Penalty-Free Period For Tax-Listing Ends

TAX LISTING CLOSES—Most Pitt Countians Wednesday wound up their listing of personal and real estate property for tax assessment purposes as the penalty-free period ended. While businesses are allowed until Feb. 15 to file their inventories, citizens who failed to list their property before the end of January will be subject to the usual 10 per cent last listing penalty. A final tally was not available today, but the tax office reported most of the county's 23,000 individual taxpayers visited one of the listing stations during January. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Six-County Development Plans Move Forward Here Wednesday

A six-county cooperative venture into economic development took several rapid strides toward formal organization here Wednesday as its steering committee urged an operative Coastal Plain Planning and Development Commission by July 1. The 32 delegates from Pitt, Beaufort, Edgecombe, Martin, Nash and Wilson Counties adopted the name for the organization and approved a detailed plan for its membership and operation. Meeting in the Buccaneer Room of East Carolina College's cafeteria, the steering committee members accepted the report of the Name and Plan Committee, appointed at the last previous meeting of the counties' delegates. In naming the county boards of commissioners from the six counties as members of the proposed Planning and Development Commission, the steering committee called for formal organization early enough to allow the CPP&DC to become functional for the fiscal year 1961-63 which begins July 1. The plan of the Name and Plan Committee, submitted by committee chairman Peyton Beery of Tarboro, provides for three members of the commission appointed by each county's board of commissioners. In the original organization, the three development commissioners will serve respective terms of one, two and three years, according to designations by the respective official boards of the counties. Annual appointments thereafter of single members of the area body will be for three years. Beery's committee, in its report, outlined the purpose of the area association: "... to improve economic development, to stimulate cultural activities and recreational facilities and organize improved community and county planning." The membership stipulations require that each county board of commissioners provide among its three representatives on the new commission a member chosen by agricultural interests and a member chosen by industrial developers. The third member may or may not be a county commissioner. Dr. C. Sylvester Green, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission and chairman of the steering body's Projects Committee, submitted a list of 11 projects to be presented to CPP&DC upon its formal organization. Included among the 11 was a call for community and spot surveys "to reveal needed facts on land-use, labor and general community problems. The report noted that "Geared for Progress" surveys available through the state office of Conservation and Development would provide the requested information. Organization plans for CPP&DC call for creation of eight operating committees including: planning, youth, agricultural development, industrial development, travel and recreation, education and cultural affairs, community development, and finance study groups. Two commissioners, according to the adopted plan, will be the minimum membership of each of the eight committees. Before organization of CPP&DC can become effective, letters of certification from four of six counties' boards of commissioners must be received by steering committee Chairman Dallas L. Alford of Rocky Mount. Alford will continue to head the organization until the appointed commissioners conduct their organizational meeting. A special committee of four—W. W. Speight of Greenville, Dr. Philip Greene of Chapel Hill, Ben Holland Neville of Whitakers and George Stephens Jr. of Raleigh—was appointed to draft a resolution to be presented to each of the six county boards of commissioners not later than those boards' March meetings. Alford appointed special liaisons for each county to arrange for informal presentation of details of CPP&DC's organization to the county commissioners in each county. Appointed were Dr. Green for Pitt County, Mrs. M. C. Gautier of Washington for Beaufort, H. G. Shelton of Speed for Edgecombe, W. J. Heard of Williamston for Martin, Thomas LaCroy of Rocky Mount for Nash, and Preston Hurrell of Stantonsburg for Wilson. LaCroy, who heads a special committee on arrangements for the association, announced plans for an area-wide rally scheduled for April in Greenville. He said more than 300 persons from the six counties are expected to attend the rally, tentatively set for Wednesday, April 11 on the East Carolina College campus. Meeting with the six-county representatives here last night were George Stephens Jr., economic assistant to Gov. Sanford; and Thomas B. Broughton, T. N. Hobgood and Robert D. Barber, community planning specialists of the N. C. Department of Conservation and Development.

Shift In Welfare Emphasis Offered In President's Message To Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy called today for a $193-million expansion of permanent federal welfare outlays, with a shift in emphasis from doling out "relief checks" to the rebuilding of wrecked lives and careers. The remedies "will not come cheaply but in the long run they will save money," Kennedy said in a special message to Congress. He urged permanent extension of the one-year program to aid dependent children of the jobless, more spending on rehabilitation work, increased grants for child welfare, added funds for the day care of children of working mothers and removal or reduction of residence requirements for relief. The President slapped at drastic local efforts to slash relief rolls, without directly naming the instance which has stirred national controversy, that of Newburgh, N.Y. The message said: "Communities which have—through motives—attempted to save money through ruthless and arbitrary cutbacks in their welfare rolls have found their efforts to little avail. The root problem remained." By contrast, Kennedy said, communities which have "tried the rehabilitative road" for relief clients have fared better: "Families have been restored to self-reliance, and relief rolls have been reduced." This approach can be furthered, he said, if Congress will enact broad revisions of the rules under which the Department of Health, Education and Welfare makes federal aid grants to match state welfare outlays. The special message, said by officials to be the first in history devoted solely to welfare problems, will be followed by two more messages on programs administered by the department—health care for the aged under Social Security and federal aid to education. The program outlined today would represent the most sweeping overhaul of federal relief techniques since the aid program was started in the depression of the 1930s. Its recommendations included: Extending permanently the $100-million-a-year program for aid to the dependent children of the unemployed. Enacted as an emergency recession measure last year, it is due to expire June 30. Increasing the federal share from one-half to three-fourths of the costs of rehabilitation and social services, without changing the dollar-for-dollar matching of states' outlays for routine clerical and administrative work. This would cost the Treasury perhaps $40 million. Boosting the $25-million ceiling on federal grants for child welfare services to $30 million in fiscal 1963 and then, gradually, to $50 million by 1969. Earmarking $5 million next year and $10 million a year thereafter for aid in starting local programs of day care for the children of working mothers. Permitting states to operate, with federal financial help, community work projects and training projects for unemployed men and women on the relief rolls. Federal funds would be given, Kennedy said, only if the work projects serve a useful public purpose, do not displace regular employees, do not undercut prevailing wages and working conditions and are accompanied by basic health and safety protections. Relieving an "acute shortage" of trained welfare workers by increasing the federal support for state training programs. Forbidding any state which receives federal funds to require more than one year's residence as a condition of eligibility for welfare aid, and encouraging states to remove all residence requirements by offering a slight increase in federal aid to those that do. "These proposed far-reaching changes—aimed at far-reaching problems—are in the public interest and in keeping with our finest traditions," the President said.

President Says Probe Of Stockpiling Policy Slated

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has announced a double-edged investigation of how the country stockpiles strategic materials. He says the supply is so excessive it invites profiteering and mismanagement. "The cold facts on this matter must be open to the public," Kennedy told his news conference Wednesday. He said the stockpiling program would be "completely explored" by a Senate subcommittee under Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo. He promised Symington all the evidence his administration has obtained. Moreover, he said he would form a special commission to study policies and goals "in the light of changed defense strategy and improved technology." He disclosed he has ordered a stop to all purchases except for three unidentified items and has instructed department heads to review their needs. Kennedy's move to eliminate the threat of major criticism from the massive program to store essential materials for national emergencies highlighted this third news conference in 16 days—a pace unequalled since his first weeks in office. Alternately cheerful and deadly serious, Kennedy ranged from international tension to civil rights in his half-hour with reporters. At the outset, he welcomed Soviet

'Repercussions' To OAS Outcome

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk headed for Washington today to report to President Kennedy on the hemisphere foreign ministers' conference on Cuba which already was arousing repercussions in Latin America. The conference split on the crucial issue—immediate action to expel Cuba from the Organization of American States—already reportedly had generated pressure from conservatives on the Argentine government, one of the six which held out for a go-slow approach. Argentina's military chiefs were reported furious at the soft line taken by President Arturo Frondizi's government. They reportedly served him with an ultimatum demanding a diplomatic break with Fidel Castro's regime and support of the next steps in the OAS Council to isolate Cuba from the inter-American family. Informants in Buenos Aires said that the leaders of the three armed forces also demanded that Frondizi fire Foreign Minister Miguel Angel Carcano, who abstained on the key vote at Punta del Este on the expulsion of Cuba from the OAS. In Brazil and Mexico, the two other major powers in the "soft-six" bloc, reaction was mixed with some expressions of anxiety over the outcome of the conference. Some observers in Mexico feared the 20-nation condemnation of Cuban communism would spur leftist agitation in that country. Brazilian newspapers were overwhelmingly in favor of the condemnation of Cuban communism but differed on Brazil's refusal to support expulsion of Havana from hemispheric councils. There was a general expectation of leftist pressure against the 13 Latin-American governments which joined the United States in voting the expulsion move. It was widely believed that the Castro-Communist combine would step up harassment of those governments both for revenue and to exploit the continental nervousness resulting from the 10 days of dispute. The conference wound up Wednesday night with a show of unanimity against Castro as 20 of the 21 nations at the conference signed the historic document formally condemning the Cuban regime for going over to communism and allying itself with the Soviet bloc.

Toll Roads For State Advocated

RALEIGH (AP)—A member of the State Highway Commission declared today "we are suckers for not having toll roads" in North Carolina. James G. W. McClamroc of Greensboro indicated the commission should take a long, hard look at the question of toll roads and bridges as a possible way of hastening the building of roads. "Something should be done to satisfy the local people" if toll roads were built, McClamroc said. He noted the possibility of reduced rates or season tickets for local people traveling over toll roads. W. E. Horner of Sanford, another commissioner, said he concurred with McClamroc. He suggested the possibility of charging tolls on the proposed $4 million bridge across Oregon Inlet. Highway Chairman Merrill Evans pointed out that the federal government is putting up 50 per cent of the cost for the Oregon Inlet bridge and that the government would not take part in a toll bridge. Another commission member, Clint Newton of Shelby, said he was unalterably opposed to toll bridges and roads. Horner told a newsman following the commission meeting that tolls "would hasten the building of a lot of bridges and roads. Small tolls wouldn't hurt anybody."

Public Hearing On Annexation Slated Tonight

A public hearing on the request for annexation of a block of property on the Stantonsburg Road near Memorial Drive is on the council agenda for tonight. The City Council holds its regular monthly meeting in City Hall at 8 o'clock. The annexation request involves a triangle of land at the intersection of the two highways east of the city. A public hearing was set at the November council meeting and the Planning-Zoning Commission recommended the annexation. Councilmen will also consider setting a public hearing on the annexation of Carolina Heights Addition No. 3. There is to be a report on the air conditioning and heating installation at Shepard Memorial Library and recommendations concerning a ditch in West Greenville. A request for free parking during the Merchants Association-sponsored George Washington Birthday promotion will be considered.

Want Farmers

RALEIGH (AP)—Mr. Farmer, the Peace Corps wants you. If you're over 18 years old and have been either reared on the farm or have had successful farming experience, apply now. The call went out Wednesday from Jim Gibson, assistant director of public affairs with the corps. He said the agency has an urgent need for more than 1,000 farmer applicants. Gibson ended a two-day visit to North Carolina State College conferring with college officials and with specialists in the agricultural extension service.

Plan No Inquest Into 3 Deaths

No inquest will be held in the death of three Pitt Negroes killed in the head-on collision of two cars at Farmville last Saturday night, Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey said today. Coroner Harvey said, "after conferring with the District Solicitor (Robert D. Rouse of Farmville), I have decided not to hold an inquest into the deaths of the three killed in the collision were Herman Darden of Route 1, Greenville, and Joe Mammie Shackelford and Beulah Blow, both of Farmville. All three were occupants of a car driven by Darden, which collided with a vehicle operated by Clinton Lee Joyner of Route 1, Farmville, about 7 p.m. just 70 feet outside the Farmville city limits, on U. S. 264A. The official ruled that "these persons came to their death as a result of negligence on the part of... Herman Darden." "There is no evidence of criminal negligence on the part of Clinton Lee Joyner..." Harvey emphasized, adding, "An inquest is deemed unnecessary."

Bloodmobile In Pitt Feb. 12-13

The bloodmobile will make its first visit to Pitt County on Feb. 12 and 13, it was announced today by Kenneth Whitchard, blood program chairman for the county. On Monday, Feb. 12, the bloodmobile will be stationed in Ayden at the Community Building from 12 until 6 p.m. Tom Whelless and Grady Dixon are in charge of arrangements. Tuesday, Feb. 13, the bloodmobile will be in Greenville from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the Greenville Moose Lodge. Donors are asked to visit during the early morning hours, if possible. The last visit of the bloodmobile to Pitt County may have been the most successful in its history, and set a record as far as Whitchard could tell. Students and faculty of East Carolina College at that time, December, more than doubled the usual quota of 125 pints by collecting 264 pints of blood. Donors were turned away when the vehicle had to close. Whitchard today said, "I again express my appreciation for the cooperation we received from the East Carolina College faculty and students during the last visit here." "I would like to see us go over the top with this one," he said. The quota will be 125 pints for each visit. A shortage in the overall Pitt County blood collection is still existent and "we need urgently to build up our own Pitt County" resources, Whitchard stated.

EARTHQUAKE

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP)—An earthquake described as moderately strong jolted parts of southern San Luis Obispo County Wednesday night. There were no immediate damage reports.

Pitt Countian Dies Of Wreck Injuries

Ronald H. Crawford, 33, of Rt. 4, Greenville, became Pitt County's fourth traffic fatality of 1962, according to a statement by Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey this morning. Crawford died today in Pitt Memorial Hospital from injuries received in a one-car mishap which occurred about four miles east of Greenville on U. S. 264 January 27. Investigating Patrolman W. L. Whitehead, who investigated the 1:30 a.m. collision, said Crawford was thrown from his vehicle and for a time was pinned beneath the auto. Investigation showed that the car driven by Crawford was headed east on the highway, ran off the road and into a ditch on the right-hand side of the highway, then traveled down the cut before coming back to the roadway. The car then crossed the road and ran into a field where it overturned at least two times, the officer explained. Crawford was thrown from the overturning car which came to rest on top of him. Another occupant of the vehicle, Lester Lee Wilson, 23, Negro, of Route 3, Greenville, identified Crawford as the operator of the vehicle. Wilson was hospitalized with injuries also. Ptl. Whitehead commented that "if the man had had seat belts in the car—and had them fastened—he would have lived." Coroner Harvey explained the victim suffered multiple internal injuries, a crushed chest, fractured ribs, a severe lung injury and a fracture and burns of his leg. "Internal injuries" were reportedly the cause of death, the coroner said. Officers reported that investigation is continuing in the case.

GOP Meeting Here On Feb. 9

The Pitt County annual Republican Convention will be held Friday, Feb. 9, at Respass Bros. Bar-B-Que House, located on Highway 264, Greenville, with a Dutch Supper beginning at 7 o'clock. The business meeting, with election of new officers, will begin at 7:30 p.m. All registered Republicans are urged to attend. X. E. Manning is chairman.

First Negro To Command Ship

HONOLULU (AP)—Lt. Cmdr. Samuel L. Gravelly Jr. of Richmond, Va., is the first Negro in United States Naval history to command a warship. Authority for that statement is the 14th Naval District public information office. Gravelly, 39, took command of the destroyer escort Falgout at Pearl Harbor Wednesday. He enlisted in the Navy in 1942 and attended midshipman school at Columbia University in 1943.

Censorship Orders Viewed As An Obstacle To Communists

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arthur G. Sylvester, assistant secretary of defense, testified today that the censoring of military men's speeches makes the United States a tougher foe for communism. His statement was prepared for a Senate subcommittee investigating charges that the censoring has been too drastic, often softening anti-Communist statements by military officers. Sylvester didn't mention a disputed order from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara for bidding Pentagon personnel to tell the subcommittee who censored any particular speech. Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., whose denunciations of censoring forced the inquiry, said President Kennedy should step in and veto McNamara's order. Sylvester said one reason the texts of speeches are censored in advance is to "insure that this country speaks not from the weakness of contradictory voices but from the strength of one." "Our review as a matter of first priority seeks to deny sensitive information to an enemy," Sylvester said. "Secondly we review for conflict with policy. But the reviewer must also try to protect against expressions which unwittingly might provide the unscrupulous Communist propaganda machine with material to be used against us, thus producing confusion among our allies and suspicion among the uncommitted nations." He termed the censoring a protection for military men who, without it, could make statements "damaging to a national policy in the making or already established." While still giving Americans "as much information as we prudently can," Sylvester said, his office in the past year has: 1. "Curtailed disclosure of information about intelligence-gathering activities. 2. "Kept secure the details of missile firings in remote areas, to avoid giving intelligence agents step-by-step developments on these weapons. 3. "Where practical, prohibited close-up photography of our missiles, space vehicles and supporting facilities to prevent an enemy from making scientific analyses from photographs." In Wednesday's hearings a Pentagon censor used McNamara's order as the basis for declining to reveal who had censored testimony prepared by Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau for a House Space Committee hearing a year ago. Senator Willis D. Lawrence, No. 2 man in the Defense Department directorate for security review, said he could not give the information because of McNamara's order.

Church Resolution Repudiates Affiliations

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer A new movement among Free Will Baptists, described by its members as a revival of the "mother" organization of the denomination in North Carolina, convened here Tuesday and reaffirmed its reputation of "connectional" church government within the denomination. With more than 50 delegates attending, the Revived General Conference of Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina unanimously adopted a resolution strengthening its adherence to a principle of "congregational" rather than "connectional" government of Free Will Baptist Churches. The resolution repudiated any affiliation of the conference in session here with any Free Will Baptist who advocate "connectional" government of local churches. It also called on the National Association of Original Free Will Baptists to bar from its next session delegates who adhere to the connectional doctrine. The newly-revived General Conference consists of Free Will Baptists who profess dissatisfaction with the current principles of local church government included in the policy of the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists. Resolutions adopted by a prior meeting of the General Conference (Nov. 20, 1961, in Harnett County) indicate the movement's insistence that the State Convention embraces the principle of connectional government of local churches. In its resolutions, the General Conference said that the connectional method deprives local churches of their independence to govern local affairs. Two Greenville Free Will Baptist ministers, Rev. Rashie Kennedy of Grace Church and Rev. LaRue Davis of Maranatha Church, attended Tuesday's meeting. Rev. Kennedy served as moderator of the session. Greenville Free Will Baptist Church's minister, Rev. R. B. Crawford, did not attend the General Conference meeting. Rev. Crawford said the question of local church government principle has not been raised by the membership of his church. "We are neutral in the matter," he said, "and, so far as we know, we are in good grace with all elements of the denomination." Rev. Crawford's church is a member of the Central Conference, the regional Free Will Baptist organization of which the other two Greenville churches were members before the revival of the General Conference. Tuesday's session, conducted at the Grace Church here, saw the revived movement further organize itself and schedule an annual meeting for the second Sunday in November. Initial organization of the current General Conference was effected at the Harnett County meeting. Rev. Kennedy was elected moderator of the Tuesday meeting during a morning session. A Garner minister, Rev. R. Eugene Waddell, was elected clerk of the conference and will preside at future meetings during his tenure. According to the Grace pastor, the revival of the General Conference was stimulated by a different point of view regarding Free Will Baptist principles of local church government. The congregational government principle, adhered to by the newly-revived movement, stipulates that each church "is (Continued on page 16)

Doctors Do Not Truly Know Whether Patient Is Cured

This is the last in a series discussing what psychiatry has done—and what it has failed to do.

By RUTH WINTER
Women's News Service

Has psychiatry ever cured anyone?
Dr. Corbett H. Thigpen of Georgia, co-author of the book "The 3 Faces of Eve," was asked if Eve had been cured. Eve, the subject of the book and later the movie, had manifested her mental illness by appearing as three distinct personalities.

"I have been asked if the patient is cured. If what the questioner means by this is 'Will this patient ever have this disorder again?' I can't answer for the simple reason I don't know. I wonder if any physician could positively assert that a patient may not again develop an illness similar to that of which he has been relieved—unless the illness is one like appendicitis and the appendix has been removed.

"Let me say this about Eve's 'cure.' The resolved personality (Evelyn Lancaster, the fourth face of Eve) is apparently adjusting well to her environment. She and her husband and her family appear to be happy. She carries on her daily activities and has received blue ribbons for a creative artistic hobby which she has developed since she left our care. I know of no better criteria for 'cure' than these."

Psychiatrists everywhere can give the same case histories of "cures."

One New Jersey psychiatrist described how a truck driver became mentally ill and would stand undressed before an open window and throw money out to the street. After a period of psychotherapy, the man was able to return to work. He later married and now is living happily with his wife and three children.

"Whether he will ever again display symptoms of mental illness, I can't say," the psychiatrist said. "But I consider him one of my cured patients."

A California psychiatrist, an outspoken critic of psychoanalysis, described the change in one of his acquaintances after therapy.

"The fellow had been a perfectionist. He had migraine headaches. He was dressed impeccably. He demanded everything be exactly right in his office. He insisted everything be done on the dot of time," the psychiatrist recalled.

"The fellow underwent a long psychoanalysis. Now, when you arrange to meet him somewhere, he may be an hour late. He's rather sloppy in his dress and he doesn't push himself too hard at the office.

"His motto today is 'Life is so short, why bother?' 'He doesn't have headaches any more and he isn't so nervous. I feel he has just traded one set of bad habits for another. He on the other hand, considers himself cured.'"

How about the two and a half million people hospitalized each year for mental disorders? What are their chances of "a cure?" In the late 19th century, they would have been considered hopelessly incurable. They would have been condemned to spend their entire life in the hospital.

Today, the Joint Commission on Mental Health reports, one in five will recover spontaneously, that is, without treatment.

Another two or three will improve sufficiently as a result of proper treatment to lead useful lives in the community.

"The present state of scientific knowledge in the mental health profession does not permit the formulation of the exact tests of cure," the commission stated.

"The disease of schizophrenia—if it is a disease—has been the subject of intensive study for a hundred years; the scientific literature on it is mountainous, but we have only hints of possible final answers, and are only now learning some of the most elementary lessons of medicine."

How about helping persons before they become disturbed enough to require hospitalization?

Psychiatrist Ira Ross of South Orange, N. J., told a meeting of the New Jersey Welfare Council: "The misguided notion that psychotherapy alone is going to stem the inflow to mental hospitals should be corrected. There is no denying the value of psychotherapy in helping the misguided, the uneducated, the over-ambitious, the fearful, the impotent and the over-compensated.

"But most of these people would somehow muddle through without ever needing a state mental hospital."

Dr. Ross expressed the belief that the incidence of severe mental illness could be reduced by the use of electric shock and drugs, as well as by the production of more qualified doctors.

Dr. Henry Davidson of Overbrook, a New Jersey state mental hospital, feels psychiatry is now at a triple crossroads. It may:

- Increase the emphasis on psychological therapy.
- Determine mental disorders are a social problem to be handled in the schools and by making a less competitive society and by dealing with the aged more sympathetically.
- Find mental illness is purely physical and treat it with surgery or medicine.

Can psychiatry today cure anyone? Some say only those who have undergone treatment, or have had a loved one treated can truly answer that question.

Atheneum Club Hears Dr. Fisher

Dr. Edgar Fisher was guest speaker when Mrs. K. B. Pace entertained members of the Atheneum Book Club Tuesday afternoon.

Floral arrangements suggestive of Spring were used in decorating the Pace home.

Upon arrival members and guests were served a three course luncheon. Mrs. H. L. Ormond, president, presided over the business meeting after which Mrs. Pace introduced the speaker, who is pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Dr. Fisher talked on his recent trip to South America and gave descriptions of the different countries and their activities.

Guests were Dr. and Mrs. Fisher, Miss Mattie Barnes, Mrs. John Difell of Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. Florence Markel of Wilson.

Interviews with 2,500 career girls and students under 30 revealed their ideal partner is about 40, a little bold and a fascinating talker.

He does not need to be handsome, tall, a college graduate nor rich. But he should dress well, have gallant manners and inspire a feeling of security.

Francesca Bisconti, one of more than 100 psychology students who conducted the poll, reported that men are becoming timid and dependent because of the stresses and strains of modern life.

"At least, that is the opinion of the girls I talked to," she said. "And they don't like it because it should be woman's privilege to be shy and retiring and to blush occasionally."

Italian girls do not object to strange men admiring their loveliness on the street or in cafes, if the men are gallant about it and do not become obnoxious.

"Admiration pleases any woman as long as it is expressed with taste and imagination," explained Miss Bisconti.

Woman's Department Rules

In order to be of the greatest service possible of brides-to-be the Reflector's Woman's Department asks that the following rules be followed in submitting engagements and weddings for publication.
Photographs should be 5 x 7 inches in size and black and white glossy print.
Engagement photographs for Saturday's edition of The Daily Reflector should be in the Woman's Department by Thursday noon. Wedding write-ups should be submitted two days in advance of the wedding date. Material which does not give exact date of wedding will not be accepted.
Weddings, like other news, have a time value, therefore the amount of space devoted to weddings turned in late will be determined by their demeriting news value.
Club write-ups and other Women News will not be accepted more than a week after the event occurs.

Interviews with 2,500 career girls and students under 30 revealed their ideal partner is about 40, a little bold and a fascinating talker.

He does not need to be handsome, tall, a college graduate nor rich. But he should dress well, have gallant manners and inspire a feeling of security.

Francesca Bisconti, one of more than 100 psychology students who conducted the poll, reported that men are becoming timid and dependent because of the stresses and strains of modern life.

"At least, that is the opinion of the girls I talked to," she said. "And they don't like it because it should be woman's privilege to be shy and retiring and to blush occasionally."

Italian girls do not object to strange men admiring their loveliness on the street or in cafes, if the men are gallant about it and do not become obnoxious.

"Admiration pleases any woman as long as it is expressed with taste and imagination," explained Miss Bisconti.

Geography Professor Clio Book Club Speaker

Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Agnes Barrett was hostess to the Clio Book Club. After a short business meeting presided over by Mrs. Luther Moore, vice-president, Mrs. Barrett introduced the guest speaker, Morton D. Winsburg, associate professor of Geography at East Carolina College since the fall of 1958.

Mr. Winsburg received a grant from the Social Science Research Council of New York to conduct research in Argentina for the year 1960-61. He also studied Jewish agricultural colonies in South American countries. Mr. Winsburg opened his talk by saying that Latin America was a complex cultural region. Most people think of it as having a common language but he found that this was not true. In some sections Spanish was spoken, in others Portuguese, French and varied Indian dialects. There is a vast difference in the countries of South America. Geographically, some are mountainous, others, plain. The attitudes of the people are different. One trait that he found common to all the countries, however, was poverty—such poverty that is almost indescribable. Most of the revolutions that have taken place in Latin America have been political rather than social.

Mr. Winsburg explained that in a political revolution, the only change was in the men in power, whereas in a social one, the lives of the common people were changed for the better. In all the revolutions, only three have been social.

He explained that there was real danger of communism and Castrolism taking the lead in Latin America.

The hopes of the United States and Latin America, Mr. Winsburg said, is Kennedy's Alliance for Progress. This requires the countries to start the reforms before receiving any financial aid from the United States. The Peace Corps is bringing about small but real changes also.

Mrs. Barrett, assisted by Miss Agnes Fullilove and Miss Nancy Tindler, served a salad plate.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Leo Jenkins, Mrs. Frances Speight and Miss Nancy Tindler.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN
The gardener has two important chores to do this time of year. One of them depends on outdoor conditions and the other can be done no matter how conditions are on the outside.

Indoors
Keep tab on your house plants. The artificial heat we use to warm ourselves during the winter dries out the air in the house. Excessive dryness causes house plants to get sick. Here are a few hints you might put to use in order to give these plants a better chance: Use a hand atomizer filled with clear water to spray foliage of plants that are not very hairy. Keep plants standing on shallow trays that are filled with moss, sand or cinders. Keep this material moist always. As daytime house temperatures are likely too high, keep plants that like low temperatures in a cool location. Night temperatures near windows may be too low, so pull down shades and put pieces of cardboard or newspaper between plants and windows. Or you can move plants away from windows at night. Keep African Violets, Begonia and other shade lovers in full sunlight at this time of year. Hold back on fertilizing your indoor plants; not many need feeding on these short days.

Bring Beauty Indoors
Go out into your garden and snip off a few branches of pussy willow, forsythia, spirea (bridal wreath) and flowering spruce. Put these cuttings in containers in a warm, well-lighted room. In no time you should have a preview of spring. Don't take all cuttings from one shrub... skip around.

Outdoors
If the weather isn't too wet and cold, spread up the areas of spring flower garden and vegetable garden. This spading will give you some exercise and expose quite a few insects that could cause quite a bit of damage to next spring's plants. If you are going to put in walks, now is a good time to get this done. In fact, any garden construction done now will save time that you can spend to better advantage when days get warm. You can get dormant spraying of fruit trees, roses, etc., done now. But be sure the expected night temperature isn't going to drop below 35 degrees.

Grapes can be pruned now as well as other fruit trees. Work done on such projects as mentioned above may be the answer to whether your gardening venture of 1962 is successful or not. Be sure to keep track of work done in your garden diary. For contrasts get a winter picture of your garden and grounds.

Soil Testing Outfit
Make a big step forward in 1962. Get a small soil testing outfit. It is fun as well as profitable to make your own soil tests. You may clear up some of the garden troubles that have been plaguing you. Instead of trusting to luck, you will have definite knowledge of your garden soil conditions. One of the best and easiest to use and understand is the outfit put out by Sudbury Laboratory, Sudbury, Mass.

They put two soil testing kits within easy reach money-wise. Not only will you be able to find out pH of soil but charts show requirements of many flowers, vegetables, fruits, lawns, etc.

Round Up
Take good care of your indoor plants. Overfeeding and overwatering seem to be the biggest troubles confronting the gardener in caring for his indoor plants. Sprigs from flowering shrubs can brighten the darkest winter days. Cut some and enjoy an early bit of springtime. All you can in the garden during the winter season—it will make spring chores easier. Your own soil testing outfit should make this year's gardening more successful.

contrast, rhythm, repetition, proportion and scale. Mrs. Winslow said there was change in flower arranging as well as in anything else. The object is to enhance beauty. The arrangement should convey some idea and should have harmony. She stated that the arrangement of flowers is the art of organizing the elements according to the principles of design.

of Winthrop College. Flower Show judge, urged garden club members to work harder to make the towns of Eastern Carolina more beautiful. In her talk, she urged all to get "The Handbook for Flower Shows" so that a standard show may be arranged.

Her subject was "Principles of Design," dealing especially with balance. She mentioned other principles of dominance,

Mrs. Winslow illustrated her talk by making a symmetrical arrangement of salmon pink gladioli and then using the same gladioli to make a symmetrical one. She then took this apart and used grapes and foliage to bring out the element line.

Mrs. Norman, on behalf of the club members, presented a gift to Mrs. Winslow.

Women Should Know These Facts On Life Insurance

By MORTON YARMON
NEW YORK—(WNS)—To most women insurance is a puzzle that comes under the heading of "thing my husband knows about." Yet American women today own more than $80 billion worth of life insurance, and two-thirds of all life insurance benefits are made to women.

"All women, whether married or single have the responsibility of knowing as much as possible about this investment," said Jean Kinkade, women's consultant to the Travelers Insurance Companies. The woman who is a wife and mother is as much responsible for her family's welfare as is her husband."

Miss Kinkade listed nine questions and answers on insurance that every woman should know:

Q: Even though her husband is well insured, should the housewife and mother of the family have an insurance policy covering herself?

A: In the event of the woman's death, the family's income would not be directly affected. But the loss of the homemaker still can create a heavy financial liability for her survivors. In addition to being mother and wife, she is also the family's unpaid cook, cleaning woman, laundress, baby sitter and even chauffeur. Replacing these services will cost the family at least $3,000 a year. An insurance policy on the homemaker's life could prevent this heavy drain on the family's finances in case of such an emergency.

Q: Is such "homemaker" insurance expensive, or can it be bought in connection with a husband's regular insurance policy?

A: In a small family it is probably wisest to buy a separate policy for the wife. In a larger family, however, buy a "family insurance plan," available from several companies. A single premium in such a plan covers permanent life insurance for the head of the house and term coverage for his wife and every child.

Q: Will I still need life insurance in addition to Social Security?

A: It is best to treat widows' Social Security income as an adjunct to life insurance. The maximum benefit payment for a man is $120 a month, the dependents' an children's allowance is discontinued at age 18. This is scarcely enough to support a growing family that has no breadwinner. That's why life insurance is also needed.

Q: Does a single woman need life insurance?

A: Marital status has little bearing on the need for life insurance although it does affect the amount and type required. The question can be best answered by asking yourself: Are you responsible in any way for the support of others—parents, brothers or sisters, other relatives? Do you need a guaranteed retirement income? Will your estate cover terminal expenses? Is there anyone for whom you would like to provide an estate?

Q: Some women find it embarrassing to discuss insurance matters with a male insurance agent. Are there women insurance agents to help them?

A: About 15,000 women have taken up insurance sales and service. Most of them belong to the National Association of Insurance Women. To find a licensed woman insurance counselor near you, ask your local insurance office or write to the National Association of Insurance Women, 700 Main Street, Hartford, Conn.

Q: Should a woman whose husband is a partner in a business have a special type of insurance?

A: Often the widow of such a man is surprised to learn that the income she expected from her husband's business is not available to her. Income from partnership usually depends on "participation," which a widow usually is unable to provide. Such a family would be wise to carry partnership insurance, which would provide a specific "business" income to the widow in the event of her husband's death.

Q: I understand that taxes of an estate. Will my life insurance benefits also be taxed?

A: In most cases, no. One of the major benefits of this type of estate income is that it is tax-free.

Q: What precautions should a married woman take to make sure she will receive the benefits due her when they are most needed?

A: Even though most wives dislike discussing the matter, they should be aware of the location of insurance policies. They should be kept with other valuable family papers (deed to the house, will, stock and bonds, etc.) in a secure place, preferably in a safe deposit vault. Every woman should know the name, address, and telephone number of the family's insurance agent.

Q: What is the best way for

Raisin Bread
with raisins 30c
Diener's Bakery
815 Dickinson Ave. PL 2-5251

a widow to receive her life insurance benefits? Can she change her mind about this later on?

A: It is generally better for a widow, especially if she has small children, to receive her benefit payments each month over a period of years. During the period of adjustment after a death, a lump-sum payment might be preferred by an inexperienced beneficiary. The manner of payment can be changed any time while the policy is in force, but it cannot be changed once the beneficiary starts to receive payment.

Bath Water Colored

FRANKFURT—(WNS)—Bath salts that change the color of the water in addition to softening and perfuming it are the new fad in Germany. Manufacturers report that men prefer conservative sea colors, married women like pastel shades, but girls under 25 are now requesting strong, violent shades.

Here's a way to clean brass candlesticks, drawer pulls, or any brass accessory: Soak overnight in a solution of vinegar and salt. Then scrub with a small brush, wash in hot soap or detergent suds, rinse, and dry thoroughly.

BELK-TYLER'S

Where Would We Put 'Dropouts'?

It is somewhat deflating to the ego of North Carolinians who traditionally take great pride in public schools and colleges to recognize that this state stands 49th in the percentage of its students who finish college.

According to Dallas Herring, chairman of the State Board of Higher Education, for every 100 boys and girls who enter the first grade in North Carolina, only four finish college. The remaining 96 drop out of school somewhere along the line.

Of all the 50 states, only Mississippi has a smaller percentage of its young people of college age in college than does North Carolina.

It is a rather shocking situation for Tar Heels to face up to, but the shock is compounded by the fact that most of our colleges already appear to be bursting at the seams and greater numbers are clamoring to be admitted.

If the situation is serious at the college level, it appears to us even more serious at the public school level. For every 100 youngsters who enter the first grade in North Carolina, according to the statistics, only 45 graduates from high school 12 years later. The other 55 have dropped out of school somewhere along the way. Of the 45 who graduate from high school only 16 go on to college; and of these 16 only four eventually get their college degrees.

While Tar Heels may be concerned about the situation of their colleges and the increasing number of applicants, there is also a great deal of latitude for concern about the public schools.

There is hardly a community or county within the state that does not feel the need of additional classrooms, more teachers and additional equipment to provide better public school education for its youngsters. And in most communities there is a growing concern for the number of youngsters who are dropping out of school before they finish the first 12 grades. But where would our communities be—in terms of classroom and teacher shortages—if we had succeeded in keeping these youngsters in school?

How great would the congestion in public schools of the state be if we were not losing 55 of every hundred first graders before they finished high school?

If North Carolinians think the cost of public education in the state is terribly high now, what will we think if we should succeed in retaining 70 or 80 of every 100 first graders in public schools until they finish the 12th grade?

There is no escaping the fact that North Carolina needs simultaneously to improve the calibre of education in its public schools and to see that a much larger percentage of its youngsters take full advantages of opportunities offered by public education.

It is well that North Carolinians take great pride in their public schools and colleges, but it is imperative that this pride not prevent their recognizing that much greater efforts will be needed before education in the state reaches the maximum number of youngsters with the maximum quality program.

Rightful Priority To Making It A Success

Another postponement of the first American orbital flight is a disappointment to most citizens just as it must be to those who have worked most closely with the program. At this stage in our space program, however, the success of this first orbital flight is more important than the additional days which may be necessary to assure success.

The flight which was first anticipated before the end of 1961 has now been carried over into the second month of 1962. Another postponement such as the one announced yesterday could delay the date into another month. Nevertheless, anxious as the American people are for their nation to put a man into orbit, it is of paramount importance that this first try be completely successful.

If it takes another three months or more to get everything exactly right for the test, that time should be taken. The chances of failure should be reduced to the very minimum before the flight is carried out.

New Aggressive Attitude Seen

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—There's a slow change in President Kennedy. He's becoming more aggressive, more politically active, more determined and, perhaps, more self-confident.

This has shown up in his dealings with Congress last month and at his new conferences. He held his third of the year Wednesday. How much change there is should become clear these next few months.

This evolution in the presidency could be Kennedy's response to criticism that he was following too easy a course or simply his own decision that, having tried mildness, he'd do better being tougher.

This new approach, as it did with Eisenhower, paid off handsomely in public opinion. Polls showed both men extremely popular.

But the basic question remained: Does a president get the most done being nice all the time?

It had been suggested last year that whenever a president shows a willingness to compromise he winds up having to compromise whereas the real role of a president is to lead, even if it means making enemies.

This was pretty much accepted as Kennedy's reasoning in 1961.

Although his Democrats have a big majority in Congress, any time the conservative Southern Democrats team up with the conservative Republicans the balance of power shifts and the President is stopped cold.

By this reasoning it could be understood why in 1961 he refrained from making good, for example, on his 1960 campaign promise to offer civil rights legislation as one of his first acts as president.

If he had pushed for civil rights in Congress, it might have angered the Southern Democrats and jeopardized some of his other programs. As late as the last days of December in Palm Beach men who talked with him there reported he still indicated reluctance to have a head-on clash with Congress over civil rights.

He also reported: He was reluctant to let Congress with a reorganization plan to create a new department of urban affairs and housing, preferring to let Congress in its own slow way handle the problem in the form of the usual bills.

Under the reorganization plan method—once he offered it—he would simply go ahead and create the new department if, within 60 days, neither House nor Senate by a majority vote opposed it.

And those who talked with him also said he was reluctant to tear into the Republicans—although this is a congressional election year—at least until this session of Congress ended and the campaign had begun.

Before the end of January he had done just the opposite on all three. Reversing his do-nothing performance on civil rights legislation in 1961, he has now openly backed it.

He has thrown his reorganization plan for a new urban affairs department at Congress. And he has started ripping into the Republicans for trying to block a reorganization bill to set up the department.

All these moves were a switch in tactics. Both Southern Democrats and Republicans started crying in protest.

What really counts in all this, of course, is not just these preliminary steps by Kennedy but how much follow-through he's willing to give when a little later this year in Congress the going gets tough.

It's too soon therefore to say he has now decided as a fixed policy that a much tougher line is the better part of wisdom. But at least there has been a beginning.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
GODS AND HALF-GODS
There are few things which disturb children more painfully than to have to pick up with their family, move to another community, enter another school, and make new friendships.

A little six year old was sad one evening because it was the last night in the town in which she had been born and brought up. That night she said her prayers and her final petition was: "God bless mommy and daddy, and brother, and sister, and all my friends. And this is goodbye to you too God, because we're moving tomorrow."

All ancient people had the idea that each nation and each section of the country had its own particular deity. Move out of that section and you moved away from the protection of that god. This little girl was thinking what everybody believed centuries ago—move out of an area and you move away from the protection of the God of that area.

There are some people who have divided their lives in such a way that God rules some areas and not others. He rules the church area, the contribution area, the Bible reading and prayer area. He does not rule the business area, the sex area, the gossip area, the grudge area. The devil rules all these and does a devastating job. God rules the "holy" areas. Satan rules all the others.

How about you? Do you believe in one God or many?

I Can't Help Wondering—

By HAL BOYLE

No Real Rush Is Needed

NEW YORK (AP)—The father was obviously deeply distressed. "I'm worried about my son," he said. "He's 18, and can't seem to decide on a career."

"Oh, he's doing well enough in his studies, and he doesn't get into trouble. But he can't seem to decide on a career."

"What's the matter with the younger generation today? So many of them seem lost and drifting. Don't they realize the world is getting more competitive every day? They can't dawdle forever about what they want to do in life."

"Why, when I was his age—"

"The man went into a long harangue about how, early in youth, he had decided on a profession, stuck with it, and everything had turned out pretty well for him—all things considered. Unconsciously, what he really was saying was, "Why can't my son be like me?"

"I couldn't help feeling sorry for the father. His distress was easily understandable. Every parent wants to see his children pick a worthwhile life goal as soon as possible, and buckle down to the pursuit of it."

But I couldn't restrain a deeper feeling of kinship and sympathy for that particular man's son.

It seems to me that too many parents today try to hurry their sons into a safe niche in some big safe corporation.

"I just want to see them settled in something," they say of their children.

They overlook the fact that nothing can be more unsettling to a young person than to find, a few years later, he has settled in the name of security for a role he isn't really suited for. Such a person often comes to disaster in middle age.

What is the real rush to pick a lifelong career so early anyway? While it is important for anyone to find out what he really wants to do with his life, it is equally important for him to find out what he doesn't want to do with it.

Youth is a reaching, questioning, uncertain time. Youth is the best time for trial and error. Youth is the time for trying on separate dreams until you find one that fits you, and can be worn over after.

In most parts of the world a young man doesn't have to worry about a career. He does what his father did.

The glory of America is that it is a land of many choices. A young man or woman is surrounded by opportunity and change. Each can choose from a hundred or more callings, if he has the will and energy to do so.

Therefore, one who understands the problems that we have to meet must realize that we must meet the enemy as a united nation or we shall collapse by disunion. Nothing is easier, in a free country, than to find flaws in the operations of a free government. Of course, President Kennedy makes mistakes; of course, the Congress makes mistakes. Of course, the Cabinet is not the best that could be chosen. Perfection is to be sought for and found in Heaven. But what we are dealing with is the hell of war and our imperfections have to be met with good-will and have to be corrected swiftly and courageously to meet our current dangers.

However, there are bigoted persons who live in the past and refuse to adjust their thinking to the fiercely uncomfortable problems of the day. Constantly I receive letters denouncing me for not attacking President Kennedy and insisting that I have "sold out." The conflict is between the United States and Soviet Russia. Do they want me to support Soviet Russia? They say that they are against Communism, but as one who reads what they have to say, they are doing with primitive Marxism which fits Albania but neither the United States nor Soviet Russia. Their comments on American Communism would have been correct in the 1930's but no longer fit our country or our period. They refer to a party that was led in Soviet Russia by Bukharin and Radek and in the United States by Earl Browder. They are not only behind the times but their thinking is unrelated to reality.

Our government based on the Constitution of the United States must be preserved. We are the envy of every nation in the world, and the nation most desirable to be conquered since we are in this position. No other form of government can present this way of life nor the opportunities guaranteed by our Constitution.—Anaheim (Calif.) Bulletin.

Nation Needs Unity

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

When Senator Joe McCarthy appeared on the scene, I was among the first newspapermen to support him. Having studied Marxism since about 1913 and having lived through various phases of the Marxist movement including the first year of the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia and about 13 years of it in China, I recognized that McCarthy was moving in the right direction but needed considerable study and training. His chief assistant was Roy Cohn who came to McCarthy on my recommendation because, although very young, he had a profound knowledge of the subject which he cultivated while he was in the Attorney General's office where his services in the Rosenberg Case were significant. Another assistant was Robert Kennedy, now the Attorney General.

All of us, who helped McCarthy, were attacked and abused because many did not understand that the problem had to be dealt with as an attack on Marxism and Soviet espionage. Some were able to take the attack and all the unpleasantness that accompanied it. The Communists naturally fought back and all who were associated with McCarthy, no matter to what degree, were required to make personal sacrifices. Some survived; others are still paying for their insistence upon principle.

The years have passed and new situations face us. The immediate problem that our country encounters is war. In this war, the American Communist is not so much a political activist as he is a spy. He will be handled better by the FBI than by an investigative committee, although some work can still be done by Congressional Committees and they should be preserved.

Also, the attitude and position of the American government has changed radically. This country faces very different circumstances very different from those in 1941. The enemy is a different one. Then we organized against Germany and Japan and our allies were strong; today our enemy is Soviet Russia and our allies are weak, their great empires no longer existing. Then, we and our allies possessed enormous wealth; now, the economic capacity of our enemy is as great as ours. Then we could dictate the terms of war and peace; today we have to negotiate for survival.

Therefore, one who understands the problems that we have to meet must realize that we must meet the enemy as a united nation or we shall collapse by disunion. Nothing is easier, in a free country, than to find flaws in the operations of a free government. Of course, President Kennedy makes mistakes; of course, the Congress makes mistakes. Of course, the Cabinet is not the best that could be chosen. Perfection is to be sought for and found in Heaven. But what we are dealing with is the hell of war and our imperfections have to be met with good-will and have to be corrected swiftly and courageously to meet our current dangers.

However, there are bigoted persons who live in the past and refuse to adjust their thinking to the fiercely uncomfortable problems of the day. Other Editors Saying... Not All In Washington

(The Sanford Herald)
John W. Hough, writing in Better Farm Methods magazine, declares that when you take time to stop and visit with a few commercial farmers you soon realize that not all of the top farm thinkers are located in Washington.

You'll find them pretty well scattered all through America. The top farm thinkers that we're referring to have a business that is measured in acres, bushels and livestock. They may do most of their thinking on a tractor seat and it's the kind of thinking that is as close to commercial agriculture as you can get.

Last week Hough said he visited a few top farmers—farm thinkers—in Illinois. The farmers he talked to were not moaning and groaning about low incomes (although they had just cause to). They were much more interested in discussing taxation, corporate family farms, rural zoning, markets, farm organizations, and similar subjects. Strong and well thoughtout opinions were voiced by each farmer.

Hough said he found it difficult to reconcile what these men said with the problems of agriculture as cited by Washington's top farm thinkers. The dozens of speeches covering farm problems and solutions that he had been reading, Hough said, didn't fit into the discussions with these farmers at all. It is also interesting to note that the opinions of the farmers ran contradictory to the thinking and opinions of Washington's "top farm thinkers."

Now there is something wrong here and it can only hurt the commercial agriculture that we are thinking of, the author stated. We are afraid that the thinking of the majority of our top farm thinkers—that is commercial farm businessmen—is not receiving its fair share of attention. The intelligent views of the 312,000 commercial farmers who are producing approximately 80 per cent of our total agricultural production in this country are lost in the average statistics of the other 3-13 million farmers, Hough contends.

It would appear that the opinions and views of commercial agriculture are overshadowed by the political and sociological implications of doing the most for the greatest number of people.

Commercial farmers are not welfare cases and they will not be satisfied with "give-away" programs. They are not as interested in equality of income as they are concerned with equality in taxation and similar problems of a business nature.

Such are the impressions Hough says he gets from his farm visits and letters.

Potent Soviet Weapon In Oil

By ELMER ROESSNER
Russia has three powerful weapons in the cold war propaganda, espionage and oil. And of these, the most potent may be oil.

Russia is now dumping oil at cut prices on the noncommunist world. The objectives are: to gain foreign currencies or much-needed foreign products; to extend communist influence into these nations, and to reduce them to dependencies by being able to choke off oil supplies without warning.

To provide the oil for use in this phase of the cold war, Russia is using greater amounts of coal and natural gas for domestic uses, thereby freeing oil for export. Since most of the Russian industrial plant was originally constructed for coal, this involves little change-over in equipment.

NETWORK OF PIPELINES
At the same time, Russia is expanding its internal system of pipelines to facilitate exports. A pipeline from the Ural-Volga area is being built to Poland, East Germany, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and to Baltic ports, where oil can be shipped in tankers to foreign points.

Another pipeline is being built to Black Sea ports and unconfirmable reports indicate the Russians are building pipelines from points in Siberia to Pacific Coast ports to increase shipments to Asia, the South Pacific and to South America.

Because Russian oil is produced and transported by what is tantamount to slave labor, it can charge any price or prices it sees desirable. It can charge fantastically low prices to undercut Western nations. In a special report on "The Soviet Economic Offensive" for Time magazine, John Scott says Russia is selling oil to Austria at about 30 per cent below Western prices to Austria, Greece, Germany and Italy, about 20 per cent under Western prices to India and 15 per cent below to Sweden.

Russia sells petroleum to West Germany at prices 30 per cent less than it charges its captive ally Czechoslovakia, and Russia charges Finland, which is right under Russian guns, about 50 per cent more than it does Sweden.

TIES UP OTHER NATIONS
Russia does not depend on price cuts alone. It is lending other nations more than half a billion dollars to build their own nationalized oil refining and distributing systems. These would tend to become dependent on Soviet oil.

It has advanced India $224 million to develop its industry and $42 million to Cuba to repair the refineries Castro seized from private oil companies. Other promises or advances are: Afghanistan, $30 million; Pakistan, $30 million; Syria, $25 million; Yemen, $3 million; Iraq, $6 million; Indonesia, $3 million; Egypt, $76 million; Ethiopia, $14 million; Mali Republic, $11 million; Cambodia, $3 million; and Argentina $50 million. Other Latin American countries have been offered sums but have not yet accepted.

These advances are based on commitments to buy Soviet oil. Some contracts specify payment in pounds sterling or similar sound currencies. However, many of the deals provide for payment in machine tools and other hard goods. One of the things that Russia has been seeking in payment is pipe of large diameter. It may want this for expansion of its pipeline system. But the biggest payment exacted is acceptance of greater Soviet influence in the customer country. When a country accepts Soviet "aid," Russian, Czech or Rumanian technicians move in, as they have done in Cuba. Installations are so designed that replacement parts must come from the Soviet Union.

When Russia decides to increase pressure for the communization of an "aided" country, it can reduce or cut off oil. It can delay or forget replacements for refineries; it can withdraw its technicians.

If Russia broke completely, Western nations could move in to the vacuum quickly. But it is more likely that Russia would adopt the pulsating tactics it uses with great success in its diplomatic enterprises. One day it will threaten to break relations with a recalcitrant nation; the next day it will reconsider and rush more aid; some fresh delaying tactics—and so on until the victim nation, mentally shell-shocked, will give in to the communists.

Show Interest In Citizenship

By LYNN NISBET

VOTING—Many of the big corporations with branches in more than one state are showing keen interest in having their employees take active part in the local government of the community in which they are located. There are frequent transfers among the junior executives of these firms, and there is natural disposition for them to lose interest in local government.

Your reporter saw a letter the other day from the home office of a big chain store system asking a representative in this state to furnish information of election dates, registration procedures, etc. The purpose is to pass this along to the firm's employees, especially those who may have been moved in from other states, and urge them to get in position to vote.

It happens the official who wrote this letter is hard rock Republican, but he is more concerned about his men performing their duties as citizens than voting the Republican ticket.

INTEREST—This attitude on part of big business is typical of the general increased interest in politics and government. Attendance at all kinds of political meetings is better than for many years. Information gathered from public libraries is that books on politics and government, biographies of statesmen, and similar texts are more in demand than ever before.

SELF-ANALYSIS—The commission authorized by the 1961 Legislature to study the question of how members of county boards of education should be elected or appointed to best serve the purpose of sound school administration asked all incumbent county board members for expression of their opinion.

Not all responded but a large number did. The answers have been tabulated by the State Boards Association and they show some interesting trends. Here are significant points:

- (1) County boards were equally divided between those favoring direct popular election as being final.
- (2) City boards favored non-partisan popular election by two to one over all other methods. Appointment by the city governing body was second choice.

(3) City and county boards overwhelmingly favored six-year, staggered terms for all board members.

(4) A genuine interest in education was the most typical qualification mentioned, with the electorate assuming ultimate responsibility for judging the suitability of board members. For more specific qualifications, some few expressed the feeling that board members should have children in school and be high school or college graduates.

(5) Five-member boards were most commonly suggested for cities and counties, with seven-member boards for cities running a close second.

These and all other suggestions have been turned over to the Study Commission for use in their work.

UMSTEAD—John W. Umstead has just announced his candidacy for re-election to the House of Representatives from Orange county. He has served ten terms in the House and two in the Senate. When he completes the term for which he is now running he will equal the record set by George Uzzell of Rowan county, who had 13 legislatures to his credit, and will be runner up to the late Walter (Pete) Murphy of Rowan who served fourteen terms in the House—and was the only man ever twice elected Speaker. Uzzell made some effort toward getting the speakership post on three occasions, but each time what appeared to be stronger or more popular men moved in to cop the prize.

John Umstead never sought the speakership, nor did he want to be chairman of one of the powerful money committees. His yen for service was in the field of education and welfare, particularly in the area of mental hospitals and schools for the mentally retarded. His achievements in this field led Governor Sanford a few days ago to say he regarded John Umstead as one of the outstanding public servants in all the history of North Carolina.

IAN FLEMING'S Greatest Thriller THUNDERBALL

CHAPTER 16
The taxi took James Bond out to the airport at the other end of the island.
The man from the Central Intelligence Agency was due at one fifteen. His name was Larkin. F. Larkin. Bond hoped he wouldn't be a muscle-bound ex-college man with a crew-cut and a desire to show up the incompetence of the British, the backwardness of their little Colony, and the clumsy ineptitude of Bond, in order to gain credit with his chief in Washington.
Bond hoped that at any rate he would bring the equipment he had asked for before he left London through Section A, who looked after the liaison with

C.I.A. This was the latest transmitter and receiver for agents in the field, so that the two of them could be independent of cable offices and have instant communication with London and Washington, and the most modern portable Geiger counters for operating both on land and under water.
One of the chief virtues of C.I.A., in Bond's estimation, was the excellence of their equipment, and he had no false pride about borrowing from them.
Bond spent the ride to the airport reviewing the morning.
He had arrived at seven a.m. to be met by the Governor's A.D.C.—a mild error of security—and taken to the Royal Bahamian, a large old-fashioned hotel. After a shower and a tepid, touristy breakfast on his balcony overlooking the beautiful beach, he had gone up to Government House at nine o'clock for a meeting with the Commissioner of Police, the Chief of Immigration and Customs, and the Deputy Governor. It was exactly as he had imagined it would be.

The MOST IMMEDIATES and the TOP SECRETS had made a superficial impact and he was promised full cooperation in every aspect of his assignment, but the whole business was clearly put down as a ridiculous flap and something that must not be allowed to interfere with the normal routine of running a small, sleepy colony, nor with the comfort and happiness of the tourists.
Roddick, the Deputy Governor, a careful, middle-of-the-way man with a ginger mustache and gleaming pince-nez, had put the whole affair in a most sensible light.
"You see, Commander Bond, in our opinion—and we have most carefully debated all the possibilities, all the, er, angles, as our American friends would say—it is inconceivable that a large four-engine plane could have been hidden anywhere within the confines of the Colony. The only aircraft capable of taking such a plane—am I right, Harling?—is here in Nassau. So far as a landing on the sea is concerned, a, er, ditching I think they call it, we have been in radio contact with the Administrators on all the larger outer islands and the replies are all negative. The radar people at the meteorological station..."
Bond had interrupted at this point. "Might I ask if the radar screen is manned round the clock? My impression is that the airport is very busy during the day, but that there is very little traffic at night. Would it be possible that the radar is not so closely watched at night?"
The Commissioner of Police, a pleasant, very military-looking man in his forties, said judiciously, "I think the Commander has a point there, sir. The airport commandant admits that things do slacken off a bit when there's nothing scheduled. He hasn't got all that amount of staff and of course most of them are locals, sir. Good men, but hardly up to Longon Airport standards. And the radar at the met. station is only a G.C.A. set with a low horizon and range—mostly used for shipping."
"Quite, quite." The Deputy Governor didn't want to be dragged into a discussion about radar sets or the merits of Nassau labor. "There's certainly a steady on, Mr. Pitman. Surely we don't want them to get mixed up in all this, or heaven knows where we shall end. I can't believe Commander Bond wants to bother his head over a lot of rich beachcombers."

The Commissioner of Police said doubtfully, "The only thing is, sir—they do have a yacht, and a small plane for the matter of that. And I did hear that a lot of shareholders in the swindle do come in lately. Those points do tally with what the Commander was asking about. I admit it's ridiculous, but this man Largo's respectable enough for Commander Bond's requirements and his men have never once given us trouble. Unusual to have not even one case of drunkenness in a ship's crew in nearly six months."
And Bond had leaped at the filmy thread and had pursued it for another two hours—in the Customs building and in the Commissioner's office—and, as a result, he had gone walking in the town to see if he could get a look at Largo or any of his party or pick up any other shreds of gossip. As a result he had got a good look at Domino Vitali.
If a man from out of Bond's past (who knows all about him) shows up, what then? Continue the story tomorrow.

'Glorifying' Of Hard Work Has New Advocate
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has called on Americans to "repudiate feather-bedding and to glorify hard work at all levels."
Addressing more than 2,000 persons at a Chamber of Commerce banquet Wednesday night, he declared: "Wherever malingering in any group or class is condoned—whether in management, scientist or worker—progress is destined to be slow."
"Adequate leisure is not only desirable, it is healthy for mind as well as body, but unwarranted idleness in any part of the population cannot fail, correspondingly, to slow up the rate of growth."
Eisenhower said the public grew suspicious of "make-work" projects—both public and private—during the depression years of the 1930s.
He added: "Later on, in the 1940s, huge demand for all varieties of goods and services led to inefficiency and to neglect of true productivity in work performed. Today we are not lacking in specific indications that we are drifting toward a feather-bed economy."
"In saying this," he continued, "I am not referring merely to the make-work rules adopted by some unions; rather I think we should be concerned with all the practices and trends in fields that may put present affluence above needed accomplishment—that may diminish incentive, stifle competition and, in the name of security, lessen opportunity."
Eisenhower interrupted a winter vacation at Palm Desert, 130 miles southeast of here, for a two-day visit to Los Angeles. He is scheduled to meet with Republican workers today and to address a private $1,000-a-ticket dinner tonight.
In his Chamber of Commerce address, the ex-president traced the development of the republic over the years and warned that "our form of government is still on test with its long term durability yet to be proved."
Among weakening influences, Eisenhower mentioned "monopolies of any kind, pressure groups seeking selfish advantage at the expense of the whole and lethargy, indifference or ignorance on the part of the public."
He suggested the present might be a propitious time for overhauling laws and practices affecting the nation's economy.
He said laws now on the books were meant "to prevent monopoly, to sustain an atmosphere in which free enterprise can flourish and to foster and regulate labor unions."
"But there are grave doubts," he said, "that the present framework designed for these purposes really fits the problems of today."

Baby Was Born In Traffic Tieup

HAMMOND, Ind. (AP)—A railroad yardmaster was under arrest Wednesday because a train blocked a crossing so long that a girl was born in her parents' waiting car.
Mrs. William Blankenship, 28, gave birth to the baby Tuesday night while her irate husband was trying to get police to clear the crossing so he could get his wife to a hospital.
The baby was taken to a nearby fire station, and the switching Indiana Harbor Railroad train also delayed the ambulance called to take mother and baby to St. Margaret Hospital.
Motorists said the crossing on busy Calumet Avenue was blocked 42 minutes, and Robert Mansell was charged with blocking a crossing.
Chinese on the island of Que moy farm a profitable crop called "iron potatoes." Artillery shells, fired from the Communist mainland three miles away, are dug out of the fields and sold as scrap iron.

CERTIFICATE OF APPRECIATION . . . is presented to W. E. Gladding, manager of E. I. DuPont Plant, Kinston, by Richard Atkinson, chairman of the Pitt County chapter of the American Red Cross.

F. Richard Atkinson, chairman of the Pitt County chapter of the American Red Cross, recently presented a certificate of appreciation to W. E. Gladding, manager of the Kinston DuPont Plant, for cooperation in the Red Cross blood program.

John M. Christens, three-gallon pin; Joseph A. Ray and Charles H. Mohle, two-gallon pins; D. C. Jennings, Walter E. Cattle, M. L. Alcorn Jr., W. E. Weir, J. B. Del Papa, George A. Dedrick, Paul Gabriel, W. W. Nelson, J. J. Herbert, F. R. Mills

Pins were also presented to employees of the plant, some of them residents of Pitt County, for contributions to the blood program.

Care-Of-Sick Classes Begin In Ayden Tonight

AYDEN — Final plans for classes on "Care of the Sick and Injured" were announced this week, with one class beginning tonight and a second beginning Tuesday, Feb. 6.

Sokolsky . . .

And they insist that they are supporting American ideals when they are not even Americans. Those who are discouraged by the course of events find comfort in their excesses because other courses seem to be in the middle of nothing. What they do not seem to understand is that a big battle is being formed against the development of an imperialism that has set forth to destroy us as a people.

The courses, partially set up by the Jay-C-Ettes, are sponsored by the Red Cross and are being held in conjunction with the county's Civil Defense program.

Our realistic weakness is not that we do not understand Marxism but that we fail to grasp the enormous progress of Soviet Russia and the strides it has made because of the nature of political geography and our own failures to grasp the enemy's purposes.

Mrs. Lois McLawhorn will conduct the first class beginning at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the recreation building.

The second course will be conducted by Mrs. Narcissus Jackson, Mrs. A. M. Brown and Mrs. M. J. Albritton at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday in the South Ayden Home Economics building. "We are hoping that as soon as these courses are completed we will be able to begin another one," Civil Defense Director Cleveland Paylor said.

Gallery Will Be Rotary Speaker

AYDEN—Jim Mallory, dean of men at East Carolina College and baseball coach, is scheduled to address this week's Rotary Club meeting here.

Wilbur Ormond is program chairman for the evening. The club meets regularly on Thursday nights. Several "baseball minded" citizens have been invited to hear Mallory's talk.

"Free Advice" on questions in the fields of insurance, investments, wills, tax matters and other items was the topic of a program presented to the local Rotary Club last week by Snowdie Edwards, program chairman for the evening.

Edwards named a panel consisting of Warren Kinlaw, Bob Booth, Hal Moore and Ralph Hardee to answer questions submitted by members of the club.

(meeting at the Community Building.

During the evening, it was announced that the annual Ladies Night will be held March 1.

It was reported during the business session that the Ayden Rotary Club's attendance during December averaged 87.8 per cent compared to the district average of 86.2 per cent. Ayden Rotary Club is 20th in attendance in the district for December.

President Gwynn Merritt, who presided, read a letter from Tommy Dunn, president of the Ayden High School Student Council, thanking the club for copies of the "4-Way Test" which were distributed to members of the school. Guy Corbitt and the Rev. John Goff directed the project.

Visitors were Greenville Rotarians Dr. Sylvester Green and Willard Kysen, also Norman Barber and Dale Frich, guests of Curt Cavleer.

Evans Hints At New Taxes For Highways

RALEIGH (AP) — What is the thinking of the State Highway Commission chairman regarding the possibility of new taxes to finance staggering road building needs?

Chairman Merrill Evans mentioned the subject twice Wednesday in a speech to a conference of Highway Department engineers and private contractors.

He said, "It is not my purpose today to suggest any new sources of taxation—but a better highway program with what we have."

Later, in his address, he commented, "so for the moment—no new or additional taxes—but a better highway program with what we have."

said, "the Highway Commission does not have money in sight to make all of the needed improvements to the primary system and will be fortunate to hold even its present position when increasing traffic and rising costs are taken into consideration."

Firemen's Ass'n Meet In Bethel This Evening

The Pitt Firemen's Association will hold its quarterly meeting in Bethel at the Rotary building tonight.

The Bethel Fire Department will act as host. Pres. Roy Hardee said the organization's board of directors will meet at 7 o'clock. The supper and business session will begin at 7:30.

Pres. Hardee said a committee will be appointed to study a communications system. Another committee will be appointed to plan for the spring firemen's training school. The program will include slides of fires and methods of fighting them.

Hardee said all departments of Pitt County are invited to attend as well as persons interested in forming departments in any section or community of the county.

The quarterly meeting was scheduled earlier this month but postponed because of snow.

Three Hunters Are Casualties

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—For the first time in 48 years, New Jersey had a one-day hunting season confined to hunters who failed to bag a deer last year.

In an effort to cut herds down to size, the hunters were permitted Wednesday to shoot any deer on sight, regardless of sex.

Number of deer slain: Undetermined. Number of hunters hospitalized: Three.

What's Your Life Worth?

A new car may cost you $2500 or $3000 or $5000. But a new miracle drug — which saves your life — may cost $3 or $5 or (if it's especially expensive to make) as much as $55. That's why we say . . . "TODAY'S PRESCRIPTION IS THE BIGGEST BARGAIN IN HISTORY"

Chicod Having Good Season

By CHARLES VAUGHAN
Reflector Sports Writer

CHICOD—Coach Bob Howell and the Chicod Hornets have been keeping their conference foes on their toes this season. Chicod boasts a conference record of eight wins and two losses, and they've won all four of their non-conference contests.

The Hornets are presently near the top of the standings with Bethel and Winterville, while Ayden holds down the first place slot.

Howell, in his third year at Chicod, is a native of Greenville and a 1959 graduate from East Carolina College. Beside being the boy's coach, Coach Howell also tutors the girls' team.

Led By Smith

The Hornets have led in their current campaign by Ephraim Smith who has a scoring average of 21 points per game. Smith, who is the team's captain, is in his fourth year as a starter for the Hornets. Last year he averaged about 18 or 19 points per contest according to Coach Howell.

Another factor responsible for Chicod's success has been the outstanding ability of senior Billy Elks. Elks, who averages 13 points a game, has been leading rebounder for the Hornets. This is Elks' second year as a starter under Coach Howell.

Adams Is Rebounder

Talmadge Adams, a senior, has also a vital factor for Chicod. Adams has been scoring about ten points a game for the Hornets, and is also very valuable as a rebounder.

The other two members of the Hornets starting five are Juniors Douglas Hudson and Charles Wall. While neither boys have high scoring averages, Coach Howell stated, "Both boys are a definite asset to the team with their fine defensive ability."

Ray Hardee, who was ineligible the first semester, has been coming along fast in the last two games. Hardee scored 17 points in his two games for an average of 8.5 per game. According to Coach Howell, Hardee will see plenty of action for the remainder of the season.

The coach was quick to point out that Douglas Cashion has also played fine ball for Chicod. Howell said, "Cashion is not one of our starters, but he usually plays about half of each game. He is coming along real well."

Height Is Weakness

While most of the teams in the Pitt County Conference have at least one player six feet tall or over, Chicod has only one boy who is exactly six feet.

"Height is our major weakness," remarked Howell, "but this is the first year we've even had a boy who is six feet." Coach Howell noted that in his three years at Chicod, the Hornets never had a boy taller than 5'11". However, Howell later remarked, "They really work hard to overcome this height disadvantage."

Friday night, Feb. 2, Chicod travels to Ayden to meet the conference leading Tornadoes.

All-State Certificate Is Presented To Piland

During the halftime ceremonies of the East Carolina-Appalachian basketball game Tuesday night, Clarence Stasavich, new head football coach, presented Clayton Piland with his All-State certificate.

Piland, a senior tackle and tri-captain, was also elected to All-Conference and honorable mention All-America honors after the 1961 football season.

Stasavich, in presenting the award, expressed the congratulations of the coaching staff and the student body. In addition to the honors won during his senior year, Piland also was All-Conference and All-State during his junior year.

At the annual football banquet held in December Piland was awarded the best blocker and outstanding player trophies. During his junior year he also received the best blocker award in addition to the most improved player honor.

The 6-foot 1-inch, 190-pound senior, was one of the five graduating seniors on the 1961 team that played four years for the Pirates. He is from Winton.

Schiff To Play In Table Tennis Meet Here This Weekend

William Stancil, president of the Greenville Table Tennis Club, has announced that one of the early entries in the North Carolina Open Table Tennis Championships is Sol Schiff of New York.

Schiff, who is known as "Mr. Table Tennis," will take part in the tournament which will be held this weekend at the Greenville club located at 815E Djo-kinson Ave.

In addition to the tournament, Schiff will put on exhibitions with Howard Ornstein of New York, tonight in the College Union. There will also be an exhibition in the Rose High gym at 11:30 Friday morning.

Schiff has held more national titles than any other player in the history of table tennis. These titles include the World's Doubles Champion, runner-up of the world's men's singles championship, national singles champion, national doubles and mixed doubles champion.

Schiff is still one of the top players in the game today, and is still an active competitor against many of the younger players, having already won many tournaments this year.

Other early entries in the Greenville tournament will be Venu Chari of India, George Mitchell of Washington, D. C., former state champion Norman Kilpatrick of Arlington, Va., Lief Farne of Chicago and outstanding woman player Yvonne Kronlage, of Baltimore, Md.

Roger Maris, in hitting 61 home runs last season on a .269 batting average, and the lowest batting percentage of any previous major league home run champion.

Final Month Of ACC Play Begins; One Open Date

The ACC's eight teams concentrate their fire on one another in the 18 playing dates between now and Feb. 24, last day of the regular season. North Carolina plays only ACC foes the rest of the way. The other seven teams have one non-conference game apiece.

Duke (6-1) and North Carolina (5-1) dominate the conference race right now, but challenging are Wake Forest (4-2) and North Carolina State (5-3). Bunched closely in the second division are South Carolina (3-4) and Maryland (2-4), and Clemson (1-5) and Virginia (1-7).

Actually, there's no soft touch in the league, and any opponent could turn the tables on the leaders, particularly in the late stages of the season.

With the race hotly contested, there could be changes almost every day in the standings until the regular season is over. The conference championship is not determined by the final standings, but by the conference tournament March 1-3 in Raleigh. So the battle now is chiefly for seeding in the tourney.

Duke has as tough a row to hoe as anyone. The Blue Devils have two more games with North Carolina, one of them Saturday. They have one with Wake Forest, which has a consuming itch to beat Duke and show that the Deacons' pre-season ratings weren't all eye-wash. And there is a game with North Carolina State, which handed Duke its only conference defeat — 61-60 a month ago.

The rest of the schedule includes two games with cellar tenant Virginia, one with Maryland, and a non-conference game with Navy.

North Carolina, of course, has two Duke games. The Tar Heels also tackle Maryland twice and have one game each with Wake Forest, N.C. State, Clemson and South Carolina.

Wake Forest has four more road games, three of them with conference opponents — South Carolina in Friday's only ACC game, Clemson and North Carolina — before the Deacons get back to the welcome environment of Memorial Coliseum. After that it's five ACC games down the home stretch, four of them in the Deacs' backyard.

Wake Forest lost a scoring contest with West Virginia Wednesday night at Charleston, W.Va., 101-99.

The Deacons led for the first seven minutes, but the Mountaineers fought back and at halftime led 56-50, never to trail again, despite several close moments in the second half.

Len Chappell, 6-8, 250-pound senior, scored 37 points for the Deacs, equalling his highest production of the season. But West Virginia had a double-barreled answer in Jim McCormick, who scored 35 points, and Rod Thorn, 26.

Wake Forest now is 7-7 for the season, West Virginia 15-4.

Sugg Wins And Robinson Loses

In Pitt County Interscholastic Association games Tuesday night Sugg High School of Farmville downed Bethel Union by a score of 82-47.

Sugg took an early lead and managed to hold on to it for the remainder of the contest. The halftime score was 41-22 in favor of the Lions.

Hitting in the double figures for Sugg were Edward Pitt with 27 points, William Byrd with 16, Roscoe Harris with 12 and Theodore Dupree with 14. The high scorers for Bethel Union were Lewis Wyna with 14 points and Richard Howard and Robert Staton with 10 each.

In the girls game Sugg also came out on top by the score of 17-9. The halftime score in this contest was 12-4.

The remainder of the Sugg season will be home games. Friday night Sugg will host the South Ayden Eagles at 7 o'clock.

In other games Tuesday night the Pitt County Training School of Grimesland downed Robinson High School of Winterville 66-38. Pitt County Training took the lead in the first period and went on to win the contest.

The high scorer for the winners was Frye with 30 points. For Robinson the high scorer was Edwards with 11 points. He was followed by Monk with 10.

In the girls game the outcome was reversed with Robinson winning by a score of 28-26. The winners took an eight point lead in the first quarter, but Pitt Training narrowed the margin in the final period.

The high scorers for the winners were Best with 11 points and Greene with 10. For Pitt Training the high scorer was V. Hawkins with 20 points.

High School Pool Parents Organize

The parents of the boys on the Rose High swimming team met with Coach Reggie Edgerton and Athletic Director Bo Farley last night to organize the support of the team.

Parents of 18 of the 25 boys on the team were present for the meeting and they decided to help the team with the needed equipment and transportation to the meets. A spokesman for the group said that sweat suits and an official record book have been ordered for the team.

The group, which has not yet decided on a name for itself, has noted that anyone desiring transportation to the meets should contact Donna Tabor of Coach Edgerton.

At the meeting the group expressed their appreciation to College Coach Ray Martinez and to East Carolina for the cooperation of the college in letting the high school use the pool. "Without this cooperation a high school team would not have been possible," a spokesman for the group noted.

The first regular meet of the season will be held this Saturday in Raleigh with Needham Broughton High School. Other meets are scheduled for each Saturday from now until March 3.

W. Va. Top-Seeded In Southern Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Barring a couple of major miracles, West Virginia's Mountaineers will be the top-seeded team and The Citadel will be on the outside looking in when the top eight clubs in the Southern Conference gather in Richmond March 1-3 for the annual championship tournament.

While this first-and-last finish became more probable Wednesday night when William and Mary Indians upset second-place Furman 79-67 and VMI's Keydets whipped George Washington 66-72.

The defeat left the Paladins with a 4-2 record and seven league games remaining — the first tonight at Richmond. West Virginia is 10-1 with only two league games left — the last one at home against Furman.

As far as the scrap for last place is concerned, The Citadel has a 1-6 conference record with five games left, just two of them at home. William and Mary is 3-3 with five games remaining, three of them at home where the Indians have lost just once in their last 18 starts.

VMI, despite the loss of sophomore star Bill Blair for the season with a finger injury, is in even better shape with a 4-5 record and five games left. Davidson, which has won its last

Saint's Winning Streak Broken

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Dorchester Farm's Carry Back, the 3-year-old champion race horse of 1961, emerged today as favorite for the big handicap races coming up in Florida this month and next.

Carry Back didn't win the $33,450 Palm Beach Handicap at Hialeah Wednesday but the way he ran the seven furlongs in his first outing of 1962 convinced horsemen that he will be equally as tough at age 4 as he was at 3.

The game little Florida-bred put on one of his customary blistering stretch runs to finish second behind intentionally and he was gaining on Tartan Stable's speedy 6-year-old at the end. The winner, basically a sprinter, is not expected to go in upcoming longer races.

Eleven other speeders were in the race. Amblopoise finished third.

High Point And Elon Will Play

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

High Point and Elon, both eager to get a notch closer to front-running Lenoir Rhyne in the Carolina Conference basketball race meet tonight at Elon. Either can move up in the standings by winning.

Elon, now in third place, can tie East Carolina for second with an 8-3 record. If High Point wins, the Panthers will take over third place with a 9-5 mark and the Christians will drop to fourth.

Pfeiffer is at Campbell in a non-conference game, only other contest scheduled tonight.

Lenoir Rhyne, which led almost all the way during regulation play, lost to Western Carolina 82-77 in overtime Wednesday night. The loss left the Bears with a 10-3 conference record.

Western Carolina led on only one occasion during the first half. Lenoir Rhyne widened its lead to as much as 10 points early in the second half, but WCC hung on.

In the closing 2½ minutes the Bears couldn't hit and the Catamounts got two baskets to tie it. WCC went ahead quickly in overtime.

Leading WCC scorers were Mel Gibson with 28 points, Darrell Murray with 17, Danny Tharpe 16 and Tommy Lavelle 11. For Lenoir Rhyne, Jim Wiles had 20, Jerry Wells 18, Tommy Burton 13 and George Deehan 10.

Catawba took its third straight in the conference, 79-65 over Guilford, and strengthened its hold on fifth place. Al Johnson had 24 points and Jimmy Dew 17 for Catawba. Wayne Wyckoff scored 16 to top Guilford, which had four players in double figures.

In non-conference games, Atlantic Christian defeated Pembroke 73-68 in overtime and Newberry chopped down Georgia State 100-79.

ACC's top scorers were Jerry Ashworth, 18, and Garry Johnson, 16. George Acipelli and W. K. Morgan had the same number, respectively, for Pembroke.

Conservation Notes

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION of Soil Conservation Districts will award seven Philmont Training Scholarships to seven deserving Scoutmasters in 1962. This is a result of the cooperative effort of the Boy Scouts of America Rural Service Committee and Cashar Evans, Director of NASCD. These Scholarships will be awarded to the Scoutmasters of Boy Scout Troops which have carried on outstanding projects in Conservation—particularly in the field of soil and water conservation.

PURPOSE: The purpose of the NASCD Scholarships is to show what scout units can do in the field of constructive conservation activities and to highlight the role of the scoutmaster in this field of community service.

SCHOLARSHIPS: The scholarship covers the board, housing and participation costs of the designated Training Conference at Philmont (value about $75.00). Tentative training dates for NASCD Scholarships are Aug. 8-14, 1962.

CANDIDATES: Nominees for these scholarships must be scoutmasters of boy scout troops which have carried on noteworthy projects in conservation, especially in the field of soil and water. Additional information can be obtained at the Coastal Plain Soil and Water Conservation District office in the County Office Building in Greenville.

WILLARD T. WHITEHURST,

a conservation farmer of Bethel is planning to establish about four acres of idle land to wildlife for food and cover. This area is a long wide strip of land under a high voltage power line. The power company keeps the land shrubbed and cut down, and it has no productive value. Willard plans to plant a strip of bicolor lespedeza as food for wildlife under the lines.

On one side between the bicolor and woods he will plant Sericea lespedeza as cover for wildlife. The other side will be planted to fescue grass to serve as a firebreak to protect a stand of young pines.

In addition to wildlife value, Willard says: "If it would help in controlling one forest fire it would be worth several hundred dollars."

He is a District Cooperator with the Coastal Plain Soil and Water Conservation District.

ARCH J. FLANAGAN chairman of the Coastal Plain Soil and Water Conservation District, has announced the approval of the Mizell Canal Petition. The property owners involved in this canal are:

B. T. Eastwood Jr., Luther S. Tyson, Mrs. Jessie B. Little, F. M. Satterthwaite, Marvin R. Beacham, Claude Crandall, C. R. Arnold, J. A. Crisp, Mrs. Fred Mizell and H. C. Toler.

This petition is asking the District for assistance in helping them solve and overcome a severe drainage problem which prevails in their community.

TV Classics Take A Profitable Turn

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Television has produced some minor classics which, unlike most of the nightly shadow parade, have lingered in the minds of beholders. Among them were "Marty," "Patterns," and "Judgment at Nuremberg."

But one of the most profitable and creative efforts in TV history is an out-and-out suspense story. It is a script called "Flight Into Danger," written by an ex-World War II pilot, Arthur Hailey, who wanted to get out of advertising and into writing. He knocked out the script almost 10 years ago and, not knowing what else to do with it, mailed it to the Canadian Broadcasting Co. (He was and is a Toronto resident.)

Some time later, he received a check for $500—and one night turned on his living room set and saw the show. He was, he noted, pleased with what he saw. Hailey got the idea for the plot one day while flying in a commercial airliner. He started wondering what would happen if all the crewmen were suddenly taken ill and the only chance for survival was a passenger who had not flown a plane since war days. It launched a highly successful career.

Shortly thereafter, "Flight Into Danger" was turned into an NBC show. Then BBC produced it in London. Paramount bought it for a movie. It was turned into a book—and one of the big women's magazines printed it as a serial. Recently BBC did the show again—and Hailey received a check for the performance six times the size of the original payment, and other royalties keep rolling in.

Another Hailey show seems destined for similar success. It was a 1959 Playhouse 90 show "Diary of a Nurse" which has already been turned into a motion picture—"The Young Doctors"—and now CBS is planning to convert it into a dramatic series next season under the title, "The Nurses."

Although Jack Paar expects Johnny Carson will be his replacement when October rolls around, NBC is answering all queries about Jack's TV report with "no comment"—apparently because no contract has yet been signed.

Rumors are around, however, that the network is thinking of using Merv Griffin, host on its daytime "Play Your Hunch" as a spring and summer replacement for Paar until Carson winds up his ABC contract. Griffin acquiesced himself well subbing for Paar on a night off recently—even Jack thought so, and he's probably the severest critic his own show has.

One of the high moments—literally and figuratively—of NBC's "Circus" documentary on Jan. 21 was film footage showing the Flying Wallendas at outdoor practice, doing the very portion of their high-wire act that brought death to two members of the troupe and injuries to two others during a Detroit circus performance Tuesday. There were even closeups of the feet of the wire-walkers on the bottom of the human pyramid of seven performers. According to witnesses of the accident, one of those feet slipped.

Recommended tonight: "Dr. Kildare," NBC, 8:30-9:30 (Eastern Standard Time) — The series treats, as apparently all series must at some time, an outbreak of food poisoning: "The Gertrude Berg Show," CBS, 9:30-10—Ariane Francis is guest star.

Tito And Wife To Visit Egypt

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—President Tito and his wife sailed Wednesday night on the presidential yacht Galeb (Seagull) for the United Arab Republic.

The visit was announced as a vacation but it was taken for granted that Tito and U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser would hold extensive talks, particularly about steps to offset the effect on their economies of the European Economic Community.

RED MAYOR QUILTS

SESTRI LEVANTE, Italy (AP)—Oreste Ocule, 81, the oldest mayor in Italy, has resigned. The Communist mayor had headed the municipal administration in this suburb of Genoa since the end of World War II. He announced Wednesday he was quitting because of ill health.

Door Still Open For Kennedy Trip To Russia

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today held open the possibility of a visit to the Soviet Union if he can make "significant breakthroughs" in his developing drive to improve U.S.-Soviet relations.

A visit under present conditions of cold war tension probably would not be considered useful by either Washington or Moscow, he believes, but "we are making every effort we can to bring an easing of tensions."

The President discussed U.S.-Soviet relations with newsmen Wednesday at a conference attended by Alexei Adzhubel, editor of the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia and son-in-law of Premier Khrushchev.

Kennedy warmly welcomed Adzhubel to the meeting but pulled no punches in denouncing Communist international activities, particularly in Cuba and Southeast Asia.

Kennedy expressed "satisfaction" at the action taken by the Inter-American foreign ministers conference at Punta del Este, Uruguay, in denouncing Cuban communism.

In talking about Southeast Asia, he said the United States has increased its help to the government of South Viet Nam to help it maintain its position against the "subterranean war" which is supported and directed by Soviet-backed Communist North Viet Nam.

The President also expressed hope that Communist and pro-U.S. forces in neighboring Laos will refrain from renewing hostilities lest hopes for a peaceful settlement "go up in smoke and fire."

Adzhubel lunched at the White House and spent several hours with Kennedy and Pierre Salinger, press secretary, on Tuesday. Afterward Salinger announced he would visit Moscow in the spring to talk about improving communications.

"We hope that as communications improve, that problems which cause tension and danger to the world will lessen," Kennedy told the news conference.

He said that actual negotiations on big East-West disputes such as Berlin "are being conducted by Ambassador (Llewellyn) Thompson" and that Thompson would have another in his current series of meetings with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko today. This will be the third meeting in a series described by Kennedy as "so-called probes with regard to the matter of Berlin."

Asked under what conditions he would accept an invitation to visit the Soviet Union, Kennedy replied: "I would think that an invitation and acceptance of an invitation would probably wait on an easing of the tensions which unfortunately surround our relationships. So at present, of course, until we have significant breakthroughs, that sort of journey would probably not be considered useful by either country."

"But we, of course, are always hopeful and we are making every effort that we can to bring an easing of tensions, and that is why Mr. Thompson is pursuing his course, and that is why we are making other efforts that we make."

City Is Assessed At $27 Billion

NEW YORK (AP)—The tentative assessed valuation of real estate in New York City has reached a record $27,678,596,166. The figure, disclosed Wednesday by the City Tax Commission, represents a 6.1 per cent increase over last year.

The highest assessed single piece of real estate in the city remains the Chase Manhattan Bank at 1 Chase Plaza. It was tentatively valued at $86 million, up $9 million over last year.

Valuation of the Empire State Building was fixed at $55 million, also up $9 million. The Rockefeller Center buildings went up a million, to $123,200,000.

High Rate Of Heart Trouble

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Dr. James V. Warren, president-elect of the American Heart Association, estimates that half of all American males have some sort of heart trouble.

"In the Korean War," he said in an interview, "it was found that three-fourths of the young men killed in battle had the beginnings of heart trouble."

Warren, chairman of medicine at Ohio State University, was in New Orleans to address the Louisiana Heart Association.

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Surprise findings that conflict with popular conceptions about aging and religion, adoption and motherhood and complications of childbirth figure in the medical news.

AGING AND RELIGION
There is a popular impression that the older persons grow the more religious they become.

To test the validity of this belief, Dr. H. L. Orbach studied the relationship between age, religion and church activity in a cross section of 6,911 adults in the Detroit metropolitan area between the ages of 21 and 84.

His conclusions as reported in the publication Geriatrics:

"But results have shown that there is no adequate proof to substantiate the view that people become more religious as they age. Studies of the relationship between age and religion do not support this common view and suggest that older people's religious behavior is determined by more direct social and cultural factors."

FERTILITY AND STERILITY
Another popular assumption is that if a childless woman adopts a baby, she vastly improves her chances of giving birth later.

To test this possibility, Drs. A. I. Banks, R. N. Rutherford and

W. A. Coburn of Seattle, Wash., made follow-up studies of 31 infertile couples who were treated at a clinic and later adopted one or more babies.

They reported in the publication Fertility and Sterility that only one woman in the group subsequently gave birth to a child.

They concluded: "The fact that only one pregnancy occurred in this study agrees with the results of other investigations which indicate that the belief that normal pregnancy frequently follows adoption is false."

BIRTH COMPLICATIONS

Another general medical belief has been that a mother who has had many babies must expect complications in the birth of another child.

Two obstetricians from Israel, Drs. K. Fuchs and A. Peretz, poured over the records of 23,528 deliveries between 1949 and 1958 at the Rambam Government Hospital, Haifa. Of this total, 1,677 deliveries were to mothers known medically as grand multiparas—those who had babies seven or more times in the past.

Their report, published in Obstetrics and Gynecology, showed: There was no greater incidence of complications in the multiparas group. There was not one

Fourteen Rose High School Band members will participate in the Eastern division of the All-State Band Clinic to be held on the East Carolina College campus Friday and Saturday.

Nine of the students were selected for seats in the symphonic band which will be under the direction of ECC band director Herbert Carter.

Students who participate in the symphonic group are selected on the basis of auditions, according to Rose High Director James E. Rogers. Included in the group from the local school chosen for the symphonic band are: Jimmy Buck, Judy Batchelor, Ruby Earl Brown, Pat Carter, Joe Bryan, J. G. Proctor, Lane Ferris, Tommy Brown and Marvin Buck.

Pagoda-Style Phone Booth

NEW YORK (AP)—A pagoda-style telephone booth is the latest addition to the sights in Manhattan's Chinatown.

The "Gung Yung Deen Way" (Chinese for "electric talker for public use") went into operation Wednesday at Pell and Mott streets.

A young Chinese dancer burned incense in the booth and made the first call. She dialed City Hall, invited the mayor to attend a celebration next Monday of the Chinese New Year 4660—Year of the Tiger.

Muscles Needed To Carry Loot

NEW YORK (AP)—The pair who held up a vending machine firm Wednesday and escaped with $4,500, had to be well-muscled. The robbers lined up the manager and employees of the Colemat Vending Machine Co., and then struggled off with the loot—all in nickels, dimes and quarters.

Patrick Leonard, director of the Charleston County, S. C. Youth Band, will conduct a Concert Band during the two-day program.

Greenville students taking part in the concert group include: Robert VanVeld, Rebecca Parks, Bobby Edwards, Marcia Beach and Johnny Carter.

According to Rogers, Rose High has the second highest number of students participating in the symphonic band. Only Wilmington, which has three separate bands, holds more places in the group, with 20 members, Rogers explained.

The Rose High students taking part in the symphonic band were selected from a group of over 200 students from 30 bands who auditioned for the band.

Educator-Turned-Politician Finds It 'Intersting'

DR. RALPH BRIMLEY . . . City Councilman and ECC official.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Dr. Ralph Brimley, Director of Extensions at East Carolina College—an educator—turned politician last year when he ran for a seat on the Greenville City Council, and won.

A Raleigh native, Brimley entered the political field because he "didn't want the issues to go down the drain." And, it's been an interesting experience", he says.

After becoming the Capitol City's first Eagle Scout in 1923, Brimley graduated from "the old Raleigh High School", then attended N. C. State College where he majored in Science.

While at State, the educator participated in all sports and coached the freshman track team as well as both the freshman and varsity indoor track squads. "Athletics and Scouting" are two of the things most responsible for "keeping me out of trouble", he noted.

Following his graduation in 1928, he accepted a position as coach at Winston-Salem's R. J. Reynolds High School where he remained as a coach and teacher for eight years. He then was made principal of Central School in Winston-Salem and later placed in charge of Gray High School.

Brimley gave up the principalship of that school in 1940 and moved to Greensboro and Woman's College of the University of North Carolina where he became Assistant Professor of Education.

Drafted in 1943, he entered the Army and served the major portion of his service career stationed in Washington D. C., first in Ordnance Operations in the Pentagon and later as Chief of Reconditioning at Walter Reade Army Medical Center.

In Reserves—Brimley discharged in 1946 as a first lieutenant has maintained his ties with the military by serving in the reserves and now holds the rank of Major.

While serving in the Washington, D. C. area, Brimley taught school finance and administration courses at George Washington University. After his return to civilian life he then entered the University as a student and received his doctor's degree.

In 1947, now Dr. Brimley, he returned to Forsyth County as Superintendent of Schools. He remained there as head of the school unit until 1956 when he moved to Montreat to become head of the Department of Education and Psychology.

In 1957, Brimley came to East Carolina College where he served as Director of Public Relations and Extension until a year and a half ago when made Director of Extensions for the school.

As head of the College's off-campus programs Brimley directs a department which last year totaled some $200,000. . . and at no cost to the tax payers. The Extensions director noted that the programs are run on a self-supporting basis, with the students bearing the full cost of the program.

In all, East Carolina College operates off-campus program in 36 different locations throughout Eastern N. C. Included on the list are Manteo, Raleigh, Fayetteville, Henderson, Brunswick County and its two-year resident program at Camp Lejeune.

—2,300 Enrolled—
Enrollment for the 122 classes being conducted under the Extension program now is about 2,300 with from 800 to 1,000 of them being at the Jacksonville Marine base, Goldsboro and Seymour-Johnson Air

Spending Never Matches Revenue

CATSKILL, N.Y. (AP) — This Hudson Valley village has a problem many larger communities wish they had: A perennial surplus in the treasury.

A state audit for the years 1958-61 noted: "In each year, general-fund revenues were in excess of expenditures, resulting in operating surpluses."

The cause, the audit report continued, was "underestimating revenues and overestimating appropriations."

New Divisions Forming Early

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two new regular Army divisions will be formed sooner than expected. But Army officials say this doesn't necessarily mean quicker release for Reservists called to active duty last year.

The Army announced Tuesday the 1st Armored Division will be activated at Ft. Hood, Tex., Feb. 3; and the 5th Mechanized Infantry Division, originally scheduled for March, will be formed Feb. 19 at Ft. Carson, Colo.

MUCH TRAVEL . . . is required as Director of Extensions

Force Base with 16 classes and Cherry Point Marine Air Station which has 10-12 classes are also among the places served by ECC, according to Dr. Brimley.

In addition to the resident program at Lejeune, extension courses for college credit and adult education courses giving no college credit, summer tours, television courses and a speakers bureau service are also under the Extension program.

What does Dr. Brimley like best about his profession? . . . "meeting people all over Eastern North Carolina. There are a lot of wonderful people here."

The prime purpose and duty of the extension division. . . just as that of the College as a whole. . . Brimley emphasized is "to serve". "We find the needs of the people and try to meet those needs."

Dr. Brimley, who in the past was only "semi-active" in politics ventured "for the first time from an elected basis" into an election as a candidate. The reason. . . because he "thought the people of Greenville should have a chance to vote for a person inclined toward public housing and urban renewal. I didn't want the issues to go down the drain," he explained. "It's been an interesting experience."

For City Manager Government

A believer in the city manager form of government, the councilman explained that as a member of the council he is one of five members of a "policy making board". . . one that should "not try to run the business," only make the policy.

Noting that "We have real financial problems ahead of us in next year's budget," the lawmaker emphasized that "Greenville is a wonderful place. We like it here and hope to stay."

Brimley married the former Louise Wood of Johnson County and they have two daughters and six grandchildren.

A member of the First Presbyterian Church, he fills pulpits in the area, answering 20 to 30 such calls each year.

Brimley, whose main hobby is gardening (when he has time) has a long list of "memberships". Included are memberships in Alpha Gamma Bow, Alpha Zeta and Phi Delta Kappa fraternities; and is a life member in National and North Carolina Education Associations, the National Asso-

Utility Poles Being Moved

AYDEN — Moving of utility poles on the road leading to the Ayden Country Club may be completed this week by town workmen, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said this week.

The project is being carried out due to a widening and paving program for the road, conducted by the state.

Though the town's part in the project has been scheduled for some time, work began just this week.

THE EAST CAROLINA SYMPHONIC BAND of 68 members directed by Herbert L. Carter (pictured above) will present a concert Friday night, February 2, at 8 p.m. in the Wright Auditorium as a featured event of the Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic, in session on the campus this weekend. Saturday two bands composed of talented high school musicians attending the clinic will appear in a program at 7:30 p.m., also in the Wright auditorium. At this program Patrick Leonard, director of the Charleston, S. C., Youth Band, and Mr. Carter will conduct, respectively, the Clinic Concert Band and the Clinic Symphonic Band. Programs will range from Bach to the musical "Camelot," and from the classic to popular contemporary selections. The East Carolina Symphonic Band will feature as soloist Harold Jones of Pontiac, Michigan, graduate assistant in music, and compositions by Dr. Martin Malman and James H. Parnell of the faculty. The public is invited to attend the concerts.

Little Or No Discomfort In Their Fallout-proof Home

By RUSH H. COLE
Lenoir News-Topic Staff Writer
LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — After two months of living in a fallout shelter, the six members of the Charlie W. (Bob) McDade family find a little or no discomfort in their new home.

The McDades last November moved from their modern home and made a fallout shelter nearby their permanent residence. McDade, a carpenter and mechanic and the father of four children, ages 13 to 20, said he has been concerned for several years about the world situation. Last Aug. 1 he began the construction of a fallout shelter, some suitable for adequate protection and comfortable enough for a permanent residence.

The shelter in the Joyceton community near Lenoir was built for about $7,000.

"From the inside out, the walls of the shelter consist of a 4-inch brick wall, a 1 1/2-inch air space, an 8-inch solid concrete block wall, 2 feet of dirt, and another 8-inch wall of concrete blocks with the cores filled with dirt. The exterior of the walls is stuccoed. The roof is 12 inches of heavily reinforced concrete topped with two feet of dirt. After this dirt has packed sufficiently, it will be topped with asphalt of some other water-repellent material.

McDade supervised the construction of the windowless home and did much of the work himself. He read all available material on fallout shelters and also consulted Civil Defense officials and heating experts. From this study and planning, he finished the building of what to him would be an ideal permanent fallout shelter home.

Although the building is all above ground, questions on such matters as ventilation, moisture and efficiency of electric heat could not be answered until the shelter was actually lived in. There was also the comfort and satisfaction of the McDade family to be proved.

"Two months have past now, and most everything has worked out nicely," says McDade. "We don't have the living space that we had before but it just means that much less to keep clean. I have had no complaints at all from the family, and as for windows, most people cover them with blinds or drapes anyway."

"My main worry, I thought, would be the control of moisture and ventilation, but after these two months I am more than satisfied. If I had known though, I would have carried the moisture out by gravity rather than heat waves. It might save just a little heat to drain the moisture, which accumulates in the air space between the inner and outer walls, through lower wall drains located at each corner of the building. This, too, would prevent any water seepage through the lower part of the inner wall. However, I've had no seepage as yet, even with a pretty good snow," McDade said.

He continued, "Another thing I should have done differently is the means of attaching the ceiling tile to the concrete overhead inside. I glued the tile directly to the concrete, and after we moved in and the heat was turned on, the glue would not hold, especially directly over the heating elements."

"I have just finished a new re-ceiling job and I had to shoot the nails into the concrete to hold the wooden strips for the tile. This turned out to be a rather hard and expensive job. I believe this was my only major mistake, though," said McDade.

"What I should have done was to inner-lay beveled strips of wood about two feet apart in the form before pouring the concrete roof. The beveled edges would have held the strips sufficiently and I could have nailed the ceiling tile in the normal way," he said.

The home is very attractively finished inside. It has three bedrooms, two 7 by 8 feet and another 6 by 8 feet. Each has a small closet, and sliding doors are used throughout. Bunk beds are in partial use.

The living space is about 14 by 22 feet. Overhead cabinets and book shelves align this area from one end to the other on two sides. The absence of windows adds greatly to the useable space. The bathroom is shower equipped. The kitchen area is very compact in one corner of the shelter. The entrance serves as a storage area. Shelves are packed with canned goods. Most are home-canned goods. When asked how long he and his family could survive with the food on hand, McDade said:

"We could make out for two or three weeks, but I've been wondering just how long a fellow could do with only canned food. There are a lot of things a man needs that don't come in cans."

During the construction of the fallout shelter home, people came from different areas to look at the shelter and talk to McDade. He gave out information freely, and many who were planning to build fallout shelters profited from his mistakes.

McDade's shelter has not yet been tested by nuclear blast fallout—and he hopes it won't—but its construction, livability and the attitude of his occupants has been successfully tested in his opinion.

Home Port Cold As Antarctic

BOSTON (AP)—USS Atka, a Navy icebreaker, found herself out of one deep freeze into another Wednesday.

Atka returned to her Boston home port far more heavily iced than a wedding cake.

Members of her crew said Boston's near zero temperature was worse than anything they experienced during a 24,000-mile cruise to the Antarctic on her fifth participation in Operation Deep Freeze. They said Antarctic temperatures usually were about 22 degrees.

W. Rivers, C. E. recorded in Map Book 6 at page 79 in the Office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, to which map reference is hereby made for an accurate and complete description, and being the identical property described in a deed from Andrew Coghill and wife to Johnnie F. Edwards and wife, dated November 2, 1955, and recorded in Book T-28 at page 237 in the Office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County.

2nd Parcel. An that certain tract or parcel of land situated, lying and being in Greenville Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, containing 62 1/2 acres more or less, adjoining the lands of Emma Jane Hardee, Henry Edwards and others and being the same tract of land devised by Henry Hardee to J. H. Hardee for his lifetime and then to his six children named in said will, said will being recorded in Will Book No. 5 at page 448 in the Office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt County, and being known as the Jim Hardee lands.

Crop allotments for 1961 on this tract are as follows: 4.80 acres tobacco; 1 acre cotton; 1.7 acres peanuts; 2 acres wheat allotment; 3 acres wheat exemption; 15 acres corn base.

3rd Parcel. That certain tract or parcel of land lying and being in Greenville Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, about 6 miles southeast from Greenville, N. C., adjoining the lands of Tobe Hardee, Maggie Cox, the Porter lands and others, and beginning in the Maggie Cox line at ditch, the northeast corner of the Grace R. Sutton 16-acre tract of land, and running thence North 22 deg. 41 min. East, 752 feet to a corner; thence North 64 deg. 04 min. West, 1830 feet to a stake, another corner; thence South 22 deg. 23 min. East, 461 feet to an iron stake; thence South 22 deg. 27 min. East, 994 feet to an iron stake; a corner; thence South 62 deg. 30 min. West, 523 feet to an iron stake, corner of the Grace R. Sutton 16-acre parcel of land; thence with her line, North 71 deg. 30 min. East, 1009 feet; South 65 deg. 00 min. East, 550 feet to the beginning and containing 46.5 acres, more or less, and being all of what is known as the Hardee tract of land, except the 16-acre parcel thereof this day conveyed by Henry Edwards and others to Grace R. Sutton.

Crop allotments for 1961 on this tract are as follows: 4.11 acres tobacco; 2 acre wheat allotment; 25 acres corn exemption; 13 acres corn base.

The successful bidder or bidders at this sale will be required to deposit with the Commissioner 10% of the bid or bids as a good faith deposit pending confirmation of sale by the Court. This the 15th day of January, 1962.

New-Type Citation Is Adopted By City Police

Law violators arrested by Greenville Traffic officers will be faced with a new type citation designed to serve as a warrant and affidavit, and court record.

The new style "ticket" has been in use by the North Carolina Highway Patrol since July, 1961.

Police Chief Guy C. Langston, who announced the change, effective today, said the "Uniform Traffic Violation Record," as the slips are known, will reduce work loads on officials handling the cases and provide more information and an improved reporting system.

Five copies are made, one of which is given to the violator. Another copy when properly completed by court officials serves as the warrant, and on the reverse side of the slip is space for recording the court's action on the case, its judgments and witnesses.

A third sheet goes to the Driver License Division with the "flip" side containing the judgment handed down by the court, while copies numbers four and five go one to the department and one to the enforcement division. The copy for the enforcement division has on its back side space for recording "officers noted for testifying in court," the case record and judgment of the court.

In all fairness to the defendant in the action, the reverse side of the "Citation" given to the violator emphasizes in red type "each defendant is entitled to a fair and impartial trial."

Emphasis is given to the fact that "it is the responsibility of the State to prove your guilt beyond a reasonable doubt . . . and suggests if the violator wishes persons to testify in his behalf he have them subpoenaed. It also advises that "you may desire to employ an attorney" or contact the Court for additional information.

Ten Reported For Induction

Ten Pitt County men reported for induction into the armed forces yesterday, the local Selective Service board said.

The board has declared one man delinquent who failed to report for induction yesterday. Also, eight men have failed to report as requested for armed forces physicals. Three more who failed to report for pre-induction have been declared delinquent and will be ordered for immediate induction.

Those who reported for induction yesterday included Lester E. Smith, Bennie F. Smith, Eric L. Harris, David L. Daniels, Freddie L. Williams, Wesley S. Stocks, William Wooten, Coy Lee Hardy, Nathan Barnhill and Bennie Gray Wilson.

William W. Faison Jr. failed to report for induction and is considered delinquent. Anyone knowing his whereabouts is asked to notify the local board immediately.

The following failed to report for armed forces physicals: Roy Gray Briley, John Robert Lovitt, John Daniel Dixon Jr., Charlie Jenkins, Leonard Clay Taft, James Washington Smith, Tommie Lee Dunn and James Earl Crandell. Anyone knowing their whereabouts is asked to contact the local Selective Service Board.

Ecclesiastes Barnes, Clifton Ray Hardy and Johnny Moore Jr. failed to report for pre-induction and have been declared delinquents, and will be ordered for immediate induction.

No calls have been received for February for physical examinations or induction.

Mrs. Selma Rogers is clerk of the local Selective Service board.

Merchants Ass'n Of Winterville Elects Officers

WINTERVILLE—The Winterville Merchants Association Tuesday elected E. C. Hines president of the organization for 1962.

At the annual officers' election session, the association also elected W. A. Weathering vice president, E. O. Forlines secretary and Ronald Carroll directors. Hines, as president, succeeds R. E. Boyd, the association's 1961 chief officer.

At Tuesday's meeting, O. W. Dail, owner of Dail's Superette here, announced his retirement from merchandising and the sale of his establishment. The store will be opened in the near future under new management.

A tribute of respect was paid to the late A. W. Ange, longtime Winterville merchant.

Two Charged On Liquor Counts

Two Greenville Negroes were charged with possessing and transporting non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale last night by Pitt ABC officers who stopped a car occupied by the two on the Belvoir Road near the Pitt County Prison Camp.

Officers identified the two as William McCoy Clemons, 27 of 1302 Battle St., and Jessie Frank Atkinson, 20 of 117 Ford St.

Officers said 19 gallons of illegal spirits were found in the vehicle when it was stopped. The car, a 1956 model is being held pending action by Pitt County Recorders Court February 6.

Both Clemons and Atkinson were released under a $200 bond each.

Making the arrest were officers J. M. Ward, H. B. Lilley, Walter Taylor and J. R. Felton.

Funeral Friday For Mrs. H. A. Brannon

Mrs. Bertie Bullard Brannon, 82, died Wednesday night at 11:45 at the home of her son, Bill Brannon on Hooker Road. Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Friday afternoon at 2:30 by the Rev. Milton Worthington, pastor of the Parker's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Brannon, a native of Alabama, had lived in Pitt County since 1923. She was a member of the Baptist Church in Ashland, Alabama.

Surviving are her husband, Hardy A. Brannon; four sons, Bill Brannon of Greenville, Jake Brannon of Plymouth, Frank Brannon of the home; and J. W. Brannon of Winterville, Fla.; three daughters, Mrs. W. S. Mills of Oriental, Mrs. Harry Baker of Newport News, Va., and Mrs. John Casey of Greenville; 23 grandchildren; 43 great grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. W. L. Dean of Anniston, Ala., and Mrs. Rosa Bradshaw of Texas.

EXPOSITION MEETING—Greenville Kiwanians and Pitt District adult scouts gathered Wednesday for a management meeting to hear committee reports and solidify plans for the Feb. 10 Pitt District Scout Exposition. With more than 14,000 tickets for the elaborate event on sale, General Chairman Ed Rawl heard a report that ticket sales are progressing well and the chairman predicted the Exposition would be a success. Pictured above are the Kiwanians and scouts who are managing the plans for the Exposition. First row (left to right) are Charles Gaskins, Bob Wolff, Frank Hill, Rudolph Alexander, Ed Rawl, J. B. Smith, Harry Billica and Elbert Bennett. Second row (from left): Russell Rogerson, Frank Steinbeck, J. T. Snowden Jr., Dr. Herbert Hadley, Bob VanVeld and Van Fleming.

Netted $31,497 In Telethon Campaign

The Sixth Annual Telarama, conducted by Television Station WITN of Washington Saturday night and Sunday netted $31,497.07 for the March of Dimes campaign, a record breaking total.

The March of Dimes is concerned chiefly with the fight against crippling birth defects, arthritis and polio. Some 24 counties participated in the telarama.

N. C. March of Dimes Chairman Rex Best of Stantonsburg announced that Halifax County led the participating communities with contributions of $7,249.82 as the show went off the air. Onslow County, with $2,822.19, was second and Carteret was third with $2,563.71.

Best expressed the gratitude of the N. C. March of Dimes organization to WITN's Director of Operations, Hal Wilson, and his 43-man staff of announcers, directors, cameramen and other station personnel throughout the night-long Telarama. More than 100 March of Dimes volunteers assisted as telephone operators, tabulators, waitresses and errand-runners. Three hundred Citizen Band Radio Operators throughout eastern North Carolina handled the vital task of relaying pledges.

Church . . .

A distinct and independent organization with full authority to manage its own affairs, elect its officers, receive, dismiss, discipline and exclude members," according to minutes of the General Conference's November meeting.

The principle, dated by the General Conference back to 1812, also recognizes the mission of an organization of independent churches—called Councils—through which churches may "associate and cooperate in all things which tend to advance the common cause." However, the General Conference-adopted principle asserts: "But to these Conferences are granted no judicial or appellate powers conflicting with the independence of the local churches."

The General Conference, in the minutes of its meeting last November, asserted its compliance with a request of the National Association to repudiate connectional government. It said that, "the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists, during its 1961 session at Mt. Olive, N. C., refused to comply with the . . . request of the national Association."

Members of the General Conference have withdrawn from the State Convention, which maintains Mt. Olive Junior College, The Free Will Baptist children's home at Middlesex and the Free Will Baptist Printing Press in Ayden.

The connectional principle, according to the General Conference, contains a departure from the original Free Will Baptist Church's principle of local church government.

In its minutes of last November's meeting, the General Conference, in a resolution, stated that the 1955 printing of the Statement of Faith and Discipline for Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina asserted:

"The Annual Conference of Association being the highest tribunal, shall have final disciplinary authority over the local churches." At the Harnett County meeting, the General Conference repudiated the statement.

Another resolution in November traced the connectional principle to an 1899 revision that gave the association of churches final jurisdiction over the local churches.

At Tuesday's meeting, the General Conference established a schedule of quarterly meetings to supplement annual sessions. It named committees on membership, organization of a woman's auxiliary and quarterly and annual meeting programming.

The resolution reaffirming the General Conference's adherence to the congregational government principle was presented to the conference by Rev. Ronald Creech of Durham.

Speakers appearing on Tuesday's program were Rev. Wadell, Rev. Gordon Sebastian of Stacy and Rev. Raymond Gaslines of Ayden.
