

Nation's Second-Largest Stock Exchange 'Blistered' For Abuses Of Safeguards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest stock market scandal in 23 years has hit the American Stock Exchange and further revelations seem certain.

The nation's second largest, fastest growing stock exchange was blistered Friday by federal investigators who cited evidence of "manifold and prolonged abuses" of market safeguards adopted after Wall Street's 1929 debacle.

In a 127-page report, the staff of the Securities and Exchange Commission ripped into the American Exchange in terms reminiscent of a similar reform probe of the larger, neighboring New York Stock Exchange in 1938-39.

The American Exchange had no immediate comment on the document.

Three developments were expected to flow from the SEC's action:

1. Increased pressure on the exchange, known to Wall Streeters as the Amex, to adopt reforms more sweeping than those already in the works.

The SEC told the exchange to clean house in a big way or prepare to take orders from Washington.

2. Formal proceedings by the SEC, and perhaps the Justice Department, against some of the Amex members named as wrongdoers.

The SEC is known to be holding back considerable evidence against some of these men—evidence which presumably would be produced in a hearing room. Asked why the report only hinted at market rigging and made no direct charges, an SEC official said, "We can't try these guys in a report."

3. More vigorous policing of exchanges by the SEC.

The Amex investigation, and a broader SEC study of the entire securities business, authorized by Congress and just getting started, grew out of commission proceedings against Jerry and Gerard Re, prominent Amex specialists.

The Res, father and son, were expelled from the exchange last May for multiple stock rigging and illegal transactions involving more than $10 million. They have since been arrested on criminal charges.

The scope of the Re case jarred the SEC because as specialists they held the most important positions in the market, being responsible for the conduct of fair and orderly auctions in assigned stocks.

Reporting on the follow-up inquiry, the SEC investigators charged that:

Top Amex officials had conflicts of interest that may have curbed their freedom to enforce honesty on the trading floor. Among those named in this connection was Edward T. McCormick, a former SEC commissioner who was ousted as Amex president on Dec. 11.

The Amex has been dominated for about 10 years by a self-perpetuating clique that allegedly closed its eyes to often to serious misdeeds. Listed as members of the in-group were Joseph F. Reilly, who has agreed to step down next month as president pro tem and chairman of the board of governors; Charles J. Bocklet, vice chairman; James R. Dyer, chairman of the Finance Committee, and John J. Mann, chairman of the Floors Transactions Committee. The last three are all specialists.

The big specialist firm of Giligan, Will & Co., violated laws and regulations on a wholesale basis and held a whip hand over many other specialists by financing their operations, the SEC said.

When the investigation was announced, McCormick said it would dispel "unwarranted inferences" stemming from the Res Case. Like other Amex officials, McCormick contended the Res were isolated offenders.

Said the SEC report: "The manifold and prolonged abuses by specialists and floor traders and other instances of misconduct described in this report make it clear that the problem goes beyond isolated violations and amounts to a general deficiency of standards and a fundamental failure of controls."

Stock exchanges, by law, have primary responsibility for policing their own affairs. The report said that in the case of Amex, the system "has not worked out in the manner originally envisioned by Congress."

"Nothing said in the report," the SEC said, "is intended to cast any reflection on the basic soundness of most of the companies whose securities are traded on the exchange or on the importance of the exchange as a major market place."

Many of the activities challenged in the document were closely akin to those uncovered in the Re case.

Big blue buses loaded with helmeted riot forces rumbled at dawn toward strategic street corners to be on hand for the mid-afternoon demonstration. They augmented the already strong regular police units.

Enraged by the shooting of a guard at the party headquarters Thursday the Communists called for a showing from all liberal and left-wing elements in defiance of a police ban against street demonstrations.

Communist chieftains claim that France is in danger of a fascist putsch from the Secret Army Organization. The secret Army, savagely determined to keep Algeria French against President Charles de Gaulle's program of independence for the North African territory, is blamed for the bombings and shootings in metropolitan France as well as Algeria.

Although the Communists were warned not to go ahead with the demonstration, the police order was ignored and the Communist newspaper L'Humanite called for a massive turnout.

As the prospect of a day of violence loomed in France, terrorism in Algeria continued almost without letup.

Just after dawn terrorists struck twice in tense Algiers. A European merchant was seriously wounded by a gunman near the Casbah. A little later, a terrorist shot another European to death.

At Lille in northern France, a plastic bomb, apparently set by the secret army, heavily damaged the front of local Communist party headquarters.

At crossing points on the Belgian border, police reinforcements carefully searched vehicles entering France. There were unconfirmed rumors that the secret army leader, Ex-Gen. Raoul Salan, had arrived in Belgium from Algeria where he has been hiding since he led last spring's abortive military putsch.

A savage upsurge of terrorism in Algeria since the first of the year has left at least 80 Europeans and Moslems dead; and about twice that number wounded. The clashes have centered in Algiers and the territory's second largest city, Oran.

At the same time, the secret army has called for "general mobilization" in handbills and on broadcasts over secret transmitters. This has increased fears of a new European rising in Algeria and a similar attempt in France.

Although the big French Communist party has led the cry of alarm against a possible attempt by the extreme right to overturn De Gaulle, socialists and other groups in the moderate left have also become aroused.

North Is Lashed By Cold Storm

Freezing Rain, Snow And Sleet Add To Driving Hazards; Winds In South

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Storms hurled snow, sleet and freezing rain at a broad area in the North today and lashed sections of the South with drenching rain and destructive winds.

A tornado hit two rural areas—near Jeffersonville, Ga., early in the day, toppling trees and cutting power and telephone lines. A highway and a railroad were blocked briefly by debris.

Snow, sleet and freezing rain made driving dangerous in a storm zone that reached from Texas to New England. Drifts ranged up to six feet. The snow measured 10 inches in Kansas City, 7 in St. Joseph, Mo., and Ottumwa, Iowa, 6 in Olathe and Topeka Kan.

Freezing rain formed an ice sheath on much of the northeastern quarter of the nation, slowing travel and causing accidents by the hundreds.

Much of upstate New York resembled a freshly waxed floor. Scores of highway accidents, many involving two or more cars, were reported. Three tractor-trailers jackknifed on a hill near Utica, N.Y., causing a 25-car tie-up that lasted several hours.

New Hampshire motorists were advised to stay off the roads unless driving was necessary. Police in the Greater Boston district reported accidents "by the hundreds."

Massachusetts sent out more than 450 sanding trucks on the highway network. Pedestrians shuffled along slippery streets.

Ice formed on much of Michigan and the northern third of Indiana.

Snow fell on top of ice on Chicago's streets.

Fog shut down the Philadelphia International Airport for five hours. Fog and ice grounded all planes in Rochester, N.Y.

Thunderstorms broke out over northern Florida, the Carolinas and Georgia. Macon, Ga., was drenched by 3.66 inches of rain in six hours.

A twister hit Crestview, Fla., Friday, injuring about 63 persons and leaving an estimated 1,500 homeless.

Skies began to clear in Oklahoma on the western fringe of the wide storm zone after five inches of snow piled up in Oklahoma City and Tulsa.

Arctic air clung to some Northern states. Temperatures ranged down to 23 below zero in International Falls, Minn., -22 in Bemidji, Minn., -3 in Spencer, Iowa, and -4 in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

The wild Doberman Pinschers, which are used as guards, attacked an 8-year-old girl, two women and killed the pet Corgi before they were rounded up.

The Doberman Pinschers were being taken to guard a construction site.

Witnesses said the Corgi, about the size of a chihuahua, barked and two guard dogs broke away. Seven others in a coach, heard the commotion, leaped through a window and joined in.

Greenville Again Starting Hunt For A City Manager

Greenville today finds itself searching for its fourth city manager as the result of Louis Scheepers Jr. announced intention to resign.

Scheepers followed Utilities Director Leonard Bloxam in the position. Bloxam was preceded by James Hughes, Greenville's first city manager.

Scheepers yesterday confirmed reports that he planned to submit a letter of resignation. Mayor Charles M. King said this morning he had not yet received the letter but he was expecting it. City Hall is closed today and the mayor stated he anticipated receiving the letter Monday morning.

The five City Council members are known to be unanimously in accord with accepting the city manager's resignation.

Even though Scheepers is resigning, Mayor King said this morning he would remain on for one month on a consulting basis. Scheepers will receive his regular salary for that month.

In the past when the municipal government has been without a city manager, it has fallen to the mayor to perform the functions of the office. This is expected to be the case at this time until a new man is hired.

"I'll kind of look after it myself along with the council," Mayor King said of the city manager's office.

The council will "take a deep breath" before they begin considering applications for the city manager job, the mayor stated, and the city's governing body will take its time in calling for applications and considering them.

Scheepers came to Greenville from Southern Pines last June to assume the position of city manager at an annual salary of $9,000. He succeeded Bloxam who had served jointly as Utilities director and city manager since February, 1956.

The City Council and Utilities

Commission decided jointly that the two jobs should be separated more than a year ago. It was then that the city under former mayor S. Eugene West began looking for a new city manager.

Last April the old City Council, composed of West, King, M. W. Aldridge, W. S. Stafford and Wesley Harvey, hired Scheepers by a unanimous vote. An election was underway at the time with King opposing West for mayor and Scheepers had said he desired a unanimous vote as a prerequisite to accepting the position.

Scheepers yesterday said his plans for the future were indefinite. Prior to coming here he had been serving Southern Pines as city manager since 1956. Before that he had been assistant city manager there for three years.

The city manager form of government was instituted in Greenville in 1953 after a favorable referendum was held on the issue. Before 1953, the city had been operated through a Board of Aldermen with the elected mayor as administrative head of the government.

Following the approval of Plan D (city manager) government, a five-man council was elected which chose a mayor from among themselves. This was later changed, through a referendum, to allow direct election of the mayor by popular vote. The mayor still remains a voting member of the five man council, however.

Under the city's charter, the city manager is administrative head of the government with the power to "appoint and remove all heads of departments, superintendents and other employees of the city." It also spells out other administrative duties of the city manager.

The City Council is empowered to appoint a city manager, a treasurer, a city attorney and other officers as necessary. All serve at the pleasure of the City Council.

Claims U.S. Is Being Clobbered By UN Members

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is being "outvoted, outmaneuvered and outpropagandized" in the United Nations, says Republican National Chairman William E. Miller.

He told a cheering conservative group Friday that if the situation continued, the United States must "take a whole new look-see" at the United Nations.

Miller, a New York congressman, spoke at the third semi-annual Political Action Conference sponsored by a conservative newspaper, Human Events. The conference, attended by more than 500, ends today with speeches by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., and Reps. Dward G. Hall, R-Mo., Bob Wilson, R-Calif., and John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz.

Miller blistered President Kennedy's foreign and domestic policies.

Referring to Kennedy's proposal that the United States buy half of a $200-million bond issue to pay U.N. debts incurred in Congo operations, Miller asked: "If none of the other countries want to support the U.N., what good is it for us?"

He said the United States now financed 45 per cent of the U.N. campaign against Katanga. He described Katanga as "the only anti-Communist province in the Congo."

Noting a large percentage of young people in the audience, Miller called this a healthy reaction to "socialist programs." He said young people want to be free to make the best of themselves, and this could not be done if half their income was taxed to support people "who play pool all day."

In his prepared speech, Hall noted that Kennedy was concerned about U.S. trade problems and loss of gold to other nations.

He declared: "Allow American industry to compete with the European Common Market, we are told. And why in heaven's name, we ask, did you not consider this challenge when you were asking Congress to approve a compulsory increase in the minimum wage?"

History Right . . . A Lousy Court

LONDON (AP) — Historians have always had the idea that King Henry VIII had a lousy court. Now experts have the fleas to prove it.

Archaeologist Michael Green found the mummified bodies of the fleas during excavations on the site of Henry VIII's Palace of Whitehall.

One part of the palace may have been a court dressmaker's rooms. It was there Green found numerous thimbles, dress pins, leather and pieces of cloth. The mummified fleas were found in the cloth.

Infant Drowned In Church Pool

GREENTOWN, Ind. (AP) — The 16-month-old son of a church custodian accidentally drowned Friday night in a baptismal pool.

The body of Bradley Dean Poland was found in the shallow pool, three miles southwest of this north central Indiana town.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Poland, and three brothers were cleaning up after a workman when the brothers discovered the body.

State's Political Waters Stirring

By NOEL YANCEY

RALEIGH (AP) — The first week of the new year — an election year in North Carolina and the nation — brought some political stirring in the Old North State.

Here and there hopefuls began announcing themselves as candidates for the General Assembly—and there a veteran let it be known he would not be a candidate.

State Sen. J. Max Thomas of Marshallville took another formal step in his announced plan to get a Supreme Court opinion on the question of whether there should be an election to fill the vacancy in the office of lieutenant governor left by the death of H. Cloyd Philpott last summer. Atty. Gen. Wade Bruton has ruled the office should remain vacant until 1964.

Thomas' first step came some weeks ago when he sought to file as a candidate, and the state board of elections refused to accept his filing fee. The second step came when Thomas filed papers in Wake Superior Court asking the court to direct the board of elections to accept him as a candidate. The State Supreme Court is expected to rule on the question.

Republican Congressman Charles R. Jonas was still telling newsmen he has not yet decided whether he will be a candidate for reelection in the new 10th District General Assembly carved out for him and Democratic Rep. A. Paul Kitchin.

Meanwhile, from Mecklenburg—by far the biggest county in a new 10th District—came reports that Kitchin may be in for a battle for the Democratic nomination.

Word from Mecklenburg is that state Rep. John P. Kennedy Jr. is making no secret of the fact he is interested in getting into the race.

Kings Mountain Mayor Kelly Dixon let it be known that he is considering running as a Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Sen. Sam J. Erwin Jr. Dixon said he will decide by the end of January, and that meanwhile he is also thinking about making another try for the congressional seat held by Democratic Rep. Basil Whitener.

Among the early-bird announcements for seats in the General Assembly were a couple who indicated they will run as foes of the 3 per cent sales tax on food levied by the 1961 General Assembly at Gov. Terry Sanford's urging—to raise the money to support the governor's quality education program.

One of these was Rep. Byrd Satterfield of Person County. In announcing he will run for reelection, Satterfield took care to point out that he opposed the tax on food last year.

In Greensboro, a minister, the Rev. Charles Walter Strong, filed as a Republican candidate for the State Senate. Strong said he thinks the tax on food is not necessary and there should be a restudy of the state's tax structure, and that taxes on tobacco and luxury items would have raised money needed for the education program.

Jonas Outlines 3-Point Plan Of '62 Campaigning

NORTH WILKESBORO, N. C. (AP) — Rep. Charles R. Jonas, outlined a three-point plan Friday night for the Republican campaign of 1962, and said the selection of top-quality candidates should be given priority.

Jonas, the state's only Republican congressman, told a Wilkes County GOP gathering, "The climate will be right for us this year."

Jonas said Republicans can have a good year in North Carolina:

1. — "If we take advantage of the opportunities given us by the mistakes of the opposition."

2. — "If we have a good militant organization."

3. — "If we select outstanding candidates . . . men who know the issues and can talk about them."

"If we do these things," Jonas said, "there will be many new faces in the 1963 General Assembly, and many of those faces will be Republicans."

Know One Dead In Twister That Hit Florida

CRESTVIEW, Fla. (AP) — Rescue workers toiling around the clock sifted through the wreckage of a tornado-stricken city today in a grim search for dead and injured.

Only one victim, a 6-month-old girl, was known to have perished in the twister that spun out of a squall line like a yo-yo and tore a three-mile long zig-zag path through this western Florida panhandle community.

But Capt. J. W. Jourdan, directing a highway patrol emergency team, said, "There's a possibility a lot of dead people will show up" in the flattened debris of the more than 300 homes damaged by the storm.

Approximately 63 persons were injured — five of them serious enough for hospitalization—and an estimated 1,500 were left homeless by the deadly funnel, which apparently dipped to the ground three times.

The Pensacola Journal said 50 house trailers also were destroyed.

But Jourdan said there was "no refugee problem;" that many of those whose homes were wrecked moved in with friends or relatives.

A series of squall lines blowing across the lower half of the Gulf coastal states spawned the tornado, which pounded Crestview and other cities. Slight property damage was reported at Destin and Paxton, Fla., and at Glenwood, Ala.

Crestview officials estimated the property loss here alone at $1 million or more. State troopers and other officers stood guard through the night to prevent looting.

Sightseers jammed the farming and livestock center in the wake of the storm, paralyzing traffic and hampering rescue work.

FIRE ON TOWER

PARIS (AP) — Fire broke out this morning about halfway up the 980-foot Eiffel Tower. Firemen climbed rapidly to the second landing of the tower and put out the blaze. Damage was slight.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

How children can be early taught to understand and love God will be brought out at Christian Science Services Sunday.

The welcome given children by Christ Jesus, described in the Gospel of Luke (18), is among the Scriptural selections to be read in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "God": "And they brought unto him also infants, that he would touch them: but when his disciples saw it, they rebuked them. But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God."

One of the correlative citations to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "Jesus loved little children: because of their freedom from wrong and their receptiveness of right. While age is battling with two opinions or holding with false beliefs, youth makes easy and rapid strides towards Truth" (p. 236).

All About Town With Anne Mattox

An Open House will be held at the Greenville Art Center on Sunday Jan. 7, from 3:00 p.m. until 5:00 p.m. The occasion will open the exhibition of paintings by Effie Rae Bateman of Belhaven. Many will remember the seascapes by Mrs. Bateman that was shown last year in the exhibition "North Carolina as seen by its Painters, Architects and Photographers, or some of her paintings on display at the Sidewalk Art Show. She has also had showing in several towns in Eastern North Carolina. Along with Mrs. Bateman's exhibition the "Senior Exhibit of Forrest Matheson will be on display. He has majored in Ceramics for the past two years at East Carolina College and has this fall. Some of the works shown by both artists will be for sale.

Don E. Conley, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Conley of 2309 E. Fourth St. is now stationed with the Army Security Section at Fort Devens, Mass. He returned to his base Sunday.

Harris Northrup, officer candidate for OCS at Fort Sill, Okla., has resumed his training after spending a week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Northrup on Fifth Street.

In 1912, a half century ago, a group of young Greenville girls started a bridge club which met on Friday afternoon. Due to conflicts they decided to change the club meeting to Saturday afternoon. They started out with three tables of bridge composed of these young women, most of whom taught school: Miss Estelle Greene, Miss Hennie Whitchard (deceased), Miss Fannie Bagwell, now of Raleigh, Mattie Moyer King (Mrs. Louis W. Gaylord, Sr.), Lillian Carr (Mrs. Hunter Fleming) deceased, Susie Warren (Mrs. Howard Hodges), Mary Shelburn Mrs. Norman O. Warren), Lucille Cobb (Mrs. Roy Batchelor (deceased), Mary L. Smith (Mrs. Louis Cooper) deceased, Mae Shultz (Mrs. Luther Bowling), Neel Fender (Mrs. Andrew J. Moore).

Of the original 12 members, four are still in the bridge club. They are Miss Estelle Greene, Mrs. Luther H. Bowling, Mrs. Louis W. Gaylord, Sr., and Mrs. Andrew J. Moore. One or two years later Pattie Wooten (Mrs. W. I. Wooten) and Josephine Little (Mrs. Ed Rawl) joined the club. Mrs. Richard C. Stokes, Jr. and Mrs. Carey Warren, now deceased, were members of the Saturday afternoon bridge club.

Miss Estelle Greene, Mrs. Luther H. Bowling, Mrs. C. A. Bowen, Mrs. Louis W. Gaylord, Sr., Mrs. Karl B. Pace, Mrs. Andrew J. Moore, Mrs. Burney S. Warren, Mrs. William I. Wooten and Mrs. Ed E. Rawl are now members of the club. The club now has two tables and meet each Saturday afternoon.

The "girls" look forward to the Saturday afternoon games in 1962 as much as they did in 1912. The club is meeting this afternoon in the home of Miss Estelle Greene.

Rose High News

By SHERBY EVERETT

To acquaint the freshmen with the National Honor Society and its requirements, various members of the society talked to the freshmen homerooms this week.

The members explained that these four traits were considered in choosing the students for induction: character, scholarship, leadership, and service. Scholarship pertained to one's grades, which must average to be 90 or above, and to one's conduct in class. No person with five fails or one unsatisfactory on conduct is eligible for membership.

National Honor Society members who are also marshals explained that the juniors with the highest averages are chosen as marshals. These students usher during the graduation ceremonies and other school activities.

Home Economics Divisions Annual Report Presented Commissioners

(Following is information on major projects from the annual report of the Home Economics Division of the County Agricultural Extension Service, presented this week to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.)

Major emphasis in the home economics division over the past year was placed in the areas of management, housing, foods and clothing, with planning, demonstrations, and use of the news media to further program of the division.

In the future, special emphasis will be placed on reaching new groups with homemaking education, as well as planning to keep the existing organized clubs well informed, the report said.

There are now 21 home demonstration clubs in Pitt County, with 450 women enrolled. The Reedy Branch Club, with 24 members, was organized this year.

Home demonstration clubs serve as a nucleus for reaching homemakers throughout the county.

To develop an agricultural extension program in the county, assistance of many organizations and committees has been sought: Pitt County Agricultural Advisory Board, Special Committee for Program Development, the Home Demonstration Council, 4-H Club Council, personnel and facilities of N. C. State College, the Board of County Commissioners and several commodity committees including livestock, crops and poultry.

These groups met to study the available resources, problems and objectives of farm families and set forth a list of problems needing special attention in home economics. These are:

1—poor management of resources

2—lack of adequate, well balanced year-round diets

3— inadequate housing

4—poor management of clothing dollars.

Home economics—extension agents are concerned chiefly with a program for all homemakers, channeled through the area of home economics education.

Clothing Program

The clothing program showed tangible results over the past year, with 187 club women reporting that 825 dresses, 23 coats, 55 suits and 75 hats were made, and 232 garments remodeled, representing an estimated savings of $5,502.30.

Goals for the year for clothing were to have at least 100 club women realize more fully the importance of proper shoes for the occasion and to have 50 women to further their interests in hat making.

During the year, five hat workshops were held with an attendance of 67, including 18 non-club members. A fashion revue was presented on television showing hats constructed. In other projects, a program on "It's Smart to Be Well Dressed" was presented.

Mrs. J. H. Waldrop will lead the devotional and Mrs. H. Franklin Steinbeck will present a solo, accompanied by Mrs. Guy V. Smith. A brief report of the year's work will be given.

All women are urged to be present.

Working Against Nat'l Policies

It isn't easy to understand how the name of Moise Tshombe figures in the announcement of a rally for "Young Americans for Freedom" next March.

It's even more difficult to rationalize planned presentation of an "award" to the "embattled Katangan people for their courageous stand against communism and their continued fight for freedom."

For months it has been our impression that Tshombe had been only fighting authority of the Congolese government and United Nations forces.

Katanga soldiers might possibly have had a skirmish or two with adherents of Antoine Gizenga (believed to follow the Communist line), but even that is unlikely. The Gizenga admirers are relatively few and too poor to wander afield as yet.

So, as a standard-bearer in any kind of defense against communism, the Katangan doesn't show any more qualities than you could find on a dozen street corners . . . the equivalent, perhaps, of water holes, in Africa.

That "continued fight for freedom" bit is also confusing.

Sizeable Switch In The Tax Load

By LYNN NISBET

REVENUE — Collections of State revenue during the first six months of the current 1961-62 fiscal year closely approximated the estimates made when the revenue act was adopted last June. The increase of ten and a half million dollars in general fund receipts is attributed to the higher rates and broader coverage of the general sales and use tax. In fact, the sales tax yielded $18 million more than for the previous comparable period, but the income tax take dropped off about $8 million. There was no change in the income rate. There is a matter for serious thought in this situation. On the surface it would seem to reflect higher living costs, greater spending by individuals out of less income. The withholding plan for collecting income taxes affords continuing comparison, rather than having to wait for end of the tax year as was the case prior to 1959. The running month-by-month comparison is accurate for individual wage earners. The system of advance estimating and quarterly paying by corporations and professional people still leaves final comparisons until next year.

There is also delay in impact on reports of the sales taxes collected. None of the Christmas business, for example, was included in sales taxes coming in to the State offices in December. This big increase will be reflected in January and February reports. Prospects are that the sales tax yield for the first three months of 1962 will far exceed the take for the final quarter of 1961.

WHO PAYS? — An interesting note on the switch in the tax load is found by comparing income and sales tax receipts for the July 1-December 31 period of 1960 and 1961. In 1960 the income tax held top place, as it has for many years, and amounted to about $16 million more than the sales tax yield. For 1961 the situation was reversed and the sales tax yielded about $10.5 million more than the income tax.

CHALLENGE — Governor Sanford was asked at his news conference the other day what he regarded the greatest challenge of 1962 to North Carolina. His answer obviously surprised some of the newsmen. He mentioned several things such as the challenge to raise the standard of living by increasing income; to assure more jobs for more people, better health for

The news reports we've been getting are to the effect that Katangan ideas of "freedom" are limited to themselves and have nothing to do with the broad colonial areas given independence by Belgium's government. That's selfish, in contrast with the freedom granted all of Belgian Congo.

A free Congo government, say authorities, cannot long exist unless all its parts work together. An "economic fact of life," it's called. And one of the obstacles to attaining the ideal of a free and united Congo republic . . . for lo, these several months . . . is none other than Moise Tshombe.

Somehow the garb of a hero does not become him. But what of the other figures in this grandly "conservative" rally in Madison Square Garden?

Speakers will include Senators Barry Goldwater and John Tower. Otherwise, identity of the Young Americans for Freedom is obscure. But that is no ground for distrust or unease.

The objectionable feature of the proceedings is that it is the stated policy of the United States government to support unification of the Congo republic. To implement that policy, our State Department has worked to coax unity and to coerce unity, if need be.

In short, it has been determined that it is in our national interest to have a unified and stable government for the former colony. Achieving that goal has its own peculiar mess of problems, some greater than Tshombe.

There are enough inherent difficulties without creating new ones or regenerating old ones; but this Madison Garden rally raises a strong possibility of encouraging Tshombe to persist in his problem-making, encouraging him to think he holds a high place in esteem of many American citizens and influential figures in government.

Without stretching the point too far, one might make a case of violating that law which forbids private citizens from meddling in matters of foreign affairs.

Now, If The Elections Were In Mid-April--

Operations of the House Appropriations Committee would seem to have fallen into a rut.

Or, maybe it's the other way around: The Administrations' budget-writers are in a rut.

Anyhow, Chairman Clarence Cannon has promised (before seeing the subject) that the new budget will be cut.

Such a statement encourages suspicions that (a) it is the Committee's acknowledged duty to cut for the sake of cutting, or (b) the budget-writers have an obligation to pad the figures before presenting them, to insure getting the necessary sums.

Other than this observation, we'll go along with the rest of Rep. Cannon's thinking.

The national debt does keep getting bigger; interest payments are becoming a matter of serious concern; something is going to have to be done.

The question of when and how "fiscal insanity" can be terminated in government is still up in the air. We venture to guess it will not come until a sufficiently large enough number of worried voters go to the polls and make themselves heard.

One doesn't find many people really concerned about federal government finances these days. But their ranks will grow, if only temporarily, as April 15 approaches.

Not A Year For Flabby Humans

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — This year has begun in reassuring fashion for anyone worried that mankind might be getting soft or inclined to let reason prevail over force and animal instinct.

On New Year's Day 30 people were injured in a Reno riot when police tried to break up a teen-age kissing spree. 3 were killed in a Portuguese revolt and 12 were killed in Algerian riots which continued and by today had taken 72 lives.

The most heartening thing about all this, for those concerned that human muscle might get flabby from disuse, is that every day somewhere in 1962 some people will get killed keeping muscles in shape.

The Indonesian government, for instance, is threatening to take West New Guinea from the Dutch by armed force, if necessary; the government of Iraq is ready to snatch Kuwait; the Indians are telling the Red Chinese and the Pakistanis to back off Indian land; the Berlin situation may turn very nasty; Laos is split; Viet Nam is plagued by Communist guerrillas; this week Fidel Castro was just as noisy and noisome as ever; French President Charles de Gaulle doesn't know what the Secret Army may do to him; the Congo is far from settled; and the United Nations has fallen into some disrepute.

The one-time colonial people, like India, Egypt and Ceylon, who screamed in pain and protest against the use of force when it was used against them by the British, feel no pain at all when one of them, India, uses force to grab a little real estate like Portuguese Goa. In the U. N., Egypt and Ceylon refuse to rebuke India.

And Russia, the biggest colonial power of modern times, wouldn't rebuke India either, which is a kind of you-scratch-my-back-and-I'll-scratch-yours bit of diplomacy since now India can hardly rebuke Russia in the U. N. for any new Soviet adventures.

About the only consolation the rest of mankind can take from the Goan invasion by Prime Minister Nehru's India is that they probably won't have to listen to his pious preachments in the future when some nation uses brass-knuckles instead of brains. He'll hardly have the gall to try the holier-than-thou stuff again.

Congress will want to examine the U. N. that world organization whose primary purpose is

By HENRY HOWARD Real Blessing For Some

Greenville's experimental plan for revamping the local parking system (to be tested on one block of Fifth Street) may turn out to be a real blessing for some drivers.

We were watching one of the lady motorists around here the other day trying with all her might to fit her old bus within the 24 feet now allowed for each parallel parking space in the city.

On occasions, one of the 24-foot spaces is lengthened for practical purposes when adjacent-parked autos leave extra room for movement.

More than likely, however, whenever there's only one parking space left (and this is also usually the best that can be reasonably expected when a driver is looking for one), it's only reasonable to expect that a maximum of 24 feet of space will be available.

This particular lady we observed was having a heck of a time guiding her long black sedan frontwards and backwards over and over again.

The object of it all, of course, was to get the right side of the car far enough out of the street to preserve the gleaming lacquer finish for at least one more shopping expedition.

She really wrestled with that power-steering wheel. She stayed at the task for what seemed like at least 15 minutes. Finally a Sir Gallahad standing nearby offered her services. The damsel in distress gladly and quickly accepted and took up her position on the curb to watch a professional job.

She was all smiles. She watched in pleasure feeling certain that the bumpers of the cars front and aft had been rescued just in time. On top of that, she obviously felt, her car would soon be safely parked . . . and out of the street.

That would have been a happy ending to the little escapade. But it really was a long, long black sedan and there really wasn't an inch more than the 24 feet of space left for maneuvering.

If there was any difference in the performance of the two, the Sir Gallahad had the rougher experience.

The sad ending to the story was that the disappointed lady, after circling several blocks several times to find that parking place, had no choice but to abandon her find.

To make matters worse, as she was pulling away to begin her search for a more accessible parking space, a compact car screeched to a halt and whipped backward into the parking space in three seconds flat.

Perhaps an alternative to making more room for each parking space would be a requirement that everybody drive compacts.

It seems ridiculous to say that the United States cannot intervene in Cuban affairs when the country has intervened all over the world beginning with China and continuing in Africa and other places in Asia. We declined to intervene in Hungary but we are violently intervening in the Congo; we refuse to intervene in Cuba but we violently intervene in the Dominican Republic.

This inconsistency of policy, President Kennedy inherited from his predecessors who have pursued a double standard, namely that they know how to support a "good" dictator and that they recognize by odor or something a bad dictator. It has worked out historically that they have consistently intervened from Mao Tze-tung in China to the present situation in Laos, Katanga, the Dominican Republic and almost anywhere one looks.

If intervention is a fixed American policy let us describe it and be consistent about it. And the description should be made by the President or the Secretary of State and not by novices in the lower ranks of the State Department or by Congressmen and Senators who buzz around the world issuing pronouncements to the press.

This looseness of statement and activity is not beneficial to the United States because there is no consistency of policy. If we take Cuba as an example, the policy concerning that country was manufactured by two minor officials, Roy Rubottom and William Wieland, during the Eisenhower Administration. The errors of these two are notorious that they are becoming a major political question now under Congressional investigation. Every effort that is being made to avoid a public hearing of Wieland only creates more controversy and will undoubtedly lead to a political scandal.

Considering the serious problems that face the President, the Secretary of State, neither should be burdened with the little scandals that arise out of the manoeuvres of lower officials to manipulate policy by day by day action. It is natural for insecure men to seek power and to grow upon it, but the country ought not to be burdened by such trivialities which grow into nuisances.

The only way to safeguard the United States from such situations is to form policy at the very top and to insist that all secondary officials conform to major decisions; that those in secondary offices who are by doctrine or emotions incapable of conforming to top decisions be summarily dismissed. After all, the people hold the President responsible and they do not expect him to pass the buck or to be burdened by those who take advantage of the current arrangements under the law.

For instance, William Wieland actually cannot be sent abroad because he is under investigation by a Congressional Committee. The State Department can not quite fire him because he is a Foreign Service Officer and has tenure; it is not likely that he can be appointed to a foreign post because his record is too damaging. Therefore, he is being used in the reorganization of the security section of the State Department, which investigation he must undergo favorably one week to be to Wieland, the effects of his activities regarding Cuba have not been beneficial to the United States. The best that can be said for him is that his judgement helped to put Castro in power. But he was never appointed to a position which gave him such authority.

Authority must be centered in the loftiest positions of government if there is not to be confusion. So far as foreign policy is concerned, only the President may under the Constitution conduct the foreign policy of the United States with the Secretary of State as an aid. It is true that as the world has become complicated, so complicated that the United Nations now has 104 members — the task is more complex than it was when George Washington and Thomas Jefferson held the positions which are now the re-

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

It has been the practice of some officials in the Northern states to cast Southern legal processes and law enforcement authorities in a bad light. This is especially true where cases of prison escapes are concerned. Escapes who are seeking to escape extradition. The excuses they employ often border on the fantastic. Such is the recent case of two escapees from a North Carolina prison camp. Their attorney had used some pretty strong language in trying to offer excuses for keeping his two clients from serving their terms in the Tar Heel camp. This attorney probably hasn't inspected conditions in North Carolina's prison system and is merely going by what the two escapees told him — a story not likely to be noted for its objectivity.

Let's look at what this attorney told Gov. John Nott of Rhode Island, in an appeal to keep the two escapees out of North Carolina's "vile clutches." First this attorney calls the Tar Heel prison "the dungeons of hell." He also charges brutality, and "prays that these fellow human beings be spared the pangs of torture."

He must think Gov. Nott is indeed a naive fellow to fall for such a line. Says this attorney: "We urge the denial of extradition because we deplore a system of punishment that has no foundation in rational behavior, that has no lawful purpose and which condemns a man to the dungeons of hell." What kind of talk is that? Speaking of rational behavior, we question that of a man who could attack the system of another state merely on the basis of a couple of convicts.

In reply to these irresponsible and tiresome charges Robert A. Allen, assistant director of the North Carolina Prison System, said the attorney's charges were "so utterly ridiculous they are hardly worth commenting on." Allen points out, and with sound reasoning, that if conditions in the North Carolina prison system were the way William Grande, the attorney, described them, the two fugitives would never have escaped in the first place.

He said the prison camp where the two were confined is a minimum security unit. Prisoners from the camp who work on the roads are sent out without armed guards and that is why it was so easy for them to escape. North Carolina's record in penology both sectionally and nationally is such as to refute these false and ridiculous charges.

It is tiresome to read so often of some crusading attorney or some other Don Quixote up North attacking the windmills of Southern justice which, in most cases, is as sound and just as that in any other section, and that includes Rhode Island's.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
WE CAN AVOID THIS TROUBLE

More than three-quarters of a million people die each year of heart trouble. Fifty-four per cent of all deaths are due to the ravages of this disease.

Apparently there is more of it today than in the past. Probably modern life, the pace at which we live, has something to do with this tremendous surge of fatality. In fact, medical science assures us that in the circumstances of our daily routine we determine whether we will or will not die of heart disease. If we keep the engine running at full speed even when it is at neutral, then we can be sure of trouble. If we work more than the human body can take without protest, then we are getting ourselves ready for illness. If we work all day and spend the evenings and often the nights, in exciting types of pleasure, then we can expect that someday there will be an explosion.

The body and mind must have rest—regular rest and complete rest. The peaceful mind is less liable to become involved in disagreeable heart situations, than is the fretting, angry, blustering, hating mind. Science is not able to put its finger on any one factor and call this decisive in the present heart situation. But emotions under control, diligent effort followed by rest, careful eating habits, and a life motivated by religious faith and characterized by an eager sense of human helpfulness goes a long way toward the producing of heart health.

Heavy Odds Are On Steel Strike

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are things to expect ahead in business:

A steel strike: The chances are ten to one that there will be a steel strike this year. At the moment, it looks as if only artful behind-the-scenes maneuvers by the Administration can prevent it.

Here is why: David J. McDonald has gone on record demanding a shorter work week with no cut in take-home pay. He wants 32- or 35-hour week. He also wants longer paid vacations and paid furloughs for workers with high seniority.

The rank-and-file, who largely voted for Kennedy, feel the Administration owes the union something—perhaps support in a strike. Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg was formerly counsel for the union.

COMPANIES FIRM

The steel companies are offering a tough front. They point out that President Kennedy has put pressure on them to avoid price increases and they say they don't want price boosts.

They cite two reasons: export sales are being lost in competition with low-wage producers in Europe and Japan; parts of the domestic market are being lost because of imports of steel at prices lower than it can be produced here.

The steel companies have said they are willing to share the results of increased productivity with workers, but that the rise in productivity would not begin to meet demands.

In the end there will probably be a steel strike; workers will get some of their benefits; the steel companies will get a green light on price rises; the American economy will get another blood-letting of inflation and the steel industry will lose more foreign markets.

FCC WATCHING SCRAMBLERS

Anti-recording devices suspect: The Federal Communications Commission will step in to action if radio or television stations without permission use a device inhibiting the recording of programs. Such a device has been invented.

Record companies are losing millions of dollars in sales because owners of tape recorders tape their favorite pieces from broadcasts. If the new device is used, an inaudible tone is broadcast along with the music. However, the tone appears in recordings, souring the tape. A station using the device without permission could lose its license.

Higher wool: Interest of Russian and Chinese buyers is expected to bolster prices in the world market for wool this year. URUGUAYAN ECONOMY HIT

Uruguay in a bind: Costs of producing meat, its principal export, are rising in Uruguay; at the same time, world prices are declining. The situation will get critical in the next few months.

Less tobacco exports: American exports of tobacco are still at a high level but they may drop this year. Reason: Importing countries are increasing their own production of tobacco to reduce the outflow of currency. If local tobaccos are not popular, nations can make them so by boosting taxes on imports.

Cutback in Indonesian investments: Threats of military action and rising nationalism tinged with communism in Indonesia are making American investors wary. Some investments, especially in oil development and exploration, are being reduced. Foreign holdings in Indonesia could go just like they did on another island country, Cuba.

IF SHOVED TO WALL, DON'T TELL UNIONS

"I see a surprise element has been injected into labor negotiations," said the Old Promoter, who had not labored for 10, these many years. "The National Labor Relations Board has ruled that it is unfair for an employer to threaten to go out of business if forced to deal with a union."

"So I read," I said.

"If an employer is on the ragged edge," the old one said, "all he can do is make the best bargain he can. But think what a joke it will be on the union if he goes out of business!"

And on the employer, too!

Ayden Defeats Grifton 47-44

GRIFTON—The Ayden Tornadoes defeated Grifton last night by a score of 47-44 with Tommy Riley and Ben McLawhorn high scorers for the losers scoring 16 and 15 points respectively. High for the victors was William Edwards with 16 tallies.

The Grifton Bulldogs were unable to keep pace with the fast scoring Tornadoes for the first three quarters of play. At the end of the third period, the score was Ayden 35, Grifton 25. However, Grifton rallied in the last stanza to outscore their opponents by six points. This was not enough to overcome the powerful Tornadoes, as Ayden went on to win the game by three points.

This loss was Grifton's fourth conference defeat against five conference victories.

The Ayden girls suffered a loss to a strong and consistent Grifton team by a score of 44-30. High scoring honors went to Jane Mewborn of Grifton who had 28 points for the night. High for the losers was Nancy Stokes with 12 points.

The Winterville Wolves defeated the Chicod Hornets 72-44 last night to become the only undefeated team in the Pitt County Conference.

The Wolves were led to victory by Alfred Gold, James Braxton, and Steve Worthington. Gold was high scorer with 20 points, while Braxton and Worthington registered 17 and 16 respectively.

The top man for the game was Ephrign Smith of Chicod with 23 points. Talmadge Adams was the only other Hornet to hit in double figures for the losers, scoring 10 points.

Winterville took the advantage early in the first quarter, outscoring Chicod 22-8. The Hornets were never able to come close to the Wolves for the remainder of the game.

This victory is Winterville's seventh straight win against no defeats. The Wolves have five conference victories and two non-conference victories. The loss was the Chicod Hornets' first defeat of the current campaign.

The Winterville girls, led by Carolyn Barnes and Cora Worthington, downed the Chicod girls by a score of 64-43. Carolyn Barnes was high scorer with 33 points, followed by Cora Worthington with 21 tallies.

Second Win For Greenville

Phantoms Defeat Jacksonville 70-69

By CHARLES VAUGHAN
Reflector Sports Writer

The Greenville Phantoms gained their second conference victory of the season last night by defeating Jacksonville 70-69.

After losing their first four games of the season to non-conference opponents, the Phantoms have rallied to win their two conference starts.

Close Game

As the final score indicates, the game was a close nip and tuck battle all the way. At the end of the first half, the contest was deadlocked at 37-37. The second stanza of the game differed slightly from the first half. During the third and fourth quarters, the game was tied nine times and the lead changed hands eight times.

Billy James and Rodney Knowles shared the limelight, both scoring a healthy 21 points. These two boys were the only Phantoms in double figures, but the Greenville win was definitely a team victory. Coach Farley played eight boys and each contributed considerably to the win. At one time or another, each boy either scored the two points or made a fine defensive play that slowed the attack of the Jacksonville Cardinals.

Biggest Lead

Greenville, behind the fine shooting of Knowles and James, held their biggest advantage of the night in the early moments of the first quarter. With slightly less than five minutes left in the period, the Phantoms went ahead by a score of 11-7. Two minutes later they increased their lead to seven points, 16-9. However, the Cardinals rallied to pull within three points at the close of the first quarter. The score stood Greenville 20, Jacksonville 17.

Jim Henson, high scorer for the Cardinals with 20 points, sank two points from the floor to pull his team within one point of the Phantoms after two minutes of the second quarter. The remainder of the first half was a see-saw battle with neither team able to gain a sizable advantage over the other. At the end of the first half the score was tied at 37-37.

Phants Pull Ahead

Greenville opened the second half with a couple of quick baskets to pull in front 41-38. However, with about one minute remaining in the third quarter, Fred Willett put the Cardinals in front 51-49. This was the first time Jacksonville took the lead since the early moments of the second period. The Cardinals were able to maintain their one point advantage for the rest of the quarter. The score at the end of the third quarter was Jacksonville 55, Greenville 54.

Tension mounted as the two teams returned to the court for the final period of play. Neither team led the other by more than two points during this fourth and final quarter. The lead changed from one team to the other four times in the last minute and a half of play.

Cardinals Move Ahead

With twenty seconds remaining in the contest, Mike Babson sank a free throw to put the Cardinals ahead 69-67. However, Greenville was not to be denied as they rallied to tie the score 69-69 on a shot by Alan McArthur. As the clock showed three seconds remaining in the contest, Krogie Andersen was fouled by a Jacksonville player. Andersen received two free throws. He missed the first, but made the second to give Greenville a hard earned victory.

In the preliminary game, the Greenville J.V.'s bowed to Jacksonville by a score of 59-49. Chester Walden scored 17 points for the losers and Johnny Taylor tallied 15. Roy Wiggins was high scorer for the victors with 19 points.

Pirates Defeat Guilford 90-76

GREENSBORO—East Carolina defeated Guilford last night 90-76 with Bill Otte leading the way in the first half and Charlie Lewis leading the way in the second half.

Otte contributed 16 points in the first stanza to lead the Pirates to a 48-42 halftime lead. Lewis spearheaded the Pirate drive in the second half scoring 22 of his 29 points which was high for the game.

Lewis had the greatest night of his already outstanding career, hitting on 13 of 16 field goal attempts. Otte finished the evening with a total of 21 points. Benny Bowes chipped in with 16 points. Another big factor in the Pirate win was the defensive play of Lacy West who grabbed 21 rebounds.

The Pirates were never headed except for the first field goal of the game. Coach Earl Smith's Bucs pulled out to a 14-8 lead with 14 minutes left in the first half. Guilford's only threat was when they pulled to within two points at 42-40 shortly before the half. However, the Pirates managed to pull away and it was never close from then on.

Tonight the Bucs will meet Carolinas Conference foe Elon in a home game in the East Carolina College gymnasium at 8 o'clock. This will be the second meeting between the two clubs. The Christians downed the Pirates last week in the Christmas Tournament at Camp Lejeune as they went on to win the meet.

Art Center Exhibit Will Open Sunday

A new exhibit at the Greenville Art Center will feature an old acquaintance who has shown here before—Effie Rae Bateman of Belhaven.

Showing at the same time will be Forrest Matheson of Statesville with his senior exhibit. He is an East Carolina College student, majoring in ceramics.

An open house honoring Mrs. Bateman will be held at the Greenville Art Center Sunday from 3 until 5 p.m. Many art patrons here will remember her paintings at sidewalk art shows and at the exhibition "North Carolina as seen by its Painters, Architects and Photographers" this past year.

The artist has shown in Kingston, Winston-Salem, Washington, D. C., Washington, N. C., Greenville and Belhaven. Her work has also been featured in the Art Sales Gallery in Raleigh and her murals may be seen in the new cafeteria of Granger High School and at Meredith College.

Mrs. Bateman began her study of art in the Kinston high school. She received her A. B. degree in art from Meredith College, where she was a student teacher in her senior year. Following college, she was art supervisor and instructor at Summit School in Winston-Salem.

Since her marriage she has taught private art lessons in Washington, N. C., and in Belhaven. For the past 12 years, she has sponsored exhibits at the Belhaven Library Gallery, showing the work of individual artists as well as traveling exhibitions.

For the past three years, Mrs. Bateman has conducted a private art school in Belhaven. She is now working on a series of murals for a home.

She says she enjoys working with all mediums. "Oil and watercolors have served me well," she stated. She also has worked with charcoal, clay, plaster, wood carving, woodcuts, and linoleum block prints.

She derives much pleasure encouraging young artists by showing their work, giving teas and open houses in the gallery in order to give everyone the opportunity to see original art work. "There is great satisfaction derived from seeing an art student develop under one's guidance," she commented.

Mrs. Bateman claims to be a part-time artist and a fulltime bookkeeper for her husband's business. They have two children, a married son enrolled at East Carolina College and a daughter in high school.

In addition to her artistic interests, Mrs. Bateman has been active in her garden club, church, Parent-Teacher Association, book club and library association.

Matheson, the other exhibitor, was a transfer student from Mitchell College, where he received a general diploma. He will receive the B. S. degree from East Carolina College in the spring, having majored in ceramics for the past two years here under the direction of Paul R. Minnis. Many of his pieces are on display now.

Some of the work of both artists will be for sale.

The art center is open daily, Tuesdays through Saturdays, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. The new exhibition follows the Pitt County Bicentennial Exhibition. The current exhibit will close at the end of the month.

SCENES FROM THE PUNGO RIVER . . . such as that above are a favorite subject of Effie Rae Bateman of Belhaven, whose exhibit opens Sunday at the Greenville Art Center with an open house from 3 until 5 p.m. Striking hues of blues, greens and lavenders are used in this picture, as in many others by Mrs. Bateman. ## New Guinea Argument Has Roots In Dim Past

By HAL MCCLURE

SINGAPORE (AP)—Some questions arise amidst the wrangling over West New Guinea.

Why does populous, resource-rich Indonesia, already spread across Southeast Asia in a giant, curving archipelago, want still another chunk of real estate and 700,000 more citizens?

Why does Holland, her eastern colonial empire only a winter's dream, clutch possessively at West New Guinea in the Pacific?

One answer comes readily enough: Pride or face.

But the truth is much more complex and stretches back more than 400 years.

Here's the background: New Guinea, the world's second largest island (behind Greenland) was discovered in 1545. The Spaniard explorer, Ortiz de Retez, named it Nueva Guinea, because he thought he saw a resemblance between the island inhabitants and those of African Guinea.

The East India Co. led the Dutch to the island 80 years later. After the Napoleonic wars, the Netherlands took over the company's interests. The first settlement was established in 1828.

Basically the inhabitants—called Papuans—are divided into two groups: the mountain dwellers, strange neolithic types who are still warlike and want to be left alone; and the coastal groups, primarily kinky-haired and sturdy built, a mixture of Melanesian and Austronesian. Headhunting and cannibalism survive in some areas.

When Indonesia won its independence the Dutch insisted on retaining West New Guinea.

Indonesia agreed but stipulated that the question of New Guinea be worked out through negotiations.

The talks never materialized. Holland said at first that New Guinea was going to be an island haven for Eurasians of Indo-European parentage who found themselves unwanted in either Indonesia or Holland. This plan fell through when the Eurasians took one look at the inhospitable land.

The Dutch said later that they were holding onto New Guinea in order to give the Papuans self-determination.

Indonesia charged the Dutch still had the idea of regaining Indonesia and wanted to use New Guinea as a jump-off base.

In 1957, the angry Indonesians seized $1.5 billion worth of Dutch property in Indonesia. In 1960, President Sukarno severed diplomatic relations with Holland.

The Dutch began pumping in about $30 million annually for administration, education, health and other projects.

The balance of trade has always been unfavorable. Exports, primarily from oil, copra, spices and crocodile skins, totaled less than $8 million in 1960.

The Dutch say they want to turn New Guinea over to the Papuans as soon as possible. They proposed that in the meantime it become a U.N. trusteeship, like the eastern half of New Guinea which Australia governs. The proposal died in the current U.N. assembly.

As Dutch officials see it, 10 years or so are needed before the Papuans are ready for self-government. A start has been made legislative council.

If war comes?

Sukarno, drawing on his friends in the Communist bloc, has ample cover to make successful landings. Military strategists see the war ending when Sukarno takes Biak and the administrative capital of Hollandia.

Dr. Pou Speaks At Friday Meet

RALEIGH — "Leadership and brainpower" were cited here Friday as the "critical factors underlying future growth of our agricultural and total economy in the state" by Dr. J. W. Pou of Greenville in an address to an Extension Program Development Seminar.

Dr. Pou, manager of the agricultural department of the Greenville office of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., appeared on the program at N. C. State College along with Dr. E. T. York, administrator of the Federal Extension Service, Washington, D.C., and Harvey B. Caldwell of Greensboro, chairman of the National Agricultural Advisory Committee.

In his address, Dr. Pou presented a question: "Are we prepared to meet the changes of today and those that are promised for the years immediately ahead?" In answer to the question, Dr. Pou presented an eight-point list of "guidelines" for the Extension Service.

The eight points emphasized continued and expanded Extension efforts in the present direction and special attempts to influence the economic lives of new people. One of the points suggested that the Extension Service's first duty is to rural residents.

In summation, Dr. Pou asserted: "We know that we can't do today's job with yesterday's tools and be in business tomorrow."

Arrest Two On Damage Charge

Two East Carolina College students were arrested on charges of damage to personal property and possessing stolen property early today by police investigating a complaint at 313 East 14th St., the youths' Greenville address.

The two charged were identified as Wyatt Herbert Bissett and William Edgar McDonald, both 22-year-olds.

Detectives said they went to the 14th Street address after receiving a complaint from the students' landlord, Mrs. J. W. Evans of 1705 South Elm Street. Mrs. Evans reported the apartment which they were renting had been damaged.

Officers checking the report found mirrors in the three-room second story apartment had been broken, window shades damaged as well as to other damage to furniture.

Officers checking the dwelling also discovered seven road signs ranging from a "Greenville" city limit sign to "No parking," "Stop," railroad crossing and "Slippery when wet" signs.

Officers charged the two with possessing stolen property, then arrested the two for damage to personal property on charges brought by Mrs. Evans.

They were jailed under $900 bonds each but were released later after officials of the court recognized them to appear here for trial.

No estimate was given as to the damage to the apartment.

Series Of Accidents Are Listed By City On Friday

An estimated $525 damage was reported and one person injured in a series of traffic mishaps investigated yesterday by Greenville traffic officers.

Police said heaviest damage was done when two vehicles collided at the intersection of Chestnut St. and Paris Ave. at 6:55 p.m.

Drivers involved in the collision were listed as Margetta W. Foley, Route 2, Vanceboro, and Freddie L. Williams, 22-year-old Negro of 900 Pitt St., Ayden.

Officers charged Mrs. Foley with failing to yield the right of way and placed damage to her car at $175. Damage to the Williams vehicle was set at $250.

In a second mishap, an estimated $100 damage resulted to a truck being driven by Mathew Jones, 61-year-old Negro of 1709 Lincoln Drive, when the vehicle collided with a steer on Evans St. Ext. about 8:32 p.m.

Traffic officers said the steer was owned by J. C. Paige, Evans St. Ext., and was loose on the street. The animal was injured and had to be destroyed, they added.

No charges were placed in the incident.

In a third Friday night traffic mishap, a 14-year-old Negro girl was injured in a freak accident on Albemarle Ave.

Investigators said a car owned by David Earl Brown, 20-year-old Negro, was parked in a private lot on Albemarle Ave.

Brown got out of the car to permit a 10-year-old girl, identified as Christine Miller, address not given, to enter the vehicle. Upon entering the car, Miss Miller struck the automatic shift lever, officers explained, and the auto started to move, crossing the sidewalk and hitting Molly Hemby of 308 South Pitt St.

Miss Hemby, who was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital, was treated for bruises to her left side then released.

No damage resulted in the mishap and no charges were placed, police noted.

Los Angeles Is Losing 2 Papers

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles lost one of its four metropolitan dailies Friday. Another goes today.

That leaves two—in a city of 2 1/2 million.

First to go was the evening Los Angeles Mirror. It published its last edition Friday.

The Los Angeles Examiner, a morning paper, publishes its last edition today.

Surviving are the morning Los Angeles Times, the rich and venerable older sister to the Mirror, and the evening Herald-Express, a sister-publication to the Examiner.

The Mirror—the youngest—was always fourth of the four papers in circulation. The Examiner has long trailed the dominating Times.

The demise of the Mirror and Examiner left the Chandler, family's Times ruling the morning field and the Hearst family's Herald—to be renamed the Herald-Examiner—alone in the evening field.

In Washington, D. C., Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said that the House Antitrust subcommittee—of which he is chairman—would examine the facts of the newspaper closings here to "see whether or not there was concerted action."

The statements from both papers' top executives gave the same reasons for the closings—the fact that they were losing money. Neither paper mentioned the other.

DIVISION MEET

Sokolsky ...

In the Cuba situation, a newly appointed ambassador was not prepared for his post by the President or the Secretary of State or even the Under Secretary of State but by a newspaper correspondent who was assumed to have special information.

The error is in the perpetual shifting of authority lower and lower until responsibility is fixed nowhere. An ambassador is presumed to represent a President not an underling.

Gen. Clay And Sec. Rusk Will Confer Today On Berlin Needs

AN AP News Analysis.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, President Kennedy's special representative in Berlin, is expected to urge Washington officials this weekend to grant greater authority to the U.S. commander in West Berlin to deal with unexpected emergencies.

Clay, who flew into Washington Friday, was scheduled to meet with Secretary of State Dean Rusk today. He will confer with President Kennedy and perhaps other administration officials Sunday.

At the airport, Clay denied to newsmen that he is involved in any dispute with Rusk over the degree of latitude allowed the Berlin commander, Maj. Gen. Albert Watson. There have been published reports that Clay had registered a strong protest with Rusk against instructions unofficially described as sharply limiting Watson's power to act.

"I'm not conscious of any difference of opinion between the secretary of state and myself," Clay declared. He said it was Rusk who had suggested when they met in Paris last month that Clay come to Washington to report on the Berlin situation.

When he was asked how much freedom the commander on the spot should have for meeting emergencies, Clay told newsmen: "I think if the crisis is serious enough we have got to let the local commander make the decision on the spot—I do not know of any case where the local commander has not had the responsibility."

What reportedly worries Clay is that advance instructions, based on Allied contingency planning, does not always anticipate the specific problems with which the U.S. commander in Berlin may be confronted. In spite of many weeks of consultation, the United States, Britain, France and West Germany failed to anticipate East Germany's action last August in building a wall to seal off East Berlin from West Berlin.

One possible future danger reported to have been raised by Clay in a recent message to Washington is an uprising in East Berlin which would create a dangerous situation along the border dividing the city.

If Watson lacked precise instructions for dealing with these problems and if he failed to get immediate orders from Washington, he might be virtually paralyzed at a time when actions were necessary.

Washington reaction to emergencies in Berlin, administration officials concede, is complicated by two conditions. One is the need to reach agreement among agencies within the U.S. government on what should be done. These agencies include the State Department, Defense Department and White House.

The other circumstance which prolongs decision making, possibly for several days, is that in any really serious emergency which involves the danger of a clash with East Germany or Soviet armed forces, coordination among Allied governments is required. In a condition of extreme peril this would mean that the United States would seek agreement primarily from Britain, France and West Germany on a course of action—unless advanced planning already provided for such action.

Clay plans to leave Washington Monday to return to Berlin. As Kennedy's personal representative he is the chief American authority normally stationed in West Berlin.

Bing Crosby Undergoes Two-Hour-Plus Operation

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Bing Crosby's doctor says the 57-year-old crooner is doing fine after a two-hour, 20-minute operation for removal of two kidney stones.

The surgery Friday was the third such operation performed on Crosby. The others were in 1952 and 1955.

Dr. Frederick Schlumberger denied a report that the operation was necessary because of a passed kidney stone—"the stones just shifted position," he said. "It's an operation that becomes increasingly difficult every time."

He said Crosby has a tendency toward kidney stones.

Crosby's wife, actress Kathy Grant, said Bing was in good spirits going into the operating room and gave her detailed instructions on how to decorate a new home they are building in Mexico.

Bing will be in the hospital for a week or 10 days. He may be able to attend his annual Pebble Beach Golf Tournament on Jan. 18—but, said the doctor, only as a spectator.

After the operation, Bing's wife told newsmen: "When Bing had to be rushed to the hospital in San Francisco on Dec. 22, we had been at a party doing the twist. Bing can twist better than any of his young sons."

A newsmen jokingly asked Mrs. Crosby if her multimillionaire husband's kidney stones were solid gold.

"Naturally," she said. "I think we'll have them gold-plated and sent to Bob Hope as his next Christmas present."

Mrs. Crosby said her husband's room was filled with roses, including a beautiful bouquet from his eldest son, Gary, from whom he once was estranged.

N.C. Children's Home Society Still Needs $11,874 To Reach Its Goal

With only ten days remaining before the end of its annual Christmas Fund Campaign, January 15, George E. Perrin, Finance Chairman of the Children's Home Society of N. C., announced today that the largest number of contributors in the 60-year history of the Society have responded to the appeal.

The drive is conducted primarily in areas which have no affiliation with the Carolinas United Fund agencies. The Children's Home Society is completely supported by voluntary gifts.

To date, 1,373 contributors have given $48,126 to continue the work of safe adoption by this non-sectarian service which helped over 600 dependent babies and children during the past year, in 97 of the 100 counties of the state.

To leave no call for help unanswered, the Society has sent out an urgent plea for $11,874 in contributions to complete its goal of $60,000.

Anyone concerned with the future welfare of the many helpless little North Carolinians who hope to make safe landings in 1962, are asked to send their New Year's contributions today, if they have not already done so, to the Children's Home Society of N. C., headquarters, Greensboro.

Bribery Case Is Nearing Jury

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP)—The trial of Spartanburg City Councilmen Shea West Thomas and L. T. (Buck) Amick, both charged with bribery, neared the jury stage today.

The jurors were prepared to begin deliberations following closing arguments by the state and prosecution and the customary charge by the judge.

Before the defense rested its case late Friday, Amick and Thomas both swore under oath they were innocent of accepting $5,000 each "with corrupt intent."

They testified that they were only trying to "obtain evidence" against the man who offered the money.

Several officers, testifying for the state, earlier in the trial had quoted Amick as saying he was guilty.

Amick acknowledged he was "guilty," but said he meant only that he was guilty of having the money "as evidence."

Amick and Thomas were arrested Dec. 6 after they took $10,000 in two bundles from Adolphie Vermont Jr., a Spartanburg real estate man. They were accused of taking the money in exchange for their votes for continued city participation in subdivision costs.

Amick and Thomas contended they intended to take the money to FBI agent John Munn and tell him about the alleged bribe. They testified police arrested them before they could carry out that intent.

Besides Mrs. Court, the flames claimed Vickie, 5; Ann 3½, and Belinda, 15 months.

President's Son Can Now Walk

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—John F. Kennedy Jr., the President's 13-month-old son, has graduated from the crawling class and taken up toddling as a means of getting around.

John Jr. walked unaided Friday at West Palm Beach after riding to the airport to see his father off for Washington.

Mrs. Kennedy, 4-year-old Caroline and John Jr., rode with the President to the edge of the airport. Then Mrs. Kennedy and the children got out of the presidential car and into another automobile.

John Jr. walked without assistance between the two cars.

The youngest Kennedy is seldom seen by newsmen and there was no word on when he took his first unaided steps.

Portugal Blocks UN Observers

LISBON (AP)—Portugal rejected Friday night a U. N. request to post observers along Portuguese Angola's border to guard against run-runs to the Congo's Katanga Province.

An Information Ministry communique questioned whether U.N. observers would be impartial "since nearly 90 member countries of the United Nations, through their votes and statements, have affirmed their partiality regarding Portugal's overseas policy."

The statement referred to U.N. criticism of Portugal's administration of Angola.

Red Oak Christian Announcements

The Watch Night Service on December 31 featured the color filmstrip, "The Other Wise Man," Mrs. Leota Tyson gave a reading on "Conrad's Visitor," based on the words of Jesus: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of one of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Superintendent Thurston Wynne and his fine staff of officers and teachers extend a cordial invitation to attend Sunday school this week and start the new year in a good way. Let us resolve to make this our best year yet in interest and attendance.

The Rev. Howard James will preach at the 11 o'clock service on the subject "If." This is one of the biggest little words in the English language. Come and hear about its religious significance.

Kathryn Winchester will be organist and Mrs. Leota Tyson will be pianist for the service. J. S. Allen will be tenor soloist in the Sanctuary Choir anthem "In the Beginning" by Peterson.

Boy Scout Troop 398 will hold its regular meeting on Wednesday night. Don Pace Manning has recently been transferred to the DuPont plant near Kingston from Nashville, Tenn. and is assisting in the scout program. Scoutmaster Charles Allen urges a full attendance.

Mystic Avers Nehru Troubles Due Stars

NEW DELHI (AP)—A Hindu mystic says Prime Minister Nehru's image in Western eyes has been ruined by India's military seizure of Goa—and it was all the fault of the stars.

Swami Ragavendra Dassji, 45, said the takeover of Goa and two other Portuguese enclaves last month "shocked many good friends of India (and) was a warning shadow of the shape of things to come."

The swami was among 700 sadhus, holy men, and pandits, learned men, who for the past fortnight held round-the-clock congregational prayers on the banks of the sacred Jumna River. They have wide influence in India.

The recitation of sacred verses many thousands of times, ending Friday night, was aimed at averting the evil effects of a conjunction of eight planets in the sign of Capricorn. Astrologers said the planets would reach the crucial period in the first week of February, and predicted the danger of worldwide catastrophes that would take many lives.

The pandits claim the malevolent influences of the February conjunction could be seen six months before, and they will last six months after.

Nehru has discounted these predictions and has appealed to Indians to have faith in themselves and not indulge in star gazing.

But forebodings of disaster run so high in some circles here that many families have postponed marriages, betrothals and other such ceremonies until after the so-called crucial period has passed.

To ward off the evil of the planets' positions, nationwide non-stop prayers are being organized in many Indian cities.

No one has yet predicted the exact nature of the feared catastrophes, except to say there will be deaths on a mass scale from such things as earthquakes, epidemics, floods and famine.

ATTENDS CONCERT

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John XXIII attended a concert of Christmas carols sung by the Vatican's Sistine Chapel Choir Friday.

CHAPTER 24
Martin Whitfield crumpled his napkin, threw it on the table, and for a long moment, before he got to his feet, looked straight and hard at Holly Eastman, who only beamed at him more radiantly and said, "Go on, darling; tell them. They're our friends and the first people we want to know our news."

Martin got to his feet after that moment, looked around the table and beyond to the other guests who were not members of his party. And then he began speaking.

With an undertone of deep sincerity in his voice, he thanked them all for welcoming him to Lew-ville and for making him feel so much at home. It was a brief yet deeply sincere speech, and when he had finished, there was brisk applause.

When he sat down again, Holly was staring at him, her eyes round and shocked in her lovely face.

"But darling, you didn't tell them about us," she protested. Martin studied her curiously, then glanced across the table to where Mimi Eastman was watching him fidgeting.

"What's there to tell them about us?" Martin asked, and though his voice was low, it reached Lee Folsom's ears clearly.

"But, Martin darling, I thought—that is, well, after all—Holly stammered, for one of the few times in her life bereft of speech.

"Did you?" Martin stated, and though his voice was pitched low, Lee heard the taut sound of anger in it. "I'm afraid you took too much for granted, Holly. You misunderstood. I have no such intentions, nor have I ever indicated that I did."

In spite of her dislike for Holly, Lee felt a twinge of sympathy for her in that moment.

Holly sat rigid, every drop of color fading from her lovely face. Her eyes filled with tears and she thrust back her chair and went running out of the room. Mimi paused only long enough to give Martin a look of blazing fury before she, too, rose and followed Holly.

"Well, or course you did," Lee answered spiritedly. "How else would I have known there is a Hilda?"

"Of course, I see that now. I just didn't remember I'd told anybody about her."

"I'm afraid everybody here tonight does, Martin!"

He looked down at her as they danced and asked quietly, "Lee, you know what Holly was trying to do?"

"We're that kind of a town. We know everybody's business, and when we don't actually know, we make a fairly accurate guess," Lee admitted. "Perhaps if you'd

"Well, of course you did," Lee answered spiritedly. "How else would I have known there is a Hilda?"

To the relief of the others at the table, the orchestra once more took its place on the stand and struck up a dance tune.

Beside her, Lee felt Martin turn to her and ask politely, "Would you care to dance? Seems too bad to waste such excellent music, doesn't it?"

Lee smiled at him and rose, and as they moved out on the floor, others among the guests followed suit, until the floor was crowded.

Martin was scowling thoughtfully, and Lee said brightly, "It's a lovely party, Martin. I'm enjoying it very much."

"What?" Martin's thoughts came back from wherever they had roamed and his brow cleared. "Oh, the party—yes. Thanks. I'm glad you are enjoying it. The workmen at Oakland thought I was foolish to give a party here. They thought I should wait and have an old-fashioned barbecue and housewarming when the big house is finished."

"Oh, well, that will be in the late summer or early fall," Lee assured him lightly. "It's much too hot for a barbecue now. How's the cottage coming along?"

"I'm moving in on Saturday," Martin told her. "I'd like you to see it, Lee, and tell me if I've overlooked anything that will make it more comfortable."

"Shouldn't Hilda be the one to do that?" Lee asked quietly, "since she will be living there, at least for the summer?"

"Hilda?" Martin repeated as though he'd never heard the name before. "Oh, Hilda! How did you know about Hilda?"

"You told me," Lee reminded him.

Deeply puzzled, his steps slowed a little and he looked down at her, his eyes narrowed.

"I did?" he asked.

"Well, of course," Lee told him, slightly resentful of his surprise. "You were going to let her plan the kitchen, select all the equipment, arrange it her way. You said it was going to be hard to persuade her to give up New York and to settle down here; but that she was so fond of you that, once you'd convinced her how much Oakland means to you, she would be perfectly happy here."

"Did I say that?" He seemed unable to remember saying any such thing.

"Well, or course you did," Lee answered spiritedly. "How else would I have known there is a Hilda?"

"Of course, I see that now. I just didn't remember I'd told anybody about her."
