Couldn't Stand The Change

YESTERDAY'S SNOW FUN, TODAY'S MESS . . . This snow lady took shape Saturday only to fall victim to today's warm rain. The snow figures were at 1607 Chestnut St.

Rain And Warm Air Remove Snow

Warming temperatures and rain have helped the process of clearing paved roads of ice and snow, but dirt roads in the city and county were reported in "deplorable" condition.

Sometime yesterday, temperatures began a rising trend which has continued. At 8 o'clock this morning the temperature was 41 degrees, with highs for today predicted in the 50s and 60s.

The very warm temperatures, combined with rain, resulted in virtual disappearance of all snow and ice from buildings and grounds around Greenville today. The combined effect also left a sloppy mess, street workmen said.

C. K. Beatty of the Public Works Department in Greenville stated that paved streets are clear, but dirt streets "are more or less deplorable." He added that there is almost nothing his crews can do to alleviate the situation except use sand to fill in some spots.

As for county roads, again the paved sections were clear, while dirt roads were wet and sloppy. V. F. Johnson, maintenance supervisor of the N. C. Maintenance Dept., said this morning. Ground under dirt roads has remained frozen in places due to previous cold temperatures, so that driving is still hazardous in areas.

The weatherman predicted that rain will continue to be scattered throughout the day, with possible thunderstorms in the eastern and central portions this afternoon. Following the rain, colder temperatures will return.

Tonight will be colder, with Tuesday partly cloudy and colder.

The extended weather forecast for this week predicted about normal temperatures for this time of year, with heavy doses of rain at the first and the latter parts of the week.

Clearing of roads resulted in resumption of classes for school students, and return to normal activity for others forced to curb them during the snow last week.

The Tar River has continued to rise for several days and measured 13.8 feet, still rising, this morning David Sutton of the Greenville Utilities Plant said.

High and low temperatures for Sunday were 43 and 19 degrees, respectively. At midnight the temperature reading was 37 degrees.

Uncover Cavern In Nevada Road Work

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Last month workmen bulldozing a road to a new picnic grounds in the Toiyabe Forest uncovered a slit in a hillside.

A couple of adventuresome souls wormed and stumbled inside, and down a narrow passage about two blocks long, pointing toward the heart of the snow-covered Mt. Charleston range.

Their probing flashlights disclosed a room the size of a high school gymnasium, glistening eerily yet beautifully with multi-colored rock formations created by dripping lime water.

Result: the cavern in the mountain 45 miles northwest of this desert resort may some day become a tourist attraction.

Those who have seen it liken it to the famed caves in Carlsbad, N.M., and Luray, Va.

There are stalactites as thin as spaghetti and five feet long, others that look like elephant ears with dainty patterns running through them.

From the floor rise stalagmites that look and feel like wax candles. The colors are white, orange and brown.

"It made me feel kind of silly," said Wayne Kinnie of the Las Vegas Review-Journal, the first man to bring out pictures. "And then I started feeling like Christopher Columbus."

Storms Slated For Area Today

RALEIGH (AP)—The Weather Bureau today issued the following severe weather bulletin:

"A line of thunderstorms is expected to move eastward through the Carolinas today with the most intense activity producing isolated damaging windstorms, and possibly one or two isolated tornadoes in an area along and 50 miles on either side of a line from Lumberton, N.C., to Elizabeth City, N.C., from 12 noon, until 5 p.m. today."

Camel Driver Is Presented Truck

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—A pickup truck with two cases of spare parts and a complete tool box was formally handed to Pakistan camel driver Bashir Ahmad today by U.S. Ambassador William Rountree and the local Ford representative.

This type of truck usually costs about $5,000 in Pakistan. But the government of Pakistan, as a goodwill gesture to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's friend, waived the usual customs duty and sales tax and saved Bashir $1200.

The truck was a gift of the Ford Motor Co.

Macmillan Gives Queen Report

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan flew to Queen Elizabeth's country place at Sandringham today to report on his recent talks with President Kennedy and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Government officials called it a routine audience.

More Aircraft Are Ferried To South Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—A U.S. Navy ship arrived today with two large Army helicopters and several observation planes to aid the forces of President Ngo Dinh Diem against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

The aircraft ferry Breton, a converted carrier, also had seven jet fighters and a Neptune flying boat bomber on her deck, but these were to be taken to Yokosuka Naval Air Station in Japan, U.S. sources said.

Four jets bearing the markings of the U.S. Air Force 109th Fighter Squadron landed today at Saigon airport, but U.S. sources declined to comment on them.

The sources denied a report that the Breton had discharged a company of helicopters—about 20 aircraft and 200 men—farther up the coast of South Viet Nam on Sunday.

The Breton was the second ship loaded with planes to arrive here since South Viet Nam and the United States reached agreement last month on a major new military buildup.

The first ship, the Core, brought about 40 helicopters and 400 U.S. Army men to fly and service them. The helicopters are capable of carrying 14 men each.

The official silence blanketing the arrival of new U.S. equipment has led to wide speculation as to the numbers and types of weapons being brought into the war-torn republic.

Large quantities of military supplies arrive here both by air and ship nearly every day, and convoys made up of U.S. Army trucks are often seen passing through Saigon.

Prompt Listing Of Taxes Urged

With nearly half of Pitt County's January tax-listing schedule gone, an estimated 40 per cent of the county's approximately 23,000 taxpaying property owners had completed listing their taxes by noon today.

County Tax Collector and Supervisor R. S. Moye urged Pitt Citizens to visit the designated listing station in their respective townships during the month of January.

Moye cautioned again that owners of real personal property who fail to list their holdings for tax assessment purposes during the specified period will be subject to the 10 per cent late-listing penalty.

The percentage of Pitt County already listed was apparently held down because of last week's snow. At the courthouse today, however, in spite of a dismal morning, Moye noted the busiest tax listing activity since Jan. 2, the day the books were opened for Greenville township.

Based on information recorded by the tax listers, Pitt's ad valorem revenues are assessed at one-third of actual value. The commissioners, before beginning fiscal 1962-63, will establish the tax rate to be applied to property now being listed.

The 1961-62 countywide rate, the basis for ad valorem assessment, was $1.25 per $100 valuation.

U.S. And The Common Market To Initial Tariff Cutting Pact

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—The United States and common market nations will initial a sweeping agreement to cut tariffs on many industrial products Tuesday, informed sources said today.

The informants confirmed reports that cuts of about 20 per cent on some industrial items are foreseen.

As to U.S. agricultural products, they will be considered in later negotiations between the United States and the European Economic Community, the formal name for the six-nation common market, these sources reported. They will involve wheat, corn and poultry.

The agreement will be initiated by Howard Petersen, special adviser to President Kennedy, and Jean Rey, member of the EEC in charge of foreign relations.

The agreement cannot become final until it is approved unanimously by the EEC council of ministers, informants said. U.S. sources said the agreement also has to go back to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade organizations in Geneva, under whose auspices the negotiations began.

A spokesman for the U.S. mission to the EEC confirmed that a meeting had been arranged between Petersen and Rey for Tuesday but said as far as they know, the meeting is not for the formal signature of any agreement.

"Everything seems to be going all right," the sources said. "Meetings of experts are taking place today to examine the last problems still pending. These meetings will continue tomorrow morning if need be."

The sources indicated that the French representatives had expressed some reservations about tariff cuts on imports of some American chemicals, but that it was hoped these objections could be met to the satisfaction of the French government.

The pact, it was understood, involves up to 20 per cent reductions on hundreds of tariffs—more by the six-nation market than by the United States.

It also was reported that an arrangement had been made for protecting U.S. farm products in trade with the market.

The agriculture problem had been the main obstacle in the 15 months of negotiations. That apparently was cleared Sunday when the Common Market hammered together a joint agriculture program.

When the deal goes through—and informants indicated it may be near the signing stage—the U.S. tariff reductions would be made under the authority already held by President Kennedy.

Such authority was granted by the 1958 enabling act of the reciprocal trade program. This is the program Kennedy wants greatly expanded to give him a freer hand in negotiating massive tariff reductions with the Common Market.

State Department officials said that one result of the agreement would be that the Common Market would lower its tariffs 20 per cent.

U.S. reductions—limited by the trade act—would be up to 20 per cent.

The agreement was worked out in Brussels with special presidential adviser Howard Petersen representing the United States in final talks with officials of the Common Market—which is made up of West Germany, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

In the Brussels meeting, the Common Market officials have been negotiating agreements for the second stage of a three-phase trade program.

Completion of the second stage after 16 days of tough horse trading smooths the way for negotiations with other European nations seeking to join the trade bloc and for possible bilateral agreements with the United States.

The market's goal is a united, economic giant that could compete successfully with both the United States and the Communist bloc.

Gizenga Target Of Congo Wrath

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The Congo Parliament by an overwhelming majority censured Antoine Gizenga today for his defiance of the central Congo government. The pro-Communist deputy premier was a virtual prisoner of U.N. and Congolese forces encircling his residence in Stanleyville.

The government announced Gizenga had agreed to end his self-imposed exile and return to Leopoldville by this Saturday after his personal bodyguard surrendered Sunday to Congolese troops. His capitulation came too late to avert the parliamentary wrath.

After a brief but angry debate, the vote in the Chamber of Deputies was 67 for the censure motion, a single vote against it, and one abstention.

The parliamentary action left the way open for Premier Cyrille Adoula to oust Gizenga from the deputy premiership he accepted last August but never actually filled.

One deputy said Gizenga's gendarmes who battled Congolese troops in Stanleyville over the weekend were in every way comparable to the foreign mercenaries fighting for President Mobutu Tshombe in Katanga Province.

Nearly 300 of Gizenga's gendarmes—his military army in Stanleyville—have been disarmed and taken prisoner by central government troops a U.N. spokesman reported.

One platoon of about 25 remains to be neutralized, but they were being rounded up in the bush around Stanleyville, he added.

Up to the end of fighting yesterday 14 Congolese troops were reported killed.

Gen. Victor Lundula, former pro-Gizenga military chief in the northeast who switched his allegiance to Leopoldville, forced the showdown with his old leader.

Lundula's troops trapped Gizenga in his Stanleyville mansion beside the Congo River and gave a 30-minute ultimatum for the palace bodyguard to lay down their arms, U.N. reports said.

U.N. headquarters, after consulting with acting Secretary-General U. Thant, announced full backing of the central government's effort to bring Gizenga's forces to heel.

Informants said the central government had authorized Lundula to take all necessary measures to put down the simmering insurrection in Stanleyville even to arresting Gizenga.

Gizenga agreed to serve as deputy premier under Adoula but remained in Leopoldville only three weeks. Since then he reportedly has been trying unsuccessfully to whip up a military rebellion against the central government.

New Strain For U.S. And Ally

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Renewed U.N. debate on Angola today puts a new strain on ties between the United States and its Atlantic ally Portugal.

The debate was the first major business as the General Assembly resumes its 16th annual session after a Christmas recess.

Asian and European diplomats said U.S. delegates had told them it hoped the 104-nation assembly would adopt a moderate, meaningful resolution that would push the Portuguese toward self-determination for Angola.

But Portugal contended that the assembly had no right to even discuss its big West African territory. It maintained that all Portuguese overseas territories are provinces, not colonies, and their control is a domestic matter outside the assembly's jurisdiction.

There was speculation that the Portuguese delegation would boycott the Angola debate as it did on a similar occasion last April. Sources in Lisbon have predicted that Portugal would quit the United Nations if the assembly censured rule over Angola.

Diplomatic sources said the United States probably would not introduce a resolution itself but would try to see that any introduced from Africa, Asia or Latin America would contribute toward (1) self-determination for Angola (2) a satisfactory settlement of the 11-month-old rebellion there.

Communist countries were reportedly seeking to get African delegations to put in a resolution that would (1) call on all countries to refrain from supplying Portugal with arms to use against the rebels and (2) ask the assembly's 17-nation special committee on independence for colonies to give its first attention to Angola.

Whatever the United States or the Soviet bloc might want, the 50-nation Asian-African group was expected to produce its own resolution on Angola and push it through the assembly with little or no change.

The second part of the assembly session is expected to last four to six weeks. Angola is the only question before the full assembly.

The assembly's trusteeship committee still has to set a date for ending Belgian trusteeship over the little African countries of Ruanda and Urundi. Seven officials of those countries and Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak were on hand for the discussion.

The trusteeship committee also has to deal with resolutions seeking negotiations between Britain and British Guiana on an independence date for the latter, and an inquiry whether Southern Rhodesia enjoys self-determination.

Israel Convicts Spy In Secrecy

TELAVIV, Israel (AP)—A top Israeli military commentator, was sentenced Sunday to 10 years in prison for spying for an unnamed foreign power. Apparently it was the Soviet Union.

Israel Beer, found guilty after a trial held mostly in secret, reportedly had declared after his arrest that he contacted agents of the foreign power because he believed that power would some day conquer the world.

Huge Space Balloon Broke Up After Rocketed Aloft

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A huge space balloon broke apart hundreds of miles above the Atlantic today as it was inflating to the size of a 13-story building.

The breakup of the big balloon—dubbed "Big Shot"—showed several pieces of aluminum coated plastic into the ocean about 600 miles southeast of the Cape. The pieces, illuminated brilliantly by the rays of the rising sun, provided a spectacular show for observers.

The 500-pound bundle of plastic sheeting was folded neatly in a canister in the nose of a Thor rocket which blasted off at 6:06 a.m. in an experiment aimed at testing techniques for launching an advanced Echo communications satellite.

A few minutes after the launch, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced that the balloon had separated from the Thor and had started to inflate. But a short while later the space agency said that the balloon had split.

After viewing a television film, officials theorized that perhaps the sphere carried too much residual air which caused it to expand too quickly.

The TV film, relayed from a camera in the Thor booster, showed vividly the separation of the canister from the rocket, opening of the canister with one-half slipping off into space and sudden inflation of the balloon and the almost immediate ripping.

The tear first appeared about three seconds after inflation, and immediately split the balloon into several pieces.

Newsmen viewed the film at a news conference.

Officials said the film was much clearer than expected and that it was among the best footage of type ever relayed from a space vehicle.

Walter Bressette, a project official, said the expansion of the balloon was much more rapid than anticipated, indicating that perhaps an overdose of air had been placed in the sphere before launching to help the inflation.

Actually, the amount of air was very small. The main inflation was caused by 50 pounds of sublimating powder which turned to gas in space.

An attempt also was under way to recover a 16-mm movie camera which ejected from the Thor and parachuted into the sea. The package carrying the movie camera was sighted floating in the ocean about 200 miles northeast of San Salvador about an hour after the launching. This film would provide a clearer picture of what happened to the big sphere.

Newsmen at the Cape saw the beginning of the inflation process as the sun reflected off the gleaming surface. The balloon at first appeared as a solitary star drifting slowly upward in the dark, clear sky.

Suddenly, several other bright objects appeared to surround it. Observers thought initially that these might be parts of the rocket and the canister which carried the folded balloon.

The fragments climbed upward for approximately the intended maximum altitude of 950 miles before starting a quick descent, leaving wavy vapor trails in their wake.

"Big Shot" was to have inflated to a diameter of 135 feet, which would have made it the largest—but not the heaviest—space vehicle ever sent aloft.

NASA has a backup Thor and balloon and expects to repeat the shot as soon as today's trouble is pinpointed.

If the second shot is successful, it will be a major step toward launching an advanced Echo communications satellite.

ANOTHER SETBACK

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Fire destroyed Marlow W. White's tailoring, dry cleaning and laundry business Friday. When he walked out of his house to go to church Sunday, he found someone had stolen his car.

the rigidized Echo passive communications satellite in space environment prior to orbital flight."

Echo II is to be the forerunner of Project Rebound, under which NASA intends to use two Atlas Agena-B rockets to place a total of six similar satellites in orbit in 1963. In evenly spaced orbits 1,500 to 2,000 miles above the earth, these big balloons could provide continuous worldwide radio, television and telephone coverage.

Warrant Issued In Local Larceny

A warrant charging a 31-year-old prison escapee with breaking, entering and larceny has been issued by the Greenville Police Department following investigation of a Saturday night break-in here.

Police Chief Guy C. Langston said a warrant was issued today for Joseph Ivan "Boy Blue" Dew of Raleigh. The charges stemmed from the break-in and larceny from Brown-Wood motor company on Dickinson Ave. The chief indicated Dew might be implicated in break-ins at two other local garages over the weekend and one last week.

Dew, who was identified from fingerprints found at Brown-Wood, escaped from the Caledonia Prison Farm near Halifax, January 3, Chief Langston noted.

Officers were called to the 1205 Dickinson Ave. auto firm about 8:53 p.m. Saturday when one of the company's salesmen reported someone was inside the business. By the time officers arrived at the scene, the man had fled.

Investigators said Dew gained entrance to the building by breaking a window, then unlocking the window. He broke open a cigarette and drink machine and took an estimated $50 in change. He also took $1.25 in pennies from the parts department cash register, officers noted.

They explained that the thief apparently was thwarted in attempts to take a late model Cadillac car from the firm when he was surprised.

They said the vehicle had been backed up to a point beside the cigarette machine. Several packs of cigarettes were found in the rear seat of the auto.

In addition to the Brown-Wood break-in, break-ins at White Chevrolet Co. and the North Carolina Equipment Co., both located at West End Circle and following the same pattern, were reported.

Police said in both cases robbers broke out windows to gain entrance to the building. At the equipment company, an estimated $32 was taken from three coin-operated machines.

A car was taken from White Chevrolet Co.

Detectives said it was the second time in less than a week that a car has been taken from the Chevrolet dealer.

Monday night on early Tuesday morning, thieves entered the building in the same way, took three automatic shotguns, opened coin-operated machines and stole a car from inside the building. The car was found wrecked and abandoned in Raleigh.

Chief Langston said of the cases, "They are all probably tied in together."

Capt. M. L. Stallings, captain of the guard at the "medium custody" Caledonia farm, said Dew "walked away from his assignment" at the camp. He was a "minimum custody" or "honor grade" prisoner there, the captain noted.

With a past record of break-ins, Dew had served about seven months of a four- to six-year sentence for breaking and entering from Raleigh.

Investigation is continuing in the cases and a hunt is underway for Dew.

Cold Is Big Factor N.C. Weekend Deaths

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sub-freezing temperatures set off a chain of events that contributed to at least nine deaths in a total of 13 fatalities during the weekend in North Carolina.

The extreme cold froze a pond in Sampson County, luring three Negro youngsters to try sliding on it. They broke through the ice and drowned.

Two other Negro children died in a fire that consumed their Durham home. A baby bundled up against the cold suffocated. A 30-year-old man died from exposure. A man died in his trailer from a fire apparently started by a heater. An old woman was killed in an auto accident on an icy road.

The drowning victims were Joseph Bemon Williams, 12, and Raymond Lee Williams, 10, sons of John Robert Williams, on whose farm the accident occurred; and the man's grandson, George Lyndell McLamb, 8.

Edward A. Mangum, 34, and his brother Charles, 16 months, died in a fire at their home. Darrell D. Baysmore suffocated in his crib at his Durham home. Bobby Earl McCauley, 31, of Thomasville died in a hospital after a was found nearly frozen on his front porch. Napoleon B. Liles, 61, died in a fire at his trailer home near Fayetteville.

Emmie McWatty, 78, of Stapleton, Ga., died when the car in which she was riding wrecked on an icy road near Whiteville.

Two men died in a two-car collision near Enfield. They were McKinley Moore and Joe Lewis Solomon, 40, both of the Enfield area.

James Dewey Holder, 19, and Howard Lewis Mason, 26, both of Rt. 3, Lillington, died in a Hartnett County auto accident.

Carol Jean Patterson, 7, of Richmond County was accidentally killed when her 5-year-old brother Bobby discharged a loaded shotgun.

Dancing Hair New Coiffures

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Coiffures called "dancing hair"—styling that looks like an upside down nasturtium in silhouette—were presented by hairdressers today for the 1962 spring and summer season.

They're the product of the Hair Fashion Committee of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association. The group, which usually meets in New York, had its new style showing here as a salute to the Seattle World's Fair, which opens April 21.

The new style, to quote the association's style director, Marquerite E. Buck of New York City, presents "dancing hair effects that swing, sway and flip up playfully into amusing and diverting curls."

There's an "up" line of styles for party and evening wear and a "sprightly down line for care-free daytime wear."

Emilio Pucci Collection Rehashed

By LOUISE HICKMAN
Associated Press Fashion Writer—FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — The sometime king of Italian sportswear, Emilio Pucci, disappointed buyers and fashion writers again Sunday night with a collection rehashed from previous years.

There was little new to excite interest—peek-through flower pot beach hats of straw diamonds stitched together and coming down to the tip of the nose; shaped St. Tropez pants curved high on the hips, low in front and back, with shirred belts and blousy little tucked-in jerseys, and soles of moccasin pumps in soft leather and satin.

Pucci has a big following. Last season his show was less than exciting. This time it had been eagerly awaited. The disappointment was apparent. The final applause was desultory and was followed by a dash for the door.

One beach outfit consisted of a long cellophane hula skirt in green and rust nicely coordinated with a crystal glitter sheer blouse that covered a skimpy bra.

Should Retain Division Of Powers

Congress should give careful consideration to the matter of greater concentration of power in the executive branch of government before it decides to comply with some of the requests put before it by President Kennedy in his State of the Union message.

Particularly is this true with respect to the President's request that he be given far-reaching authority in the fields of taxes and foreign trade. The ends which the President wishes to accomplish through these programs should be weighed on their merits. But at the same time Congress should weigh carefully the method outlined by the President for accomplishing these aims.

President Kennedy asked that he be given standby authority both to lower personal income taxes and to pump money into public works programs if necessary to meet the threat of a recession. If it is advisable for Congress to give the President such standby authority, would it also be wise to give the President the authority to increase personal income taxes, to withdraw domestic programs if a

No Retirement For Sanford

By LYNN NISBET
SANFORD — Terry Sanford does not intend to retire to private non-political status at the end of his term as Governor of North Carolina. He confessed to newsmen the other day, what many of the newsmen had suspected; but when he said a few nights ago that he had had enough of public office and did not expect to run for anything else, he probably "overspoke."

He noted the circumstances under which the original "retirement" statement was made. He was talking casually with out-of-state people—but in the presence of North Carolina newsmen. So the statement got immediate and wide publicity. It is to the Governor's credit that he has not claimed he was misquoted or misrepresented. He asked only not to let "a casual statement about my future plans to run for office be interpreted as a diminishing interest in North Carolina." At the same time he handed out a formal statement declaring that he plans to continue to work with those who believe in progress, who have faith in our capacity, who want to make the opportunities for people in North Carolina just as great as opportunities people have anywhere else in the country.

Along that line the High Point Enterprise notes that Governor Sanford may be making a better governor and furnishing stronger leadership than he suspects. "One can't write his name as high as Sanford has without expecting brickbats and dead cats to come flying his way. . . . It is far too early, even if he feels that way at the moment, for one of such promise to disavow further public service."

POWER RATES — Governor Sanford told reporters at his weekly news conference that electricity rates of Virginia Electric Power Company was retarding industrial development of the area in north eastern North Carolina served by that company.

While there are other matters of importance involved in the long drawn out hearings before the Utilities Commission on the proposed sale of Nantahala distributing system to Duke, the main issue is one of customer rates, to be applicable to the far southwestern corner of the state.

Governor Sanford noted that not so many years ago excessive Tidewater Power rates held back southeastern North Carolina development. Progress has been marked in that area since rates were lower after purchase of Tidewater by Carolina Power.

These continuing hassles over rates for electric power are reminiscent of the controversy which raged during the first two decades of the 20th century over freight rates. At least two ex-sharp inflationary spiral threatened the economy of the nation?

Matters of tax writing and appropriations have traditionally been in the hands of the Congress, and it appears to us reasonable for this authority to remain with Congress. After all, the legislative body is in session most of the months of each year. If emergencies arise when Congress is not in session, the President has the authority to call the legislators back to Washington.

Although the manner of getting things done through Congressional action may not be as efficient in terms of time as getting them done by executive order, when emergency arises, Congress can act rapidly. Rapidly enough, it seems to us, to cope with economic emergencies without handing over its tax writing and appropriations authority to the executive branch even on a standby basis.

Much the same is true when it comes to economic matters in the field of international affairs. Negotiations must be handled through the executive branch of government, but the legislative branch should reserve to itself the right to determine whether agreements that are reached are within the limits of the guideposts laid down by it.

Admittedly the division of powers between branches of government under our domestic system do not provide as efficient a system of operation as some other forms of government. They, nevertheless, provide safeguards which have proved the very strength of our democratic system, and our democratic government. These divisions of power—and responsibility—it seems to us, should be preserved.

If the programs proposed by President Kennedy have sufficient merit, they can be realized without concentrating greater power in the hands of the executive branch. And they can be realized with sufficient speed to cope with any emergency—foreign or domestic—which may confront this nation.

A Reminder Constant Alertness Is Needed

Scandal in state government in North Carolina has been so rare over a period of several decades that when a situation such as that in connection with state purchases of highway signs comes to light, it attracts more than the usual amount of attention.

It tends—as rightly it should—to shake the public and officials from their apathy toward possible wrong-doing in state government.

The situation of the highway sign purchases, which is yet to be spelled out in detail to the people of the state, should not cause officials to go on a witch-hunting spree. It should, however, cause citizens and officials alike to take a closer look at possible questionable activities that may be going on in the state government. It should make them aware that in spite of the excellent record for good, honest government that North Carolina has, there is always the possibility that some wrong-doing may go undetected, and for considerable periods of time.

It re-emphasizes the need for a constant vigil against wrong-doing from both officials and citizens as a whole. It stresses the importance of a constantly operating system of checks and balances which will turn up any questionable activities at the earliest possible moment.

We trust the administration of Gov. Sanford, which put light on questionable activities in bidding on state contracts earlier, and now has revealed possible wrong-doing in connection with highway signs, will continue to look carefully into every facet of state operations.

On The Whole, A Good Year

By RALPH ROBEY

It will be some time before we have all the statistics on the year just ended. But enough are already available to prove that as a whole it was quite a period, with most business indicators making new highs.

Gross national product, which is the monetary value of all goods and services produced in the nation, has not yet been officially calculated, but is estimated by government officials as about $540 billion. The final figure may be a little below this, but in any case it will be the highest in our history, and as compared with the $501 billion in the first three months reflects a major recovery.

Personal income ended the year at a record level. The latest data on this are for November, but there is no doubt that the rise continued during the final month. Even farm income, on an annual basis, was the highest since 1952. All other categories except rents were up.

Industrial production, as measured by the Federal Reserve index, was at a new high, with durable, non-durable, mining and utilities all setting records. Some individual industries—automobiles being an example—were below previous levels, but these were the exception. Business profits continued to advance as a whole. Again, many companies were not able to do as well as in 1960, but the aggregate will make a new peak before this move is over. It is generally assumed that this uptrend will continue to the second quarter of 1962.

Both employment and unemployment set new records during the year. To be meaningful these figures must be adjusted seasonally. When this is done we find that in November, the latest data available, total employment was 67.2 million, and unemployment had dropped to 6.1 per cent of the civilian labor force.

Hourly wages continued to rise and in November were $2.36.

The weekly wage also advanced to $5.82 in the same month. This was because the hours per week rose to 40.6. It has been many months since we have seen such a long work-week.

The New York Stock Market, as measured by the Dow-Jones industrial average, made a new high on December 13. After that prices became softer, but it is generally expected that another new high will be made before we have a substantial sell-off. Dividends during the year were a shade above the previous record.

United States exports in 1961, according to the Department of Commerce, were $29 billion. This was appreciably better than appeared probable a few weeks ago. But the department also said that imports were on the upgrade. The net effect of this is that we still have an international deficit of worrisome proportions.

Business investment in plant and equipment is slowly rising, but does not promise to pass its previous peak, unless there is a sharp revision in the plans of business.

Private housing is another area which is running well below a previous level. It is not depressed, but those in the industry would prefer more starts by one or two hundred thousand. Construction as a whole is doing well, primarily as a result of industrial and public outlays.

Business is continuing to add to its inventories, and this will remain a positive factor for some months. The fear of another steel strike is playing a substantial role in this inventory accumulation.

Government spending continues to advance. For the fiscal year ending next June 30, outlays at the federal level will be $89.90 billion, and it is anticipated that the budget for the following fiscal year will be some $92.93 billion.

But as stated earlier, it has been quite a year.

Writing Ike's Speeches

Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Sherman Adams, in his book, "First Hand Report," tells how he went about preparing a speech for President Eisenhower. It is said that a President has too little time to write his own speeches, that he hires men who lay down the policies of state for him. It seems a very wasteful effort, for if a man really has something to say, he ought to be able to say it. As an example, he shows how a speech was prepared on agriculture:

"I told Hall that I would see what I could do, and immediately summoned the indispensable Hauge and a few experts from the Department of Agriculture to see if we could work out a plan for a speech. In this instance we agreed to steer clear of any partisan approach and work in a world peace theme stressing the contribution of the American farmer. A few days later we met again to study the first draft of the writing and decided that the draft was right but it needed better brush-work and stronger treatment. So it was agreed that I should call a farm expert in Des Moines and ask him to come and help."

Then comes this shocking paragraph:

"In preparations like this, Eisenhower would not know about the plans in progress. Indeed, until an acceptable working draft had been prepared and tentative plans drawn up by myself and the staff, he would not want to know. I found early in the game that Eisenhower expected anyone who proposed a speech to him to have the reasons for making it thoroughly thought out, a draft on paper and the trip phased into his calendar so that it did not disturb other commitments. 'What is it that needs to be said?' Eisenhower would say. 'I am not going out there just to listen to my tongue clatter.' Hall and I and the rest of the staff learned that we had to have a finished draft in shape and in the President's hand at least two weeks before it was to be delivered so that he could put it into his desk drawer and brood over it at his leisure. The preparation usually meant days, sometimes weeks, of staff work. Since, in the meantime, anything could happen to change the picture, we learned to keep our own counsel until we had plans in apple-pie order. Then Hall and I, probably with Persons and Hauge, would tell Tom Stephens that we wanted fifteen uninterrupted minutes with the President. Before such a conference took place, Hall, Persons and I would decide who was going to carry the argument. If I was chosen to take the responsibility for the project I would start out by telling Eisenhower the purpose of our appointment and ask Hall, in the example I have cited, to sum up quickly the state of affairs in the farm belt."

So, we come to the moment when Eisenhower actually sees the speech. This is the way Sherman Adams described it: "Eisenhower would glance at the speech, read a few lines, and ask a question or two about the reasons why Hall had reported such distress with the Benson farm program. 'I don't believe for a minute the farmer wants the government to be his boss,' Eisenhower would say, tossing the draft into his desk drawer. I knew the discussion was over and that the President wanted to mull it over. A few days later, the President would call Hauge or myself into his office. The speech would be on his desk. 'This moves along pretty well,' he would say, handing back the draft, 'but it seems to labor too much in trying to meet a lot of picaresque criticism. After all the farmer wants to understand his role in America and in the world today. A farmer is like any other American. When he understands his responsibilities he will meet them as well or better than any other citizen. Can't we get the feel of that more into it?'"

"That would mean more hours of brain-racking and writing by Hauge. Finally, Eisenhower would sit down at his desk alone and think about what he wanted to say, marking up the revised draft himself and dictating to Ann Whitman the changes he was making."

Put together, one can only say that these speeches were written by committees. I do not know how President Kennedy would have handled it.

Other Editors Saying... Amid Finland's Mists

(Richmond News Leader)

Hardly noticed by the rest of the world, Finland is waging one of her typically grim, silent, lonely battles—bloodless thus far—to retain her independence of sorts from the ravaging Russian bear.

This newspaper is in possession of a letter written by Finn in Helsinki last month to a compatriot in Washington. Such is the well-justified fear of Communist reprisals upon innocent friends and family behind or near the Iron Curtain that the letter must be paraphrased rather than literally translated. But this is substantially what it says:

"The events of last November, when President Kekkonen met with Khrushchev at Novosibirsk and made a deal on Finnish 'neutrality,' should be a matter of sorrow and alarm for all Finnish patriots. This accommodation with the Soviets amounted to nothing but an adjournment of the military confrontation of the little republic and the huge dictatorship. Despite outward signs of tranquility, Finland knew at the time, and knows now, that its fate lies with its selfish and demanding neighbor."

"We Finns must never give up. We must fight back with whatever means are available. In the present situation, we must take what advantage we can of the two elections. The one of January 15 and 16 for the presidency gives us two nominal rivals, the outright Communist party candidate and Kekkonen who is acceptable to the Russians. The only anti-Soviet candidate was forced to withdraw rather than face a situation which might have brought the Red Army. We must vote for Kekkonen, and not write in any third candidate, giving the Communists an overt excuse for a take-over."

"The general elections of February 4 and 5 are a different matter. We must emulate the feat of 1948 when the Communist seats in parliament were reduced from 49 to 37. To assure a bourgeois majority in the parliament, we must aim at pushing 50 Communists out of their seats."

"And now (the writer goes on) for the purpose of this letter. Every ballot is important. We are asking all Finnish nationalists in the USA to cast absentee ballots. This can be done at the consulates in San Francisco and New York, during business hours, at any time prior to the election dates. It can also be done at the Finnish Embassy in Washington. Please, go to one of these places and vote. It is our only chance of preservation."

Thus the letter ends in this pathetic but courageous appeal for Finns to use the last vestige of their democratic powers to grasp for a vanishing freedom. Perhaps there are hundreds of such letters in the U. S. mails. We hope so. We hope they are heeded. This last-ditch fight for an independent national life is in the valiant and intelligent Finnish tradition.

More Spare Time

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Only a few years ago automation was little more than a trickle within the economy, but today it is a river and tomorrow it will be a flood. The great question is whether its obvious benefits will be outweighed by the problem that it raises — such as mass unemployment.

AUTOMATION'S PROBLEMS WILL BE SOLVED

I have said before and I will say again that there has never been any indication that more machinery means fewer workers. Look back over the industrial history of this country, and you will find that there has been an unending outflow of more efficient machines and yet employment has soared from one new height to another simultaneously.

The sheer volume of machines to run machines is today almost incredible, and still employment keeps reaching ever higher. For the most part, our joblessness is due to an exploding population; a rather impressive group of people who would rather live on charity or unemployment insurance than work, and a reluctance to develop swiftly-paced programs to retain and relocate workers displaced by the advance of technological improvements.

WE ARE MOVING RAPIDLY

The influx of automation has been so unexpectedly rapid that many have been frightened; they think we are moving too fast for our own good. Some wish they were living back a hundred years ago so they would have fewer complications; others say they wouldn't want to be around a hundred years from now with things changing at such a pace. Even the labor movements — which has some pretty fast-moving men — is frightened by automation, and some laborers are crying aloud that there may not be any jobs in a few years. Let them be assured that there will be plenty of jobs — but many will be of very different jobs.

FACING UP TO CHANGES

The change-over to automated production is going to spread on and on, and certainly nobody will deny that a great many workers will have to move to other jobs. This is a fact and must be faced. Farsighted experts have often warned that, without automation, we would soon find we would not have a sufficiently large labor force to accomplish our work. Introduce new products, and maintain our prosperous standard of living.

I notice that a good deal of human effort is still needed even in the most automated offices where the most completely automatic processes have been installed. It is said that a factory could be built so that every step from raw material to final product could be turned out by a handful of people at pushbuttons. Keep in mind, however: Human brains must still work out the entire scheme, and human hands must build, set up, start, tend, repair, and maintain — and sometimes stop! — these "automatic" machines.

AUTOMATION MEANS MORE SPARE TIME

It doesn't seem to me that we are going too fast, everything considered. It cannot be denied that we in America are materially and spiritually better off than the people of the backward nations who have not yet had any such machines. It might also be said that no workers in the world's history ever had more healthful and attractive working conditions or received better pay than our workers today. It is the machine that has helped to bring about this prosperity, and newer and more amazing machines will bring still more in the years to come.

I am particularly impressed by the fact that high-velocity and machinery and all forms of automation mean — and will continue to mean — steadily more spare time for workers. There will be a greater opportunity for enjoyment of the home and the family, for pleasant and healthy do-it-yourself pursuits. Even more important: Perhaps we can all employ some of this increasing spare time to cultivate the spiritual values which we may have been neglecting while building up purely material prosperity!

He missed his head and the bullet ricocheted, taking off his little left toe.

Now, for 1962, Wunderbar is a member of the club. He is getting a deduction for his medical expenses and his doctor's fees. Furthermore, as long as his boss keeps paying his salary while incapacitated, the first $100 a week in tax free.

SHORT & SIGNIFICANT BUSINESS NEWS BULLETINS

Department store sales in 1961 were 3 per cent above those in 1960. The biggest rise, 6 per cent, was in the Boston Federal Reserve district. . . . Consumers owed $290 billion at the end of the year, a Newsew study shows. This includes $175 billion in home mortgages. . . . Cigarette sales in Thailand hit high last year. . . . Howard Johnson estimates that one-third of all money spent by Americans eating out goes to roadside restaurants. But probably not at this time of year.

Extension Service Reports Accomplishments Of '61

Pitt County's team of Agricultural Extension Service agents have filed their annual report for 1961 listing the department's objectives and accomplishments during the year and painting an optimistic picture for the county's agricultural future.

In reviewing 1961's activities, the report—unveiled at January's meeting of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners—listed accomplishments in two general areas: crops and livestock.

The crop category of the report was broken down into specialties including tobacco, corn, cotton, peanuts and sweet potatoes. The livestock section cited a planned program for 1962 designed to apply greater emphasis to the county's animal husbandry industry.

Also in the livestock section, the agents' report called for greater concentration among the county's 14 Grade A milk producers to boost milk production per cow and general production efficiency.

The crop section noted that Pitt farmers derive 82 per cent of their gross farm income from crop production. "This fact," said the report, "makes it imperative that we leave no stone unturned to make this part of our farming enterprise as profitable as possible."

But, while stressing the need for improvements among methods and techniques in crop production on a constant and continuing basis, the agents' report cited the growing importance of further development of the livestock industry in Pitt County.

"Livestock marketing facilities in this area are the best of any part of the country," the report said, and continued: "There are four new packing plants, and 10-hog buying stations, easily accessible to growers. Four of these stations are located in Pitt County. The production of meat and pork is far below our needs for human consumption, and the livestock grower has no difficulty in marketing his product."

Tying the county's crop production to possible further development of the livestock trade, the report noted that Pitt produces some four million bushels of corn annually. "Sixty per cent of this corn crop," the agents said, "is sold in the form of grain that is shipped out of the county and state. This corn could be used for feed and marketed in the form of livestock resulting in a substantial increase in net income for the growers in this area."

On Pitt's 1961 crop year, the report cited 10 tobacco demonstrations—including county participation in the tobacco variety evaluation program again—aimed at improving production methods of the county's 25,000-acre tobacco crop.

For 1962, the agents said, "major emphasis" should be given to better plant production, securing of better stands in the field, better understanding of fertilizer recommendations and other information applicable to our local conditions to help produce an economical crop with good quality."

In their report on the county's corn crop, the agents noted a rise during the last decade of 24 bushels in Pitt's average bushels-per-acre figure. The 1950-51 average corn yield was 31, compared with the 1960-61 figure of 55 bushels per acre, the report said. The most recent figure, the agents noted, "does give some net income, as the cost of production is equal to about 45 bushels per acre."

Here the agents made another link between the county's crops and its livestock potential. The report said: "Many growers are consistently averaging 80-100 bushels per acre. When this corn is fed to livestock and sold on the hoof, its total sale value is almost $2 per bushel, yielding a sizeable increase in income."

Turning to other crops, the agents expressed the opinion that its cotton growers should be producing from the 7,000 acres in the county 7,000 to 10,000 bales instead of the present 5,000. "The new approach to the cotton boll weevil problem," the report said, "will help accomplish this goal." The "new approach" involves striking the weevil early before it has a chance to damage the cotton boll.

The report cited two western Pitt cotton growers—Ben Atkinson and John King of Farmville—as a "good example of the value of following all recommended practices" in cotton production.

The report said: "These men worked jointly on insect control efforts to produce 64 500-pound bales of cotton on 42 acres."

On peanuts, the agents cited instances of growers in the county who follow "a good rotation and recommended practices" posting yields ranging from 2,600 to 4,200 pounds of peanuts per acre, "double and nearly triple the county average."

In urging growers to "put peanuts on a paying basis," the agents made this comparison: "A yield of 1,000 pounds per acre produces a net income of $46.35 ($140 minus $93.65), while a yield of 3,500 pounds per acre produces a net return of $294.60 ($440 minus $145.40.)"

The agents' report said 1961 saw the decision in Pitt County that production of sweet potatoes in Pitt "offers a wonderful opportunity for increasing net farm income."

The report cited three examples of farmers producing yams in accordance to specifications outlined by several field demonstrations in the county.

"Acre for acre," the report noted, "these farmers realized net incomes from sweet potatoes equal to average net income from tobacco."

Results of the three farmers efforts listed by the agents were: "J. L. Corey, Jr. produced an average of 291 bushels per acre of U. S. No. 1's on 12 acres; Vernon White produced 1,900 bushels of Nuggles on five acres, 91 per cent of which were No. 1's; A. D. McArthur produced nearly 300 bushels per acre on 23 acres." The report was submitted to the commissioners by County Agent S. C. Winchester.

Questions Likely To Be Asked By Farmer Filling Out Tax Returns

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles by Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Caplin in which he seeks to answer questions most likely to be asked by farmers considering reporting their annual incomes for federal tax purposes. The series has been prepared by Caplin as part of an effort to provide farmers with increased information concerning their income tax returns.)

By MORTIMER M. CAPLIN
Commissioner of Internal Revenue

Before we start on specific questions, do you have any general advice regarding taxes you might give farmers?

I would first like to express my appreciation for an opportunity to answer questions of interest to you the tax year. I strongly urge each of you not only to maintain adequate records but as good records as possible. I am sure you will find that such action will not only benefit your government but you, as business people, as well.

farmers. Farmers form the largest business group filing Federal income tax returns; they file nearly one-third of the total business returns filed. We at Internal Revenue Service are vitally interested in seeing that the returns are as nearly correct as possible when we receive them.

No businessman, whether he be engaged in farming or any other type of business, can file a correct return unless adequate records of business income and expenses are maintained through-

List Premiums For State Fair

RALEIGH — Premiums amounting to $2,670 are being appropriated for the new fairer show for commercially fed slaughter cattle to be held during the 95th annual North Carolina State Fair next October.

Announcement of premiums and rules governing the competition was made last week by Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine and Hobart W. Wyrick, chairman of the rules committee of the fair's livestock department.

The grand champion fat steer will win awards totaling $165 and the champion pens of three and five animals will win $100 and $150, respectively.

In all there will be 20 classes for entries with 90 awards ranging from $10 to $150 each. All animals must grade at least "choice" to be eligible. Each feeder of slaughter cattle or purebred owner may enter up to 18 head in the show.

The fat steer show and sale was approved recently at a meeting of the representatives of the cattlemen's association, packing companies, livestock auction markets and purebred cattle association with livestock specialists from the Department of Agriculture and N. C. State College.

Judging of the show is scheduled for Monday afternoon, the opening day of the fair (Oct. 15), with the sale to be held Monday evening. Cattle will be on display throughout the week.

Health Director Praises Work Of Volunteers

Volunteers working with the Pitt County Health Department have done so well that Director John Futrell hopes the department can use more of them.

Farmville is the principal place in which volunteers have worked so far, Dr. Futrell said. They have assisted the past two months in filing, writing dates, bookkeeping and working with charts primarily. Expansion of several clinics operated by the health department resulted in more bookwork, and in a temporary need for extra help.

The volunteers have worked so well in some areas that "we would like to see them work in other places, such as in Ayden, Bethel and here," Dr. Futrell said.

STUDENT RANKS SWELL

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—An annual report released here shows there are 21,272 students enrolled in the 24 United Lutheran institutions of higher learning, compared with 19,808 a year ago. The institutions include 10 seminaries, 12 colleges and two universities.

Where could a farmer secure help in devising a system for maintaining his records?

There are many sources of information for this. We publish a booklet, the Farmer's Tax Guide, which gives a brief illustration of a form the records might take. I understand that many farm machinery manufacturers have devised farm account books which they will provide to farmers, and also that some banks in agricultural areas have record books of this type.

The local Department of Agriculture offices will supply account books, and are an excellent source of information. Of course, our local Internal Revenue offices will be more than happy to answer any questions along this line.

Do you feel a farmer needs any special skills to maintain good records?

I certainly do not. Good records can be very simple and informal, and require little time to maintain. I do believe, though, that the secret of keeping accurate records is to record the various transactions when they occur, and not to depend on memory at a later date.

What records does the Internal Revenue Service require farmers to maintain?

Our only requirements as to accounting records of farmers are that the records maintained be sufficient to enable the farmer to accurately prepare his tax return and for the Internal Revenue Service to determine the correctness of the return filed.

What type of record books should be used?

There are no requirements whatsoever as to what type of record books should be used or in what manner or form the records should be maintained. The records need only meet the requirements I stated in reply to the previous question. However they should be systematic and show all the receipts and expenditures for the year. They should also show the cost of so-called permanent assets and additions or improvements to permanent assets.

These are assets and improvements having a useful life extending substantially beyond the taxable year in which purchased. This is necessary because the cost of these assets may not be deducted in the year they are purchased, but a substantial portion of their cost may be deducted as depreciation over the period of their usefulness in the farm business.

Any other advice on records? Be sure to keep all documents which can be used as evidence of a transaction such as cancelled checks, sales slips, invoices, and receipts. They are useful in credit applications, for measuring the efficiency of the farming operation, and for innumerable other business purposes.

(NEXT MONDAY: Mr. Caplin's question-and-answer discussion of filing requirements.)

Dairy Ass'n To Hold Session

PINEHURST—A. David Montgomery of Greenville, president of Tarheel Supplymen, is scheduled to preside at the opening session of the 28th annual N. C. Dairy Products Association opening here Wednesday.

Montgomery, whose organization is host to the dairy association for the first of its three-day convention, will introduce speakers including noted Tarheel humorist Edmund H. Harding of Washington.

The convention is expected to attract some 400 representatives of North Carolina's expanding dairy industry. Delegates will register in the lobby of the Carolina Hotel, Wednesday beginning at 3 p.m.

Tarheel Supplymen also will furnish a Thursday dinner and entertainment.

SCS Employees Receive Awards

Two Greenville Soil Conservation Service employees have received letters of commendation and cash awards for sustained above average work performance.

Clifton E. Mills, SCS, Civil Engineer, received a $165 cash award for his work between July 1, 1960, and June 23, 1961. Mills is serving as government representative for the construction phases of the Grindie Creek Watershed project now underway in Pitt County.

Elmer L. Bland, Soil Conservation aide, received a cash award of $32.50 for his work under unusually difficult conditions during the first six months of 1960.

Bland assists landowners co-operating with the Coastal Plain Soil and Water Conservation District in carrying out complete conservation plans on their farms. He also furnishes technical assistance to landowners carrying out approved ACP permanent-type practices.

The awards were made by R. M. Daily, State Conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service at Raleigh.

NCAA Fires Again In The 3-Way Battle With AAU

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association has fired another broadside, a plan for a new U.S. track and field federation, in its three-way skirmish with the Amateur Athletic Union.

A rough outline of the federation was drafted Sunday by the executive committee of the National Collegiate Track Coaches Association. No structure was announced, but the committee said it approved a possible outdoor federation championship for this summer to oppose the AAU outdoor championships.

The NCAA also is feuding with the AAU in two other sports. In addition to track and field, the NCAA has authorized creation of a new federation in gymnastics. One already has been drawn up in basketball.

NCTCA president Chick Werner of Penn State said the new track federation will consider staging a championship meet on the same day as the AAU meet if the AAU refuses to accept representation in the federation.

Werner said a conflicting meet could be arranged for the same date when the AAU selects athletes to represent the United States in the dual meet with Russia at Stanford University in July. The NCAA council was authorized to take the dispute to the federal government, if necessary. Handling of the matter has been turned over to the Committee on AAU-Olympic Relations, headed by Wilbur Johns, UCLA athletic director.

The two athletic organizations have tentatively scheduled a meeting in Kansas City Feb. 4 to confer with Louis Wilke, vice president of the International Basketball Federation, as mediator in the battle over basketball. The NCAA made these additional significant moves during last week's conventional in Chicago:

Banned outside organized basketball competition, aimed at eradicating gambling and bribery. The move outlawed summer leagues and related basketball activity for collegians.

Toughened regulations concerning transfers from junior colleges to four-year schools.

Refused a Notre Dame proposal that the rules committee be authorized to reverse the outcome of games. Members side-tracked the suggestion on the grounds final authority over contests should remain with game officials.

The proposal stemmed from Notre Dame's disputed 17-15 football victory over Syracuse last November.

Smith Leading Loop Scoring

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Furman's Jerry Smith doesn't act promptly to boost his sagging average, West Virginia soon may have Southern Conference basketball's No. 1 scorer as well as its No. 1 team.

As the seventh week of the 1961-62 season begins, Smith still is the scoring leader with a lofty 26.8-point average. But for the first time since mid-December, someone is in hot pursuit.

That "someone" is West Virginia's Rod Thorn, a gangling deadeye Dick who since the new year arrived has upped his average nearly two points and now is scoring at an even 24-point clip. Thorn, of course, has a distance to go before overhauling Smith, but he's been making relentless progress. His average has grown 17 points since Jan. 1 while Smith's has tumbled 1.9.

Last week Thorn advanced all the way from fourth to second in the conference scoring list, by pouring in 62 points in West Virginia's victory over Virginia Tech and George Washington.

Trailing Smith and Thorn are three other players with 20-point-plus averages: Davidson's Bill Jarman, 23.2; George Washington's Jon Feldman, 22.8; and The Citadel's Gary Daniels, 20.5.

Rounding out the top 10 are Virginia Tech's Bucky Keller, 19.9; VMI's Norm Halberstadt, 19.6; Tech's Howard Pardue, 19.5; Richmond's Danny Higgins, 17.1; and Davidson's Terry Hollan, 16.0.

This week's 11-game conference schedule begins with West Virginia rocketing along at the top of the conference heap with an 8-0 record and not a single close pursuer. Furman is closest, at 3-1. West Virginia, which demolished George Washington 120-58 in an awesome show of power Saturday night at Washington, visits Richmond (4-2) tonight in quest of conference triumph No. 9.

Two non-conference skirmishes find Furman at Clemson and The Citadel, which has lost six in a row, at home to Mississippi Southern.

West Virginia Is A Sure Thing ACC Standings Are As Expected

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 1961-62 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball season now is just about half over. Let's take a look at what's been going on.

For the most part, the standings are just about as they were expected to be before the season started. But there have been a few mild surprises.

It shouldn't shock anybody that Wake Forest and Duke are tied for the top slot and that North Carolina is close behind. Wake Forest and Duke are 4-1 in the conference, and North Carolina is 3-1.

However, some folks just wouldn't have believed that South Carolina, which held down next to last spot in the conference standings last year, would have a strong hold on fourth place as it does now. South Carolina has a 3-2 conference record.

The Gamecocks entered the season with only four seniors on their roster, but, surprisingly enough, the first team hasn't hurt for reinforcements when needed. The Gamecocks play North Carolina tonight at Chapel Hill, and could move up a notch by beating the Tar Heels. A North Carolina victory would put the Tar Heels into

Bears Hand EC 3rd Conference Defeat 58-48

HICKORY — East Carolina's basketball Pirates suffered their third loss of the season and third conference defeat Saturday night at the hands of Lenoir Rhyne 58-48.

The Pirates were unable to gain a field goal during the first six minutes of play which put them behind considerably.

The same thing happened again in the second half hindering Coach Earl Smith's boys even more.

At the end of the first half the score was 30-20 in favor of the Bears. During the second stanza both teams scored 28 points which left the Pirates trailing by 10 points when the final horn sounded.

The high scorers of the night for East Carolina were Lacy West and Billy Brogden with 12 points each. Both West and Brogden hit six from the floor and were 0-1 from the free throw line. West, fouling out with about five minutes left in the game, was the only Pirate to run into foul trouble.

In all, the Pirates were only able to hit 33 per cent of their field goal attempts. East Carolina went to the free throw line nine times during the game, picking up four points. Box Score:

Associated Press Sports Writer

If anything is sure in Southern Conference basketball, it's West Virginia.

Of course a basketball sometimes can take funny bounces, and it did for West Virginia last March. Overwhelming favorites to win the conference title for the seventh straight time, the Mountaineers were toppled by William and Mary in the league tournament semifinals and the crown eventually went to George Washington.

That took place at the Richmond Arena, which West Virginia will visit tonight for the first time since that unhappy experience last year. The high-powered Mountaineers, fresh from a 120-68 romp over George Washington Saturday night and with a glistening 9-0 conference record, have their second meeting of the season with Richmond's Spiders. They have lost Richmond a month ago without strain, 97-61.

The Mountaineers were among the nation's top ten about that time, but were dumped out after a string of three successive losses. Since then they've surged back by winning five straight, counting Villanova among their victims, and are prime candidates for a re-entry into the rankings with an 11-3 mark.

There are likely to be some shaking up in those ratings, too, after some surprises last week. Fourth-ranked Southern California (12-3) was upset, sixth-ranked Villanova (13-2) got racked up, seventh-ranked Mississippi State's (10-1) unbeaten string came to an abrupt end, and second-ranked Cincinnati (11-2) again found the jinx at Bradley too much.

Vanderbilt crushed Mississippi State 100-86, starting the Bulldogs off on a sad note on their three-game road trip. Next comes Georgia Tech tonight and Mississippi Saturday night.

That loss by Mississippi State left the smooth and awesome Buckeyes of Ohio State as the country's only undefeated team. The top-ranked Bucks ran over Michigan 89-64 Saturday for their 12th straight, and will have a week's rest before resuming their Big Ten campaign at Minnesota.

Villanova was upended, but big by Xavier on the Ohioans' court, 87-66. Southern California could do no more than split in its Big Five series at Washington, losing 85-67 Friday night as Bill Hanson scored 37 points and rebounding 78-64 Saturday night despite another fine game by Hanson, who pumped in 32 more points.

Cincinnati's downfall came last Wednesday night in a 70-68 overtime loss to Bradley, marking the fifth time in five years the Bearcats have been strangled at Peoria. Cincinnati has been idle since.

50 FINE HOLES FOR JAY DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—The best stretch of golf was played by Jay Hebert in 1961 in the American Golf Classic at Akron, Ohio. He played 50 holes before he got a bogey.

The lowest non-winning score on the 1961 PGA tour was the 264 registered by Ted Kroll in the St. Petersburg Open.

Third-ranked Kentucky (12-1), in its accustomed spot at the head of the Southeastern Conference standings, will be in action tonight at Tennessee before a two-week layoff. The Wildcats polished off Louisiana State 84-63 Friday night and have won 11 in a row since a 2-point setback by Southern Cal six weeks ago.

Fifth-ranked Kansas State, Bowling Green, No. 9, and Duke, ranked 10th, all collected two victories each last week in strengthening their conference title hopes.

Bradley (10-2), Wichita (13-3) and Utah (14-2) all made motions toward muscling into the rankings Saturday night, and Oregon State (11-1) continued to show as a force on the West Coast. Bradley followed up its triumph over Cincinnati with an 85-68 decision over Tulsa, and now has won its last nine.

Utah beat New Mexico 72-65 as Billy McGill kept up his amazing scoring with 36 points, Wichita tripped St. Louis 88-75 and Oregon State registered its 10th straight victory, 80-63 over Portland.

Also on Saturday night—Colorado State University nicked Brigham Young 75-69 in overtime and Utah State downed Wyoming 72-59 in key Skyline Conference games. Texas Tech shaded Baylor 55-51, going into a four-way tie for the Southwest lead with Southern Methodist, Rice and Texas A&M.

Yale kept a grip on the Ivy League lead by clipping Penn 67-63.

IAN FLEMING'S Greatest Thriller THUNDERBALL

CHAPTER 1

Secret Service Agent James Bond, his heart thumping faster than it should have done, despite the fact that he was in the middle of a race across London and a freight train for the lift to Headquarters on the eighth floor, pulled out the chair and sat down and looked across into the calm clear eyes he knew so well.

"Good morning, James. Sorry to pull you along a bit early in the morning. Got a very full day ahead. Wanted to fit you in before the rush."

Bond's excitement waned minutely. It was never a good sign when M addressed him by his Christian name instead of by his number. This didn't look like a job—more like something personal. There was none of the tension in M's voice that heralded big, exciting news. M's expression was interested, friendly, almost benevolent. Bond said something non-committal.

"Haven't seen much of you lately, James. How have you been? Your health, I mean." M picked up a sheet of paper, a form of

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In a case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

British Shake Off Tradition, Adopt Decimals

LONDON (AP)—Temperatures took a steep dive all over Britain today, but winter had nothing to do with it.

Britain began shaking off a tradition and switched from the Fahrenheit to the centigrade scale of thermometer marking.

The change to the continental way of measuring hot and cold was the first phase of an official program to convert Britons to the decimal system of measuring.

"Eventually they will use decimals to reckon how rich, as well as how hot, they are."

At 9 p.m. in London it was 39 degrees Fahrenheit. Translated into centigrade it looked sensational—4 degrees.

The switch was gradual. Television and radio weathercasts gave both centigrade and Fahrenheit figures. Eventually Fahrenheit will be quietly dropped.

Some London newspapers printed centigrade temperatures in their weather reports with Fahrenheit demoted to brackets alongside.

Other newspapers, apparently reluctant to cast off an old custom stuck with Fahrenheit, for today anyway.

Informed commuters who had read the right papers scored with such lines as: "Got down to zero last night. Centigrade, y'know. Thirty-two Fahrenheit."

One newspaper helpfully printed a diagram of Fahrenheit and centigrade thermometers with parallel vital thermal statistics—freezing point, average room temperature, normal blood heat and boiling point.

A government move is also under way to discard pounds, shillings and pence for easier-to-reckon decimal currency. A committee has been appointed to work out how the change can best be made.

First Hunting Trip Was Fatal

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—A 17-year-old high school senior was killed in an unusual accident on his first hunting trip.

Richard C. Stoltz, slipped into a mudhole Sunday and asked one of his three companions for help. Authorities said the companion extended the barrel of his shotgun and when Stoltz pulled on it the gun discharged.

Must have had someone else doing the treatment. It interferes with the flow of blood when I come to treat the arm and hand. If you don't mind, sir."

There was a moment's silence. Bond could almost feel Count Lippe controlling his temper. The words, when they came, were spat out with what seemed to Bond ludicrous violence. "Take it off then." The "Damn you" didn't have to be uttered.

"Thank you, sir." There was a brief pause and then the massage began.

The small incident seemed odd to Bond. Obviously one had to take off one's wrist watch for a massage. Why had the man wanted to keep it on? It seemed very childish.

"Turn over, please, sir."

Bond obeyed. He glanced casually at his left. Count Lippe's face was turned away from him. His right arm hung down toward the floor.

In the middle of his wrist where the watch had been there was a sign tattooed on the skin. It looked like a small zigzag crossed by two vertical strokes. So Count Lippe had not wanted this sign to be seen!

It would be amusing to ring up Records and see if they had a line on what sort of people wore this little secret recognition sign under their wrist watches.

Skindiver Survives Bites By Fourteen Foot Shark

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A brassy, six-foot skindiver told his wife, "I probably won't be back. I figure a shark will get me."

Floyd Pair Jr., 29, a Sacramento, Calif., milkman said it as a joke but he almost foretold his fate. Only the ending turned out differently.

Here's what happened Sunday: Pair came to San Francisco for a day's skindiving near the Farallon Islands 25 miles west of the Golden Gate. He was one of a party of 100 Sacramento area divers who had chartered four boats for the purpose.

At about 11 a.m. Pair went over the side of the boat, New Merrimac, a black skin suit taut against his body, oxygen tanks on his back, face mask in place, spear gun in his hand.

"I went down to about 40 feet," Pair recounted. "I chased a fish, lost him, decided to surface."

"Then it hit me, just as I surfaced. At first I thought it was a seal. But a seal doesn't have a mouth that big. It was brown, and every inch of 14 feet long. It hit me from the right side and started shaking me like a dog plays with a bone."

"I saw that it was a shark. I remember thinking first that it didn't hurt. Then I half remembered something I had read by a German deep sea expert, Hans Hass.

"Hass said to make a lot of noise and hit an attacking shark in the face.

"I spit out my breathing mouthpiece, began yelling, 'Shark! Shark!' at the same time I began jabbing at the shark's snout with my spear. He let loose of me and took off."

Two other divers helped Pair back to the New Merrimac. In minutes the water was cleared of other divers. A helicopter was called and took Pair to San Francisco's Franklin Hospital.

"On the boat they wanted to cut off my suit and look at the wound," Pair said. "But I felt I needed that tight suit to keep whatever blood I still had in me."

Doctors described Pair's wounds as serious but not crippling. He suffered gaping leg wounds and a deep bite into a buttock.

A doctor said Pair's femoral artery just missed being severed. "If that had gone, he'd have gone too."

Treasury Is Borrowing $1. Billion Today

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The U. S. Treasury is borrowing a billion dollars in new cash today. It shouldn't have any trouble raising the money—but it will still be embarrassed.

That new borrowing pushes the federal debt up awfully close to the $298-billion ceiling the Treasury thought would be high enough when it got the debt limit hiked temporarily at the last session of Congress. The permanent level is $285 billion and getting back to that looks well nigh impossible at this stage.

Worse, the Treasury fears now that it might have to go into debt in excess of $298 billion before the June 15 tax collection roll in—possibly before Christmas, because of the fall slack in tax receipts.

The Treasury's embarrassment is comparable to yours if your banker and other lending sources said you could borrow only so much, and you were near or at that limit. You would be wondering what to do about the expenses that vary from time to time and about any emergencies—not to mention your inability to take advantage of a bargain when it flits by.

That's what's behind the ruckus over the federal debt ceiling.

The Treasury says it can't maneuver as it should in the money market to get the best terms of interest and length of payments if it is too close to the ceiling. It also fears that expenditures, foreseen or possible in this quickly changing world, could push it tight against the ceiling, leaving it unable to borrow to pay its bills if it obeys the law.

The Treasury would like no ceiling at all. Barring that, it would like a boost shortly in the temporary ceiling, say to $300 billion, and then later to several billions above that.

This would top the record actual debt of $300 billion during World War II. In 1946 the permanent debt ceiling was put at $275 billion, raised to $283 billion in 1950, to $285 billion in 1959. But from 1955 on, higher temporary ceilings were mostly the rule.

The argument against setting a debt ceiling, and frequently changing it, is this: Congress itself votes the appropriations and programs that set the size of the Treasury's expenditures. Congress votes the kinds and rates of taxes that provide almost all of the Treasury's receipts. If expenditures exceed collections, the Treasury borrows to pay the bills and the federal debt rises.

Congress, therefore, may set a permanent or temporary debt limit, but the actual size of the debt largely is set by the amounts Congress appropriates and the taxes it authorizes. An added factor is the terms on which the Treasury may borrow—how much total interest it pays, boosting expenditures by that much and thus adding to the debt if tax collections aren't big enough.

The Treasury thinks that if the ceiling was higher it could choose the borrowing-time and the terms more easily. Congressional conservatives think that without the ceiling the administration might be tempted to spend carelessly and then run to Congress for an appropriation to make up the deficit.

Algiers' Secret War Drags On

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ALGIERS (AP)—In this city of death, Albatross regularly flashes an alert for Chicago.

Sirens scream and police cars speed through the streets. French or Moslem terrorists have found new victims.

Albatross is the Algiers police radio network. Chicago means a shooting by Moslem or European terrorists.

Every day at 6 p.m., in a half-abandoned government building guarded by five armored cars, seven half-tracks and a company of gendarmes, the day's toll of dead is read.

A young civil servant trainee puts together what is known as "the hunting board."

The countrywide weekend toll just before the 11 p.m. curfew Sunday night was 48 dead, including 35 Moslems and 13 Europeans, and 116 wounded, including 68 Moslems and 48 Europeans.

Later, under the bright chandeliers of an elegant restaurant, newsmen compare their notes.

Sometimes they find discrepancies. While an Algerian waiter poured the wine, they argue whether this woman was killed by a bullet or by a dagger.

At night, darkness and silence shroud the ancient Moslem Casbah that no European dares enter.

On an adjacent street, near a half-filled garbage can, an old Moslem beggar lies motionless. A steel-helmeted French soldier walks slowly by, reporting over his walkie-talkie that all is quiet.

Nearby, in an officer's club, the transfer back to France of a commander is celebrated. Champagne toasts are raised.

In a brightly lit apartment near the university carpets are rolled up while a record player blares late American tunes. Someone shows the Twist and 10 European couples try to imitate the movement. The girls in bare-shouldered dresses smell of fine perfume. The jovial hosts pour champagne and whiskey.

"We are winning," says one of the Frenchmen, a supporter of the right-wing Secret Army Organization. "The government has to deal with us. The rebels are finished."

Others just want to dance, to drink and to laugh, as if time is running out.

The tour, which will combine travel and study, is now being organized under the direction of Dr. Ralph Brimley, director of Extension, and Mrs. Myrtle B. Clark of Greenville, who for the third time will accompany those taking the trip. It is expected that a group of 30 or more people will be included in the group.

The 1962 tour, scheduled for June 9-July 17 as a feature of the Summer Session at the college, will include travel in nine foreign countries.

The Atlantic crossing from New York to London will be made by jet plane. A special attraction of the tour will be the return trip on the new luxury liner, the S. S. France.

Countries to be visited, with travel by motor coach and stops at first-class hotels, are England, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Luxembourg, Italy, Switzerland, and France.

Liz Taylor And Eddie Fisher Adopt Baby Girl

ROME (AP)—Screen star Elizabeth Taylor and Eddie Fisher announced today that they have adopted a year-old orphan girl named Maria.

It said: "Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Fisher are very happy to announce the adoption by law of a little orphaned girl. They have been looking for the baby for almost two years. Her name is Maria. She is one year old."

Miss Taylor and Fisher were married on May 12, 1959. She has two sons, 9 and nearly 7, by her second marriage to Michael Wilding, and a daughter, 4, by her third husband, the late Mike Todd. Fisher has a daughter, 5, and a son, nearly 4, by his previous marriage to Debbie Reynolds.

Four Men Die In Plane Crash

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., (AP)—Hot Mountain claimed its third airplane tragedy in four years when four California men died in the crash of their single-engine plane.

The Californians went down Sunday in a spinning beechcraft bonanza in foggy, rainy weather. State trooper Glen Minton, who is a pilot, theorized that the plane got into trouble in foul weather and lost a wing in a high-speed spin.

Minton said Louis Risner of Englewood, Calif., apparently was the pilot. Other victims were Henry Clay Risner, Louis' brother; Russ Weininger, a business associate of Louis Risner; and Charles Cornell, all of the Los Angeles area.

"We are winning," says one of the Frenchmen, a supporter of the right-wing Secret Army Organization. "The government has to deal with us. The rebels are finished."

Others just want to dance, to drink and to laugh, as if time is running out.

A failure to serve an answer shall constitute a consent to the taking and to the authority of the Court to proceed to hear the action and to fix the just compensation and shall constitute a waiver of all defenses and objections not so presented.

You are further notified that if you have no objection or defense to the taking you may serve upon plaintiff's attorney a notice of appearance designating the property in which you claim to be interested, and thereafter you shall receive notice of all proceedings affecting the said property.

You are further notified that at the trial of the issue of just compensation, whether or not you have answered or served a notice of appearance, you may present evidence as to the amount of the compensation to be paid for the property in which you have an interest and you may share in the distribution of the award of compensation.

You are further notified that trial by jury of the issue of just compensation is demanded by plaintiff.

EXTENDED BENEFITS ENDORSEMENT

Easiest way to meet mounting medical bills

When major illness strikes, it can take years for a bank account to recover—if you have to pay most of the bills yourself.

Now Hospital Saving Association offers a better way: Extended Benefits Endorsement. Combined with your basic Blue Cross and Blue Shield protection, it gives the most desirable features of "major medical" coverage for both hospital and doctor bills. Benefits start with the very first dollar of cost! It entitles each person covered to maximum benefits of $10,000 in addition to the benefits of the basic plan, and to 730 consecutive days of care. The low group cost? Only $1 per month for an individual—or just $2 a month for a family!

Ask any representative of Hospital Saving Association of Chapel Hill—North Carolina's Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plan—how you can take advantage of this protection against big medical bills. There's an office—or a representative—near you!

NEW YORK (AP) — Profit taking clipped New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroad in an irregularly higher stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderate.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .40 at 258.00 with industrials up .40, rails up .30 and utilities up .20.

Gains and losses of most key stocks were fractional, some going to a point or so. Central and Pennsy were affected by profit taking following their rise in anticipation of the merger agreement announced late Friday. Behind the selling also was the belief that the roads have a long haul before the merger can be actually consummated, if it ever is.

Gains by other carriers kept up the rail average, however, thus continuing a trend of recent sessions. Steels declined. Although producers were reported expecting incoming business to hold at the present high rate for a while there was some fear that stockpiling against a possible strike may cut second half business. Motors were unchanged to lower. Selective gains in various groups kept up the averages.

Central was down well over a point after opening on a big block of 16,000 shares, off at 20 1/2. Pennsy opened off at 18 on 10,000 shares and later enlarged the loss to a bigger fraction.

Amerasia, up about 3 points, pared an early 5-point spurt on further talk of a possible takeover or liquidation deal.

American Cyanamid rose a fraction while Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak and Allied Chemical took moderate losses.

North American Aviation was up nearly a point following its receipt of a missile contract.

General Motors fell about a point. Losses of most major steels were fractional. Woolworth was up about a point.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .64 at 712.37. Prices were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange in fairly active trading.

Corporate bonds were mixed with rails higher. U.S. government bonds were unchanged.

Dr. Mary Sloop Is Buried Today

CROSSNORE, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Mary T. Martin Sloop, founder of the Crossnore School for underprivileged children, was to be buried in the church cemetery today after services at Crossnore Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Sloop, 90, died Saturday after a long illness.

She was known as the "grand lady of the Blue Ridge" and in 1951 was chosen North Carolina, then American "mother of the year."

Dr. Sloop, who was born near Davidson, was graduated from the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania in 1906. She came to Crossnore in 1911 with her husband, Dr. E. H. Sloop, with whom she founded Crossnore School. He died a year ago. Their daughter, Dr. Emma Sloop Fink, and a son, Dr. William Martin Sloop, both are active in the school.

She and North Carolina author LeGette Blythe wrote "Miracle in the Hills," a history of their work here. She was credited with bringing good roads, modern farming methods, religious tolerance, a hospital and dental clinic and vocational instruction to remote, mountainous Avery County.

Besides her son and daughter, survivors include a sister, Mrs. Lucy M. Currie of Davidson, and five grandchildren.

An Anniversary For Jack, Mary

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comedian Jack Benny celebrated his 35th wedding anniversary Sunday—pretty good for a fellow who says he is only 39 years old.

Benny and Mary Livingston met in Los Angeles while playing in musical. They were married in Waukegan, Ill., in 1927.

Secret of their successful marriage? "It's Mary," says Jack. "She has a great deal of courage."

Following Bundy's address, the local club inducted W. M. (Booger) Scales as a new member.

Mayor Resigning, Eyes New Post

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mayor Richardson Dilworth has resigned, effective Feb. 12, ostensibly to seek the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the May 15 primary election.

The 63-year-old mayor, who was defeated in 1950 as the Democratic candidate for governor in the general election, announced his resignation at a news conference Sunday. Intimates had reported last year that Dilworth advised them he intended to seek the nomination.

Protest Praying At Exercises

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A faculty committee at Sacramento State College is looking into the customary practice of saying prayers at the beginning and end of commencement exercises.

A petition with 14 faculty signatures protesting the prayers as distasteful was received last spring. The committee appointed to investigate has sent questionnaires to all 500 faculty members.

Couldn't Decide For The British

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department told a congressional critic today that it had opposed a British sale of allmires to Communist China but that Britain felt it had every right to make its own decision.

The State Department's position was stated in a letter from Assistant Secretary Frederick G. Dutton to Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y. The senator had protested the transaction to Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

In the multimillion-dollar deal the Peiping government late last year purchased six Vickers Viscount airliners. Since then Red China was reported to have begun talks for the purchase of a fleet of Handley Page Herald airliners.

Earlier this month, the Rootes Group, one of Britain's biggest motor builders, announced the sale of 130 trucks to Peiping.

Cancellation of the sale, Dutton told Keating, would cause a bad public reaction in Britain "largely directed against the United States and, in the judgment of the British government, would cause undue harm to Anglo-American relations."

Dutton said the State Department was consulted in advance about the aircraft deal and told the British "we were opposed to supplying the Chinese Communists with these planes together with the embargoed equipment on them."

Dutton said the British also gave these reasons for completing the deal: The strategically important British aircraft industry is badly in need of orders to maintain employment; the political effect of this purchase of aircraft of Western manufacture would have useful propaganda value; and refusal of the contract would have greatly increased domestic pressures in the United Kingdom against the entire strategic trade control program.

4-Year Drought May Be Broken

DARWIN, Australia (AP) — A four-year drought appears to have been broken over a large area of Central Australia, where cattle have been dying for lack of food and water.

Up to six inches of rain has been recorded over 180,000 square miles north of Alice Springs.

A week ago a great cloud of dust covered 80,000 square miles of this area. Today a thin carpet of green is spreading as grass begins to sprout.

Record-Breaker Is Flying Home

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The U.S. Air Force's record-smashing B52H Superbomber left Torrejon Air Base near Madrid today for its home base at Minto, N.D.

In a flight without refueling from Okinawa to Madrid last week the eight-engine jet claimed 11 new records, including a world mark of 12,519 miles for distance in flight without refueling.

Pitt Officials Going To Clinic

At least five Pitt County officials are scheduled to attend a district meeting-clinic for 14 counties set for 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Onslow County Courthouse in Jacksonville.

Two members of the Pitt Board of Commissioners—Bruce Strickland of Bell Arthur and Robert G. Little of Simpson, along with County Attorney W. W. Speight, Auditor H. R. Gray and Tax Supervisor R. S. Moye, have made plans to attend the session, expected to adjourn about mid-afternoon Wednesday.

In attending the meeting, Pitt's officials will join representatives from 13 other Eastern counties including Beaufort, Brunswick, Carteret, Craven, Duplin, Greene, Jones, Lenoir, New Hanover, Onslow, Pender and Sampson.

The district meeting is sponsored by the N. C. Association of County Commissioners and the Onslow Commissioners completed local arrangements.

Alex McMahon, the association's general counsel, will discuss the role of county commissioners in fixing welfare and health salaries under the new Merit System compensation plan; the county's role in civil defense; sales tax refunds to counties; and other matters of interest.

Henry W. Lewis of the Institute of Government will discuss property tax problems including: preparation for revaluation, selection and supervision of appraisers, raising the assessment ratio and the listing and assessing of personal property.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson identified the woman as Grace Lillenton. He said she lives on Eastern Street.

Deputies reported the car was seen in the ditch around 10:30 last night near Frog Level and the Greenville Rescue Squad was called to the scene.

The victim was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital and released.

More Heavy Snow In Midwestern States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Heavy wet snow blanketed broad areas of the Midwest today, piling atop the big covering still on the ground from last week's storm.

The storm, which swept north-eastward from eastern Kansas and Oklahoma dumped from one up to more than six inches of snow in a belt extending from northern Missouri across northwestern Illinois into southeastern Wisconsin and western lower Michigan.

Russians Watch Finland's Vote

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Finns voted today in the first stage of a presidential election that supporters of President Urho Kekkonen, a proponent of neutrality, expect to return him to office for another six-year term.

With the Russians particularly interested spectators, the Finns are choosing 300 electors today and Tuesday. The electors will cast the deciding ballots in Helsinki Feb. 15. Though many have said whom they will support, the outcome is not the cut-and-dried affair that it is in the Electoral College of the United States.

The Soviet Union, Finland's largest trading partner, made plain in a period of diplomatic pressure last fall that the Kremlin prefers a continuation of Kekkonen's presidency.

Indonesian Boat Sunk By Dutch

HOLLANDIA, West New Guinea (AP) — An Indonesian motor torpedo boat has been sunk by Dutch warships in Dutch territorial waters off New Guinea, a navy spokesman said today.

The engagement took place when Dutch patrol vessels encountered a number of Indonesian motor torpedo boats, the navy spokesman said. He had no information on the fate of the other torpedo boats.

The Dutch news agency in The Hague said the engagement took place Sunday night.

Indonesia has threatened to seize West New Guinea by force if it cannot win the island by diplomacy, and Dutch officials report infiltration by small bands of Indonesians already has begun.

A Dutch official at Biak reported some Indonesian infiltrators have been killed in skirmishes with Dutch patrols.

The navy spokesman said patrol craft encountered the torpedo boats off the south coast near Elna Bay. This is a region within easy range of some of the eastern Indonesian islands believed used as a base for infiltrators into West New Guinea.
