

President Is Warmly Greeted On Arrival In Caracas

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Kennedy drove safely through the streets of Caracas today, happily responding to shouts of "Viva Kennedy," and then voiced a warning to Latin Americans to beware of alien philosophies that promise prosperity but take away the people's liberties.

The President was here to promote the Alliance for Progress that links U.S. aid billions with a program of Latin American self-help. His welcome was warm, but crowds in general were thinner than might have been expected. Many were kept away, probably, by threatening and rainy weather and by the multitude of security measures.

The most massive show of security forces ever assembled for such an occasion in Venezuela guarded the President in the wake of leftist outbreaks of violence during the week.

In his bullet-proof limousine the U.S. President drove 10 miles from Maiquetia Airport along a super-highway and then through streets lined with skyscrapers.

Thousands of troops guarded his routes and helicopters patrolled overhead, successfully blanketing the bands of Communists and Castro sympathizers who for days endeavored with firebombs and unfriendly paint brushes to create a tense and confused atmosphere for the President's visit.

On reaching La Carlota Airport at the south edge of Caracas, he took off by helicopter to visit housing and agrarian reform projects.

At La Morita, 50 miles southwest of Caracas, the Venezuelan government is presenting land titles to 86 families. There Kennedy made his principal address of the day, touching on the ways that communism and Castroism could imperil the progress of Latin America.

Alien philosophies, he said, try to tell the people that "economic progress is possible only if we submit to a discipline which destroys liberty."

The all-powerful state soon forgets its promises of progress, he said, adding:

"We have seen this in the grim, drab poverty of eastern Europe, in the famines of China and here in our own hemisphere."

He congratulated Venezuelans who "have made the transition from a repressive dictatorship to a free society."

Emphasizing two freedoms—"freedom from dictatorship and freedom from the bonds of economic and social injustice"—Kennedy said American nations must be "more than good neighbors, we must be partners in a hemisphere whose history has shaped us."

Earlier, in a welcoming speech at Maiquetia Airport, Venezuelan President Romulo Betancourt introduced President Kennedy as a man who is rectifying the "arrogant belief" that the friendship of Latin America's 180 million people could be guaranteed by dictators.

In visiting Caracas, the President came to a capital where Vice President Richard M. Nixon's car was pelted with stones and sticks and spat upon by an angry mob during a goodwill trip in 1958.

Soldiers today lined the Autopista, the 10-mile, 6-lane highway that winds up mountains from the airport to Caracas. The President and Betancourt rode in the White House bubbletop limousine along a route decked with Venezuelan and American flags.

A crowd of several hundred invited guests sprinkled confetti and welcomed leaflets as the cavalcade left the airport.

Kennedy started the day with a 1½-hour flight from San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he spent Friday night. He was accompanied by Mrs. Kennedy.

President Betancourt was on hand to greet the smiling President, and Mrs. Betancourt warmly welcomed Mrs. Kennedy.

Kennedy in his brief airport remarks recalled that Franklin D. Roosevelt, in proclaiming the Good Neighbor Policy, asserted that "through democratic processes we can strive to achieve for the Americas the highest standard of living conditions for all our people."

He continued: "Here in Venezuela that principle—the achievement of social and economic justice under democracy—is being carried forward."

Betancourt led the movement that banished the Venezuelan dictatorship of Marcos Perez Jimenez. Kennedy, noting this, declared Betancourt had reestablished democratic government here after a decade of dictatorship.

"He has carried forward a solid and responsible program of eco-economic progress after a decade of false show, waste and indifference to the needs of the people," Kennedy said.

The two presidents, with a full day's program before them in their joint efforts to advance the cause of Kennedy's Alliance for Progress, motored into Caracas at a slow pace.

The crowds seemed on the small side, with some persons scared away by all the security precautions.

On the route, the presidential limousine passed the corner where Vice President Nixon was stored by leftist demonstrators 2½ years ago. There was no incident of any kind.

U. S. Prestige Soars With Vote Refusing Seat Red China In U. N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.S. prestige in the United Nations soared today with the stunning defeat of a Soviet-led attempt to seat Communist China in place of Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalists.

The General Assembly's 48-36 rebuff of Peiping's bid was hailed as a victory for the United States that finally met the 10-year-old China issue head-on in a test of strength with the Soviet Union.

The fact that only 36 nations voted for Red China surprised many delegates. It was obviously less than anticipated by the United States, which had sought to block the Communists with its proposal making China seating "an important question" requiring a two-thirds vote for adoption.

The Reds actually fell more than a dozen votes short of even a simple majority. Twenty countries abstained from voting.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson declared the result had reinforced Nationalist China's long-disputed right to hold its seat in the United Nations. Stevenson said he was "gratified" by the outcome of the first showdown on the seating question since the Communists took over the China mainland in 1949.

But Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin said the vote showed many nations felt the China problem "should be solved immediately and radically."

"We are convinced," Zorin said, "that many who were compelled to vote against or abstain on this (Soviet) resolution will vote in favor at the next session."

Delegates predicted, however, that the Communists would have to wait a long time to see Peiping get the China seat. They pointed out that the thumping 61-34 vote for the decision requiring two-thirds approval of any change in the seating had set a precedent that would be difficult to overturn.

Britain voted with the United States on the two-thirds question, but swung with Russia on the proposal to seat Red China. France stayed with the United States throughout the balloting.

Finland, Denmark and Iceland, three Scandinavian countries that have relations with Peiping, voted to seat the Communists. Fifteen nations from Asia and Africa also voted for Red China.

Voting with the United States were most of the countries of Western Europe. So did all the Latin American nations except Cuba.

Local Building Totals $172,170

Building for the month of November totalled $172,170, according to Inspector J. W. Wilson's report.

The report showed that eight residence construction permits were issued having a total value of $99,570. There were four residence additions for which permits were issued. Their value was set at $19,800.

Two residence alterations carried a value of $2,800. Two storage buildings were authorized costing $700. Four carports will cost $6,100 and two business buildings will cost $43,000.

A new category cropped up in the monthly report. It was a fall-out shelter for which a permit was issued. The shelter is to cost $3,000.

New construction for the first five months of the fiscal year totalled $2,727,244.

Twenty-three building permits were issued during the month of the fiscal year.

Wilson reported he made 36 plumbing and sewer inspections during November bringing the yearly total to 179.

Inspection fees for November totalled $398 and for the fiscal year they amount to $2,545.

UN Troops Fight Way Into Katanga Province Capital

By ADRIAN PORTER

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP) — U.N. troops drove into the heart of this capital today and were reported to have seized two Katangan strongpoints in heavy fighting. The roar of mortar shelling and machinegun fire echoed through the nearly deserted city.

The government of this secessionist province was said to have retreated to Kipushi, 30 miles to the south, or to Kolwezi, 150 miles to the northwest. Telephones were not answered at President Moise Tshombe's residence.

Brussels Radio said Tshombe was heading for Kipushi. On the second day of an all-out attack, the 6,000-man U.N. army was reported to have captured the Lido Hotel, a strongpoint on the western side of the city near Tshombe's residence. The hotel commands one of two main roads leading south from the capital.

The second strongpoint to fall was the railroad tunnel commanding the main road into the city from the eastern suburbs, site of Irish and Swedish U.N. force headquarters.

A heavy battle between Katangan and the Swedish and Irish attackers had raged around the railroad tunnel throughout the night.

Up to last night the Katangan troops had held the tunnel and its approaches.

The engagement was marked by a barrage of mortar shells and the clatter of machinegun fire. Many mortar bombs fell in the streets and near the post office.

Katangan troops manned mortar positions around the Leopold II Hotel, which was rapidly becoming a front line in the heart of the city. The hotel is only 30 yards from the post office, which was deserted.

Dispatches from Leopoldville said the U.N. forces also launched a major attack on the main Katangan military base, Camp Massart.

The Katangan troops appeared demoralized, though many were still fighting desperately. It was expected U.N. troops would occupy the heart of the town if the attack continued.

Torrential rain fell on the streets as mortar bombs dropped regularly.

The United Nations reported its forces also had overrun the golf course near the Lido Hotel, and other Katangan strongpoint. High points on the outskirts used for mortar positions, and sniper centers on the road from U.N. headquarters to the airport also were seized.

The battle for Camp Massart was designed to isolate it and break the back of Katangan resistance. Swedish and Irish troops were trying to cut routes leading from the base to the suburbs.

In Brussels, a communique from Elisabethville released by the Katanga delegation to Belgium accused the United Nations of mass shelling the city's residential center.

"On the 12th day of fighting, the U.N. forces started a general offensive, which led to a massacre of the Elisabethville civilian population," the communique said.

"All previous U.N. actions have failed to reach the horror of Friday night's drama."

All that is left to the Katangan forces now is the center of the city and the southern suburbs, which stretch out to the big African quarter and through which runs the other main road to Rhod-

Rotary Float Wins Top Prize At Robersonville

ROBERSONVILLE—The Rotary Club took top float honors at the fifth annual Robersonville Christmas Parade which got underway about 4 p.m. yesterday. Approximately 7,000 persons attended the parade featuring four bands and 16 floats.

Robersonville Chamber of Commerce, parade sponsors, announced that two float entries tied for second place. They were the community Kindergarten and the Christian Women's Fellowship floats.

Third place float winner was the Edna Andrews School in Hamilton. Participating high school bands were from Robersonville, Plymouth, Williamston, and Tarboro. Riding on the top of the local fire engine, Santa, at the end of the parade, greeted and gave candy to hundreds of children.

In charge of the parade were Chamber of Commerce officials, J. R. Crandall, president; John Gray Taylor, vice-president; and Oscar Roberson, member of the board of directors.

Rev. Cecil Brown, pastor of the First Christian Church, presented the awards for the Chamber of Commerce. Awards presented were checks for $35, $20 and $10.

The winning float, "Prophecies of Isaiah," by the Rotary Club had an oil painted plywood background of a typical scene as might be found in Bethlehem. Robert Adkins posed as Isaiah, dressed in a white robe. Isaiah was holding a scroll and reading to two travelers, Halbert Lowder and (Continued on page six)

'CSS Ram Neuse' Floats Again On The River

RAM NEUSE FLOATS—The Confederate Ram Neuse is floating again after nearly 100 years underwater. The ship was raised Friday after months of work. She was brought to the surface of the Neuse River by about 400 steel drums attached to her sides. Lines were attached to a bulldozer and a crane ashore and the Neuse was rocked gently as water was pumped into the pit where the ship rested. She finally broke free from the sand and rose to the surface although the stern section remained awash. Three Kingston construction men—Henry Clay Casey, Tom Carlyle and Linwood Houston—raised the ship, which will become the property of the city and Lenoir County, to be put on exhibit. The men will receive $14,000 in public and private funds for their work. They said their next step is to find a place to bring the fragile ship safely to shore. (Photo by Roy Hardee).

Bid On County CD Communications Equipment Is Approved By Officials

By PATRICIA MOORE

Reflector Staff Writer

A bid of $5,395.15 on Civil Defense communications equipment for Pitt County by Dalton-Hege Inc. of Winston-Salem was accepted yesterday by local Civil Defense officials.

The Pitt County Civil Defense Council, meeting at 2 p.m. in the Commissioners Room of the courthouse, received bids on the equipment and agreed to accept Dalton-Hege, which was low bidder meeting the qualifications specified.

Acceptance of the low bid is the most significant step in Civil Defense work here so far, as it will enable the communications network to go into operation. Already, the Civil Defense headquarters has been virtually completed at the courthouse and awaits now the communications equipment to be installed.

In addition to a central communications setup in the courthouse, some 12 other communications points will be located throughout the county, with incorporated towns providing their own stations. Federal matching funds are available for these projects.

Further action on Civil Defense projects in Pitt—county-wide or for individual communities—has been stalled until 50 copies of the Civil Defense Plan for Pitt have been printed, upon orders from the federal government. Copies are to be distributed to CD leaders throughout the county.

In view of the situation, the council felt it had no choice but to approve immediate printing of the manuals and authorized CD Director J. H. Rose to begin the task as soon as possible. One estimate revealed it will cost about $500 to have the plans printed. The federal government is expected to pay half this amount.

The communications project got federal approval just before the new order was sent out, so work on it will not be affected. Delivery for all the communications equipment will take about 30 days.

Col. David Spivey, area CD director, told the Pitt Council yesterday that shelter survey teams will be coming to this area "soon." This is the federal inspection team which will seek to locate the safest buildings in the event of attack.

Upon recommendation by Rose and a motion by Mayor of Greenville Charles King, the council voted that Howard Moyer of Greenville be made treasurer of the council. Need for treasurer has arisen since approval of the communications project, which means handling of funds is now necessary.

It was pointed out to the board that Pitt County has spent very little in funds so far on Civil Defense, though the communications project is forthcoming.

The Pitt County Civil Defense Council is composed of mayors of towns in Pitt County, the director, and the chairman of the county commissioners who also serves as chairman of this group. Alton Gardner, recently elected chairman of the county, attended his first CD meeting as chairman yesterday. Also present in addition to Gardner, Col. Spivey, and Rose were County Auditor Reginald Gray; Heber Adams, in charge of communications for CD; Mayor King; W. W. Speight, county attorney; Mayor of Ayden S. F. Peterson; Mayor of Grimesland Leslie Elks; Mayor of Winterville Walter Dail; and Mayor of Farmville O. G. Spell.

Local Merchants Agree This Could Be One Of Best Seasons

By HENRY HOWARD

With six shopping days remaining before Christmas, Greenville merchants, according to a limited survey, are in general agreement that the 1961 commercial Christmas season will be one of the best ever.

While some store managers report retail sales at about the same level that was experienced here a year ago, others predict an increase in business of as much as 50 per cent.

One says: "I'd say a 10 per cent increase over last year is the line-to-gain, but you never know until the season ends. We'll just have to wait and see."

Several store managers interviewed pointed out the quality-consciousness of holiday shoppers. One reported: "We've seen more selective customers this year than I can remember. They don't mind spending a little extra in order to get quality merchandise."

Another point in general agreement among merchants was the apparent fact that droves of Christmas shoppers began their rounds earlier this year. "We've seen more early Christmas buying this year than ever before," said one retailer.

The nature of Christmas gifts being purchased was reported as the usual general mixture. Some managers reported more customers buying items in the medium-price range; others were inclined to think the average purchase trend was clinging to a slightly higher point.

Only isolated cases reported business levels about constant with the dollar-turnover experienced for Christmas, 1960. And these were highly expectant that things would get better during this weekend and next week. The change from dreary, wet weather to today's near-freezing temperatures was cited as an important factor that would boost sales. At least four merchants wistfully anticipated snow.

While some managers gave reserved predictions, others were quite outspoken in their forecasts of record-breaking commercial Christmas for 1961.

One dealer cited "the best day we've had since I've been here" came his way last week. He was expecting sales to increase as Christmas draws nearer. He said: "Next week will be the big business. But already, the overall picture is real good. If the bottom doesn't drop out, I've got it made."

Some retailers interviewed said shoppers are buying gifts with more practical uses. Others maintained Christmas gift buyers are quite willing to spend their money on novelties.

Predictions of an increase in 1961's Christmas buying over last year ranged with the merchants interviewed from 0 to 10 per cent.

One manager said the store still is counting "a good many look-see customers," but he added: "We think they'll come back to make their purchases as Christmas gets nearer. Still, our records show our sales are running ahead of what we did last Christmas."

A natural dip in sales activity during the rainy days this week was noticed by some merchants. Others, however, maintained the dreary weather had little, if any, effect. "Even the foul weather didn't slow us down appreciably, and with cold weather forecast now, the prospects for record-breaking business this Christmas seem excellent to me."

Summing up their opinions, dealers had these comments: "I'm confident of a better season this year. . . . Our sales will be up five to seven per cent this year. . . . It looks like a record-breaker to me. . . . I thought last December was a good one, this December is terrific saleswise. . . . Right now daily sales don't show an increase, but we expect things to get better this weekend. . . ."

"The overall picture this Christmas is excellent. . . . So far, I think our Christmas sales are running just a little over last year. . . . All indications are that business is better. . . . Shopping has been heavier; it started earlier, too."

WINNING CHRISTMAS FLOAT . . . The "Prophecies of Isaiah" theme and decoration of the Rotary Club float won over sixteen other floats in the Robersonville Christmas parade yesterday. Mrs. Beatrice Robertson and Jack Sharp decorated the Rotary float.

Mrs. Andresen Speaker To Winterville F. H. A.

The Winterville Future Homemakers of America held their December meeting in the Winterville High School building Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was opened with the president, Eleanor Hart leading the members in the repeating of the F.H.A. Creed.

La Verne Cayton, vice-president announced the program. Sara Branch had charge of the devotion and she used the Christmas Story from Luke.

The minutes of the November meeting were read by the secretary, Jean Mayo, and Sandra McLawhorn gave the treasurer's report. The members voted to send a get-well card to Mr. Paul J. Clark, principal of Winterville School who is in Duke Hospital.

Themes for the Mother-Daughter banquet were presented and discussed but no decisions were made. The date for the banquet is Feb. 12. The list of committees were read by president Hart and she urged the members to get busy.

La Verne Cayton, program chairman, presented Miss Alya Ray Taylor, chapter adviser and she introduced Mrs. P. K. Andresen who spoke to the group on "Christmas Customs in Denmark." Mrs. Andresen has lived in Denmark for several years. She said in Denmark the people are more concerned with the religious aspect of Christmas as each family plans for, collects the materials and makes an Advent Wreath to use with reading from the Bible as each candle is lighted one by one during the advent season before Christmas. During her talk she made a wreath. She had on display two others which she had made earlier as well as a number of figurines, plates, a tablecloth, etc. made in and brought from Denmark.

After the meeting was adjourned every one went to the Home Economics cottage where refreshments, Christmas cookies and drinks, were served. The cookies were made by the first year Home Economics girls.

All About Town With Anne Mattox

The Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church has decided to do something different for Christmas this year. A live nativity scene will take place on Christmas Eve from two until five o'clock in the afternoon. Forty eight people were chosen from the Sunday School of the church and have consented to play their parts on Christmas Eve.

Mrs. Helen Snyder and Mrs. Ann De La Mater left Friday for a trip to Panama and the Canal Zone for the holidays. They will travel by jet from Miami to Panama which is now a mere two hours flight. They will be guests of Mrs. De La Mater's son, Bill De La Mater. They will also visit Mr. R. C. Worsley and Mr. J. W. Clarke and family.

Mrs. Fred J. Forbes, Sr., is spending the Christmas holidays in McLean, Va., with her daughter and son-in-law, Captain and Mrs. Robert G. Black.

Yule parties are quite in evidence in Greenville with the Christmas holidays upon us. This week the Carolina Dance Club held their Yuletide Party at the Farmville Country Club. I hear that the ladies really outdid themselves in their party frocks. Six couples were hosts for the occasion with a caterer doing the hors d'oeuvres.

The Greenville Jaycees entertained their better halves on Wednesday night at the Greenville Country Club at a buffet dinner dance.

The newly formed Greenville Cotillion Club will present its Christmas Dance Wednesday night December 20th from 9:00 p.m. until 1:00 a.m. at the Armory. Maurice Williams and his "Zodiacs" will furnish music for dancing. The Club is for college age students and anyone desiring to be a part of this group can contact Charles Ross, president; Kathryn Oakes, vice-president; Bill Clapp, treasurer; or Mildred Coleman, secretary.

Hardbarger Business College students home for the holidays are Miss Margaret Rose Edmondson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Edmondson of Bethel; Miss Barbara Jean-Bland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam D. Bland of Fountain and Miss Patricia Meeks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Meeks of Greenville.

The Rev. and Mrs. F. T. Riley, Jr., will arrive from Lexington, Kentucky on Wednesday to spend the Christmas holidays with Mrs. Riley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Whichard at their home in Grimesland.

Mrs. Riley, the former Melissa Whichard, is attending the University of Kentucky and the Reverend Riley is a graduate student at the College of the Bible in Lexington.

Frances Moseley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moseley of Greenville, is a member of the fall pledge class of Delta Amicron Chapter of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority at East Carolina College. Miss Moseley is a Sophomore and serves as project chairman of her pledge class.

J. C. Andrews Entertained

BETHEL — About 50 relatives and friends of J. C. Andrews of Rocky Mount honored his 51st birthday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Whitehurst near here last Sunday.

Beginning at noon, the party was treated to a buffet-style luncheon of ham and turkey. Following the luncheon Andrews cut a three-tier birthday cake and opened birthday gifts numbering about 30.

Among guests and hosts during the afternoon were relatives and friends of Andrews from Bethel, Robersonville, Greenville, Hamilton, Wilmington and Buies Creek.

Andrews' wife, Mrs. Nancy Andrews, is the sister of Mrs. Whitehurst.

Shower Given Bride-Elect

Miss Julia Anthony, bride-elect of December, was entertained at a floating shower Wednesday evening by Miss Lib Rogers and Miss Lou Rogers.

Upon the honoree's arrival, she was presented a corsage of red carnations by the hostesses. The Rogers home was decorated throughout with the Christmas motif.

In the dining room the appointed table was overlaid with an imported lace cloth over green satin. Centering the table was a silver candelabra entwined with greens and red poinsettias holding burning red tapers. Mrs. Julia Anthony, mother of the bride, poured punch. Guests helped themselves to party sandwiches, nuts and mints. Assisting in the dining room were the hostesses' sisters, Miss Lynda Ann and Sue Rogers.

Miss Anthony was given a gift of silver in her chosen pattern by the hostesses.

Santa's Best Helpers Not Elves But Felons

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

All of you who want to believe that Santa Claus's elves are little bitty fellows with beards and peaked hats are welcome. But the elves I'm going to believe in from now on are assorted sized men, some white, some black, mostly clean-shaven and all wearing the blue-gray garb of Atlanta Penitentiary.

Since Nov. 20, behind the fortress-like wall of the great gray prison nearly 200 prisoners have skipped recreation, skipped themselves on sleep and out short their lunch time to transform a lot of beat-up, second-hand toys into something Santa Claus can deliver to the poor children of Atlanta on Christmas Eve. They are the workmen for those other unlikely Santa's helpers—the U. S. Marines.

The Marines pick up anything anybody puts in a "Toys for Tots" barrel at service stations and deliver it to a quonset hut on the edge of the grounds of the big penitentiary.

Some good, practically new things come in, I was told. But the things I saw at this receiving depot looked impossible—broken bicycles, tricycles, rusty old wagons, scar-faced dolls with missing arms and legs, scattered games, a mildewed, moth-eaten, mangled lot. That was the first stop. The last stop showed what volunteers working for no other reason than a love of children and a belief in Christmas, can accomplish.

The doll shop made you want to laugh and cry. Three inmates were tenderly bathing a bunch of scabby looking old dolls. They smiled when I asked if they had children of their own. "Yes, ma'am, five," one of them said. The others nodded. Three apiece, they said.

The dolls emerged from their ministrations gleaming pinky clean. At the next table a dark-haired young fellow, a portrait painter during his life "outside," carefully repainted eyes and lips and touched up scarred hands and legs. And nearby a former beautician refurbished wigs, deftly scooping frowny old doll hair into a sleek, spray-netted coiffure. His helper was a raw-boned heavy equipment operator, who laughed at himself but didn't slow up a second in the combing of a doll's hair.

Down the line two men worked behind a mound of rag dolls, teddy bears and other stuffed animals.

It was the same in the machine shop and the paint shop, quiet men intently working. A lean, sardonic-looking fellow with his cap pulled low on his forehead, painted a child's car a rich, Hollywood orchid. A brawny Negro daintily applied pale cream lines and triangles to the chassis of a tricycle.

Marvin W. Ray, acting general shop foreman for the penitentiary and chairman of the "Toys for Tots" job within prison, said the work is all volunteer.

There's no money for materials, except $100 given by employees and what the Marines can scrounge. Everything, upholstery fabrics, badly needed for little rockers, paints, tires, parts, are like the toys themselves, contributions.

Just before Christmas welfare agencies will distribute the boys as far as they will go to children Santa would otherwise miss.

What's in it for the men in Atlanta pen? The veteran staff man in the machine shop thinks it's something personal for each man—something they don't talk about. Those with children back home have the promise of the Marines that their own will not be neglected on Christmas morning. But there are many who have no children.

"All I know," this man said, "is that they work harder and more devotedly at this than at anything else all year."

An armadillo litter almost invariably consists of four identical young of the same sex. They develop from one fertilized egg.

Pledge Class Fetes Sisters

The fall pledge class of the Zeta Psi chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi College, entertained the sisters at a recent Christmas party in the social room of the Wright building.

Members of the pledge class Faye Cooke, Statonsburg; Sheila Page, Elm City; Phoebe Russ, Longwood; Donna Broome, Tarboro; Nancy Lomax, Kannapolis; Ellen Joyner, Knightdale; and Ann Frances Allen, Farmville, were followed by unison singing of Christmas carols. Faye Cooke, president of the pledge class, presented to the president of the sorority, Lou Rogers of Greenville, a plaque to be used for those girls in the sorority who are selected for inclusion in the nationally circulated yearbook "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Refreshments were served from a table decorated as a package and centered with a large red bow. Christmas cakes, cookies, and candies were served.

Original songs which set forth the principles of Alpha Omicron Pi were sung by the pledge class and were followed by unison singing of Christmas carols.

A decorated Christmas tree developed the Christmas motif. Refreshments were served from a table decorated as a package and centered with a large red bow. Christmas cakes, cookies, and candies were served.

Original songs which set forth the principles of Alpha Omicron Pi were sung by the pledge class and were followed by unison singing of Christmas carols.

Faye Cooke, president of the pledge class, presented to the president of the sorority, Lou Rogers of Greenville, a plaque to be used for those girls in the sorority who are selected for inclusion in the nationally circulated yearbook "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

One reason why so many women are bowling enthusiasts is that bowling fashions are practically irresistible. One-piece knee-tickers, blouse and skirt combinations—which come in luscious colors and fabrics—are all easy to launder after every strenuous bowling session.

Be sure that your evening bag also contains at least one hankie, enough money for cab fares and other possible emergencies, and enough small change for a half dozen tips.

If he arrives with a huge, ungainly corsage and expects you to pin it onto your bare shoulder, tell him it's lovely, pull out one posy, quickly pin it in your hair and carry the rest of the bouquet in your hand "at least for the first part of the evening."

"To look your heavenly best on the biggest night of the year, you've got to overcome last-minute rush and feel as though you had all the time in the world, as the angels do," concluded Desange. An Opportunity In Agriculture, Too

Eastern Carolina, while it seeks to boost its economy through industrial development, still has ample opportunity to boost its economy through continued agricultural development as well.

This fact has been pointed out time and again in conferences such as the one held here yesterday under the auspices of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company. The fact further has been borne out in past years by the progress and diversification which has been made in Eastern Carolina in its agriculture.

Agriculture, like other kinds of businesses, has undergone far-reaching changes in the past decade and there can be no doubt that other changes will have to be made in the future in order that farmers may compete effectively for their rightful place in the nation's economic structure. These changes will include not only better production methods which will come from mechanization and agricultural research, but they will likewise entail taking advantage of opportunities to produce different crops. They will include efforts to achieve greater utilization of acreage, soil and climate for the production of commodities for which new markets can be created and those for which markets already exist.

Most counties in this section of the state in recent years have made careful evaluations of their resources with a view to attracting new industries and manufacturing plants that are needed to help the economy. The same degree of attention, we fear, has not been given by these same counties to evaluating the resources and opportunities they already have for further development of their agriculture income. Agriculture, long the mainstay of the economy of Eastern North Carolina, is too often taken for granted. There is too often heard the unrealistic opinion that agriculture has no future, that it has reached a peak so far as this area is concerned, and that it holds little opportunity for further exploitation.

In other sections of the country, however, we see areas capitalizing on their agricultural opportunities to produce new crops, expand production of old crops and create both a more vitalized agriculture and at the same time an allied industrial complex.

To a great extent this has also been happening in some parts of Eastern North Carolina, but there is yet considerable opportunity which has not been explored.

Eastern North Carolina needs more industrial development to broaden its economic base and to give greater diversity to its sources of income. At the same time the broad picture of economic development of this section demands that more attention likewise be given to taking advantage of the farming opportunities which are available.

Four Big Travel Shows Slated

By LYNN NISBET

TRAVEL SHOWS — The travel bureau of the advertising division, Department of Conservation and Development, will participate with exhibits in four big travel shows early next spring. Three of the shows will be out of the state, the other at Charlotte.

The circuit will begin at Washington January 10-14. Next stop at Charlotte, January 30-February 4, then to New York for February 17-25 and finally at Cincinnati, March 3-10. The centerpiece of the exhibit at each place will be the fully equipped mobile information station, first of several to be put into operation at entrances of main highways into North Carolina.

This is a specially constructed van with large scale maps of North Carolina on the sides, illustrated with historic and scenic points. Inside the van is fitted up like a modern information office with racks of literature about North Carolina, counters and desks for attendants who will distribute the literature and answer questions. The long range plan is to have several of these mobile units which can be moved from place to place as seasonal traffic justifies, rather than expensive permanent buildings for welcome stations such as Florida and some other states use.

Besides the State exhibit each of the shows will have entries from several North Carolina resorts. Among the attractions will be the appearance of Miss North Carolina at each of the out of state exhibits.

The Travel Council of North Carolina is not participating in the out of state shows, as it did at Cincinnati last year, but will have a big part in the Charlotte event.

CHARLOTTE — It is as much an objective of the Travel Council to promote travel inside North Carolina as to attract out-of-state visitors. The State travel bureau also promotes intrastate travel, but long established custom is that the State will not spend any tax money for advertising space in any North Carolina publication or exhibit space at any in-state show. The Travel Council is paying for the space occupied by the State exhibit at Charlotte. In addition to this cooperatively sponsored State exhibit, a dozen or more North Carolina resort areas will have exhibits adjoining that of the State.

Lists are not complete but it is already certain that the Carolinian Hotel at Nags Head on the Outer Banks and Fontana Village in the heart of the Great Smoky Mountains will have exhibits. These points are named

School Bus Tragedy Can Happen Anywhere

The school bus tragedy in Colorado which claimed the lives of some 20 youngsters emphasizes again to every state in the nation the necessity of taking every possible precaution with the lives of millions of children who are transported from home to school by bus each day.

Certainly the accident in Colorado was one of those/unusual school bus tragedies in which lives were lost. At the same time, without proper precautions a similar accident could happen in almost any state almost any day. The fact that such accidents are rare in this country is a tribute to the safety efforts which are put forth by school officials and highway officials throughout the country to assure safe transportation for school children. In a school bus accident as in every other highway accident, a fraction of a second of negligence, an unexpected mechanical failure or a slight miscalculation on the part of the driver can spell the difference between a safe trip and a tragic one.

Most of North Carolina's school children have now begun their Christmas holidays, and the school buses will be idle for the next couple of weeks. The vacation period should provide time for a careful check of all these vehicles, it perhaps may provide time for refresher courses for drivers on the precautions they need to take when transporting their valuable cargo day after day.

We don't expect that such an accident as occurred in Colorado this week will befall one of North Carolina's school buses; but on the other hand, certainly the people of Colorado did not expect such a tragedy either.

Venezuelan And Colombian Story

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's goodwill trip to Colombia and Venezuela is a journey to lands hard for Americans to imagine.

Venezuela has had about two honest elections in its history and more than 20 constitutions. For the rest of the time this country of seven million people has lived under dictators, some of them savage.

Neighboring Colombia, with about 14 million people, has had more than 20 constitutions, more than 20 civil wars. The dictators were relatively few but some were beasts. For Colombians elections have real significance.

Right now both countries have fairly middle-road presidents: Romulo Betancourt in Venezuela and Alberto Lleras Camargo in Colombia.

Betancourt has been a punching bag for Castroites and Communists — both groups consider him their chief enemy in Latin America — and for extreme rightists who want the get-rich-days of dictatorship back.

Betancourt's election in 1958 was one of the two honest ones. The first was in 1947 when Romulo Gallegos was chosen president but lasted only 10 months. A military junta threw him out.

In those 11 years Venezuela had some of its worst dictatorship, most notoriously under the brutal Marcos Perez Jimenez whose graft-ridden regime loaded the jails with political prisoners.

The fact that President Eisenhower presented him with the Legion of Merit didn't sit well with Venezuelans who got so fed up that the various political parties joined forces with the army and navy to throw him out in 1958.

Colombia's President Lleras was elected in 1957 when Liberals and Conservatives, perhaps to their own astonishment, got so fed up with the dictatorship of his predecessor that they were able to join forces to throw him out.

For years before Lleras took over the struggle between Conservatives and Liberals — and sometimes guerrillas adopted both names — cost hundreds of lives.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE ANGELS SMILE

The great English preacher Spurgeon once said to his congregation that God had a way of passing by robes, crowns, regalia, chariots, horsemen, and the pomp of royalty. But, said Spurgeon, He always stops and has a smile for the humble, the pure in heart, the steady.

We are told in the 15th chapter of Luke that there is more joy in heaven among the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth rather than over ninety and nine righteous persons who need no repentance. The words "righteous persons" need to be in quotes, because the people who consider themselves righteous usually have broad areas in their lives so mean, unrighteous, and unregenerated that everybody in the world sees this sorry state of affairs except the poor, unfortunate victim himself.

But with the humble it is otherwise. With the steadfast of heart, with those who constantly press forward and try to reach goals of self-sacrificing service, the whole attitude of heaven is different. The angels smile on such people. God lays His hands upon them in benediction and love. Those who are so disinterested that they clothe naked, feed the hungry, and give a cup of cold water to a stranger in the Master's name — these are the people God loves; these are the people over whom the angels rejoice.

God is interested not so much in what we do as in the kind of hearts we have. The spirit behind every act is more important than the act itself. God is love, and He loves only those who follow in His footsteps of helpfulness and self-forgetting.

But the Way You Are Saying It—

By DON SCHLIENZ

Mrs. Santa At The Helm

Is Santa Claus a woman? Think, before you answer.

Who comprise the great majority of Christmas shoppers? Women.

For whom do merchants tastefully decorate their stores, array their goods more attractively, bait with alluring prices and services? Women.

Who devotes the most time and thought to selecting the proper gifts for Uncle Ben, Aunt Sue, Cousins Jane, Sally, Walter, Michael and John; for little Joe, Mary and Lulu... and even Pal, the dog? Women.

And who seeks out the choicest wrappings, the matching ribbons, the gaudiest bows? Women.

Who painstakingly lists names and addresses for the greeting cards? Mostly women.

Who plans, a week in advance, for the Christmas menus... somehow finds time in the last frantic days to begin preparing the culinary treats and even make candies and dampen pre-Christmas yearnings for such? Women.

Who cleans and puts the houses in order, decorates mantles and adorns the windows, somehow finds branches of holly, pine cones and needles, and even a sprig of mistletoe... sets out the candles, the welcome mat? Women.

Whose eyes outshine the children's on Christmas Eve, and thrill the most at arranging gifts beneath the tree; and laugh with happiness supreme at morning's early hour when greedy youngsters create havoc out of order? Women.

Who ends the day with a weary sigh... good humor unspoiled and already thinking of Christmas a year away? Women.

Is anyone sure it isn't Mrs. Santa Claus who makes such a big to-do over the Yuletide? It would seem to be in keeping with the facts as we know them.

Other Editors Saying... An Acting Lt. Governor?

(Greensboro Daily News)

It may be well enough that the matter of whether North Carolina shall elect a lieutenant governor replacement for the late Cloyce Philpott before 1964 will be tested in the courts.

State Sen. Joe Max Thomas of Marshville plans to file today for the office subject to the 1962 election. The State Board of Elections, acting on the negative ruling of Attorney Gen. Wade Bruton, will refuse to accept Senator Thomas' filing fee. That will set the stage for a court suit and a test case.

The State Constitution is somewhat vague in this field. It provides that "in every case in which the lieutenant governor shall be unable to preside over the Senate, the senators shall elect one of their own number president of their body; and the powers, duties and emoluments of the office of Governor shall devolve upon him whenever the lieutenant-governor shall for any reason, be prevented from discharging the duties of such office."

That seems to mean that the State Senate, at its earliest meeting (1963) is authorized to appoint the man who would normally succeed the Governor and who would, by implication, serve as lieutenant governor until the time provided, for his election. State Sen. Luther Barnhardt became such an acting lieutenant governor, by election of the State Senate in 1955, following the death of Gov. William Umstead and the promotion of Lt. Gov. Luther Hodges.

The difference is this: Governor Umstead died in 1954 after the time designated for a mid-term election, whereas Lieutenant Governor Philpott died before that period.

Since there is some ambiguity in the State Constitution — although it clearly does not provide for a mid-term lieutenant governor's election — legal clarification is in order.

Senator Thomas, as we understand it, is not interested in running for the office himself. But other Democrats — notably C. V. Henkel of Statesville and David McConnell of Charlotte — are. The Republican Party likewise has declared its intention of pushing the issue.

It might be appropriate to have an interim lieutenant governor. He could assist the Governor in ceremonial occasions and would clearly be his successor in case of emergency. But under ordinary circumstances there would be no real work for him until the convening of the 1963 General Assembly when he would become the Senate's presiding officer.

As things now stand the 1963 Senate will select its own presiding officer, who would, just as Senator Barnhardt did in 1955, become acting lieutenant governor until the following year.

A Harvest Of Shoppers' Dollars

By JACK LEELER

AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Shoppers' dollars are falling like snowflakes into cash registers as the Christmas buying season swirls toward what may be an all-time record.

Merchants across the country generally report that crowds had started jamming the stores on the day after Thanksgiving day and have kept coming.

A trend toward buying fallout shelter equipment as household gifts was noted by some merchants.

"It's wonderful!" chorled Joe Falk, owner of a big Kansas City toy store. "People are looser with their money than last year. They are buying the good stuff and don't care what they have to spend."

In some areas, however, buying was about on a par with last year or a little lower. Apprehension over the international situation and anxiety over further call-up of reserves made some people cautious about heavy buying.

The United States Chamber of Commerce predicted Americans would spend $23 billion this Christmas, up 4 per cent from record 1960. The National Retail Merchants Association forecast a 2 per cent gain.

An Associated Press survey of merchants in major cities indicated that in most areas people are buying more and better merchandise, have lost much of the caution that marked their shopping last year and are splurging somewhat on luxuries.

Merchants feel that general business improvement is reflected in the attitude of their customers.

Prices are generally holding close to last year with increased competition from discount houses being a factor.

"Saturday, Dec. 9 was the biggest day we've ever had," said Cyril Magnin, president of Joseph Magnin Co., with stores in San Francisco and Reno and Las Vegas, Nev. "Christmas shopping started out slow but it sure picked up and I think we'll roll along for a top year now."

"Georgians are spending with enthusiasm," said Harold Brockey, president of Rich's department store in Atlanta.

Wallace Dreyfuss, president of another Atlanta department store, Davison-Paxon Co., added: "The buyers don't seem to have the price consciousness that you expect from cautious shoppers. If they want something, they go ahead and buy it."

In New York City, department stores reported crowds arrived earlier and are spending more money than last year.

Arthur L. Manchec, president of Macy's, biggest store of all, predicted its sales would be 5 to 6 per cent ahead of last year.

"December is exceeding all our expectations," said Melvin E. Dawley, president of New York City's Lord & Taylor.

Power Behind Scenes

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

I see an editorial in the "News and Courier" of Charleston, South Carolina, which deals with the question of the reorganization of the State Department. Since I can remember, this question has arisen. The Charleston newspaper says:

"The same crowd that let Cuba fall to the Communists is still in power in the U. S. State Department. William Wieldan is on the federal payroll, attending a school in preparation for a new assignment. Philip Bonsal, former U. S. Ambassador to Cuba, is the U. S. Ambassador to Morocco, Roy Rubottom, who had charge of inter-American affairs for the State Department, is State's adviser attached to the Naval War College."

The staff of the State Department is divided into two parts: those who are under the Civil Service; those who are in the Foreign Service. The latter are better paid and have higher standing. Both groups have organized pressure mechanisms and exercise an exceedingly effective lobbying in Congress. Both protect their own group against improvement and change.

Every new Secretary of State discovers that he is stymied, harrassed, caught in a trap by these two groups which, while they oppose each other to gain benefits, also join together to gain benefits. Usually a President expects to reorganize the State Department in his second term; it is too touchy a subject for a first term. Each of these groups has outside associates and assistance, particularly in newspapers and universities. Both groups have organized pressure mechanisms and exercise an exceedingly effective lobbying in Congress. Both protect their own group against improvement and change.

Mere reorganization however, will not be sufficient. What is essential is the elimination of certain elements in the State Department who fight for power within the department. It will take much more than reorganization to rescue the department from the kind of internal politics that permitted the Cuban situation to embarrass the President and the Secretary of State. The assumption that these men cannot be dismissed is erroneous. True, it is difficult, but the President has ways of reorganizing any department of government and Herbert Hoover used legitimate methods to accomplish this task and succeeded, but Franklin D. Roosevelt revoked his orders with the result that Hoover's efforts came to naught.

It is true that a President's efforts to reorganize and make a department efficient are very difficult. The Civil Service is hard to fight; the Foreign Service is even harder. They possess enough power and organize campaigns to protect themselves which can be very effective, particularly in smearing a public official and giving the impression that he is up to something very improper, whereas actually he is seeking to save money for the taxpayer and to rescue the country from inefficiency and incompetence.

The State Department is not the only one which suffers from surplus personnel and assertive doctrinairism. This is true in every department of government but it attracts more attention in the State Department than elsewhere, because here it is quickly focussed upon some dramatic issue, such as Castro's seizure of Cuba. If that story were disclosed in full, it would be found that neither the President nor the Secretary of State of either the Eisenhower or the Kennedy Administrations brought on the line the warlike elements of government down the line which caused all the trouble. This is a classic example (Continued on page six)

Chicod Downs Bath 70-33

CHICOD—The Chicod Hornets took a 70-33 win over the Bath Pirates in a non-conference contest last night to leave the Hornets with an undefeated season.

Coach Bob Howell's Chicod boys took an 18 point lead in the first quarter and were ahead at the half 40-14. During the second half the Bath Boys were unable to muster enough strength to close the margin and Chicod continued to increase their lead. Earlier in the night the Bath girls downed the Chicod girls 71-31 after taking a 17 point lead in the first quarter.

Grimesland Tops Sto-Pac 51-48

STOKES—The Grimesland Panthers won their first game of the season last night by defeating Stokes-Pacotulus by a score of 51-48 after taking the lead with about two minutes left to go.

At the end of the first quarter the score was tied 14-14 and by the end of the half, Grimesland held a three point advantage by a score of 26-23. In the third period the Bluejays went ahead with 34-29, but to no avail, as the Panthers out-shot them in the final quarter by the win.

The score was tied 47-47 with about two minutes left in the period when a technical foul was called on Stokes-Pacotulus for too many timeouts. Grimesland's Nail Dail hit from the free throw line putting the Panthers ahead by one point. Before the final horn sounded the Panthers were able to get another field goal, holding the Bluejays to one free throw.

The high scorer of the night for Grimesland was Carlton Hardee with 17 points. He was followed by Dail with 15 points. Topping the scoring column for the Bluejays was Franklin Congleton with 15 points.

In the girls game the outcome was reversed with the Stokes-Pacotulus girls winning 48-34 after holding the lead throughout the game.

Duke Suffers First Loss To Duquesne

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Duke was knocked from the ranks of the unbeaten basketball teams Friday night while Wake Forest and Maryland snapped out of their nosedives.

Duke, unbeaten in five games before meeting Duquesne in the Steel Bowl tournament at Pittsburgh, was a 66-61 loser. Wake Forest, loser of its last two games, trounced Virginia 84-65 in an Atlantic Coast Conference game as the Deacons' Len Chappell went on a 35-point scoring spree.

It remained for Maryland, loser of its first three games this season, to become the first ACC team to beat a Big Ten team this season. The Terps beat Minnesota 75-69 with some sensational shooting from the free throw line.

In previous games this season matching ACC and Big Ten teams, Ohio State has beaten Wake Forest, and Indiana has defeated North Carolina.

Duke star Art Heyman, usually accurate from the free throw line, hit on just four of 13 free throws and wound up with 20 points for the game, the fewest points he's scored in six games this season. That dropped his average from 31.4 in five games to 29.5 for six. Chappell's 35 points, meanwhile, boosted his average to 24.4 for five games. He'd scored at a 21.7 clip in four games. His previous high was 28 against N. C. State. Tony Laquinano was Virginia's high scorer with 25 points. The Cavaliers now are 2-5 over-all and 0-4 in conference play. Wake Forest is now 3-2 in all games and 2-0 in the ACC.

Maryland hit 33 of 38 shots at the free throw line, and Jerry Greenspan hit all 14 of his free throws setting a Maryland record. Minnesota got off to a quick 10-point lead but Maryland bounced back for its first victory of the year.

Duquesne held a 10-point lead over the Blue Devils through most of the second half after leading by 31-21 at intermission. Duke pulled to within three points, 64-61, with less than 40 seconds left but Duquesne froze the ball and then clinched the game with two free throws with three seconds to play.

Rocky Mount Tops Greenville Cagers 63-48

ROCKY MOUNT — The Rose High School Phantoms suffered their third straight loss of the season last night when they lost to Rocky Mount 63-48 for the second time this year.

The Phantoms took an early lead and at the end of the first period they were ahead 15-11. They managed to keep the lead at the half 28-26 even though the Blackbirds narrowed the margin by two points.

Rocky Mount pulled ahead in the third quarter when they out-scored the Greenville boys by 8 points. The Blackbirds continued to increase their lead in the final period of the game when they gained 18 points to the nine picked up by the Phantoms.

Greenville was playing without the services of their outstanding 6-foot 7-inch center, Rodney Knowles. The big sophomore was suffering from a touch of the virus.

The high scorer of the night for Greenville was guard Kroghie Andresen who made seven field goals and two free throws for a total of 16 points. The second high man for the Phantoms was forward Jack Foley with 14 points. He hit five field goals and four free throws.

Topping the scoring column for Rocky Mount were Danny Talbot and Wayne Dunn with 21 points each. Both boys hit eight field goals and five free throws. The next high man for Rocky Mount was Ricky Creech with 13 points.

In the junior varsity game which preceded the varsity contest, the Phantoms were also the losers by a score of 35-34. The Greenville boys were ahead by one point until the last few seconds of the game when a Phantom player got confused and shot a good field goal at the wrong basket giving the Blackbirds the victory.

Topping the scoring column for the Greenville JV was forward Chester Walden with 15 points. He was followed by Sonny Taylor with six points. For Rocky Mount the high scorer of the night was Brent Milgram with 10 points. Craig Quick followed close behind with 8 points.

Duquesne And Pitt To Battle

PITTSBURGH (AP) — For the eighth time in the last nine seasons, Duquesne and Pitt will play at the Pitt Field House tonight for the Steel Bowl basketball title.

Undefeated Duquesne advanced to the finals with an upset 66-61 victory over highly-rated and previously unbeaten Duke Friday night.

And Pitt earned a shot at the title with an 83-58 triumph over Arizona.

Duke, now 5-1, and Duquesne, now 4-0, played a neck-and-neck game until midway in the first half when Duquesne began pulling away. At the start of the second half, Duquesne had a 31-21 lead and held that advantage through most of the second half.

With 1:43 remaining, the Blue Devils rallied and narrowed the gap to 64-61 with less than 40 seconds left. Duquesne then staged a freeze and added a pair of free throws that put the game out of reach.

Jensen To Quit Pro Baseball

BOSTON (AP)—Jackie Jensen's brilliant but controversial athletic career, which included football stardom and one of baseball's highest awards, appears to be at an end.

The 34-year-old outfielder indicated to his Boston Red Sox employers Friday night that he will retire from baseball and devote his time to business in Nevada and California.

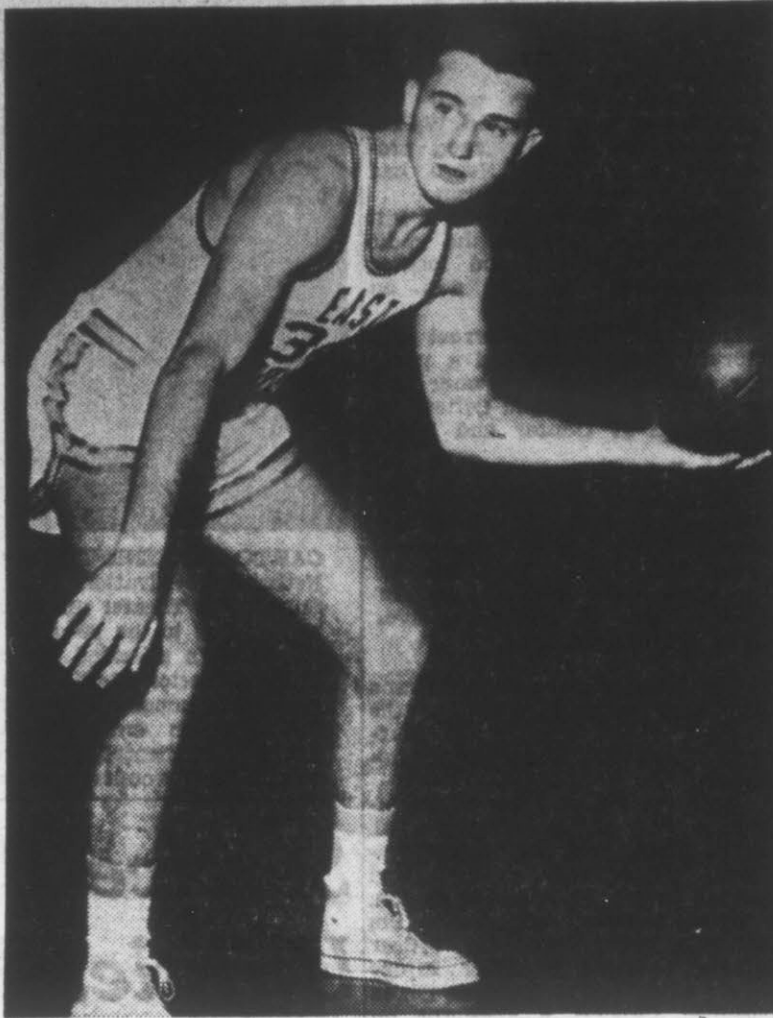

The apparent decision follows by only a few days announcement by the Red Sox of a unique travel schedule, designed to fit around Jensen's much publicized fear of airplane travel. The club also had mailed him a contract.

The seeming decision to quit baseball was not much of a surprise. Jensen quit the club with one game left to play at the end of the 1959 season — only one year after he was named the American League's most valuable player. But he came back after being out the entire 1960 campaign and played most of the 1961 schedule.

Early last season he jumped the club again but returned several weeks later. He had little success at the plate, however, ending the season with a .263 batting average for 137 games.

Wake Forest plays at Maryland in the only ACC game on tap tonight. In other games, Clemson plays at The Citadel, South Carolina at DePaul, and Duke collides with Arizona, a loser to Pittsburgh Friday night in the other first-round game of the Steel Bowl.

Indians Defeat Pirates 81-60

PIRATE FRESHMAN — Richie Williams was the high scorer in the Bucs' battle with William and Mary. The 6-foot 2-inch Pirate gained 18 points for East Carolina in the losing battle with the Indians.

By CHARLES VAUGHAN
Reflector Sports Writer

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — The East Carolina Pirates suffered their fourth defeat of the season last night in losing to William and Mary by a score of 81-60.

The Pirates fought a hard battle during the first half refusing to let the Indians gain a big lead. The first stanza was nip and tuck all the way. However, the second half proved to be a different story.

Indians Lead At Half

The William and Mary Indians held a 33-32 lead at the end of the first half, but this lead was increased in the early minutes of the second stanza. Before the Pirates could score, the Indians increased their margin by seven points putting them ahead 39-32. From then on it was William and Mary all the way.

After 11 minutes of play in the second half William and Mary's Coach Chambers began to substitute often, but this did not keep the Indians from continuing to increase their margin.

Harris High Scorer

Bob Harris was the high scorer for the winners with nine field goals and eight foul shots for a total of 26 points. Roger Bergey was second with 16 points. The Indians placed five men in the double figures with Ed Youngkin, Hugh Miller and Cowly scoring 10 points each.

The high man for the Pirates was Richie Williams, a freshman guard from Muncie, Ind., who dropped in 18 points. Captain Charlie Lewis was next with 15 points and Lacy West had 12.

Bucs Started Strong

The Bucs started the game strong, by going ahead 6-3 during the first five minutes of play. Led by West, who scored all 12 of his points in the first half, East Carolina was able to hold its own.

West and Williams were largely responsible for the good first half played by the Pirates. When William and Mary would score two points to take the lead, it was either Williams or West who kept the Pirates close.

Williams, who scored 10 of his points in the first half, came around after getting off to a slow start. As well as playing a terrific offensive game, Williams was able to grab a few rebounds.

Otte Pushes Bucs Ahead

Bitt Otte, East Carolina's 6-foot 6-inch center, took matters into his own hands twice during the first half, putting the Bucs into the lead. However, this effort by Otte, was to no avail because the Indians managed to regain the lead which they kept through out the second half.

In the second half, Roger Bergey, the Indians' outstanding guard, put in five straight 20-foot jump shots to give William and Mary a sizable lead. As the Indians began to increase their lead the Bucs ran into foul trouble. This added to the Pirates' trouble as the Indians scored 12 of their 15 free throws in the second-half. Williams stole several forward passes during the contest from the Indians in addition to his high scoring and rebounding. However, this was not enough for the Pirates as they could not keep pace with the high scoring Indians.

Wants To Fight A Champion

By WHITEY SAWYER

DETROIT (AP) — "I want to fight a champion, any champion," middleweight Henry Hank shouted in his dressing room after winning a unanimous 10-round decision over Chic Calderwood, the British light heavyweight king.

Hank pounded Calderwood to the canvas with body punches in the third round and turned Chic's face into a bloody mask late in their fight Friday night. He had to endure a sharp, stabbing left hand that popped off his head and face all night to do it, but Detroit Hank's crowding tactics and overhand rights made the difference. Hank, weighing 168, gave away six pounds to the Scotsman.

In the third round Hank smashed Calderwood's body, driving in a right and a steaming left. The Scot grimaced in pain, clutched his belly and sank to the canvas for an eight-count.

"It was unexpected," Calderwood said later. "It knocked the wind out of me and I took a bit of rest."

Hank said in his dressing room: "Calderwood never hurt me, but he's a very smart boy. He has a very good left and he's a very good mover."

Asked about his plans now, Hank replied, "I want to fight a champion, any champion, middleweight or light-heavyweight and it doesn't make any difference which share of the championship they hold."

Calderwood, who lost his second fight in 34 bouts, said he'd like to fight Hank again. Hank won his 50th fight in 66 starts. A crowd of 8,000 paid an estimated $40,000.

Ft. Lee And Elon In Playoffs

FT. LEE, Va. (AP) — Ft. Lee's Travellers, eager to play the role of inhospitable host for a second straight year, tangle with Elon College here tonight for the championship of the Ft. Lee Invitational basketball tournament.

Both clubs carry 24 records into the 9 p.m. clash, but Ft. Lee, a dazzling team led by former St. Louis Hawk star Lenny Wilkens, will rule as a heavy favorite to retain the title it won in the inaugural invitational last year.

The Travellers kept their record clean in the round-robin, three day tournament by putting Hampden-Sydney to rout, 96-73. Friday night while Elon was outdistancing Randolph-Macon 61-60.

Elon put five players in double scoring figures against Randolph-Macon, Dewey Andrews leading the barrage with 22 points. Alex Roberts had 20 points for the losing Yellow Jackets, who hadn't dropped a game in five starts before entering the tournament here.

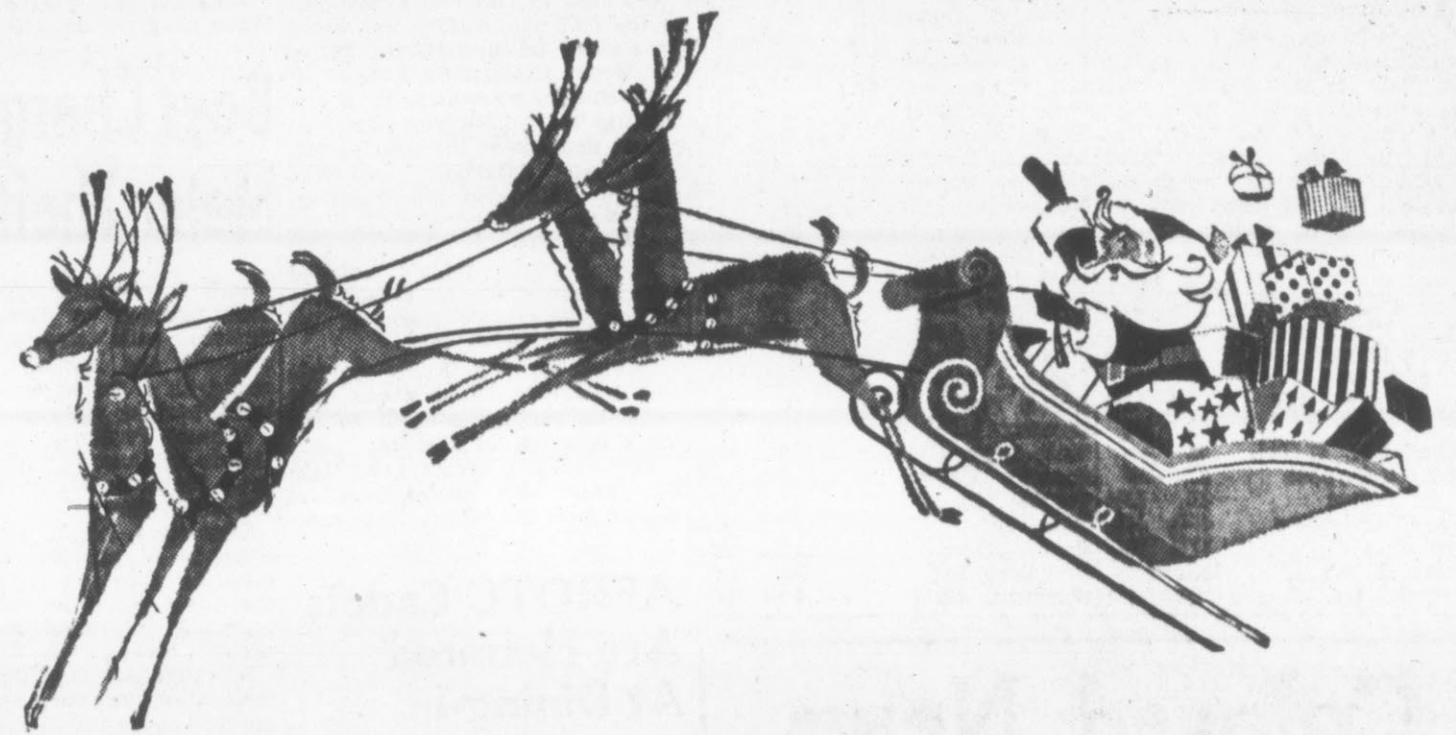

The story of the game was Randolph-Macon's ineffective 15-for-63 shooting from the floor and its erratic ball-handling.

Officers Led On 2-Hour Chase In Early Hours

A Pitt Constable early this morning touched off a series of events which led Greenville Police and Pitt Sheriff's officers on a merry chase for about two hours, and ended in the arrest of a 28-year-old Negro on four counts of resisting arrest plus three other charges.

Herbert Walker Jr., 1202 Davenport St., was charged with resisting arrest, assault on an officer, passing worthless checks and disposing of mortgaged property as the result of the incident.

Police reported they received a call from Constable C. R. Stokes at 2:10 a.m. requesting aid. He was at a cafe at the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and Railroad Sts. Greenville officers were told that Stokes had arrested Walker for disposing of mortgaged property and that the Negro had given him trouble and ran.

A search was begun and a Pitt Sheriff's car, hearing the radio message, responded and located the run-a-way at 2:20 a.m. on Broad St.

Deputies William Forrest and Gerald Davis summoned a police car and turned the prisoner over to Lt. M. E. Buck and Officer W. R. Stokes at Center and Broad Sts.

Enroute to the police station Walker tried to get out of the rear of the law vehicle, scuffled with Stokes, then jumped from the auto. This was at the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and Washington Sts.

The escapee was seen on Evans St., then officers cornered the subject on the roof of the Stafford Oldsmobile Company on Cohanche St.

With the aid of other police officers, Sgt. C. E. Warren, P.D. L. L. Dixon and P.D. James Hagan, Walker was subdued and placed in jail. The time, 3:10 a.m.

Police reported that during the struggle in the Police car, officer Stokes received a minor injury to an ankle and noted that Dixon stepped through a sky-light on the building top but was not injured.

Police also reported that Walker received minor injuries from the scuffle, was checked by doctors at Pitt Memorial Hospital, then placed in jail.

Walker was placed under a $5,000 bond on the charges.

Greenville Man Struck By Car

A 51-year-old Greenville man received a broken arm and shoulder, according to Police, last night, upon being struck by a car on Dickinson Ave. near the intersection of Hooker Road.

Police identified the victim as Charles Anderson Rumley, Sr. of 115 South Woodlawn Ave., and reported he was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital suffering from a fracture to his right arm and an injured left shoulder, plus abrasions to his head.

Operator of the vehicle involved in the 8:27 p.m. mishap was listed as Shirley Edward Harris, 36, of 123 North Eastern St.

No charges were made by investigating Traffic Division men, who placed damage to the auto at $15.

In an afternoon collision, George Phillips of 212 Washington St. was charged with following too closely.

The Phillips vehicle collided with a car driven by Oscar Ray Taylor, 16-year-old Negro of Rt. 1, Stokes, officers said.

Damage to the Taylor vehicle was estimated to be about $200 while no damage resulted to the truck operated by Phillips.

The collision occurred on 10th St. near the intersection of Washington St. about 2:50 p.m.

Boys Charged In Meter Thefts

Two 17-year-old Negro boys have been charged by Greenville Detectives with damage to city property and larceny in connection with a series of thefts from local parking meters.

Samuel Formville of 111 North Meade St., and Carl Edward Barrett, 104 Side St., were listed as the ones charged in the case.

Detectives, noting that the first break-in of parking meters was reported about 10 days ago, said the latest occurrence was Tuesday night. In all, eight meters were broken open.

Investigators reported that the meters entered were rendered unusable. Value of the timing devices was placed at $50 each.

The youth were quoted as saying the total "take" from the robberies was only about $7.

In addition to these charges, Formville has been charged with carrying a concealed weapon stemming from another case.

Detectives noted that both have previous records and added that Barrett is on probation from a breaking and entering conviction.

of what a low-ranking and even obscure official can do before he can be stopped by his superiors. But the superiors up to the President have to assume full responsibility.

To most, this sounds almost ridiculous. They ask, can the office cat make decisions? The answer is that when an enormous organization gets to rolling, it can be stopped with great difficulty. Before a serious question reached the top for final decision, many steps have been taken, many minor decisions have been made, many paths to authority have to be cleared and commitments are undertaken which go into the record. What is required therefore is cleaning up the bottom so that the top will not wallow in mud laid down by those who have no real responsibility but who like to play. It is impossible to manipulate a government department without a routine that ties individuals rigidly to a system. Red-tape is preferable to constant errors.

Scholarship Interviews Slated For January 25

WILLIAMSTON — Two Pitt County high school seniors will be among 21 nominees for John Morehead Scholarships who will be interviewed here Jan. 25 by the District I Scholarship Committee.

William C. (Billy Neal) James Jr. of Greenville, Junius H. Rose High senior, and Donald B. Dewar of Bethel, Bethel High senior, are Pitt County's representatives in the 22-county District I. The two young men were selected in November from a group of eight county candidates from schools in Pitt.

The six-member District I Committee, headed by Thomas J. Pearsall of Rocky Mount, includes a Greenville man, Louis S. Ficklen. Also among the 21 nominees are two representatives of Greene and Martin Counties. Martin's nominee is Homer Vann Parker III of Williamston, a senior at Bear Grass High School. Greene's representative is Andrew Jackson Harrell III of Snow Hill, Greene County Central High senior.

The 21 nominees from District I will be interviewed in state-wide competition with 160 boys from the other six Morehead Scholarship Districts in the state.

County Morehead Scholarship Committees this fall interviewed over 750 high school nominees to make these selections for the district interviews.

The renowned Morehead Scholarships are considered among the best in the nation. They were established in 1951 by John Morehead, native North Carolinian, and provide an all-expense-paid undergraduate college education to the scholarship recipients.

Each of the seven districts will nominate six candidates who will be interviewed in Chapel Hill by the Central Scholarship Committee along with 28 nominees from the 14 private schools on the Morehead Foundation's selected list.

Those chosen as scholarship candidates by the central committee will then be finally interviewed by the Board of Trustees of the Morehead Foundation.

Last year the trustees awarded a total of 48 Morehead Scholarships. Morehead Scholars currently in residence at the University of North Carolina number 143.

School Is Meeting A Need Never Met Before

TREE OF WORDS . . . is used by Mrs. Robert Starling, principal, as a teaching aid. The words are practical ones such as stop, go, caution, poison and others which the children will need as they go through life.

READING TIME . . . is fun. Above, Mrs. Raymond Smith (left) and Mrs. Bill Sermons (right) begin preparations for the day's lesson.

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

There is a school in Greenville that does something for the trainable retarded child which is not done elsewhere; and by doing this, other children are helped, too.

This school, called the Trainable School, has been in existence since 1955. It has met a need never met before.

The trainable child is one who is not able to keep up with classmates in public school, one who needs special attention and special love. One who, with these things, may grow up to be a happy, useful adult.

What makes a child retarded? It could be one of many things—a birth defect, or a near fatal illness are common causes. It is not inherited.

Greenville was the first community in eastern North Carolina to provide such a school, though others have succeeded it. It had its beginning at the Third Street School with Mrs. Ledyard Ross as teacher. In 1957 the school was moved to temporary quarters behind the Junius H. Rose High School, its present location. Mrs. Robert Starling is principal now.

The temporary building will have to come down one day, probably to make room for high school expansion.

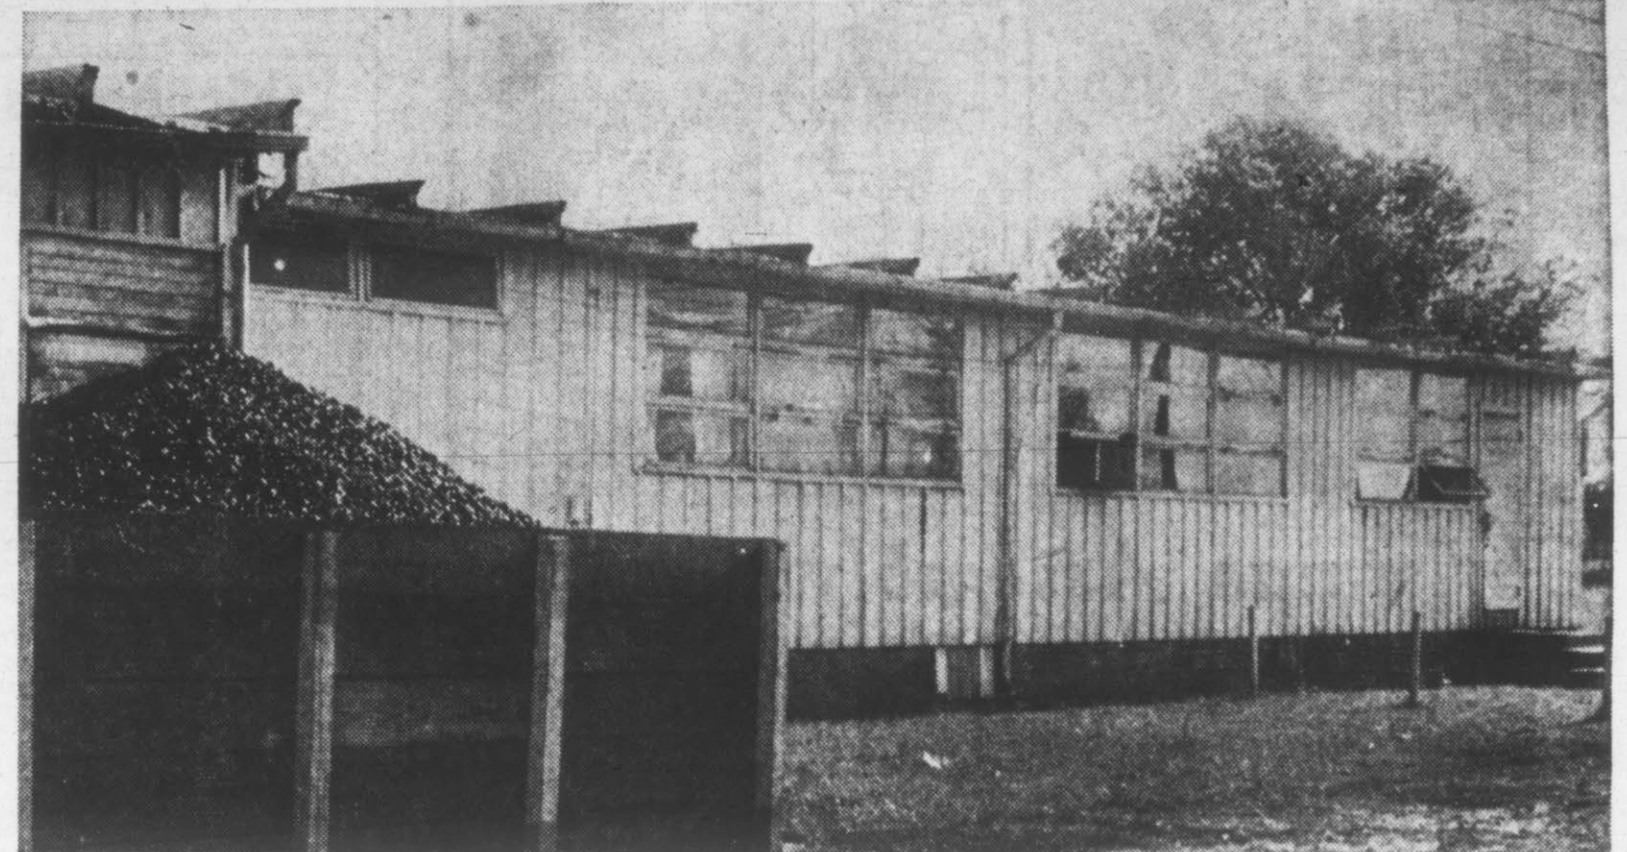

School's Beginning

Interested parents and school officials in Greenville were prompted to begin such a school after the N. C. General Assembly passed an appropriation allowing $33 per child per month for the trainable mentally retarded. Though this amount was hardly enough to maintain a school, its teachers and the extensive materials, assistance came the first two years from the Pitt County Mental Health Association. The United Fund is now a supporting agency of the school. Numerous civic clubs and organizations, as well as parents of children attending the school, have contributed heavily to its supplies.

Superintendent of City Schools J. H. Rose said parents have never been asked to give to the school. But the parents have given anyway.

The school has been successful largely because of the attitude of parents and the public in general towards the problem of the trainable child. In the not-so-distant past, these children have been neglected. "People feared public attitude, but now parents feel it is something they are facing and they try to do something helpful," Rose stated.

Before a child can be accepted at the school, he must be able to do some things for himself; in other words, be trainable.

Benefits of School

Upon acceptance, he enters a world bringing happiness and satisfaction, because he is given special attention which helps him develop his talents and because he no longer feels a sense of futility in competing with other children who are able to learn faster.

On the other hand, it is these children which may hold back a class in public school since they are slower learners. Since they are unable to keep up with the brighter child, they may feel unhappy and pose discipline problems in the public schools. Hence, alone, these children fare better and the public schools fare better, too.

Each child at the Trainable School receives a special kind of attention. In preparing a day's work, Mrs. Helen Sermons, teacher, says she takes each child's abilities into consideration and prepares his school work individually. No two children are doing the exact same thing. One child may be doing simple adding, while another is ready for subtraction or addition of column figures.

It is this individual attention which this child needs.

Individual problems also are met. Mrs. Starling, principal, notes some of the children have special emotional problems, which the teachers take special pains to meet, in helping the child to adjust.

The trainable child is learning to live, work and play with others his own age. There are play periods and rest periods along with learning. The children take field trips to see more about their town.

Excursion

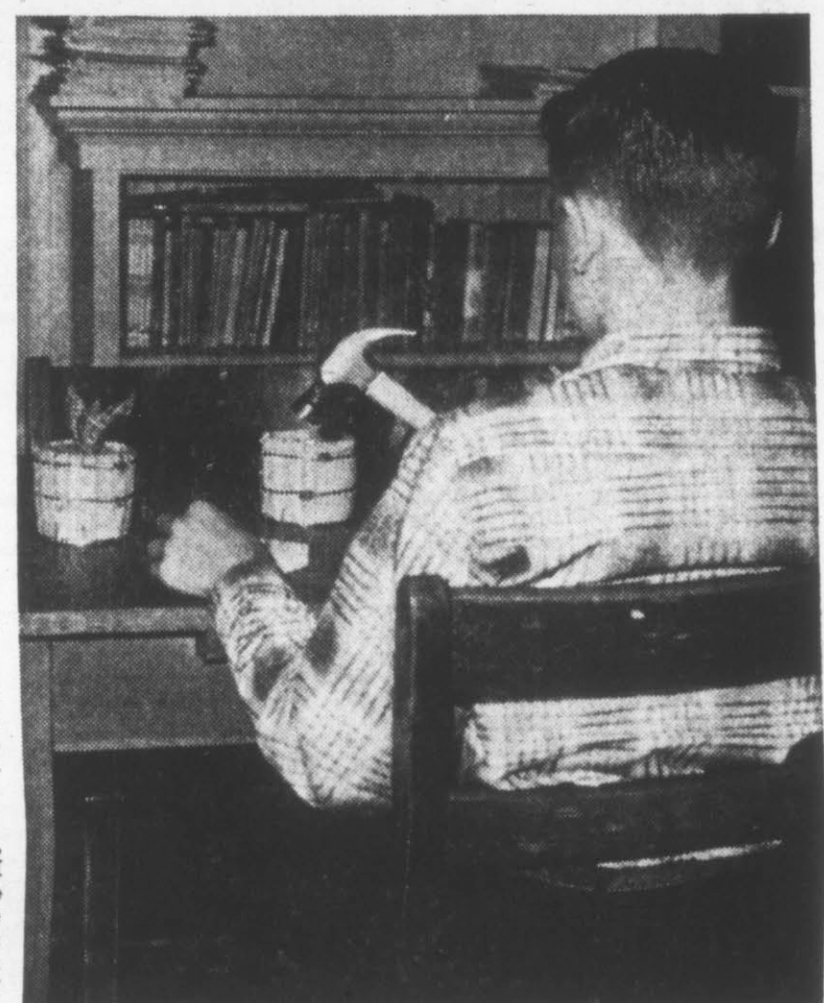

One of their greatest excursions was to a local restaurant. The planning of this trip took some time, as each child learned to read a menu and how to conduct himself in a restaurant, even to the point of leaving the tip. The day of the dining-out came, and it was a success, Mrs. Starling said. Things like this help the children with social customs, she said.

It also helps the parents of these children, who have problems, too. They meet other parents and work to help children together. Some of these parents have never been able to leave their children a minute except in sleep time, with the exception of the school time.

As for the future of the school, Rose has stated, "As far as I am concerned, either by private funds or public, there must be provision for children of this type. The need is there and it must be met. A new type of building must be provided shortly."

"The school administration is considering this need and in planning future expansion, this need will be given serious thought," he said.

The school has received overwhelming support from interested parents and officials of the Greenville school system.

CRAFT WORK . . . is beautifully executed by students of the school. Above, a student works on a spool holder. In the background are planters made out of clothes pins. These are just a few of their projects.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

Some time ago, an important critic published a list of great classics which he has not read and never intends to read.

Everyone has a list of that sort (sometimes secret), frequently sprinkled with titles which he has started and has abandoned through sheer boredom. There are several of the works of Cooper, Scott, and even of Henry James that might be named at this point, but works of non-fiction are even more numerous.

—Dull Classic?—
Surely one of the dullest books of modern times is Karl Marx's "Capital," even though it is supposed to have shaken the world. Nevertheless, if conversion to Communism were dependent upon a person's finishing that work, the world could rest easy.

Or so we thought until the other day. Now, even that crumb of complacency has been swept away, for Stanley Hyman, writing in the Kenyon Review, has come up with the ingenious observation that buried in "Capital" is a tense Victorian melodrama in which Marx was striving to present the class struggle much as a literary artist would.

The only trouble, according to Hyman, is that Marx couldn't write his fifth act, in which the swarthy, mustachioed capitalist forecloses of the working man's mortgage is foiled, because this solution had to wait for the revolution.

This just shows how badly one can read a book because all that we saw in it were statistics about surplus value and wages of Manchester mill workers. And we'll take Hyman's word for it and stick to Horatio Alger for our romance about real estate.

—In Two Worlds—

One of the remarkable facts about life in America is the almost complete obliteration of all the signs of the people who once possessed this whole land—the Indians. About all they mean to us can be summarized in romantic stories about Pocahontas, Hiawatha and Tonto.

A book which gives some real notion of the character of the untamed Indian and at the same time recounts some of the outrages practiced against him is "Ishi in Two Worlds: A Biography of the Last Wild Indian in North America."

This title may seem to be an exaggeration, but it is not, for Ishi WAS the last wild Indian in this country. Captured in 1911 in California, after his tiny tribe had been wiped out by murder and disease, he had the good fortune to become the ward of Professor Kroeber of the anthropology department of the University of California.

The story of the efforts expended by Kroeber and his colleagues to help Ishi make the frightening leap from the Stone Age to the age of writing, money, and electricity is fascinating. Equally interesting and also deeply moving is the story of what Ishi taught his white friends about primitive ways, and, above all, about the profundities of the relationships between the Indian, his implements, and the living nature around him.

—Another World—

Another work which treats the ravishment of a continent is "Black Mother," a study of the African slave trade. Some idea of the enormity of this 400-year-long onslaught can be gained from the figures which this work presents: 15 million persons carried off as slaves, 50 million lives lost as a result of the social chaos and hatred which followed in the wake of the trade.

Fortunately, the story of Black Africa, unlike that of Red America, can have a happy ending still. If the right sort of help, in (Continued on page eight)

Civil War Triggered By Creating 2 Territories

LAST MOMENTS OF JOHN BROWN, drawn in 1885. Abolitionist John Brown, who had fought to make Kansas a free state, attempted to seize arms from the U. S. Arsenal at Harper's Ferry, Va., to lead an insurrection to end slavery. He failed, was hanged as a criminal. The incident occurred a year before the Civil War began but it brought to the surface the deeply bitter feeling in both North and South.

EDITOR'S NOTE: A war starts long before the first shot is fired. It starts with a "trigger act," says Sen. Carl T. Curtis (R-Neb), an ardent student of the Civil War and a member of the National Civil War Centennial Commission. Here, Sen. Curtis explores the "trigger act" of the Civil War, which happened long before the first shot was fired on Fort Sumter and, as it turned out, many miles from the crucial battlefields.

By SEN. CARL T. CURTIS
Written for the Associated Press
A full century after the fighting of the Civil War serious-minded Americans are still considering the implications of that tragic conflict.

From December 1860 until April 1863, brother fought brother, friend fought friend, American fought American. A conservative estimate would be that some half a million perished on both sides.

What "triggered" the Civil War?

There has to be an incident to swing the tide to carnage. It has to touch the common man. It has to produce leaders. Before the Revolutionary War there was the Stamp Act. That war started when George III of England affixed his signature to the document which wrenched existence-money from every home in the 13 American colonies. Every colonial American had been hurt. The leaders were there and ready. The grim historical tragedy was about to unfold.

It was the same with the Civil War.

On a lazy day in late May of 1854, the 14th President of the United States signed a bill into law. The bill was innocuous in itself. It created two new territories. That type of legislation was common. Even its language advocating "popular" or "squatter" sovereignty was not new.

LONDON (AP) — Doctors reported today that Earl Attlee, former Laborite prime minister, is well on the mend following his abdominal illness and heart attack last week.

Yet by signing the Kansas-Nebraska bill into law President Franklin Pierce triggered the Civil War.

Strife in Kansas
Sparsely settled Nebraska remained relatively at peace. Nebraska had other battles to fight for survival on the frontier. They had to meet the threat of Indian attack. They had to fight prairie fires, grasshopper hordes, drought, and the stinging fury of blizzards. Southerners and Northerners lost their regional antagonism in their mutual struggle to keep alive.

It was quite the contrary in Kansas. Peace certainly did not prevail. The New England Emigrant Aid Company sent 2,000 settlers into Kansas to keep it a free State. Secret societies, with approximately the same membership, were organized in neighboring Missouri to bring slavery into Kansas.

Actual civil war raged in Kansas as early as the Spring of 1856. Colonel Jefferson Buford's pro-slavery Kickapoo Rangers burned and sacked the town of Lawrence. John Brown, in revenge, wiped out several pro-slavery families at Pottawatomie Creek.

And Kansas warfare was carried on in Congress. Anti-slavery Sen. Sumner spoke on "The Crime against Kansas." His speech offended Rep. Preston Brooks of South Carolina. The Congressman attacked the anti-slavery Senator with his cane while Sen. Sumner sat at his desk on the Senate floor. This was two years to the day after the Senate had passed the Kansas-Nebraska Act.

Infant Party Grows
The newly born Republican Party, which owed its origin to the widespread opposition to the Kansas-Nebraska Act, grew like a prairie fire. Its first organization meeting took place in 1854. By 1856, only two years later, it mustered 1,335,000 votes in the presidential election; gaining 114 electoral votes and carrying 11 states.

Out in Illinois, a frontier lawyer, Abraham Lincoln, who had served one term in the House of Representatives, rocketed to national prominence. The ungainly Lincoln engaged in a series of debates with his successful opponent, Stephen A. Douglas. The Kansas-Nebraska Act was the storm center of those debates. Douglas crucified himself defending the Act. Lincoln made himself a figure to conjure by in all anti-slavery American homes.

In the autumn of 1859, Pottawatomie John Brown brought his "bleeding Kansas" tactics to quiet Virginia. He sought to capture the federal arsenal at Harper's Ferry, arm slaves and set off a slave rebellion.

Lee Enters Picture
The man who led the U. S. forces that put down the ill-timed revolt, the man who was instrumental in the capture of John Brown, was Col. Robert E. Lee.

The Kansas-Nebraska Act had made two men of the Pottawatomie firebrand: to the North, he was a martyr; to the South, he was a fiend.

John Brown was sentenced to be hanged. The execution was set for December 2, 1859. At the foot of the scaffold senseless adoration met senseless hate. This flood of emotion became a tidal wave which swept into every American home. Everyone felt it. No one was immune.

Leaders stood in the wings, ready to step on a stage affecting the destiny, the very lives, of untold millions.

Another actor stood at the foot of John Brown's scaffold. He was no amateur actor, led by fate into an unfamiliar situation. He was a professional actor. He felt the surge of hate. His name was John Wilkes Booth.

ECC Assembly Program Ushers In The Holidays

Christmas holidays at East Carolina College were ushered in Friday morning by a general assembly of students, faculty members, and guests in the Wright auditorium. An inspirational talk by college President Leo W. Jenkins and songs and instrumental selections by music organizations made up an hour-long program. The college closed for the holidays Friday afternoon.

A capacity audience gathered in the auditorium for the event, which concluded a series of programs and social affairs held on the campus during the Christmas season.

Of special interest on the assembly program was the performance by the College Choir of two selections by Dr. Martin Luther King, who joined the college staff last September as composer-in-residence.

Joy Gift Service To Be Held On Sunday

The Youth of the First Presbyterian Church will play a big role in the presentation of the Joy Gift Service, Sunday afternoon at 5:30. The Youth and Junior Choirs will provide the choral music, while numerous other young people will help portray the creation of the Nativity scene.

The program is built around the story of St. Francis of Assisi and his followers who were responsible for dramatizing the blessed event.

Immediately after the fellowship following the Joy Gift Service, there will be a joint meeting of the Session and the Board of Deacons in the Church Parlor. Monday evening, 7:00 o'clock, the children in this Sunday School (Nursery through Primary Departments) will have their Christmas Party in the Church Fellowship Hall.

Wednesday at 8:00 o'clock, the Junior Department in this Sunday School will have a Christmas party.

Thursday evening at 8:00 o'clock the Pioneer Fellowship will have a Christmas Social in Fellowship Hall.

Inspection Turns Up Lost Bonds

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP)—An inspection disclosed that the radio in Mrs. Norman H. Pecores' automobile wasn't working because a leather folder, slipped up under the dashboard, was interfering.

The folder was found to contain $2,700 in U. S. Savings bonds, issued to F. H. Tewbury, a former owner of the car.

Mrs. Pecores notified Tewbury, who had been wondering for two years what had happened to the bonds. He gave an unsolicited reward to $100 to Mrs. Pecores' adopted son, Charles, II.

CHAPTER 7

Holly Eastman tucked her hand possessively through Martin Whitfield's arm as they followed the maître d' to a table for four.

When they were settled and their order given, Holly beamed happily at Martin.

"Lee was telling me how silly it was of me to resent your buying Oakland," Holly announced sweetly. "And I am sorry if I gave you that impression. I do want the place sold, and I can't think of anybody I'd rather sell it to than you. And while I can't be very happy there and that you'll do all the things Mimi and Dad wanted to do."

"You must be sure to tell me some of the things they wanted done," said Martin politely.

To Lee Polson's relief, the orchestra struck up a gay tune, and Martin and Holly went away to dance.

Lee watched Kermit Dalton's face, as his eyes followed the two. When he became conscious that she was watching him, he turned to her.

"I've known Holly since we were in high school, darling," she told him softly. "She's as transparent as a window pane. She has one aim and object in life—a man of her own. And while I can't blame her for that, since it's what every girl wants—"

"Is it?" Kermit interrupted eagerly. "Well, of course, darling. Didn't you know?"

"These last few months, I've been wondering if maybe a career didn't mean more to you than having a man of your own," Kermit said with a edge to his voice.

"Why should one prevent the other?" asked Lee reasonably. "After all, real estate isn't a career that would prevent marriage."

"Unless it happened to be marriage to a guy old-fashioned enough to want his wife to be a wife and not someone who has to go harping off an hour of the radio to show a piece of property," Kermit told her.

Lee stared at him with raised brows.

"Why do you suppose, darling, that I haven't asked you to set a date for us to be married?" Kermit went on.

Lee blinked and answered slowly. "You said that you wanted to be in a position to provide adequately for me. You didn't hint that it was because you wanted me to give up my work."

"I know how much it meant to you to get your license and what a kick you got out of selling the right property to the right people. But, Lee, I want my wife to be my wife."

"Oh, honestly, Kermit," Lee could no longer restrain her resentment and her surprise. "I've never heard of anything so silly."

"Old-fashioned, perhaps; silly," no!" Kermit said stubbornly. "But, Kermit, why haven't you said anything about this before now? You've never even hinted that you wanted me to give up my job."

"Because I wanted you to have the fun of getting started, and I thought once you'd made a real killing, as you're going to do with this Oakland deal, you'd be ready to settle down and just be my wife."

Kermit insisted. "As soon as the deal is finished, I thought we could set a date for our wedding, and I'll take my two weeks' vacation for our honeymoon. Dad has given me a deed to a house he owns. When we come back, you can redecorate it and have it landscaped to suit you. That ought to keep you pretty busy. Sound good?"

She was still studying him curiously. She's known him practically all her life yet tonight somehow he seemed a complete stranger.

That he could so casually ask her to give up the career which she loved seemed to her utterly incredible.

"I don't quite know, Kermit," she said slowly after a moment. "You'll have to give me a little time to think."

"Oh, yes, of course, Kermit. But—"

Martin and Holly were returning to the table, and she felt relief at the interruption.

After a moment the music began again and Kermit asked Holly to dance. She went away with him, flinging a triumphant glance over her shoulder at Lee.

Martin looked at Lee and asked, "Would you care to dance, Miss Polson?"

Lee looked up at him, manufacturing a bright if spurious smile. "Yes, if you'd like," she answered.

"But don't you think we could dispose of the formalities now that Holly has broken the ice? She's quite a girl, isn't she?"

"Oh, yes, quite delightful," Martin answered, and his tone was as spurious as Lee's smile had been.

"She's going to help me plan the restoration of Oakland. She wants it to be exactly the way it was when she was a little girl."

Lee laughed. "And is that the way you want it? She mocked. Martin grinned wryly.

"I don't quite know what it was like when she was a little girl," he pointed out.

"I can tell you," Lee assured him. "It was very much the way it is now, except that it was in better repair."

"I can imagine," Martin laughed, as his arms swept her into the dance.

"How you'll be very happy there," Lee told him.

He looked down at her. "I intend to be."

"I wonder," Lee said slowly. "Is it as simple as that? You just make up your mind to be happy, and it works out that way?"

"Wasn't it Abe Lincoln who said, 'I have an idea that every man is about as happy as he makes up his mind to be'?"

Lee smiled. "It sounds like him, anyway."

Martin was silent for a moment, his eyes following Holly and Kermit.

"She's a lovely girl, isn't she?" Lee said pleasantly.

"Very beautiful," Martin answered cautiously, and added, "She tells me you and Kermit are going to be married soon."

Lee stiffened slightly.

"We haven't set any date," she said swiftly.

"But you are engaged?" Lee laughed. "We've been going steady since grammar school days. Down here that's considered the equivalent of being engaged."

"I see," said Martin. "I hope you will be very happy."

"Thanks. I'll try to remember Mr. Lincoln's words," she promised, as the music stopped and they turned toward their table.

The two caseworkers are conducting the welfare department's first attempt to separate a Christmas program for children from the annual "Operation Christmas Basket," a department-conducted drive to provide Christmas food baskets for hundreds of needy families.

The program for the 40 children has been aided, Gartman and Mrs. Howell noted, by Christmas parties sponsored by fraternalities at East Carolina College.

"Operation Christmas Basket," the annual effort of Pitt County's Welfare Department to provide Christmas food for needy families, was reported moving slowly today by Welfare Director J. S. Grimes.

Grimes said donations for the program—aimed at supplying holiday food for hundreds of needy persons—have not kept pace with the response a year ago.

Still, he said, the earlier phase of the program—a long-used system of providing organizations and individuals with names of "needy families"—has been active. The organizations "take one or more families and treat them to a material Christmas."

Earlier this week Grimes had called on donors to contact the department early to allow welfare personnel to begin its Christmas holiday when the vacation period begins for county employees Thursday.

He set a deadline on donations for Dec. 20, next Wednesday.

LULL IN SHELLING

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—An unprecedented lull in Communist action against the Nationalist-held Quemoy Islands stretched into its 95th day today. The lull is the longest since Chinese Communist forces began shelling the little islands in 1949.

There has been considerable complaint from the library board about the job with the result that former City Manager Leonard Bloxam volunteered to resume supervision of it.

They instructed City Manager Louis Scheipers and Mayor Charles M. King to obtain estimates on such an inspection.

The mayor and city manager are to consult with the councilmen individually on the price.

The action was taken after Councilman James Lee reported that it was the library board's wishes that an outside inspection of the work be made.

Parents Urged Not To Rush School Holidays

Parents of city school children are being urged to keep their children in school until Christmas holidays begin.

The State Board of Education has notified the local school administration that students are not to be excused prior to Christmas holidays except in case of sickness.

"We are making a drive to see that parents regard this thing seriously," Superintendent J. H. Rose stated.

"We have had no requests this year to get them out," he said. Christmas holidays for city school children begin after classes Wednesday and end Jan. 2, when classes resume.

It has been pointed out before that state appropriations to local schools are based on the average daily attendance in the schools for the previous year. The appropriation is $1 per day for each child in school. If a child is absent from classes due to a contagious sickness, the state still pays the appropriation; but if the absence is for a lesser reason, the city loses school money.

For instance, if 100 children are unnecessarily absent from school one day, then Greenville city schools will lose $100 for next year's state school appropriations.

Good school attendance is necessary for the progress of the child and for appropriations.

A certain amount of social behavior is learned through direct contact with parents and through indirect association with experiences and one's own personality development. Attitudes can be trained and much is absorbed through environment.

Therefore, Lassiter continued, "it behooves the parents to set their values high, set good examples of handling and controlling the conflicts involved in getting along with fellow man. As a child begins to appreciate and understand the behavior involved in social studies, he progresses in two directions—he moves from dependence on others to self-dependence, and he grows from only

Ted Gartman and Mrs. Bob Howell, child welfare workers in the Pitt County Welfare Department's Child Welfare Division, said response to the first exclusive appeal for Christmas giving to the underprivileged youngsters has progressed well.

Still, they pointed out, the program calls for an early deadline for donations since special arrangements must be made for conveying Christmas toys and necessities to the children.

Earlier this week, Gartman and Mrs. Howell had called on Pitt County residents who would contribute to the program to contact the Child Welfare Division during this week.

Science, Technology Said Too Far Ahead

"Science and technology have advanced so far in the last 15 years that they are far ahead of the ability of the peoples on this earth to get along with one another, to live with one another and to play in harmony," Homer Lassiter told the Elmhurst P.T.A. Thursday night.

Lassiter, superintendent of elementary education with the N.C. Department of Public Instruction, was guest speaker in the first of the P.T.A.'s at their monthly meeting. He spoke on the broad topic of social studies in the elementary grades, what they consist of and why children need to be taught in this area.

The second part consisted of a Christmas concert by 50 voices from the fourth and fifth grades. The P.T.A. members voted to place a book in the library in memory of the late Charles Byrum following a report by Mrs. Sue Verner, recording secretary.

In his address, Lassiter said it would seem that people throughout the ages have followed a pattern. They start off in bondage, then go to spiritual faith, to freedom, to selfishness, to apathy, to dependence and then back again to bondage.

Main must learn to control and handle conflicts in living with man, he stated. To learn how to work, live and play together is given the title of social studies.

"This is what we must teach our children, but only in doses they can absorb, and only on the level of their maturity. This then will lead to 'The Total Fabric of Living,' he said.

A certain amount of social behavior is learned through direct contact with parents and through indirect association with experiences and one's own personality development. Attitudes can be trained and much is absorbed through environment.
