Preparations In Pitt Underway For Whatever Winter Brings

More Snow Expected; Colder Tonight; School Decisions Pending

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

A warmly clad populus armed with boots and snow scrapers greeted the advancing snow here this morning.

Housewives, heeding the snow warnings, began their migrations to local grocery stores last night. With the evidence of snow and sleet this mornisg, others were scurrying to stock up on supplies as early at 8 a.m.

As the temperature in Greenville dropped to 25 degrees at 11:30 today, warnings were for snow throughout the day, hazardous driving conditions and perhaps a hard freeze. Scsools were scheduled to close in Greenville and Pitt County at 2 p.m. today, with lunch being served in city cafeterias. Martin county schools also were closed.

The dropping temperatures will be a major factor in causing precipitation to freeze. Predicted snowfall ranges from six inches in the western part of the state to about two along the coast. The weatherman has warned of heavy snow, hazardous driving and a cold wave.

It will be colder tonight, with Thursday expected to be clearing and very cold.

Throughout the county, snow was falling in heavy doses this morning, and in Bethel a ground accumulation of up two inches was estimated at 11 a.m. Overall, roads early today throughout the city and county were warm and precipitation was turning to "mush."

About noon, however, conditions began to worsen. Horace Vincent of the N. C. Maintenance Dept. said sand had been put on the Tar River bridges at Greene Street and on the bypass.

Weather conditions have caused numerous minor accidents already. In Grifton, slick roads caused one driver to land in a ditch, with a wrecker pulling the automobile out.

In Greenville, C. K. Beatty of the Public Works Department said his crews were watching conditions and had de-icer, salt and sand ready for roads and walkways. The de-icer is a special chemical compound used to melt through snow on sidewalks. Sand will be used when conditions warrant, he said.

Utilities Director L. P. Bloxam said he doesn't anticipate problems with utilities lines, unless there is severe icing.

The N. C. Highway Patrol this morning reported snow almost all over the state and advised that chains be used for automobiles west of Highway 301, or west of Wilson and Rocky Mount. Snow mixed with rain was reported east of 301, and beginning to stick as of 10 a.m.

Chains also are required for driving in Virginia, except in the extreme southern portion. In South Carolina, snow was reported in Columbia, and in the west and central parts of the state as well as north of Columbia.

The Highway Patrol was advising all motorists to stay at home unless it is an absolute necessity to get out. For those who have to drive, extreme caution and a very low rate of speed were recommended.

Prison System Study Finished

SYLVA, N.C. (AP)—Their two-day inspection of North Carolina's prison system completed, an assistant Rhode Island attorney general and a Rhode Island State Police official prepared today to head back homeward, apparently satisfied with what they saw.

F. T. O'Halloran of the Rhode Island attorney general's office and State Police Capt. Arthur Newton came to the state after two escapees from the Jackson County prison camp here fighting extradition in Rhode Island described the prisons as the "dungeons of hell."

O'Halloran and Newton planned to go to Raleigh today. However, en route they plan to stop at Swannanoa where the Prisons Department operates a training school for prison personnel and at Lexington.

Newton said he wanted to check records in Lexington on Hammond, who alleged he was denied due process when tried in Lexington.

Go-Ahead Given For Projects In South Greenville

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Engineers were told to proceed with plans for a sewage outfall line which will serve Brentwood, Lakewood Pines, Lynndale and other areas in South Greenville.

William F. Freeman, Inc., is doing the engineering for the major sewer project. The Utilities Commission last night told representatives of the firm to complete the plans and call for bids contingent upon necessary easements being obtained.

However, the commission did not commit itself to carry out all the project at one time.

The project involves four parts with the first to be from an existing outfall north of 14th St. to Pineview Dr. (Lakewood Pines). Part Two is within Lakewood Pines. Part Three is from Lakewood Pines into Lynndale and Part Four is from Brentwood down Evans.

Bids will be on individual parts and also Parts One, Two and Three as one job. The commission will then determine if funds are available for completing the entire job.

Part Four which is estimated to cost $8,173 will be done by Utilities crews.

The sewer outfall line leads down Green Mill Run to the new sewage disposal plant.

Bloxam explained that approximately 2,000 feet of the job will involve rebuilding a line laid in WPA days.

Director Bloxam was given permission to institute a 40-hour week for all Utilities employees.

"We believe we can work out a schedule that will put the plant personnel now on a 48-hour schedule on a 40-hour week," Bloxam told the commission.

In addition to plant operators, some construction workers who have been working 42 hour weeks will be affected.

Recently the Utilities instituted a five-day week for city hall employees. Offices began closing Saturdays last week. However, the commission decided to hold to a 40-hour week for city hall employees.

With the new policy instituted last night all employees will be on a 40-hour week.

Representatives of the Freeman firm, which is also doing the engineering for the city's new sewage disposal plant, told the commission last night they expected it would require 30 days to get the plan in operation.

They said they had been over the plant yesterday and found several minor painting and clean-up items which must be taken care of by the contractor. The plant is expected to be complete for turning over to the Utilities by March 15.

The plan is being constructed on property behind Greenwood Cemetery.

Commissioner K. B. Pace said he had heard complaints about the location of the plant within sight of the cemetery. He asked if trees could be planted to screen the site from the cemetery.

Director Bloxam reported that 1,000 pine seedlings have already been planted behind the fence which faces the cemetery and also towards Fifth St.

The seedlings are planted three deep and eight feet apart, he said. As they grow up, they should provide an adequate screen for the plant, he told the commission.

Utilities Chairman Charles Horne called for commission participation in the hiring of a new electrical engineer. Bloxam had announced that A. B. Goodson was resigning to accept the job as Utilities Director in Kinston.

Horne said the commission should work with Bloxam in hiring an electrical engineer since he would be second man in the Utilities system and could move into Bloxam's position if it became vacant.

"We need a man who can do exactly what you are doing now," Horne told Bloxam.

The director assured the commission he would screen applicants thoroughly and bring the most likely candidates to the attention of the commission.

Goodson has been working in the salary range of $5,628 to $7,536 under the Utilities pay plan.

Goodson, who has been with Greenville Utilities for nearly 12 years has also been one of the Utilities two assistant directors. The other is Business Manager Larry Brown.

Commissioners referred proposed ordinances concerning sewer charges to Horne and Bloxam for further work. Horne had questioned the plan for handling industrial wastes which in some cases could require pre-treatment.

Bloxam also submitted a purchasing policy requested earlier by Horne. The chairman suggested several changes and asked that it be re-submitted.

Recover Stolen Car In Raleigh

A car, part of the loot taken from White Chevrolet Company in a Monday night break-in was reported recovered by police in Raleigh, Greenvlile Detectives said today.

Officers said the vehicle had been wrecked but was in running condition when found about 1:55 p.m. Tuesday.

Investigation of the robbery is continuing.

Police said yesterday that in addition to the car, three automatic .12 gauge shotguns, a transister radio and an estimated $35 in cash were taken from the firm.

Damage to property there, caused by the break-in was estimated to be about $285.

Unfit For Dogs, Okay For People

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—It wasn't a fit night out for dogs, but for people, that was different.

The city pulled its six police dogs off their beats about 9 o'clock Tuesday night because of sleet and snow. About the same time a street crew was ordered out to put sand on icy bridges.

Congress Gets Session Formally Begun With Organization Completed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress got its new session formally under way today with completion of routine organizational duties.

But the real kickoff for an election-year session which could bring heated contests on half a dozen big legislative issues will come when President Kennedy addresses a joint meet Thursday.

In his State of the Union message, Kennedy will lay down, at least in broad outline, what he hopes to get from this second session of the 87th Congress. Battle lines will form immediately.

For the first time at any midterm meeting since 1940, the House gathered today without a speaker. Texan Sam Rayburn, who had ruled it in so many years of Democratic control, died in November.

So it fell to the House clerk, Ralph Roberts, to bang the gavel that called the House into session and to preside pending the formal election of John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, who was Democratic floor leader under Rayburn, to succeed the Texan as speaker.

House Democrats caucused Tuesday and chose Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma as their floor leader in succession to McCormack.

McCormack had no party opposition for speaker and it appeared for a time that the Republicans would not even go through the gesture of putting up a candidate of their own.

In a morning caucus, the Republicans decided to do what the minority party nearly always does and offer their floor leader, Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, to the House for the speakership.

Senate Republicans in their caucus chose Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa as chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee. Hickenlooper won 21-14 over Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts. He succeeds the late Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

Senate Democrats had no key jobs to fill, but held a caucus and listened to a pep talk from their floor leader, Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana.

Mansfield forecast that this session would find "the climate for progressive legislation is good" and that the President would offer "a sound program for America."

Outside the halls of Congress, the climate of the moment was cold and snowy. The snow and 17-degree cold seemed to have kept many Congress members from attending an 8 a.m. communion service held annually at the National Presbyterian Church on the opening day of Congress to ask divine guidance for the legislators.

The church auditorium was less than one-third filled. By comparison, it was filled last year when former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, a member of the church, was one of the communicants. President Kennedy is a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

The weather held back too the throngs of spectators who usually turn out to see Congress begin a new session.

Galleries were only partly filled when Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, promptly at noon, called the Senate to order, breaking up the handshakings and greetings going on among the returning senators.

Just 19 minutes later the Senate ended its session, adjourning as a mark of respect to the memory of Sen. Bridges.

Mansfield announced no legislation will be taken up in the Senate this week but debate will start Monday on a bill to provide tax relief for Du Pont stockholders. Du Pont is under court order to dispose of its 63 million shares of General Motors stock.

Ayden Retaining Parking System

AYDEN—Following a study of feasibility of changing parking on downtown streets from diagonal to parallel, members of the Town Board agreed this week that for the time being there will be no change in parking.

At the December board meeting, Corey Stokes, representing the Chamber of Commerce, requested the board to make a study for consideration of changing parking on Lee, Second and Third Streets from vertical to parallel. Commissioner Harry Mumford was put in charge of the study.

The study revealed that there are now 206 available spaces on these streets. Changing to diagonal parking would mean there would be only 120 parking spaces, a loss of 86 spaces which would have to be found elsewhere, probably in off-street parking. Loss of spaces would occur when the ideal 25 feet would be allowed per parallel space.

Regarding the study, Police Chief W. D. Brooks reported to the board that in the areas involved, only two minor accidents had occurred in the past 16 months due to backing and passage of traffic. The board noted that it would be willing to help provide off-street parking in areas where it proved to be needed.

In a second matter, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor reported that Col. David Spivey, area Civil Defense director, had visited the location where town officials are contemplating building a suitable fallout shelter for "continuity of government" in case of disaster.

Tentative plans of the town officials were not as strong as they should be, Col. Spivey indicated. For instance, walls as planned for the building would not have been thick enough.

Consequently, the board has called for revised bids. One bid had been submitted at a prior meeting, with time extended and another submitted since that time, Paylor reported.

Two petitions were submitted to the board. One, a petition that the Town Board rezone from RA-5 to RA-7 land on the north side of Boulevard Avenue beginning at E. College Street and running in an easterly direction to the present city limits of Ayden, and thence north and west following the present city limits to property already zoned RA-7.

Since the petition had been signed by every person involved, commissioners deemed a public hearing on the matter unnecessary and agreed to change the zoning to RA-7 effective last Monday.

A nearby section already had been rezoned from RA-5 to RA-7,

Intense Cold For Big Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Intense cold covered most of the nation today, driving down temperatures to record lows in many cities.

Readings ranged down as far as 47 below zero in Drummond, Mont.

The mercury plunged to zero or below in at least 19 states.

Low marks that had stood for as long as 81 years were erased from the weather books.

The arctic air mass moved south and east, bringing shudders and suffering to added millions. Only Florida and sections of the Carolinas and Georgia and the West Coast escaped the big freeze.

Snow fell in the Middle and South Atlantic states and persisted in snowbound northern New York.

From the western mountains to the East the combination of snow and cold had a staggering impact on everyday life. Schools were closed by the thousands. Trains ran late. Scores of bus runs were canceled.

The first major snowstorm of the winter hit Washington on the day Congress opened. One to 3½ inches of snow in 17-degree cold slowed traffic and suspended classes in all suburban schools.

Buffalo and Watertown and surrounding areas in upstate New York still floundered in wind-whipped snow off Lakes Erie and Ontario.

Watertown and the rest of Jefferson County were almost isolated after an overnight fall of 7 inches raised the snow on the ground to 2 feet. Wind formed drifts 3 feet thick. All schools in the county were closed and many roads were blocked.

Two of Buffalo's major traffic arteries remained closed and scores of automobiles were abandoned in a foot of snow. A railroad train rescued 70 stranded motorists on a waterfront thoroughfare.

The Deep South struggled against a snow cover which reached almost to the Gulf of Mexico. Elders bent to the task of clearing walks and driveways while children thrilled to the unaccustomed pleasure of building snowmen.

Eight inches of snow coated the ground in parts of Arkansas and Tennessee and five inches or more blanketed much of the rest of the South.

Gov. Ross Barnett declared a state holiday in Mississippi because of the storm.

Safety Measures Advised For Wintry Roads

"Extreme caution should be used by drivers traveling streets and highways in this area and unless travel is a necessity, drivers should not venture out onto the roads with their vehicles," Capt. S. H. Mitchell, Commander of Highway Patrol Troop "A" warned this morning as he commented on the snowfall in this area.

The Patrol official commented on "basic safety equipment for drivers" who have to venture out onto snow-covered roads. Included in the list was: windshield wipers and good heater-defroster, good exhaust system, brakes, lights, and tire chains.

Talking on the list of essentials for safe driving in snow conditions, the officer explained that a good defroster and windshield wipers are "a necessity to keep the driver's vision at a point that is necessary for safe vehicle operation." An exhaust system with no leaks is important, he noted, because "fumes leaking from the exhaust system into the car may be sufficient to overcome the driver and cause him to loose control of his vehicle", or in the event the auto is stalled on the roadway, may cause death by suffocation.

Capt. Mitchell suggested that during winter driving, at least one window in the auto be left partly open to reduce the possibility of suffocation by exhaust fumes.

Good brakes are essential, the lawman explained, for stopping on slick roads without causing a skid.

He said that on snow or ice covered streets "steady pressure should not be applied to brakes, but instead, a pumping action should be used to stop." "Sudden act of braking, as well as accelerating and steering should be avoided, "because they lead to skids," he added.

Tire chains are all-important to negotiate in heavy snow, and are one of the greatest safety factors for safe snow-ice driving.

"Chainless cars become stuck and abandoned", the Captain said, "causing jammed and stalled traffic conditions." The use of chains "help you stop more safely and enable a driver to go in severe conditions where otherwise you will get stuck."

Comparing tire chains to snow tires, the Captain said, when it comes to starting and pulling ability on glare ice, snow tires are 28 per cent better than regular tires, but tire chains are 231 per cent better. Reinforced chains (which include cleats on the bottom) are 409 per cent better, he noted.

In snow, snow tires are 51 per cent better than regular tires while reinforced chains are 313 per cent more effective.

He noted that stopping ability of vehicles is also greatly affected by the use of chains, saying on ice at 20 miles per hour, a car with reinforced chains can stop 118 feet sooner than one with regular ties and 97 feet sooner than one equipped with snow tires.

On snow, chains can halt a 20-miles-per-hour vehicle in 38 feet while it takes regular tires 60 feet and snow tires 52 feet.

Mitchell also suggested that tire pressure be reduced from the regular operating pressure to provide more traction.

He noted that roughly, stopping distances on snow are "three to 12 times as great as those on bare pavement."

"If a vehicle begins to skid," according to Captain Mitchell, "the driver should reduce power and turn the steering wheel in the direction of the rear end skid until recovery begins."

When starting a car, "start in drive range on snow or ice, move slowly and maintain a steady speed to avoid skids." "Allow greater distances in following the car ahead. . .reduce speed to meet conditions. . .slow down for curves and icy ruts," the Patrol official explained.

S. E. West Elected Director Planters Bank And Trust Co.

Stockholders of The Planters National Bank and Trust Company, meeting in annual session in Rocky Mount yesterday, re-elected 21 directors and elected two new directors.

The new directors are S. Eugene West of Greenville and Dr. George D. Pleasants of Siler City.

S. E. WEST

West, a former mayor of Greenville, is vice president of P. S. West Construction Company of Statesville and Greenville, and a member of the bank's Greenville Board of Managers. Pleasants is a physician in Siler City and a member of the Siler City Board of Managers.

Francis E. Winslow, M. P. Dawson, Gilbert T. Stephenson and Josh L. Horne, in compliance with the bank's by-laws concerning retirement, assumed the status of Advisory Directors.

Following the shareholders' meeting, the directors declared a regular semi-annual dividend of 25c per share plus an extra dividend of 10c per share to stockholders of record as of November 14, 1961.

In a report to the stockholders President Archie W. McLean said that "by all standards 1961 was an excellent business year. For the first time in two or three years, the economic level in our bank's trade area paralleled the national level. Our area has begun to fill, in a substantial way, payrolls coming from new industrial plants.

"Farm income in 1961 was unusually good. While the growing season was characterized by an unusual amount of rain and cool weather, and the Fall by extremely dry weather, most crop yields were good.

"Dividends declared or provided for in 1961 amounted to 60c per share of $5 per value stock compared with 55c last year."

McLean reported that at year-end the bank's loans and discounts, after deducting valuation reserves of $256,814, amounted to $14,814,760 compared with $13.7 million at the end of 1960, reflecting an increase of more than $1,000,000. The daily average of demand deposits in 1961, he reported, was $18,938,352 compared with $17,275,907 in 1960, an average increase of $1,662,645.

The daily average of time deposits during the past year was $8,324,532 compared with $7,373,384 for 1960, an average increase of $951,148. This, McLean said, gave the bank an over-all average increase for the year of $2,613,793.

Assets of the trust department during the year, he said, showed

'Gay Life' Star Succeeds Overnight After 13 Years

Starring role in Broadway's "The Gay Life" gives Barbara Cook a chance at last to stamp and scream on stage.

By OLGA CURTIS
Women's News Service

NEW YORK — (WNS) — Here's a question for all the stage-struck girls who think being a Broadway star means instant fame and fortune:

Ever heard of Barbara Cook?

Miss Cook is a genuine, honest-to-gosh Broadway star. Her name is in lights above the musical "The Gay Life." But as for fame, her own neighbors don't know she's in the theater. And as for fortune, Miss Cook says, "It's a good thing I cam type."

The story of how this blonde singer from Atlanta became a star — after a mere 13 years of hard work — tells just what goes into "an overnight success."

Barbara came to New York in 1948 determined to be a singer. She was 21 and had her family's approval, a little money saved up and a knowledge of statistical typing.

"I can't even count how many auditions I went through," she says today, "but they all had the same result. For my first three years in New York, I worked as a typist."

Then she got a part in a show called "Flahooly." Everything was rosy — except the show lasted exactly six weeks and Miss Cook was just another unemployed typist.

It only took three more years for her to get her second Broadway part, in "Plain and Fancy," and this time success really seemed right around the corner. But as Barbara puts it:

"Even in a hit show you don't make a million. It takes TV and summer stock to keep any singer going — and it helps if your family can send money."

Barbara, who had become Mrs. David LeGrant in the meantime, also kept busy as a housewife. But she still wanted to be a Broadway star, and a big part in "Candide" in 1956 seemed like the key. Only the show didn't last long.

In 1957, Barbara did hit the jackpot. She was "Marian the Librarian" in "The Music Man," which was a big fat hit, but she still didn't have her name in lights. And after a year in the show, she had to leave because she was pregnant.

Her son, Adam, was 2 years old when "The Gay Life" opened in November — with his mother officially and finally a star. By that time, Barbara was pleased by her success but not overwhelmed — and somewhat amused by folks who figured she must be rolling in cash.

"I've worked in five Broadway shows in 10 years," she said wryly. "You don't make a fortune at that rate."

As for international fame, Barbara tells a story on herself about a neighbor who stopped her one day and said:

"You know, you look exactly like a girl — what's-her-name — who's in a Broadway show."

The neighbor quite honestly found it hard to believe that the nice Mrs. LeGrant of Port Washington, N.Y., the one who lived in a plain gray shingle house, could be a Broadway star.

Barbara admits this could be her own fault. "I just don't believe in Bikini pictures, for me," she said, "and I've never had an itch to go to Hollywood."

Another reason for this star's comparative anonymity is the fact that she usually portrays sweet young ingenues. On this score, "The Gay Life" satisfies Barbara with more than her name in lights —she gets a chance at last throw things, stamp and scream.

And it's given her a new ambition, which on Broadway could take another 13 years. Now, Barbara yearns to be a dramatic star.

Escalona Is Club Speaker

At the January meeting of the Fine Arts Department of the Woman's Club, Miss Julia Escalona of Chile spoke of her native country.

Illustrating with colored slides, she told of the contrasts in Chile, the geographical aspects, politics and economy. Miss Escalona carried her listeners directly to Chile, land of volcanoes and earthquakes. Miss Escalona is at present an instructor of Spanish at East Carolina College.

Mrs. Marguerite Perry, hostess, assisted by Mrs. K. T. Futrell and Mrs. Ellen Petrie, served the members coffee and cake upon arrival. Mrs. E. W. Barnhill was a guest for the afternoon. Mrs. H. H. Settle presided over a short business session. Mrs. Dink James, Woman's Club president, announced the luncheon for Feb. 2 at the general meeting, the Fine Arts Department to serve as hostesses.

Oleg Cassini Shows Spring Collection

By JOY MILLER
Associated Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — While a piano tinkled the rhythm, and 200 fashion writers beat time with their hands, Oleg Cassini gave a spirited exhibition of the Twist.

The impromptu dance came a short time after the debonair designer started showing his spring collection Tuesday in the second day of the New York Couture Group's press week.

It seemed Cassini might be his old worldly, wisecracking self again, after a year of decorous behavior befitting the designer for Jacqueline Kennedy.

He settled to everyone's satisfaction that he was returning to his first love: the curvy, figure-hugging fashions that had been his trademark. His year's flirtation with the easy-fitting, over-blouse styles the First Lady often wears was ended.

Then he suddenly waved a model from the stage, and leaped into an energetic, yet elegant, rendition of the Twist.

Not the least bit winded—he prides himself on keeping fit—he commented on some of his own designs: "Good for a hunchback with one shoulder higher than the other"; "I actually like this dress"; and with heavy irony "The sheer beauty of it captivates me."

Later he twisted again, this time with a model wearing his most madcap invention — a red crepe sheath covered from shoulder to hem with free-swinging strips of fabric.

"I still have a little success here and there with girls," he said.

But he insisted: "My life is completely changed. I like it better now. I'm respectable."

Some Cassinisms:

"Last time several kind ladies suggested some designs were discards of Jacqueline Kennedy styles. If you work for Mrs. Kennedy you have to have ideas, and some may fall into the collection."

On being the First Lady's designer: "Nothing has changed. She's traveling a lot and I'm doing the clothes for her trips. Some people may hope I will fall from the little pedestal, but we shall see. He who laughs last lasts."

On the Twist: "The Twist is basically a reaction. The mood will spread into fashion. Next season I'll make twisty dresses."

Cassini's virtuoso performance overshadowed the earlier collections of Luis Estevez and Arthur Jablow.

Estevez earned some gasps with necklines slashed to the waist.

Jablow's David Kidd produced well-mannered suits with matching or contrasting silk blouses. Since there was nothing else to eat, Hadiz Omar began to eat these berries by the handful. They were mighty hard and tasted awful. But at least they were filling, so Hadiz started planning how to soften them up.

Roasted Coffee

Hadiz roasted the berries. They smelled mighty good and the Dervish thought he had it made. But in spite of their trial by fire, the berries were harder than ever. So while munching on them to keep at most a reasonable peace with his stomach, Hadiz hit on the idea of boiling the berries.

Almost

The boiled berries smelled almost as good as the roasted ones. The Dervish thought he would have a meal that agreed with both teeth and stomach. So it was with delight he started eating the soggy mess.

The results of the first mouthful almost convinced Hadiz that honesty wasn't the best policy. In disgust, he started to pour the whole mess on the ground. But he knew water was scarce, so he threw out the berries. Sitting under a nearby bush, Omar settled back to ponder the latest turn in his quest for food. And as he thought, he sipped the water he had boiled the berries in.

Eureka!

The water tasted good and the effects of the water was better than good. So elated with his discovery was the Dervish, he made his way back to Mocha. His erstwhile enemies soon were convinced that Hadiz had something. He took up his residence among them once more. Not only this but they made him a saint.

Today

Today the berries that Omar had so much trouble with are the backbone of many a country's economy. So next time you drink a cup of your favorite blend, give a silent thank you to Hadiz Omar of Mocha.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Plants play an important part in our everyday life. Most of the time, we aren't aware of the stories that go along with them. Every time we sit down to a meal, unseen actors form part of almost every mouthful we eat. This holds true also about the beverages that go along with the meal.

Hadiz Omar

Each time we drink our coffee—instant or otherwise—we make a silent toast to Hadiz Omar, one time Dervish of Mocha. In the year 1285, Omar made the foolish mistake of trying to convince the merchants of Mocha that honesty was the best policy. The local storekeepers and others engaged in trade took a dim view of Hadiz' attempt to give the customer an even break. They gave him the gate—or to be exact, booted him out into the desert.

Hard Berries

As long as anyone could remember and farther back than that small trees with countless berries had grown on the land. But no one paid them any heed.

Street Repair Work Planned

GRIMESLAND—Street repairs throughout town will be made here this year, the Town Board decided last night at their monthly meeting.

The work will consist of patching and other repair work.

Another motion approved by the board was that a charge of $25 for all future water tap-ins will be made. All present tap-ins not in use at this date will not be required to pay this charge, but a deposit of $5 will be required to turn on the water, Town Clerk Lela Bell Hoell reported.

Feb. 15 was set as deadline for purchasing Grimesland city tags. They are on sale now at the town office for $1.

Following a lengthy discussion of Civil Defense, members of the board approved purchase of communications equipment at about $406 and said they will be ready to have it installed upon arrival. The federal government will pay half of the cost of the communications equipment.

Grimesland's approval of the communications project follows action in other towns of Pitt, who, when the project is completed, will be a part of the countywide communications network.

Gives Talk On Credit Business

AYDEN — Poorly managed credit could lead to disaster and bankruptcy, R. H. McLawhorn Jr. told members of the Ayden Rotary Club, meeting at the Community Building Thursday.

In operating a credit business, McLawhorn said, one has to strike a happy medium between hard heartedness and laxity. Credit is the most vital asset in the world, but customers must realize that credit costs money, the speaker noted. To be a winner in business of credit, one must have a consistent approach.

Mewborn, a Rotarian, was in charge of the program for the evening.

During the session it was reported that for the month of December, the Ayden club was 13th in the district from the standpoint of attendance, with a percentage of 92.07, compared to the district average of 87.79 per cent.

Gwynn Merritt, president, presided.

Firm To Appeal NLRB Order

GREENSBORO — (AP) — A spokesman for Brookside Industries Inc., of Reidsville said Tuesday the firm will not comply with a National Labor Relations Board order that it rehire a woman and pay her 15 months back pay.

The spokesman, R. D. Douglas Jr. of Greensboro, said the firm will appeal the ruling to the U.S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals.

The woman, Mrs. Louise Moore, worked as a supervisor in Brookside's shirt manufacturing plant. She claimed she was fired because she refused to obtain for the company union information from her husband, a non-supervisory employe of Brookside.

Elisabethville, capital of Katanga Province, followed a planned development. It has neat houses, flower beds, shady streets and invitingly placed shops.

Believes Jobless Are Discouraged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg feels that the tight job situation will substantially improve in the months ahead.

But he told a news conference Tuesday that the heavy unemployment rolls undoubtedly have discouraged a lot of people—particularly women and older workers—from even trying to find work.

Employment declined by 882,000 in December to 66,467,000 and unemployment increased by 100,000 to 4,091,000, he said. However, he added the changes were in line with what was to be expected in the winter season.

Goldberg went on to predict that 1962 job gains will be over and above the normal springtime improvement.

The American economy, he said is again showing its capacity for growth.

Setting off in another direction, the labor secretary called on the steel industry, its workers and customers not to break the momentum of the economic recovery with a strike or by stockpiling steel in fear of a shutdown.

He indicated that the administration will keep in close touch with steel negotiations and do everything possible to help avoid a strike and to make certain that new terms won't be disruptive to the rest of the economy. The steel contracts run out June 30.

A steel shutdown this year would make no sense, Goldberg said. He said a strike "in a year promising substantial economic expansion would appreciably retard recovery and be detrimental to the national interest."

Goldberg said the civilian labor force registered a decline of 780,000 from November to December and stands practically unchanged from a year ago at 70.5 million.

Normally the labor force is expected to rise by about 1 million a year due to the expanding population.

Goldberg said the tight employment situation undoubtedly has discouraged many from looking for jobs, and thus they were not counted among the labor force.

Another factor, he said, was the buildup of the military forces in 1961. It took about 300,000 young men out of the civilian labor force.

New Policeman On Ayden Force

AYDEN—Theodore Dupree of 600-A Roosevelt Ave., Greenville, will assume duties as a member of the Ayden Police Department on Monday, Jan. 15, it was announced this week by Police Chief W. D. Brooks.

Dupree, 27-year-old Negro and graduate of the H. B. Sugg High School in Farmville, replaces Officer Herbert Gardner who resigned as of Dec. 30 due to other interests.

Dupree will be a patrolman on the Ayden force. A veteran of the U. S. Army, he served about three years and was a member of the military police. He has been employed by a wholesale company in Greenville.

The new officer is married. He and his wife have no children.

His employment brings the number of the local department up to six, which is full strength.

Tickets were scheduled to go on sale throughout the county today for the Exposition, described by district officials as the biggest and most elaborate scouting event in Pitt District's history. It is scheduled for Raynor-Forbes tobacco warehouse in Greenville, Saturday, Feb. 10.

BETHEL — Fire destroyed an unoccupied tenant house last week on the Tom Taylor farm about three miles north of Bethel at Mayo Crossroads.

Weather Factor In Army Mishap

FT. HOOD, Tex. (AP)—Military authorities say paralyzing winter weather was a factor in a collision of an Army tank and truck at this army base Tuesday. Five soldiers were killed and 22 others were injured.

Three of the injured were burned seriously when the truck's 70-gallon gasoline tank exploded.

Major Decisions Await Congress

Congress convened at noon today to take up their legislative considerations where they left off last September. And in view of conditions which face the country on both the domestic and international scene, this could be one of the more important sessions of Congress.

The estimated $90-billion-plus budget expected to be presented by the administration will certainly be a center of controversy during much of the current session of Congress. There will also be the matter of increasing the limit on the national debt beyond the present $298 billion ceiling which is sure to stir considerable opposition not only in Congress, but among citizens around the country. In an era of unprecedented prosperity for the nation there is the growing feeling that the national debt should be reduced rather than increased.

Other controversy will stem from the framing of fiscal policies to go along with the handling of the nation's international affairs as the President seeks new means to aid emerging nations of the world and compete with communism for new friends on the international front. The same will be true in the field of international trade where Presidential proposals will seek new authority for the administration in working out trade agreements with other nations, lowering tarrif barriers that were established for protection of American industries from abnormal influxes of cheaper commodities produced in other countries.

Defense requirements of the country and its allies will make up a major portion of the national budget as it has for the better part of two decades, and here again there will be much debate and many conflicting opinions from various "experts" before the final action is taken on what is needed and what can be eliminated so far as defense spending is concerned.

To further complicate the problems which will face Congress in this new session is the fact that this is an election year. Normally this tends to make Congressmen more inclined to push for domestic legislation that may gain widespread popularity, it makes them more conscious of pressure groups of various kinds which are seeking special legislation that would benefit their own interests.

Certainly in this legislative session Congress must guard against unwise decisions on both international and domestic legislative proposals. They must be careful to look beyond the immediate reaction of voters to legislative proposals and consider seriously the long-range impact their acts will have upon the nation.

Huge Success Of YDC Event

By LYNN NISBET

YDC—Despite heavy rains in all parts of the state Saturday attendance at the installation of new officers of the State Young Democratic Clubs at Statesville was record-breaking. Original plans were made to take care of 250 guests. That estimate was moved up some weeks ago to 400. By last Thursday it was apparent there would be a lot more than 400 people on hand and site for the dinner had to be moved from the hotel to the armory. By actual count 676 plates were served.

Vying for headlines with the formal installation of W. E. (Dud) Graham of Charlotte as YDC president for 1962, and all other state officers, was the keynote address by Governor Sanford. The Governor spoke off the cuff. He appealed to the young folks to look to the future rather than the past—although he made it clear that the Democratic record made in the past is the basic for continuing progress in good government.

Governor Sanford was in as nearly enemy territory as could be found in the state. While there were guests from every section, a large part of the audience came from Iredell and neighboring counties. And Iredell voted strongly against Sanford for Governor in both primaries and in the general election. But when he was presented by Sen. James Johnson of Iredell he received an ovation equal to that accorded any Governor at any comparable event. When he concluded his address he was given another arousing cheer. At the convention hall everybody was a good and loyal Democrat, no factions recognized. Unless the salutation of Senator Johnson might be classed as factional. He addressed the "November Democrats" in the audience.

HOW COME?—A popular topic for discussion around the lobbies and bedrooms was the reason for the large attendance. Several specifics were recognized.

There was curiosity about how Governor Sanford would be received. This was his first appearance in Iredell county since his election, the first purely partisan group of consequence he had faced since the bond election.

There was curiosity about the court action filed by Sen. Max Thomas to open up the Lieutenant Governor's office for election this year. News got around that Senator Thomas would be there—and he was—and that undoubtedly attracted some visitors.

There was interest in what C. V. Henkel has done and is doing to convert the Vance Hotel into an ultra-modern motor hotel. These factors in attracting attendance are inter - related. Each of them also is related to the main reason for so many Democrats of all ages coming to the party.

There is a generally enlivened interest in politics, especially partisan politics, throughout North Carolina. While the Democrats are boasting about excess attendance at their meetings, they are reminded that Republicans also are holding meetings all over the state—and that unlike the situation which prevailed for years, membership in the Republican party is not a political or social stigma.

At all meetings of this character the public program is the least important part of the overall proceedings. The big speeches, the excessive claims, the drum-beating and trumpet-blowing from the platform is accepted as traditional and necessary dressing for the occasion. The truth comes out in small group discussions in bedrooms and hotel corridors. These are the places where candidates discard boasts and plead for help.

UNEASY—At Statesville there was far less confidence expressed in these bedroom sessions than from the platform in the armory. Fact is, there is a spirit of unease and uncertainty among the Democratic leaders. To many of them this is a novel experience.

The public platform declarations are for ballyhoo. The close - communion conferences are for fact. And the facts are not conducive to happiness on part of the Democrats.

Consensus among the people with whom your reporter talked at Statesville—and they included folks from all sections of the state and from all "factions" of the Democratic party—is that the prestige of the administration and of the party is at lower ebb than at any time since 1934, or maybe since 1928.

One thing seems certain? The word "Democrat" has lost its magic power in North Carolina. There is no reason to believe that the Democratic party will not continue for many years to be the majority, maybe the completely dominant, party in North Carolina government. But there is irrefutable evidence that this role cannot be maintained on historic basis alone, without continuing contribution to its support willingly given by the people. And this support must be more than attending rallies and listening to speeches.

Republicans in North Carolina have been doing that for nearly 50 years without getting anywhere. Lately they have decided to go to work, to face up to facts, and their efforts are beginning to pay off. At least to the extent of scaring the Democrats into action and fact-finding.

Still No Better Way To Answer Charges

Reaction of two Rhode Island officials to treatment of prisoners in North Carolina appears to be one of approval rather than one of disgust at what they have seen in touring prisons about the state.

The final chapter is yet to be written in the efforts of North Carolina to win extradition of two of its escaped prisoners now being held in Rhode Island, but apparently the two Rhode Island officials have found nothing to justify the contention that returning the prisoners to North Carolina would be returning them to "dungeons of hell".

What the reaction of the third visitor from Rhode Island—the attorney for the two escaped prisoners—will be remains to be seen. Apparently he did not want to conduct the investigation according to the reasonable ground rules laid down by Prisons Director George Randall, and this caused a rift between him and the officials who accompanied him from Rhode Island. We so far have gotten the impression that the attorney may be more interested in "making a case" for his clients than in objectively determining whether prisoners are humanely treated in North Carolina.

Whatever the outcome is, we are convinced that Tar Heel officials made the right move by inviting the Rhode Islanders to come here and make their own investigation of prison conditions in North Carolina. It puts the state in the position of indicating it has nothing to hide, nothing to be ashamed of because of its prisoners. Our prisons may not be perfect in many respects, but at least we have not thrown up a wall around them to prevent outsiders from coming to see for themselves how prisoners fare in this state.

There is no better way to refute unfounded accusations that this state does not humanely treat its prisoners.

World Leaders Saying Little

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's leaders are acting like automobile manufacturers who have their plants working overtime but aren't saying much until the new models come out.

At this moment the world, compared with some of the feverish moments of 1961, is in a period of tranquility which, of course, won't last.

The crisis over Berlin has died down, Southeast Asia is very troubled but not explosive, the Russians and Chinese aren't happy with each other but are keeping quiet about it, Fidel Castro is hardly doing more than mumbling, Moslems and Europeans in Algeria are still shooting and bombing one another but that's par for the course there, even in the Congo some of the noise has died down, and in this country and this election year Democrats and Republicans haven't begun calling each other names yet.

President Kennedy has been almost fully occupied getting ready for the return of Congress Wednesday; French President Charles de Gaulle, never very noisy, is contemplating the problem of Algeria; West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, figuring that silence is the better part of wisdom, at least temporarily, is waiting to see what Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev work out on Berlin; British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who had made a habit of being inconspicuous, is indulging his habit; Mao Tze-tung, the real boss of Red China, is as usual letting others do his talking for him and they're not saying much; and Khrushchev himself, most of the time a kind of international Fourth of July, including the rockets, is as quiet as a Sunday morning.

Khrushchev, in fact, at this moment is the No. 1 global mystery: Why has this man, who kept 1961 jittery with talk and tension about Berlin and creating a new status for the East German Communists, been so quiet now for months?

He has been increasingly quiet on Berlin, in fact, since last autumn when the Communists built a wall to seal off East Berlin. This move forced the West tacitly to admit East and West Berlin and East and West Germany couldn't be unified. It also shut off the flow of valuable East German non-Communist manpower and brains to the West.

It's almost as if, after the wall went up, Khrushchev had said to East German Communist boss Ulbricht: "You got enough to keep you quiet awhile so will you please shut up."

Listing this catalogue of quietudes is like writing a memo, shoved into a bottle and tossed into the sea for future generations to find and wonder at, on how for some strange and unknown reason the world for a brief time in the early part of 1962 had an almost civilized appearance.

But this seems unreal and unnatural and in a few days, perhaps in a few weeks, the world should return to normal.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

VITALITY OF BELIEF

Let us never forget that creeds have their place in the life of faith.

There is a disposition on the part of many today to scoff at creeds. Sometimes this arises from the fact that people profess much in matters of belief and then conduct themselves and their business in a way that scandalizes man and constitutes an affront to God. Hence many point to such persons crying "hypocrite" and declaring that all believers are of this variety.

But this is not true. Belief in God's revealed truth must lie at the basis of all the faith we have. If our creed is sound and if we try daily to live up to its moral and spiritual requirements, then this creed is like an angel which walks beside us furnishing us support and counsel.

Do not be afraid to believe much. The biggest and best mind in the world cannot take in all the glorious teaching of God's word. And if our belief is vital, it should shine with a heavy light and cause our hearts to sing songs of gladness.

G. A. Suddert Kennedy has written, "If your creed is dull, it is dead, or you are dead, and either one or the other of you must be made alive again. Either you must change your creed or your creed must change you."

Survival Tips For 1962

NEW YORK (AP—If there is anything the average man feels he needs most in the first few days of a new year, it is probably a survival kit.

"I made it again," he says on Jan. 1 with a profound sense of gratitude—not unmixed with surprise. But this is almost immediately followed by a feeling of bleak despair as he looks at the weeks and months ahead.

"How will I ever make it through 1962?" he asks.

Well, it can be done. Millions will make it—one way or another. By the use of a little care and forethought, you almost certainly can too.

Here are a few survival tips that may prove helpful

The problem that ages most people long before their time is the killing ordeal of having to face going back to work on Monday. Ask your boss if, instead of having Saturdays and Sundays off, you can have Sundays and Mondays off. Tuesdays are always easier to endure than Mondays.

Are you perpetually annoyed by the number of women who endlessly pursue you? Simple. Quit putting on four dabs of hair cream daily. Use only one dab every other day. Even better, use pork fat.

Are you fearful that the government's proposed crackdown on expense accounts will cramp your style of living? Well, be consoled. There are others it may be harder for. Take John F. Kennedy. It is true he gets up to $40,000, nontaxable, for travel and entertainment. But there's an additional $50,000 expense allowance he has to justify to the tax people—and him with a new baby in the house to feed, too.

If it worries you to borrow money, but you feel you have to in order to make it through the year, borrow from a friend. No one ever got ulcers worrying about paying back a true friend. Remember, your health comes first.

Get more exercise. If you run around your bar stool three times after each sip of a dray martini, you'll have the chest of a champion in no time. Don't bother to explain this practice to your favorite bartender; he expects odd behavior from his martini customers.

Do you come home from noisy cocktail parties hoarse, frustrated and worn out from trying to talk and listen at the same time, Save this drain on your servous energy. Go to the next cocktail party, with a megaphone and earmuffs. You'll get your points over, and keep your own mind from being cluttered up with the other fellow's prejudices.

Learn to relax more efficiently. Get one hour more of sleep in bed at night, and two hours less in the office swivel chair each day, and you'll cure not only your own tension about the boss—you'll ease the boss' tension about you.

Follow those tips, tried and true, and you'll easily weather '62. Fit and happy, hale and hearty—you'll be the life of next new year's party.

Other Editors Saying ... It's Investigation Time

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

When Congress meets again this week the spotlight will not be on legislative work alone. It will have to be shared during this session with a flock of investigations that are sure to grab a large share of the headlines along with President Kennedy's medical aid program, his school aid plan, foreign aid, and other measures he plans to push.

Some of the items to come under the congressional eye will range from crime and violence on television to trade with Communists and packaging of foods. One investigative hearing scheduled to start Jan. 23 that is sure to draw big headlines is that involving charges that the Pentagon has muzzled military officers who want to speak out against Communism.

Investigations will range over a variety of subjects. On the cold war front, there will be an inquiry into whether trade with the Soviet bloc is helping to build the Soviet Union's warmaking potential. It doesn't take an investigation to figure that any aid and comfort to the enemy is helping to build that enemy's potential against us.

One of the most important inquiries will concern the traffic in narcotics. Congress cannot be too energetic in seeking to stamp out this vicious practice. There will be questions into the effect of the narcotics traffic on juveniles and whether present laws make it too easy for minors to obtain weapons.

Another important inquiry has to do with the labor slowdowns in missile bases. This time the investigating will focus on the job being done by contractors. Scandalous situations were revealed in a previous probe, a probe that showed labor unions jeopardized the security and welfare of American citizens by repeatedly halting work on strategic projects, causing wasteful expenditures and hampering our defense effort.

Not all of these investigations will be fruitful; some legislation will result that will prove beneficial. And as always, some of the inquiries will be conducted with an eye on the constituents back home. An election year always sees an upsurge in investigations.

Investigations by congressional committees are an expensive and cumbersome business. But someone has to do them, and in order for Congress to obtain any basis for needed legislation in a given field, certain information must be collected and presented. This is done through congressional investigation. It can be done successfully because of the power Congress holds; it has the funds, facilities, personnel. It thus inherited the task of gathering facts in order to ascertain whether legislation is a given field is needed.

This session should prove extremely interesting; lots of items have piled up on the agenda and during an election year legislators are always eager to make a fine showing for the folks back home. We might well see some fireworks before Congress goes home.

Story Has A Moral

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It is impossible to mix security and politics. J. Edgar Hoover succeeded in his management of the FBI because he stayed out of politics. Allen Dulles, while he has not been able to build the CIA as efficiently as Hoover did the FBI, came through a very tough situation without his personal integrity being attacked. The Secret Service in the Treasury is a very responsible agency of security which has never been involved in scandal of any kind. It is strictly non-political. The little Narcotics Bureau does an amazing job with few men and little money but it has nothing to do with politics.

The Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs of the State Department has been in hot water since its organization. One of its earliest chiefs was Scott McLeod, an able man who was a supporter of Senator Joe McCarthy and was active in the Pro-American Underground in the government. The Pro-American Underground has been forgotten; it was a group of officials in various departments of the government who risked their positions by fighting the pro-Communists. It was their efforts which produced the material for the McCarthy and McCarran Committees.

The Pro-American Underground was not an organized body, but there were meetings in various homes from time to time and when data of the greatest importance had to be provided a Committee, it was often sent to trusted anti-Communists in New York and through them passed back to the counsels and investigators in Washington. Those engaged in these activities were known to each other and in many instances to the government investigative agencies and even to the police of many cities, including New York and Los Angeles. Some of the figures have permitted themselves to be publicized; others have maintained their secrecy and have never ceased to serve their country ardently.

Many of the pro-Communists have found their way back to Washington. Some are today bonafide anti-Communists; others have devoted themselves to scholarly pursuits and are antagonistic to Communists. Surprisingly some are found in Right Wing anti-Communist movements where they are doing very well. Some have provided the FBI and similar defensive organizations with valuable data; some work with investigative Congressional Committees; some have just disappeared into private life where they do good work. The most effective anti-Communists come from this group.

Except for the top officials of the Communist Party, most current Communists and pro-Communists have no personal history in the Party that goes back to the days of McCarthy. The present personalities are new and younger. The number of spies rather than Party members has increased. There has been a very strong infiltration of Right Wing movements with the object of breaking them into segments by internal quarrels as well as by giving them a ridiculously extremist facade. The Rightist extremists will ultimately have the effect of breaking up conservative movements by stimulating internal quarrels.

The State Department Security Bureau is a very important agency of government, requiring expert management for the protection of the property and secrecy of American diplomatic establishments in the United States and abroad. Since its organization, this Bureau has not been headed by a professional, except Scott McLeod who was a former FBI operative.

He was succeeded by John W. Hanes, Jr., a Southern businessman engaged in textiles but without any background in security practices. Hanes was appointed in the Eisenhower Administration. Salvatore A. Bontempo, a New Jersey Democratic politician, was appointed to head the Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs in the Kennedy Administration. He has already resigned. The attack upon him was made by Representative Francis E. Walter, chairman of

Some Have Deficit Net Worth

By ELMER ROESSNER

Many individuals today have a deficit net worth. They owe more money than they have.

This is not necessarily bad. Many economists believe that the debt and credit system is one of the things that gives America dynamism and boosts business activity. Others still feel cash-and-carry, if we could ever get back to it, would be a lot sounder.

Be that as it may, the individual in a debt position frets about it whether he's helping the economy or not. Even those in a surplus position would like to better it.

After figuring the amounts in the "owed" and "owned" categories listed yesterday, the next thing is enter what those figures are likely to be next year at this time. This gets to be pretty vague in some categories.

Real estate values, securities prices, taxes and so forth could change drastically. A guess on the gloomy side is recommended since it affords more possibility for a happy surprise. Assuming an income similar to last year's will give a fairly reasonable estimate of what will happen in some of the other categories—such as savings, life insurance, personal property (depreciated), instalment debts and mortgages.

TIME PAYMENTS

If regular time payments were made last year it can be assumed they will continue to be made and the balance of the debt thereby reduced. Increases or decreases in savings during 1961 should be estimated at a similar rate for 1962.

Any sure gain in income from rentals, dividends, pay raises, interest and so forth can also be worked into the accounting as long as taxes and expenses incidental to them are deducted.

After this rough estimate on what personal net worth is likely to be a year from now, the next step is how to better it.

Each category should be checked carefully to see if some change wouldn't be advantageous. Those in a good cash position should see whether they have too much on hand that isn't working and, if so, put more into income-producing investments. Life insurance should be examined to determine whether an increase or decrease isn't called for by the individual's personal situation.

Real estate, whether a home or income-producing, can often be boosted in income and value through judicious spending for improvement. Contrarily, if it looks like a hard year ahead, postponement of normal improvement might be mandatory.

INVESTMENT CHANGES

A field day can be had in changing investments to give a more favorable position, but the improved position should more than make up for the cost of switching those investments. If pressed, it wouldn't hurt to pass a little of the pressure on to notes and accounts receivable.

Another way to better new worth is to pay off as many instalment debts and mortgages ahead of time as possible. This can cut interest charges considerably. It's better to settle these kind of debts first and leave charge accounts, taxes, notes and accounts payable and other noninterest bearing debts until later.

A close look at unused and uneeded personal property can be fruitful too. For instance, an extra family car that's hardly ever used, but keeps piling up insurance and repair bills while it depreciates daily, might be turned into cash which can be put to work at interest.

To say it briefly, the individual wishing to increase his net worth should assume as few new debts as possible, liquidate present ones (particularly those with high interest charges) and put as much money as is reasonable to work earning a return.

Easy, isn't it?

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The start of a new year marks the beginning of new opportunities for making better pictures.

It is a time to correct bad habits and to acquire some good ones. For instance, one that has plagued me in the past is my ability to accumulate negatives, prints and slides ". . .to attend the later." This is the time to begin to keep abreast of current picture-taking efforts.

It is comparatively easy to sort, identify, date and file the good pictures as they are taken. It becomes progressively harder to do so when they are put aside because pictures taken previously should be attended to first.

Moral: Don't put off today what you won't do tomorrow.

We are going into a colorful year photographically with more automatic cameras due to take over the mechanical chores of operation. It is one in which we have even been promised a camera which is self-focusing—a feat not considered possible till now. Such a camera, called the 35mm Picture Time, has been announced for the summer of 1962. It will be made by Realist Inc., of Wisconsin.

Despite automation, the human element must still be considered. I'm reminded of the amateur photographer who was taking pictures of the moon.

He found a clearing with an unobstructed view of the heavens, put his camera on a sturdy tripod and carefully focused on the silvery celestial globe.

When all preparations had been completed to his satisfaction, he put a bulb in his flash unit and took a flash picture!

Moral: Don't set your camera sights so high that you forget the photo facts of everyday shooting.

We might all look a bit more carefully into our own picture-taking habits to see if we, too, are doing something as illogical as taking a flash picture of an object hundreds of thousands of miles away.

At any rate, if we just stopped to think about each step in our normal picture-taking routine, we might improve the final results. If we thought about just one item —for instance, backgrounds—and took steps to eliminate distracting elements and mergers with the principal subject matter, our pictures would be better.

If such resolutions are carried out, yours can be a snap-happy new year.

Mexican Government Is Influenced By Tourists

By JACK RUTLEDGE

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Tourism is so important to Mexico that old Joe Bloke of Goose Creek has almost as much influence with the Mexican government as the big shots in Washington.

An exaggeration, probably, but it's a fact that a flurry of tourist cancellations can get quicker results than a politely worded protest from the state department.

This was proven again in 1961 when anti-American riots, demonstrations and speeches caused alarm north of the border. The government was silent until tourists by the thousands called off trips.

Then officials began issuing statements that Mexico was not pro-Castro, that it was really pro-American all along. It took steps to stop the trouble.

It isn't because Mexicans like old Joe Bloke. They like—and badly need—his Yankee dollar.

Recent statistics show that exports—mainly raw materials—produce an average annual income of $750 million. Tourism brings in around $700 million.

To reach the $750-million export figure, Mexico must export 1.5 million bales of cotton, which requires twice that many acres of land, usually under costly irrigation; 75,000 tons of coffee; 105,000 tons of beef; 150,000 tons of lead; 43,000 tons of copper; 350,000 tons of zinc; a million tons of sulphur; 80,000 tons of hennequen fiber; millions of barrels of petroleum; large amounts of sugar and other commodities. Production of these items requires large investments of capital and labor. Profits fluctuate with world market demands.

Tourism requires only a fraction of the capital and labor invested in exports. Profits, one source says, amount to a million dollars a day.

Furthermore, tourism does not exhaust national resources. It actually improves the country.

Modern Mexico inherited the things which attract tourists: scenic beauty, a wonderful climate, health-giving mineral springs, beaches; archaeological marvels left by Aztecs, Mayans, other ancient tribes; centuries old colonial cities and monuments built by Spaniards.

Mexico also is in a privileged geographic position, nesting next door to the United States, easily reached by lower-income tourists as well as the wealthy.

Almost without trying and at times seemingly against the desire of many of its people, Mexico has developed a tourist industry which has helped build the economy to a point where it is among the tops in Latin America.

Mexico enters 1962 with its foreign policy a question mark.

Some diplomats say old Joe Bloke may play a prominent role.

Report December Saw 73 Arrests

AYDEN—For the month of December, Ayden police reported 73 arrests and $115.00 in amount of fines.

In the monthly report to the Town Board the department reported 69 trials out of the 73 arrests, with 68 found guilty and one innocent. Six cases were nol prossed, one warrant withdrawn and five referred to Superior Court.

Five accidents were investigated, six funerals and fifteen reports made.

16-Year-Old Is Held For Murder

GIBSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — James Monroe Foust, 16, of Burlington, was bound over to the Alamance County Grand Jury on a murder charge Tuesday after a preliminary hearing here.

The charge stems from the death last week of his girl friend, Sylvia Elaine Bull, 16. She died of a shotgun blast in the face.

Officers quoted Foust as saying he went by the girl's home after a hunting trip. He placed his .410 shotgun across his knee while talking to her. Police quoted the youth as saying Miss Bull playfully grabbed the gun and that it fired. Foust did not testify at Tuesday's hearing.

the House Un-American Activities Committee, also a Democrat, who regarded Bontempo as inefficient and solely political. Bontempo has had no prior experience in handling spies and security checks.

Since Bontempo's resignation, the Bureau is being reorganized in the office of Ralph S. Roberts, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Management who serves under William J. Crockett, Assistant Secretary for Administration. It is rumored in Washington that a committee of Foreign Service Officers work under them. Substitute the word team for the word committee and you have it approximately right. Some on the team are under investigation.

This is not the end of this story which is in the developing stage. The best solution is the reorganization of security forces by experienced men.

Board Considers Young Drivers

RALEIGH (AP) — The Governor's Traffic Safety Committee may recommend that the 1963 General Assembly change means of issuing driver's licenses to teenagers.

The committee met Tuesday and discussed two proposals dealing with young drivers.

One would make completion of approved driver training courses mandatory before youths 18 and younger could obtain licenses.

The other would require that persons under 18 be given probationary licenses.

Claim 'Super' Strain Of Grain

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union claimed Tuesday to have developed a new superstrain of wheat.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the wheat, developed in Kazakhstan by Leningrad biologist Svetlana Ostreiko, has 100-150 grains per stalk compared to 40-50 of present good grades.

S.C. Assembly To Hear New Education Plan

COLUMBIA (AP)—The General Assembly gathered today to hear the annual address of Gov. Ernest Hollings and receive the introductory draft of the 1962-63 general appropriations bill.

A feature of Hollings' prepared address was an outline of the minimum education foundation plan he favors. It would require a certain level of county effort in support of schools to qualify for state aid.

The appropriations bill featured an average 12.9 per cent increase in state aid for teacher pay and provision for up to 10 per cent raises for meritorious state employes, with department heads deciding.

Otherwise, the Ways and Means Committee bill followed Budget and Control Board recommendations. The bill will underwrite a fedderal aid-earmarked revenue-in stitutional income - general state funds budget totaling $342.5 million.

The assembly opened its 1962 session Tuesday with a plea from speaker Sol Blatt for a short and constructive session.

Unopposed state circuit court judgeship and one State Supreme Court judgeship elections were arranged for today.

The session opened with a flock of new bills introduced. A special House Judiciary subcommittee offeredd seven bills regulating all phases of consumer financing.

Sen. Walter Bristow of Richland put in a bill calling for reexamination of auto drivers every 10 years.

The differences between communism and democracy would be a mandatory study in the state's high schools and colleges under a bill by Reps. Floyd Spence of Lexington and Earl McCrackin of Horry. A public information program on this topic was approved in the Senate.

Rep. John C. Hart of Union offered a resolution to urge the U.S. to take no part in the purchase of United Nations bonds, financing UN actions in the Congo.

Sen. T. Allen Legare of Charleston sponsored a resolution to create a special Senate committee to study the State Ports Authority's operations. A special House committee already is doing such a study.

Anger Blinded A Young Father

MEMPHIS (AP) — A group of young couples were chatting after a dinner party the other night and, as one of the guests took offense at something that was said.

"Get your coat," he snapped to his wife. "I'll get the baby. We're leaving."

As he headed for the door, babe in arms, one of the other guests shouted, "Wait, wait."

"No," he growled. "We're going."

"Well, I hate to see you go," answered the other. "But you'll have to wait a minute anyhow. You've got my baby."

A WINTRY TOUCH — Ice covered trees and a jewel-like lawn were aftermath after an automatic sprinkler was left on overnight when temperature dipped at Dallas, Tex.

Juliet Prowse Says She Will Marry Frank Sinatra

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Frank Sinatra, vowing he is ready to settle down, will marry Juliet Prowse, "one of the nicest girls I have ever known."

Miss Prowse, the leggy actress whose can-can kicks for a movie shocked Nikita Khrushchev, made the announcement. A beaming Sinatra confirmed it.

"A great girl. A wonderful girl. I'm very, very happy and very, very lucky," he confided to a newsman who found him finishing a round of golf at Hillcrest Country Club Tuesday.

"You really shook us up," the newsman remarked.

"I'm a little shook up myself," he quipped. "I'm 46 now. It's time I settled down."

Asked when he and the 25-year-old South African beauty will wed, Sinatra answered: "The wedding probably won't be for some time. Whenever she sets the day, that's okay for me. I'll let her call all the shots. That's the way it's done.

"I know she wants to have her parents come over from South Africa and I want to have them here, too. They're wonderful people. I met them when they visited her a year ago.

"After all, she's their only daughter. She's got a brother who is a doctor. I know he'll want to be here for the wedding, too. A wonderful guy."

The announcement caught gossips by surprise. Only weeks ago they had Juliet heading for the altar with young Eddie Goldstone, her agent, and Frank linked with Marilyn Monroe.

"Juliet has been my one romance," said Sinatra. "Our dates have been private, not public."

The proposal took place while the two dined tete-a-tete at Romanoff's Monday night. He put a diamond ring on her finger. Friends who saw the ring said "it was a beauty but not the usual Hollywood block buster."

It will be her first marriage, Sinatra's third. His previous wives were Nancy Barbato, his childhood sweetheart, and Ava Gardner.

Juliet once said when she married she would give up her career "and go into the business of having babies. That's what I want out of life."

Sinatra, however, said she is readying a new Las Vegas night club act to be written by his pals, songwriters Jimmy Van Heusen and Sammy Cahn.

Only Sinatra's three children, by his first wife, Nancy, were given prior knowledge of the announcement.

Nancy (Mrs. Tommy Sands), Frank Jr. and Tina got the word direct from their dad.

"They were all very happy. They all think Juliet is a wonderful girl. She and Nancy Jr. have been friends for a long time. They're crazy about each other."

"But St. John's Hospital said the old groaner still wasn't accepting any calls," Sinatra said.

Four New Lawmakers Will Be Sworn Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three new representatives and a senator take their oaths of office today after the Senate and House reconvene.

All three new House members are Democrats, though of varying position in the political spectrum. They are Joe D. Waggonner of Louisiana, Henry B. Gonzalez of Texas and Lucien N. Nedzi of Michigan.

The new senator is Maurice J. Murphy, R-N.H., who at 34 is the youngest in the Senate. He was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of veteran Republican Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

Murphy technically already is a senator, having signed the roll previously. He could not be sworn in until today.

Waggonner, 43, is a staunch segregationist and conservative. He was elected to fill the term of the late Rep. Overton Brooks, D-La., which runs until January 1963. Brooks was chairman of the House Science and Astronautics Committee. Waggonner hails from Plain Dealing, La.

Gonzalez, 45, of San Antonio, defeated conservative Republican John Goode Jr., who had campaign support from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The special election was to fill the seat vacated by Rep. Paul Kilday, D-Tex., who resigned to become a judge of the Military Court of Appeals.

The third new House member is Lucien N. Nexzi, 36, of Hamtramck, Mich. He takes the place of Rep. Theodore M. Machrowicz of Detroit, who resigned to become a federal judge. Nedzi, a lawyer, defeated Republican Walter Czarnecki.

Five other vacancies exist in the House and must be filled by special elections.

These were caused by the deaths of Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex.; Rep. Louis C. Rabaut, D-Mich., and Rep. John J. Riley, D-S.C. The other two seats were vacated by Rep. Frank Ikard, D-Tex., who resigned to become executive vice president of the American Petroleum Institute, and Rep. Lester Holtzman, D-N.Y., who resigned to take a New York judgeship.

With five vacancies, the party lineup in the House stands at 258 Democrats and 174 Republicans.

The Senate split is 64 Democrats and 36 Republicans.

'Bimbo' Is The Pal Of 43 Dogcatchers

NEW YORK (AP)—Bimbo is a 3-year-old Newfoundland who used a sweet disposition to parlay what other dogs might consider a tragic occurrence into a happy life.

Turned over to the dog pound by a master whose apartment was too small for his increasing bulk, the 100-pound Bimbo has become the best pal of not one but 43 dogcatchers. He also is the pound's unofficial greeter to incoming canines.

"Bimbo has become one of us," said Harry J. Connolly, manager of the staff at the Brooklyn branch of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

"He lives here and works here and he's the only dog in the place that isn't either up for adoption or being held for an owner to claim," Connolly said in an interview with John G. Rogers of the New York Herald Tribune.

The gentle tail-wagger was named Sir Charles something-or-other when he arrived at the pound two years ago.

But when it became clear that he liked it in dog limbo, the keepers named him Bimbo.

"Pretty soon, we were giving him the run of the yard," Connolly said, "and he was paying us back in his own way. At night, he's a watchdog keeping the kids from climbing the fence and raising heck in here.

"When the wagons bring in a new bunch of dogs, some of them are pretty wild sometimes, all nervous and barking and howling.

"Bimbo is so calm and sensible that just his presence when he walks by the cages of the new dogs simmer down. Bimbo is especially nice to the new puppies."

Bimbo has learned a number of tricks from Borman Halpern, an ASPCA attendant who gives his commands in German — a stunt that keeps other people from getting into the act.

Reacting to Halpern's calls, Bimbo will move in circles, sit, stand, walk on hind legs, jump fences, open his cage door and so on.

If these tricks aren't enough to illustrate Bimbo's intelligence, there's one other characteristic that might be noted: he always turns and runs when the smallest kitten spits and readies its claws.

Combined, They Prove Tasteful

BUDAPEST, Hungary, (AP) — Take the culinary arts of Hungary and Italy, blend them together and the result is highly edible.

Hungary's Renaissance King Matthias started it when he married an Italian princess.

To appease her homesickness he imported cheeses, spices, condiments and other foodstuffs from Italy.

Bonfini, King Matthias's court chronicler, wrote that the queen sent a message to her sister in Ferrara, thanking her for onions and garlic received.

"If they had been made of pearls, the King and I could have been no happier," she wrote.

When the King expected guests for dinner, he would personally supervise the cooking, according

'Most-Crowded' Super-Highway

CHICAGO (AP)— The Chicago area now claims the questionable distinction of having the nation's most crowded stretch of superhighway.

William J. Payes Jr., Illinois public works director, said Tuesday a one-mile section of the Congress Expressway, which runs westward from the downtown business area, carries 7,200 vehicles an hour.

Los Angeles drivers claimed the record by jamming onto the Hollywood Freeway at the rate of 6,600 vehicles an hour, Payes said.

Tremors Shook Dominican Town

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)— One person was killed and an undetermined number were hurt in the town of San Jose de Ocoa during Sunday night's earthquake, according to delayed reports here Tuesday night.

Many homes in the town were reported heavily damaged. Damage was also reported at the nearby town of Azua.

Iona, Scotland's sacred isle, was a center of Christianity in the 7th Century. Macbeth and Duncan are among more than 60 Scottish kings buried there.

HERE IS EASIEST WAY TO PUT ON TIRE CHAINS

It can be done in six minutes, and without a jack!

1. W. B. (Walt) Lashar, Jr., chairman of National Safety Council test committee, shows Marion Olund, Clintonville, Wis., the first step. Spread chains on the ground to remove tangles. Reinforced chains are best, and the projecting teeth or cleats should be up.

2. Then put end links of side chains on loops of "applier" and push onto tire as shown. No jack is needed.

3. It is wise to gather the cross chains up close in back of tire on some cars, so chains won't catch on back of fender when car is moved forward to encircle the rear wheels.

4. Now drive ahead one wheel revolution, until side chain fastener is near fender. Remove the spring steel wire "applier" and fasten the inside hook. Lashar shows Marion that the usually difficult inside hook can be fastened by "feel" (without getting under car) after you practice it once and learn how.

5. Marion has now learned how to put on a pair of tire chains in six minutes, the easy way. She is seen showing Joan Klemp, Clintonville, the final step—fastening simple outside hook.

6. Lashar congratulates the girls on their aptitude and reads them Council's tips for safe winter driving, one of which is "always carry reinforced chains and use them for severe snow or ice conditions to help avoid traffic blockades and accidents."

STATE COLLEGE, PA.—Prof. A. E. Neyhart of The Pennsylvania State University and educational consultant to the AAA, recently advised all high school driver training teachers to include "how to put on tire chains" in their basic courses for teen-agers. This would "serve to give American youth more self-reliance, and some would teach their parents in this old fashioned virtue. It would help reduce dangerous traffic troubles such as occurred when chainless vehicles blocked snowplows, and even fire trucks, in Boston and hundreds of other cities last winter." Above photos illustrate the easiest method. Don't be a traffic blocker.

Junior High Scholars Face Midterm Exams

By MARGARET BURNETTE and MARY STUART PAGE

Since January 5 ended the fourth school month, it will soon be time for midterm exams in Latin I, Algebra I and TV Science. Good luck to everyone!

Just before Christmas, Greenville Junior High School played in Rocky Mount against the Blue Devils with the final score 44 to 45 in favor of Rocky Mount. The game was a very good one. The coach and team hope to have a good season.

The next scheduled home game is with New Bern on Friday, Jan. 26.

Just after Christmas, on the day we returned to school from the holidays, we had boiler trouble and it was some time before the building was sufficiently heated. The holidays were enjoyed by the entire student body and the teachers. Everyone was ready to settle down for their studies when school resumed.

Assembly

Our compliments go to those who presented the delightful Christmas assembly program. Mrs. Beach's Glee Club rendered a number of Christmas songs, and Mrs. Eller's Latin group sang two carols in Latin.

Present for the occasion was Captain Earl Reagan of the Salvation Army, who gave the devotional program for the day and accepted the White Christmas basket for needy families.

P. T. A.

The next Parent-Teacher Association meeting will be held here in the school library at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 25.

We would like to extend a warm welcome to the 14 student teachers who are with us this quarter.

Group pictures and pictures of students absent during previous photographing were made prior to Christmas holidays by the representative of Strawbridge Studio.

Adenauer Agrees To Ease British Defense Burden In West Germany

BONN, Germany (AP)— Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain has won Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's support for Western probes in Moscow to determine whether negotiations with the Russians on Berlin have any chance of success.

Adenauer also agreed to ease the burden of maintaining British forces in West Germany by buying more British arms.

Adenauer said Monday he could not see that U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson's exploratory talks in Moscow were getting anywhere. A communique issued Tuesday after a full day of talks between the aged chancellor and Macmillan said that they "were agreed that the effort to find out whether a basis for negotiation with the Soviet Union exists should be pursued."

The two leaders also reaffirmed their determination to preserve the Western position in Berlin and to "defend the freedom and viability of West Berlin."

There was nothing in the communique about what would happen if the probes with Moscow fail or the Western position is more seriously menaced.

Macmillan had been reported bringing a U.S.-British proposal for maintaining the status quo in Berlin if the Russians refused to agree to new formal arrangements satisfactory to the West.

Macmillan appeared to have made a substantial gain in solving a problem that has long been a sore one between the two countries—the financial drain of maintaining the 51,000-man British Army of the Rhine.

The West German government refuses to contribute directly to British troop costs for fear of being accused of paying occupation costs. Adenauer agreed to the roundabout arms purchase solution in the interests of Western unity.

The exact scale of the arms purchases was not disclosed, but the communique promised it would be considerable. Informed sources said it would come to about 400 million marks—$100 million—a year, a substantial flow of marks that would offset about half the previous foreign exchange which Britain must pay out to support her troops in Germany.

Macmillan returned to London Tuesday night. British foreign Secretary Lord Home went on to West Berlin for a one-day ceremonial visit.

At the airport here, Macmillan told newsmen: "I am leaving Bonn really very satisfied."

Raided Piggy Bank To Pay Up

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—"This is no gag," John Pesci said as he paid his 15 months overdue water bill with 3,830 pennies Tuesday.

The unemployed truck driver said he raided the piggy banks of his six children to get the water back on in their home.

A City Hall clerk balked at the counting job that faced him, quoting a state law that he need accept no more than 25 pennies in loose change. The parking meter department came to the rescue with a machine that automatically counts and wraps change.

Ten Men Face 65 Charges As Result Of Fix Probe

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Ten men, including a major gambling king pin, face trial on 65 charges resulting from the nationwide basketball point-fixing scandal.

The Wake County Grand Jury returned the true bills Tuesday which mentioned for the first time games played in the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament and the defunct Dixie Classic.

The action brought the number of players involved in the current scandal to 38 from 23 colleges.

Bonds of $10,000 each were set for Dave Louis Goldberg, about 48, and Steve Lekometros, 39, both of whom were arrested Tuesday night in St. Louis, where they live. They refused to waive extradition.

Each was indicted on 34 counts of actual bribery, attempted bribery or conspiracy to bribe.

Raleigh district solicitor (prosecutor) Lester Chalmers termed Goldberg a top "backer," a slang name for the supplier of payoff money in a rigged athletic contest. Chalmers said Lekometros was an associate of Goldberg's.

The indictments listed 10 games involving North Carolina State College from Dec. 5, 1959 to Jan. 7, 1961. State players Don Gallagher, Anton Muehlbauer and Stan Niewierowski were mentioned in the indictments. They were not charged.

The games included the South Carolina-N.C. State game played in the first round of the ACC Tourney of 1959. The indictment mentioned Mike Callahan of South Carolina as having been offered $1,000 to influence the game's outcome. State won 75-72. No South Carolina player had been mentioned previously in connection with the scandal. Callahan was not charged.

Chalmers said that Callahan was not indicted, but his name was mentioned in the true bill.

The State-Dayton game in the Dixie Classic of 1959 also was listed. The indictment said Gallagher was paid $1,000 to shave points Dayton won 36-32.

Goldberg, Lekometros and Joseph Eugene Greene, Aaron Wagman, and Joseph Hacken, all of New York City, were indicted in connection with all 10 games.

Others indicted were Jake Israel and Paul Walker of New York, Frank Cardone and Morris Heyison, both of Pittsburgh, and Pete J. Martino of Biloxi, Miss.

Greene, Wagman and Hacken, also under indictment in New York, were described by Chalmers as former high school or club basketball players used by gamblers to contact players. Greene was indicted on similar charges here last fall.

Walker was in Raleigh to testify before the grand jury. He was nabbed in New York last week and waived extradition. Cardone and Heyison were arrested in Pittsburgh Tuesday.

Chalmers said if the others decline to waive extradition "we'll proceed immediately." He said trial would begin as soon as the men can be brought to the state.

Chalmers said the 10 men were participating in one of "the biggest gambling networks" in the nation. He said his office was aided by New York authorities and other local officers across the country.

Chalmers said the contact men would notify the backers when they had players ready to cooperate in a fix. He said it usually took $6,000 to $8,000 to fix a game, but the backers would bet huge sums on the contests.

The Dixie Classic was canceled last spring by the Consolidated University of North Carolina trustees after the scandal had spread to this state. The trustees ordered a general deemphasis program.

After the grand jury action was revealed, Gov. Sanford of North Carolina issued a statement commending Chalmers, the State Bureau of Investigation and the attorney general's office, and adding:

"Let this be notice to the gambling underworld that North Carolina will not tolerate the corrupting of our college athletes."

Probations Are Lifted For Tar Heels And Arizona

CHICAGO (AP)— The National Collegiate Athletic Association Tuesday lifted its ban on the University of North Carolina and Loyola of New Orleans.

UNC was placed on a one-year probationary a year ago for recruiting irregularities. The NCAA said the school spent excessive amounts of money entertaining parents of prospective players.

It was believed that Arizona's probationary period, also scheduled to end Tuesday, would be toughened at the 56th annual NCAA convention here today.

NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers would confirm only that a representative of the school would appear before the powerful NCAA Council during a morning session.

Speculation was lively that Arizona's one-year term, imposed a year ago for football recruiting violations, may not be terminated as scheduled.

Athletic Director Dick Clausen of Arizona said he had been invited to appear before the council but insisted he had no idea of what would be discussed.

"As far as I know it is a routine appearance," Clausen said.

Bill Orwig, Indiana's athletic director, also will appear at the closed session. Indiana was placed on NCAA probation for four years on April 27, 1960, also for football recruiting violations.

The Big Ten, which had taken similar action, restored the Hoosiers to good standing last spring and Indiana has appealed to the NCAA for a review of its penalty.

When Arizona was placed on probation a year ago, the NCAA limited it to one year without additional sanctions because, Byers said, "of the corrective program undertaken by the university and its promise to take disciplinary action against the parties involved."

One assistant coach who was involved in the censured recruiting, Ron Marciniak, was subsequently rehired when his contract was due to expire. Another coach cited in the probationary report, Van Howe, resigned.

Both North Carolina and Loyola of New Orleans were restored to good graces Tuesday after a year in the doghouse for basketball violations.

The American Football Coaches Association Rules Committee is expected to make its recommendation today concerning the relatively high number of fatal injuries among sandlot, high school, semipro and college players last season.

Jack Curtice of Stanford, president of the AFCA and acting chairman of the Rules Committee, said the 24 members are inclined to feel—after studying reports dating back to 1931—that injuries run in cycles. He said, nevertheless, that thorough consideration was being given to possible changes in equipment, blamed in some quarters for many of the 37 football deaths last season.

The football coaches made six recommendations for changes they hope will be adopted by the NCAA Rules Committee which meets in Miami Beach, Fla., starting next Monday.

Curtice said the subject of a disputed rule underscored in Notre Dame's 17-15 victory over Syracuse will not be discussed by his group because it already has been placed on the agenda of the NCAA Rules Committee.

Four Rough Contests Tonight

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Four members of college basketball's elite are involved tonight in games that in the past have developed into feudin,' fussin' and a bit of fightin.'

Foremost is the Missouri Valley Conference clash between Cincinnati (11-1), ranked No. 2 in the current Associated Press poll, and the Bradley Braves (8-2), at Peoria, Ill., a meeting that has always produced dogged battles.

In the Big Eight, fifth-ranked Kansas State (10-2), is host to Kansas (5-6). Duquesne (9-1) rated eighth, entertains tough Dayton (9-2). Bowling Green (10-1), ninth-ranked, has Mid-American rival Toledo (7-4) at its court.

A Southeastern Conference contest that promised to be a winging was postponed Tuesday night when seventh-ranked Mississippi State, one of the nation's two major unbeaten teams, was turned back by icy roads on its trek to play Alabama.

West Virginia's Mountaineers are back to their old tricks, firmly atop the Southern Conference with a 7-0 mark after beating Virginia Tech 85-81 Tuesday night behind Rod Thorn's 30 points.

Southern Methodist, behind Jan Loudermilk's 26 points, took over complete control of the Southwest Conference by whipping Arkansas on the latter's court 77-70. Rice, which had been tied with the Mustangs, lost its first league game, 85-66, at Texas Tech.

Jim McCormick's two-pointer sent West Virginia, 10-3 over-all, ahead for good in the second half after the Mountaineers trailed by 42-38 at intermission on its home court. In another Southern Conference game in Washington, George Washington ended Richmond's three-game winning streak 65-52.

SMU's victory tossed Rice into a second place tie at 2-1 with Texas A&M, 54-52 winner at Baylor, and Texas Tech. Texas' contest at Texas Christian was postponed because of bad weather.

Marquette upset Loyola of Chicago 63-60 in Milwaukee as Len Jeffries contributed four clutch points in the closing minutes.

Butler won its fifth in a row, and handed Notre Dame its sixth straight loss 83-67 at South Bend, Ind. Jeff Blue and Jerry Williams each tallied 26 points to pace Butler. Armand Reo had 24 for the Irish, now 3-8.

DePaul, with its five starters in double figures, easily defeated Christian Brothers College of Memphis, Tenn., 78-56, in Chicago. Jack Thobe's 24 points paced Xavier of Ohio to a tight 67-65 home court victory over Canisius.

Nick Werkman of Seton Hall continued his push toward the top of the individual scoring race with 43 points in Baltimore as the Pirates raced by Baltimore Loyola 88-66. Loyola of New Orleans won over Oklahoma City 76-63 and Cornell came from a 16-point deficit to beat Colgate 73-70.

Penn State and Bucknell were tied 15 times before the Nittany Lions prevailed 61-50. Buffalo handed Syracuse its 16th straight defeat 68-66 and Rhode Island beat Connecticut in the Yankee Conference 70-63.

In a pair of Ohio Valley Conference games, Morehead (Ky), defeated East Tennessee 69-67 and Western Kentucky rolled over Tennessee Tech 93-61.

On the Pacific Coast, Washington State won over Idaho 65-60.

Speedway Has Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of the Charlotte Motor Speedway said Tuesday they have reached agreement with Securities and Exchange Commission on procedures for reorganizing the speedway.

Court-appointed speedway trustee Robert N. Robinson and Jack T. Hamilton, counsel for a committee of stockholders of the corporation, conferred for a day and a half with SEC representatives before reaching the agreement.

Robinson and Hamilton, both of Charlotte, said they will confer with Federal Judge J. B. Craven early next week to carry out the agreement they reached with the SEC.

The court took over the million-dollar speedway after its creditors threatened a foreclosure sale. Last week, Craven threatened to liquidate it unless reorganization plans were cleared by March.

The lawyers indicated the reorganization will be financed by a 14-member stockholders committee.

Rams Defeat Jamesville 46-42

JAMESVILLE——Coach Bob Lee's Robersonville Rams took their third straight win last night by downing Jamesville 46-42.

Robersonville took the lead in the first quarter with a five point margin, but the Red Devils of Jamesville managed to narrow the lead before the half. The halftime score was 24-22 in favor of Robersonville. In the third period the Rams continued to increase their lead by outscoring the Red Devils by seven points. However, Jamesville rallied in the final period and scored 13 points to the eight scored by the Rams. However, this was not enough to change the outcome.

The high scorer of the night for Robersonville was center Butch Brown with 20 points. The only other Ram player to hit in the double figures was Eddie Boone with 10 points. Topping the scoring column for Jamesville was Alvin Ange with 14 points. He was followed by Charles Askew with 12 points.

In the girls game the outcome was reversed and Jamesville won by a score of 35-19 over Robersonville. The winners took the lead early in the first period and held it until the final horn sounded. At the half the Red Devils were leading 20-3.

The high scorer of the night for the Jamesville girls was Linda Gardner with 19 points. She was followed by Ginny Hardison with 11 points. Topping the scoring column for Robersonville was Norma Williams with seven points. Next in line was Ginny Taylor with six points.

Robersonville's next game will be a home contest Friday night with non-conference foe Bethel.

Motor Trend Magazine makes it official:
1962 car of the year!

From the very first we knew we had a winner. Happy owners, car enthusiasts raved about the 1962 Buick Special with the history-making Fireball V-6 engine. Now the editors of Motor Trend — one of the country's top car magazines — have made it official. After road-testing and evaluating all U.S. cars, they've named the V-6 Special "Car of the Year!" Here's how they put it...

"Motor Trend's CAR OF THE YEAR AWARD to the 1962 Buick for pure progress in design, originative engineering excellence, and the power concept for the future expressed in America's only V-6 automobile engine."

Why are the car experts so hot on this exclusive Buick engine? Only a V-6 can combine the extra vigor and smoothness of V-design with the gas savings of a straight six. This 135 H.P. V-6 weighs up to 140 pounds less than other sixes of comparable power. It sips regular gas ever so sparingly.

But why go on? Ask your Buick dealer to let you drive a V-6 Buick Special. There are five beautiful models, including a fabulous new convertible. Drop in soon and see how easy it is to make the "Car of the Year" your very own.

Rundown On 87th Congress

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here's a rundown on the second session of the 87th Congress convening at noon today:

Expected Big Issues

President Kennedy's proposal for sweeping power to cut tariffs in dealing with the European common market.

Medical care for the aged under Social Security.

Proposed purchase of $100 million in U.N. bonds, mostly to help finance U.N. operations in Congo.

Tax revision to encourage business investment and combat unemployment.

Some federal aid to education.

Revision of farm programs, covering several commodities.

The usual rows over spending and foreign aid.

The Line-up

Democrats have big majorities in both Houses, but Republican-Southern Democratic coalition is set to give Kennedy trouble.

The party breakdown:

Senate—64 Democrats, 36 Republicans.

House—258 Democrats, 174 Republicans; 5 vacant seats, formerly held by Democrats.

The Leadership

House—Rep. John W. McCormack, D-Mass., tapped for speaker, succeeding the late Sam Rayburn. Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okla., elected majority leader, succeeding McCormack. Rep. Charles Halleck, R-Ind., continues as minority leader.

Senate — Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., continues as majority leader, and Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., as minority leader. Chairmanship of Republican Policy Committee must be filled because of death of Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N.H. The contenders are Sens. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa and Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

Presidential Messages

State of the Union — Kennedy delivers this message in person to joint session at 12:30 p.m. Thursday.

Budget — Kennedy sends it to Congress Jan. 18. It's expected to total some $92 billion, including about $52 billion for military purposes.

Economic report — Kennedy sends it up Jan. 22.

Important Hearings

Senate-House Atomic Committee will hold secret sessions on how the United States and Russia compare in nuclear might, in view of Soviet atmospheric tests.

Senate will investigate alleged muzzling of anti-Communist speeches by military men.

Senate continues inquiry into industry pricing practices.

Senate and House committees to get briefings by State Department leaders on hot foreign policy problems.

House committee to hear witnesses on bills to tighten curbs on transportation of gambling devices.

Upcoming Elections

Both parties will spar for advantage in November balloting. Being elected this year are 37 senators, 435 representatives, 34 governors.

Oklahoma City Gals Choose Life On Farm

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Two Oklahoma girls with a yen for open spaces are proving that a city working girl doesn't have to be bound to an apartment.

After two years as roommates in Tulsa, Donna Kuhlman, 25, and Joan Gregory, 31, moved to a farm.

"We just got tired of people yelling and tires squealing," they explained. "And most of all, we were getting a little wide in the wrong places sitting around with nothing to do."

That was before last June, when they moved to a six-acre farm five minutes by expressway from their jobs in Tulsa. "We don't have much time to get bored any more," Donna said. "Taking care of the yard nearly worked us to death last summer."

Next summer they plan to put in a garden, install some chickens and reseed the pasture. They may add a calf to the farm's livestock, which now includes seven cats and two horses.

Spiked Heel Tip Is Costly Item

NEW YORK (AP)—Women see red when the small metal tips on their spike heels drop off.

When the tips drop off the heels of Staten Island ferry riders, the Department of Marine and Aviation also sees red—on its balance sheets.

Commissioner Vincent A. G. O'Conner said Tuesday his department would be about $50 a week richer if the tips didn't drop off and into the moving stairways at the South Ferry terminal.

Last year, he said, lost heels cost the department $2,313.18 for emergency inspections of the terminal's two stairways.

If Past Forty, Skip The Twist

CHICAGO (AP)—The gyrations of the Twist dance are not for the geriatric, the American Medical Association says.

"If you are past 40 and if your most strenuous exercise consists of walking from the parking to the office, think twice before you throw yourself into a vigorous session of the Twist on Saturday night," the AMA advised.

The medics' group said the new fad ranks with the hula hoop as a possible cause of dislocated joints, slipped discs, muscle

CHAPTER 27

As Lee Folsom and Martin Whitfield drew up in a parking space in front of Lee's apartment house, Lee was startled to see, two cars down, one that she had no difficulty in identifying as Kermit Dalton's. But there was no one in it, and she decided, as she walked past it, that it wasn't Kermit's car after all.

She led the way up the stairs to her apartment and paused, because Kermit was leaning against the door, obviously waiting for her. His eyes leaped to Martin behind her, laden with the grocery sack, and he straightened, his eyes blazing.

"I wasn't expecting you, Kermit," Lee told him as she fumbled in her bag for her key.

"I can see you were not."

"We didn't have a date."

"Hello, Whitfield. Moving in?" Kermit asked nastily.

"Just for dinner," Martin answered equably, although his own eyes were angry. "Care to join us? I can run down to the market and pick up another steak."

"Thanks, no." Kermit's tone was curt, insolent.

"I wanted to talk to you, Lee," he said harshly, "privately."

"Then I'll run along." Martin held out the bag of groceries toward Kermit, but Lee put up a swift hand and pushed it back to him, her head high.

"No, Martin, Kermit will run along, since we had no plans for this evening," she stated flatly, her eyes meeting Kermit's straightly.

"I refuse to talk to you in front of him, because what I have to say is private," Kermit said hotly.

"Then I'm afraid it must be postponed," Lee told him, and unlocked her door. 'Martin and I have had a busy day and we're both hungry. And since you won't join us—"

"I suppose you're planning to sell him the whole town?" suggested Kermit sharply.

"She could if she wanted to." Martin spoke before Lee could answer that jibe. "It's a nice town and I like it."

"Kermit, you're behaving outrageously, and I think you'd better go," Lee said firmly.

Kermit studied her for a moment and then said grimly, "If I go Lee, I won't be back—ever!"

Lee said quietly, "In that case, Kermit, this is good-by."

Kermit was startled, unwilling to accept that as final.

"You really mean that, Lee?"

"I never meant anything more, Kermit," she told him flatly.

For a long moment Kermit remained there, glaring first at Lee and then at Martin. When Lee showed no sign of relenting, he turned and plunged past Martin and down the stairs.

Silence held for a moment between Martin and Lee, and then she walked into her apartment and spoke over her shoulder. "Do come in, Martin. And if you'll put the groceries in the kitchenette, I'll get dinner started."

Martin obeyed. As he put down the grocery bag, he glanced at her; she was tying a brightly patterned chintz apron over her office dress of dark blue linen.

"Should I say I'm sorry?" he wondered aloud, his brows furrowed, his eyes very intent on her.

"Why should you? Kermit and I have been bickering for a long time, and now the bickering has come to a head and is all finished, so why should anybody be sorry?" Lee answered him coolly as he attended to the boiler.

"I'd be lying if I said I was, you know," he told her, standing carefully out of her way in the narrow doorway of the small kitchenette.

Lee flung him a rueful glance. "Then why say it?" she mocked.

He watched her as she moved briskly and competently about the tiny space, and suddenly he said, "He's jealous, of course."

"Of course," Lee agreed, since there was nothing else to say.

"The man's a fool!"

Lee raised her eyebrows at him. "Perhaps," she agreed.

"I mean he has no reason to be jealous of me," Martin said.

"Oh, he's not jealous of you." Lee dismissed that quickly. "He's jealous of my job."

"Oh." Martin looked slightly deflated. "Then he's even more of a fool than I thought."

Lee's smile was faintly touched with a wry humor.

"Let's just say that he's old-fashioned and thinks all wives should be like his mother, content just to stay home and be housewives and forget about jobs outside the home," she suggested dryly.

Martin stared at her as though he could scarcely believe that.

"Why, that's positively ante-diluvian, or at the least mid-Victorian," he protested.

Lee merely shrugged and began mixing the salad.

Martin watched her for a moment, and then he drew a deep breath as though sliding a burden off his conscience.

"Well, at least I'm glad to know I had nothing to do with your breakup with him," he said frankly. "I'd hate to think that I did."

"Well, of course you would," Lee answered vigorously, and added quietly, "Besides, there's Hilda."

Martin srtaightened as though she had struck him.

"Yes, of course there's Hilda." Lee faced him above the salad bowl, her eyes steady.

"And I do hope that when she comes, she won't feel she has any reason to be jealous of me."

Martin burst out, "But how could she?"

"Because Lewisville is a small town, and we're a rather gossipy sort, and it's just barely possible someone might tell her that you and I have been seeing rather a lot of each other."

She was puzzled by the expression that flickered across his face, but almost before she could realize it had been there, it was gone.

"Oh, Hilda's a very understanding person, and I'm sure she would never listen to such gossip," he said at last.

"I'm glad," Lee Lee in utter sincerity. "I'd like very much to be friends with her, if she'll let me."

"Oh, she'll welcome that," Martin said cheerfully, and there was the ghost of a twinkle in his eyes. "You can take my word for it. She'll be delighted to be friends with you."

"Good!" said Lee, smiling. "And now the steaks are about ready. I hope you haven't forgotten that you're hungry by now!"

"I haven't—and even if I had, the smell of those steaks would remind me!" he assured her. "May I help?"

"You can take the salad in. I'll bring the steaks," Lee told him, slipping them deftly onto warmed plates and picking up the small container of hot rolls.

It was a pleasantly relaxed meal and they ate with enjoyment. But in spite of all she could do, there was a sense of tension about the evening, and shortly after dinner, when he rose to go, she made no effort to detain him.

After she had closed and locked the door, she sat back down and drew a deep, hard breath.

She had an oddly unpleasant feeling that something warm and sweet had gone out of her life; some vague, dimly sensed dream of the future that she had perhaps had no right to dream.

"Hilda is here," is the news Martin has awaiting Lee — and how can that be pleasant news? Continue the story here tomorrow.

Bring Charges In Graves Case

GREENSBORO (AP)—The Guilford County Grand Jury indicted a Negro funeral home operator Tuesday in the case involving the discovery of the shallow graves of 19 infants in a wooded area near here.

The indictment charges Nathaniel Everett Hargett with false pretenses.

It said Hargett agreed to "have a proper and suitable burial" for the day-old child of a Willie Poole last July 7. It added the baby's body was not prepared for burial, not placed in a casket, and "no arrangements were made for a proper and decent burial."

The bill of indictment did not identify the senior or junior N. E. Hargett. Both are funeral home operators. However, officers were instructed by Judge Walter E. Johnson to take the elder Hargett into custody.

The graves were discovered last month by officers investigating the finding of a half-buried car by rabbit hunters.

N. E. Hargett Jr. was released on bond after being charged with reporting the car stolen to collect insurance premiums.

Since then, officers have reported that several bodies or parts of bodies have been taken from the graveyard.

Army Medical Team Tackles Twin Scourges

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP)—A four-man Army medical team is helping Malaya tackle the twin scourges of scrub typhus and leptospirosis.

In Malaya 10 per cent of undiagnosed fever cases had been put down to scrub typhus and 30 per cent pronounced due to leptospirosis.

In 1953 the first U. S. Army medical unit came out to work alongside Malayan scientists at the Malyan Institute of Medical Research. Today the institute has a staff of 45 Malayans employed as laboratory assistants and field workers. Their payroll is borne by the U. S. government.

Can scientists do anything to eradicate these two infectious diseases?

"There is no concept of eradication," says Col. Hinton J. Baker of Mandarin, Fla., leader of the four-man team. "We have hopes we may find the means to control them."

The Republic of Indonesia ranks as Southeast Asia's biggest and most populous nation. Its 92 million people represent a dozen ethnic groups, scattered across some 3,000 equatorial islands.

YOU MAY BE ASTONISHED at the value that the nation's leading industries place on daily newspapers as an advertising medium. Last year, there were more than 100 national advertisers who invested more than $1 million each in daily newspapers—and the largest of them bought more than $40 million worth of space.* Retailers and local advertisers agree with these industrial giants that the newspaper sells best. These retailers and local advertisers last year invested $2.9 billion in daily newspapers—more than they spent in radio, TV, magazine, and outdoor advertising COMBINED!

Burmese Ambassador Will Visit ECC Next Month

The Burmese Ambassador to the United States will visit the East Carolina College campus in February to view the American premiere of a play by the Prime Minister of Burma U Nu, ECC President Leo W. Jenkins said today.

Dr. Jenkins said that Prime Minister U Nu has granted permission to the college to present the play entitled, "The Wages of Sin", The production has an anti-Communist theme.

U On Sein, Burmese Ambassador to the United States will be present for third night of the production here.

Dr. Jenkins said "an invitation has been extended to the Prime Minister to attend, but nothing definite has developed in this direction."

Produced by the East Carolina College Playhouse under the direction of Dr. Joseph A. Withey of the faculty, the play will be presented in three performances, February 22, 23 and 24 at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium.

In addition to Ambassador U On Sein, a number of Burmese students attending colleges and universities in this part of the nation are expected to attend the performances, President Jenkins noted.

Dr. Withey, as a Fulbright research scholar in theater arts was attached to the University of Mandalay in Burma during 1960-1961. While there, he asked permission to present the American premier of the U Nu drama at ECC.

His request was just recently been granted, Dr. Jenkins noted

The Burmese statesman-dramatist is the author of "The People Win Through", a drama written shortly after World War II, and of the new play, "The Wages of Sin." Both are political plays with the first drama having its American premier at the Pasadena Playhouse in California.

E. M. Law Yone, editor of "The Nation," leading English-language newspaper in Burma, in describing the dramas, said, "In both, the central theme is not so much the danger of Communism, which is generally recognized, but the means necessary to avert it."

According to Dr. Jenkins, having the premier of the drama at ECC is "A wonderful opportunity for all of us at the college and in Greenville because it makes us more closely associated with persons from other nations."

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wonder where the Asian flu virus went? Wonder when you are most likely to get chickenpox or mumps? Wonder who delivers a baby? These are questions with a focus on health.

Spent Virus?

What happens to an influenza virus between epidemics? It appears that the virus still travels between humans — but incognito. At least it may not be recognized as influenza.

Researchers have recovered the Asian A2 virus from patients in the years since its worldwide epidemic of 1957—indicating the virus is still around.

This means that the virus is still creating immunity in world populations—and because of this it could be that the Asian flu has spent its epidemic force.

Viruses March On

Infectious diseases are often influenced by social forces—and a new study indicates that at least three of them — chickenpox, mumps and measles—are hitting children at younger ages than they once did.

These three virus diseases were once fairly common among adolescents. Now, it appears, they are occurring largely in the preadolescent years. This may be due to the increase in the population, or the fact that people move around more now, and live closer together.

One infectious virus is trailing this trend, however. This is rubella or German measles. It is the virus that can cause birth defects when it strikes women in the first three months of pregnancy.

If adults are to gain immunity to this disease, researchers say, they may not be able to wait for normal infective processes. Preventive measures may be the only answer.

Stork, Of Course

Writing to the Journal of the American Medical Association, a physician says he has heard of doctors delivering babies, and doctors delivering mothers. Which he asks, is correct?

Dictionaries say the word deliver may be used passively, as to give birth—or actively to mean the disburdening of one who is pregnant, says an AMA expert. Hence, the mother, delivers the baby, not the doctor, but the doctor delivers a woman of her child.

Anniversary Of Sunday Class

The Greenville Sunday Class of the Deaf at its regular bi-monthly meeting at Grace Free Will Baptist Church Sunday celebrated the beginning of its fifth consecutive year of meetings.

Three ministers, Rev. Joe Ange, a Detroit evangelist; Rev. Neal Peyton, state missionary to the deaf from Wake Forest, and Rev. Rashie Kennedy, pastor of Grace Church, delivered sermons to the meeting, attended by 28 class members representing communities as far distant from Greenville as 50 miles.

Rev. Peyton, a fluent conversationalist in the deaf's finger spelling and sign language, served as interpreter for Rev. Ange and Rev. Kennedy.

Between each speaker's sermon, the class sang songs in the sign language and finger spelling and Bible verses with descriptions of the meanings were "read" by three class members.

The class' leader and teacher, Charlie C. Vestal of Greenville then addressed the class and challenged the group to use the new year, 1962, to the "greatest spiritual benefit."

Vestal presented the class' annual report that showed an average of 20 members had attended the twice-a-month meetings during 1961. Vestal termed 1961 a "year of good progress" and challenged the group to "try to do much better in 1962."

Steel Inventory Buildup Said Already Begun

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Steelmen say a big inventory buildup already is under way. They feel that in attempting to halt it or put a brake on it, the Kennedy administration will be setting quite a task for itself.

All agree that such a buildup in stocks because of fears of a strike this summer can upset the normal course of the business cycle. You have only to look at what happened three years ago to see that.

But getting steel users to have full faith in the effectiveness of efforts to assure there will be no strike—or, as much to the point, no price rise afterward—may be hard to do. This is especially true now, months ahead of the mid-year contract deadline and without much indication so far as to what the steelworkers will ask or what the mills will offer.

And it is now that the orders are pouring in for the steel to be stockpiled as a hedge against a possible strike.

It is this big pickup in steel output in excess of current consumption that probably inspired reports on high authority in Washington that the government intends to try to discourage steel users from excess inventory buildups as well as to keep close watch on contract negotiations.

The rush of steel ordering is likely to increase, in the opinion of the metalworking weekly, The Iron Age. It says sheet mill products already are being produced at capacity, while orders for other products are now calling for output at 60 per cent of capacity.

As this increases, it predicts the following schedule of steel shipments: January 80 per cent of capacity, February 85 per cent, March 90 per cent. It thinks this might well continue through the following three months as the mills fill the orders received.

The same rush to stock up on steel occurred in the first half of 1959, the last time that union contracts came up for negotiation.

This pushed the total of industrial production well above current consumption. Many steel users not only tried to stock up on steel but also turned out more of their steel using products than their sales books justified. They wanted stocks of their products to sell if there were a long steel strike. That summer there was a long strike.

Many users were able to live off their stocks. But near the end of the strike layoffs in steel-using industries started to mount.

After the strike was settled the steel mills worked at capacity while their customers slowly built up their depleted stocks. Many of the users overestimated the strength of the recovery and ordered more steel than they needed, as it turned out. Again the general economy had a rosy look that was more of a fever flush than a healthy glow.

First Chief Of S. Korean Junta Sentenced To Hang

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Chang Do-young, first titular head of the junta that toppled civil rule in South Korea, was convicted today of plotting against the military government he headed. As expected, the revolutionary tribunal set up by his former colleagues sentenced him to die on the gallows.

Chang, the army chief of staff at the time of the May coup and a hero of the Korean War, agreed only after the coup was an accomplished fact to head the ruling junta and take the country's premiership. Throughout his two months in office the real power was held by Gen. Chung Hee Park, the leader of the coup who replaced Chang as head of the junta.

Condemned to death with Chang on similar charges of counterrevolutionary activity was his former secretary, ex-Col. Lee Hoi Yung. The five-man tribunal also ordered life sentences for four defendants, including two former junta members; gave prison terms ranging from 5 to 15 years to nine persons and acquitted nine others.

Death verdicts automatically go to an appeals court. If upheld there, they must be reviewed by Gen. Park.

The revolutionary prosecutor called Chang "a sly, base opportunist" and accused him of playing both sides of the fence.

He said Chang sent military police to the Han River bridge May 16 to block coup forces from entering Seoul to oust the elected government of Premier John M. Chang. After he joined the junta, the prosecutor charged, Chang condoned efforts of his followers to take over the government by organizing a factional group based on "provincialism" and other personal connections.

The two former junta members given life sentences were Col. Park Chi-ok, commander of the paratroop unit that spearheaded the coup, and Col. Moon Jai-joon, army provist marshal after the coup.

Junta revolutionary courts have tried more than 200 persons so far, and today's sentences brought to 16 the number of persons condemned to death. Seven of these sentences have been carried out.

The military government announced the suicide of another leading official accused of conspiring against it. It said Wi Chung-yong, 47, director of the Justice Ministry's prosecution administration, slashed his throat Dec. 24 while under investigation as a suspected North Korean spy.

HER TOYS BURNED—The doll of Helen Whinsenant, 11, of Nashville, Tenn., was only slightly damaged when fire hit the closet in which her toys were stored. But the doll's bed, games and other toys were destroyed. Helen tearfully clutches the doll after rushing home from school. Defective wiring was blamed for the blaze which damaged only the closet section of the house. (AP Wirephoto)

SIGN TRADE PACT

HAVANA (AP)— Cuba and the Soviet Union signed a 1962 trade agreement Tuesday. Details were not disclosed.

Mikhail Kuzmin, Soviet vice minister of foreign trade, signed for his country.

Crashed Party, Met President

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Charles Meeks, who wasn't even invited, walked into the $100-a-plate birthday dinner for Gov. Michael V. DiSalle Saturday and left with the carnation President Kennedy had been wearing.

The story came out Tuesday when Meeks called the Columbus Dispatch to get a copy of a picture of him shaking hands with Kennedy.

Meeks, president of the United Auto Workers Citizenship Counell here, failed to receive an expected invitation to the party. He took several hundred buttons he had left from his Citizens for Kennedy campaign in 1960 and walked into the banquet hall at the state fairgrounds.

"I started distributing the buttons to people at the tables and even gave some to the Secret Service men," he said. Eventually he climbedt o the speakers' platform and shook hands with the President.

"When the program was over, I went up to President Kennedy as he was coming by," Meeks related. "I shook hands with him again and asked him for the carnaton he was wearing for my daughter. He gave it to me."

In between the two Kennedy handshakes, the General Motors employe got a free meal—a $100-a-plate handout.

Fumes Overcame School Janitor

WHITSETT, N.C. (AP) — A 9-year-old boy was hospitalized Tuesday after helping a semi-conscious janitor from the fume-filled basement of his elementary school.

The boy was Amon Weaver, who was sent to the basement to summon the janitor, Russell Smith, when several students became nauseated.

Smith said he was unable to stand, but young Weaver got him to his feet and helped him from the building.

Forty-seven other students were treated at a Burlington hospital after becoming ill from the fumes. Weaver was the only one hospitalized, however, and doctors said his condition was good.

Sunday Afternoon TV Is Largely Left To Sports

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television's once-sacred Sunday after noon sacred klatch has been quietly disbanded. Strangely enough, a lot of television's sternest critics inside and outside the industry don't know it.

More than anything else, it indicates that many of those impassioned critics don't watch much television or they would know that what used to be called "egghead shows" are now thoroughly dispersed in the networks' evening schedules. They are still complaining about the Sunday afternoon "intellectual ghetto" and "cerebral oasis," as dead as "Playhouse 90."

Jewison, writing in the current Variety, the weekly show business paper, explodes:

"No one wants to buy time on Sunday afternoon. The public service, educational and 'think' programs that are on view are pure 'conscience money,' as far as the networks are concerned. They can point at these shows and say, 'Look at us, aren't we wonderful; look at the hours of worthwhile shows we carry!

"Why don't they put these shows in prime time? Because 'formula' programs, the ones that fall into this year's acceptance pattern, win those slots while the worthwhile programs are seen on Sunday afternoon, the 'cerebral oasis' of video."

Jewison has only to look at the Sunday afternoon schedules of the networks. Both CBS and ABC have long sport "spectaculars" each Sunday, each devoted to a different game. CBS' is followed by an hour-long golf show. NBC has been completely dedicated to professional football.

Sunday afternoon has become, if anything, a sports-lover's oasis.

Whether from fear of Washington interference or a genuine desire to balance their programming content, all three networks, but particularly NBC, have been putting frequent public service shows into valuable evening spots on the schedule—where, incidentally, the most of them have been taking bad lickings in audience polls from rival entertainment programs.

Most of the entertainment programs that gave Sunday afternoons their reputation for culture and uplift have died from sheer, uncomplicated neglect by the viewing audience. "Omnibus," for instance, was given every possible chance by the networks before it went down for the count.

Last season NBC had a disastrous experience with a high-level debate show, "The Nation's Future," which drove so many viewers to CBS that its competing westerns hit the peak of the popularity polls.

"CBS Reports" on the Thursday night schedule is a highly regarded program—which invariably has smaller audiences than rival entertainment shows even when it has a sensational documentary like "the Biography of a Bookie Joint or an important memoir on the presidency by Dwight D. Eisenhower. NBC's news show "Here and Now," has done so poorly on Friday nights, it is being dropped by its sponsor and will soon disappear.

Even so, the networks are still dedicated to the frequent production of after-dark culture and education. But it must be disheartening to make the effort when the very people who call for it the loudest think it is still being crammed into Sunday afternoons.

Recommended tonight: "Far From the Shade Tree," CBS, 10-11 (EST)—Jack Carson and Anita Louise in a Steel Hour drama.

Bees of different species sometimes join in battle as each side seeks to carry off the honey of the other. The battleground is strewn with dead and dying bees, including opponents locked together in death grips.

about school attendance tomorrow will be made about 6:30 a.m., Superintendents J. H. Rose of Greenville and D. H. Cosley of Pitt said. Announcements will be made over radio and television.

Conley and Rose noted that conditions early this morning were not bad enough to warrant suspending school at the time. Conley said school officials are "not going to take any chances."

Rose said he was keeping a constant surveillance of the situation with regard for safety of city school children.

Last year, as well as the preceding year, several days of school were missed due to inclement weather, causing problems of making of lost time.

School buses were in operation today.

At the Greenville Utilities plant, early morning temperatures zig-zagged from midnight until the dipping about 8 a.m. The highest temperature here today was recorded at 4 a.m. when it was 37 degrees.

the latter being more restrictive, in that primarily more area is needed for building.

The second petition concerned street lighting, and town board members took action to replace the existing incandescent light at the corner of Hart and Pitt Streets with a mercury light.

The petitioner, Joseph Coward, asked that a mercury vapor light be placed on a pole located midway between Lee and Pitt Streets on the north side of Hart Street. However, existing policy of the town concerning street lighting states that in residential areas, street lights shall be installed only on corners.

The board felt that the new mercury vapor light would give the illumination Coward was seeking.

In other business, the board agreed to approve payment of $500 for a bill covering extra engineering conferences and matters required in resolving the contract covering the Ayden sewage system as presented by Rivers and Associates, Inc. of Greenville.

Four-way stop signs installed several months ago at Sixth Street and East Avenue have served their purpose, board members decided, and they are to be removed from the East Avenue section. Conventional stop signs will be installed on the Sixth Street side.

Paylor reported that the cemetery project has been completed, with the result that 80 extra lots are available.

He also told board members that the town is being called upon by the highway department to move poles on the Royce Allegood Road north of Ayden. Town workmen already have been asked to work on other road projects, also, including moving poles east of Ayden on the Country Club Road, to allow widening of the facilities.
