

U.S. Troops, Ships And Planes Said Engaged In S. Vietnam War

NEW YORK (AP)—Uniformed American troops, backed-up by American ships and planes, are fighting in the front lines in South Vietnam's jungle war against Communist guerrillas, an NBC foreign correspondent reports.

The reporter, James Robinson, who is stationed in the Far East for the National Broadcasting Co., said, "Like it or not—admit it or not—we are involved in a shooting war in Southeast Asia."

Robinson made his comments Friday night during an NBC-TV show, "Projection '62" which featured annual reports from NBC correspondents stationed around the world.

(In Washington, the Defense Department declined comment on Robinson's report. There also was no comment from the State Department.)

Robinson said: "American troops in battle uniform, fully armed, are being killed by and killing Communist-led rebels in South Vietnam."

American officers are in full command authority of important military operations there. And our active military participation in this war is on the increase."

"Our involvement stems from the fact that the South Vietnamese are unable, and in some instances, unwilling, to make the necessary sacrifices to save their land from Communist takeover."

"United States officials there have told me—'We must win this war even if we have to militarily attack North Vietnam'—the present source of red infiltration and aggression."

"Is President Kennedy willing and able to cope with this launching military challenge in the Far East? Many doubt it."

Robinson also said that "The Navy is patrolling South Vietnamese waters, and special forces are in from the north."

He said "We have Air Force in combat operations there. Rangers, and special forces are in hand-to-hand combat in the jungles and delta regions."

Show Of Strength In Algerian Strike

ALGIERS (AP)—A strike called by the secret rightist underground army paralyzed Algiers and Oran for two hours today in a show of strength by Europeans fighting Algerian independence.

Crowds streamed into the streets of Algeria's two largest cities. Authorities blocked off streets in downtown Algiers as a precaution against violence, but the demonstrators rallied elsewhere.

Heavy security forces deployed in both cities and helicopters flew overhead.

Business houses closed, either to take part in the strike or to prevent looting or damage in street rioting.

The crowds began to break up at noon, the hour the underground set for ending the two-hour strike. Shops reopened and traffic returned to normal.

The Secret Army pegged the call for the strike to support a protest by hospital personnel who object to increased police control over their activities. French officials have charged some hospital staffs with being accomplices of the underground. A number of right-wing extremists taken to hospitals for treatment after being arrested have escaped.

Rebel government leaders met in neighboring Morocco for talks on the prospects for making peace with French President Charles de Gaulle.

Members of the exile government indicated they have gone as far as they will toward a compromise. One leader told newsmen:

"Our aims have not changed. We are not waiting for a messenger from France, we are waiting for concrete moves."

High nationalist sources said earlier there are "definite chances of peace" but one minister cautioned reporters not to expect a cease-fire soon.

Leaders of the seven-year rebellion gathered in the palm-shaded Miramar Hotel 12 miles north of Casablanca under a heavy guard of friendly Moroccan troops.

Concern was evident among the rebel chiefs over the fresh wave of bloody terrorism sweeping their homeland. They blamed it on diehard European settlers opposed to France making any peace that would give Algeria independence.

Referring to the European Secret Army's campaign to sabotage French President Charles de Gaulle's negotiations with the nationalists, rebel Foreign Minister Saad Dahlab told newsmen: "The others are preparing war, we are preparing peace."

Fighting between French troops and Algerian rebel military units has tapered off. Murders and hit-and-run clashes between Europeans and Moslems continued.

Four persons were killed Sunday as the killing set off by de Gaulle's year-end announcement that he was speeding up moves to end the revolt went into the second week.

Authorities reported 111 persons were slain last week—71 Moslems and 40 Europeans—and 240 wounded—170 Moslems and 70 Europeans.

Fugitive French Gen. Raoul Salan is leading the European revolt in the troubled French North African territory against both de Gaulle and the Algerians.

Raiders—presumably from the Secret Army—over the weekend stole a score of machineguns and sub-machineguns from a French military depot near Versailles.

Elaborate Pitt District Boy Scout Exposition Is Planned

Plans were announced today for the 1962 Pitt District Boy Scout Exposition—billed as the most elaborate scouting event in the history of the district.

Scout officials—with burdensome shouldering aid of the Greenville Kiwanis Club—are planning the affair for Saturday Feb. 10 at Raynor-Forbes tobacco warehouse near the western edge of Greenville.

Kiwanis President E. E. (Ed) Rawl has been named general chairman of the scouting affair. He is being assisted by nine basic committees composed of Kiwanians with adult scout advisors.

Pitt District Commissioner Dr. Harry Billica is the scout advisor to the general chairman. Most of the Exposition committees are headed by members of the Kiwanis Club with scout advisors.

On the Exposition's agenda are the following items on Feb. 10:

- 2:30 to 8 p.m.—demonstration booths on display; 3 to 5 p.m.—Cub Scout games; 3 to 5 p.m.—Cub Pack Pinewood Derbies; 5 to 5:30 p.m.—District Pinewood Derby; 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.—scouters' cooking contest; 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.—Cub Scout games; 8 to 9 p.m.—

Dutch Passenger Trains Collide Killing Many

WOERDEN, Netherlands (AP)—Two passenger trains collided in dense fog near here today and Netherlands Railways announced that 79 persons perished. It was the worst train disaster in this country's history.

The Dutch news agency reported earlier that 50 persons had been injured. A farmer's wife living near the disaster scene said ambulances had streamed away carrying at least 200 injured to nearby hospitals.

Priests, nuns, firemen, police, soldiers and uninjured passengers helped in rescue work.

Metal workers used acetylene torches to cut into the tangled masses of coaches, which were reported to have carried about 500 passengers.

Fifty doctors toiled over the casualties.

Watch dogs were used to guard piles of luggage.

One of the trains was an express en route from the northern Dutch town of Leeuwarden to Rotterdam. The other was a commuter train headed in the opposite direction from Rotterdam to Amsterdam.

The express was due to reach a switching point at 9:19 a.m. and the commuter train at 9:21. It was in this three-minute interval that they hit. Visibility was about 20 yards.

Most of the victims were reported in the crowded train from Leeuwarden. The express is usually crowded on Monday mornings by people returning to work in the metropolitan area from weekends in the northern residential provinces.

It was unlikely that many foreigners were involved.

The Dutch radio canceled all light programs and it played serial music, interrupted at times by news bulletins on the crash.

Nine coaches were derailed—six from the express and three from the commuter train. One mowed down a transformer station as it rolled down an embankment.

The fog was so heavy that persons living near the scene were puzzled when they heard the collision.

"We could see nothing in the dense fog," said the farmer's wife, Mrs. Van Oosterom. "We thought at first a plane had crashed, but later we heard two trains had crashed. Almost immediately afterward, crying people came stumbling toward our farm."

Officials speculated that one of the engineers may have missed a warning signal in the fog.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Temperatures will average two to five degrees below normal and rather cold throughout the week. Rainfall will average about three quarters of an inch, occurring about Wednesday and Saturday.

RALEIGH (AP)—A Rhode Island delegation today began an investigation of North Carolina's prison system to check on two escapees' charges of brutal treatment.

The Rhode Island group, a lawyer for the prisoners and two Rhode Island officials, planned to take a look today at the Durham County prison camp, a minimum custody unit, and the Ivy Bluff prison—the state's toughest prison unit.

On Tuesday, the trio plans to look at the Jackson County prison camp, a minimum custody unit from which the two convicts escaped on Thanksgiving night. The unit is located in the extreme western part of the state about 300 miles from Raleigh.

The Ivy Bluff prison was included in the inspection tour at the insistence of William Grande, attorney for the two fugitives fighting extradition to North Carolina. Making the tour with Grande are Rhode Island Asst. Atty. Gen. F. T. O'Halloran and Capt. Arthur Newton of the Rhode Island State Police.

Prisons Director George Randall said he was perfectly willing for the group to see the Ivy Bluff prison, but he felt the tour should also include the Jackson County unit from which the men escaped. He added they could inspect any unit they wished.

O'Halloran said he thought that "in the spirit of fair play" the inspection trip should include the Jackson camp.

Grande told Randall that the charges of brutality originated with the fugitives, and "did not originate with me."

If their representations appear without foundation," he added, "I'll be the first to say so."

The mistreatment charges were leveled in Providence, R.I., recently by John A. Powell, 30, of Nashville, Tenn., and James Hammond, 38, of Dallas, Tex.

Sukarno Shaken By Bomb's Blast

MAKASSAR, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno escaped unhurt from a bomb explosion Sunday night while winding up a four-day barnstorming tour to whip up support in the Celebes for his plans to seize West New Guinea from the Dutch.

The bomb killed three persons and injured 25 others in a crowd watching the president arrive for a speech. It exploded a few hundred yards behind his motorcade. Visibly shaken, he addressed a student rally shortly afterward.

This morning he inspected a military base outside this South Celebes city.

There were no indications of any arrests but military precautions and security were strengthened in Makassar, the probable jumping-off point for any invasion of Dutch New Guinea.

Until recently, the Makassar area also was a center of rebels opposing Sukarno's government.

The president attacked Dutch Foreign Minister J. M. A. H. Luns for his statement in a magazine interview recently that West New Guinea's Papuan population should not come under Indonesian domination because they are racially different from the Indonesians.

"Luns is always full of lies. He knows nothing about nations," said Sukarno, who was trained as an architect.

"The Papuan people of West Irian (West New Guinea) are part of the Indonesian race. A desire by people to live together creates a nation. Indonesia is of many peoples and the West Irian people are part of it," Sukarno said.

Sukarno attacked Luns' statements that the Papuans are so uncivilized they need Dutch support and training, and that the Netherlands had put more into its colonies than it had taken from them.

"What have the Dutch done in New Guinea and what have the Dutch given us?" he demanded.

"Our progress is not because of their doing. The Dutch were here 350 years and left virtually nothing here."

Reinforcements poured into the South Celebes as Sukarno toured the area. A source close to the president said guerrilla "volunteers" are expected to begin hit-and-run attacks soon in West New Guinea, which Indonesia has claimed ever since the nation gained independence from the Netherlands in 1949.

In a speech at the fishing village of Bonihian, Sukarno told a crowd Indonesia will invade the territory unless the Dutch hand it over and "we don't care about world opinion."

However, he said his policy has the support of the Communist, Asian and African world. "Two billion people support us," he said. "How many people support Holland?"

At one point, Sukarno said he had learned the Dutch plan to send the 15,892-ton aircraft carrier Karel Doorman to New Guinea waters. She can handle 35 warplanes.

Near $3 Million In City Building

With six months of the fiscal year on the books, new construction for Greenville totaled $2,922,094, Building Inspector J. W. Wilson reports.

New construction for December totaled $194,850, according to the report. Included in this were permits for 13 residences valued at $161,500.

There was a permit for one business building costing $20,000. Other categories: residence additions, 1, $3,000; residence alterations, 1, $600; business alterations, 1, $1,000; duplex apartments 1, $10,000; sign, 1, $350.

Nineteen permits were issued during December and for the first six months of the fiscal year 154 have been issued.

Wilson reports he made 29 plumbing and sewer inspections during December and 208 have been made for the fiscal year.

The building inspector turned over $386 in fees to the city clerk's office in December bringing to $2,931 the amount for the year.

Don't Wait For Booklet Delivery

WASHINGTON (AP)—Don't wait for the mailman to deliver your copy of the government's booklet on radioactive fallout and how to survive it.

If you want a free copy you can pick it up at your local post office or your nearest Civil Defense center.

The Pentagon said the Government Printing Office contracted with 21 printers over the country to print 25 million copies of the 44-page booklet.

President Gives Briefing To Congressional Leaders On '62 Legislative Plans

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy canvassed world trouble spots with congressional leaders and very little questioning from the Congress members.

Republicans and Democrats who came out of a breakfast meeting held in the Cabinet room said there was a full discussion of international affairs.

The President turned over to Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, the task of bringing the leaders up to date on world developments in their field.

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, chairman of the conference of all Republican senators, said the briefing touched on all of the trouble spots in the world.

He said there was no discussion of domestic issues, except for mention of the President's intention to ask for broad authority to negotiate tariffs.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Senate GOP leader, said that there was only broad discussion of international problems and very little questioning from the Congress members.

Kennedy has scheduled a breakfast meeting Tuesday with Democratic leaders of the Senate and House at which time he is expected to go into details about his legislative program.

Saltonstall said the President made no request for bipartisan support of his forthcoming program but limited his discussion today primarily to international matters.

The all-democratic meeting Tuesday is likely to be devoted to the more controversial items which the administration hopes to develop as major political issues in this congressional election year.

These include the bitterly disputed health care program financed under the Social Security System, and a variety of education measures left over from the 1961 legislative wars.

Democratic congressional leaders have made it clear they expect a big furor over the reciprocal trade bill. They predict a satisfactory measure will be passed.

They are scratching their heads over what they expect to be the biggest problems of the 1962 session—the health care bill and the grade and high school grant measure.

A check indicates the votes are not available to get the health care legislation out of the House Ways and Means Committee, its first congressional hurdle.

The President's $2.55 billion public school grant bill passed the Senate last year but stumbled badly in the House and finally was buried there.

Congress will convene at noon Wednesday, but no floor action of any kind will come before next week. Kennedy plans to deliver his State of the Union message in person to a joint session on Thursday.

The Senate already has half a dozen major bills on its calendar, ready for floor debate when scheduled by the majority leader.

Files Involving Firing Of Highway Engineer Studied

RALEIGH (AP)—Atty. Gen. Wade Bruton said today the files involving the dismissal of a Highway Department engineer are in the hands of the State Bureau of Investigation which is investigating the case.

"I have no statement to make on it at this time," Bruton said.

Gov. Sanford announced Sunday that Highway Engineer Robert A. Burch had been fired. The governor issued a statement in which he linked Burch with Kidd Brewer, Raleigh businessman-politician.

Sanford said, "Burch has for several years been too closely associated with Mr. Kidd Brewer in connection with funds received from companies selling sign materials to the State Highway Commission."

Brewer is an insurance executive and once ran unsuccessfully for lieutenant governor. Burch had been with the Highway Department for about 20 years.

Sanford said it appears the funds paid by the sign companies went to a firm known as Interstate Services, Inc., formed by Brewer. The governor said the funds in turn were paid by Brewer's company to Burch's college son.

The governor said Brewer's company has been paid about $80,000 by certain sign companies receiving state business and about $40,000 of the total was paid by Brewer's company to Burch's son.

Sanford said the company's operating expenses for the period amounted to about $1,500.

"The companies making payments to Mr. Brewer's company will be suspended from doing further business with the state," Sanford said.

He said the investigative files in the case have been turned over to the Attorney General's office.

Sanford said companies involved include Traffic & Street Sign Co., Newark, N. J.; Pfaff and Kendall, Newark, N. J.; Wald Industries, Huntingdon, Pa.; NSE Signs and Stamping Division of National Safety Engineers, Inc., Birmingham, Ala.

The student Sanford referred to is Bobby Burch who attends Duke University.

His father, assistant chief engineer in charge of traffic, had received a salary of about $12,000 a year.

Part of his duties included the drawing of specifications for signs. The state obtains most of its routine sign material from Prison Department shops, but recently has had to contract for larger signs for big modern highways.

President Avers He And Gen. Clay Agree On Berlin Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy says he and Gen. Lucius D. Clay are in full agreement on how to handle effectively any possible future crisis in Berlin.

The President's statement was issued Sunday after he and Clay, who is Kennedy's personal representative in West Berlin, had talked for an hour at the White House.

Clay came to Washington for talks with the President and Secretary of State Dean Rusk amid reports he believed the U.S. commander in West Berlin, Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, should have greater authority to handle unexpected emergencies.

Clay met with Rusk Saturday. Both men denied any policy differences between them over Berlin.

The statement read to reporters by White House press secretary Pierre Salinger after Sunday's Kennedy-Clay meeting apparently sought to dispel any idea of a deep rift within the administration over the handling of any future emergencies in Berlin.

Salinger was asked if the statement meant Clay was fully satisfied with the situation regarding authority for the U.S. military commander. Salinger replied that Clay had read the President's statement and approved it.

Four Received Minor Injuries As Car Overturned Saturday Night

FOUR INJURED . . . Four persons received minor injuries when this vehicle overturned just West of Winterville on the Renston road Saturday about 8:15 p.m. Looking at the wreck is Patrolman R. E. Tayloe of Grifton.

WINTERVILLE — A Greenville Negro was charged with careless and reckless driving and speeding too fast for road conditions Saturday night after the vehicle he was driving overturned on the Winterville-Renston road about one mile West of here. Three passengers as well as the driver received minor injuries in the mishap.

Highway Patrolman R. E. Tayloe of Grifton identified the driver as Mack Green, Jr., 27, of 422½ Pine Street, Greenville.

Green, Eugene Washington, Mary Barrett and Viola Blow were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of their injuries.

The 1956 model car was listed as a total loss and value of the vehicle was set at $600.

Trooper Tayloe said Green lost control of the auto which overturned, blocking the highway. It was raining at the time, he noted

Case-Adams Marriage Solemnized

Mrs. Larry Joseph Case

Miss Hilda Gray Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David S. Adams of Greenville, was married Saturday afternoon at four o'clock to Larry Joseph Case, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Case and the late Mr. Case of Greenville.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert Crawford in the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church.

Music was presented by Mrs. Bill Taylor, organist, and Mrs. Bill Nelson, soloist.

Mr. Adams gave his daughter in marriage. The bride's formal length gown was of white imported Chantilly lace over taffeta, with three-quarter length sleeves. She wore a veil attached to a lace crown embroidered in seed pearls and sequins and carried a Bible topped with an orchid and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. William Earl Potter, sister of the bride, of Kinston, was maid of honor. The other attendants were Miss Mary Adams, sister of the bride, and Miss Ann Smith, cousin of the bride, of Route 2, Vanceboro.

Harvey Case served as best man. Ushers were Carroll Adams of Arlington, Va., Mark Case, James Case, and Henry Morris, all of Greenville.

The bride is an employee of the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company. The bridegroom is associated with Bibb's Wholesale Company.

The couple will reside at 1016 Fairfax Ave., following a wedding trip to unannounced points.

Mrs. Bryant Club Speaker

The Woman's Club met Friday with Mrs. Dink James presiding. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. E. Ricks, chairman, Mrs. R. E. Laughter, Mrs. H. C. Williams, Mrs. T. T. Hollingsworth, Mrs. J. G. Laughton, Mrs. R. E. Corbette Jr.

Reports were received from the chairmen of departments and the various committees.

Mrs. H. H. Bryant was the speaker of the afternoon, her topic being "Education and Scholarship." She stressed the need for education for women as well as men, and noted the fact that Greenville is fortunate in having E.C.C., which makes it possible for many to attend college who otherwise would not be able to do so.

Not all young people find it necessary to go to college to develop their particular skills. Technical schools are available for those with mechanical aptitude, and such schools do not require college training for entrance.

Scholarships are available for high school students who wish to continue their education on the college level. The Woman's Clubs of North Carolina sponsor such scholarships. One is for $1000 for four years, and the other for $750. This latter has been increased from the original $500.

The clubs have a "Dollars for Scholars" fund, which asks for a donation of $1 per member yearly. By this means, it is hoped to build up the fund, so that it will be possible to offer additional scholarships.

Applications for the scholarships are judged on four points: (1) Scholarship and school record; (2) Leadership in Home, School, Church and Community; (3) Character as evidenced by four leading citizens—high school official, minister, businessman, president of the local Woman's Club; (4) Financial need.

The candidates are interviewed by a committee, which makes the final decision as to which young woman will be selected.

In urging the importance of educational opportunity to all who can benefit from it, Mrs. Bryant quoted, "What sculpture is to stone, education is to the human soul."

"Of course we have difficulties from time to time like anybody else," she said. "Two people just can't live together without an occasional fight."

"But as I said—my plan is to stay married."

"And that's Tony's plan too."

"I plan my career around his—because I plan to stay married the rest of my life," she said firmly.

If this means giving up a juicy movie role, that's okay with Janet. If it means following Tony to far-away places, that's okay too. She has just returned from a three-month stay in Argentina, where Tony made the movie "Taras Bulba."

"No marriage survives long separations, and we don't like to be separated. So I always go with him."

The Curtis daughters, Kelly, 5, and Jamie, 3, went along on the South American trip, which kept Janet busy enough to forget all about careers. While Tony was emoting for the cameras, Janet was coping first with Kelly's measles, then with Jamie's broken collarbone. In addition to these motherly chores, she also found time to visit orphanages and hospitals on behalf of the State Department—because she wasn't "working."

As in most families, Janet is considered to be "working" only when she's actually out of the house, making a movie. At such times, she has a full-time nurse for her daughters. Otherwise, she takes care of them herself.

"They're nicely housebroken," said Janet with a grin. "but you still can't let children run loose."

Kelly and Jamie haven't yet discovered their parents are movie stars. They think asking for autographs is a game, and as Janet pointed out, "They don't go to

New York Couture Group Probe 'What Do Men Like'

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Men like women.

This is what more than 200 fashion writers concluded Sunday after the New York Couture Group intensely probed the subject, "What do men like?"

The lesson was presented in the form of the international silk show with some shapely, sleeved teachers modeling silky women's apparel with man appeal.

The study was thorough. It began with wild, woolly and sleek linen-looking coats and suits. It continued with costumes for sports, beach, daytime, cocktail, evening and, indeed, through the night. All was spun courtesy of the silkworm.

"Men like ruffles and full skirts," the commentator announced. Girls fanned out onto the runway in crinkly silk crepes that rustled and rippled.

"Men like sheer dresses with long, tight sleeves," the voice declared authoritatively. Exotic, black-eyed ladies appeared in nude black chiffon that covered up everything, and yet didn't.

"Men like ladies to be provocative." As if they didn't already know this, fashion writers dutifully scribbled the idea, also taking note of a slinky, black silk shantung at-home costume, very bare at the top.

They also made note of a thought-provoking three-piece pool-sitter suit by Mr. Gee. The hooded green and white silk print jacket covered the little girl all the way to her brief, flared skirt. When it slipped off, it left her barely covered at all.

"Men love the childish touch." To illustrate this, models too shapely to be children minced forth in dainty silk print dresses with smocked yokes and self belts. "Men are attracted to long, sleeky black. They can't resist the exotic look, either," said the lady. She pointed out that this effect was best achieved with tightly fitted Oriental or Indian printed silk sheaths.

"Men are enchanted by one-shoulder dresses, happily created from clouds of chiffon with giant flowers on it. They are doubly so with dresses lacking shoulders altogether."

But do men, especially the short ones, like those tall, tall, silk turbans that wrap up to at least a foot and a half high? Nobody asked or answered this question, but these in brilliant hues topped the models' daytime costumes.

But men do like curves. No students in the classroom argued this point. Men will get plenty of these along with all the other things he likes about women's dress for spring.

Mrs. Barnhill H.D. Hostess

Mrs. Clarence Barnhill was hostess to the Belvoir Home Demonstration Club Thursday afternoon at her home in Belvoir. She was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Gail Clark, and her grandchildren.

Mrs. Sue May gave a demonstration on "Accessories for the Home," using combinations of vases, pitchers, pictures, candles and other items as good examples of line, texture and color to make homes more livable. A garden report was given by Mrs. D. M. Hollowell listing both old and new varieties of vegetables to plant in January. Mrs. C. D. Clark reported on proper pruning methods.

A short business session followed in which hostesses and project leaders for the year were appointed. Plans were made for a joint meeting of the club members and their husbands to be held in February.

Twelve members and three visitors were served refreshments by the hostess and her assistants.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

Students Participate In Home Economics Club

One-hundred twenty-six home economics students at East Carolina College are now participating in the work of the Home Economics Club, an organization sponsored by the college Department of Home Economics.

The Club, an affiliate of the North Carolina Home Economics Association and the American Home Economics Association, places special emphasis upon the promotion of greater interest in home economics, international fellowship, and the provision of means by which students may develop in leadership and initiative.

One meeting is scheduled for each month of the school year. Speakers include faculty members, visiting home economists, townspeople, and students at the college.

Officers of the Home Economics Club for the present school year are:

Career Versus Marriage

By OLGA CURTIS

HOLLYWOOD—(WNS)—In any marriage involving two celebrities, one career has got to give, and Janet Leigh thinks it should be the wife's.

After 10 happy years of marriage to movie star Tony Curtis, Janet believes matrimony is more important than her own Hollywood stardom.

"I plan my career around his—because I plan to stay married the rest of my life," she said firmly.

If this means giving up a juicy movie role, that's okay with Janet. If it means following Tony to far-away places, that's okay too. She has just returned from a three-month stay in Argentina, where Tony made the movie "Taras Bulba."

"No marriage survives long separations, and we don't like to be separated. So I always go with him."

The Curtis daughters, Kelly, 5, and Jamie, 3, went along on the South American trip, which kept Janet busy enough to forget all about careers. While Tony was emoting for the cameras, Janet was coping first with Kelly's measles, then with Jamie's broken collarbone. In addition to these motherly chores, she also found time to visit orphanages and hospitals on behalf of the State Department—because she wasn't "working."

As in most families, Janet is considered to be "working" only when she's actually out of the house, making a movie. At such times, she has a full-time nurse for her daughters. Otherwise, she takes care of them herself.

"They're nicely housebroken," said Janet with a grin. "but you still can't let children run loose."

Kelly and Jamie haven't yet discovered their parents are movie stars. They think asking for autographs is a game, and as Janet pointed out, "They don't go to movies yet—they're too young to sit still for two hours."

Giving up stardom to be just a wife and mother wouldn't bother Janet at all. She frankly hopes for another child, said she'd "like to have a son."

But until another baby comes along, Janet will do occasional movies, whenever Tony's schedule permits. This month (January), for instance, she will film "The Manchurian Candidate," because Tony, too, will be working in Hollywood.

But any movie job that means separation for the Curtises is out, and for the same reason the beautiful blonde Janet won't accept Broadway offers.

Janet seldom gets upset at gossip that she and Tony have "difficulties."

"Of course we have difficulties from time to time like anybody else," she said. "Two people just can't live together without an occasional fight."

"But as I said—my plan is to stay married."

"And that's Tony's plan too."

Petticoat Police Of Italy Won't Be Toting Pistols

UNARMED BUT DISARMING . . . Maria Grazia Chlaudiani, Rome's first woman police vice-inspector, talks with children at orphanage.

ROME (AP)—Italy's new petticoat police are sternly determined to prove that they are not just baby sitters in uniform.

But so far that is about the most the men let them do. The women first went on duty Aug. 21.

It is a frustration that might have reduced lesser women to tears. But the first 68 members of the new force had already braved other disappointments.

They are not allowed to carry arms. They can not arrest men. And, perhaps worst of all, the men designed for them a uniform with mid-calf skirts, low-heeled shoes and unrevealing jackets.

The women went on duty under the official rank of vice inspectors. But in this case the vice means assistant. It does not mean crime.

The women, placed on duty one to a city, were assigned officially to handle cases of juvenile delinquency.

In most cities, as in Rome, that meant they were stationed at some police-run orphanage or house of correction, usually well out in the outskirts.

They are rarely seen, and seldom read about, however zealously they do their assigned job.

Only one has so far managed to make newspaper headlines. She tracked down a runaway girl who came to the big city looking for a movie job, and sent the child back home.

When an Associated Press photographer took pictures of Vice Inspector Maria Grazia Chlaudiani, assigned to a children's home in Rome, he asked:

"Could we have one picture showing you wearing your pistol?"

"We haven't pistols—yet," she said. Then she added: "But I think some have been ordered."

The photographer turned to a male policeman present and asked: "Couldn't you let her borrow your pistol for the picture?"

"Certainly not," he replied with dignity. "Where do you think this is, the United States?"

"This is Italy. It would be ridiculous here."

For all that, girls will not be discouraged.

A week after the first 68 went on duty 428 more signed up for the next elimination examinations. And several hundreds more are crowding into line already for third tests after the second applicants are selected.

Jury Acquits Two S.C. Councilmen Of Bribery

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP)—The acquittal of two Spartanburg city councilmen on bribery charges apparently hasn't deterred a citizens' committee from going ahead with plans for a recall election.

The city officials, Shea West Thomas and L. T. (Buck) Amick, were found innocent Saturday. The jury deliberated less than three hours.

Mrs. Judy Cart, chairman of the citizens' committee, said before the trial's conclusion that she thought a recall election should be held even if the councilmen were acquitted.

Before the trial had begun, the committee had obtained 3,000 signatures, 400 more than the required number. It is up to Gov. Ernest F. Hollings to announce a recall election when and if a petition bearing the signatures is submitted to him.

Both Amick and Thomas had declined demands by the local newspapers that they resign.

During the four-day trial, the principal defense was entrapment—that police encouraged them into the commission of a crime.

Amick and Thomas were seized Dec. 6 with $5,000 each in marked bills in their pockets by officers who stood by as they met with a local real estate man, Adolphe Vermont Jr.

The councilmen were accused of taking the money to influence their votes on city participation in financing streets and sewers in new subdivisions.

Amick and Thomas testified they planned to take the money to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

For the first time in almost a month, Amick and Thomas planned to attend their first council meeting together today. Shortly after their arrest they agreed that only one should attend meetings until their case had been tried. Since the resignation of A. D. Cudd as mayor Dec. 13, the attendance of Amick or Thomas was intended to provide a quorum to carry on city business.

Snowstorm Had A Helpful Side In Cattle Drive

WINNER, S.D. (AP)—A swirling snowstorm that brewed a temporary feed crisis for Don Hight's cattle drive turned out to have its helpful side.

"I'll cover all the winter wheat we have to travel across," Hight said as he readied his 1,800 Herefords for the final 17 miles of a 65-mile walk to a cattle auction house at Winner.

Hight's trucks from his West-over ranch got stalled in the snow for a time but he was able to buy hay from a rancher and the trucks pulled in Sunday with a concentrated protein feed for the animals.

Much of the remaining distance is in more settled country than the cattle range where the animals grazed before heading to market.

They are hoofing across numerous farms and Hight had to agree to keep them along fence lines to avoid plowing through more wheat than is necessary.

Publicity about Hight's unusual enterprise in modern-day cattle operations created a circus atmosphere Sunday. Hundreds of motorists drove out to watch the herd cross U. S. Highway 183 northwest of Winner.

At times, the herd has stretched out a mile and a half. The 40-year-old rancher lets the cows set their own pace.

Hight expects to have the cattle in pens at the sales ring Tuesday night. He'll separate the cows and steers, the steers to go by the pound and the cows by the head when the auctioneer's cry rings out Thursday.

His main worry now, Hight says, is shrinkage. He expects to save $2,000 by trail-driving the beef as against the normal method of trucking them, and expects to pocket around $360,000 at the sale.

Hight runs a 16,000-acre spread at Westover, near White River, S.D.

Tried Storming Bardot's Door

COURCHEVEL, France (AP)—Italian newsmen and photographers converged on Brigitte Bardot's ski chalet Sunday demanding pictures and interviews.

Vacationing BB refused. The press insisted and started trying to break down the door.

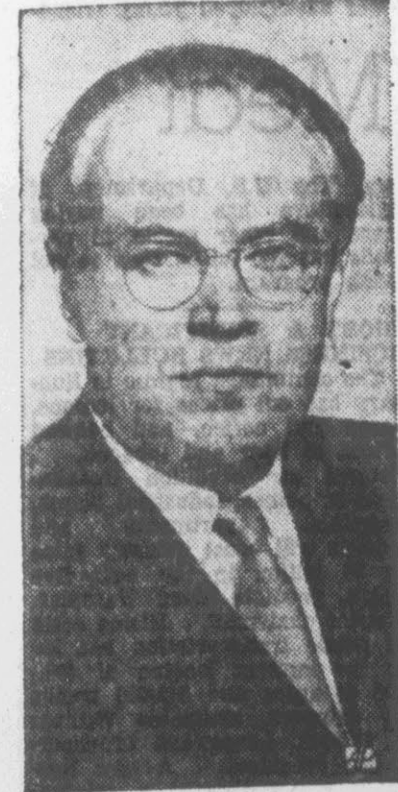

A swarm of the French movie star's friends emerged and fought off the invaders, who had swarmed across the border from the Italian side of the Mt. Blanc area when they heard Miss Bardot had arrived for a vacation.

Police broke up the fight. The only casualty was a camera tossed into a snowbank.

Trujillo Taught How To Live Without Money

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—A pawnshop receipt is to Aquilino Carreon an unhappy symbol of the Dominican economic situation.

A 46-year-old dock worker, Carreon hooked his best pants for $2.50 last June 14 and hasn't got them back yet.

"I'll bet they're gone," he said as he put the receipt back into his work pants. "Or they'll be rotting by the time I get enough money to get them out."

Carreon and his friends sat listlessly at lunch on the shady side of a steel and concrete pier at San Pedro de Macoris. A German freighter rode at anchor in the steaming tropical heat, waiting for the group to resume loading.

San Pedro de Macoris is a once-thriving sugar center and port of 22,000. The majority of the work force is unemployed even in the live season, the weeks of the sugar cane harvest.

Carreon shared a tinful of rice and corn stew with Juan de la Cruz, 44.

Miguel Rodriguez, 46, father of five, said "This morning I had a biscuit and some cocoa. My family? I left before they got up. I don't know if they ate. We here on the docks eat maybe twice a day, maybe once. Chapita (a nickname of the late Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo) said he'd teach us Negroes to live without money."

"And he proved it, for 31 years," Carreon commented. "We owe practically everything we're going to make on this job, maybe $60 or $70. I had a work turn in February for four days. Then no job until now. When we don't work we do all we can to eat: borrow, fool people, eat sugar cane and coconuts. That's how I lost my pants."

One trouble at San Pedro is that there are 384 longshoremen and few ships to work on. Planters say another is that Dominicans won't cut cane on the ground the pay is too low. It used to be 45 cents a ton, now it's going to be 80 cents. A good cutter can fell from 1½ to 2 tons daily. About 14,000 Haitians are imported for this work.

Henry Williams, 47, loading supervisor, makes 90 cents an hour for an eight-hour day.

But no one works continuously. Work has to be parceled out. The laborers' pay was increased recently from $5.60 to $7.20 for an eight-hour day.

Williams said, "If these fellows made $100 a week, they'd still be hungry and would want $200."

Rodriguez pays $8 monthly for rent. The others pay somewhat less. All complained about food prices.

"Rice is 12 cents a pound for the good kind and 10 cents for the bad," Carreon said. "Chicken is a luxury at 50 to 60 cents a pound."

Participated In Discussions

MISENHEIMER—Participating in an informal discussion at Pfeiffer College recently, following a convocation address by Dr. Lee Tuttle, was Mrs. Harvey P. Brooks, the former Louise Batson of Greenville.

Mrs. Brooks is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Batson Sr. of Greenville. A member of the freshman class, she is a day student and an English major at Pfeiffer College.

Dr. Tuttle, executive secretary of the World Methodist Council, followed his address with a personal discussion with college students. College officials believe this type of discussion leaves a more lasting impression of the speaker. He addressed the January convocation program on the recent Third Assembly of the World Council of Churches which he attended in New Delhi, India.

The engineers' union also decided to call a general strike of all engineers in public services beginning Thursday. The engineers are demanding increases similar to those awarded state-employed physicians last year.

The council of secondary school teachers is to meet Wednesday to consider a proposal to strike.

Cadets To Stage 3rd Marchathon Here Saturday

Members of the Drill Team of the East Carolina College Air Force ROTC are now planning their Third Annual Marchathon to raise funds for the Pitt County March of Dimes campaign. Cadet Major Edward Farrell of Durham, commander of the team, has announced that 23 men will participate in the event Saturday, January 13.

The East Carolina AFROTC cadets held their first Marchathon in 1960. During a continuous drill of approximately twelve hours, funds for the county March of Dimes drive were collected. The project was successfully repeated last year.

The 1962 Marchathon will begin at 9:30 a.m. on the campus of East Carolina College. The team will then march downtown to the Pitt County courthouse to begin a continuous march. During the Marchathon they will execute rifle movements carrying M-1 rifles, which weigh nearly ten pounds.

Last year the team raised over six hundred dollars for the March of Dimes, and marched continuously for twelve hours and five minutes. This year, the Cadets are out to break their own record.

The Drill Team has been engaged in various activities this year, ranging from participating in Greenville, Grifton, and Ayden Christmas parades, to marching in the East Carolina Homecoming Parade and the Rescue Squad Convention Parade here.

The young minister returned to his pulpit Sunday and preached on "Love Your Enemy." He has been preaching at the mission since last August awaiting a visa to go to Nigeria as a missionary.

Nothing To Hide In N.C. Prisons

North Carolina's prison officials have evidenced full cooperation with Rhode Island officials sent here to investigate conditions in Tar Heel prisons. This is as it should be, for North Carolina prisons should be able to stand the most severe inspection by outsiders.

Serious charges of brutal treatment have been leveled at the state's prison system by two escapees now being held by Rhode Island. That state has delayed return of the prisoners to North Carolina until it looks into the charges made by the two escapees.

The officials from Rhode Island should be given access to all the information they want about Tar Heel prison operations during their visit here. They should be allowed to visit prison camps of the state and investigate for themselves the conditions which exist there. If they find objectionable conditions their views probably will be helpful to North Carolina in improving its prisons system.

North Carolina has made considerable improvements in conditions in its prison camps in recent years and in the operation of its prison system. Great emphasis has been placed on good treatment of inmates and the rehabilitation phases of the prison program.

These things, plus general conditions in the state's

Wants Greater Probation Use

By LYNN NISBET
PROBATION—The North Carolina probation system is in its 25th year. It was authorized by the General Assembly of 1937 and was activated by order of Governor Clyde Hoey on November that year. The record shows that during the 24 years ending October 31, last, the system received a total of 43,441 probationers. At that time there were 5,468 persons under supervision.

Charles Cohoon, newly appointed director, says there is reason for pride in the record of the department, but he is not at all satisfied with it. In a story prepared for publication this week, Director Cohoon cites comparisons in cost and results of probation and prison sentences. Fuller utilization of probation facilities by means of a larger staff would save the State a lot of money, he says. The current cost of keeping a prisoner in State prison is about $1300 a year, operating costs alone. This does not include capital investment. The cost of maintaining a probationer under supervision is about $100 per year.

In addition to the sizeable savings in dollars and cents there are greater dividends in the intangibles. What monetary value can be placed on the preservation of family life? How do you estimate the avoided cost of uncommitted crimes? The dollar and cent items are impressive. The inmate in State prison contributes nothing to the support of his family—often on public welfare rolls; he pays no taxes and he falls far short of supporting himself.

The probationer, on the other hand, does contribute to his own and his family's support, pays court costs and fines, pays taxes, and in many instances makes full restitution for damages he may have caused someone else.

MILLIONS—From November 1, 1937, to October 31, 1961, probationers under supervision of the State earned almost $78 million. Payments made on fines, court costs, restitution, etc., total $6,095,791.80. This amount does not include taxes paid, nor the expenses of maintaining a home for himself and family.

The probation system does not require capital investment and its operation costs much less than prison maintenance. Cohoon points out that to provide minimum custody and living quarters for 100 additional prisoners would cost the taxpayers at least $150,000 if built with prison labor on land already owned. It would cost much more if land had to be purchased and basic facilities installed. To maintain about 130,000 a year. On the other hand, to place 100 prison system, we believe, will stand up under whatever investigation the Rhode Island officials desire to make.

By offering their full cooperation to the Rhode Islanders, Tar Heel officials have indicated we have nothing to hide with regard to our prisons, the conditions in them and the methods of operation. The investigation, we believe, will clearly point up that the charges of brutality in the state's prisons are without foundation.

Logical Approach To Orderly Development

Establishing regulations to govern development of property adjacent to, but outside, the present corporate limits of Greenville offers one of the best assurances that the city will develop in an orderly and logical manner in future years.

The recently created City-Council Planning and Zoning Commission is just beginning to move into its new work, but the general procedure outlined at their recent meeting appears to offer a logical approach to the undertaking.

By dividing the area surrounding the city into appropriate quadrants as they proposed to do affords a reasonable basis for the beginning of the work. Subsequent study of the individual areas, as well as overall studies of all the quadrants should enable the Commission to come up with regulations which will ensure orderly growth and at the same time provide adequate area allotments for residential, commercial and industrial sections.

Planning and zoning within the corporate limits of Greenville in recent years has done much to bring about better overall development. By extending this same planning and long-range study to the area one mile beyond the corporate limits, better future development can likewise be brought about. By approaching the four proposed quadrants to the individual potential and special problems of each, and thus eventually develop an overall program that will offer the best long-range advantages.

Although the group is just beginning its first step in this new undertaking, the approach it has chosen is commendable.

Tariff Wrangle To Be Big One

By RALPH ROBEY

It is now clear that one of the early and hard political wrangles of the next session of the Congress will be in connection with tariffs. It will come over renewal of the Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act. This statute was first enacted in the early days of President Roosevelt and it has been renewed time after time. The act expires next June 30 and there is no intention of simply permitting it to expire.

No one, either in or out of the Administration, yet knows just what President Kennedy is going to ask for in the way of additional powers on tariff negotiation. Gossip has been running high and wild. Some say he will ask for authority to reduce tariffs by up to fifty per cent. It also is said that he wants to negotiate by broad classes of commodities rather than item by item. And it is maintained that the present act must be overhauled to eliminate "peril point" protection, and so forth.

The Congress will convene on January 10. Following that must come three presidential messages: The State of the Union, Budget, and the Economic Report. That will appear, therefore, that it will not be possible for the message on the Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act to be ready before the first of February, and perhaps a week or so later.

Over the past couple of years there has been an immense hardening of protectionist sentiment throughout the nation. Labor unions as a group have usually been so-called free traders.

But now an appreciable number of them have swung over to the protectionist side. And the South which traditionally has favored low tariffs, also has moved to a marked extent to the side of more adequate protection. Business management is, as it always has been, split on an industry by industry basis, and no one can be certain what the balance of opinion in this group is at any given time.

The United States Chamber of Commerce, for example, is in favor of lower tariffs, but does not approve giving the President wide-open powers to reduce rates. The National Association of Manufacturers has no tariff policy as such, and of course has no position on renewal of the Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act. But every member of the NAM, you may be sure, has his own opinion. It requires a vote of two-thirds in the Board of the NAM to establish a policy position, and many years ago it was found that it is not possible to get this majority on any matter having to do with tariffs.

We submit the following, therefore, as solely our personal views.

First, today many industries in this country are being hurt by foreign competition, and there is no way they can meet this lower cost of production.

Second, a sudden and drastic reduction of the tariff, in many cases, would cause unemployment and bankruptcies. Such developments would not be in the interest of the nation.

Third, in the long run it is desirable to have lower tariffs, and as many items as possible on the free list. But this situation must be approached gradually.

Fourth, tariffs never should be used to protect inefficient producers. They should be fixed at a level which keeps the most efficient producer under pressure to reduce his cost of production.

Finally, tariffs must be fixed on an item by item basis. This is the basis of competition, and is the only means possible for making sure that we are not protecting the inefficient.

"THAT WE ARE DUST"
How many times we receive advertising material which begins with the words "We guarantee."

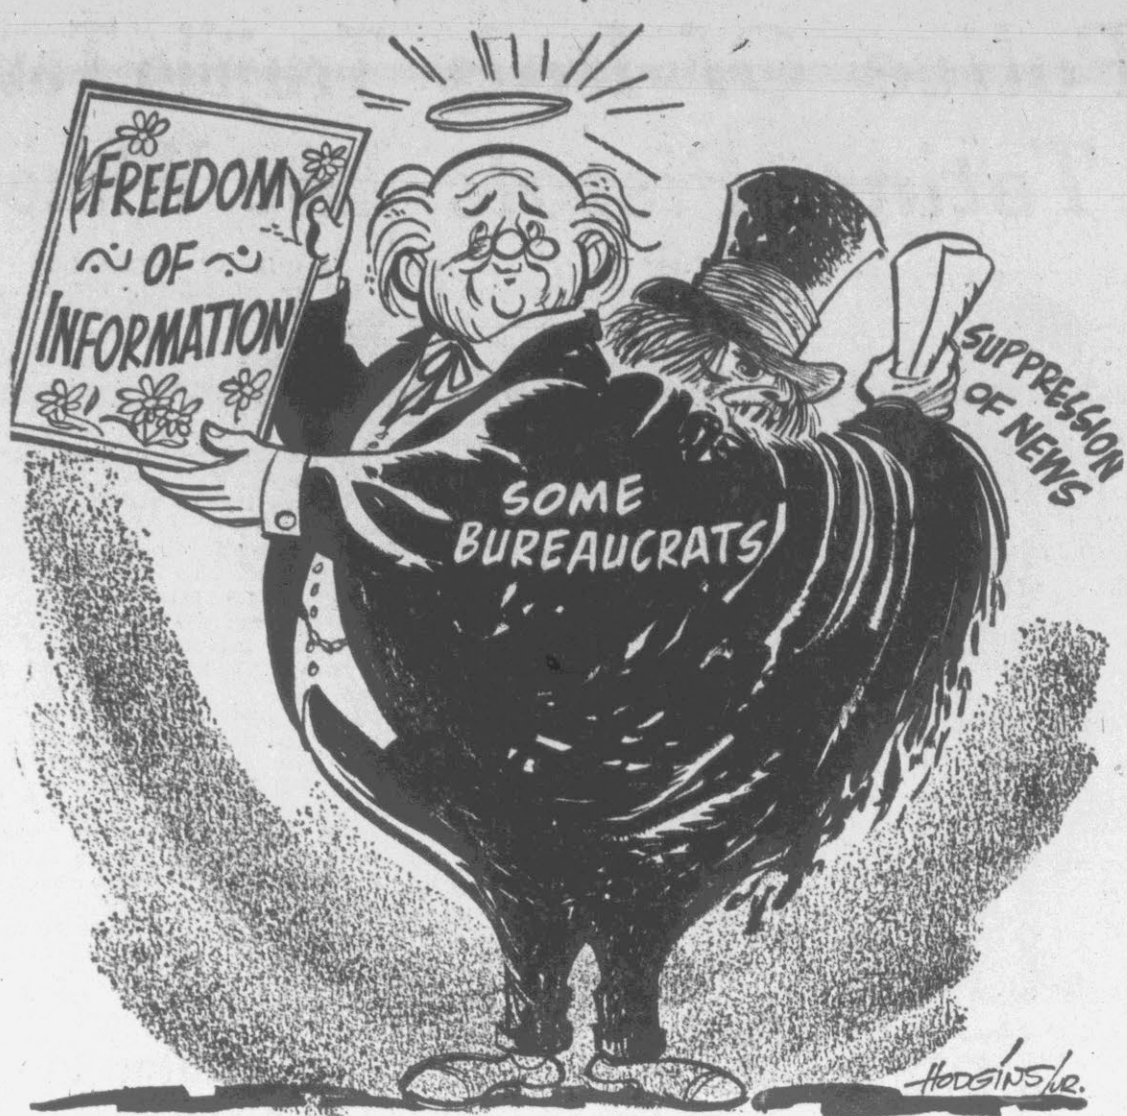

This is all done in good faith, but it is nonetheless preposterous. Oh to be sure, the firm that advertises can send back that money if the article is not satisfactory. But that is not a guarantee; that is a refund. Nothing can be guaranteed in this world. We can give our assurances, we can even pledge ourselves—but we cannot guarantee anything. And for the simple reason that nothing is really in our hands. Predestination. Determinism? Fully ninety-five per cent of our lives has been predestined for us before we were born.

Does this make life hopeless?

Not at all. You and I have just about enough brains, energy and good will to handle the five per cent which God gives us to handle. If He should dump the whole one hundred per cent in our laps we should be overwhelmed with disaster.

Weakness and insecurity are prominent factors in our lives, really determining factors. This does not mean that life is not a noble challenge, a pilgrimage, a thrilling adventure. It just means that you and I are little people, and God in His mercy has left us only a little bit to do in working out our destiny. But that little bit is tailored to our needs. If we were more capable, God would give us greater responsibilities. In His mercy He has fashioned all things knowing our weakness and remembering that we are dust.

The Rules Of Revolution

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

In a period of constant revolution, the orderly processes of change of government disappear. Kings are succeeded by sons or daughters in prescribed order. Presidents are elected by the people in accordance with Constitutional procedure. But revolutions throw up governments. Whoever can seize power holds it until someone comes along and establishes himself in power.

The rule of thumb is: Why you—not me? Thus Hitler deprived Hindenburg of lawful authority. True, Hitler was elected but there was no realistic opposition just as Soviet Russia and all revolutionary countries reject the test of opposition.

The people really have no voice; they are either dominated by an organized mob or by troops. In a revolution, the voice of the people is loud and harsh at the start, but it soon melts away into a frightened whisper.

In 1917, the call of the revolution was loud in Russia. It was the people's voice and the people moved about shouting and instructing. In 1918, however, it was no longer the people's voice; it had become the party's authority. The dictatorship of the proletariat had seized power. By 1919, the dictatorship remained but the proletariat had been reduced to a frightened mass. It so remained for 40 years. What is now, beggars description.

In China, there has been no orderly government since 1850 when the Taiping Rebellion upset the authority of the Manchu Dynasty. However, the Manchus continued somehow to reign, although they no longer ruled. The Westerners had moved in by way of the sea, the Russians overland from Siberia, Japan by way of Korea and Manchuria; the Boxer Rebellion further weakened authority; then came the 1912 Revolution and the 1915 Revolution and the attempted establishment of the Republic.

But the Republic was never a republic. It was never a government. Rather it was a congeries of independent provinces, managed by warlords who often grouped together. Soon, powerful warlords were killing weaker warlords and some of them made deals with foreign countries. For instance, a character called Little Hsu organized the Anfu League of warlords and made separate deals with the Japanese which started China rolling into new troubles. By 1920, China no longer was a nation but was an area dominated by fighting warlords. Why you—not me? Whoever was able to seize territory or finance an army exercised power.

The masses rose in revolt in 1925 through one of the accidents in history when an Indian policeman employed by the Shanghai Municipal Council shot a Chinese worker. Thus came the Communist revolution not made by Communists at all, but by angry people who wanted the British, French, Americans, Japanese to cease participating in their affairs.

Sun Yat-sen, an idealist, wanted to create a democratic republic and really tried to establish such a government in Canton in 1925, but Sun died and who was to take his place? You or me? There was not much arguing. Chiang Kai-shek had the troops and Russian support.

So Wang Ching-wei and Hu Han-min, who were the more logical successors, ran away from physical power and that was the end of the democratic republic. Chiang took power and held it. It soon became a contest between Chiang and the warlords with Russia and Japan playing such roles as they could until World War II determined that the Russians would dominate China and establish a Communist government, headed by a soldier who has disappeared from the scene and a professor, Mao Tse-tung, who managed to become a master of men.

Why Mao? Why not? Does it really matter who takes over a government. In the disorders of revolution, whoever can manage to establish himself is the master. Thus in Cuba, there is Castro, a figure who lied himself into power, who knew how to manipulate Americans and get aid from Soviet Russia. Or in India, there is Nehru, nominally a successor to Gandhi, a figure of a noble idealist, whose eyes turn inward as he speaks to himself in profound thought and plays the same game as Nasser and Tito.

Grab while there remains a chance, for who can resist the one who is powerful and witty enough to grab. That is the rule of revolution and whoever follows this rule astutely survives—or perhaps survives a little longer than his predecessor.

U.S. Is Actually Short Of Meat

By ELMER ROESSNER

Most Americans think of the United States as a bountiful land. In fact, there is talk now of extending the school lunch program to the entire world, feeding up to 500,000,000 tots and Hostess daily lunches.

However, government figures show that the United States is short of meat. It is necessary to import meat to satisfy American appetites, and the amount of the shortage is growing.

Department of Commerce figures show that in the first 10 months of 1961, the United States imported a total of 753,901,000 pounds of beef, veal, pork, mutton and lamb. In the same period it exported 87,661,000 pounds. The net import was 666,240,000 pounds.

INCREASE IS NOTABLE
In the same period in 1960, the U. S. imported 643,813,000 pounds of red meats. Thus the U. S. imported 100,000,000 pounds more in the first ten months of 1961 than it did in the first ten months of 1960. Exports were only 1,000,000 pounds greater.

In addition, the U. S. imported 715,453,000 pounds of live cattle, including some bor breeding, compared with 452,099,000 pounds in 1960.

The 1960-61 comparison of imports for the first 10 months, according to the Department of Commerce, in thousands of pounds were:

	1960	1961
Fresh, frozen, canned & cured beef	437,937	543,047
Other prepared or preserved beef	16,716	21,147
Pork	144,401	141,113
Mutton	33,804	39,540
Lamb	10,955	9,054

In addition, the U. S. imported 1,588,000 pounds of variety meats in the first ten months of 1960 and 1,476,000 in the same 1961 period.

SCANTY EXPORTS
The totalation of exports in the same period, in thousands of pounds, was:

	1960	1961
Beef and veal	23,695	25,233

Pork	55,542	56,258
Lamb & mutton	1,204	1,367
Sausage, uncanned	1,904	2,054
Sausage, canned	918	865
Canned baby food	1,966	983

Other canned meats 1,464 | 901 |

The drop in baby food export is probably due to the erection of baby food plants in foreign countries.

In addition, the U. S. exported 96,928 pounds of variety meats in the first ten months of 1960 and 101,873 pounds in the same 1961 period.

These figures do not complete the livestock import and export picture. The government statistics also range into imports and exports of sausage casings, wool, hides and skins and mohair.

But the more important figures show that Americans aren't raising all the meat they want, and if we plan to expand the school lunch program to foreign areas, we'd better give up the idea of putting canned chopped beef and sliced pork and gravy on the menu for foreign young-

Prepare For The Future

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass.—Few people seem to realize that it is during a period of prosperity that plans should be made for possible reverses later on. Even though recovery is rolling along, stop and ask yourself a few questions. If you lost your job tomorrow, how much would you and your family suffer financially? Are you snowed under by installment payments? Would a serious illness leave you strapped? Have you borrowed on your life insurance?

ARE YOU OVEREXTENDED?
A young acquaintance of mine, a man about thirty years old, was recently laid off by a small company for which he had worked faithfully for eight years. He had been making $100 a week before taxes, but his take-home pay after federal levies was only $85.20, not including state taxes. And his monthly commitments are $70 for mortgage interest, and real estate tax; $63 on a 1960 car; $21 on a food-freezer; $12.50 on wall-to-wall carpeting; $30 on a go-now-payer trip to the West Indies with his wife; and $16.50 on a new color TV. Right now—and he has no salary coming in—he has department-store bills amounting to several hundred dollars, $160 owing on his last winter's fuel bill, and past-due light and phone bills. Merchants and service firms have already put him on a strictly cash basis.

It is possible that this man is not typical of most young workers, but I am afraid there are altogether too many who are in this category. With full employment and occasional raises, he might have pulled himself out of his financial jam. But my point is that he, like so many others, has greatly overextended himself.

VICTIM OF THE TIMES
I can't say that I wholly blame the young man for letting himself get trapped. He is a product of the "unending" prosperity that has followed World War II. Like many others, he has been lulled into complacency. TV, radio and ads into overloading. With more money to spend than he had ever had before, he was tempted to over his depth. In 1946, families were spending only 45 percent of their incomes for the essentials of living, with some 55 percent left over for luxuries. By 1954, fixed charges were taking 53 percent of income, with only 47 percent left for discretionary buying. Since then the trend has continued in the same direction, until a substantial majority of a family's income is now eaten up by fixed charges such as food, rent, and installment debt. This may be all right as long as a boom is in progress. But let a recession hit, or let strikes or automation layoffs become serious, and the heavy burden of installment commitment which many people are carrying could mean economic catastrophe.

THRIFT STILL A WISE POLICY
This troubles me, especially because I know that major cycles of business overexpansion and depression will always be with us. The inevitable quirks of human judgment will see to that! Hence, the present all-out acceptance of installment buying as a perfectly natural way of life could mean much concern. Careless spending is encouraged by any system that postpones payment for something you can get now without waiting.

As I warn my grandchildren, so would I warn young people everywhere that prosperity is a time for increasing financial reserves... a time to put money aside in savings accounts, some of it for careful investment later on. Money in the bank is one of the best types of insurance, against unemployment emergencies particularly. It is fine to have a comfortable home, a new car, air conditioning, and many desirable luxuries. They induce happiness and satisfaction. But what good is all this if your financial sense has been poor and the bill collectors give you no trucks coming to cart away the goods?

I often think it takes even more intelligence, will power, and courage to plan for tomorrow than it does to handle today's obligations. Everybody, whether employer, worker, or landlord—should keep one eye on tomorrow (and the day after) in financial planning. Otherwise, he may end up in the same plight as my sadder but wiser unemployed young friend.

California's Gov. Brown Says Nixon Not Joining Fight Against Rightists

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California said today Richard M. Nixon "is not joining the fight against the ultra right-wing, although these extremists are a strong force in our state and in his party."

Brown said former Vice President Nixon "must choose between principle and opportunism. He has chosen the latter. He has stepped away from those who are fighting the political primitives, and he apparently wants their money and support."

Brown's attack on Nixon, who has declared his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the California governorship, was in a speech prepared for delivery to the National Press Club.

Nowhere in his remarks did Brown state unequivocally that he will seek re-election this year. But he hinted at it several times. He closed by saying: "I have a hunch Richard Nixon will walk into the 'bare-knuckle' scrap he's looking for—and I don't think you will want to miss a round of it."

Brown introduced the subject "of the John Birch Society and its extremist allies" by saying they pose a "situation in his state that seriously disturbs me."

"You may well note," the Democratic governor said, "that Nixon is not a John Birch, and the evidence is that he is not."

However, Brown added, Nixon appears on the same platform with Birch candidates and assures them "There is room in the Republican party for people who differ." He goes even farther. He promises to support them if they win in the primaries.

"I would hope that responsible Republicans in California will not let him walk both sides of the street much longer. He is not fighting extremists. And the only way to meet this issue is to fight it, in whatever form it turns up."

Brown said "one important unit of the Republican party already has swung to the Birchers—while Nixon and other Republican leaders look away."

And, Brown added, Robert Welch, founder of the John Birch Society, "claims California as his main source of both dollars and of the John Birch Society and disciples."

"No other state," Brown said, "must admit to having two John Birch representatives in Congress." This was a reference to Republican Reps. Edgar W. Hies and John H. Roussellot, who have said they are members of the society.

"Furthermore," Brown said, "the ultraconservatives have corporate financial support. They are using it to exact concessions from merely Conservative republicans, and to seize control of party organization."

Brown said that if he runs for re-election he wants no support from extremists of the left or right.

Greek Primate Dies In Athens

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Theodosios, archbishop of Athens and primate of all Greece, died today. He was 73.

The head of the Greek Orthodox Church had been in ill health since he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage almost two months ago.

Funeral services will be held in Athens Thursday.

Archbishop Theodosios was born at Dimitsana, a small town in the central Peloponnese. He graduated from the University of Athens as a doctor of divinity.

He displayed unusual preaching ability and in 1924 was ordained as assistant bishop. He became bishop of Calavryta in 1931, bishop of Patras in 1944, and was elected archbishop of Athens in 1957.

His life was dedicated to philanthropy and to his church and was marked by exceptional administrative ability and devotion. He was noted also for his adherence to national and ecclesiastical tradition and his abstemious way of life.

His monthly income ranged between $2,000 and $2,350. He distributed a third of this to poor priests and another third went to disabled intellectuals and men of letters in need.

He is survived by two brothers, a professor at the University of Salonika and a physician.

Sanford Asserts N.C. Sets Pace

STATESVILLE, N. C. (AP)—North Carolina will move forward, Gov. Sanford says, and still continue to set an example of fiscal responsibility for other states.

He told 650 members of the state's Young Democrat Clubs here Saturday night that "for 60 years in North Carolina good government has been a habit."

Sanford, himself a YDC state president 12 years ago, was the featured speaker at a banquet here. Others attending included three congressmen, Sen. Sam Ervin and Reps. Hugh Alexander and Basil Whitener.

W. E. (Dub) Graham Jr. of Charlotte was installed as YDC state president.

Will Seek Seat Of New District

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Charlotte attorney John P. Kennedy Jr., plans to seek the Democratic nomination for Congress from the new Eighth Congressional District, the Charlotte News said today.

The newspaper said Kennedy's official announcement will not be made until around Feb. 1 because Kennedy feels he must visit every county in the district before announcing.

Kennedy, 40, would challenge Rep. A. Paul Kitchin of Wadesboro in the May 26 primary.

When questioned about the race today, Kennedy said, "I am very much interested in running and I am seriously considering it. That's all I can say at this time."

Kennedy has served two terms in the state House of Representatives. He has been employed in the trust department of First Union National Bank here, but the News said he has not been in his office for at least two weeks and is considered "on vacation" by associates. The News said he will quit the job Feb. 1.

The Democratic nominee will face a Republican challenger in the November election. At this time Rep. Charles R. Jonas, a Republican, is in his fifth term and may seek re-election.

The new Eighth District is made up of Lincoln and Mecklenburg counties, plus Union, Richmond, Moore, Montgomery, and Lee.

Rep. Kitchin has served three terms in Congress.

Kennedy has degrees from the University of North Carolina, Harvard University and Cambridge University. He practiced law here for 10 years before joining First Union National Bank's legal staff.

He is married and the father of three children.

Officers Elected By Racing Club

FARMVILLE—Jim Potter of Snow Hill was elected president of the Eastern Carolina Racing Pigeon Club at the group's regular monthly meeting here Saturday.

At the annual officers' election session, Potter was named unanimously. Other officials elected were T. F. (Red) Styers of Farmville, vice president; J. Herbert Dail of Greenville, secretary; and Warren Gurganus of Farmville, treasurer.

Other action at Saturday's meeting established a six-race series of Spring races for club members.

The races—in the Old Bird series—are scheduled to get underway with the first set for March 4. Trophies will be awarded to the winners of the six races.

The club's next monthly meeting is scheduled for Feb. 24 at Styers' business establishment in Farmville.

Well Over Inch Of Rainfall Here

Along with mild weekend temperatures, Greenville received its share of rainfall—1.78 inches, as reported by John Buck of the Greenville Utilities Plant.

Most areas of the state had reported heavy rain during the weekend. Though some rain fell here after midnight Saturday, it was not enough to be measured.

The Tar River measured 8.6 feet this morning, and is rising slowly.

Temperatures have remained rather mild for a January weekend, reaching a high of 56 degrees on Sunday with a low of 41 degrees.

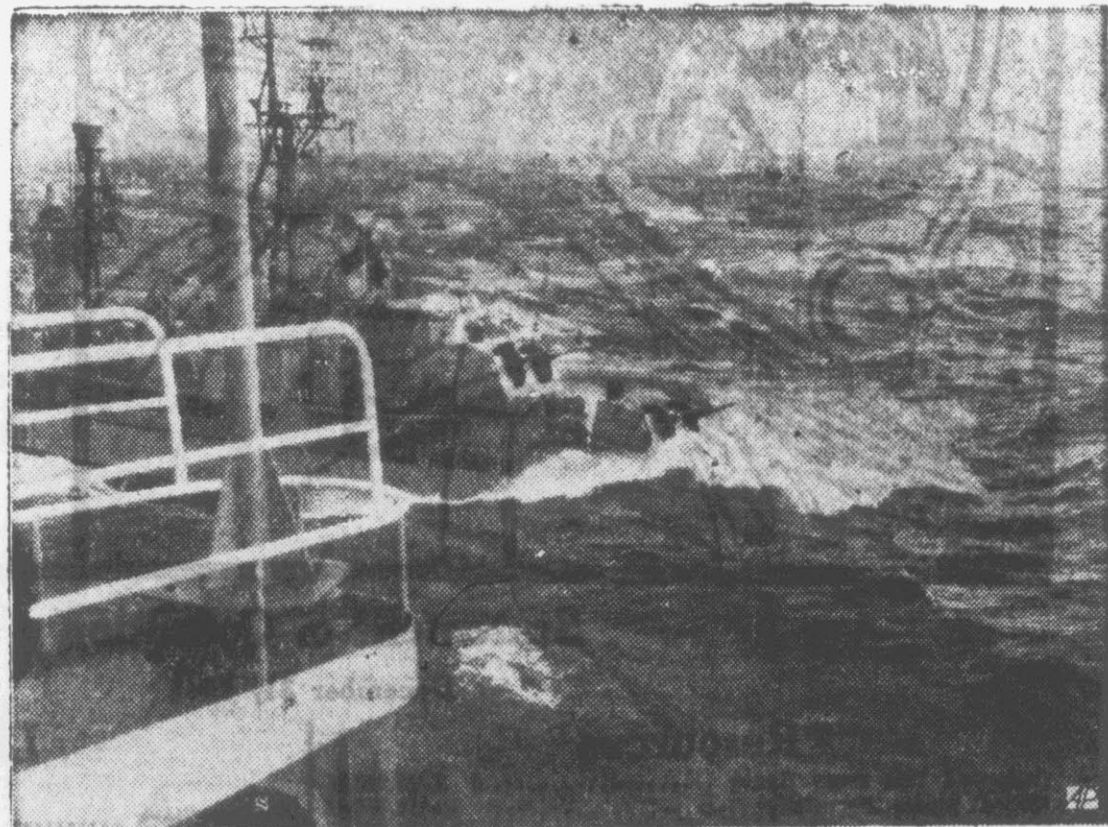

Again today, temperatures were already in the 50s at noon, registering 53. The low came at midnight, when the thermometer read 41 degrees.

The weatherman has predicted generally mild today, with rain and possible thunderstorms beginning sometime today, followed by colder weather.

Eastern N.C. Streams Are Expected To Flood

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Many of eastern North Carolina's major rivers were expected to spill out of their banks today or Tuesday, the culmination of flooding Sunday on tributary streams because of heavy weekend rains.

The Weather Bureau at Raleigh-Durham Airport made this report for various rivers: Cape Fear—Crested 2 feet above bankfull stage of 20 feet at Moncure Sunday; Expected to crest at 7 feet above 35-foot bankfull stage at Fayetteville today; Elizabeth town crest expected 10 feet above 20-foot bankfull stage Tuesday.

Tar—One foot below 9-foot bankfull stage at Rocky Mount today and cresting near bankfull tonight; cresting near 19-foot bankfull stage at Tarboro expected Jan. 12; cresting 1 foot above 13-foot bankfull stage at Greenville Jan. 13.

Neuse—Near crest at 4 feet above 13-foot bankfull level at Smithfield and expected to rise about another foot before leveling off Tuesday; Goldsboro crest expected near 18 to 19 feet Jan. 13; and Kinston 17 to 18 feet expected Jan. 15. Crest at both places is 14 feet.

Called To Fire At Umstead Hall

Greenville firemen were called to East Carolina College's Umstead Hall Sunday night about 7:47 when a fire in one of the rooms of the building was reported.

Fire officers reported the blaze, which was out when they arrived, was started by a candle in a window. The flames from the candle caught a window shade and curtain on fire, then caught a pillow.

Damage to the room was estimated at $200 by firefighters. Firemen yesterday also responded to 209 Paris Ave. when a hot heater was reported there.

No damage was done in that 5:55 p.m. call.

Schoolgirl Finds Old Gold Coins

CAIRO (AP) — A schoolgirl playing in a ditch found a jar containing 288 gold coins dating back 10 centuries, and archeologists speculated it may be part of the treasure of a caliph who ruled Egypt in the 10th century A.D.

The girl, Aida Mohammed, 9, said she found the gold while playing hide and seek with her 7-year-old brother. The director of the Islamic Excavations Department, Dr. Gamal Uddin Mehrez, ordered the site guarded. He said there was a possibility the treasure of Caliph Al Moezz, who conquered Egypt 10 centuries ago, might be discovered.

Other leaders will be Dr. Robert E. Cushman, dean of Duke University Divinity School and Dr. McMurtry S. Richey, associate professor of the philosophy of Christian education at Duke, who is director of the seminars.

The first seminar will be conducted Jan. 22 and 23 in High Point.

Educated at the Georgia School of Technology, the University of Georgia and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, he is the author of "Dr. Frank," a biography of the late Frank Hartwell Leavell.

Farm Bureau Presidents Ask Policy Clarification

DURHAM—At the urging of Pitt County Farm Bureau President Ralph C. Tucker, a meeting of Tar Heel county Farm Bureau presidents here Friday called for clarification of North Carolina published accounts of National Farm Bureau policy.

Tucker, at the meeting of some 85 county presidents, offered a motion that the N.C. Farm Bureau Federation explain and clarify a published account of an address by American Farm Bureau Federation President Charles B. Shuman at the recent Chicago National Convention.

The Pitt president's view that news coverage of Shuman's address was misleading was supported by Tar Heel Farm Bureau President B. C. Mangum. The county presidents' vote on the Tucker motion called for the state Bureau to investigate or explain the inconsistency of a Raleigh published account of Shuman's address with an official Farm Bureau press release.

Tucker said the Raleigh news article left the impression Shuman was opposed to the federal tobacco, cotton and peanut programs.

James W. Simpson Dies At Haw River

HAW RIVER—Mr. James Worth Simpson, 63, of Haw River died suddenly at his home Sunday at 10:45 p.m. Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. from Haw River Baptist Church by the Rev. Howard A. Moore, pastor. Burial will be in Linwood Cemetery at Graham.

He was supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration in Graham, and was a former supervisor of Farmers Home Administration in Greenville. He was a member of the Haw River Board of Education for a number of years, veteran of World War I and member of the American Legion, which he served as post commander for two years.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Nell Brooks Simpson of the home; two daughters, Mrs. Thomas M. Haislip and Mrs. Edward N. Caldwell, both of Graham; three sisters, Miss Ada Simpson of Lexington, Mrs. E. Lee Henderson of Graham and Mrs. Fred L. Smith of Salisbury; one brother, Edward H. Simpson of Raleigh; four grandchildren.

The body will remain at McClure Funeral Home in Graham until 30 minutes prior to services.

Syrian sarafs, traditional money-lenders, still flourish in competition with modern commercial banks in that country.

He pointed out the American Farm Bureau Federation went on record at its annual convention as favoring the agricultural program. Mangum said Shuman's address voiced continued support for the tobacco, cotton and peanut programs.

The purpose of the Farm Bureau presidents' gathering, at Durham's Jack Tar Hotel Thursday and Friday, was to study an expanded Farm Bureau program in North Carolina.

The presidents voiced themselves in favor of the expanded services and recommended a hike in annual Farm Bureau dues from $5 to $10 to cover costs of the enlargement program.

Endorsed by the presidents was a 10-point plan for expansion recommended by a special study committee. The presidents urged

A special session of the N. C. East Carolina Tops Elon 67-65

By CHARLES VAUGHAN

Reflector Sports Writer

The East Carolina Pirates, who were victims last week to the Elon Christians, avenged their loss Saturday night by defeating the Christians 67-65.

The victory was the Bucs' fourth conference win against two defeats, and the loss was Elon's first defeat of the season.

Lewis High Scorer
Co-captain Charlie Lewis once again set the pace for the Pirates, scoring 25 points. Most of his points came at vital moments during the game. At four different times in the game, Lewis scored the points that put the Bucs out in front.

Lewis registered 15 of his 25 points in the first half to provide East Carolina with a 36-27 half-time margin. Although he was high scorer for the night, Lewis still found time to capture nine rebounds for the Pirates.

Otte Gets 13 Rebounds
Sophomore Bill Otte displayed his ability under the boards by grabbing 13 rebounds for the Bucs. He also managed to toss in 15 points for the night. Otte had two personals and one technical foul called on him in the last two minutes of play which forced him to leave the game.

Bill Morningstar and Dewey Andrews led the Christians, each scoring 15 points. Gary Teague had nine tallies for the losers.

Pirates Led First Half
Jumping off to an early lead, the Pirates never trailed the Christians in the first half. However, the score was tied four times in the first ten minutes of play. With the Bucs leading 17-14, Bill Morningstar scored a field goal and a free throw to tie the game 17-17 after 9:20 of the contest.

Lewis then hit two points for the Pirates to put them ahead by two. Aided by Richie Williams, who scored seven of his eleven points in the last few minutes of the first stanza, East Carolina surged to a 36-27 half-time lead.

Christians Tie Score
When the two teams returned to the floor for the second half, it was the Christians who took control of the game. After Williams scored a free throw to put the Bucs in front 37-37, Elon then scored five straight baskets to tie the game 37-37. The lead changed from one team to the other six times during the remainder of the contest.

As each team held the advantage, neither of the two could build up a lead of more than three points. Elon went ahead 40-37 with eight minutes left in the game, but Charlie Lewis once again put the Pirates in front on two quick field goals. This made the score 51-40 in favor of East Carolina.

Elon Takes Lead
The Christians urged back in the lead once more on a basket by Art Davis, but this was the last time they were to hold the advantage. With 6:28 remaining to be played, Billy Brodgen put the Pirates ahead for good on a fine jump shot. East Carolina went on to increase their lead to five points.

However, Elon rallied to pull within two points of the Pirates with only five seconds left on the clock. East Carolina retained possession of the ball for these remaining seconds and emerged the victors with a final score of 67-65.

The Pirates made only 40 percent of their shots from the floor, but they hit on 83 percent of their free throws which was a big factor in the outcome of the game.

The Christians hit only 62 percent of their foul shots. Next Saturday finds the East Carolina Pirates at Lenoir Rhyne, facing the highly respected Bears. The Bears have lost only one conference game and this was to the Bucs in their first meeting.

Ohio State And Mississippi Only Undeclared Teams

Michigan on Saturday. Mississippi State (10-0), the defending Southeastern champions, entertain Alabama Tuesday night and that should be no problem.

But on Saturday, State runs up against Vanderbilt on the Commodores' court and that's giving Coach Babe McCarthy and his crew some uneasy moments.

Vandy has only a 6-5 record, but around the conference Mississippi State is known as a pretty soft touch for the northern division teams in their own lair. Vanderbilt is in the northern division and, despite its mediocre record, has hopes of winning the title.

Even more nerve-shaking is the future. State must journey to Georgia Tech, Tennessee and Kentucky, the other three members of the northern division.

The Bulldogs, a tight defensive outfit, polished off Auburn, 51-48, Saturday night for No. 10, while Ohio State, No. 1 team in The Associated Press poll, opened defense of its Big Ten title by sailing past Northwestern, 85-62.

The Buckeyes can look to the future with a lot more confidence than Mississippi State. They didn't lose a game last season until they bumped against Cincinnati in the final of the NCAA tournament.

This time around, there doesn't appear to be a team in the Big Ten that might even give them a close tussle. The rest of their schedule is against league opposition.

Cincinnati (11-1) has a big one on tap Wednesday night against Bradley, its top rival for the Missouri Valley Conference title. Bradley (8-2) is rolling with seven straight victories including last Saturday's 70-63 decision over Wichita, the only team that has beaten Cincinnati. The Bearcats meanwhile steamrolled Tulsa, 72-43.

Vanderbilt warms up to its task against Mississippi State tonight when it meets Kentucky, No. 3 in the AP poll behind Ohio State.

The light Carolinas Conference basketball race could get another shakeup this week.

Lenoir Rhyne, which won two conference games last week and took the lead with a 6-1 mark, will be challenged by Catawba (5-2) Wednesday night and by East Carolina (4-2) Saturday night.

ECC, which handed the Bears their only conference loss, knocked Elon (4-1) out of first place with a 67-65 defeat Saturday night. Elon also plays Catawba this week, on Saturday night.

In other games Saturday night, Pfeiffer dumped Campbell 72-62; Catawba lost to Belmont Abbey 63-54; and Newberry lost to Erskine 72-67.

A Challenge For Dietzel At Army

By JIM HACKLEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP)—Paul Dietzel is a man with a mission and he is eager to get started.

The 37-year-old Ohioan says up the promise of continued success and security at Louisiana State University to accept the challenge of the job he always has wanted—head football coach at Army.

There is little doubt the broad-shouldered young coach is approaching this new job with zeal and confidence, touched with considerable boyish enthusiasm.

At LSU, Dietzel left a wealth of talent, a lucrative job and some bitter feelings. His $18,500-a-year contract still had four years to run and more was offered. When reports cropped up he wanted out, there was vehement criticism.

After much sound and fury, the LSU Board of Supervisors granted his release in a meeting Friday. His salary at Army presumably will be $18,500, with a 5-year contract.

In seven seasons at LSU, Dietzel's Tiger teams won 44, lost 23, tied 3 and had a 2-1 mark in bowl games. His 1958 squad was national champion with a 10-0 record and he was Coach of the Year. LSU was 9-1 in 1959 and again this past season, and his finale with the Tigers was their 25-7 victory over Colorado in the Orange Bowl New Year's Day.

At Army, Dietzel succeeds Dale Hall, who was dismissed after three seasons on Dec. 9. In three tries, Hall's teams failed to beat Navy—and Navy's recent superiority has rankled Army deeply.

"We decided we wanted the best man available, and I'm sure we got him," said Col Emory Adams, the academy's athletic director. "There's a great enthusiasm here now. We're all anticipating fine things. Paul's an exceptional gentleman as well as a brilliant coach. He can't help but be a wonderful influence."

Dietzel's first step in a highly successful career began at West Point in 1948 when he gave up plans to go to medical school and became an assistant plebe coach, shortly after he graduated from Miami of Ohio. In his second tour at the Military Academy the World War II bomber pilot was offensive line coach under Earl (Red) Blaik.

Now he's back again, the realization of a long-time ambition. Dietzel said he plans to use the same 3-platoon system at Army that he developed at LSU. "It doesn't take as much depth as you'd think. Mostly organization and work."

1st Home Loss For Duke In Two Years

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eighty-ranked Duke, stunned 61-60 by North Carolina State, will have another four days to nurse its wounded pride before getting back to Atlantic Coast Conference basketball action at Clemson on Thursday.

The loss Saturday night was the first on their home court for the Blue Devils since North Carolina defeated them two years ago.

And it dropped them from a tie for the conference lead with North Carolina into a three-way tie for third with North Carolina State and South Carolina, who also have 2-1 league records.

North Carolina, 2-0 in conference games, is at the top, with Wake Forest runnerup at 3-1. Following the third-place teams are Mary-

Mutiny In Ranks Of Southern Conference At Present Time

By ED YOUNG

Associated Press Sports Writer

Fat-cat West Virginia keeps on riding haughtily at the top of the heap in Southern Conference basketball, but down below there's mutiny in the ranks.

This was the season—remember?—when Richmond, Davidson and Virginia Tech were to be among the weaklings. When West Virginia's chief rivals would be The Citadel, George Washington, and Furman.

So what's the situation after five weeks?

Richmond is second in the standings and has won three in a row. Davidson has won its last five games. Virginia Tech's sophomores have become an explosive outfit. And of the teams first regarded as title threats, only West Virginia and Furman have looked the part.

The Tech-WVU match is a feature scrap of a week that begins when Furman (7-3, 2-1) visits The Citadel (3-6, 1-3) tonight. Lyle's Alley will be seeking his 200th victory as Furman coach in this one. His Paladins have won their last three games; The Citadel has lost its last three.

All told, conference teams play 11 games this week, eight of which count in the league standings.

West Virginia's prestigious 88-82 victory over fifth-ranked Villanova at Morgantown—a triumph to which Rod Thorn contributed 29 points—was the highlight of last Saturday's program.

Richmond got 27 points from drivin' Danny Higgins and boosted its conference log to 3-1, good for second place in the standings, by whipping William and Mary (1-5) 73-65. W&M has lost five straight.

Davidson 2-3, in the league stretched its victory string to five games with a 77-71 decision over The Citadel.

Surging Virginia Tech clouded VMI (1-4) at Lexington, 97-75.

Furman won its third in a row, 67-64, over non-conference Florida State as Jerry Smith, the conference's top scorer, pumped in 22 points.

George Washington, coming to life behind Jon Feldman's 41-point barrage, ended a four-game losing spin by upsetting Georgetown 82-65 in another non-conference skirmish.

GREENSBORO (AP)—Darrell

Royal, whose five-year coaching record at Texas stands at 38-11-1, will direct the 14th annual North Carolina Coaching Clinic here July 30 to Aug. 3. It was announced Saturday.

Royal started his coaching career as an assistant at North Carolina State. He played under Coach Bud Wilkinson at Oklahoma.

The Farm Scene

By C. J. GOODMAN

Assistant County Agricultural Agent

Farmers in North Carolina are needlessly losing too many young pigs. USDA records show that in North Carolina an average of 6.7 pigs are saved per litter. From an average of eight pigs farrowed per litter, we are losing $100,000 annually in Pitt County.

Dr. H. A. Stewart, of N. C. State College, states that "one-third of all pig losses are due to neglect and carelessness."

Every pig farrowed is a challenge and an opportunity to make your hog farming successful. The new-born pig begins life with all its defenses down. It is completely dependent on you and the sow for all its squealing needs for survival.

The first two weeks are the most critical period of the pig's life. How well you manage and feed the sow will determine how many pigs will live, and how soon they may be marketed.

The first cause of pig loss is starvation. The principle reasons for starvation are: (1) the sow has no milk at farrowing (2), the sow's milk does not agree with the young pig, and (3), the sow will not let the pigs nurse.

When these conditions occur, the local veterinarian should be consulted. Generally an injection with antibiotics will remedy most cases of the sow failing to produce milk, or failing to allow the pigs to nurse.

Another cause of pig loss is chilling. There are three MUSTS for a successful swine program. Keep the pigs warm, clean and dry.

More young pigs die due to chilling than any other cause. When pigs are farrowed at 70 degrees F. the body temperature drops from 5 to 9 degrees. If the temperature is 65 degrees, the temperature of the pig will drop 13 degrees.

At the lower temperature it may take 24 hours for the body temperature to become normal. It becomes very important for the person having charge of the breeding program to stay close at farrowing time.

There are three important things that he must do at this time: (1) dry the pigs off, (2) put them under heat during cold weather, and (3) see that they nurse.

A good electric pig brooder will save an average of 1.3 pigs from each litter.

After the pigs are born, dry them off, see that they nurse and place them in the pig creep with the heat on the pigs. Use a heavy rubber cord and a metal socket for the heat bulb. By using this type of equipment you reduce any fire hazard, and the sow will benefit from extra heat during farrowing.

The third cause of young pig deaths are parasites and diseases. According to the USDA, swine losses from parasites and diseases amount to millions of dollars annually. The best method of control of parasites and diseases is prevention.

Give the young pigs a good start in life by:

(1) Providing a clean, warm, dry place where the pigs are to be farrowed. When the sow and her litter are removed from the farrowing house, it should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected. We recommend that you use one pound of lye to 15 gallons of hot water, and thoroughly saturate all cracks and crevices. Allow the pen to get thoroughly dry before adding another sow to the pen. Feed troughs and watering cup should be disinfected with a commercial disinfectant.

(2) Before placing the sow in the farrowing pen, wash her udder with warm water and soap. This is to protect the young pigs from getting worm eggs.

(3) Haul the sow and her young pigs to a clean, temporary pasture frequently.

(4) Good management is essential. This includes isolation of sick pigs on the farm and new pigs brought to the farm; a regular system of vaccination; plenty of water and shade, and following good feeding practices.

Jack Kelley, in charge of the Animal Husbandry Extension, N. C. State College, gives this formula for successful hog production: B-2-4-6-8. Be there when the pigs are born; in two weeks creep feed; in four weeks castrate; in six weeks vaccinate, and in eight weeks, worm and wean.

Deadline For Obtaining Price Supports Ahead

The deadline for obtaining price support on most 1961 crop grains and related crops will be Jan. 31, according to an announcement today by Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office manager Livingston Roberts.

Roberts said the Jan. 31 deadline would apply as a closing date of support on barley, grain sorghum, oats, rye, soybeans and wheat.

In connection with the announcement, Roberts released the following loan rates and eligibility standards for 1961 crop commodities in North Carolina:

Barley — $1.04 per bushel for Grade No. 2 or better. Discounts for lower grades down to No. 5 or No. 5 garlicky.

Grain Sorghum (milo) — $2.05 per hundredweight for grade No. 2 or better. Discounts for lower grades down to No. 4. No. 4 smutty, No. 4 discolored, mixed or smut, grain sorghums and containing not more than 13 percent moisture.

Oats — 73 cents per bushel for grade No. 3; premium for higher quality; discounts for No. 4 on test weight only, for No. 4 because of "badly stained" or "materially weathered" and for garlicky.

Rye — $1.19 per bushel for grade No. 2 or better or No. 3 on test weight only. Discounts applicable to rye containing more than 3-10 of 1 percent ergot; rye containing more than 1 percent ergot ineligible.

Soybeans — $2.26 per bushel for No. 2 or better better, green and yellow; premium for low moisture; discounts for grade and quality factors. Soybeans containing more than 14 percent moisture ineligible.

Wheat — $1.97 per bushel for No. 1. Premiums for higher quality; discounts for lower grades.

College Begins New Funds Drive

LOUISBURG, N. C. (AP) — Louisville College, two days past its 175th birthday, has launched a fund-raising campaign to finance needed construction.

President Cecil W. Robbins announced the campaign Saturday during ceremonies commemorating the anniversary of the Methodist-endowed junior college.

He said immediate needs total $300,000 and include a women's dormitory, buildings for a library, science studies, fine arts classes and the remodeling of a cafeteria into an administration hall.

Dr. Robbins and Methodist Bishop Paul N. Garber of the church's Richmond area spoke at a ceremony dedicating an auditorium-classroom building and at a cornerstone laying for a new men's dorm.

Several hundred alumni, ministers and friends of the college turned out for the ceremonies in spite of rainy weather.

The four days of events commemorating the 175th anniversary of the college's founding began Friday and ended Sunday with Dr. Clarence B. Bass presiding at the anniversary worship service.

Official Tobacco Yield Announced

The Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office has announced its official figures showing tobacco yield-per-acre in Pitt's 22 ASCS communities for 1961.

A total of 25,027.37 acres of tobacco harvested in Pitt for 1961 produced a total of 49,200,927 pounds for an average per-acre yield of 1,967 pounds.

Total gross flue-cured sales for all types of tobacco for the 1961 crop year was reported by ASCS as 1,363 million pounds for an average of $63.74 per 100 pounds—up $3.86 per hundredweight from a year ago.

Twelve of the 22 communities posted average-yield figures above 2,000 pounds per acre. Bethel community led the list with 2,911 pounds per acre, posting a total yield of 2,911,249 pounds from its total allotted acreage of 1,312.78 acres.

Swift Creek A community, one of the Pitt areas hardest hit by drowning during the 1961 growing season, posted the lowest yield-per-acre figure. That community, with a total allotted acreage of 851.82, harvested a total of 1,250,065 pounds for an average production of 1,468 per acre.

Given Week To Remove His Pet

PLAINFIELD, N.J. (AP)—There'll be no lion in the streets in Plainfield, even if the beast really is just the playful pup its owner claims it to be.

James Trimble has been given a week to get his pet lioness, Moira, out of town. A court order issued by Magistrate Warren J. Lynch ruled that the presence of Moira, 10 months old and 100 pounds, doesn't square with the Plainfield zoning code.

Trimble, 31, has been housing Moira in the cellar of his home, but he lets her out in the back yard for an occasional gambol. Neighbors began getting edgy.

Tobacco Tips

By S. J. WEEKS
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

At this time of year farmers begin seeding their tobacco plant beds. It should be kept in mind that tobacco seed are very small. Time spent preparing and smoothing the seed bed will be rewarded.

After the soil is broken, it should be disked, harrowed, and raked until it is well-pulverized, smooth and free of clods. Heavy equipment such as tractors that will tend to pack the soil should not be used in preparing the seedbed, especially in the later operations.

The plant bed should be well drained. If the center of the bed is about ten inches higher than the outer edge it will drain better and less puddling will take place. As soon as the seeds are sown, a trench at least eight inches deep should be dug on all four sides of the bed to further facilitate drainage.

The suggested seeding rate is one ounce of seed to each 400 to 600 square yards of bed. The exact seeding rate should be based on how well the bed is prepared and managed, the variety and seed germination.

The quality of plants is greatly affected by the stand. Some growers find it easier to get uniform distribution of seed with a seeding machine than by hand seeding. With either system uniformity of distribution is very important.

If beds are seeded by hand, thoroughly mix the seed with wood ashes, lime or fertilizer, and seed the bed in one direction, then cross seed one or more times.

On soils that are puffy it is advisable to pack the bed lightly so that the seed can be covered at a uniform depth. After the bed is seeded the soil should be packed lightly to firm the seed in the soil.

The small tobacco seed demands a seed bed fixed and seeded "just right." Farmers find that a little special care at this point pays off well later.

Hangover For Flock Of Robins

LOS ALTOS, Calif. (AP) — If robins can get hangovers, thousands of them may have the classic symptoms today — splitting headaches and turbulent tum-tums.

Giant flocks of robins descended here over the weekend, and stripped pyracantha bushes of their winter-ripened red berries. Well-ripened berries apparently take on an alcoholic charge through fermentation. After the gorging, birds began falling off rooftops and wandering drunkenly in the streets.

Three Abandon Project In S.C.

GAFFNEY, S.C. (AP)—Lack of definite plans for financial backing has been given as a reason three members of the board of Christianland Foundation have resigned.

The foundation had planned to build a replica of the Holy Land near here at a cost of $40 million. The board members who resigned are the Rev. W. D. Farr, Gaffney Methodist minister, Thomas F. Mulligan Jr. of Gaffney, and C. P. Coleman of Greenville.

The Rev. Mr. Farr and Mulligan said they would support the project when sound financial commitments are obtained. The other members of the foundation's board are Miss Esta Barr, the founder, U.S. Rep. Robert Hemphill of Chester, T. Eston Marchant of Columbia, and Glenn Moose of Statesville, N.C., and Gaffney.

Fear 25 Lost In Ship-Sinking

DOVER, England (AP)—Twenty-five seamen were feared lost in the sinking of the Yugoslav freighter Sabac after a midnight collision in the fog-shrouded English Channel.

Eight survivors and 10 bodies were recovered. The other 15 men aboard the 2,811-ton Sabac were believed dead. The ship and the 6,223-ton British steamer Dorington Court collided and the Sabac, cut in two, sank in six minutes. Seamen said the missing men had almost no chance of survival after so many hours in the icy water with its swift currents.

CHAPTER 25

Martin Whitfield called for Lee Folsom at her office a little after three, and Lee took him first to see the house that the Stacys were trying to buy.

It was a pleasant old house, with a large back yard and a garage that would, Lee pointed out, make a marvelous place for three children to play, since the Stacys did not own a car.

He worked at the lumber yard," Lee explained as she guided Martin over the old house. "There are repairs to be made, of course, but he and Ellen, his wife, are excited about doing them themselves. And it's within walking distance to his work, and there's a shopping center nearby, where Ellen can do the family marketing. They insist they don't need a car, and of course I suppose they really don't. Anyway, they'd rather put the money into a house than in a car."

"Sounds sensible," Martin agreed, and nodded, as he looked back at the house from his car. "Good, sound old place and wonderful for children. How about school?"

"Oh, only the oldest child goes to school. He's six," Lee answered. "And since it's two miles to the elementary school, he's eligible to ride the county bus."

Martin nodded and, after another long look at the house, got into the car, smiled at her and said briskly, "Now let's go see the Stacys."

"I can't wait to tell them," said Lee eagerly. "Just yesterday I had to tell them I couldn't get the place financed. And when they see you today, and you tell them you are going to swing it for them!" She sighed in happy anticipation.

Martin said thoughtfully, "You look for all the world like a child who's just discovered that, in spite of what the older children have said, there really is a Santa Claus."

Lee laughed. "That's exactly the way I feel!"

The Stacys lived in one half of a run-down duplex, with a yard overflowing with tin cans and debris. But inside the Stacys' half of the house, everything was clean and neat and tidy.

Ellen Stacy managed to fight off tears of joy when Martin was introduced and his errand explained. When he and Lee left the place, he paused on the sidewalk and looked back at Ellen, who stood with the children clustered around her.

"Now I'm beginning to feel like a real citizen of Lewisville, Lee," he said quietly. "After some of the things I saw abroad, and that I couldn't alter, it gives me a warm, good feeling to know that I have managed to help people like these! Thank you, Lee!"

"Thank me? Martin, what are you saying? Thank you," Lee stammered.

"Thank you for showing me somebody deserving and decent that I can help," Martin insisted quietly. "I'm truly grateful, Lee. And I hope that any time in the future you run across a situation where I can be of help, you'll let me. Money's no good unless you can use it in productive ways to help others."

As he started the car, he glanced at his watch and said with an air of just having remembered something, "Since it's too late for you to go back to the office, why don't we stop and say 'hello' to your Miss Cora and then have dinner together somewhere? Perhaps at the Cloisters, if that isn't too far to drive."

"It isn't a bit," Lee answered. "Let's stop and call on Miss Cora, by all means. I've been dying for you to meet her; and she's been very eager to meet you. But perhaps we'd better have dinner somewhere other than the Cloisters, since I'm not dressed for there and it would make us too late if I went home to dress."

"Whatever you say," Martin agreed.

"I have an idea," Lee said eagerly. "Why don't we have dinner at the Blue Goose and then watch the moon rise at Oakland? Or have you already seen that?"

"It's well worth seeing again, even if I have," Martin told her happily.

He drove without speaking to the first red traffic light. While he waited for the light to turn green, he looked down at her soberly.

"Am I to be forgiven for something that is well-nigh unforgivable?" he asked gravely.

Lee looked up at him, startled. "I don't know what you're talking about."

"Thanks," said Martin. "But of course you do. I'm trying, in my bumbling way, to tell you how very sorry I am about the outrageous and unforgivable way I talked to you at your office Monday afternoon."

"Oh, that," Lee dismissed it with a light wave of her hand. "You just didn't understand. You'd been—well, shall we say, misinformed?"

The light changed and Martin drove on, his jaw set and hard. "All right, let's say misinformed," he agreed wryly. "It's at least more pleasant than admitting I'd been lied to, isn't it?"

"Well, yes," Lee answered frankly.

"I'm sorry, Lee, truly and deeply sorry," Martin told her. "If I'd had the sense of a thickheaded fool, I'd have known that what I'd been told was a pack of lies."

"Well," Lee cut in reasonably, "they were not entirely lies. I did order Holly and Mimi to move out of Miss Cora's house."

"And from what I've learned since, the only fault I can find with that is that you didn't do it sooner," Martin said. "I don't see how I could have believed Holly, when I know you so much better, and I don't know Holly at all; at least I hope I don't! If she's what she seems to be, she could be frightening."

"Let's not talk about it any more, Martin," said Lee quietly. "That's Miss Cora's house just ahead. There's no driveway, but you can park at the gate. This is a very quiet street and there's very little traffic."

Martin looked about him at the small, shabby cottage neatly enclosed by its white picket fence that could have used a coat of paint; at the vacant lot, weed-grown and neglected, at the left; at another lot, this one invaded by scrubby pines.

"She lives here all alone?" he protested, as he got out of the car and stood for a moment at the gate, glancing across the street to where the nearest neighbor was some little distance away. "Is it safe?"

"She feels perfectly safe here, Martin. I have mustn't for a moment let her think we don't agree that she is," Lee assured him swiftly. "She says the Good Lord protects her; that no one who knows her would hurt her and that people who don't know her don't know she is here alone. And there's very little in this neighborhood that would appeal to an intruder."

Martin nodded slowly and followed Lee as she went swiftly up the bricked walk, bordered on either side by bright beds of flowers in their first luxuriant early summer growth.

Emergency Sum To Fight Cholera

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. Children's Fund announced Friday a emergency allotment of $100,000 to help combat a cholera epidemic in the Philippines.

Officials said the disease, which broke out late last year, has killed more than 1,000 persons and infected 10,000 others many of them children.

And interest is paid, not semi-annually — but four times a year!

Here's how your money grows with a Wachovia Daily Interest Savings Account • Example: John Green has $650 in his Wachovia Savings Account on January 1. He deposits $25 every two weeks until March 8, when he withdraws $725 to pay taxes and other expenses. On March 15, he deposits $25 and starts the next quarter with $53.84 in his Savings Account. At Wachovia, John Green's Daily Interest earned is $3.84! But interest earned at most banks not offering Daily Interest would be only 19¢.

...at most banks not offering Daily Interest. ...with a Wachovia Savings Account earning Daily Interest!

You get more for your money when you save the Wachovia way. Open your Wachovia Savings Account soon. (A dollar will do it!)

Something Is Missing In Oscar Race: Liz Taylor

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The remarkable thing about this year's Oscar race is that Elizabeth Taylor is not in the running.

It's the first time in five years that she hasn't been a candidate. The reason is simple: She didn't make a movie this year.

But other ladies did, and they're out to make it one of the closest battles in recent history.

Here are the major contenders: Natalie Wood, "Splendor in the Grass"; Rosalind Russell, "A Majority of One"; Geraldine Page, "Summer and Smoke"; Piper Laurie, "The Hustler"; Audrey Hepburn and Shirley MacLaine, "The Children's Hour"; Deborah Kerr, "The Innocents."

Two of these talented females won't find a place among the finalists. It's anybody's guess which two.

The race for male star is more compact. Here's the way it looks to this observer:

Paul Newman, "The Hustler"; Maximilian Schell, "Judgment at Nuremberg"; Maurice Chevalier, "Fanny"; Albert Finney, "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning"; James Cagney, "One, Two, Three."

The best-picture contest is a tough one. These are the probabilities in this order:

"The Hustler," "West Side Story," "The Children's Hour," "Judgment at Nuremberg," "One, Two, Three."

Nominees for supporting performances are always difficult to predict. There are hundreds of candidates, and often the ones with the best press agents get nominated. But have crystal ball, will travel!

Best supporting actor — Jackie Gleason, "The Hustler"; George C. Scott, "The Hustler"; Montgomery Clift, "Judgment at Nuremberg"; George Chakiris, "West Side Story"; Edward Everett Horton, "Pocketful of Miracles."

Best supporting actress — Fay Bainter, "The Children's Hour"; Rita Moreno, "West Side Story"; Judy Garland, "Judgment at Nuremberg"; Lotte Lenya, "Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone"; Una Merkel, "Summer and Smoke."

This year saw a repeat of the ridiculous situation of the major companies glutting the Los Angeles theaters with their academy hopefuls. The philosophy is that the pictures most recently in academy voters' minds have the better chance. The result: Theatergoers have a holiday harvest of riches, then suffer a famine as the new year progresses.

If "The Hustler" proves the big winner this year—and it looks the favorite, it may help to relieve this situation. It was released far ahead of the deadline, as were "Fanny" and "Guns of Navarone."

We'll know how inaccurate these predictions are on Feb. 26, when the nominations are announced. The big prizes will be handed out with the usual hoopla at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium April 9.

Hungary Trying Settle Gypsies

VIENNA (AP) — Communist Hungary is trying to settle down about 130,000 gypsies who are still roaming the Puszta.

A government committee has been founded at the end of 1961 "to regulate" their fate, the Budapest newspaper Hefepi Hírek received here reported. The paper said of the 200,000 gypsies in Hungary, two-thirds are still nomads.

Agency Assures Early Assistance For Dominicans

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—The chief coordinator of the Alliance for Progress program says it will begin work in the Dominican Republic as soon as possible to help restore economic stability, and thus aid this nation's steps toward democracy.

Teodoro Moscoso, Latin American director for the U.S. agency for international development, arrived here Sunday with a staff of technicians.

The urgency of his mission was underlined by his arrival only four days after diplomatic relations between Washington and Santo Domingo were resumed following the lifting of sanctions imposed on the defunct Trujillo dictatorship last year by the Organization of American States.

Moscoso met briefly with President Joaquin Balaguer and the ruling State Council, which is grappling with trade deficits and unemployment estimated as high as 600,000.

"The mission's purpose," Moscoso told a news conference, "is to collaborate in a secure alliance of effort to see that the Dominican Republic fulfills its democratic destiny as an outstanding ally of free nations of the hemisphere."

New evidence of the political difficulties facing the government came Sunday night when three air force officers threatened to resign unless the armed forces chief, Gen. Pedro Rodriguez Echavarria, steps out. Two second lieutenants and a captain accused him of continuing "the autocratic regime" of the assassinated dictator, Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo.

One of the leaders of the futile putsch against Premier Khrushchev in 1957, Molotov at 71 was seen headed for oblivion after his recall in November from his job as head of the Soviet delegation to the International Atomic Energy Agency.

Molotov and other prominent figures under Stalin were on trial by the party, and expulsion generally had been expected. He was never seen in public after his return Nov. 12 and the press continued to denounce him.

Khrushchev was asked about Molotov only two weeks ago and told reporters the party machinery was dealing with the case.

A Foreign Office spokesman said he knew nothing of the status of the party trial.

"Molotov has never been removed from his post on the atomic energy agency and has now returned to it," he said.

The spokesman said Molotov left Saturday. That would mean he should arrive in Vienna some time today, traveling by train.

The Austrian Embassy said Molotov had not applied for an Austrian visa but that one issued in Vienna might still be valid.

It was the first time that anything like this had happened in the Soviet Union. Normally when a Soviet leader has been faced with such serious accusations he is not allowed to leave the country.

City Manager Louis Scheipers Jr. today released the text of his letter of resignation which he plans to submit.

"This is to request that you accept my resignation as city manager of the City of Greenville," the letter stated.

"My services as a consultant to the mayor and council will be available for at least 30 days."

Mayor Charles M. King had said Saturday that Scheipers would be retained for a 30-day period on a consulting basis. He will receive his regular salary during this period.

Scheipers revealed Friday that he planned to submit his resignation. He became Greenville's city manager last June.

Fuller To Address City Council PTA Thursday

On Thursday evening Dr. Frank Fuller of East Carolina College will make the main address at the first of two study courses to be sponsored by the Greenville City Council P.T.A. this month.

The first session will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at McGinnis Auditorium of Wahl-Coates Laboratory School, with Dr. Fuller discussing "Teaching Media." All interested parents are invited to attend.

Following the main address, exhibits on teaching aids, sponsored by several sales representatives, will be held. Distributors will exhibit and demonstrate various kinds of teaching media used in various schools today.

Mrs. Amos J. Evans, president of the City Council P.T.A., will preside at the meeting. Rev. Tom Davis, executive secretary of Albemarle Presbytery, will give the invocation.

A second study course is scheduled to take place Thursday, Jan. 18, at the Elmhurst School with State Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. Charles Carroll speaking on the "Role of Parents in Public Education."

Each year the City Council P.T.A. sponsors study courses as one of its principal activities. Mrs. T. L. Broadrick is study course chairman.

Molotov Back In Post At Vienna

MOSCOW (AP)—Ex-Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, denounced as a Stalinist by the latest Communist party congress, is returning to his atom for peace post in Vienna, the Foreign Office announced today.

The announcement startled the diplomatic colony in the Soviet capital and led to speculation that Stalin's old lieutenant may have won his battle against expulsion from the party.

One of the leaders of the futile putsch against Premier Khrushchev in 1957, Molotov at 71 was seen headed for oblivion after his recall in November from his job as head of the Soviet delegation to the International Atomic Energy Agency.

Molotov and other prominent figures under Stalin were on trial by the party, and expulsion generally had been expected. He was never seen in public after his return Nov. 12 and the press continued to denounce him.

NEA Field Representative To Address Pitt Teacher Group

FARMVILLE—Members of the Pitt County unit of the North Carolina Teachers Association meeting here tonight will hear an address by Jennings H. Flathers, National Education Association Field Representative.

Also scheduled for tonight at the session, to begin at 8 o'clock at H. B. Sugg School gymnasium, is installation of officers for the 1962 and 1963 terms, with former president Matthew Lewis performing the ceremonies.

Gaston Monk, principal of Bruce-Falkland School, is outgoing president, to be succeeded by Miss Hazel Jordan. Others to be installed are vice president, Huey L. Lawrence; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Roberta L. Brown; and assistant secretary-treasurer, Miss Pencie C. Nixon.

Outgoing officers are, in addition to Monk, vice president, S. E. Hemby; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Brown; and assistant secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Vivian D. Selby.

The guest speaker, Flathers, is a native of Amarillo, Texas. He received his bachelor's degree from West Texas State Teachers College in Canyon and was doing graduate work at the University of Colorado when World War II began.

Following his discharge in 1945, he resumed studies and completed work on the master's degree at the University of Colorado in 1946. Since then he has done additional graduate work at the University of Denver and at the University of Southern California. Flathers was a teacher of speech and drama at Amarillo High School. Active in educational circles, Flathers has served as secretary and president of the Amarillo, Texas unit of the N.E.A., was district president of the Texas State Teachers Assn. in 1957, and was state president of the Texas Classroom Teachers Assn. in 1956-57.

In addition, he has served his state association as member of the TEPS Committee. Flathers also served on the 1956-57 Resolutions Committee of the N.E.A. and was the South Central Regional director of N.E.A. Department of Classroom Teachers for 1957-60.

Special Project to Strengthen Local Associations from 1959-60 and later joined the permanent staff of the N.E.A. assigned to the Division of Field Operations.

He resides with his wife in McLean, Va.

Special music will be presented tonight by Miss Betty Jean Franks of Ayden and Willie Lee Morris of the Bruce-Falkland School at the piano and drums; and E. A. Elliott of Bethel Union School, accompanying his daughter, Joy Elliott, as soloist.

Some 240 teachers in Pitt belong to the local unit of the N.C.T.A.

Continues Case In Shooting Affair

A case against a 25-year-old Smithfield man in Greenville Municipal Court was continued today until the Jan. 18 term.

Ralph Dixon Daughtry, released under $1,000 bond, was previously scheduled to face charges of felonious assault with a deadly weapon and discharging firearms within the city limits.

The charges were lodged against Daughtry after an early morning shooting incident Dec. 14 at a local restaurant.

Occurring about 1:15 a.m. Dec. 14, the shooting of a .25 caliber revolver resulted in a foot injury to Robert L. Abbott of 2511 Jefferson Drive in Greenville. Abbott was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital immediately after the shooting where he was treated and released.
