President Leaves Ailing Father For Bermuda Talks

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — Leaving his stricken father's bedside, President Kennedy flew into Bermuda today for wide-ranging talks with Prime Minister Macmillan. The President and the British leader scheduled a luncheon meeting at government house 45 minutes after Kennedy's arrival at Bermuda's Kindley Air Force Base. The central problems of West Berlin and an Allied approach to Moscow are expected to take up much of the two-day talks. Kennedy visited his father, Joseph P. Kennedy, at St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach, Fla., for a half hour before taking off for Bermuda at 9:51 a.m. EST. He said his father's condition appeared to be "about the same." The President returns to Palm Beach Friday evening but will be kept informed about his father's condition during his rendezvous with Macmillan. If necessary, he could fly back to Florida in little more than two hours. Besides reviewing the Berlin and German question, Kennedy and Macmillan are expected to pay considerable attention to the Congo question, nuclear weapons and the future of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It is also likely they will take a long and careful look at the role of the so-called neutral nations in the light of India's takeover of Goa and the threat of Indonesian action against the Dutch in New Guinea. Secretary of State Dean Rusk arranged a luncheon with his British counterpart, Lord Home, while their bosses were going to their private luncheon. Invited to the Rusk-Home luncheon on the British side, were Sir David Ormsby-Gore, British ambassador to Washington; Sir Norman Brook, secretary to the British Cabinet; Sir William Penney, adviser on nuclear weapons; and Sir Evelyn Shuckburgh, deputy undersecretary of state for European affairs. On the American side were McGeorge Bundy, the President's adviser on security affairs; Charles E. Bohlen, expert on Soviet affairs; David Bruce, ambassador to London; Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and several others. Kennedy took off at 9:51 a.m. for his rendezvous with Macmillan to discuss accumulating world problems facing the Western Allies. When the President left the hospital, he was accompanied downstairs by his younger brother, Edward (Ted) Kennedy. They stood talking a moment before the President rode off to the nearby airport. The President and his brother appeared grave. Ted Kennedy said he would have no comment on his father's condition, but that a bulletin would be issued by the hospital at noon. The younger brother, looking weary, had spent the night at the hospital. The President will be kept informed of his father's condition during his rendezvous with Macmillan and can fly back from the Atlantic island in little more than two hours. Soon after his scheduled 1 p.m. —noon EST — arrival at Bermuda's Kindley Air Force Base Kennedy planned to enter into private and informal discussions with the British chief of mission until late Friday afternoon. He returns to Palm Beach Friday evening. The President's 73-year-old father is seriously ill after suffering a stroke that left him partly paralyzed on the right side and unable to speak. Earlier the President had been advised by physicians that his father's condition was such that the son could leave here for the overnight trip.

Tshombe Agrees To End Secession In Unity Pact

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — President Moise Tshombe agreed today to end the secession of his wealthy Katanga province but said that his supporters in Elisabethville must approve before the agreement is carried out. Tshombe and Premier Cyrille Adoula of the central Congo concluded the pact to restore unity in the Congo after more than 15 hours of negotiations at the U.N. military base at Kitona. They promptly flew off to their respective capitals of Elisabethville and Leopoldville. Tshombe signed an eight-point declaration which was presented formally to the United Nations. Its text, announced by the central Congo government, was brief and in skeleton form. It said: "The president of the province of Katanga . . . 1. Accepts the application of the fundamental law of May 19, 1960, (the Congo's provisional constitution under which Katanga is a province and not an independent or autonomous state). 2. Recognizes the indivisible unity of the Republic of the Congo. 3. Recognizes President (Joseph) Kasavubu as chief of state. 4. Recognizes the authority of the central government over all parts of the republic. 5. Agrees to the participation of representatives of the province of Katanga in a government commission to prepare a new constitution. 6. Agrees to take all measures to permit senators and deputies of Katanga Province to exercise the national functions (that is, participate in the national parliament). 7. Agrees that the gendarmerie of Katanga shall be placed under the authority of the president of the republic. 8. Agrees to see that the resolutions of the (U.N.) Security Council and General Assembly are respected and to facilitate their execution. (Signed) Tshombe."

Pitt Development Commission Is Told Last 5 Weeks Busiest Of '61

Executive Director Dr. C. Sylvester Green told his Pitt County Development Commissioners Wednesday the last five weeks "have been the busiest and most encouraging of the entire year" in his regular report to the December meeting of the commission. He cited a total of 121 new possibilities for industrial prospects, bringing the total since he assumed his post here last January to 927. In painting a cheerful Christmas picture for the commissioners, Dr. Green said: "For the first time, prospects have gone beyond the exploratory stage. I have taught myself to be optimistic but realistic . . . and patient." He said "several active prospects" visited the county during late November and early December. A report of a survey of Ayden should be available by early January, the director said. The commissioners, after hearing Dr. Green's report, formally accepted an invitation extended by the Town of Winterville and the town's Kiwanis and Ruritan clubs to hold their Jan. 17 meeting in Winterville. The commission's February meeting—fifth in a series of meetings in various Pitt communities—will be held in Bethel Feb. 21. The commissioners accepted an invitation submitted by David Speir on behalf of the Bethel Chamber of Commerce. In a resolution, the commissioners expressed their thanks to Ayden, Farmville and Grifton for "their hospitality at the meetings of the Commission held in those towns in September, October and November. . . ."

Exile Says Anti-Red Force Is Fighting Castro Troops

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A military leader of the Cuban revolution, now in exile, said bloody fighting has involved rebel guerrillas and 25,000 Fidel Castro troops in central Cuba's mountains. No confirmation of major conflict came from major Cuban exile groups or U.S. officials in this country, or from Havana. Gutierrez Menoyo called a news conference Wednesday and said that fierce combat was in progress in the Escambray Mountains between rebel units and Castro militia trying to stamp out their increased activities. "Just today," Gutierrez Menoyo said, "we received word of bitter fighting that has left many militiamen dead at Obispo near Sancti Spiritus." In 1958 Gutierrez Menoyo led the second front of Escambray, an army that cooperated with Castro's forces in overthrowing Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista. Gutierrez Menoyo, a supporter of Castro after the latter took over in January, 1961, and charged the bearded revolutionary with being a Communist. Gutierrez Menoyo said two former comrades of the Escambray army are in the field leading rebel forces there now. He identified them as Capt. Everardo Salas and Lt. Elio Balmaseda. "The guerrilla movement was formed in the Escambray Mountains last Nov. 10," Gutierrez Menoyo said. "Our force is made up of anti-Communist Cubans from every walk of life—students, soldiers and even militiamen, who have defected from Castro." Cuban exile leaders in Washington said they got no reports of major clashes between Castro and insurgent groups. But they said there have been signs of some minor contacts between the guerrillas and Castro troops trying to hunt them down. In Havana, AP correspondent George Arfeld said there has been no indication of major fighting on the island. Arfeld said there are constant rumors of skirmishes but such reports seldom are confirmed. Havana radio called Gutierrez Menoyo's report "a maneuver in view of the coming conference of ministers" of the Organization of American States. "Gutierrez Menoyo represents nothing in all this," Havana radio said. "The Department of State and the Central Intelligence Agency are the ones who planned it."

Indian Troops Cleaning Up Enclaves After Brief 'War'

By R. SAKAKOPAN BOMBAY, India (AP)—Indian army engineers today continued clearing road mines and restoring communications and transport facilities in Goa, Damao and Diu while the Indian government made plans for civil government in the three fallen Portuguese enclaves. Official reports reaching Bombay claimed Portuguese troops carried out a scorched earth policy in Goa, blowing up bridges, roads and buildings before resistance collapsed late Tuesday after a 48-hour attack by Indian troops, tanks and planes. The reports claimed the invading forces caused only negligible damage to port installations and public buildings. A Defense Ministry spokesman said that conditions were fast returning to normal in Goa, where the defenders offered their strongest resistance and that "most of the Portuguese soldiers have laid down their arms." The ministry earlier claimed that stragglers were still being rounded up. Goans arriving in Belgaum, Indian command post for the invasion, said native Goan soldiers and police virtually welcomed the invaders while the outnumbered Portuguese troops resisted the advance with all that they had. They said residents of the three enclaves lavished hospitality on the Indian troops. The government declared that Portuguese colonial officials and captive officials were being well treated and that Portuguese casualties, earlier reported as small, were being given medical aid. Gen. Manuel Vassalo e Silva, the Portuguese governor general, was reported captured in a small house at the Carmagao naval base. A Defense Ministry spokesman said he was "being accorded the normal courtesies and consideration."

Sec. Rusk Fails Sway Congo Policy's Critics

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk explained U.S. policy in the Congo to some of its congressional critics but apparently didn't change their minds. Rusk, defending U.S. support of U.N. action against Katanga, said he would have no objection to an investigation of "the Congo story or to a full examination of the full foreign policy story." The secretary of state was summoned to Capitol Hill quietly Wednesday to brief half a dozen members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the controversial Congo policy and on the U.S. position on India's invasion of Portuguese Goa. He declared that neither the United States nor the United Nations is attempting to impose any political or economic system on the Congo. Asked if U.S. support of U.N. action against Katanga—which has been condemned by Britain and some other NATO countries—had weakened U.S. alliances, he replied, "I don't think so." But Rusk's defense of the administration policy didn't seem to convince any of the critics among the Foreign Relations Committee members who were on hand. Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, said Rusk had not altered his view that "we are in a very precarious situation in the Congo, politically and otherwise." He added: "I am greatly concerned over the split in our position with that of our traditional allies in the West." Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, said he had not changed his mind that it was a mistake for the United States to use its military power "to settle a domestic dispute." Much of the criticism of the administration Congo policy had come from the Republican side of the aisle. But it was a Democrat, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut, who announced he will press for a Senate investigation.

City Calls For Bids On Material For New Building

The city is calling for bids on material which will be used to construct a new Department of Public Works building. City Manager Louis Scheipers said the structure will be built on the present West Third St. Department of Public Works site. City officials included $13,000 in a recently approved bond issue to be used in constructing the galvanized steel building. Scheipers said plans are to use city labor to build the structure. Bids will be for materials. The bids will be received in the city manager's office to be submitted not later than Jan. 3. The structure will be 50 by 90 feet and plans are to include a superintendent's office. There will also be space for a grease pit, wash area and other facilities.

Re-Examining

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Terry Sanford says he is re-examining provisions of the Powell Bill in the wake of reports that sizeable grants have been going to resort areas which are nearly unpopulated. The Powell Bill, enacted in 1951, provides state money for municipal street systems based on a formula which considers population and mileage. Highway Chairman Merrill Evans said Wednesday an incorporated development can receive Powell Bill funds if it meets the eligibility requirements regardless of its population. "We have no choice in giving funds," he said. "We are bound by legislative enactment." An Onslow County development, Chadwick Acres, has three houses and five residents. It was incorporated by the 1961 Legislature and drew $1,500 in Powell Bill money. A Brunswick County area, Boiling Springs Lakes, having no residents when its allocation was figured, received $16,892.

UN General Assembly Begins Holiday Recess

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly recessed its 16th session early today for Christmas after denouncing Soviet domination over Hungary and Red Chinese oppression in Tibet. The two resolutions were passed over bitter opposition from the Soviet bloc, which accused the United States of dredging up cold war issues that have remained dormant since the last time the U.N. acted on them in 1959. The 164-nation forum approved 49-17 with 32 abstentions a resolution deploring "the continued disregard" by the Soviet Union and the Hungarian regime of assembly resolutions concerning the situation in Hungary. U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson warned the Soviet Union and Hungary that the U.N. had not forgotten the 1956 revolt stamped out by Soviet armor. Earlier, the assembly voted 55-11 with 30 abstentions for a resolution expressing grave concern over violations of human rights in Tibet, now under Chinese domination. Only the Soviet bloc and Cuba voted no. Soviet Delegate S. G. Lapin claimed the entire Tibetan issue had been fabricated to cover actions "of the Anglo-American colonizers" to create a military base against Communist China. The session, which opened in September under the shadow of Dag Hammarskjold's death on a mission to Katanga, recessed until Jan. 15 a few hours before word reached New York that Katanga President Moise Tshombe had agreed to end his province's secession from the central Congo government. Despite the Congo crisis, the session included a number of key decisions triggered by agreement between the Soviet Union and the United States. Behind-scenes talks between Stevenson and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian E. Zorin brought accord on such knotty issues as arrangements for negotiations on disarmament and outer space and the choosing of a successor for Hammarskjold. These agreements were considered especially significant because they showed Soviet willingness to shelve for the time being Premier Khrushchev's troika principle of equal representation of Western, Communist and neutral nations. After weeks of bargaining, the Soviets dropped demands for a three-headed board to run the secretariat with a built-in veto. They agreed to let U Thant of Burma head the organization, leaving the choice of advisers up to him. The Soviets also abandoned insistence that committees to negotiate disarmament and outer space questions be formed on the troika principle. A signal triumph for the United States was the assembly's sharp rejection of Red China's bid for U.N. seat—an issue the United States decided to meet head-on this year after keeping it shelved for 10 years. American circles also hailed assembly approval of President Kennedy's proposal that the next 10 years be declared a "U.N. decade of development" with special effort to spur the economies of underdeveloped countries. One of the most important developments was the assembly's approval over Soviet opposition, of a $200-million, 25-year bond issue to save the world body from bankruptcy. The session pointed up the increasingly dominant role played by the Asian-African group, which now totals 50 nations or nearly half the U.N. membership. The group gave a vivid demonstration of its strength early in the session when it rammed through the assembly an unprecedented vote of censure against a policy speech made by South African Foreign Minister Eric Louw. The group often split on political issues but usually acted as a unit on racial and colonial questions. They proved that with Soviet bloc support they could form an unbeatable combination against the Western powers. In the final day the assembly also adopted an American-backed measure to continue a special U.N. commission trying to unify Korea. The vote was 60-11 with 27 abstentions. Shelved until next fall an Indian proposal to designate 1963 as "The United Nations year of International Cooperation" and set up a 12-nation committee to devise ways to give the designation meaning.

Loophole That Must Be Remedied

At their first opportunity lawmakers of North Carolina should close the loophole in the Powell Bill that appears to allow real estate developers to participate in Powell Bill funds to help pay for street construction in their developments.

The situation is pointed up vividly in the case of Boling Springs Lakes in Brunswick County, which had no residents according to the 1960 census, and yet received this year more money from Powell Bill funds than any municipality in Pitt County with the exception of Greenville. Boling Springs Lakes was incorporated earlier this year by an act of the legislature, and as an incorporated town was eligible for participation in the Powell Bill funds.

The fact that it had no permanent residents—at least so far as the census was concerned—did not prevent its sharing in the funds which are distributed among municipalities of the state on the basis of population and the miles of streets not on the state's highway system. Its population of zero afforded it no increment from the fund, but its reported 37.28 miles of streets made it eligible for $16,892.28 in Powell Bill funds.

By way of comparison, Farmville with a population of 3,997 and 18.61 miles of streets received only $16,122.92 in Powell Bill funds this year while Ayden, with 3,108 people and 16.45 miles of streets received $13,433.71, almost $3,000 less than Boling Spring

Lakes. Grifton, which had a reported population of 1,816 and 6.95 miles of streets received $6,643.23 or $10,200, less than Boling Spring Lakes.

Chadwick Acres in Onslow County, which showed only five residents, received $1,500.38 in Powell Bill funds, only $170 less than Grimesland with 326 people, and $1,200 more than Falkland with 140 population.

According to the law under which the Powell Bill funds are distributed among the municipalities, half the total amount of money is distributed on a population basis, and the other half on the basis of the miles of non-highway system streets the municipality has. This year each municipality received $1,924 for each of its residents according to the 1960 census. It also received an allocation of $453.119 for each mile of streets.

In theory at least, an incorporated town without any people is eligible to participate in the distribution of the funds. An incorporated town with people but no streets probably would be eligible to participate also.

It appears to us that the legislature should give its attention to the provisions of this law in order that such glaring inequities as those which have recently come to light can be eliminated. The purpose of the bill initially, after all, was to provide municipalities with funds from state taxes on gasoline to help them with their street repair and improvement programs. We seriously question whether the law as now written is not being abused in some cases.

Travel Business Interest Growing

By LYNN NISBET

SELLING TRAVEL — Interest in travel as a business, as a vital part of the national and state economy, has increased tremendously within the past few years. A recent survey disclosed that travel is the third largest industry in North Carolina. On national level it is almost as important. The United States government just this year established a travel office as a major division in the Department of Commerce, the primary duty of which is to encourage foreigners to visit the United States.

North Carolina has had a travel bureau in the C&D Department for more than 20 years, and has recently increased appropriations for it affording a larger staff and more advertising. Nearly every state has a similar activity. Also there are numerous associations and councils, such as the Travel Council of North Carolina, devoted to the job of increasing travel by home folks and outsiders alike. All of these agencies, government and private enterprise, are competing with each other for the travel dollar in world trade. And travel itself must compete with all other items and activities for its share of the total dollar spending.

To that end "traveling salesmen" are being dispatched to all parts of the world to "sell" the attractions of the particular area which they represent. The experiences of these salesmen along with the general tightening of competition, have proven that old ideas of travel promotion are no longer effective. The present day salesman must have a specific product that he can identify and offer for sale much the same way an automobile dealer offers a new car or a realtor offers a house and lot.

SPECIFICS — A man who had promoted world-wide tours for many years was discussing these points the other day. He didn't say it quite so bluntly, but what he said was essentially this: Nobody is coming to the United States or to North Carolina just because we want them to come. And they will not be attracted by a general appeal of magnificent scenery, historic shrines and recreational facilities. The salesman must break this invitation down to specifics, just as the auto salesman does, just as the features of one car at a time — or the haberdasher fits a suit or hat to the needs of his customer.

That means the salesman not only must know his product but must believe in it enough to put sincerity into his presentation.

And that in turn means there must be a lot of ground work and home work done before the salesman sets out on his mission. In process of organization now is a mission to Europe next spring to "sell" North Carolina to prospective travelers. The primary appeal will be made to travel agents who will be invited to come and see for themselves what we have so they can sell it to their customers. But the agent must be given some special inducement other than just the general "come over and see us sometime." For that reason the State travel bureau is making up a number of "packages" — lists of attractions and facilities in specific areas, with estimate of cost for each package. The emissaries on the travel mission will be armed with this factual material and prepared to answer questions from interested parties about items not fully covered in the prospectus.

CANADIANS — Henry Belk has suggested that in addition to the selling trip to Europe there should be a mission into Canada to invite the citizens of that cold country to come and enjoy the delightful winters in Eastern Carolina. He is thinking more about vacationers, or maybe permanent residents, than of the ordinary tourist. When the North Korean Communists invaded South Korea in 1950 the United States, Britain, France and practically everyone else, including India, voted for action against the invaders. Russia, which got its signals mixed, was absent at the time but came back strong by announcing it would not try to get North Korea to call off the invasion because the Soviets were against butting into others' affairs.

But, when the United States blockaded North Korea, Russia called this aggression, even though the United Nations voted for action. And Egypt voted against helping South Korea. It said this was all just a West-East rumpus.

Counties Are Acting To Meet School Needs

One-by-one county bond issues for school construction across the state indicate that Tar Heels are willing to come forward at the local level to meet the needs of more classrooms brought about by an increasing number of students.

In a referendum held Tuesday in Charlotte citizens voted almost two-to-one in favor of issuing bonds totaling $8.4 million for school construction. Officials of the consolidated Board of Education for Charlotte and Mecklenburg County had said the bonds will finance the school building needs of the city and county through 1965.

On the basis of school bond elections held in various parts of the state recently, it appears that the same attitude which voters of the state exhibited in defeating state-wide bond proposals does not exist when it comes to the matter of local bonds to meet local school needs. It likewise appears that in many counties of the state both school officials and individual citizens are willing to meet pressing school needs through local means rather than delaying further to wait and see whether any aid for school construction will be forthcoming from either the state or federal government.

Such an attitude is the best assurance that any community can give that its youngsters will have adequate school facilities to meet the needs brought about by increasing enrollment.

Consistency Is Not So Evident

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's statesmen, by Ralph Waldo Emerson's reasoning, all have large minds. He said consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds, adored by statesmen among others.

Under this definition, as their United Nations' record shows, there is nothing little about present-day statesmen. For some their only consistency is their inconsistency. A few examples prove it for them.

When the North Korean Communists invaded South Korea in 1950 the United States, Britain, France and practically everyone else, including India, voted for action against the invaders. Russia, which got its signals mixed, was absent at the time but came back strong by announcing it would not try to get North Korea to call off the invasion because the Soviets were against butting into others' affairs.

But, when the United States blockaded North Korea, Russia called this aggression, even though the United Nations voted for action. And Egypt voted against helping South Korea. It said this was all just a West-East rumpus.

India, which went along on condemning North Korea, which is far away from the land of Prime Minister Nehru, voted against condemning Red China, which is a next-door neighbor, when it attacked the U. N. forces.

Things got a little mixed up a few years later.

In 1956 when British-French-Israeli forces decided to invade Egypt—the land of the pharaohs, which wouldn't condemn the Red invasion of North Korea, went running to the United Nations for help against her own invaders.

In this case, for a change, the United States and Russia joined up against Britain and France. But in the Security Council Britain and France, which had condemned North Korea for invading South Korea, now vetoed a resolution against themselves for doing the same thing to Egypt.

India also had something to say in the General Assembly. Although refusing to be unpleasant to Red China for going into Korea, India joined the United States and Russia in calling on France and Britain to quit Egypt.

Russian attack on Hungary. But the Russians vetoed that. It was different in the General Assembly.

There the United States and a host of other countries—along with Britain and France, then under fire for what they had done to Egypt—teamed up overwhelmingly to condemn Russia on Hungary.

All Russia could do in this case, since there is no veto in the assembly, was vote no. But Egypt, which wanted U. N. action against Britain and France, wouldn't vote yes or no on Russia. It just abstained. So did Nehru's India.

Then the United States got its neck caught in a door when it backed the rebel invasion of Fidel Castro's Cuba. Russia demanded this country be condemned. The United Nations wouldn't go for that but Nehru criticized the United States by calling its action interventionist.

Next in the history of inconsistency came Nehru himself when Indian this week attacked and overran Portuguese Goa.

Once more Britain and France teamed up in the Security Council to pass a resolution calling on India to get out of Goa. But Russia vetoed that.

And Egypt, which had hollered bloody murder when it was attacked, not only joined Russia in voting against a rebuke to India but demanded that Portugal give up Goa.

If all this makes you dizzy, just think how the statesmen must feel.

In 1959 alone it invested $500,000 for that purpose —while total sales of its five anti-cancer drugs amounted to less than a third as much." —Industrial News Review.

Their Late Father

By PATRICIA MOORE

This Christmas Season

Christ means "the anointed one" and the "mas" part of Christmas means "festival of," so that Christmas is the festival of the nativity of Christ, observed by the western world on Dec. 25 of each year.

But it wasn't always like that. There is an Old Christmas, occurring on Jan. 6, when it was generally believed that the baptism of Christ took place.

Christmas, such a widely celebrated occasion today, was considered by the great Augustine as of lesser authority and later origin than the holy days of Easter, Ascension and Whitsuntide.

One source of information says that when efforts were first made to fix the first day of Advent, dates of May 20, April 20 and April 21 were advanced. Oriental Christmas held that the birth and baptism of Christ took place on Jan. 6. Bishop of Rome Julian I (337-352 AD) advocated Dec. 25 as the birthdate of Christ. It is said the Eastern Church eventually accepted this as the birthdate, while the Western Church accepted ultimately Jan. 6 as the date of baptism.

And then came a step which seems to justify, or at least give a basis of, the materialistic and merry-making aspect of Christmas. When finally the Dec. 25 birthdate of Christ was generally accepted, countries which had celebrated the passing of the shortest day of the year (mid-December) substituted Christmas — this included heathens. Revelry crept into Christmas almost from the first. And the purity of Christmas was "sullied" almost from the first, our source of information says.

Other Editors Saying Example To Haunt World

(Greensboro Daily News)

India's invasion of Goa, involving the highly sanctimonious Pandit Nehru, has ironic, and sadly tragic, overtones which the world cannot ignore.

In the past Prime Minister Nehru has been the first world leader to condemn the use of aggression by one power against another, even in a righteous cause. He praised the United States when it intervened against its long-time allies, Great Britain and France, in the Egyptian crisis of 1956. He opposed the Soviet rape of Hungary. He supported the joint U. N. action against Russia and Red China in the invasion of South Korea. He backed U. S. action in the Congo.

Now Mr. Nehru has launched a military action of his own—perhaps in a righteous cause but certainly in violation of the United Nations charter and all that organization stands for.

The question immediately rises: Will the emerging neutralist nations—such as India and Indonesia — consider it proper to use aggression in their own back yard and oppose it elsewhere? Will they champion the use of force against Western colonialism but ignore Soviet colonialism in Eastern Europe?

Naturally the Soviet Union has come to the assistance of Mr. Nehru. By violating the charter of the United Nations, the Indian prime minister is assisting those Marxist forces which hope to capitalize on turmoil and discord. As long as Nehru's action suits the purposes of the Kremlin, there will be full support from that quarter. The position will change, however, as the Indian prime minister may learn to his sorrow, when the ruthless forces of Red China begin an invasion on the northern border. Then India will know what it means to be victim rather than aggressor.

"Tonight we are witnessing the first act of the drama which will end in its death," said U. S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson. He spoke of the United Nations. He compared it to the old League of Nations, when that organization's failure to halt Italy's aggression in Ethiopia rang its death knell.

If the United Nations cannot uphold the mandate against aggression anywhere in the world, it has started down the path to destruction. Eleven years ago President Truman's quick action in South Korea saved the United Nations. In the Suez crisis of 1956 President Eisenhower's determination to hold back the aggressive aims of its old allies — Britain and France — even at great expense to the alliance supported the U. N.'s principle and served as an example to the world.

In the case of Goa — even though India's claim to the territory has much to be said for it — Prime Minister Nehru has set an example which could tragically rise up to haunt him and all those nations which seek to establish a peaceful world community.

Christ Was born in winter When snow hid warmth and when The evergreens reached out their arms In love.

'Twas then That cows and sheep, Just as cold as he, Left beds of straw and stables, too For Him.

Shepherds came and brought Their flocks; they'd heard that God Had sent His Son. They came to worship Him.

Then It was that wise men Travelled, guided by The star, with gifts to lay before His feet.

The night Was clear, the air Was pure. Heaven smiled Down on tranquil Earth—Came Christmas.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS GROWTH THROUGH GOD

The eleventh chapter of Isaiah gives us a picture of the coming of Christ's kingdom. It tells of the branch that shall grow out of the root of Jesse, of that being who "shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears, but with righteousness shall he judge the poor and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth."

"Righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins. The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the eagle and the young lion, and the falcon, shall be together; and a little child shall lead them." We are at times not only surprised but utterly astonished at the ways of the Lord. He sent a King and a Savior into the world. Why did not the heavens glow and the earth tremble and men everywhere fall down in adoration and awe? The answer to that question is locked up in the wisdom of God. All we know is that the coming of the Saviour did not take place in that way. A child to whom nobody but a few shepherds paid any attention, was born to a humble woman in a stable and a whole new life began for the world. An incomparable light shed out upon its pathways.

Childhood does not represent weakness but the promise of growth. This little child brings to us the promise of a growth which shall continue through this life and into the glorious eternity of God.

10 States Tipping Off The Feds

By ELMER ROESSNER

The states are playing stool pigeon on their citizens, judging from a new study by Commerce Clearing House. These states have entered into agreement with the Federal government to tip off the Feds when a state citizen furnishes his return, skips town, or is caught in an evasion. In return the Feds give similar information on state residents.

The agreements to exchange information is comprehensive. Under certain circumstances, a state can inspect the supposedly "confidential" return of resident taxpayers.

The ten stool-pigeon states are California, Colorado, Kansas, Kentucky, Minnesota, Montana, North Carolina, Ohio, Utah and Wisconsin. Several other states have information exchange arrangements.

Section 107 of the Internal Revenue Code says that in the case of a minister of the gospel, gross income does not include the value of his home furnished him as part of his compensation.

But in the case of a cantor at a Jewish community center, the portion of his compensation consisting of a rental allowance to provide him with a home is not deductible in calculating income tax. A key point: a parson is ordained; a cantor need not be, hence is not a "minister of the gospel." (Rev. Rul. 61-203.)

MODERN SCIENCE COMBATS THE THUG, THE VANDAL — In West Germany, Mercedes-Benz has devised a stickup-proof car; there's a bullet-proof partition between the driver and the passenger; the car doors are locked and controlled by the driver, and passengers pay by dropping money through a slot.

They can be kept locked in the cab until they pay.

In Midwest America, Minneapolis-Honeywell has devised a system that floods a school with electronic waves and sounds an alarm when an intruder touches a wire or enters a room.

NO MOONLIGHT EXEMPTION, TAX COURT RULES

As every working man knows by this time he gets up to a $100-a-week tax exemption on sick pay. But if the man moonlights and has two jobs, does he get a $100-a-week exemption on each?

No, says the U. S. Tax Court; the limit is $100 a week. (Graves 37 TC No. 171.)

Dr. Sun Linked To U.S.

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

I do not know who Professor Stanley Spector is but he signs himself "Associate Professor, Far Eastern Affairs, Washington University," St. Louis, Missouri. I would be willing to bet dollars to doughnuts that the professor never knew Dr. Sun Yat-sen and that his letter to the "St. Louis Post Dispatch" is distant from the realities.

Now to state my own bona fides. When I arrived in Shanghai in 1919, my first job was on the Kuomintang newspaper which was nominally owned by Dr. Sun. It became customary for me to visit Dr. Sun most afternoons at about 4 p. m. I proof-read the English of some of his books; I would bring visitors from the United States and other countries to see him and to discuss matters with him. For instance, when Thomas Lamont of J. P. Morgan came to China with questions of the Consortium, I set up his appointments with Sun Yat-sen and was present at all of them.

Associate Professor Spector writes: "The stamp which countless American children lick each day pays tribute to a man guilty of the following crimes against stability and conservatism, to state the very least: "1. He did knowingly accept money, aid and advisers from agents of the Communist International."

There is much history related to this which the professor apparently does not know and the documentation for which is in my possession.

Dr. Sun asked me to discuss with Major Arthur Bassett, then attached to the 25th Infantry, and Colonel Drysdale, then our military attache, the possibility of establishing a West Point for the Kuomintang armies. Had this proposal gone through, Dr. Sun's forces would have been American directed. He also discussed this matter with Roy Anderson, one of the most knowledgeable Americans in China. The American government turned the proposal down. Dr. Sun then thought that he might make some connection with General Ludendorff who was then at the head of the German officer veterans. Later some of these German officer veterans did come to China.

When in Dr. Sun's house in Shanghai when an invitation came to him to visit Soviet Russia. The telegram came from Lenin and while it might have been sent via Siberia and North China, the Russians preferred to send it via England so that the governments of the Western countries would know that Lenin was moving in on Sun.

Ultimately the Russians sent Adolf Joffe to Shanghai to confer with Sun and as a result Michael Borodin and General Bleucher-Galens came to Shanghai to assist Dr. Sun in his revolutionary movement.

Dr. Sun never became a Communist. He thought that Marxism was primitive and would not help China. It was to offset the assumption that because Sun dealt with the Russians he had become a Marxist that he expressed his interest in a book written by Dr. Maurice Williams, a Brooklyn dentist. I believe, on the social rather than economic interpretation of history. Dr. Williams became one of the sages of Kuomintang philosophy.

Dr. Sun never went to Russia. Chiang Kai-shek did go there and although he spoke no Russian, came back to China as an expert on Russian military education. Eugene Chen, a West Indian Chinese, British educated, who was a friend of my first wife and was at my wedding, went to Russia and when the Kuomintang government was set up, he became Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Dr. Sun died on March 12, 1925 before his revolutionary movement got under way. It was expected that Hu Han-min or Wang Ching-wei would take over. Borodin preferred Chiang Kai-shek.

It is said that Sun was subsidized by the Russians to display ignorance of what happened. The final agreement was consummated between Borodin and Chiang Kai-shek. The Chinese paid for everything they got from Russia. Most of the arms and munitions came from dumps of American supplies left behind in Siberia by the American forces after World War I. To pay for these arms, munitions and medical supplies, which the Russians did not really own, a gasoline

Educators Cite Greater Efforts

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina public school superintendents have told Gov. Terry Sanford his education program is resulting in better efforts on the part of teachers.

Sanford said, "Improvements are noted in the effort, interest and attitude of teachers, including improvement in the quality of applicants for teaching positions."

He told his weekly news conference Wednesday the program, enacted and financed by the 1961 General Assembly at Sanford's prodding, has "been even more rewarding than expected."

The governor praised the lawmakers, saying, "The vision and courage of these legislators will be long remembered in the history of North Carolina progress."

Sanford said in many cases faculty groups have gone voluntarily on an eight-hour day at school in addition to the many hours of overtime work at home.

Other points noted by the superintendents, Sanford related, were reduction in class size, improvement in library services and more serious study by students.

He said there has been more concentration on instruction during school hours with more emphasis on serious study and a reduction of time and effort spent on extra-curricular activities.

Editor Visited Church In Bethel

BETHEL—Rev. S. J. Starnes, Editor of the Greensboro North Carolina Christian Advocate, conference organ of both the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences, was guest speaker at Bethel Methodist Church the past Sunday morning.

Using as his topic: "Total Enlightenment" the speaker said that as with the armed forces so it is with the church that every member should be present and accounted for. He pointed out the great need for full loyalty to the church in this time when the world needs spiritual leadership. "We are called to love the Lord with all the heart, soul, and mind, and also to love our neighbor as ourself."

The speaker was presented by the pastor, Rev. Carl W. Barbee, and was a guest in the J. A. Stanton home over the weekend.

Deer Trapped In Loan Co. Office

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A 125-pound deer burst through the swinging door of a loan company in the city's busy Chestnut Hill section Wednesday, raced across the lobby, and then dashed into a parking lot.

Seconds later the deer bounded back into the lobby. It visited several offices before a janitor managed to slam the door of one, imprisoning it. The SPCA took the deer away.

Burmese Premier's Play Will See U.S. Premiere At College

U Nu, Prime Minister of Burma, has granted permission to East Carolina College to present the American premiere of his new play, "The Wages of Sin," President Leo W. Jenkins of the college has announced.

Produced by the East Carolina College Playhouse, student dramatic club, under the direction of Dr. Joseph A. Whitey of the faculty, the play will be presented in three performances February 22, 23, and 24 at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium on the campus.

U Nu, Burmese Ambassador to the United States, has been invited to be a guest of the college when the play opens on the campus. A number of Burmese students attending colleges and universities in this part of the nation and others who are interested in Burma, its culture and its place in international affairs, are expected to attend performances.

Dr. Withey, as a Fulbright research scholar in theater arts was attached to the University of Mandalay in Burma during 1960-1961. While there, he asked permission to present the American premiere of the U Nu drama at East Carolina College. His request has just been granted. Arrangements for producing the play by the East Carolina Playhouse are now in progress.

The Burmese dramatist-statesman is the author of "The People Win Through," a drama written shortly after World War II, and of the new play "The Wages of Sin." Both are political plays. The first drama had its American premiere at the Pasadena Playhouse in California.

E. M. Law Yone, editor of "The Nation," leading English-language newspaper in Burma, in describing the dramas, said, "In both, the central theme is not so much the danger of Communism, which is generally recognized, but the means necessary to avert it."

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—A third X15 rocket plane has taken to the air and made the first test of new controls for space flight.

Pilot Neil A. Armstrong of the U.S. space agency flew the ship at 2,454 miles per hour and to an altitude of 80,000 feet in an 11-minute maiden flight Wednesday.

There was no attempt to go higher or faster. The two other X15s hold the world records for both speed and altitude.

Jr., 108 N. Summit St., Greenville, 69 m.p.h. in 60 zone, cost and license suspended for 10 days.

The flight tested a computer-like device that automatically operates jets in the nose and wings to correct deviations in space flight faster than a man can think. Heretofore the pilot has had to operate the control jets manually. They are needed because of the rare atmosphere at high altitudes. Armstrong expressed satisfaction with the performance.

CHAPTER II

Settled at a table at the Cloisters, Martin Whitfield looked across at Lee Folsom. "You don't think I can transform Oakland into a reasonable facsimile of Sundown?" he asked.

"I suppose you can, if you don't get restless and bored before you finish."

"Restless? Bored? My dear girl, you don't know me," he assured her firmly.

"No, I really don't, do I?" Lee agreed.

Martin's eyes held hers for a long moment, and there was an absurd stirring in her heart.

"But you will," he promised her, and turned to the waiter who was standing beside them, ready to take their order.

When they had been served their first course, Martin leaned toward her again.

"I really meant that, Lee," he told her.

"That you're going to remodel Oakland?"

"That's your going to get to know me," he cut in firmly. "May I tell you why I bought Oakland?"

Martin hesitated while their first course was changed, the second came and the waiter removed himself.

"I'd made several trips around the world," he began. "I became curious about the places cruise ships didn't visit. So I took a trip all on my own, to the little, off-the-beaten-track spots where people live in a degradation, a poverty that to us in America is unbelievable. I saw things that even now sicken me as I recall them. Then I came back to Rome and Paris and London; and the bitter contrast I saw there, the people who had so much they were bored to death with everything—"

He broke off, his eyes apprehensive.

"Am I making any sort of sense?" he asked her humbly.

"Of course. A lot of sense. Please go on."

He nodded and resumed:

"I stopped in Ireland to visit a friend who had bought one of the ruined castles there and was having a ball restoring it, bringing prosperity to the people of the little village at the foot of the crag on which the castle was built," he said. "He'd never been a man to interest himself in the affairs of people less fortunate than himself. But now he was employing as many men as he could; walking down to the village in the evenings to sit in the pub and make friends with everybody who came in. And he told me that the thing that was most important to him was that each morning when he got up, there was something to do; something that really mattered."

Lee had listened in growing amazement.

"So you thought you'd come here and befriend the underprivileged and downtrodden," she began sharply.

Martin stared at her as though thunderstruck.

"Is that what you really think?" he asked at last, and made a small, hopeless gesture. "Then I've failed miserably to make you understand and I'm sorry. Shall we just skip the whole thing?"

She saw that he was genuinely hurt, and instant compunction swept over her. She leaned forward and touched his hand with her own in a gesture of apology.

"If I've misunderstood, Martin, I'm truly sorry."

"You've completely misunderstood, but I'm not too sure you will be any more kindly disposed when I tell you that my whole intention in this is purely selfish," he pointed out ruefully. "I'm a bit concerned about befriending the underprivileged, as you call it. After what I've seen in other parts of the world, I consider people in and around Lewisville among the most privileged of all people. No, my whole thought in buying and restoring Oakland is to give a point and a purpose to my own life! You see how selfish and self-centered I am."

Before she could answer, and while she was still turning his words over in her mind, he went on:

"When my friend in Ireland told me what fun it was to wake up every morning and have something to do that seemed to him important, I knew that was what I wanted. Can you imagine, Lee, anything more completely deadening than to awake each morning knowing only that there are so many hours to get through and nothing that you feel is really important to do? You have your work; I know it's important to you."

"You must wake up every morning knowing that you must get to the office; that there are things to be done. Well, that's what I want of Oakland. And if it takes ten years or twenty, so much the better. With a place like that to keep on occupied, every day will seem important and the time will not be long enough to do everything one wants."

My friend laughed one morning and said, "Know what's the most fun about this place, Mart? The fact that you can step outside, close your eyes, turn around twice, open your eyes, and be looking straight at a job that should have been done yesterday?" To me, the odd thing is that his wife is as excited about the castle as he is."

"Why should you find that odd?" Lee asked curiously.

"Because she is the last woman in the world you could believe would be contented living amid the clutter and debris that accompanies a restoration job," Martin admitted. "She's a woman of great wealth brought up in the luxury that goes hand in hand with good taste. Now she runs around in slacks or battered jeans, usually has a dab of paint on her cheek, and is as bright-eyed and eager as a girl. And she told me herself that she is happier than she has ever been in her life. Her husband adores her, though before they started on this job, they were almost strangers."

John than I am about the benefits that may come to others. But I'll try to do what's best for Oakland and the people."

"I'm sure you will," Lee told him sincerely, and smiled. "I think you're very nice, Martin!"

He looked inordinately pleased.

"And I think you're about the nicest person I've ever met," he told her warmly.

Their Chimney Still Standing

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Whatever else they've lost, jeweler Harry Davis and his wife Lynn still have their sense of humor.

Their Christmas cards customarily are photographs showing the couple comfortably seated before the fireplace.

This year's cards are no exception. The Davises are sitting beside the chimney—and nothing else.

Their home was destroyed in last month's disastrous Bel-Air fire. "Our open house," the card proclaims.

At the bottom of the greeting is their temporary address in Beverly Hills, followed by the phrase, "Out but not down."

Governor Urges Peace Prayers

RALEIGH (AP) — In his first annual Christmas message, Gov. Terry Sanford has called for prayers "that we may celebrate next Christmas and the succeeding Christmas in peace."

The governor said especially in 1961. "When a godless ideology challenges the peace, the freedom and the very existence of men and nations of good will," such prayers are necessary.

British Talk Changing Of Monetary System

By SAM DAWSON
 AP Business News Analyst
 NEW YORK (AP)—The British are talking of making their money more easily understood. The idea would be to join a major portion of the world in figuring money on the decimal system.

Americans, who have plenty of trouble just understanding their own—try to figure what something would cost in a 1939 dollar—will be all for anything that takes some of the mystery out of the British pound, shilling and pence.

And if the British adopt something like our dollar-equals-100 cents system, it would be a major step, but only one, in the long process of getting universal standards for a world where each nation increasingly, and often in spite of itself, finds it has to live with and do business with a lot of others.

There will be a lot of things still all mixed up. And a lot of things that Americans don't figure by the decimal system either.

The inch, yard, mile and acre may make sense to you. It doesn't to a host of others who talk in terms of centimeters, meters, kilometers, hectares.

You may measure in ounces, pounds and tons—which do you mean, long or short ton? A lot of other people don't know what that means. They figure in grams and kilograms. And how about pints, quarts, gallons, barrels and hogsheads? What does that mean in liters? Or, if you're an oil producer do you report output in barrels or tons—and, again, what kind of tons?

The British consideration of switching its currency to a decimal system like the American dollar and penny, or the French franc and centime, is motivated by several factors.

For one, not too many years ago the pound sterling was as much the international language of finance as French was the language of diplomacy. Now many nations have broken away from the pound sterling and turned to a decimal currency—large portions of the British Commonwealth have.

Also the U.S. dollar in many sections of the globe has succeeded the pound as the currency on which international exchange is reckoned.

For another thing, the British are coveting the prosperity which their neighbors on the European Continent have achieved by their Common Market. And the British would like to share it. To join in close economic union with nations using the decimal system, it would be handy if the British figured that way, too.

International agencies are working hard to get wider adoption of universal standards. Each year they make progress. They have a long way yet to go.

All of the wonderful gadgets we ship to all parts of the world would work better if replacement parts were all to the same tolerance, in the same language of measurement. And these gadgets could hook up better to other gadgets already in place if all used the same language of measurement.

Moss Hart, Genius Of The Theater, Came From Slums

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Playwright Moss Hart, a child of poverty who could have written nothing more remarkable than his own success story, is dead of a heart attack.

Hart, whose genius brought him from the gloom of New York's slums to the glamor of his Great White Way, collapsed Wednesday at his winter home in this desert resort.

Hart, 57, had been suffering pain in his jaw and was going to see his dentist. "Mr. Hart was walking to his car when he fell straight back," said his agent, Irving Lazar. "He was taken to the house and the doctor came to inject artificial respiration and an injection. But Mr. Hart didn't respond."

His death came only six months after that of George S. Kaufman, with whom he collaborated on such classic theater comedies as "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and the Pulitzer Prize-winning "You Can't Take It With You."

Hart also was a director of such Broadway musical successes as "Camelot" and "My Fair Lady," both still running—the latter since 1957.

This was his third heart attack. He had been ill several days but it was his jaw, not his heart, that seemed to be troubling him.

His wife, actress-singer Kitty Carlisle, left the television panel show "To Tell the Truth" in New York to accompany him West several weeks ago.

Their children, Christopher, 13, and Cathy, 11, also were here. So was composer Frederick Lowe, who worked with Hart on "My Fair Lady."

Hart once recalled that he grew up "in an atmosphere of unbelievable poverty." His father, an English Jew, made a bare living as a cigar maker. His mother took in boarders at their flat in the Bronx.

When he was only 12, Hart left school out of financial necessity. He first worked in the storage vault of a wholesale furrier. There, he said, "it was cool and I had ample time to read."

Several years later he became an office boy for theatrical producer August Pitou. At 17, he wrote his first play, "Beloved Bandit," and Pitou produced it. It opened on the road, and closed on the road—a flop.

At 18, it seemed, Hart was a literary failure. He got a job as a department store floor walker.

But he soon returned to the theater. He got some experience on the Borscht Circuit in the Catskills and presently another of his plays, "Once in a Lifetime," was accepted by producer Sam Harris. It was a straight play and Harris persuaded Hart to turn it into a musical in collaboration with Kaufman, who was already famous. This was Hart's first major success.

He remained a bachelor until 1946. Then, at age 42, he married Miss Carlisle. It was also her first marriage.

Perhaps because of his humble beginnings, Hart relished his wealth—which was considerable, including millions of dollars in royalties. He maintained a sumptuous estate in Bucks County, Pa., and dressed elegantly.

But he said no other kind of success could have given him so much satisfaction as success in the theater. "There is an intensity, an extravagance, an abundant and unequivocal gratification to the vanity and the ego that can be satisfied more richly and more fully by success in the theater than in any other calling," he once wrote.

Hart never liked Hollywood. He said the movie industry would have been better off if it had stayed in New York. But he wrote such screen plays as "Gentlemen's Agreement," "A Star Is Born" (remake), "Prince of Players" and "HANS Christian Anderson."

Among his other Broadway plays were "Face the Music," "Winged Victory," "As Thousands Cheer," "The Great Waltz" and "Climate of Eden."

Final rites will be held Friday at Temple Isaiah in the Palm Springs Jewish Community Center. Cremation will follow at San Bernardino.

Canadian Kids' Christmas Tree Plea Discounted

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Canadian kids are up to their Christmas tree tricks again.

As they have often done in the past—because they found Uncle Sam to be Uncle Santa—they're flooding the United States once more with pitiful pleas tagged to exported Christmas trees.

But the bells soon may not be tinkling so merrily on sleighfuls of goodies going northward. In fact, the tear-jerking tots may have pulled Santa's whiskers once too often.

A tree from the little town of Tracadie, New Brunswick, touched the hearts of men at MacDill Air Force Base in Florida—and then touched off the ire of the Tracadie parish priest.

On the tree was a note from a boy saying: "Will you have the kindness to help a poor boy?" It asked for a box of candy to be shared with seven brothers and sisters.

The MacDill men hastily assembled a plane-load of food, toys and clothing, and sent it winging to Tracadie. Back from Tracadie today came winging some stiff words uttered by the parish priest, the Rev. A. Trudel, about the tactics of the local kids.

He denied that residents of the New Brunswick village are in dire straits, as the air force men were led to believe. He said only two families in the population of more than 4,000 were in need, but that they were being well looked after.

"Children these days want everything," snapped Father Trudel.

"Children in one large family I know sent about 300 letters with trees this year," he said.

"The parish has a population of more than 4,000 and their savings accounts amount to about $2.5 million.

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Visions of using robot computers to help doctors diagnose diseases; a theory that chemicals suspect as cancer-causes may hitchhike rides on viruses; and a new and healthier paint for submarines are among latest examples of science at work.

ROBOT MEDICS

New research suggests that eventually electronic computers may help doctors diagnose heart disease and certain other ailments.

The robot medical aides might also be employed in "mass screening" of large population groups to help detect unsuspected ailments.

That's the word from a team of U. S. Public Health Service, Cornell, and industry researchers. They report preliminary but promising results in using a computer to help tell whether a given person has a normal or diseased heart.

It does so, they say, by digesting punched card data corresponding to electrical and other signals given out by the heart—and automatically comparing it with similar data stored in the machine's memory department.

The memory stuff is data cleaned from many persons known to have heart disease—or be free of it. The machine quickly issues a terse, typewritten report relating the likelihood of normalcy or disease in a given person. Lots more study is needed, however, before there could be any thought of using the robots clinically.

Now, the Naval Research Laboratory has come up with a new, semi-gloss "acrylic-latex" paint—with a rubbery base—which scientists say solves the problem.

Most new railroad passenger cars are 85 feet long, but on some lines, they vary from 60 to 88 feet.

they are present only in trace amounts, says a group of Seton Hall Medical College researchers. How then, could they possibly cause cancer? It might be, say the scientists, that common viruses—such as those that sometimes cause polio, cold and other ailments—might serve as carriers of such chemicals. They might take them right into susceptible body cells which viruses themselves can invade.

The scientists, who said their theory stemmed from work on mice, granted the concept is open to challenge. But they said that if it proved correct, it might be possible to prevent some kinds of cancer by protecting people against viruses that pick up hitchhiking chemicals.

Time Dealt Harshly With Diamond Grove

By ROY JOHNSON
Roanoke-Chowan News Writer

Written for The Associated Press
DIAMOND GROVE, N.C. (AP)—Once a joyful place, then by legendary stories an evil memory, and now furrowed almost completely from view by passing time, this Diamond Grove, once a prominent Northampton County plantation, post office, stage stop, and trade center, that you will find listed on no current maps and a name that few people beyond the immediate community know.

Time has dealt harshly with Diamond Grove, exacting tremendous change over a century and a half. Three distinct milestones standing almost exactly a half century apart mark the changes. Some people say sin led to its downfall, others contend the Civil War delivered the fatal blow.

Jesse E. Piland, 82, present owner of the old plantation site, and J. G. Bottoms, 86, of Marquetteville, a mile and a half to the west, are among those who recall the legendary stories. The public records at the court house in Jackson add a bit of firmness. A half dozen trees that were members of an ancient grove of oak and elm set in the shape of a diamond and two old houses still stand to attest to the original features. Piland purchased the homestead 51 years ago from Bottoms, and he points to a giant oak and remarks, "I can tell no difference in the size of that tree from what it was 50 years ago."

When Piland built his new home in the grove in 1913 he moved two old buildings to other parts of the farm. One was a two story and a jump frame structure with bedrooms and of a kind common to prosperous land holders of eastern North Carolina during the revolutionary period. The other, obviously built later, is a rectangular more spacious two story structure built in front of the original building.

Bottoms spent his boyhood near Diamond Grove and carries in his memory the "wicked stories" told by old timers of the late 1800's. Listen to the grand old story teller awhile and scenes and sounds of the early days at Diamond Grove return.

There is the beat of horses' hoofs growing ever louder, drumming monotonously against planking of the roadway. A stage coach appears, pulls to a stop before a small building where roadways stretch to the four points of the compass, exchanges mail and passengers, moves on while sounds and vision fades. The stage is traveling the plank road that drops out of Virginia from Petersburg and leads on to Fayetteville in North Carolina.

Another time, again the sound of horses' hoofs, yet different, pounding upon one of the dirt roadways, growing nearer and louder until the vibration almost makes the earth and air quiver. A string of riders, jackets fluttering, move swiftly, onward, between the zigzag rail fences that hedge the fields from roving livestock. A group of people, perhaps several dozen men, women and children, stand by the roadway in front of the Diamond Grove.

There is considerable clamor in the groups if spectators, a confusion of cries, hand and hat waving. The lead rider extends one hand upwards as he nears the geese. He seizes a goose by the neck and in the twinkling part of a second wrings off the head. Other riders sped past, adds to his dust; a few score, many do not, for few are experts at this game. The races continue until all the birds have been killed.

The event with accompanying spectator-excitement was a "Gauger pulling", unheard of today except from a few old timers versed in tradition.

The sport was one of the many kinds a visitor would expect to witness at the big celebrations held at Diamond Grove for the 26 anniversary years that Dr. William J. Johnson owned it.

During the customary three-day celebration a variety of events enabled a person to enjoy his particular yen for excitement. There were the bloody cock fights, the foot races, the wrestling matches between slaves of several plantations, and several types of horse racing and a tournament, then there were the card games where spirits of players sparkled with an abundance of toddies, sometimes resulting in fist fights.

The celebration usually lasted around the clock. The evening feast followed darkness; and then came the drink and dancing. The

Faculty Gives Trip To Hawaii

BUIES CREEK, N.C. (AP)—Dr. L. H. Campbell, president of Campbell College, and Mrs. Campbell have been given a plane trip to Hawaii as a Christmas gift by the college faculty.

The couple left Wednesday for Honolulu to visit their son and his family for the Christmas holidays. The son, Capt. James A. Campbell, is stationed with the Medical Corps there.

Carrier Delivers 40 Helicopters

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The converted U.S. aircraft carrier Core left South Viet Nam Wednesday after unloading about 40 combat helicopters and 400 U.S. support troops and pilots.

The H21 helicopters and their ground and air crews are the first major contribution under the new program of increased U.S. military aid to the South Viet Nam government's battle against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

CHILDREN OF THE MOOSE flocked to the auditorium of Greenville Moose Temple Wednesday night for a visit by Santa Claus. The majority, according to observers, ranged from six years old on down. How many met Santa? "Well, let me see," said the old gent; and after checking his list (twice) reported happily "There were 198 of my friends here. I had a stocking for each." (Photo by S. L. Host Of New Programs Is Standing In TV 'Wings'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—'Tis the season to be jolly for us average citizens, but it is a time of apprehension for the thousands who make their living in television. Each year at this holiday period, TV is engaged in life-or-death de-isions about current programs while diving headlong into big plans for next season.

Possibly the most predictable news emanating from the creative ateliers of New York and Hollywood concerns a whole slew of new programs on the big new theme now in planning stages.

There's "Breakdown" about a psychiatrist. There's "Dr. Pygmalion," about a plastic surgeon. There is "Come A-Runnin'" concerning a small town general practitioner. There is "Diary of a Nurse," which is self-explanatory. And there is still another, untitled, about students at medical college.

If "Dr. Kildare," "Ben Casey," "The Donna Reed Show," "Hennessey" and "Gunsmoke" (don't forget "Doc") survive for another season, next year's crop of kiddie viewers will be practicing taking temperatures and pulses instead of fast draws.

To make room for the new shows, some of this season's misses and near misses are going to have to go. And the future of many hang in the balance. ABC is rumored to be even thinking of giving up "The Untouchables."

CAA Probe Due Into Air Service

WASHINGTON (AP)—Capital Airlines' old application to drop its service in North Carolina and at one Virginia airport has resulted in a Civil Aeronautics Board order for an investigation into competitive trunk air service between the Northeast and several cities in the South.

The order, issued Wednesday, makes United, Delta, Eastern, Braniff, American and National Airlines parties to the proceeding. Capital asked to withdraw its request to discontinue service to North Carolina when it merged with United Airlines. The CAB Wednesday, however, consolidated that application into the investigation.

and its "Maverick" is probably in its final, faltering months.

After a brief outing, Sonny Fox's "On Your Mark" for children on Saturday morning quietly went down the ABC drain after last week's show. It was heralded, when it premiered, as ABC's response to widespread demands for better TV programs for youngsters. The time has been turned back to local stations—and in my town, the ABC station is using it for reruns of ancient "Our Gang" silent movies.

NBC's "Today" show is in a state of flux. Edwin Newman, after a few months as its newscaster, will soon pull out of the show. It is expected that host John Chancellor will take over the job. And the show producers are on another one of their periodic hunts for a girl to take the place of Robin Bain. It's important to have a pretty girl on the show who can chatter and—more essential—read those commercials which come more suitably from female lips.

The show business newspaper "Variety" reports that the cosmetic sponsors of the Dec. 13 Bob Hope special are irked at their highly paid star. It seems that the following day, Bob's picture turned up in newspaper ads endorsing a rival brand of perfume.

Lawmen Destroy 60-Gallon Still Outside Bethel

BETHEL—Pitt County ABC officers and Bethel police teamed up yesterday to destroy a 60-gallon still, located a half-mile east of the city limits near the Big Oak road.

Officers, who reported the still was in a wooded area, said the unit included a 60-gallon drum type still complete with cap, muffler type condenser, seven 60-gallon steel drum mash barrels and a 60-gallon cooler.

The mash barrels contained a total of 350 gallons of mash. The illegal outfit, fired by oil burners, was not in operation and no arrests were made. Axes were used to destroy the unit.

Taking part in the raid on the distillery were Pitt ABC enforcers J. M. Ward and Walter Taylor, and Bethel Policemen Jessie Gardner and Willis Owens.

A WINNER—Huge cake, called "Fountain of Youth," was part of winning display of The Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., at New York exposition.

Big Salvation Army Task For Yuletide

At least 400 families in the Greenville area will feel the traditional cheer of the Christmas season. But, perhaps, this wouldn't be the case without the efforts of the local unit of the Salvation Army.

Use Of Force Is Frankly Backed By New Govm'ts

By MAX HARRELSON
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The case of Goa has brought home a sobering fact to many U. N. diplomats: the United Nations of today is not the organization they knew 10 or even 5 years ago. The change prompts some of the alarms that are being sounded about its future.

The flood of Asian and African countries into membership has introduced new concepts, new codes of conduct. Some Western diplomats express concern that the group's growing influence may so transform the U.N. that the West can no longer accept it.

In the Goa case, for example, the Soviet Union was not alone in opposing a cease-fire. The Security Council's three African-Asian members—Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic—joined the Soviets.

Going even further, these three demanded that the council reject Portugal's complaint and call on Portugal in effect to turn over the areas to India voluntarily.

This was a factor in Adlai E. Stevenson's pessimistic statement Tuesday. He said the Soviet veto was consistent "but I find the attitude of some other members of the council profoundly disturbing. 'We have witnessed tonight,' he went on, 'an effort to rewrite the charter, to sanction the use of force in international relations when it suits one's own purposes. This approach can lead only to chaos and to the disintegration of the United Nations.'

The combination of Asian-African and Communist support for India convinced the Western powers that it would be futile to follow the usual practice of going before the General Assembly in the face of a veto. They did not relish the prospect of being slapped down by a whopping vote.

One of the things that has shocked Western diplomats is the frankness of many Asian and African delegates in declaring that the use of force is permissible if used to free a dependent territory.

There is some fear that this line of thinking might lead to a wave of violence, particularly against territories held by Portugal and South Africa—the main targets of Asian-African criticism.

The possibility is striking in view of the support the Soviet bloc gives Asian-African countries on colonial questions. The two groups make a formidable coalition in the 104-nation General Assembly. The Asian-African group, not even an organized bloc 10 years ago, now has 50 members. The Soviet bloc has 10 members plus Cuba. Between them they come close to a two-thirds majority.

Left An Estate Of $23 Million

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Mrs. Nathalie Gray Bernard, who died Nov. 28, left an estate worth $23.1 million, according to an inventory filed in Forsyth County Superior Court.

About $2 million was left to the Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Wake Forest College, and about $7 million was left in trust for her nine grandsons. Estate and inheritance taxes will take about $14 million.

Mrs. Bernard, whose first husband was Bowman Gray, Sr., chairman of the board of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. here, also made bequests to several friends and servants.

Gray died in 1935 and the widow married B. F. Bernard three years later. Bernard died in 1949.

Direct-Action Appeals Forecast

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—The Rev. David Andrews said Wednesday, "Quite a few people will be likely to make direct-action appeals" if atomic scientist Morton Sobell is not released from prison "by a reasonable time."

Andrews, director of the Methodist Youth Center at the Methodist Church here, was arrested three times in Washington last week while staging "kneel in" demonstrations in support of Sobell in front of the White House.

The minister said he believes his actions will help free Sobell by August.

The scientist was sentenced to 30 years in prison in 1951 for conspiracy to commit treason. His case was involved with that of Julian and Ethel Greenberg, who were executed.

INSPECTORS BUSY

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—U.S. Customs inspectors are being kept busy by the influx of Christmas packages from abroad. Items checked this week at International airport included church vestments from the Vatican, two storks from Switzerland and lizards from the West Indies.

in the Greenville area. Firemen have worked long hours to restore a lustre of newness to the discarded toys for their presentation to the youngsters.

Among the collection of gifts for the needy families will be 155 dolls purchased by the Salvation Army. Capt. Reagan says purchase of the dolls was begun last June in preparation for Saturday morning. Three local women's organizations—the Greenville Home Demonstration Club, the Pilot Club and a ladies' circle of Arlington Street Baptist Church—made clothes for and dressed the dolls.

The food baskets to be handed the families Saturday will contain a chicken, staple groceries, canned foods and fruit. The Salvation Army used cash donations to purchase the food from Ormond Wholesale company at a wholesale price.

From the baskets, the families will be able to prepare Christmas dinners including chicken, vegetables, rice, bread and fruit. The process of determining the families who will receive the baskets involves two full weeks of registration. Then double-checking with the county welfare department to avoid duplication—not with the idea of limiting Christmas for some, but with the goal of spreading the available resources to as many needy families as possible.

Capt. Reagan reported Wednesday the registration—which began Dec. 4 and concluded Monday—had listed about 700 families. During this week, the captain and his five aides were busy double-checking the list of registrants.

Capt. Reagan said the Salvation Army will mail each family a notice to pick up their Christmas basket and gifts at the building which formerly housed Sulton's Service Center on Dickinson Avenue.

A possibility, he said, is that the local Optimist Club would donate Christmas trees left over from its annual fund-raising maneuver. The trees would be given the families to take home for decoration in time for Christmas Eve. The local Optimists have contributed their remaining trees in previous years.

While the organization, financing and distribution of material Christmas cheer to needy families takes precedence during this season as the Salvation Army's chief activity, there are more.

Wednesday afternoon the local unit staged a Christmas party at the organization's headquarters for children. A similar event was conducted for 39 teenagers Tuesday night.

The organization provided a list of 47 names of children to East Carolina College fraternities and sororities. The collegians treated the youngsters at various Christmas parties before the college began its Yuletide vacation.

Also included on the Salvation Army's Christmas schedule is a visit to the Pitt County Home when inmates there will be given Christmas gifts.

Sunday afternoon the organization will conduct a Christmas program inside the fences of the Pitt County Prison Camp. Sunday night the Salvation Army conducts its planned Christmas program with its annual Yuletide service at its Dickinson Avenue church.

Premier Chosen For Syrian Govm't

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—President Nazam el Koudsi has chosen a conservative, Said Ghazal, to form a new government free from Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic.

Ghazal, 64, one of Syria's best known lawyers, served as premier before Syria joined with Egypt in the U.A.R. The union was broken by an army revolt in September.

Displayed Heart Instead Of Knee

BRENTWOOD, N.Y. (AP)—Brentwood High School students, officially taken to task recently over short skirts and tight pants, have proved they are made of finer stuff.

Baring their hearts instead of their knees, they collected 500 gifts for young patients in nearby St. Charles Hospital. They delivered them Wednesday.

The toys were collected in a door-to-door campaign, undertaken to combat what the students termed bad publicity for their school.

At the end of November 37 girls were suspended for one or two days for wearing knee-revealing skirts. Boys with too-tight pants also came in for censure. More than 60 of the Brentwood junior and senior high students took part in the toy drive. If they couldn't get new toys, they accepted old ones which could be renovated.

Vice principal Harvey S. Brickman also pointed out that the students conduct an annual drive before Christmas to aid needy families in the area.

"The students of each home room 'adopt' a family and bring in nonperishable foods for distribution at holiday time," said Brickman.

As for the high-hemline and tight pants furore, he said that has quieted down.

"The girls are really complying (with longer hem-lines) and so are the boys," said Brickman, "but of course you may find one or two improperly attired students floating around."

PROTESTS BILLING

NEW YORK (AP)—Actress Sophia Loren has sued producer Samuel Bronston and others because she didn't get equal billing with Charlton Heston on a 40-by-15-foot outdoor sign advertising the film "El Cid." Her suit requests an injunction to keep her name from being used in advertising the film.

Find Nothing To Raise Suspicion

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Officers said they found nothing suspicious Wednesday in a search of a dilapidated house near a wooded area where the graves of 19 infants were discovered.

The house reportedly was packed with merchandise. Its owner, Negro mortician Nathaniel Everett Hargett Jr. said he was holding the articles for a friend who moved to New Jersey.

Meanwhile, Superior Court Solicitor Edward K. Washington said he would conduct further investigation before asking for a court order to exhume the graves.

Actor Wanted Change Of Pace And He's Getting It

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Charlton Heston said he wanted a change of pace from religious epics, and he's getting it.
In his current film he gets into a shower with Italian beauty Elsa Martinelli.

Heston hastily adds: "It's a large shower." And, fleeing Nazi pursuers in "The Pigeon That Took Rome," he is fully clothed.
Heston is getting as far from Ben-Hur and El Cid as he can. He made it up to World War II, which is when "The Pigeon etc." takes place. He still hasn't escaped the religious overtures: I found him in a priest's cassock.

"Strictly a disguise," explained Heston, who plays a hard-hearted infantry officer on an undercover mission. "And not a very good disguise at that. Orson Welles saw me in Rome and said I was the most Lutheran-looking priest he'd ever seen. He predicted I would sell the church back 2,000 years."
If Heston seems exuberant these days it is because the current film is not only modern but carries a 12-week schedule—"On my other pictures that would be long enough to get done with the wardrobe fittings."
No other actor has starred in such lengthy and costly films. Here is his track record:
"The 10 Commandments" — 8 months—$10.5 million.
"Ben-Hur"—10 months — $14.5 million.
"El Cid"—7½ months—$8 million.
Why was he chosen for these epics?
"I have a theory about that," he said. "It's a matter of faces. Some actors' faces fit certain eras. Take Bill Holden. Bill has made only two Westerns, neither of them very successful. His is strictly a 20th-century American face; there's none better."
"Henry Fonda is a great early American face. He is one of the few actors who has made a number of films of the pre-1890 era."
"Drums Along the Mohawk," "Young Mr. Lincoln," "The Farmer Takes a Wife," etc.
And where does the Heston face fit?
"Apparently somewhere before Christ," he said glumly.

Art Displayed In Launderette

LONDON (AP)—The newest thing in art galleries is a launderette in a suburb of London.
The owner, Michael Osterwell, 29, is a painter and 30 of his canvases hang between the bottles of bleach and the washing powders.
"People come from miles around to see them," he said proudly. "They bring their washing with them, too."
Osterwell said European artists have heard about his exhibition and keep asking him for wall space.
"I'm only too happy to oblige, but there are so many of them that I'm going to have a waiting list," he said.
Each show will last two weeks.

Doesn't Approve Bi-Partisanship

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman told a bi-partisan political group Wednesday night: "I don't like bipartisanship. Whenever a fellow tells me he's bipartisan, I know he's going to vote against me."
"I'm a Democrat. Naturally, I want to elect a Democratic ticket."
Truman addressed the City Central Political Committee, comprised of young Democrats and Republicans.

By RIP WATSON
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Utility stocks came under renewed pressure in mixed stock market trading early this afternoon.

On average, the market seemed to be slightly lower, but tape watchers spotted a good number of small gainers. At noon the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 0.30 at 290.40 with industrials down 0.10, rails down 0.10 and utilities down 0.50. Selling in utilities was traced by analysts to two main factors. One was profit taking by mutual funds to gather money they can pay out as capital gains to their shareholders. The group's strong 1961 advance makes this possible. The other factor was the possibility of increased government and public competition with private utilities.

Key issues were up or down fractions to a point of 3/8. Some market leaders improved noticeably over their opening levels, but a potential rally in mid-morning failed to develop when the list as a whole did not follow through. With popular averages testing the lower limits of recent trading ranges, the lack of a rally forwarded some brows along Wall Street.

Most groups were pretty well mixed, although airlines, drugs and most aircraft-missile issues were generally higher.

Says U.S. Ready To End Sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy says that if the Organization of American States (OAS) lifts its sanctions against the Dominican Republic, the United States will restore its diplomatic relations with the Caribbean country.

Kennedy made it clear in a statement released Wednesday that the White House that the United States favors lifting the sanctions and that it is supporting such action in the OAS Council.

"If the council of the OAS takes such action—and our representatives are supporting that step—we will resume diplomatic relations with the Dominican Republic promptly," Kennedy said.

The United States severed diplomatic relations with the Dominican Republic in 1960 in compliance with an OAS foreign ministers resolution.

When the sanctions imposed in the last two years are removed, Kennedy said, the Agriculture Department will authorize purchases under the Dominican allocation of nonquota sugar for the first six months of next year.

He said solution of the political difficulties in the country, the principal feature of which is the immediate creation of a council of state, has now been accepted by the major elements of the democratic opposition.

Hold Two Men In Circus Fire

NITEROI, Brazil (AP) — Two men were held today in connection with the circus fire that took some 300 lives last Sunday but a high police official cast doubt on a statement by one of them that he had set the fire.

"I think he is just trying to gain notoriety by making the confession," the police official added.

Police Chief Gouveia de Abreu said Wednesday night that Alves, a Negro, confessed starting the fire to get revenge because the owner of the circus had refused to give him a job. He implicated another man who also was arrested but who denied having anything to do with setting the fire.

The fire spread rapidly through a big nylon tent trapping hundreds of spectators. Many of the dead were children.

After his arrest, Alves was taken from the Niteroi jail to a military barracks when about 50 angry people gathered in front of
