Eastern N.C. Roads Are Generally Unsafe; Covered With Ice, Snow

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

An estimated three and a half to four inches of snow had transformed Greenville and Pitt County into a winter wonderland early today, and the icy precipitation was continuing at noon.

Roads were covered with ice and snow, and conditions were labeled "very, very dangerous" by the Highway Patrol here.

The usually mild eastern part of the state, including this area, was the victim of an ironic twist of fate, as winter aimed its barb in this direction instead of at its usual mountainous target. In fact, roads in the mountains were reported today to be icy in spots due to the previous snow, while roads in the east were almost totally covered with snow and ice.

The wintry blast brought closed schools both in the city and county, as in other localities in the east. Superintendents J. H. Ross of Greenville schools and D. E. Conley of county schools said announcements about school operations for Monday would be made late Sunday or early Monday morning. At East Carolina College, only day students were required to attend classes today. Temperatures here were averaging in the 20s and slightly below.

Sherman Husted of Television Station WNCT this morning estimated that the county had received some three and a half to four inches of snow up to 11 o'clock. And the mess was continuing, varying from snow and sleet to freezing rain.

All motorists have been advised to stay at home by the Highway Patrol unless absolute necessity compels their traveling.

Chains are advisable for road travel, as the highways are extremely dangerous. Those who must drive are cautioned to drive slowly.

All roads in Pitt County were covered with snow and ice. Though the maintenance department has been laboring all day to improve the road conditions, they have been hampered by continuing precipitation. A thin film of ice is reported on roads beneath the snow.

A spokesman for the N. C. Maintenance Dept. here said sand probably will be used on bridges later today.

In Greenville, Superintendent of Public Works C. K. Beatty said salt is being used on downtown streets by crews working by hand. Sand is also being put out, but roads were still considered slick and dangerous.

man said weather gripping the eastern part of the state is a result of a disturbance off the coast. The disturbance is expected to remain off the coast and then move northward, with a high pressure system from the southwest expected to bring dry weather over the weekend.

Snow, sleet and freezing rains in the central and eastern portions of the state are expected to terminate tonight. Temperatures are predicted to be in the low 20s.

The Highway Patrol reported this morning that New Bern, Jacksonville and Morehead City all had about an inch and a half of snow, with roads covered with ice and snow. Ahoskie reportedly had four to six inches of snow; Williamston, three to four inches; Edenton, four inches; Elizabeth City, five inches; Kinston, three inches; and Halifax, about two inches. All roads were covered with ice and snow.

All secondary and dirt roads in the east are covered with ice and snow and considered almost impossible for driving. All travel in the vicinity of U. S. 17 and U. S. 74 in the Williamston and Washington, N. C. areas was impassable without chains.

In the central part of the state, Raleigh reported two to three inches of snow this morning, and Goldsboro about four inches. Charlotte and west reported overcast skies and no new snow in the mountains.

Estimate Fire Loss $200,000

A $200,000 loss is estimated for two Greenville firms gutted by fire in sub-freezing weather early Thursday morning.

Spokesmen for the Edwards Hardware firm, one of the two businesses destroyed in the fire said yesterday their loss including building and contents would probably run between $150,000 and $200,000.

Damage to the Pitt Tile Company building, the second firm destroyed, was set today at from $10,000 to $12,000. Value of the contents was not estimated. The building was owned by Charles Cobb of 206 South Pitt St. Owner of the tile business is Asa G. Jones of East Second St.

The Edwards building was owned by C. H. Edwards, Jr. of the Ayden Highway. Greenville firemen battled extremely low temperatures and freezing equipment in fighting the 2:15 a.m. blaze.

Firemen stayed on the scene checking and extinguishing small deep seated fires until after 4 p.m. yesterday.

The cause of the fire, which apparently started between the ceiling and roof of the Edwards building, has not been determined.

Rescuers Flying To Andes Avalanche Disaster Area

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Rescue planes flew into the Andes Valley of Huaylas 200 miles north of Lima today, where 3,000 to 4,000 persons are feared dead under an avalanche of ice, snow, rock and mud. The disaster virtually wiped out two villages and 14 settlements in eight minutes.

Before darkness Thursday, 50 bodies had been recovered. A doctor back from the stricken area said rescuers would have little to do but recover the dead — "there are no injured."

Only two planes were able to fly into Caraz, about 20 miles north of the disaster area, before dense fog and bad weather set in Thursday. But this morning, planes began a shuttle to carry in doctors, nurses, medicines, food and clothing for victims of Wednesday's tragedy.

The exact number of dead may never be known. Roberto Thorndike, chairman of the Peruvian Red Cross, said initial estimates by representatives in the area put the number of missing at 2,300. U.S. Ambassador James Loeb, who flew over the area, reported estimates of 4,000 missing and presumed dead.

The village of Ranrahirca and 450 of its 500 people were buried under a mass of muck a mile wide and nowhere less than 12 feet deep.

The village of Huasacocha, said to have a larger population than Ranrahirca, also was reported to have disappeared under the huge slide. Officials said 14 smaller settlements were destroyed, and that none of the residents of seven of them had been found alive.

More than 7,000 persons lived in the ranching and mining valley, 9,000 feet up with the snowtopped peaks of the Cordillera Blanca looking down on them.

Volunteers struggled through quagmires of mud and melting ice to recover bodies that began to appear as waters of the Santa River began to recede. The avalanche swept hundreds of thousands of tons of debris into the river, swelling its waters and sending a torrent raging downstream. Dozens of bodies were recovered in Chinbote, a port on the Pacific more than 100 miles from Ranrahirca.

Many of the bodies recovered were mutilated beyond identification and were buried in a common grave.

The avalanche was born on Peru's highest peak, 22,205-foot Mt. Huascarán, and peaks below it forming the canyon of Llanoguanuco. Enormous blocks of ice, melting in the summer sun, broke away and collected tons upon tons of rock and snow as they rolled down into the canyon.

The avalanche grew steadily as it roared into the valley below to overwhelm the unsuspecting

Indians just sitting down to eat their evening meal.

Shocked survivors from Ranrahirca, the Indian name means "Hill of Stones," said the avalanche began with a sound like that of a dynamite explosion.

"In eight minutes Ranrahirca was wiped off the map," said Mayor Alfonso Caballero. The only warning was the roar and a cloud of dust raised over the onrushing slide as it swept down the canyon.

"It looked like every one in Ranrahirca had been buried by the ice, rocks and mud," said Dr. Leocio Guzman, another survivor.

Huaraz, a mountain town only 30 miles south of the latest disaster, was struck by a similar avalanche in December 1941 and 4,000 persons were killed.

One of history's major earthquakes killed 70,000 persons in Peru and Ecuador in August 1896. Another in 1868 killed 25,000 in the same two countries. The worst snowslide ever killed 9,000 Austro-Hungarian troops in 1916.

Cold View For JFK Tax Ideas

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's request for standby powers to cut income taxes in a recession got a chill-to-frigid reaction today from key congressional leaders.

Some House Ways and Means Committee Democrats, who did not want to be quoted by name, indicated they had no plans to take up the measure, which would involve a reduction of up to 25 percent in first bracket rates during a recession. The committee would have to originate the legislation.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., whose finance committee would have to consider it in the Senate, blasted the plan as unconstitutional. Many Republicans assailed it.

The tax request, to be spelled out by the President Jan. 22 in his economic report to Congress, was by far the most controversial of his proposals aimed at keeping the economy moving upward. Other proposals dealt with the problems of hard-core unemployment and fighting inflation in boom times.

Several of these proposals are well advanced in Congress and seem likely to reach Kennedy's desk before Congress shuts up shop.

Last year the proposal got the endorsement of a blue-ribbon commission on money and credit containing business members and financed by the Ford Foundation.

But it goes against the grain of most House members and senators who work on tax legislation. They say it would infringe heavily on one of the most cherished prerogatives of Congress—control of the revenues.

Some liberals who tend to favor the standby principle say they fear it would be relatively easy to lower the income tax rate but almost impossible to raise it back when the recession ended.

Kennedy's request for standby authority to initiate public works spending promptly in a recession did not arouse so much opposition and appears to have some chance of passage. However, Byrd said he also would oppose this.

The President's proposal for uniform federal standards in the unemployment compensation system seems certain to face heavy going. This plan has support in the big industrial states but not much elsewhere. Under the law now, each state sets the size and duration of its jobless aid checks.

Redevelopment Board Is Willing To Share Director

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Redevelopment commissioners indicated agreement last night to share their executive director with the Public Housing Authority.

Kenneth Hite, attorney for both the Redevelopment Commission and the Public Housing Authority, relayed the request to the commission.

Also present at the Redevelopment Commission meeting to answer questions was James Sutton, a member of the Housing Authority.

"The Housing Authority asked me to present a request that Mr. Cochran be allowed to serve, temporarily at least, with both agencies," Hite told the commission.

"I understand it is very customary to do this," Hite pointed out that by using the same director for both agencies there would be "a general sharing of all expenses."

M. E. Cavendish asked Cochran if he felt the combination of the two jobs would interfere with his redevelopment work.

Cochran said he did not believe it would. However, he said, he felt the two groups should meet together and have an understanding about duties.

Commissioner Bancroft Moseley said he knew of a number of towns which have one executive officer for both public housing and redevelopment.

Moseley told the group he had no personal objections to combining the jobs until they became too big for one man.

The Commission approved a motion authorizing Cochran to talk with the Housing Authority about the combination job. Chairman Badger Johnson stipulated that the matter "should be reviewed from time-to-time."

The Public Housing proposal revives a plan which was considered shortly after it became apparent that some public housing would be needed to carry out the Shore Drive project.

Since the amount of Public Housing to be erected will be comparatively small, various officials considered the possibility of hiring one man and using an office to handle both projects.

The Public Housing Authority had no funds until its application was recently approved, however and was unable to employ any full time help. During that time the Authority and its chairman, Charles Howard, have handled administrative matters.

DiSalle Decides Seek 2nd Term

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. Michael V. DiSalle announced today he has changed his mind about quitting and will be a candidate for a second term.

The announcement assured a lively primary campaign fight for the Democratic nomination.

Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy announced last Nov. 22 that he would seek the nomination. That was slightly more than a month after DiSalle said on Oct. 20 that he had decided to bow out. McElroy has said he is in the race to stay.

Actress Insured For $2.5 Million

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor, trying again to film "Cleopatra," has been insured for $2.5 million to cover completion of the picture, says an insurance brokerage firm.

Lloyds of London paid $2 million in production losses due to Miss Taylor's illness in London a year ago.

No mention was made of salary arrangements at last night's meeting.

Cochran, a Swan Quarter native, became Greenville's Redevelopment director in October, 1960. He graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1954, served in the U.S. Army and then went with the South Norfolk Redevelopment and Housing Authority.

Later he went with the Asheville Redevelopment Commission as executive director.

In Greenville he served through the bitter Urban Renewal-Public Housing referendum of last May which saw both projects approved by the voters.

Commissioners learned from soil boring tests conducted by Thomas W. Rivers and Associates, that no unusual foundations would be required in the Shore Drive area for buildings up to two stories. Buildings of greater height would require additional investigation, the report showed.

Federal officials from Atlanta reported that first appraisals of Shore Drive property were proceeding satisfactorily. Grady Nichols holds the contract for this.

Ownership data research contract was increased by $180. The contract had originally been for $900. Hite explained that the work is being done by various local attorneys at $5 per parcel.

However, he said, it had developed there were 36 more parcels than had been originally anticipated.

Representatives of Mt. Herman Masonic Lodge at Third and Side St. appeared to ask what the lodge would have to do to conform with Redevelopment plans. He was referred to Executive Director Cochran.

Brewer Installs Masonic Officials

MASONIC MASTERS . . . Leslie H. Garner (left) of Crown Point Lodge 708 and James W. Joyner (right) of Greenville Lodge 284 installed by James W. Brewer, Grand Master of Masons in N. C.

Leslie H. Garner and James W. Joyner were installed Thursday night as respective masters of Crown Point Lodge 708, A. F. & A. M., and Greenville Lodge 284, A. F. & A. M.

Both local Masonic Lodges installed their new masters and other officers at a joint installation ceremony conducted by Greenville's James W. Brewer, Grand Master of Masons in North Carolina, assisted by William J. Bundy, Robert L. Pugh, A. A. Kafer and T. I. Moore.

Bundy, Pugh, Kafer and Moore acted as installing marshals while Brewer was the installing officer.

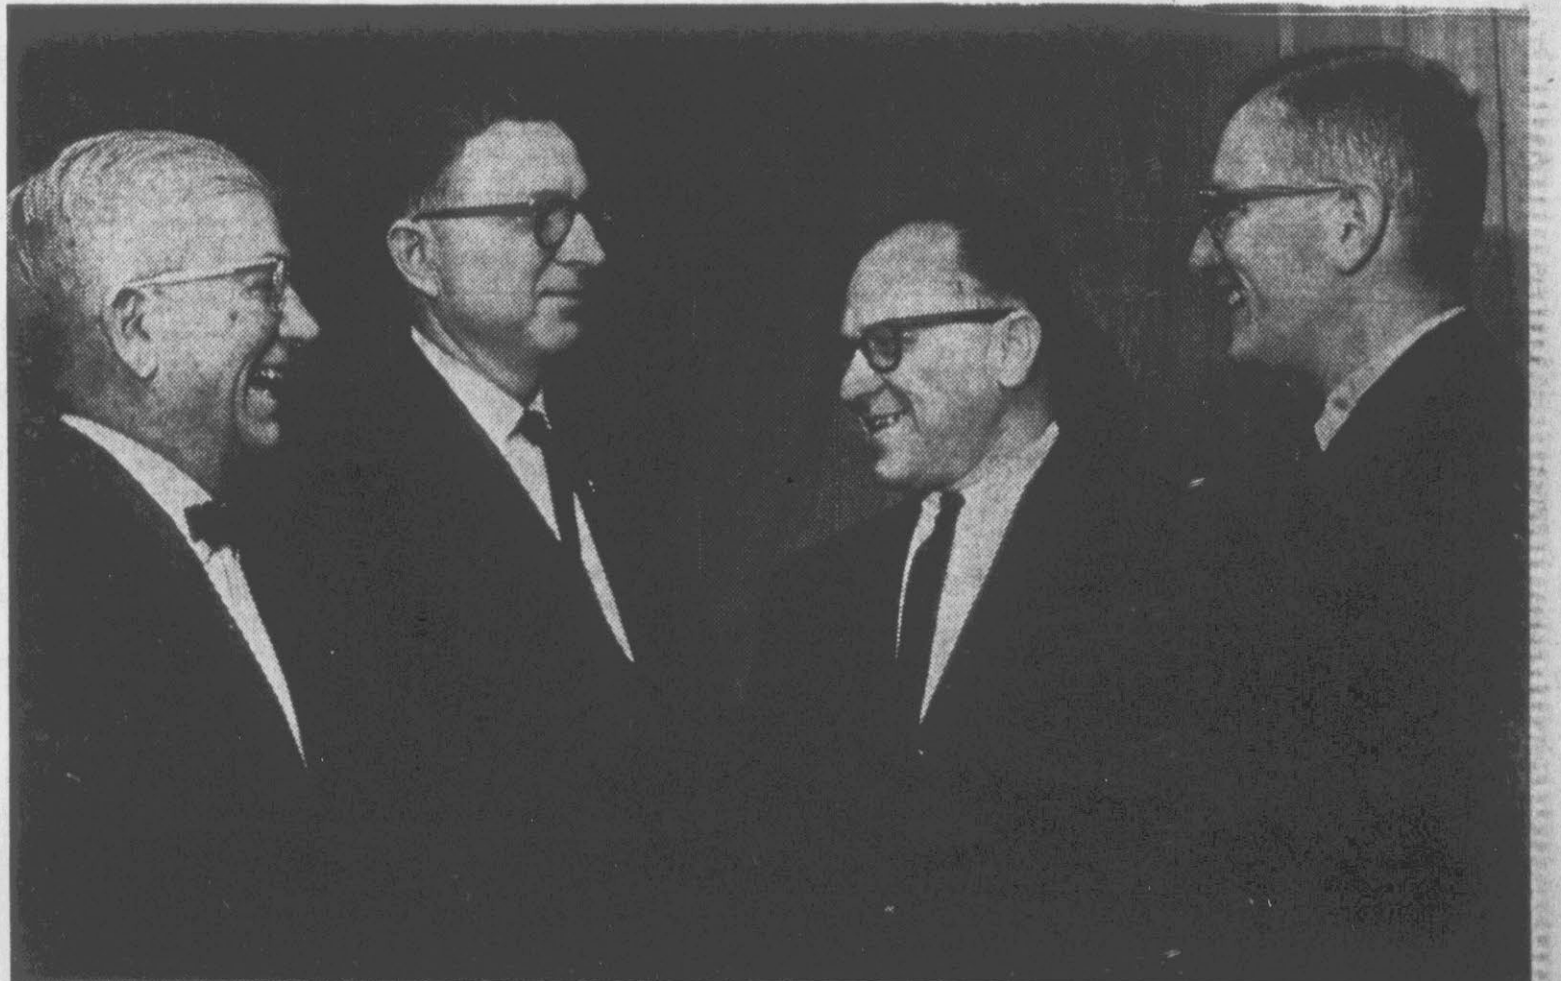

In addition to the installation of Garner as master of Crown Point Lodge and Joyner as master of the Greenville Lodge, the following officers formally took their 1962 positions:

Crown Point Lodge 708: James W. Jenkins, senior warden; Sam C. Price, junior warden; Royce Hunsucker, treasurer; F. Luther Whitehurst, secretary; Robert Smith, senior deacon; Durwood M. Harris, junior deacon; Fred Rogers and R. E. Squires, stewards; George Smith, chaplain; H. B. Lilly, tyler.

Greenville Lodge 284: J. Kos Hester, senior warden; Pat T. Margas, junior warden; W. Herman Hardes, treasurer; Edward D. Austin, secretary; Charles G. Clark, senior deacon; E. Coy Avery, junior deacon; William C. Smith and Guy C. Langston, stewards; W. Herman Nobles, chaplain; and Clifton W. Perry, tyler.

French Go Foreign, Grab Mantilla, Express Selves

By IRENE FERIS
PARIS — (WNS) — Parisiennes are suddenly loving anything foreign — as long as it's made in France. In 1961 it was "tres, tres chic" to dress with "zee foreign accent."

Throughout the centuries the French have been passionate Francophiles, so convinced of their own country's perfection that they've refused to travel, learn foreign languages or taste alien foods.

But with UNESCO headquarters in Paris and the European Common Market breaking down French frontiers, the world "out there" is adding a foreign accent to French fashions. However, they must still be French versions.

Among the popular facsimiles of foreign imports are:
Moujik boots of red or black soft leather, originally from Russia.

Eskimo boots, made of gray hair seal fur.
The Peruvian mask, a woolen hood in multicolor pattern. It covers all, with small holes for eyes, mouth and nostrils.

The Tyrolean shepherd's cape that is knee-length, hooded and made of waterproof loden cloth.

The Bolivian sheep-herder's cape of colorful wool, woven in abstract designs or irregular stripes and cut like a poncho. Troubadour pants (Italian version) of clinging black velvet to wear with the bulkiest sweaters. Mermaid pants inspired by strens in the Atlantic. They are clinging pants of elasticized gold lame or covered with golden sequins.

The chapka and the chesha, Russian men's caps.

Argentine tango undies, below-knee stretch pants with matador embroidery.

The "Pullover Himalaya," inspired by the French expedition to the Himalayas. It's long, in solid color, and made of wool from Ireland.

But most popular of all is the Spanish mantilla because of the many ways it can be worn.

The Frenchman responsible for the mantilla craze is Paris hairdresser Jacques Dessange, who imported it from Spain to be worn with his new Toreador hairdo and make-up.

It was a typical Dessange inspiration to coiff a pretty miss as a blonde seniorita, then tie a lace mantilla loosely about her throat, pinning one point up in back against her chignon.

The hairdo and mantilla combination was an immediate sensation. Coiffeurs were swamped with requests for other mantilla hairdos, and Parisiennes let their imaginations go mantilla-wild.

So far they have discovered that you can wear the black lace triangle as a scarf with a Chanel-type suit of cream white wool.

Or you can pin one corner to the shoulder of a cocktail dress and let the rest float.

You can also wear it as a kerchief and pin a red rose on it.

It's an elegant way to tie up a head full of curls or rollers.

Even with a Chinese Cheongsam, Frenchwomen now tie on a mantilla like a Martha Washington fichu.

"It's so unbecoming, so shocking," enthused movie star Pascale Petit. "Whenever I look humdrum and need a flash of whimsy, I grab a mantilla and express myself."

Female Executives Told To Be Bizarre

ZURICH, Switzerland—(WNS) —Fatigue is 80 per cent mental and 20 per cent physical with today's businesswomen, Dr. Gretel Gulbert told female executives here.

Tensions tie up muscles and cause physical weariness that can lead to nervous breakdowns in a matter of weeks, she said. The best release is frequent massages, particularly of the neck and back.

"Forget your problems at the end of a busy day," she advised. "Refuse to think at all, and your relaxation may bring answers popping into your head without effort."

The silver-haired, almond-eyed nerve specialist is in favor of silly improvisations and activities during off hours.

"Monotony, repetition and conformity breed fatigue," declared Dr. Gulbert. "If you feel like dining by candlelight or having a picnic on the kitchen floor, do it."

Above all, declare war on uniformity and "the same old things." Let yourself go and do what you please, even if it's dancing with a broom or skipping rope with the clothesline.

"Your husband and children will approve if you are imaginatively bizarre instead of dead serious, sad and tired," promised the doctor.

Peanut Brittle

1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup dark corn syrup
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 1/2 cups peanuts
1 teaspoon baking soda
In a large heavy saucepan stir together the sugar, salt, corn syrup, water and butter. Cook to soft crack stage (280 degrees on candy thermometer) or until 1 teaspoon of the mixture tested in 1 cup very cold water separates into hard but not brittle threads. Gradually stir in peanuts so mixture continues to boil. Cook, stirring often, to hard-crack stage (300 degrees) or until when tested as above, mixture separates into hard brittle threads. Remove from heat. Stir hot water into soda beat thoroughly into brittle. Turn into heavily buttered large cookie sheet, spread as thin as possible with spatula. Cool about 5 minutes; turn warm brittle upside down on sheet. When cold, break into irregular pieces. Makes about 1 1/2 pounds.

Era Of Splinter Silhouette Upon Us

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — Even as medical researchers gleefully compile statistics to show that the American woman is getting larger, fashion designers busy themselves whittling away at dress sizes.

Mills, Hinson Speak Vows

Miss Joyce Hinson, daughter of Mrs. Richard A. Hinson and the late Mr. Hinson of Fort Barnwell, was married to Rev. Bennie Gray Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Mills of Greenville, on Sunday, December 31, at 4:30 o'clock in a ceremony which took place at the Fort Barnwell Church of God with Rev. E. E. Salter, pastor of New Bern Church of God, officiating.

The church was arranged with baskets of white gladioli and white cathedral candles in seven branched candelabra flanked by fern.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Jesse Boyd of Greenville, organist, and Miss Grace McLendon of Goldsboro, vocalist, who sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by Bob F. Jones of Bridgeton, wore a street-length gown of white lace over taffeta with fitted bodice with scalloped neckline and long tapering sleeves ending in points over her hands, and full skirt. Her elbow-length veil was attached to a crown of seed pearls and she carried a nosegay of roses.

Mrs. Philip Scott of New Bern was her sister's maid of honor and bridesmaid was Miss Carolyn Hinson, sister of the bride also. They wore street-length dresses of ice-blue taffeta and slight circular veils and carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums.

Kenneth Boyd of Pinetops was the bridegroom's best man and ushers were David Mills and Leslie Mills, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore a lavender wool dress and matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a brown wool suit and matching accessories.

Miss Hinson is a graduate of Vanceboro Farm Life High School and Mr. Mills is a graduate of Belvoir High School.

On Saturday night following the rehearsal for the wedding, Mrs. Thomas French and Mrs. Charles White, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Ray Lee Tucker entertained at a rehearsal party and cake-cutting at the home of Mrs. Tucker at Fort Barnwell.

The couple will leave Saturday, Jan. 13, for Jackson, Miss., where Rev. Mills will continue his work in the ministry.

Link Colds And Intestinal Virus

CHICAGO (AP) — A direct link between the common cold and an intestinal virus has been found for the first time, four medical researchers said today.

The virus, Cocksackie, A-21, is commonly found in man's intestinal tract. The same virus now has been recovered from the throats of marines suffering from colds at Camp Lejeune, N.C., the researchers said.

If Cocksackie A-21 does turn out to be an important cause of the common cold, said their report, a preventive vaccine could prove effective.

The virus discovery was reported in the Jan. 13 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association. The four researchers are Drs. Karl M. Johnson, Maurice A. Mufson and Robert M. Chanock, all of the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md., and Lt. Cmdr. Henry H. Bloom of Camp Lejeune.

Sukarno Warned Aussies Will Fight 'Ambitions'

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies in effect warned today that Australia would fight to protect East New Guinea should Indonesia expand its territorial ambitions beyond Dutch-held West New Guinea.

Menzies said Indonesia had several times given assurances it would not try to take West New Guinea by force and that it had no territorial ambitions in East New Guinea, which Australia administers as a U.N. trusteeship.

"We are reluctant to believe that threats of war now being made by the Indonesian government in breach of those assurances are to be followed by action," Menzies said in a statement after he and his Cabinet reviewed the New Guinea situation.

But Australia, he said, recognizes and will discharge its prime responsibilities for protecting the security of Australia and its territories. Arthur Calwell, leader of the opposition Labor party, has suggested that once President Sukarno gets control of West New Guinea, he will train his sights on the eastern half of the island.

Menzies expressed hope the Netherlands and Indonesia could settle their dispute through negotiation.

Man Who Made Film Classic Answers Queries

Destiny J. Burke of Jonesboro, Tenn., sent me a letter asking a number of intelligent questions about the film "Gone With the Wind" for a school report. Lacking all the answers, I sought help from the man who made the 1939 classic. These are Selznick's replies to Destiny's questions:

Q. What studio made "Gone With the Wind"?

A. The Selznick Studio. MGM had nothing to do with it. (Though MGM lent Clark Gable and now owns the film.)

Q. Was Margaret Mitchell consulted on production?

A. She absolutely refused to be consulted or to read the script. She warned me before the Atlanta premiere she would denounce the

Home Ec Pupils Hear Mrs. Dunn

BELVOIR — Home economics students of the Belvoir-Falkland School heard a talk about services of the Pitt County Health Department, given by Mrs. Adelaide Dunn, on Monday.

Main points of the talk were explanation of all the clinics, what is done at the clinics and how the population is served by the department. Mrs. Dunn told of the services being offered now and what can be expected in the future.

The talk was followed by a question and answer period.

Frogs, toads, newts and salamanders are the most common amphibians. They represent an intermediate stage of development between fishes and reptiles.

Beatty Tells Civitans Of Street Dept. Problems

C. K. Beatty was the after dinner speaker at the regular bi-weekly meeting of the local Civitan Club last night.

The speaker, superintendent of public works for the city of Greenville, outlined the duties and responsibilities of his department. He spoke of the problems which arise in the course of maintaining and improving the city's streets, gathering and disposing of garbage, caring for local cemeteries and parks, in addition to other duties. He noted that approximately $87,000 of the current Public Works budget of $193,000 is spent by the Sanitation Dept. in the collection and disposal of the city's garbage and trash.

According to Beatty, about $100 per day is expended during summer months for the operation of a fogging machine to control insects, principally mosquitoes.

Superintendent Beatty had planned to show color slides of the Elm Street paving project which was recently completed, but due to a malfunction of the projector this was not possible.

Prior to Beatty's address, Col. Zeb Hopkins of Havelock, Lt. Governor of Civitan Zone 14, spoke briefly about Zone membership progress. He concluded by presenting Civitan emblems to Club

Will Conduct January Survey

Mrs. Ann C. Boyd of 955 E. Tenth St., Greenville, will conduct the Current Population Survey here during the week of Jan. 15.

The January survey will include special questions on plans to purchase automobiles, television sets, washing machines and refrigerators, the U. S. Census Bureau announced today. This is part of a quarterly survey being made at the request of the Federal Reserve Board for use in a national study of consumer buying trends.

Home owners in the current survey will be asked if they have a fallout shelter or if they intend to install one within the next 12 months. Another special question will cover television set ownership.

Special questions are in addition to regular inquiries on employment and unemployment which are asked each month.

Red Carpet For A Dazed Pigeon

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—A dazed pigeon is being given the red-carpet treatment in the governor's office.

This is appropriate enough. He's the first pigeon to pay a pop visit to the office of Gov. Farris Bryant, who happens to be an honorary director of the U.S. Racing Pigeon Association.

The brownish-white bird—SAV 139 from the designation on his leg band—was found on the capitol lawn this week, crouched beside the building and the very picture of befuddlement.

A veterinarian speculated that the bird had crashed headlong into the building with a jar that added him.

Q. Did Vivien Leigh and Clark Gable attend the Atlanta premiere?

A. Yes.

Q. How long did it take to film the movie?

A. Six months.

Q. Who wrote the screen version?

A. Sidney Howard.

Q. Was there any filming on location?

A. Except for a few shots in Georgia without the principals, the entire film was shot in Culver City.

Q. Before it was cut, how long was it?

A. Four hours and 20 minutes. It was cut down to the final version of 3 hours and 45 minutes, without losing a scene or doing retakes.

Q. How many Academy awards did it win and what were they?

A. Eight—Best picture, actress Leigh, supporting actress Hattie McDaniel, director Victor Fleming, writer Howard plus cinematography, art direction and editing.

No Significant Fallout In Snow Detected Here

No significant amount of radiation fallout caused by yesterday's snow was detected in a series of tests conducted on the East Carolina College campus.

The tests were carried out by Dr. Frank Eller of the Department of Science using Geiger counters as detection devices.

"The tests were made," Dr. Eller said, "to assure the people of the area that no danger from fallout has come as a result of the snow." He stated that he had tested for both Gamma and Beta rays.

Dr. Eller, chief radiation official for the Pitt County Civil Defense organization, taught last fall a course in Radiation Monitoring for Pitt County. Approximately 100 men and women who completed the course were cer-

House Blew Up, Child Unharmed

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Nine-year-old Jenny Olwell was reaching for the cookie jar Thursday afternoon when the house blew up.

"It just went boom," she explained. Both side walls, the front and a section of the roof were blown out. Jenny, who suffered only minor burns and cuts, was alone except for her cocker spaniel pup.

Neighbors were unable to reach her in the ruins but shouted directions. She walked out with her unharmed pup.

Asst. Fire Chief Ray McManua said faulty gas lines were the apparent cause of the explosion.

Day Of No Sun, Paper Was Free

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —The sun failed to shine in St. Petersburg Thursday and it meant free editions of the St. Petersburg Evening Independent.

Fifty-one years ago the Independent started giving away its edition any day the sun didn't shine on the city. Thursday was the 213th time the paper had to make good on its offer, and it was the first time since July 19, 1961.

After Lincoln was shot in the Ford Theater, public indignation prevented John T. Ford from reopening the theater. He sold it to the government which rebuilt it for War Department offices and storage. In 1893 the floors collapsed, killing 22 people and injuring 68.

Unlikely Sanford Can Stay Away

Were it Gov. Sanford or most any other governor of North Carolina, it would come as a surprise to the people of the state for the Chief Executive to assert that he has no intention of seeking public office after leaving the governor's mansion.

Although one could cite exceptions, it has become more or less tradition in North Carolina to expect a governor to set his sights on a Senate seat when his four years in the top state executive post have ended. Barring that, he normally is expected—as was the case with Gov. Hodges—to continue in public life in some elective or appointive capacity.

It was, therefore, surprising to note that Gov. Sanford this week made the comment that he has no intention of seeking public office after he has served his four-year-term as governor of North Carolina. Perhaps it was surprising because Sanford is the current governor of North Carolina, but that is not the only reason.

Sanford, in his early forties, normally would be expected to have many years of public service—and presumably in elective office—ahead of him. Gov.

Sanford, moreover, has not only recently moved into politics as was the case of Luther Hodges who didn't get into politics until after his retirement as an industrial executive. Gov. Sanford has been active in political affairs in North Carolina for most of his adult life. If one bothers to count, it was 14 years ago that he moved into state-level politics as a major cog in the Scott campaign machinery. Prior to and subsequent to the Scott era he was moving into the state's political circles in his own right.

When Gov. Sanford leaves his present post as chief executive of North Carolina, he will still be a young man in his forties. It seems to us unlikely that the tug of public life will not continue to be felt by him.

It seems to us more likely that the desire for continued public service will keep him politically active after he leaves the governor's mansion as it did in the cases of most of his immediate predecessors. Of the six Tar Heel governors who immediately preceded Gov. Sanford as Chief Executive of the state, three later served in the U.S. Senate, one died in office, one accepted a cabinet post in the national administration, and only one of the six left the political arena.

A Mystery As To The Details

By LYNN NISBET

SCANDAL — At time this is written there is still a lot of mystery about just what happened in the Robert Burch and Kidd Brewer deal which led Governor Sanford to summarily fire Burch and blacklist four firms from doing business in this state.

Burch was and had been for many years assistant engineer in charge of traffic in the highway department. Part of his job was to design and approve traffic signs. Brewer is a Raleigh business man with diverse interests. He set up a "paper corporation" in 1958 to handle signs and sign-making materials for the State. Governor Sanford's original statement said that since its formation this company had received some $80,000 from four out-of-state sign companies, and had passed along about $40,000 of that to Robert Burch's son, a student at Duke.

The chief reason given by the Governor for the dismissal was that "Burch has been too closely associated with Kidd Brewer." Brewer and Burch were both out of town for several days following the break of the story. Meantime, the SBI was on the job and Chief Walter Anderson announced Tuesday he was seeking facts to establish connection between the two men.

The story created a lot of stir around Raleigh and throughout the state. Anything suggesting scandal in State government is news in North Carolina. The attention given this incident is testimony to its rarity. There have been frequent instances of little petty thievery among State employees and a few cases where higher ups were involved in serious offenses.

OTHERS — Back in the early 1930's Superior Court Judge John Harwood was relieved of his duties as a judge and his daughter served a term in prison for mis-handling money in the revenue department and destroying records.

A few years later Bob Ward, a top echelon official in the revenue department, also drew a prison sentence for misappropriating funds.

Dr. Leon R. Meadows president of East Carolina College, was convicted of appropriating to his own use certain moneys and property of the college and went to prison. Later there were incidents involving fiscal officers of A&T College at Greensboro and Winston-Salem Teachers College. One reason for the prominence given the current episode is the fact North Carolina has boasted through the years that in all the multiple hundreds of millions of dollars spent on roads there had never been any scandal surrounding transactions. In other states highway money was sometimes regarded as free game for any body who could get it in any way possible.

The public now is waiting for fuller information on the Brewer-Burch affair before making up its composite mind about its seriousness. Already enough positive information in hand to indicate it is not a nice situation. But so far only one side has been heard.

INSPECTION TOURS — Another big news story the first of this week was the inspection tour by Rhode Island officials of the North Carolina prison system. The New England officials were looking for facts as to conditions in the prisons here to aid Governor Nott in deciding whether to honor extradition requests for two escaped prisoners claimed they had been brutally mistreated in "dungeons of hell" in North Carolina.

The official inspection was made by Asst. Attorney General P. T. O'Halleran and State Police Capt. Arthur Newsome. They were accompanied by the lawyer for the escaped men who are resisting return to this state and by a TV news reporter.

The party was guided through the prison by George Randall, director of prisons, and other N. C. officials. It was evident from the first that the Rhode Island party was not of one mind about what it wanted. The officials were anxious to discover facts about prisons, facilities and administration. The lawyer and newsmen were interested only in material that would support their contentions of mistreatment.

POLICY — This has raised the question of whether it was wise or smart to invite them. Governor Sanford advised Governor Nott that he would be proud and happy to have his agents look over the North Carolina prison setup. A similar invitation was extended William G. Grande, the lawyer. The TV man was not invited but was accorded every courtesy on the tour. That the lawyer and newsmen were not interested in facts but in slanted propaganda was illustrated by the fact they declined to go to the Jackson County prison camp from which the men escaped and where they charged brutality.

It appears from the Rhode Island record that Grande is a disgruntled politician who has failed in several efforts for elective office, and that he may be now seeking sensational material to boost his own standing among people who don't know the facts and to embarrass Governor Nott.

Such a lawyer and newsmen should be allowed to come to North Carolina any time, as our folks should be allowed to go to Rhode Island, to get information. The wisdom of according them the prestige of State sponsorship is doubtful, to say the least.

Another Opportunity To Help Pitt's Needy

A little more than two weeks ago, the land was filled with the spirit of Christmas and many gifts of food, fuel, clothing and other items were distributed to needy families in this and other counties throughout the state.

Recent days have brought to Pitt County one of the most bitter cold snaps in recent years. Without doubt there are many families in this county today in need of food, fuel, and clothing to help them in the struggle with the bitter weather. As temperatures plunged near all-time lows, many families have watched their limited supply of coal and wood dwindle—perhaps become exhausted completely—as they huddled in poorly heated houses. Youngsters, poorly clothed even for the relatively mild winter weather normal to Pitt County, have insufficient clothing to keep them warm in this bitter cold.

At the same time most families in Pitt County have tucked away in a closet, or in the attic many articles of clothing which they meant to give away. Somehow they just haven't gotten around to getting them out and delivering them to the Salvation Army or some other agency for distribution. There are other families who intended to give cash to some agency at Christmas time to help needy people of the community, but in the rush of the holidays the chore never got done.

These last few days have brought another ideal opportunity for people of Pitt who desire to help their fellow citizens in a time of need to do so. The cold days and colder nights have in many cases greatly intensified the need for food, clothing and fuel.

No Change In Past 8 Years

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight years without change and no change in sight.

The world around President Kennedy, as he gave Congress his second State of the Union Message, looked much the same as the one he saw when he first took office a year ago.

There had been some changes — for instance, in overcoming the domestic recession — but not in the biggest problems, all of them overseas. Nor had there been in the past eight years.

In that time the world has moved into a period when the truly great dilemmas are likely to remain the same for years to come: The balance of power between the United States and Russia and their maneuvering.

This period was already under way, although perhaps not fully discernible, just eight years ago when President Eisenhower on Jan. 7, 1954 journeyed to the Capitol to deliver his second State of the Union Message.

For him, too, there had been some changes in his first year in office. The Korean War, for instance, had ended in 1953.

Eisenhower talked about the usual things in 1954—taxes, foreign aid, some improvement in American social problems—a lot of things which were the same, more or less, as those confronting Kennedy.

Two events of 1953 were to shape and freeze the future for both Eisenhower and Kennedy: Stalin's death and Russia's development of the hydrogen bomb.

The full impact of those events was not clearly seen even in 1954.

With Stalin's death his limited and stolid policies ended. Slowly, under the leadership of Nikita Khrushchev, Russian policy became imaginative, far-reaching, more aggressive.

But Khrushchev, on that day in 1954 when Eisenhower talked to Congress, was still pretty much an unknown, slowly working his way to the top to become Stalin's heir and the new general of communism.

2. Until that day in August 1953, when Russia had its first hydrogen explosion, the United States was indisputably the world's No. 1 power and, because it had the bomb, able to keep Russia in check.

The full meaning of this didn't seem to be realized in 1954.

For, while Russia rushed ahead with intercontinental missile development, Eisenhower, although all for developing American atomic power, was still talking in terms of cutting defense spending.

Even so, American expenses were going up and Eisenhower asked Congress to raise the limit on the national debt. Those expenses are still climbing and Kennedy now is talking of raising the debt limit.

But in those past eight years — so phenomenal has been Russian missile and space development — that now this country is in a race for its life. And America is no longer the unchallenged No. 1 power.

All the problems, which will remain problems as far into the future as any man now alive can see, can be boiled down to these two:

How can the United States and Russia, with their terrible weapons, avoid destroying each other while each struggles for the allegiance of men's minds around the earth at a time when most of mankind is un-schooled and hungry and anxious above all for a better life.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

FAITH IN THAT SUFFICIENCY

At the time of the crucifixion of Jesus, the veil of the temple was rent in twain. This veil concealed the holy of holies, that most sacred point of worship for all believing Jews. Behind this veil no one ever went except the high priest, and he only once a year.

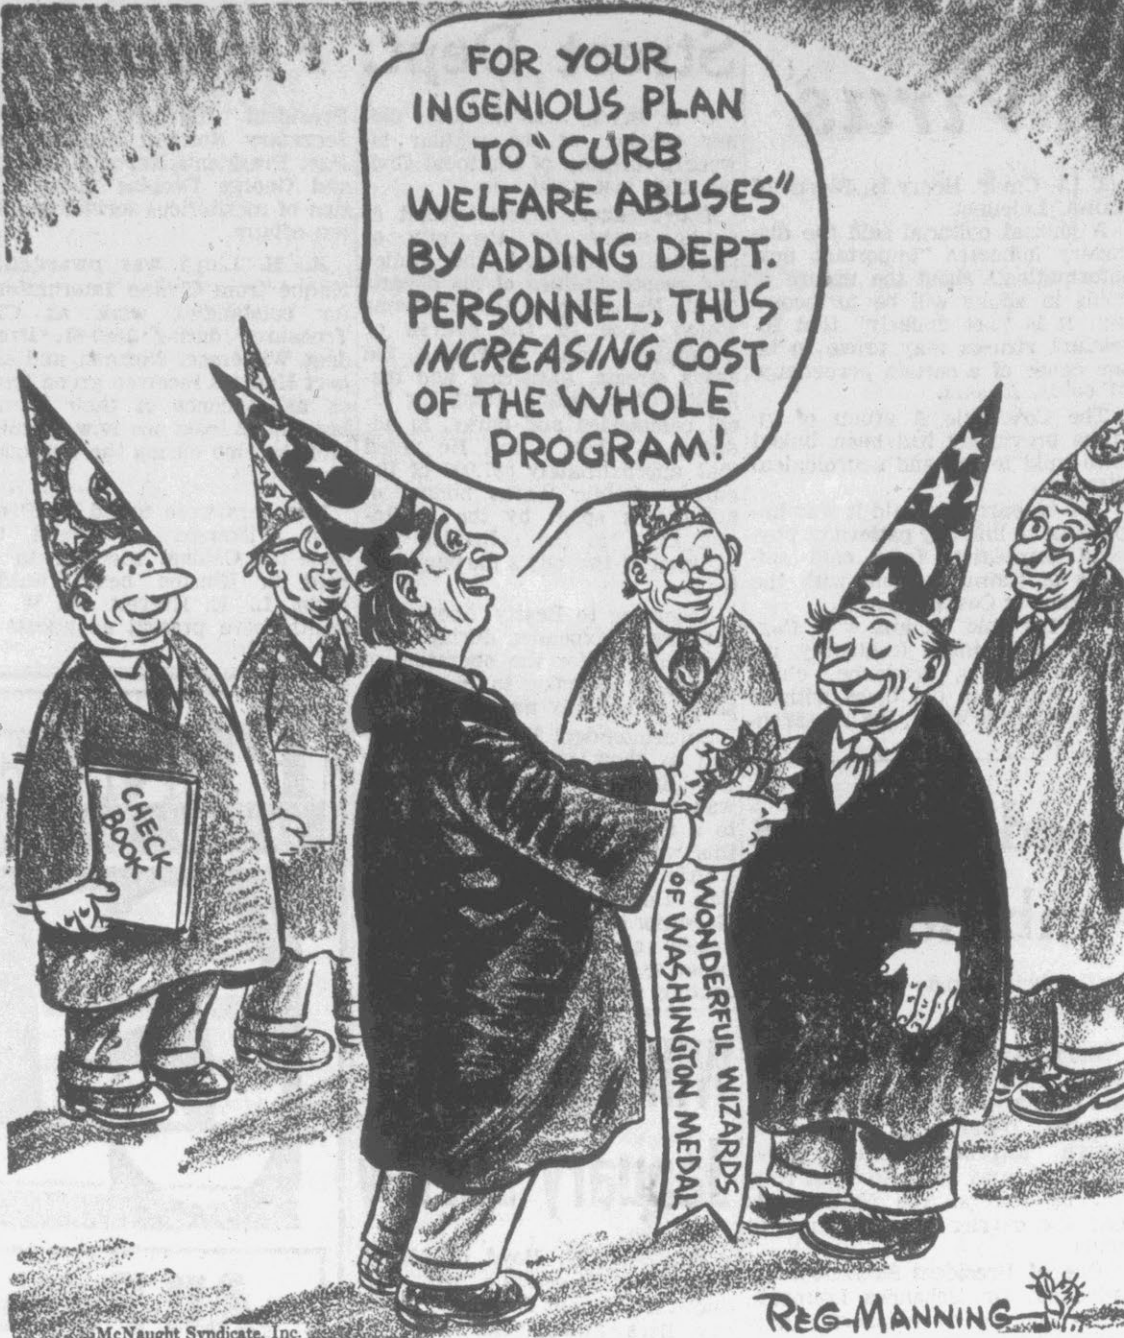

Suddenly as Christ expired on the cross the veil of the temple was rent in twain from top to bottom. Christian believers of that day took this to mean — and we believers of a later century would for the most part agree with them — that this rending of the veil meant the opening of God's full and revealed religion to the whole world. For certain special and very definite reasons God had set the Hebrew people aside that through them He might reveal Himself and serve the souls of men in a particular fashion.

Now there was to be no further separation — no setting aside. The religion of Jesus Christ was now to become a great world force. Its power would go among all nations. There would be no race or people anywhere excluded from its benefits. Furthermore, this disclosure of God through Jesus Christ was complete and final. All we could know of God and all we could use of His benefits had come to the race through Jesus Christ.

Let us always think of faith in him in the completeness, the sufficiency, the overwhelming power of God.

The Mild Pitt Climate

It's days like these that I re-read the county Development Commission's brochure which describes Pitt's "mild climate as the basic ingredient in the county's attractive living conditions."

"An abundance of sunshine has proven to be the major blessing for both residents and visitors," the brochure goes on to say. "Mild temperatures throughout the year act as a great stimulus to recreation and pleasant living hours."

Your columnist re-read that just after looking up at First Federal's time-temperature sign around 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The temperature at that time stood at 19 degrees.

Anyway the brochure goes on to prove its point with a data table.

Average temperature for April is 60 degrees; July, 79 degrees; October, 63 degrees and good old January, 44 degrees. That last one brought back a mental picture of the First Federal sign.

The brochure admits with its figures that there are extremes though. The absolute minimum it gives as zero degrees which was recorded Jan. 4, 1918.

Absolute maximum for Pitt County was the 106 degrees recorded July 24, 1952. Most folks would gladly take 40 or so if those degrees right now.

The brochure also tells that yearly average sunshine here is 60 percent. There are 130 clear days in an average year, 120 partly cloudy days and 115 plain old cloudy days.

One other thing the brochure tells that is of particular interest right at this time. Average annual snowfall is seven inches.

That leaves five to go this year. As you huddle around the hot air duct, dear reader, you might ponder that!

Other Editors Saying... Species Of Payola?

(Dothan (Ala.) Eagle)

A long list of prizes to newspaper writers appearing in recent issues of Editor & Publisher, a trade magazine, indicates to us that a kind of payola which recently existed in TV is creeping into the editorial and news columns of newspapers.

These listings are described as being journalistic achievements for which prizes are given.

In one instance prizes totaling $7,500 are offered for articles or editorials making outstanding contributions to improvement of highways or a better understanding of highway transportation problems. The awards were named in honor of Ted V. Rodgers, founder of the American Trucking Association, with the ATA Foundation, Inc., and Trailmobile, Inc., as sponsors.

Distinguished journalistic endeavor in the home furnishings industries is rewarded by the American Furniture Mart of Chicago. Articles in the home laundry field bring awards from the National Home Laundry Conference. Dissemination of information and support of programs and fund drives win notice from the National Association of Mental Health.

The American Osteopathic Association provides cash for regularly employed editors and reporters who turn out prize winning articles. The National Association of Real Estate Editors posts certificates and cash gifts on real estate news features. The American Machine & Foundry Co. puts up awards to focus attention on areas where physical recreation services are needed. The Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation has bronze plaques for outstanding articles.

Prizes totaling $2,000 are offered by the Cigar Institute of America for the best pictures (no gag photos) showing a man smoking a cigar with enjoyment and relaxation. Two awards for newspaper coverage of the national bicycle races and for writing on the subject of cycling are made by the Amateur Bicycle League of America. Cash totaling $1,000 may be won in the dog photo contest sponsored by Gaines Dog Research Center. Any farm or garden writer may be considered for a statuette and $150 honorarium for work contributing to higher standards in that field of writing with the American Seed Trade Association the sponsor. An editor's award plaque is given for excellence of fashion editorials in a contest sponsored by the Fur Information and Fashion Council, Inc. And there are lots of others.

Each of these contests with awards, recognition, etc., may be laudable and innocuous, per se, but newspaper editors and reporters ought to handle these subjects adequately and on a basis of merit instead of being tempted to overdo the treatment by the possibility of getting a plaque or monetary award. One way to discourage this is not to enter the competitions. If the smart publicity people who conceive and operate these contests didn't get any participants they would abandon this type of free space grabbing, which includes the space of the also-rans as well as that of the winners.

Redevelopment Commissioner Bancroft Mosely pondered an expenditure for a trip to Raleigh by Executive Director William I. Cochran.

He questioned the payment not for being too much, but rather for being too little! The payment ran $5.

Cochran told the commission that the budget was running low for that particular item so he simply took a smaller-than-normal amount.

"I thought maybe you drove to Wilson and then thumbed the rest of the way," Mosely quipped.

Other commissioners had their theories on the low expenses for the auto trip. Chairman Badger Johnson pointed out Cochran owned a compact car.

Any way the commissioners left the subject without offering to increase the amount.

Opinions In Brief

"It's a safe bet that any man who ever laughed at women's hats never paid the bill for one." — Salt Lake Tribune.

"Secretary of Commerce Hodges says foreign visitors would have a better time if hotel employees and policemen spoke foreign languages. It wouldn't hurt if they could speak English, too." — Chicago Tribune.

"Hell, Mich., now has a post office, and is there some way we could consign to it all the junk mail we get?" — Denver Post.

Banks May Hike The Check Fee

By ELMER ROESSNER

Those nagging little fees you pay banks for each check cashed, each deposit made and other services may soon be revised. Most of the revisions will be upward.

The Department of Justice has acted against two groups of banks on the complaint that they got together and agreed on charges contrary to the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. This has sent banks in every city in the country scurrying to their lawyers to determine whether they too have broken the law.

The first action was an anti-trust suit against the Clinton National Bank, the First National Bank of Clinton and the Hunterdon County Trust Co., of California, all New Jersey. The government alleged that the banks conspired to make uniform charges for financial services.

The strange part of this case is that the banks walked into Attorney General Bob Kennedy's punch.

The three banks issued a pamphlet listing identical charges at all three banks for the same services. This might have passed unnoticed if two of the banks, in applying for permission to merge, had not included the pamphlet as part of the evidence as to why the merger should be approved in Washington. Some law-wise bureaucrat spotted it and the Department of Justice brought civil action.

A few days later the Department of Justice asked seven Dallas banks to produce records and documents bearing on the question of whether they had conspired to fix charges for bank services.

No complaint has been filed yet, but it looks as if the Kennedy boys are readying another action.

And that may not be the end, because comparable, if not uniform service charges are in effect throughout the country.

The fear of prosecution has been thrown into almost every bank executive in the United States.

If there is a flash of grey in your hair, you can remember when banks never charged for minor services. But the rising cost of personnel and the growing intricacies of conducting business has forced all except a few country banks to levy "activity" charges on customers. For instance, one bank was offered a commercial account in which there was always a minimum balance of $25,000. Analysis showed that, because of the number of checks and deposits handled each month, the bank would lose money on the account unless it levied a service fee.

COMPETITION RULES

Almost all banks must levy these fees. Furthermore, every bank must charge approximately the same as its competitors. If Chase Manhattan cuts its charges in half, National City would have to do the same or lose customers to Chase Manhattan.

In cities smaller than New York, a slight difference in a service charge would enrich one bank, impoverish another.

Banks, to survive, must make charges closely the same. They can do this by getting together on a schedule. Or, as seems to be done in many cities, they can let the leading bank work out a schedule based on a costly analysis, and then adopt it.

On the other hand, they can embark on competition, each one charging different fees, un-

Food's Role In China

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

As far back as one can go in the story of China, the problem has been population and food. The Chinese in the Yangtze Valley and in the South are over-populated and they are short of food. In North China, the people live on a mixed wheat and green vegetable diet; in South China, rice is the principal food. In both areas, the soy bean and its enormous varieties is essential.

Rice grows with difficulty in paddy fields. When analyzed in terms of protein and carbohydrates, rice is an extremely expensive food and a lack of rice can swiftly turn into a famine. The Chinese suffer from famine not because there is a shortage of food but because the means of communication are inadequate. In the North wheat and soya bean grow more than in the South. Beef and milk are not used at all although pork, chicken and fish are acceptable foods in both areas.

The food problem in China has always been a matter of serious politics. Famines have led to revolution and to the overthrow of dynasties. China, during the past few years, has suffered from severe famines. The only solutions the Red Chinese have found has been the purchase of wheat from Canada and Australia, which has left Red China without adequate foreign exchange. The principal solution has been war — war against the countries to the south of China which are rich rice lands but if China imported rice from Siam, and all the countries which were formerly called French Indo-China, there would still not be enough of this food. The principal advantage of war is the accumulation of rice without paying for it. In a word, the production of rice by slave labor. Thus far, this has not been successful.

This winter has been a very difficult one and although Canada and Australia have helped some, their aid has been insufficient and too costly. The Red Chinese have turned from economics to war and the intensification of the conflict between Soviet Russia and Red China is in a large measure due to Russia's inability or unwillingness to help.

Moscow has, since 1948, hoped to squeeze Red China into the position of a satellite. This Red China has consistently resisted, taking the position that China has a larger population, a longer history, a finer culture and a superior response to Marxism-Leninism than Soviet Russia. When Stalin died, Mao Tse-tung looked forward to be recognized as the leader of the Communist Universal State. In this ambition, Mao failed although in the Communist world he is generally more respected than Khrushchev. Mao is an intellectual, a professor of philosophy; Khrushchev is a peasant and a miner who has pushed his way up through the party organization.

Red China has turned to birth control as a solution of the problem of food. Until very recently, plural marriage was not unusual in China and the population grew enormously because of this social custom. To what extent the Communists have succeeded in wiping out plural marriage is not known. The resort to birth control is a recognition of the need for population control in that country.

Politically, population control indicates an inability to solve the food problem. In the West, those who advocate birth control are not so much concerned with population control as they are with rise in the standard of living. In the East, where plural marriage has been usual, birth control can only be advocated with an aim to accomplish population control.

The population of China is estimated to be 600,000,000. Such an estimate may or may not be realistic as there has not been a proper census. It is not possible to make a scientific comparative study of population as the usual method of taking a census in old times was to count the chimneys and God's first words to the people of Israel, after He led them out of their bondage in Egypt, were, "I am Jehovah Thy God. . . Thou shalt have no other gods before Me." He spoke from Mt. Sinai.—Exodus 20:1-3.

He commanded the Jews to teach this great First Commandment "diligently unto thy children," including it often in their daily home life. It was to be bound to their wrists and door-posts.—Deuteronomy 6:4-9.

Christ intensified His Father's meaning in this commandment when He asked to see God. Christ reiterated that they could see God in Him, His Son, if they would but believe.—John 14:8-11.

Philip disappointed Jesus when he asked to see God. Christ reiterated that they could see God in Him, His Son, if they would but believe.—John 14:8-11.

GOD'S OWN DECLARATION ABOUT HIMSELF, AND THE RESULTS OF OUR BELIEF IN IT

Scripture—Exodus 20:1-3; Deuteronomy 6:4-9; Matthew 6:24; John 14:1-11.

By N. SPEER JONES
FROM LAST WEEK'S general discussion of the Ten Commandments in their historical setting, we move this week to a specific study of the "first and greatest" of these Commandments.

It is so natural for us today to think of God as the one and only God that it is hard to imagine a worship of several deities at once. Yet for many, many years in the world's history, this polytheism was far more prevalent than monotheism, the worship of one God.

In the Greek era philosophers began to think in terms of a single Moving Spirit or First Cause, but the concept was not held among the common people. Certain Eastern sects devoted themselves to worship of

This pertains both to the theory of atheism and its practice. That is, it is not sufficient simply to declare a belief in the one true God; one must also worship this God—and only this God—in his heart.

This means that no other being or object can compete with God for our interest, worship and love.

It is this deep and more difficult meaning of the First Commandment which Jesus emphasized. In His Sermon on the Mount He points up the conflict in which many of us unwittingly become involved, that of trying to serve some other interest on the same level with God (Matthew 6:24).

In this passage the mammon of which Christ speaks is the transfiguration of the Greek a single god, but this deity was often the sun or some other false god.

About the time of Christ many Romans did token homage to the ancient gods, meanwhile embracing wholeheartedly one of these monotheistic sects, such as Mithraism. This was a Persian-originated religion which worshipped a single god of light and truth, often represented by the sun. For a time Christianity almost seemed destined to lose out to such sects.

In this context it is easier to understand the importance of the First Commandment; it forbids not only the polytheism prevalent at the time, but it also forbids atheism—the denial of any God.

Red Oak Christian Announcements

Sunday school begins at 9:45 a.m. with classes for all ages. Attendance was good last Sunday with an increase over the previous Sunday.

Mrs. James Wallace of Wilson will be guest speaker for Sunday's morning worship. Her topic will be "Making God Real" in observance of Universal Week of Prayer. Mrs. Wallace attended Butler University and Jordan Conservatory of Music in Indianapolis, Ind. Her husband is the minister of First Christian Church, Wilson. She is very active in Christian Women's Fellowship, the Church Choir, and leads a Prayer Group. Rev. and Mrs. Wallace have served for several years on the faculty of the Spiritual Life Conference at Christmount, near Black Mountain.

The Sanctuary Choir anthem will be "He Shall Be Great" by Peterson with Mrs. Margaret James, Thurston Wynne and Mrs. Jean Garris as soloists.

Flowers will be provided by Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Manning Jr. A Pre-School Nursery is provided during church. CWF Circles will meet as follows at 8 p.m. on Monday night: The Odell Evans Circle with Mrs. Jarvis Allen; Jean Garris Circle with Mrs. Ada Evans. Sanctuary and Youth Choir rehearsals will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

The Hookerton District Christian Men's Fellowship will hold its Quarterly Meeting on Thursday, Jan. 18, with the Red Oak CMF as hosts. Supper will be served at 7 p.m. The Rev. William Edge, pastor of the Grifton Christian Church, will be the speaker. Thurston Wynne will preside as he completes a year of service as president of the Hookerton CMF.

Youth Week will be observed Jan. 28-Feb. 4 with youth filling many places of service throughout the church and Sunday school on the two Sundays.

Fun For Nun In Construction

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—The hard hat says "Hank" and Mother Henry, a nun of the Society of the Sacred Heart, wears it most proudly as she supervises a hard-handed construction crew.

There is a mutual admiration between Mother Henry and the crew of big men that she oversees. The men, she says, have impressed her very, very much with their friendliness.

Mother Henry, the men say, is a fine supervisor, both in getting her job and knowing how to get good and fast work done. Between them they are building a dormitory at Duchesne College, an Omaha school for nuns where Mother Henry teaches.

Mother Henry teaches chemistry which may not be directly related to construction, but she also holds a rating as a third-class engineer.

She gained her rating at Seattle, Wash., where she took engineering training after being given the job of seeing that boilers in a convent operated properly. In her 40s, she spends just as much time climbing ladders to go along high beams on inspection trips as she does studying blueprints on the ground.

Of the job she says: All the heavy equipment is nothing more than combinations of the three simple machines studied in first-year physics or general science. The men have made her most happy by bringing their children to meet her.

And the usual kids to be found at a construction job?

Mother Henry says: "Ten minutes after the first bulldozers arrived there were at least two dozen neighborhood boys at the scene. A large part of the job has been making friends with them. We have had what I think is a fine record of only one instance of mischief and no vandalism."

Has Suggestions For Talkative

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—"A good look at their tongues," is one technique advised by a Pennsylvania medical educator for physicians with over-talkative patients.

The method was outlined Thursday for students at Vanderbilt University School of Medicine by Dr. Francis C. Wood, chairman of the department of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania.

An alternative, Dr. Wood said, would be to "put a thermometer in the mouth and leave it there." In really extreme cases, he said, the thing to do is to send the patient back to the waiting room with pencil and paper to list his symptoms.

Zorro Loves To Sleep In Tree

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Zorro loves to sleep in a tree. The only trouble is, he's not a cat or bird. He's a 2-year-old mongrel dog. Zorro's owner, Amy Mary Palaveda, said the dog started favoring his six-foot perch on a limb of a backyard tree about a year ago.

"He spends much of the day perched in the tree—it gives him a vantage point to keep an eye on the yard," she said.

multiply by five. Whatever the population of China is, the food supply is inadequate. Without an adequate food supply, the Communists cannot keep their people under control. The history of the country shows that hunger has led to revolution and to change of government. Furthermore, whenever China has faced famine, there has been an outpouring of the population in all directions, thus disturbing the status quo of East Asia. This is the situation now, and it will cause trouble.

Davidson Seeks 7th Win Against Belmont Tonite

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Davidson's Wildcats, busily engaged in qualifying for the title of "Comeback Team of the Year" in Southern Conference basketball try for their seventh consecutive victory tonight.

The Wildcats tangle with rugged Belmont Abbey, a non-conference foe with an 8-2 record, at Charlotte — and if they win, they'll move above the .500 level for the first time this season.

Coach Lefty Driesell's Wildcats started the season by losing their first six starts. Now they've won their last six.

Over the first six games, Davidson had just one man Driesell could depend on to score in twin figures—redheaded junior Bill Jarman. For those six defeats, Jarman tried his best, averaging 28 points per game. Terry Holland, 6-7 sophomore with a 13-point average, was a disappointment.

The turning point came in the Oglethorpe Invitational tournament Dec. 19, when Holland banged in 39 points in a 110-95 victory over Mississippi College.

In Davidson's victory streak, Jarman has scored at a more modest 20-point clip, but Holland has been pouring in points at the rate of 20.5 per game — and doing a great job under the boards. The Davidson-Belmont Abbey joust is the only game on tonight's schedule for Southern Conference teams.

In last night's game, William and Mary's Indians defeated The Citadel 71-58, dumping the Cadets into the conference basement.

Jim Roy and Bob Harris scored 16 points apiece and Roger Bergey added 15 for W&M as the Indians broke a five-game losing streak and sent The Citadel down to its sixth setback in a row.

Gary Daniels, paced The Citadel with 15 points but sat out much of the last half with four fouls. The Cadets sank just 15 of 51 shots — a mere 29 per cent — and lost the rebound battle, 60 to 32.

Even Lombardi Figures He Needs Extra Talent

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A fellow made the rounds of the National Football League asking each club "what do you need most?" Wellington Mara, vice-president of the New York Giants, answered. Then he added: "I can't wait to see what Vince Lombardi needs."

Lombardi's Green Bay Packers, of course, clobbered the Giants, 37-0 in the league championship game. The survey showed that even Lombardi was not satisfied. He wanted help, too.

Trade talk, begun at the league annual meetings, probably will solve some of the problems for the 14 clubs. Others hope to fill the gap with the new crop of college draftees.

Here is what they want, club by club: Western Division Green Bay—A defensive line-man and a defensive back. Lombardi thinks his draftees will fill the bill.

Detroit—A running back, offensive line-man and possibly a quarterback. Baltimore—A big halfback to help Johnny Unitas and defensive backs. Chicago—Help in the secondary both at halfback and safety positions.

Los Angeles—A big rushing line-man like the Packers' Henry Jordan and offensive line-men.

San Francisco—A linebacker, offensive backs and ends set at quarterback.

Minnesota—Defensive players, up front and in the secondary after giving up more points than any other club in the league. Eastern Division New York—Defensive line-man to lighten the load for the "big four" that played all the way in most of the 14 games. Also help for offensive line.

Philadelphia—Offensive line-man to hold off the rush on Sonny Jurgensen and a linebacker to replace Chuck Bednarik if he retires. Also could use an offensive end.

Cleveland—Offensive guard and tackle, receivers, a linebacker and a defensive back. Also a defensive end to replace Jim Houston who went into the Army.

Pittsburgh—an outside running threat and a quarterback to spell, or perhaps replace, Bobby Layne. Dallas—Big men all along the line needed on both offense and defense with key carryover personnel of Bob Lilly, Jerry Tubbs, Don Bishop, Don Meredith and Don Perkins.

St. Louis—Offensive line-men and a little more luck after losing 11 men due to injuries during the 1961 season.

Washington—Offensive line-man and a fullback with the hope that Ron Hatcher of Michigan State can do the job.

Plum To Call Own Plays On Saturday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mill Plum will be calling his own plays for the East Sunday in the pro bowl football game against the West.

That's quite a switch for Plum, who, as Cleveland's quarterback, gets his orders direct, on each play, from Coach Paul Brown.

Plum and the New York Giants' Y. A. Tittle, will divide the signal calling duties for Coach Allie Sherman's squad. Tittle has more latitude with the Giants. Plum says he anticipates no difficulties.

"Oh, there will be a few complications," explains the Cleveland quarterback, "but not as many as you might think. I've been practicing up. Last season I called almost a dozen plays for Cleveland."

"The mechanics are somewhat different in an all-star game. For instance, if I want to call a typical pass Sunday I may say "wing-trail-R-cross-L deep - hook-in-full-back-shoot." If Coach Brown wanted the same play he'd send in a shuttle player and say: 'Call 84.'"

Plum says he doesn't mind having Brown call all the signals. As he explains it: "When the coach is the field general, that keeps the pass receivers off the quarterback's back."

Tittle was elected Thursday as offensive captain of the East for Sunday's game, and end Andy Robustelli will be the defensive captain.

Norman Van Brocklin, coach of the Minnesota Vikings, who is the West coach, says he is looking for a great game.

"When you have the best players in the game on the field, as Allie Sherman and I have here, you've got to have a great football game."

Utah Out Of Tournament Due To NCAA Probation

By JIM HACKLEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

All of a sudden, Utah got knocked out of a shot at its fourth straight NCAA post-season basketball title tournament by very likely the only outfit capable of doing the job—the NCAA itself.

Utah got hit with a one-year probation Thursday on charges of giving illegal financial aid to a basketball player, meaning some club other than Jack Gardner's. Utah is representing the Skyline Conference in the annual NCAA extravaganza.

Undaunted by the penalty, national scoring leader Billy McGill and his playmates swept to their 12th victory in 14 starts Thursday night by trouncing Denver, 95-70. The hot-handed McGill netted 42 points, pushing his per game average to a gaudy 37.5 and breaking the Denver field-house record of 39 set by Vince Boryla of Denver 13 years ago.

Duke's Blue Devils (10-2), rated 10th nationally, won a scorching 67-46 at Clemson in the Atlantic Coast Conference, 104-96. Jim Mullins counted 14 of the Blue Devils' first 20 points and wound up with 30, while Art Heyman added 28. Jim Brennan scored 26 for Clemson and Tommy Mahaffey totaled 22.

Wichita (12-3), ran off from Drake 91-61. Larry Van Eman and Gene Wiley collected 18 points apiece on the home court for the Wheatshockers, one of the Missouri Valley Conference's big three. They are tied with Cincinnati for second place at 3-1, behind Bradley's 2-0.

Houston (11-3) enhanced its reputation as the Southwest's top independent, by beating Tulsa 69-61. Arizona State University (10-3), ran its Border Conference record to a perfect 3-0 and ended Texas Western's winning string at eight games, 62-55.

New Mexico State, also penalized by the NCAA Thursday with a 3-year probation for various infractions, cut down Arizona 68-55. Florida evened its season series with intrastate rival Miami at one apiece, 74-62, and Boston College trimmed Boston University 77-70.

Other results St. Louis 79, North Texas 60; Montana 91, New Mexico 79; William and Mary 71, The Citadel 58; Connecticut 104, New Hampshire 56; Georgia Tech 69, Georgia 62; Providence 68, Rhode Island 65 (overtime).

Fans Soured By NCAA Penalty

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — "A one-year ban is a harsh penalty for something involving a student who isn't even on the team any more."

That angry comment from a cafe owner echoed the feeling of many fans Thursday as word spread of an NCAA penalty against the University of Utah basketball team.

Utah's dreams of post season gold and glory went aglimmering when the NCAA barred the team from holiday and playoff tournaments for a year because of financial arrangements involving a transfer student no longer in school.

The NCAA charged that the player failed to make payments on a $150 loan, got some pay for a part-time job he didn't actually earn and received free transportation from New York to Salt Lake City.

Wake Forest Traveling To Pa. For Two Contests

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Wake Forest Deacons, who wrestled the Atlantic Coast Conference lead from North Carolina on their home court Wednesday night, take to the road tonight for games against two tough Pennsylvania foes. The Deacons won't play at home again for a month.

Wake takes a 6-4 season record to Johnstown, Pa., for its second game in history against St. Francis, which has a 5-5 season mark.

Saturday night the opponent, in Philadelphia, will be St. Joseph's, whom the Deacons have defeated only once in six games since 1939. The North Carolinians will be led by a gap-toothed young giant whose own home is in Pennsylvania — at Portage, not so far from the site of tonight's game. He's Len Chappell, 6-8, 240-pound senior who scored 30 points against North Carolina and who maintains a per-game average of around 27 points.

At Portage Joint High, he became the second player in Pennsylvania to score more than 2,000 points in a three-year career.

The Deacons have something of a dark horse star, too, in 6-11 Bob Woollard of Bloomfield, N.J. Woollard, a junior, broke his arm twice last season. But in his last four games he's scored 50 points and snared 50 rebounds.

He scored 19 points against North Carolina, and Coach Horace (Bones) McKinney called him "our best player in the last four games." After Chappell fouled out Woollard took charge against the Tar Heels.

Mid-term examinations contribute to a two-week layoff for the Deacons after Saturday's game. Then follow contests at Duke, against West Virginia at Charleston, at South Carolina, Clemson, Virginia Tech and North Carolina. The next home game is Feb. 12 with Virginia.

The St. Francis game is tonight's only schedule involving an ACC team. Other Saturday games are Maryland at Duke, North Carolina vs. Virginia at Greensboro, N.C., Clemson at Marshall and N. C. State at South Carolina.

Duke and Clemson put on a 200-point basket-burner at Clemson Thursday night, the Blue Devils winning 104-96. Jim Mullins score 30 points and Art Heyman 28 for Duke, followed by Fred Schmidt with 20.

For Clemson, Jim Brennan had 26, Tommy Mahaffey 22 and Nick Milasovich 20.

Duke held a 74-53 lead in the second half, and Mahaffey dropped in 17 points in seven minutes as Clemson pulled to within 94-86. But the Tigers couldn't pull it out.

The Blue Devils, 10th-ranked nationally, hit on 52.5 per cent of their field goal tries. Clemson was good on 48.1 per cent.

The victory pulled Duke into second place in the ACC with a 3-1 record, just behind Wake Forest (4-1) and ahead of North Carolina (2-1). Overall, Duke is 10-2. The 6-4 sophomore Mullins got 14 of Duke's first 20 points.

HORSES GET CLIPPED

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — When horses first arrive at Hialeah Park they have their winter coats of hair removed for the warm Florida climate. Horse barbers this winter are charging a minimum of $10 per clipping. It usually requires one hour. Much depends on the animal's behavior.

AAU President Welcomes Probe

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) —The president of the Amateur Athletic Union says he welcomes the idea of a White House investigation into the AAU dispute with the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"I think it will bear us out," said Louis J. Fisher, High Point attorney, of the investigation. "It may put the NCAA in an embarrassing position, but they asked for it."

Walter Byers, NCAA executive secretary, recently urged against the idea of a White House investigation.

Fisher charged Thursday that a group within the NCAA is trying to destroy the AAU "for the interests of just a few selfish individuals." He would not name anyone.

Tonight's Cage Games Canceled

D. H. Conley, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, said there will be no basketball games tonight in the county. Conley also noted that the date of makeup games is to be handled by the two schools involved.

The basketball game between Rose High and Roanoke Rapids has also been canceled. It was not known today when the game would be rescheduled.

Yankees Named Team Of Year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Yankees have been named The Associated Press' 1961 team of the year.

Ralph Houk's world baseball champions collected 255 points in the year-end balloting by 156 sportswriters and broadcasters to beat out the Green Bay Packers, National Football League title holders. Green Bay collected 213 in the poll, announced Thursday.

The Yankees won the American League pennant with a 109-53 record and finished eight games ahead of second place Detroit. The Bombers slugged a record 240 home runs in the regular season, then thumped Cincinnati in five games in the World Series.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Marvin Trotman of Elizabeth City (N.C.) leads all basketball scorers in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic with an average of 31.6 points a game.

Central State (Ohio) is averaging 38.6 points a game to lead in team scoring. Oklahoma Baptist has the best team defense, yielding 50.1 points a game.

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association, programming the fifth day of its 56th convention, gave emphasis today to its differences with the Amateur Athletic Union, a television report, and a proposal for battling bribery and gambling in amateur sports.

Wilbur Johns, UCLA's athletic director and chairman of the NCAA's committee on AAU relations, prepared a review of past discussions with the AAU in the association's struggle to gain more representation and voice in the AAU. Johns' report appeared on the agenda in the wake of an NCAA council vote to endorse the creation of new federations in track and field and gymnastics as well as in basketball.

Jim Corbett, athletic director at Louisiana State University, was on the agenda to discuss plans for NCAA television of football for next season. A two-year NCAA contract with the American Broadcasting Company will expire before the next football season, and a new one must be negotiated.

A special round table meeting was the arena set for presentation of association president Henry Hardt's report on a 16-point program to eradicate gambling and bribery. The NCAA council approved the program in New York last October and will submit the plan for endorsement by the full convention tomorrow.

Among today's program items were proposals that would: Bar all basketball competition outside NCAA events;

Bar an athlete from varsity competition until he has been in residence in a college for two years if he transfers after registering at another school;

Require an athlete transferring from one school to have one year of residence at his new school before becoming eligible for varsity competition; and Require an athlete suspended from college for disciplinary or academic reasons to complete two years of satisfactory work at another school before he can compete on the varsity level.

The council, policy-making body of the NCAA, completed consideration of infractions Thursday by slapping a three-year term on New Mexico State, mostly for football violations; a one-year basketball punishment on the University of Utah; and one-year football bowl restrictions on two small school members, Humboldt State of Arcata, Calif., and Whitmore College of Spokane, Wash.

Western Carolina Drops Close One In Overtime

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Western Carolina, faltering after showing strength last week in the Carolinas Conference basketball race, dropped a squeaker Thursday night to Appalachian.

The Catamounts' Dowell Murray dropped in a last-second field goal that tied the score 65-65 at the end of regular time.

In overtime, with the Mountaineers leading 72-71, Doug Wall sank a field goal and was fouled. He hit the free throw and the 3-point parlay put Appalachian out of reach.

Western Carolina's top scorer was Gibson with 21 points. Appalachian's was Richardson with 19. Both teams are 3-4 in the conference. The Apps are 3-6 overall, WC 6-6.

High Point was outplayed in the second half and couldn't quite catch up, losing to Belmont Abbey 66-62.

The Panthers tied things up at 54-54 with five minutes left, but the Abbey built up its lead again, usually ahead by three or four points. Jim McDermott led Crusader scorers with 17 points, Jim Lytel had 16 and Bernie Brennan 15. High Point's high scorer was Barry Smith with 16. Dave Wickham had 15, Phil Garrison 14 and Joe Keith 13.

High Point is 4-6 for the season. Belmont Abbey, which faces Davidson of the Southern Conference in Charlotte, is 8-2.

Pfeiffer rolled over Guilford 83-70, fending off a Quaker rally in the first half. Top Pfeiffer scorers were Larry Lentz with 22 points, Harold McManus 18, Dennis Hottinger 14 and Bobby Frank 11. For Guilford Wayne Wyckoff had 18, Ken Ward 14, Jon Burwell 13 and Dan Kuzma 11.

In other small college action, Pembroke bowed 81-66 to Wofford. George Acritell had 17 points and Pat Lynch 15 for the losers. No conference games are scheduled tonight.

Swim Meet And Clinic Canceled

The High School swimming meet and swimming clinic scheduled this weekend at East Carolina College has been canceled due to the weather.

CHAPTER 29

"This is a bright and happy day in my life," Martin Whitfield told Lee Folsom as they drove along the highway.

"Then Hilda likes Oakland?" asked Lee.

"Oh, Hilda's delighted. And she's glad she's here to supervise the rest of the job," Martin chuckled.

"And of course you're not!" Lee mocked him lightly.

"I've missed her," said Martin gravely, and Lee's heart skipped a beat.

They turned off the highway some little distance from the main entrance to Oakland. The drive before them was raw and new, neatly graveled and winding determinedly among giant trees. "The men who cut the road thought I was mildly demented because I made them go around the trees instead of bulldozing them," he confessed. "But there's something in me that loathes the sight of a tree being cut down or dug up by the roots unless it's absolutely necessary—and I always try to find out that it isn't."

"I suppose the men with the bulldozers reminded you that you had more trees than anyone could need," she teased him.

"Also, that cutting the ground around the trees made the operation much more expensive. And when even that didn't make me change my mind, they just accepted the fact that 'any city-feller is a nut,' especially if he's 'one of them Yankee-critters,' and obeyed orders," Martin grinned.

They were now in sight of the caretaker's cottage, and Lee cried out in delight. The neatly painted house stood behind a freshly painted white fence. The lawn had been weeded, seeded with grass, and the flower beds put in neat order.

"I had no idea you'd accomplished this much!" Lee said as she got out of the car and walked beside him up to the house.

"Why, it's lovely!"

"Hilda likes it," Martin beamed happily, as though there were no more to be said on that subject. "Come on in. She's back in the kitchen supervising the installation of some of the equipment."

He guided Lee along the hall to the door of the kitchen, which he pushed open. Several electricians were busy in the room, installing refrigerator, stove, hot water heater and cabinets.

And in the middle of the room, like a general commanding his troops, stood a tall, heavily built woman in an immaculate white uniform beneath a dark linen apron. Her hair was thick and golden, but streaked here and there with silver, and her plump face was marked with at least sixty years.

Martin gave Lee a fleeting, amused glance and spoke aloud. "Hilda, stop riding herd on the workmen; they know their job. Come here and meet Miss Folsom," he ordered sternly, though he was grinning and there was a twinkle in his eyes as he watched Lee's expressive face register a chaotic surge of emotions.

"I come, Mr. Martin," said Hilda, her voice deep and resonant. She turned to them, her blue eyes sweeping Lee from head to foot with a glance that Lee knew took in every detail of her appearance. "And this is Miss Folsom?"

"Yes, Hilda, this is Miss Folsom," said Martin. And then to Lee, "And this is someone I've very much wanted you to meet. Hilda Svenson, my very dearest friend."

Lee stared at Hilda, wide-eyed, feeling as if the floor beneath her feet heaved like a ship at sea. Puzzled, Hilda stared back at her, her fresh-faced smile fading slightly as she saw the look in Lee's eyes.

Lee turned those eyes to Martin, caught his impish grin and knew that he understood perfectly her shock and incredulity.

"This is Hilda?" she asked idly.

"This is Hilda," Martin answered.

"Some is wrong?" asked Hilda suspiciously. Lee could not keep back the joyous laughter that bubbled in her throat and spilled from her lips, as Hilda's resentment grew. "Something is funny?" Hilda asked, and only the faintest smile in her voice indicated that she was not speaking in her native language.

Lee, sensing Hilda's resentment, put out a swift, conciliatory hand and laid it on the strong, muscular arm inside the starched white uniform.

"Oh, yes, Hilda," she bubbled. "Something is very funny! Me!"

Hilda, scowling, looked from Lee's laughing face to Martin's and drew herself up, offended. "This I do not understand," she said loftily.

"Hilda, it's only that I misunderstood Martin when he told me about you," Lee made a laughing apology. "I thought you were his fiancée, that you were going to marry him!"

Hilda's eyebrows went up and her blue eyes were startled.

"But this is strange," she murmured aloud. "It is you he told me he was going to marry."

Lee caught her breath, and once more the floor seemed to heave beneath her feet, as Martin made a swift, protesting, "Oh, now, Hilda, wait a minute!"

Hilda stared at him, puzzled. "I have said something wrong?" she asked, bewildered. "You did not tell me you were married?"

Lee looked up at him, her mirthful eyes daring him to deny it, as she said deprecatingly, "Did you, Martin? Wouldn't it have been a little more considerate of you to have told me, too?"

"I meant to," Martin began awkwardly.

"Well, good! I'm glad you were going to let me in on your plans eventually, anyway," Lee told him with a trace of asperity, and turned back to Hilda. "When he said that you were fond enough of him to be willing to come here to live, I took it for granted you were his fiancée."

Hilda smiled adoringly at Martin.

"Since he was a small baby, so big," she held her hands a few inches apart, "I have take care of him. I have love him and bring him up. He knows I will go anywhere, any time he asks me, if it will make him happy. But marry him? No, that I cannot do. Lars would not like it."

There was a merry twinkle in her eyes as she said it, and Martin explained to Lee, "Lars is Hilda's husband." And to Hilda, "Where is he, by the way?"

Hilda made a gesture that took in the world outside.

"You ask that, Mr. Martin. When you see all this beautiful land around us? And you know that since Lars was a young man in Sweden, he has wanted one thing: to grow fine vegetables and beautiful flowers and get his feet in the soil! So now he is out like a happy child, planning, looking, dreaming! Always in New York he dreamed of the country. And now, here at Oakland, all his dreams are coming true!"

"Mine, too, Hilda, I hope," said Martin, and looked with delight at the soft flush that spread over Lee's face.

One of the workmen attracted Hilda's attention, and Martin drew Lee out with him into the brilliant noonday warmth.

For a moment they stood side by side on the steps of the cottage, looking out over the rolling sweep of meadow and pasture and orchard.

After a long moment Martin said tentatively, "I believe we planned a picnic lunch?"

"That's right; we did, didn't we?" Lee answered shakily.

"And I know just the spot for it. Down across the terrace where the creek runs beneath the willows, there's a perfect picnic spot."

There was now the faintest possible tension between them, and Martin, aware of it, merely smiled faintly as he went to the car and got the picnic hamper and followed her along the narrow, winding path that led across the

Not Involved

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Sanford isn't definite about future races of his own, but he said Thursday he won't get involved in this year's legislative contests.

He told his weekly news conference it would be improper for him to campaign for individual races for the 1963 General Assembly.

However, Sanford said he feels voters should support lawmakers who voted for the extension of the sales tax for school funds in the 1961 legislature. "Men who take political chances to further the progress of the state deserve support, and I hope they will get it," he declared.

The governor backtracked on a Wednesday night remark that he would not again run for political office. He said that was just "a casual statement." Asked if that meant he might eye other political races after his term as governor, Sanford replied: "We'll decide that at a later date."

Wants Action On Power Rates

RALEIGH (AP)—Sanford said Thursday he has asked the State Utilities Commission "to see what courses are open" to do something about high electric power rates in northeastern North Carolina.

The governor told his weekly news conference that a preliminary report from the commission showed that rates charged in the area by Virginia Electric and Power Co. are generally higher in comparison with rates charged by other power companies operating in the state.

The high VEPCO rates "are holding up the advancement of northeastern North Carolina," Sanford asserted. "I think they could get by on lower rates."

Sanford said he has not yet discussed the matter with VEPCO officials. He asked the Utilities Commission to study the matter, he said, after businessmen and others in the northeastern section made complaints to him over the past several months.

Figures released by the governor showed VEPCO power charges higher than those of CP&L and Duke Power Co. on comparable bills. For residential customers, the figures showed 25 kilowatt hours of power would cost $1 from CP&L, $1.39 from Duke, and $1.50 from VEPCO. For commercial customers, 375 kilowatt hours would cost $12.30 from CP&L, $12.95 from Duke, and $15.57 from VEPCO.

What other decision can Lee make now? The story concludes here tomorrow.

NOT SUBJECT TO CHECK

This is a Certificate of Time Deposit. You buy it from us just as you would buy a bond. It binds us to pay you 4% for 12 months.

This may be important to you. The F.D.I.C. and Federal Reserve System could lower the rate at any time to 2% or 3%, just as they recently raised the authorized rate to 4%.

However, if you purchase a Time Certificate of Deposit shown above, the 4% interest is guaranteed for 12 months . . . regardless of general changes in the rate.

Cancer Program To Last Through April

The American Cancer Society's "Conquer Uterine Cancer" program in cooperation with the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Pitt County, will continue through April.

According to Dr. Howard Grady, President of the local Pitt County Unit, the American Cancer Society program seeks to eventually eliminate uterine cancer as a cause of death in the county.

At present, over 300 women die each year in North Carolina from uterine cancer. "Most of these deaths," Dr. Grady explained, "are unnecessary. They occur when diagnosis and treatment are too late."

The "Conquer Uterine Cancer" drive is being spearheaded by local affiliates of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs. Primary objective of this life-saving program, the A. C. S. says, "is to get every club woman in Pitt County to have a health checkup and a 'Pap' smear examination as the first step toward a lifelong habit of annual health examination as a safeguard against death from cancer."

The Society said that after Federation affiliates have been canvassed thoroughly, the program will be extended to other groups in Pitt County who will be urged to impress on their members and neighbors the importance of an annual health checkup and a "Pap" examination.

"The goal of this program," the Society said, "is the eventual control of uterine cancer." The Society explained that since 1936, the death rate from uterine cancer has gradually dropped 50 per cent in recent years. The "Pap" smear technique for early detection makes an almost 100 per cent drop possible. "Despite this fact," the Society said, "some 14,000 women die each year of uterine cancer." Progress of clubs in Pitt County is being reported to the North Carolina Division through the local units of the American Cancer Society. Clubs having a high percentage of their members participate in the program will receive awards from the American Cancer Society at the completion of the project next April.

Out Of Court And Back Again

MINEOLA, N. Y. (AP)—Robert G. McCue, 20, appeared in traffic court Wednesday and was released in $2,350 bail on several motor vehicle charges. The judge suspended his driver's license until disposition of the case.

McCue put up his bail, left the courtroom, got into his car and started driving off. A court officer stopped him and shepherded him back into the court—this time on a charge of driving while his license was suspended.

The judge added $500 to the bail. McCue put it up and went home by bus.

Gets $353,549 In Cattle Drive

WINNER, S.D. (AP)—"Biggest check we've ever drawn up here," said Eldon Daughters of the Winner Livestock Auction.

He then casually handed to rancher Don Hight the piece of paper calling for payment of $353,549.

Hight, pocketing the check, agreed that it represented a fair price for his 1,833 cattle and 18 horses, brought here in a 65-mile drive that stirred echoes of the Old West.

Unfavorable weather and low prices on Midwest livestock markets kept Hight's take a bit under the $360,000 he had estimated he would get. His 1,054 cows brought $210,774, the 779 steers $141,700.

Making up the difference were proceeds from the horses, used to pull hay wagons and ridden by the seven drovers who helped Hight on the five-day trek that brought the herd here.

What will he do now? Head back to his 16,000-acre spread near Westover and start all over again, said Hight. The ex-paratrooper said he still has about 1,000 steers roaming his ranch.

But he said he doubted if he would undertake another drive very soon because he doesn't plan to raise enough cattle to make such a venture worthwhile.

Despite the subzero cold, snow and high winds that beset the drive along the trail that ended here Tuesday night, Hight still estimated he had saved about $2,000 under what trucking the animals would have cost.

Biggest buyer of the day was John Clay, Hershey, Neb., who laid out $36,218 for 202 of Hight's breeding cows.

Couple Cashed In; Bank Sues

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Duncan had 67 cents in their Lee County Bank account last November when a bank clerk mistakenly credited their balance with $12,000.

In December, the Duncans withdrew their 67 cents and the $12,000 — and now the bank has filed suit to recover the money. The suit charges the Duncans "wrongfully withheld the $12,000 and unjustly enriched themselves contrary to the laws and statutes of the state of Florida."

Space Agency Leap-Frogs Steps To 'Super' Saturn

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—The space agency, leap-frogging over three concepts of the Saturn rocket, has decided on a super Saturn with far more power than any rocket the Free World has ever known.

The first stage, or lift-off booster, will have five engines developing a total thrust of 1.7 million pounds of thrust. That compares with the 1.5 million pounds of thrust built into the Saturn first stage which was launched at Cape Canaveral, Fla., last November.

And the huge rocket will be capable of carrying a payload of about 110 tons, twice the normal maximum load of an ordinary railroad box car.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Marshall Space Flight Center here announced Thursday that a decision had been made on the five-engine cluster for the first and second stages of the advanced Saturn. The third stage will carry a single engine.

Two stages will be used for

Value Of Teaching Aids Is Discussed

Dr. Frank Fuller of East Carolina College, speaking to those assembled Thursday night at Wahl-Coates School for the City Council P-T-A. meeting, explained how teaching aids help teachers to use concrete experience as a means to abstract thinking.

In teaching and learning, people move from concrete experience to abstract thinking, he said. They learn by doing, by observing and by reasoning from abstractions. The newer teaching media help the teacher to provide more concrete experience, upon which abstractions are based, and upon which concepts are formed.

The newer teaching media do not replace teachers, but are tools or aids that the teachers use in their classrooms to find concrete experience for the students. The theory is, he explained, that once a child has had a concrete experience, he is able to think abstractly.

The aids bring the child experiences he might not have had before, such as a picture of a seal. Before he has seen the picture, he may not have ever seen a real seal and therefore has no real conception of seal or the word "seal."

Teaching aids such as filmstrips and machines help deal

Work Stops In Cold Paradise

PARADISE, Ky. (AP)—It was too cold Thursday to work in Paradise.

Al Weber, general manager of Tennessee Valley Authority Construction, said work at the TVA steam generating plant being built here has been halted until Monday.

Weber said the cold weather was freezing water lines and making work impossible.

Land Given Local Masons For Building New Home

James J. Gilbert, the oldest living past master of Greenville Masonic Lodge 284, A. F. & A. M., has contributed more than half of a 70,000-square-foot site destined to be the home of the Greenville lodge and of Crown Point Lodge 708, A. F. & A. M.

The announcement of Gilbert's gift, valued at $20,000, was made following a meeting Thursday of a joint steering committee representing both local lodges. The remainder of the near-future site of construction of a Masonic building will be purchased by both lodges. Final arrangements for the purchase have been made.

The site is located between Charles and Lawrence Streets and is bounded on the south by E. 12th Street. It has 308 feet of street frontage along E. 12th Street and 225 feet of frontage on both Charles and Lawrence Streets.

Gilbert, who will be 85 his next birthday, made the presentation to both lodges as a memorial to his late wife, Mrs. Georgia Anderson Gilbert. The late Mrs. Gilbert was active in the local organization of the Order of the Eastern Star until her death.

Gilbert's stated purpose for the contribution was for the use of Masonry in Greenville.

Masonic committees, it was announced Thursday, are already working on preliminary details

Son Expected To Ignore Marriage Fitness Tests

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—Kenneth Kelley's getting married in April—probably without taking the "marriage fitness" tests ordered in his hereditary-conviction father's will.

The Air Force lieutenant and his fiancée, Susan Miles, are willing but there is considerable doubt the tests will be ready. They are yet to be prepared by scientists.

"We'll go ahead and get married anyway," says Susan, 19, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Miles of Rancho Cordova, Calif.

Unanswered was the question of whether Kenneth, 21, will lose much of his share of his father's $175,000 estate if he marries before the tests have been formulated.

Personal Triumph For Oklahoma Republican

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—The Republican National Committee meeting here this weekend is a personal triumph for Henry Bellmon, the big, blunt-talking farmer who is fast becoming Oklahoma's "Mr. Republican."

Bellmon has reorganized and revitalized the party in the two years since he became state chairman.

William Miller, national Republican chairman, said the decision to meet in Oklahoma came as a recognition to the state party's sudden surge in this Democratic stronghold.

It is apparent that Bellmon considers this meeting as another stepping stone toward the goal he has set for the party and himself. He has a special reason for wanting the Republicans to break a 55-year drought and elect their first Oklahoma governor in 1962—he probably will be the GOP gubernatorial nominee.

Bellmon has had the same success in running the state party that he had in his Noble County precinct. During his chairmanship there from 1952 to 1958, he was so successful at raising funds and stimulating voter interest, he received recognition from both the state and national parties.

Under his leadership last year, Oklahoma went Republican in the presidential election while Democrats won nationally. Clyde Wheeler Jr. almost became the first Republican congressman elected from the state's present 6th District, getting a majority of votes in the first count, but losing in a recount.

Bellmon contends Oklahoma is becoming more conservative, and his party can make big gains this year.

It didn't take other Republican leaders long to recognize Bellmon's prowess as a political fighter. They began urging him to run for governor and he consented. He is a heavy favorite to win the nomination.

Bellmon heckled Gov. J. Howard Edmondson by congratulating him on cleaning up the outside of the state Capitol. He said Republicans will complete the job by giving the inside "a long overdue scrubbing."

He says Edmondson sometimes tries to initiate good government, but is blocked by "Old Guard" Democrats who control the party organization and the legislature. State Democrats deny his accusations.

Bellmon says his major concern is stopping the trend toward bigger government and more taxes. He is particularly opposed to further increases in the public welfare program.

Bellmon is a 200-pounder built like a football tackle. He wears his hair cropped close and looks younger than his 40 years. His soft voice and calm disposition are sometimes deceiving.

The only public office he ever held was right after World War II when he served one term in the legislature from Noble County. Defeated for re-election in 1948, he concentrated his energies on a new business venture as a dirt moving contractor.

Later he sold-out this business and expanded his wheat farm to 1,400 acres. He still operates this farm in Noble County.

Bellmon is a Presbyterian, a former Marine and the father of three daughters.

His goal for a Republican victory this fall includes more than himself. He also wants to elect one senator, three congressmen and 50 state legislators in Oklahoma.

Even he admits this is a very ambitious goal—but not an impossible one.

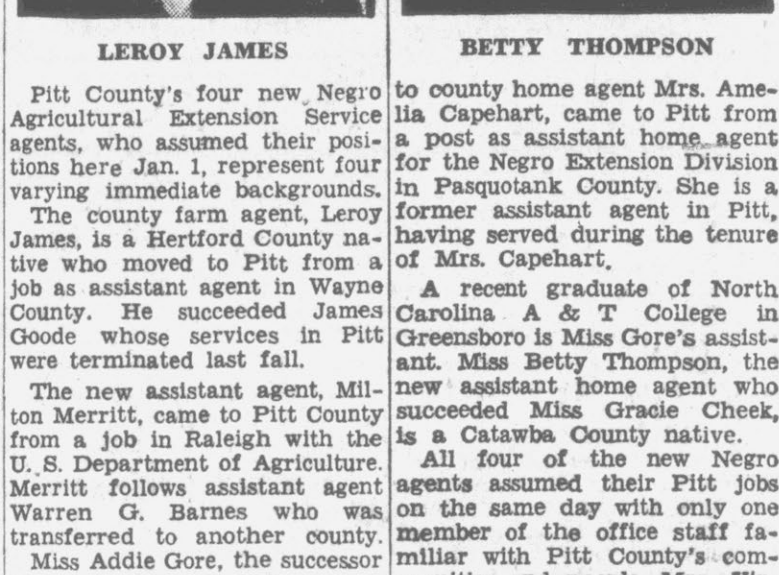

Varied Backgrounds In New Extension Agents

Pitt County's four new Negro Agricultural Extension Service agents, who assumed their positions here Jan. 1, represent four varying immediate backgrounds.

The county farm agent, Leroy James, is a Hertford County native who moved to Pitt from a job as assistant agent in Wayne County. He succeeded James Goode whose services in Pitt were terminated last fall.

The new assistant agent, Milton Merritt, came to Pitt County from a job in Raleigh with the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Merritt follows assistant agent Warren G. Barnes who was transferred to another county.

Satisfied SBI Is Checking All Angles In Probe

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Sanford is satisfied the State Bureau of Investigation is checking all angles of highway sign contracts, involving Robert A. Burch and Kidd Brewer.

The governor made the comment Thursday to his weekly news conference, as he disclosed that Brewer deposited funds at Duke University for use as a grant-in-aid for Burch's son.

Burch, traffic engineer with the State Highway Department, was fired Sunday by Gov. Sanford. The governor said Burch had been "too closely associated with Mr. Kidd Brewer in connection with funds received from companies selling sign materials to the State Highway Commission."

Brewer is a Raleigh insurance man with varied business interests. Sanford said an investigation showed a company formed by Brewer received $80,000 from companies selling sign materials to the state. The governor said $40,000 was paid by Brewer's company to Bobby Burch, college-age son of the Highway Department official.

Aid To Laotian Gov't Resumed

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The United States today resumed economic aid to Prince Boun Oum's right-wing Laotian government.

U.S. Embassy sources said the government was advised a $4-million cash grant for January was being deposited in a New York bank, the Chase Manhattan.

The payment to defray most of the government's expenses had been held up for nearly two weeks, but an embassy spokesman refused to comment on the reason for the delay or for the resumption of aid.
