Education Board To Ready Data On Training School

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

A topographical map of the Pitt County industrial training school site will be prepared for architects George Shoe and Cameron Dudley, members of the Pitt County Board of Eduction decided yesterday.

The board also agreed to furnish the architects with concrete information as soon as possible on the curriculum for the school and the type of buildings they believe will be needed. Shoe and Dudley presented a detailed report on a study and evaluation of the local site and on other schools already in operation in the state yesterday at the board's monthly meeting.

Dr. Horace Monroe, member of the staff of the Industrial Arts Department at East Carolina College, was present for the meeting, as were several others connected with the project.

A report on current expense expenditures, by source of funds for 1959-60, was presented to the board yesterday. It revealed that the state furnished $2,033,375.98 for schools; the federal government, $61,784.48; and local funds, $343,006.29, for a total of $2,438,166.75 for county schools.

The total spent in North Carolina for the period was $219,533,220.35, with the state providing 77.6 per cent of the funds.

In other business, the board examined the audit for fiscal year ended June 30, 1961 and ordered it filed and copies sent to the State Department of Public Instruction, State Board of Education and the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

A report was presented on the Grifton School Bond issue, which was approved by voters Dec. 9, with 225 for and 85 against the bonds.

In other business, a letter was read from Mrs. P. M. Anderson of Robinson Union School Home Economics Department thanking the board for improvements made in the department.

Supervisors' reports were submitted by Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, Miss Elizabeth Edwards and F. D. Sledge. Due to time limitations, board members were unable to review them yesterday but will at a later date.

It was reported that the School Board Association of the Second District will meet at 7 p.m. Jan. 24 in the Plymouth High School Cafeteria. State Sen. Robert Lee Humber of Greenville will be guest speaker. Registration begins at 6:30 p.m.

The Second District includes Beaufort, Hyde, Martin, Pitt, Tyrrell and Washington Counties, Washington and Greenville City units.

Board chairman Joseph Moye presided at the meeting, held at the offices of the county board of education.

Razing A House, But It Wasn't Planned At All

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Since the advent of Urban Renewal, many old dwellings and other buildings have been razed to make room for more modern and serviceable structures.

Recently—in fact just last week—it was called to the attention of local authorities that a 75-year-old Negro man was doing his part toward the project.

Neighbors wondered when they saw the man at 313 West Fourth Street wielding an axe. Two other homes which adjoined the property, on the Greene Street side of the block and one next door to the Fourth Street home, had been downed recently, but for this one to be dismantled seemed strange.

A woman walked over to the dwelling and asked what the "goings-ons" were all about.

Replied the man, "The man at the filling station gave the house to me."

Officials who later looked into the happenings offered the opinion that it probably seemed to the old fellow that all the houses in town which were empty were being torn down . . . so why not this one?

By the time the lady had visited the destruction scene, two doors had been chopped down, the screened porch and screens from two windows had been removed, as well as blinds from two windows.

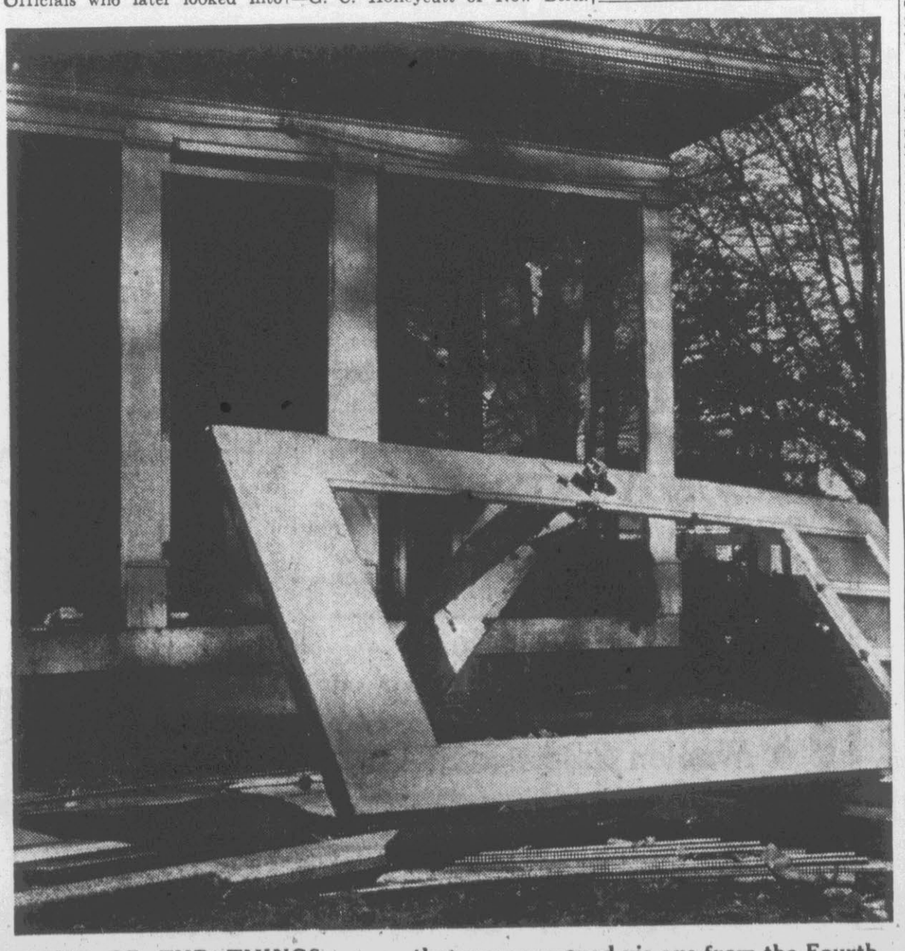

Things were going well but work on the project came to a sudden halt: The house-giver became an "Indian giver" and told our hard-working fellow not to take any more of the house down.

And officially that is the end of the story.

Local police were called to investigate the happenings yesterday and reported that the insurance company involved, as well as the owner of the home, wished to make no charges.

Total damage was estimated by a detective at $200.

The owner of the vacant house —G. C. Honeycutt of New Bern.

SOME OF THE THINGS . . . that were removed via axe from the Fourth Street residence are shown here, with the screenless porch in the background.

Salazar Says Portugal Will Be Among First To Pull Out Of UN

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar said in a speech prepared for delivery today Portugal "will surely be among the first countries to leave the United Nations organization."

"Meanwhile we shall refuse them our collaboration in everything that is not in our direct interest," he declared.

Reporting to the National Assembly and to the nation, the 72-year-old dictator criticized the United Nations, the United States and Britain for their failure to come to Portugal's support when India invaded Goa, Damao and Diu last month.

Referring to the U.N. mission of safeguarding peace, Salazar said he believes "we have the right to hear whether our presence and our collaboration are already useless in the United Nations."

"Even if we do not, I do not know yet whether we shall be the first country to abandon the United Nations, but surely we will be among the first. Meanwhile we shall refuse them our collaboration in everything that is not in our direct interest."

That statement was as near as Salazar came in a 10,000-word speech to suggesting direct action on three possible moves diplomatic sources here had expected him to announce as an aftermath of the loss of the Portuguese Indian enclaves.

They were possible withdrawal from the United Nations, revocation of the century-old British-Portuguese alliance and refusal to renew the Azores Island air base agreement with the United States when it expires this year.

The premier spoke as security officers still hunted the remnants of a rebel band that launched an unsuccessful New Year's Day revolt against Salazar's government. The Army Ministry accused the underground Communist party of planning and leading the uprising.

"According to information and statements already collected from some participants in the Beja attempt at sedition, the conclusion is that it was an action planned and led by the Communist party, within a general plan of promoting unrest in Portugal," the communique said.

The communique said no other unrest or violence was reported from other military establishments.

At least 16 rebels who took part in the revolt attempt were still at large and the government pressed a hunt for them.

Authorities claimed only about 40 men took part in the attempt to seize the army garrison at Beja early Monday. Officials clamped tight security measures on known avenues of escape along the Spanish frontier in efforts ro round up remnants of the gang. All police and military units remained in a "state of precaution."

The government said two insurgents were killed and 22 captured —including the two leaders of the band—in the uprising which collapsed after a three-hour gun battle with troops of the 3rd Infantry Regiment stationed in the Beja barracks.

Thousands of persons lined a 75-mile funeral route Tuesday as a cortege bearing the body of Lt. Col. Jaime Filipe da Fonseca, the army undersecretary, moved from Lisbon to Fonseca's home town of Leiria for burial.

Fonseca rushed to Beja after hearing of the revolt and was shot when he walked into the barracks and demanded that the rebels surrender.

Authorities said the captured conspirators would face prison terms of from 4 to 20 years if convicted, in addition to the loss of political rights and indefinite security surveillance.

Record Year Of Industrial Growth Cited By Sanford

RALEIGH (AP)—The year 1961 was a record breaker in North Carolina's industrial expansion, Gov. Sanford reported today.

The governor told his news conference that 1961 investment in new plants and plant expansions totaled $279,477,000 and this means new jobs for 35,154 persons with annual payroll totaling nearly $117.5 million.

The 1961 record of industrial growth compares with 1960—which was also "an excellent year" — when investments in new and expanded industrial plants totaled about $100.5 million and new jobs totaled 31,657.

The big increase, Sanford added, "is especially significant in view of the fact that nationally there has been a decline in industrial investments."

Sanford paid tribute to thousands of persons — Chambers of Commerce, local development groups, local and county governments and businessmen for the expansion record.

"I should like to pay special thanks to Hargrove Bowles, director of Conservation and Development; William R. Henderson, head of the Commerce and Industry Section; and to all their fellow workers at the State Department of Conservation and Development," Sanford added.

Sanford was confident "we will do better in 1962 than we did in 1961 as good as this was."

At his news conference, Sanford was asked what he thought is the biggest challenge facing North Carolinians in 1962.

He said it was the same that all Americans face to see that America continues to give "strong leadership" to the free world.

On the state level, Sanford said there were many challenges, and achieving many of the state's goals is dependent on continued progress in industrialization and finding better markets for farms and crops. This progress, he said, could produce the money for progress in education, highways, welfare and other fields.

Sanford said North Carolina is within 8 or 10 years of having one of the nation's best school systems but that attaining this goal will depend on local groups.

Schools Short 127,200 Rooms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a record year of construction the nation's public schools are still short 127,200 classrooms, the Office of Education reports.

It added that the pace-setting year of school building did make some headway in cutting down the room shortage but that the gain may be wiped away next fall by a flood of new pupils.

Based on a survey of state departments of education, the office said there were 37.5 million enrolled in the public schools last fall, an increase of 1.2 million over figures for the fall of 1960. Most of the increase was in secondary schools.

Board Suggests Hospital Action

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer

A recommendation that new dental facilities at Pitt Memorial Hospital be made adequate for use was filed Tuesday by the Pitt County Commissioners in their regular monthly meeting.

The official board, acting on information contained in a letter to Dr. Ray D. Minges, chief of staff at the hospital, recommended to the Pitt Memorial Board of Trustees that facilities included in the recent hospital addition and renovation program be made adequate for use.

The letter, signed by Greenville dentist Jack Silvers, apparently was forwarded to the Commissioners by Dr. Malene Irons, local physician.

After reading the letter, the commissioners' discussion indicated the letter described existing facilities as inadequate. An apparent alternative plan, according to discussion among the board members, would be to obtain space for the dental facilities outside the hospital and remove the equipment in the present dental room.

The commissioners indicated space required would be two 10-foot by 10-foot rooms with waiting room space. Their recommendation, however, was to find adequate space within the hospital plant.

During a brief afternoon session —following on the heels of the morning-session hesitant acceptance of W. K. Whichard's resignation as county Social Security consultant—the commissioners approved a $2,420 trade-in deal for two Sheriff's Department autos and heard Tax Collector Robert S. Moye's monthly report.

The commissioners accepted the low bid on the car transaction, providing the Sheriff Ruel Tyson's staff with two Nash automobiles for the first time. In the past the department has used Chevrolets and Fords.

Wagner-Waldrop Motor Co. of Greenville submitted the low bod that was accepted. The commissioners noted a variation of $870 in the low and high bids on the two vehicles. Traded in were a 1959-model Ford and a '60 Chevrolet.

Moye told the commissioners his department collected a total of $88,415.27 during December, running the fiscal 1961-62 total tax take through Dec. 25 to $1,178,444.67. The total stood $41,475.34 above the $1,136,969.33 collected during the corresponding period a year ago.

No action was taken on an offer by Judson H. Blount to sell the county 40 acres of land located just east of N.C. 11-U.S. 13 just north of the intersection with N.C. 903.

Blount said the 40 acres—adjacent to 10 additional acres for which a deed has not been located—could be purchased for $300 an acre. "It is a good buy for the county," Blount said. The land includes about 500 feet of frontage along N.C. 11 and about 1,500 feet along the Atlantic Coastline Railroad.

At the request of Commissioner Bruce Strickland of Bell Arthur, the official board endorsed a petition calling for installation of a ferry from Minnesott Beach southward across the Neuse River to a point near Cherry Point.

Strickland submitted the petition that suggested moving ferries to the Minnesott crossing point from the Alligator River when a bridge spanning that body of water is opened in February. Two ferries currently convey US 64 traffic from the west bank of the Alligator to the Croatan Sound Bridge and Roanoke Island.

They granted two tax releases and heard a request from Mrs. Jessie Rountree Moye, chairman of the William Pitt Portrait Committee, that the county finance the painting by a well-known artist of a William Pitt portrait to be hung in the courthouse. No action was taken on Mrs. Moye's request.

Final Federal Grant Approved For Ayden Plant

AYDEN—The federal government has approved its final grant for the Ayden sewage disposal plant, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor announced this week.

The final payment in the project was $7,010.95, bringing the total federal funds used in the project to $81,410.95. Total cost of the entire project was about $300,000.

The project was begun in 1957. In June of the past year, Mayor S. F. Peterson and Paylor were authorized by the Town Board to proceed in closing out the sewage disposal contract. The closing out action concerned the contract for the collector lines, outfalls and lift stations. Previously, the contract concerning the sewage disposal plant had been approved.

Zoning Is Begun Outside Of City

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Zoning of the area up to one mile outside Greenville's city limits got its start last night as the City-Council Planning and Zoning Commission concentrated first on the southwest quadrant.

This was in line with recommendations which a special committee, headed by T. I. Wagner, offered. The committee was appointed last month by Frank Little, Jr., chairman of the commission.

Wagner reported to the commission that his committee favored a plan to divide the areas into four quadrants. The boundary lines for the quadrants would be the Atlantic Coast Line and Norfolk and Southern railroad tracks which run north-south and east-west.

The committee proposed that Area I be the southwest quadrant, Area II the southeast, Area III the northeast and Area IV the northwest.

Recommending that zoning begin in the southwest quadrant, Wagner exhibited a map embodying the committee's recommendations.

It showed the area in the vicinity of West End Circle on the Farmville Highway as commercial. The area in the vicinity of Kenland Motel and Hillcrest Lanes Bowling Alley was designated commercial. The map also showed commercial areas at the intersection of U.S. 264 and U.S. 13 and at the U.S. 264 and Hooker Road intersection.

A section at U.S. 264 and Evans St. intersection was designated industrial in line with prior planning.

All the remaining portion of the quadrant would become residential. Wagner emphasized that the recommendations would not be the final plan for the area. He suggested coming up with a plan, advertising a public hearing and "let the people come in and express themselves."

"The purpose is to try to zone and have Greenville develop into the attractive growing city that it is," he declared. "It is not our intention to hinder development."

The commission approved a motion by Jack Wallace to accept the report as a tentative guide and to hold public hearings on the proposals.

The Planning and Zoning Commission is expected to zone each quadrant and hold public hearings on each. When this is completed they will make recommendations for the entire area one mile beyond the city limits to the City Council.

The council will then hold a public hearing on the zoning of the one mile area after which they may vote the zoning proposals into law.

A state legislative act gave cities the power to zone one mile outside the city limits and a number of persons living in the one-mile area were appointed to serve with the city Planning and Zoning Commission. This joint commission will handle zoning matters outside the city limits.

The joint body actually began its work last month when a group of residents on Memorial Drive apeared to protest the construction of a drive-in restaurant at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Country Club Road.

Officials explained at that time that the city could not zone one particular spot but must consider the entire one-mile area.

However, Chairman Little appointed the study committee to make specific recommendations on how the commission could best proceed with zoning plans and Wagner was reporting the results of the committee's work last night.

Rescue Pilot Of U-2 In Secrecy

PICAYUNE, Miss. (AP) — An Air Force rescue team plucked U2 pilot Charles Stratton from a cypress tree in snake-infested swamplands near Picayune today.

Stratton, 32, an Air Force captain, was taken by ambulance to Keesler Air Force Base at Biloxi, Miss., 60 miles east of Picayune.

The Air Force clamped a tight secrecy lid over his removal from the swamp. His condition was not immediately determined.

Stratton's home is Detroit, but he lives at Del Rio, Tex., with his wife and two children.

Search teams continued to hunt through the swampy area west of Picayune on the Louisiana-Mississippi border for the wreckage of the singleseater U2, similar to the plane which was downed over the Soviet Union in 1960 and created an international incident.

Capt. William N. Orr, deputy public information officer at Keesler, said the U2 was attached to the 4080th Strategic Wing at Laughlin AFB. It was on a flight from Del Rio to Birmingham, Ala., and return.

The plane, in flames, crashed about 9:30 p.m. Witnesses reported seeing the fiery crash from as far away as New Orleans — 75 miles south-southwest of Picayune.

Farmville Board Has Busy Meet

FARMVILLE—Farmville's Commissioners Tuesday hired an assistant street superintendent and appropriated funds as Farmville's share in financing a planned county-wide Civil Defense communications network.

The official board accepted the recommendation of Street Supt. E. P. Freuler and employed Willie R. Oakley, 525 N. Main St., as Freuler's assistant.

Oakley, presently employed by the Farmville Implement Co. here, will assume his duties with the town Jan. 15 at a weekly salary of $75. He was selected from eight applicants who answered a call for applications ordered by the Commissioners and issued by Freuler.

The board responded to a request by Pitt County Civil Defense Director J. H. Rose to share in the cost of the Civil Defense communications system. Farmville's share, identical to shares of Pitt towns except Greenville, was $406.66. Greenville contributed $685.43 and the Pitt County Commissioners appropriated funds for the central unit in the network.

In other action Tuesday, the Farmville Commissioners instructed town engineer Jack McDavid to plan street widths in the new Lincoln Park Subdivision in southwest Farmville. Freuler was asked to begin preliminary preparation of the streets as recommended by McDavid.

Police Chief H. E. Epps was requested by the board to conduct a complete inventory of the local police department's equipment for a report to a subsequent meeting of the board.

Army Will Get 2 New Divisions

Presidential Action Will Eventually Permit Release Of Guard Units

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy ordered today the immediate formation of two new Army divisions, expanding the service to 16 permanent divisions.

The Palm Beach White House said the activation of the two divisions would permit the release "later this year," with no time specified, of the 32nd and 49th National Guard Divisions which were called to duty last Oct. 15 in the armed forces buildup precipitated by the Berlin crisis.

One of the new regular divisions, the 1st Armored, will be activated at Ft. Hood, Tex. The other, the 5th Mechanized Ifantry, will be organized at Ft. Carson, Colo.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Kennedy approved the action at meetings Tuesday and this morning with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and the nation's top defense officials.

He said it was the first item of business on this morning's agenda, after the joint chiefs of staff flew into Palm Beach from Washington for the preparedness talks.

Qualified sources said the two National Guard divisions summoned to duty should not anticipate returning home for at least several months. The 32nd of Wisconsin, is training at Ft. Lewis, Wash., and the 49th of Texas, at Camp Polk, La.

Special Brigade Set For Germany

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The posting of two more U.S. Army battle groups in Germany will provide the makings of an air-transportable brigade that could deal with trouble in the Middle East, Africa or elsewhere.

The Army high command has wanted for some time to create independent brigades in West Germany and on Okinawa for such a purpose. The Okinawa-based brigade would be intended for use in the Far East and Southeast Asia.

The Pentagon announced Tuesday that three battle groups of the 4th Infantry Division, totaling about 6,000 men, will be airlifted to Germany for a NATO exercise from Jan. 16 to Feb. 12.

Two battle groups will remain there after the end of operation "Long Thrust II" for additional training as elements of the Army Strategic Reserve in Europe. The third will return to Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Later, reportedly after several months, the two battle groups will be rotated back to the United States and replaced by other units of the 4th Division. In all, the 4th Infantry has five battle groups.

The Defense Department said these elements would be available for use in an emergency.

Funds for two independent trouble-shooting brigades are said to be included in the new defense budget soon to go to Congress.

Army leaders have been thinking in terms of paratroop units for such an assignment.

Sources indicate the battle groups to be sent to Germany later this month might be used as an interim "fire brigade."

They noted that although these are conventional infantry, they can be lifted quickly over thousands of miles.

About 100 transports will fly the 4th Division troops from Washington State to Europe. The battle groups will be accompanied by artillery, armor and other support elements.

Taking part in the movement will be 10 of the 15 advanced C135 jet transports owned by the Military Air Transport Service.

Sullivan To Direct New March Of Dimes Drive In Pitt County

Marty Sullivan, general manager and executive vice president of Radio Station WOOW, has accepted appointment to direct the March of Dimes campaign in Pitt County from Jan. 2 through Jan. 31, it was announced today by J. H. Rose, chairman of the local chapter of the National Foundation.

"Moving forward from the successful fight against polio; the 1962 New March of Dimes will support one of the most potent medical programs ever launched against chronic crippling disease," Sullivan said. He pointed out that the March of Dimes organization attacks crippling birth defects and arthritis, while continuing its 24-year successful fight against polio.

He continued, "Funds are needed to support research which offers real hope of discovering preventives and cures for these diseases. This is the program that developed first the Salk vaccine and then the Sabin vaccine—exclusively with March of Dimes funds. And we must continue our program of training vitally needed medical and scientific personnel through National Foundation fellowships and health scholarships.

"Perhaps even more important at the moment, we must aid those already stricken by these cripplers. March of Dimes funds are being used now by chapters in many parts of the nation to establish or support special treatment centers and evaluation clinics where specialized treatment and diagnosis can be given," he declared.

The National Foundation meets responsibilities to aid past and present victims of paralytic polio. Chapters with available funds are also authorized to aid victims of all types of birth defects where such help is needed.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan reside in Greenville.

He is a member of the Moose Lodge, Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce, Greenville Country Club and the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters

Starts Large Library With Junk In Pocket

NEW YORK—(WNS)—Dr. Joseph Broadman, who has one of the world's largest libraries of news clips on international affairs, credits his female relatives for the idea.

"When I started my hobby," he said, "my pockets were always bulging with clippings. I'd fish for change or a match and a dozen would flutter around.

"My wife and other relatives insisted this was no way for a young physician to look, so I bought a scrapbook. But it took six scrapbooks to accommodate just the clips in my various coat and suit pockets."

The library, in storage and looking for a home, now consists of thousands of neatly indexed items.

Swedish Prince Bertil Visits Women He Loves But Can't Wed

By HELEN DENVER

LONDON—(WNS) — Swedish Prince Bertil has paid his annual Christmas visit to London to see the woman he has loved for 16 years, but cannot marry.

Big, round-faced, cheerful Bertil, 48, is the third son of King Gustaf VI Adolf and second in line to inherit the Swedish throne. The woman who greeted him excitedly when he arrived at her $40-a-week apartment in the Mayfair section of London was Mrs. Lillian Craig, 42, a former chorus girl and daughter of a laundry owner.

Petite and pretty, she met the prince when he was in London during the war as assistant naval attache at the Swedish Embassy.

It was a romantic, Cinderella-style meeting, but one which has not yet led to the happy marriage both, apparently, want.

Mrs. Craig, a divorcee, was singing in a London club, the Nuthouse. Bertil was in the audience one night when, as she ended her song, a drunk lurched from his table and tried to embrace her. She tried to push him off, but he was still persisting when the burly prince moved forward and removed him forcibly from the club.

Lillian did not have a chance to thank him that night, and for several nights he did not appear. She made inquiries and discovered he was in a hospital for a minor ailment. She visited him, thanked him—and that was the beginning of the romance.

As long ago as 1955 it was clear they wished to marry and in Sweden, though it was not discussed publicly, the relationship was accepted by the prince's relatives and friends.

The barrier to marriage was then, as it still is, Bertil's position in the hierarchy.

King Gustav is 79 and his heir is his grandson, Prince Carl, whose father was killed in a flyng accident at Copenhagen in 1947. Carl is 15 and cannot become King until he is officially of age in 1964. In the meantime, should King Gustav die, Bertil will have to act as regent—a position he could not hold if he married a commoner.

Already two of his brothers, Sigvard and Carl, have renounced their rights of succession on marrying commoners, leaving only Bertil, a bachelor, to act as regent.

Years ago, his father made him promise that he would not also renounce his rights until young Prince Carl came of age and the succession was secure.

This means that Lillian Craig has no hope of marrying him until 1964.

She has accepted her fate resignedly and they have remained the closest friends all these years. About the possibility of marriage in the future, she will say nothing more than: "There is always the same difficulty."

Now they manage to meet frequently, and she often goes to Stockholm to stay for a few months. She is always discreet and though they share many mutual friends she keeps away from official functions Bertil must attend.

He owns a villa on the French Riviera and they stay there for several weeks in the summer. Lillian has met many members of European royalty and a couple of years ago acted as hostess to King Baudouin of Belgium when he dined there with the prince. She also taught him to cha-cha, said later he was an apt pupil.

Bertil generally comes incognito to London, as he has just done, traveling under the name of Mr. Gustafsson. He and Lillian do the rounds of theaters and restaurants and visit mutual friends.

When, at last, he may be able to marry, Lillian Craig will find Bertil a thoroughly domesticated, well-trained husband, because he has always enjoyed looking after himself in his home.

He once told a friend that he enjoys entertaining informally. "I leave my guests to talk to each other while I dash backwards and forwards from the kitchen prodding potatoes."

In her turn, she will find no difficulty in settling down in Stockholm, where she has lived for periods of up to three months at a time. When he is not with her in London, she lives quietly, seeing few people and, perhaps, preparing for that day in 1964. . . .

Mr. Chevalier, Are You There? Young Women Getting Their Due

By IRENE FERRIS

PARIS—(WNS) — The Jeune Fille, or Young Girl, Look has replaced the femme fatale, or woman of experience, as the new French ideal of beauty.

Hairdresser Simon Lanjac is leading the movement with his new Salon Jeune Fille. And Jeanne Gatineau is creating special beauty products for the young.

Most Paris couturiers have at last added young people's boutiques, and several department stores are finally acknowledging the existence of the "jeune fille" sufficiently to install small sections for junior clothes.

Until now, the young girl has been the forgotten female in France, the little woman nobody knew was there, with no special anything of her own. It is a revolution to see the pretty young things at least getting under the driers and into the spotlights.

In the past, Frenchwomen were not considered fully appealing until they were over 40. Singer Maurice Chevalier has explained that because the Frenchman is so hard to please, it takes a woman at least 40 years to learn enough arts and tricks to attract him.

"We like our cheese ripe, our wines of old vintage, and our women experienced," declared Marcel Pagnol, the "Fanny" playwright.

Jean Desses, couturier to fashionable beauties, commented, "A woman under 40 has not yet discovered her own personality nor acquired that charm that must come from within."

It is true that many Frenchmen still insist that there is no reason why a woman of 40, 50 or 70 should not be as attractive as a young lady, and perhaps more so.

But the tide is changing for 1962. Now it is the 18's to 25's who are stealing the show, and everybody wants to be one.

The young are in full control at the newly-opened Simon Lanjac beauty salon for under 25's on the Rue Vermet.

The personnel are all cute young things the same age as their clients. Thus they understand not only the problems of the young but also their desires, whims and pleasures.

It's all very informal. The young customers often come in pairs or groups. They are encouraged to be natural, unrestricted and free. In short, they stay long, have fun and make it a party.

In addition to the usual beauty-salon services, they can receive instruction in how to reset their own hair and to keep it looking perfect all week.

The "jeune fille" is taught how to give herself a correct shampoo (two soapings, one to remove the superficial dust, the other to cleanse the scalp), how to do a hair-set, how to place the rollers and curlers, and how to do a comb-out.

Young individualists wearing nonconformist coiffures may use the salon's facilities to do their own hair in their own way, and will be assigned a professional hairdresser to help. Thus they learn by doing.

A special thrill for young people is Lanjac's "Amoire Magique," or magic cupboard. It's a try-on department for "jeunes filles" who always adore trying on anything and everything.

Before the big mirrors they can admire themselves in an assortment of "hair trial" wigs in 16 colors and 32 different styles. If they like, they can pick their try-on from a crystal-like tree blooming with more than 100 different hair decorations and bows.

As for their faces, they can play to their heart's content. They are free to dip into all the trays of creams as well as the assortments of make-ups.

The Jeanne Gatineau beauty products, named the "Jeune Fille" line, are essentially health creams, including a cleansing milk, an after-cleansing tonic and a vitamin cream which, says the manufacturer, "nourishes the skin and restores natural breathing rhythm to the pores."

So the young beauty enthusiasts may cream, pat and massage until they have rubbed away all their imaginary wrinkles. Then they attack the make-up trays to try on, wipe off and smear on again until they are sure that they look exactly like their favorite movie star.

The mademoiselles may also have instruction in the subtle and delicate art of applying a make-up that will look not only soignee but also fresh and natural.

With all this help, impatient maidens who won't wait until they're 40 to be admired are proving to Frenchmen that women are getting smarter. They're learning how they can be attractive early and how they can stay that way.

Mr. Chevalier, are you there?

Menus

SAVORY KRAUT

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 medium onion (coarsely chopped)
1 can (1 pound) sauerkraut
½ cup water
2 tablespoons dark brown sugar
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar

Cook onion in butter in a 9- or 10-inch skillet until golden. Add sauerkraut (including liquid in can) water, sugar and vinegar; mix well. Cover and simmer until water has evaporated—about half an hour. Makes 4 servings.

BANANAS

1-3 cup fine graham cracker crumbs
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon grated orange rind (packed down)
6 firm large bananas
1 egg (slightly beaten)
¼ cup butter or margarine

Mix together the crumbs, salt, sugar, cinnamon and orange rind. Peel bananas; dip each into the egg and then the crumbs. Melt butter in a small shallow baking dish—a pie plate is fine; arrange bananas in butter. Bake in a very hot (450 degrees) oven 6 to 7 minutes, basting with the butter once or twice. Serve hot with whipped or sour cream. Makes 6 servings.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Catalogs are big helps in the spring garden planning. Not only this but they make good reading on these cold days. Some catalogs deal with a variety of plants and some specialize in one or more varieties. When you deal through these catalogs, do business with the dealers that are well known. Avoid hit and miss contacts with fly by night outfits. The following listed catalogs have been known for years and have much more at stake than the few dollars they get from an order here or there.

Seed Catalogs

The Geo. Park Seed Co. of Greenwood, S. C. has a well illustrated catalog. It is an old company and has for years been a source of true to name good seed. Send for their flower book today and see for yourself.

W. Attlee Burpee of Philadelphia offers many choices for a beautiful garden. They have a very good line of snapdragons.

Fierry Morse Seed Co. of Mountain View, Calif. has an 8 1-4" x 11" book filled with almost 200 colorful photos. This is one of the best catalogs, so try and add one to your collection.

Another old standby is the Vaughn Seed Co. of New York. They say that their new 1962 illustrated catalog "will answer all your gardening questions." Get one and find out.

Roses

Peterson and Dering of Scappoose, Oregon have a fine rose catalog for fifty cents. This seems to be worthwhile addition to your garden library.

Melvin E. Wyart of 202 Johnny Cake Ridge Road, Mentor, Ohio, have an excellent catalog on roses.

One of the best rose growers is the Jackson & Perkins Co. of Newark, N. Y. Send for their catalog featuring their parade of modern roses.

Fruit Trees

For that home orchard, get plants that have proven themselves over the years. Waynesboro Nursery, located in Waynesboro, Va., has a list that is bound to have a fruit tree you can use.

Stark Bros. of Louisiana, Mo., offer a good line of dwarf fruit trees. These small trees will not take up much space in the backyard garden and one or two in the shrub border give beauty and fruit.

Strawberries

There is nothing like a bowlful of these tempting berries. A bed of them right outside of your door is a handy thing.

Rayner Bros. of Salisbury, Md. has a good descriptive catalog any gardner will pride.

Salisbury, Md. seems to be sort of a strawberry plant capital. Write to W. F. Allen, Salisbury, for a copy of their catalog.

Other Plants

The best, if not one of the best, catalog offered by any nursery is the one put out by Wayside Gardens in Mentor, Ohio. This catalog cost you $1.00 and it will be a dollar well spent. This catalog is a 256-page book with over 1800 items. Order your spring catalog from them now.

Winter days spent reading this catalog will be profitable.

Inter-State Nursery at Hamburg, Iowa has a colorful catalog. You will enjoy reading up on their begonias.

Roundup

Catalogs are good additions to your garden library. Order some of those listed above. Garden magazines on local newsstands are filled with many more. Order yours early and get a jump on spring ordering and garden planning.

Senior Citizens To Have Meeting

The Senior Citizens Club of Greenville will hold its regular meeting Thursday at 10 a.m. at Elm Street Park.

The program will consist of recreation on a "New Year" theme. All members are urged to attend since officers will be elected and plans for the coming year's programs outlined.

Persons interested in joining the group are cordially invited. Membership is open to men or women in the retired age group. If transportation or further information is needed, call Mrs. Terry Agner at Elm Street Park, PL 2-2355.

After-five fashions that bare your back to public view call for scrubbing it daily with a stiff-bristled brush and plenty of soapsuds. That's the tested way to make sure your skin always shows off to best advantage.

Masonic Notice

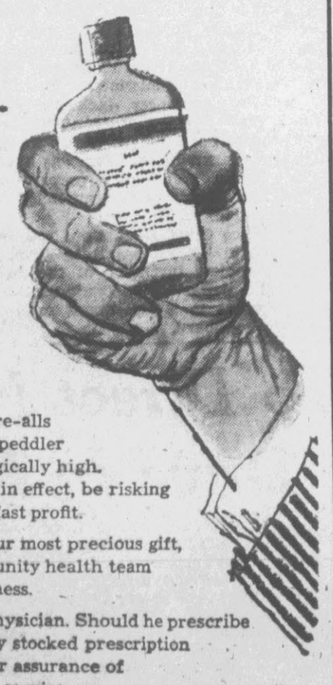

Crown Point Lodge No. 708, A.F.&A.M., will have an Emergent communication Thursday, Jan. 4, at 7:30 p.m. Work in the First Degree and examination in the Master Masons catechism. All Master Masons are cordially invited.

Off-Season Could Be Best Season For Public To Visit National Parks

By MARK KNIGHT

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Planning your 1962 vacation and thinking about visiting one of our country's national parks?

Then you might be interested to know that the major attractions of many parks are at their height just when the number of tourists viewing them is at its lowest.

For example:

Sequoia's giant redwoods and meadows, carpeted in deep snow in winter, offer magnificence and solitude for the person who drives through the snowy California wonderland.

In Shenandoah Park, Virginia, the autumn and spring coloring offer great varieties for the unhurried. Autumn leaves change color after Labor Day and the climate is zestful, while the eastern seaboard remains unpleasantly humid.

Big game animals, which abound in Yellowstone, are most interesting in spring and fall—immediately before and after the tourist peak—as they frequent highways and trails.

In Yosemite the famous waterfalls reach their spectacular crescendo in the late spring—a low tourist patronage period.

One of the lesser known parks—Alaska's Mt. McKinley, midway between Fairbanks and Anchorage—offers a special appeal during May. The month has the lightest precipitation and it comes before the mosquito season.

"Again in the fall," says an official, "usually the first wo weeks of September, the leaves begin to turn and there is probably no other place on earth where one could find the tremendous areas of oriental carpeting effect.

"It is a truly fantastic sight."

Many persons, including a growing list of retirement travelers, prefer the less-crowded seasons for greater seclusion, and oftentimes, lower rates.

Most park hotels and some campgrounds maintain at least skeleton crews and services through much of the off-season. It follows that the longer they can operate at a profit, the lower will be the overhead—hence the possibility of lower rates.

In Mt. McKinley Park, for example, the hotel must be heated—guests or no—through long winters of up to 60 below zero temperatures, to avert frozen pipes and contraction of foundations.

At the other extreme from Mt. McKinley is the Everglades Park in Florida, where the regular season is December to April. Heat and rain drive most visitors from the Everglades by mid-spring, but the ardent boater can find off-season summer attractions, such as wild blooming orchids.

Conrad Wirth, director of national parks, commends extension of the parks' seasons and welcomes the additional exposure of people to nature.

He points out that there are national parks in 22 states—Maine, Virginia, North Carolina, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Michigan, South Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, Montana, Utah, Washington, Oregon, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Hawaii and Alaska.

The last word on any of them—where it is, when to see it, type and prices of accommodations, means of transportation—can be obtained from the National Parks Service in Washington D. C.

Will Capitalize On Snowstorms

TALLAHASSE, Fla. AP — Florida aims to capitalize on northern snowstorms to boost tourist business.

The State Development Commission said it as made arrangements for 400 billboard-size posters to be erected in key Northern cities immediately after a heavy snowfall.

The posters present contrasting pictures of a man digging out of the snow and a happy fellow playing shuffleboard in the sun.

The posters are planned for such cities as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston. Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Washington and St. Paul.

Anthropologist Edward Weyer calls the Arunta tribesmen of central Austraila "as perfect an example of a Stone Age people as we have."

Gave Christmas Aid To About 420 Families

Capt. Earl Keagan, commander of the local Salvation Army Chapter, has announced that the organization gave aid to about 420 families in Greenville and Pitt County during the holiday season.

The aid came in the form of food baskets, toys, dolls, clothes and shoes. Many of the articles which went into the gift baskets were donated to the organization. However, more than $1,700 in cash was given to the Salvation Army with which to buy additional items for the baskets.

In commenting on the job his organization has done this year, Reagan said, "I would like to thank the Pitt Countians for their cooperation and generous contributions that enabled us to bring Christmas cheer to so many families.

The commanding officer also noted that two schools in the city, Elmhurst and the Junior High School, collected items and gave them to the Salvation Army.

"Surely this kind of spirit makes known the fact that we still have wonderful people who are interested in those less fortunate at this time of the year," Reagan added.

Granddaughter Of Sgt. York Is Enlisting Today

PALL MALL, Tenn. (AP) — A granddaughter of Sgt. Alvin C. York, the fightingest man of World War I, steals some of the spotlight from her famous old grandpa today.

Mary Elizabeth York, 18, will be inducted into the Women's Air Force in a special ceremony at the bedside of the Tennessee mountain man who won the Medal of Honor for his legendary exploits.

"I hope I can make grandpa as proud of me as I am of him," says the girl, who is called Goldie by her friends.

York, now 73 and partially paralyzed as the result of a stroke, asked to witness the induction ceremony. The Air Force agreed to hold it in his modest home in the rolling Tennessee hills.

Mary York is an unassuming girl who is giving up college plans to join the service. After the induction ceremony, Mary goes to Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio, Tex., for training.

Miss York is a 1961 graduate of Fulton High School in Knoxville, Tenn.

"She's just a nice, light-hearted girl," said Fulton Principal W. M. Davis. "She was well-liked by all the students."

Among her activities, Davis recalled, was participation in school plays and dramatics. Other than that, he said, Miss York stayed in the background.

That betrays something of her grandfather's tendencies. York was a conscientious objector, an "I don't-want-to-fight" man who, nevertheless, did fight.

It was in the Argonne on Oct. 8, 1918 that he killed 25 Germans and took 132 prisoners, including a battalion commander and three other officers.

Gen. John J. Pershing commended York as "the greatest civilian soldier of the war."

The Air Force sent Col. Robert G. Brown, area recruiting commander, from Charlotte, N.C., to direct the special induction ceremony.

Reminds Deadline On Bethel Tags

BETHEL—Police Chief Walter Gray today urged Bethel motorists to purchase and display their town license plates before the Feb. 15 deadline.

He said the ordinance ordering display of the tags by mid-February will be "strictly enforced."

The town tags, currently on sale at the town office for $1 each, can be purchased during regular office hours Monday through Saturday.

Gray estimated Bethel car owners buying the plates would number between 400 and 450.

FRUSTRATED

CARTERSVILLE, Ga. AP — Frustrated in their attempts to crack the company safe, burglars drove off with a new car parked in the show window of a local motor company. Officers recovered the car today about 10 miles away, abandoned and out of gas.

Seymour-Johnson To Get Facility

WASHINGTON (AP)— Seymour Johnson Air Force Base at Goldsboro, N. C., will get a $375,000 aircraft maintenance dock fuel facility.

Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., was informed Tuesday Army engineers have been authorized to spend $75,000 for site preparation and grading access pavements and utility lines outside the dock building.

The other $300,000 will go toward construction of the building.

Gunslingers Can Play Solitaire

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) —Western hero aspirants can play "High Noon" by themselves now.

A local firm (Taylor Engineering Co.) has produced a life-size gunslinger who challenges all comers. On command from the mechanical man, the player draws and fires his cork-shooter at the mean-looking robot.

The shooter's time is measured to the one-hundredth of a second by a timing device. The object—obviously—is to gun down the indestructible gunslinger.

He'll groan if he's hit — or his recorded voice chides the live gunman if he misses.

SOMETHING GNU

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. AP — Something new—a gnu—is due at the Jacksonville zoo today.

The gnu is an ox-headed, long-maned, long-tailed, antlered animal. It will be the first gnu at the zoo.

George Washington wore breeches of nankeen—a yellowish cloth made in Nanking, China.

Issue Kicked Around Long Enough

The lingering question of where the proposed new bridge between Morehead City and Beaufort will be located should be resolved by the State Highway Commission in order that construction on the project can be undertaken without further delay.

Announcement this week that a request for a permit to dredge in the area of one of the proposed sites for the new bridge brought speculation that the Highway Commission might have resolved the question that has been debated for more than a year now. But, according to Chairman Merrill Evans, a final decision has not been reached. The permit requested by the Commission will not be used unless the commission decides on the site nearest the old bridge for which the permit has been requested.

It was early August 1960 when the old Highway Commission appointed by Gov. Hodges gave its approval to a new bridge site slightly upstream from the present bridge location. Since that time there has been increasing pressure for moving the proposed site some 2,000 yards upstream in order to provide more room for future expansion of the state port at Morehead City. Early this year the old Highway Commission, before it left office, held another hearing on the matter of changing the site and reaffirmed its 1960 decision. Subsequently the new Highway Commission appointed by Gov. Sanford voted to have another look into the matter before making a final decision.

The question of where the bridge is going still hangs in the balance. In the meantime a much-needed project has been delayed for almost a year and a half since the initial decision of the location.

The burden is on the present Highway Commission to resolve the question of where the bridge will be located. It seems to us the new commission has had ample time to study the records on the question compiled by the old commission, and at the same time have had ample time to make their own study of the relative merits of the two proposed sites.

The matter has been kicked around long enough in the valley of indecision. It is time for the Highway Commission to make a final decision and get to work building the needed facility.

Progressing To Achievements

By LYNN NISBET

MOP-UP —When the General Assembly adjourned it was hailed by the Governor and other State leaders as one of the best and most progressive sessions in many years. It not only had levied the biggest tax bill in State history, some $75 million more than the advisory budget commission had recommended, but it had submitted to the people some $61 million in bonds for building at State institutions. Progress was on the march. The New Day had come in fact.

Meantime, Governor Sanford and his associates were busy revamping the Democratic party organization in the state. Since the death of Max Gardner in 1947 there had not been a recognized leader of the party in this state. J.M. Broughton in 1949 and William Umstead in 1954 might have earned that recognition if death had not cut them off. Early in 1961 it looked like Terry Sanford and his chosen Democratic State Chairman Bert Bennet might be building the organization on sound basis. Certainly they were spending much more money and venturing into new methods of operation.

While there was fear in some quarters that the organization might have too much of the Sanford personal "bossism" it was hailed as desirable because even at the expense of bossism recognized leadership was essential.

Opinion prevailed that the Sanford administration of State government and the Democratic party both were effectively organized and either or both could be mobilized for action on short notice. Then came the bond election of November 7. Result of that election proved that there was no effective or efficient organization of the Sanford regime or the Democratic party.

ADOPTED — The administration and the party organization adopted the $61 million bond issue as their baby. In that capacity they were acting for all the people. But in this instance the people were given the right to express opinion—and the people did not want to adopt these $61 million kids. Looking back over the events of the summer and fall it is surprising that nobody realized just how far apart were the people and the administration. It was an entirely reasonable and logical development.

Governor Sanford had come through two hotly contested primaries to obtain the Democratic nomination for Governor. Then he went through the hardest fought general election campaign in many years. Result was he was elected by the smallest percentage majority of any Governor in this century—just about 55 percent of the total vote cast in November.

Unlike Governor Hoey and Broughton, who also had come through heated primary campaigns, Governor Sanford apparently made little effort to conciliate those who had opposed him. He struck rather closely with the group of young people who had been associated in his primary campaigns.

The General Assembly was not antagonistic, but neither was it particularly friendly. There was short of a disposition to "let Terry do it." This attitude was illustrated by the fact that the Advisory Budget Commission did not offer a tax bill, but left that up to the Governor.

When the Governor presented his plan of a sales tax on food as the main source of the needed revenue for quality education it was accepted without enthusiasm—but there was no very strong fight against it. Even before its enactment, as well as since the Legislature adjourned, the food tax was commonly known as "Terry's tax."

ACHIEVEMENT — Governor Sanford's relations with the General Assembly were paradoxical. He was not personally very popular, but he came as near getting his program through as any Governor in recent years. Not only the biggest appropriation ever for public schools, but the reorganization of the highway commission, the C&D number of the faithful.

In making appointments to these positions Governor Sanford ran into trouble from two directions. The heterogenious character of his supporters made it impossible for him to satisfy all of them, and he also was accused of keeping too many holdovers. Every Governor goes through that experience, but with Sanford it seemed a little more marked than usual. Many of his original supporters turned cool, if not completely antagonistic.

In face of that situation, the achievements of the first year of the Sanford administration are noteworthy. Industrial development, which was given impetus by Governors Umstead and Hodges, moved even faster this year. Travel was recognized to greater extent that ever before as an important segment of the economy. While some of the claims made for progress in public schools can hardly be supported by experience records, there can be no doubt that the school "climate" is much better than it has been in a generation and educational opportunities have been opened up to boys and girls who had not had as good chance before.

It is appropriate at this stage to make a progress report, rather than an achievement report. One year, or in fact only part of a year, cannot afford experience upon which to base inventory of accomplishment. But—1961 with its forward movements and setbacks, its accepted verdict of trial and error on some things, has laid a foundation upon which the State of North Carolina can build in 1962 and thereafter a governmental and political structure that will survive.

More People Keeping Up With Daily Events

The growth of daily newspaper circulation in the 14 Southern States during the past eight years points up the fact that this section of the country has gained rapidly in newspaper readership and has set a pace that has surpassed the national average.

According to figures released by the U.S. Department of Commerce, daily newspaper circulation in the Southern region increased 1.8 million during the period or 13.9 per cent while the national average for daily newspapers showed a circulation increase of 8.1 per cent. In the South the net paid circulation of daily newspapers rose to the point where it equals one newspaper for every 3.72 persons, or roughly one newspaper for every family.

These figures point up the fact that the residents of Southern states, once looked upon as people who thought only of the past, are keeping up with the happenings in the nation and the world through their increased readership of daily newspapers.

In North Carolina during that period, the growth of daily newspaper circulation was second only to that in Florida as Tar Heel daily newspapers added some 154,000 subscribers to their lists. A check of the circulation records of The Daily Reflector for the period showed that the paid circulation of this newspaper during the period increased by more than 42 per cent.

The figures reflect a growing awareness among the people of the South that they are not an isolated group, but rather a vital and important part of the nation and its future. They indicate that the people of the Southern cities, small towns and rural areas are keeping up as never before with the events of the day through their daily newspaper reading. They indicate also that the daily newspapers of the region are serving a constantly increasing proportion of the citizens of the area.

No Surprises In 1962 Planning

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's plans for 1962 —as outlined to newsmen over the weekend at Palm Beach—call for no surprise and little heat.

His views are authoritatively based on discussions he has had with men close to him.

What he is reported to have said adds up to leadership but of a kind neither sensational nor original. It was that way in 1961. He apparently wants it that way.

In foreign affairs he plans a steady plugging away at policies already established and, on domestic problems, a mild and cautious attitude which some may think too mild and overly cautious.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk once remarked to people around him that he does not want to be judged on the merit of some particular action but, when he is through, on the over-all value of events, past and ahead, seems to have pretty much the same view.

While Premier Khrushchev at 67 is 23 years Kennedy's senior, it is the older man who sounds like a romantic, the younger, the one without illusions.

While Khrushchev has predicted the triumph of communism like a man taking pep pills, Kennedy has repeatedly regarded the East-West struggle as long, bleak and rugged.

This showed up again in the Palm Beach reports which said he thinks the balance of power is on the side of the West — but perhaps only marginally.

Over the long run, he thinks the West can keep the margin but not so much as to have full freedom of action.

Otherwise, what came out of Palm Beach on his thinking about foreign affairs can be boiled down to this: That this country will follow the Truman-Eisenhower policy of aiding newly emerged nations, neutrals included, to help them stay free of Moscow. It will keep strong militarily and stand with its allies.

In other words: he'll keep on doing in 1962 what he did in 1961.

At home this year, as last, he has to deal with a Congress where, although his own Democrats are in a majority, the prevailing mood is and has been conservative.

His own performance last year, in dealing with Congress, was pretty conservative, too. He did not fight hard enough for his programs to make anyone very mad at home.

His own explanation for this may have been revealed at Palm Beach: that while he considers his administration progressive, his progressive aims are tempered by reality.

This could mean he did not spend time fighting Congress for something he didn't think would be approved or that he did not want to make so many people mad at him on one issue that they would gang up to block him on something else.

This, the Palm Beach stories indicate, will be his policy for 1962 also.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

NOW IS THE TIME

"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them . . ."

Thus begins the last chapter of the Book of Ecclesiastes. Many have judged the writer of this book to be a cynic. The truth is that he was a most admirable realist. He looked life full in the face. He saw both its advantages and its disadvantages. He knew there was evil among men that the passing centuries had not eliminated. He was conscious of injustice in the world. He saw many things in human life to love and admire and many things to criticize and denounce.

But his summing up of the whole matter was an appeal to have faith in God the Creator. The author of Ecclesiates believed that there was much vanity, or futility, in life but his conclusion of the whole matter was: "Fear God and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man."

The truly religious man is always realistic. He is conscious of the sin and injustice which characterize human life. But he believes in the power and over-arching love of God. No matter how badly his own fortunes go. No matter how much he has to take of pain, disappointment, frustration, and the hateful treatment of hateful men, nevertheless his faith remains firm in God.

"Remember," he cries. "Remember now thy Creator. . ." The word "now" is important. The future is fraught with uncertainty.

One Cure: Be A Hermit

Do you have headaches (the head kind)?

We've stumbled upon an interesting piece of information which, if you are a headache club member, you have heard something about before, perhaps, but there's some added information, too.

We are told these little monsters are caused by too much concentration on anything for too long a time, including dwelling on an emotional conflict in other words, worry.

Other related causes of headaches might be not changing positions often enough, or remaining so intense that muscles are tense for a time and become strained and protest.

Then comes that dull, steady pain across the forehead or in the back of the neck . . . headache.

Changing positions and relaxing may help relieve the sad feeling. Or a bath and massage of the back of the shoulders and neck may be helpful.

Our source of information (American School News) says, of course, serious headaches may be warning of illness.

However, we read that most Americans have about six headaches a year painful enough to seek remedy at the medicine cabinet. In this case, we have deduced that there are a lot of Americans who don't have headaches at all and we make up for the deficit.

Probably one of the best investments should be in headache pain relievers.

About 70 per cent of all headaches are due to tension (muscle contraction).

To continue, the best way to relieve headaches, the tension kind, is to avoid whatever is causing the tension.

One is supposed to avoid useless worry, since worry makes one tired and tense (with headaches) and seldom solves anything.

Avoidance of headaches can be facilitated by developing tolerance and by trying to understand people better.

Also, reducing the day's work can help rid the headache nuisance. Ah, here's a good suggestion that might get one fired. Over-concentration on a job can lead to a headache.

Take a positive attitude.

While we agree with all of this, we might add that we have yet to meet a person who didn't ever worry about something, and while it does no good you can't get rid of worry.

Simply, we have deduced from all of this that to avoid headache you must avoid tension. This you may do by withdrawing from people and noises of everyday life, and by quitting your job and becoming a hermit.

Good luck.

Trade Unionism Decline

(Charleston (W.Va.) Daily Mail)

It is no secret that the union business is not what it used to be. Both absolutely, in total membership, and relatively as a proportion of the growing labor force, the giants of the labor movement are a little less gigantic. Just what is wrong is the subject of an interesting pamphlet, "The Decline of the Labor Movement," by Solomon Barkin, research director for the Textile Workers Union of America.

The primary cause of this decline is not the overt hostility of employers, although many employers are less than friendly. Rather, "the major cause of attrition in union membership has been the shrinkage of employment in the organized industries." Apparently Mr. Barkin is talking about the coal, steel and automobile industries, once the greenest fields for union expansion and now a declining source of membership. In every case automation is most widespread in the industries where unionism was most militant and most successful in compelling the acceptance of its demands.

But, of course, this is not all. Mr. Barkin is coolly objective in defining the other sources of the decline in unionism — The dwindling of widespread social discontent, The success of management in beating the unions at their own game (wages, hours and working conditions), The scandals which have swept over some segments of the movement (the Hoffas have been less than helpful), etc.

What it amounts to is that the unions, by and large, have overplayed their hand. Mr. Barkin says almost as much when he observes: "Many of the current leaders recognize that while the government can remove impediments, restrain the anti-unionists, and re-affirm the right and propriety of organization, the basic remedies (for the decline) must be developed within the movement."

—Good Ol' Gov'ment—

(The Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune)

Hardly had news of the Colorado school bus disaster reached Washington before the Interstate Commerce Commission announced that it was rushing a man from Washington to investigate. "Such tragedies point up the importance of prompt investigations," the communique stated piously.

Here is a classic example of bureaucracy in action. The sheriff's office of Weld County, Colo. and the Colorado State Police are busy investigating the crash. The train was on the track and the track had been there for about 80 years. The road had crossed the track ever since the road was built. The driver had crossed the track on the road at approximately the same time each morning as long as the driver had been driving.

Certainly the State of Colorado and Weld County ought to be able to determine whether the train failed to whistle or the bus brakes failed or the driver simply doped off. The state has the exclusive police power to punish negligence and to require flashing signals or gates if these are deemed necessary. What the emissary from Washington can accomplish at a cost of several hundred dollars to the taxpayers is not clear. We hope he brought his skis because after he has copied the official findings of officers on the spot there is fun to be had in the mountains.

U.S. Losing In One Big Export

By ELMER ROESSNER

One of the greatest dangers to the three-day old 1962 boom is that the United States is exporting factories and jobs.

It is also exporting its gold, its silver and—in a sense—its topsoil. Rarely in history has any nation given so much of itself.

We are exporting factories. To with the idea that we can buy love—a theory any trollop can deflate.

We are ejporting factories. To be sure, we do not crate an American factory and put each part in a numbered box, as William Randolph Hearst did when he imported castles from Spain to California.

But we export factories when an American corporation, instead of establishing a new unit in the United States, sets up a production unit in Germany, Japan, or wherever else in the world it appears profitable.

GOVERNMENT TO BLAME

The corporation is usually not to blame under these circumstances. It is forced into its action by labor unions and the government.

If it costs, say .39 cents to make a component in New York, the same component may be made for 3.9 cents in Tokyo (by girls getting $26 a month). And the tax burden on the Japan factory may be a lot less than the levy on an American factory.

Let's not be nasty to the Nipponese. The same ratios, in varying degrees, occur wherever factories are built.

And taxes on the more handsome profits abroad may be less or may be long postponed.

Some American corporations have established subsidiaries or branches abroad to make parts or entire assemblies which are then sent back to the United States. Just how many companies are doing this, to what extent they are doing it, and in which countries it is being done is hard to determine from available data. Perhaps this would be an interesting subject for some Congressional committee.

JOBS EXPORTED, TOO

When a factory is exported, jobs are also exported; that is, when an electronics manufacturer sets up a Japanese subsidiary to manufacture transistors, a number of Americans lose employment opportunities, a number of Japanese gain them.

This is also true when the United States allows the easy import of goods by purely foreign manufacturers. Every imported car, for instance, represents a certain amount of work Americans did not have but which auto workers abroad gained.

Of course, international trade is a give-and-take business. The United States must import foreign goods if it expects foreign nations to buy our exports. But the exchange must be kept in some sort of balance. If we buy more than we sell, we not only export jobs but we also export gold, for the difference must be made up by giving the ownership of gold to foreign nations.

IMBALANCE CAN AFFECT BOOM

We have been exporting silver, too, but silver is more of a commodity than a currency backing. Actually, by exporting silver we can regain some of our gold.

If these exports of factories and jobs become excessive, the imbalances they cause can take the steam out of our economic machinery.

We don't, by the way, actually export topsoil. But the grains and other farm products we give away or sell at bargain prices constitutes a loss to the extent that their growth has depleted the soil.

Not So Simple An Idea

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Carlyle Hall of Springfield, Illinois, has a solution to the political, social and economic problems of mankind. All the world's statesmen have not hit on his formula but to him it comes easily. This is what he says:

"Tell me why all civilized nations now members of the United Nations, could not get together, and agree on one universal language, and require this to be taught in all their schools, in addition to their native language, to enable the rising generation within a few years in all nations to intelligently converse with one another.

"If through the United Nations this could be brought about, along with other things that they do, I believe it would be the most outstanding thing that the world has ever seen.

"This to me seems so simple and so important, can you tell me why it is not attempted, and worked out?"

Years ago, a colonel about to retire from the American Army in the Philippines came up to Shanghai to propose a solution to all the problems that faced the Chinese. He said that the Chinese had nearly 100 dialects which kept the Chinese in confusion because they could not talk to each other. Why, he asked, did they not drop Chinese and make English their language? I asked why not drop English and adopt Chinese as our language? Also, why English and not French or Russian?

That only annoyed him. He had undoubtedly spent years thinking out this problem. It never occurred to him that if all the Chinese became dumb and could not speak to each other at all maybe they would have no problems.

This generation has forgotten Dr. Zamenhof who came from Warsaw and gave the world Esperanto. He invented a new language. If the 2,000,000,000 human beings on Earth spoke to each other in Esperanto, they would understand each other better.

But it turned out that the better we understand each other, the less we like each other. It used to be that nobody understood the hundred or so dialects of India, most of them being local corruptions of Sanskrit. But now that the Indians have come to the United Nations and can hear all kinds of languages they not only want to quarrel with each other but with all the world.

Or look at China which has more languages than any nation on Earth, and for thousands of years the various races of China got along well enough together, having little wars but none of them amounting to too much, up to the Taiping Rebellion which decimated an enormous part of the people of China. But now the Chinese have attempted to have one language, Kwan Hua, or as the ignorant foreigners call it, Mandarin, and they have not only tried to exterminate each other but are fighting everybody in Asia.

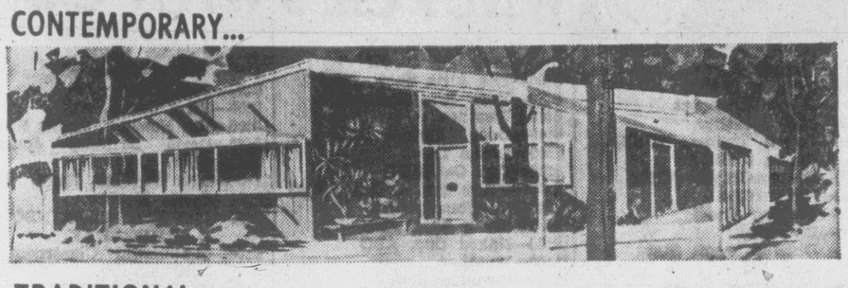

It is curious that the better we understand each other, the more we dislike each other. George Bernard Shaw was so prejudiced against women that he regarded them as equal to men. Shaw was cruel, for what man would have his hair dyed each season for no better reason than that a new shade had become fashionable; or what man would paint his finger nails various colors except a savage warrior or an American Indian to indicate a tribal mark? Surely no man since the time of Louis XIV would wear the kinds of heels that are now fashionable among women which involve the risk of the heel breaking off and hurling the woman forward or making her walk ungracefully as though on stilts.

Far be it from me to be anti-female. In fact, I am so much pro that my wife often tells me to be my age which strikes me as utterly ridiculous. Why would anyone want to be his age if he can possibly be younger and gayer? But that is not the point. What we are talking about is that some folks find a simple solution to all problems which brings them great happiness except that the solutions do not work out.

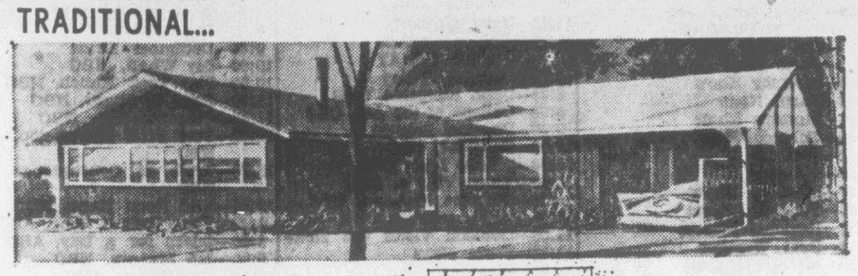

Imagine if all the world spoke German what a guttural would prevail. And even German is divided into dozens of dialects depending upon lisps and low or high pronunciations. I once knew something about quite a few languages but I had a hard time convincing a young lady that I really understood her in each.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG

AP Newsfeatures

There's more to buying a house than being satisfied with the house you're buying.

You may like the looks of the house, you may approve its construction features, you may be pleased with the amount of storage space, you may feel that it has many expansion advantages. But you won't get long-lasting satisfaction from your new home unless you first have taken into account other factors that constitute a good purchase.

Will you, for instance, be satisfied with the type of community you'll be in? This is easy to determine when you are buying into an old, established neighborhood. It's not difficult to determine whether a neighborhood will suit you. Asking questions and looking around will provide you with the answers.

Return to the area several times, during the day, at night, on weekends, in fair weather and foul. If you have children, be sure there are other children nearby. Are the schools and churches convenient? How about shopping areas? Are community features, such is recreational facilities, important to you?

Ease of commuting is vital to some persons. Many men have commuted long distances for years with no regrets. They're willing to spend extra time traveling in order to live in a neighborhood which is good for their family. But some men—and women—regard commuting as a major nuisance. If they buy a house in an out-of-the-way place against their better judgment or because someone has talked them into it, they soon regret it.

Then there's another factor that is a bit difficult to define. It has something to do with emotional appeal. It's what you feel about a house the first time you look at it. It's what makes you say almost instantly, "That's for me."

Above all, there's the matter of cost. A recent survey of home buyers in a metropolitan area showed that 73 per cent of them listed cost as their most important consideration. And rightly so. That emotional appeal we mentioned comes into the act at this point. Sometimes you fall in love with a particular house, but can't really afford it or think you can't. That's the time to sit down with a pencil and paper and figure out what's what. If it's a new house, you may have certain landscaping expenses or you may not, depending on what is included in the sale. If you buy an older house, you have to consider the cost of maintenance, not only that which has to be done but that which you may decide to do on your own.

One last point. Somewhere along the line you're going to have to compromise. Rarely does anybody ever get everything in a house, neighborhood and price that he wants. You'll have to give a little here and there. Make up your mind to that, being certain you get most of the things you want, and you'll be a lot happier with your choice.

REVIVED RETRIEVER

CUTLER, Maine (AP) — As a Coast Guardsman, Ken Ashby knows how to apply artificial respiration on humans. He had never tried it on a dog, but that was before his pet Labrador fell into the water and apparently drowned. Ashby placed the dog's body on an oil barrel and gently rolled it back and forth. The dog was fully revived in an hour.

Healing Service Planned Thursday

The monthly healing service held at St. Paul's Church will be conducted tomorrow, Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. This is a regular event for the first Thursday in each month. The service is held in the church and is open to persons of all faiths.

The Rector, the Rev. John W. Drake, Jr., will offer a meditation on St. Mark 7:24.30 as a portion of the service. In a very informal service prayers will be offered for healing and health; Hymns will be sung about the strengthening grace of Jesus Christ; intercessions for the sick will lift up their names before God; the ministration of the laying on of hands will be proferred to those assembled. These persons can come for their own need or in behalf of others.

War Over Berlin Seen Less Likely

An AP News Analysis

By EUGENE KRAMER

BERLIN (AP)—East-West war over Berlin appears less likely than a year ago but look for new periods of crisis and tension ahead.

That seems to be the feeling of both Berliners and some Western officials.

Two reasons are heard why war seems more remote than in 1961.

One is that Soviet Premier Khrushchev apparently takes more seriously than he did a year ago Western determination to defend West Berlin and its access routes. Khrushchev has withdrawn his deadline for signing a peace treaty with Communist East Germany and has not rattled his missiles recently.

The other reason is that the status quo in Berlin is more bearable to the Communists than the situation that existed a year ago.

Then thousands of refugees each month, including many technicians, teachers and students, were pouring out of East Germany through West Berlin. The satellite regime was threatened with collapse.

The Communists raised their border wall through the heart of the city in August. That dammed the tide of refugees to a trickle, solving their most critical problem.

Some quarters expect new tension over Berlin early this year, particularly if the Communists find the West firmly opposed to concessions in the diplomatic probe now starting.

Some observers believe negotiations over Berlin could be long delayed in starting or break down along the way.

The Communists then could be counted upon to boist tension. The easiest way to manufacture a new crisis would be for the East Germans to harass traffic along the access routes to West Berlin across East German territory, or to interfere further with traffic between East and West Berlin.

The Western Allies do not recognize the East German regime as a legitimate government. They insist that the Soviet Union take full responsibility for the satellite's actions. Moscow, in its campaign to get East Germany recognized, shows increasing reluctance to do this.

Some observers predict any new Berlin crisis will include a strong Communist pitch to the growing bloc of neutral and African Asian countries. The Reds would try to shift complete blame for the new threat to war on the Allies and create new pressure for the West to make concessions to avert war.

Became Violent On Cruise Liner

NEW YORK (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest — reportedly attacked and injured by a berserk New York City policeman — was assisted off the cruise liner Gripsholm as it arrived Tuesday and was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital.

The victim, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John McClafferty, 55, was serving as temporary chaplain on the Swedish American Line ship on its 13-day cruise to Haiti and back. He is a teacher at Catholic University, Washington, D.C.

The priest, who had 12 stitches in his scalp, was reported in satisfactory condition at the hospital.

The ship's master, Capt. Carl O. Wijkmark, identified the priest's assailant as Patrolman John J. O'Connor Jr. of New York City, one of 452 passengers aboard.

O'Connor, 33, was transferred from the Grisholm to a Coast Guard ship Monday off Morehead City, N.C., and taken ashore, after the liner's captain radioed for help for the policeman "for his own safety."

O'Connor was reported to be in Norfolk, Va., General Hospital.

Wijkmark said at a news conference here that O'Connor became violent when the liner was eight hours out of Port au Prince, Haiti, on the return trip. When the priest attempted to calm O'Connor, the policeman attacked him, the captain said.

ICONS EXHIBITED

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Nine important Russian icons, paintings of traditional religious subjects, collected by the late Joseph E. Davies when he was ambassador to Russian in the late 1930's, have been placed on exhibition at the Milwaukee Art Center.

Network Bars Popular Quartet

NEW YORK (AP) — A folk-singing quartet was barred from appearing Tuesday night on the National Broadcasting Co. Jack Paar television program because its members refused to sign loyalty oaths, an NBC spokesman said.

Milton Brown, manager of program publicity for NBC, said the action was taken after members of the group, "The Weavers," declined to sign statements that they were not members of the Communist party.

Brown said that when questions arise concerning such associations, "NBC seeks to obtain the information as to the facts from the performers themselves."

"Two of the present four members of the signing group known as the 'The Weavers'," Brown continued, "have refused to testify before a congressional committee on this matters."

Fred Hellerman, member spokesman for the quartet, said he and another member, Lee Hays, had invoked the Fifth Amendment at congressional inquiries.

Other members of the quartet are Ronnie Gilbert and Erik Darling.

Hellerman said the group's decision not to sign the NBC statement was unanimous.

"We resent the indignity that such a request implies," he said. "Moreover, we feel strongly that no private business establishment such as NBC has the power or the right to require proof of a citizen's patriotism."

Castro Shows Off Armed Forces And New Weapons

HAVANA AP—Backed by modern Soviet-bloc weapons and Latin America's fastest air force, Fidel Castro says his armed forces await any new invasion "with a smile on our lips."

The Cuban prime minister showed off his new military equipment Tuesday at a parade marking the third anniversary of his victory over the Batista dictatorship. He said that "Yankee imperialism" was the sole reason for Cuba's rearmament.

Highlights of the parade were three Communist-made MIG19 jets which swept overhead with a flight of 18 MIG15s or improved MIG17s.

The three swept-wing MIG19s are the fastest planes known to be operating in any Latin American air force. A ripple of pride and excitement swelled through the crowd as the jets roared over Havana's Jose Marti Square.

The MIGs are believed to have been piloted by Cubans who recently completed flight training in Czechoslovakia.

Castro said his forces have been much improved since they defeated the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba last April.

"We are not a warmonger," he said. "We do not want to use these arms. But we shall fight (if attacked) with a fierceness unimagined by our enemies. We We will exterminate them. We await the invaders with a smile on our lips."

The Cuban leader assailed his critics in other Latin countries, especially Presidents Romolo Betancourt of Venezuela and Alberto Lleras Camargo of Colombia, whom he called "murderers of workers, peasants and students."

Addressing himself to fellow Latins, Castro said: "Brothers, mobilize against any eventuality. The stupider they (the United States) act, the faster the hour of liberation approaches." The crowd roared approval.

Castro announced he is calling a "national assembly" of hundreds of thousands of Cubans on Jan. 22, the date the American foreign ministers meet in Uruguay to consider the danger posed by Cuba to the Western Hemisphere.

He said the mass rally will proclaim a second declaration of Havana to "show the imperialists our decision to fight and show (Latin American) puppets this is a decisive and heroic people."

The first declaration approved by the roar of a crowd in July 1960, repudiated Cuba's mutual defense treaty with the United States.

President To Confer With Top Lawmakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy plans to sit down with leaders of both parties early next week to seek bipartisan support for some of the major proposals he will lay before Congress.

Chief topic at a breakfast now being arranged by the White House will be the President's forthcoming request for broad executive authority to negotiate tariffs in dealing with the European Common Market.

Kennedy hopes for Republican as well as Democratic backing for this program. He also wants to enlist broad support for foreign aid, an issue sharpened by developments in India and the Congo.

The President apparently feels, too, that there is some basis to believe that he can get some Republican aid in his efforts to get Congress to approve a program of medical care for the elderly, financed through the Social Security System.

Kennedy's move to bring the Republicans in for a chat indicates that, despite the approaching congressional elections of November, he would like to avoid a cat-and-dog political fight in the new session of Congress.

House Minority Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana has given no sign that he would be a party to any peace pact with the Democrats.

Even if the President gains some bipartisan support, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., predicted in an interview that the biggest fight of the new session will come over the international trade program.

Humphrey, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, served notice that he is not satisfied with the way things are going now in American dealings with the Common Market nations.

"I don't think the State Department experts are protecting the agricultural interests of this country," he said. "The French and the Germans are getting together in proposals to keep U.S. exports out of the market. Our farmers are getting dealt out."

Humphrey said that products which may be shut out of the Common Market unless some steps are taken swiftly include rice, vegetable oils, feed grains, wheat, citrus and poultry. He noted that U.S. exports of farm products to Western Europe reached $2 billion last year.

In another interview, House Majority Leader John W. McCormack, D-Mass., said he expected early congressional action on Kennedy's tariff proposals.

McCormack said he believes Congress also will approve legislation dealing with tax legislation, medical care for the elderly, creation of a department of urban affairs, manpower retraining and postal rate increases. He said a determined effort will be made to enact a general school aid bill.

All His Cash Was In Pennies

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The fine for parking his car in a no-parking zone came to $15, the police clerk told Michael Munjak, 18, who nodded, then plumped a plastic bag filled with pennies on the desk. It weighed 9½ pounds.

"It's all the available cash I have," said Munjak. It took Munjak and a companion an hour and 45 minutes to count out the $15.

Shrink Painful Piles With "REMEDEX"

New Medicated Formula Relieves Pain and Shrinks Hemorrhoids With Prompt Action and Fast Results

NEW YORK, N. Y. (Special) — Medical science has discovered a medical formula which is compounded like a doctor's prescription for quick relief of pain of simple piles and which shrinks the hemorrhoids at the same time, without surgery.

Internal and external relief in one case after another is reported with the use of this new medical discovery called REMEDEX, which is now available at all drug stores. Many people have indicated that REMEDEX has brought relief where so many ordinary ointments and other medications have failed to do so.

REMEDEX contains several medically-proved ingredients, compounded to a most exacting formula prescription, each of which quickly acts to stop pain and itching, to reduce swelling and to promote healing.

Although this new formula is available only in the form of suppositories, it may be used as an ointment simply by softening them in the palm of your hand.

Complete instructions appear on every package. Ask for REMEDEX at your drug store, and for complete satisfaction do not accept any substitutes. Results guaranteed or your money refunded.

CHAPTER 21

On Monday afternoon Lee Folsom looked up from her desk as Martin Whitfield came striding in. His eyes were cool and unfriendly, and his manner was as abrupt as it had been when she had first met him.

Her heart sank a little, but she gave him a friendly smile and a pleasant greeting and motioned him to the chair beside her desk.

"How's it going at Oakland?" she asked, as he dropped into the chair and regarded her, unsmiling.

"Oh, fine, fine," he answered. "I understand your office handles rentals for the Grayson Apartments."

"Yes, we do."

"I also understand there's a vacancy there."

"The second floor front."

"Furnished?"

"Oh, yes, completely furnished. And with maid service, of course. All the amenities for gracious living," Lee's voice held a faint tone of surprise.

"Good," said Martin brusquely. "I'd like a year's lease on it, please."

Lee stared at him. "A year's lease? But I thought you planned to use the cottage at Oakland until the main house was livable."

Martin regarded her unsmilingly.

"Oh, the apartment is not for me," he stated flatly. "It's for Holly Eastman and her mother. They're not very comfortable at the hotel; they're not accustomed to hotel life. 'm sure they will like the apartment at the Grayson."

"They should," Lee said bitingly. "It's the finest and most luxurious apartment in town, which is why it happens to be vacant. Lewisville people can't really afford luxury apartments like that. The builders went bankrupt, and now the bank owns it."

Martin brought out his checkbook.

"I'll give you a year's rental in advance, and you can draw up a lease," he told her. "I think it would be best if Mrs. Eastman signed the lease, don't you? It would make her feel more at home, something she hasn't been allowed to feel since she left Oakland."

Lee blinked, gave him the figure for a year's rent, and Martin wrote swiftly, ripped out the check and dropped it on her desk.

"Mrs. Eastman will be in this afternoon to sign the lease," he said curtly. "I take it they may move in immediately?"

"Right this moment, if they want to," Lee told him.

"Good!" said Martin, and for a moment she thought he was going to leave it at that. And then suddenly he burst out, "Lee, I could not believe it of you, that you could be so ruthless, so call us, so spiteful."

Lee's head went up and her eyes chilled.

"Now wait a minute," she flashed.

"No, you wait." Martin's tone was rough. "You don't deny that you were lying in wait for them when they came back from Atlanta, to throw them into the street?"

"I was acting at Miss Cora's instructions," Lee said between her teeth.

"Miss Cora? That's the old dragon of an aunt that's been begrudging them every bite they ate, every breath they drew under her dilapidated roof? She must be a charming old creature! I'd like to meet her sometime. I've never met a witch!"

Lee was seething with outrage, but she forced herself to keep her voice steady.

"I'll see to it that you do meet Miss Cora, at the first opportunity, so you can apologize to her in person for misjudging her."

"Are you trying to tell me that Holly would lie about her aunt?"

It was all Lee could do to keep from flashing out at him, "Holly would lie about her mother; if she thought she could get away with it!" Instead she held her breath, mentally counted to ten, and managed a steady answer.

"If Holly told you Miss Cora was a witch, then I'm afraid Holly was handling the truth very carelessly," she said evenly. "I'm sorry that you feel this way. After all, Miss Cora needed help. Uncle John is her legal advisor. He is out of town for a few days, and she begged me to help her get Holly and Mimi to leave. Since they had some money, Miss Cora felt they were in a position to find some other place to live. She could no longer support them."

"And you didn't stop to ask them whether they had a penny to their names? You just ordered them out of the house, without a moment's warning."

Lee smiled very thinky. "Oh, they said they'd go out to Oakland and live with you at the cottage," she answered sweetly.

Martin looked startled. "Oh, but the cottage isn't finished yet! I'm still at the hotel. And when I came back Saturday afternoon, they were sitting there waiting for me, Holly in tears and Mrs. Eastman almost hysterical."

Lee nodded, so clearly could she see the carefully staged scene.

Martin eyed her oddly, as though he hoped to read the thoughts behind her carefully composed face.

"I checked them in at the hotel, of course, as my guests," he went on after a moment. "But I knew they could not be comfortable living in the hotel, so I set about trying to find an apartment for them. The Grayson was their choice."

"Naturally." Lee could not keep back the dry comment. "It's the best in town."

"Fortunately, there was a vacancy," Martin went on after a moment. "I checked with Dalton at the bank, and he sent me to you as the rental agent. So that's that."

"Yes, it is, isn't it?" Lee agreed tautly. "I hope they will be very happy there."

"I see no call for your sarcasm," said Martin sharply.

"Don't you?" Lee's tone was mocking. "You will, my friend, you will."

Martin was standing now. He leaned on her desk, looking down at her as though he saw her for the first time and wasn't at all charmed by what he saw.

"You really are an amazing woman, Lee," he said thoughtfully. "Nobody in the world could have convinced me that you were malicious, spiteful, callous—"

"Really?" Lee managed a smile that was little more than a grimace. "Except Holly, of course. She seems to have done a fine job of that."

Martin, for the first time, looked faintly uncertain.

"If there are any extenuating circumstances that justify your behavior toward them, Lee—"

Lee shook her head.

"From their viewpoint—and, obviously from yours, too—there are none," she stated flatly. "They were parked with Miss Cora, and they wouldn't budge, and she was afraid of them."

Martin snapped incredulously, "Afraid of them? That's the most ridiculous thing I ever heard. Why should she be?"

Lee made a gesture of dismissal.

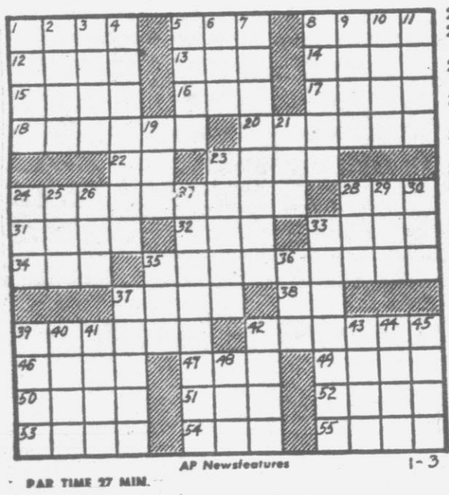

"That is something I'm afraid I can't explain, and even if I could, you wouldn't understand," she told him wearily. "Shall we just drop it? I'll have the lease ready for Mimi's signature this afternoon. She and Holly can move in now, if they like. Here are the keys."

Lee is at a loss for words when Kermit Dalton calls her on the phone. Continue the story here tomorrow.

Atomic Machine Business Is Good

OTTAWA, AP — The Canadian government is in the business of making atomic machines — and business is good.

Forty salesmen seek markets for the Commercial Products Division of Atomic Energy of Canada, Ltd., owned by the people. Products are sold in 57 countries. Export sales this fiscal year are expected to exceed $4 million.

The main revenue producer is the cobalt-60 beam therapy unit, a machine developed in Canada in 1951 to treat cancer patients. Canada at one time had the world market to itself for these machines. It now competes with 30 producers, mainly in the United States, Britain, Italy, Japan and West Germany.

Since its establishment in 1952, the division has sold 258 therapy units in 39 countries. The United States has been the best customer, taking 92 machines. The mainland Chinese have bought seven, the Soviet Union two and Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Poland one apiece.

Equipment for subjecting materials to gamma radiation also is sold, along with isotopes used in industry, medicine, agriculture and research.

Airlines Achieve Third Best Safety Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — The scheduled airlines achieved in 1960 a flight safety record bettered only twice since flying became a major industry.

The Civil Aeronautics Board's Bureau of Safety, reporting this Tuesday, said preliminary 1961 figures indicated a fatality rate, on the U.S. international and domestic airlines, of 0.29 deaths for each 100 million passenger miles.

This was the tenth consecutive year of a fatality rate of less than 1 per 100 million passenger miles. It compared with the 1960 fatality rate of 0.75.

Passenger deaths on the scheduled airlines totaled 150, including one person on the ground struck by a propeller.

The safest year for the airlines in recent times was 1954 with a fatality rate of 0.07. Next best was 1957 with 0.21.

Highway Body Is Not Yet Decided On Bridge Site

RALEIGH (AP)— Will the new Morehead City-to-Beaufort bridge be located close to the present bridge between the two towns?

State Highway Commission Chairman Merrill Evans said Wednesday no decision has been made by the commission but he confirmed that the commission has requested a special dredging permit.

He said the commission had applied to the Army Corps of Engineers for a permit for dredging to remove 400,000 cubic yards of sand and sludge in Calico Creek, Newport River and Gallant's Channel near the present bridge.

The seven - member highway commission under Gov. Hodges' administration voted to locate the new bridge almost beside the existing structure. The new 19-member highway commission voted last summer to study whether to locate the new bridge close to the present structure or some 2,000 feet farther north.

Rhodesia Says 21 Rioters Dead

LUSAKA, Northern Rhodesia (AP)— The government reported Tuesday night that 21 Africans were killed in operations against "rioters, intimidators, arsonists and saboteurs" led by the African nationalist United National Independence party in Northern Rhodesia last year.

The official report denied allegations by the party, led by Kenneth Kuanda, that security forces committed rape, engaged in atrocities and killed hundreds of persons from July to the end of October during nationalist disturbances in northern provinces.

Capricious Sea Lion Appeared, And Disappears

OCEAN CITY, N.J. (AP)—Candy, the capricious sea lion, has appeared — and disappeared—again.

The animal who has been playing hide-and-seek with humans since Christmas flapped its flippers at the dock of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Noone Tuesday.

The Noones knew what the sea lion expected. It had first appeared at their dock last Thursday and eagerly accepted a fish handout.

They followed the same procedure Tuesday. They rushed out and bought $7.50 worth of fish for their voracious visitor. Then they made a quick telephone call to Al Sheridan of Island Park, N.Y.

Sheridan, a fisherman and boat builder, had read about the friendly sea lion and he said it was probably his pet, Candy. Sheridan said that Candy, whose appetite for fish is boundless, disappeared into the Atlantic Ocean two months ago when a school of his favorite food swam by.

He said his pet apparently has been wandering tramp-style up and down the Jersey coast accepting free lunches.

Sheridan climbed into his station wagon and headed for Ocean City as soon as he received the Noone's call. Back at the dock, the animal gulped through the fish dinner supplied by the Noones.

When Sheridan arrived, he took a handful of fish and went to the dock to try and persuade the happy-go-lucky sea lion to return to domesticity.

But Candy, if it was Candy, also is contrary. It took one look at Sheridan and plunged back into the salt water.

"It looked like my sea lion." Sheridan said.

The Coast Guard offered aid to the disconsolate Sheridan. It supplied a boat which carried Sheridan and the Noones up and down the lagoon, beaming a searchlight under the docks. . .o sea lion was found.

Townspeople say the sea lion probably was the "Christmas seal" that arrived in North Wildwood, 15 miles south of here, the day before Christmas and accepted a fish handout before paddling away.

Tells Of Plan To Dominate Africa

BONN, Germany, AP—A young African just returned from years of study behind the Iron Curtain says he was told in Moscow of a plan to bring Africa under Communist rule within 20 years.

Madhi Ismael, who represented Somali trade unions in Communist bloc countries, told a reporter that this information came from Mukhedin Bakhitov, general secretary of the Soviet Afro-Asian Solidarity Committee, and Lev Soukhanov, a member of the solidarity committee.

"We still have a chance to save Africa from communism but in 10 or 15 years it may be too late," said Ismael, who is 23. He and five other Somali students were expelled from Czechoslovakia last month.

Ismael said he had been attracted to communism while studying on a scholarship in London in 1957. He became a candidate for party membership and was offered a scholarship too study in Czechoslovakia.

"After studying economics and political planning for four years, I came to realize that communism has no place in Africa," Ismael said.

"In Somali we fought the British and French imperialists but now I have learned that the Communists are the greatest imperialists. They are the worst."

Ismael said more than 200 young Somali Communists are studying in Moscow, 40 are in Peiping, 38 in East Germany and 5 to 10 in Poland. These Communists, he asserted are to form the cadre for Communist expansion in East Africa.

The West German government has granted Ismael's companion's one-year scholarships to study German and then will give them further aid to study at a German university.

Ismael asserts he plans to go home "to become an anti-Communist politician."

Won't Carry Gun, Loses City Job

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP)— Robert Gill, 29, who refuses to carry a firearm because of religious convictions, has lost his job with the Johnstown fire department because he refused to accept a transfer to the city's police force.

Gill, a member of the Church of the Brethren, said it was a church ruling and a personal conviction that members of his faith should not bear firearms in police work and military service.

City officials had transferred Gill and three other firemen to the police force as special officers because of a new administrative policy.

Cuban Officials Excommunicated

VATICAN CITY (AP)— A high Vatican prelate said today that Fidel Castro and certain officials of his regime have fallen under automatic excommunication.

Archbishop Dino Staffa, a leading expert on canon law in the Vatican secretariat of state, said excommunication had been incurred by Castro and all Cuban officials responsible for "impeding and imprisoning" Roman Catholic bishops in Cuba.

First Win Of Season For Greenville

Phantoms Down Tarboro 79-73

By GEORGE BRYANT
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's basketball Phantoms captured their first victory of the season last night by defeating the Tarboro Tigers 79-73 in a Northeastern Conference battle.

The biggest margin the Phantoms had at any one time during the game was 12 points. The first 12-point lead came early in the second quarter on a layup by Billy James making the score 34-22. From here on out the lead varied from six points to 12.

DOWN WITH THE REBOUND . . . Tarboro's Billy Freuler (31) grabs a rebound as Greenville's Kenneth Joyner (22) loses out. Freuler led the conference scoring race at the beginning of the week with a 23.3 average.

Phants Lead At Half

Greenville was leading at halftime 45-33, but Tarboro came back a fired-up team and looked like they might pull ahead when the Phantoms failed to pick up a rebound for a short time. However, it did not take the Phants long to get back in the swing of things, making it tough on the Tigers.

In the first half the local boys took an early lead and kept it for the first two minutes of the contest when Tarboro managed to pull ahead, but not for long. The Greenville boys had the lead back in short order when they moved in front 14-12 with three minutes left in the first quarter. The lead came on two free throws by Rodney Knowles. The 6-foot 7-inch sophomore came right back to the foul line and hit two more shots moving the local ahead 16-12. From this point on the Tigers were never able to pull ahead again.

Greenville Keeps Margin

During the third quarter both teams scored the same amount of points so the Phantoms held their 12 point halftime lead as the final stanza got underway. During this quarter Knowles did most of the scoring for the locals with 12 of the 15 points scored.

About midway through the final period of the contest it looked like Tarboro was going to move ahead, but the Phantoms did not let this happen. This final stanza was probably the hardest and fastest quarter of the night. Both teams were really moving.

Confusion

With one second left on the clock there was some confusion on the part of both teams. The score was 79-71 in favor of Greenville. The officials had a Greenville boy on the line with a one and one situation, which both teams thought was a two-shot foul.

The first shot was missed and the players seemed to be waiting for the second shot. However, a quick-thinking Tarboro player saw what was wrong and took off with the ball for a good field goal.

The clock operator was also mixed up and did not start the clock to run off the one second so the basket was good, but still left the Tigers behind.

Knowles Hits 34

The high scorere of the night was Knowles with 34 points. The big sophomore hit 11 from the floor and 12 free throws. The next high scorer for the local team was James with eight field goals and two from the line for 18. They were the only two Phantoms to hit in the double figures.

The 34 points for Knowles boosted his average from 21.3 to 24.4 for the four games he has played in. James' 18 points moved his average up to 9.4.

Topping the scoring column for the losers was Gus Andrews with 20 points. He dropped in nine field goals and two free throws. The other two Tigers to hit in the double figures were Billy Freuler with 16 points and Mac Fountain with 13 points.

Greenville JV Wins

Earlier in the night the Rose High junior varsity team also came out on top for their first win of the season downing the Junior Tigers 68-44.

Chester Walden was the high man for Greenville in the JV contest. He scored eight field goals and five free throws for 21 points. The next high man was Melvin Hudson with 14 points. He was followed by Sonny Taylor with 12 points. They were the only three to hit in the double figures.

Topping the scoring column for Tarboro was Tom Pitt with five from the floor and nine from the line for 19 points. Pitt was the only Tiger JV player to hit in the double figures.

PREP SCORES

The Robersonville Rams downed the Belvoir-Falkland Eagles in a non-conference game last night 48-30 boosting the winner's record to 2-3 overall and 2-1 in non-conference games.

Coach Bob Lee"s Rams were behind at the end of the first quarter by a score of 5-4. However, the Robersonville boys came back in the second period to outscore the Eagles by three points to lead at the half 17-15.

At the end of the third quarter the Rams had increased their margin some more for a four point lead with the score 27-23 as the final period got underway. In the last quarter the Rams boosted their lead to 18 points to win the game.

The high scorer of the night for the winners was center Butch Brown with 15 points. He was followed by Charles Forbes with 14 points. Topping the scoring column for Belvoir-Falkland was Allen Worthington with 16 points. This was the fifth straight loss for the Eagles.

Earlier in the night the Robersonville girls also came out on top when they downed the Belvoir-Falkland girls by a score of 46-37.

The winners took the lead in the first quarter and managed to hold on to it for the rest of the contest. The halftime score was 25-21 in favor of Robersonville. By the end of the game the winners had increased their lead to nine points.

The high scorer of the night for the Ramlets was Norma Williams with 22 points. She was followed by Judy Taylor with 19 points. Topping the scoring column for the Belvoir-Falkland was Mary Pollard with 19 points. Francis Stepps was next with 17 points.

The next game for Robersonville will be a conference contest next Tuesday night at Jonesville. Belvoir-Falkland will play at Bethel Friday night in a Pitt County Conference game.

W. Va. Renews Conference Play Tonight With Keydets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

West Virginia's Mountaineers, belabored rather badly and knocked out of the nation's top 10 teams in last week's Los Angeles Classic, come home tonight for a Southern Conference game—something they don't lose very often.

The Mountaineers dropped from the top 10 after defeats by Utah and Purdue. Tonight they entertain Virginia Military Institute's Keydets, and Saturday night they get a chance to recoup when they play host to fifth-ranked unbeaten Villanova.

West Virginia's three-game losing streak — to Duke, Utah and Purdue—came to an end against Army in the consolation game of the Los Angeles classic. It was the Mountaineers' longest losing string in five years.

Tonight's foe, VMI, hasn't beaten the Mountaineers in 28 games.

The VMI-West Virginia encounter is one of the three conference games on tap tonight, all of them forced to share the spotlight with Virginia Tech, which plays its first game in its new fieldhouse at Blacksburg, Va., against Alabama's Crimson Tide of the Southeastern Conference.

One of the other conference games tonight sends Richmond (1-1 in the league and 2-8 overall) to The Citadel (1-1 and 3-4). The other has William and Mary (1-3 and 3-6) at Davidson (0-3 and 3-6).

Another scrap against nonleague opposition tonight has George Washington (3-5 over-all) entertaining Maryland.

Furman's Paladins took over second place in the conference standings last night with a 3-1 record with a 77-76 squeeze past William and Mary's Indians on Jerry Smith's three-point play with 37 seconds left.

In a non-conference encounter, Davidson's Wildcats whipped Alabama 73-67 for the second time in less than two weeks. Davidson had beaten the Crimson Tide 68-63 at Florence, Ala., on Dec. 22.

Stas In Running For '61 Honors

CHICAGO (AP)—Clarence Stasavich, who recently left Lenoir Rhyne College to take over the football coaching job at East Carolina, is one of eight coaches in the running for the award as small college football coach of the year.

Stasavich is one of eight district representatives selected as national finalists by the American Football Coaches Association.

The award will be made later this month at the NCAA meeting here.

Bill Murray of Duke was announced earlier as one of the eight finalists in the major school competition.

Stasavich's Lenoir Rhyne team won the Carolinas Conference title last season, following six consecutive championships and eight in 10 years in the old North State Conference.

Other coaches named finalists in the small college voting:

James Ostendarp, Amherst; Lee Tressel, Baldwin-Wallace; A. S (Jake) Gaither, Florida A&M; Jack Swartz, Wheaton; Ralph Ginn, South Dakota State; Claude Gilstrap, Arlington State; Cecil Coleman, Fresno State.

THREE VETERANS BACK

NE WORLEANS (AP) — Coach Bill Gordiner's Loyola basketball team has three lettermen back. They are seniors Darryl Tschirn and Bobby Weber and junior John Chavanne.

Hints For Better Bowling From Top Woman Bowler

CORNER SPARES . . . Champion Phyllis Notaro is shown at the extreme left of the alley when her task is to pick up the 10 pin spare. For the seven pin spare Phyllis moves to the right of the alley. Use most of the alley when you can.

By PHYLLIS NOTARO

Women's Bowling Champion

Written for AP Newsfeatures

For a beginner I'd suggest a ball that feels comfortable. Most women find a lighter ball, 10 to 13 pounds, more comfortable in the beginning. As they become more accustomed to it, they can change to a heavier ball, 14 to 16 pounds.

I begin my delivery by taking a stance at the same spot each time. To find your spot, start about three inches from the foul line and take four natural steps backward toward the ball return. Add an extra half step for the slide.

Stand comfortably. Tall people sometimes bend a bit from the waist. Shoulders should be straight, parallel to the foul line. Your feet should be straight and close together with the right foot about half a shoe length in front of the left. Knees should be bent a little.

I use and recommend a four-step delivery because it gives you better timing, a smoother delivery and more accuracy. Being right-handed, I start on my right foot and take four average steps, ending in a slide.

The ball should be gripped as though you were about to shake hands. This is the grip I use for the line (straight) ball I roll. By all means hold the ball in front of you in the position most comfortable for you.

It was very embarrassing the first time I ever rolled a bowling ball. Four or five girls and myself went to a six-lane establishment in my home town of Brant, N. Y. That was about 1945 when I was a teen-ager.

I threw the ball up in the air and thought it would hit the ceiling. It came down and bounced on the shiny lane with a sickening thud.

Since then I have learned that the secret of good bowling lies in a smooth, natural delivery. And, of course, in order to properly deliver the ball, you must end in a slide, releasing the ball so that it rolls, not bounces.

Although I've never taken a bowling lesson in my life, I had a good opportunity to practice and learn about bowling. My dad and my uncle built their own lanes near our home when I was 19. Soon after the lanes opened, I became an ardent bowler.

One of the first and most important things I learned is this: Learn the fundamentals and don't try to imitate others. What's right for them is dead wrong for you, if it throws off your timing and coordination and keeps you from bowling smoothly and naturally.

I always stress the four-step delivery for new and advanced bowlers in clinics all over the country.

The first step, the pushaway—start off on your right foot, pushing the ball smoothly out in front of you the length of the first step. The motion must be synchronized. This is the most important step in bowling and is called the "point of no return."

The second step—as your left foot moves forward, the ball descends in a straight line and is even with your right thigh. Don't hang on to it with two hands; it will throw off your timing.

The third step—On the right foot; the ball ascends to the height of the backswing; no higher than shoulder level.

The fourth step—Slide on your left foot. The ball completes its arc, still in a straight line and continues a few inches past the foul line; it is released simultaneously with the end of the step.

After releasing the ball, the hand continues forward and upward to about eye level height during the follow through.

Being a spot bowler, I do not look at the pins, but roll the ball over the second arrow from the right, about 15 feet down the lane.

Practice the four-step delivery, and you'll soon see your game improving.

A split generally results from rolling a bad ball. They crop up when I come up too high for a full hit on the head pin. To avoid repeating this error, I move slightly to the left.

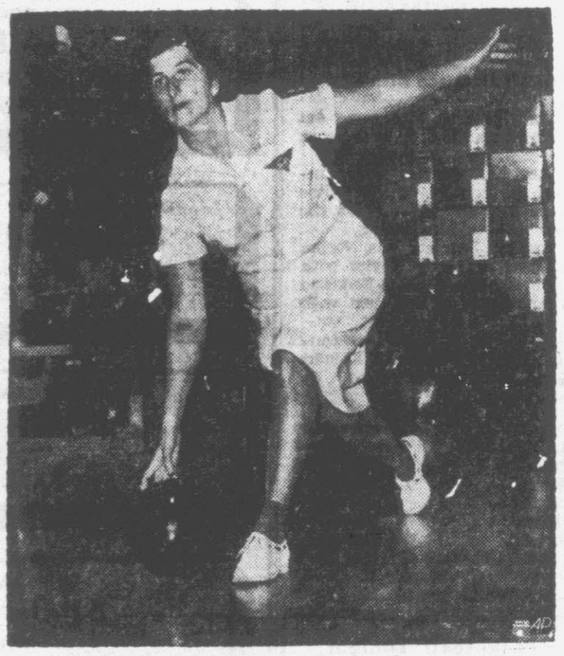

I would suggest this general rule for splits. Just try to make one pin. You see, unlike many spare shots where the ball can do a good deal of work for you by hitting more than one pin, many splits can be made only be deflection—that is, one pin sliding over and hitting another at a specific angle. Unless you have achieved great skill through practice and mastery of the game, you will find splits very difficult to convert.

Some professionals and high average bowlers are able to make a few of the splits, such as the "baby" split, without great difficulty; but this is because they have spent much time practicing these shots. For the top pros, though, very wide spread splits call for a lot of luck as well as skill.

Thus, with the tough 7-10 split, try to pick off one pin, the easiest to make, unless a game or match hinges on making the split.

Concentrate on making just one pin and you'll find your average will be better over the season.

Remember, all bowlers get splits. Don't be discouraged by them and don't let them throw you off your game. Remember, you can come right back with a strike if you concentrate, calm down and roll a good ball.

PERFECT SLIDE . . . Phyllis Notaro's delivery is a thing of beauty. Notice how the ball and her front foot are equidistant from the foul line as she releases the ball. Her left arm is outstretched to provide balance.

END OF SLIDE . . . After releasing the ball, Phyllis Notaro always ends her follow through with her right hand forward. The hand ends up near eye level.

The Delaware Handicap is now a $100,000 -plus race. When Rosenna won the first running in 1937 she netted Foxcatcher Farms only $8,125.

Notes On Filmland Scene

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene:

The James Durantes will no longer be a two-house family. Jimmy is solving the "dilemmis" that has existed since he married Margie Little a year ago. She had a hilltop house and he had one on the flat, and neither wanted to give theirs up. So they lived in both.

"We're puttin' one of dem up fer sale," Jimmy said. "Which one? Margie's, of course. After all, I am still boss of de family—at least. I was when I checked two days ago."

—o—

From now on Tony Curtis works only for himself—either in his own productions or partnership deals. He learned his lesson with "The Lady L", which tied him up for months and was never made by MGM.

"Complete chaos," he says of the experience. Chaotic or not, he got paid a nice $300,000 for his trouble.

—o—

Comings and goings: Debbie Reynolds to New York for confabs on her dress business. Van Heflin to the East for an NBC special about Highway 1, then to the Philippines for a movie. George Gobel home from the Broadway flop of "Let It Ride." He dropped a bundle but needn't worry; he'll probably be back on TV next season.

—o—

Catching up on the yearend attractions: "The Innocents" is a good chiller, excellently acted by a British cast and directed by Jack Clayton with a keen eye for scare tactics. The timing may be bad for this attraction, following so soon after the memorable Ingrid Bergman TV version of the same yarn, "Turn of the Screw."

Charles Heston is looking for another modern movie; he's not ready to get back in tunics yet.

Other Troubles Than The Snakes

LONDON (AP) — Snake dancer Julie Mendez says landlords are often bigger hazards than snakes.

"When I first started handling snakes, I used to get a few bites," she said in an interview. "But these days I rarely get bitten."

She shook her head and added: "The problem of landlords, however, never changes. I seem to have it all the time. Most of them don't like the idea of having snakes around the place."

Julie, who appears in a torrid cabaret act in "The Inspector," which is being filmed here, said she has often had to move because of landlords' dislike for her reptiles.

"I never handle venomous snakes," she explained. "But it's hard to convince people that one kind is different from another."

She said her most difficult moment happened here two years ago.

"I was giving a snake a bath and he disappeared up a water heater. I had to telephone the gas company for someone to rescue him.

"When the landlord heard about it—out went the snake and me too."

High-Level Help On Emphasizing Good Grammar

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Selling students on the importance of English grammar is not too difficult when you get help from Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, novelist Pearl Buck, columnist John Crosby and other such notables.

Mrs. Flo Rosenfeld, ninth grade English teacher at Akron's Roswell Kent Junior High School, suggested her students select a famous person and write to him asking how English benefits a career.

Nearly every student received a reply.

Vice President Johnson said, "If we are to learn anything from the lessons of history, literature and the arts and sciences, we must be able to read and correctly interpret what is written."

Grayson Kirk, president of Columbia University, wrote, "Accuracy in expression is more than a reflection of careful thought; it encourages and fosters careful thought. The mind that expresses itself well will function well. Clumsy speech and writing and clumsy thinking go together."

Heroes Becoming Hollywood Stars

ROME (AP) — Producer Charles H. Schneer says Hollywood is turning to the heroes of antiquity, religion, legend and literature for the big name appeal to replace the old movie "star system."

There aren't many of the great old stars left, he says, and those still available cost too much—a half million to a million dollars per picture.

Schneer, who has produced movies about Sinbad and Gulliver, is here to make "Jason and the Golden Fleece," with Todd Armstrong playing Jason.

"One generation of actors may come and go," the producer says, "but the characters created in literature, legend and history will be a part of our lives as long as people read."

Big Stakes In Budget Message

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Businessmen and bankers will have their eyes on Washington for the next two weeks. So will labor and investors and taxpayers. And so, too, should consumers. All will have a great deal at stake.

For the fiscal and economic program which President Kennedy is expected to reveal shortly in general terms in his State of the Union message, and in detail in the budget message to follow, will have bread-and-butter significance for almost everyone.

Soon we'll be told how much the government will spend, and for what; how much it expects to take in through taxes, and what tax changes if any; how it expects to finance any borrowing the Treasury must make to keep its till safely filled.

All of these will have effects sooner or later, to greater or lesser degree, on new orders for many industries, sales and profits records, jobs and work weeks, interest rates on savings and mortgage, on loans and on short-term and long-term securities, and in time on prices and waves.

The economy is too big now for the federal budget to make it or wreck it. But industrial and financial trends are definitely affected by government policies. And the effects of government policies are more noticeable when the economy itself is in fairly close balance—definitely not declining, but not advancing in anything resembling a sure-fire boom.

Many businessmen believe that the current moderate uptrend in the economy is due to forces generated within the economy itself, with a big assist by fairly steady consumer spending.

Administration economists, however, think that a lot of the zip today is due to a needed extra nudge which extra federal spending gave. The defense outlays were raised by $6 billion. And as orders arising from this reached defense firms and were spread through their supplies, it helped not only industry but made more jobs, or longer work weeks, for many workers. And their large paychecks helped push consumer sales to record highs before Christmas.

The U.S. Treasury also hopes to benefit. The added earnings of industry and larger incomes of individuals are expected to raise its take through income taxes in the coming fiscal year.

It is on this anticipation that the Budget Bureau is counting to balance out the bigger budget the President is expected to present this month. Spending is expected to rise to at least $92 billion. Just a year ago the President estimated spending in the current fiscal year would be $80.7 billion, raised later to $81.5 billion.

The increased spending expected in the fiscal year starting July 1 will further benefit some industries and firms—and, hopefully, many workers. If this in turn inspires higher Treasury revenues, the budget may stay in the hoped-for balance.

Prof Defends Primitive Farm

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — "Primitive farming" — used in Africa and Asia for more than 10,000 years — has a defender here in a man whose career is dedicated to better farming.

Dr. Jack R. Harlan, professor of agronomy at Oklahoma State University, believes primitive farming is pretty good.

"Nobody gets rich," he said, "but it feeds and clothes more than half the people of the world. It works."

The professor bases his conclusions on a 10-month tour of farming areas in Asia and Africa. He said that some modern methods can improve farming in underdeveloped countries, but he claimed caution should be used in tampering with a system that has survived for so many centuries.

A farmer is not primitive just because he uses an ox and hand plow, Harlan said. These tools leave the soil rough and cloddy, more receptive to moisture and resistant to erosion.

Farming experts often throw up their hands at the sight of several varieties of a crop growing together in a field, the touring professor added.

"These farmers can grow pure varieties if they choose to," he said, "but they are safer against epidemics with the mixed fields."

U.S. Group To Honor Tshombe

NEW YORK (AP)— President Moise Tshombe of Katanga will be given an award at a March 7 rally sponsored by Young Americans for Freedom, the group said today.

The presentation at the Conservative Rally for World Liberation from Communism will be "to the embattled Katangan people for their courageous stand against communism and their continued fight for freedom," the rally committee said.

Herbert Hoover, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., and former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker are among others scheduled to receive awards at the rally in Madison Square Garden.

Speakers will include Republican Sens. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and John Tower of Texas, the committee said.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An antibiotic for plants, how a cockroach finds a mate in the dark, and frisky snowfleas are topics of scientific studies:

FOR SICKLY PLANTS

Before long, farmers and fruit growers may be able to give sickly trees and plants an assist with a dose of a new wonder drug, an antibiotic for plants, now being perfected by British scientists.

From a patient screening of 8,000 soil samples, they turned up venturiciden which, if present tests prove out, will be produced as an agricultural spray. Venturicidin is an antifungus, although not an antibacterial, and seems to be harmless to animals.

So far, the scientists reported in Nature magazine, it has been found effective in stopping apple scab, barley mildew, broad bean rust, gray mold, cucumber mildew, and other plant diseases.

COCKROACH ROMANCE

A Harvard biologist has found out how cockroaches find a mate, in the dark.

When Dr. Robert Barth removed a pair of glands, called the corpora allata, from the necks of female cockroaches, the males ignored them. The glands, he explained, normally produce a hormone which triggers production of a chemical considered very agreeable by the male. When Dr. Barth replanted new glands in the females, they mated and produced normal eggs.

The female's odor, different for each species of cockroach, will attract nearby males. This is quite unlike the attractiveness of the odors given off by some other insects. Female moths, for example, release an odor which will beckon males from many hundreds of yards away, he said.

SNOWFLEA FROLIC

Don't tell the dog, but there's a hardy little gray-white insect called a snowflea that thrives in sub-zero temperatures and hops with the best of them, although without accuracy.

Actually, snowflea won't bother animals, but it can be a pest by invading cold-water pipes in houses and sometimes find its way into refrigerators. But, the National Pest Control Association reports, such invasions are infrequent and can be controlled by exterminators.

Snowfleas are a type of springtail, that is, insects possessing a pair of spring-like tails that can be tripped when quick distance is required. Snowfleas can hop as much as a foot. Trouble is, they don't seem to have any control over the direction their springs will take them.

Snowfleas are occasionally seen frolicking in bands atop moist snow, the association says.

Frozen Foods Selling In Alaska

WASHINGTON (AP)—Alaskans are enjoying frozen foods these days and they're not storing them out on the back porch, either.

Compiled data from the 1960 Census of Housing shows that of 57,250 housing units surveyed, 14,602 (more than one out of four) had home freezers separate and apart from freezing compartments of refrigerators.

In the continental United States the ratio is only one out of six.

Teacher Has A Busy Night Life

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—At 3:45 p.m. five days a week, Seymour (Pinky) Kravitz, teacher, leaves Central Junior High School after a day of health and physical education classes.

At 7 p.m. seven nights a week, Seymour (Pinky) Kravitz, night club manager, is greeting patrons of one of Atlantic City's largest night clubs.

So far, neither employer has objected to the unusual combination of occupations, the 34-year-old Kravitz says.

"I've been teaching for 11 years and it means a lot to me," he says. "I can't see any conflict."

Since summer is the busy season here, the night club business isn't as demanding during most of the school term, he adds.

"I leave at midnight except on Friday and Saturday," he says. "On those nights, I stay until we close — usually around 2 or 3 a.m. I get about seven hours sleep a night, and I'm at school at 8:30 a.m."

Teaching physical education doesn't require as much outside preparation as some other subjects, the 6-foot-5 former New York University basketball player says. "I do most of my lesson preparation on weekends. That's about the only time I see my wife, too, except for a few minutes after school every day."

Kravitz said the night club job has curtailed some of his activities with young people, which brought him the title of Young Man of the Year for 1961 from the Atlantic City Junior Chamber of Commerce.

These activities include being co-coach of the team which won the World Biddy Basketball Tournament at Jersey City in 1956 and finished second here in 1957. He also arranged a tour here by a Puerto Rican biddy basketball team, and sent an Atlantic City team to Puerto Rico this year.

Fishing Boats Sink, 29 Drown

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The government reported 29 fishermen drowned Tuesday when five South Korean fishing boats sank off the eastern coast. Another fisherman was reported missing.

Six other boats with about 30 men aboard had failed to make port early today and a search was underway.

The fishermen were aboard a fleet of 244 boats that set out Tuesday morning from Sok Cho on Korea's east coast. South Korean planes and ships helped to guide 233 safely back to harbor.

Ayden Minister Talks To Rotary

AYDEN—The Rev. John Goff spoke on "The Long View," taken from the Third Psalm at last Thursday's meeting of the Ayden Rotary Club, held in the Community Building.

The Rev. Mr. Goff theorized that decisions of today determine the destiny of tomorrow. By taking the long view, one can endure the defeats of today since defeats and disappointments, after all, become a part of the total picture, he said.

People must take inventory of their entire lives and find out what are their strengths and what are their weaknesses, he advised. In the long view, one must include compassion.

The speaker was introduced by Hal Edwards, program chairman. Presiding for the meeting was the club's vice president, Leslie Stocks.

John L. Goff Jr. principal of Arlington Junior High School in Gastonia, was the guest of his father, the Rev. Mr. Goff.

NEED TRANSLATING

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad (AP)—Despite the fact that the Spaniards left this city in the early 19th Century, and Spanish is not spoken here, local businessmen say some U.S. exporters persist in sending their instructions in Spanish.

Algerian Violence Is Taking Toll

ALGIERS (AP)— Nine persons were killed and scores more were wounded Tuesday in attacks by Europeans and Algerian nationalists.

Violence has been rising in intensity during recent weeks as the Europeans attempt to block Fresch President Charles de Gaulle's plans to grant Algeria independence.

Terrorist incidents occured in Algiers, Oran, Constantine and Bone.

Louisburg College Plans Program

LOUISBURG, N.C. (AP) — A four-day program marking the 175th anniversary of Louisburg College opens Thursday.

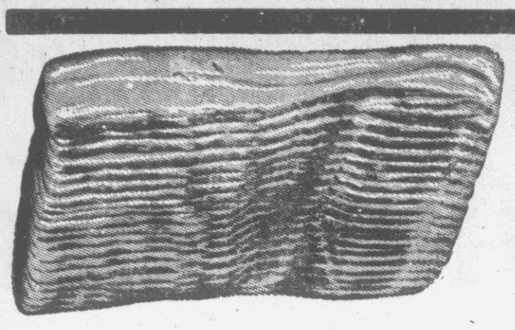

Former Arkansas Congressman Brooks Hayes, now a special presidential assistant, will deliver the anniversary address Thursday evening.

Methodist Bishop Paul N. Garber of Richmond, Va., will be the principal speaker Saturday, the date of which the college was chartered 175 years ago.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market steadied and showed some minor improvement in moderate trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .20 at 261.10 with industrials up .30, rails up .50, and utilities unchanged.

The rise was irregular, with gainers in the fractions-to-a-point range outnumbering losers.

The list was a bit higher on balance at the start, seemed about to generate a stronger rally for a while, then relapsed with a slight upside advantage.

Gains among aluminums, aerospace issues, oils, rails, steels, and coppers kept the list higher. Airlines were mixed despite a 3 per cent fare boost estimated to add $54 million annually to trunklines revenue.

The aircraft-missile stocks were helped by further news of defense contracts. Motors were narrowly mixed. Tobaccos were mostly lower.

American Telephone took an initial loss of 1⅝ at 132 on a block of 6,000 shares then recovered and showed a fractional net gain.

General Dynamics, continued to respond to defense contracts, rising more than a point. Boeing, up a point, received an air force contract for $111.8 million.

J I., Case resumed its uptrend, adding another fraction. It opened on 10,500 shares.

Losses of around a point were taken by Southern California Edison and American Tobacco.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .24 at 724.95.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were generally higher in moderate trading.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds were mostly on the upside.

Sending First 28-Footer To Boat Show

G & W Boats, Inc., two-year-old Greenville boat manufacturer, today shipped its first 28-foot "Gulfstream Custom Cruiser."

Leaving Greenville about noon, the gleaming white-and-mahogany craft was destined for display in the annual New York Boat Show slated to begin Jan. 10 in the New York City Coliseum.

Powered by twin 145 horsepower Chrysler engines, the 28-footer is equipped with sleeping accommodations for four and a galley with a dinette. The floor of the cabin is fully carpeted.

The craft, about two-and-a-half months in the making, is constructed of nine-ply half-inch "Makore," a marine plywood. Makore, called by the local boatbuilders the most rot-resistant wood available, is imported from the moist forest zone along the Ivory Coast in Liberia, Africa.

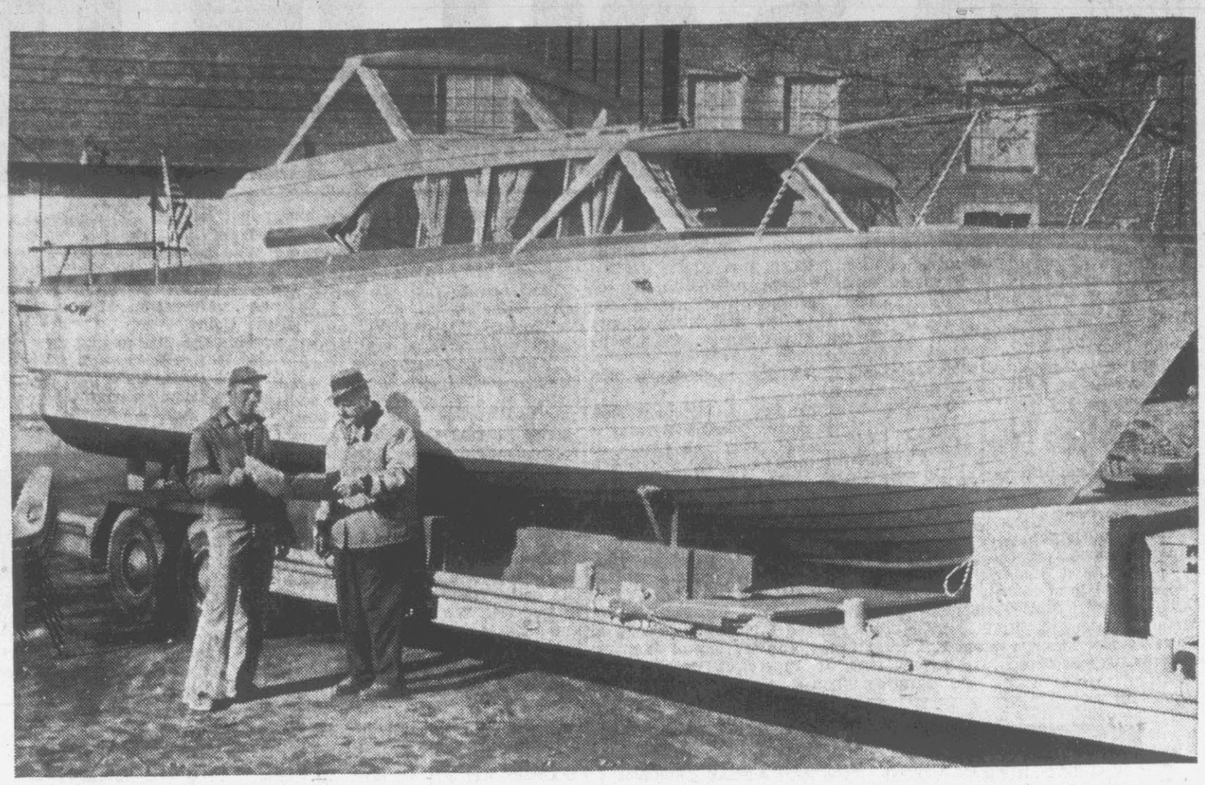

Acording to Don White and Glen Grady, co-managers of G & W, five more 28-footers are under construction at the plant under the supervision of Jack Cuthbertson, recently imported from a major national boat manufacturer to head the 28-foot division.

Grady said the goal of the plant is to improve its production efficiency in the larger boats until perhaps five can be completed each week. The five boats now being built, he said, would probably require about three weeks for completion.

Both Grady and White viewed today's shipment of the sleek craft as a milestone for the local boatbuilding firm. The 28-footer that left Greenville today, according to Grady, would retail for $9,850 and represents the local company's entry in the highest class of assembly line boats.

Boats above the 25- to 30-foot range, Grady said, usually are built to a customer's own specifications.

The New York show in which the 28-footer will appear this month, according to Grady, is the major boat show in America each year. Dealers and customers attend the show.

Hunt Suspect In Stabbing Assault

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — (AP) — A sleepy-eyed plumber's helper with a criminal record was being sought today in the assault of a pretty young skating teacher who was stabbed four times after an all-night party.

Police identified Joel Lee Saye, 22, as the assailant of Penelope Anne Moore, 19, a petite blonde college student who was teaching ice skating here during the Christmas holidays.

Officers said Saye, who lived next door to Miss Moore in a small duplex apartment, was identified from photographs by Miss Moire. Saye was believed to have left the state.

Police said Miss Moore had been partying early Tuesday morning with a member of the Charlotte Checkers hockey team and two other friends. The party reportedly moved from a restaurant to her apartment and the attack took place after her guests left.

A Charlotte hospital listed Miss Moore's condition as satisfactory after treatment of the stab wounds.

Detective Capt. O. A. Crenshaw reported that Saye was named in warrants charging first degree burglary — a capital crime in North Carolina—and assault with a deadly weapon.

Saye was on probation from a charge resulting from a previous house break-in, police said. He was described as 5 feet 11 inches tall, 157 pounds, brown eyes, black hair and ruddy complexion. He had tattoos on both arms.

Miss Moore, called Penny, is a sophomore at Woman's College in Greensboro, and lives with a brother, Thomas G. Moore, in Jamestown, near Greensboro. Her mother, Mrs. George R. Moore, lives in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Miss Moore was ladies champion of the Detroit Figure Skating Club in 1956-57, and was Lake Erie Junior Ladies figure skating champion.

Temperatures Stayed In 20's

Temperatures remained in the 20s throughout the night and early morning areas, it was reported today by L. M. Bullock at the Greenville Utilities Plant.

The early morning low for today was 26 degrees. In areas not covered by snow, temperatures were expected to rise to the 50s this afternoon. Tuesday's high was 41 degrees and the low was 28, Bullock said.

Thursday will be a little warmer, the weatherman has predicted, with increasing cloudiness.

The Tar River level today was at a 4.3-foot level. Winds were blowing from the northeast at 5 to 10 miles per hour.

Fire Marshal To Address Council

The Pitt County Safety Council, at its January meeting Thursday, will hear A. E. "Cotten" Carter, Fire Marshal of DuPont's Kinston Plant, talk on the chemistry of fire and static electricity.

In addition to the talk to be given by Carter, officers of the Council for the coming year will be installed.

The meeting will be held at Respess Bros. on North Greene St. at 12:30. Council Chairman Luther D. Moore urged persons interested in safety to attend the meetings of the council and to become members of the county-wide safety group.

Last Rites Set For Miss Lena Allen

Miss Lena Allen, 71, died suddenly at the home of her nephew, Thomas Allen in the Red Oak community near Greenville, Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock following a heart attack.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Thursday afternoon at 2:30 by the Rev. Howard James, pastor of the Red Oak Christian Church, assisted by the Rev. Jerry Rowe, pastor of the Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Miss Allen, daughter of the late Frank and Elizabeth McArthur Allen, spent all her life in Pitt County and had made her home with the Thomas Allen family for a number of years. She attended the Red Oak Christian Church and Sunday School.

Surviving are a number of nieces and nephews.

Faster Sale Of Farmville Tags

FARMVILLE—Farmville's town license plates were reported today selling at a faster rate than a year ago.

Required to be displayed on Farmville's approximately 1,200 vehicles, the town tags went on sale here at the Town Hall the first of this week.

For the first time in several years, the town has ommitted a slogan for the municipal car tags. The black on orange plates simply declare, "Farmville, N. C."

Farmville motorists may purchase the municipal plates at $1 each during regular office hours at Town Clerk H. M. Allred's office.

Police Report 2 Traffic Mishaps

Two traffic mishaps reported by Greenville police caused an estimated $475 damage, officers estimated.

Investigators said the heaviest damage was caused when a vehicle driven by Donald Hull Thompson, 20, address not given, collided with a car parked at 820 Evans St. about 12:54 p.m.

Damage to each of the vehicles was set by officers at $150. Owner of the parked auto was not identified, and no charges were placed.

No charges were placed in the second mishap which involved cars driven by William Clarence Harris, 27, of Route 5, Greenville, and Betty Evans Crandell of Route 1, Greenville.

Total damage in that mishap, which occurred about 12:20 p.m. on Dickinson Ave. near the intersection of Eighth St., was placed at $175.

No injuries were reported in either collision.

Mrs. I. R. Credle Died Tuesday Night

Mrs. I. R. Credle, mother of Mrs. W. S. May of Winterville, died in a Washington hospital Tuesday night. She had been critically ill for a week and in declining health for several years. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Mrs. Credle spent all her life in Swan Quarter.

Below-Freezing In Most Of N.C.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina skies were clear today, but pre-dawn temperatures dipped below freezing over most of the state.

Most of the snow earlier in the week had melted today over much of the state, except in the higher western regions. No precipitation was recorded in the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

Meanwhile, the Highway Patrol said all major highways in the western section of the state were clear except for isolated icy patches. However, many secondary roads are still covered with snow in the mountains and chains are required.

Most schools over the state reopened today, a day later than planned, because of the snow. Buncombe County schools remained closed because of the condition of secondary roads, although city schools at Asheville did open.

Some low temperatures recorded during the night included Asheville 23 degrees, Charlotte 20, Greensboro 17, Raleigh 22 and Wilmington 47.

The outlook tonight in North Carolina is for fair and warmer weather with high temperatures ranging from low 30s too mid 30s.

Pleads Fugitives Not Be Given To N.C. Torturers

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—The attorney for two escapees from a North Carolina prison camp appealed to Gov. John A. Notte today not to return them to "the dungeons of hell."

Charging brutality, William Grande declared in a special plea to Notte and Atty. Gen. J. Joseph Nugent: "We pray that these fellow human beings be spared the pangs of torture."

"We urge the denial of the warrant for extradition because we deplore a system of punishment that has no foundation in rational behavior, that has no lawful purpose and which condemns a man to the dungeons of hell."

The escapees are John A. Powell, 30, of Nashville, Tenn., and James Hammond, 35, of Dalgas, Tex.

Before their escape Thanksgiving Night, Powell served three years of a 20-year sentence for forgery of checks, and Hammond served six years of a 24-year 24-year sentence for breaking and entering, larceny, receiving stolen goods and for a 1955 escape that ended in failure.

They were picked up in a routine state police check late in November. Fighting extradition, they have pleaded innocent of being fugitives from justice and are being held in $10,000 bail pending trial.

The case is scheduled to be heard Thursday in Cranston District Court.

As a precedent for denial of extradition, Grande cited Gov. Dennis J. Roberts' refusal to extradite Grady Seal to North Carolina in 1955 "because of prison conditions."

Grande charged that his clients were victims of the same treatment.

After their original arrests in North Carolina, the lawyer said, the men were denied legal counsel and an opportunity to call witnesses on their behalf.

Grande called this "a serious and shocking violation of their constitutional rights—it is unbelievable that such a thing occurs in America."

The men were sent to a prison camp in the mountains of Jackson County, N.C., he said.

Each was shackled and chained at the ankles and put to work with a 20 pound hammer on road construction, Grande said.

The shackles were worn 24 hours a day, and at night the prisoners were chained to their cots, he said.

Prisoners worked a 10 hour day with only a half hour break for an inadequate lunch of spoiled beans, he alleged.

The attorney said the long terms at hard labor were hardly warranted by the charges against the pair in Rhode Island, he added, they would have been given deferred sentences.

Jail Term For Goldfine's Aide

BOSTON (AP)—Mildred Paperman, secretary of Bernard Goldfine, Boston industrialist, started a 30-day jail sentence today for smuggling letters to the ailing industrialist.

Miss Paperman, 42, admitted the delivery of letters to Goldfine while he was serving a one-year sentence for income tax evasion in the federal correctional institution at Danbury, Conn.

Goldfine is now at the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital, Staten Island, N.Y., where he was transferred after suffering a cerebral thrombosis.

Ayden Planning To Open Street

AYDEN — City officials announced this week that a block of Planters Street between Venters and Pitt Streets will be opened in the near future.

Opening of the street will give direct access from the western part of town to South Lee Street. The section has already been dedicated, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor noted, but had never been opened.

Work will begin on Planters Street this week and will probably be completed within a week.

In another project, West Avenue from Sixth Street to Mills Street will be widened on the east side of the street. Though the street is not heavily traveled, it has stifled traffic due to its narrowness.

The West Avenue project will be started as soon as Planters Street is completed, pending weather conditions.

Hollowell Won't Seek Re-Election

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—State Sen. Seth B. Hollowell of Goldsboro announced Tuesday that he will not seek re-election in the Eighth District.

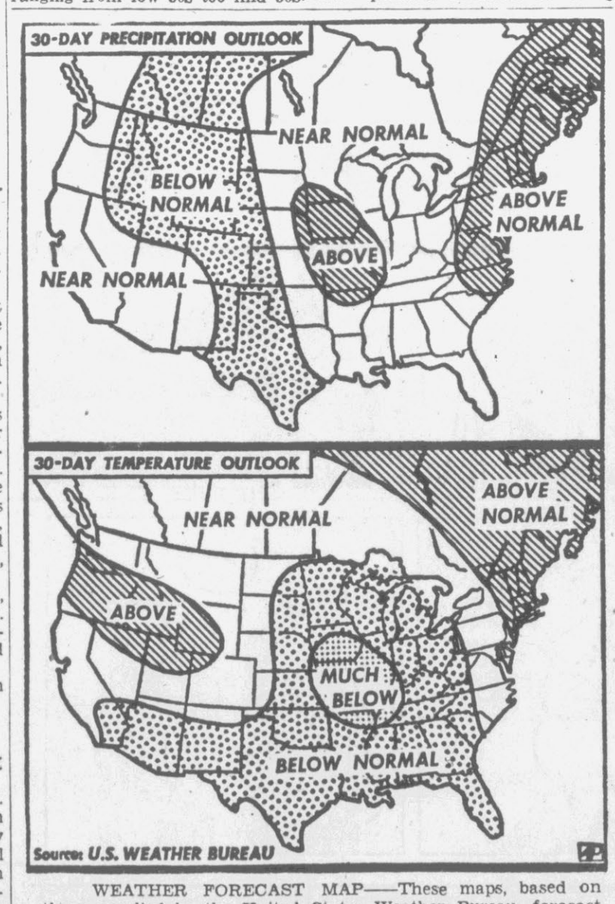

The 49-year-old senator, who served one term, underwent major surgery recently. He said in his announcement that he had been told by doctors to slow down.

A businessman, farmer and veteran Wayne County political figure, Hollowell was elected to the State Senate for the first time in 1960. The Eighth Senatorial District, which has two senators, includes Wayne and Johnston counties.

Minor Damage In Heating System

AYDEN—Minor damage occurred here Monday evening when the motor on a heating plant at the home of Henry Joe Schott at 608 Park Ave. caught fire, it was reported.

Fire Chief Tillman Chauncey said the fire was causing smoke to go through the ducts in the home. However, no damage was noted to the home and the fire was out when firemen arrived.
