game.

Conservation Director William C. Younger said more than 100 hunters have been arrested in the Mobile area for such violations in the past week.

Rising water has forced many deer and turkeys to take refuge on high ground, sometimes on hills surrounded by water, he said.

Powell Bill Sum To 3-House Town

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Highway Commission had no choice but to grant Powell Bill funds to a municipality with only three houses, Chairman Merrill Evans said today.

Chadwick areas, a coastal development, was granted $1,500.33 in Powell Bill funds. The money, a portion of the gasoline tax, is distributed to municipalities for street work.

Chadwick areas was incorporated by an act of the last legislature. Application for the Powell Bill funds was signed by Percy G. Grant as mayor. He reportedly has resigned after disagreeing with other municipal officers on spending of the funds.

Expanded Facilities Will Be Shown Public Sunday

Phillips Brothers will hold a formal opening for their expanded mortuary facilities here on Sunday from 2 until 7 p.m., at the new building at 501 Boyd Ave.

The Negro mortuary is being built by the brothers, Roderick and Donovan Phillips, who have been established in Greenville since 1939. They formerly were located at 614 McKinley Ave., but have expanded facilities to meet increased business.

The public is invited to attend the formal opening.

The mortuary service is for all faiths and a new feature of the building will be chapel facilities. Assembly halls will also be open "for use by civic minded groups," Roderick Phillips said. The building is fully air conditioned and has general heating and lighting, which will provide year-round comfort.

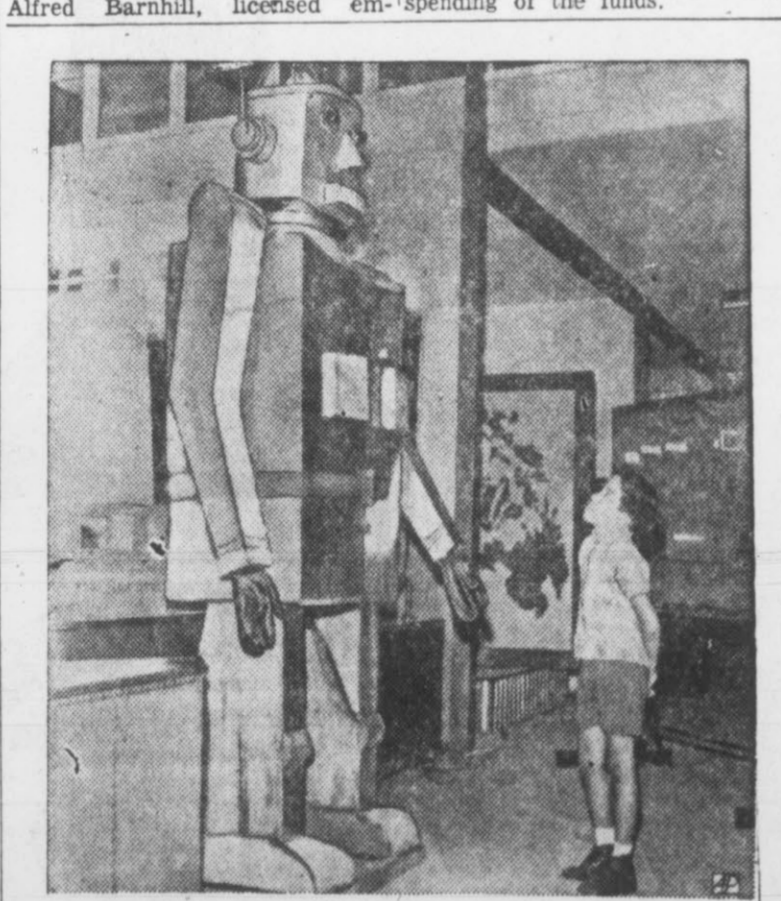

Extra garage space "makes it convenient for the sheltering of cars and equipment," Phillips said. The mortuary is about a block long, between Boyd and Battle Streets on Halifax.

Another service for families is protection which will enable them to finance funeral expenses by the month, Phillips said.

Those associated with Phillips Brothers Mortuary include Donovan Phillips Jr., an apprentice; Alfred Barnhill, licensed embalmer; Miss Carolyn Keel, bookkeeper and lady attendant; and Alton Gray Daughtry. Other employees are brought in at special times when service demands them.

Both Roderick and Donovan Phillips are graduates of McAllister Embalming School of New York City. They are licensed in North Carolina.

They are natives of Nash County.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Pretty Lee Palsom would rather feel the satisfaction and independence of a modern young woman than get from using her brains to achieve something substantial than capitalize on the effect of her attractiveness to men. She has a happy glow over placing Bill and Jane Endicott in just the right home for them in time for Christmas—and earning a substantial commission from the deal.

She is less pleased because "Uncle John" Purvis, the leading lawyer in their Georgia town, and Kermit Dalton, the man at the bank who wants to marry Lee, steered a wealthy prospect from New York, Martin Whitfield, to her office. They helped develop Whitfield's interest in buying the old Eastman plantation, "Oakland," on which the bank has a mortgage. Lee thought any man in his right mind who saw that property, which the Eastman heirs had let run to an uncultivated ruin, would turn away quickly. To her surprise, and in spite of her obvious reluctance to sell it to him, Whitfield said he would take it. Lee is not impressed with a man—millionaire or not—who makes such a decision on snap judgment, even though he is a handsome male obviously interested in her. When he suggested their dining together, she arranged a foursome, with Kermit Dalton as her own escort and a blind date, Holly Eastman, for Martin. She is well aware that Holly is a "man chaser."

CHAPTER 6

Martin Whitfield was waiting for Lee and Kermit in the lobby of his hotel, where he greeted them warmly.

In the car, as they were driving, out to pick up Holly, Martin chatted pleasantly, and by the time they arrived at the small, neat but quite unpretentious cottage, they were beginning to feel like old friends.

As Kermit stopped the car the door of the cottage was flung open and Holly came running down the path toward them.

Martin swung open the door for her, somewhat startled by the haste with which she scrambled in, and followed her, as Lee made the introductions.

"Let's hurry, Kermit darling," said Holly breathlessly. "Aunt Cora is in a tizzy and could easily demand that I come back to hear the rest of her lecture."

Martin was studying her curiously in the spring twilight. She turned her lovely face toward him, her blue eyes very wide, the soft, lovely mouth drooping.

"You see, Martin, my aunt is a bit peculiar. She doesn't approve of my going on blind dates," she explained.

Lee turned and looked at her, astonished.

"Holly, for heaven's sake, didn't you tell Miss Cora that I had arranged the date and that I vouch for Mr. Whitfield?" she protested.

Holly looked at her and said wistfully, "Oh, you just can't understand how very odd Aunt Cora can be. Sometimes I wonder if—well, if living alone for so long hasn't turned her—well, after all, Mimi and I would never have come to live with her if we'd dreamed how odd she is."

"Perhaps if we go back, and Mr. Dalton and Miss Palsom introduce me to your aunt—" Martin suggested dryly.

Holly laid a swift hand on his arm in eager protest.

"Oh, my goodness, no!" she gasped as though the prospect were one she scarcely dared contemplate. "We'd never get away! Now that we are here—" She sighed blissfully and relaxed, giving him an enchanting smile.

Lee glanced at Kermit, who said nothing, but whose jaw was firmly set.

"Oh," sighed Holly, "this is nice! I haven't been so happy since Mimi and I were evicted from Oakland."

"Evicted?" Martin asked, startled.

"What else?" mourned Holly. "Kermit's nasty old bank practically threw us out in the snow."

"Now, Holly, have a heart," Kermit protested sharply.

"You were as glad to get away from Oakland as Mimi was," Lee reminded her. "After all, you were bored to death way out there."

"Well, why not," Holly insisted, "with the place practically falling in on top of us and no money to prop it up? You are going to buy it, Martin?"

"If you're quite sure you don't mind," said Martin.

Once more Holly put her hand on his arm in a touch that was faintly caressing.

"Oh, no, Martin," she said earnestly. "Of course I wouldn't want just anybody to live there, because after all it is my home. The happiest years of my life were spent there, and it will always be very dear to me."

As Kermit drove into the parking space in front of the Country Club, Holly gave a girlish squeal of delight.

"Oh, I so hoped we'd be dining here," she said eagerly. "I haven't been here in ages, not since we lost our membership after Dad died."

Kermit parked the car. As the four of them stepped out and started up the steps of the Club, Holly asked Martin, "Are you a member, Martin?"

"How could he be? He just barely arrived in town," Kermit told her, and there was an edge to his voice. "But he will be, of course, as soon as he is ready to make an application."

"Oh, Martin, do hurry up and get accepted," Holly pleaded eagerly. "and then we can come out often. It's such a lovely place; the only place in Lewisville, where the food is really decent."

"I resent that," said Kermit swiftly.

"Oh, well, 'business' men's lunch" at the Cheriolo Grill would be your speed, Kermit darling," Holly sniffed disdainfully as she walked up the steps beside Martin.

While the two men busied themselves securing a table, Lee said firmly, "Come along, Holly," and led the way to the powder room.

Holly glanced at her with a faint touch of apprehension as she seated herself at a mirrored shelf and touched her fingers to her shining, soft golden hair.

"Holly, you're about as subtle as an elephant in a china shop," Lee accused her. "I always knew you were a beautiful girl, but I didn't dream you were stupid."

Holly's blue eyes chilled.

"I suppose you want Martin for yourself?" she cooed venomously. "Don't you know the law, Lee dear? Only one husband to a girl, and you've been counting on Kermit—so why shouldn't I have Martin?"

"No reason at all, unless you make a complete fool of yourself," Lee said with some heat. "Don't you realize, Holly, what kind of an impression you are giving him? The poor little orphan gal heaved out into the snow by the black-mustached villain—nothing in the world could be sillier. Martin understands the whole proposition; he's gone into it thoroughly, first at the bank, then with Uncle John."

Monique Is Given Chance In Dramatics

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Molique Van Vooren, a blonde Belgian bombshell who has done very nicely as a supperclub chanteuse and foil for some top comedians, is currently engaged in fighting that old demon, type-casting.

This is a complicated process, involving a determined effort to eliminate her French—or Belgian—accent and to find parts remote from characters which could also be played by, for example, the Gabor girls, Jayne Mansfield and, once upon a time, Fifi D'Orsay.

"It's a plain, straightforward business deal with him. You keep on whining!"

"I was not whining!"

"Certainly sounded like it," Lee told her.

"Well, what am I supposed to do? Tell him how happy I am he's buying my cherished old home?"

"Cherished old home my foot!" Lee cut in. "Look, Holly, he's seen your 'cherished old home,' which is falling to pieces from neglect. You're behaving as though it were something precious and cherished and as if you were weeping your heart out because it's passing out of the family."

Holly had listened thoughtfully, her eyes faintly narrowed.

"You're probably right," she agreed slowly. "I'd better change my tactics."

"I think you had," Lee said.

Holly studied her sharply.

"I suppose you've told him a lot of nasty things about me?" she asked.

"I told him you were a lovely girl," Lee answered, and added frankly, "Uncle John warned him you were dangerous."

Holly's expressive face lit up with delight.

"He did?" she marveled. "A sort of femme fatale!"

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

"If you're identified with France," complained Miss Van Vooren "and have a pretty face, you are always in comedy, always the foil for a comedian. If you can lose the French accent, you can do almost anything."

At the moment, Miss Van Vooren's accent still strongly suggests the land of her nativity and with her pale hair and svelte figure she is far from inconspicuous. But on Sunday night, in NBC's "Show of the Week" series, she will play a straight dramatic, non-comedy, non-singing role. She will in fact, play a spy of the Mata Hari type, in glasses and a dark wig, in a drama called "Trick or Treason."

Monique spent four bitter, hungry years as a child in Brussels when the Germans occupied Belgium during World War II, but knew little of the glamorous side of war beloved by TV script writers.

"We suffered a lot, and those of us who were growing up had no youth as you see it in this country now," she reflected.

"Even to this day I find I cannot throw away a stale piece of bread."

The White House is, apparently distributing its favors to the television networks on an equal basis. NBC got the first shot at the Kennedy family program several months back, with interviews with both the President and the First Lady. Now, soon CBS will be able to take TV viewers on a tour of the White House with Mrs. Kennedy as guide. Maybe if ABC plays its cards right, it can line up Caroline for a kiddie's news special.

When "Mrs. G. Goes to College" becomes "The Gertrude Berg" show in a new time slot (Thursday, 9:30-10 p.m.) on Jan. 11, heroine Sarah Green will also quit college. The story line is being shifted from classroom comedy to Saray's adventures as co-owner of a campus boarding house.

Soviet Trawlers Halt Radar Tests

BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — The appearance of a vast Soviet fishing fleet off the New England Coast has disrupted vital testing of experimental radar equipment for the nation's air defense.

An Air Force official, who asked that his name be withheld, said Thursday that "many tests of experimental equipment have often shut down because of the Russian fleet."

Some 100 Soviet trawlers and several mother ships as large as freighters have been seen off the coast for months. Some have been observed within 20 miles of Cape Cod. Others were near enough to be visible from Nantucket Island, 30 miles off the Massachusetts Coast.

The pioneer system for radar defense is the SAGE complex developed by Lincoln Laboratory of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Both sides in the cold war use devices known as ferrets in planes and ground installations to detect radar emissions and thereby discover the source, wave length and other features of the opposing radar system.

Air Force scientists have no doubt the Soviet fishing fleet is well equipped with radar devices.

The final link in a series of 21 SAGE direction centers is scheduled to open today in Sioux City, Iowa.

The SAGE center at Lincoln Laboratory, the first one built, is exclusively for experimentation. The SAGE defense center for New England is at Newburgh, N.Y.

Airborne Sends Thanks To Corps

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Ten days ago a group of anonymous Camp Lejeune Marines sent a supply of C-rations to complaining National Guardsmen and reservists at Ft. Bragg.

The rations were to be distributed among those who had sent letters to their homes, newspapers and congressmen complaining of bad and not enough food.

The Marines got a tongue-in-cheek anonymous reply Thursday. It came in the form of a signed simply "Airborne," meaning the 82nd Airborne Division, regular Army men headquartered at Bragg.

On behalf of the National Guardsmen, the letter thanked "base radio station personnel" at this Marine Base for the food sent "to the impoverished, beleaguered and badgered reservists stationed here at Ft. Bragg."

The letter added, "We regret having overlooked these poor souls in their (sic) midst, therefore obligating your men to come through once again in the fine tradition of the corps."

Gov. Wesley Powell of New Hampshire visited Ft. Bragg last weekend to investigate published complaints from Guardsmen about their living and training conditions. The two cases of C-rations were sent during the weekend to the Fayetteville Observer, with a letter expressing sympathy for the complainants.

The Marine letter was signed "radio base personnel." There is no radio unit as such, but there are communications centers at the base.

Nostalgia In Cement At Grauman's Place

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Note from the boss: "Nostalgic piece of footprints at Grauman's?" Note from the boss: "Nostalgic piece of footprints at Grauman's? No, Wood 138th in 34 years. When do they remove the blocks? On death? Any footprints still around but non-working, whose blocks have been consigned to the graveyard of Grauman's blocks?" Note to boss: Went to Grauman's Chinese Theater; You'll note it confirmed on my expense account. No gawkers around, so I had the blocks all to myself and the doorman.

All 138 blocks present and accounted for, including damp cement with pete paws of Natalie Wood. Bum steer on block graveyard. Blocks may be dug up and moved, but never tossed out. Once you're in cement at Grauman's, you're in to stay.

Nostalgia everywhere you step. Oldtimers get tramped on the most. These names in front of the theater entrance: Bebe Daniels, Marion Davies, Mary Pickford, Norma and Constance Talmadge. Most of the early signers wrote messages to Sid Grauman, who built the gawdy house (and later lost it).

Memo: Don't crack jokes in cement; Eleanor Powell's inscription to Sid: "You're 'taps' with me." She left her metal taps in the goo. Other impressions: Betty Grable's legs, William S. Hart's guns. John Barrymore's profile, Joe E. Brown's mouth, Jimmy Durante's nose, Al Jolson's knees, Sonja Henie's skates, Bob Hope's nose. Harold Lloyd's glasses. Monty Woolley's beard.

Observation: Cement lasts longer than Hollywood marriages. Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor share a block dated 1941. Dick Powell and Joan Blondell are side-by-side in cement though not in life. They co-autographed in 1937.

Who is Oskar Werner? A good question. He's a German actor who appeared in "The Big Life". Therein lies the falling of the footprints. Too often they were used merely to publicize a current movie, rather than to reward

Presidential Trip Could Be Significant Alliance Test

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Kennedy's weekend visit to Venezuela and Colombia may turn out to be a significant test for his Alliance for Progress.

If the trip is a notable success, prospects for the alliance will seem brighter. The prospects evidently need brightening. Outside the United States the alliance often is regarded, even by its friends, as a far from hopeful attempt to wipe out Latin America's past through voluntary reforms—overnight.

The Kennedy trip is limited to the two South American nations whose governments are among the best friends of the United States. He is to confer with perhaps the most courageous of all the democratic leaders in Latin America: Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela and Alberto Lleras Camargo of Colombia.

Both men are butts of violent Communist-Castroist attack. Both have broken diplomatic relations with Havana. Both are betting they can hold off an explosion on the left. Each is staking his future on the hope that the Alliance for Progress will become a positive reality.

These are men Fidel Castro repeatedly taunts with names like miserably traitor, imperialist lackey, and far worse. It seems safe to say that in all Latin America, Castro hates no men more.

In Colombia, the President will attend a ceremony inaugurating a program to be carried out with significant U.S. financial participation: the construction of 13,000 houses in Bogota for the labor and middle classes and the construction of 22,000 classrooms.

These are the sort of projects Latin Americans understand and welcome. Such programs can have a heavy impact among the young Latin Americans, the students and intellectuals who cause much of the ferment and who are captivated by the idea of rapid change toward national respect.

Of all problems in Latin America, illiteracy and miserable housing probably are the most nagging and the most dangerous in terms of breeding resentment and violence.

Lleras has told his countrymen the U.S. President is not journeying to South America to "make political and economic demands like those which chained Cuba to the Soviet orbit in exchange for arms."

There is risk involved in the Kennedy trip. It would be strange if the Communists and Castroists did not try to do something to spoil it. However, if it is successful, it can pave the way for somewhat bolder ventures south of the border.

As President Lleras pointed out, perhaps the time has come when Latin Americans must decide for themselves whether their future lies with a Marxist-Leninist Castro under Soviet control or in "collaboration among the countries of the hemisphere which answers our needs, is adjusted to our way of life and asks nothing in return from us."

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets steady. Supplies generally short, demand good. Prices paid producers for clean, ungraded eggs, delivered nearby grading stations on a grade-yield basis, cases exchanged: grade A large, whites 37-38, medium whites 32-33, small, whites 25-27.

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue chips showed a steadier tone in a mixed stock market early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

The Associated Press average of 90 stocks at noon was off 20 at 234.30 with industrials down 30, rails up 10 and utilities up 10. Most gains and losses were fractional.

The "big," highly capitalized issues which have paced the latest rally and then declined sharply on profit taking were mostly firm.

The British and Dutch issues of Unilever, which made their debut this week with a strong rise followed by a steep decline, showed minor plus signs as they met support.

Year-end cross currents still prevailed. Volume was substantially lower than in any session this week. The market was trading cautiously and little group leadership was shown.

The aerospace issues, however, were generally higher. Mail order-retail stocks also improved. Most copper, drugs and chemicals declined.

Unilever Ltd. recovered 1/2 at 28 1/2 on an opening block of 20,000 shares, then pared the gain. Unilever N.V. held a fractional gain.

General Motors, American Telephone and Standard Oil (New Jersey) held fairly steady. U.S. Steel and some other leaders in this group eased.

Schering was off more than a point as drugs continued soft.

In the automotive section Ford and Chrysler were fractionally lower despite a Commerce Department prediction of a big boost in auto production in 1962.

Texas Instruments advanced more than 2 points.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 1.17 at 729.77. Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed in heavy trading.

Corporate bonds declined. U.S. government bonds were about unchanged.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog prices steady. Tops of 17.50-18 Smithfield; 17-18 Wilson, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive, Newton Grove, Nahantia; 17.25-17.75 Rocky Mount, Spring Hope; 17.25-17.50 Murfreesboro, Robertsville; 16.75-17.25 Pembroke; 17.75 Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck, Rich Square; 17.50 Goldsboro, Clinton, Elizabethtown, Pink Hill, Fayetteville; 17.25 Greensboro, Dunn; 17 Siler City, Castle Hayne, Burgaw.

Wilson cash cattle prices steady: Steers and heifers, choice 23.50-25.50, good 22-24.50, standard 19-22; beef cows 14-16.50, heavy cutters 13-14.50; light bulls 12.50-15, heavy bulls 15-18.

Food Will Pay Admission To Kiddie Show

A can or package of food is the only admission charge that will be made for a one and one-half hour long "Kiddie Show" of cartoons and comedies at the Pitt Theatre Saturday morning.

The special show is a joint effort of the theater, The Daily Reflector, Radio Station WOOW and the Royal Crown Bottling Co. to raise food for needy families of Greenville and Pitt County.

The food collected at the 9:30 a.m. show will be given to the Salvation Army for distribution. Spokesmen, saying no admission will be charged except the can or package of food, expressed the hope that the project will be "highly successful."

It was noted that children attending the cartoon show will receive a free soft drink.

40-Year Service Pin Is Awarded

The presentation of a 40-year service pin to a public works employee highlighted the second annual Christmas Banquet for the Negro employees of the City of Greenville last night at the South Greenville Recreation Center.

George Myers, an employee of the Sanitation Division of the Public Works Department, received the pin from Mayor Charles King and City Manager Louis Scheepers.

In addition to the 40-year service pin, the City Council last night voted to grant a $50 pay increase to Myers for the month of December as a Christmas bonus for the "outstanding record he has achieved," Scheepers said today.

Nine other employees were awarded service pins, including a husband-wife team, Caesar and Alverta, Corbett, both employees of the Police Department. Corbett received a 10-year pin while his wife, a school crossing guard, received a pin for five years service. Others who received service pins at the banquet, which were awarded for service in "denominations of five years," included Clinton Burnett, Charles Q. Cobb, Jesse Holden and Aaron Leary, all employees of the Public Works Department and all for five years; 10-year pins to James Crandell of the Public Works Department; Luke Hemby of the Recreation Department and William Jernigan of City Hall; and a 15-year pin to Richard Grimes of the Public Works Department.

An estimated 100 employees, their wives and guests were present for the barbecue supper.

100% Loans?

RALEIGH (AP) — Plans are afoot to get dormitory construction at state-supported colleges started with 100 per cent loans from the federal government.

It was learned today that the State Board of Higher Education may approve the dorms on a 100 per cent self-liquidating basis. First, the board will seek an agreement with the Advisory Budget Commission that funds to pick up 50 per cent of the costs on a retroactive basis will be recommended to the 1963 General Assembly.

Payment of $3,500 was authorized by the commission.

office structures. The aerial view showed the entire 62 acres devoted to land uses ranging from widened streets and parking lots to commercial buildings and public structures.

Godwin also showed the commission members a total of 15 maps of the Shore Drive area, presenting the following data: land use, boundaries, land acquisition, existing land use, preliminary site plans, project area, water distribution, sanitary sewer plan, gas distribution, a grading plan and a property map. Godwin noted that all the maps were nearing completion. They will become a part of the commission's documentary presentation to the Atlanta office.

Commission members attending Thursday's meeting were Chairman Badger Johnson, Bancroft Moseley and M. E. Cavendish. In addition to the commission members, Cochran and Godwin, D. G. Nichols attended the session.

The commission granted Nichols a 70-day extension of his contract to provide the body with an acquisition appraisal of each parcel of property within the 62 acres. Nichols said his job is about 75 per cent complete. In granting the extension, the commission members agreed there had been unavoidable delays in Nichols' work.

In other action, Godwin was granted another partial payment of the $17,000 contract for the planning phase of the Shore Drive

North of Madison Avenue . . .

Somewhere north of a well known New York thoroughfare, a jolly little man in a red flannel suit who signs his name, simply, S. Claus, is getting ready for a long journey.

This happy-go-lucky fellow has the unusual custom of coming down people's chimneys once a year with toys for children. You might think from the way he laughs, and cuts capers that he doesn't have much of a plan for this odd philanthropy. But (would you believe it!) every Christmas eve, he stops by our bank and opens a few savings accounts for special folks on his list.

A savings account passbook is always an appropriate useful gift, especially for babies too young to appreciate Santa, for older boys and girls grown (or growing) skeptical, for teen-agers saving for something special, and for retired parents and grandparents who can certainly use the money.

So, if you see Santa, and if he seems to have run out of ideas, send him by Five Points to see us. Some loved one will be glad you did.
