Door Kept Open For Possible Bid

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is keeping a door open for a possible bid for the Republican nomination for president in 1964.

At the same time, he is beginning a formal campaign with a declaration that his sole object is "re-election as governor of the state."

From what he said at a news conference Wednesday, Rockefeller is entering his campaign for re-election on the premise that:

1. Voters will re-name him governor on the basis of his record.

2. They would have no objection and would even encourage him if he later had an opportunity to win the presidential nomination.

3. A pledge to serve a full, four-year term is therefore unnecessary to win next year.

The governor discussed his political future at a news conference with several other Republican leaders after a six-hour meeting at which they began planning the 1962 campaign.

The governor, with the other GOP leaders surrounding him in his office, told reporters that he and other Republicans would run next year on the party's record and program of the last three years.

He said this record included economic expansion that produced more jobs, record public works construction and higher state aid to education.

Republican State Chairman L. Judson Morhouse predicted Rockefeller would win by a "substantially better plurality" than his 573,000-vote edge of 1958. He defeated Democrat Averell Harriman 3,126,929 million votes to 2,553,895.

Jill Corey And Baseball Player Don Hoak Wed

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Singer Jill Corey and baseball player Don Hoak were married Wednesday in a civil ceremony.

Heavy downtown traffic caused Miss Corey to arrive 15 minutes late for the ceremony in the chambers of Judge Frederick Weir of Allegheny County.

But the wedding went off as planned with only the immediate family, a few friends—including Pittsburgh Mayor Joseph Barr—and newsmen in attendance.

The couple plans to honeymoon in Hot Springs, Ark., and Bermuda where Miss Corey has singing engagements.

The marriage was the first for the singer, 26, who used her real name—Norma Jean Speranza—on the marriage certificate. She was born in nearby Avonmore.

Hoak, third baseman for the Pittsburgh Pirates, was divorced by his first wife last Nov. 20. He is 33.

To cross a creek, an armadillo gulps quantities of air, inflating its insides so it can float, and then paddles across. If the stream is narrow, the animal simply walks across the bottom.

Boy's Action Has Stirred Response

KINGSPORT, Tenn. (AP) — Good wishes and contributions for his savings account and Christmas presents for him and his family have been sent to him from throughout the United States. They were addressed to the newspaper, the Exchange Club, the Salvation Army, the Chamber of Commerce, and some bore only the address: "Gary, the newsboy, Kingsport, Tenn."

The fund for him now totals $275.

A Colorado resident sent a $50 check for the youngster's savings account and another check for $25 for his family "for having brought up a boy with such high thoughts."

A man in Fargo, N.D., sent this message, accompanied by a check: "One of the most touching human stories I've ever heard of. Please accept this check to be added to the fund building up for this unusual, remarkable boy."

From Abilene, Kan.: "We were indeed stirred and thrilled with Gary and his idea of Christmas. He truly exemplified what Christmas should be."

From Knoxville: "Please add this 'widow's mite' to Gary's savings account."

From Santa Barbara, Calif., came a dollar enclosed in a Christmas card signed: "From an old news boy. God bless you!"

And from New Brunswick, N.J., came a letter addressed to the Exchange Club, which reads: "Dear Sirs, if that newsboy can go for his newspaper profit, we can certainly go for a couple of bucks for his education. Merry Christmas and happy New Year."

It contained four dollars and was signed, "four broken-down horse-players."

Fat Airmen Told To Lose Weight

LONDON (AP)—Fat American airmen at two U.S. air bases in Britain have been ordered to slim down.

The order has gone out to more than 100 flight crews and about 2,000 ground crewmen to reduce to 10 pounds below the maximum permitted weight.

"If you stick to the figures in the book and take a man off a diet as soon as he reaches the permitted maximum, he'll be five pounds overweight again in a couple of weeks," said Lt. Col. James Asher, flight surgeon at Bentwaters Base in Suffolk.

Personnel at the Woodbridge Base in Suffolk also are affected. The standard weight chart used at Bentwaters sets 170 pounds as the permissible maximum for a man 21-25 years old and 5 feet 8 inches tall. For a 6-footer of the same age, 201 pounds is the maximum.

Asher said the reducing drive was a precaution against coronary heart disease.

"We've had one man 28 suffering from the disease and he was overweight," the doctor explained.

The average day's menu at the bases serves a man about 3,000 calories, but "where necessary we will put men on a diet which will cut the calorie intake by half," Asher said. As a start, the fannies have been told to cut out bread, potatoes, candy and liquor.

The men were told that if they didn't slim down to the recommended limits, they might be sent to the hospital for more drastic methods.

No Yachting For An Ex-Dictator

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A former dictator of Venezuela has a 36-foot luxury yacht docked at his $400,000 Miami Beach estate but the courts won't let him cruise in it.

The exile, Marcos Perez Jimenez, asked Federal Judge William A. McRae Wednesday for permission to make daylight cruises in local waters. Despite Perez Jimenez' promise to notify immigration authorities every time the yacht left the dock, the judge said no.

The ex-dictator fled his country in 1958. Venezuela has been trying to obtain his extradition to face charges of making off with $13 million in public funds.

A Good Year Is Behind Pitt County

As the year-end approaches, most people turn to taking stock of the past year and appraising what the new year will bring. It is true in Pitt as it is in most other counties of the state.

By most yard-sticks, 1961 proved a good year for Pitt County's economy. Agriculturally, it was one of the better years for the county, and although there were some soft spots in farming in a few sections of the county, most crops produced good yields and brought good prices.

Business-wise throughout the county 1961 likewise proved a good year generally speaking. The general economy, which was good in 1960, apparently was better in 1961. Job opportunities throughout the year were better than in the previous year and per capita earnings likewise moved upward putting more money into circulation throughout the economy of the county. Construction work on the Voice of America installations as well as new building on the East Carolina College campus and general commercial and residential building provided more payrolls in this particular field than in the previous year.

Manufacturing plants in the county provided employment for a larger number of citizens than in the previous year, and this also was reflected in the generally better economic picture.

With these factors as a backdrop for looking around the corner into 1962, they afford a promising picture for Pitt from the economic standpoint in the coming year. Construction work on the VOA facilities will continue during the coming year with a target date for completion near the end of the year. As this huge facility nears completion more families of the permanent personnel who will operate the installation will begin moving into the county to live here and make their living here.

The general economic outlook for the nation in 1962 is good, according to the experts, and should be reflected in steady and perhaps expanding operations for the manufacturing plants already located in Pitt. Prospects of greater expansion of manufacturing facilities nationally in 1962 should enhance the possibility of other industries locating in Pitt to provide additional jobs and payrolls. Completion of the new industrial training center being planned by the county should likewise make Pitt a more attractive location for prospective industries.

East Carolina College, which is the largest single industry in the county, is anticipating continued growth in the coming year as has been the case for more than a decade now. An increasing enrollment will require a larger faculty and staff for the college and here again be reflected in increased steady payrolls.

In agriculture, which continues to be the mainstay of Pitt County, the outlook is for another successful year. Expansion of supplemental income crops on the farms of the county have in recent years produced more year-round income for farmers and this has reflected itself in an improved economic condition. Tobacco controls will remain in effect for the next three years and the 1962 tobacco acreage allotments have been set at the same as this year.

As the final days of 1961 slip off the worn calendar and 1962 begins, most signs point to another year of favorable economic conditions for Pitt County and its citizens.

Incidents Point Up Flaw In Law

By LYNN NISBET

CARELESSNESS — Recent publicity about the way real estate developers have sponged on the taxpayers for Powell bill street improvement funds centers interest on one of the weakest points in the North Carolina legislative system. During the past four or five years a number of small communities, mostly along the coast, with from three to 20 population, have been incorporated as municipalities and thus made eligible for use of State gasoline tax road money under terms of the Powell bill for development of their streets.

These incidents have pointed up a serious flaw in the 1951 act itself, which has been known as the Powell bill, and was hailed at its passage as a long forward step toward equity with respect to distribution of State gasoline taxes in towns and cities. The idea was and is good, the purpose sound. Nobody at the time thought about the possibility of incorporating a hundred acres or more of undeveloped uninhabited land into a municipality, running a surveyor's line to designate "streets" and applying for tax money to build the roads. Because the State highway commission and most administration officials opposed the use of gasoline tax money in the towns, the law was written so as to permit them very little voice in the distribution or use of Powell funds. When a community met the requirements of the statute there was no alternative but to allot money on basis of street mileage.

The absurd situations which have recently developed are not so much the result of flaws in the Powell bill, although these are obvious, as an indictment of the carelessness and utter disregard of members of the General Assembly in the decencies and proprieties in the manner of incorporating new towns.

LOCAL — Half the members or more often do not know what they are voting for. The bills are introduced under the guise of "local legislation" and by long custom the other members support purely local bills sponsored by colleagues. Of course, a bill that adds to the tax load of the citizen of every county cannot be properly classified as local. But it is easy for the representative to say this little bill just incorporates a community in my county and is not interested to anybody else. So the bill is given favorable action, not on its merits but as a courtesy to a colleague.

Comes time for final passage of the measure in one of those fast moving "local bills only" sessions. Only the title of the act is read and that often is vague. If it levies or permits a tax, as the incorporating acts do, it must go through a roll call vote on separate days. And here is where many a legislator gets trapped. The House and Senate both have rules permitting what is called the "short roll call." That is on the first vote the full membership is called and each member's vote recorded in the journal. If there is no negative vote and there seldom is on the locals when the next bill is called the presiding officer is likely to announce that "Without objection the short roll call will be used." Nobody objects and the clerk snaps something like "Andrews, Harris, Zollner" and there is a chorus of ayes. Thereupon the speaker declares that "96 members having voted in the affirmative, none in the negative, the bills have passed third reading and will be sent to the senate."

That may happen a dozen times in one day, and on every roll call the same men who answered the first time are re-called. Meantime some of them may have left the chamber. Let us suppose that the speaker reads the journal record that he voted for such and such a bill he is surprised and angry. But it's too late then. Courts have ruled you cannot go back of the journal.

MOTIVES — Not many legislators have ulterior or selfish motives in their introduction of or voting for bills of this kind. Still fewer of the rank and file members are conscious of the wrong they may be doing by supporting such measures. But the ill effect is just as serious as if it were deliberate. The thousands of dollars which have gone into private real estate developments through Powell fund allotments mean just that much less for honest use in bonafide towns which are struggling to render adequate service to taxpayers.

SALUTE — The big news stories seem to have missed it, but some of those who attended the 6th birthday ceremonies at Kill Devil Hills last week were as much impressed by the formation flight of hundreds of Canadian Snow Geese over the Wright Memorial pylon as they were by the jet planes. The geese came up from the Pea Island refuge on Hatteras Island, and it is said they seldom get that far away from home base on temporary flights.

Color Standardization Idea Holds No Glamor

At the risk of being accused of unrealistic pessimism, we hazard the opinion that the new color standardization system advocated by the Department of Commerce Bureau of Standards will find limited acceptance in the American business world.

The idea behind the color standardization is sound: to have a fixed designation for each color so people can ask for a specific color and get exactly what they ask for. But can you imagine the fashion designers giving up "sea mist green" for such an ordinary color standard designation as blue-yellow, 4 white, density 1?

Or would the ladies be satisfied if every "shell pink" were the same color and it was no longer called shell pink, but rather given a standard designation? Think how absurdly simple it would make shopping. Rather than going from store to store to find just the right color ear-rings to go with the new dress, the ladies could merely designate by number what color they wanted and have it delivered. It would take much of the fun out of shopping, not to mention the physical exercise that would be lost to the nation if the ladies didn't have to walk a couple of miles through stores to find the right outfit.

On paper the new color standardization sounds fine, but we doubt it will catch on. And the ladies will not be entirely responsible. Certainly the ardent fisherman wouldn't rely on a color standardization to pick out the feathers he wants in a bass bug or a bream fly. He has to finger through a wide assortment to find the exact combination that he knows the fish will relish.

Presidents Now Have To Travel

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's gotten so that if an American president stayed home he'd look like a snob.

In the past 11 months President Kennedy has received at least 30 visits from foreign heads of state and prime ministers, plus scores of ambassadors, and has made several foreign visits himself. There are four good reasons for this back-and-forth business: Truly fast travel; end of isolationism and new, close ties with other countries; abandonment of the idea that only a president's subordinates should dabble in diplomacy and Premier Khrushchev himself.

It would have taken President James Madison about 2 1/2 months — allowing two weeks for a look-around — if he had wanted to visit the 1815 Congress of Vienna on those days of sail and coach.

That would be too long for any president to be away. But Kennedy could get to Vienna now in less than 11 hours by jet. Once this country moved out of its historic isolation — with World War II — it began moving in the exact opposite direction. Now it is tied to nations around the world by military alliances and foreign aid.

This has created a community interest which this country never shared in before and makes it natural for all the big wigs involved to visit one another and talk shop. In the long history of American isolationism it was routine for American presidents — with the brief exception of Wilson and until Franklin D. Roosevelt — to stay home and let their secretaries of state and ambassadors do the direct dealing with other governments.

There was no reason why they shouldn't have stayed home: the United States' policy was to be aloof. The war ended that. The British and Russian foreign secretaries were nobodies in the wake of Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Joseph Stalin. Time was short, events momentous. So Roosevelt dealt with them in person. He made some memorable trips abroad to do so. President Harry S. Truman began the foundation of military alliances and foreign aid which President Dwight D. Eisenhower inherited. This led in time to exchange of visits, but for one particular reason above all.

Premier Khrushchev made a personal diplomacy a way of life for a head of government. He said the foreign ministers were messenger boys, who could handle the grimy details after the top men made agreements.

But, he said, only the top men could get things done. Eisenhower would have looked negative or self-conscious if he had refused to meet the Russian. The fact that his summit meeting with Khrushchev produced no successes has been pointed to by those who want a return to the stodgy diplomacy of the past as a reason why presidents should stay home.

But that summit meeting can't be called a failure. It would have been amazing if, in one brief meeting, the world's ills could have been healed.

So far Kennedy, who met Khrushchev in Vienna last June, has not had to go into lengthy negotiations on any of his foreign trips. No doubt he will in time.

That he will continue to make visits abroad — given new times and new problems — seems inevitable. Dean Rusk in 1960, which was before he became Kennedy's secretary of state, took a dim view of personal negotiations or summit meetings by a president. He suggested the job should be done by professionals.

Kennedy, who dominates both Rusk and American foreign policy seems to think differently. He doesn't act like a man who wants someone else to do his talking for him.

And, since his visitors would still continue to pour on him, he'd have to return some of them with trips abroad, even if he didn't negotiate at all.

Quote

"There is nothing in the least 'free' about the personal enterprise system. Its operation calls for the expenditure of both money and effort. And it also requires a great deal of constructive thought, and in these times of increasing interference by and competition from government agencies it also calls for not a small amount of worry." — Cuero (Tex.) Record.

Don't Blame Your Troubles on Me—

Enjoys Family Success

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

In these days, it is so unusual for a father to live to see an entire family grow up who all achieve notable position. Such a blessing came to Joe Kennedy. Although his eldest son died before the father, the second son, Jack became President of the United States; Bobby became Attorney General; Ted will probably become Governor of Massachusetts. The daughters have not married for wealth or position but have established socially purposeful lives. This is indicative of a disciplined and well-bred family that found within family life a completion and joy that is not usual in this era. To know a Kennedy is to know a clan, headed by Joe and Rose. The devotion of one for the other is beautiful. Bobby, Jack's campaign manager, has been devoted to his brother, giving his time and his ability to aid his brother to succeed. The sisters and their brothers-in-law joined the campaign and went before the public to serve their brother. Even Rose, the mother, now 72, campaigned along with the Kennedy girls. This was a family in action.

Joe has had the gratification of seeing his boys and girls grow into positions of prime significance. I remember, years ago, seeing the proud father walk down Fifth Avenue on Easter Sunday with his boys and girls — then a young patriarch of a growing clan. And he brought to them the ideal of patriotism and religious fealty. Few men could say that they had so completely succeeded in building a family that based its relationship on mutuality and love. To have achieved this is enough for any man.

I have known Joe Kennedy many years and in all this time I knew the depth of this man's love of what was his boys and girls. The night before Joe suffered a stroke, I do not fear that the Kennedy boys will ever disgrace this country. Joe would shoot them if they did a dishonest act. That man was Bernard Baruch who is a good judge of men. Herbert Hoover worked closely with Joe Kennedy in organizing the Executive Branch of Government and always spoke in the highest terms of respect and affection of the father of this clan which were trained to public service and who knew no other life.

When Joe Kennedy was the American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, he was sometimes berated as pro-German or anti-British. Joe was neither. He was pro-American. He objected to any country taking advantage of the United States. He always thought in terms of what was best for the United States and if he and Franklin D. Roosevelt quarreled, it was over each man's judgment as to what was then best for the United States. This singleness of purpose, Joe passed on to his children.

He fashioned them for public life. He established them in economic independence, so that each could serve his country without succumbing to temptations or compromising to earn money. He gave them, for public service, he has had no cause to be ashamed of them.

One year, I had delivered a lecture in Palm Beach and, as is the custom, some came up to speak kindly to me and to shake my hand. And along came a modest little lady who said: "I'm Rose Kennedy, the mother of the Senator."

There was pride in her voice and I realized for the first time that this is not a congeries of individuals but a family, bound by love of proud of each other's accomplishments. These young people were not competing against each other but were united in the strong personality of Joe who bred them to be effective and virtuous.

It is not important that one became President of the United States. This is one of the accidents of life, an accident that might have gone one way or the other. What matters is that they have all grown up with elegance of manners, with a strong sense of moral responsibility, with a consciousness of civic duty. To me, it seems that Joe Kennedy had more to be proud of than that he reared such children than that he achieved wealth and position and that his son is President. For what really matters is that men and women are good, not that they are successful. And Joe's progeny is good.

All Quiet On Pogo Front

It's now three days since Christmas and nobody has heard anything about pogo since East Carolina College closed and its "pogo champion" went home to Charlotte for the holidays.

As of Dec. 9, James Shuman of E.C.C. had his record of 501 times, then his record of 934 times, beaten by 12-year-old Sidney Mills who jumped 2,312 times. A young lady from Greenville, Linda Spain, also 12, beat Shuman also by jumping 1,130 times.

The whole thing started about the first of December when Shuman decided E.C.C. was not recognized in the field of college fads. He decided on pogo as the fad for E.C.C. He went home, got his pogo stick, and began to jump.

The idea was to challenge college students. However, a college challenger is yet to be heard from, though the challenge has been issued statewide.

So, as of Christmas, young Mills was pogo champion of the city and county — maybe even the world, as far as we know — and Linda was unchallenged champion of jumping rope and jumping pogo at the same time. Though various feats have been managed via the magic stick, nobody has ventured into the rope jumping field. In fact, Shuman himself was most happy to leave that to Linda.

He was a little disappointed that a new pogo stick he ordered one which would have been stronger and more durable, failed to get here for his big test. As of the Christmas holidays, it had still failed to arrive.

Shuman, however, was in hopes that it would be here for a fresh after-Christmas start. From a practical standpoint, the matter is just about like it was when it started: Shuman claimed the pogo championship of eastern North Carolina for college students, and he will have that. From now on, he says he intends to stick with the college crowd.

From a philosophical standpoint, things are a little different. Was pogo a worthy crusade for the local college, which has prided itself in tremendous growth and academic progress? Will such a crusade bring honor to the college? And, will there be any challengers for Shuman to beat on the college level?

We'll say one thing. We sort of enjoyed the whole thing. We are anxiously awaiting the next step.

Other Editors Saying... A Branch At Ft. Bragg?

(Greensboro Daily News)

A study by the state and Fort Bragg exploring the possibility of establishing a two-year branch of the University of North Carolina at the military reservation may be very much in order.

Dr. William Archie, director of the State Board of Higher Education, said Bragg officials are weighing a proposal offered by the board for such a study and an answer is expected shortly. "I think there's a very real educational need at Fort Bragg and if the State of North Carolina can possibly meet it, it ought to meet it," Dr. Archie said.

He also stressed that the state is committed only to a study, nothing more. If the two-year branch were established, the federal government would pay up to $7.50 per semester for each soldier enrolled. Tuition in excess of that amount would be paid by the student. Thus, there would be no cost to the state.

The need for education at the vast military reservation is urgent. Some 20,000 officers and men at Bragg do not have college degrees. The University of North Carolina has provided extension courses at Bragg, but most colleges limit the number of credits allowed for extension courses. Bragg had asked the state to establish a regular four-year college at the military base, but the State Board of Higher Education did not think that "sound educational policy." While the need for at least a two-year educational institution at Fort Bragg cannot be denied, the question as to whether the University of North Carolina should take on such a chore has far wider ramifications. The university is the capstone of the state's higher education system. It strives after excellence at the top, and while its mission should never become exclusive, there are factors concerning quality which cannot be ignored.

If the university established one branch at Fort Bragg, would it have a strong case against another at Elizabeth City, or Wilmington, or Charlotte, or Asheville? Just how far can a great university go in extending its services without watering down its quality?

North Carolina has other institutions which might meet the Fort Bragg need far better than the University of North Carolina. There are likewise private institutions, even Fayetteville's new Methodist College, which might find fertile fields at Bragg.

While a study is very much in order, the State Board of Higher Education and the university itself should go slow indeed about the business of cafeteria-like university instruction. The capstone must remain the capstone, not an institution which spreads itself thin.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THAT THRILLING REMINDER

Phillips Brooks, the great Episcopal rector of Trinity Church in Boston and later Bishop of Massachusetts, was the outstanding preacher in the United States one hundred years ago. He was beloved of all classes. One day a tailor said to him: "I am not of your faith, but often I come to hear you preach because you make me think of God."

It is not often that we encounter people who definitely make us think of God. Once in a while we do, and these are occasions which haunt our minds with pleasantness for months, and sometimes years which follow. As we encounter some people we think only of evil, of meanness, of narrowness and bigotry. Once fit a while there is a man or woman who makes us think of God.

It would not be an adequate description of Jesus to say that he was one who caused humanity to think of God, but it can certainly be said that this was one of the things he did. Today people who are not Christians at all, who are adherents of other faiths in distant parts of the world, reverse this Jesus, acknowledge his greatness, and think of God when they think of him. Gandhi was said to have carried a New Testament with him at all times and to have read it every day.

Men and women who make us think of God! How precious they are! Rare? Yes, but like most rare things, precious because of this rarity.

"You make me think about God."

TAX BITE ACTUALLY DEEPER
Many corporations pay 87 per cent Federal taxes on their top profits. In these cases the profits on any increase in sales would be diminished by that rate.

In addition many companies are subject to state county and city income taxes which may run from 1 to 7 per cent increasing the tax levy to as much as 59 per cent. However it does not usually reach the maximum figure because amounts paid in local taxes are deductible before calculating Federal taxes.

Thus, if a company makes 6 per cent on added sales and increases sales by $100,000 a year, it will make $6,000 before Fed-

Opinions In Brief

"Presidents, unlike the rest of us, have their own private jets. But jet aircraft have shrunk the world for everyone else too... business people, tourists, students. They too can make friends and wield an influence. And that, one may hope, will prove to be the basic significance of the jet age." — Industrial News Review.

"The Reds are building the East Germany wall bigger and stronger. Probably to keep out an influx of free people from the promised land." — Gillespie (Ill.) News.

More Profit In Cutting Costs

By ELMER ROESSNER
All prognoses are for higher costs of materials and labor next year. This underscores the fact that cutting costs may be more profitable than making additional sales.

This has always been true. But the truth is more apparent when Federal taxes are high and state and local taxes are going higher.

Here is the classic example: X Company makes 6 per cent on additional sales. If it increases sales by $100,000 in a year, it increases its net income before taxes by $6,000. But if it cuts costs by $12,000, it increases its net by the amount that $200,000 in sales would yield. And if the company is in the 50 per cent Federal tax bracket, a $12,000 cut in costs would increase in sales of $400,000. increase in sales of $400,000.

eral and local taxes and, after them, only $2,460. In this case, a savings of $2,460 in costs would equal additional sales of $100,000 a year and a savings of $5,000 would be better than a $200,000 sales increase.

But pause. Many local governments levy gross-receipts taxes, levying on income even though it yields no profit. These rates vary, but they tend to make savings even more profitable than additional sales.

HEARTHES FOR SALE

BY PEGGY GADDIS

From the novel, House For Sale, by Peggy Gaddis. © Copyright 1961, by Arnetta House. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 16

One morning Lee Poulos stopped in at the bank for a report on an application one of her clients had made for a loan to finance a house.

Kermit Dalton was the man she had to see, and she approached his desk with a tentative friendly smile, which Kermit seemed to ignore.

"Hi," she greeted him. Kermit merely nodded, his eyes cold.

"Oh, yes," said Kermit as though she had been the merest casual acquaintance, and looked through some papers in a wire basket on his desk. He selected a sheaf and held them up, glancing at them as though to refresh his memory. "I'm sorry, Lee, but the bank won't be able to finance the property."

Lee stared at him. "Oh, but, Kermit, surely their references were good."

"Their credit standing is not good enough to be an adequate basis for such a loan," Kermit told her, and slid the papers toward her.

Lee said, "Kermit, they're going to be terribly disappointed."

"That's too bad," said Kermit coldly.

"But surely, Kermit, you can relax just a tiny bit."

"What you don't seem to realize, Lee, is that I don't own the bank," Kermit reminded her loftily. "I only work here and do as I'm told. The committee considered the application very carefully and voted against granting the loan. So there's nothing I can do. Sorry."

He turned away from her, and Lee said sharply, "If you're just being spiteful because you're angry with me—"

Kermit's cold-eyed glance stopped the words on her lips.

"I trust I am sufficiently aware of my duties and responsibilities to the bank, Lee, not to allow anything I do to be colored by my personal emotions," he stated flatly. "And I'm not angry with you, as you put it. It's simply that I am powerless against the vote of the banking committee. You should know that I have nothing to say in such matters."

"But you did make the investigation," Lee reminded him hotly. "As part of my job, yes," he admitted. "I discovered that the Stacy's had gone bankrupt twice, in an effort to avoid terrific bills they'd run up."

"But all the bills were eventually paid off. Did you discover that?"

"Commendable, of course. But it didn't alter the loan committee's feeling that they would be a bad risk just now when credit restrictions are being tightened up," Kermit told her. "I'm really very sorry, Lee."

"You're not at all!" Lee flashed hotly. "You're tickled to death to cause me to lose a sale."

"I'm tickled to death that the bank isn't going to have to take a penny from you to help you make the sale," Kermit told her, and stood up to indicate that the subject was closed.

Lee snatched up the sheaf of papers, thrust them into her brief case and marched out of the bank, her head high.

When she came into the office, Polly looked up to say "There's a slip on your desk. You're supposed to call as soon as you come in."

Lee nodded, picked up the slip and dialed the number written down. A moment later a warm, pleasant feminine voice said, "Is that you, Lee, dear? This is Cora Eastman."

"Oh, hello, Miss Cora. How nice to hear from you! How are you?"

"As well as could be expected," said Miss Cora dryly. "I want very much to talk to you, Lee. I wondered if you could drop in this afternoon for a cup of tea and a little chat? I'm alone for a few days — most blessedly alone. I might add, Mamie and Holly left for Atlanta this morning, and won't be back until the end of the week. So if you could drop in this afternoon, I'd very much like to see you."

"Of course I will, Miss Cora. I'd love to see you, too," Lee answered warmly. "I'll be there around four. Will that be all right?"

"That will be splendid, my dear! I'll look forward to seeing you, then," said Miss Cora, and the voice as the receiver clicked.

Uncle John was in court, and Lee busied herself at her desk until it was time to drive out to Miss Cora's place. She left word with Polly where she would be, and Polly nodded briskly without looking up from the deed she was copying.

Miss Cora lived in a small, neat cottage at the edge of town, far enough out so that she could have an acre of ground for the flowers and the vegetables with which she eked out her rather meagre existence.

When her father had died, the estate had been divided equally between Miss Cora and her brother, Holly's father. Miss Cora had wisely invested her share in the cottage and the acre of ground and had put the rest into an annuity that would give her a small but adequate income.

Her brother had taken the family estate, Oakland, as his share of the inheritance and, in his efforts to satisfy his wife's and his daughter's insatiable demands, had sold off much of the land, finally mortgaged the property and died practically penniless.

Mimi and Holly had promptly moved in with Miss Cora; and impelled by her old-fashioned sense of family obligations, Miss Cora had done everything possible to stretch the tiny income as it would cover all three of them.

She was waiting when Lee walked up the steps, a tall, spare, white-haired woman in a neat percale housedress, her work-stiffened, arthritic hands outstretched to welcome Lee.

"Do come in, my dear." She drew Lee into the hall and across to the small neat sitting room. "It's very kind of you to come to see me."

"Miss Cora, darling, you're the one who's kind to ask me," Lee told her warmly.

"Sit here, dear," Miss Cora indicated a shabby old chair as Lee would have sat on the couch. "I'm afraid that's not very comfortable. It's where I sleep at night, so I should know!"

Lee stared at her, shocked.

"But you have a nice bedroom, Miss Cora," she protested. "Why should you be sleeping on the couch?"

Miss Cora's thin, tired face was touched with a wry smile.

"I only have two bedrooms, my dear, and Holly and her mother are unaccustomed to sleeping together, so of course Mimi took my room and Holly took the small guest room. I'm afraid they're not much more comfortable than I am. They complain of being 'awfully crowded.' But it's a small house and I'm afraid there's nothing I can do about it. I'll be happy to have my own room while they are away. I can tell you!"

"Miss Cora, it's outrageous for them to impose on you."

Miss Cora was busy with the tea tray; above it she smiled sadly at Lee.

"I know it is, Lee, and I should be ashamed of myself for letting them do it. But, Lee, I'm so tired of arguments and quarrels, I'm not a very good fighter, I suppose. I just sort of cave in when they start making demands and do whatever they want me to. Spineless of me, I know, and I am ashamed of myself I suppose. I'm a 'peace-at-any-price' tired old woman."

She handed Lee a cup of tea, and offered a small plate of grocery-store cookies with a look of apology.

Lee must face the question: "Are YOU in love with Martin Whitfield?" Continue the story here tomorrow.

mail—was adopted three years ago after more than 6,000 carriers reported canine attacks in 1957.

The Post Office said today its new policy, under which the owner will be telephoned to pick up his own mail, will become effective Jan. 15.

But the mailmen's plight caught the imagination of many concerned and inventive citizens and of many who apparently don't much care for dogs. They came up with batches of suggestions, most of them urging the use of special equipment ranging from bats to cats.

"The carrier should be furnished with a walking stick constructed along the lines of a baseball bat," suggested one writer, "and be given permission to remove the offending dog's head right out from between his ears."

He added, "I am not a dog-hater."

A Valler, Mont., man preferred the subtle approach. Give the carrier a cat, he suggested. When the dog attacks, turn the cat loose and while the dog is chasing the cat, the mailman can get his work done.

Others proposed less dramatic equipment—a water pistol filled with ammonia, a tear gas gun, "which is painful but harmless," electric shock canes like those used by livestock auctioneers, dogbite-proof leather boots or even dogbite-proof pants made of aluminum thread.

But a Highland Park, Mich., man would shun these purely defensive measures in favor of the tooth-for-a-tooth philosophy. The Post Office should set up centers for dogs of its own, he said, and these should "be trained to attack any dog attacking a postman."

One correspondent from Biloxi, Miss., delved into canine psychology. He's noticed that "a perfectly gentle animal is aroused by the sight of a man carrying a load on his back," he said.

His theory: "An instinct has been instilled in animals dating back to pre-historic times, when man brought his kill in from the forest."

As in any great public debate, even the experts clashed.

A Suitland, Md., mail carrier said he's licked the problem by carrying dog biscuits on his route and making friends of four-legged foes.

But a carrier in Jamaica, N.Y., rebelled in rhyme: "There was a mailman in Frankfort, "Who fed dogs more than he ort. "He tendered a strudel "To a friendly poodle, "And now he is three fingers short."

Roadbuilders To Move Mountain

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — Road builders plan to move a mountain to fill a valley here.

It's part of a $3½ million project to build a 1.3-mile freeway section, and calls for moving nearly two million cubic yards of dirt from the city's west side to a low area.

The tops of two hills will be carved off to provide the fill dirt.

Women Of Hong Kong In Uproar Over Concubines

HONG KONG (AP)—Women's organizations in Hong Kong are in an uproar. They want the time-honored Chinese institution of concubines abolished.

Concubines were outlawed in China 40 years ago but the institution still flourishes, under legal sanction, in this staid British colony on the China Coast.

The British colonial authorities agree with the colony's formidable feminists that concubines should be outlawed here, too, but only eventually. It would do more harm than good, they say, to try to abolish them in one fell stroke.

A government-appointed committee conducted an extensive study of Chinese marriage disputes in the colony recently. It suggested the government set a deadline—in the unspecified future—after which marriages not solemnized in church or before a government marriage registrar would be considered illegal.

As the law stands, Chinese males married in church or at government marriage registries may not take concubines. Those married in what are described as "modern Chinese marriages" are free to take as many concubines as they wish or can afford.

"Modern Chinese marriages" are by far the most popular form of marriage among Hong Kong's three million Chinese population.

They are normally colorful but strictly unofficial ceremonies in a Chinese tea house, restaurant or nightclub. No civic or religious officials officiate. A friend of the couple usually makes a speech and each party puts the family seal on a certificate obtainable from any stationery store.

It is common practice to measure the wealth of a Chinese by the number of concubines he keeps.

Concubines, however, are not confined to the rich. The average Hong Kong office boy or factory worker has, as often as not, a concubine or two.

Despite the outcry from the women's organizations, few Chinese males here are perturbed. Even fewer foresee an end to the system.

"Unlike Americans, the British would never dream of imposing a British way of life on us," one Chinese said.

A fourth of the 18 million people in Canada speak French as their native tongue.

A Lot Of Marie Is Back In The Movies

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's nice to see Marie Wilson back in movies—and so much of her!

When it was known that Marie would be taking a shower in "Mr. Hobbs Takes His Vacation," your reporter was there, soap in hand.

It is the third nude scene I have covered this month, the previous participants having been Julia Meade-Tom Poston and Elsa Martinelli-Charlton Heston. This one had Marie and Jimmy Stewart caught in the steamy shower room.

Marie was wearing the traditional uniform for such scenes: the flesh-colored leotard—director Henry Koster sometimes referred to it as a leopard. Normally such an outfit would satisfy all censorial objections, but on Marie it could get a theater raided. Koster had to admonish her repeatedly to hold the shower curtain where it would do the most good.

The scene has Stewart stumbling into the shower room late at night in a resort hotel. He encounters Marie, supposedly a decorous bird-watcher but actually a late-night tippler who is steaming out her hiccupes. Stewart struggles to escape, but the door knob comes off in his hand.

The scene had to be re-shot several times. As Koster commented, "we see too much of Marie."

"Mr. Hobbs Takes His Vacation" is making up for an oversight. The films haven't been seen to it as a leopard. Normally such years. Her last role was as Marie Antoinette ("I lost my head") in "The Story of Mankind," an episodic marvel made in 1957 and apparently seen by no one.

Before that it was "Marry Me Again," a merry romp with Robert Cummings in 1953.

What has she been doing all this time?

"Oh, I've been busy," she said. "I guess we've played 50-60 weeks in Las Vegas in the past few years. And everywhere else, too."

"We" consists of herself and Ken Murray, her longtime sparring mate of "Blackouts."

If anything, Marie's figure is better than before—a stupifying 39-19-37½. Her waist is three inches smaller than when she ruled as queen of the "Blackouts," during his seven-year Hollywood run, the hips shaved an inch. Everything else is the same.

Roger Williams Park, Providence, R.I., is considered among the finest city-owned parks in the country.

Businessmen Turning To The Mechanical Brain

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Businessmen worried about profitless prosperity are turning increasingly to mechanical brains to help them cut costs.

And that can spell increased prosperity in 1962 for the makers of electronic computers and for some 1,300 data-processing centers.

This trend is on the authority of these makers and of the operators of centers who have a stake in fostering it. But they say that the majority of the 25,000 or more firms using this way of doing their figure work say it helps cut operating costs as well as being time-saving and convenient.

Production and sales for industry and trade as a whole are mounting just now faster than profits—and sometimes even while profits are falling. So the urge is strong to find any means of improving the profit margin.

Computer experts who have been to the Soviet Union say that the Soviets also have turned to their big computers as aids in industrial production and more recently are using them in the bigger state-owned department stores—where you wouldn't expect profits to be an objective.

Western Europe increasingly is leaning on the electronic devices to guide its spectacular drive to greater prosperity.

A big jump in the sale and rental of computers, and of their use in the many data centers around the nation, is predicted by the leading makers. To name only a few: International Business Machines, Remington Rand, Burroughs, National Cash Register, General Electric, Thompson Ramo Woodridge.

The makers' sales and rentals this year topped a billion dollars. Rentals next year are expected to hit $1.3 billion.

Operators of independent data-processing centers (those not run by makers of the machines) predict that by the end of 1962 about 10,000 computers of various sizes will be installed at rentals of at least $100,000 a year per unit. Among such operators on a large scale are, to name only a few: Automated Procedures Corp.; C-E-I-R, Inc.; Statistical Tabulating Corp.; and Sessions Co.

Profitless prosperity is a big reason for the larger companies turning to electronic machines to help them control inventories and keep up with or ahead of the changes in the economic cycle. The producer or merchant who knows, before his competitor, how sales are going and stocks piling up or running out has a big edge in holding down costs—and turning a profit instead of a loss.

Payroll processing, and all the other mushrooming clerical work of modern industry and retailing also sends clients to the data centers.

Both the computer makers and the center operators expect big things soon from the newest move toward information retrieval. Computers can store vast quantities of data, instantaneously available.

CHICAGO (AP)—Developer of a new indoor golf game, David Bremson, says, "women are simply better players."

Bremson thinks it's something about the female feel for precise detail. The game hinges on picking the right golf club to use in situations determined by the draw of a card.

"When it's a cardboard course, and the only clubs in sight are in a deck of playing cards the male advantage of strength disappears," Bremson says.

Alabama Says NAACP Acting In Contempt Of Court

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Attorneys for the state of Alabama contend that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has been operating in Alabama in contempt of court.

The state took that position in Wednesday's opening session of a hearing in State Court on whether the organization should be barred permanently from operating in Alabama.

The hearing is before Circuit Judge Walter B. Jones, who is sued a temporary injunction against the NAACP 5½ years ago.

A long list of telephone calls from the phone of an NAACP official was read into the record at the opening session. Jones has not yet ruled on whether the list will be admitted as evidence.

State attorneys read the list as part of their attempt to link former NAACP officers with what they called continued activity of the group. The three-hour reading included the date, place and person called in each long-distance call charged to the Birmingham number of W. C. Patton, former NAACP state president, from June 6, 1956, to the present.

NAACP attorneys objected that there was no proof that Patton made the calls and that nothing in the records tied them in with present litigation.

If the state succeeds in proving continued NAACP Alabama operations, the state could contend that the organization was in contempt of court and as such should be prohibited from seeking further relief until it purged itself of contempt.

The temporary injunction was issued by Jones on June 1, 1956 on the complaint of Gov. John Patterson, who at that time was Alabama's attorney general.

The complaint charged that the NAACP violated a state law by failing to register as an out-of-state corporation and that it fomented racial strife.

Besides granting the temporary restraining order, Jones fined the Negro organization $100,000 for refusing to produce certain records, including a list of members in Alabama.

The U. S. Supreme Court set the fine aside, but the injunction remained in effect. In October, the Supreme Court ordered the federal district court in Montgomery to take jurisdiction of the case unless Jones set a hearing by Jan. 2.

In other racial developments:

Two Baltimore groups announced plans for weekend "freedom rides" to Crisfield, the home town of Maryland Gov. J. Millard Tawes, where 10 persons were arrested Christmas Eve during sit-in demonstrations.

Four visiting Negro basketball players, including Reece (Goose) Tatum Sr., playing coach of the Harlem Stars, were refused service at a Wichita, Kan., lunch counter. The Negroes were staying at a major business district hotel just across the street from the lunch counter.

A Mississippi legislative investigating committee charged that Communists were dedicated to the overthrow of the government of Mississippi and linked the threat to racial activity in the state. The committee said efforts have been made to foment trouble between the races and that Communist literature promoting overthrow of the state government has been sent into the state.

At Nashville the Tennessee attorney general has prepared for submission to U. S. District Judge William Miller an order readmitting eight of the 13 freedom riders expelled from Tennessee A&I University. The order provides they should be re-admitted to the winter quarter Jan. 2, pending a hearing. The judge ruled recently they were entitled to such a hearing. The five others, dropped for "academic inefficiency," after their convictions in Mississippi last May and June, would be re-admitted in accordance with regular university policy.

Chicago School Supt. Benjamin C. Willis proposed to the City School Board that students in double-shift schools be allowed to transfer to schools which have vacant seats. The proposal followed criticism by Negro organizations which claim that Negro pupils are those primarily affected by double shifts.

In Birmingham, Ala., more than 80 persons representing various civic groups have taken initial steps toward forming a corporation to seek to buy a recreation site from the city.

In New Orleans, a federal grand jury indicted three men, including a state senator, in connection with the wiretapping of telephones of two clergymen who have signed a declaration denouncing racial discrimination. The senator, Wendell Harris of Baton Rouge, denied the

Time Is Only Difference In Preparing For Bowl Game

By JACK CLARY Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP)—What special preparations does a team have to make before playing in a National Football League championship game?

According to Allie Sherman, whose New York Giants will meet the Green Bay Packers Sunday in Green Bay for the NFL title, the only difference in preparing for this one and any game during the season is the amount of time a team has to get ready. "This is the third time we're going to play Green Bay this year and we are getting ready the best way we know how," he said before sending the Giants out for a drill at Yankee Stadium.

FBI Arrests Two In Betting Crackdown

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation's crackdown on gambling on athletic contests in North and South Carolina resulted in two more arrests Wednesday, bringing the total in the past two days to six.

The four arrested Tuesday were picked up by FBI agents on Gastonia streets. They were Samuel B. Johnson Jr., 36, and John S. Bush, 31, of Gastonia; James W. Eppley, 49, of Cranston; and Ray Clark Beaty, 44, of Charlotte.

The FBI said more arrests may follow. The two men arrested Wednesday, Harold Garland Daniel, 33, of Dunn and Christopher C. Parker, 64, of Spartanburg, S.C., were charged, as the other four, with interstate transportation of wagering paraphernalia.

Three Youths Win Top Honors In Golf Tourney

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—Two Florence, S.C., youths and one from Henderson, N.C., walked off Wednesday with top honors in the one-day Donald J. Ross Invitational golf tournament for youngsters.

The tourney attracted 355 entrants. David Bennett, 15, son of Florence pro Grant Bennett, shot a 38-36-74 to win the Class A division on the Pinehurst Country Club's par 72 No. 2 course.

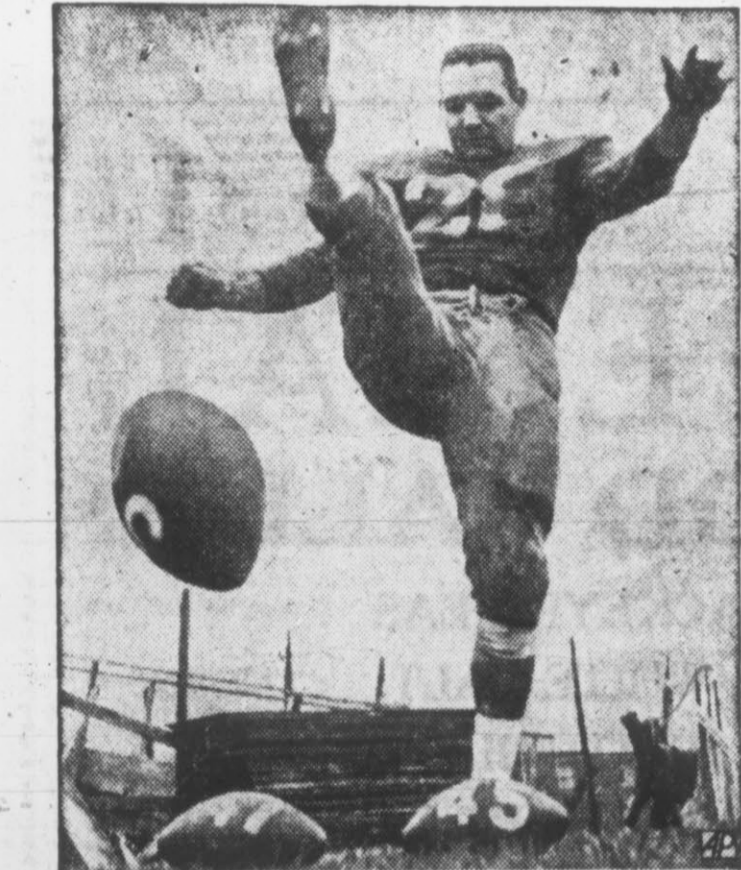

Randy Mills, 13, of Henderson fired 37-37-74, also two over par to take Class B honors on the No. 3 course. Class C winner was Hank Walters of Florence, who posted a 42 on the No. 1 course.

Bennett, in his 10th competitive tournament, finished a stroke ahead of five other golfers, finishing with 75's were Bobby Boswell, Montgomery, Ala.; Skip Hallsline, Richmond, Va.; Billy Hall, Lexington; Bobby Reese, Florence; and Charles Snipes, Greensboro.

Runner-up in the Class B division was Larry Dempsey of Greensboro, who finished with a 76. Five others were tied for third at 78. Bobby Watson of Richmond had a 45, to finish three strokes behind Walters in the Class C division for boys under 10 years old. Tad Frieberg of Raleigh was close behind him with 46.

The tourney attracted 355 entrants. Alworth, a native of Houston, Tex., was the big gun in Arkansas' attack this year. He's been get an extra week to get ready." Sherman worked the Giants for 70 minutes outside Wednesday and planned the same again today, with 45 minutes to an hour workout set for Friday. After Friday's work, the team will leave for Green Bay.

Sherman indicated he will probably go with the same lineup that finished the season, which would put NFL rookie Joel Wells at a halfback slot ahead of Bob Gaiters, with Kyle Rote at flanker and Alex Webster of fullback. He said he had not made up his mind whether Charley Conerly or Y. A. Tittle would be his starting quarterback, an opinion he's held to throughout the season, although Tittle has started most games.

In the defensive backfield, Joe Morrison will keep the slot he inherited in the regular season Green Bay game because of injuries to regulars, and held for the rest of the campaign.

Mississippi Favored Monday

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Mississippi generally is favored to beat Texas in the Cotton Bowl Monday but the Longhorns will be glad to know that a man thoroughly qualified to give an opinion thinks they have an even chance of victory.

The man is Frank Broyles, coach of Arkansas, a team that lost to Mississippi 16-0 and to Texas 33-7. Arkansas was the only mutual opponent.

"I took a poll of my football team and the player voted 50-50 but my coaching staff gave Mississippi a slight edge—with fullback Billy Ray Adams in there. But with Adams out, I would say the teams are about equal and I would call the game a tossup," said Broyles.

Adams, injured in an automobile accident after the season was over, will miss the Cotton Bowl. The Arkansas coach said Mississippi had the finest line team of his ever played against and that Texas had the finest backfield. Broyles declared that "Texas can move the ball on anybody and Mississippi will have to play great on defense."

Australians Top Challenge Meet

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—Australians Rod Laver and Roy Emerson completed a 5-0 rout of Italy in the Davis Cup challenge round today, then settled back to await professional offers from tennis promoter Jack Kramer.

Both are reported interested in joining the Kramer troupe for a swing through Australia beginning next month.

Although Kramer hasn't spoken, he is expected to offer the two young Queenslanders contracts similar to those accepted by Americans Butch Buchholz and Barry Mackay right after the Davis Cup competition last year. They were guaranteed about $30,000 for three years. Laver turned back Italian ace Nicola Pietrangeli in a five-set match after Emerson had routed Orlando Sirola, 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2. Laver finally prevailed over Pietrangeli 6-3, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 8-6. Laver and Emerson hold all the major amateur tennis titles of 1961. Laver won the Wimbledon championship and Emerson took the Australian and U.S. titles, the latter in an upset of Laver.

BILL PENNY pushed Pirates to 100 mark last night.

Tempo Steps Up In Bowl Practice

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—"Pick up your feet, you big horse." "Don't throw the ball away." "Come back and run that one again boys, you looked a little ragged."

These were the sounds of the practice field Wednesday as Colorado and Louisiana State picked up the tempo aimed at their Orange Bowl football collision Monday.

Both clubs looked particularly sharp defensively in their latest drills, toughest seen here since Kentucky a dozen years ago. Paul Dietzel, coach of the favored Southeastern Conference champions, expressed pleasure with the workout. "We're showing progress every day and I hope we continue to show improvement," Dietzel said. "It will take an excellent effort on our part to beat an outstanding Colorado team."

While the Bengals worked behind closed gates, Colorado scrimmaged openly. "They hit out there and that's what counts," Colorado Coach Sonny Grandelius observed. "But the team is not as far along now as when they finished the season and time is getting short."

Holiday Bowl

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Fort Lauderdale's Barracudas and the Little Quakers of Germantown, Pa., will clash Saturday for the ninth annual Holiday Bowl football championship.

The teams won their title round berths before 3,500 fans who gathered at Lockhart Stadium to watch the teams of boys 13 and under.

The Little Quakers routed Plantation, Fla., 53-0. The Barracudas hung a 25-0 reverse of Roxboro, N.C., on touchdown runs by Bobby Rebol and TD passes by Alan Smith.

CAMP LEJEUNE—East Carolina's basketball Pirates upset the Camp Lejeune Marines last night in the first round of the Christmas Tournament 100-75 after they kept the lead from the early minutes of the game.

Coach Earl Smith's Bucks, taking complete charge of the game in the first half, took a 10-1 lead with about 17 minutes left in the first stanza of the game. The Marines came back and closed the margin to three points with about nine minutes left on the clock in the first half, but the Pirates pulled ahead again and the Camp Lejeune boys could not catch up.

Before the end of the first half the Pirates had pushed way ahead and when the stanza ended they were leading by 21 points, 44-23. Prior to the end of the half they were in the lead by as much as 25 points.

The second half was a different story. The Marines returned a fired up ball club and managed to score 52 points in this stanza compared to the 56 gained by East Carolina. However, at one time during the second half the Pirates pulled ahead to take a 32-point lead which was their biggest margin of the night. This lead came with four minutes left in the game with the score 87-55.

The Pirates scored their final two points of the night when William Penny hit a field goal just as the horn sounded to give the Bucks 100 points, their highest scoring game of the season. The Marines, during the first half were forced to shoot from the outside most of the time. Santio was the playmaker for the losers and was a big help when it came to stealing the ball from the Bucks. Prior to last night the Marines had a 4-0 record and they were favored against East Carolina.

Tonight, East Carolina will meet Elon at 9 o'clock, the only other Carolinian Conference team participating in the tourney. The Christians downed Georgia Southern in the first game last night 74-56. At the present time the Elon team is leading the conference race.

In the first game tonight Bethel College will meet Pikeville. Bethel downed Central Connecticut Wednesday after noon 63-59 and Pikeville defeated the University of Baltimore 95-64. Pikeville was the winner of the tournament last year.

Ohio State To Tangle With UCLA In LA Tournament

By DON WEISS Associated Press Sports Writer Memo to Woody Hayes: Hey coach, Ohio State is going to play UCLA after all. But don't pull back those Christmas cards with the drooping roses. The game is not in your sport.

The Ohio State Buckeyes, stopped by a faculty committee from accepting a Rose Bowl football invitation to play the UCLA's at Pasadena, will bring it off in basketball instead—tonight in the semifinals of the power-packed Los Angeles Classic.

The Bucks, unanimous choices as No. 1 among the college hoopsters again this season, made it eight in a row with a hard-earned 59-49 first round victory over Washington at the Los Angeles Arena Wednesday night. Jerry Lucas, the two-time All-American, led with 20 points and a bundle of rebounds for the Bucks, who'll meet a UCLA team that toyed with Army 86-72 in its tournament opener.

The other semifinal matches fourth-ranked Southern California against a 20-3 winner over Purdue, and unranked Utah, which whipped seventh-ranked West Virginia, 84-83, in the classic, a tournament that has the strongest field of the bundle of holiday happiness now under way from coast to coast.

Ten other major tournaments will be in action tonight, including such choice pairings as defending NCAA champ Cincinnati vs. LaSalle and unbeaten Dayton vs. Wisconsin in the Holiday Festival at New York; and Villanova vs. third-ranked Duquesne in a semifinal battle of unbeatens in the Quaker City tournament at Philadelphia.

There's also Florida vs. Navy and Virginia Tech against Vanderbilt in the opening of the Gator Bowl tourney in Jacksonville, Fla.; Oklahoma vs. Kansas and Colorado vs. Iowa State in the second group of first round games of the Big Eight tournament in Kansas City; first round matches in the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore., and the Sun Classic at Shreveport, La. Sun Classic at El Paso, Queen City Classic at Buffalo, and Hurricane Classic at Miami, and semifinals in the WCAC at San Francisco and the All-College tournament at Oklahoma City.

The All-College matches Bowling Green, which knocked Seattle out of the unbeaten ranks 70-61 Wednesday night, against Wichita, 71-69 victor over Texas A&M in overtime; plus a game between Tuesday's winners, Houston and Utah State.

Here are Wednesday night's key games: Los Angeles Classic—Lucas' 20 points and rebounding, John Havlicek's 12 points and solid defense by the whole club kept Ohio State in control against Washington, although the Huskies once got to within four points in second half. Southern Cal (8-1) got 19 points apiece from John Rudometkin and Chris Appel and held All-American Terry Dischinger to 12—less than half his average—in romp over once-beaten Purdue. Gary Cunningham's 21 points, 17 in first half, triggered UCLA's rout of Army; and Billy McGill, the nation's leading scorer, netted 39 points—a tournament record—as Utah (9-1) spilled West Virginia to its second loss in eight starts.

Big Eight—Mike Wroblewski's 20 points led fifth-ranked Kansas State (8-1) over Nebraska; and Missouri (5-4) upset Oklahoma State (7-2) 60-44 with a second half rally.

Far West at Portland, Ore.—Washington State, with Terry Ball scoring 23, spilled California 61-54, and Oregon State crushed Michigan State 89-54. Tonight, it's Idaho, Portland and Oregon-Michigan State, completing the first round.

All-College at Oklahoma City—Bowling Green (6-1), down by 11 at the half, routed Seattle in second half, with 6-8 Nate Thurmond leading the way with 18 points. Then Wichita, with a 9-1 record, including a one-point upset of Cincinnati, edged Texas A&M in overtime as Ernie Moore scored after swiping an Aggie pass with 11 seconds left. Gulf South at Shreveport—Richie Goldberg's 24 points led Mississippi Southern's 81-72 triumph over Louisiana Tech; and Ceasary downed Murray (Ky.) 81-69. Defending champ South Carolina gets into action tonight, meet Memphis State after clash between Northwest Louisiana and Hamkens.

West Coast Athletic Conference at San Francisco—Santa Clara (9-1) drubbed Pepperdine 76-64, and St. Mary's (Calif.) edged San Jose State 48-46.

Kentucky, ranked sixth nationally, headed the teams playing in nontournament activity. The Wildcats, with Larry Pursiful hitting for 25 points and Cotton Nash and Carroll Burchett 16 apiece, thumped Yale 75-58 for their seventh victory in eight starts. Ralph Wells scored the last four of his 21 points in overtime for Northwestern's 64-62 decision over Princeton; St. Louis snapped a four-game losing streak 81-72 over Notre Dame; New Mexico State whipped Brigham Young 70-64 and Marquette routed Wisconsin's Milwaukee branch, 93-50.

Quarterbacks Not Decided On Yet

By HARRY JUPITER Associated Press Sports Writer SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The lineups for the 37th Shrine East-West football game Saturday are set—except for the quarterbacks.

Both head coaches, Joe Kuharich of the East and Jim Owens of the West, still were trying to decide today between a pair of outstanding quarterbacks on each squad.

Kuharich said he probably wouldn't decide until game time whether the East quarterback would be Roman Gabriel of North Carolina State or Ron Miller of Wisconsin.

Owens had a similar problem, trying to choose between John Hadl of Kansas and Mel Melin of Washington State. The West loaded its biggest men into its defensive line in hopes of halting East smashers Ernie Davis of Syracuse and Bob Ferguson of Ohio State, a sensational pair of All-American runners. The East stacked up what might be an all Big Ten line for its defensive unit, with six Big Ten linemen and Nick Buccionti of Notre Dame. Kuharich still was undecided too on whether he would use Angelo Daberio of Notre Dame or Gary Ballman of Michigan State as the East flanker back. Daberio is the smallest man on either squad at 5-foot-8 and 165 pounds but the little guy from Donora, Pa., is in addition to the quarterback, the West offensive backfield stacked up as Curtis McClinton of Kansas and Mack Burton of San Jose State at halfbacks and Ron Bull of Baylor at fullback.

The contest, to be televised nationally from San Francisco's Kezar Stadium Saturday, figures as a test between the East power as personified by Ferguson and Davis and the West's speed and deception.

North Pole Is Too Warm For Necessary Army Testing

ARCTIC ICE FOG—A test team at the Army's Arctic Test Board, Ft. Greely, Alaska, fires tank armament. The men are having difficult time observing their fire because of the still-unsolved problem of the formation of ice fog.

By WARD SIMS

FT. GREELY, Alaska (AP)—Picture an area where the temperature drops 30 degrees—40 a minus 32—in two short hours. Where the wind can increase from 14 miles per hour to 60 in one minute.

Where exposed flesh freezes in one minute.

That is Ft. Greely, headquarters of the Army's Arctic Test Board, where Uncle Sam's military equipment is put through a cold weather wringer.

Everything G. I. Joe would use in any future war goes through the ATB's torture mill: rockets, boots, personnel carriers, mittens, canteens, howitzers, mines, mess kits, cartridges, radar, sleeping bags, grenade launchers and airplanes. The list could go on and on.

The torture mill itself is 600,000 acres of rolling hills, trackless and treeless tundra, bogs, dense forests, huge mountains, glaciers, lakes, hot holes and swamps.

The chief torturer is Col. Henry E. Davidson Jr., president of the Arctic Test Board. His right hand torturer is Col. Curtis Y. Kimball, deputy for test of the ATB.

Both officers have insatiable appetites to find out what is wrong—and what is right—with the equipment U. S. troops may be called upon to use in arctic or sub-arctic regions.

"One of the major problems encountered in arctic operations," Kimball says, "is the extreme and rapid fluctuation of temperatures."

During one week, for example, the temperature at Bollo Lake, on the Ft. Greely reservation, went from a minus 3 to a low of minus 44 and up to a high of 6 degrees above zero.

This rapid and extreme fluctuation raises hob with equipment in which materials with dissimilar coefficients of expansion and contraction—rubber and metal, for instance—have been bonded.

The different expansion and contraction characteristics cause separations. Some metals become extremely brittle in sub-zero temperatures and some electrical insulation snaps like an egg shell, leaving hot wires exposed.

And, extreme cold poses a dangerous threat to personnel who have to work with metal.

"In extreme cold, if you put your bare finger against a piece of metal which has been 'cold-soaking,' your finger stays there or your skin stays there when you pull your finger away," Kimball explains.

The effect of wind on material is not as well known as the effect of temperatures, but on personnel it is critical.

Exposed flesh, for example, will freeze in one minute under each of the following conditions: with the temperature at 18 degrees above zero and a wind of 40 m. p. h.; with the temperature at zero and the wind at 11 m. p. h.; with the temperature at minus 44 and the wind at one m. p. h.

To combat windchill, the Army has developed clothing which is donned in layers.

One arctic phenomenon which still has the ATB stymied is ice fog, a major problem for both ground and air operations.

Ice fog, the offspring of waste products of combustion, can be created by the firing of heavy guns. The billowing clouds of ice particles obscures the target of a gunner and, even more important, discloses his position to the enemy.

Rarely occurring in temperatures above minus 20 degrees or with wind velocities in excess of 3 m. p. h., ice fog also dangerous biots out the vision of aviators on takeoffs and landings.

The testing of tanks, trucks, personnel carriers and other Army vehicles is another year around activity for the ATB.

"During the summer," Kimball explains, "wheeled vehicles become road-bound and tracked vehicles are limited in their ability to negotiate the musk of the arctic and sub-arctic.

"Winter mobility, because the ground is frozen, is actually easier."

Ft. Greely was selected as the site for Arctic Test Board operations because (1) it has most of the terrain normally found in arctic and sub-arctic areas and (2) because it lies on the fringe of the cold center of the North American continent.

"One of the misconceptions held by many people is that the cold center in the north is at the north pole," Davidson said.

"Actually, the cold center of the North American continent is not even within the Arctic Circle. It is generally within a triangle between Fairbanks, Alaska; Snag, Yukon Territory; and Ft. Good Hope, Northwest Territories."

Ft. Greely lies on the southern edge of this cold center, some 96 miles southeast of Fairbanks.

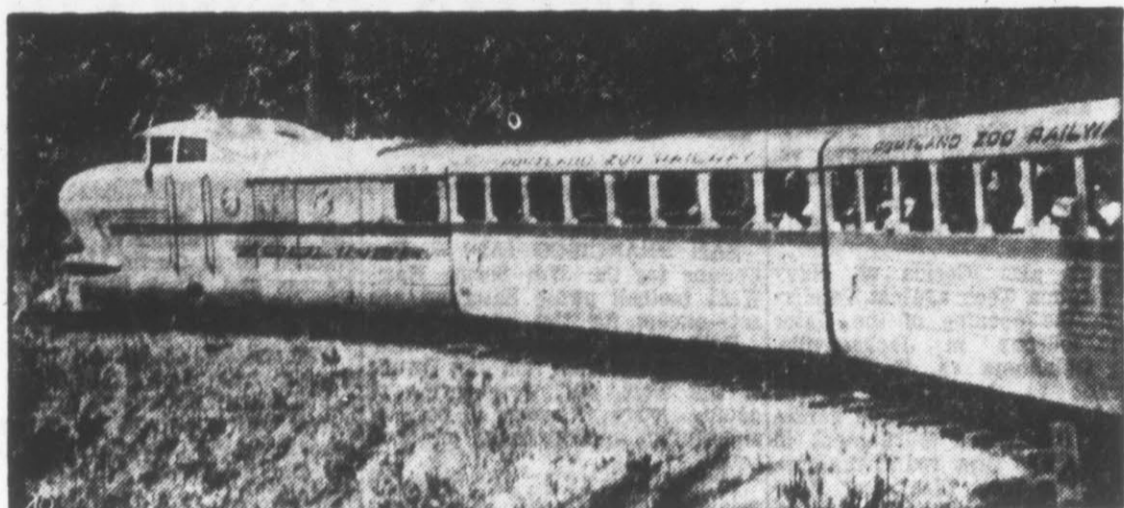

Davidson said that over all, the equipment being developed for use in cold weather areas of the world is very good, "and it's becoming better all of the time."

"In World War II in Italy we were not prepared for the arctic-type weather some units encountered. As we started Korea, we still were not prepared."

"When we came out of Korea, we were in pretty good shape. Now, as a result of those experiences, I think we are well on the track of getting very fine arctic equipment."

They Have Rare Specimen In A Profitable Railway

THE ZOOLINER BEGINS A RUN Modern Design on a Small Scale

By GWIL EVANS
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—It is rare, indeed, that a new railroad is established, and rarer, still, that it makes a profit. But a new one here is doing a brisk, profitable business.

Its name is the Portland Zoo Railway, and its trains glide and chug through the woods and around the animal dens of the zoo.

Last year, the railroad carried a quarter of a million passengers. This year it is doing even better.

The railway has two main trains. One, a streamliner pulled by a diesel locomotive, carries passengers a mile and a half through the woods to a point overlooking the city. The other, a brass-trimmed, pot-bellied steam locomotive with a flaring smokestack and an 1870 flavor, hauls four excursion-style cars around the edge of the zoo.

Line Three Years Old
The first run over the narrow-gauge tracks was made June 8, 1958. The line has been growing steadily since with more track, more rolling stock.

There is a trolley for Very Important People that zips along on special trips.

Plan Interview Area Families In Annual Survey

Families in Greenville and Pitt County are among more than 2,000 across the country who will be interviewed during January and February by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center in the 17th annual Survey of Consumer Finances.

The survey will repeat certain questions asked each year regarding income, financial position and major purchases during the last year. Also covered will be the consumer's evaluation of his current financial situation and prospects for 1962, including intentions to buy cars, durable goods and houses.

The families represent a carefully chosen sample of American adults and will include many who were interviewed before. Each will receive an introductory letter from the Survey Research Center prior to the interviews.

Decorations Are Being Removed

AYDEN—Christmas decorations were taken down here yesterday, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor reported.

He stated all decorations put up by the town would be down this week, with workmen using good weather conditions to dismantle and store the materials until next year.

CLOSED MONDAY

AYDEN—Offices in the Ayden Town Hall will be closed on Monday, Jan. 1, for New Year's Day. Standby crews will be available for emergency services, it was pointed out by Town Manager Cleveland Paylor.

forest country—races by, its siren screaming, its red 800-gallon tank car glinting brightly in the sun. It was built as a gift by a timber company.

A work train that carried tools and workmen for maintenance and repairs also was a gift.

But this is a regular railroad operation, scaled down in size for 30-inch rails instead of the standard 48 1/2. The passenger cars are five feet wide and 40 feet long. The diesel engine weighs 6 1/2 tons, the steam engine—with tender filled—nearly 12 tons.

Has Mail Contract
The railway has a special dignity, too: A $1-a-year contract with the United States government to carry the mail. Letters dropped into slots in the sides of the locomotives get the official postmark, "Portland Zoo Railway, Oregon."

All of this started when Portlanders voted $4 million for a new zoo. One of the directors, Edward Miller, an idea man and newspaper executive, suggested a railroad as an extra attraction. The board gave him $25,000 and told him to go ahead.

Miller enlisted John H. Jones, manager of the Northern Pacific Terminal Co., and the two set out to build a railroad. Before they got the first train moving some 23,000 people had contributed in one way or another.

Youngsters in central Oregon scooped up lava rock for the road and got a railroad and a trucking firm to haul it free. A marine contractor turned his designer loose to help with the streamliner executives, trainmasters, clerks and road foremen of the area's major railroads turned up and joined local businessmen on their days off in using pickaxes and shovels and mauls.

The schools sprouted stock salesmen. (One share of stock and a ride for a dollar.)

An auction held in cooperation with the adjacent Oregon Museum of Science and Industry sold such things as a $4,000 diamond brooch, a Bavarian beer dinner for 75, a luncheon date with Miss America, a dinner with the Governor and his wife, an Australian wallaby. All were donated and profits bordered on 100 percent.

The auction is repeated each year. Profits alone won't do it unless growth costs are held down. Right now directors are looking for some two-axle truck assemblies—those things that hold the wheels together—which normally cost $3,000 and more. They say that somewhere in the United States there must be junked narrow-gauge cars with truck assemblies they can get salvage prices. Searches like this are part of the zoo train's happy growth.

That is why the Portland Zoo Railway's ledger sheet shows a value of nearly $600,000 and few debts.

Operationally it is doing well too. There is an astonishingly large roll of unpaid workers who keep the trains running. Among them are a retired pharmacist, an Interstate Commerce Commission inspector, an electrical contractor and, naturally, a retired railroader.

Gross revenues last year were $30,200 and net profit after depreciation $8,824.

Midwest Is Still In An Icy Grip

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cold weather held an icy grip across the Midwest today and some of the frigid air dipped deep into parts of the Southland.

Snow, sleet and rain created hazardous driving conditions in the north and middle Atlantic regions and parts of the South. Light snow fell in northern Alabama, North Carolina and eastern Tennessee.

Three inches of snow covered areas in northwestern North Carolina and in Tennessee, three inches of ice- and snow-slicked areas in the Cumberland plateau. Temperatures in most of the wet belt were near or below freezing.

Light snow also fell in the Middle Mississippi Valley, the eastern Great Lakes region and the extreme northern Plains.

Below zero again hit areas in Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Upper Michigan and Illinois. Temperatures dropped below zero in parts of northern Illinois as the cold air moved east and southward from the snow-covered sections of the Midwest.

Coldest air appeared centered in Wisconsin during the morning. It was -15 in Wausau, -12 in Green Bay and -10 in La Crosse. It also was -10 in Marquette, Mich., and -8 in Minneapolis.

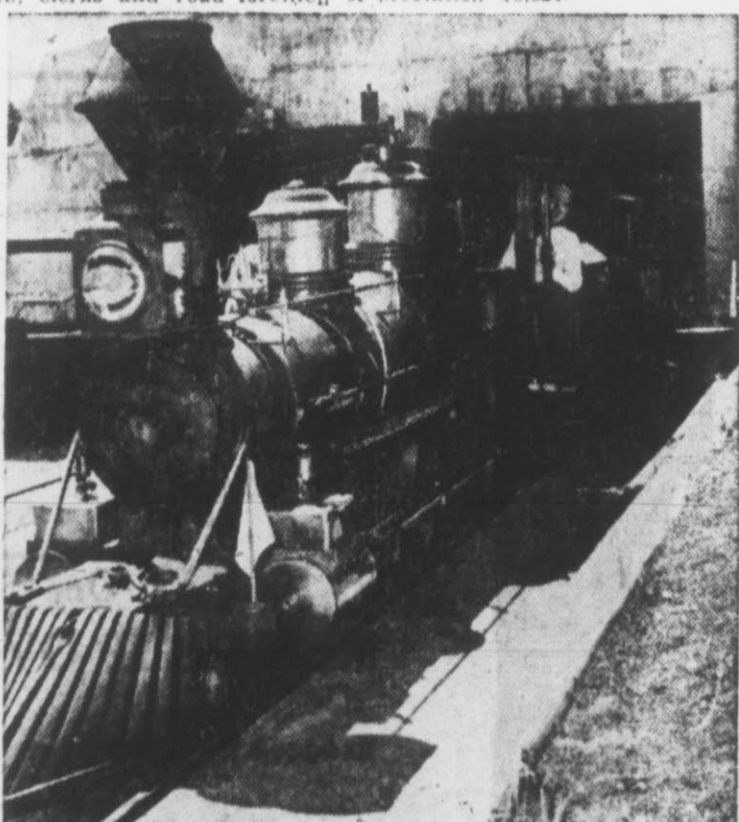

Temperatures moderated to near normal levels in most of Florida after unseasonable cold earlier this week. Readings were mostly in the 50s and 60s, with Miami reporting 62.

Club Votes Sum For Foundation

AYDEN—Members of the Ayden Rotary Club voted at their Thursday meeting to send sufficient money to Rotary International to make their club a 200 per cent club under the Rotary Foundation.

Gwynn Merritt presided at the meeting, held at the Community Building. The Rev. John Goff, program chairman, presented a program on Christmas, which he began with the reading of a poem entitled, "How Far Is Bethlehem." The program was concluded with singing of Christmas carols, led by Joe Ray.

Dr. Elliott Dixon was the guest of Alton Rowe for the evening. During a report on the recent Pancake Supper, it was learned the club made a $454.14 profit, which went to the "special projects" fund.

Missileman's Holiday Cards Show Churches Along Range

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Edward Rosenfeld draws his own Christmas cards—not particularly unusual. But Rosenfeld has most unusual sources from which he draws ideas—the houses of worship scattered along U. S. missile ranges. Rosenfeld is a key member of the Army Rocket and Guided Missile Agency's Nike Zeus development team. His job is island hopping. He selects sites and plans facilities for the Zeus system. And recent additions to his collection of drawings are a mosque in Trinidad, British West Indies, and the dome of a synagogue at Curacao, Dutch West Indies. "Most people expend a little extra effort in building a church," says Rosenfeld. "That's why these places of worship are interesting subjects for me to draw."

FINISHING TOUCHES—Edward Rosenfeld, whose job is missiles, makes a hobby of drawing houses of worship for use on his Christmas cards. Here he puts the last touches on his newest picture, a charcoal drawing of a Dutch West Indies synagogue.

Rise In Cancer Incidence Is Expected To Be Minor

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer
DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Only a small percentage rise in the incidence of cancer may be expected from bomb test fallout, a British researcher said today. Dr. Philip R. J. Burch also offered the concept that fallout-type radiation may, in most instances, help produce cancer only if nature has paved the way. He said there is suggestive evidence that in many instances where radiation is linked with cancer, it acts merely as a supplement to spontaneous changes which have occurred in body cells of certain people leaving them vulnerable. Burch, a University of Leeds scientist, is doing visiting research at the Atomic Energy Commission's Oak Ridge, Tenn., laboratory. He told the American Association for the Advancement of Science that studies among people exposed to wartime bomb radiation at Hiroshima and Nagasaki suggest: 1. Radiation may hasten the development of cancer in a vulnerable person whose spontaneous cellular changes have not reached the critical point. 2. Radiation might provide the final trigger to touch off cancer in persons who have some vulnerability but who otherwise might escape cancer. He said that at the low levels of radiation provided by the natural "background" of the earth—and by fallout—the most important cancer-producing effect of radiation is likely to be this "supplementary" one. But he estimated that for "background" radiation this would mean a responsibility for only between a tenth of one per cent to one per cent of all spontaneous tumors. And, he added, if nuclear testing in the future does not exceed the rates of the past, cancers linked with fallout should not produce more than a 0.04 per cent rise above the level of spontaneously caused cancers.

Two Teamster Unions Ordered To Open Records

DETROIT (AP)—Two Teamsters Union locals, including Teamsters President James R. Hoffa's home Local 299, are under orders to open their records to federal investigators starting Jan. 3.

An order that government investigators be given full access to records of Local 299 and Local 614 at Pontiac, Mich., was signed Wednesday by U.S. Dist. Judge Thomas P. Thornton.

Thornton specified, however, that inspection would be allowed only on records from Jan. 1, 1959 to Dec. 27, 1961. The order specified that inspectors be given adequate quarters at both locals to examine the records "without interference from the presence of" union members.

The order apparently ended an 11-month battle by the Teamsters against authority for the secretary of labor to inspect union records under the Landrum-Griffin Act.

Nehru Disclaims Tipping Moscow

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru said today he did not discuss India's invasion of Goa and two other Portuguese enclaves with the Soviet Union beforehand and had no advance indication of Moscow's support. He told a news conference "We tried to find some way of escape" from military attack. But he rejected any suggestion that India withdraw from the former Portuguese territory now.

Nehru said the invasion date was postponed twice because of diplomatic approaches by the United States and Britain urging a peaceful settlement. He said the final American effort came too late—only three hours before Indian troops struck.

Stairway Halted By Spilled Coins

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Carol Sue Ramey, 11, stopped by the court house on her way to the bank to make a deposit. While riding a moving stairway, she dropped her piggy bank. It shattered and 1,350 pennies scattered. The stairway was out of operation two hours while repairmen extricated pennies from the machinery. Most of the pennies were recovered and Carol completed her trip to the bank with a shoe box.

Advises Help

Walter L. Tucker, Veterans Service Officer, has urged all area veterans and widows who receive monthly pensions to return their annual income questionnaires to the local N. C. Veterans Commission office for aid in completing the forms.

Tucker said the questionnaires will accompany the December pension checks to the veterans and widows. The checks for December are mailed Dec. 31 and should be received, Tucker said by Tuesday.

In urging recipients of the pensions to seek assistance of the office staff, Tucker pointed out many forms returned already completed last year were completed incorrectly.

Consequences of filling out the questionnaires incorrectly, Tucker said, may involve interruption of the pension checks for as much as three, four or five months.

The forms should be carried by the office, located on Washington Street in Greenville, during the month of January, Tucker noted.

Found $5 Bill Inside A Walnut

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Mrs. Henry Dayberry was shelling English walnuts for her grandchildren at her home in suburban Grandview Christmas Day when she cracked a nut that didn't seem to be good. She dropped it in the pan of nuts and reached for another. Carmen Jones, 5, picked up the discarded nut and exclaimed: "Looky here, granny. What's this?" Mrs. Dayberry, 51, pried out of the nutshell a tightly-folded wad of paper. It was a $5 bill. She said she had no idea who might have put the money in the nut. It came from a bag she bought at a grocery store.

Scarbeck, married and the father of three, was convicted two months ago in a trial that brought out his involvement with a dark-haired Polish girl, Ursula Dischner, while he was serving as second secretary to the American Embassy in Warsaw.

Bus And Subway Strike Approved

NEW YORK (AP)—Members of the Transport Workers Union rejected a money package offer Wednesday night and voted a strike New Year's Day of all bus and subway lines.

About 5,000 transit workers attended the mass meeting, called to consider a Transit Authority offer totalling about 16 cents an hour in a two-year contract.

Prior to the meeting, TWU President Michael J. Quill raised the possibility of a wildcat walk-out in advance of midnight New Year's Eve, when the present contract expires.

"Even church meetings get out of hand," Quill said. "People get carried away." At the meeting, some cries were

Mansfield Doubts 'Wave Of Conservatism'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., disputed today Republican contentions that a wave of conservatism threatens administration programs in Congress.

Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, said in an interview his travels during the recess of Congress have convinced him the country "is still on the middle road, politically, and is going neither to the extreme right nor the extreme left."

"There is a need and a place for conservatives in our scheme of political things," he said. "But I would separate the real conservatives from the extreme right wingers who feel that they have the only answers to our problems—those who insist on dealing in black and white when all the world's problems are gray."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois told a news conference Wednesday he agrees with House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana that there is a revival of conservatism which could affect Democratic control of Congress in next year's elections.

Halleck previously had said a "wave of conservatism apparent throughout the country" might sweep the GOP into control of the House.

Halleck predicted that as a result of this trend toward "conservative thinking" some of what he called "the wild-eyed ideas" of the Kennedy administration would have rough sledding in Congress. Dirksen was a little more cautious in his political estimates. While he said he has found in his travels a "definite conservative trend," Dirksen added that it was "no wildfire" sweeping the prairies.

But he agreed with Halleck's contention that younger people are becoming more interested in Republican policies than they have in the recent past.

Asked why this was, he replied: "The young people have been watching all of these spending programs and they are getting concerned about the debts they are going to have to pay. There is an amazing interest among them in politics."

Dirksen made it clear that Republicans will bear down in the new session on efforts to balance the budget. He said he would be ready to vote for higher taxes if that is necessary to bring about a balance. But he added that Republicans will want to concentrate first on cutting non-essential spending.

In a lengthy discussion of Kennedy's projected request for broad authority to negotiate tariff reductions, Dirksen indicated he

Couple Told To Remove Rooster

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Magistrate Samuel H. Lohman Wednesday gave Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Iuzzolino until Sunday to remove a rooster which the Health Department said the couple were keeping in their back yard. The department told the court it has several complaints about the rooster's crowing early in the morning.

Iuzzolino, 80, insisted that the bird was not a rooster but a pet chicken suffering from a cold. "It's just a little hoarse," he told Lohman.

would support only a one-year trial program. He left little doubt he thinks Republicans will insist on inserting escape clauses to protect threatened industries.

The Republican leader called for a tougher U.S. line in the United Nations, expressing disappointment with the U.N.'s cooperation with the international organization are going to have to be examined closely.

Dirksen hinted that India's grab of Goa and other Portuguese enclaves may generate some GOP opposition to foreign aid funds for that country.

Rumors Of Jungle Scandal Are Begun In School Board

By CHARLES MAHER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — While Tarzan and Jane were living together in that tree all those years, were they also living together in sin?

Belated rumors of such a jungle scandal are circulating in nearby Downey, where some of the restless natives may be trying to drum Tarzan books right out of their elementary school libraries.

Their suspicion: That there is nothing to indicate Tarzan and Jane were ever legally married. And, if this is the case, that children are being exposed to tales about an ape man who was up to a little monkey business when he whisked Jane over the threshold of his primitive penthouse and invited her to stick around for breakfast.

When the news broke, you could almost hear a young voice imploring: "Say it ain't so, Tarz."

And, from the jungles of Hollywood, the reassuring response: "Don't worry, they can't bend the ape man out of shape, man."

The celebrated fictional hero created by the late Edgar Rice Burroughs has been through this sort of thing before. Once, in fact, he was in effect accused of being a dupe of the Communists. Happily, it appears Tarzan's reputation is as indestructible as Tarzan himself.

Supt. Bruce Moore of the Downey Unified School District said the trouble started at the last school board meeting. Board member Robert L. Ryan said he'd been told a librarian at one of the schools removed all the Tarzan books. Ryan's informant did not tell him in which school the books had been banned but said there had been vicious gossip about Tarzan's alleged inability to produce a marriage certificate.

There were also complaints concerning the works of the late Western author Zane Grey, who was accused of injecting a little scarlet prose into his tales of the purple sage. Grey's characters, said Moore, occasionally used such corrupting language as "hell" and "damn."

"I can assure you," Moore said, "that the board unanimously feels the other way—that the books should stay."

Moore said he hasn't found out which school the books were taken from because "all the principals and teachers are scattered for the holidays." But he said he will conduct an investigation when classes resume.

Sol Lesser, who produced many of the Tarzan movies, said the same objections were raised years ago. "I had a long correspondence with a number of people who objected to the fact that Tarzan and Jane were living in a tree house and had a son, all apparently without benefit of matrimony," Lesser said.

"We established that the son (known only as 'Boy') was found by Tarzan and Jane and adopted by them. But that didn't help much and the correspondence went on."

"Finally I spoke to Burroughs. He said: 'I would advise you to read my books. In one of my early books it was established that Jane's name was Jane Porter, that she was the daughter of a minister in Baltimore, Md., and that the father went to the jungle and there married Tarzan and Jane."

Cyril R. Rothmund, who was Burroughs' manager, confirmed Lesser's story. "In the second Tarzan book Tarzan and Jane were married in the jungle," Rothmund said. He said this book, published in 1915, was titled "The Return of Tarzan."

Actress Maureen O'Sullivan, most famous of all the Janes in the Tarzan films, said similar objections were raised in her day. So, she said, Tarzan and Jane were married on the screen.

"I believe it was in our second picture," she said. "We had a ceremony in the jungle. We didn't use a ring. Instead, Tarzan (Johnny Weissmuller) put a bracelet on my wrist."

"We had the wedding under the trees and all the animals of the jungle came and watched. They were the witnesses."

"That seemed to satisfy everybody."

It was in this same general period, in 1937, that Tarzan ran into trouble in Rio de Janeiro. Police there said the book "Tarzan the Invincible" showed Communist tendencies and ordered it banned from book stalls.

Such incidents failed to diminish the popularity of the books. At the time of Burroughs' death in 1950, it was estimated nearly 40 million Tarzan books had been sold and some had been translated into more than 50 languages. And, over the years, Tarzan has drawn more at the box office than any other single movie hero.

Wednesday night, Noyes Alexander, president of the Downey Lions Club said the club had appropriated $200 to buy Tarzan and Zane Grey books for the school district. He also said he had been informed that the school district would accept the club's gift.

Betty White 'Grounded' During Christmas Season

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It took a lot of advance planning and plotting, but Betty White has grounded herself for almost 10 days in Los Angeles and is celebrating the holiday season at home.

Miss White, almost a regular panelist on CBS' "To Tell the Truth," and one of Jack Paar's favorite guests on his NBC show, is pursuing the traveling career in television. Last year she made 34 flying roundtrips between Hollywood and New York.

This year she managed to cut the trips to about 20—mostly by making longer stays at the New York end.

Betty, a pretty TV performer who grew up in Los Angeles, finds transcontinental commuting a stimulating and (financially) rewarding experience. Recently she stayed put on the West Coast long enough to play a woman senator in her first movie, "Advise and Consent," and is in the market out there for acting roles.

The New York phase of her career is primarily involved with the panel show, the Paar program—and doing commercials.

Betty's holiday at home isn't entirely a leisure period, however. On New Year's day she will act as NBC's commentator during the two-hour Tournament of Roses parade—an assignment now becoming an annual special job.

CBS is thinking seriously about breaking up that old "Gunsmoke" gang. On the network's planning boards now for next season is a weekly variety show, "TV Tonight," which would star Dennis Weaver as host. Obviously, Dennis can't keep on playing Chester, Matt Dillon's lovable sidekick. But on the other hand, what is "Gunsmoke" without Chester to provide the chuckles?

And speaking of "Gunsmoke," perhaps the program-pickers have been announcing the demise of the Western too soon. In the most recent Nielsen ratings, the three most popular shows are, in the following order, "Wagon Train," "Bonanza" and "Gunsmoke."

The ratings—considered most authoritative by the industry—also show that CBS now has the lion's share of the popular shows. Earlier in the season, NBC was out in front. ABC, at the bottom of the heap, is having a very poor season—it's only show in the top 20 is "My Three Sons."

Recommended tonight: "Years of Crisis," CBS, 10-11 (Eastern Standard Time)—a round-table year-end review by the network's top correspondents.

Re-Training Of Workers Off To Slow Start

EDITORS NOTE—How is the nation's first depressed retraining program going? Not so good, reports show, despite the incentive of a "earn-as-you-learn" provision. Officials in Huntington, W. Va., pilot site of the retraining program, are puzzled and a bit disappointed.

By DICK LEONARD
HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—The nation's first federal retraining program for the jobless has gotten off to a slow start because of all things—lack of widespread response from the people it was designed to help.

Only about 750 of the estimated 7,000 to 8,000 unemployed in West Virginia's Cabell and Wayne counties—rural, coal mining and industrial areas—have applied for retraining, even though pay is offered to those learning new jobs. Officials connected with the program—designed as a federal pilot project to aid areas of chronic unemployment—are puzzled and disturbed by the relatively small number of applications.

"I'm concerned," says Clark D. Todd, a coal company executive who devoted considerable time working with the Cabell-Wayne redevelopment commission to help start the program here. "I thought we'd get more than a token response."

"Some of our unemployed people are just going to have to face facts and change their vocations to get jobs," says D. W. Fox Jr. He is coordinator of the Huntington East Trade School, where some of the retraining classes are held.

The program, set up under the U.S. Area Redevelopment Act, is financed by $15,000 in federal money. It is designed to retrain 325 jobless by June 30, end of the fiscal year. So far, only 200 unemployed have been certified for classes.

When the program was started, newspapers, television and radio stations participated in a publicity campaign to herald the aim of teaching workers with few job opportunities new skills they could use in new, less depressed vocations. Added icing to the cake was $23 a week subsistence pay offered while in training.

Some people anticipated a tremendous rush for the "get-paid-while-you-learn" program. It never came. The State Department of Employment Security, charged with processing applicants, hired nine extra people for its Huntington office. The extra staff has been cut to four for lack of applicants.

George Gunnoe, manager of the Huntington employment office, wasn't completely surprised that jobless workers didn't knock down doors to enroll.

"People are slow to act," he explains. "Besides, many in the area are skilled people expecting to be called back to work in plants or in the construction field."

The Huntington office lists 6,542 unemployed in its active file. These are people in the two-county area who have filed or renewed their unemployment pay claims. Many draw the maximum of $32 a week for as long as 39 weeks.

Gunnoe's staff contacted 1,015 of the likeliest prospects for retraining. Of these, 640 came in for interviews and information, with 479 interested enough to take aptitude tests.

Gunnoe reports 52 per cent of the tested applicants did not show aptitude for the courses offered—in small appliance repair, stenography, nursing aid, automatic transmission repair, typing, route salesmanship and table waiting. Classes in three of the fields started earlier this month. Another, in automatic transmission repair, is set to start the first of the year. But the courses in typing, route salesmanship and table waiting are held up for lack of certified trainees.

Gunnoe thinks the fields offered—picked by the employment people on the basis of jobs needing workers—may be part of the problem.

"It's been our experience that people wanting typing also want shorthand," he says. "So they can enroll for stenography, where they get both."

"Route salesmanship needs a man who is a born salesman. He can't be trained as a salesman. People don't think they need training to become waitresses and waiters. In fact, many of the waitresses are taking courses in nursing aid because of higher pay in that field."

The employment office staff generally got one of three answers from the unemployed prospects contacted about the retraining program.

1. I'm just not interested.
2. I expect to be called back to work soon.
3. I'm too old to be starting all over again.

But Gunnoe, who has been manager of the employment office here for 24 years, isn't discouraged.

"This is strictly an experimental program," he says. "After all, we're the first in the nation with this on the federal level. It's just like a laboratory, and we're learning from the ground up."

Bus For Blind Is Rolling Again

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—A little bus that makes a 68-mile daily round trip to carry eight blind youngsters to and from school is rolling again.

A few weeks ago the bus operation was in trouble. The parents needed $1,000 to repair the creaking vehicle and meet other expenses for the remainder of the year.

Then a Charleston auto dealer came to the rescue, overhauling the bus without charge. A rental-car firm loaned a station wagon for use while the bus was being repaired. Then a bake sale held by the parents netted $75 and several donations were received.

As a result the bus again is running from Nitro, west of Charleston, to the Glenwood School here, where special classes are held for the blind.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG

Fiber glass roofs for patios, carports and breezeways have attained considerable popularity because they allow the passage of a large amount of light yet block the transmission of most of the sun's heat.

Since the fiber glass is light in weight and can be worked with ordinary tools, this material has gained wide acceptance among do-it-yourselfers. The panels can be bought with regular flat surfaces or in a number of flat-surface variations, but it is the corrugated panels which are the biggest sellers. The corrugations not only have a certain attractiveness, but help to shed rainwater. They come in various colors, with green the most popular.

If you are planning on putting up a fiber glass roof, it is well to know what size panels you will use before the framework is installed. That's because the size of the panels will influence the spacing on the rafters. If the joints fall on the rafters, they will be stronger and will not require as

Reds Denounce Peaceful Effort

TOKYO (AP)—Moscow Radio beamed a broadcast to Japan Thursday denouncing American desires for a peaceful settlement of the Dutch-Indonesian dispute over Netherlands New Guinea.

The broadcast said the United States was forced into speaking out for a peaceful settlement only by the "expression of determination by 80 million Indonesians to liberate their own territory."

It charged the U.S. government supports the "Dutch colonialists."

much mastic to be sure they are leakproof. The joints are made by overlapping the panels at least one corrugation.

The panels are nailed to the wooden framing with special aluminum nails with washers that insure watertight seals. Although it is possible to hammer the nails through the paneling without marring the fiber glass, this must be done so carefully that it is better to drill holes through the roofing material to receive the nails. These holes should be slightly smaller than the size of the nails.

For proper drainage, the framework should have a pitch of at least one inch to every foot. Special metal flashings are available to be used at the point where the roof meets the house. These flashings have corrugations in them to match the corrugations in the panels, insuring tight fits and preventing the passage of water under the seams.

The 4 by 4 posts used for the uprights can be set into dirt at least two feet—or set in concrete—or attached with steel dowels or headless bolts if the patio floor already is stone or concrete. The dealer from whom you purchase the posts can give you more detailed advice on that subject to fit your particular need.

One more important point. Before you begin work, find out what building code requirements are in your neighborhood.

121 PARISHES CLOSING

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Association of Swedish Parishes reports that 121 parishes of Sweden's State Lutheran Church were to be closed after Jan. 1, 1962, because of a shortage of clergymen.

Peace Corps Job For Dr. Proctor

WASHINGTON—Dr. Samuel DeWitt Proctor, 40, president of North Carolina Agricultural and Technical College at Greensboro, today was named Peace Corps Representative in Nigeria.

In his new post, Dr. Proctor will administer Peace Corps activities in the most populous nation in Africa.

Sargent Shriver, Director of the Peace Corps, cited Dr. Proctor's "rich gifts of personality, education and imagination" in announcing the appointment.

A native of Norfolk, Va., Dr. Proctor has an extensive background as an educator, clergyman and administrator.

He enjoyed the distinction of being one of the youngest college presidents in the South when he was named chief administrator at Virginia Union University in Richmond in 1955. He resigned in 1960 to accept the presidency at North Carolina A & T College in Greensboro.

Dr. Proctor is an ordained Baptist minister, graduating from the Crozer Theological Seminary in 1945. He was pastor at Pond Street Baptist Church in Providence, R. I. from 1945 to 1949. In 1950, he earned his Th. D. at Boston University and joined the teaching staff at Virginia Union, where he became president six years later.

He was given a two-year leave of absence by North Carolina A & T College to accept the Peace Corps assignment.

BAPTIST EDITORS POLLED
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Southern Baptist Convention editors have rated the controversy over federal aid to church-related schools as the denomination's top news story of 1961.

The anchovy generally measures from four to five inches in length.

Fresh Challenge For New DA

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—William Medford is sitting on the opposite side of the courtroom these days, practicing a somewhat different type of law.

As new U.S. district attorney for western North Carolina, Medford is on the prosecuting side for the first time. And whereas he had been involved in civil and corporate cases as a private attorney, now he handles mostly criminal cases.

"I don't know that you could call it a challenge, but anyway it's different," said the 45-year-old Medford. "I'm still learning the way things operate here."

A graduate of the University of North Carolina, Medford practices law with the firm of Millar, Medford and Millar beginning in 1933. He has been U.S. attorney here since Oct. 13, but still lives in Waynesville with his wife and teen-age son.

Another and welcome difference for the new government attorney is the number of hands available for his work. At full strength his office has another attorney here and one at Charlotte, plus 4 secretaries. "It helps a whole lot," Medford acknowledged.

In any circumstance, he's a man accustomed to keeping busy. Medford served three terms in the State Senate and held various committee posts for the state Democratic party. He also is a trustee of the University of North Carolina, chairman of the North Carolina Park and Parkway Commission and member of the American Legion.

Medford, who has a home in a fashionable area of Waynesville, belongs to that city's First Baptist Church.

Escaper Found It To Be Cold World

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (AP)—Prison Superintendent A. C. Cavell said Michael Thompson, 31, of Philadelphia broke out of Rockview State Correctional Institution Wednesday by climbing over a fence near the cannery where he worked.

He gave himself up four hours later at the home of Mrs. Earl Yearick.

Said Cavell: "He was forced to wade through Spring Creek and I guess he realized it was just too cold to be walking around outside with wet clothes on."

Thompson is serving a 2-to-6-year term for burglary and larceny.

Crewmen Prefer No Shore Liberty

DURBAN, South Africa (AP)—Burmese officers and crewmen of the freighter Pagan have voluntarily confined themselves to their ship in Durban Harbor after being embarrassed by South Africa's racial segregation laws.

Officers and crewmen told newsmen: "We've never been so humiliated in our lives."

Some of the Burmese are dark-skinned, some fair. When they go ashore together, the "whites" are accepted in restaurants and places of entertainment while the darker ones are refused entry.

The Pagan is scheduled to load in Durban until mid-January.

SUES OVER JOLT

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—H. A. Tapley rigged up a system to keep prowlers from snooping around his home. Dan Currie, a termite inspector, said he went to the Tapley home to check for pests, stepped on an "electrified wire trap" and got what he termed a "devastating jolt." He filed suit for $30,850 damages.

Economists Are Relaxing Thru Media Of Art

NEW YORK (AP) — College economists, dealing with the hard facts of monetary life, must relax too. Some of them go about it through art mediums — such as painting, wire and wood sculpting, and drawing.

An exhibition, in which a dozen economists are taking part, opened Wednesday at the Commodore Hotel, presided by the American Economic Association.

Prof. Abba P. Lerner of Michigan State University, in his spare time works in aluminum wire mobiles and other wire and tube sculptures.

One of his most enthusiastic fans is his wife, Daliah, who noted: "What you see (in the sculptures) is not even half of it. You must see the fantastic shadows the shapes create."

Another exhibitor is Prof. William J. Baumol, chairman of economic study at Princeton University. He specializes in free-form sculptures from wood blocks "as I whittled with a knife when a boy."

Baumol's economics' colleagues regard him as a "ringer," since he has studied for years at the Arts Student League here. Baumol also is showing some of his paintings.

Prof. Harry G. Johnson of the University of Chicago is a "whittler" who turns out wood carvatures.

One of Johnson's efforts is an ant-eater, with its snout high in the air. He named it "Eager Student."

Johnson is a follower of the late Lord Keynes, monetary policy theorist. And Johnson has done one caricature which he identifies with a paper he delivered on "Keynesianism 25 Years After."

The professor names no individual as the subject of the carving — which shows a man with big ears and a hole in his head.

No Evidence Of Any Third Party

SILER CITY, N. C. (AP)—District Solicitor Ike Andrews said today he has received an exhaustive report from Chapel Hill Police Chief W. D. Blake on his investigation into the poison deaths Oct. 6 of two University of North Carolina students.

Andrews declined to comment on the report except to say that there was "absolutely no evidence" that a third party was involved in the mysterious deaths of the two youths who were found dead in their dormitory room.

The solicitor said he plans to confer with Blake, possibly Friday, and he assumed that he and Blake would issue a joint statement of their findings in the deaths of James Michael Barham, 21, a junior from Burlington, and William H. Johnson Jr., 24, a graduate student from Statesville.

Two days after the bodies were discovered, a coroner's jury ruled that the two had died of cyanide poisoning. Several days later, Blake said officers had learned that Johnson had made inquiries about obtaining cyanide, telling another student he wanted it to kill rats.

Pleased By Sale Of City Tags

AYDEN — About 43 city tags have been sold here since Dec. 18, the first day of sale, it was reported yesterday.

City officials were pleased with the number, considering the fact that tags were not sold during the three-day Christmas holiday. Residents have been urged to buy the tags early. They are on sale in the Town Hall.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The year-end rally in the stock market continued early this afternoon with trading heavy.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.20 at 263.40 with industrials up 2.10, rails up .40 and utilities up .50.

Advances of most key stocks were fractional but here and there was a gain of a point or better.

Brokers saw the rise as essentially technical in nature. The rally began Wednesday as the list posted its first clear-cut advance in 10 sessions. Many stocks were low enough to become more active as buys again. At the same time, most year-end tax selling was apparently out of the way.

High quality issues paced the continued upsurge. Investment funds replenished their supplies of blue chips to dress up their annual reports.

Industrials carried the burden of the advance. Rails and utilities were ahead on balance. Some of the best early prices were shaded as trading wore on.

A number of issues were unchanged and there was an assortment of small losers.

Douglas Aircraft fell more than 3 points before paring a point from the loss.

Chubb, Peabody spurred more than 4 points. General Foods held most of an early 3-point rise. DuPont lost more than a point.

The leading steels were all ahead fractionally. Among motors, Chrysler and General Motors held fractional advances while Ford lost more than a point.

Most of the top chemicals displayed fractional gains but Air Reduction was down about a point.

A rise of about a point by United Air Lines highlighted airline issues which were unchanged to slightly higher.

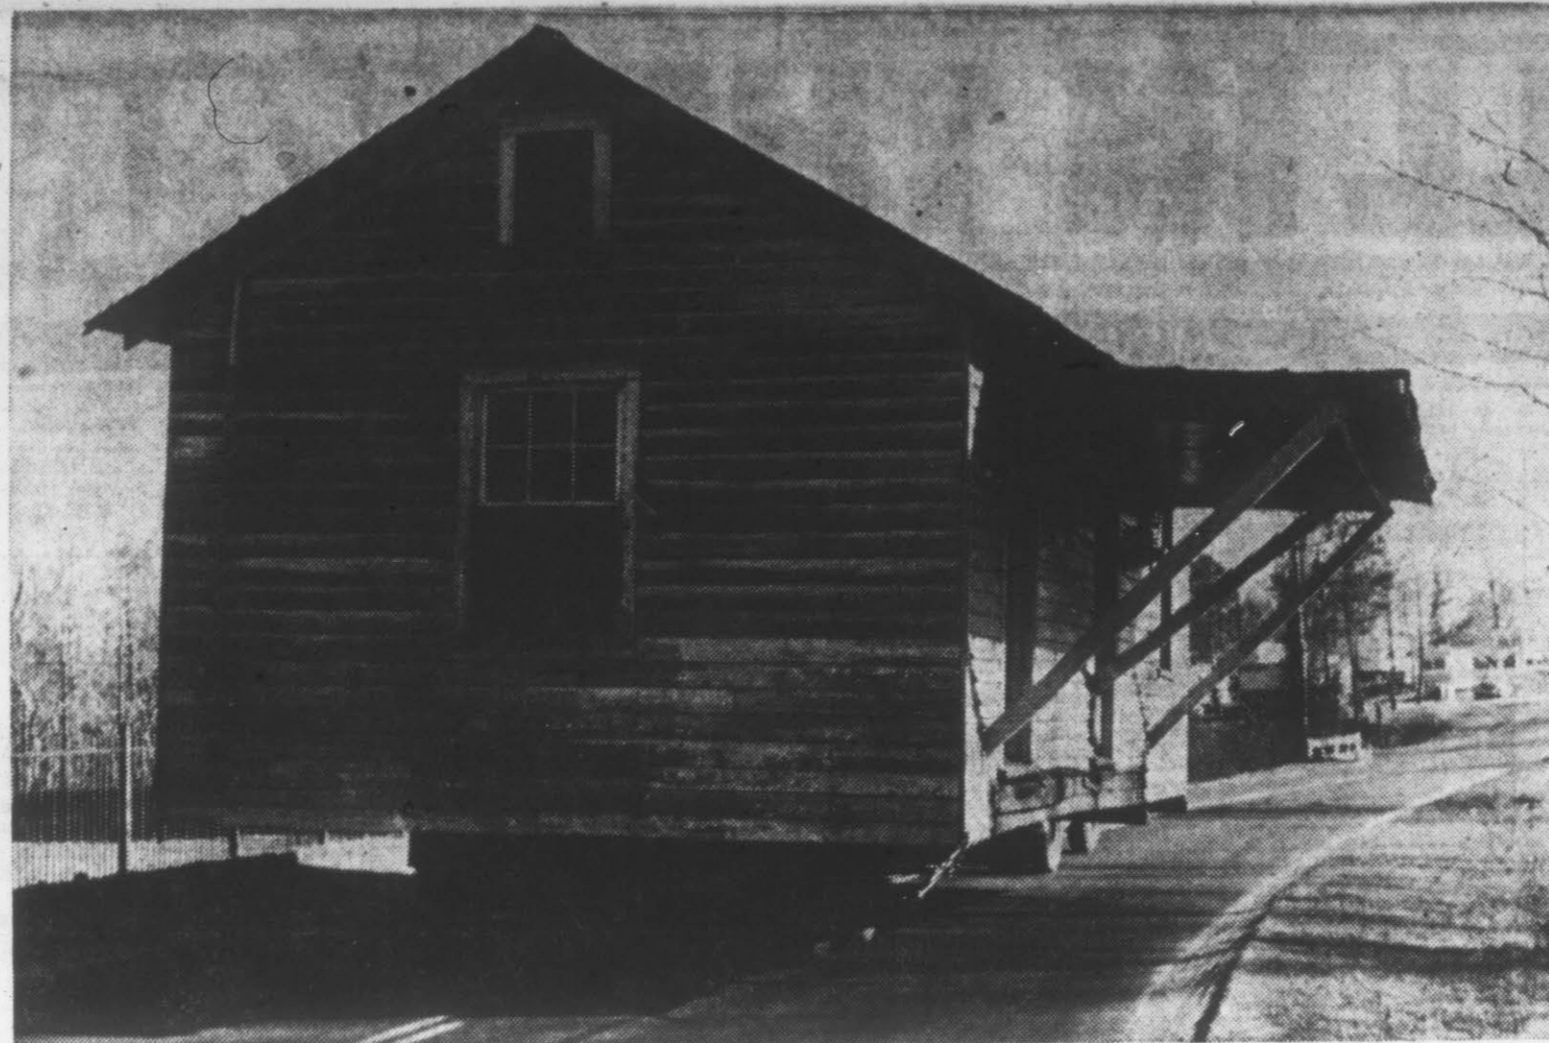

Electronics were narrowly mixed. Oils showed a slight upside tendency on balance. Nonferrous metals were mixed.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 3.31 at 734.74. This was a shade below the historic closing high of 734.91 reached Dec. 13.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange in active trading.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds were mixed.

A REAL COOL VEHICLE . . . might be what some motorists on Pitt County roads thought yesterday as this dwelling rolled down the highway. The house, formerly located on a lot at the intersection of Gotanche and Second Sts. in Greenville, was the first of four dwellings to be moved to make room for a new Pitt County ABC store, approved some time ago by the County Commissioners. ## Colder Weather Arrived Today

Colder weather moved in on Greenville today, as the morning temperature dropped sharply from 51 degrees at 8 a.m. to 37 degrees at noon.

Some areas of the state were reporting snow, which was accurately predicted for the mountains and inland sections of the state. Greensboro reported snow during the morning hours.

Rain was forecast for coastal areas throughout the day.

The weatherman warned it would become much colder and rather windy here today and tonight. Friday will be mostly sunny and quite cold.

The Greenville Utilities Plant records showed a high of 60 degrees for Wednesday, and a low of 34 degrees, David Sutton said. The midnight temperature today registered 52 and dropped slightly to 51 for the 4 and 8 a.m. readings.

Low temperatures for tonight were expected in the 20s.

The Tar River level was five feet even this morning, Sutton said.

Into An $817,000 Swindle His Forgery Mushroomed

NEW YORK (AP)—Samuel Rubín, accused of mushrooming a forged $10,000 promissory note into an $817,000 swindle, pleaded guilty Wednesday to three counts of grand larceny.

General Sessions Court Judge George Postel released Rubín, 49, in $5,000 bail pending sentencing Feb. 16. Rubín could get up to 10 years on each count. Asst. Dist. Atty. Leonard Newman had described Rubín as cooperative with investigators.

Rubín's first forged note, for $10,000, occurred in 1945 while he was working for a commercial finance company.

During the next 15 years, the state said, Rubín poured more than $10 million in false notes through a bank account he had set up as a cover.

Principal victims of Rubín's operations were the Chemical Bank New York Trust Co. branch at Broadway and 38th St., which lost $475,000. Other losers were listed as Pam & Co., 370 Seventh Ave. and Cohen-Manheimer Co., 131 W. 30th St., both commercial finance concerns, $47,656 each. Stockholders in Rubín's firms were said to be out $249,288.

Rubín told authorities he always hoped to cover any larcenies with profits of his legitimate business, but he added, "I never quite did."

Rubín resided with his wife in a $90,000 home in Atlantic Beach, N.Y. The couple have a married daughter and a son in college.

Last October Rubín, learning that the Chemical Bank was thinking of reviewing all its notes, invited a bank official to his home and confessed that he had some bad notes. He asked for time to raise the money. But banking officials went to the district attorney's office.

Russians Select Envoy To U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Anatoly Fedorovich Dobrynin, who is fluent in English, knows the United States well and likes international politics, will be the new Soviet ambassador to Washington.

The State Department said Wednesday that Dobrynin's appointment to succeed Mikhail A. Menshikov had been approved here. As a matter of courtesy, the host nation is asked to approve the envoy of another nation and consent is usually a formality.

Officials here said the appointment probably means no change in the basic Soviet policy toward the United States.

Dobrynin, 42 to Menshikov's 59, spent about eight years in the United States, both with the embassy here and the United Nations secretariat in New York. He speaks French as well as English, and in 1960 became head of the American countries division of the Soviet foreign ministry.

State Department officials who know him say Dobrynin is an intelligent, able diplomat who has an excellent background on U.S.-Soviet problems.

Dobrynin is not a high Communist party official. He has been a career diplomat since 1946. Menshikov is a member of the party's central committee.

Menshikov announced earlier this week that he would return to Moscow next month, completing almost four years as ambassador here. His new assignment has not been announced.

Collected Toys For 7 Families

AYDEN—The Ayden Police Department collected toys for seven families—including 27 children—for Christmas this year, Chief W. D. Brooks said yesterday.

Brooks indicated members of the force were pleased with the caliber of toys donated this year, some of which were new. Police-men repaired and renovated old toys.

Appreciation was expressed to those who gave the toys.

Stole Car Owned By Police Chief

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The FBI says two youths who escaped from a North Carolina prison camp stole a car owned by Gatlinburg Police Chief Robert Evans Wednesday, but were captured after a high speed chase.

They were identified as Jesse Calvin Jernigan, 21, of Smithfield, N.C., and Carroll Gilbert Lawrence, 17, of Asheville, N.C., who escaped from a Henderson, N.C., prison camp.

FBI agent said the pair had abandoned another stolen car near Boynton, Va.

Crew Bailed Out As B58 Crashes

COLE CAMP, Mo. (AP)—A supersonic B58 jet bomber crashed Wednesday night after the three crewmen bailed out.

Escaping with bruises were Capt. C. L. Montgomery, plane commander; Capt. J. M. Roddy Jr., and Capt. L. V. Hughes, all stationed at Carswell Air Force Base, Fort Worth, Tex.

The men ejected after the jet developed mechanical trouble. The bomber capable of carrying nuclear weapons at 1,200 miles an hour, wasn't armed, the Air Force said.

The plane exploded on impact on the Amos Bahrenberg farm, blasting a crater 25 feet deep and 35 feet wide four miles east of Cole Camp.

The Air Force didn't disclose the cause of the crash.

Opines Union Is Red-Dominated

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets stronger. Supplies barely adequate to short, demand good. Prices paid producers for clean, unsized eggs, delivered at nearby grading stations on a grade-yield basis, cases exchanged: grade A large, whites 39-41, mediums, whites 30-32, small, whites 25-26.

Rites Held For Local Woman's Father

WINDSOR—David A. Mizell, father of Mrs. Russell Cobb of Greenville, died here Wednesday at age 84.

Funeral services were held at 3 p.m. Thursday in the Green's Cross Baptist Church, conducted by Mr. Mizell's pastor, the Rev. Harvey Coppage. Interment followed in Edgewood Cemetery.

Other survivors include his wife, Mrs. Mary Mizell; three sons, Jesse of Chucklucck, Va., Carl T. of Lehighton, Pa., and Cecil of Windsor, Pa.; two daughters, Mrs. John H. White of Norfolk and Mrs. Myrtle Langdale of Edenton; one brother, William J. Mizell of Windsor; one sister, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Connor of Windsor, and 20 grandchildren.

Saved Buildings From Brush Fire

GRIFTON—Grifton volunteer firemen arrived at the Ike Kilpatrick home near here Tuesday night in time to save Kilpatrick's stables and other nearby buildings from a brush fire.

The fire, which burned in the nearby woods, had spread to the buildings and scorched some of the wood, Fire Chief Wilbur Murphy reported. The home is located about four miles east of Grifton, about nine miles east of Grifton. No damage was reported to the buildings.

STARTS MONDAY

GRIFTON—Local members of the utilities department will begin taking down Christmas decorations next Monday, Luther Lewis, parttime utilities superintendent, said this week.

Coffee is known to have been used in Arabia in the 15th Century.

OPEN MONDAY

GRIFTON—The Grifton Town Office will remain open on Monday, Jan. 1, it was reported yesterday by Town Clerk Joyce McCoy.

Laotian Princes Keep Hope Alive

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma smiled and told reporters Thursday: "Let me work on this three or four days. Maybe you will have quite a nice surprise."

That was Souvanna's summary of a day of behind-the-scenes talks among Laotians—watched over by U.S., British and Soviet ambassadors—to check prospects for revival of the Laotian three-princes' abortive summit conference.

Premier Prince Boun Oum, a rightist, persisted in his refusal to sit with Phouma and Phouma's half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, who is pro-Communist, to complete negotiations for a coalition government.

But Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, defense minister and strong man of Boun Oum's administration, paid a courtesy call on Souvanna at the latter's guarded villa. And Souvanna's expression of apparent optimism was issued after that meeting.

Souvanna, the premier-designate of the proposed new government and his half-brother had separate audiences with King Savang Vathana. Results were not announced.

Souvanna warned earlier in a talk with newsmen that collapse of the negotiations could plunge Laos into an East-West war as well as revive the revolution technically halted by a cease-fire last May.

Souvanna and Souphanouvong were given the brushoff soon after they and their aides arrived in this administrative capital Wednesday.

Boun Oum challenged Souvanna's self-proclaimed neutrality and bluntly declared he was not prepared to bargain over cabinet posts in the proposed new government intended to ensure Laos' neutrality.

Souvanna Phouma and Souphanouvong, whose military forces won control of more than half of Laos earlier this year, had come to Vientiane expecting to dicker with Boun Oum over the distribution of cabinet portfolios among their three factions. They already had agreed the 16-man cabinet would include four Boun Oum adherents, eight neutralists and four Pathet Lao men.

After a meeting of less than an hour, Boun Oum said Souvanna should draw up a coalition cabinet and submit the list to the other political groups for their approval. He also demanded that the eight neutralists be divided equally between "Vientiane neutralists" and "Souvanna neutralists" and that the key posts of defense and interior be given to his own conservative faction.

Some officials of Boun Oum's government said the premier was angered by Souphanouvong's air-

Drainage Ditch Being Enlarged

AYDEN—Drag line operations have been in process in the north-west part of town for several days to alleviate the drainage problem in that section of town.

Workers have been cleaning out and enlarging a drainage ditch which empties into a canal north of Ayden. The work will be completed the latter part of the week, according to present plans. Town Manager Cleveland Paylor stated.

Mrs. Annie W. Long Died Early Today

AYDEN—Mrs. Annie W. Long, 75, died in the Dunn Convalescent Home in Dunn early Thursday.

Mrs. Long was a life-long resident of the Ayden community and was a member of the Ayden Free Will Baptist Church.

Funeral services will be held from the Britt Funeral Chapel Saturday at 2:30 p.m., conducted by the Rev. D. W. Hansley, Free Will Baptist minister of Pantego. Burial will follow in Ayden Cemetery.

Surviving are three sons, Wade of Ayden, Robert T. of Raleigh and Joe R. of Sanford; one brother, Henry Woolard of Plymouth.
