CITY MANAGER IS RESIGNING

Submitting Letter To Council

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer

City Manager Louis Scheipers told the Daily Reflector this afternoon he would submit a letter of resignation to the City Council sometime today.

Scheipers, who assumed his Greenville duties last June 5 at a $9,000 annual salary, offered no reason for his resignation. He said his plans for the future were indefinite.

The 41-year-old city manager was asked by telephone about 12:15 p.m. whether he would submit a letter of resignation today. He replied, "I have thought something about it."

When asked if his plans to resign were "fairly definite," Scheipers answered, "Yes."

Asked if he would make known his resignation to the City Council today in the form of a letter, the city manager replied that he would.

A Massachusetts native, Scheipers was employed by the City of Greenville after the City Council had again separated the duties of city manager and utilities superintendent, Leonard P. Bloxam for several years had held both jobs.

Scheipers left his city manager post at Southern Pines after serving that city since 1956. Prior to his appointment to that job, Scheipers served as assistant city manager for that Sandhills resort city for three years.

Before his municipal government career, Scheipers was engaged in management of a tobacco firm and a furniture industry, Transplanted from Massachusetts to North Carolina in 1934, Scheipers is a World War II veteran and a political science graduate of the University of North Carolina.

Married to the former Eleanor Grove of Southern Pines, the resigning city manager is the father of five children, the oldest of whom is a sophomore co-ed at East Carolina College.

Adenauer Marks 86th Birthday

BONN, Germany (AP) — West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer turned 86 today and one official suggested a new nickname for him.

Ever since Adenauer took over the leadership of West Germany in 1949 he has been known affectionately by his friends and sarcastically by his foes—as der alte, the old man. Today, one of his officials quipped he should be renamed der ur-alte, the ancient one.

Although he is the world's oldest government chief, Adenauer could easily pass for a man 10 years younger.

Cannon Promises Cut Budget; But Hasn't Seen It

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Appropriations Committee promised today to cut President Kennedy's new budget, although he said he was not familiar with its details.

The chairman, Rep. Clarence Cannon, (D-Mo.), indicated the President would have his support on foreign aid spending. Cannon said he knew "there is no retrenchment" in the budget, to be submitted shortly after Congress convenes next week.

In an interview, Cannon deplored what he called "fiscal insanity" in government.

"From what I have heard," Cannon said, "the new budget will be precariously balanced and the balance depends on many 'ifs.' It is contingent on increased revenues which may not develop."

"We are going to cut it," Cannon said. "We will have to cut it. The national debt keeps getting bigger and the interest alone on it is more than $9 billion. We are in danger of reaching the point where we will have the choice of repudiating our bonds or getting more printing presses to turn out more inflated dollars."

Cannon said he would be inclined to support Kennedy on foreign aid spending "because he seems to know where he is going and what must be done." "I believe he has the confidence of the people," Cannon added.

New Trial Parking Plan Given City Council's OK

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

A new trial parking plan which will eliminate every third parking space in the Fifth St. block between Cotanche and Evans Sts. received council approval last night.

Police Chief Guy Langston presented the plan to the council as an eventual pattern for Evans St. from Five Points northward.

Elimination of every third space provides a vacant space behind or in front of each parked auto. This is expected to reduce the time required for parking and thus speed up the flow of traffic.

Councilmen also approved other parking changes recommended by Chief Langston. Included were: —no parking signs to be installed on the south side of Third St. from Summit to Jarvis.

—Change parking on Cotanche from the west to the east side of the street. This will be in effect from Edwards Auto to Eighth St.

—Change present one hour parking zone to two hour parking zone in the business district with the exception of Evans from Five Points to Third.

Councilmen took no action on recommendations for no parking on the south side of Ninth and Eighth Streets from Cotanche to Student.

No action was taken on a proposal to rezone commercial a portion of a block bound by Raleigh Ave., Myrtle and Chestnut streets.

A group of residents appeared to protest the rezoning which had been requested by the property owner so that a trailer park could be established in the area.

Present city ordinances prohibit the establishment of trailer parks in residential or commercial zones. This leaves only the industrially zoned areas for such facilities.

Councilmen referred the matter to the Planning-Zoning Commission with instructions that it study the entire trailer park question and suggest ordinance revisions. Mayor Charles M. King suggested that the Planning-Zoning Commission should review the trailer ordinances.

"I've said before I believe that ordinance on trailers is not exactly as it should be," he declared. Mayor King reported he had several phone calls protesting the rezoning proposal. The public hearing was legally advertised for last night.

Councilmen referred to the Planning and Zoning Commission a request for annexation of a triangle of land at the Stan-tonburg Road and Memorial Drive Intersection.

However, they set the public hearing on the matter for next month's council meeting.

W. C. Taylor, Jr. told the council he was building a warehouse on a portion of the area for his business, ABC Moving and Storage. Other property owners have plans for business development in the area, he indicated.

Councilman Ford McGowan asked that the matter be referred to the Planning and Zoning Commission.

City Manager Louis Scheipers was asked to determine if the state would assist in correcting drainage problems on Bancroft St. and also if the property owners will participate.

J. H. Boyd appeared at the last council meeting and asked that the problem be corrected. He said the ditch was nearly undermining a house owned by him.

Action was deferred on purchasing material for a metal building to be used by the Department of Public Works until additional bids can be obtained.

Councilman Ford McGowan called for more bids after City Manager Scheipers read out the lone bid from the Armo Co. for $9,389.

McGowan said there should be "15 to 20 firms" in North Carolina who would be interested in bidding on the job.

Scheipers told the councilmen that the city had advertised and he had written three companies for bids with only Armo bidding.

He explained that the bid was for materials only and city labor was to erect the building.

The Armo bid was tabled.

Membership of the Planning and Zoning Commission was corrected to bring it in line with the city ordinances which require that the mayor, city manager and city engineer be ex officio members of the commission along with one member of the City Council.

Councilmen M. W. Aldridge and James Lee had been serving on the commission along with Utilities Director Leonard Bloxam.

Mayor King asked Dr. Aldridge to continue serving as the council representative. Appointed members of the commission are: Frank Little, who serves as chairman; Jack Wallace, Kenneth Hite, Tom Chapin and Thomas Rivers.

City Engineer C. A. Holiday presented a final report which showed Elm St. cost the city $96,455.50. There was an additional Utilities cost of $8,150.67 to bring the total to $104,606.17.

Councilmen also agreed to write property owners along Elm St. letters pointing out they have a moral obligation to pay assessments for curb and gutter even though the city cannot legally collect.

Property owners appeared last month to protest paying paving assessments. They learned from City Attorney R. B. Lee the city could not legally collect either paving or curb and gutter assessments because property owners had not signed a petition requesting the improvements.

A few property owners had already paid curb and gutter assessments and they have requested refunds.

Councilmen agreed that city crews would make improvements to Cozart St. behind Fieldcrest Mills provided property owners would donate needed right-of-way and private interests pay for the need culvert.

The city fathers also decided to continue closing city offices at 5 p.m. daily. They had received a letter from the Utilities Commission suggesting that city offices observe the same hours as the Utilities—8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Both agencies now close on Saturdays.

More Study Of Financing Dorms Is Agreed Upon

RALEIGH (AP) — The Advisory Budget Commission and State Board of Higher Education have agreed to devote more study to new means of financing dormitories at state-supported colleges.

The two groups met behind closed doors Thursday and arrived at no positive solution to a dilemma presented by defeat last November of a statewide bond program.

Gov. Terry Sanford already had thrown cold water on a higher board plan to borrow the needed money from the federal government with a "gentlemen's agreement" that the Budget Commission would ask the 1963 legislature to pay half the loans with state funds.

Sanford had said this would be "very poor planning" because, he explained, state officials cannot anticipate general Assembly action.

Space Agency Drawing Of Apollo Spacecraft Shown

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space agency made public today drawings of the Apollo spacecraft from which man may get his first close-up look at the moon.

The early model Apollo craft may enable its three-man crew to select likely landing areas for later versions designed to put human beings on the moon within this decade.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration also released three drawings showing the techniques of launching a manned spacecraft into earth orbit, launching a powerful booster rocket and supply vehicle into orbit close behind, and joining them in space for the long journey to the moon.

The huge orbiting booster rocket, starting its motors in the near vacuum of space after hooking onto the Apollo vehicle, would drop away after accelerating the Apollo to escape velocity.

The Apollo craft would proceed around the moon, come back into earth orbit, and then be slowed so as to re-enter the atmosphere and return the crew to earth.

The sketch of the Apollo showed its three occupants seated side by side in the nose cone.

Officials said this was the shape that had proved—in wind tunnel studies at the space agency's Langley Field, Va., research laboratory—to be most satisfactory among a dozen different designs tested.

They said that while the astronauts would be seated for the launching, they would have a considerable amount of room in which to move about in flight. The roomy crew quarters were not shown in the compressed sketch.

The Apollo craft will be made up of sections that can be attached as required for different missions.

The command section, in the forward end of the lunar craft, contains mission control equipment, crew quarters, the equipment to support human life during flights of several weeks, and the devices involved in re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

A service section to the rear would provide mid-course correction, electric power and supplies.

Other sections would provide equipment for guidance and navigation, moon reconnaissance and high speed re-entry and recovery.

North American Aviation Inc. has been awarded a $400 million contract to build the Apollo spacecraft. The space agency will direct the Apollo program from a new manned spacecraft center at Houston, Tex.

Will Test Merit Pay For Teachers

RALEIGH (AP) — The Rowan County and Gaston city school units will be testing grounds during the 1962-63 semester for an experiment in a program of merit pay for teachers.

The two systems were selected Thursday by the State Board of Education.

The 1961 legislature appropriated $200,000 for a study of the feasibility of incentive pay for outstanding teachers. The act called for a pilot study in at least two school units, one urban and one rural.

The idea has met with opposition in the past from school personnel who feel it would harm morale and be difficult to keep strict and impartial.

The legislature's intent was to set up the experiment to determine whether these problems could be met.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles F. Carroll told the board the study was "potentially one of the most productive programs in North Carolina."

He said school officials, teachers and community sentiment "all seem to be favorable" to the study.

On another subject dealing with 1962 legislation, the board heard a report on a new program which provides state funds for teacher in-service education.

James Valsame, coordinator of the program for the State Department of Public Instruction, told the board the program has won wide acceptance.

The legislature appropriated $300,000 for the 1961-62 biennium to finance the program. Valsame said $70,000 has been committed for courses for about 4,700 teachers in 74 school administrative units.

The legislation provides up to $375 in state funds for each credit hour of instruction.

Claims Attack And About $400 Stolen

A 57-year-old Greenville man was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital last night suffering from cut wounds of both wrists, his neck and left leg—allegedly the victim of two hitch-hiking Negroes.

Pitt County Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson identified the Farmville native as Claude C. Joyner of 1311 Chestnut St., Greenville.

Sheriff Tyson quoted Joyner as saying in addition to being cut by the two subjects, he was robbed of about $400.

Joyner was quoted by investigators as saying he picked the two attackers up in the vicinity of the intersection of N.C. 30 and the Old Creek Road (rural paved road 1529) about 6 p.m. The two held a knife at his neck and forced him to drive to a spot near the river at Barber's Landing, behind St. Peter's Church off the Paoletti highway, he told officers.

There, he said, they took the cash from him and then cut his neck, wrists and slashed the flesh behind his left knee, then left him.

Joyner later drove his car back out of the wooded area to a spot near the home of David Garfield Crandall, Negro, of Route 5, Greenville, where he summoned help. Sheriff Tyson disclosed the Greenville Fire Department's Rescue Unit was called at 7 p.m. to pick Joyner up and transport him to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Dogs from the Pitt County Prison Camp were unable to pick up a trail at the scene of the alleged attack last night.

According to the Sheriff, investigation of the incident, begun last night by members of the Sheriff's Department and the Greenville Police Department, is continuing.

He noted that Joyner is a collector for an insurance firm.

72-Year-Old Is Struck By Car

A 72-year-old County Home resident received two broken legs last night upon being struck by a car on rural paved road 1725 about a half-mile south of the County Home.

Investigating Patrolman R. E. Taylor identified the victim as John Tyson, Driver of the vehicle which struck Tyson was listed as Clarence Hilson Croker, 66-year-old Negro of Route 1, Winterville.

Trooper Taylor said Tyson was apparently drunk and walking on the highway at the time he was struck. Two bottles containing wine were found in his possession, the officer noted.

Tyson was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Fire Department Rescue Unit where he was admitted for treatment.

No charges were placed in the incident, the officer explained. No damage was done to the auto.

Underground Missile Launch Again Success

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A Minuteman intercontinental-range missile roared out of an underground pit today and successfully hit a target 3,600 miles from the Atlantic range.

It was the third straight underground launching success for the pushbutton solid-propellant weapon which is scheduled to be operational next summer.

The Air Force reported all test objectives were achieved. Major goals were over-all performance of the three-stage vehicle and to measure temperature, pressures, acoustics, vibration and shock effects of the subterranean firing on the rocket.

A great cloud of fire and smoke rushed out of the 85-foot-deep silo as the first-stage engine ignited at the bottom. Seconds later, the 58-foot rocket zipped through the smoke and raced toward its target.

Army Reducing Its Draft Calls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department announced today a sharp cut in draft calls for the next two months because the Army has reached its buildup goal.

The February draft call was set at 8,000 men and the March call at 6,000, all for the Army.

This was the lowest since last July, just before the U.S. began building up its military strength in the face of Russian threats to push the West out of Berlin.

The January call was 15,000. The Pentagon said that as a result of higher draft calls and other actions the "strength objective of the Army, including provisions for manning the two new Army divisions, has now been reached."

Since the start of the buildup, the announcement said, there has been more than a 20 per cent improvement in enlistments. Half of the total manpower gains during the buildup have been from inductions, it said.

This did not include the call to active service of 119,000 Army National Guardsmen and reservists.

Opine U.S. Leading Reds In Advanced ICBM

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence specialists believe the Soviet Union will trail the United States by about half a year in getting an advanced intercontinental ballistic missile ready for combat.

Informed sources said today the latest estimate is that the first such Soviet ICBM will be ready in early 1963.

The first solid-fuel Minuteman, this country's most advanced ICBM, is due to become operational this summer.

Updated intelligence information also indicates the Soviets, by pressing, may have three Polaris-type missile firing submarines by the end of this year. None has been seen so far.

The United States now has six nuclear powered submarines, each capable of firing 16 Polaris missiles deep into the Soviet Union. A seventh submarine is due to be commissioned in three weeks.

Before the end of this year the U.S. fleet will have a total of nine Polaris subs mounting 144 missiles.

The most recent intelligence estimates were believed to have been discussed by President Kennedy and top U.S. military leaders at meetings in Palm Beach, Fla., earlier this week.

Kennedy administration officials have felt for some time that the United States has an edge over the Soviets in deep-striking missiles. The new intelligence estimates, sources said point to a widening margin in favor of the United States when the Minutemen start coming along in numbers next year.

The most recent intelligence evaluations, sources said, credit the Soviets with what were called "startlingly few" liquid fuel ICBMs in place. They said the Soviets have three or four fewer than the United States, which has employed 45 liquid fuel Atlas ICBMs.

During the 1960 presidential campaign Democrats contended a serious "missile gap" was shaping up and would give the Soviets as much as a 3 to 1 advantage in ICBMs by the end of 1961.

The missile gap assumptions were based on what was known of Soviet capacity to build, rather than on any firm knowledge of Soviet intentions.

Neil McElroy, a secretary of defense in the Eisenhower administration, acknowledged at one point in the running dispute that the Soviets had the capability to produce possibly three times as many ICBMs as the United States then planned.

Some military authorities now believe the Soviets refrained from building sizable numbers of the cumbersome liquid fuel ICBMs and, like this country, decided to concentrate on developing quicker-to-fire, smaller and more reliable missiles.

The current U.S. program calls for emplacing 600 Minutemen in underground, protected bases by 1965. The new defense budget is expected to boost the total to about 800.

Like the Soviets, most of the present U.S. liquid fuel missiles are on vulnerable above-ground launch pads.

U.S. intelligence credits the Soviets with a decided—and worrisome—strength in 300-to-500-mile range missiles in Europe, where they could be used against Western countries. Many of these missiles estimated to total 300 to 400 are said to be on mobile firing beds.

However, U.S. officials feel that American aircraft carrying nuclear bombs more than counterbalance this Soviet power.

First Lady Tops 1961 Best Dressed List

NEW YORK (AP)—America's first lady has again been elected the world's first lady of fashion and is joined on the 1961 best-dressed list by her sister and a Palm Beach neighbor.

Jacqueline Kennedy was a landslide winner in the annual poll conducted by the New York Couture Group, Inc., of some 2,000 fashion experts, writers and designers throughout the world.

The group's style committee said she brought "the Kennedy era of young elegance." She also headed the 1960 list.

The first lady's sister, Princess Alexandra of Kent, was runner-up to Mrs. Kennedy. Mrs. Charles Wrightsman, New York an Palm Beach, wife of an oil millionaire.

The committee said that the list after Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Guinness, denotes no particular voice ranking.

Miss Hepburn, who is Mrs. Mel Ferrer offstage, and Mrs. Winston now leave the annual list competition by virtue of their election to join 16 members of the Hall of Fame.

Mrs. Winston, wife of a real estate man, is part, Cherokee Indian.

Weddings Should Be Most Beautiful Time In Life

NEW YORK (AP)—Most modern brides who walk down the aisle look "dreadful" in wedding fashions that "should have gone out with the horse and carriage," says a noted New York milliner.

"I went to some 50 weddings in a year and a half," said the milliner, who goes by the name of William J. "It was pretty dreadful. I went to observe the fashions and to see what, if anything, should be changed or improved upon."

Weddings should be the most beautiful time in a woman's life, and everything associated with them should have dignity, he said Thursday in an interview with the New York Times.

But neither bridal dresses nor the hairdos worn by brides impart this dignity, he contended.

"We must do away with the nipped-in waist, the huge full skirt, the massive train, the layers of tulle—the whole cumbersome dress," said William J.

In its stead, he suggested substituting "terrifically simple dresses that make a girl feel exciting." These dresses would be made of either dull satin or crepe, and would have ankle-length skirts instead of yards of unwieldy material around the feet.

"Please," he said, "no sweetheart necklines or any of that junk. And no tricks, no fancy drapes and no seed-pearl embroidery."

For the very formal wedding, William J. suggests a bride with the barest suggestion of a train—"A small softness that comes out from the end of the skirt."

He also suggests very long white gloves, bridal bouquets that look natural, casual hairdos and headresses that look more like hair.

During his round of weddings, William J. came to the conclusion that "the bridal consultant is the number one monster, and the hairdresser is monster number two."

Consultants, he said, have very little fashion sense and are bound by "phony tradition."

As for hairdressers, he said they "get everybody upset and shouldn't be allowed at the wedding."

In reaction, Maggie Fisk, a bridal consultant, agreed that too many brides are fussily dressed, but she placed the blame on the brides themselves and on their mothers.

"We feel that manufacturers are putting too many beads and sequins on things, but if it's what the customers want, what are you going to do?" she asked.

Here Are Answers To Questions About Coin-Operated Cleaners

By MORTON YARMON
NEW YORK (WNS)—Wondering about coin-operated dry cleaning? Here are questions and answers that should help to clean it all up for you:

Q: Is any special knowledge needed to work these machines?

A: No. Simply put the articles into the machine, close it, and insert the coins. Usually a lighted sign will tell you when the articles are cleaned. Instruction signs indicate exactly what you're to do. And frequently you will find an attendant on hand.

Q: How much will I save by using these machines?

A: A load of eight pounds usually costs between $1.50 and $2. The same load at a professional dry cleaner would probably set you back $8.50 to $12.50.

Q: Is economy the only advantage?

A: It's probably the most important. But you can save time too. For example, most men have only one overcoat. If your husband's gets spotted, you won't have to wait till the end of the season or have him go cold for a week while it's being cleaned. Also, because of the price, you may find you will dry clean many articles that previously would have been discarded when they became dirty.

Q: Is it necessary to "pre-spot" the garments?

A: Most machines now on the market require that you spray water-soluble spots with water. However, there's a new machine out that eliminates this.

Q: Will the articles need pressing?

A: Some touch-up is occasionally required but most articles do not.

Q: Will the professional dry cleaner go out of business as a result of this development?

A: Not at all. Finer garments—for example, evening gowns and men's business suits, which require major pressing—should continue to go to the professional dry cleaner. The same holds for articles with unusual stains.

Q: Will the machine remove all stains, as regular dry cleaning does?

A: Yes. However, certain extraordinary stains—such as those caused by printers' ink and similar indelible fluids—may not come out.

Q: What type of articles are most likely to be cleaned in these machines?

A: Almost anything that needs dry cleaning—children's snowsuits, men's work pants, slippers, draperies, and many other items.

Q: Do I have to pour anything into the machine, such as detergents, as I do for regular laundry?

A: No. The machines contain all the necessary solvents and detergents.

Q: Do I have to separate dirty items like work pants from ordinary clothing?

A: No, all articles are cleaned together. Even colors may be mixed.

Q: How long does it take?

A: Between 30 and 45 minutes, depending on the machine.

Q: What happens if I overload the machine?

A: The articles will not be cleaned properly. Unlike laundry machines, where a little overloading does not matter much, dry cleaners should not be overloaded. Virtually all stores have scales so this need not be a problem.

Q: Are any special precautions needed?

A: Not if you follow instructions. Empty pockets and turn them inside out. Turn trouser cuffs inside out. Remove those buttons that you would remove when sending clothing to a professional dry cleaner. Don't put in down pillows or articles made of rubber.

Q: Is there any danger from toxic fumes or explosion of solvents?

A: No. The machines are locked during the cleaning process.

Missionary Meeting Held

Monday night at 8 o'clock the Woman's Missionary Union of the Memorial Baptist Church met in the Fellowship room.

A substantial amount of money and linen had been given, also gifts had been given to the orphans at the Kennedy Home for Christmas. A report was given on the Jubilee advancement.

Mrs. Ed Raul of the Louise Hardaway Circle gave the program for the evening taken from the Royal Service.

Recent Bride Feted At Tea

Mrs. Leo Hardee Starling, a recent bride, was the guest of honor at a floating tea given Saturday afternoon at the Eastern Pines Community Building. The hostesses were Mrs. Robert Starling and Miss Goldis Starling.

Mrs. Leo Starling was presented a corsage and silver in her chosen pattern, as gifts from the hostesses. Guests were greeted at the door by Miss Beulah Harrington.

The following were in the receiving line to greet the guests: Mrs. Karl Hardee, Mrs. Robert Starling, Mrs. Leo Starling, Miss Goldis Starling.

The club room was decorated with a dominant color scheme of silver, green and white. A fire burned in the fireplace, and glowing candles accented arrangements around the room. A silver tree, poinsettias and magnolia leaves were arranged on the stage.

These were accented by lights that changed colors throughout the tea.

Music was furnished by Mrs. Hubert Haynes as pianist and Miss Joyce Jackson as soloist. Mrs. R. H. Heath Jr. served cakes from a silver tray. The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of green, silver and white flanked by burning white tapers.

Also nuts, homemade mints and cheese straws were served. Miss Ann Green served green punch from the opposite end of the table, which was covered with lace table cloth over green. In charge of refreshments were Mrs. Charles Jackson and Mrs. Ola Kittrell.

Miss Bobbie Newman was in charge of the registration table, which held a bride and groom and candles as dominant decorations. It was covered with a white outwork cloth.

About 60 guests called to meet Mrs. Leo Starling.

Small Dog Named Jingles Proves Good Psychiatrist

By SHIRLEY HENIN
NEW YORK (WNS)—A child psychiatrist here has gone into partnership with a small, affectionate dog named Jingles.

Dr. Boris M. Levinson accidentally discovered that sometimes when he can't get through to a child, his dog opens the door. Jingles has been standard treatment ever since.

"A child who shies away from human contact may react very well to animals," Dr. Levinson reported in the January issue of the professional journal Mental Hygiene.

"The animal may trigger the child's first concern for something outside himself. Dogs can't talk back, and no human being can offer more general acceptance than the faithful dog, for whom the master can do no wrong."

Once the child has formed a relationship with the psychiatrist's dog, the affection spills over, in many cases, and a successful relationship is formed with the psychiatrist.

In his article, titled "The Dog As A Co-Therapist," Dr. Levinson said he stumbled inadvertently on the idea of using a dog. At first he thought it too unorthodox.

"It is just eight years," he writes, since a boy who had been unsuccessfully treated over a long period of time was brought to me. As luck would have it, the distraught parent came an hour before the appointed time.

"I was busy writing. My dog was lying at my feet licking himself. I admitted the family without delay, forgetting the dog, who ran right up to the child to lick him.

"Much to my surprise, the child showed no fright but instead cuddled up to the dog and began to pet him. It is anyone's guess what might have been the child's reaction had the dog not been present that morning."

Since then, Jingles has become standard procedure with certain children. Dr. Levinson finds out right away whether the child is afraid of dogs. If not, and the animal's assistance is needed, Jingles appears on the scene.

The little dog has become much more than an ice-breaker. He is someone to cuddle physically and someone to master; both needs, Dr. Levinson says, are strong in disturbed children.

Furthermore, the dog is sympathetic, listens, and obviously will not repeat what the child tells him.

Dr. Levinson is director of the Psychological Center and a professor of psychiatry at the Yeshiva University Graduate School of Education. He has found no other reports of the use of dogs in therapy with children.

"Maybe some day," he says, "we shall advance so far in our understanding of animals and their meaning to human beings that we shall be able to prescribe pets of a certain kind for different emotional disorders."

"A well-trained Canine Counseling Corps for Children might elicit snickers and sneers. Nevertheless, a dog corps served this country heroically in World War II. Why not as psychotherapeutic aides?"

Weed out self-pity, expressed or unexpressed. It probably won't get you sympathy, and if it does, will you be any better off? Just as important, forget self-condemnation. You have probably done better than most others would have done in your place. Second-guessing is a game no older can expect to win. Why waste energy trying?

Weed out keepsakes and mementos that link you strongly to the past. Too many souvenirs for sentiment's sake may clutter up the present. If you don't want to throw them out, put them away and forget them.

Also on the tangible side, get rid of closet and home clutter. Weed out clothing you will never wear again but is "too good to give away." After all, you have only three choices. Either it must remain in the way or you must give it away or use it. Get rid of the shoes that pinch and the scuffed slippers you would be ashamed to be seen in.

Clear out miscellaneous household odds and ends that have been away from a draft. Or, the reverse, don't expect everyone else to be a fresh air fiend because you happen to like lots of ozone.

Clear Out Clutter As New Year Begins

By HENRIETTE KISH
NEW YORK (WNS)—January is a good month to clear out clutter. It is a season for physical and mental weeding out, especially for oldsters.

If no one has been listening to you lately, maybe that's the signal to weed out tales told once too often. Or old jokes that used to get a laugh, and now get only a hollow echo. Save them, if you must, for new acquaintances.

On the subject of new acquaintances, why not weed out some of the old ones who begin to bore you? It may not be wise to lightly throw away an old friendship. But this department, too, can get cluttered, as ideas and interests change and draw you apart. You don't have to serve formal notice and cause hurt feelings. Merely let things taper off.

Weed out old habits that may be making a bore of you. Stop discussing your diseases, diet and doctors in detail.

Refrain from making other people uncomfortable with closed windows because you won't move away from a draft. Or, the reverse, don't expect everyone else to be a fresh air fiend because you happen to like lots of ozone.

Attorney Wants To Inspect N.C. Prisons

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—The attorney for two escapees from a North Carolina prison camp has wired authorities in that state asking that the state permit an investigation of prison conditions either by national magazines or by himself.

William G. Grande, attorney for the men, made his request Thursday after Gov. John A. Nott Jr., asked Atty Gen. J. Joseph Nugent to make a full investigation of the request of North Carolina authorities for the return of the escapees.

Grande, who has told the governor that returning them would mean sending them back to "dungeons of hell," said he has sent a telegram to Robert A. Allen, assistant director of the North Carolina prison system, asking him to permit a magazine investigation of treatment of road gang prisoners.

Barring that, Grande told Allen, he would like to conduct a personal investigation. Allen has denied charges of brutality or inhuman treatment of prisoners.

The escapees are John A. Powell, 30, of Nashville, Tenn., and James Hammond, 35, of Dallas, Tex.

Owell had served three years of a 20-year sentence for forgery; Hammond six years of a 24-year sentence for breaking and entering, larceny, receiving stolen goods, and for trying to escape from a prison in 1955.

Following their escape from North Carolina on Thanksgiving night, the pair were stopped for a routine check while driving through Rhode Island. They were currently being held at Rhode Island State Prison.

Rumors Say Newspapers Will Cease Publication

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Hearst family's Examiner and the Chandler family's Mirror are reported about to cease publication.

Neither family, whose members have been newspaper rivals for more than half a century in what is now the nation's third largest city, would comment on the reports.

Several sources published stories saying the morning Examiner would suspend publication after its Sunday and that the afternoon Mirror would end with today's editions.

At a time when American newspapers are enjoying their widest circulation, the trend is to fewer newspapers. A recent survey shows circulation at more than 60 million daily.

If the reports about the Examiner and Mirror are true, two newspapers will remain to serve the Los Angeles metropolitan area of 6½ million population.

The two are the Chandlers' morning Times, key in the family's large business-publishing enterprises; and the Hearst's afternoon Herald-Express.

There have been reports that the Herald-Express will become a seven-day newspaper with the addition of a Sunday edition.

The Examiner, 58 years old, once was the late William Randolph Hearst's newspaper headquarters.

The 13-year-old Mirror is the largest metropolitan newspaper to be launched in a major American city since World War II. The Chandlers invested millions in it.

Circulation figures on Los Angeles' four newspapers, as of last September's audit: Examiner 381,773 Sunday; Times 548,702 daily and 978,478 Sunday; Herald-Express 385,215 daily; and Mirror 301,882 daily.

Back in the 1930s, when the city had a population of one million and the county two million, Los Angeles had half a dozen thriving newspapers. In the postwar years, labor and newspaper costs rose, and advertising competition increased from radio and TV, and community papers.

Los Angeles County has more than a hundred daily and weekly community newspapers.

Missionary Adds Vast Range Technical Skills

By JULES LOH
AP Staff Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A strapping square-jawed Irishman with the hands of a bricklayer and the collar of a priest was climbing nimbly on the skeleton of a half-finished building in the Bronx recently.

"What are you doing up there?" shouted the foreman from below.

"I'm a building inspector," grinned the priest.

Each time he comes home for a visit, which has been twice in the past 15 years, The Rev. Hugh F. Costigan, S. J., spends a good deal of his time inspecting buildings—not for defects, but for construction techniques.

A flash of his union card (honorary member plumbers Local No. 1, Brooklyn), a quick explanation of why he needs to know how to install plumbing, and Father Costigan was given a tour of the structure. Inevitably, he had gained another "friend of Ponape."

When the Jesuit missionary, 47, begins to discuss his work on Ponape, an obscure dot among the Caroline Islands in the South Pacific, some of his enthusiasm is almost bound to rub off.

The seeds of civilization Father Costigan began sowing a decade and a half ago have begun to bloom, and brick and steel structures now rise out of the jungle thickets. Micronesian natives line up for loans at the island credit union or bring a sick child, or a sick pig, to the dispensary. Outboard motors whir in the lagoons from fishing spot to fishing spot, vastly increasing the catch. Women chat knowledgeably about prenatal care and sanitary cooking methods and the techniques of operating a sewing machine.

The vast range of technical information Father Costigan has acquired over the years—by studying agricultural textbooks, perusing trade union manuals and scrambling about on unfinished buildings in the Bronx—has made him far more than merely a spiritual counselor in the eyes of his flock.

In gratitude, the Ponapean chief gave the priest one of his three titles, so Father Costigan also is known as Chief Lapen Mor.

The priest never loses sight of his ultimate objective. "To paraphrase St. Thomas Aquinas," he said, "you can't make people holy on an empty stomach."

Accordingly, Father Costigan is making the 250-acre island of Ponape, which has about 3,000 inhabitants, a model for the scores of other islands in his far flung parish.

"These people are cautious about accepting something new," he said. "They think about it six months or a year, see how it works out for others, before deciding to try it for themselves. You can't just walk in and tell them to wear shoes; you have to make them want the things they need."

Proof that this slow but sure system works is the cooperative housing program, whereby members work on one house until it's complete, then start on the next. The island now has 77 typhoon-proof homes, and there are applications for 500 more.

Stock Exchange Suspends Cannon Mills Trading

NEW YORK (AP)—Trading in common stock of Cannon Mills of Kannapolis, N. C., has been suspended, effective Jan. 15, by the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange.

The de-listing action was taken Thursday. Exchange President Keith Funston explained that the firm had refused to comply with a policy requiring operating companies to solicit or agree to solicit proxies by last Dec. 31.

Cannon Mills had no comment on the action.

Funston said, "The right of common stockholders to vote easily and conveniently by proxy on important corporate matters is a cornerstone of the exchange's belief in wider shareholder participation in corporate affairs."

The exchange's board of governors voted in 1955 to require newly listed firms to agree to solicit proxies prior to stockholder meetings. In 1959, the board extended the policy of mandatory proxy solicitation to all actively operating listed companies.

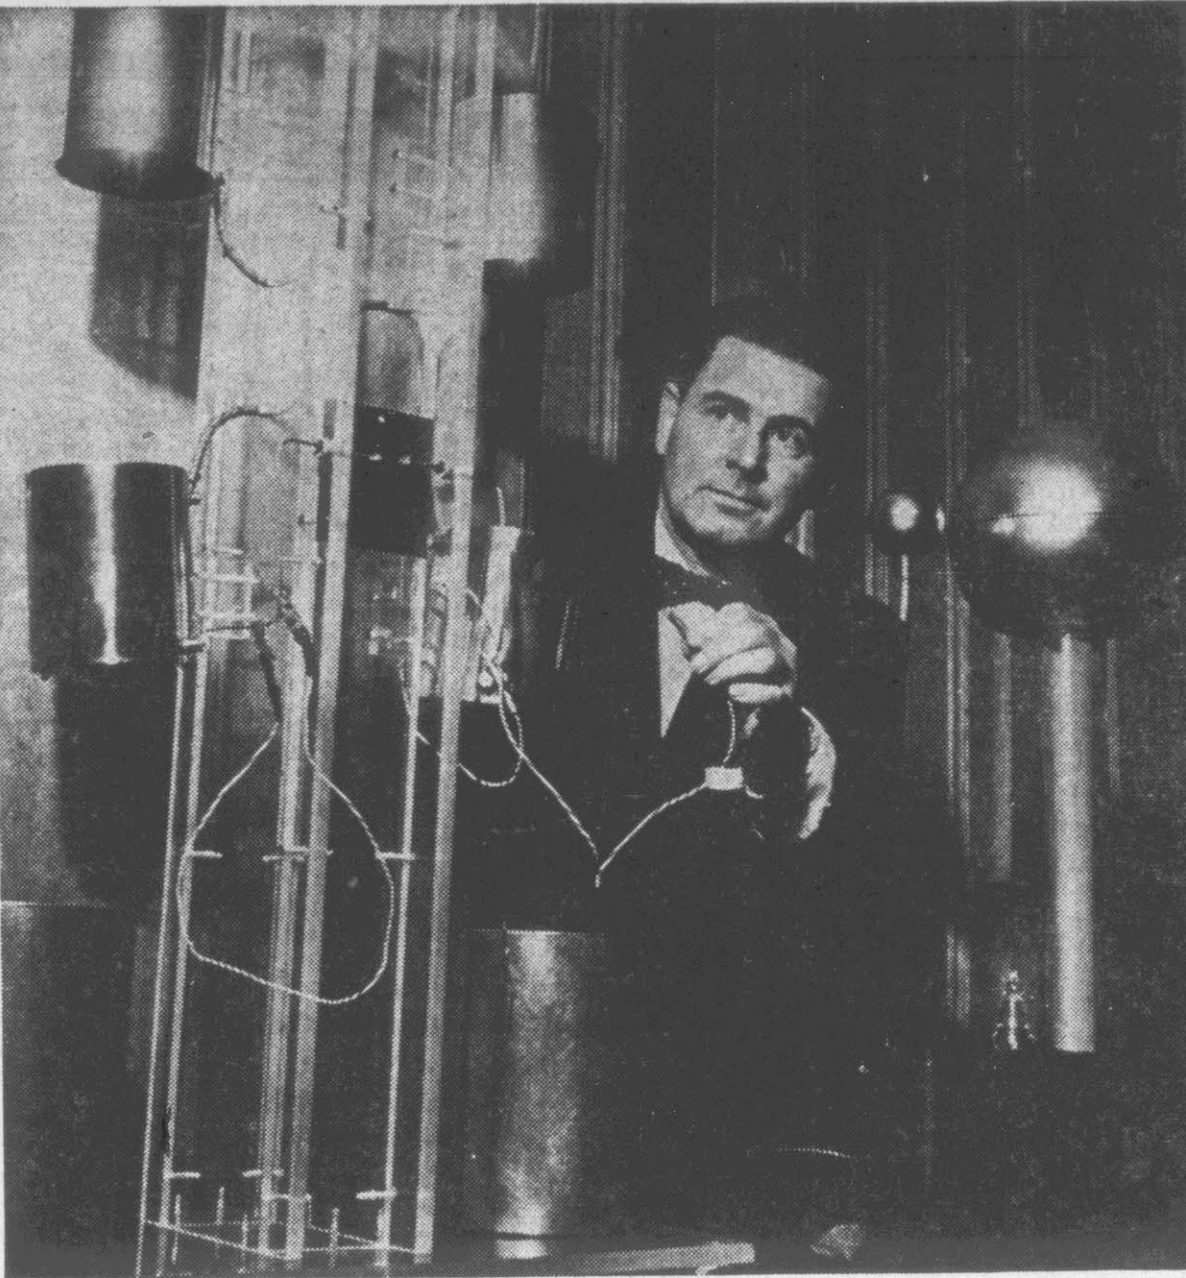

St. Paul's To Mark Feast Of Epiphany

St. Paul's Episcopal Church will offer two celebrations of the Holy Communion Saturday at 7:00 and 10:00 a.m. in observance of the Feast of the Epiphany.

The Rev. Richard Ottaway, Curate, and Episcopal College Chaplain, will be the celebrant.

The Christian calendar honors this day as the manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles.

The Temple of Koyengi is overshadowed by an 85-foot ginkgo tree with a 28-foot girth.

FIRE SAFETY . . . and safety of static electricity were topics of a talk and demonstration by A. H. Brooks Hays Is Relates Details Of Louisburg Guest Near-Fatal Stabbing

LOUISBURG, N.C. (AP)—Brooks Hays, special assistant to President Kennedy, has voiced approval of foreign aid programs and has taken a slap at what he called "extremists on the right."

Hays spoke Thursday night at a dinner in commemoration of the 175th anniversary of Louisburg Junior College.

The second of two historical addresses by Dr. Daniel M. McFarland of Atlantic Christian College of Wilson was on the schedule for today.

Hays, former Arkansas congressman and past president of the Southern Baptist Convention said, "It is a good omen that America has acknowledged that it has a world mission to help disadvantaged nations."

"Financial assistance to them is necessary and right in many instances," he added, "the greatest help being given them now, especially in Africa and Asia, is opening the doors of our colleges to their students."

The right-wing extremists, indicated Hays, are a fad. "They want to scare the country," he commented. "I want to say that my view of this is that they do not represent the mind and heart of America."

Tonight, William Clauson, balladeer-guitarist, will give a concert.

Methodist Bishop Paul N. Garber of Richmond, Va., will highlight Saturday's program when he dedicates an auditorium-classroom building and lays the cornerstone for a dormitory.

The four-day observation began Thursday and ends Sunday.

Housewife Has Family For Sale

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—The following appeared among Thursday's classified advertisements in the Jamestown Post-Journal under "wanted to buy—what have you?" section.

"For sale—Cheap! Four boys ages 7, 4, 3 and 1. One husband, age 31. All in repairable condition. Make offer in Post-Journal. P.S.—This has been a 'bad day.'"

The newspaper said the ad was submitted by a housewife from the nearby community of Gerry.

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Penelope Moore, 19-year-old coed, was waiting early Tuesday for Charlotte hockey player Andre Drolet to return the keys to her car which he had borrowed to take others home from a party in her apartment.

"There was a knock on the door and I assumed immediately that it was Andre," she related Thursday at the hospital where she is recovering from stab wounds that almost took her life.

"I didn't think. I opened the door, and there was this boy. 'I think he said, 'I'm your next door neighbor, may I come in?'" She said he pushed his way in and she screamed.

"First, he had said, 'I'm not going to hurt you if you'll be nice to me.'"

"And then he said, 'If you don't quit screaming I'll kill you.'"

"I really thought he was going to."

"He was trying to strangle me, and the next thing I remember I woke up on the floor. I woke up surprised to be alive."

Miss Moore was stabbed three times. A doctor said each wound was about three inches deep and one missed her heart by one-sixteenth of an inch.

Joel Lee Saye, 22, who lived in the same duplex where Miss Moore lived, has admitted, according to police, that he stabbed Miss Moore. He surrendered to a probation officer Wednesday night.

He is in jail awaiting a hearing on charges of first degree burglary, a capital crime in North Carolina, and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

Saye, father of two, is separated from his wife. He has been on probation since being convicted of housebreaking last October.

Miss Moore, a student at Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, was here for the holidays to work as an ice skating instructor.

Doctors say she has made good progress and is expected to recover fully.

Big Promotions Were In Error

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army set some sort of promotion record today, upping nine officers from lieutenant to colonel. But it turned out to be a typographical error, including the date of promotion—Dec. 32. Included in the long promotion roster distributed by the Army were nine names under the heading: "It. to col. for 32 Dec. 1961."

Translated from Army language this means promotion from lieutenant to colonel—a jump of four grades—with Dec. 32 as the effective date of rank.

Army officials said that instead of "It." it should have read "It. col." for lieutenant colonel.

They didn't have to explain there are only 31 days in December.

Judge Refuses Directed Verdict In Bribery Case

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP)—Defense lawyers, unsuccessful in their bid for a directed verdict of acquittal, prepared to open their case today in behalf of two Spartanburg city councilmen charged with bribery.

The prosecution rested its case late Thursday after several police officers testified that L. T. Buck Amick and Shea West Thomas admitted guilt when arrested Dec. 6.

In his plea for a directed not guilty verdict, defense attorney Milton Smith argued that Amick and Thomas had been entrapped "in a deceitful design," planned by officers and the chief prosecuting witness.

"It is the duty of officers not to get involved in the commission of crime but to stop crime," he said.

Solicitor John Nolen argued that the arrangement for exchange of the money was made prior to the time police were called into the case.

Judge William L. Rhodes Jr., of Hampton rejected the defense's motion.

Amick and Thomas are accused of accepting $5,000 each from Adolphe Vermont Jr., Spartanburg real estate man, in exchange for their votes in behalf of continued city participation in subdivision costs.

Chief J. P. Strom of the State Law Enforcement Division and 3 SLED agents told of statements made by Amick and Thomas following their arrest.

Strom quoted Amick as saying: "I took the money . . . I'm guilty."

At the time of the arrest, Strom testified, Thomas made the statement, "We're guilty."

City Manager Lott T. Rogers was called to the stand by the state. Under cross-examination of his testimony concerning subdevelopment costs, he said Vermont's Fernwood development had benefited by about $301,750.

Asked by defense attorney Sam R. "Wait if he would believe Amick and Thomas under oath, he replied affirmatively and testified that both were "diligent" councilmen.

Clear-Cut Statement Could Help

There are growing indications that the Sanford administration has settled on the policy that school construction must be left to local governments while the state directs its resources and energies toward providing more funds for operating the public schools.

A clear-cut statement from the administration setting forth its attitude on the matter of state funds for school construction would do much to clear the atmosphere at this point.

It would, we feel, accelerate local government planning to meet existing school needs and remove the indecision which exists in many counties of the state.

Although no official announcement on this point has come from the administration, events of the past year suggest that this is the dominating feeling within the administration.

At the outset of his administration a year ago, the new governor announced an ambitious program for improvement of public education in North Carolina including salary improvement for teachers, reduction of class loads, improved instruction equipment and

Some Basis For The Forecasting

By LYNN NISBET

FORTUNE TELLING — Fortune tellers use various methods for discovering what lies ahead and for predicting developments and events. The ancient arts of black magic, when unholy rites were practiced with weird incantations to persuade the gods to disclose the secrets of the future; the use of tea leaves in a cup, the study of the stars and crystal ball gazing have largely given way to the more viciously evil monsters known as "electronic brains" as the favored way to penetrate the veil of mystery. The fetish now is to give one of these mechanical demons a question — and then rely without question upon the complete accuracy and authority of the answer.

Some oldtimers still prefer the tea leaves and crystal ball, but most of the business-minded economists string along with the computers. The fellow who seeks to forecast political developments in North Carolina for the next few months gets little assistance from any of these gimmicks — and even less from past experiences.

The forecasters on national level have a hard time, too, but they have many more certain facts upon which to base guesses. The fact that Congress will convene next week and the administration program has already been outlined affords basis for intelligent speculation. Records of previous off-year congressional elections serve as a starting point for predictions on 1962 voting. There isn't much new in world-wide situations, which hold the same imminent possibilities of explosion that has prevailed for more than 20 years.

The confusion and uncertainty in national and international affairs is just about normal. There is a different situation in North Carolina where new and strange conditions defy all the old rules of analysis. SIMILARITIES — There are many parallels in the national and state situations. President Kennedy and Governor Sanford came into their respective offices at about the same time, at about the same age, and with very similar administration goals — Kennedy's New Frontiers and Sanford's New Day. They faced legislatures in which friendliness, personal and political, was lukewarm. Sanford got much more of his program through the General Assembly than Kennedy got through the Congress. Soon after the legislative battles both the President and the Governor suffered substantial loss in general popularity, and both have staged remarkable comebacks.

At this point similarities cease. The President has another session of Congress made up of the same members at the last to get through his bills. The Governor does not have a Legislature until after the 1962 elections.

So—instead of formulating an immediate legislative program the Governor must concentrate on the election of legislators who will look kindly upon his ideas next time. The situation is complicated by the vacancy in the office of Lieutenant Governor occasioned by the death of the late Cloyd Philpott and the constitutional question of whether an election can be held this year for the office. That issue is now in the courts. If the courts sustain the opinion of the Attorney General that the vacancy cannot be filled until the 1964 election, there will be increased interest in senatorial campaigns because one of the number will have to be chosen as president of the senate. If the courts rule that an election can be held this year, it is quite likely that several candidates will switch from senate races to run for Lieutenant Governor.

DROP OUTS — Another complicating factor is the heavy ratio of "drop outs," members of the 1961 Assembly who have announced they will not seek reelection. When it is remembered that approximately one-third of the senators are eliminated by rotation agreements, that at least four House members were eliminated by transfer to other counties under the apportionment act, and that a number of legislators have been appointed to other positions, the heavy voluntary drop out rate becomes important. Chances are the 1963 General Assembly will have more few faces than any session in recent years because it is fairly certain that some who seek re-election will fail.

Governor Sanford has a bigger deal of talk about the Governor and his program bringing out a strong candidate against U. S. Senator Sam Ervin, and perhaps becoming involved in some congressional district races. Since the fateful November 7 bond election there hasn't been much said about this purpose. Rather, emphasis seems to be on wholly State matters, candidates and issues of importance in North Carolina, whether or not they are significant in the national scheme.

Paraphrase rather crudely one of Governor Sanford's favorite expressions, it appears that the ship of state needs some repairs to make it worthy of local waters before launching a voyage into the "main stream of national affairs."

These conditions make it difficult to forecast events of the next year, but also make anticipation of them very interesting.

various other things. At that time he also pointed to North Carolina's need for more classroom facilities but said the state would wait and see if federal funds for construction would be available before deciding whether state funds would be used in this manner.

Following the same line, many local governments decided to wait and see what the state and federal governments were going to do before moving ahead with their own financing of additional school facilities.

The legislature adjourned without considering state appropriations or a major bond issue for public school construction. It was still waiting to see what Washington was going to do. Congress subsequently rejected the President's aid to education program which included millions for school construction. Since then the Sanford administration has made little mention of the possibility of state funds for school construction; but it has not announced that such funds would not be proposed in the future.

The result is that many local governments are still continuing their own wait-and-see attitude before moving ahead with local financing of school construction needs. There remains in many areas the feeling that the Sanford administration is coming up with some proposals for state financing of school construction projects.

On the basis of administration action in the past year, it appears safe to assume that the executive department of the state government has decided to go along with the traditional policy that the state will assume primary responsibility for financing public school operations, but the matter of physical facilities must be shouldered by local governments. In the absence of a forthright statement of policy by the Sanford administration, however, many local governments are holding back on filling their own school needs.

Gov. Sanford could render a distinct service to public education in North Carolina by issuing a clear-cut statement on this matter at the earliest possible date. Without such a statement, many local governments may delay too long in moving decisively to meet the classroom needs that exist within their own communities.

Long-Range Program Needs Detailed Study

Although there should be no undue delay in constructing the new Pitt County industrial training center, the matter of planning the center should not be unwisely rushed just for the sake of getting into operation.

The County Board of Education this week was given a detailed report by architects who will plan the structure, and obviously there are still many problems to be resolved before final plans are readied and construction begins. Many of these problems involve not only a careful evaluation of the best possible use to be made of the site chosen for the center, but likewise detailed planning of the curriculum to be offered by the school, the number of students anticipated and other similar matters.

In constructing an industrial training center, Pitt has undertaken a long-range program. From an evaluation of other similar centers already constructed in North Carolina, it appears that some already are inadequate because of the lack of careful planning before final plans and actual construction completed.

Pitt should be careful not to make a similar mistake as it seeks to construct its own industrial training center. In spite of the fact that the sooner the school is put into operation the sooner the county will begin to receive benefits from it, undue haste at this point could prove costly in the long run.

Like many others, we are anxious that the training center begin operations as soon as reasonably possible, but at the same time every effort must be made to insure that the center is adequately planned to fill the future demands that will be made upon it.

Congress Run By 'Middle Group'

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Through most of 1962 politicians of both parties will whop it up about next November's congressional elections but the outcome isn't apt to make much difference.

This is a conservative Congress and is likely to remain so whether the Democrats retain control and even pick up a few seats or there is an upset and the Republicans take charge. Congress is divided into three main groups. There are some liberals and reactionaries in both parties. But the big, middle, dominant group in both is conservative.

And just because this is so, the further an individual stands back from American politics and looks at it the harder it is to distinguish a Democrat from a Republican.

The Democrats have a big majority in Congress where there are 437 House seats and 100 Senate seats.

This is the score: In the House—258 Democrats to 174 Republicans with five vacancies in seats which had been held by Democrats; in the Senate—64 Democrats to 36 Republicans.

You might wonder, and justly so with these big Democratic numbers, how large a Democratic margin President Kennedy feels he needs to get Congress to bless all his efforts. Probably nobody, including Kennedy, could give a flat answer to this and for several reasons.

1. There's always some shifting around on issues but on any single one — when conservative Southern Democrats, about 90 of them, team up with very conservative Republicans against him, Kennedy is in trouble.

And, since the same Southern Democrats get elected repeatedly, this balance of power isn't in for a change even if the Democrats gained some new members in November or the Republicans won control.

2. While the final voting is done on the floor of both Houses, the key to much of the success or failure of any administration lies in the committees of both houses and with their powerful chairmen.

And in Congress the conservative Southern Democrats dominate the committee chairmanships.

Of the 20 major committees, 12 have Southern Democratic chairmen. In the Senate, with 16 major committees, Southern Democrats are chairmen of 9.

3. On some very important issues the measure of success can depend on how much fight the President has in him for his program. In 1961, on some of the most important issues, Kennedy has shown little fight or none. On medical care for the aged and federal aid to education, which ran into opposition inside and outside Congress, Kennedy went a good deal less than all out.

On civil rights, although he paid to make this one of the first orders of business if he won—he gave up altogether and didn't even offer any kind of program, mild or otherwise.

If he had, he might have angered the Southern Democrats whose support he wanted on other things.

And this year, before Congress even comes back into session, it seems clear he will bypass civil rights again, perhaps put up a fight for medical care, and maybe make only a mild stab at aid to education.

For six of his eight years President Eisenhower had to deal with a Congress by Democrats. They were conservative Congresses, too, and both the programs he offered and those that were passed were conservative.

If Kennedy had to deal with a Republican Congress — since he's been pretty conservative himself—the score would probably be no worse and no better than Eisenhower got from the Democrats.

The general for the Democrats in getting legislation through in the Eisenhower years was then Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, now vice president.

If he had been president in 1961, instead of Kennedy, judging from the way both men have

Habit And The City Tags

Few of us will deny that man is a creature of habit. Individually and collectively humans fall into a pattern for doing things, changing this pattern creates great problems.

Nothing proves it any more, however, than the yearly ritual of trooping down to City Hall and purchasing a city auto license plate.

It is something that has been done through the lifetimes of most car owners and thus is accepted. And accept it we must, for it is required by law that these useless scraps of metal be purchased and displayed on autos within the city limits.

City law requires that every resident motor vehicle be registered with the city clerk's office. For this the owner receives a tag which he places on the front of his car. And he pays a fee of one dollar, an amount limited by state law.

In this modern day, nobody seems able to figure out just why city tags are needed. Although the tags are numbered, they seem to serve no purpose as a means of identification.

Law enforcement agencies depend almost entirely on the state license plates for identification purposes.

How about justifying the practice as a revenue producing source? The city will register close to 7,000 cars this year which will mean a revenue of around $7,000. But remember, from this has to be subtracted the direct cost of purchasing the tags plus shipping charges. Then there is the less tangible cost of the clerical work involved in issuing them from City Hall and also the police cost of enforcing the law requiring that they be displayed.

Thus the city could realize little profit from them.

It appears that city license tags should either be abolished or the State Legislature should be prevailed upon to raise the fee to the point that it produced some revenue for the city.

Otherwise the sale of city license tags seems to be little more than a useless habit.

T. I. Wagner was in the midst of a serious committee report presentation at the City-County Planning and Zoning Commission meeting Tuesday night. As he talked he placed a cigarette between his lips and pulled a lighter from his pocket.

The tinkling notes of a melody floated across the hushed gathering. The lighter was the music box kind.

Wagner quickly slammed it shut. "I'd better put that thing in my pocket," he said.

What appeared to be the sports story of the year showed up on the sports pages last week. It was the report that East Carolina College basketball team was playing Bethel. Bethel in this case turned out to be Bethel College in the Camp Lejeune Christmas Tournament. It was not the Pitt County Bethel.

Other Editors Saying ... Hope And Habit

(Henderson Dispatch)

Undoubtedly the rash of New Year greetings between heads of the great powers was sincere in the hope for peace in 1962. What a great blessing and privilege it is to hope.

But the good wishes were equally as much a custom. In some instances, especially in perilous times, these expressions are designed to establish an atmosphere in which the sender may anticipate a pay-off somewhere along the way. They also are intended to represent the well wisher in the image of a peace-loving leader.

These make-believe motives do not apply to the President of the United States. There is every assurance of that. For himself personally and for the masses of Americans whom he represents and for whom he speaks, there is a sincere desire for peace, both now and in the future. For Khrushchev, it can safely be assumed that he, too, desires peace, but perhaps in a different manner. He wants to avoid hostilities on his own terms, and if that cannot be achieved then he would be ready and willing to go to the extremes, even in aggressive war. He has intimidated as much by way of emphasizing his own ambitions and in order to intimidate the adversary.

No one is going to initiate global aggression unless it be the communists. Certainly this country and its allies of the free world will not start such a conflagration. They have no territorial goals to be sought after.

They are quite content indeed to live in peace and would be happy to do so, ever afterward.

A shooting war could come in 1962. Probability is that it will not. Kennedy has said that Allied rights in West Berlin and West Germany will be defended at all cost. That indicates there will be no backing down. Khrushchev marches up to the front lines but always with a clear field over which to retrace his steps if his bluff fails to pay off. The great danger always is that he will advance an inch without harm and with great benefit to himself and all others.

No one else will begin aggressive action. If Khrushchev can be believed, which is doubtful by his own past record, there will be peace in 1962 and thereafter.

New Year exchanges between heads of the great powers embody both a hope and a habit. In either event, there is no serious threat to peace save in the ambitions of the communists. No one can with certainty or with even reasonable assurance read their minds.

The certificates compete with the government's Series E savings bonds. An E bond selling for $75 is worth $100 at the end of eight years.

The comparable values of an E bond sold for $75 and the same amount, invested in a Franklin National certificate are shown by the following table:

At End	E Bond	Certificate
1st year	$75.64	$77.33
2nd year	78.04	79.73
3rd year	81.12	82.28
4th year	84.28	84.90
5th year	87.80	87.68
6th year	91.44	90.60
7th year	95.16	93.60
8th year	100.00	96.75

THREATENED BY INFLATION

Why should savers buy these certificates yielding 3.5 per cent interest, or E bonds, which yield about the same, when they can get 4 per cent in savings banks and 4.5, 5 or higher percentages in savings and loan associations?

One is that the gains need not be reported for tax purposes until the certificate or bond is cashed. This gives the certificates an extra advantage, since the tax may be postponed up to 20 years.

The second is that certificates and bonds guarantee that 3.5 per cent rate for 20 years. It is probable that interest rates will fluctuate over the next 20 years.

In the past, rates on government three to five year issues, for example, have fluctuated from 1.18 per cent in 1945 to 4.33 in 1959. However, if inflation continues during the coming 20 years at the rate it has run during the past 20 years, it will wipe out almost all gains of either the Franklin National certificates or E bonds.

Soviet Policy On War

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Fred Warner Neal is reputed to be an expert on Russian affairs. He has been chief of the foreign economic research on Eastern Europe in the State Department. He presided over this country's first cultural relations program with the Soviet Union, and organized the Russian broadcasts of the Voice of America.

This expert, in a pamphlet published by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions for the Fund for the Republic, said:

"During the past fifteen years the Soviet Union has steadily grown not only in economic and military power but also in world influence, while the area dominated by communism has expanded. At the same time, American policy has become wholly enmeshed in a nuclear arms race which, far from promoting our security, has within it the seeds of war and thus of destruction of our whole civilization."

As one reads this paraphrase, it is to be presumed that Soviet Russia is performing a noble task by spreading its imperial power by economic and military expansion whereas the United States is performing a criminal act by organizing to defend itself and its allies against conquest by Soviet Russia. Neal apparently does not believe that we are organizing to protect this country from being conquered but rather that we should give in to Russian suzerainty. For instance, he says: "And a solicitous concern for the very objectives we seek to further makes it necessary to state that the responsibility for today's dangerous international situation must also be shared in no little degree by American policy."

I gather that Neal feels that the United States has pushed Soviet Russia into its ugly attitude. For instance, he says: "Pushed by fear, ignorance, and ideology, which often add up to false views of the world, the Russians are frequently not only churlish but also intentionally conflict with much of what we stand for at home and abroad. Their insistence on this conflict, partly in the hope of fostering communism throughout the world, is a type of aggression, but in and of itself it is not necessarily military aggression."

But what are the facts? It was the United States which rescued Siberian provinces of Soviet Russia from the Japanese who would in 1918 to 1920 have had no difficulty in walking off with that loot. I was there and watched that performance from beginning to end. It was the United States which sent food to Soviet Russia in the 1920's when the Revolution was collapsing from hunger. It was the United States which gave Soviet Russia $11,000,000 to defend itself against conquest by Hitler after the Hitler-Stalin Alliance was broken; it was the United States which brought Soviet Russia into the family of Western nations.

As I read this curious apology for Soviet Russia, I wonder what can possibly be its justification. For instance, Neal says:

"Nowhere in the whole body of Soviet Marxist theory is there the implication that the Soviet Union, for ideological or any other reasons, should itself initiate a war. . . . Soviet doctrine foresees communism coming to the world through other means than military conquest."

However, Stalin wrote: "Under such circumstances, the Russian Communists have confined their operations within the narrow national limits of the Russian revolution? Certainly not! On the contrary, the whole situation, internal (profound revolutionary crisis) and external (war) pushed them beyond these confines in their work, to transfer their struggles to the international arena, expose the ulcers of imperialism to full view, demonstrate the inevitable collapse of capitalism, defeat social-chauvinism and social democracy, and finally overthrow capitalism in their own country and forge a new weapon of struggle for the proletariat, the theory and tactics of the proletarian revolution, in order to lighten for the proletariat of all countries the task (Continued on page five)

Bankers Watching A New Plan

By ELMER ROESSNER

Bankers all over the country are watching a new savings plan introduced this week by the Franklin National Bank of Long Island.

Savers are offered certificates that double their money in 20 years. The certificates are sold in denominations of from $100 to $10,000.

Thus, a $100 certificate sells for $50. If purchased today, it would be worth $100 on January 5, 1982. Certificates may be cashed before maturity for cost plus accrued interest.

The interest rate averages 3.5 per cent over the 20 years. It is 3.1 per cent the first year and increases to the peak of 3.88 per cent in the 18th year.

While savings certificates have been sold by banks in the past, Franklin National officials said this is the first time certificates of such long maturity have been offered. If the 20-year plan succeeds in drawing in savers' money, it will surely be copied by banks all over the

Laws for Living

Moses, after leading God's chosen people out of their bondage in Egypt, ascends Mt. Sinai, where God gives him stone tablets of His laws. Descending, Moses finds the people worshipping an idol, a golden calf which he destroys in wrath.—Exodus 32:1-20.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 32; 34; Deuteronomy 5:1-21; Matthew 5:1-20.

Returning to the mountain top, Moses intercedes for his people, begging God's forgiveness. The Lord, descending in a cloud, rewrites His Ten Commandments on two stone tablets, replacing those broken by Moses in his wrath.—Exodus 34:1-28.

With the new tablets under his arms, Moses descends the mountain once more. After the 40 days and nights he spent there learning from God, Moses' face shines from having confronted the Almighty. This frightens the people.—Exodus 34:29-31.

Many years later, God's Son reaffirms the validity of His Father's Ten Commandments in His Sermon on the Mount. He says He has not come to abolish the law but to fulfill it.—Matthew 5:1-20.

GOLDEN TEXT: Matthew 5:17.

Laws for Living

THE ABIDING BASIC IMPORTANCE OF GOD'S COMMANDMENTS

Scripture—Exodus 32; 34; Deuteronomy 5:1-21; Matthew 5:1-20.

By N. SPEER JONES
IN THE first quarter of the year 1962 we shall be studying the general topic, "Jesus and the Ten Commandments."

The opening lesson, quite naturally, introduces the subject matter, placing the Ten Commandments in their historical setting and pointing up their relationship to Christ and His teachings for us, His followers.

Actually, the first record we have of the Ten Commandments is not included in today's lesson. God's laws have already been given to the Israelites in Exodus 20, at the very beginning of their sojourn at Sinai, whence God has led them after their flight from Egypt.

Then God called Moses up to the top of hallowed Mt. Sinai, manding only ritualistic observance. It does not demand, as Judaism and Christianity do, a training of the soul, an inward ritual which transforms the individual.

This idol is thought by most scholars to have been a yearling ox; ox-worship had been encountered and succumbed to by many of the Israelites during their bondage in Egypt.

After Moses, in his anger at his people, smashes the Lord's tablets, God offers to write them for him again if Moses provides the tablets. This time Moses remains on Mt. Sinai with the Lord for 40 days and 40 nights, as he did one other time. There is an interesting parallel here with the time Jesus spent in the wilderness.

"Think not that I have come to abolish the law and the prophets; I have come not to abolish them but to fulfill them."—Matthew 5:17.

while the rest of the Israelites waited at the foot, and in a voice of thunder spoke the Ten Commandments for the first time.

In Exodus 24:12, God promised Moses that He would write His commandments for the people on stone tablets, so Moses could teach them better. Just before our lesson opens (Exodus 31:18), He fulfills this promise.

While Moses is still atop Mt. Sinai with God, receiving the tablets, the Israelites whom God and Moses have been striving so hard to enlighten become restless for their old unholy way of life.

The calf of gold fashioned by Aaron in response to their demand for "a graven image" is a personification, as it were, of their desire for the easy way out—a primitive religion de-

The parallel is seen again in Moses' transfiguration from speaking with the Lord (Exodus 34:29-35), and Christ's transfiguration on another mountain top in God's presence (Matthew 17:1-13, Luke 9:28-36, etc.).

Nearly 40 years after God gave Moses the laws at Mt. Sinai, Moses reviews the incident for his people, then on the plains of Moab. (Deuteronomy 5:1-21).

When Jesus arrives on earth, He hastens to reaffirm once more God's original commandments to Moses. (See Matthew 5:1-20). In His famous Sermon on the Mount (again the important symbolism of the mountain), He makes it plain that He "came not to destroy the law or the prophets," for the Old Testament is indeed the Word of God.

Four Local FB Players Honored

ROCKY MOUNT — Four Pitt County boys were among the 53 Eastern Carolina high school football stars honored at the News and Observer's annual All-East banquet here last night.

The four were Danny Dilda of Farmville, William Edwards of Ayden, and Jack Foley and Alan McArthur of Greenville. This was the third in a row that McArthur has been named to the All-East team.

The players were presented certificates and miniature gold footballs during the awards part of the affair.

More than 200 persons attended the dinner at the Rio Restaurant including the coaches and parents of the players plus other guests.

Coach Jim Hickey of the University of North Carolina was the main speaker. The young Tar Heel mentor told the group that the goal at UNC is "to have as many boys as possible from North Carolina." He added, "I wish we could have the first 33 players from this state and that day is not far off."

The coach noted that North Carolina boys are what his team needs and added that they can play real good football.

Hickey also told the players that they had won a great honor and that they should do all they can to guard the sport of football. By guarding football the Tar Heel coach meant the boys should do all in their power to make the game better than it is and to keep it honest. He noted that to help guard the sport you do not have to be a player.

The question of scholarship was not overlooked by the UNC coach. He said, "We must strive more so now than ever before for scholarship." Hickey also reminded the boys that they must score at least 750 on the college boards to get an athletic scholarship in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Hickey pointed out two things which he learned as a football player at William and Mary and which all football players should learn from the game. These were, responsibility and to take orders.

Coach Clyde Walker of Raleigh's Needham Broughton High School was the spokesman for the coaches attending the banquet.

Walker told the group there are four ingredients for a championship team: (1) Physical ability to do the job; (2) A proper mental attitude; (3) Breaks or luck; (4) To be free of injuries.

However, the Raleigh coach also mentioned that desire is a big thing in having a winning team. He said that his team had all of these qualities in 1961 as they went all the way in class 4-A football.

As the football players from each of the five classes were called forward to receive their awards the parents of each boy were asked to stand. Pictures were taken of all of the players and their coaches with Coach Hickey.

Can't Blame Cincinnati For Playing One At A Time

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ Associated Press Sports Writer

Coach Ed Jucker and his talented lads for looking ahead.

The Cincinnati Bearcats, who hold the National Collegiate Basketball championship although currently ranked second to Ohio State, might be "playing 'em one at a time," but you can't blame at New York's Madison Square Garden. Cincinnati disposed of league rival St. Louis 62-47 for their 10th victory in 11 outings.

Last March Cincinnati stunned Ohio State in the NCAA championship final at Kansas City. But Cincinnati's hopes were dampened on Dec. 18 when Wichita jolted the Bearcats 52-51 in a league game for their lone loss.

Unbeaten Ohio State, meanwhile, has rebounded from its setback last spring. The Buckeyes have won 11 straight games, including three in the formidable Los Angeles classic. To demonstrate their fitness as the top-ranked team in The Associated Press poll.

Cincinnati has placed a big asterisk on the calendar date of Feb. 24. That's when the Bearcats get a chance to avenge their road defeat by Wichita.

No other members of the top ten saw action Thursday night.

Gene Wiley accumulated 27 points in Wichita's 77-64 conquest of Drake. Little Bruce Drysdale's clutch shooting enabled Temple to edge St. John's (N.Y.) 52-51. Jim Thompson supplied the scoring impetus as Southern Methodist trimmed Texas Christian 70-53. Rice spurted in the second half to whip Baylor 79-56. Jack Foley's 30-point output triggered Holy Cross to an 80-48 triumph over Dartmouth and Colgate handed Syracuse its 14th straight defeat over a two-year span, 70-62.

Cincinnati began to click when Wilson replaced 6-9 Paul Hogue with four minutes to play in the first half. The sophomore sensation from Chicago hit three straight baskets to give the Bearcats a 22-16 edge. Wilson scored the last six points before the half ended, giving Cinchy a 33-20 advantage at the intermission.

The Ohioans pulled away to a 50-20 bulge and coasted the rest of the way. Ron Bonham, another Cincinnati soph., chipped in with 14 points. Bill Nordmann was high for the defensive-minded Billikens with 9.

Foley, the nation's second leading scorer, maintained his 29.3 average by sinking 13 of 23 field goals and 4 of 6 free throws for Holy Cross.

Colgate snapped its five-game losing streak at the expense of hapless Syracuse, which is 0-9 on the season. Bob Duffy topped the Red Raiders with 20 points and teammate Bruce Corbett overcame the bench in the second half to contribute 12 of his 14 points and help thwart an Orange rally.

Eagles Favored Over Detroit

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagle are slight favorites to repeat their regular season victory over the Detroit Lions Saturday when the two second-place teams meet in the National Football League's Playoff Bowl at the Orange Bowl.

The game will be covered by network (CBS) television with kickoff time scheduled for 2 p.m. (EST). The advance sales have been running ahead of last year's inaugural game, indicating a crowd of more than 35,000 if the weather continues its warming trend.

Free Subs And Platoons Wanted

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nine years ago this month, 66 weary delegates at the National Collegiate A.A. convention passed a resolution which "emphatically asked" the elimination of platoon substitutions in football.

The subsequent action of the football rules committee in eliminating free and unlimited substitutions brought rounds of applause from sports writers and broadcasters.

For several years they had been saying that (1) A real football player should be able to perform both on offense and defense, and (2) Platoons made it too dangerous to remember who was in the game. The expense factor in recruiting and maintaining large squads was another objection frequently cited.

Now the experts say they want free substitutions and platoons back.

Forty nine of the writers and broadcasters participating in The Associated Press year-end poll—roughly one-quarter of those casting ballots—listed this as the one rule change they'd like if they had the say. The figure is comparable with the anti-platoon voting in the polls of a decade ago.

Only one other proposed change drew anywhere near as much support. There were 32 votes in favor of returning the goal posts to the goal line from the end line 10 yards back.

The No. 3 suggestion—by 19 voters—was "Don't change the rules." Others suggested by many were to increase the penalty for piling on after the whistle (14) and to eliminate the two-point conversion (13).

McSweeney To Aid UNC Against Irish Saturday

CHAPEL HILL — Bryan McSweeney, a sophomore from Hewlett, N.Y., a classroom leader as well as being proficient on the basketball court, has been a pleasing development for the University of North Carolina cagers in their limited action so far this season.

McSweeney will be a starter when the Tar Heels open their post-holiday activity against Norte Dame at Charlotte Saturday night. He goes into the game second to veteran pacesetter Jim Hudock in both scoring and rebounding, and Coach Dean Smith will count on him strongly against the Fighting Irish.

Four Tar Heels are in double shooting figures following their first three starts, wins over Virginia and Clemson and a loss to Indiana. Hudock, definitely one of the ACC's top stars, has collected 45 points for a 15.0 per game average. McSweeney is close behind with 43 and 14.3. Back court men Larry Brown and Donnie Walsh follow with 12.7 and 11.6 averages, respectively.

Hudock has 33 rebounds to his credit, the 6-5 McSweeney 24, Larry Brown 12 and Mike Cooke 14.

The Tar Heels have not played since Dec. 15 and spent most of the holidays at home, returning after Christmas. Since resuming practice they worked twice daily until Wednesday when classes resumed. Practices have been satisfactory, but Coach Smith says there is no way of knowing for sure how long layoff affected his charges.

No conference teams played Thursday night, and none play tonight.

Christians Top Bulldogs 73-57

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Elon cemented its hold on first place in the Carolinas Conference with a 73-57 victory over Atlantic Christian Thursday night, while Lenoir Rhyne stayed in second place with a narrow 61-59 victory over Western Carolina.

Elon is now 4-0 in the conference, and Lenoir Rhyne has a 5-1 conference record.

The story of Elon's victory was 6-6 Dewey Andrew, who poured 30 points through the nets. The Christians took an early lead and were never in danger. Ray Smith was high for ACC with 11. Jerry Wells was the hero for Lenoir Rhyne. He sank two free throws with 12 seconds to play to give the Bears the victory. Wells led the Bears with 19 points, but WCC's Mel Gibson was high for the game with 23.

In other games Thursday night involving North Carolina's small college teams, 6-5 Mike Reidy scored 20 points as Campbell beat Catawba 70-51, freshman Joe Keith netted 23 as High Point took an early lead and went on to beat Pfeiffer 85-78, and Belmont Abbey lost to Gannon (Pa.) 79-58. East Carolina plays at Guilford in tonight's only game.

The Los Angeles Angels drew 603,510 fans for their 75 home dates last season, their first in the American League.

Notre Dame, on the other hand, has been a holiday road team, but without too much luck. The Irish won their opening games against Bellarmine and Northwestern but then lost to Creighton and Nebraska before winning a victory over Michigan State.

Disaster hit them when their defense collapsed against N.Y.U., St. Louis, Kentucky and Indiana for four defeats in a row.

Arman Reo, John Andreoli, and Karl Roessler are the Irish scoring leaders, all shooting in double figures.

Back to defend his 1961 laurels was Bob Goalby of Crystal River, Fla.

And challenging Goalby were such stars as the 1961 Masters and money winning champion, Gary Player of South Africa, and former Masters and National Open champion Arnold Palmer, who with Player cleaned up most everything in sight last year.

The current U.S. Open king, Gene Littler, and America's PGA champion, Jerry Barber, were also on deck.

The event also marked the pro tournament debut of 21-year-old Jack Nicklaus, the 1961 National Amateur champion.

Nicklaus, from Columbus, Ohio, shot a 75, while Player, Goalby, Art Wall Jr. and Mike Souchak had 72s.

Palmer and Barber settled for 69s.

Terry Baker, Oregon State quarterback, is also playing basketball with the Beavers.

Los Angeles Open Begins

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The 1962 professional golfing wars start today with one of the finest fields in the 36-year-old history competing in the $45,000 Los Angeles Open.

Standout players were numerous as the field teed off at the Rancho Municipal Golf Club, so much so that few would risk predicting the winner of the $7,500 winner's purse.

Back to defend his 1961 laurels was Bob Goalby of Crystal River, Fla.

And challenging Goalby were such stars as the 1961 Masters and money winning champion, Gary Player of South Africa, and former Masters and National Open champion Arnold Palmer, who with Player cleaned up most everything in sight last year.

Rose High Wrestlers Down Goldsboro 33-23

GOLDSBORO — The Rose High School wrestling team coached by Don Bennett came out on top last night by downing the Goldsboro squad 33-23 with six of the Greenville boys pinning their men.

The Goldsboro team was able to gain four pins, but one of them was a forfeit when Lee Whitehurst of Greenville rolled off the mat and hit his head on the floor.

Those gaining pins for Greenville were Robert Brady in the 97 pound class over Moonsaw, Paul Evans in the 105 pound class over Radford, Sammy Pugh in the 114 class over Nessee, Dalton Owens in the 128 pound class over Weiller, Wayne Sumrell in the 167 pound class over Husbands and Van Harris in the unlimited class over Dirany.

Goldsboro boys who gained pins were Gerrity in the 122 pound class over Jimmy Simpkins, Rannav in the 156 pound class over Whitehurst, Tractenberg in the 180 pound class over Roy Adams, and Whiteburg in the 140 pound class over Bill Mosier.

David Mosier of Greenville won a 3-0 decision over Stallings in the 147 pound class and Godwin of Goldsboro won a 3-0 decision over Johnny Speight of Greensboro in the 135 pound class.

HEARTHES FOR SALE

BY PEGGY GADDIS

From the novel, Homes For Sale, by Peggy Gaddis. Copyright 1961, by Aracelis House. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 23

Lee Folsom put in the following day helping Miss Cora get settled and put her cherished little home in shining order.

There was the task of calling the Stacys and telling them that she had been unable to get the financing for the home they had wanted so much.

She had tried and tried, but had been turned down wherever she had gone until at last she had been forced to accept the fact that it was hopeless.

All of which sent her home to dress for the party in anything but a party mood. There was no rumormongering in her wardrobe for a suitable frock for the festivities, because there was only one frock that would do. It was a strapless blue chiffon with a full, uneven hemline above silver slippers.

When she admitted Kermit Dalton she gave him a smile that was tentative, yet touched with eagerness.

"Hello, you look scrumptious," Kermit told her.

"You look pretty handsome yourself, thanks," Lee said.

Kermit reached for her and drew her close, his hands on her bare arms, holding her so that her face was only a few inches below his own.

"I've missed you, Lee." His voice was faintly husky.

"Have you, Kermit? I've missed you, too," Lee admitted honestly.

"Then maybe you're going to change your mind?" asked Kermit. Lee drew back from him and shook her head, her eyes sorry.

"I can't, Kermit. I'm sorry, truly sorry, but I can't give up my job—well, there it is."

Kermit nodded and freed her.

"Shall we get started?" he suggested.

As they went down the stairs and out to his car, he said in a brisk, matter of fact tone, "I believe I've found the financing you wanted for the Stacys."

Lee paused and stared at him.

"Oh, Kermit, how wonderful! I'd given up hope! Has the banking committee changed its mind?" she asked eagerly.

"Afraid not. They're not likely to. No, I think Martin Whitfield's going to do it. Good old Martin, friend in need of all the town!" There was the faintest possible mockery, edged with envy, in his voice.

Lee blinked. "But why should he?"

"Oh, he has some idle money he would like to invest in Lewisville, and he asked, when he came in about the Grayson apartment, if I knew of any likely investments, like first or second mortgages and the like. I told him about the Stacys, that you were their agent, and he said he'd get in touch with you. I gave him the file on them, and as soon as he studies it, he'll probably want to meet them and talk it over."

Kermit helped her into the car, slid behind the wheel and set the car in motion.

"Kermit, that was kind of you," said Lee warmly. "I had to tell them this afternoon that I'd exhausted every possible chance. They took it like good soldiers, but I could see how terribly disappointed they were."

"Well, don't build too big on it," Kermit cautioned her. "Whitfield hasn't quite decided, or he hadn't when he left the bank this afternoon. He didn't mention it to you when he came in to discuss the lease on the apartment?"

Remembering Martin's brusqueness, his brutal frankness, Lee cringed slightly.

"No, he was too busy telling me what he thought of me for daring to ask Holly and Mimi to vacate Miss Cora's house," she confessed. "I suppose you know he wanted the apartment for them, not for himself?"

"I suspected it wasn't for himself," Kermit answered. "I haven't told you what I think of you for throwing them out, have I?"

Lee looked at him uneasily.

"If you're going to denounce me as a heartless, inhuman critter—" she began.

"How could I? I think you're swell! I admire you! Remember, I know Miss Cora. I'd have done it for her if she had asked me! But since your uncle is her legal representative and he was out of town, I can imagine you felt it your duty. You're quite a gal for doing what you think is your duty, aren't you?"

In the faint light from the instrument panel, Lee could not be quite sure of his expression, and she was afraid to count too much on his tone. Warily she answered, "Well, I try!"

"And do a very good job of it, Lee!" Kermit told her firmly. "Lee drew a deep breath and relaxed, smiling at him."

"Oh, Kermit darling, I'm so glad you understand!"

Kermit glanced at her for an instant before he once more turned his attention to the road.

"Oh, I'm a very understanding guy, Lee!" he said dryly, and added before she could answer, "About some things. But I'm still a pretty old-fashioned guy at heart."

Lee sank back in her seat, because there was no point in continuing that subject. She knew only too well what he meant.

They reached the club and went in.

Inside the main dining room Martin was waiting to greet them, with Mimi and Holly Eastman flanking him on either side.

Holly was breath-taking. Her gown of ivory satin was becoming to her exquisite coloring. The strapless bodice fitted snugly; the wide skirt ended just below the knees where a wide flounce of ivory chiffon began, stitched to the satin with delicate embroidery.

Tucked into a very sophisticated coiffure was a cluster of tiny orchids, rare and expensive and adding just the final note to her exquisite appearance.

She was radiant as she greeted each arrival.

When they were guided to their table by the maître d', Martin walked beside Lee, and managed to say for her ear alone, "You're looking very lovely. But then you always do."

Lee smiled up at him. "Thanks, that's very kind of you. Holly is the lovely one here tonight. She always is, though, in any setting. A very beautiful girl."

Martin's tone was faintly dry as he answered, "Oh, yes, very beautiful."

The table was a round one, and there were twelve places laid. Holly sat on one side of Martin, Lee on the other, Kermit next to her. Mimi was directly across the table from Martin and Holly, and her eyes upon them were avid, scarcely leaving them.

While the first course was being served, a seven-piece orchestra took its place on the bandstand and dancing began.

Holly and Martin danced. Holly very close in his arms, her cheek against his, her air of complete proprietorship almost embarrassingly frank. Martin dutifully danced with each of his guests; and while he was dancing with someone else Holly, in the arms of one of the other male guests, kept her eyes jealously on him.

How, wondered Lee in disgust as she danced, can she be so obvious? Hasn't she any pride at all?

Late in the evening, when the table had been cleared for dessert and coffee and the band was taking its supper break, Lee's question was answered.

Holly leaned close to Martin and whispered intimately in his ear. Lee saw Martin stare at her, startled, his brows drawn together in a surprised scowl. But Holly only laughed, squeezed his hand where it lay on the table and jumped to her feet, tapping her knife lightly on her water glass.

"Quiet, everybody!" she called out, and the guests at other tables glanced at her curiously. "Martin has an announcement to make; the most important announcement in the world. So listen carefully!"

Educator Doubts Edison Could Get Into School

By FRANCIS STILEY

NEW YORK (AP)—If Thomas A. Edison were starting anew today, how would he do in college?

Dr. Carroll V. Newsom doubts Edison could even get into a modern engineering school.

"He wasn't a theoretical man," said Newsom, a veteran educator who retired Jan. 1 as president of New York University.

Newsom isn't too happy about what he considers an undue emphasis placed today on development of theoreticians.

He feels that the old "trial and error" method is still valuable, too, and oughtn't to be discouraged. "We're short on people who can 'play with hardware,'" he said.

These and some other fairly stated beliefs were voiced by Newsom in an interview just before taking a new job as a vice president of Prentice-Hall, which publishes educational books.

Among the beliefs:

College today should be fitted to the student, rather than the student to the college. Tailor the teaching to the capability of the individual student, rather than force him to struggle through a traditional curriculum devised long ago and including courses the student doesn't need or want.

Ninety per cent of today's youngsters are fully capable of doing college work, and ought to have a chance. Many educators put the top figure at 30 per cent. Actually, only about 5 per cent now attend.

Parents should quit giving their children allowances and insist that they work for their spending money.

Youngsters themselves should be able to pay from one-half to two-thirds of the cost of their college education.

The time to start getting a boy or girl ready for college is at the age of nine.

Education has all but ignored something the nation needs the most. That is training people to think ahead, far ahead; to peer into the future and anticipate what man's needs will be. Thus the foundation can be laid now for providing them.

Newsom, nearing 58, has served 10 years at NYU, five as president. Before that he was associate commissioner of education for New York State, head of the mathematics department at Oberlin College in Ohio and held a similar post at the University of New Mexico.

Denmark ruled the Virgin Islands for more than two and a half centuries.

Can Martin Whitfield be hoodwinked into marriage by Holly Eastman? The story continues here tomorrow.

One Thank-You Note For Santa

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP)—The Columbus Ledger published hundreds of letters to Santa Claus during the pre-Christmas season. But only one youngster sent Santa a note of thanks.

A pen-printed note, addressed to Santa Claus and signed only "Skipper," said: "I have been a good boy. Thank you for everything you brought me Santa Claus. I love Santa Claus."

NEW YORK (AP)—Gains by steels, a spurt by Chrysler, and losses by some blue chips highlighted an irregular stock market early this afternoon. Trading was active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks took a minor loss of .40 at 260.30 with industrials down .10, rails down .20 and utilities down .60.

A drop of about 3 points by Du Pont and losses of some other issues included in the popular market averages accounted for the sag in these indicators.

For the market as a whole, changes were mostly narrow.

Chrysler's rise was accompanied by surprise news that the company plans to introduce a new medium-price car model. Rival motors were mildly depressed. Other groups were mainly a mixture of small gains and losses.

Chrysler was up 2 points at best in the news, paring the rise slightly in later dealings. Ford and General Motors took fractional losses.

U.S. Steel, up about a point, was the sturdiest performer among the major steelmakers, all of which made moderate gains.

Aside from Du Pont's loss, the averages also suffered from declines of about a point in Consolidated Edison, American Telephone and Eastman Kodak as well as fractional losses by Woolworth and Commonwealth Edison, among others.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 1.42 at 721.11. Prices moved generally higher on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds showed a higher tone. U.S. government bonds were unchanged to lower.

Kennedy Ending 'Holiday' Today

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy, eager to get his medical care, tax and tariff proposals on legislative wheels, flies back to Washington today for a series of tactical and advisory conferences.

Kennedy opens the advance campaign for his domestic program Saturday morning at the White House when he ranges over the outlook for the 1962 session of Congress with Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means committee.

Mills' committee will handle legislation by which Kennedy hopes to provide medical care for the aged under the Social Security system, obtain tax incentives for industrial investment along with tax revisions to make up any loss in revenue, as well as authority to bargain with other governments for tariff reductions.

With Mills, the President's main project is to convert the Arkansas Democrat to support of the President's medical care plan.

Mills opposed the Social Security feature last year in favor of legislation he backed in 1960 with Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla., to aid state medical care programs. Congress adopted that approach.

Source close to Kennedy say he expects to get his own medical care program through Congress and to gain at least a measure of success with his tax and tariff proposals.

Kennedy scheduled a 4 p.m. takeoff for Washington. He will be returning to the capital a day ahead of his original timetable.

Kennedy still plans to speak Saturday at a Democratic fundraising dinner in Columbus, Ohio. Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's birthday Kennedy will return to Washington for Sunday talks on preparedness with Gen. Lucius D. Clay, his personal representative in Berlin, and Director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Clay is returning to the capital amid reports of differences between Washington policymakers and U.S. officials in West Berlin on dealing with the situation in the divided German city. Presumably, this will figure in his talks with the President.

On Monday, the President is expected to meet with congressional leaders of both parties. He will be trying to muster support for his programs and soften opposition to them.

Kennedy tentatively planned a last cruise over Lake Worth and into the Atlantic before leaving Palm Beach this afternoon. He and Mrs. Kennedy have been going out with friends and relatives almost every day aboard the presidential yacht Honey Fitz.

The chief executive departs in a more cheerful, if not contented, mood than when he sped to Palm Beach on Dec. 19 to be with his stricken father.

Former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy was in serious condition after suffering a stroke. Thursday, Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said the elder Kennedy continues to improve.

According to present plans Mrs. Kennedy will stay in Palm Beach with daughter Caroline, 4, and son John Jr. until next Wednesday. By returning then, she would be in Washington when Kennedy delivers his State of the Union Message to Congress, either Thursday or Friday.

TO STUDY SYSTEMS
TOKYO (AP)—Japan plans to send a mission to the United States to study U.S. air defense warning systems, a defense agency official said today.

It will be a rural station since it is outside Wilmington's city limits. The postmark probably will read "U.S.S. North Carolina Rural Station, Wilmington, N.C."

Graham said the station will be contracted to a member of the Battleship Commission who will be responsible for operations. However, the Wilmington office will have authority on postal matters.

The job was begun when Utilities Director Leonard Bloxam was city manager. He ceased supervision of the job when he completed his duties as city manager last summer. Later, however, he volunteered to complete the supervision.

The City Council still took action to employ a qualified engineer to make an inspection of the job.

Begin New Filing System For Marriage Licenses

As of the first of the year, Pitt County began a new system of filing marriage licenses issued from the Register of Deeds office in compliance with a new state law which has established a central file at the State Board of Health, office of Vital Statistics.

The office of Vital Statistics keeps records of all births and deaths and now will file marriages also.

The law requires that on or before the 15th day of each month, registers of deeds in North Carolina shall transmit to the office of Vital Statistics of the State Board of Health, on forms prescribed and furnished by it, records of each and every marriage performed in the county during the preceding calendar month, a record of which has been filed in his office as required by applicable law.

So far, only one marriage license has been issued from the Pitt Register of Deeds office this year.

The total marriage licenses issued for 1961 were 532, or about 44 and 1-3 a month.

Marriage licenses issued from the Pitt office since Dec. 22 are as follows for white couples:

Sim Jerome Weisner III of Fountain and Betty Carol Tugwell of Rt. 1, Fountain; Marvin Carroll drivers.
