

Paris Security Tightened As Rightists Are Warned

PARIS (AP) — Armed police patrols tightened security in Paris today. The government warned French rightists that any attempt to block President Charles de Gaulle's plans for peace in Algeria would be beaten down by force.

Cruising slowly through Paris streets, the patrols checked suspicious vehicles and pedestrians. Tensions mounted amid reports France and the Algerian rebels were near accord on Algerian independence.

During the night, a bomb explosion, apparently the work of the right-wing Secret Army Organization pledged to keep Algeria French, damaged the home of socialist Sen. Gaston Defferre, who is also mayor of Marseille, was not at his Paris home.

Attacks in Algiers killed three Algerians today.

The French capital was quiet as dawn broke. There were no signs in downtown areas of the 32 tanks and 100 other military vehicles ordered to reinforce Paris security units before De Gaulle speaks to the nation Monday night.

Interior Minister Roger Frey said he could not "exclude a very limited attempt at disorder." But he told the newspaper Paris Presse l'Intransigent that "with the mechanism I have on hand, any attempt of this nature will be crushed."

De Gaulle kept to himself what he will say in his radio TV-address, which will be beamed throughout France and Algeria. But it appeared doubtful he could disclose any final solution to the North African rebellion, now in its eighth year.

In recent days, highly placed French sources have reported that the French government and the rebels in secret talks have reached agreement in principle on the major points in issue and the next move to bring about a cease-fire awaits approval by the rebel hierarchy.

The rebel cabinet plans to meet Sunday in Tunis, but any peace accord must be submitted to the National Council of the Algerian revolution, a kind of provisional parliament, which is not expected to convene before the middle of February.

Terrorist attacks by the rightist secret army and Moslems killed fifteen Algerians and three Europeans and wounded 15 other persons Friday in Algeria. French authorities also said they were "constrained" to open fire on a Moslem demonstration in the western Algerian town of Mercier-Lacombe, killing three Algerians and wounding three others.

French military headquarters said more than 1,000 rebels have been killed or captured since Jan. 1.

Embezzling And Forgery Charged

A Greenville insurance salesman found Jan. 4 with wrist, neck and leg slashes, has been charged with embezzlement and forgery after admitting his story of being attacked was a hoax.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said Claude C. Joyner, 1311 Chestnut St., Greenville, has told officers the knife wounds were self-inflicted.

The 57-year-old man is charged with embezzlement of approximately $1,327.51 from the Home Security Life Insurance Co. A second warrant charges him with forgery involving $92.15.

Sheriff Tyson said further investigation of the case is underway. The Sheriff's Department is being assisted in the case by L. B. Williamson, a representative of the North Carolina Commissioner of Insurance's office.

Joyner waived preliminary hearing before Magistrate Luther Moore and posted a $2,500 bond pending trial in Superior Court. The case has been set for the March 19 term.

Joyner was admitted to Pitt

Memorial Hospital with cuts on both wrists, the neck and behind his left knee on the night of Jan. 4.

At the time, he told officers he was attacked by two hitchhiking Negroes whom he said he had picked up earlier. He told officers then that he was forced to drive his car to Barber's Landing off the Fictitious Highway and was attacked. He claimed that he was robbed of $400.

Sheriff Tyson said Joyner, a Farnville native, has since confessed to officers that the story was false. He has admitted that the wounds were self-inflicted but said he did not know why he did it.

The money allegedly was obtained from collected premiums in a number of ways including forgery, the sheriff reported investigation has shown. On the night of Jan. 4, Joyner drove his car to a spot near the home of David Garfield Crandall, Negro, Rt. 5, Greenville, where he summoned help. He was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville rescue unit. Bloodhounds were called in from the Pitt Prison Camp but were unable to pick up a trail.

Soviet Trawler Sinks In Gale

WICK, Scotland (AP)—A Soviet trawler sank today in a fierce gale off the remote Shetland island of Fetlar. The crew of 20 abandoned the trawler after it crashed on rocks Friday night.

The Russians, after some hours ashore, returned to the sea in a launch which took them to other vessels of the Soviet fishing fleet in the area.

Reports Broader Cultural Pact

CALCUTTA, India (AP)—A Soviet government minister disclosed today that Moscow has proposed to the United States a new cultural agreement wider in scope than ever before.

G. A. Zhukov, Soviet minister for cultural relations with foreign countries, told newsmen he was sending his deputy, S. H. Ramanovsky, to Washington ready to sign the pact.

Would Divorce 14-Year-Old

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Mrs. Donald Lee Crips, 15, who sued her 14-year-old husband for divorce, charges he has "refused to accept the responsibility of being a husband and a father."

Her petition, filed in Knox County Court Thursday, said they were married last March 17 at Marshall, N.C., with the consent of their fathers. The couple has a 4-week-old son, the petition said. Mrs. Crips said her husband has threatened her, "slapped her around physically," and failed to support her.

DOCK STRIKE ENDS

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—The 53-day old strike of Colombo's 17,000 dockers ended today. The men went back to work after getting a promise from Labor Minister Michael de Z. Siriwardene that he would consider their pay demands.

SWEDISH STEEPLES RISING

STOCKHOLM (AP)—The Association of Swedish Architects reports 300 church buildings now are under construction in the country—the biggest boom in church building in Sweden since the middle ages.

Total Embargo Is Ordered On U.S. Trade With Castro Cuba

Probably Heaviest Fine Here

A 45-year-old Pitt County man faces one of the heaviest fines on record in Pitt County Superior Court after pleading guilty Thursday to two charges of receiving stolen property.

Presiding Judge Joseph W. Parker of Windsor fined James Robert Stancill, Penny Hill section farmer, $8,000 plus $2,500 restitution and $482.40 in court costs as conditions for suspending consecutive prison terms totaling 10 to 16 years.

Stancill was being held in Pitt County Jail today pending payment of the total bill $10,982.40.

Judge Parker also ordered that Stancill be placed on probation for five years and "that during the said five-year period the defendant shall make no effort to hinder, delay or obstruct law officers in searching his premises or any premises in which he has an interest for stolen goods without a search warrant."

Five-to-eight-year sentences were given Stancill for each of the two charges of receiving stolen property. The two terms were ordered to run consecutively.

The $2,500 restitution was provided for Edward L. Owens of Plymouth for 4,000 pounds of ready-for-market tobacco stolen last August. Lawmen traced the tobacco to Stancill's farm near Penny Hill where he was arrested and charged with receiving stolen property. Three Negroes were arrested in Plymouth previously and charged with the theft of the tobacco.

Pitt and Washington County sheriff's deputies and SBI agents arrested Stancill Sept. 21 at his farm where they found 1,300 pounds of tobacco and equipment bearing the markings of the State Highway Department valued at $6,000. They also learned that 3,100 pounds of tobacco which came from Washington County had been sold on the market.

Court officials reported Friday that Stancill's fine had originally been set at $10,000 but was reduced by Judge Parker when it was learned that Stancill would consider paying a lower fine. Had the fine been placed at $10,000, Stancill's total bill to have the prison terms suspended would have been $12,982.40.

AEC Announces Russian Nuclear Blast Detected

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials speculated today that Russia might have turned to underground nuclear testing to try to set world opinion against any U.S. explosions in the atmosphere.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission announced the new Soviet burst Friday, saying it apparently had been set off underground. It was the first time the AEC had told of detecting a Russian underground test. All the previous ones announced by the AEC took place in the atmosphere except for one triggered underwater.

Why the switch from the atmosphere to underground testing? Some U.S. authorities guessed the Soviets were troubled by criticism of their string of fallout-spewing bursts last fall and figured that by going underground they would turn the world's attention to the U.S. testing program.

President Kennedy has said the United States might be forced to resume tests in the atmosphere to protect its nuclear weapons lead.

U.S. officials said, however, that one Soviet blast didn't make a case. Their speculation was based on the assumption the Russians would set off more underground explosions.

The Russians hinted at a resumption of tests Friday about the same time the AEC announcement was being read.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda, in an article carried by the Tass news agency, accused the United States and Britain of breaking up the 39-month-old nuclear test-ban talks in Geneva. "The United States timed its refusal to continue the talks to coincide with another (underground) nuclear explosion in Nevada," Pravda said. "The talks are frustrated, but the explosions continue." "It goes without saying," Pravda went on, "that the Soviet Union cannot remain inactive when faced with such a development. The Soviet Union will be forced to take reply measures and strengthen its defense potentialities."

The Geneva talks reached an impasse with U.S., British and Russian representatives unable to agree last Monday on how to end the conference.

The AEC's brief announcement of the new Russian blast said the detonation took place at the Soviet proving grounds in the Semipalatinsk area in Central Asia. Its yield, or explosive power, "was well above the threshold of underground detectability, even by a single national system, and the absence of acoustic signals indicates that it occurred underground," the AEC added.

U.S. sources said the underground explosion was estimated to be in the intermediate range—a force between one and 20 kilotons. A kiloton equals 1-million tons of TNT.

Falkland Jail Conditions Hit By Grand Jury

Pitt County's Grand Jury has recommended that Falkland's jail be either cleaned up or closed.

In its report to Judge Joseph W. Parker, presiding judge during this week's term of Pitt Superior Court, the Grand Jury said a committee "inspected the jail at Falkland and recommended it be closed or cleaned from top to bottom and made into a respectable place even for tax listing purposes."

In the same report, the Grand Jury also recommended improvements at the Fountain jail. It said a committee inspected the Fountain facility "and found that it needs new windows and better heating conditions to keep prisoners overnight."

Found in "good condition" by the committees of the jury were the Pitt County jail and jails in Bethel, Grimesland, Ayden, Farnville and Winterville.

In addition to its criticism of the two municipal jails, the jurors asked the Pitt County Commissioners' assistance in devising specific forms to be used by future Grand Juries during their inspection rounds.

The report recommended "that the County Commissioners meet with the Foreman of the Grand Jury (Charles L. McLawhorn of Winterville) and make up an inspection form to be used in the inspection of all county state property that it is the duty of the Grand Jury to report on."

Other sections of the report said the County Home and the County Board of Education building were "inspected and found in good condition."

The grand jurors quoted a State Highway Patrol report that Pitt County school buses were in good mechanical condition. Their report noted that the buses are examined by the patrol on a monthly basis during the school term.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today ordered a total embargo on U.S. trade with Cuba effective Feb. 7.

The White House said in a statement that the loss of income to the Castro regime will "reduce the capacity" of the Soviet-tied Havana government "to engage in acts of aggression, subversion or other activities" endangering western hemisphere security.

Although a total embargo was ordered the White House said that exports of certain foods and medicines are being excepted "on humanitarian grounds."

President Kennedy reportedly made the decision to crack down on imports following the return of Secretary of State Dean Rusk from the inter-American meeting at Punta del Este, Uruguay.

Rusk said Prime Minister Fidel Castro has been using the dollars to finance Communist activities in other Latin American countries.

U.S. imports from Cuba in the first 11 months of 1961 ran to about $32.4 million. About 90 per cent of this was tobacco for the cigar manufacturing industry in the Tampa, Fla., area. The remaining 10 per cent was fresh fruits and vegetables.

U.S. exports to Cuba in the same period totaled about $13.6 million in food and medical supplies. It was understood that under the new decision Cuba would still be able to buy U.S. food and medicine.

The Kennedy administration has been reluctant to halt these exports just such a move is expected as a blow at the Cuban people.

Trade with Cuba last year was but a trickle of the millions of dollars a year it once ran to.

In another action aimed at the Castro government, the United States will press its inter-American allies next week to agree on joint security measures to defeat a Cuban-based "Communist offensive" against this hemisphere.

What is needed, according to Rusk, is a plan for action "that can block Communist subversive activities before they reach the level of insurrection or guerrilla war."

Rusk told the nation in a television broadcast Friday night that there was a "mounting Communist offensive" in the hemisphere. He described it as a "systematic subversive attack spearheaded by the present regime in Cuba."

The OAS is due to meet here Wednesday to consider ways of carrying out the decisions of the Punta del Este conference.

The conference voted to exclude Cuba from the OAS, ordered an immediate halt in arms traffic with Cuba, provided for possible future economic sanctions and directed the OAS Council here to set up a five-man committee on measures to counter the Communist offensive.

Rusk said that the conference could not by itself "eliminate the problem of communism in this hemisphere. But the results of this conference were deeply reassuring. The hemisphere has taken a long stride forward."

The forthcoming OAS meeting and others to follow will constitute a further test of the ability of the 20 American governments—apart from Cuba—to come to terms on concrete measures to deal with communism in Cuba.

N.C. Artists To Exhibit In City

Greenville Art Center has been selected as the show place for the Third Exhibition of Associated Artists of North Carolina, which will also hold their quarterly meeting here on Feb. 25.

The exhibition will begin Sunday, Feb. 25, with the quarterly meeting which features William G. Mangum, assistant professor of art at Salem College in Winston-Salem, as principal speaker at a 3 p.m. meeting at Eighth Street Christian Church.

Francis Speight, native North Carolinian and noted artist now associated with East Carolina College, will be judge for the exhibition. Speight taught at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts from 1925 until joining East Carolina College in 1961. He has been described as "unexcelled among native North Carolina artists."

Board of Directors session of the Associated Artists will precede the general afternoon meeting. Immediately following the general meeting, a reception and the formal opening of the exhibition will be held at the art center. The exhibit is to continue until March 16.

Mangum will speak on "Tradition in Modern Art." A native of Kingston, he holds the A. B. and M. A. degrees from the University of North Carolina. He also has studied at Corcoran School of Art in Washington, D. C., Chicago Academy of Fine Arts and the Art Students League of New York.

Prior to joining the Salem College staff in 1961, Mangum was instructor in fine arts at Western Carolina college, Cullowhee.

He has won prizes for his painting at the N. C. Museum of Art in Raleigh, Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond and Atlanta Art Association Museum. He won a prize for his drawing at the Isaac Delgado Museum in New Orleans, and one of his sculptures took the "Best in Show" award at the Associated Artists of North Carolina Open Exhibition.

Mangum also has exhibited at museums and galleries in New York; Springfield, Mass.; Norfolk; Greensboro; Winston-Salem; Greenville; and Chapel Hill. He has experience as an illustrator, commercial artist and portrait painter and sculptor.

A veteran of World War II, he is married and the father of three children.

Those eligible to submit work for the exhibition include the following: exhibiting members of A.A.N.C.; those who have been approved by the jury of an open exhibition of A.A.N.C. and qualified as candidates for Exhibiting Membership; those who have had work admitted to the N. C. Artists' Annual in Raleigh, the Winston-Salem Gallery of Fine Arts or a similar show acceptable to the nominating committee; those who have satisfied the nominating committee of their qualifications by letter setting forth their academic and exhibition background.

Near-Panic Due Forecast Doom

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Terrified Indians plunged into sacred rivers, lit sacrificial fires or prayed by the hundreds of thousands along roadsides today in what they believed to be their eleventh-hour attempt to head off doomsday.

Because of a rare alignment of six planets with the sun and the moon, Indian astrologers have warned that in the next three days the earth "will be bathed in the blood of thousands of kings." They set the period of doom between 5:35 p.m. — 7:05 a.m. EST — today through Monday.

In some parts of India and neighboring Nepal there were reports of near panic with families huddling under one roof to be together when and if the end should come.

Prime Minister Nehru has been warned to take extra precautions but he pooch-pooched the warnings.

In New Delhi, business slumped badly. Railroads ran with few passengers. Thousands stayed home from offices and schools.

Pandits—learned men versed in ancient Hindu scriptures—mumbled prayers over fires kept going with butter, grains of camphor and sandalwood powder.

One of India's richest industrialists, Ramakrishna Dalmia, led mass prayer meetings in a New Delhi fort.

On street corners, astrologers, palmists and almanac sellers raked in small fortunes peddling prophecies of individual doom or survival.

Many Indians feared the lineup of the planets would set off earthquakes, floods or general catastrophe.

Three New Members Join Salvation Army's Board

NEW SALVATION ARMY BOARD MEMBERS—Capt. Reagan (left) and Chairman H. Lyman Ormond (right) present plaques to new members of the local Salvation Army Advisory Board E. Hoover Taft, S. Reynolds May and George Coffman.

Three new members were welcomed to the Salvation Army Advisory Board yesterday at the annual meeting of the Greenville organization.

Chairman H. Lyman Ormond, Sr. welcomed to the board S. Reynolds May, George Coffman and E. Hoover Taft. The three have been elected to three-year terms on the board. Officers who had been re-elected for the current year were installed by Capt. Earl Reagan, local Salvation Army officer. In addition to Ormond they are B. D. Johnston, vice chairman; J. H. Waldrop, treasurer and Mrs. Ruel Tyson, secretary.

Capt. Reagan presented the board with a review of the local corps activities during the past year which showed an increase in almost every phase of social welfare work by the Salvation Army in this community compared with the previous year. Reports were also made by chairman of the standing committees of the advisory board. In addition to the officers and the three new members of the board, other members of the Advisory Board are J. Hicks Corey, James W. Butler, Corey Stokes of Ayden, J. L. Harris, Elbert H. Bennett, W. H. Watson, Mrs. Cora S. Powell and David J. Whitchard.

Free Will Baptists Reply To Resolution

Free Will Baptist officials have issued a statement in response to resolutions adopted at two meetings of a denominational organization that has named itself the Revived General Conference of Original Free Will Baptists in North Carolina.

The statement, issued Friday by the five-man Executive Committee of the Central Conference of Original Free Will Baptists in North Carolina, was prompted by news of a meeting of the Revived General Conference in Greenville Tuesday.

Resolutions adopted by the new movement pointed to a difference in opinion regarding the government of local churches as the reason for organizing the Revived General Conference.

The Central Conference spokesmen, headed by the Executive Committee's moderator, Rev. Walter Reynolds of Snow Hill, said that no conference or association in North Carolina "has departed from any historical practices."

In stating its position, the Revived General Conference asserted that the principle of "congregational" government of local churches had been abandoned in the official organization of Free Will Baptists for the state. Its resolutions referred to modern principles of local church government adopted by the North Carolina State Convention of Free Will Baptists as "connectional."

The Central Conference's statement said: "This new movement within the Free Will Baptist denomination is made up of those who rebelled against disciplinary rights of the conference."

In addition to Rev. Reynolds, the Central Conference Executive Committee is composed of Rev. C. L. Patrick of Snow Hill, assistant moderator; Rev. C. H. Overman of Ayden, clerk; Rev. C. J. Harris of Greenville, treasurer; and Rev. R. B. Crawford of Greenville, member.

The complete text of the committee's statement follows:

The Central Conference of the Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina is composed of more than fifty churches with a membership of more than 10,000, from nine eastern and northeastern counties. Pitt County alone has twenty Free Will Baptist churches. This body is representative of approximately 30,000 Free Will Baptists belonging to the North Carolina State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists.

In November of this past year, the Central Conference held its two hundred thirteenth annual session at the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church, of which the Rev. R. B. Crawford is pastor. At this session the conference reaffirmed its adherence to the long established customs, practices, usages, and policies as set forth in the Statement of Faith and Discipline for Original Free Will Baptists of North Carolina.

Based upon action taken by the 1961 session of the North Carolina State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists, the Central Conference adopted resolutions which called for the excommunication of those churches and ministers who af-

Paris Says Plastic Clothes Respectable Even For Snobs

By IRENE FERRIS PARIS—(WNS)—French couturiers are dreaming of a plastic future. "Plastic clothes will be the logical sequel to the leather craze of the last few years," declared Felicie Brun, the Left Bank fashion stylist who is leading the "snobism in reverse" movement. Mlle. Brun, whose clients range from Princess Anne of Bavaria to Brigitte Bardot, believes that B.B.'s perennial pink suede dress (she had four copies made) not only made the front pages but also made history—the history of the emergence of plastic clothing.

Does Mlle. Brun expect any difficulty in getting women to wear substitute plastics instead of the real thing? "Only at the beginning," she predicted. "Years ago when rayon was an infant, it was not accepted until somebody thought of calling it 'artificial silk' and making it resemble silk as closely as possible." Now it bears its real name of rayon without shame in America. However, in Spain, Italy and many other countries it is still known as artificial silk. The French fashion stylist also prophesied these events in plastic wear:

Rose High News

By SHERRY EVERETT Sol J. Schiff, better known as Mr. Table Tennis, gave a table tennis exhibition Friday during activity period. After practicing with Bowie G. Martin from East Carolina College for a few minutes, Mr. Schiff explained the rules of the game and exhibited some tricks serves. With Jimmy Roberts, a volunteer from the student body, he showed some illegal serves and explained how, when serving, the position of the paddle determined where the ball would hit when a person returned the serve.

1. Fever cleaning and pressing bills. "Plastic clothes wipe clean with a damp cloth and never need pressing." 2. Waterproof clothes that will be ideal for all types of weather—rain or shine, snow or sun. 3. Climatized plastic fabrics for the warmest summer wear or the chilliest winter days. 4. More cowboy, ranch and Daniel Boone fashions. "So far these leather-type clothes are the best uses for the new plastic fabrics."

During the two-day clinic, participants attended section and full band rehearsals. The college band entertained with a concert, and the college gave a dance for the members Friday. Those representing Rose High were J. G. Proctor, Marvin Buck, Tommy Brown, Pat Carter, Jud Batchelor, Lane Ferris, Joe Bryan, Jimmy Buck, and Ruby Earl Brown. James E. Rodgers, band director, accompanied the students. Last week ten band members played in a procession for Bishop Cashmore of England while he was visiting Saint Paul's Episcopal Church during the Patronal, a festival honoring Saint Paul. The band members, who played "Onward, Christian Soldiers," were Richard Paul, Joe Bryan, Jim Holt, and Harry Williams, who played trumpets, and bass player Don Pierce. Trombone players, Tommy Brown, Billy Davis, and Danny Griffith and Barley Phillips and Ricky Denning, who played baritone, conclude the list. The bishop, whose society established the local church, visits Greenville annually.

AA About Town With Anne Mattox

Women's civic organizations play a vital part in the civic life of our city and county. The Greenville Woman's Club which was organized in 1917 is the oldest Women's Civic Club in Greenville.

Mrs. Sallie Southall Cotten, pioneer club woman and a member of a prominent Pitt County family organized the Club. That same year it joined the State Federation of Women's Clubs and in 1929 the General Federation.

Mrs. M. H. Quinerly, whose portrait hangs in the club house, was the first president of the organization. She was a sister of Mrs. S. T. White, a life member of the club and active in all its functions at the present time.

The Woman's Club had its beginning in World War I and was a very active civic organization during World War II at which time the club house was turned into a USO, its members serving as hostess to the many hundreds of service men who came to the city on weekends.

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, active in club work since coming to Greenville in 1924 served as president of the Woman's Club for 12 years. Much credit should go to Mrs. Moore for organizing Home Demonstration work in Pitt County during the early 20's and also for the purchasing of the club house.

In 1942 in recognition of Mrs. Moore's years of service to the Greenville Woman's Club, she was made honorary life president and the banquet hall was given the name "The Rachel Maxwell Moore Auditorium."

The Woman's Club has continued to grow over the years until its present membership is 150. The work of the club is carried on in the Home, Fine Arts, Garden and Public Affairs, the four departments of the Woman's Club. During World War II the women had regular booths for selling War Bonds and stamps.

While Mrs. Moore was serving as the club's president, 27 years ago, she came up with the idea of a community Fine Arts Festival, which has been held each year since then. The Festival has gained state recognition many times for the club, not only in awards from the Federation but in bringing to Greenville outstanding artists and exhibitions of their work. Through the years this has been the most outstanding project. The club participates in many state projects such as Children's Home Society, Caswell Training School, Samaritan, Boys Home, Care Scholarships and Birthday Remembrance program for people in correctional institutions.

In 1943 the Woman's Club organized and conducted the first Cancer drive in the county and has been active in the fight against cancer ever since.

One of the main projects this year is to encourage every woman in the State to have cancer smear.

Women who have served the Greenville Woman's Club since its organization in 1917 are Mrs. M. H. Quinerly, 1917-1919, deceased; Miss Miriam McFayden, 1919-1920, deceased; Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale, 1920-1924, deceased; Mrs. E. B. Ficklen, 1924-1926, deceased; Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, 1926-1930; Mrs. W. I. Wooten, 1930-1931; Mrs. S. M. Crisp, 1931-1932; Mrs. E. L. Henderson, 1932-1934; Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, 1934-1942; Mrs. Dink James, 1942-1944; Mrs. C. C. Hilton, 1944-1945; Mrs. Robert Lee Humber, 1945-1947; Mrs. J. Vance Perkins, 1947-1949; Mrs. R. R. Wilman, 1949-1950; Mrs. J. Vance Perkins, 1950-1951; Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, 1951-1953; Mrs. R. P. Rogers, 1953-1955; Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, 1955-1957; Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Jr., 1957-1959; Mrs. Harvey Tripp, 1959-1960; Mrs. S. H. Mitchell, 1960-1961; and Mrs. Dink James who is the present president.

Mrs. Kate Tripp, better known as Kitty, celebrated her 94th birthday on January 24th at her home in Stokes. On her birthday she sat in her room opening the many cards she received and greeted friends who called. She had the usual birthday cake with 16 candles atop it which her daughter Mrs. W. F. Stokes served with coffee to those calling during the day.

In the late fall Mrs. Tripp fell and was confined to her bed for some time, but she is now able to be up and about some now and still has her keen sense of humor. Until a year or so she did a lot of crocheting making book marks for her church circle members and other friends.

She was born in Beaufort, daughter of Fredrick and Elizabeth Piver. They later moved to Robersonville after the death of her father, and her mother re-married to Henry D. Roberson for whom the town of Robersonville is named.

The Robersonville Methodist Church was organized in the home of Kitty's mother in August 1888, at which time she joined the church. The church meetings were held in their home until the present church was built in 1893.

Mrs. Tripp moved to Whichards some 40 years ago and made her home with her older daughter, Mrs. L. R. Whichard and family. She continued to attend church in Robersonville and did so regularly until her health would not permit it. She had a special seat in the church she would occupy and several years ago when the church was remodeled, her children gave a stained glass window in her honor by the seat she occupied so long.

Mrs. Tripp, mother of four children, two of whom are deceased, makes her home now with her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Stokes and family in Stokes. Mrs. L. R. Whichard of Whichards is the other daughter.

Stockpiling Probe

President Kennedy's move for a careful review of the government's multi-million stockpiling program offers a potential of saving American taxpayers countless millions in unnecessary federal spending.

By calling a halt to the program until a careful evaluation can be made by a Senate subcommittee, the President has put the spotlight on a program which could have continued to eat away unnecessarily at the annual appropriations by Congress.

It is the kind of action which should be taken by the administration with respect to any program which it has reason to believe has fulfilled its purpose, or one which it feels may be getting out of hand.

Although the President made no charges of wrongdoing in connection with the program of stockpiling strategic materials in case of a national emergency, he did recognize the possibility that the program has now reached the point where it may invite mismanagement and profiteering. He also asserted that in many instances the program has caused the stockpiling of considerably more of many items than the government might be expected to need even in a severe emergency.

Case Is To Be Heard Tuesday

By LYNN NISBET

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR—The question of whether or not a Lieutenant Governor can be elected this year is now before the Supreme Court. It will be argued next Tuesday morning, the first case on the Spring term calendar. Any discussion of the matter must be impartial and without expressed opinion. One phase of the issue has not been publicized very much. That is the fact that if the office is declared open for election this year, it will be the duty of Governor Sanford to appoint someone to fill the position until the election results can be certified. Such appointments will be different from any other which the Governor is called upon to make, because he would be individually selecting the person who would succeed him in the top office in event of his death, resignation or other incapacity.

Governor Sanford said the other day that he has not given very serious thought to selection of an appointee, although he has been conscious of the fact that if the Supreme Court decides the office is open for election he will have to face up to the responsibility of making the interim appointment.

No other appointment in the executive legislative or judicial branches of government has anything like the same intimate relationship with the chief executive. There is possibility of collusion between the appointing officer and the appointee that should be guarded against in any future amendments to the constitution.

SLATE—There is no objection among the citizens of North Carolina to the idea of having a Governor and Lieutenant Governor of the same political faith and philosophy. In fact, there seems to be rather general approval of the idea that the two top officials should be of like opinion on fundamental matters.

Under our system of free choice in nominating primaries as well as in the general election it is possible to have a Governor and a Lieutenant Governor of widely divergent philosophies. In fact they can be of different political parties.

The original constitution of the United States provided that the man who got the highest number of votes in the electoral college should be President, and the man who got the second highest number should be Vice President. The travesty on good government that developed when Thomas Jefferson was President and Aaron Burr was Vice President led to the amendment which provided that the voters should select a President and Vice President. The thinking back of the amendment was that the two officers would hold similar beliefs. Later custom decreed that the candidates for these high offices should be nominated by political parties on a common ticket. It is not possible now to vote for a Democratic President and a Republican Vice President, but it is possible to vote for a Governor and a Lieutenant Governor of different parties. Some folks think it would be a good idea to run the State officers together, so that the same folks who vote for and elect a Governor would vote for and elect the No. 2 man who would succeed to the office during the term if the No. 1 man should for any reason become incapacitated.

So far as your reporter can find, no state has such "slate" arrangement. Some states, Florida for one, do not have a Lieutenant Governor. Not many years ago by a series of resignations and deaths South Carolina had three chief executives during one four-year term.

All of which proves that the question of whether the existing vacancy in the office of Lieutenant Governor can be filled by appointment and election this year or if it must wait until 1964 has some practical political as well as constitutional and philosophical tangents.

BANKS—There were 718 banking houses operating in North Carolina on December 31, 1961, with total assets of $4,648,929,481. This represented an increase of 29 places and $306,507,653 in assets over the situation one year before. Major interest centers in the banks and branches of State banks chartered and supervised by the State of North Carolina.

The trend which has been underway for some years toward centralization of banking resources by consolidating banking institutions was accelerated last year. There were seven fewer State banks last December than there were in business a year before. At the same time, the number of branch banks increased by 28. That was brought about by absorption of several small banks by larger chains. These transfers also put some State units in the national bank list, and vice versa.

There are several gratifying features about the composite condition report of all banks issued by the banking commission this week. Total resources increased more than $306 million, of which $204 million was in State banks. There was very substantial increase in amount of loans and discounts indicating that more money is at work.

Timely And Wise

The question naturally arises, why was not a careful look taken at the program earlier before the unnecessary stockpiling had taken place? Why was not there constant revision of the program to assure that the stockpiling program was altered from time to time to meet the changing conditions brought about by changing defense needs? Was it a case of lack of proper management, or was it a matter of letting the program follow a predetermined plan long after the plan had become obsolete?

The Senate investigation should provide the answers to these questions. And at the same time either from the administration or from Congress should come the answer to another broader question:

How many other government programs are in a situation similar to that of the stockpiling program?

Peace Corps Gets To Bedrock Of Problems

Proof, if it were needed, that the Peace Corps is working on the bedrock problems of backward peoples, lies in its announced quest for more than 1,000 farmers.

These are presumed destined to serve in distant lands where food production remains linked to primitive or inefficient methods.

In our land of agricultural surpluses, it is sometimes difficult to remember that inadequacies of crop production pose some of the biggest handicaps of other countries. It is something in which they most urgently need help . . . and it is a field in which the American farmer has proven himself.

The facts of simple hunger, of poverty and imbalanced diets are often attributed as the roots of apathy, a dullness of thinking and lack of physical stamina that prohibit productivity and even ambition.

We can imagine few other segments of the over-all Peace Corps program that can contribute as much as that represented by our skilled farmers working side-by-side with the primitive farmers of other parts of the world . . . teaching by example the secrets of greater efficiency and greater production from the soil.

The inherent elements of adventure and accomplishment envisioned in this program should capture the imagination of America's young agricultural experts . . . as it does our own.

Achievements In OAS Meeting

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—This country won less than complete victory in Latin America on dealing with Cuba. But there were some solid achievements.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was the U. S. spokesman and general at the Uruguay meeting of 21 American Foreign ministers, which this country wanted and pushed for.

It showed:

1. Some of the biggest Latin-American nations don't see eye to eye in all details with this country in handling Cuba. Six refused to vote with the United States to expel Fidel Castro from the Organization of American States.
2. Judging from that result, this country either rushed into the meeting too fast, without learning beforehand where those six stood, or it did not but optimistically went ahead, ignoring what it had learned.
3. The United States, big as it is and much as Latin America needs its economic help, is not the absolute hemisphere boss. Realization of this here and in Latin America may turn out to have been this country's greatest benefit from the 10-day meeting.

The biggest test of American influence, and the one on which Rusk worked hardest for days, was on the question of throwing Cuba out of the inter-American system.

In the end the United States and 13 other countries—just enough to put the resolution over—voted to do it.

Cuba, of course, voted against. But Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Ecuador and Mexico refrained from voting. These six countries contain three-quarters of Latin America's 200 million people.

They didn't want to go along with Rusk for various reasons, ranging from the question of whether this was quite the legal way to go about it to pressure from the left-wing elements among their people back home.

But once that particular issue was out of the way all, with the exception of Cuba, voted: That communism has no place in the inter-American system; to exclude Castro from the inter-American defense board; block arms shipments to and from Cuba, and organize a vigilance system to prevent Cuba from spreading communism in the Americas.

Out of these resolutions other steps will, or should, follow, as Rusk indicated at a news conference he called Thursday, two hours after returning home. It may be unpalatable to some to see the United States, upon which so many Latin-American nations depend for help, balked if only on one point by those beholden.

Yet it illustrates, as well as anything, the difference between the free association of states in this hemisphere and the Soviet dictatorship which compels compliance from its European satellites.

Before the six Latin-American countries are criticized for being less than 100 per cent agreeable to U. S. wishes, it might be remembered that even such a close ally as French President Charles de Gaulle has been an obstinate and often painful partner.

President Kennedy expressed satisfaction with the outcome. Four members of Congress who accompanied Rusk, two Democrats and two Republicans, called it a "marked success." And Rusk, perhaps optimistically, said the meeting had isolated Castro from the hemisphere.

Cuba called it an American defeat and then shrilly denounced the whole business.

What really counts—now that the resolutions have been adopted—is what the 20 republics do to show they mean something.

WHERE DO YOU STAND?

Do beliefs really matter? Probably no one would say that beliefs are a matter of no consequence whatsoever, but there are thousands of people who would say that when all is said and done it is action that counts and not belief. The answer to such a contention is that a sound Christian belief which does not result in sound Christian action is not belief at all, but pretense.

Every act has a motive behind it no matter how deeply this motive may be concealed. The sincere Christian lives a life characterized by sound conduct and helpfulness for others, and he does this largely because he is impelled to do so by certain beliefs which he holds very firmly. Most of these beliefs have their origin in the Bible, whether the person who holds such beliefs realizes this or not. People are decent, honest, generous, and unselfish because down in their hearts they believe certain things and these beliefs cause them to be the kind of person they are. Those beliefs created family ideals which the person of sound moral conduct absorbed without realizing that he was doing so. The Christian Church has influenced world thought to a degree utterly immeasurable.

But on manufacturers can't count on that. The safest procedure will be to build up inventories, not only of steel but of things made with steel. POWERFUL FACTOR—One of the most powerful and often overlooked factors in the trend of the American economy is inventory accumulation and

Others Refute Doomsday

For the aid and comfort of those who may have suffered some consternation due to a prediction in one part of the world that the end of this earth—or some terrible catastrophe—is imminent, we have a book source that says the end of the world comes later.

We have it straight from the French astrologer Nostradamus (1503-1566) that the world will end in the year 7,000, when the Sun will destroy the Earth.

Meanwhile, there are hundreds of thousands of Indians in India mixing brews, lighting sacrifices, jumping into rivers and praying by the thousands by the roadsides. This is going on today, since the period of doom is sometime between 5:35 p.m. and 7:05 a.m., eastern standard time, today through Monday.

You may laugh at it all. Not us. We respect the opinions of others.

However, our horoscope tells us to be gay today. We take that as an excellent sign. It also says this is a good day to tie up loose ends with work (bad sign) but goes on to say this will help make a good impression on higher ups (good sign). "However, be sure you get out for fun and relaxation this evening" (good sign unless it means eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow you may die).

At any rate, back to Nostradamus. He was a man who through some power not exactly explained—some today call it extra sensory perception—foretold events in the future. Many have come true, according to our translator.

Of course, Nostradamus wrote in French. Since we are not particularly adept at French, we read Nostradamus out of a book that had both the French and then the English translation. The French words give you the Nostradamus atmosphere and the English translation gives you prophecies in language you may understand, with notes by the translator.

Other Editors Saying... Opinions Maintaining Honesty In Brief

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

It is proper that Gov. Sanford should take a stern position against "influence peddlers" and "fixers." Those are the terms he used in castigating those who would stoop to such measures in their business dealings with the government of North Carolina. Companies doing business with North Carolina do not have to go through influence peddlers, the governor has declared.

If a company goes through an influence peddler in an attempt to gain business or curry favor, it will lose its business with this state the day he is caught. That's what Sanford promised in a speech to the fourth annual Highway Conference. Among those who listened were highway officials and road contractors.

Although Sanford made no mention of the current probe of state highway sign procurement, he obviously was referring to the case of a highway engineer who was fired for being "too closely associated" with businessman Kidd Brewer.

The citizens of this state pay into public funds for public roads. And there are not going to be any under-the-table, or back street deals going on as long as the present administration is in office. Sanford is emphatic on that point, and the public must give him his due: he has acted promptly and vigorously to uncover the current mess. Many astute political observers believe the current episode, and the manner in which Sanford has handled it, has enhanced his prestige.

Nowhere in our system of purchase and contracts or in our low bid system or in our allocation of the taxpayers' money is there a clause which mentions or implies that somebody's hands should be greased. Any company that thinks it has found an "in" for getting the state's business through a back door, warns the governor, is going to find a little later bars from doing business with this state.

That's as it should be. Stringent regulations for clamping down should be provided; discouragement of this sort of thing should be pushed. The state and the Highway Department have a deservedly high reputation for honesty and efficiency. This reputation goes back over many years and it goes out to all corners of the country. This reputation was built slowly, but many such incidents as the recent case could cast a shadow over the entire system.

Surely it doesn't deserve that. But such will be the case unless swift, sure, stringent action is taken to see that no loopholes, easy deals, corners are possible in this business-state dealings.

(In English):

"Twenty years of the reign of the moon having passed.

Seven thousand years another shall hold his monarchy.

When the sun shall resume his days past,

Then is fulfilled and ends my prophecy."

Though this may alleviate fears of approaching ends of existence, there are other catastrophes forecast by Nostradamus.

The Indians say that the rare alignment of six planets with the sun and moon is a sign of doomsday—earthquakes, or floods or general catastrophe. Indian astrologers have warned that in the next three days the earth "will be bathed in the blood of thousands of Kings."

Ah, we will prefer to read Nostradamus under the circumstances.

"The 1961 figures are in now on book publishing in the U.S. As most book editors had surmised, gazing in awe at the mountains of new volumes submitted for review, it was a record year: 18,600 new titles and 3,822 were new editions of old works."—Richard News Leader.

"It will be handy if there are people on the other planets. Some day we may need a coroner's jury to decide whether the demise of our civilization was accidental or a double suicide."—Hartford Courant.

"You have noticed, of course, that silence and horse sense often go together."—Anderson (S.C. Independent).

Tide Is Against Unity

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Always there's excitement about producing some kind of a One World and always the resistance to the idea grows more intense. This will go down as the era of intensified nationalism, with 104 nations actually members of the United Nations. The fragmentation of mankind rather than the union of peoples is the characteristic of the moment. I can recall when half a century ago men like Andrew Carnegie believed that their efforts were bringing on a unified mankind. The Hague Tribunal, the League of Nations and the United Nations came into existence with this end in view.

When I was a boy there was much excitement about the possibility of a single language for all mankind. That too has passed away. Professor Mario Pei, who knows more about languages than most authorities, writes me:

"So far as the question of international 'understanding' (whatever that much-labored word may mean) is concerned, I could not agree with you more. In all my writings, on the subject, I have been at great pains to point out that the world's civil wars, from the days of ancient Rome to modern America, Russia and Spain, are there to indicate that peace and the brotherhood of man do not at all hinge on linguistic comprehension."

The World Language Association has apparently the wisdom of recognizing that while no country is going to give up its own special traditional way of expressing itself, it might be possible to come to an agreement to use some one language for business and politics as Latin was once a universal tongue in the West or Aramaic in the East. There was a time when French was the universal tongue of diplomacy but the United Nations can no longer expect French to serve and delegates plug their ears to listen to interpreters in several tongues. There was a time when English was the tongue of trade but today one must use whatever tongue is needed to sell a safety razor or a sewing machine.

Professor Pei, in his letter to me, makes a salient point:

"The fact that your son learned French in school did not make a Frenchman out of him. All it did was to permit him to communicate with Frenchmen. . . a single language in official and popular use throughout the world would permit him to land in the same way in Saigon, Taiwan, Leopoldville or Rio de Janeiro, and still be able to communicate with all the people he would encounter, with the same ease with which he communicates with people in San Francisco, Milwaukee or Boston (whom he does not necessarily love or feel brotherly towards)."

If the question of language is approached realistically, it obviously has nothing to do with peace. Among my met belligerent friends are some who speak several languages and can curse in each. Their knowledge of language does not sweeten their attitude toward each other. The lingua franca of each area or each geographical area is a means of getting around but it does not help to unify ideas, although mathematical symbols do a job for the scientist who wherever he may be understands the pi's mark; similarly musicians a nearly all parts of the world can sooner or later read a score. A Japanese journalist may stumble over Shakespeare but a Japanese fiddler can read Wagner or the "Rhapsody in Blue." Both deal with ideas.

An old friend of mine, Henry Eichheim, now long dead, used to walk about the streets of Shanghai, writing down the sounds he heard. Eichheim could not understand a word of any dialect of Chinese; he was a musician, a fiddler, who spent the leisure of retirement transliterating Chinese music into our scale. Puccini did nearly that, although Eichheim was more skillful. He univerted (Continued on Page 6)

Small Boom In Inventory Buildup

By ELMER ROESSNER

Inventory accumulation during the next five months will give the American economy some of the aspects of a boom. It will tend to provide the increase in business. President Kennedy is counting on to provide the taxable profits and income to balance the budget for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

Curiously, the inventory accumulation is being sparked by a threat of a steel strike in midyear. The Kennedy Administration is trying to beat the strike off with jawbone tactics. It is possible that both the industry and the unions, affected by patriotic and defensive motives, will work to a moderate settlement.

But on manufacturers can't count on that. The safest procedure will be to build up inventories, not only of steel but of things made with steel. POWERFUL FACTOR—

One of the most powerful and often overlooked factors in the trend of the American economy is inventory accumulation and liquidation. When business is building up inventory, it is buying more than it is using; it is pushing industrial production above normal; more money is going into industrial profits and wages than is being taken from users. It is an artificial boom, all right; it is the same kind of boom produced when consumers use credit to spend more than they are making; but it is a boom.

For comparable reasons, periods of inventory liquidation produce slumps. Manufacturers are living off their inventories. Producers of raw materials must cut back, throwing men out of work. Business is taking in less than it spends. It is the same kind of slump that results when consumers, through fear, charge less than they pay off in credit.

NOT ONLY STEEL—The steel situation is not the sole reason for inventory buildup at present. Among other factors:

All business scents demands for higher pay, so raw materials of all kinds are being bought up in fear of eventual higher prices resulting from pay increases.

National defense contracts are multiplying. Companies bidding for them want to have plenty of raw materials on hand.

The commodities market is showing firmness, suggesting that prices will go up, not down. Inventory-sales ratios in many lines are low, giving purchasing agents authority to build up inventories when prices are attractive.

As long as inventory accumulation goes on, the light for the economy is green for go-ahead. But watch total figures. When buying slackens, watch out. There are no records of slumps during periods of inventory accumulation; there are no records of booms during periods of liquidation.

WANT A GOOD JOB? SEE UNCLE SAM

President Kennedy's budget calls for an increase of 131,631 employees to run the government in the next fiscal year as it did in the last.

That's blamey, of course. If previous Presidential records are a guide, the increase will be much greater.

But even if Mr. Kennedy is conservative, there's golden opportunity. For at that rate of increase, there will be an average of 503 new jobs a day beginning July 1, 1962. Tell them Elmer sent you.

OLD PROMOTER'S INVENTION WOULD KEEP WAITERS AT DISTANCE

There was a happy-new-invention gleam in the Old Promoter's eyes when he dropped in today. "This will make me a million!" he said.

"It's a banquet chair," he said. "The outer edge of the black is electrically charged. Every time a waiter leans over the back of your chair, crushing you to the table, to fill your plate, he will be shocked into propriety."

It's a good idea and I hope it works, but I hope the waiter isn't holding a bowl of hot soup when he gets his first jolt.

Grifton Defeats Bel-Falk 49-48

BELVOIR—The Grifton High School Bulldogs took a close game from the Belvoir-Falkland Eagles last night 49-48 after two overtime periods.

At the end of the first half Grifton held a one point lead with the score 22-21. When the horn sounded ending the contest the score was tied 48-48. During the first overtime period neither team was able to score. However, halfway through the second overtime period Cotton Manning hit a free throw putting the Bulldogs out in front and giving them their fifth win of the season against nine losses.

The high scorer for the Bulldogs was Tommy Riley with 14 points. Others hitting the doubles mark for Grifton were Warner Burch with 12 points and Ben McLawhorn with 10. For the Eagles the top scorer was Alan Witherington with 14 points. He was followed by Steve Cobb with 10.

In the girls game the outcome was reversed with Belvoir-Falkland coming out on top 47-45 after trailing most of the way.

The Eagles were behind at the half 30-20, but during the second stanza they managed to outscore the Bulldogs for the win.

The high scorer for the winners was Mary Pollard with 19 points. She was followed by Andrea Wooten with 17 points and Francis Stepps with 11. For Grifton the high scorer was Jane Mewborn with 25 points. The only other Grifton player to hit in the double figures was Betty Reaves with 16 points.

Next Friday Belvoir-Falkland will travel to Grimesland. Grifton has open dates on its schedule until Feb. 13 when they play a non-conference contest with Contentnea.

Farmville Downs Sto-Pac 77-54

FARMVILLE—The Farmville High School Red Devils defeated the Stokes-Pactolus Blue Jays in a Pitt County Conference game last night by a score of 77-54.

The Red Devils took a five point lead at the end of the first quarter and by the half they were out in front 39-27. In the second half Farmville went on to increase the margin to 23 points before the final horn sounded.

Topping the scoring column for the Red Devils was William Reason with 16 points. Ben Monk and Danny Dilda both had 15 points. For Stokes-Pactolus the high scorer of the night was Carroll Flemming with 17 points. The only other Farmville player to hit the doubles mark was Billy Roebuck with 14.

In the girls' game Farmville also came out on top downing the Blue Jays 48-44.

The Red Devils took an early lead and managed to hold on to it throughout the contest with Stokes-Pactolus able to narrow it by two points in the third period.

The high scorer for the winners was Kay Allen with 18 points. Others hitting in the double figures were Becky Williams with 12 and Mary Avery with 11. For Stokes-Pactolus the high scorer was Lillian Crisp with 15 points. She was followed by Ginny Forbes with 13 points.

The next game for Farmville will be next Friday when the Red Devils travel to Winterville to meet the Wolves. Stokes-Pactolus will play a makeup game Tuesday night at Winterville.

Ayden Defeats Chicod 59-41

AYDEN — Coach Stuart Tripp's Ayden Tornados strengthened their lead in the Pitt County race by downing the fourth place Chicod Hornets 59-41.

The Tornados took an 11 point lead in the first period and at the half they were ahead 32-27. However, during the second half of the contest the Ayden team managed to increase the margin even more before the horn sounded.

The high scorer of the night for the winners was William Edwards with 20 points. Others hitting the doubles mark for Ayden were Wayne Dail with 13 and Duane Gwynn with 10. Topping the scoring column for Chicod was Ephraim Smith with 16 points. He was followed by Billy Elks with 12 points.

Earlier in the night the Ayden girls won their second game of the season against eight defeats when they downed the Chicod girls 46-18.

Ayden took a 15 point lead in the first period and by the end of the first half they were leading 29-9. During the second stanza the Tornados outscored their opponents 17-9 for the victory.

The high scorer for Ayden was Nancy Stokes with 26 points. The only other Tornado player to hit in the double figures was Barbara York with 12 points. For Chicod the high scorer of the night was Pansy Jones with 12 points. Judy Mills scored the other six points for the Hornets.

The next game for Ayden will be held Monday night when they host the Panthers of Grimesland in a makeup contest. Chicod will host Bethel next Friday night.

Wolves Top Greene Central 76-58

WINTERVILLE—The Winterville Wolves, paced by James Braxton, defeated the Greene Central Rams last night 76-58 in a non-conference game.

Winterville jumped off to a 20-8 first quarter lead and led through the remainder of the contest. At the end of the first half the Wolves had increased their lead to 38-21.

When the two teams returned to the floor for the second half, Greene Central was still unable to rally their forces. The Rams were able to score only six points in the third quarter, while the Wolves hit the nets for 20 points.

However, in the final period of play, Greene Central rallied their forces to outscore the Wolves 31-18. Even though the Rams outscored their opponents in the last stanza, they could not overcome the high scoring Wolves.

Braxton led the Wolves in the scoring department with a total of 22 points. Also in double figures for Winterville were Steve Worthington and Ronnie Worthington with 17 and 10 points respectively.

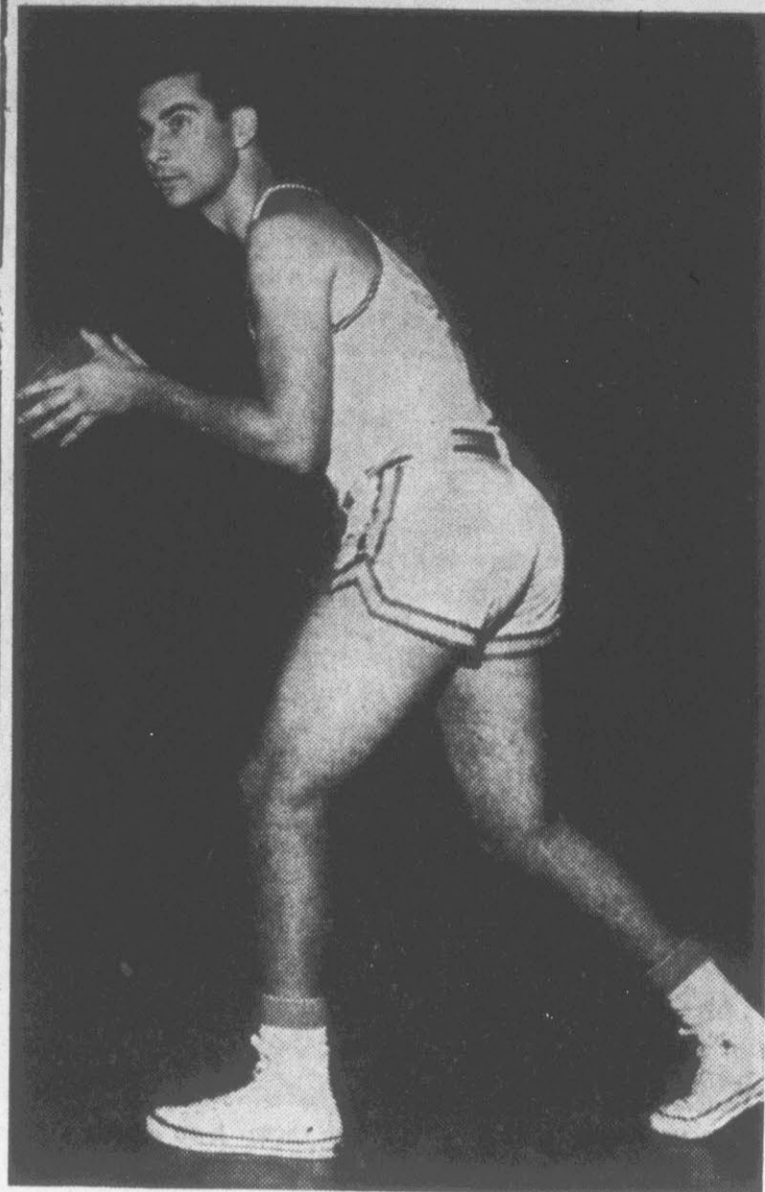

The Rams were led by Harry Mayo, who was high scorer for the night with 25 points. Ed Carroway scored 15 points for the losers.

Earlier in the night the Winterville girls downed the Greene Central girls by a score of 41-31. Carolyn Barnes scored 25 points for the winners while Betty Hamm had 16 tallies for the losers.

Winterville surged to an early lead in the first period, and at the end of the half led by a score of 22-16. The Wolves went on to outscore their opponents 19-15 in the second half to win the contest.

Davidson Plays W & M Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Davidson's basketball team, riding a 10-game winning streak compiled mostly against non-conference foes, tardily buckles down tonight to the job of putting its Southern Conference house in order.

Now that the Wildcats have swept to a 10-0 record against all comers, the task urgently at hand is to improve a 2-3 conference worksheet that lends itself to considerable improvement.

Target No. 1 as Davidson confidently opens its drive for a sure spot in the conference tournament is William and Mary, which tonight offers the "Cats their first league test since Jan. 6.

Davidson whopped the Indians 62-47 for its first conference win back on Jan. 3 on the Wildcat court. But tonight they play at Williamsburg, where the Indians regularly are rude to visitors.

"I can think of a lot of places I'd rather be tonight than in Blow Gymnasium," says Wildcat Coach Lefty Driesell. "Spunk has carried us a long way, though, and maybe it'll get us out of there alive."

William and Mary, though only 5-11 over-all, is 5-1 in cozy, noisy Blow Gym and has captured 22 of its last 24 starts there. The Indians are a dismal 3-8 in conference play.

Tonight's game is the first of six conference scraps coming up for Davidson this month as the Wildcats, who weren't invited to last year's title tournament at Richmond, try to change the script in 1962. Three other games are carded for conference teams this afternoon and tonight.

League-leading West Virginia, 15-4 over-all, meets N.C. State of the Atlantic Coast Conference at Greensboro this afternoon in a regionally televised game.

The Citadel's Cadets, mired in the conference cellar with a 1-6 record, are at home to VMI (4-5). Another conference tussle finds second-place Furman (5-2) at George Washington (4-4).

Virginia Tech notched its 11th victory of the season last night with a 111-86 blitz of East Carolina, the Gobblers' 31st consecutive triumph at Blacksburg. Sophomore Howard Pardue amassed 37 points and 21 rebounds, and Buckley Keller has 23 points for the Techmen. Bill Otte paced East Carolina with 23.

Richmond (5-13) lost its fifth game in succession when the Spiders, playing on their home floor, bowed to Centenary 76-71.

Bethel Downs Grimesland 89-39

GRIMESLAND—The Bethel Indians invaded Grimesland last night to defeat the Panthers 89-39. This was Bethel's tenth conference victory of the season and the loss was Grimesland's ninth.

Led by Don Dewar, the Indians jumped to a 25-17 first quarter lead. Bethel went on to outscore Grimesland 22-4 in the second quarter and at halftime, the Indians led 47-21.

Bethel came back in the second half to outscore their opponents in the last two quarters and easily won the contest. Dewar scored 20 points for the Indians while teammates Jesse Thomas and Herman Daniels scored 14 points apiece. Lester Warren also tallied 14 points for the winners.

High scorers for the losers were Nile Dail and Billy Hardee who scored ten points each in the loss.

Earlier in the night, the Bethel girls set the pace for the main event by defeating the Grimesland girls 61-22.

Bethel took an early lead in the first quarter and was never threatened by Grimesland. High scorer for the night was substitute Betty Manning with a total of 14 points. Mary Chesson and Cherry Bonner scored 12 and 11 points respectively for the victors.

Mary Jo Mills was high scorer for the Grimesland Panthers with a total of 10 points.

Monday night Grimesland travels to Ayden to meet the conference leading Tornados. Bethel is idle until Feb. 9, when they travel to Chicod.

BLACKSBURG, Va. — East Carolina's basketball Pirates suffered their third loss against Southern Conference teams this season last night at the hands of a fired-up Virginia Tech team 111-86.

The loss left the Bucs with a 9-6 overall record not counting the Christmas Tournament at Camp Lejeune. However, the outcome will not effect the standings of the Pirates in the Carolinas Conference Race.

VPI was paced by high scoring Howard Pardue of Jonesville. The 6-foot 5-inch sophomore picked up 37 points for the winners last night. Pardue hit on 17 field goals and picked up three more points from the free throw line.

At the end of the first half Virginia Tech held a 16 point lead over the Pirates, 38-54. During the second half the host team went on to increase their lead to 25 points when the final horn sounded.

The Pirates were led by their big sophomore center Bill Otte. The top rebounder for the team, Otte dropped in 11 field goals and hit on one of two free throws for a total of 23 points. He was followed by freshman Richie Williams who picked up 20 points for the Bucs.

Other Pirate players to hit in the double figures were Lacy West with 15 points and Charlie Lewis with 11 points. West fouled out with nine minutes left in the game and Lewis, who holds the high scoring mark for the team, was unable to pick up any points during the first half of the game.

Following Pardue in the scoring department for the Gobblers was Keller with 23 points. The only other VPI man to hit the doubles mark was Melmer with 10 points.

Tonight the Pirates will host Atlantic Christian of Wilson in a Carolinas Conference game in Memorial Gym at 8 o'clock.

Old Timers Game Today
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The crack of the bat, the boing of the umpire, the smell of hot dogs and a possible run on the limnetic supply all marked the unofficial opening of the 1962 baseball season today.

More than 6,000 fans were expected to attend the 7th annual Old Timers baseball game, with proceeds going to the March of Dimes.

Edd Roush, 68-year-old former Cincinnati Red and New York Giant star of 30 years ago, was expected to be on hand for the game. Roush is the most recent selection for baseball's Hall of Fame.

Chicago White Sox pilot Al Lopez managed the American League team while former St. Louis Brown skipper Zach Taylor directed the National Leaguers.

Spoooner Goes To Wichita
CLINTON, S.C. (AP) — Assistant Coach Vic Spoooner of Presbyterian College has been named end coach at the University of Wichita.

Spoooner, 30, who played college football at Texas Tech, has been at Presbyterian for three years. He coached the ends in football and served as head track coach.

"I'm definitely leaving just as soon as I can," Spoooner said. He added that he had already talked his resignation over with new Presbyterian Athletic Director Clyde Earhardt.

Wichita, a school with some 7,000 students, is a member of the Missouri Valley Conference.

Wolves Top Greene Central 76-58
WINTERVILLE—The Winterville Wolves, paced by James Braxton, defeated the Greene Central Rams last night 76-58 in a non-conference game.

Winterville jumped off to a 20-8 first quarter lead and led through the remainder of the contest. At the end of the first half the Wolves had increased their lead to 38-21.

When the two teams returned to the floor for the second half, Greene Central was still unable to rally their forces. The Rams were able to score only six points in the third quarter, while the Wolves hit the nets for 20 points.

However, in the final period of play, Greene Central rallied their forces to outscore the Wolves 31-18. Even though the Rams outscored their opponents in the last stanza, they could not overcome the high scoring Wolves.

Braxton led the Wolves in the scoring department with a total of 22 points. Also in double figures for Winterville were Steve Worthington and Ronnie Worthington with 17 and 10 points respectively.

The Rams were led by Harry Mayo, who was high scorer for the night with 25 points. Ed Carroway scored 15 points for the losers.

Earlier in the night the Winterville girls downed the Greene Central girls by a score of 41-31. Carolyn Barnes scored 25 points for the winners while Betty Hamm had 16 tallies for the losers.

Winterville surged to an early lead in the first period, and at the end of the half led by a score of 22-16. The Wolves went on to outscore their opponents 19-15 in the second half to win the contest.

Carolinas Loop Teams Have Full Schedule Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
All 11 members of the Carolinas Conference see action tonight, with four league basketball games and three non-conference games on tap.

Lenoir Rhyne, the conference leader with a 10-3 record, plays at Appalachian and the Bears will be fighting to stay in first place.

Elon and East Carolina are tied for second place with 8-3 conference records and each plays a conference game tonight. Elon plays at Western Carolina, and the Pirates entertain last-place Atlantic Christian.

In other games, Gullford plays at Erskine, Catawba at High Point, Newberry at Wofford and Pfeiffer at Charleston.

In games Friday night, East Carolina took a 111-86 beating from Virginia Tech of the Southern Conference.

The Pirates, who hope to become members of the Southern Conference soon, were no match for VPI.

Sophomore Howard Pardue, 6-foot 6 Tech sophomore, scored 37 points and pulled in 31 rebounds. His scoring performance moved ECC Coach Earl Smith to comment, "We knew he could shoot, but we didn't know he could shoot that way from so far out."

Bill Otte scored 23 points for the Pirates, and Richie Williams had 18.

Meanwhile, Gullford drubbed outmanned Charleston College 107-69. Wayne Wyckoff scored 21 points for Gullford and Jon Burwell added 19.

Tarboro Defeats Phantoms 62-61

TARBORO—Greenville's Rose High Phantoms suffered their second conference loss of the season last night at the hands of Tarboro's Tigers 62-61.

The local Phantoms trailed by four points at the end of the first period. During the second quarter of play the Tigers outscored the Greenville boys again to take a 38-25 halftime advantage.

During the third period of play the Phantoms narrowed the Tarboro lead by six points, but the Tigers were still in front as the final stanza got underway. However, Greenville was fired up and outscored their opponents 21-15 in the last period but this was not quite enough to give the Phantoms a victory.

During the final minute of the contest Greenville sophomore Dale Gidley took a shot that would have put the Phantoms out in front, but the shot failed and Gidley was fouled. The shot from the free throw line would have tied the game putting it into an overtime period, but this attempt also failed.

The high scorer of the night for Greenville was Krogie Andresen with 20 points. He hit nine field goals and two out of four from the line.

Others hitting the doubles mark for the Phantoms were Rodney Knowles with 16 points and Jack Foley with 10 points. Knowles dropped in six from the floor and four of 11 from the line while Foley hit four field goals and two of three free throws.

Topping the scoring column for Tarboro and the high scorer in the game was Billy Freuler with 25 points. Freuler dropped in eight field goals and nine of 13 from the line for his total.

Other Tarboro players to hit the doubles mark were Gus Andrews with 16 points and Mac Fountain with 11 points.

Earlier in the night the Greenville junior varsity team downed the Tarboro juniors by a score of 59-48.

A Home Awaits Netherlands Family

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer
WINTERVILLE — In a spirit of "love thy neighbor," a group of 30 teenagers aided by civic groups and merchants, have undertaken an effort to establish a home and job in the United States for a Dutch family of seven whom they have never seen. The teenagers, banded together under the Winterville United Fellowship, have secured a large two-story frame house on Railroad Street here and have been involved in a process of patching walls, painting and renovating floors for the Paul Robert Loth family, who are scheduled to arrive Tuesday. The Loths, driven out of Indonesia by the Communists about five years ago, have been living in a four-room apartment in The Hague, Netherlands, for the past five years. Living conditions there apparently are very crowded. On their first visit to America, the Loths will find a small community of 1,423 people who have opened their hearts to them.

This massive venture began about a year ago, when a Sunday School class taught by Mrs. Sherman Husted at the Winterville Christian Church attempted to establish a young people's organization. But the group realized their small number—five—could hardly hope to accomplish anything. They invited young people from other denominations to join them, and under the guidance of "Aunt Rita" and "Uncle Sherman" Husted, the group grew to an interdenominational fellowship of 30 teenagers, ages 14 to 19. Some are college students.

Needed a Project

To survive, the fellowship felt they needed a worthy project. They learned through the World Council of Churches that there were 100 families who already were approved for immigration. For a month the group studied the list of families, with information about their interests and background, and decided they wanted this Dutch family with their five children to live in Winterville, feeling they would best fit in the community.

Before the Loths were allowed to come to North Carolina and the United States, the Winterville United Fellowship had to give promise of a home and job. They were to be responsible for the first month's expenses insofar as providing rent and groceries.

The Dutch government agreed to finance the transportation to America.

The teenagers themselves, under presidency of Charlotte McLawhon, East Carolina College sophomore and last year's dairy princess, made the rounds here searching for a home and job. When this large house was available, they felt it would make a wonderful home for the Loth family.

Paul Robert Loth, a man of good education and degrees in engineering, apparently was too well qualified for a position in Winterville, so the search for a job led to Greenville and the Utilities Commission, where he is to be employed.

Pretty Daughter

The male members of the Winterville United Fellowship are anxiously awaiting their arrival of the Loths 18-year-old daughter Margreth. Her picture has inspired them to a frenzy of work.

The Loths' other children are Virginia May, 8; Freddy, 5; Paul Robert Jr., 2½; and Jules, 15 months. Loth is in his 30s.

Winterville hopes that after living in a four-room apartment, this thriving family will be happy in the nine-room home being readied for them. Upstairs, a large room with flowered wallpaper will provide a feminine atmosphere. Across the hall, joined by a bath, is a room destined for the two older boys. Red print curtains will make it look like a place for little boys.

Downstairs is a large living room, dining room (both painted gray), a kitchen, bedroom and several other rooms which will provide space for hobby and craft work, or other uses. Paul Robert Loth, it is understood, may want to take college courses here.

The yard provides space for gardening, a hobby Mrs. Loth is said to enjoy.

Flawless English

Since the Loths worked for about 10 years with Americans, the senior Loth speaks almost flawless English, as attested to by Husted who has talked with him over long distance telephone.

This project has been carried on without provision of great financial help. Money has been raised by the youth group through serving weekly suppers to the Kiwanis Club and by their own weekly collections. Paint for the renovation of the home has been given by merchants and some of the fuel has also been given. Merchants and civic groups have cooperated with the fellowship.

However, the project has involved far more than just painting or raising money. Teenagers, using putty knives, have scraped torn paper from walls, and guided by Michael Worthington, they have mixed the patching ingredients like professionals. After a room is cleaned and repaired, painting follows. Everyone has pitched in to help.

At nights and after school, groups have worked, chaperoned by the Husteds or the Christian Church pastor, the Rev. Kenneth Moore.

Ready for Living

When the Loths arrive, the home will be in such "ready living condition" that the family will be able to go straight to bed and upon awaking the next morning they will be able to cook breakfast," Aunt Rita said.

Members of the group have hopes of sending a delegation to greet the Loths upon their arrival at the Kinston Airport on Tuesday. They will be welcomed by the community upon their arrival in Winterville.

More has been produced by this eager fellowship, however, than a home and job for the Loths.

The project has worked a magic of weaving the teenagers, regardless of age, closely together, and has been a tonic to shy personalities. Even better, it has produced an atmosphere of unselfishness. At Christmas, instead of drawing names for gift exchanges, each teenager gave a gift for the Loths, Mrs. Husted related.

Members of the fellowship have demonstrated a willingness as well as the ability to work together in a spirit of cooperation, even though they are not all of the same religious denomination.

Young people working on the project have represented the following churches in Pitt County: Winterville Christian, Winterville Missionary Baptist, Winterville Free Will Baptist, Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist, Ayden Methodist, Salem Methodist at Simpson, Roundtree Christian west of Ayden, and Red Oak Christian. A Lutheran church in Kinston also has assisted on the project.

About the project, one of the group's members, Nick Weaver, says he has enjoyed having "something to do." There isn't much for a teenager to do in spare time here, except play ball or "mess" around.

When this program has been completed, the group says it will be ready for another.

The most important thing has been the spirit of neighborliness and selflessness demonstrated by the young people. They want the Loths to feel welcome here.

Brief Home For A Gray Squirrel

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

It didn't look like much use of picking the small squirrel up. The fall had been about thirty feet. But I did and the small claws fastened on my jacket, and soon the blood had soaked clean through to my shirt. I put it in a small box until I could take it home.

When I got ready to go home, I went to her box and looked in. Two beady eyes looked up as I scratched the little head. I rubbed her hurts in vaseline. At first, I fed her warm milk out of a spoon. Then I got a doll's milk bottle which she took to quickly. And so, for the next five months, we had a squirrel in the house. We learned a lot about squirrels, but whether she learned anything about us, we never did find out.

In the bottle stage, Poopie, as we got to calling her, wasn't much trouble. True, she would climb your legs, digging as she went, but when she got up to your shoulder, she would sit there until you pulled her off. Once and awhile, she would nip you but her bite wasn't much and didn't bother you too much. All you had to do was pick her up and scratch her head or rub her stomach. She would lie and look up at you with half closed eyes and contentment on her sharp little face.

Chewing Instinct
Trouble came with her first pean: for her chewing instinct came to life. Soon her nibbling began to be evident on table legs, chairs and rockers. Pecans, peanuts and etc., were found under rugs, in shoes, between pages of books and any place she could get into.

She started to jump up on the window sills and blinds or any member of the family that happened to be in jumping distance. Curtains were her favorite swinging places. She started looking out of the windows. Her favorite place was a window that looked out upon a pecan tree. Sometimes, she sat looking out at that tree as she was remembering something that seemed to be trying to get through to her.

Then she would forget her tree and start in to pestering. Any writing seemed to delight her. I thought it was the movement of my hand but soon found out it was the pencil. She would grab it and run off and if you didn't get it away from her in a hurry, it would soon end up as a chewed-up piece of wood and lead. She hid things—pieces of crackers, nuts, candy, or almost anything she could tote, down your collar, in your hair, in your pockets and in your shoes.

One night, just before it got real dark, she got out of doors. She ran into one of our cats and he mauled her quite a bit. It was a merry chase until we caught the whimpering squirrel. She cried almost all night and it was a day or two before she finally got over it.

She started sleeping in back of the washing machine; that is, after she had nibbled through all the hoses and put it out of commission. This seemed to be the last of many straws. The squirrel must go, we decided. We talked it over and decided to get her teeth pulled. No one would pull them. So after awhile, we hit upon a plan of conditioning the squirrel for outdoor life. I put her on the side porch. She chewed half the door down.

One Sunday morning, late in February, we took her to the woods. She ran around the woods and up a small tree. That was all—she came back and climbed up and got in my coat pocket. We took her home and she headed for the Bendix and stayed for an hour or so.

I went to work on my income tax, so deep in thought, I didn't hear the patter of her feet as she came up to my chair. I am the only person, or the only that I know, that ever filled out his income tax form with a squirrel sitting on his head.

Wouldn't Leave
We started putting her out in the yard, on the pecan tree, she had been looking at so wisely all winter. She climbed all over it, out on the small limbs, nibbling at the bark. After awhile, she came down, ran up my pants leg and perched on my shoulder. It seemed as if we would be stuck with the squirrel. She didn't want to leave. But we reasoned that one real day of freedom—one day in the land of trees—one day of digging in the ground—one day of scampering over the woods leafy floor—one day of jumping from limb to limb—one day to live as a squirrel was worth more than a lifetime in a house with humans.

March was going out with gusty spells of rain. The squirrel had grown restless of lately—almost impatient at times. Easter Sunday dawned clear and cold. The wind still roamed through the trees but the sun soon took the bite out of the air. I took the squirrel in the car and put a handful of pecans in my pocket. When I got to the woods, I picked out a tall oak—one that had a squirrel's nest in the top. I choice will be a German production, "The Bridge." Admiration.

Everyone has heard one variation or another of the perfect title for a Reader's Digest story.

It's something like "How My Little Dog Cured My Itch, Brought Me A Fortune, and Restored My Faith in God and Man."

Based upon recent sales records of publishers, one might also set up a formula for the perfect Christmas book: a children's story about cookery during the Civil War, illustrated with colored reproductions of religious paintings by the Old Masters.

David Potter of Stanford has borrowed the jingle describing the bride's ensemble to characterize the season's Civil War list:

Something old and something new
Something abridged and borrowed too
Something written with scissors and glue
Something Gray and something Blue.

Paperbacks
The above appeared in the Herald Tribune's extensive recent book supplement which was devoted exclusively to the paperback flood of every possible kind of book. There were 200 titles added to the list last month, for example.

There is much duplication and much junk coming out in paperback format, but the lists of choice titles in various areas like poetry, fiction, classical literature, and archaeology show the possibilities in paperbacks for the serious reader.

In fact, as Gerard Piel of the Scientific American points out in the Herald Tribune supplement, one result of having cheap books available is that the tyranny of the textbook, that "great stiffer and suffocator, the candle-snuffer and wet blanket" can now be broken in every school in the land. So far, according to him, some 3,000 of the 20,000 high schools of the country have set up sales centers for paperbacks. It is in these schools that the students at least have a chance to explore for themselves the complex problems which their textbooks tend to ignore or to glaze over with simplified answers.

Spring List

Easily the most arresting title is "The Stained-Glass Jungle," by Gregory Wilson. Yes, it will deal with church politics, Methodist, in fact, though it could have been those of any major denomination.

From New York comes word that Katharine Anne Porter's "Ship of Fools" will soon be released. This is a work which has been long awaited from an author whom some consider one of the country's best stylists.

There is also a new novel by former Tar Heel Robert Ruark on the spring list, a book about Africa called "Uhuru" (Swahili for "freedom"), which will deal with the political situation on the world's most troubled continent. Though Ruark is popular, he is not among the heaviest selling novelists of the moment. These are Hemingway, Frank Slaughter, Irving Stone, Leon Urdis, and James Michener.

Greenville Author
Of great interest to Greenvillians is word that Dr. Howard McGinnis of this city has a book coming out very soon. Called "Know Your Bible Better: A Layman's Studies Old Testament History and Literature," this work will be issued by Seeman in Durham. It is based upon Dr. McGinnis's many years' experience as a Bible student and Sunday school teacher and can be obtained from Ellington's or from the publisher. It is good to welcome Dr. McGinnis to the growing band of Greenville authors.

Late TV Show

Another enterprise which deserves a word and a boost is the new late show on WNCN. In format it is a sort of "magazine of the air" and therefore is a miscellany. So far it has included music, editorials, comments upon art, politics, and a half dozen other subjects. There have been experts explaining their fields, along with good, relaxed late evening chit-chat on this and that. Congratulations to Corinne Rickert, Hartwell Campbell, and Ed Fields for experimenting this way and for bringing a program with so many possibilities to Greenville and Eastern Carolina.

Coming Events
And now for a quick look at the calendar.
On February 8, Austin, 7:00 there will be another of those foreign films. This time the

Exiled Luciano Involved In N. Y. Narcotics Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Treasury officials say exiled gangster Charles (Lucky) Luciano had his hands in a multimillion-dollar New York narcotics conspiracy when he died last week in Italy.

Treasury officials also disclosed Friday that he was about to be arrested when he died at a Naples airport Jan. 26.

The death of Luciano, reputedly a leader of the Sicily-based crime syndicate known as the Mafia, was attributed to a heart attack. The Treasury officials said they had no evidence to the contrary, but noted that Italian authorities are investigating the cause of his death.

Greenville F. W. B. Announcements

The Greenville Free Will Baptist Church Sunday School, with Mr. Stephen Walters as superintendent, will meet at 9:45 a.m. and study God's Word on the subject "The Christian Use of the Lord's Day." At the 11 a.m. worship service the Senior Choir, under the direction of Mr. William Lloyd and with Mrs. Bill Taylor at the organ, will sing the anthem "Am I a Soldier of the Cross?" Arne-Brown, Rev. Crawford's sermon topic will be "Christ's Threefold Mission."

At 6:30 p.m. the Leagues, with David Nobles as General Director, will meet for a period of training. The evening worship begins at 7:30 p.m. The pastor's sermon topic at that time will be "The 'I' in Sin, Pride, and Saviour." Following the service there will be a spiritual and social time to culminate in the "The Christian Use of the Lord's Day." All young people are urged to be present and bring your friends and parents.

The flowers are given by the Men's Bible Class of the Sunday School to express their love for the Lord and His church; also in love for their children, and all young people of this church. Mrs. Carl Adams and Mrs. Joseph Averette will be in charge of the nursery at the 11 a.m. worship.

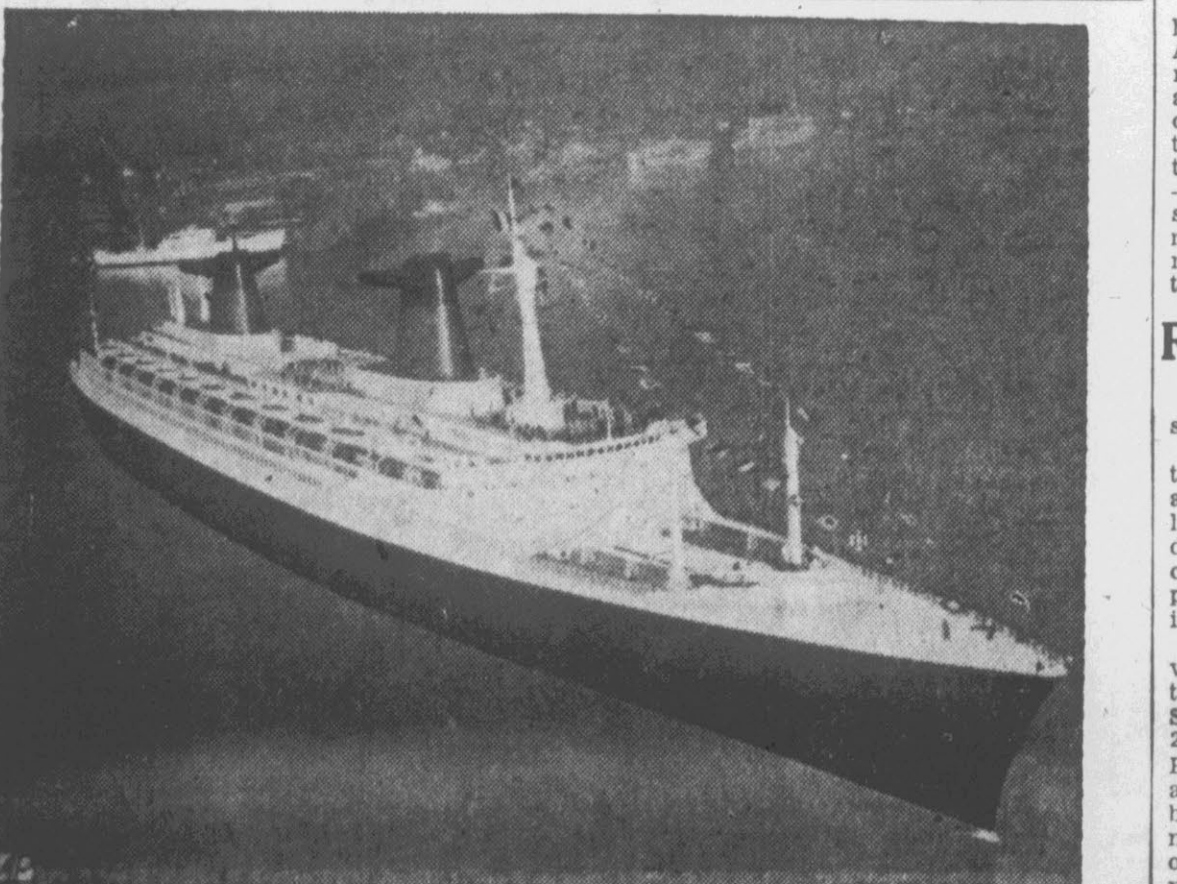

Visitation evangelism will be Tuesday, 7:30 p.m. At the same time the Y. P. A.'s will meet in the church annex basement. Wednesday night at 7:30 the Chorus Choir, the Junior Choir, and the Adult Fellowship will meet to sing. Prayer services begin at 8 p.m. with a study of the subject "Paths to Power."

Thursday afternoon at 4:15 the G. T. A.'s and B. A.'s meet with Miss Betty Pittman, 1105 Forbes St. At 7 p.m. Thursday the Willing Workers Sunday School Class meets in the church annex basement for a covered dish supper, devotions, and class business meeting. At 8:00 the same night, the Senior Choir meets.

Boy Scout Troop 452 meets Friday 7:30 p.m. in the church annex basement. Sunday, Feb. 11, at the 11 a.m. service Mount Olive College Day will be observed. A quartet from the college will sing and Mr. Robert Moye, business manager of the college, will deliver the sermon.

A church library is being organized. The Sunday School and Woman's Auxiliary are co-sponsors. More than 100 books have been catalogued and carded and will be made available soon. All classes and church groups are encouraged to donate money for the purchase of new books. Those having books to give or lend may contact Miss Betty Pittman at the church office.

Parents! Do you know what your child is reading in books and magazines that could help or hurt him? Check your home and child. The Devil is pouring out poison through the printed and photographed page.

Robt. And Ethel Kennedy 'Wet' In Boat Mishap

HONOLULU (AP)—Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and his wife Ethel and another woman were dunked in the Pacific a quarter mile offshore today when their sailboat capsized in choppy seas.

They were picked up several minutes later by two Navy pilots who were water-skiing in the area. The Kennedys laughed off the incident.

The other woman was identified only as Mrs. Wilson, traveling with the Kennedy party on a round-the-world trip.

Lt. (j.g.) Ned Soares, 25, of Fairhaven, Mass., said he and Lt. (j.g.) Stan Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin of Pensacola, Fla., had spotted three heads in the water as their boat neared Sand Island between Honolulu and Pearl Harbor.

"The man waved to us and we went over and offered our help," Soares said. "They accepted, and as we helped them aboard, the Kennedys recognized Kennedy. We took them to a Navy pier at Sand Island where a group of agitated officers was waiting for them."

"They whisked the Kennedys away so fast that all we had time for was a quick handshake and thanks."

There was no official explanation, but Soares said it appeared stiff winds and rough water had combined to capsize the sailboat. "I didn't ask him what happened," Soares said. "A sailor doesn't like to talk about things like that."

The Navy sailboat later was righted and towed to shore by a launch.

Asked why the Kennedys were the first to recognize Kennedy, Soares said, "They caught his name. I'm from Massachusetts, and I don't recognize the Boston accent because it's not an accent to me."

Both the naval lieutenants are stationed at Barbers Point Naval Air Station.

'Anti-Factors' Of Civic Beauty

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — So you think your city is beautiful?

Does it have exposed electrical wiring; a proliferation of small stop signs, billboards, etc.; dirt and rubbish receptacles; unshielded parking lots; elevated tracks and highways?

All those are called anti-beauty factors by Joseph Sloane, president of the North Carolina Art Society.

What are the beauty factors? Sloane says they include well-conceived spaces, streets, shores, squares; preservation of native landmarks; handsome and varied design for all large buildings; intelligent use of trees, shrubbery and grass.

Sloane gave his views here Thursday at a conference of North Carolina urban planners.

He said that helping to make a city more beautiful is a long, hard job because so few people seem to care about such things.

What's needed, Sloane said, is the gradual creation of an influential group in each metropolis to whom beauty is a vital concern. He said average citizens "don't know what beauty is when they see it."

He added that city aldermen, real estate men, bankers and promoters aren't much better in that respect.

Sloane said the architects "they usually choose are 'safe' people who can be depended upon to produce a neat, but dull or even banal result."

There's another thing: How does your city smell? The planners were told they should use their noses and ears in their planning.

George S. Welsh, a psychologist, said more attention should be given to "sounds and smells" in city planning. He said little attention is given to the way things smell and the sounds of a city.

Must Prove She Can Cook First

FOLKSTONE, England (AP)—A court has told 19-year-old Barbara Cairns she must prove she can cook before she gets married.

Barbara appealed to the court Friday for permission to wed Eric Goldsack, 19, over the objections of her father, who complained she didn't know how to cook. Being under 21 she needed parental consent to marry.

Magistrate Percy Gurr, 70, lent a sympathetic ear to Barbara's plea, but told her: "You can't expect young husbands to live on tins of sardines. They need a substantial meal."

The elderly jurist gave Barbara three months to practice up in her cooking and said he would give her another hearing. He said, "I made sure before I married that my wife could cook."

No Aid Unless Father Named

UNION CITY, Tenn. (AP)—Under a new welfare system here, mothers seeking county aid for their illegitimate children must name the father and swear out a warrant for his arrest.

The plan is aimed at relieving Obion County taxpayers by making the fathers pay for the support of their illegitimate children. After a few months operation it's reported working pretty well.

It's the brainchild of Judge Dan McKinnis who said he had "been thinking for some time whether it was the duty and obligation of the taxpayers to support these children when their fathers could be doing it."

If the mother refuses to name the father, welfare aid is withheld. "We would feel certainly that she was not cooperating," McKinnis said. But if the man cannot be located, the woman is still entitled to welfare aid.

She and her husband, shoe tycoon Harry Karl, had planned to leave for Europe within the next 10 days. Her agent said they have decided to make the trip later.

Peiping To Show Kennedy Movie

TOKYO (AP)—Red China announced Friday its movie theaters would begin showing Monday, the Chinese lunar New Year's day, a film titled, "The True Portrait of President Kennedy."

Radio Peiping said the production, pieced together from shots by Chinese and foreign newsmen, emphasizes the theme "U.S. imperialism is the enemy of the people of the world." Kennedy's administration was called "worse" than the previous government.

On The Job In A Pouring Rain

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds" is a quotation often applied to postmen.

But, apparently, it also applies to the Nashville Public Works Department. It was pouring down rain recently; the gutters were full to the curb-tops; automobiles splashed slowly through the pools at intersections.

And there, down the middle of the street, moved a city water-truck, jets spraying on both sides—performing its routine duty of washing the streets.

Modest Investment Making Dent In North Carolina's Teacher Shortage

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH (AP) — For a modest investment, North Carolina is making a dent on the teacher shortage and helping hundreds of youngsters to a college education.

Under the 5-year-old program, the state loans $350 per year to deserving college students who prepare for a teaching career in North Carolina.

One year of teaching within the state repays the loan. Thus a student who received the help during all four years of college could clear the debt by teaching four years in a North Carolina public school.

The idea has appeal for high school seniors. At least, 1,450 of them applied last year. Since only 450 new loans were available, that meant 1,000 disappointments.

Clifton T. Edwards, who has charge of the program for the State Department of Public Instruction, said he looks for around 1,500 applications this year.

Applications for the academic year starting next fall must be in Edwards' hands by March 1. He already has received more than 730.

The 1957 legislature started the program, as an effort to produce home - grown school teachers. Funds were set up to provide for 300 new students each year. The 1961 General Assembly expanded the program to 450 per year.

"We are going to watch closely the caliber of applicants and the records they make in the next two years," Edwards said. "Then, we will take inventory and decide whether to ask the 1963 legislature for a larger program."

There are now 356 teachers in North Carolina schools who received the aid. Another 1,325 are enrolled in 49 colleges in the state and about 250 of them will qualify in June for teaching certificates.

If the student receiving a loan doesn't finish college, or if he doesn't carry out the agreement to teach in North Carolina, the money can be repaid with 4 per cent annual interest.

Only a small minority fall into this class, said Edwards. So far, he added, the state hasn't lost any money on the program.

The student who qualifies for a loan can go to the college of his choice. If his work is satisfactory, the loan can be renewed each year, up to four years.

Edwards estimated that the $350 covers approximately one-third to one-half of college costs, depending on the institution chosen. "From many boys and girls, that amount of help can make the difference," he commented.

Financial need is a factor in the award of the loans. However, Edwards said there is "no fine line as to the amount of income" for an applicant with a promising academic background.

When the program matures, Edwards noted, there should be 1,800 prospective teachers involved—with 450 ready to join the teaching force each year.

School experts estimate a need for around 2,000 or so new teachers per year.

This means, Edwards pointed out, that the loan program could supply nearly one-fourth of this need. During the school year, Edwards visits schools where the loan students are enrolled, to answer questions from either students or college officials.

School administrators already are learning to look to the loan program for teachers. "A local superintendent will know of a student under the program," explained Edwards, "and will keep tabs on the student, to be ready to offer a job upon graduation."

New Stargazing Balloons Readied

CHICO, Calif. (AP) — The Air Force plans to launch within the next few days the first of three balloons to be released in Project Stargazer, designed to carry two men and a telescope to an altitude of 87,000 feet later this spring.

The first two balloons will be unmanned. The first balloon is expected to be recovered several hundred miles east, depending on winds aloft at the time, a spokesman said Friday.

Revenue Office Finds More Errors In Returns

By RICHARD H. HOENIG
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A couple of drinks, an entertaining mystery story—and even the wife—could be a big help when you face up to that pesky chore of figuring your income tax this year.

At least that's some of the advice offered by the Internal Revenue Service to help reduce the mounting number of taxpayers who make simple mistakes in arithmetic on their returns.

"After you make out your form, put it aside, take a rest, go to the movies, or have a couple of drinks," suggested an official of the New York Regional Commissioner's Office of the IRS.

"Then, after a day or two, go back and check the figures. If everyone did this, we could cut the simple arithmetic errors by 75 per cent," he estimated.

"In most cases a taxpayer re-checking his figures immediately after putting them down will make the same error all over again," the revenue man explained.

How does the little woman come in—besides keeping the kids quiet during your aching session with pencil and eraser?

"Well, a wife can also help by checking the figures on the return," the Internal Revenue Service man suggested. "That provides an independent check of the mathematics, and you don't have to show your figures to someone outside the family."

Simple addition and subtraction mistakes are turning up in increasing numbers, the IRS has found. In the year ended June 30, 1961, some 2.5 million taxpayers made errors in arithmetic on their federal returns. That was up 24 per cent from the previous year.

Increased mathematical verification of returns through electronic aids is one reason more mistakes are popping up, the service believes. Also, more returns are being filed, which means that more taxpayers are making them up for the first time.

"Not all the errors are in favor of the taxpayer, either. It's no one-way street," the revenue man said.

Figures for the latest year available show that 1.5 million taxpayers had to pay more tax after government checks of their figures. Some 931,000 received refunds as a result of the mathematical verification.

Where are the errors most likely to occur?

They crop up mostly in the simple additions of two lines, in transferring figures from one page to another, in picking up figures from the withholding forms, and in transposition of digits, he said.

Thomas Appeal Hearing Slated For Tuesday

RALEIGH (AP)—The appeal of State Sen. Max Thomas of Union County, who is seeking to file as a Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor in the May primary, has been set for hearing before the State Supreme Court Tuesday.

In setting the hearing, the high court acted on a motion to advance the hearing date so the case can be disposed of early. The court opens its spring term Tuesday.

Thomas lost the first round of his fight before Superior Court Judge William Y. Bickett recently. This set the stage for a court test on whether an election will be held this year to fill the office vacated by the death of Lt. Gov. H. Cloyd Philpott last August.

CHAPTER 18

Felix Leiter brought from his luggage what looked like a camera in a portable leather case. "Here, give me a hand," he said to James Bond.

Leiter took off his wrist watch and strapped on what appeared to be another watch. He slung the "camera" by its strap over his left shoulder. "Now run those wires from the watch up my sleeve and down inside my coat. Right. Now these two small plugs go through these holes in my coat pocket and into the two holes in the box. Got it? Now we're all fixed."

Leiter stood back and posed. "Man with a camera and a wrist watch." He unbuckled the flap of the camera. "See? Perfectly good lenses and all that. Even a button to press in case you have to take a picture. But in back of the make-believe there's a metal valve, a circuit, and batteries. Now take a look at this watch. And it's a watch."

He held it under Bond's eyes. "Only difference is that it's a very small watch mechanism and that sweep second-hand is a meter that takes the radioactive count. Those wires up the sleeve hitch it on to the machine. Now then, you're still wearing that old wrist watch of yours with the big phosphorus numerals. So I walk around the room for a moment to get the background count. That's basic. All sorts of things give off radiation of some sort. And I take an occasional glance at my watch — nervous type and I've got an appointment coming up. Now here, by the bathroom, all that metal is giving off something and my watch is registering positive, but very little. Nothing else in the room and I've established the amount of background interference I'll have to discount when I start to get hot. Right?"

"Now I come close up to you and my camera's only a few inches away from your hand. Here take a look. Put your watch right up against the counter. See! The sweep-hand is getting all excited. Move your watch away and it loses interest. It's those phosphorus numerals of yours. Remember the other day one of the watch companies withdrew an air pilot's watch from the market because the Atomic Energy people got fussy? Same thing. They thought this particular pilot's watch, with the big phosphorescent numerals, was giving off too much radiation to be good for the wearer."

"Of course"—Leiter patted the camera case—"this is a special job. Most types give off a clicking sound, and if you're prospecting for uranium, which is the big market for these machines, you wear earphones to try to pick up the stuff underground. For this job we don't need anything so sensitive. If we get near where those bombs are hidden, this damned sweep-hand'll go right off the dial. Okay? So let's pay a call on the ocean greyhound."

The hotel launch took them westward from the harbor, past Silver Cay, Long Cay, and Balmoral Island, and round Delaport Point.

Five miles farther down the coast, encrusted with glittering seashore properties the boatman said cost 400 pounds per foot of beach frontage, they rounded Old Fort Point and came upon the gleaming white and dark blue ship lying with two anchors out in deep water just outside the reef. Leiter whistled. He said in an awestruck voice, "Boy, is that a piece of boat! I'd sure like to have one of those to play with in my bath."

Bond said, "She's Italian. Built by a firm at Messina. Thing called an Allisafco. She's got a hydrofoil under the hull and when she gets going you let this sort of sid down and she rises up and practically flies. Only the screws and a few feet of the stern stay in the water. The Police Commissioner says she can do fifty knots in calm water. Only good for inshore work of course, but they can carry upwards of a hundred passengers when they're designed as fast ferries. Apparently this one's been designed for about forty."

The rest of the space is taken up with the owner's quarters and cargo space. Must have cost damned near a quarter of a million."

The boatman broke in. "They say on Bay Street that she goes after the treasure these next few days or so. All the people that own shares in the gold come in a few days ago. Then she open one whole night doin' a final recon. They say is down Exhuma way, or over by Watkins Island. Guess you folks know that's where Columbus made his first landfall on this side of the Atlantic. Around fourteen ninety something". But could be anywhere down there. They's always been talk of treasure down 'mongst the Ragged Islands—even as far as Crooked Island. Fact is she sail out southward. Hear her myself, right until her engines died away. East by south-east, 'da say."

The boatman spat discreetly over the side. "Must be plenty heap of treasure with the cost of that ship and all the money they throwing 'way. Every time she go to the Hoiling Wharf they say the bill's five hundred pound."

Bond said casually, "Which night was it they did the final recon?"

"Night after she hoiled. That'd be two nights ago. Sail round six."

The blank portholes of the ship watched them approach. A sailor polishing brass round the curve of the enclosed dome that was the bridge walked through the hatch into the bridge and Bond could see him talking into a mouthpiece. A tall man in white ducks and a very wide mesh singlet appeared on deck and observed them through binoculars.

He called something to the sailor, who came and stood at the top of the ladder down the starboard side. When their launch came alongside, the man cupped his hands and called down. "What is your business, please? Have you an appointment?"

Bond called back. "It's Mr. Bond. Mr. James Bond. From New York. I have an inquiry to make about Palmyra, Mr. Largo's property."

"One moment, please." The sailor disappeared and returned accompanied by the man in white ducks and singlet. Bond recognized him from the police description. He called down cheerfully. "Come aboard, come aboard."

He gestured for the sailor to go down and help fend the launch. Bond and Leiter climbed out of the launch and went up the ladder.

Largo held out a hand. "My name is Emilio Largo. Mr. Bond? And...?"

"Mr. Larkin, my attorney from New York. Actually I'm English, but I have property in America." They shook hands. "I'm sorry to bother you, Mr. Largo, but it's about Palmyra, the property I believe you rent from Mr. Bryce."

"Ah, yes, of course." The beautiful teeth gleamed warmth and welcome. "Come on down to the stateroom, gentlemen. I'm sorry I am not properly dressed to receive you."

The big brown hands caressed his flanks, the wide mouth turned down in deprecation. "My visitors usually announce themselves on the ship-to-shore. But if you will forgive the informality."

Largo allowed the phrase to die through the air and ushered them through a low hatch and down a few aluminum steps into the main cabin. The rubber-lined hatch hissed to behind him. It was a fine large cabin paneled in mahogany with a deep wine-red carpet and comfortable dark blue leather club chairs.

The sun shining through the slats of venetian blinds over the broad square ports added a touch of ray light to an otherwise rather somber and masculine room. Its long center table littered with papers and charts, glass-fronted cabinets containing fishing gear and an array of guns and other weapons, and a black rubber underwater diving suit and aqua lung suspended, almost like the skeleton in a sorcerer's den, from a rack in one corner.

Bond and Leiter can get aboard the Disco, but can they get off without firing the hands in the deadly game? Continue "Thunderball" here Monday.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

The connection between loving one's fellow man and knowing God will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday.

Opening the Bible readings in the Lesson-Sermon on "Love" are these verses: "Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and everyone that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love." (I John 4).

A citation to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "Love inspires, illumines, designates, and leads the way. Right motives give pin to the lions to thought, and strength and freedom to speech and action" (p. 454).

Ex-General Walker In Gubernatorial Race

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Edwin A. Walker, the controversial former Army general, and Gov. Price Daniel, who wants to be Texas' first four-term chief executive, dove into a hot gubernatorial race Friday.

Both became candidates for nomination in a May 5 Democratic primary election that promises to be bitterly contested.

Walker, 52, resigned as a major general last year after the Army relieved him of command of the 24th Division in Germany and reprimanded him for a troop indoctrination program. He since has aligned himself with extreme rightist groups.

Also bidding for the Democratic nomination are:

John B. Connally, 44, a close associate of Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson who resigned as secretary of the Navy to make the race.

Marshall Formby, 51, a former Texas Highway Commission chairman.

Will Wilson, 49, state attorney general and a former Texas Supreme Court justice.

Don Yarborough, 36, a Houston lawyer.

Seeking the Republican nomination is businessman Jack Cox, 40, of Breckenridge. He ran as a Democrat to years ago, polling 619,834 votes against 908,992 for Daniel.

Other potential candidates have until Monday midnight to file.

Walker paid his $1,000 filing fee to the state Democratic Executive Committee late Friday, flying here from Dallas.

An aide of Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said in Washington that Tower and Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., both urged Walker not to enter politics. The aide said both senators told Walker his crusade for a principle would lose "gloss and glitter" if he became a candidate.

Rep. Bruce Alger, R-Tex., in Dallas to announce his own candidacy for re-election, said he had appealed to Walker to "carry his story to the people before adopting a political tag," and then to seek a federal office as a Republican.

"I am very much interested in everybody's opinions, but I make my own decisions," Walker said. "I am committed to no one and I do not intend to be."

"My causes and purposes are what I can do in the best interest of my home state," he said.

Daniel, 51, disclosed his candidacy in a statewide television appearance five hours after Walker filed.

Religious Publications Taking A Look At JFK's First Year

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Under such titles as "The Religions Issue Revisited," journals of religion throughout the country have been devoting a good deal of space lately to assessments of the first Catholic president's first year in office.

Most agree President Kennedy has been successful in allaying the fears of some Protestants that church-state separation would suffer with a Catholic in the White House.

Some went even further: "We have the phenomenon," writes John Wicklein in American Judaism, "of a Roman Catholic holding to a stronger and more specific commitment on church and state than any Protestant ever gave."

Similarly, Christian Century, a nondenominational Protestant magazine, began a lead editorial with the flat statement that Kennedy "has compiled a better record on the issue of separation of church and state than any other president we have had in the past 30 years."

The rest of the Christian Century editorial was given to chiding the Jesuit publication America, which a week earlier had presented its Catholic appraisal of the President's first year.

With respect to his church, America said, Kennedy had conducted himself "more or less as almost any Catholic president might have been expected to conduct himself in a land largely dominated, in the cultural sense, by a strong residual Protestant tradition."

"The Jesuit journal noted that for understandable political reasons," the President seemed to avoid close public association with his own church's dignitaries, but that on the other hand "photographs of the President with Protestant spokesmen like evangelist Billy Graham are pure 14-karat gold."

Kennedy "has regularly bent over backward so as to make it dramatically clear to any Southern Baptist who might be watching that he doesn't give an inch."

In reply, Baptist Press quotes its executive director of public affairs, C. Emanuel Carlson: "If the President is as politically motivated as the editor (of America) says he is, and if he is as conscious of the Southern Baptists as the editorial claims, then I am very happy that the Southern Baptists are not making great demands for appropriations from the government."

In his article in American Judaism, reporter Wicklein said he had found that many who opposed Kennedy in 1960 on religious grounds today were "mollified but watchful," and that his election had not necessarily quashed the religious issue for all time.

Wicklein said he had discovered that while most former opponents today "have little but good to say about the man they fought so hard," there still appeared to be no change in "the extreme anti-Catholic group that manifested itself so strongly" at the end of the 1960 campaign.

"There are plenty of folk in the Midwest and South," Wicklein wrote, "who aren't going to let Kennedy's support of religious freedom get in the way of their prejudices."

Loretta Young Working Hard On New TV Series

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There was Loretta Young on the Hollywood studio street, looking as pert and pretty as when she used to whip through that drawing room doorway on TV Sunday nights.

"What's doing?" I asked.

"New series," she replied. And twenty minutes later, she had told me the plot of the pilot film and all the details of her new TV show. Then she dashed off with a whisk of petticoats.

It takes some doing to keep up with the dynamic Loretta. When her show faded from TV after eight successful years, no one believed she would be idle for long.

"Oh, I've enjoyed having the vacation," she said. "But I also like to work. That is to say, I enjoy the actual work—the making of the show. All the preparation is the hard part."

The Loretta Young Show was swept off TV in the anti-feminist drive that saw the networks canceling shows starring nearly every female personality except Donna Reed.

The ladies made a small comeback this season with Gertrude Berg, Shirley Booth ("Hazel"), and "Marge." Next season may see a return of femininity (new word) to TV, with the possibility of Loretta, Lucille Ball and Eve Arden being back with new shows.

"I think we have a good chance with ours," said Loretta. "At least I think it's good. We'll see how they think back East."

The pilot was financed by a sponsor, and that's a good sign. The show is now called "Christine's Children." You've guessed it—a family show. But Loretta is going all out to beat the others; she'll have seven children, ranging from 6 to 18.
