Immigrant Family Burned Out; Neighbors Rally Aid

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

WINTERVILLE—An immigrant family living near here found out today what the spirit of Christmas means in America as neighbors of Ayden and Winterville joined forces to give help after an early morning fire left them homeless.

Fire broke out about 6 a.m. at the rented home of the Aage Justesens on the David Smith farm. Justesen, who immigrated to the United States from Copenhagen, Denmark, was able to get his wife and four young sons out safely. All their clothing and furniture were lost.

Neighbors in Winterville first took the family in. As word spread of the loss, the Winterville Volunteer Fire Department issued an appeal for furniture and clothing. Close behind them, the Ayden Police Department began a similar move for clothing for the boys, ages 2, 4, 5 and 8, and for the parents, both about six feet tall and slender. Fellow employees at the Winterville Machine Works, where Justesen is a first class machinist, already have collected money for the family and clothing has been received there. Some people have promised furniture.

Justesen first left Copenhagen for South America and then moved to Wharton, W. Va. in 1958. He had worked as a machinist in his native Denmark. When work became scarce in West Virginia, he answered a newspaper ad and was hired by the Winterville firm in August of this year.

Justesen's wife, Jo Ann, is the daughter of British parents who moved to Colombia before she was born. She met Justesen while he was employed by a Colombian gold mining company. Today Justesen was not at his regular job. Assisted by Winterville Machine Works shop foreman Boyce Barwick, Bill Stroud of Ayden and others, he was busy locating a residence for his family and probing through the charred wreckage to salvage food, clothing and his immigration papers.

Shortly after noon Stroud notified the family the former residence of Marion Sumrell west of Ayden had been reserved for the Justesens.

The Rev. Louis Aiken, Ayden Methodist minister, and his wife have planned to take the family in until the house near Ayden can be readied for occupancy.

Fire Chief Lloyd Worthington of Winterville said the tragic fire may have been caused by a faulty chimney. Firemen were able to save the shell of the building, Worthington said, "but it was pretty near a total loss."

Snow In Miami Is A False Alarm

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Weather Bureau forecasters were deluged with callers reporting snow in several sections of Dade (Miami) County Thursday. Finally two weathermen went out to check although the temperature was in the mid-50s. No snow. "It was just large clouds of fine ash from dumps, blown by brisk winds through cold, moisture-filled air," the bureau said. "The ash absorbed water and melted on contact but it wasn't snow."

EXTREMISTS ARRESTED

TOKYO (AP)—Ten right-wing extremists arrested Dec. 12 for plotting to assassinate Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda and leaders of his regime were indicted today on charges of subversive activities.

New Record For Travel Industry

RALEIGH (AP)—More than 25 million out-of-state visitors to North Carolina in 1961 set a new record for the state's travel industry, the State Department of Conservation and Development reported today.

Lewis G. Copeland, official statistician for the travel council of North Carolina, estimated out-of-state travel at 25,300,000, topping by 900,000 out-of-state visitations in 1960. Their estimated expenditures of $254 million were about $9 million greater than the 1960 total. Dr. Copeland estimated that 94 per cent of the out-of-state visitors traveled by private automobile, averaging 2.29 passengers per car, and the average visit was two days.

President Said Preparing New Program To Boost Farm Income

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy is reported ready to launch a new farm program, "modernized for the 1960s" and aimed at increasing farm income.

He went over the details in a three-hour session late Thursday with Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and key advisers at the vacation White House. Freeman said the program now has the "general approval" of the President, who will announce it in a special agriculture message to Congress.

And, he added, it also will be included in Kennedy's State of the Union Message, which is being ironed out in daily sessions with White House advisers.

Freeman made a flying visit from snowy Washington to Palm Beach to tackle farm problems with Kennedy. As he boarded an Air Force jet plane to return Home Thursday night, the secretary of agriculture reported the new farm program "will make use of our abundance and will strengthen farm incomes."

It will seek "an over-all balance to make use of our abundance," he told reporters.

Kennedy was keeping his advisers busy here as he mixed work on a variety of reports to Congress with relaxation and visits to his ailing father in the hospital.

The living room of the oceanfront mansion the Kennedys are occupying for the Christmas-New Year's holiday period was a scene of men at work Thursday night—with ash trays overflowing and papers everywhere—as the President invited news photographers in and posed with the secretary of agriculture.

Kennedy was conducting his conference from a rocking chair. And, his one-year-old son John F. Kennedy Jr. crawled in to watch the proceedings and got a wave from his father before a nurse trundled the baby off.

Freeman described the new farm program as "updated and modernized for the 60s" to keep agriculture moving ahead along with the President's general program. Freeman said every conceivable idea that economists and other experts have come up with has been considered in framing the new program.

The chairman of Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers, Dr. Walter W. Heller, sat in on the conferences. Heller came to Palm Beach Tuesday with the President's special counsel Theodore Sorensen and other advisers and Freeman flew back to Washington together Thursday night after the farm program and the economic report got a going over.

Additional work on the State of the Union Message remains to be completed. Kennedy will deliver his review of the nation's condition—foreign and domestic—at a joint session sometime after Congress reconvenes on Jan. 10. The timetable for his various reports, however, is undecided.

The President was conducting other routine business as well and getting daily intelligence briefings. He also received a year-end report from his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, that said "important progress" had been made in the field of civil rights since the Kennedy administration took office last Jan. 20.

The Attorney general reviewed progress in the fields of voting, employment and school desegregation.

"I can report to you that the law enforcement officers and civic leaders in the vast majority of communities have met their obligations," he said. "I am confident, therefore, that this year's progress will continue, and that it will be carried forward with the effort and approval of the vast majority of the American people."

Aside from work, the President continued to get in a daily swim in the heated salt water pool at his holiday residence, although a new cold wave was driving temperatures down in this resort area.

But he abandoned plans for a saal Thursday aboard the presidential yacht, Honey Fitz, when winds whipped up to 25 miles per hour and small craft warnings were hoisted.

The chief executive made a brief morning visit to his 73-year-old father at St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach. Joseph P. Kennedy's condition remained unchanged. He is still partially paralyzed from a stroke suffered Dec. 19 and is unable to speak.

Improvement is reported in the mild case of pneumonia which he contracted several days ago.

The elder Kennedy had a special visitor Thursday, four-year-old Caroline Kennedy, one of his favorite grandchildren.

The hospital waived its rules against child visitors so Caroline, holding her mother's hand, could tiptoe to the bedside of her grandpa.

The seriously ill elder Kennedy recognized his little granddaughter, according to his niece, Ann Gargan, but he was unable to speak to her.

Another Bid To Bring Laos Princes Into Coalition Government Collapses

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Another attempt to convene a meeting of Laos' three political princes to form a coalition government collapsed today.

Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, left Vientiane for his rebel stronghold in the Plaine des Jarres, but a spokesman said new attempts would be made to hold a princely conference at a later date.

"It has to be done," the Pathet Lao spokesman told newsmen.

Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, designated to head the proposed unity government, gave no indication whether he would also leave or whether he would remain and try to negotiate with the direct influence of the 14 nations which are negotiating to prevent resumption of open warfare in Laos between Boun Oum's Western-backed army and the Communist-supported forces of Souphanouvong and of Souvanna Phouma.

Souvanna and Souphanouvong arrived in Vientiane Wednesday for their first meeting in two months with Boun Oum to discuss allocation of the posts in the coalition government all had agreed Souvanna would head. But Boun Oum gave the two other princes the brush-off, accused Souvanna of not being truly neutral and demanded government posts for his faction which the other two were certain to refuse. Western diplomats were appalled by the unexpected turn, but Souvanna took a conciliatory line Thursday. And Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, a staunch anti-Communist who is considered the backbone of Boun Oum's government, arranged Thursday night's dinner party.

The U.S. Embassy was believed to have brought considerable pressure on Boun Oum to get him to the dinner. But afterward Souvanna would only say that the rancor was "subsiding" and that "at least there is more hope than on the first day."

Near Bottom In Levying Of Taxes

RALEIGH (AP)—Tax-conscious North Carolinians have been told they are third from the bottom in the per capita amount of state and local levies.

Gov. Terry Sanford cited a U.S. Census Bureau list Thursday in a year-end statement of appreciation to government workers and Tar Heel citizens.

Looking at the state's progress during the past year, Sanford said, "It is good to be reminded that our state has developed sound tax laws. An official U.S. Census Bureau document reminds us that we are in the lowest three of all the states in amount of tax paid per person for state and local government."

The governor said "economy and efficiency" plus statewide approaches to such major items as schools and roads have been the reason why "we are able to render so much service for our citizens at the lowest cost in America."

Citing the Census Bureau report, Sanford said, "This means our schools, roads, mental hospitals, colleges, prisons and all other state and local government services combined cost each of us less than these things cost the people in at least 47 other states."

"At the end of 1961," the governor concluded, "we continue to have our problem, but the happy fact is that these are problems of progress and growth and new opportunity."

Approve Boost In Airline Fares

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board has authorized the nation's 11 major airlines to increase fares by 3 per cent on a temporary basis—an increase that would cost air travelers an estimated $54 million a year.

But it told the airlines that higher rates alone would not solve their financial problems. "The industry's economic problems must be attacked on a broad front of which load factor improvement is the cornerstone," it said.

The board also urged the carriers to study cost-cutting proposals, including charging passengers for alcoholic drinks, and to give the "closest scrutiny" to special fares—such as family rates—discounts now available.

The CAB approved the higher rates Thursday.

The carriers have said they expect to lose about $30 million this year.

It was assumed that all 11 trunk airlines would adopt the full 3 per cent increase but first they must give 30 days notice. Any increases would expire after six months.

Assault And Robbery Draw Prison Terms

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

Judgments totaling five years in prison were handed down today in City Recorder's Court after a 25-year-old local Negro was found guilty of assaulting and robbing Mrs. Ralph Garrett Sr. in a downtown parking lot December 19.

Judge Charles H. Whedbee, in addition to finding Robert Lee Jones guilty of larceny and assault on a female and ordering his commitment to jail for two years on each count, revoked Jones' probation and ordered that he serve a 12-month suspended sentence handed down by the Greenville Court in April. At that time, Jones was found guilty of breaking and entering.

Mrs. Garrett was the first to take the stand and upon questioning by Solicitor Eli Bloom, told the court she had been shopping and was returning to her car, which was parked in the Colonial Store parking lot at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Sts.

The time was set at five minutes to six by Mrs. Garrett. She testified she was "walking along, with packages in her right arm and her purse on her left arm. As she was 'getting ready to get in the car,' a hand grabbed me . . . twisted me around. 'I resisted,' she said, and she was struck in the face and knocked to the ground. 'He grabbed my bag then and ran.'

Saying she suffered lacerations inside her mouth and bruises over her body, the victim of the assault testified, "two Negro women came to help."

Mrs. Garrett thanked the two in court for their assistance.

She noted the purse contained $10-14 in new $1 bills.

Annie Brown, one of the two women who aided Mrs. Garrett took the stand and identified Jones as the one who attacked and robbed Mrs. Garrett.

According to Mrs. Brown, "she passed me (Mrs. Garrett), then the boy passed me (Jones). When Mrs. Garrett got to her car, Mrs. Brown said she 'saw him (Jones) strike her' and saw him grab her pocketbook. 'He ran back by me,' she noted and 'liked to knock me through the box.' Mrs. Brown had said she was standing beside a trash box while witnessing the attack.

The second person to give aid to Mrs. Garrett, Mrs. Dorothy Moore, told the court that she was in the alley behind the J. C. Penney Company and saw Jones come through the alley running. "Tippy" Jones passed me running . . . he had something under his coat," she said.

As she walked into the parking lot, she saw Mrs. Garrett and

Shelter Design Standards Given

WASHINGTON (AP)—In order to get Pentagon approval, a commercially built fallout shelter must offer a person 100 times more protection than he would have out in the open.

That was one of a list of minimum requirements issued Thursday by the Civil Defense office for shelter manufacturers and contractors seeking government approval for their designs.

Each design that meets minimum standards will receive a Civil Defense serial number.

"The purpose of the technical requirements," said the office, "is to establish official standards which will provide the basis for effective family shelter designs. Minor modifications to suit local building codes may be necessary."

The standards were set forth in two memoranda.

One details standards of space ventilation and basic structural requirements; construction details fire resistance, radiation shielding and blast resistance measures; water supply, sanitation and other essential services.

The second requires that all plans submitted for approval carry supporting data prepared by registered engineers or architects.

The Defense Department said about 1,000 shelter designs already submitted for review will have to be restudied.

Motorists Are Invited To Pass

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP)—Motorists who hesitate to pass slow-moving police cars have been invited to do so by signs placed in cruisers in Winter Park.

The signs read: "Slow-moving patrol car. Please pass."

Police Chief Carl Buchanan said the signs should contribute to traffic safety by preventing long lines of cars forming behind police vehicles.

Stores, Offices To Close Monday

From all reports, stores and offices throughout Greenville and Pitt County will be closed on Monday, New Year's Day.

The Greenville Merchants Association Board of Directors has recommended that the merchants close, and indications are that most of them will be closed. Many grocery stores also will be closed.

All city and county offices will observe the holiday, as will the state and federal offices. The Driver's License Examiner will also have a holiday.

Utilities Director L. P. Bloxam noted that as usual, emergency utilities crews will be on duty to handle any situations that arise.

The Post Office will be closed, with no window service, city or rural delivery. However, special delivery and perishable goods will be delivered Monday. Postmaster J. Knott Proctor stated all collections will be made as usual. There will not be a stamp machine located in the lobby of the Post Office.

Traffic Toll Is Slightly Lowered

CHICAGO (AP)—The nation's traffic deaths in the first 11 months this year totaled 34,370 compared to 34,790 for the similar period in 1960, a decrease of 1 per cent.

The National Safety Council, in announcing the death toll, said the accident death rate for every 100 million miles traveled during the 11 month period was 5.1, the lowest on record for any similar period. The 11-month rate for both 1960 and 1959 was 5.3.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson Dies Thursday Night

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the President who shaped the League of Nations, has died at the stately brick town house where she cared for her stricken husband until his death in 1924. She was 89.

The former First Lady, in failing health for more than a month, died Thursday night on the 105th anniversary of her husband's birth.

She was stricken with a respiratory ailment Thanksgiving night, and never regained her strength, her physician said. He said she also had suffered from a heart ailment for years.

Her condition worsened Thursday, then became critical during the afternoon. She died of "hypertensive heart disease with congestive failure," the doctor said. Two nieces, Mrs. James Powell of New York and Mrs. John Moelling of Chicago, were at her bedside when death came at 10:45 p.m.

Mrs. Wilson married the President Dec. 18, 1915, when he was serving his first term. She was with him constantly after that, screened his callers and studied his papers after he suffered a stroke in 1919, and nursed him during his last years at the 8 Street house. The home was a gift from the President to Mrs. Wilson.

She was to have dedicated the new Woodrow Wilson bridge that crosses the Potomac River south of Washington, at ceremonies Thursday. Instead, Francis B. Sayre Jr., son-in-law of Wilson, unveiled the dedication plaque.

President Kennedy halted Wilson on the anniversary of his birth as "shaper of the first working plan for international cooperation among all peoples of the world."

Controversy swirled around Mrs. Wilson after her husband's stroke in 1919. The President, in a vain attempt to beat down Senate opposition to U.S. participation in the League of Nations, undertook a whistle-stop campaign across the nation.

But he had to give up because of nervous exhaustion. He suffered the stroke on his return to the White House.

Thus began what critics called "Mrs. Wilson's regency." She called it "my stewardship." "I studied every paper sent from the different secretaries or senators and tried to digest and present in tabloid form the things that, despite my vigilance, had to go to the President," she wrote in a book entitled "My Memoir."

But she added: "I myself, never made a single decision regarding the disposition of public affairs. The only decision that was mine was what was important and what was not, and the very important decision of when to present matters to my husband."

Wilson was a widower—his first wife died in 1914—and Mrs. Wilson a widow when they met in 1915. Her first husband was Norman Galt, proprietor of a famous Washington jewelry store. Galt died in 1908.

She was born Edith Bolling, Oct. 15, 1872, in Wytheville, Va., one of the South's old families. One of her ancestors was said to have been Pocahontas, the Indian princess who married John Rolfe.

The home was decorated by satin ribbons and golden wedding bells. In the living room an arrangement of white poinsettias in a golden-dish and a white Christmas tree decorated with gold ornaments and yellow lights cast a welcome glow. The refreshment table was covered with a white cutwork cloth over yellow and centered with an arrangement of white poinsettias and candelabra holding white tapers.

Mrs. Fenner Heath of Vanceboro, sister of Mrs. Wiggins, said goodbye.

Select Hair Brush For Your Type Hair

Every type of hair needs a suitable type of brush texture: soft for baby-fine and "tender" bleached hair, medium for average hair, and stiff for naturally curly hair. But every type of brush needs the same cleanliness care—a good rinsing and rinsing at shampoo time, and once between shampoos.

Know Your Facts In Choosing Bank

By MORTON YARMON

NEW YORK—(WNS)—Now that the nation's commercial banks have been authorized to pay as high as 4 per cent interest on savings accounts starting January 1, here are some considerations to keep in mind when choosing just where to put your extra money.

1. First thing to remember is that not all banks are the same. There are essential differences among commercial banks, mutual savings banks, and savings and loan associations. Commercial banks are private corporations owned by stockholders who elect the directors and who get the profits. They are located in downtown areas and in residential neighborhoods and in the suburbs as well. They are prepared to serve all banking needs, not just savings.

Mutual savings banks are located in 17 states, mainly along the East coast. They deal almost exclusively with savings. The word "mutual" in the title refers to the fact that they have no stockholders. They are conducted by self-perpetuating boards of trustees. Profits go to the depositors in increased interest rates or to surplus for greater security of the funds.

Savings and loan associations are known also as building and loan associations, savings and loan companies, savings associations or societies, cooperative banks and homestead associations. They also handle savings. But in addition they finance the purchase of homes, seeking to keep deposited funds invested in mortgage loans on buildings in the community.

In general the commercial banks have lagged behind the other two in paying interest on savings. The Government's action in authorizing the 4 per cent ceiling probably will tend to raise their interest rates. But keep in mind that this is a ceiling, and the individual bank may pay as much below that as it wishes.

2. Under no circumstances should you deposit money in a bank or association that is not a member of a Federal or state deposit insurance corporation.

3. If it is an emergency fund that you want to deposit, keep it in the bank closest to you so you can get to it with the least delay and difficulty. If you take advantage generally of the banking facilities of a commercial bank, it may be simplest for you to do your saving there as well.

4. If you will not need the funds immediately, look to the financial institution that gives you the best yield—so long as security is preserved—no matter where it is. After all, no part of the country is more than a few days' distance from any other in this day of fast air mail service.

5. In choosing and maintaining a savings account, it is wise to learn how your particular bank or association operates. Most banks today start tabulating interest from the day a deposit is made but credit it only if the money remains in the bank until the end of the interest period. Check this point, and act accordingly; that is, be sure not to withdraw your funds until after the interest period has passed.

Check to see whether the bank or association where you deposit your money pays interest annually, semiannually, once every three months or monthly. A little arithmetic will demonstrate that the more often the interest is compounded, the higher the effective rate you are getting.

'Slipper Bags'

When grandma was a young girl, she probably carried her Mary Jane pumps to dancing class in a drawstring slipper bag made of dainty silk.

The modern version is a handy tote in a selection of plastics, with either shoulder or hand strap. These, zip closed, can double as beach or baby bags, and can be wiped clean with a cloth dipped into thick soap or detergent suds.

With Farm Women

By MAIDRED MORRIS

Growing Broom Corn
In the early summer, Mrs. George W. Little, Lilesville, R. I., became interested in growing broom corn. Mrs. Ada Dalla Pozza says Mrs. Little was interested in making hearth brooms from the corn.

Recently, there was a workshop held in the county and nine women made brooms using the broom corn which Mrs. Little had grown.

Sweaters News
Sweaters are always in the news at this time of year. Clothing leaders in Davidson County have been stressing how to select and care for sweaters and other knitted outer garments at club meetings.

Mrs. Martha B. Thompson, home economics agent, says the leaders of some clubs washed and blocked a sweater to demonstrate good care.

Appealing Ways To Serve Apples
Due to a need for more fruit in the diets of families in Lenoir County, the Home Demonstration Club women have been planning ways of adding fruit to the menus.

Miss Marie Penuel, home economics agent, reports that women studied the value of apples and learned new ways of serving them. Some of the new products included apple roll, apple cheese crisp, frozen applesauce cream and apple pancakes.

Beautifying Home Grounds
Members of Home Demonstration Clubs in Pamlico County are not only raising money for their treasury but are beautifying their grounds at the same time.

Mrs. Gladys Roberts, home economics agent, reports many of the club members ordered their plants together so they would be assured of good quality plants.

Fabric Study Tour
Home Demonstration Club members in Buncombe County recently went on a fabric study tour of mills nearby. They studied woolen, cotton, and blended dressmaker fabrics.

According to Mrs. Mary Ray, home economics agent, most of the women were interested in various drapery fabrics, learning about finishes, colors and yardage requirements.

Safety In Use of Appliances
"Homemakers should make sure they have enough circuits for the electrical appliances they use," said Miss Ainslee Alexander, home economics agent in Caldwell County.

The women were urged to install more circuits as new appliances were added. They discussed a display board showing the proper size fuses to use with wiring in the home.

The top epergne was centered with a miniature Christmas tree flanked by white bells. Silvered greenery and balls wreathing a pyramid of Christmas snowballs centered the second table. The guests' places were marked by name cards.

Upon arrival, the guests were served hot spiced Christmas tea and hors d'oeuvres. The menu consisted of curried chicken, green and white mixed vegetable casserole, pink and green molded salad in lettuce cups, relish tray, hot buttered rolls. Dessert consisted of coconut cake.

The guests included Miss Fields, Mr. Gay, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Fields, Rev. and Mrs. Alonza Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith Jones, Mrs. Carson Fields, Miss Joyce Cox, all of Walstonburg; Mrs. Sam S. McKeel of Charlotte, and Mrs. Alice Speight and Mr. Louis Speight of Winterville.

Promises Probe Of Court Martial Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., says an investigation will be made of a recent court-martial at Ft. Jackson, S.C. Ervin said Thursday the Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee will probe the case of Pfc. Tommy Kitchens to determine whether "any pressure was exercised against Kitchens' military lawyer to make him give up one of his client's defenses."

The Constitutional Rights subcommittee, of which Ervin is chairman, is engaged in a study of military justice. The Military Appeals Court was told that shortly before the court-martial of Kitchens a letter was sent to most Ft. Jackson officers noting that no stiff penalties had been handed down in a court-martial in the past five months. The letter was signed by Lt. Col. Robert N. DuRant, assistant staff judge advocate. "The defense lawyer, 1st Lt. Kenneth H. Lambert, sought dismissal of the case on the ground DuRant's letter was an 'illegal command influence,'" members of the court-martial denied they were influenced by the letter and gave Kitchens a punitive discharge. Lambert filed an affidavit with the court saying that after the trials DuRant warned him he would be dealt with according to "unless he abandoned his defense based on charges of command influence."

Raleigh Man Goes Gunning And Kills Janitor, Self

RALEIGH (AP) — A Raleigh man, described as "out of his mind with jealousy," went gunning for his girl friend Thursday. Instead, he killed a janitor who got in his way and then took his own life when police arrived. Police said Sidney T. Currin Jr., 38, left the psychiatric ward at Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill and attempted to ambush Mrs. Frances White in her apartment. Mrs. White, who leveled an assault charge at Currin last week, called police early Thursday and told them a man was trying to hurt her. Officers said Ed Riddick, 50-year-old Negro janitor, had gone to Mrs. White's apartment at her request Thursday to install a chain lock on the back door. "Investigators said the Currin had been waiting in the apartment and killed Riddick with a 22 caliber rifle when he entered. Currin left this note: 'Poor Wade. He just happened to get here at the wrong time. I couldn't let him go. He died almost instantly. (It was meant for you, and there but for the grace of God went you)'. Officers said Currin and Mrs. White, a divorcee, had been dating, but Mrs. White called things off last week after the assault. They said Currin, who was out on bond as a result of the assault charge at the time of the shootings, had been taken to Memorial Hospital by a brother Monday. Detective Capt. Robert E. Goodwin said the janitor apparently had been shot at the front door and carried to a bed. Officers said they then went to Currin's apartment, some distance away from Mrs. White's to question him about the slaying. They received no answer when they ordered him to come out. After bashing in the door, they saw Currin holding a rifle. They closed the door and ordered him to come out. A rifle shot rang out moments later. Police then entered the apartment and found Currin lying on the floor with a bullet wound in his head. Award Contracts On Nike-Hercules WASHINGTON (AP) — Western Electric Co. has been awarded contracts by the Army amounting to $6,159,162 for work on the Nike Hercules missile. Part of the work will be performed at plants in Winston-Salem and Greensboro, N.C. The North Carolina plants will work on a $3,384,032 contract for the missile's guidance section and related horn wave guide. Work on technical publications and field service documents for the missile will be done at the Winston-Salem plant, and under sub-contract at the General Electric plant in Syracuse, N.Y., and the Douglas Aircraft plant in Santa Monica, Calif. Zero And Freezing Weather Over Most Of Eastern States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — Zero and freezing weather enveloped most of the eastern half of the nation today. Temperatures edged to near zero in parts of Kentucky and Tennessee. Freezing weather knifed to near the Gulf Coast and readings dropped into the 40s in extreme southern Florida.

Some relief from the biting cold in the Midwest was indicated but no immediate, general break in the late December cold spell appeared. Cloudy skies and snow flurries in the arctic air across the Midwest kept temperatures from hitting the far below zero marks reported Thursday mornings. However, they were near zero and a little below in many areas. The Weather Bureau reported the warming trend will spread across the central part of the country but forecast frost or freezing temperatures into southern Florida by tonight.

In the West, light snow or rain also fell in the northern and central Rockies and the northern plateau region where temperatures were near or slightly below freezing. Rain or drizzle sprinkled areas along the north Pacific Coast. Fog again was reported across central sections of California.

Hyde County's Ducks And Geese Saved Again

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Eastern North Carolina's ducks and geese, behind their ardent spokesman, Rep. Herbert Bonner, D-N.C., have driven off the U.S. Air Force for the second time in two months.

Thursday, Bonner, the state's First District representative, announced cancellation of Air Force plans to stage low-level flying exercises over Hyde County Jan. 1.

Last month, the Air Force, mainly through Bonner's intervention, postponed pending a House Armed Services Committee hearing a proposal to establish a bombing range in Hyde County.

The coastal county, site of Lake Mattamuskeet, is rich in migratory birds.

Bonner said that Dr. Joseph V. Charyk, under-secretary of the Air Force, told him that the Strategic Air Command practice missions would be delayed pending outcome of next month's hearing. Last week, the Air Force announced it would send big B-52 and B-47 jet bombers on a simulated bombing run into Virginia.

The planes would have descended to between 1,000 and 1,500 feet over the Engelhard area of Hyde County.

The planes involved in the original Air Force plans would have come from Nebraska.

Said Bonner, "It is an absurdity to send planes from Nebraska to this area when the Air Force has been talking about the large expense in sending planes from Seymour Johnson Air Base and South Carolina out to Nevada for practice bombing purposes."

The congressman added, "We strongly protest low-level flights by jet bombers over the Engelhard area. In view of the fact that the migratory bird season is not over until Jan. 8, low level flights over this area will run all the birds out Jan. 1.

Ex-Wife Slaps Marlon Brando After Hearing

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Emerging from a stormy child custody hearing, Anna Kashfi, 26, slapped her ex-husband, Marlon Brando, across the face Thursday.

Brando continued down the courthouse corridor without saying a word.

Miss Kashfi, trembling, told photographers: "Don't ever say I didn't give you a good picture." The blow, delivered with an open hand, was heard down the corridor and in full view of news photographers.

The incident followed Brando's testimony that he's "tired of playing the heavy" in the prolonged court squabble over their 3-year-old boy, Christian Devi.

The actor was seeking a court order to visit the boy three times, instead of twice, a week.

Brando, 36, was granted permission to have the boy visit him every third weekend in addition to the twice weekly visitations previously allowed.

Miss Kashfi, 26, and Brando were divorced in 1959.

Collision Claims Lives Of Two

SANFORD, N.C. (AP) — A two-car collision here Thursday night claimed the lives of two teenagers. A third was injured critically.

Killed were Josephine Boyley Cameron, 18, of Apex, and Marion Mack Parrish, 18, of Sanford. Melvin Eugene Cole, 16, of Rt. 1, Sanford, was reported in critical condition at a hospital here.

Sanford Police Sgt. J. M. Mason said investigation showed that a car driven by Cole swerved across the road and struck the car driven by Parrish.

Mason said the car driven by Cole, who was alone, was involved in an accident earlier in the night in which no one was hurt. The deaths pushed to 21 the number killed in Lee County this year. The previous high was 17 in 1956.

Service Station Attendant Slain By Holdup Man

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — An 18-year-old night service station attendant was shot to death here early today and robbed of $143.

Officers said Donald L. Burnette of Charlotte was found slumped behind the counter of the station on the heavily traveled Wilkinson Blvd., which carried U. S. 29.

Burnette had been shot through the head from ear to ear, apparently with a .25 caliber shell casing was found on the floor.

The body was found at 3:56 a.m. by two truck drivers, George O. House of Gainesville, Ga., and Earl T. Parker of Marietta, Ga.

The slaying occurred in a Kayo station. Early Thursday, a Kayo station on another side of town was robbed. A Kayo night attendant was robbed and slain here in 1959. Two young men were convicted and sentenced to life as a result.

Police said, 5th graf, NS26.

Gov't Changing Base For Living Cost Index

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government is changing the base period for its living cost index from 1947-49 to 1957-59. The change will become effective with the January index when made public in late February.

and goods and services of all kinds. In compiling an over-all living cost index various items are weighted in comparison to how much of the average family budget is devoted to any particular category. For example, food items make up about one third of the index values.

Similar changes in base periods have been ordered by the Budget Bureau for regularly kept statistics of wage rates, employment and foreign trade.

The idea is that a more recent comparative period makes the data more useful. Officials said users favor short-run rather than long-run comparisons.

About a decade ago the 1947-49 base was adopted to replace a 1937-39 base for the same reason.

Officials said the change is strictly a mathematical conversion and will not affect the method of collecting living cost figures or their meaning or accuracy in any way. Instead of stating present price levels in relation to 1947-49 prices the comparison will be stated in relation to 1957-59 price levels.

Living costs figures are collected monthly by a small army of parttime employees of the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics in communities in every state. The cover every type of usual consumer expenditure, including food, housing, clothing, transportation, medical and personal care, reading and recreation.

Castroites Fence Guantanamo Base With Cacti

WASHINGTON (AP) — First the iron curtain. Then the Berlin wall. Now comes the Cuban variety of cold war obstacles—a "cactus hedge."

The Navy told about it Thursday. A year ago, the Cuban government cleared a strip from 25 to 50 feet in width on its side of the fence around the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay.

Then to discourage any who might wish to steal across it, the Cubans set out cactus plants.

The plants have now grown. The Navy spokesman discussed the cactus in response to questions about a story by George Clifford of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers.

Wrote Clifford: "The wall is a 5-yard-wide hedge of bayonet grass—a cactus plant with long, sharp leaves that look like butcher knives and are almost as effective."

He quoted a U.S. Marine sentry on the fence line as saying: "I think it is more to keep Cubans from trying to climb the fence to freedom than to keep us in."

The alb is a long linen robe hanging down to the feet, and worn by officiating priests.

Another Year Of Crises Coming Up

International tensions that have kept the world on edge during the greater part of 1961 appear to have subsided slightly in recent weeks, but there is nothing to suggest that the coming year will not bring a new series of crises to plague the West.

Though the Berlin crisis, Moscow has succeeded in driving a wedge in the Western alliance, and has likewise succeeded in nibbling away at some of the rights which the Western powers asserted in Berlin at the beginning of the year. It would be unrealistic to assume that Khrushchev and his associates will not make every effort during the coming months to capitalize on the gains they have made at Berlin, however small they may appear.

Africa, which dominated much of the international attention in the past year, appears certain to be a point of trouble during the coming year. The Congo situation is far from stabilized and settled. In other parts of that same continent, other emerging nations are in unstable situations and are likely to become trouble spots that will involve the major powers of the world.

The move against remaining colonial holdings of nations of the West has been touched off by the Indian move against Portugal's holdings in India and seems certain to continue to be a source of controversy.

While moves have been made to strengthen the relationships between the United States and Latin America, communists are concentrating on that section of the globe as they never have before, seeking support for Castro-type moves which might give them new footholds in the Western Hemisphere.

All these things and more should be obvious even to the casual observer of international affairs. It is likewise evident that the United States in the coming year will have to stand ready to defend the interests of the free world in every corner of the globe. It will likewise have to provide the impetus for economic advancements in many countries of the world if the creeping tide of communism is to be effectively contained.

The people of the United States must prepare themselves to live with international crises and tensions during the coming year just as they have for most of the past decade if they and their allies are to win the continuing war of nerves.

Nehru Adds Fuel To Forces Of Aggression

Assertion by India's Prime Minister that the Indonesian government would be fully justified in making military moves against Dutch possessions there adds fuel to the new development that threatens world peace.

The assertion by Nehru likewise indicates that the Indian leader has changed sharply from his former position that the use of military force had no place in the settling of international affairs. In all fairness, it must be pointed out that Nehru likewise expressed the hope that the Indonesian-Dutch differences could be resolved by peaceful means. Yet he left no doubt that if negotiations did not bring about a satisfactory solution—so far as Indonesia is concerned—that military moves are justified.

This change in the Nehru attitude is to have broad influence particularly among the emerging nations of the world. Nehru has been looked to as a leader of the neutral bloc of nations and likewise has been viewed in many quarters as a stabilizing influence in world affairs. He has been outspoken in his opposition to military operations.

The fact that he has now given his approval to military aggression against holdings of foreign powers in various parts of the world is bound to alter the international picture. It will place greater stress upon the nations of the free world and sooner or later drive a wedge between some of the free world nations.

Nehru, who has used his influence for peace and avoiding conflict, now has put himself in the position of advocating armed strife under certain conditions. In our opinion, his change of attitude is a heavy blow to the total effort of peace being carried on in the world.

Figures Justify Repeating Event

By LYNN NISBET

TRADE FAIR — The report that the Trade Fair held in Charlotte last October yielded a financial profit of $96,000 in addition to the much greater intangible profits, would seem to justify recommendation by Governor Sanford that the event be repeated in the spring of 1963. Despite some resentment on part of State Agricultural Fair folks at fixing dates for the Trade Fair on the same traditional dates of the State fair, both events had unusually successful seasons. For an exposition such as the Trade Fair there are many reasons why a spring date is more suitable than the fall.

Next question to be answered is where the 1963 Trade Fair will be held. The Department of Conservation & Development, the sponsoring agency, has asked for cities desiring to have the fair to get their applications in by the middle of January. Charlotte wants it again, and it is understood that Asheville, Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Raleigh also will "bid" for it. Any of these communities probably could handle the fair, but it would strain their facilities.

With its downtown auditorium, Reynolds Coliseum at State College, the Dorton arena and other exhibit space at the State fair grounds Raleigh can offer as much space as Charlotte. But the buildings will be spread over a five mile area. Facilities at the other points are even less adequate.

Charlotte affords the best, perhaps the only acceptable, facility for such an exposition. The coliseum, the auditorium and the merchandise mart buildings are located on adjoining lots, adjacent to ample parking space, and in time of need they can be thrown together — like a hotel suite — for common use. If the exposition is held again in 1963 it is almost certain to be at Charlotte.

LEIUTENANT GOVERNOR — When Max Thomas has his preferred filing fee as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor refused by the State Board of Elections on the ground that the 1962 election was not open for that office, he announced he would appeal to the courts. Newsmen asked if he would represent himself, since he is a lawyer. "No," said Max. "I remember what the late Dr. Guiley often told his law students at Wake Forest. The lawyer who represents himself in court has a sorry advocate and a fool for a client."

Senator Thomas has announced a battery of lawyers to handle his case which proves, at least, they do not have a fool for a client. Irving Carlyle of Winston-Salem, Floyd Crouse of Sparta and Joe Branch of Enfield. All former legislators, all highly successful lawyers and all recognized leaders in Democratic party circles.

The question to be presented to the courts will be whether an election can be held next year to fill the vacancy in the office of Lieutenant Governor occasioned by the death of Cloyd Philpott. Attorney General Wade Bruton has ruled that the office must remain vacant until the regular election of a Lieutenant Governor in 1964. A number of good lawyers have challenged that interpretation of the constitution. The plan is to get a decision from the Supreme Court before time for filing notice of candidacy ends on March 16.

If the courts hold that the office is open for election there probably will be several other candidates. Burke Davis, the historian columnist for the Greensboro Daily News, has nominated Mrs. Grace Rodenbough, long time representative from Stokes county for the post. It is about time for a woman to get in the running for Governor or Lieutenant Governor.

NEW YEAR DIET — It has been the custom for many years for North Carolinians, and perhaps people of other states, to have black-eyed peas and hog jowl for dinner on New Year's Day. Those items in the diet are supposed to assure prosperity throughout the year. The custom is so widespread that some chain grocery stores and restaurants put up small packages of peas and jowl for "take out" sales.

Just when or where or why the practice originated is not known. Like many other of the old superstitions and fetiches this one must have a logical background. Perhaps every community has its own story of the origin of the belief that a jowl-and-pea dinner on the first day of the year meant good times. There are vague memories of childhood days along the border of Lancaster county, South Carolina, and Union county, North Carolina, when superstitions prevailed about the kind of weather on the 12 days of Christmas being prophetic of the weather for the next 12 months. Other signs and symbols also were cherished. So the idea prevailed that if a family had on New Year's day a solid and highly nourishing meal of black eyed peas and hog jowl it was an omen that solid nourishing food would be available throughout the year.

Why black-eyed peas instead of collards, and why hog jowl instead of ham? Maybe just because the fellow who started the custom didn't like collards. At any rate, it is suggested that arrangements be made for serving peas and jowl at dinner next Monday, which is New Year day.

Comparing Two First Years

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest difference in the first White House year of Presidents Kennedy and Eisenhower was in the kind of world they inherited.

Eisenhower's first year had more day-to-day headaches; Kennedy's a more frightening core of danger.

At home Eisenhower had to contend with Sen. Joseph McCarthy and overseas, with the Korean War. As a result of both the country was frustrated, torn apart, full of suspicion.

That whole year was a badly troubled one for the new President.

Kennedy, in his first year, has had comparatively a mild time of it at home. The extreme right-wingers were his only McCarthy-like problem. And so far they've been just a petty annoyance.

But overseas, while he had no Korean War to settle, he had to face a situation far more subtle and perilous than Eisenhower encountered.

When the latter became President in 1953 the United States, with its hydrogen bomb, was still the most powerful nation. The Russians made trouble but not enough to risk a war.

They didn't have their first hydrogen bomb nor missiles. But by the time Kennedy moved in this year, they not only had hydrogen bombs but the missiles to deliver them.

Thus the whole American-Russian relationship was different for Kennedy. War, death and annihilation now had an immediacy only imagined when Eisenhower took over the White House.

Eisenhower even got a temporary relief from Russian pressure — with Stalin's death in March, 1953 — when the Kremlin leaders became more concerned with themselves than with the American President.

It was the opposite for Kennedy, as a result of Stalin's death. By the time he took office Premier Khrushchev was the new, unchallenged, and extremely self-confident Russian boss.

There was another difference, too.

The old-fashioned Stalin, while he lived, relied more on muscle than he did on propaganda or persuasiveness. He pushed only where he thought he had a quick chance for gain, as in Korea and the Berlin blockade.

So the heat from communism was limited for Eisenhower. His real effort at the time aside from the fighting against the French in Indo-China, was concentrated in Korea.

The more imaginative Khrushchev, able to feel more confident than Stalin because of his bombs and missiles, is poking at Kennedy around the world with propaganda, trade, aid, militant local Communists.

Through all this both Kennedy and Eisenhower have exhibited one trait in common: A well-controlled restraint, a non-belligerency, in dealing with their adversaries at home and overseas.

Thus, instead of starting fires or adding to them through emotion, lack of self-discipline or immaturity, they have tried to keep the ones created for them under control.

Of the two men Kennedy seems more the master in his own house. The outstanding example is in the conduct of foreign affairs.

Kennedy does the important talking for his administration on foreign policy. His secretary of state, Dean Rusk, acts as his technician and adviser but says little.

Strength For Today

HOW TO WIN WARS

When the Nazis were overrunning Europe, a city in the Eastern Mediterranean came under their cruel domination and hostages were selected in case trouble arose. It did arise and orders went out for execution.

Suddenly the Greek Orthodox Metropolitan of the city appeared carrying a folded paper. He had a new list of hostages. All volunteers, and he asked the Nazi commander to free the hostages he had captured and substitute for them this list of volunteers. At the head of the list was the name of the Metropolitan himself.

This show of courage appeared to have taken the starch out of the despicable Nazi commander. He gave up the whole idea of hostages and thereafter administered the affairs under his jurisdiction with at least a little show of humanity. Courage and sacrifice make an impression even upon the most evil of people.

"You ought to be beheld," cried the miserable Count Quisling to a Bishop who stood against his betrayal of country. "Well," said the Bishop quietly, "here I am" — and, of course there was no beholding. But there might well have been, and neither the Greek Orthodox Metropolitan nor the Swedish Bishop had any assurance there would not be. They were simply courageous men who overwhelmed the cruelty and bluster of human monsters with a show of courage which these cruel pretenders would have loved very much to possess.

"Well, here I am," Tyrants win battles; men like the Metropolitan and the Bishop win wars — for they win them in the hearts of men and before the face of God.

The Year Of The Pearl

Others may even now be looking forward to the joys and blessings of 1962, whereas my satisfaction with 1961 remains unimpaired and has even added a titillating facet.

I found a pearl. Not everybody finds pearls. You could probably count on the fingers of one hand "the pearl-finders I have known".

It is their rarity... with the awareness of being among these rarities... that adds a glow. (Who relishes nonentity?)

True... it is a very small pearl; about the size of a pinhead. It is round, it is white, it is cooked. Hence, it is valueless.

Still, it is a pearl. How does one find these gems? Unless you are a pearl-diver, you may do it by eating oysters. Some people find eating oysters a difficult proposition. To me, this is the easiest part.

(Lo, I have eaten oysters for decades!)

Chewing the oyster is a matter of taste; but if your chief interest lies in finding pearls, you had best chew. There's no doubt in my mind but that many a pearl has blushed unseen in the stomach's depths because the eater thereof didn't like to chew oysters.

It is better if you enjoy eating the bivalve because while no pearl may be encountered you still come out ahead.

Finding a pearl at the dinner table is a far cry from climbing Matterhorn, swimming a channel, winning a decathlon, earning a citation, writing a novel or buying a mink coat for your girl friend.

It is not even like finding gold, oil or uranium... it is different from being given a million dollars, and bears no resemblance to an evening "on the house" at the Top of the Mark.

The simple act of removing what might have been a bit of oyster shell from your lips, and the sudden realization it is no mere crumb of shell but a pearl is a moment in life that is different from all others.

It is unlikely that oyster packers lose money when an occasional pearl finds its way to the dinner table.

Have you noticed the prices of late?

The year's end always brings out a rash of "top news stories of the year"; and while the results are obtained through polls, even the polls differ.

City Editor Alvin Taylor used a "scientific method" of determining Pitt's leading news stories of 1961 (which you'll see Saturday). Some of my selections were downgraded in the final outcome, but on seeing other polls I don't feel too badly.

The AP, for instance, rated the top 10 stories of the year as (1) man in space, (2) Berlin, (3) Hammarskjold's death, (4) Cuban Invasion, (5) Soviet nuclear tests, (6) JFK's inauguration, (7) Congo, (8) Hurricane Carla, (9) the Eichmann trial, (10) Rayburn's death.

The Publishers' Auxiliary listing shows a difference of opinion. For instance (1) man in space, (2) Berlin, (3) Cuban invasion, (4) Soviet nuclear tests, (5) Dag's death, (6) the Congo, (7) JFK's inauguration, (8) Mar- is home run record, (9) Integration efforts, (10) Eichmann trial and the Kennedy-Khrushchev talks in Vienna (tie).

So not everybody reads the news the same way.

Other Editors Saying... New Year's Cards, Too

(The Raleigh Times)

Everett Case, the head basketball coach at State College, sent out a real cute Christmas card. It showed Santa Claus bypassing Reynolds Coliseum with the remark "That's strange, the place is empty, and it used to be a regular stop. Oh Well, Merry Christmas wherever you are!" Inside, it showed a lone State College wolf sitting in the vacant Coliseum saying "Yeah, and a Ho-Ho-Ho."

The card didn't mention Dixie Classic anywhere. And no doubt Coach Case just intended it to be a funny way of saying Merry Christmas. Undoubtedly, the card didn't have any connection with the current campaign to turn heat on State College and Consolidated University officials to have the Dixie Classic reinstated.

Even though the card wasn't intended to fan the flames of the heat to have the famed holiday basketball tournament reinstated, it could well have that effect. And it could well help embarrass the educators who felt that they had to kill the Classic in the best interests of the college and the university.

Perhaps it wouldn't be inappropriate for President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University and Chancellor John T. Caldwell of State College to send out some New Year's greeting cards. On those cards, they could, in a spirit of New Year's fun, give some of the reasons why the Coliseum is empty this week instead of being filled with basketball players and basketball fans at the Dixie Classic.

They could note, for example, that during the early 1950's, the NCAA imposed a year-long prohibition on State College for try-outs of basketball players. They also could note that in 1956, the NCAA imposed a four-year probation on State College in a basketball recruiting case. If they wanted to do so, they could say that the four-year probation was the longest in NCAA history up to that time and that it applied not only to basketball but to all other sports at N. C. State as part of the punishment. They could note that because of the punishment imposed in the basketball case, the football team couldn't go to the Orange Bowl when it won the Atlantic Coast Conference championship.

If President Friday and Chancellor Caldwell also wanted to include it on a New Year's card, they could remind the people that some State College basketball players were involved in the point-shaving scandals earlier in 1961, and that the death of the Dixie Classic followed shortly after those scandals became public.

And if they wanted to, they could note that Carolina had had a lesser amount of basketball troubles.

The educators are the ones who had to bear the burdens brought to the college by the basketball troubles. They are the ones who are now being subjected to pressure to have the Dixie Classic reinstated. They aren't saying anything, though there are some who think they should speak up.

If they should decide to speak up in the form of a New Year's greeting card, they could find plenty to say about why the Coliseum is as vacant as this Christmas holiday season as Coach Case's Christmas card showed it to be.

Goldberg's Amazing Arbitration

By ELMER ROESSNER

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg's arbitration of the Metropolitan Opera musicians' pay dispute is so amazing that it is difficult to decide which leg of the chair he should be beaten with. In fact, he seems to be in so many places at once that it might be difficult to hit him at all. But let's try a few wild swings:

1. The Secretary said he had not shown his statement to the President. This is indeed curious. If the country is to have ten cabinetiers, a Vice President, a press secretary and a President all uttering policy on their own, the country is heading toward madness.

2. Goldberg awarded a minimum weekly wage of $180 for the current season, $185 for the 1962-63 season, and $190 for the 1963-64 season. This escalation, even if not cleared with the President, indicates the Administration is committed to a continuation of the spiral of inflation through the rest of the Kennedy term. Furthermore, since Goldberg is Secretary of Labor, it appears to be a blessing for a 2 1/2 per cent annual increase in wage rates, despite some flannel-mouth talk by his boss about limiting wage increase to the increase in productivity.

EXPERIMENT IN GYMNAS-TICS

How can the Met Musicians increase productivity? By playing each opera 2 1/2 per cent faster each year? Or by playing 2 1/2 per cent louder?

3. Goldberg advocated subsidization of the opera and other performing arts as a means of keeping the musicians and others employed. The reason the Met and other performing presentations are in trouble is largely that unionized wages and salaries have risen steadily. In asking the government and public to subsidize union scales.

4. Goldberg, conceding that government subsidy alone might lead to political interference, proposed that subsidies come from six sources: the public, patrons and benefactors, private corporations, labor, local government and the Federal government.

6 MASTERS BETTER THAN ONE?

If government subsidy would lead to government interference, would not six kinds of subsidy lead to six kinds of interference? Would not pressures from all six subsidizers eliminate all opera and other performances that presented new and different views? Would not the opera be limited to the safe, old favorites, with alterations to make sure that Carmen worked in a unionized shop and that Pagliaccio, although a private enterpriser, always paid tribute to the union, just as many American independent barbers do?

Secretary Goldberg must know that the arts have been subsidized for centuries, and that the subsidizers always insisted on getting something out of it.

The arts are subsidized in many countries today, notably in Russia. And in all of them, the subsidized artist paints, sings,

Nation Needs An Ego

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961 Wing Features Syndicate, Inc.

Mrs. H. C. Brote of Covington, Louisiana, desires an inflated ego and has the courage to write to an editor to ask for one. It is a very good idea. No tonic does better than an inflated ego. I am I. That is terrific.

However, don't get me wrong. Mrs. Brote does not wish an inflated ego for herself. She wants it for the United States. She just cannot feel feeling that an American is as good as a Congolese or Katangese or an Indochinese or even a Russian. She desires racial superiority and is sure that no Uzbek is superior to an American. Stalin was a Georgian and Khrushchev is an Ukrainian (Ukrainians are requested not to write denying the Landsmannschaft as my files are full of such letters). But we, to go back to where this sentence started, are Americans and if anyone dares to say that we are not the Chosen People, ahead of all else, we shall punch them square on the nose. Mrs. Brote wrote:

"We hear a great deal about Russian superiority because the Russians plan it that way. We are rightfully impressed by the fact that chess is their national pastime. To play chess, after a fashion, does not require any more intelligence than bridge, baseball or football. We know that the Russians constantly fall in the realm of agriculture. Our farmers are more impressive than their chess players. I have watched their run of the mill doctors are comparable to our hospital orderlies and their engineers build roads that sink into the jungle while ours succeed."

I know nothing about the value of chess in establishing the superiority of a man. It is an old game that originated in India and my only interest is in chessmen made of ivory or jade that fetch quite a price in my flea market. I do not go in for games, indoor or outdoor, having long ago discovered that all forms of physical effort are not beneficial for either the mind or the body. Myself I prefer sitting exercises and use my eyes and ears most frequently.

As for whether playing chess requires less or greater intelligence than playing bridge, football or baseball, I must leave that to Mrs. Brote. I have never played bridge, but have watched others play it and it seems to me to be a stimulant for divorce. As for baseball and football, only now, in my ancient years, do I go to such frivolities, my Democratic friend, Jim Farley, taking me to sit with him, the value of my presence being that some Democrats might believe that if James Aloysius Farley were nominated to run for Governor of New York State against Nelson Rockefeller, some Republicans might vote for him — which is not to be sneezed at.

If any Americans base their superiority upon the popularity of bridge over chess, it might be called to their attention that it was a White Russian, Ely Culbertson, who earned a living telling Americans how to play the game. Culbertson never lost his Russian accent, but his father was originally an American engineer in Russia.

Mrs. Brote knows that the Russians always fail in agriculture which is much more than I know, for way back in the time of the Caesars in Rome, Russia was the bread-basket of Europe and the reason that the Latins go in for so much bread and pasta is that they found so much wheat in Russia.

The misery of misinformation is that language mixes us all up. Russian medical terms come from the German and a Russian doctor may be called by all sorts of names; nevertheless, Mrs. Brote forgets that Russia existed before Lenin was born and Metchnikoff lived before the Smolny Institute ceased being a girls' academy and became the citadel of Marxism. It is wrong to believe that the other fellows know nothing at all when the fact is that he has more than 1,000 years of valid history. One does not have to like the Russian to tell the truth about him. In fact, Maxim Gorki, who loved Russia, told some horrible tales about the Russians.

Toward Christian Maturity

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Corinthians 13; Ephesians 4:11-24.

In his first letter to the Corinthians, Paul avows that everything is useless without love. Prophetic powers, knowledge, zeal, even faith and benevolence are meaningless without love.—I Corinthians 13:1-3.

Defining true Christian love, Paul says, "Love suffereth long, and is kind. Love envieth not; love vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up. . . is not provoked, taketh not account of evil."—I Corinthians 13:4-5.

Writing to the Ephesians, Paul continues, speaking of those who allow their hearts to become hardened through disguise. Ignorant and past feeling, they give themselves up to lasciviousness.—Ephesians 4:17-19.

Put away your old way of life, urges Paul, and "be renewed in the spirit of your mind, and put on the new man," modeled after God.—Ephesians 4:22-24.

GOLDEN TEXT: Hebrews 6:1.

Toward Christian Maturity

THE DIVINE AND HUMAN FACTORS INVOLVED IN BUILDING UP THE REAL CHURCH OF CHRIST

Scripture—I Corinthians 13; Ephesians 4:11-24.

By N. SPEER JONES

TODAY'S lesson is the culminating chapter in the topic of the year's final quarter, "Christian Growth." As such, it is fitting that it should center on the main theme of Christianity itself—love.

The chapter from Paul's first letter to the Corinthians is famous as a hymn to Christian love. It is often quoted in marriage ceremonies. In it, Paul, moved by the Holy Spirit, achieves one of the most exalted moments in all literature.

In this chapter he outlines the need for love (verses 1-3), its qualities (verses 4-7), its permanence (verses 8-12) and its preeminence (verse 13).

The love of which Paul speaks is not possible for an ordinary human being; man's natural instinct is self-love, not love for others. The kind of all-to a greater conception of such love by a deliberate attempt to perform a single kindly act. Only as these single acts are built upon and enlarged by an open spirit, however, can one grow toward the maturity of a true Christian love.

Another aspect of this love is that where it grows, there is no room for evil. Paradoxically, the surest way to overcome evil is not to focus on it, but on its counterpart—good—which will then crowd the evil out.

Verse 12 holds forth the promise of true knowledge and understanding ("then shall I know fully"), possible only through love.

Just as Paul's hymn of love in Corinthians is justly famous, so his letter to the Ephesians has been called by some the loftiest single writing of the absorbing love Paul extolls is possible only in a person reborn in Christ.

The vital importance of such love is pointed up when Paul avers that even such acknowledged virtues as Christian zeal, knowledge, understanding, faith and benevolence are useless without it.

"Love . . . is kind," says Paul. How meaningless it is, as Wilbur Smith points out ("Peloubet's Select Notes," p. 434), for a husband or wife to profess his or her love for the other, but persist in treating the partner unkindly.

Yet it never works for the unkind person simply to tell himself he must be kind; he must be moved by the total warmth of a love of God and all His manifestations—His children here on earth.

On the other hand, it is surprising how the soul is opened. Based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission. Distributed by King Features Syndicate

New Testament. Its message is more practical: it pertains to our individual roles in building up the church as the body of Christ. Each must perform his own part, according to his God-given abilities, for Christ's influence here on earth to be felt as it should be.

John Eadie points out ("Peloubet's," p. 438), "Some men have just enough of Christian intelligence to unsettle them" and "go the round of all sects . . . and never receive satisfaction." Or they veer between extreme rationalism and extreme mysticism. This is the mark of the child, the immature Christian.

A steadfast devotion to the unvarnished teachings of Christ will help to steady the course of such beings, transforming them into mature Christians with the power of love.

REV. JOE ANGE, pastor of Central Free Will Baptist Church of Detroit, Mich., will be the evangelist in a two-week revival at Grace Free Will Baptist Church beginning on New Year's night at 7:45. The public is invited to attend.

TEMPERATURES hit the winter's low last night, dipping to 22 degrees in Greenville as reported by the Greenville Utilities Plant. As of 8 o'clock this morning, the temperature was 22 degrees. For Thursday, the low was 27 and the high reached 52 degrees. Joe Stoneham of the utilities plant stated that even colder temperatures may occur tonight, with five to 15 in the mountains, 10 to 18 in the Piedmont and no higher than low 20s along coastal regions. Today was to be fair and quite cold. Saturday may bring a slightly warmer afternoon. The Tar River level today was 4.5 ft., falling since yesterday. Rain as of midnight was .04 of an inch.

REED SPRING, Mo. (AP)—A Chamber of Commerce president has asked the Post Office to inaugurate a Pony Express service, and he isn't fooling. Darrell Pressnell, president of the heart of the Table Rock Lake Chamber of Commerce, sent the telegram to the postmaster general Thursday. He said mail is delivered to householders in boxes along the highway. But sometimes the homes are as much as six miles from the highway and on the other side of some rugged hill country. For some, he said, it means a 12-mile round trip to get their mail. A Pony Express could take it to their doors, a service he believes the residents are entitled to.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Army successfully fired a Pershing artillery missile 200 miles Thursday night and gathered data on how to protect launching crews from heat and blast effects. Surrounding the launching area were foxholes and sand-bagged barricades. These shielded sensitive instruments which measured heat and lift-off characteristics. The information will help determine safety requirements for the troops who will man Pershing missiles in the field.

(Continued from page four) he let his secretary, John Foster Dulles, do such belligerent and flamboyant talking that the administration seemed to have two voices. For Eisenhower his first year turned out to be just a comparatively mild forerunner of much worse to come in the years ahead. Kennedy probably has no illusions it will be any different for him.

HEARTHES FOR SALE

BY PEGGY GADDIS

CHAPTER 17
"I so hoped," Miss Cora said wearily, "that when Oakland was sold and they received some money above the mortgage, Mimi and Holly would find an apartment and move out. They never stop telling me how run down and shabby this place is, and Holly won't even allow that Mr. Whitfield to are going shopping, and Mimi said that it would be impossible for them to get back with all their purchases on the train. So Holly called Mr. Whitfield and asked for the loan of his car," Miss Cora told her. "And he offered to drive them himself. I thought it was very kind of him, since he is so busy getting Oakland ready to live in. They won't be back until Friday or Saturday."

So that, Leg told herself, was Martin's method of keeping Holly from driving his car!
"That's what I wanted to talk to you about, Lee dear," said Miss Cora eagerly, leaning forward her hands locked tightly in her lap. "When I suggested to Mimi that now she and Holly could have a place of their own, she just laughed at me and said, 'Don't be a fool, Cora. Every penny of that money is going to be invested in Holly, to help her make a really good marriage. It's very little of course. But it will buy her some good-looking clothes, and we'll be able to entertain a little, and who knows? That money could pay tremendous dividends!'" Lee nodded, visualizing the scene. Miss Cora went anxiously on:
"Of course I knew what Mimi meant. She thinks Holly can marry Mr. Whitfield," she said. "What do you think, Lee? Can she?"
Lee gasped, her eyes wide.
"Oh, my goodness, Miss Cora, how would I know a thing like that?" she temporized.
"If you tell me you think he is interested in her, that she has a chance of getting him to marry her, then I can manage a while longer until that happens," Miss Cora said shakily. "But if she can't, if you don't think he wants to marry her, then I must put my place up for sale and go somewhere else to live, perhaps to a nursing home. I can't put up with much more of what I've been through since they moved in here."
"Miss Cora, darling," there were tears in Lee's eyes, "why don't you just tell them they must make some other arrangements?"
"Where would they go, unless she can marry Mr. Whitfield and go back to Oakland?" Miss Cora asked with a pathetic attempt at logic. "Although she hates Oakland so much that she hopes, once he has fallen in love with her, she can persuade him to go away."
"She never could, Miss Cora! He's mad about Oakland and full of plans for its development."
Miss Cora said drily, "Holly's pretty hard to resist when she makes up her mind. She's a very determined girl."
"And Mr. Whitfield is a very determined man," Lee pointed out.
Miss Cora asked anxiously, "You don't think he is in love with her?"
"I'm afraid I can't answer that, Miss Cora."
"This is very confidential, just between the two of us, Lee. I give you my solemn word of honor that I shall never breathe a word of anything you may tell me," Miss Cora pleaded earnestly. "I've known you since you were a baby. Your mother was one of my dearest friends. You know you can trust me, Lee. Do I have any hope of ever being allowed to live in peace again?"
There was such ragged, heart-sick pleading in her voice that Lee knelt beside her impulsively and held the frail, trembling old body close.
"Miss Cora, you must tell them, when they get back from Atlanta, that you are no longer able to feed and house them, and that with the money they must have to make some other arrangements, and fast!" she urged insistently.
Miss Cora shook her head.
"I couldn't do that, Lee. I have a family obligation to them. And anyway, when they get back from Atlanta, they won't have enough money left to pay a month's rent on even a small apartment, she said huskily. "I know them so well. Their extravagance drove my poor brother to his death, and the whole town knows it."
She drew a deep hard breath and managed what was an attempt at a smile.
"No, Lee dear, my only hope of relief from this situation is for Holly to find a man who will marry her," she said huskily. "She said she was trying very hard to get Kermit Dalton until Mr. Whitfield came along. He is very rich, and she says he's quite attractive and that she could easily learn to love him."
Lee stood up and went back to her chair, her eyes flashing.
"I must say that's big of her," Miss Cora's eagerness was deeply touching. "What do you think, dear? Can he?"
Lee picked up her tea and stirred it.
"Miss Cora, darling," she said, "you surely must know that's a question I can't possibly answer."

"But you know Mr. Whitfield," Miss Cora insisted, and a shadow of fear brushed her thin, tired face. "Are you in love with him, Lee?"
Lee caught her breath and her eyes flew wide.
"Good heavens, Miss Cora, of course not!" she gasped.
"Of course dear. I know you and Kermit have been engaged for years." Miss Cora was abashed. "It's just that Mr. Whitfield, from what Holly and Mimi tell me, is an enormously attractive man and enormously rich. Of course I know that his being wealthy wouldn't mean nearly as much to you as it does to Holly. It's just that—well, you and Holly seem to be the only local girls he has dated, so I thought maybe his choice might lie between you two. I mean he must plan to marry or he wouldn't want that big old house at Oakland."
She was silent so long that Miss Cora's anxiety increased until she was almost babbling.
"It's just that I've always loved this little place, Lee, and I've been so happy here. My garden was such a wonderful joy and it was so peaceful just to have a few friends in for tea; or to sit and read if I wanted to; to bake cakes and cookies for the church bazaar and see my friends there on Sunday. And now it's all changed. I feel crowded and smothered! And Holly and Mimi keep telling me how uncomforable they are, as if I could somehow manage to add some more rooms to the house!"
Lee leaned forward and covered the shaking, work-worn old hands with her own strong, firm ones, and knew that she must tell Cora about Hilda.
"Miss Cora, honey, I believe that Mr. Whitfield is engaged to a girl in New York and that it is for her he is restoring Oakland." She delivered the bitter blow without the faintest attempt to soften it.
"Lee has a forceful solution to Miss Cora's problems. Should she meddle? Continue the story to a climax here tomorrow."

First Lady May Postpone Trip

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The illness of her father-in-law may cause Mrs. John F. Kennedy to postpone her January trip to India and Pakistan, the White House says.
Pierre Salinger, press secretary, said the President and the First Lady are to make a decision on her journey within the next few days.
Salinger sidestepped questions as to whether India's invasion of Portuguese Goa might be a factor in the decision, saying, "I'm not commenting."
He said, however, that the health of the President's father, Joseph P. Kennedy, 73, will definitely be a factor.
The elder Kennedy suffered a stroke Dec. 19 and then contracted a mild case of pneumonia.
Mrs. Kennedy, who has had a close relationship with her father-in-law, has kept vigil with other members of the family at his bedside in St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach.
It is believed she would not want to go abroad while Joseph Kennedy remained in serious condition.
Mrs. Kennedy planned to go to India and Pakistan sometime in January. No itinerary or specific plans had been announced, beyond a date to attend India's Republic Day celebration in New Delhi Jan. 26.
Originally, she scheduled the trip for November, but it was postponed until January to permit a more leisurely tour of the two countries.
In India, Mrs. Kennedy was to be the guest of Prime Minister Nehru. In Pakistan, she was to be entertained by President Ayub Khan, who invited the First Lady during his visit to Washington last summer.

Thanks Included A Rubber Check

PAWNEE ROCK, Kan. (AP)—Bill Levinston found a woman's purse containing a $9 check, $4 in cash, keys and a Great Bend, Kan. address.
He drove the 13 miles to Great Bend twice before he learned the woman had moved to Arkansas City, Kan.
Levinston mailed the purse, but got no acknowledgement. So he finally wrote and asked if she received it.
She wrote back, thanking him profusely, and enclosed a 04 check.
The check bounced.

Believes Life On Other Planets

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A Harvard biologist said Thursday life may exist on millions of planets and in some places life may be more advanced than on earth.
Dr. George Wald, 55, told a group of high school students at the University of Pittsburgh: "Life probably exists now in many places of the universe. And it is difficult to avoid the conclusion that in many places they have advanced far beyond where we have advanced here on earth."

Kennedy Invites Ailing King Saud

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy has extended an invitation to ailing King Saud of Saudi Arabia to come to Washington for a visit when he gets well.
Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, confirmed Thursday night that Kennedy had sent a letter of invitation to the king, who is now in a Boston hospital.
Salinger said no specific date was mentioned for the visit.

New Year's Party Costs Run Higher In New York City

By FRANCES STILLEY
NEW YORK (AP)—The high cost of hilarity will run even higher in many places this New Year's Eve. And for celebrators in several states there will be some headaches even before the day after.
Blue laws forbid liquor sales in parts of the nation—creating many a dry oasis on New Year's Eve, Sunday night.
In some of these places, restaurants and nightclubs will serve dinner Sunday night and then begin serving drinks at 12:01 a.m. Monday. Others figure it isn't worth the trouble.
As a result, there is expected to be a tremendous exodus from dry states and cities into bordering areas where the holiday spirits still gurge freely. In a few instances the big blowouts have been changed from Sunday to Saturday night.
States in which Blue Laws apply in full or in part include Washington, Maine, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Nebraska, Minnesota, Michigan and Missouri.
But as the nation welcomes the New Year there will be observances of many types, depending on the pocketbook or persuasion of the participants.
Thousands of churches across the country will throw open their doors for traditional and ever-popular watch night services. And in a world torn by strife and misunderstanding.
Millions of families will spend New Year's Eve at their hearthside. Others will join friends for private parties in homes, clubs and hotels.
New Year's Day will bring other activities, such as football games and other sports events.
One unusual activity will take place at Cherryville, N.C., where a 150-year-old German custom of "crying-in" the New Year begins at midnight.

Two separate groups will call at every home in the town of $400. At each, a crier sings out a chant of several verses beginning:
"Good morning to you, sir. We wish you a happy New Year. Good health, long life..."
Then some 30 persons in each group will fire a volley with ancient muskets.
The custom was brought to Gaston County, N.C., by early German settlers.
At Colorado Springs, Colo., the AdAman club will make its annual climb to the top of Pike's Peak.
New Year's Eve party prices will range up to around $35 per person in the better-known nightclubs and restaurants in the country's major cities. This usually includes dinner, noise makers, funny hats and confetti, but not the drinks.
Thus a fellow and his wife or girl friend had better be chaperoned by a $100 bill, or the equivalent thereof, and probably more. The drinks aren't cheap in such spots.
Even so, there has been a tremendous demand for reservations.
The famed Latin Quarter at Times Square, with a $25 per person top tab and a capacity of 600, has been sold out since mid-November.
One of New York's most famous celebrations takes place in Times Square.
Formerly an estimated million or so gathered there to yell, cheer and get toes crushed and ribs bruised as the New Year arrived. Crowds have been dropping off during the past 10 years, and last year the figure was put at about 350,000.
But doubtless as long as there is a Times Square, there'll be a crowd on hand to set up a mighty roar as an illuminated ball drops down a pole atop the Times Tower at midnight.

Revolt Chances Remote Despite Reds' Troubles
By JOHN RODERICK
TOKYO (AP)—Hunger and hard times plague Red China's tolling millions. Yet the prospect of a revolt on the mainland seems remote.
The reasons for this are many and varied.
One of them is Mao Tze-Tung's tight political control over his 670 million people. Taking no chances he recently increased the authority of commissars at the company level in the Red Army. He made them directly responsible to him and the Communist party.
Another is that he is a peasant's son and knows how far and how fast he can push the peasants who form the country's backbone. Next year all industry will be working for them, turning out the tools, fertilizer, tractors and home utensils they need to recover the millions lost in three disastrous harvests. Because hungry men cannot do back-breaking service in the rice paddies, they will get extra food rations.
These are the physical reasons why rebellion seems unlikely on the China mainland. There are other, more obscure reasons, including pride, fear and hatred.
The Chinese, heirs to one of the world's oldest and richest civilizations, stood powerlessly by for a century while colonial nations took out much of the wealth.
The Communists set about repairing the national character soon after they took over in 1949. A sense of pride in at last achieving independence, unity and nationhood must color the thinking of many Chinese today.
Mao has added the powerful adrenalin of fear of a return to the old colonial days and hatred of United States "imperialism," which, he says, wants to enslave the Chinese.
Do the Chinese believe this hate propaganda about a country that for years they regarded with affection? Do old attitudes change?
A visitor to the mainland testifies that they do. He says: "I should think that all the propaganda about the United States is believed. After all, it has been repeated now for 12 years from every train, shop, school, theater and over every radio program, in every newspaper. The masses, at the same time, are denied access to outside information."
Though Mao has absorbed Western technical and economic methods, he has almost blindly rejected all Western thought. Mao keeps his people in check.
How long can he continue to do so?
"As long as men can remember the past, he will have considerable success," said one student of Chinese affairs. "But once the revolution has aged, as it has in Russia, and permanence has brought about a sense of security, the inquisitive Chinese will demand more windows to the outside world, more freedom for themselves."

Arab League Threatens To Pull Out Troops In Kuwait
CAIRO (AP)—The Arab League Britain "does not have any territories in this area which allow her to order her troops to head to the Mideast and protect these territories."
Nofal contended that "the responsibility of the Arab states and the presence of the Arab security forces in Kuwait is an expression of the league membership's solidarity with Kuwait and their obligation to defend its independence."
"It may all have been a false alarm," one British official in London conceded. "But governments like fire brigades, find it better to be safe than sorry." The defense ministry ordered the alert on the basis of intelligence reports from the Middle East.
The British alert was prompted by urgent reports from intelligence agents and diplomats over the Christmas holiday that Kassem—emboldened by the U.N. threats on Kuwait—had caused a failure to act against India's invasion of Goa—might soon try to make good his claim to Kuwait.
Slavery was abolished in Trinidad in 1834.

Pirates Downed By Elon 84-61

By GEORGE BRYANT
Reflector Sports Editor

CAMP LEJEUNE—East Carolina's basketball Pirates dropped out of the running last night when they fell victims to a powerful Elon five that downed them 84-61.

The Bucs started out strong and led the Christians for about the first eight minutes of the contest with their biggest margin being four points. Elon pulled ahead with 12 minutes left in the first quarter with a score of 16-15.

Close Battle

The battle then turned into a close one with the Bucs one or two points behind until the last four minutes of the half when Elon pulled ahead and East Carolina was unable to score. With three minutes left on the clock the score was 35-29 in favor of the Christians. Elon scored seven points and East Carolina six before the horn sounded ending the half with Elon ahead 42-35.

As the second stanza got underway East Carolina controlled the tap, but to no avail as they were unable to score. However, before the clock had ticked off three minutes the Bucs appeared to be coming back as they closed the margin on Elon.

Bucs Pull Ahead

With 17 minutes left in the half the score was 42-40 in favor of Elon. A field goal and a free throw by the Bucs pushed them ahead by one point giving them the lead for the first time since the early minutes of the contest. However, the Pirates were unable to hold on to the lead and Elon moved out front again and stayed.

East Carolina went for about six minutes without scoring a field goal, while the Christians dropped the ball in consistently to increase their lead to 64-48 before the Pirates could score.

Time Rugs Out

With two minutes left in the contest the score was 75-56 and this was not enough time for East Carolina to get back in the running.

The two boys who helped the winners the most last night were Ronald Miller and David Winfrey. Both could hit from about 20 feet out and they did this consistently. This is what really hurt the Pirates.

Winfrey, a 5-foot 11-inch junior from Corbin, Ky., was the high scorer in the game with 21 points. He had nine field goals and three free goals. The second high scorer for the Christians was Dewey Andrew, a 6-foot 6-inch junior from Snow Camp.

Other Elon players who hit in the double figures were Jesse Branson, Gary Teague, and Miller.

EC High Scorers

The high scorers of the night for East Carolina were Bill Otte, Charlie Lewis and Richie Williams. All three had eleven points each. The only other Buc player to hit in the double figures was Lucy West with 10 points.

The shooting percentage for the Pirates was below that of Wednesday night when they downed Camp Lejeune 100-75 for about 45 per cent.

In other games Thursday Camp Lejeune downed Georgia Southern 85-72, the University of Baltimore topped Central Connecticut and Pikeville defeated Bethel 92-74.

Elon Meets Pikeville

Tonight Pikeville and Elon will meet at 9 o'clock for the tournament championship. East Carolina will play Bethel for the third and fourth spots. Camp Lejeune will take on the University of Baltimore for fifth and sixth and Georgia Southern and Central Connecticut will tangle for seventh and eighth place.

Annual Bowl Hoopla Begins Tonight And Ends Monday

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The annual post-season college football hoopla resumes tonight with the Tangerine Bowl, picks up momentum Saturday in a card featuring the Gator Bowl and East-West games and will be climaxed on New Year's Day with the big four — The Rose, Cotton, Sugar and Orange Bowls.

The Tangerine Bowl in Orlando, Fla., will pit Middle Tennessee (7-3) of the Ohio Valley Conference against Lamar Tech (7-2-1) of the Lone Star Conference.

The Gator Bowl, sending Georgia Tech (7-3) against Penn State (7-3) at Jacksonville, Fla., headlines Saturday's games. Also on tap are the East-West Shrine game in San Francisco, the Blue-Gray contest in Montgomery, Ala., and the Sun Bowl, in El Paso, Texas pitting Wichita (8-2) against Villanova (7-2).

Minnesota (7-2) will take on UCLA (7-3) in the Rose Bowl. The Cotton Bowl will present Mississippi (9-1) against Texas (9-1).

The Sugar Bowl will have Alabama (10-0) and Arkansas (8-2) while the Orange Bowl will send Louisiana State (9-1) against Colorado (9-1).

The Gator Bowl lists Georgia Tech as a 3-point favorite, the Engineers are a defense-minded outfit and their big problem will be stop Penn State's Galen Hall.

Nittany Lions' Coach Rip Engle hinted that Hall would be doing a lot of throwing against the Engineers. Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Dodd admitted that he was mighty impressed with Hall.

"He can beat you in a number of ways," he observed. "I would rate him as the same type as Alabama's Pat Trammel."

The game will be televised by CBS starting at 2:15 p.m., EST, and is expected to draw a crowd of about 50,000.

The East, featuring All America backs Ernie Davis of Syracuse and Bob Ferguson of Ohio State, is the favorite in the Shrine Game.

But the West line outweighs the East by about 20 pounds per man. "I'm afraid," moaned East Coach Joe Kuharich of Notre Dame, "that instead of holes to plow through, we're liable to find nothing but crevices we'll have to try to crawl through."

A capacity crowd of 60,000 is expected to be on hand for the opening kickoff at 5 p.m., EST. NBC will televise the game.

The North is the favorite to chalk up its fourth victory in a row in the Blue-Gray game, but the weather will be a factor. A cold wave hit Montgomery Thursday night and that could cause even more trouble for the South, which is banking on speed and maneuverability, along with the passing of Bobby Hunt of Auburn and Don Puel of Mississippi Southern.

A frozen field would be a big advantage to the North, which outweighs the South in both the line and backfield. Dave Sarette of Syracuse will handle the North's passing.

The game will be televised by NBC, starting at 1:45 p.m., EST. Wichita is the slight choice over Villanova in the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Tex., mainly because of its wide-open, razzie-dazzle pro-style game. Quarterbacks Alex Zyskowski and Bill Stagnaronne, both 19-year-old Juniors, are the big offensive threats of the Shockers, and Missouri Valley champions.

Villanova is primarily a defense outfit that held the opposition to 71.1 yards per game during the regular season. Halfback Larry Clueck and quarterbacks Richie Richman and Ted Aceto are the Wildcat offense leaders.

The game will be televised by ABC starting at 4 p.m., EST.

Phantoms To Meet Wilson Here Tonight

The Rose High School cagers will play their fourth non-conference game of the season tonight when they meet the Wilson Cyclones here at 8 o'clock.

A junior varsity game will be played at 6:30 prior to the varsity contest. This is the second time the two schools have met this season.

At the last meeting in Wilson, the Cyclones won both games. They downed the junior varsity 33-32 and the varsity by a score of 65-60.

The highest scorer for the Phantoms so far is Rodney Knowles, a 6-foot 7-inch sophomore, who has played in only two of the three games for a 23 point average. The only other Phantom to hit in the double figures is Krohlie Andersen with an 11.6 average for the three games.

Other averages are Jack Foley with nine, Billy James with 4.6

for two games and Kenneth Allen with 5.6 for all three games.

In the last game with Wilson the high scorer for the Phantoms was Knowles with 17 points. He was followed by Andersen with 15 points. Topping the scoring column for the Cyclones in the last contest was Edwards with 15 points. Next was Titchener with 14 points.

Tonight's game is the last non-conference contest for the Phantoms before the conference schedule begins. Their first conference game will be a home contest with Tarboro on Jan. 2.

Six Tournament Champs Will Be Decided Tonight

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Six major tournament champions will be crowned tonight, the forerunners of a solid score of kings who will have survived college basketball's 1961 edition of holiday madness by late Saturday night.

It's Temple vs. Miami (Fla.) in the Hurricane classic at Miami; Houston vs. Bowling Green in the All-College at Oklahoma City; Florida vs. Virginia Tech in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.; Texas Western vs. New Mexico in the Sun Carnival at El Paso, Tex.; Santa Clara vs. St. Mary's (Calif.) in the West Coast Athletic Conference tourney at San Francisco; and The Citadel from the Southern Conference vs. little Westminster (Pa.) in the Canton, Ohio, classic in tonight's title games.

Just to keep them company, first round play begins in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, Poinsettia Bowl at Greenville, S. C., Motor City classic at Detroit, Richmond (Va.) Invitational and Evansville, Ind., Holiday tournament, and the semifinal stages are reached in the Big Eight at Kansas City, Far West classic at Portland, Ore., Down East at Bangor, Me., and the Gulf South classic at Shreveport.

A major college unbeaten list that hovered at 10 only four days ago has been chopped to five—with only Ohio State, Villanova, Mississippi State, DePaul and Seton Hall left. The first four all are involved in tough tournament action the next 36 hours and by Sunday Seton Hall, which didn't could be the only one left.

Third-ranked Duquesne and touted Dayton suffered the first losses of the season Thursday night—the Dukes falling before rugged Villanova by a whopping 78-53 in the semifinals of the Quaker City tournament at Philadelphia. Dayton was whipped by Wisconsin, 105-93 in a semifinal game of the Holiday Festival at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Top-ranked Ohio State, the only other unbeaten in action, pushed its new winning streak to nine—turning back UCLA 105-84 in the semifinals of the Los Angeles classic. Southern California's fourth-ranked Trojans will challenge the mighty Bucks in the final Saturday night. The Trojans (9-1) advanced with an impressive 85-65 whipping of Utah in the other semifinal.

Mississippi State (7-0) risks its record in the Sugar Bowl tonight against Maryland in a doubleheader also matching Louisville and LSU. DePaul (6-0) goes against St. Bonaventure in part of a Motor City doubleheader that also pits Detroit against winless Syracuse.

In the Poinsettia, it's Arkansas vs. Clemson and Georgia Tech vs. Furman in the Evansville Holiday. It's host Evansville against Yale and Pitt against Tennessee; and in the Richmond Invitational, host Richmond against Georgetown (D.D.) and VMI against George Washington.

Other developments Thursday night: Holiday Festival at New York—Cincinnati, the favorite, beat LaSalle 64-56 and will play Wisconsin, upset winner over Dayton, in Saturday's final.

Gator at Jacksonville—Florida edged Navy 68-63 and Virginia Tech made up a 17-point deficit for a 79-78 upset of Vanderbilt. Final tonight.

Big Eight at Kansas City—Oklahoma edged Kansas 61-60 and Iowa State downed Colorado 62-52 to join Wednesday winners Kansas State and Missouri in tonight's semifinals.

Far West at Portland—Idaho whipped Portland 61-50 and Oregon toppled Michigan State 71-59; joining Wednesday winners Oregon State and Washington State in semis.

All-College at Oklaoha City—Bowling Green surprised Wichita, only team to beat Cincinnati so far, 69-68 to reach tonight's final against Houston. Houston beat Utah State 51-46.

Administration Cites Progress In Civil Rights; Laud Local Officials

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The Kennedy administration said today that "important progress" was made in the field of civil rights in its year of office. But it didn't claim all the credit for itself.

In public school desegregation in particular, the administration said, "credit for lack of violence and disorder which has marked these kind of events in the past, rests primarily with local and state officials."

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, in a year-end review of Justice Department activities in civil rights, stressed the department's policy of seeking effective guarantees and action from local officials and civic leaders without court action.

The report, released for publication today, said this had been done with publicity.

The attorney general's report, filed with President Kennedy, said "informal conversations have been conducted wherever our investigations have disclosed evidences of civil rights violations."

Then he told the President, his brother: "We know that you feel strongly that these matters should be resolved at the local and state level and the federal government should intervene if all of our efforts have failed."

"On numerous occasions, I am happy to report, local action has been taken voluntarily and without court action."

"In all such instances we have taken steps thereafter to keep currently informed of developments. It has been only where local officials have not taken effective steps to correct a situation or where there has been an attempt to evade court orders that the department has taken formal legal action as authorized by the Congress."

The attorney general reviewed developments in the fields of voting, education, transportation and public school desegregation.

Voting: When the Kennedy administration took office legal action had been taken in six Southern counties against denial of the right to register and vote without distinction on account of race.

One of these cases has been settled and two others have been processed to judgments.

In three other cases successful trials have been completed.

Additionally, he said, 14 new cases charging discrimination in the registration processes have been filed this year, and active investigation or negotiation with local officials are being made in connection with registration processes in 61 other counties.

Employment: The Presidential Commission on Equal Job Opportunity headed by Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson has met with "tremendous success."

The commission's goal, he said, is to end discrimination in plants holding government contracts and in federal employment.

In this connection, the attorney general cited the appointment of Negroes to high federal posts—including Thurmond Marshall as a judge of Circuit Court in New York, two district judges and two district attorneys.

Transportation: The department has made substantial progress toward eliminating discrimination in all three major modes of public interstate transportation—bus, air and rail.

The sending of more than 600 U.S. marshals to Montgomery, Ala., when "Freedom Riders" resulted in disorders last spring, "averted major bloodshed," he said, and made it unnecessary to take further action when a similar tense situation developed in Mississippi a few days later.

Schools: An increasing number of children went to school under desegregated and peaceful conditions in the South. He called this "evidence of responsive affirmative action taken by an increasing number of officials and civic leaders. He commented that department officials had worked informally with officials in cities involved in desegregation cases to bring about peaceful school desegregation.

"However, the credit for lack of violence and disorder which has marked these kind of events in the past, rests with local and state officials. Under most difficult and trying circumstances but with the support of the vast majorities of their communities they saw that order was preserved and once again demonstrated to the world that we are a country that lives and abides by the law. The people of these communities are to be congratulated."

"I can report to you," the attorney general concluded, "that the law enforcement officials and civic leaders in the vast majority of the communities have met their obligations. I am confident, therefore, that this year's progress will continue, and that it will be carried forward with the effort and approval of the vast majority of the American people."

Can Thank Your Lucky Stars, Predictions Called Nonsense

By ANDREW MEISELS
NEW YORK (AP)—Thank you lucky stars!
An official of the Hayden Planetarium dismisses as "nonsense" the predictions of Hindu astrologers that the human race will be destroyed next February.

"It's the same kind of gobbledygook astrologers have been handing out for thousands of years," says James S. Pickering, assistant astronomer of the planetarium.

Astronomers—serious students of the heavenly bodies—traditionally explode like dying stars when the question of astrology comes up.

Astrologers—who try to predict the future by the stars as they move across the various constellations—traditionally note that their art is older and consider themselves upstarts.

In this area of the world, the general public is on the side of the astronomers in considering the astrologers starry-eyed humbugs. Not so in the East, where affairs of state, religion and personal life are sometimes held up because of the position of the planets.

In India right now Hindu priests are in the process of chanting sacred verses and offering sacrifices in an effort to avert what they consider imminent disaster.

Hindu astrologers say a catastrophe is imminent because of a forthcoming inauspicious combination of the planets in the constellation of Capricorn now approaching.

They predict things will start going from bad to worse next month, with the catastrophe itself occurring between Feb. 3 and 5. Among the prophecies of doom are world war, widespread plague and earthquakes.

Pickering notes that early in February the visible planets of Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn will be grouped along with the sun and the moon around the constellations of Capricorn and Aquarius.

Such a close grouping of the five visible planets somewhere in the heavens occurs about once every hundred years, Pickering said, and the only thing it can be relied on to do is raise the fears of astrologers.

The last time the visible planets were grouped in Capricorn was in 1285, Pickering observed. According to existing records, that seems to have been a quiet news year.

The Hindu astrologers contend the position of the planets next February will be the same as it was 800 years ago and 5,000 years ago. Both times, they say, terrible wars ravaged India.

Takes Chance In Judging North, South Beauties

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Bob Hecht may be having the time of his life right now, squiring a pretty Southern belle through the social whirl of the holiday season.

But don't envy him too much, fellows. He's got a problem the likes of which he never faced as a 39-year-old pass up a Navy football team.

Hecht has set out to try to determine whether Southern girls are prettier than Northern girls. Any decision, barring a tie, likely will set off a distaff war between the states.

The Navy cadet is doing some research on the problem during a five-day visit with pretty Marguerite Richmond, a Mississippi Southern student.

At the moment, Hecht says, he isn't quite made up his mind.

How the heck did Hecht get into this situation?

Well, it all started after a Mississippi midshipman, John Quisenberry of Clinton, allowed that Dixie darlings are the fairest of the fair.

Hecht, a Yankee from Clairton, Pa., demanded proof. Quisenberry produced pictures of a group of Jackson beauty contestants and Hecht picked Marguerite as a smashing sample of Southern beauty.

The star quarterback, whose 39-year-old pass up a Navy football team in the 13-7 victory over Army, decided that the two should get better acquainted. So he wrote to Miss Richmond.

"It began with an apology for being forward and ended with an apology for being forward," the pretty, blue-eyed brunette said.

"He told me something about himself in it, sent a picture, said he was 6 feet 4. I'd always dated boys six feet tall or more, so you bet I was interested."

In her two-page typed reply, Miss Richmond said she listed the things she liked to do, loved to do, did well and would like to learn to do.

The Navy star attempted to arrange a meeting after Navy played Miami in Florida on Nov. 6, but that fell through.

And Miss Richmond's mother refused to let her accept an invitation to attend the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia Dec. 2.

So she decided to invite Hecht to visit her in Jackson over the Christmas holidays. He arrived Wednesday, and they've been busy in the swim of the city's mid-winter social season.

Whether romance is blossoming isn't known. Both are keeping quiet on that score. The only comment so far is from Marguerite's younger sister Sandra, who said:

"He isn't lacking."

Gets Permission For Wedding

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—A young tank corpsman got court permission Thursday to marry his stepister.

Circuit Judge Otto Cox also waived the age and three-day waiting period requirements for Pvt. Thomas Farmer Jr., 17, and Suzanne de La Bye, 15.

Farmer told the judge he and Suzanne had been dating for three years before his foster father, Frank Berkshire, and Suzanne's mother, Frances de La Bye, were married last March.

Farmer is on leave from Ft. Knox, Ky.

Red Propaganda Felt For Home Consumption

Analysis
By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet propaganda outbursts against the United States and West Germany have stepped up in recent weeks to a point where diplomats here believe they are intended more for scaring the Soviets than annoying the West.

The highest point in the campaign was reached with the demand that Gen. Adolf Heusinger, West German chairman of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's military committee, be sent to Moscow for trial as a war criminal.

Heusinger is stationed in Washington. The Soviets unquestionably knew in advance the United States would never surrender him, but the demand for his extradition triggered off an attack on the conduct of German armies during World War II that continues almost daily.

Red Star, the military service's official newspaper, has been running daily war horror pictures of hangings of Soviet partisans, trenches filled with bodies and still others of partisans lined up to be shot by firing squads.

Normally this sort of preparatory propaganda in the Soviet Union precedes almost every international negotiation, such as the one expected early next year with the German situation. It is piped abroad to help prepare the atmosphere for the conference and indicate how stern the Soviet position will be.

But much of the present propaganda is not distributed abroad. It is published in newspapers and carried still more on television.

The supposition in West German and American quarters here is that the propaganda is intended to reactivate suspicion of Americans along with the Germans, not only among the Soviet people but also among European members of the North Atlantic alliance who were World War II victims of the Nazis.

Attacks on the Kennedy administration appear intermittently—not so frequently in newspapers but continually in some magazines.

At no point this year has the Soviet vituperation against the Americans reached the heights of 1960 following the U2 incident and bustup of the Paris summit conference. But as the year ends it appears building up.

Assault And ...

Mrs. Brown and went to offer help.

Jones, pleading not guilty to the charges, denied implication in the crime. "I am not the man," he said, emphasizing, "they made an awful mistake."

Jones said he was at home at the time the larceny occurred and Jones' wife told the court that he was at home at 6 p.m. when she returned from work.

"I wouldn't sit up here and lie," Jones said, after his wife told that he had gone to Virginia earlier in the day to get his hair fixed. It was brought out that leaving the State without permission from his probation officer is illegal.

After finding Jones guilty on the charges, Judge Whedbee praised both Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Moore for their "public spiritedness" in coming forth to testify in the case and for rendering aid to Mrs. Garrett in the parking lot.

The jurist then ordered that the terms of the suspended sentence be put in effect for the violation of probation causing Jones to be sentenced to 12 months in jail. He sentenced Jones to two years in jail on the larceny charge to begin at the expiration of the suspended sentence and sentenced him to two years in jail for assaulting a female.

Solicitor Eli Bloom termed the crime, "a brazen thing."

Biding Time On Katanga Talks

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The Congo government and the U.N.—Congo mission appeared today to be biding their time until Jan. 3 when President Moise Tshombe's Katanga Assembly is to meet to discuss future relations with the Leopoldville regime.

Military and political tension remained high in the Katanga secessionist capital of Elisabethville and was likely to remain so until Tshombe's politicians decide whether they will adhere to the agreement made at Kitona on Dec. 21 to end secession.

Tshombe, whose authority as president of Katanga has seldom seemed in doubt, contends the agreement has to be ratified by his provincial Assembly.

The central government of Premier Cyrille Adoula regards the agreement as irrevocable, but has made no move to press matters.

Six Katanga deputies, who took seats Thursday in the national Parliament in partial fulfillment of the compact, made no significant contribution to the debates. The nine remaining Katanga representatives had not reached Leopoldville.

The policy of waiting on the Katanga extended even to the Congo army unit the United Nations agreed to accept as part of its force. The Congolese appear to be having second thoughts about it. A 90-man advance unit was to have left for Kamina in north Katanga three days ago but has not moved.

Reports from Elisabethville said feelings between Katangans and U.N. personnel again were reaching the high pitch that preceded the outbreak of fighting on Dec. 5. Katangans were beginning to act against U.N. patrols, roadblocks and arrests.

A Swedish patrol killed two Katangan soldiers and 100, 14 prisoners Thursday when it was fired on unexpectedly, the U.N. spokesman said.

Firm Will Plan Shelter Program For N. Carolina

RALEIGH (AP) — A contract has been negotiated with an Asheville architectural and engineering firm to plan a program of public fallout shelters in western North Carolina.

The contract, between the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks and Six Associates, Inc., was the first of seven to be awarded in the state. Others are expected in the near future.

State Civil Defense Director Edward F. Griffin said Thursday the contracts call for the Asheville firm to begin early in January to investigate existing buildings which can be used as fallout shelters.

The area involved includes the counties of Avery, Burke, Rutherford, Polk, McDowell, Yancey, Mitchell, Clay, Madison, Buncombe, Henderson, Transylvania, Haywood, Jackson, Swain, Graham, Cherokee, Macon and Watauga.

Gov't Building Again Target Of Bomb Threat

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the second day in a row, a bomb threat caused evacuation today of the Immigration and Naturalization Service building in downtown Washington.

An anonymous caller telephoned police that a bomb would be set off in the building at 10 a.m. Thirty-five minutes after this deadline, police were still searching the building without finding any trace of explosives.

The 350 employees were dismissed from the building, but officials said they would be recalled at 12:30 p.m. if no bomb was found.

A similar telephone call, by a man with a Spanish accent, was received by police Thursday, causing immigration officials to dismiss employees for the day at 11:15 a.m.

That caller told police he planned to blow up the building because "You will not admit my brother."

Transportation In Britain Tied Up By Weather

LONDON (AP)—Snow, sleet and freezing rain brought widespread transportation chaos in the British Isles today.

The Royal Automobile Club described the nation's highway system as "a vast skating rink" with 120,000 miles of road covered with ice.

In Scotland and eastern England there was heavy snowfall as well, with drifts up to eight feet deep around Glasgow and Aberdeen.

Thick slush covering the runways delayed jet flights from London airport. Pilots were warned not to take off because of the danger of slush entering their engines.

Railroad schedules went out the window as ice clogged switches. Fog hampered shipping off the European coast.

Eliz. Taylor Is Top Attraction

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor will remember 1961 as a year of near tragedy and eventual triumph—a year in which she almost died, then won her first Academy Award, and finally was named box office champion of the movies.

Motion Picture Herald announced Thursday she was rated the No. 1 movie attraction in its 30th annual poll of exhibitors.

In order, here are the others in the top 10 for 1961: Rock Hudson, Doris Day, John Wayne, Cary Grant, Sandra Dee, Jerry Lewis, William Holden, Tony Curtis and Elvis Presley.
