Pitt Farm Bureau Backs Expanding Of Federation

Pitt County's Farm Bureau Wednesday endorsed a plan for expanding and increasing the Farm Bureau Federation throughout North Carolina.

Members of the county organization voiced their approval of the plan at a Greenville meeting called to allow State Farm Bureau President B. C. Mangum to discuss the proposal with the Pitt Bureau membership.

The meeting gave the proposed 10-point expansion plan a favorable nod in the face of an expected doubling of Farm Bureau annual dues, from $5 to $10. The proposed increase in annual fare was viewed by 85 Tar Heel county Bureau presidents in Durham earlier this month as the most feasible means of financing the expanded services program.

Mangum, in his discussion here, urged support for the plan which is the result of a two-year study by a committee appointed at the 1960 convention of the North Carolina Farm Bureau.

Expanded and increased services called for in the proposal include: contract bargaining as a means of more influence for the Bureau in obtaining a more favorable climate for agricultural progress.

Establishment of new county offices and expanding existing services of county units, expanded field services as a means of coordinating the state and county programs and of offering assistance to county units.

Home discussion groups to encourage farmers throughout the state to conduct local meetings for discussion of pertinent problems.

Expanded informational program to afford a means of better-informing the agricultural population about agriculture-related matters.

Market development and applied research to seek a well-rounded rise in per-farmer income.

Farmer record-keeping for tax purposes, social security information and banking credit reasons.

Youth activities to encourage and train young people to participate and understand agricultural opportunities and issues.

Women's activities on an organized basis as an additional strengthening vehicle for the Farm Bureau organization.

A breakdown of the proposed dues increase indicates that $5 of each $10 annual fee would be retained by the county unit, with $4 going into the State treasury and $1 to the National Farm Bureau. Under the present arrangement, the county unit holds $1.50 of the $5 annual fee while the State organization gets $2.50 and the national treasury $1.

In urging approval of the program, Mangum reminded Pitt members of the purpose of Farm Bureau: "I don't want us to forget that Farm Bureau was organized as the voice of agriculture in government," he said.

Mangum stressed the importance of a stepped-up informational program by the Bureau, noting that revenues previously have been inadequate to finance such a program.

Pitt Farm Bureau President, Ralph C. Tucker, joined Mangum in urging approval of the 10-point plan. He said farmers "should be encouraged to become more involved in farm problems so that we can run our own business instead of having it run by non-agricultural interests," Tucker said.

Farmer involvement in issues and programs would be a means through which "we can keep our agricultural standard improving."

Tucker, who is also a vice president of Wachovia Bank in Greenville, emphasized the importance of adequate record-keeping by farmers, one item in the 10-point plan. The Pitt president pointed out that, in addition to tax and social security reasons for record-keeping, a farmer's banking credit "can be greatly enhanced" through maintenance of concise financial records.

Veteran Deputy Files As Sheriff Candidate

Arthur M. (Duke) Andrews, veteran deputy, announced today that he will be a candidate for nomination for sheriff in the Democratic Primary May 26.

Andrews paid his filing fee to Board of Elections Chairman D. S. Spain this morning.

His announcement came after Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson had said he would not seek re-election upon completing 19 years in the office.

Andrews, 48 years old, has been a deputy for 13 years and was originally hired by Sheriff Tyson.

"I pledge to continue good and honest law enforcement if elected," Andrews said in making the announcement. "I feel that 13 years service as a deputy qualifies me to fill the position of sheriff."

He said he would expect to continue "the fine cooperation between law enforcement agencies of the city, county and state."

Andrews, a Greenville native, attended local schools and operated a service station north of the Greene St. bridge prior to joining the Sheriff's Department.

He has attended the Institute of Government's school for sheriff's departments' personnel in Chapel Hill. He has also attended an FBI school in Greenville and a school in community relations at East Carolina College.

More Than Half Were Chiselers

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Welfare Department report said Wednesday an investigation of 29 Washingtonians receiving relief payments for dependent children turned up 17 who were chiselers.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., released the report as chairman of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on District of Columbia funds. Byrd said that while only a small number of cases had been investigated he was "intensely interested" to learn that more than 50 per cent involved ineligible recipients.

Andrews was awarded a plaque by the VFW auxiliary for his work in signing up donors for Bloodmobile visits.

He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Andrews of Greenville. He is married to the former Frances McGowan and they have two children, Arthur, Jr., 21, and Sandra, 17.

Andrews is a member of the Meadbrook Presbyterian Church, Greenville Masonic Lodge No. 285 and the Greenville Moose Lodge.

20-Year Projected Program Of Improvements Is Accepted Here

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor

A 20-year projected public improvement program embracing school, utilities and municipal government needs was accepted by the Planning and Zoning Commission last night.

Prepared by James Godwin and Associates planning firm of Raleigh, the plan gives year-by-year recommended improvements. However, in the preface the firm pointed out the plan does not mean that all the improvements will be done in the stated time period.

"A planned Public Improvements Program does, however, enable the city to summarize its needs and to assign priority to each project in relation to other projects."

It pointed out that a six-year program has been adopted by many cities.

The usual procedure is to revise the program each year, adding new projects and eliminating those already completed.

This makes the long-range program a continuing process, and it gives city officials an opportunity to study all of the projects for several years in advance before final approval.

For the present year the study gave recommended priority in the Utilities to relocation of South Greenville electric substation and construction of a 500,000 gallon overhead water storage tank in East Greenville.

In the school system construction of a lunchroom at C. M. Epes School was recommended.

For the city it gives priority to completion of a city vehicular maintenance building, completion of 14th St. playground, replacing light poles at Guy Smith Stadium, construction of new Carver Library, completion of lighting for tennis courts at South Greenville Recreation Center.

The 20-year plan follows a general pattern of recommending street widenings and additions from year-to-year. There are also annual recommendations for additional water, sewer, electric and gas facilities to handle the increased population.

Additions of schools, library and recreation facilities are also recommended on a regular basis to handle projected population growth.

Commission Chairman Frank Little suggested that the study be turned over to the new city manager with instructions that he make it a part of his overall planning.

The commissioners appointed Kenneth Hite and Tom Chapin as a committee to make recommendations concerning trailer park areas. Presently trailer parks can only be established in industrial areas.

Mayor Charles M. King asked the commission to study the trailer ordinances after the council turned down a request for rezoning to industrial a lot on Raleigh Ave. The owner planned to establish a trailer park there.

Charles Cobb, chairman of the Neighborhood Conservation Committee, appeared before the commission to tell them that his committee has chosen the first area in which to begin work.

He pointed out that the Planning and Zoning Commission would have an opportunity to consider street pattern changes as neighborhood conservation progresses.

The conservation program generally will be done over a five-year period with the city divided into five sections, Cobb reported. The first section will be bounded by Greene St., Dickinson Ave., Memorial Drive and back to Greene St., excluding portions in the Shore Drive Redevelopment area.

Cobb said plans for this will be presented at the next council meeting.

The commission approved a motion by Tom Rivers that preliminary plats of new subdivisions be submitted to the utilities. The motion stipulated that this be added to the check list which accompanies plats submitted to the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The Utilities Commission presently has no representative on the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Action was taken after Chairman Little read a letter from Utilities Director Leonard Bloom asking that the Utilities Commission be allowed to check the plats for utilities installation.

Approval of the annexation of property bounded by Memorial Drive, Stantonsburg Road and the present city line was given after W. C. Taylor Jr. appeared to request this. The annexation is currently being advertised for public hearing at next month's council meeting.

The planners recommended that the property be zoned industrial.

Cochran Is Hired By 2nd Group

William I. Cochran has been formally hired by the Public Housing Authority to serve as its executive director, Chairman Charles Howard announced today.

Cochran, who has been executive director for the Redevelopment Commission, will now serve both groups.

The Redevelopment Commission and Public Housing Authority will also share the same office on third floor of City Hall and secretary.

Chairman Howard said the two groups have agreed to share mutual expenses on a 60-40 basis. The Redevelopment Commission will pay 60 percent of such expenses with the Public Housing Authority paying 40 percent.

Thus the Housing Authority will pay Cochran $3,800 annually and the Redevelopment Commission will pay him $5,700 annually.

Cochran had been receiving a salary of $8,000 from the Redevelopment Commission.

The office secretary will receive $1,280 from the Housing Authority and $1,920 from the Redevelopment Commission.

The Redevelopment Commission had agreed to the plan at their meeting Jan. 11. At that time Attorney Kenneth Hite appeared to present the Housing Authority's request. Hite reminded the commission at the time that there would be a general sharing of expenses under the plan.

Although the two groups will be using the same administrative personnel and offices, they will still remain separate as policy making bodies.

Cochran became Greenville's Redevelopment executive director in October, 1960. He came here from Asheville where he held a similar position.

U.S. Calls Urgently For Collective Counterattack Against Red Cuba

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—The United States, blasting Cuban and world communism in a slashing attack, called urgently today for a collective Latin-American counterattack against Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Red spearhead.

To turbulent applause, U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk urged 19 other American foreign ministers, sitting in judgment on Cuba, to drum the Castro regime out of bodies of the Organization of American States.

His speech reflected heavy pressure here for a compromise between those advocating the sternest punishment of Cuba in the form of a collective break in relations, on the one hand and the small but influential go-slow or do-nothing bloc led by Brazil, Mexico and Argentina, on the other.

The speech suggested the United States had held some of its fire purposely to test the atmosphere and ascertain what maximum can be expected here.

Rusk asked the OAS foreign ministers to adopt a four-pronged attack — evidently representing what the United States now considers it can expect out of this conference before it ends next week.

Rusk proposed that the inter-American foreign ministers:

1. Declare Castro communism is incompatible with the inter-American system.

2. Exclude the Havana government from participation in agencies of the Organization of American States.

3. End Western Hemisphere trade with Cuba, especially traffic in arms.

4. Set in motion individual and collective defense measures "against the various forms of political and indirect aggression mounted against the hemisphere."

"The time has come for the American republics to unite against Communist intervention in this hemisphere," Rusk said.

U.S. spokesmen insist their delegation came here with no fixed goals. They say they consider that if the program is adopted it will represent a strong stand in condemning and attempting to quarantine Castroism.

It was weaker than the stand taken by Colombia, or originally by all the Central American states, but there had been little hope from the outset that a big majority would favor full diplomatic and economic penalties.

Rusk's attack on Cuba won the longest and strongest round of applause so far of the conference.

Cubans listened solemnly during the speech, smiled broadly when it was over. One said Rusk's words were not as tough as they had expected.

Asked for comment, Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos said "I will give that in my speech." Dorticos probably will address the conference tonight.

Colombia called today for the sterner measures. It presented a resolution urging all 20 nations to cut trade and diplomatic connections with Cuba immediately. Colombia also asked that a watchdog committee be set up to guard the hemisphere's integrity.

Rusk's 40-minute speech came at a critical moment in the conference. Even while he was speaking, efforts continued behind the scenes to obtain a compromise between hard and soft reports to Havana.

Rusk lashed Castro and the Cuban Communists "smirking sycophants" of Moscow.

Rep. Wooten Files For Re-Election To House

Frank M. Wooten Jr. of Greenville today filed for reelection to a fourth consecutive term as a Pitt County representative in the House.

In paying his $18 filing fee, Wooten became the first candidate for the Democratic nomination in May to enter the November election as Pitt's Democratic choice for the seat.

For the first time in Pitt's 200-year history, the county in the 1963 General Assembly will be represented by only one House member. One of Pitt's two seats was lopped off and added to the pool for more populous counties during the 1961 session's reapportionment work.

Wooten, a Greenville attorney, was first elected to the House in 1956 and served during the special session called that year to consider the Pearsall Plan for the state's public schools system.

He was re-elected in 1958 and 1960. The 1961 session marked the fourth straight General Assembly, including the 1956 special session, for Wooten.

During the most recent session, the veteran Pitt legislator headed the House Judiciary I Committee, generally considered among the three most important House committees. The committee theoretically reviews all proposed bills for legal defects or elements conflicting with existing law.

A 1960 model car, owned by George Davis of Grifton, was taken a short time after the three ran.

today, Wooten placed himself squarely behind court reform measures to be presented to the '63 Assembly.

He also cited the need for improved primary and secondary highways in Eastern North Carolina and predicted: "I think that will be one of the big issues for next session."

Another item confronting the General Assembly, Wooten noted, would be increased appropriations for East Carolina College, "particularly for the college."

Fugitive Stole Car In Escape

GRIFTON—A felon and resident of the Pitt County Prison unit for only a week made good his bid for freedom near here yesterday by running from a work party and stealing a car.

The escapee was identified by Prison Department Sgt. Billy Murphy as Joseph G. Boze, 24, of Seattle, Washington. He was serving a seven- to 10-year sentence for armed robbery, the sergeant noted.

Boze, six feet seven inches tall and weighing 195 pounds, ran from a work party then took a 1939 model auto, parked a half-mile away.

The auto was owned by Willie Falkner of Grifton.

Officers said Boze, with black hair and blue eyes, was last seen wearing brown prison clothes.

The escape was made about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, only 21 hours after three honor grade prisoners jumped from the rear of a truck and escaped near Hanrahans Tuesday.

The three honor-graders, one with only 97 days left to serve of a three- to five-year sentence, are thought to have taken a car near Grifton to make good their escape.

A 1960 model car, owned by George Davis of Grifton, was taken a short time after the three ran.

President Unfolds Plan Dismantle Tariff Barriers

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy appealed today for prompt bipartisan endorsement of his five-year plan to dismantle the tariff barriers to a freely trading, trillion-dollar economic partnership with Europe.

"We will prove to the world that we believe in peacefully tearing down walls instead of arbitrarily building them," the President told Congress.

Repeating requests made in his State of the Union Message two weeks ago, he asked authority to negotiate tariff cuts of up to 50 per cent on some groups of products and complete elimination of tariffs on other items.

His special message on trade was studied with assurances that the "trade expansion act of 1962," as he titled it, would benefit workers, businessmen and consumers. It would preserve existing safeguards for domestic industry, he promised.

But the government should stand ready to aid farm and factory workers and companies temporarily hurt, Kennedy went on. He proposed these as "effective and relatively inexpensive" measures, without giving a cost estimate.

For workers left idle—financial help for job retraining and relocation, along with federal "readjustment allowances" for up to a full year at 65 per cent of average weekly pay, plus an additional 13 weeks for those over 60. Unemployment compensation, when received, would be deducted.

For business firms and farmers—federal loans and loan guarantees, technical guidance and unspecified "tax benefits" to help companies modernize plants and diversify products.

The 5,000-word message spelled out many provisions of the sweeping proposal to negotiate reciprocal tariff cuts and, in some cases, to eliminate entirely tariff walls between this country and the European Common Market.

But it contained more persuasion than detail. The specifics were in an administration draft bill sent Wednesday to the House Ways and Means Committee to replace the trade agreements act expiring next June 30.

The committee was to make public the draft today.

Well aware the bill will be attacked by protectionist groups, Kennedy urged Congress to override sectional, party and "bloc" interests and to preserve the bipartisan support for a liberal trade policy which has lasted for two decades.

"(The act) is designed as the expression of a nation, not of any single faction or section," he said. "It is in that spirit that I recommend it to the Congress for prompt and favorable action."

Pointing out that one out of seven farmers produce for export, and one of every three factory employees work for exporting firms, the President said U.S. tariffs must come down if its export markets are to flourish.

"There are many more American jobs dependent upon exports than could possibly be adversely affected by increased imports," he said.

"And those export industries are our strongest, most efficient, highest paying growth industries," Kennedy stressed the need for speed, to match the unexpectedly swift development of the Common Market and the threat posed by the accelerating Communist drive to "penetrate, encircle and divide the Free World" by trade agreements.

"But the combined output and purchasing power of the United States and Western Europe—nearly a trillion dollars a year—is more than twice as great as that of the entire Sino-Soviet world," he said.

The President outlined his program briefly:

First, general authority to negotiate mutual tariffs cuts of up to 50 per cent with any country, including leeway to bargain on whole groups of products instead of only single items.

Second, special powers to insure American access to Europe, behind the combined tariff wall of the six Common Market nations and those expected to join the bloc, including Britain.

This would permit either a reduction or the complete elimination of tariffs on those products in which the United States and the European Economic Community do 80 per cent or more of all world trade. Autos and trucks, machine tools, heavy industrial equipment and some consumer appliances are in this category.

To protect the access to world markets of Latin America and other underdeveloped areas, Kennedy pledged adherence to the most-favored-nation policy under which any tariff concession given to or obtained from Europe will apply to all other countries.

Without his "dramatic" new program, Kennedy warned, this country faces the possibility of worsened payments deficits, a slackened growth rate, and perhaps even forfeiture of its Free World leadership.

Psychotherapy Can't Do As Much As Public Expects, Doctors Say

This is the first of a series of six articles on "Has Psychiatry Been Oversold?" by Ruth Winter, a member of the National Association of Science Writers and the American Medical Writers Association, a writer for medical magazines and a newspaper reporter. Miss Winter has spent weeks interviewing doctors and psychiatry authorities to get material for this series. She is the wife of a doctor.

By RUTH WINTER
Women's News Service

Seventeen million Americans suffer from some form of mental illness. Today or tomorrow, you may be counted among them. Every one of us, as Dr. William Menninger of the famed Menninger Clinic pointed out, is mentally ill some time in life.

When you suffer from some form of mental illness, what are your chances of receiving help? Great progress has been made in treating our bodies—but what about our minds?

How much do psychiatrists really know about the mind? How much can they do to put us back on the road to mental health? Some prominent psychiatrists themselves are questioning this. Among them is the co-author of the book "The 3 Faces of Eve," Dr. Corbett H. Thigpen of Georgia. He said:

Jersey, a member of the American Psychiatric Association's Committee on Parliamentary Procedure, is among the psychiatrists calling for a realistic look at the profession.

"Psychiatry as a whole got a shot in the arm during World War II," Dr. Davidson said. "It was then that physicians who specialized in this field advised about the suitability of soldiers for service and combat. Their advice was usually sound."

"Ten years ago, psychiatrists were consulted about advertising copy, fluctuations in Wall Street, statesmanship and almost everything else."

Courts called in psychiatrists for consultations. Great upsurges of interest developed in such psychiatric problems as alcoholism, drug addiction, juvenile misconduct, obscene or sadistic comic books. PTA's and school principals wanted psychiatric supervision. And so great was the interest that you could pack an auditorium anywhere, whenever a psychiatrist spoke.

"Somehow, the public got the idea that psychotherapy could save the dissolving marriage, prevent the delinquent from becoming a criminal and teach the school teacher how to handle problem children. "The psychiatrist's office was thought to be the place to cure homosexuals and drug addicts and psychiatric insight was thought to explain—and prevent—industrial strife, lynching and divorce."

Dr. Davidson points out that the discovery of tranquilizers for mental disorders eight years ago added to the great expectations of the public.

But has psychiatry fulfilled its promise? Today, juvenile delinquency is at an all-time high. One boy in five has a police record by the time he reaches adulthood.

Emotional ills cost the nation $1 billion a year in direct costs and three billion in indirect costs. Ten per cent of the school children are estimated to be emotionally disturbed.

One out of every two beds in our hospitals is occupied by a mental patient. No one can deny that great progress has been made in the care of the mentally ill, particularly in the past 10 years. But subtle evidence is coming to light that psychiatry is not doing all expected of it.

The readmission rate in mental hospitals has increased almost 30 per cent in the past eight years, indicating many discharged patients have to return to the hospital for further care.

Case after case is coming to light where an adult or a child was treated for a mental disorder when, in fact, he was really suffering from a physical illness. Ten years ago, training programs for physicians who wanted to become psychiatrists had long waiting lists. Today, psychiatric hospitals have to go looking for resident physicians to train. The lack of young physicians interested in this field suggests growing doubts about its effectiveness.

Psychiatry has fulfilled many of its promises—but it has failed in keeping many others.

(Tomorrow: The price barrier to psychiatric care.)

Woman's Department Rules

In order to be of the greatest service possible of brides-to-be the Reflector's Woman's Department ask that the following rules be followed in submitting engagements and weddings for publication.

Photographs should be 5 x 7 inches in size and black and white glossy print.

Engagement photographs for Saturday's edition of The Daily Reflector should be in the Woman's Department by Thursday noon. Wedding write-ups should be submitted two days in advance of the wedding date. Material which does not give exact date of wedding will not be accepted.

Weddings, like other news, have a time value, therefore the amount of space devoted to weddings turned in late will be determined by their diminishing news value.

Club write-ups and other Women News will not be accepted more than a week after the event occurs.

Short Skirts, Low Waists Highlight Dior Collection

By GABRIELLE SMITH

PARIS (AP)—Extra short skirts and low waists with blouse-like tops and sculptured shapes highlighted the spring and summer collection presented today by the house of Dior.

Designer Marc Bohan in a striking presentation also showed suits of heavy tweed with masculine checks and pinstripes, with loose blouses reaching just below the waist, and straight skirts.

Early day wear was almost serious, with black and white checks and white-striped greys. The suits recalled the 1930s in mood, and dresses were definitely from the 1920s.

Suits had straight skirts that looked like well-folded oblong paper bags, with ridge stitching standing out like pressed seams on men's trousers.

There were some ultra-low necklines and several dresses had huge bumpy bows well down the back.

Afternoon dresses turned suddenly soft and fluffy. A knockout called "cinema" was a white bloused black shantung ensemble with a very low oval neck trimmed with wide ruffles. Surprises came in printed tulle fabric.

Wedding Gown Top Secret For Don Juan Bride-To-Be

By TONIA SCHILLING

PARIS — (WNS) — Couturier Jean Desses has returned from Greece with a huge secret order for Princess Sophia's trousseau. The pretty princess soon will marry Prince Don Juan Carlos, son of the pretender to the Spanish throne.

Desses, famous for his royal and titled clientele (the dowager Duchess of Kent is one), came away with an order for 31 sumptuous dresses, mostly ball gowns.

His bill? A secret, but "informal" guesses run to around $80,000.

According to Desses, the princess chose her trousseau sitting on the floor beside him in the royal palace near Athens and patiently eliminating about half the sketches he had brought from his Paris atelier.

The operation was a family affair. The Greek royal brood are an informal bunch. King Paul, Queen Frederika and Sophia's younger brother and sister were all there to make suggestions and join in the kind of wedding arrangements clamor that is common to families, whatever their rank, the world over.

Because Queen Frederika and other female members of the Greek dynasty are such good and faithful customers — Desses himself is Greek-born — the designer is thought to have cut his prices slightly as a kind of wedding present of his own.

"The Greek government is not paying for the wedding or the festivities occasioned by it," he said. "King Paul is paying for everything himself and, like many another father, he is feeling the pinch of an expensive wedding. The Queen told me jokingly that if her second daughter, Irene, decides to marry any time soon, she'll have to do so in a pair of overalls."

Sophia's wedding gown is top secret until the day, May 15 in Athens. Her bridesmaids are wearing the same lace veil worn by her mother as a bride. Desses brought it back to Paris for some "freshening up."

For the grand balls preceding the marriage ceremony, Queen Frederika herself ordered a dazzling gold silk-and-sequins gown sprinkled with crystal beads. Sophia's ball gown is blue organza, embroidered all over with blue and silver silk.

Desses sometimes has been criticized by fashion experts for producing clothes which are excessively fussy. But he contends that a certain amount of fussiness is a must for royalty.

"Royal women cannot dress like other women," he explained. "They dress to be seen and for the show not primarily for themselves, their husbands or their own social set. This must be firmly understood. If a queen wears an extremely smart but very simple suit, for example, a great many people would be disappointed. They would regard it as drab."

Within the bounds of good taste, a queen or a princess must always be slightly overdressed on public occasions. Queen Frederika, for one, knows this very well. She likes to be as glamorous as she can be. Princess Sophia is learning, too. After all, she may be queen of Spain some day.

Dr. Batten Cosmos Speaker

Mrs. Clifton Edwards Jr. was hostess to the Cosmos Book Club at her home Jan. 23. Greens were arranged throughout the house.

After a luncheon the hostess introduced Dr. James Batten, professor at E. C. C., as the guest speaker. A program on space and the astronauts was given by Dr. Batten who works personally with the astronauts at Langley Field and Cape Canaveral. These men are exceptionally fine strong men who have both age and maturity to be excellent astronauts.

What will this space program prove? No one knows, but space training may find some ray or lead to revealing something beneficial to scientific medicine.

America is as great as we make it. We need to stress positiveness of life and not compromise in our development.

Mrs. Don Calloway, president, welcomed the guests, Mrs. Cleveland Bradner and Mrs. Jack Thomas.

After the business meeting, the books were distributed and the meeting adjourned.

Adm. Burke Avers Never Felt Muzzled

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adm. Arleigh A. Burke testified today the Kennedy administration vetoed the draft of a major speech he proposed to make, and later disclosed the action "in such a manner as to indicate I was trying to get away with something, which I wasn't."

Burke said he had submitted the text of the proposed speech to the White House and office of the secretary of defense for clearance, and was told it "was not

Says Desertion Was A Matter Of Discretion

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A 125-pound defendant in a divorce suit, described his wife today as a "250-pound battleship" but denied that he willingly deserted her.

Instead, he explained in a written answer to her divorce petition, he was "glad to get away from her" because: "The defendant is small and an individual of not great physical strength. The plaintiff is a female of great physical strength, violent temper and a prizefighter of the first rank who gave the defendant two severe beatings before he, recognizing that discretion was the best part of valor, took himself away to preserve his own health, physical safety and mental order."

The answer was filed in District Court by William J. Wheaton, an unemployed machinist.

Brother Of Local Women Dies

JACKSONVILLE—Mr. W. H. Koonce, 65, died at Onslow County Hospital here Saturday. He had been in failing health for several months.

Mr. Koonce was the brother of Mrs. Carrie Spear and Mrs. Julie Anderson of Greenville. Funeral services were held at the Primitive Baptist Church Monday and burial was in the church cemetery near Swansboro.

Survivors include his wife, Eula Mae Davis Koonce of Newport; five daughters, Mrs. Edna Rackly of Wilmington, Mrs. Marie Stroble of Maysville, Doris Koonce of the home, Thelma Koonce of Jacksonville, Mrs. Jean Rouse of Kinston; five sons, Norwood of New Haven, Cecil of Kinston, Ray of New Jersey, Tinwood of Port Bragg and Peter of the home; one brother, Willie Koonce of Bayview, and 21 grandchildren.

Wheels Turn

GREENSBORO (AP)—Wheels were set in motion here Wednesday for establishment of a Piedmont University Center to serve 19 colleges.

Presidents of 16 colleges who attended the meeting named Dr. Harold E. Hutson, head of Greensboro College, and Dr. Dale H. Gramley of Salem College to a committee to set up operations. They were instructed to include a schedule of annual contributions from participating colleges of from $500 to $1,000.

The group expressed interest in cooperating in visiting scholars, and professors, sponsored research for faculty members, and inter-library services.

The 19 colleges are Greensboro, Salem, Wake Forest, A&T, Catawba, Davidson, Bennett, Elon, Guilford, High Point, Livingstone, Pfeiffer, Queens, Western Carolina, Winston-Salem Teachers, Johnson C. Smith, Belmont Abbey, Appalachian State and Woman's College. The last three named were not represented Wednesday.

Continued Warm For Greenville

Continued warm tonight and Friday with chance of showers is the weatherman's prediction for Greenville and vicinity. Temperatures today were expected to reach the 70s.

Rainfall up to midnight yesterday reached .32 of an inch. L. M. Bullock of the Greenville Utilities Plant reported. Temperatures were higher, striking the 53-degree mark at 4 a.m., the usual morning low.

The Tar River was at a six-foot level this morning and falling. Winds were out of the southwest, about three to five miles per hour.

Dr. Bateman At Annual Meeting

Dr. J. C. Bateman of Greenville is attending the 24th annual conference for veterinarians which closes today at N.C. State College in Raleigh.

The annual conference is sponsored by N. C. State College in cooperation with the N.C. Veterinary Medical Association. The conference has featured outstanding specialists in the field of veterinary medicine from all sections of the nation.

On Dean's List At Emory Univ.

ATLANTA, Ga.—Ralph Mayo of Greenville has been named to the fall quarter Dean's List at Emory University, it was announced today by John C. Stevens, dean.

Among requirements for Dean's List honors is a B-plus academic average. The list was inaugurated during the 1959 school year to recognize students of outstanding scholastic achievement.

Resigns Griffon Solicitorship

Solicitor of Griffon Recorder's Court Claude Harris has resigned his post effective Feb. 15, it was announced today by Griffon Mayor Wiley Gaskins.

Harris, who submitted his letter of resignation to the mayor last night, said he is leaving to accept work as an attorney with the Federal Trade Commission, with offices in Arlington, Va. He is to report for duty Feb. 19.

Regarding the resignation, Mayor Gaskins said, "We think Claude has done an excellent job as solicitor, and though we hate to lose him, we certainly wish him success in his new venture."

No consideration has been given a successor as yet, it was learned.

Harris has served as Griffon solicitor since last February. He has been associated with J. H. Harrell in law practice in Greenville since August of 1959.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Law, he completed his undergraduate work at East Carolina College. He is a native of Kinston, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Harris.

Prior to coming to Greenville, he served with the Civil Service Commission with offices in Raleigh. He has made his home in Greenville with his wife and son.

Promotion Body Meets Friday

The Trade Promotion Committee of the Greenville Merchants Association will meet at 8 p.m. Friday in the Council Chamber at City Hall.

B. D. Johnston, chairman of the committee said the meeting is being held at night in order to have sufficient time to work out plans for the years promotions. "Ideas of every member of the committee are needed in making his plans", Johnston said. He urged all members of the group to attend.

Little Fuss Made Over Spy Pilot

It is baffling, perhaps, that the latest spy-plane incident involving a Bulgarian pilot and his spy flights over NATO bases in Italy has not created an international furor in the same proportion as the similar incident involving the United States and Russia in May 1960.

One reason might be that neither of the major powers of East and West are involved in the incident between Bulgaria and Italy. There can be no doubt that the espionage flight orders were cut in the Kremlin even though they were carried out by a Bulgarian pilot in his Bulgarian plane. Neither is there any doubt that spying on NATO bases in Europe by the communists is just as direct a threat to the security of the other free world nations as it is to Italy.

It is somewhat disappointing, therefore, that the United States and other members of the Western alliance have remained relatively silent about this spy-plane operation of the communists. Granting the matter of what to do with the pilot is in the hands of the Italian government, it is a matter of the utmost interest to all of the NATO nations because it was an act against their collective military establishment . . . not just the defenses of Italy. If the communist bloc has been using spy-planes to gather information on the NATO bases in NATO bases in Italy, there is no reason to believe they have not attempted similar methods against NATO bases located in other countries.

Much more is involved that the violation of Italian air space. In the final analysis the military security of every member of the Western alliance is directly involved in the incident.

One More Dedicated Official Stepping Out

Yesterday's announcement by veteran Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson that he will not seek re-election to the post this year means that at the end of this year another dedicated public official of long standing in this county will move back into the realm of private life.

During the almost 19 years he has been sheriff of Pitt County, Ruel Tyson has afforded the county a constantly improving calibre of law enforcement.

Under his direction the Sheriff's department has not only increased in size, but modern techniques of investigation and crime prevention, along with other phases of law enforcement, have been followed in the department.

The sheriff's department has operated efficiently under his direction and while its cost of operations have increased over the years as the county has grown in population, it has afforded the people of the county a calibre of law enforcement considerably above that of most of the counties of North Carolina.

In his capacity as the county's chief law enforcement officer, Ruel Tyson has rendered commendable service to the people of Pitt.

Supervision Of Officials' Talk

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — This week Robert A. Lovett, defense secretary under President Truman, said he feels that "as a government we talk too much and give the impression of being unbuttoned."

The President said: "Therefore, there is some value in coordinating statements made by high-ranking responsible officials. It is the policy which must be followed by this administration."

He told this to a Senate subcommittee which began hearings Tuesday on whether military men are permitted to talk enough. The hearings will go on for weeks, probably get overheated, and will take three directions:

(1) Censorship of speeches by military officers before civilian groups; (2) teaching or educating troops about communism, and (3) participation by military men in seminars and public meetings.

All three questions come down to this: How much freedom shall military officers have to speak on matters not directly connected with their military duties.

President Kennedy's administration — like President Eisenhower's before it — has a policy which insists speeches military or other government officials give on national security matters be in line with White House views and the American foreign policy.

The investigation is the result of charges by Sen. Strom Thurmond, a major general in the Army Reserve and a South Carolina Democrat, that the Pentagon "muzzled" anti-Communist talks by military men.

He said the muzzling was done on orders "direct from Moscow." He wouldn't elaborate on that one.

Two former high-ranking officers are most frequently mentioned in discussion of this case: Adm. Arleigh Burke, former chief of naval operations, and Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, former commander of the 24th Army Division in West Germany.

When Kennedy took office last year, Moscow decided to release two American fliers held prisoners for 18 months after their plane had been shot down in the Barents Sea off northern Russia.

The Kennedy administration and Moscow consulted in some form on this release because on Jan. 25 Kennedy and the Russians issued simultaneous statements on it. That was five days after Kennedy took office.

About that time a speech by Burke was censored. Kennedy

Strength For Today

WALLS
The experience of imprisonment is undoubtedly a ghastly experience for those who have to endure it. Many people, however, build prison walls about themselves. With the great wide world to enjoy, they build off a little area and live gloomily within prison walls of their own building.

There are some people whose ideas are so set that nothing in the world can change them. They know the people they like and the people for whom they have no use. They claim that a certain philosophy is sound and that anything other than that is not only mistaken but vicious. Some people can truly be said to have in old age the same prejudices they had in youth, to hang on desperately

Throw Out the Life Buoy!

The Burned Shoplifter

All store owners who have stood helplessly by while shoplifters walked out with concealed merchandise will cheer Frank Diener.

Frank, as you might know, is the smiling proprietor of Peoples Bakery. As with every retail business he has troubles with the shoplifters, that peculiar band of thieves who snatches merchandise, crams it in a handbag or under a coat and calmly walks out.

The shoplifters know that the store manager will think twice before he accuses the filchers because he has to be certain that the merchandise was indeed stolen.

Frank recalls one time he had over 20 candied apples in a pan sitting at the front of his store during an evening rush hour. When the crowd diminished there wasn't a one left and Frank hadn't rung up a single sale for candied apples.

Walker's case was different. He lectured his troops in Germany on anti-communism and a publication, Overseas Weekly, said he also described "as definitely pink" Truman, Dean Acheson, former Secretary of State, and others.

The Army investigated and reprimanded him, according to Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr Jr., "for taking injudicious actions and making derogatory statements about prominent Americans."

The Army record showed he refused to answer—taking the equivalent of the 5th Amendment—when asked if he acted contrary to military regulations by advising his men on American political matters.

Walker, relieved of his command, quit the Army, began making speeches and last week announced he has become "the symbol of patriotism for this country."

Thurmond said later he didn't know all the facts in the case but still didn't think Walker should have been bounced. At the same time he said officers should stay out of partisan politics.

Everybody seems agreed that military men must be subordinate to the civilian leaders of the government. The dispute is over how much they should be allowed to say.

General Eisenhower issued a long statement Tuesday which went around and around but did say "let our informed military speak, always under properly established policies and the general—not petty—supervision of their civilian superiors."

But, since it's this very degree of supervision which is under investigation, Eisenhower didn't solve anything.

Kennedy said last year he knows of 65 efforts by Eisenhower's administration "to make sure that speeches by members of the military were in accordance with the general objectives of American foreign policy."

The economy is moved today by something less than a boom. However, there are prospects that it will assume boom proportions later this year, especially if a steel strike is averted.

The new budget is for the fiscal year that starts July 1, 1962 and ends June 30, 1963. Therefore, to produce the revenues needed for the $92.5 billion budget, business will have to keep perking until mid-1963.

The budget is based on calculations that corporate profits will rise this calendar year to $36.5 billion, an increase of $10.5 billion over 1961.

Observers have been puzzled by the price of many stocks in relation to their earnings. While savings banks are paying 4 per cent, and savings and loan associations up to 4.6 per cent, yields of popular shares. But that's another story. The reason store keepers will be cheering Frank is a more recent occurrence.

Frank took a big pan of tempting, luscious, tantalizing — and piping hot — individual apple pies from the oven one day. He sat the steaming items on a front counter.

Frank ducked into the back for a moment and by chance he saw a boy walk in the door, grab up one of the pies and stuff it in his shirt.

Frank rushed back out front. But, did he grab the boy by the collar and haul him off to police headquarters? Nope.

He smiled his politest smile and offered to help the youngster.

"How about some nice buns," he offered.

Our shoplifter gave a pained look and replied that he didn't believe he cared for them.

"Wait," insisted Frank as the boy edged toward the door. "Our doughnuts are good today."

The boy twisted and squirmed and beads of sweat popped out upon his brow. "No sir," he answered and side-stepped in the direction of the exit.

"Well, take a look at our apple pies," Frank said with the air of the genius who had created them.

Perspiration was pouring off the boy by this time. He clawed at his shirt front and bolted for the door leaving Frank minus one pie but in stitches.

Frank is taking bets that at least one jar of burn ointment was shoplifted in Greenville that night.

Public Forum Opinions In Brief

To The Editor:
The Urban and Public Housing Program has caused much suffering in our community.

Most of the homes were and are owned by elderly people whose life's work has been to prepare a place called "home." A place to live, rear children, be a citizen, accumulate whatever we could before retirement, so that contentment, security and pleasant memories of a well spent life could crown our declining years.

Our aims, our life's work have been shattered. What is our fate? Where are we heading? Is there a goal? Only a God who understands.

Many of the home owners of the area have passed away since the first meeting of the Urban Renewal Promoters.

Heart attacks, strokes, and nervous breakdowns—What has worry, strain, tension and fears caused?

Those of us who love our homes and would so like to keep them, we quote—

We wear the mask that grins and lies,
It hides our cheeks and shades our eyes,
This debt we pay to human guile,
With torn and bleeding hearts we smile,
And mouth with myriad subtleties,
Why should the world be overwise,

In counting all our tears and sighs?
Nay let them only see us while
We smile but O great Christ our cries
To thee from tortured souls arise
We sing, but Oh the clay is vile
Beneath our feet and long the mule;
We wear the mask,
Quite often we hear the words
"Do not hinder progress"
What is progress?
Does it mean, I profit if I can make you lose?
I will reach heights, by keeping you down,
I'll block your path that I may win?
And I put God in the background of my mind,
That I may not feel remorse?
Is this progress? If so,
Who wants it?
May we go on sitting back
As our pulse is growing slack
And our breath begins to wheeze
Like a little valley breeze,
Kind of nice to get around
On the old familiar ground
Knowing that when death does come
That he'll find us right at home.

(Mrs. Selena S. Lang)

Dogma Versus Dogma

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The Communists are masters at creating words and phrases which mean specific ideas to them but which convey few ideas to those who do not belong to them. The new phrase is "Pro-Albanians."

Actually, nobody is a Pro-Albanian. In fact, few of us have ever heard of the country or can identify it on a map. Nevertheless, a party has developed called "Pro-Albanians" and if anyone belongs to such a group he is condemned by the Communist Party to the degree of expulsion and excommunication. To be "Pro-Albanian" is to be as bad if not worse than to be a Trotskyist, when Stalin was the Boss.

The Trotskyists believe in the permanent revolution whereas Stalin believed in permanent war. Stalin wanted no more revolutions because he had established the "cult of personality," which in simple language meant the dictatorship. Whereas Karl Marx favored the dictatorship of the proletariat, Stalin simplified the matter by the "cult of personality," which meant a dictatorship by him alone.

Khrushchev regarded the "cult of personality" as a deep evil. He believes in competitive co-existence, which means that Soviet Russia and its allies will struggle against the rest of the world by its ability to out-produce them and to organize better than they have. Whereas Stalin used war as a means to extend the Russian empire, Khrushchev has employed every capitalist and Communist device to build power.

The Pro-Albanians are Pro-Red-Chinese and the Red Chinese are orthodox Leninists who are opposed to Khrushchev.

It is important for Americans to understand these differences because they affect us. Out of them may develop a great war in which we may become involved. It is easy to say that all Communists are alike. Actually, all Communists these days are not alike and as we need to form policy, it is necessary for us to understand varieties and differences and how we are to be affected by them. It is baby-talk to assume that we are living in the 1930's when we are actually living in the 1960's.

Stalin at Yalta was a horse-trader; Khrushchev today does not need to horse-trade because he possesses the same lethal weapons that we possess. Mao Tze-tung, so far as we know, does not possess the missile or the bomb, but he can pour between 500,000,000 and 600,000,000 Chinese into Siberia and Turkestan and make Khrushchev's political life untenable. The danger of sending a large body of Chinese who believe in the permanent revolution into Russian territory can be very great.

American Communists are not too concerned about the political struggle in the United States. The party has gone underground where it engages in espionage. Those who are above-ground devote themselves to a defense of Khrushchev and his policies against the Pro-Albanians. The American Party may proclaim itself as pro-American as the party line was in the Roosevelt Administration because Khrushchev's fight within the Soviet Union will be concentrated on the "Pro-Albanians" within the Communist World.

Khrushchev's problems are so serious that there is no telling what he will do to save himself. One of his steps undoubtedly will be to cement his relations with all European Communists, even Tito, whose national Communism weakens the concept of a Soviet Union. Tito has developed the idea of national socialism which could make Communist countries an alliance but not a union; a free alliance but not a universal state. On the other hand, Russian economy has advanced to the point where it becomes a competitor of the Western Markets in the European economic world which could make Russia a part of the Common

Budget Depends On Prosperity

By ELMER ROESSNER
The precarious balance of the new Kennedy budget depends to a tremendous extent on the continuation of the current rise in prosperity.

The economy is moved today by something less than a boom. However, there are prospects that it will assume boom proportions later this year, especially if a steel strike is averted.

The new budget is for the fiscal year that starts July 1, 1962 and ends June 30, 1963. Therefore, to produce the revenues needed for the $92.5 billion budget, business will have to keep perking until mid-1963.

The budget is based on calculations that corporate profits will rise this calendar year to $36.5 billion, an increase of $10.5 billion over 1961.

Observers have been puzzled by the price of many stocks in relation to their earnings. While savings banks are paying 4 per cent, and savings and loan associations up to 4.6 per cent, yields of popular stocks have been much less, with many substantial corporations paying less than 3 per cent to shareholders. At the same time, banks and savings associations have been getting little while the public has been getting its chips on stocks.

If corporate profits are to rise almost 18 per cent, the little people—and the Administration—must know what its going on.

The Administration also indicated that the gross national product—the total value of all goods and services produced in the country—would reach almost $70 billion, about $5 billion more than at the end of 1961. Personal income, it said, will rise to $448 billion from $417 billion last year.

WHAT IF DAM BREAKS?
These will be substantial gains and, to keep the budget in balance, they will have to continue at the same rate of increase at least through the first half of 1963.

But what if there is a steel strike, that can dampen all business, from that of General Motors down to the corner poppa and mamma store?

What if consumers are chilled? What if some other unforeseen situation punctures the boom? Or what if we just keep on as we are today, muddling along, making a buck here and a buck there, staying prosperous without ever getting the boom balloon into orbit?

Then, it is certain, the government will pile up another big deficit, as it has during most of the last Republican as well as Democratic fiscal years, and it will be forced to inflate the currency once more, as has been said before, some day hot dogs will cost a dollar.

BUDGETARY AID
Meanwhile, slowly, another factor is working toward balancing the budget. As inflation increases wages as well as prices, more and more low-income families move into the Federal income tax bracket, and more and more low-bracket earners move into higher brackets.

Thus inflation reaches down and brings increasing amounts into the Treasury. Prentice-Hall reports that the per capita disposable income in the United States in 1961 was $1,995 and estimates the 1962 per capita may be as high as $2,095. That will hoist many families higher on the income-tax ladder.

MORE OBSERVATIONS ON THE HUR DAY
As the union follow that of the New York construction electricians, who won a 5-hour day plus a sixth hour at overtime, there will be a great rise in moonlighting. Thus, the cutting of hours will simply free more men to seek second jobs. Many electricians with short days now own electrical, television or appliance stores and many work on second jobs as journeymen or sub-contractors.

Note: The New York electricians have agreed to increase the number of apprentices by 1,000 a year. This may forestall the four-hour day, but it will not relieve the present pressure on building costs in New York.

Question: Can Americans on a 30-hour week, including six hours on overtime, catch up with Russians on 48-hour weeks?

Scouting Honor For James W. Grimes

WILLIAMSTON — James W. Grimes of Greenville was one of six adult scouters in the 21-county East Carolina Council who received the Compass Award at the Council's Divisional Recognition Banquet here Wednesday.

Although Grimes was ill and unable to attend the gathering, his wife received the scouting honor in behalf of her husband. H. R. Foust of Greenville, vice chairman of the Pitt Division, made the presentation.

The Compass Award is presented by the Council in recognition of outstanding leadership and service in the scouting program.

The citation presented Grimes along with the award read, in part:

"Mr. Grimes has shown the way in 1961 and previous years through his efforts in the scouting program not only on a di-

Warns Of Road To 'Hitlerism'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—James A. Pike, Episcopal bishop of California, warned Wednesday the United States could end up like Nazi Germany if Americans succumb to increasing right-wing pressure to combat communism.

In an address to the Federal Bar Association, Bishop Pike said that attacking our institutions is not a sound way to defeat communism. He said such methods destroyed Germany.

"We've got to set forth a better way. The better way involves freedom, and the better way is not to spread suspicion, dissension and distrust," he said.

A native Pitt Countian and eight-year veteran County Commissioner, B. Alton Gardner is now serving his second term as chairman of the county governing body.

Born in the southeast corner of the county near the Craven County line, Gardner attended grade school at Gardner's Crossroads, then went to Vanceboro to high school, where he graduated in 1923.

After attending Wake Forest College for a while, Gardner returned to his Pitt home and started farming.

In 1933, when the government instituted the Agricultural Adjustment Act (the Triple-A program), Gardner became the committeeman for Swift Creek Township. He remained with AAA until 1942 when he entered the sawmill business and opened a store at Gardner's Crossroads, which he still operates.

In 1947 Gardner was appointed to the County Board of Education and remained on the board until November of 1954. The following month, he took the oath of office as a member of the Board of County Commissioners.

Representing District 5 on the board, Gardner was first elected chairman of the group in 1956. He is now serving his second term as chairman, taking over the position this past December.

As chairman of the group, Gardner is charged with conducting the meetings of the board, signing official correspondence and among other things heads the overall county planning committee and is chairman of the county Board of Health.

"I like to think," Gardner said, "that I am contributing to the welfare of Pitt County to the best of my ability."

Commenting on the fact that the chairman of the board rotates, Gardner explained that "if anything," being chairman makes a member "realize the responsibilities of the chairman."

This tends, he suggested, to "make the members more understanding of the problems of the county and the chairmanship and makes the board work more closely together."

Gardner, the first chairman selected under the rotating plan, will end his present term of service on the board in December.

"It is a pleasure to serve on the board," he noted. "We have good cooperation from the people in the county and from workers in all phases of the government. Credit should be given to the various departments in the county."

"We feel extremely fortunate in having one of the smoothest operating and high standing counties in North Carolina. The department heads work together."

Commenting on two "pet projects," the chairman said,

"I would like to see something accomplished toward a rest home this year . . . we are trying to work toward that end." He also noted that "I hope the industrial school will be well underway by the end of the year."

In addition to his life in county government, Gardner since 1937 has been a member of the Pitt County Grange district board and is a member of both the district and national advisory boards of the Production Credit Association. He is president of the local Production Credit Association.

He is also a district director of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, a member of the Board of Directors for the Planters National Bank and Trust Company of Greenville and a past president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau.

Gardner is a member of the Greenville Moose Lodge, the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, a Mason, and Scottish Rite Shriner.

Gardner is also chairman of the Board of Deacons of the Timothy Christian Church.

His main hobby is "traveling."

Gardner married the former Iva Dixon of Craven County and they have two children, a boy, 23, and a girl, 15.

It is to be noted seriously that Mao is not taking a separatist political position out of stubbornness. The Chinese people need a dogma. Way back in the 1920's, some of the Chinese warlords realized that they led a great mass who had lost the ideals of their ancestors and had found nothing new. Some of them hoped that Christianity might unify their people into a moral society based upon religion and nationalism. Chiang Kai-shek became a Southern Methodist. Subsequently, some of his followers combined Christianity and Confucianism. But Confucius was an atheist and a materialist. Mao employs Communism as a religious force.

So Far, West Berlin Far From Being 'Strangled'

An AP News Analysis
By EUGENE KRAMER
BERLIN (AP)—How long can West Berlin remain walled up without withering on the vine? This question recently prompted President Kennedy to ask his personal envoy to the city, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, whether West Berlin needs any special help. The result has been more attention to U.S. investment in West Berlin. A look at the map shows that the wall raised by the Communists last August to stop the flow of refugees is part of a curtain of concrete and barbed wire completely encircling West Berlin. Because they surround the city, the Communists can turn the pressure on and off at will. This raises the question whether the island can hold out economically. There are conflicting views. But responsible Western authorities who monitor West Berlin's pulse say that it will take more than a wall against refugees to kill West Berlin economically. If the Communists should ever raise a wall against goods and trade, that would be another and very serious matter. The ever-present threat of such an economic wall is one reason Kennedy and other Western statesmen have suggested international control over the access routes to West Berlin. The East German Communists have rejected the proposal, which would end their present exclusive control over West Berlin's commerce. However, they hardly interfered with the record volume of goods moving in and out of the isolated city last year. East German Communist newspapers like to portray West Berlin as a ghost town. Their favorite propaganda photos show moving vans leaving West Berlin and "for rent" signs in empty windows along Kurfurstendamm, the main street. Tourists find West Berlin a bit quieter now than last summer, but the economic experts say business is healthy. Unemployment averages about 21,000 and the city of 2½ million has a labor shortage. The raising of the Red wall between East and West Berlin stopped more than 50,000 East Berliners from commuting to jobs in West Berlin. It is reliably estimated that 1,400 West Berliners a week move to West Germany and 800 to 1,000 West Germans move in. Western sources say this drain can go on indefinitely without seriously hurting a city the size of West Berlin. Most of those leaving seem to be old or retired people. Those arriving are mostly young workers lured by lower taxes, marriage loans and other incentives. West Berlin remains the biggest industrial city of all Germany. Orders for its foodstuffs, electric machinery and other major exports have shown only a very slight leveling off. West Berlin's gross product—its total of goods and services—for 1961 is estimated at 13.2 billion marks—$3.3 billion. This is a 10 per cent gain from 1960 which in turn was 13 per cent over 1959. Despite the ever-present threat of tighter Red controls, a total of about 17 million tons of goods moved in and out of West Berlin by truck, train and barge last year. One reason for so little Communist interference is the inter-zonal trade agreement under which West and East Germany sell each other about $250 million worth of goods a year. The Communist East German regime knows that interference with the trade lanes to West Berlin could cut the flow of badly needed steel, machinery and chemicals it gets from West Germany.

Chief Of Secret Police Murdered

GUATEMALA (AP)—A burst of machine-gun fire from a speeding car killed the chief of the Guatemalan secret police, Raulfo Gonzales, Wednesday night as he was leaving his home. Gonzales' driver and one of his assistants were wounded. The attackers escaped, and police launched an extensive search for them. Political revenge was believed to be the motive for the assassination.

on. The continued use of the present Salk vaccine is strongly urged by all public health authorities, he said. The health director also discussed reduction of the perinatal mortality rate and the maternal death rate. Discussing health programs in other countries, Dr. Futrell mentioned the relative effectiveness of public health programs in the United States and India. He said 80,000 children died in India from red measles in 1959, compared to 410 in the United States. He also discussed the five year study in Haiti, stating that the two-fold purpose of the study included use of a tuberculosis vaccine known as RI to reduce the present tuberculosis rate of 15 per cent of the general population, plus the obtaining of information relating to possible effectiveness in the United States. The vaccine is thought to be roughly 80 per cent effective, Dr. Futrell stated. During a short business session at the meeting, Secretary W. R. Brown read the minutes and ex-president Johnny B. Daniels discussed P.T.A. activities. Principal Matthew Lewis made announcements and Mack Ebrum, a parent, reported on civic activities. New parents were welcomed during a refreshment hour.

School Health Program Discussed By Dr. Futrell

STOKES—Dr. John Futrell, Pitt County health director, stressed the need for an organized safety program in each public school while presenting facts about the school health program and other highlights in the medical field at the Stokes School Elementary School P.T.A. meeting Monday. He was introduced by Mrs. Margaret Coughlan, public health nurse. Dr. Futrell answered questions from the audience pertaining to the safe time for children to resume school following chicken pox and other diseases. He cited the four leading infectious diseases as, red measles, streptococcus infection, gonorrhea and syphilis, in that order. The problem of illegitimacy in Pitt County still is "frightening," Dr. Futrell stated. In other points, he emphasized the need for yearly chest x-rays for everyone over 40, plus those under 40 with chest symptoms or tuberculosis contacts; said he felt the present tuberculosis new case rate would be cut in half by 1970, though complete eradication is the goal. Dr. Futrell also said the transition from inactivated intramuscular Salk vaccine for polio to the live oral sabin vaccine would not take place prior to the upcoming 1962 summer polio sea-

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Peter Fonda, youngest of the acting Fonda family, appeared the hottest prospect today for the role of John F. Kennedy in the film version of the President's war exploits. Fonda, 22, spent all day Wednesday testing for the starring role in "PT 109" the story of how Kennedy and 10 others survived the sinking of their PT boat after it was rammed by a Japanese destroyer in 1943. Kennedy was 26 at the time. "I haven't got the Boston accent yet," said Fonda, son of Henry and brother of Jane. "I haven't had time; I was testing two days after I was asked to come to the studio. But it should not be hard to pick up these flat A's." Peter Fonda made his pro debut last fall on Broadway in "A Sweet and Stanley Poole," a flop that won him good reviews. He has not yet made a movie. "I never wins the studio's nod—and many other actors have been considered—faces a presidential veto. The President has reserved the right to pass judgment on the actor who impersonates him.

Security Risks? Kennedy Swift To Defend

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy came swiftly and vigorously to the defense of two State Department officials described by a woman reporter in a news conference question as "well-known security risks." In a dramatic exchange Wednesday, the President not only vouched for the security status of the pair but rebuked the reporter. He told Sarah McClendon,

Washington representative for several Texas and New England newspapers, that she was using "a very strong term which I would think that you should be prepared to substantiate."

The President said he was familiar with the status of the two men—William Arthur Wieland and J. Clayton Miller—and declared they can carry out the duties assigned to them in the State Department "without detriment to the interests of the United States."

He sharply told Mrs. McClendon he hoped they could do so "without detriment to their character by your question."

Mrs. McClendon touched off the exchange when she said "two well-known security risks" recently had been put on a task force in the State Department to help reorganize the Office of Security.

The President interrupted to ask for the names, and Mrs. McClendon gave them.

Within a few hours a State Department spokesman added to the President's comments at another news conference, declaring that the two men had neither been charged nor found to be security risks. Both were reported now assigned to the Office of Management in the Bureau of Administration at the State Department.

The ticklish nature of the episode led the National Broadcasting Co. to delete the exchange from its taped broadcast of the presidential news conference. The network said it had been told by the White House press secretary, Pierre Salinger, that the exchange was not legally privileged.

Both the American Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System aired the conference in full, however, and other news media carried full reports.

Neither Wieland nor Miller could be reached for comment.

After Kennedy's news conference, it was reported both men were closeted with Undersecretary of State George W. Ball and Roger W. Jones, deputy undersecretary for administration. Later Lincoln White, State Department press officer, called in reporters and quoted Jones as giving the State Department's assurances that Wieland and Miller had neither been charged nor found to be security risks.

Wieland, in his present job since last October, formerly was chief of the State Department division in charge of Cuban, Mexican and Caribbean affairs. The State Department said Miller had been assigned to the Office of Management last June, when he joined the State Department after holding various posts in government and private service. Quoting Jones, press officer White said Wieland himself had requested a full review of his security file after "certain allegations were made before the (Senate) Internal Security Committee."

"Wieland in turn had been granted full security clearance by the State Department," White added. Mrs. McClendon, who was present at White's news conference too, asked whether White recalled that she had telephoned him Tuesday night and asked "about stories concerning Bill Wieland's security."

White said in response that he had told Mrs. McClendon that Wieland had been removed from his former position in the Office of Caribbean Affairs, White said he didn't know and would have "no comment if I did."

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Mother Earth taking a breather from earthquakes; the possible magic of souped-up light; and aerial typewriting are among the latest subjects for science at work.

BUSHED-OUT EARTH
Although plenty of major political rumblings occurred on its surface during 1961, the earth last year was comparatively quiet by the standpoint of producing internal rumblings—earthquakes, that is.

U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey seismologists told a reporter the year was a weak one for earthquakes—with only a few really big tremors occurring, and these at widely separated places.

As in other years, there were numerous small quakes. But even so, earthquake activity for the year was happily below average.

Their explanation: Mother Earth was, in effect, pretty bushed after rumbling in real tough fashion the year before—when she loosed such major quakes as the Chilean one that spawned a great tidal wave in the Pacific Ocean.

SOUPED-UP LIGHT
Keep the name LASER under your hat. Some day, devices bearing that monicker may vastly increase the range of space communication; make possible knifeless surgery; allow transmission of 100 million simultaneous telephone calls; and even provide a new form of death ray.

Navy and other scientists say such possibilities are envisioned from still highly experimental research on the LASER technique, more formally known as "Light Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation."

GLASER is a system for amplifying and sharpening weak waves of light to produce a very narrow, powerful beam—and the ultimate hope is to employ optical waves in much the same way radio waves are now used.

Its secret is based on the fact that if certain chemicals, gaseous or solid, are excited to emit light—for example, under the influence of an electric current—the weak light will further interact with atoms of the material. Under proper conditions, the original waves of light are thereby intensified.

AERIAL TYPIST
Now we have skytyping by airplanes as well as the more familiar skywriting.

As described in Ethyl News, five airplanes fly parallel courses in tight formation and shoot out staccato smoke bursts electronically. The idea is to get a sky-written advertisement out fast before poor weather sets in.

In the typing technique, one central-control pilot in the squadron operates a radio transmitter which sends impulses to receivers in the other planes—triggering smoke valves.

Church To Honor Memory Of Its Patron Friday

St. Paul's Episcopal Church will pay honor to the memory of St. Paul on Friday at the feast of the Conversion of the early missionary.

The parish family of the local church will get together for a covered dish supper Friday at 6:00 p.m. in the Parish Hall.

At 7:15 p.m. the procession will form with the crucifer leading the group through the church yard into the church, there they will be hymn singing. The clergy will lead the congregation at 7:30 p.m. in Evening Prayer; after which the Lord Bishop of Dunwich will preach a sermon entitled "St. Paul the great missionary."

The Rector of St. Paul's, the Rev. John W. Drake, Jr., announced that the patronal festival is open to the public. Five cities of the United States contain one-tenth of the nation's population. The cities are New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Detroit.

All-State Orchestra Meeting At ECC Will Bring 165 Students

Chosen through state-wide auditions, 165 of the most talented high school musicians in North Carolina will participate Friday, Saturday, and Sunday in the All-State Orchestra at the group holds its annual meeting at East Carolina College.

Donald H. Hayes, faculty member of the East Carolina Department of Music and Director of the college symphony orchestra, is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. He has announced the program of events, including a full schedule of instruction and rehearsal and a public performance by the young instrumentalists.

Robert Rimer, Director of Instrumental Music in the Cleveland, Ohio, public schools, will conduct the All-State Orchestra of 84 members which will be organized here Friday.

A Workshop Orchestra of 81 musicians, also organized on the campus, will play under the direction of Emerson Head, Director of Bands and Orchestra, Wake Forest College in Winston-Salem, N. C.

Of chief public interest during the meeting will be a concert by the two orchestras Sunday in the Wright auditorium at 2:30 p.m. The program is open to the public.

Each group, playing under its director, will present four selections. Included among the Workshop Orchestra numbers will be the third movement of Schubert's Symphony, No. 5, and highlights from "My Fair Lady."

The All-State Orchestra will perform the fourth movement from Symphony, No. 1, in C major by Brahms and three dances from the Gayne Ballet Suite by Khachaturian, and other selections.

The All-State Orchestra project was begun in North Carolina ten years ago with the purpose of encouraging talented high school musicians, giving them an opportunity to play together, and providing outstanding musicians as instructors and conductors. The 1962 meeting at East Carolina is the second to be held on the campus here.

Those participating in the Orchestra program this week will be entertained at East Carolina by a series of parties and dances staged in their honor.

Family Grows By Six In A Year

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Since the first of the year, Charlie and Lois Garvin's family has grown from five to 11 and they're expecting another child in June.

The six new members of the household are the brothers and sisters of Mrs. Garvin, 22. They range in age from 1 to 16. Her widowed mother died Jan. 2 and "mom wanted the family kept together," Mrs. Garvin explained Wednesday.

Charlie and Mrs. Garvin, who were married when she was 14, have five children of their own. The youngest is a year old, the oldest is 7.

Dr. Bernard J. Jackson Conducts Speech Survey

Speech screening of students in all public schools in Halifax County, N. C., has been in progress during January under the direction of Dr. Bernard J. Jackson, associate professor of special education in the department of Education at East Carolina College.

Assisted by four students enrolled at the college in a course in Applied Speech Correction, Dr. Jackson will complete this week the work of giving speech tests to more than 10,000 boys and girls from the first through the twelfth grades.

The project of conducting a survey in Halifax County to determine how many speech problems exist among public school students there has been arranged by Fred Young, Assistant Superintendent of Halifax County Schools.

The survey is expected to indicate also whether the services of speech therapists are needed in the county and, if so, how many therapists should be included among school personnel. The county schools now have no speech therapist.

East Carolina students who are assisting Dr. Jackson in the public service of conducting the survey are Mrs. Elizabeth K. Denton of Tarboro, Mrs. Mildred J. Miller of Garland, Jefferson H. Faucette of Morehead City, and Kenneth C. Norton of Rex. The State Department of Public Instruction has also provided help in the survey.

Dr. Jackson and his students have visited several Halifax County schools each Tuesday and Thursday during January.

"By using a quick method of testing, we have been able to screen about 3,000 students a day," Dr. Jackson stated. "A well organized plan of bringing student and therapist or student-therapist together without loss of time is enabling us to complete the survey program within the month."

Adult Classes In Home Ec Slated

FARMVILLE — An organizational meeting to begin adult classes in home economics will be held at H.B. Sugg School Home Economics Cottage in Farmville on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. It was announced today.

The emphasis this year will be placed on management, Mrs. B. W. Mebane, vocational home economics teacher, said. All areas of home economics will be discussed, however.

Prints Will Be Offered Public

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—The old practice of headhunting in the jungled mountains of east India's Nagaland reportedly has been resumed.

A report today from Shillong, capital of Assam State, said village guards clashed several days ago with Naga guerrillas who are fighting independence from India for their area. The guards killed six guerrillas and cut off their heads to show as proof.

The arrival of prints by well known artists has been announced by Greenville Art Center Director Marge Jackson. The prints will be offered for sale at small fees.

Among them are a group of Chinese watercolors, and prints by the famous artists Klee and Modigliani. Children's illustrations also are included in the group.

Those interested may inquire at the Greenville Art Center.

Viennese Guests Angered By Brinkley Impressions

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — David Brinkley's "Our Man in Vienna" Wednesday night on NBC, which included some marvelous photography and background music, was one of the brightest hours of television this season.

But the Brinkley treatment of the old Austrian city didn't go over well with an invited group of Viennese, with whom this reporter saw the show at a network preview.

They were angered at what one of the group, a high Austrian official, called "a totally false, unfair impression."

Among the commentary that annoyed the Viennese:

Brinkley described Austria as "over-governed, under-worked, over-fed and tired—a remnant of 19th Century Europe, preserved in milk chocolate and whipped cream." He suggested life in Vienna consisted largely of "eating heavy pastry and listening to light music," that there were almost as many holidays as work days and that workmen "spent long, lovely, lazy days standing around," while the cameras illustrated the words with shots of construction workers taking their ease on the job.

Strauss music filled the program. It was perhaps at its best when Brinkley, with notable as-istance from the camera, was describing the gastronomic joys of a city famed for its food.

CBS-TV President James T. Aubrey, testifying Tuesday before the Federal Communications Commission, noted that in all of network television's evening programming there is only one half-hour a week when the viewing audience has no choice in the type of program. And that, it turns out, is Thursday night between 9:30 and 10 (Eastern Standard Time) when all three networks are unreeling filmed situation comedies. It is also the half hour into which are jammed three of the four remaining TV shows starring women: "Marge" (Cynthia Pepper), "The Gertrude Berg Show," and "Hazel," starring Shirley Booth. "The Donna Reed Show," earlier in the evening, is pitted against two Westerns.

Milburn Stone, who plays Doc in "Gunsmoke," has been awarded an honorary membership in the National Corners Association, notes a CBS press release. One trusts the honor will not give the network any ideas about developing whole new series around Stone at a time when medicine-type shows are so popular. "I don't think I would like 'Frontier Medic' much, but at least no one else has ever done it."

New Litter For Truck Arrives

AYDEN — A new litter for the emergency rescue truck operated by the Ayden Volunteer Fire Department has arrived and has been installed in the truck.

Town Manager Cleveland Paynor described the litter as modern and collapsible. It has been added to equipment already carried in the truck.

The litter was authorized some time ago by the Ayden Town Board.

Cincy Returns To Conference

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Cincinnati returns to Missouri Valley Conference competition tonight, realizing it can afford no more missteps in its drive toward a possible second straight national collegiate basketball title.

LaSalle plays at Miami of Florida. Wednesday night, Jerry Carlton staged some late-game scoring exploits that sparked Arkansas over Tulsa 99-77. Carlton netted six points as Arkansas scored eight straight in a spurt that broke it open, totaled 16 points in the final six minutes and 14 in the last four. He had 21 for the second half and 26 for the night.

Walter Rabb, University of North Carolina baseball coach and assistant athletic director, praised Mallory's work as a coach and an educator.

'Football Is To Baseball What Twist Is To Ballet'

(EDITORS' NOTE: In a recent Associated Press poll of the nation's sportswriters and broadcasters, one of the questions asked was whether professional football in 10 or 20 years will replace baseball as our national pastime. The vote was yes by a tally of 109 to 106. Today, Jack Rider, president of the new Kingston team of the Carolina Baseball League, and a former sports writer, says a few words on behalf of baseball.)

Perhaps, but a former sports editor and present president of a minor league baseball team (such as myself) has a slightly different notion.

Of that most combative sport: boxing? With a skyrocketing population, the 20-hour work week just a couple of strikes away and national prosperity still living on easy credit, it would seem to be a backwoods sports expert that there might very well exist sufficient thirst for both to prosper.

Written for The Associated Press KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Will pro football replace baseball as the national pastime? Most widely circulated among the recent of this questioning breed was Oliver Kuechle, sports editor of the Milwaukee Journal, who told a Dallas gathering of Associated Press managing editors that baseball was on the way out and pro football on the way in.

Kuechle declares that baseball is inert and stuffy, baseball ownership is selfish and ruthless, that players are equally selfish and ruthless, baseball' overall stupidity is colossal and that long baseball games will combine with these aforementioned weaknesses to put an end to baseball's reign as the national pastime.

Baseball is a game of the individual. Football is an organized mob with occasional moments in which the individual may shine, but even then only with the support of his other 10 masked mates.

Minor Baseball League Must Suspend Operation

By KEN ALTYA
CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Class AA Southern Association, at 61 years one of the nation's oldest minor baseball leagues, has been forced to suspend operations, with two of its four remaining members finding refuge in the Class A South Atlantic League.

Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn., leave the folded Southern Association to make the South Atlantic a 10-team league for this season only. Evansville, Ind., and Little Rock, Ark., are left without a league.

However, there's an "if." Nashville has been given until Feb. 5 to obtain a general Class A working agreement with a major league team.

Should the deadline not be met, Joe Engel, veteran Chattanooga general manager, said his club would not operate this year either.

The South Atlantic then would be right back with eight teams.

A grim, somber George M. Trautman, head of the minor leagues, presided over the two-hour closed meeting that sounded the death knell of the charter member of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, formal title of the minor's organization.

It reduced to 19 the number of active minor leagues, three under last year's total and a far cry from the 440 teams that operated in 96 minor circuits in 1949.

Trautman announced "with great reluctance the suspension of the Southern Association, effective Feb. 15, due to inability to secure working agreements being young four already committed."

Chattanooga, Nashville, Evansville, and Little Rock had major league affiliations and were ready to field teams in 1962. But no more working agreements could be obtained. And the South Atlantic took a dim view of a proposal that the 12 teams be divided into two six-team leagues.

Nashville had a Detroit tieup in effect for the Southern Association but South Atlantic Member Knoxville, Tenn., also is working with Detroit. Two such arrangements are not permitted in a league.

The association's troubles started after the 1961 season when Atlanta and Macon, Ga.; Mobile and Birmingham, Ala.; and Shreveport, La., withdrew. Evansville replaced Atlanta and Hal Totten, association president, hoped to pick up two more cities to form a six-member combine.

He tried in vain to sell the Sally Leaguers on the idea of locating franchises in Columbus and Macon, Ga., and splitting the dozen teams into six-club leagues.

South Atlantic officials also shied away from the increased travel and expenses taking in Evansville and Little would have meant. The Sally also includes Charlotte and Asheville, N.C.; Greenville, S.C.; Portsmouth, Va.; Knoxville, Tenn.; Augusta and Savannah, Ga., and a franchise Cincinnati operated at Columbia, S.C., last year but plans to relocate.

Trautman and Sam Smith, Sally League president, said they hope continuance of at least two Southern Association members in baseball this year would serve as a possible starting point for a revival of the association next year.

Smith said the Sally League would make no plans pending clarification of Nashville's situation. An eight-team league would have played a 140-game schedule. Smith said a 144-game slate was a possibility with a 10-club operation.

Talks To Resume In Florida

NEW YORK (AP)—Home run king Roger Maris and New York Yankee officials, still a reported $10,000 apart on Maris' 1962 contract, will wait until the club heads to Florida for further negotiations.

"No agreement was reached," General Manager Roy Hamey said after a 20-minute meeting with Maris Wednesday. "Further contract negotiations will be resumed in Florida next month."

Both Hamey and Maris will attend the New York Baseball Writers' dinner Sunday night but apparently any talks will be social only.

Maris reportedly is asking $70,000 after his sensational 1961 season, when he rapped 61 home runs in a 162-game schedule and won the American League's most valuable player award for the second straight time.

Hamey is believed to be trying to hold Roger down to around $60,000.

IAN FLEMING'S Greatest Thriller THUNDERBALL

CHAPTER 11
The killer carefully rinsed the knife in the sea water, wiped the blade on Petacchi's back and put the knife away. Then he hauled the body along the wing and thrust it underwater beside the escape hatch.

The killer waded back along the wing to the waiting jolly boat and laconically raised a thumb. By now four of the men had pulled on their aqualungs. One by one, with a last adjustment of their mouthpieces, they clumsily heaved themselves over the side of the rocking boat and sank in a foam of small bubbles.

When the last man had gone, the mechanic at the engine carefully lowered a huge underwater searchlight over the side and paid out the cable. At a given moment he switched the light on and the sea and the great sinking bulk of the plane were lit up with a mist of luminescence.

The mechanic slipped the idling motor into gear and backed away, paying out cable as he went. At twenty yards, out of range of the suction of the sinking plane, he stopped and switched off his engine. He reached into his overalls and took out a packet of cigarettes. He offered one to the killer, who took it, broke it carefully in half, put one half behind his ear, and lit the other half.

The killer was a man who rigidly controlled his weaknesses. On board the yacht, No. 1 put down his night glasses, took a handkerchief out of the breast pocket of his white sharkskin jacket and dabbed gently at his forehead and temples. The operation went like clockwork.

He glanced at his watch. Just fifteen minutes. The plane had been a bare thirty minutes late, a narrow half-hour to have to wait, but the landing had been perfect. Vargas has done a good quick job on the Italian pilot—what was his name?—so that now they were running only fifteen minutes late. But one mustn't expect no ditch at all. There was a good eight hours of darkness to go. Calm, method, efficiency, in that order.

No. 1 ducked down off the bridge and went into the radio cabin. It smelled of sweat and tension. Anything from the Nassau control tower? Any report of a low-flying plane? Of a possible crash into the sea off Bimini? Then keep watching and get me No. 2. Quick please.

No. 1 lit a cigarette and watched the yacht's big brain get to work, scanning the ether, listening, searching. The operator played the dials with insect fingers, pausing, verifying, hastening on through sound waves of the world. Now he suddenly stopped, checked, minutely adjusted the volume. He raised his thumb. No. 1 spoke into the sphere of wire mesh that rose before his mouth from the base of the headset. "No. 2 listening." The voice was hollow. The words waxed and waned. But it was Blotfeld, all right. No. 1 knew that voice better than he remembered his father's.

"Successful. Ten-fifteen. Next phase ten-forty-five. Continuing. Over."

"Thank you. Out." The sound waves went forty-five seconds. No conceivable fear of interception in that time, on that waveband.

No. 1 went through the big stateroom and down into the hold. The four men of B team, their aqualungs beside them, were sitting around smoking. The wide underwater hatch just above the knee of the yacht was open. Moonlight, reflected off the white sand under the ship, shone up through the six feet of water in the hold.

Stacked on the grating beside the men was the thick pile of tarpaulin painted a very pale brown with occasional irregular blotches of dark green and brown. No. 1 said, "All is going very well. The recovery team is at work. It should not be long now. How about the chariot and the sled?"

One of the men jerked his thumb downward. "They are down there. Outside on the sand. So it will be quicker."

"Correct." No. 1 nodded toward a cranialike contraption fastened to a bulkhead above the hold. "The derrick took the strain all right."

"That chain could handle twice the weight."

"The pumps?"

"In order. They will clear the hold in seven minutes."

"Good. Well, take it easy. It will be a long night." No. 1 climbed the iron ladder out of the hold and went up on deck. He didn't need his night glasses. Two hundred yards away to starboard the sea was empty save for the jolly boat riding at anchor above the golden submarine glow. The red marker light had been taken into the boat.

The rattle of the little generator making current for the big searchlight was loud. It would carry far across a sea as still as this. But accumulators would have exhausted themselves before the work was finished.

The generator was a calculated risk and a small one at that.

The nearest island was five miles away and uninhabited. There was nothing to worry about now except the next step. No. 1 went through the hatch into the enclosed bridge and bent over the lighted chart table.

Emilio Largo, No. 1, was a big, conspicuously handsome man of about forty. He was a Roman and looked like a Roman, not from the Rome of today, but from the Rome of the ancient coins.

The large, long face was sunburned a deep mahogany brown and the light glinted off the strong rather hooked nose and the clean-cut lantern jaw. In contrast to the hard, slow-moving brown eyes, the mouth, with its thick, rather down-curved lips, belonged to a satyr.

Ears that, from dead in front, looked almost pointed, added to an animalistic that would devastate women. The only weakness in their fine centurion face lay in the overlong sideburns and the too carefully wadded black hair that glistened so brightly with pomade that it might almost have been painted onto the skull. There was no fat on the big-boned frame—Largo had fought for Italy in the Olympic fairs, was almost an Olympic-class swimmer with the Australian crawl, and only a month before had won the senior class in the Nassau water-ski championships—and the muscles bulged under the exquisitely cut sharkskin jacket.

Largo was an adventurer, a predator on the herd. Two hundred years before he would have been a pirate—not one of the jolly ones of the story books, but a man like Blackbeard, a blood-stained cutthroat who scythed his way through people toward gold. But Blackbeard had been too much of a bully and a roughneck, and wherever he went in the world he left behind a tell-tale shambles.

Largo was different. There was a cool brain and an exquisite fitness behind his actions that had always saved him from the herd's revenge—from his post-war debut as head of the black market in Naples, through five lucrative years smuggling from Tangier, down to his last five with SPECTRE.

He was the epitome of the gentleman crook—a man of the world, a high liver, with the entrée to cafe society in four continents, and the last survivor, conveniently enough, of a once famous Roman family whose fortune, so he said, he had inherited.

He also benefited from having no wife, a spotless police record, nerves of steel, a heart of ice, and the ruthlessness of a Himmler. He was the perfect man for SPECTRE, and the perfect man for Nassau playboy and all, to be Supreme Commander of Plan Omega.

Stars Talk Up Kovacs Tribute

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Wherever the top stars of Hollywood met this week, there was talk of a lasting memorial to Ernie Kovacs.

It could take the form of a weekly TV anthology which would be the most stellar in history. The show would occupy the time and talent of the comedian's widow, Edie Adams, as well as provide support for her and her family.

"The whole thing started spontaneously," reports Jack Lemmon one of Kovacs' close friends. "A bunch of us started talking about it—guys like George Burns, Jack Benny, Dick Quine, Mervyn LeRoy. We agreed there has never been a really top notch anthology show and thought this would be a good thing for Edie to participate in."

"We kept talking and talking and now there are 39 people who have said they're willing to do it. They include practically every top star in the business. "It's a dandy idea, but we don't know whether we can do it or not. There would be all kinds of problems—getting scripts, arranging schedules and so forth. We're still trying to see if it can be worked out."

The stars haven't yet discussed the idea with Edie, who has been in Palm Springs with the children. Hollywood's outpouring of sorrow over the loss of Kovacs, killed in a car crash Jan. 13, attested to the imprint he had made during his brief stay here. The playing of his last TV special Tuesday night also underlined his rare qualities.

He was an original. He followed no one, and no one will follow him.

TV Quiz Show Scandals Failed To Hurt The Quizmasters And Emcees

By RALEIGH ALLSBROOK
NEW YORK (AP)—The television scandals of 1958 knocked the big quiz shows off the air, but many who worked on the programs apparently came through without any lasting harm.

The producers found the going the roughest and some of them have faded completely from sight. For the quizmasters and masters of ceremony, who always insisted they had no knowledge of the rigging, things were easier. Many are still in television or allied fields.

One former M. C. became a leading man on the stage and is now appearing in a Broadway play. Another returned to nightclub comedy work.

A network official who resigned in the midst of the scandal now has a university post. Although 18 contestants were charged with perjury in the rigging, criminal charges were brought against only one employee of the shows.

All of the contestants pleaded guilty—the last on Monday—to falsely denying to a grand jury that they received advance help in answering questions, and all were freed with suspended sentences.

The only program employee indicted was Albert Freedman, an associate producer of the show "Twenty-one." He was accused of lying in denying to a grand jury that the show was rigged. He went to Mexico, saying he was unable to get TV work in New York, and was last reported working there as a TV producer. His case hasn't been called for trial.

Jack Barry, former quizmaster for "Twenty-one" and onetime part owner of the show, left television for a period to become executive vice president of Franchise Process Co., specialists in aromatic advertising. Later he did a children's show called "Kidding Around" on a New York City television station, but mononucleosis forced him to

Slowdown Seen In Senate Over Postal Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—Key senators predicted today that the Senate would enact legislation this year to increase postal rates. But the chances appeared good for a slowdown in that body. The House Wednesday passed a $690-million rate hike bill after pushing some of the increases higher than President Kennedy recommended.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., Senate Post Office Committee chairman, declined comment on the House bill. However, in the past he has been sympathetic to pleas against sharp boosts by publishers who use second class rates, and by businessmen who rely on third class mailings.

Johnston said hearings on the House bill would not open until it had been studied thoroughly. One source suggested they might begin in March.

Meanwhile, Johnston announced his committee would start taking testimony Feb. 6 on legislation to increase the pay of 1.5 million postal and classified civil service employees.

Sponsors of the House bill said it would end the chronic postal deficit. However, a substantial pay hike would immediately throw the department into the red again.

The House bill would mean 1 cent increases in all first class rates effective July 1. The letter rate would be boosted from 4 to 5 cents, air mail from 7 to 8, post cards from 3 to 4, and air mail cards for 5 to 6.

These would account for $455 million of the total revenue. The measure also provides for $53 million of increases in second class rates paid by newspapers and magazine, $161 million in third class charges largely going for advertising circulars, and $20 million in miscellaneous charges.

The President has urged a postal rate increase as a necessity if his budget is to be balanced in fiscal 1963, which starts July 1.

move to Florida. Barry, who never was called as a witness in the rigging cases, now is president and supervising manager of radio station WGMA in Hollywood, Fla.

He has in preparation a TV show called "Hole in One" which he describes as a game show based on golf. Barry said the show would be taped in Miami and syndicated.

The scandals caused "great anguish," he says, but he thinks now the "world is righting itself." He says he is still "very bitter about the stand taken by some network executives and the advertising fraternity who passed the buck, fastened the blame on people who were just doing their jobs."

Hal March, onetime M. C. for "The $64,000 Question" has become an actor on the legitimate stage and is currently appearing in the Broadway production of

"Come Blow Your Horn." Dan Enright, Barry's former partner in TV production work and also onetime supervising producer of "Tic Tac Dough," now is in the film production business.

His full-length feature, "Bias of Silence," was released recently. He plans to start filming "Idyll" in England this spring.

Mert Koplin, an associate producer of "The $64,000 Question" and "The $64,000 Challenge," is back in television as producer of "P. M. East," a syndicated taped show.

The network official who quit in 1959 was Louis Cowan, head of the Columbia Broadcasting System's television operations. He said then that he was forced out because of an innocent association with "The $64,000 Question" which he originated as an independent TV producer before he went with the network.

Cowan now is director of the Brandeis University communications research center in Massachusetts. Jack Narz, former quizmaster for "Dotto," now is M. C. for "Seven Keys," a weekday audience participation show put on by the American Broadcasting Co.

The last quizmaster of "The $64,000 Challenge" was Ralph Story. He is currently doing a daily five-minute Hollywood commentary show for CBS.

Sonny Fox, also a quizmaster on "The $64,000 Challenge" for a period, has two children's shows on a local New York City TV station.

Another M. C., George Dewitt, has returned to the nightclub comedy work he did before getting into television. Dewitt, who was an M. C. for "Name That Tune," still makes occasional guest TV appearances.

whole, to watch the electrical circuits, to monitor the actions of the steering equipment that guides the rocket's flight.

Should any of these systems fail, the sentry is designed to trigger the alarm in 30 to 50 thousandths of a second. In a flash of sudden fury barely a second long, the escape rockets would yank Glenn and his spacecraft to safety, 2,400 feet away from the fiery death imminent in the rocket.

Even before the Atlas is launched, the sentry, called ASIS, watches for tell-tale signs of trouble. If it finds any, the countdown stops.

Once the Atlas is two inches off the ground, ASIS takes over full control, watching the great beast of a rocket for signs that it may run amok.

Even a "destruct" signal from the range safety officer on the ground must wait for ASIS to do its job. The safety officer is concerned about the path of the rocket's flight. Is it going astray to endanger life or property?

If his watching stations on the ground indicate it is, then he pushes a button that beams an immediate radio signal to the rocket, cutting off the flow of fuel.

The interruption in the fuel flow is sensed by ASIS and it flashes the escape signal. Before the safety officer's finger has left the fuel cut-off button, the escape rockets are doing their life-saving job.

Lagos, Nigeria (AP)—African heads of state were slow in arriving for a summit conference today that seemed destined to accomplish little. Eight nations planned to boycott the meeting because the rebel Algerian government had not been invited.

Foreign ministers who met here earlier this week to plan the summit conference expressed doubt that any major success could be achieved now.

The conference is expected to take up proposals for an African common market similar to the successful six-nation European Economic Community, for a deadline for an end of colonial rule everywhere in Africa, for improved telecommunications and transportation, including an inter-African airways and an Africa shipping company, and for improved cooperation in health services, education and welfare.

Only 11 of the 28 chiefs of state invited have arrived. President Fulbert Youlou of the former French Congo sent his vice president. Other nations also were expected to be represented by lesser officials, if at all.

South Africa was not invited because of the government's racial policies. The former French colonies opposed inviting the Algerians for fear of offending the French government, from whom they get most of their financial aid.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A deam is coming true for pupils at Dobbins Technical High School—a machine to do homework.

Starting Feb. 1, mathematics classes in the 12th grade—last year of high school—will be introduced to computer technology. It is part of an experimental course in electrical computer control of industrial processes.

A special language called Fortran (that's formula translation compressed into one word) is used in the process. Fortran is a handwritten instruction so devised that it can be transformed into a formula. The formula is punched into cards and the cards fed into the computer. The result is the correct solution, typed out electronically.

Prisoners Have Choice Of Dress
KINGSTON, Ont. (AP)—Inmates of the Federal Prison for Women here now have their choice of eight different styles of uniform in a variety of colors instead of the traditional blue-gray stripes.

The only woman member of the National Parole Board, Mary L. Lynch, defended the innovation Wednesday night. She said the women had developed pride in their appearance and their morale was better.

Most criticism, she added, came from her own sex but that didn't surprise her. "I've discovered males have more sympathy for inmates than females," she commented.

Though amphibians emerged from the sea perhaps 275 million years ago, most species continue to reproduce in water.

NEW YORK (AP)—If it hadn't been for Mamie, says former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, he might have become an aviator.

"But the Doud family was opposed to flying, so I sacrificed this desire for my fiancée's sake."

Will Be Lit Up

PERTH, Australia (AP)—This city in western Australia is going to turn on its lights for Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. Perth may be the first populated place he passes over after swinging around to the dark side of the earth.

Premier David Brand said the state government will pay for keeping the street lights on all night once Glenn takes off on his space flight. Stores and householders are joining in the plan to give him a

SITTER FOR PUPS—Mrs. Susan Pressman of Norwood, Mass., smiles happily as she displays these 11 newborn Russian Wolfhounds. It isn't the baby-sitting problem that bothers her. It's the problem of caring for their diet. Pups' mother, Katish, can only nurse a few. Others must be fed by formula. Mrs. Pressman said, "I'm spending most of my day and nights, too, with nursing bottles in both hands." (AP Wirephoto)

Silent Sentry Is To Guard Glenn

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—In the tortured moments when John H. Glenn Jr. rides 120 tons of burning rocket fuel into space, his life will depend on a silent sentry no man can match.

The huge Atlas rocket which, if all goes well, will boost Glenn into a 4 1/2-hour flight three times around the world Saturday, is little more than a metal balloon.

Its gleaming skin is thinner than a dime, so thin that a blow from a sledge hammer would drive a hole in it.

The whole structure would collapse under its own weight if it were not held rigid by internal pressure. This pressure is supplied by helium until the time comes to replace that inert gas with the rocket's fuel—kerosene and liquid oxygen.

Less than 80 feet away from where Glenn sits in the Mercury spacecraft, and near the mighty rocket engines themselves, is a satchel-sized electronic sentry, attached to the skin of the Atlas.

It reaches out with slender fingers of wire to feel the pulse of the mammoth rocket, to measure the pressure that keeps it

Calif. Demo Governor Has Begun Nixon Fight Early

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—California's Democratic governor, Edmund G. Brown, is setting out on a 10-month campaign with a prime objective: beat Richard M. Nixon.

Brown announced Wednesday night he'll run for a new four-year term and he seemingly took it for granted the former vice president will be his Republican opponent in November.

Brown put not only his record but that of President Kennedy on the line.

A wire from Kennedy, who lost California narrowly to Nixon in 1960, endorsed Brown as "a humane, progressive and enlightened leader." He predicted victory if the voters, 3-2 Democratic, can be sold on the state administration's record.

Brown declared Nixon knows nothing about California; that he is out to convert the governor's office into Nixon-for-president headquarters.

"I don't like what he stands for and I don't like his reasons for wanting to be governor," he said.

Nixon, a former California congressman and senator, replied that Brown "offers four more years of the indecision and bungling which have become his copyrighted political trademark."

"In contrast to his warmed-over policies of the past," he added in a statement, "I shall present to the voters of this state new programs to meet the challenge of the future."

Nixon, in entering what is now a three-way race for the Republican nomination for governor last Sept. 27, pledged he would not run for president in 1964. And he said he intended to beat Brown "to a pulp."

Brown, 56, accepted the challenge before a cheering spillover crowd of 2,300 diners who paid $100-a-plate to hear him make it official. Those in charge estimated the affair netted $193,000.

"I know we can whip him," he said of Nixon.

Then, in an epilogue to his formal address over statewide radio and television networks, he said, "I am confident you people will not let me be beaten to a pulp."

Brown predicted "the roughest, the toughest" campaign in California history. He said California, soon to outstrip New York in population, will be the major battleground in an offensive by Republican right-wing elements to "hold back the New Frontier."

"Here, 365 days a year, we are proving that the New Frontier will work. And the ultra-conservatives, who would like nothing better than to resign America from the 20th Century, don't like it one bit."

Assuming all three candidates file by the March deadline, Republicans will choose from among Nixon, State Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell of Los Angeles, and former Lt. Gov. Harold J. Powers for the GOP nomination in the June 5 primary.

Brown, who faced threatened opposition within his party some months ago, is the only announced Democratic candidate.

Sale Of Savings Bonds In County Failed Quota

Savings bond sales in Pitt County for 1961 reached only 70.5 per cent of the quota for the year, it was announced today.

The 1961 quota was $593,400 and sales of bonds totaled $418,461. R. W. Howard, Pitt County volunteer chairman said, Howard expressed his appreciation to those whose efforts helped the sales.

Sales for the month of December were $21,794. Records showed the percentage of change for 1961 versus 1960 to be minus 17.3 per cent.

In the state as a whole, cumulative sales for the 12-month period of 1961 were four per cent above the previous year. E and H Bond combined sales totaled $48.5 million, which is approximately 94 per cent of the 1961 annual quota assigned to North Carolina.

Publishers Will Hear Macmillan

CHICAGO (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Great Britain has accepted an invitation to speak to American newspaper publishers at their annual dinner in New York April 26.

Announcement of Macmillan's acceptance to speak was made today by Russ Stewart, executive vice president and general manager of the Chicago Sun-Times and chairman of the board of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued a technical recovery from recent losses, showing a generally higher level in active trading early this afternoon. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.20 at 255.00 with industrials up 2.10, rails up 20 and utilities up 60.

Gains of fractions to a point or so among key stocks far outnumbered losers. Advances of 2 or more points dotted the list of higher-priced or more volatile issues.

General Motors, Wednesday's most active stock, continued to rise fractionally.

The aerospace issues went ahead on balance. Tobaccos made a substantial recovery.

Pennsylvania Railroad, helped by news that December profits were the highest since 1955, advanced a fraction while New York Central eased. Illinois Central rose about a point.

Roberts & Haas added more than 10 points to Wednesday's 17 1/2 point run up on stock split news. Xerox rebounded about 3. Polaroid more than 2.

Burroughs was fractionally higher. Celotex was up nearly a point.

North American Aviation spurred about 2 while other missile shares gained more moderately.

The Dow Jones industrial average stood at 701.21 at 11 a. m. but at noon the reading was 699.75, a gain of 1.58.

Prices moved generally higher on the American Stock Exchange. Corporate bonds were narrowly mixed. U. S. government bonds were unchanged.

Installed Officers Of PTA Monday

BETHEL—Newly elected officers of the Bethel Union School P.T.A. were installed by Principal E. A. Elliott at the first meeting of the new year on Monday.

The meeting was called to order by the president, George Worsley. After brief devotions, the school Dramatic Club, under the direction of Mrs. J. Elliott Andrews, librarian, presented a one act play entitled "White Iris." Members of the cast included Joan Elliott, Julia Whitchard, Judy Wilkins and Catherine Hall.

All parents and community patrons were urged to support the work of the P.T.A.

CARE, Medico Merging Work To Cut Relief Costs

NEW YORK (AP)—CARE and Medico are merging to cut the costs of their relief work in furnishing food and medicine to foreign countries.

Plans to merge CARE, Cooperative for American Relief Everywhere and Medico, Medical International Cooperative Organization, Inc., were announced by officers of the two voluntary relief agencies Wednesday.

CARE, founded in 1945, operates in 30 countries. It sends food, farm implements and other necessities to needy persons.

Medico operates in 12 countries with 20 medical teams and programs. It was founded in 1958 by the late Dr. Thomas A. Dooley, the young naval officer who resigned his commission to set up medical stations in Laos and Dr. Peter D. Commanduras.

Under the merger, Medico will operate as a service of CARE and will continue its present program. The merger is expected to reduce administrative expenses and the cost of fund appeals.

Say Firm Failed To 'Cooperate'

RALEIGH (AP) — Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co. has been cited for what North Carolina officials call a lack of cooperation in an investigation into this state's highway sign procurement operations.

They said the firm had promised publicly to bare all pertinent records in its file, but declined to do so when asked earlier this week.

Director Hugh Cannon of the Department of Administration and William H. White, state purchasing officer, said they spoke to Minnesota Mining officials Monday and Tuesday at St. Paul, Minn.

They said the firm failed to furnish any correspondence to or from former North Carolina highway engineer Robert A. Burch or Kidd Brewer, Raleigh businessman-politician.

They said they did obtain some other pertinent information and documents.

Cannon said investigators earlier had found letters in Burch's file from and to Minnesota Mining.

Gov. Terry Sanford recently fired Burch for allegedly being too closely associated with Brewer, Minnesota Mining's former North Carolina representative, in highway sign dealings.

Between 1955 and 1961, Sanford said, Minnesota Mining paid $148,000 to Brewer who, in turn, gave scholarship aid for Burch's son at Duke University.

During that time, Minnesota Mining sold some $1.7 million in sign materials to the Highway Department. Burch was in charge of sign specifications and procurement.

Arrest Finishes Wrapped Coin Fraud Attempt

RALEIGH (AP) — An enterprising youngster who sought to make a killing in steel faces trial in Wake Superior Court on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Police said William Glenn Strickland, 20, of Goldsboro faked bank tellers in Raleigh and Kingston out of about $690 by changing round steel bars, wrapped to look like quarters, cash.

They said Strickland tried it again Wednesday in Raleigh's North Carolina National Bank and almost got away with it.

When the teller, George Stewart, tried to open the roll by cracking it against a glass counter top, the glass broke.

Stewart flagged down a policeman who chased Strickland down one of Raleigh's main streets. Lee Wayne Adams of Angier tackled the fleeing youth. Adams later went to City Hall, seeking to join the force.

Strickland said the idea was nothing. "I'm a genius," he proclaimed. Asked his occupation, he replied, "I steal."

question of additional land for which we already have an option." Wooten committed his support to gains in appropriations for the local college.

Wooten's filing today for the $1,800 job, placed him and Arthur M. (Duke) Andrews as the first two candidates in Pitt's political picture for the May 26 Democratic Primary. Andrews announced his candidacy for Pitt's sheriff job, to be vacated in December by veteran Sheriff Ruel Tyson.

Under former apportioning, Pitt has maintained two House seats and a senatorial district all its own. The '61 Assembly left intact the Senate seat, occupied by Robert L. Humber of Greenville. Clifton W. Everett of Bethel and Wooten are the incumbent House members for whom only one seat remains.

Weather Forecasts Bolster Saturday Astronaut Chances

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Good rocketry weather is forecast for Saturday, strengthening hopes that astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. will take his historic triple whirl around the globe that day.

If he doesn't get off then, there could be another extensive delay. An official forecast issued this morning, said favorable conditions in the Atlantic area are expected to end in the next few days.

Pershing Rocket Again Tested

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Army successfully fired a Pershing artillery missile on a flight of about 200 miles Wednesday night in a test designed primarily to check warhead components.

Officials reported the swift solid-fuel weapon performed as planned on the brief flight down the Atlantic Missile Range. Pershing is scheduled to become operational later this year with initial deployment in Western Europe.

It's highly important, for a man bound on such a great adventure, to have good clear weather near the launch site, plus gentle seas and good visibility at the points where he is to come down.

In foul weather optical instruments would have difficulty tracking him, and rescue teams might have trouble fishing him out of the ocean when he alights.

Depending on whether he makes one, two or three orbits around the earth, Glenn is expected to come down in different places in the Atlantic.

The long countdown looking toward Glenn's space adventure will be started at 7 a. m. Friday. The countdown marks the checking and rechecking of innumerable factors that spell success or failure in an orbital attempt.

The count will extend over a period of 500 minutes—8 1/3 hours but instead of being continuous it will be split into segments.

The final five hours will begin early Saturday. This segment includes two hours of surplus time programmed in an effort to allow time to correct any trouble that might develop and still get a shot away on schedule at 7:30 a. m. If no trouble develops, these two hours will be consumed with automatic "holds" in the countdown.

If all goes well, the Marine lieutenant colonel will be boosted on his historic mission to explore space between 7:30 a. m. and 12:30 p. m. The launching was originally scheduled for the same time on Wednesday, but a valve in the oxygen supply system developed a fault and had to be replaced.

A NASA spokesman said Glenn, 40, continued to be relaxed and seemingly unworried. His day Wednesday was a light one.

Maps Of Italy On MIG Plane

ACQUAVIVA, Italy (AP)—Aerial maps of southern Italy were found aboard the Bulgarian MIG17 jet that crash-landed near a new missile base Saturday, an Italian air force source reported today.

The source described the maps as "rather inaccurate" and said: "It is pretty obvious that the pilot was ordered to fly here to check the exact positions of several North Atlantic Treaty Organization missile bases scattered in this region."

The pilot, Lt. Miluse Solakov, 22, crashed in an olive grove near this south Italian town six miles from the new missile base at Gioia del Colle. The Italian Defense ministry said Monday there were indications that Solakov was on an aerial spying mission, but the investigation since has been shrouded in secrecy. The pilot is recovering at a local hospital from injuries received in the crash. It is expected he will be moved soon to a military hospital for extended questioning.
