

Kennedy Again Asks Congress Pass Education Aid

By STERLING F. GREEN WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy told Congress today a crisis in American schooling makes it imperative that a five-year $5.7 billion aid to education program be enacted this year.

He said the outlay would be "the most profitable investment society can make." As if to refute reports that his administration would be willing to forego funds for aiding public school construction and higher teachers' pay, the President put that contested measure at the top of his list.

Next came aid for college construction and scholarships, which are given a better chance of becoming law. Third was an array of "special" education and training programs with emphasis on more support for science and engineering, medical and dental training, and a broad attack on adult illiteracy.

Whether today's urgent plea would give the stalled teacher salary and construction bill a fresh start was doubtful. Few gave the bill much chance, even if revived. But Kennedy spoke out strongly for vigorous government help. In the past year "our crucial needs have intensified and our deficiencies have grown more critical," he said. "It is imperative that such a proposal carrying out these objectives be enacted this session." The country must provide facilities for 14 million more elementary, secondary and college students by 1970, the message said, or an increase of 30 per cent. College enrollments alone will nearly double.

The House has approved only the construction portion. The President therefore aimed at the Senate his appeal that scholarships be restored to the bill. Two administration bills embodying segments of Kennedy's program are new this year. They were scheduled to go to Congress after the message.

An appendage of the general public school aid bill would provide $747 million over five years to give elementary and high school teachers up to 2,500 scholarships a year for full-time study at colleges. It also would assist the establishment of institutes for teachers at colleges.

The other presidential recommendations included: A 10-year program of matching grants for the building of 20 new medical schools and 20 new dental schools. In addition to the offering of four-year scholarships for one-fourth of the entering students in each medical and dental school in the country. In the first five years the cost would be $600 million; in fiscal 1963, $9 million.

Pitt Board Sees No Major Items

Pitt County's Commissioners Monday heard routine reports and hurried through a brief afternoon session marked by the absence of major action.

The official board received and approved the January tax report, granted a pair of appropriations and complied with a request of the Pitt County Grand Jury that a form be prepared for regular grand jury inspections of county property.

County Auditor H. R. Gray and County Attorney W. W. Speight were requested to prepare and make available to the grand jurors the recommended form.

An appropriation of $7,500 was granted Pitt Memorial Hospital for its deficit operations budget. The $7,500 marked the second half of $15,000 in prior years surpluses budgeted for hospital deficits during fiscal 1961-62.

The first $7,500 went to the hospital during January without need for action by the commissioners. When the budget was formulated, the official board stipulated specific board action would be required for appropriation of the second half of the funds.

Another appropriation, requested by Pitt Civil Defense Director J. H. Rose, was granted as advance funds to pay for county-wide communications equipment. The county will be reimbursed by federal matching funds for its grant Monday of $831.88.

In his request, Rose noted that the Civil Defense Council had in its treasury $1,600 to finance the $2,431.88 cost of central and community radio units. After payment of the full amount, Rose said, a reimbursement of $1,251.94 will be returned through federal funds.

Tax Collector and Supervisor Robert S. Moyer told the commissioners his office during January collected a total of $139,392. That figure brought collections from July 1 through Jan. 25 this fiscal year to $1,317,836.86, more than $50,000 above the $1,265,799.20 collected during the corresponding period a year ago.

In other action, the commissioners granted a request from Pitt County Drainage Districts No. 4 and No. 8 and the Long Branch Canal Co. that the county auditor's office be used for handling funds to finance additional aid in planning conservation projects in the three districts.

Under the arrangement, Gray will act as disbursing agent for the additional employees. Funds for the extra help will be supplied by the three drainage districts.

The commissioners approved a road petition submitted by a member of the board, Bruce Strickland of Bell Arthur, asking road improvements on a short strip of roadway in Bell Arthur.

A native of Craven County, the candidate has been practicing law in New Bern since 1953 and has served as Solicitor of the Craven County Recorder's Court for the past six years.

Newsmen Banned From Helicopter Combat Missions

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. military authorities in Saigon today banned Western correspondents from accompanying future U. S. helicopter combat missions against the Communist guerrilla forces in South Viet Nam.

U. S. Army and Air Force spokesmen said the ban was ordered by Adm. Arthur D. Felt, commander in chief Pacific, based in Pearl Harbor.

Several U.S. military men here said they considered the report accurate and responsible. "This is the kind of reporting we need from here," one said. They declined use of their names.

The eyewitness account was by Roy Essoyan, a longtime AP correspondent. It gave a graphic account of the operation. It said the U.S. helicopter lift went off with clockwork precision. An American military adviser on the mission said the operation failed due to faulty communications and shortage of U.S. helicopters and Vietnamese troops.

U.S. military pilots fly the helicopters. U.S. military personnel man the guns at the helicopters' doors in case of attack. U.S. military advisers accompany Vietnamese units into battle.

DeGaulle Peace Promise Met By Daring 'Secret Army' Maneuver

ORAN, Algeria (AP) — The European Secret Army answered President Charles de Gaulle's promise of an Algerian peace agreement with the daring seizure today of an Oran newspaper. Secret Army commandos blanketed the city with a pirate edition asserting the French settlers will win their battle to block Algerian independence.

The publication and distribution of thousands of copies of the contraband newspaper in Algeria's second city was probably the most daring propaganda coup yet pulled off by Gen. Raoul Salan's rightist underground.

It followed only by hours De Gaulle's address to France in which he scorned the Secret Army as "subversive and criminal" and vowed that nothing would stand in the way of his plans for Algerian peace and independence.

De Gaulle's speech buoyed Algerians' hopes with new hope and optimism. Although he did not say an agreement had been reached with the rebel provisional government, many saw an end of the 7 1/2-year-old rebellion near at hand. "This time peace is really around the corner," said one.

The speech aroused new bitterness and hatred among the North African territory's Europeans. The Secret Army wasted no time in demonstrating anew its defiance of De Gaulle.

A commando group of about 30 armed men, their faces masked with scarves, invaded the newspaper Echo d'Oran at 2 a.m. as the printers were about to start the night's run.

Herding aside workers in the composing room, the raiders in 30 minutes recast the newspaper's back page devoted to North African news.

The new page showed: A banner headline saying "Special Edition of the OAS" (Organisation de l'Armee Secrete).

The text of a speech delivered by ex-Gen. Edmond Jouhaud in a pirate broadcast over Radio Oran Monday night. The Secret Army kept De Gaulle off Oran's TV screens by kidnapping seven radio technicians and broadcasting a speech by Jouhaud in which he declared: "We will fight to the death, victory is ours." In their haste, the raiders printed this speech upside down.

A portrait of Jouhaud working at his desk in a secret headquarters somewhere in Algeria. A picture of Salan across the whole upper part of the page.

Under the raiders' guns, about 20,000 copies of the new edition were run off. Beginning at 7 a.m., runners spread through the streets of Oran distributing copies eagerly snatched up by Europeans.

Authorities immediately ordered a general police alert, but by then the Secret Army men were back in hiding. The Algerian rebel regime apparently after weighing De Gaulle's speech, issued a terse three-line communique at its headquarters in Tunis saying it had examined the Algerian problem and had "in consequence, taken decision."

There was no indication of what decision had been taken or whether it concerned a reported tentative Algerian settlement. High diplomatic sources have reported in recent days that the French and rebels in secret talks have reached agreement in principle on Algerian peace and independence.

De Gaulle in his speech promised he soon would make public France's proposals to the rebel regime. He declared France is "traveling under full sail" toward achieving his objectives in Algeria—"to bring about peace within the shortest time, and to help Algeria to take its destiny in hand and to quickly create a provisional executive body."

France, he vowed, is ready to recognize "without any restriction what will certainly come from a self-determination vote—that is a sovereign and independent Algerian state."

Anger flashed in his eyes when he turned to the outlawed Secret Army. He said "it is necessary to reduce and punish" the terrorists.

"The nation unanimously despises and condemns these people, their plots and their terrorism," he said.

Algeria's Europeans saw nothing encouraging in De Gaulle's speech. They were bitter over De Gaulle's reaffirmation of his plan to withdraw the bulk of French forces from Algeria to France in 1962 as a preliminary to giving France its own atomic striking force by the end of 1963.

"If the army is withdrawn, who will guarantee our future," said one European.

The cheerleader then led the students in school cheers. From the back the hecklers continued their jeering, hooped up wooden chairs and climbed on top of them, shouting, "Go home. Leave the platform, Cuba."

January Sales Tax Receipts Up By $3.9 Million

RALEIGH (AP) — Last month's sales tax collections, which reflected December Christmas business, showed an increase of $3.9 million of 40.24 per cent over January, 1961.

Revenue Commissioner William A. Johnson said Monday the figure was pretty much in line with estimates received after the legislature enacted a 3 per cent sales tax on food.

He said the increase "was not quite as high as we expected in view of the glowing reports from businessmen during the Christmas shopping season."

Total revenues for January totaled $50 million against $41.2 million for the same month last year. The general fund was up $1.39 per cent to $30.2 million and the highway fund up 8.49 per cent to $19.8 million.

Sales tax collections for the last half of 1961 totaled $69.5 million against $47.8 million for the same period in 1960 before the food tax was imposed.

In his monthly reports, Johnson has said the sales tax changes were combining with the state's normal economic growth to keep revenues in line with estimates.

Total revenues for the first seven months of the fiscal year reached $262.3 million, up 9.32 per cent. The highway fund showed a 6.16 per cent increase and the general fund a 10.75 per cent gain.

The major supplier to the highway fund, the gasoline tax, was up 5.91 per cent to $65.8 million for the first seven months of the fiscal year.

Beaunit Mills Plant In Martin Expects Begin Work Next Week

BEAUNIT MILLS, INC., HAMILTON PLANT . . . This $1.5 million structure, soon to house $2 million in knitting, dyeing and finishing equipment, will see new industry operation next week. (Reflector Staff Photo)

HAMILTON—Effects on the area economy have already been felt from a $3.5-million investment in this Martin County community on the south bank of the Roanoke River.

The economic punch has been felt since construction of Beaunit Mills' $1.5-million knitting, dyeing and finishing plant was begun in July. Now the project is virtually complete.

A still greater hypodermic for the economy is expected next week as the operation's first 70 employees are scheduled to begin the knitting operation. Within two years, according to the production schedule, the plant will employ 700 persons engaged in knitting, dyeing and finishing operations.

The brick structure, centered in a 47-acre tract just south of this community of 565, sprawls over about three acres. Total floor space in the plant is 180,000 square feet.

In addition to the $1.5 million structure investment, Beaunit will install about $2 million worth of equipment. After employment reaches the 700 mark, Beaunit's payroll will total about $1 million annually, predictions say.

The majority of Beaunit's personnel will come from the immediate area. Plans call for about 12 to 15 imported supervisors and foremen to guide an initial employment of about 70.

Manager of the local plant is Harold Love, brought here from Covington, Va. Employees will come at first from a pilot operation underway in Robersonville since October.

The plant is equipped with deep wells and a water tank designed to provide water at the rate of about a million gallons per day. This water system would be adequate to supply water for a municipality of about 10,000.

Also included in the plant's equipment are facilities for treating the waste material before it is dumped into the Roanoke.

The fireman, who asked that his name not be used, was one of several persons who told interviewers Monday that the airport should have better firefighting equipment.

Jeering Japanese Leftists Disrupt Kennedy Speech

TOKYO (AP) — Thousands of students at Tokyo's Waseda University gave Robert F. Kennedy a roaring, cheering welcome today, but shouting, jeering leftists broke up a speech by the U.S. attorney general. It was the first hostility Kennedy has met on his visit to Japan.

It was estimated the hecklers totaled fewer than 100. U.S. Ambassador Edwin O. Reischauer said they were "a small group of hard-core Communists and I don't believe they were from Waseda."

The American visitor was literally carried up the steps of the building. Police and university security officials finally managed to get the disheveled Kennedy inside, but he turned and waved out the door, shouting "thank you!"

A thunderous cheer went up from the students. The auditorium was packed with about 6,000 students. As Kennedy waited to begin his speech, a disturbance broke out in the front rows and several youths tried to climb on the stage. Small knots of strategically located young people set up cries of "Kennedy go home. Kennedy off the platform. Cuba. Okinawa."

Most of the students kept quiet, and the attorney general plunged resolutely into his speech, reviewing his brother's policies. When he said he would discuss the "responsibilities of living in a democratic nation," strong applause broke out, but jeering, shouting students in the rear of the hall drowned out the rest of his remarks.

A college cheerleader jumped to the stage and got students to singing the university song. The leftists collected in the back of the hall, and the Communist Internationale mingled with the school song.

"I think the vast majority of the students were friendly," the President's brother said later. "I'm just sorry we didn't get more of a chance to exchange ideas. I'd like to go back."

Thousands of students swarmed about Kennedy's car as he drove into the university grounds to cheers of "Kennedy! Kennedy!" and cries of "Shake my hand."

The cheerleader then led the students in school cheers. From the back the hecklers continued their jeering, hooped up wooden chairs and climbed on top of them, shouting, "Go home. Leave the platform, Cuba."

The Zengakuren leftist students' group said representatives from 30 of its chapters were at the university to ask questions of Kennedy and present petitions. The Zengakuren organization led the 1960 riots that resulted in cancellation of President Dwight D. Eisenhower's visit to Japan.

A Marine Corps helicopter was stationed about three miles away for use if it had been necessary to move the Kennedy party out by air.

The conference will not be open to live broadcast but will be taped for subsequent use on television and radio.

Fire-Fighting Gear At Airport Said Inadequate For Emergency

GREENSBORO (AP) — Fire-fighting equipment at the Greensboro-High Point Airport, where seven men died Sunday in a flaming airplane crash, "wouldn't put out a henhouse fire," says one fireman.

The fireman, who asked that his name not be used, was one of several persons who told interviewers Monday that the airport should have better firefighting equipment.

On the other hand, K. V. Brugh, manager of the airfield, said emergency equipment was more than adequate to handle the fire that broke out after an Air Force C-47 crashed on takeoff. Dr. Allen B. Coggeshall, Guilford County medical examiner, said at least one of the seven men died from flames under control. But then they ran out of fire-quenching foam and the fire blazed up again. There was no more foam at the airport, Stith said.

However, Brugh said there was a supply of 600 pounds of foam at the fire station, about 2,000 feet from the wreckage. He added: "The emergency equipment was in place within two minutes after the plane hit and the flames were contained from then on. The only trouble was controlling the spectators that overran the field."

Brugh praised Stith and King's efforts, saying they practically had the fire out when a Greensboro fire company arrived. Other fire trucks also came, including vehicles from a number of volunteer companies.

THE LAMP IN THE WINDOW

Symbolic of the earlier days of American pharmacy was the lighted lamp in the drugstore window. All through the night it glowed, a beacon of hope, a symbol of unselfish service.

Although the historic lamp is now practically extinct, the fundamentals of pharmaceutical practice have changed but little. The responsibilities of the pharmacist are greater today than ever before — he is a vital factor in medical care.

Cuba's Role In Affairs

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Taking it for granted that a way must be found to drive Communism out of Cuba in order to safeguard the United States, what do we do?

The simplest but least practical and popular solution is immediate war on Cuba. There is no question but that we would win that war, but there may be many consequences which would be extremely damaging and the end of which cannot be foreseen.

The effort to solve the problem at the O.A.S. has been mildly successful. In fact, it may be judged to be unsuccessful. For with Brazil and Mexico abstaining we know that nations that we help spit in our face, to state the case as vulgarly but as accurately as possible, are regarded as our focal enemy or current events have no meaning. Cuba, then, as an acknowledged agent of Russian policy, is an enemy of the United States.

Castro has made it clear by sufficient assertions that he has had the co-operation of Soviet Russia and that his enterprise is a part of the Soviet Universal State. Russia must be regarded as our focal enemy or current events have no meaning. Cuba, then, as an acknowledged agent of Russian policy, is an enemy of the United States.

Even if the Russians are willing to end their foray in Vietnam, what is their position in Cuba, Brazil and Mexico? In a word, is Soviet Russia moving its enterprise against the United States from Southeast Asia to Latin America and are we in a better position to encounter the Russians in Latin America than in Southeast Asia?

This is not an easy question to answer. Every day I meet men who have answers to all questions. They know precisely how to handle this situation, but I am sure that neither the President nor the Secretary of State are equally sure. They are circumscribed by the course of events and by knowledge of the facts and the more they look at 50 years of disturbance, the more they must wonder why there is no willing end to disturbance.

For instance, while Khrushchev's star is waning, it is clear that several new groups are emerging. In Asia, Red China has become a principal factor of world disturbance with a special interest in Latin America. True, China's interest in Latin America is not new. Since about 1840 or earlier, Chinese were imported in Latin American countries from Kwangtung Province and they settled in large numbers over the years. They fared well in many of the Latin American countries and contributed large sums to Dr. Sun Yat-sen for the 1912 and subsequent Revolutions in China. In fact, Dr. Sun's Minister of Foreign Affairs, Eugene Chen, came from Trinidad and was culturally British.

When Communist evangelism developed, Red China mapped out Latin America as an area for itself and sent to Latin American countries, Russian and German trained Chinese to serve as engineers and various kinds of experts. They have played a great role in the development of Communist movements in Mexico and Cuba. If when you look at pictures of Central Americans and some appear to be Chinese, the fact is that they probably are Chinese who have become assimilated with the indigenous population.

Red China then is playing an exceptional role in Latin America and that role is specifically anti-American. It has been assumed by Americans that they can export what they call Democracy to such countries as Red China or Latin America. This has proved to be a fallacy. Whereas Marxism as a revolutionary force, can be exported and is accepted in alien countries, Democracy has proved to be unassimilable. It rather develops as a concept of free choice over a long period of time and slowly over- (Continued on page five)

Import Of Corn Is 'Traditional'

The fact that North Carolina is importing corn from the government surplus storage facilities in the Midwest came as a surprise to many Tar Heels, but it is probably more surprising to many that the current situation is not unique.

North Carolina, in spite of the fact that it is one of the leading agricultural states of the nation, and in spite of the fact that it produces considerable corn, has traditionally both exported and imported corn.

Jumping to the conclusion that the present shortage of corn in North Carolina is due entirely to the small grain program instituted last year, will not stand up in the face of the facts.

To be sure the small grain program is responsible for a good part of the shortage, but North Carolina was importing corn prior to the beginning of the small grain program last year.

In 1960, the last year before the small grain

Season Of The Budget-Makers

By LYNN NISBET

BUDGET MAKING — This is the season when the men and women who are responsible for running the various agencies, departments and institutions of State governments are supposed to give over their role as administrators and assume the role of magician.

It is budget preparation time. Where the magicians touch is required in the fact that the budget made up now is supposed to be good until June 30, 1965. The division heads have been asked to make up their requests for appropriations based on what they estimate will be the needs of their particular part of the government for the period between July 1, 1963, and June 30, 1965. These figures will be worked over by the budget bureau, then passed along to the advisory budget commission, and finally to the appropriations committee and the full membership of the General Assembly. The estimates made in February and March of this year will be passed upon by the Legislature in May or June of next year, becoming effective July 1 next year and continuing for the full biennium until June 30—three and a half years from now.

With a time spread like this the estimators cannot be held to strict accountability, but through the years they have done a remarkably skillful job of forecasting requirements.

HISTORY MONTH — Governor Sanford has joined with other chief executives throughout the country in designating February as "American History Month." In addition to the observance of the birthdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, the month can be used to emphasize significance of historic places and events in North Carolina. It is a good time to visit the well known shrines — and to ferret out others less known but with important bearing on North Carolina's development.

HOW TO DO IT — Citizens are being requested and caajoled every day to "write your congressman" about this or that. The same advice is given every year that the State Legislature is in session to contact your local legislators.

Clifton Blue, a veteran legislator from Moore county, in a weekly column written for his own and a dozen or so other newspapers, offers suggestions on how most effectively to contact the lawmaker at Washington or Raleigh.

Here is what he says: CONTACTING LAW-MAKERS — Congress is back in session and people are being told to "write your congressman" or "write your senator" about the many matters which they must pass upon.

We think a few hints on how to contact your congressman might not be amiss at this time.

program was instituted, North Carolina produced 88 million bushels of corn and exported some 25 million bushels during the fall harvest season. Before the 1961 crop had been harvested, however, North Carolina had imported not only an amount equal to the 25 million bushels it exported the previous fall, but an additional 28 million bushels. In short, the state imported and used 28 million more bushels of corn than it produced the year before the small grain program went into operation.

The same year Pitt County, in contrast to the state-wide picture, produced some 4.6 million bushels of corn and used only about 2.2 million bushels. Its situation was not greatly different from that of many other eastern counties, but whereas the eastern counties have normally produced more corn than they have used, their surplus has not been sufficient to make up for the difference in production and consumption in the Piedmont and Western counties of the state.

With the institution of the grain program, however, the picture in eastern counties has changed considerably so far as production is concerned. In Pitt, for example, some 82,000 acres were planted in corn in 1960. Last year, however, with the beginning of the small grain program, some 24,000 acres of corn was taken out of production in Pitt, resulting in only 58,000 acres being planted compared with 82,000 the year before.

Unless something changes the picture in Pitt quickly, there is every indication that at least 24,000 acres formerly used to produce corn will be put aside in the grain program again this year. A similar situation is in prospect in other counties in this section of the state.

The small grain program was designed not for the farmers of North Carolina, but rather to deal with the problems of the Midwest corn belt. Whether in the long run it will prove beneficial or detrimental to agriculture in North Carolina is still a question widely debated.

We feel it is unwise for Eastern Carolina farmers to take out of production acreage on which corn can be profitably produced and forfeit to farmers in other states the money to be made selling corn in North Carolina.

Making It Difficult For Castro's Regime

By cutting off all imports from Cuba, the United States has dealt another severe blow to the Castro government and has set an example which may be followed by other of the American republics in the near future.

The $32.4 million worth of goods purchased from Cuba by the United States during the first 11 months of 1961 was only a small fraction of the amount this country purchased from Cuba before the break with Castro's government. This latest tightening of economic sanctions against Castro's government will add to the pinch of conditions in Cuba, and if the U.S. lead is followed by other American nations, the already shaky economic conditions in Cuba could further deteriorate.

For the most part, this latest U.S. move against Cuba's economy will hit only one specific industry in Cuba . . . the tobacco producers . . . for practically all of the imports from that country in the past year have consisted of tobacco. By hitting one industry rather than a variety of industries, the $32.4 million loss of trade will likely have a greater impact than if it were spread over several industries.

In spite of assertions to the contrary by Castro, the loss of American trade has made a severe dent in the Cuban economy. If this United States' move is followed by other American countries who greatly reduce their imports from Cuba—even if they do not cease trade altogether—Castro's government will find it difficult to make up for the lost business by trading with other communist countries.

The situation will make it increasingly difficult for Castro to retain control of his island country with the worsening of already serious economic conditions.

Parties Like Popular Fronts

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—American political parties are like popular fronts that let factions gang up under one tent and one label and, in public, gloss over their differences.

This doesn't solve the problem of how to achieve unity on the issues—so the public can know what to expect when they proclaim a party program—but it keeps them in business.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower had his hands full with his own divided Republicans when he was in office. President Kennedy is having the same trouble with his Democrats.

Kennedy ignored the desertion from his ranks when the House Rules Committee—where Democrats outnumbered Republicans 10 to 5—voted to kill his idea for a new department of urban affairs and housing.

It was wrecked because four Southern Democrats joined the five Republicans to vote against it. Kennedy ignored what the Democrats did, blistered the Republicans and promptly proposed establishment of the urban department through his Reorganization Act powers.

Likewise last week the Republicans, whose only real unity is in trying to beat the Democrats, blithely skipped over their own division to criticize the opposition.

Speakers at the dinners which both parties hold are usually long on generalities and short on specifics.

Eisenhower pointed out, rather ruefully it seemed, that in the past 30 years the Republicans have held the presidency only eight years and control of Congress only four.

that is logical and sound does the electorate choose to buy the inferior product of the opposition?" he asked. The main answer lay in faulty "sales tactics" by the Republicans, he contended.

New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller accused Kennedy of fakery in blaming the Republicans for killing the department of urban affairs instead of pointing a finger at the Democrats who broke ranks to block him in the House Rules Committee.

Rockefeller said it was a subterfuge to bypass the states and "gain direct political control over the nation's big cities." Democrats answered Rockefeller on this in a hurry, saying that when he was President Eisenhower's chairman of an advisory committee on government reorganization, he recommended creating a similar department of urban affairs.

It was Rockefeller himself who best illustrated division among Republicans.

When he started to speak at a fund raising dinner in Des Moines—over a closed TV circuit—some Republicans at a dinner in Washington booed him. They later applauded when he attacked Kennedy.

Last week Kennedy wondered out loud about who is "giving the leadership direction" to the Republicans.

It's not Rockefeller, who some Republicans think is too liberal. It's not Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona. Some Republicans think he's too reactionary.

It's hardly former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who has taken himself out of the 1964 presidential race, and is busy running for the governorship of California.

A Lot Of People Care

We in Pitt County have a slender tie to the weekend dedication of that $6 million hospital in Memphis, the St. Jude Research Hospital for Children. Okay. So that link is minute . . . but it nevertheless exists by virtue of several hundreds of dollars given in nickels, dimes, quarters and such, by local people.

As explained over the years, this particular center is aimed most specifically at leukemia among children and the seeking of a cure. Treatment will be free.

Stories concerning the dedication were the first I had read of progress since a little less than a year ago when a "March For Danny" (that's entertainer, Danny Thomas, by the way) was briefly promoted here.

I gather the continuing expenses of running the combined hospital and research center will require more fund-raising work . . . but for such things there are a lot of willing hearts.

In that connection, Americans are regularly confronted by solicitations for the "health-dollar" . . . which in the long run add up to very small contributions by a great many individuals. If you have ever thought about these various health fund drives and their absence from the annual United Fund drives (which question has probably arisen several times), you have very likely decided for yourself why health funds are unwilling and even unable to join UP or similar all-purpose community drives.

We have recently seen the New March of Dimes drive, the TB Association drive, the Heart Fund Drive is now in progress; the campaign for crippled children and adults, the Cancer Crusade are all in the offing.

Their success is largely dependent upon educating the public to preventative measures and early warning signs which if recognized can spell a whale of a lot of difference for the potential victim.

Take heart research: Many cardiovascular diseases which were hopeless ten years ago are now possible of actual care. Rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease can now be prevented. . . high blood pressure can now be controlled. . . many strokes can be treated effectively and invalidism reduced or prevented.

Research is an important factor in all of these; but informing the public as to what to look out for, how to recognize dangerous symptoms, plays a big role in reducing the toll in lives.

Your chances, your children's chances, of living normal and useful lives quite possibly rest on the work these health foundations and associations are doing. Nothing quite like these organized efforts against disease exist outside our country.

We may tire of the steady cycle of fund-raising drives, but their value can be measured by accomplishments in the health field which are as impressive as the spirit of hundreds of volunteers who willingly give their time and energies in selfless work.

Looking back on past health-dollar campaigns and looking to the future. . . it is a matter for satisfaction that a lot of people "care".

Other Editors Saying . . . Tar Heel Nuclear Work

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

While the Atomic Energy Commission announces that the U. S. is the first nation to send nuclear power packets, or atomic batteries, into space, together with a number of other "firsts" in nuclear progress, it might be pointed out that research is now going on concerning the possible use of radiation in the textile and lumber industries in North Carolina.

Use of radiation in the textile industry is being investigated at N. C. State College. Creation of new and unique textile materials having a wide range of valuable properties such as mildew resistance, water proofing and stretch resistance is a promising use of radiation being investigated at State College.

Research relating radiation and the lumber industry is being done at the Research Triangle Institute. A technique being developed there appears promising for the lumber industry. The process would measure the density of wood and be valuable in grading logs for various uses and in revealing defects.

At the same time it might be noted that the construction of a nuclear energy reactor for the Carolina-Virginia Nuclear Power Associates is nearing completion. The reactor, which is at Parr, S. C., is being built by the three-state corporation under a cooperative arrangement. It is designed to produce 17,000 electrical kilowatts.

Hodges Sees Gradual Changes

By ELMER ROESSNER

Tariff cuts and the European Common Market are not charging in on the American economy. In fact, they are approaching slowly and American business can take them in stride, in the opinion of Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges.

This information comes straight from the horse's mouth, as much as Mr. Hodges is the workhorse of the Kennedy Administration. At present he is in harness to sell the Kennedy plan to save the American export market by making tariff arrangements with European countries. In general, President Kennedy wants to make deals whereby the European Common Market will permit the entry of American goods if the United States allows equal entry of Common Market products.

In the first place, Mr. Hodges told me in a private interview, Congress is not likely to grant Mr. Kennedy the power to negotiate mutual tariff reductions before midyear.

DOESN'T WORRY HIM

Mr. Hodges seemed actually relieved at this situation. His job is to sell the Kennedy plan to the United States.

"In every Congressional district, there is at least one plant fearful of competition from abroad. Each plant will generate pressure on its Congressman to oppose the Kennedy plan. It is my job to convince the public in each district that the Kennedy plan is good for the entire country and that people must go along with what is best for the nation. Furthermore, foreign imports prevent American prices from being excessive." He can use a little time to get this message home, he hinted.

Another delay is Britain's careful approach to joining the Common Market. It may take a year for Britain to become a full partner. And Mr. Hodges said that it was unlikely that the American government would undertake any negotiations with the Common Market until it was certain whether Britain was in or out.

THEN FIVE YEARS

Even after Congress grants President Kennedy the authority to negotiate tariff reductions, and even after it is practical to open negotiations, there will be further slow-downs.

"The Kennedy plan calls for reductions over five years," the former Governor of North Carolina pointed out. "Thus it will be five years after the start of negotiations before the full benefits are realized.

This will give American business ample time to adjust to the situation."

The government, especially his Department, he said, is now mapping plans to assist American industries affected by mutual tariffs cuts.

"We will work industry by industry," he said. "Our men will sit down with each industry and try to work out opportunities by increasing efficiency and by making new products."

CHARGES AND DEPRECIATION

"We expect to set up a board that can award long-term loans to industries that need them for conversion. And in special situations we will recommend faster charge-offs for depreciation when present equipment is rendered obsolete by foreign competition."

Special stress will be laid upon plans to increase exports to foreign nations. He pointed out that the government and 57 private insurers have set up the Foreign Credit Insurance Association which will insure exporters against loss in credit and political risks. The insuring companies and the Export-Import Bank will share the credit risks and the bank will shoulder risks from war, expropriation and currency restrictions.

Mr. Hodges pointed out that of $15 billion in imports into the United States each year, only $5 billion are competitive with American products. The rest are not.

"Who faces competition from bananas?" he asked.

Lacy Wafers For Nibblers

Associated Press Food Editor FRIENDS DROPPING in? Then we suggest serving these festive lacy wafers for nibblers who like something sweet.

LACY WAFERS—Festive enough to serve at a party.

The only trick to making these wafers is in taking them from their baking pan. Stand over them, when they come out of the oven, with a wide spatula in your hand. In a minute or two, maybe less, the wafers will be set enough to be removed without wrinkling or "shirring." Test one wafer before removing the lot.

LACY NUT WAFERS

1/2 cup sifted flour
1/2 cup medium-fine chopped Brazil nuts
1/2 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1/2 cup dark corn syrup
1/2 cup butter or margarine

Mix flour and nuts. Turn brown sugar, corn syrup and butter into a heavy medium-sized saucepan. Cook and stir constantly over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Gradually stir in flour and nuts. Drop by scant teaspoonfuls, about 3 inches apart, onto an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in a slow (325 degrees) oven for 8 to 10 minutes. Let cookies set about a minute or so before removing to wire racks covered with brown paper or paper toweling; cool. If wafers are hard to remove from pan, return to oven for a few minutes to soften. Makes about 2 dozen.

COOKBOOK TALK

"What Cooks in Suburbia" by Lila Peri (Dutton) is a new cookbook with some excellent recipes and menus for various occasions — family fare on a frigid Monday, Saturday buffet suppers, Sunday brunches and guest luncheons. What distinguishes this book is the care the author has taken to write her recipes explicitly. Her last chapter, "A Treatise on Pie Crusts" should be required reading for many a pie-maker.

'Comic' Valentines Not Funny To Woman

By JUNE WILSON
Women's News Service

The thing behind the rash of backhanded, wrong-side-out greeting cards that leer so brightly from every card shop is still here. It will be around for St. Valentine's Day and long past.

Mark Twain remarked that the source of humor is not joy, but sorrow. Certainly these "sick" creations are sad. They can bring the very heart out of a woman.

As Valentine's Day approaches, brace yourself for a comic valentine from someone you know. Somewhere in the flock of men (or is yours a gaggle?) there's one guy who thinks love is something to be made fun of and joked about. HE will send you a comic valentine. Chances are also excellent that he has a funny birthday card picked out, too.

It does take so long to teach men how to act!

Two things are never funny to a woman: love and her birthday. Whether she cringes openly at the idea of being a year older, or pretends it's fun to have folks burst into her room on natal day and bounce her out of bed, she'll never die laughing.

Neither is love laughable, or the day dedicated to it.

Loving is not something we come into the world knowing how to do. Loving, like walking, must be learned — slowly, in difficult, sometimes painful stages. As an infant the first job is getting up on all fours. Oh but it's tough, though you don't remember. Next is learning to crawl. It's a long time before even an accomplished crawler is strong enough and sure enough to stand erect, and then with time and many tumbles grows the courage to turn loose, stand alone and venture a step without holding on.

The fellow who thinks you'll be delighted by his comic valentine hasn't yet learned to turn loose. He's still gripping the fears he thinks is keeping him from falling. He should save his quarter, this little shaver in the grey flannel rompers.

Why bother to send a valentine at all if he can't be sweet about it? Maybe for the least of all acceptable reasons: everyone else is doing it. Or maybe he doesn't love you after all, but the emotion is so unfamiliar he doesn't understand it and it scares him. And so he laughs about it.

When you get that "funny" valentine, don't laugh. Say, "Thanks a whole bunch!" — and then cry your eyes out!

If he doesn't learn from this, he's just a groundhog. Maybe he'll crawl into a hole and forget to come out.

Europe's 3-Foot-High Coiffures Recall The Lavish 18th Century

By TONIA SCHILLING

PARIS — (WNS) — The new trend toward extravagance that has been noted in many aspects of European life has finally reached the head.

Heaping hairdos, reminiscent of the three-and four-foot-high coiffures of the 18th century royal courts, are returning all over the Continent.

Belgium's Princess Paola signaled the new vogue when she appeared at the recent "Bal des Petits Lis Blancs" wearing her blonde locks in a pile estimated to be one meter (three feet) high.

Paris haute coiffure stylists like Alexandre say the mile-high hair fantasies are going to be all the rage for the most formal occasions and, with some modifications, will find favor for evenings generally.

The fashion actually started some months ago among the smart women of Rome, always ready to try something new and the more outlandish the better they like it. Now it has spread across the Alps and the betting here it will be universal in no time.

Shades of Marie Antoinette, the Paris hair stylists emphasize that women are getting tired of boyish bobs, Lollobrigida lobs and the other casual cuts that have been the mainstream of feminine tonsorial fashion for well over a decade.

First real sign of the change was the sweeping and totally unexpected revival of women's wigs. Paris department stores now do a big business in them for as little as $30 a hairpiece and, of course, ultraexclusive establishments like Carita have no trouble selling all they can make at $250 to $450 each.

With the 18th century wig coming back into fashion, the hair-style fantasies of the era immediately preceding the French Revolution could not be far behind. But to wear these monumental towers, most modern women must resort to wigwigs.

"Recent hair fashions have been too comfortable and convenient for women to wish to abandon them during the daytime," said Alexandre. "They will confine their mountainous hairdos to the evening. So that, means wigs and hairpieces."

It won't be enough to pile one's hair on top of one's head, toss in a few hairpins and call it a day.

"These are highly formal and strict styles," Alexandre explained. "Their quiddance is their formal elegance, reflecting the epoch in which they originated. Every strand of hair must be in place and there is no question of women doing it themselves."

IAN FLEMING'S Greatest Thriller THUNDERBALL

CHAPTER 20
James Bond and Felix Leiter sat in the stern well away from the boatman.

Leiter shook his head. "Radio-activity absolutely negative. Reaction around the engine room and the radio room, but that's normal. It was all normal, damnably normal. What did you make of Largo and the whole setup?"
"Same as you—damned normal. He looks what he says he is, and behaves that way. Not much crew about, but the ones we saw were either ordinary crew or wonderful actors." Bond paused before continuing. "Only two small things struck me. There was no way down to the hold that I could see, but of course it could have been a manhole under the passage carpet. But then how do you get the stores he talked of down there? And there's the hell of a lot of space in that hold even if I don't know much about naval architecture."

"I'll do a check with the oil-line wharf through the customs people and see just how much fuel he does carry. Then it's odd that we didn't see any of these shareholders. It was around three o'clock when we went on board and most of them may have been having fiestas. But surely not all nineteen of them."
"Another small thing. Did you notice that there was no trace of tobacco smell anywhere in the ship? That's odd. Around forty men and not one of them is a smoker. If one had anything else to go on one would say that wasn't coincidence but discipline. The real pros don't drink or smoke. But I admit it's a damned long shot."

"I'd have said the whole outfit's clean as a whistle if it wasn't for all that missing space we weren't shown. That talk about fuel and ballast sounded a bit glib to me. What do you think?"
"Same as you, James. There's at least half of that ship we didn't see. But then again there's a perfectly good answer to that. He may have got a stack of secret treasure-hunting gear down there he doesn't want anyone to see. Remember that merchant ship off Gibraltar during the war? The Italian frog men used it as a base. Big sort of trapdoor affair cut in the hull below the water line. I suppose he hasn't got something like that?"

"Bond looked sharply at Leiter. "The Olterra. One of the blackest marks against Intelligence during the whole war." He paused. "The Disco was anchored in about forty feet of water. Supposing they'd got the bombs buried in the sand below her. Would your Geiger counter have registered?"

"Doubt it. I've got an underwater model and we could go and have a sniff around when it gets dark. But really, James"—Leiter frowned impatiently—"aren't we getting a bit off beam—seeing bargainers under the bed? We've got damn-all to go on. Largo's a powerful-looking piratical sort of chap, probably a bit of a crook. But what have we got against him? Have you put a trace through on him and on these shareholders and the crew members?"

"Yes. Put them all on the wire from Government House. Urgent Rates. We should get an answer by this evening. But look here, Felix." Bond's voice was fast-born. "There's a damned fast ship with a plane and forty men no one knows anything about. There's not another group or even an individual in the area who looks in the least promising."
"All right, so the outfit looks all right and its story seems to stand up. But just supposing the whole thing was a phony—a damned good one of course, but then so it ought to be with all that's at stake. Take another look at the picture. These so-called shareholders all arrive just in time for June third."

"On that night the Disco goes to sea and stays out till morning. Just supposing she rendezvous'd that plane in shallow water somewhere. Just suppose she picked up the bombs and put them away—in the sand under the ship, if you like. Anyway, somewhere safe and convenient. Just suppose all that and what sort of picture do you get?"

"A B picture so far as I'm concerned, James." Leiter shrugged resignedly. "But I guess there's just enough to make it a lead." He laughed sardonically. "So what's on your mind? What comes next?"
"While you get our communications going, I'm going to check with the oiling wharf. Then we'll call up this Domino girl and try and get ourselves asked for a drink and have a quick look at Largo's shore base—this Palmyra. Then we go to the Casino and look over the whole of Largo's group. And then"—Bond looked stubbornly at Leiter—"I'm going to borrow a good man from the Police Commissioner to give me a hand, put on an aqua-lung, and go out with a sniff round the Disco with your other Geiger machine."

Leiter said laconically. "Destry Rides Again! Well, I'll go along with that, James. Just for old times' sake. But don't go and stub your toe on a sea urchin or anything. I see there are free cha-cha lessons in the ballroom of the Royal Bahamian tomorrow. We've got to keep fit for those. I guess there'll be nothing else in this trip for my memory book."

Back in the hotel, a dispatch rider from Government House was waiting for Bond. He saluted smartly, handed over an envelope, and got Bond's signed receipt in exchange. It was a cable from the Colonial Office "Personal to the Governor." The text was prefaced "Proband."

The cable read: "Your 1107 records have nothing Repeat nothing on these names Stop Informa-tively all stations report negatively on Operation Thunderball Stop What have you Query." The message was signed "Prism," which meant that M had approved it.

As it turned out, the first half of Bond's program for the evening went by the board.

On the telephone Domino Vitali said that it would not be convenient for them to see the house that evening. Her guardian and some of his friends were coming ashore.

Yes, it was indeed possible that they might meet at the Casino that evening. She would be dining on board and the Disco would then sail round and anchor off the Casino. But how would she be able to recognize him in the Casino? She had a very poor memory for faces.

Would he perhaps wear a flower in his buttonhole or something?
Bond had laughed. He said that he would be all right. He would remember her by her beautiful eyes. They were unforgettable. He had put the receiver down halfway through the amused, sexy chuckle. He suddenly wanted to see her again very much.

The movement of the ship altered his plans for the better. It would be much easier to reconnoiter her in the harbor. It would be a shorter swim and he would be able to go into the water under cover of the harbor police wharf. Equally, with her anchorage empty, it would be all the easier to survey the area where she had been lying. But if Largo moved the yacht about so nonchalantly was it likely the bombs, if there were any, would be hidden at the anchorage? If they were, surely the Disco would stand watch over them.

Bond decided to put a decision aside until he had more and more expert information about the ship's hull.

He sat in his room and wrote his negative report to M. He read it through. It would be a depressing signal to get. Should he say anything about the wish of a lead he was working on?

No, Bond decided. No until he had something solid. Wishful intelligence, the desire to please or reassure the recipient, was the most dangerous commodity in the world realm of secret information.

Felix Leiter has a shocking idea of what atom bomb Target No. 1 will be. Continue "Thunderball" here tomorrow.

Chess Set For Blind Designed

TORONTO (AP)—A new chess set for the blind has been designed by a Toronto furrier. The pieces, developed by Abraham Rubin, have cameo-like tops so the blind can feel them. The board has round holes for the white and square holes for the black spaces. Diagonal moves are made easy by use of guide channels between the squares.

Rubin worked on the pieces and board in his home workshop for 17 years.

In the past year three clubs have been organized by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, using Rubin's board and the board is also used at the Ontario School for the Blind.

Natalie Out Of Place In Playing Gypsy Rose

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The sight of Natalie Wood doing a strip-tease is akin to seeing Helen Hayes perform the Twist. The view is fascinating, but you're not so sure she should be doing what she's doing.
That was my reaction to watching Miss Wood prepare for her role as America's most famous striptease, Gypsy Rose Lee. The young actress is playing the title role in "Gypsy."
Now that I have stated my reservations, I can report that Miss Wood does a good job, as always. Though she is perhaps the screen's most effective symbol of purity since Lillian Gish, she does a mean strip.
She was rehearsing the "Let Me Entertain You" number, a time-spanning montage which shows her developing from a shy, hesitant pre-adolescent to the strutting, insu-ating Gypsy, confident of each and every movement. I should add that at no time did she wear anything less than a skin-tight black leotard. "In the picture I'll end up in a bikini-like outfit," she explained. Hollywood's censors are not yet ready to permit nudity.

Matter of fact, the censors have not seen fit to recognize the navel. How will Natalie solve that problem?
"A diamond, I presume," she said.
Nor are bumps and grinds permitted on the screen, but that doesn't inhibit her.
"From all I can gather, Gypsy Rose Lee didn't do the bump-and-grind kind of strip," said the actress. "Hers was more a tongue-in-cheek kind of a routine."
In Pre-Cambrian times, some 500 million years ago, the North Pole was near Hawaii.

Several Hundred Scouts Involved In Exposition Plan

Several hundred Pitt County scouts—including cubs, scouts and explorers—have readied plans for various exhibits, games, displays and demonstrations for Saturday's Pitt District Exposition.

With a total of 28 district units on the schedule, Saturday's seven-hour-long program calls for 38 exhibition booths, 16 cooking demonstrations, nine cub scout games, Pinewood Derbies for cubs, an awards presentation ceremony and an Indian pageant. Nearly 15,000 tickets to the Exposition have been distributed throughout the county. Scout and Kiwanis officials reported today they expect an attendance of around 7,500 for the event, scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at Raynor-Forbes Warehouse in Greenville. The Greenville Kiwanis Club is sponsoring the Exposition as its public service project for 1962.

Cub, scout and explorer units participating represent the following communities: Ayden,

Churchman Defends His Alleged Leftist Leanings

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Dr. Robert T. Mollegen, who has invited questions about his alleged leftist affiliations of 20 years ago, continued his series of lectures today.

The tall, slender Episcopal churchman opened the series Monday night amidst the red cushions and pew stalls of historic St. Philip's Church. He had a couple of lively exchanges during a question period.

A Charleston salesman, identified as Roger Knapp, told Dr. Mollegen, professor of Christian ethic at Virginia Theological Seminary:

"In everything you have said tonight, you seemed to have been in favor of communism. . . . Man is your hero, not God. . . . Why did you say only communism saved us from a depression?"

Before a crowd of some 500, Mollegen replied, "You tempt me to give up teaching." He then said he meant only that this nation's awareness of the Communist threat had stimulated the economy—particularly through rearmament—and had provided the economic health needed to meet the Red threat.

A woman asked Dr. Mollegen why he "went to the aid" of Earl Browder when he was in prison in 1942. Browder once was head of the Communist party in this country.

Dr. Mollegen said he signed a petition in Browder's behalf while Russia and the United States were fighting the Nazis because the Red chief had been given "an excessive sentence" for a passport violation. He noted that President Roosevelt pardoned Browder shortly after the petition was circulated.

"You don't have to agree with this, but don't think everybody who wanted Browder out of jail was a Communist," said Dr. Mollegen.

The Mississippi native had been scheduled to speak at state-supported Clemson College, but the appearance was cancelled. Clemson President Robert C. Edwards said the move was made "by mutual agreement" after Charleston Episcopalians complained that Dr. Mollegen had belonged to organizations listed as subversive.

But Episcopal Bishop Gray Temple of Charleston said "political power" and not pressure from members of the church caused the cancellation. The Rev. Mr. Temple said only four persons had contacted Dr. Edwards.

State Rep. Virginia Gourdin of Charleston has been identified as one of those active in the protests. The Charlotte (N.C.) Observer said First Dist. Rep. L. Mendel Rivers had given Edwards information on Dr. Mollegen. The Rev. S. Grayson Clary, rector of St. Philip's, invited Dr. Mollegen to lecture in the parish house here immediately after the Clemson cancellation was announced. The lectures were moved to the church because the parish house would accommodate only about 350 persons.

Sokolsky . . .

(Continued from page four) comes ancient mores and family customs. There are many explanations for this, the principal one being that Democracy makes for individual freedom which even in its mildest expressions is disorderly, whereas ancient societies wish to preserve discipline and order.

The result has been that the Red Chinese who have come into Latin America, as Communist evangelists, have made extraordinary progress. They do not offer freedom or liberty but order and discipline and the power of a successful revolution.

Will Try Couple For Abandoning Infant

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP) — A young Roxboro Negro couple will be tried here next week on a charge of abandoning their infant baby. Officers charge that the father placed the child in an old refrigerator and rolled it down a 60-foot cliff at the city trash dump.

The father, Bennie Daniel Johnson, 23, pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon upon the infant at a preliminary hearing last November. His wife, Kathy, 21, charged with aiding and abetting in assault on the infant, testified "Bennie didn't mean to kill our baby, he was just scared." She added that she did not know what had been done with the child, but that she had thought it was dead and he had buried it. Sheriff C. C. Holeman said Johnson told him the baby was born about midnight Oct. 31 and was placed in a bucket, which was put on the back porch. Later when the infant began wailing, the sheriff said he was told, Johnson took the bucket and placed it beside a railroad track about 5 a.m. The sheriff said Johnson told him that about noon he received the infant, took it to the city dump, placed it in an abandoned ice box and rolled it down the cliff.

Persons at the dump heard the infant crying about 6 a.m. the following morning and found the child.

The father has been held in jail in default of $2,500 bond pending

Asthma Formula Prescribed Most By Doctors—Available Now Without Prescription

Stops Attacks in Minutes... Relief Lasts for Hours!

New York, N. Y. (Special)—The asthma formula prescribed more than any other by doctors for their private patients is now available to asthma sufferers without prescription.

Medical tests proved this formula stops asthma attacks in minutes and gives hours of freedom from recurrence of painful asthma spasms.

This formula is so effective that it is the physician's leading asthma prescription—so safe when used as directed that now it can be sold without prescription in most states

...in tiny tablets called Primatec. These Primatec Tablets open bronchial tubes, loosen congestion, relieve taut nervous tension. All without painful injections.

The secret is—Primatec combines 3 medicines (in full prescription strength) found most effective in combination for asthma distress. Each performs a special purpose.

So look forward to sleep at night, and freedom from asthma spasms. Primatec—986, at any drugstore.

Money Didn't Save Old Tree

PITTSFIELDS, Mass. (AP) — Money in the bank and special care failed to save a 150-year old elm tree.

The tree became the victim of Dutch elm disease despite the fact the late Jennie M. Arms Sheldon had set up a trust fund for its preservation.

The tree—on the campus of Deerfield Academy — was even equipped with a lightning rod.

The small trust for the 110-foot-tall tree had been administered by the school since 1938.

$3 Million Building To House County's Aged

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — Lakeside Place, an ultramodern $3 million building designed for 336 residents, is going up on the site of the old Campbell County poor farm.

The county is the builder but poverty is no longer an admission requirement.

Lakeside Place is for persons 62 and over.

County Judge A. J. Jolly says, "It will meet the total needs of the aged at a cost which every person can afford."

"If he has a million dollars or no money at all, he still needs care."

The building will have an octagonal central service core flanked by eight 3-story wings. There will be 36 efficiency apartments, 187 beds in hotel-type quarters, 70 beds for the chronically ill and facilities for 87 in a special-care ward.

Proposed rents are $100 monthly for room and board in double rooms; $125 in single rooms; $10 daily in the chronic hospital section and $125 monthly in the special service wing.

Most residents presumably would draw enough from state and federal pensions to pay their way. The county would help those over 65 who could not pay the full amount.

Judge Jolly feels the building, which is to be finished early in 1963, will provide a psychological lift because residents will live in an atmosphere of independence and not as wards of an institution.

Suspect Bomb On French Ship

BONE, Algeria (AP)—Four persons were killed and several injured today when a violent explosion rocked a French steamship leaving this eastern Algerian port, authorities reported.

One of those killed was a woman and another an 8-year-old child.

Cause of the blast aboard the ship, the Ville de Bordeaux, was not immediately determined. Authorities suspected that a bomb had been planted on board.

MODELING LIGHT, incorporated in this new electronic flash unit, gives a preview of the final lighting effect. The little projecting tube on top is a sensitive photocell which makes the Strobolar 52-A an electronic slave unit also.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

A couple of ingenious innovations have been added to electronic flash units which make it easier to plan lighting effects in advance when shooting with one or more of the speed-lights.

The built-in innovations consist of a permanent modeling light which shows where and how the electronic flash will fall and a periscope-type photocell which can be lowered or raised to permit its use as a slave unit at any time.

These advantages are incorporated in the two new Honeywell Strobolar modeling slave units, 51-A and 52-A. Both are operated from normal household electricity, are exactly the same size, light in weight and moderately priced.

In model 51-A, plugging into an electric outlet immediately turns on both the modeling light and the power. It stores up 38 watt seconds of energy which is released at an exposure speed of 1/500th second.

Model 52-A, after plugging into an outlet, has separate switches to turn on or off both power or

Minister's Job Is At Stake

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP)—The Rev. David Andrews, 37-year-old Methodist minister, appears before the Methodist Inter-conference Commission on College Religious Work here today. The commission will decide whether the minister must give up his position as director of the Wesley Foundation at Appalachian State College.

The board of the Wesley Foundation at the Boone college asked that the Rev. Mr. Andrews be discharged or transferred. The minister was arrested three times last December while kneeling in front of the White House in Washington. He said he sought executive clemency for Morton Sobell, who is under a 30-year prison sentence for conspiracy to commit espionage.

Jordan Expects Similar Pattern

RALEIGH (AP) — Sen. E. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., expressed the feeling today that more farm programs will be enacted in the near future patterned after North Carolina's tobacco setup.

Jordan made the comment in a speech prepared for the North Carolina Bankers' Association's annual farm credit conference.

Jordan said, "We definitely have some adjustments to make in connection with getting total production at manageable levels and keeping it there."

He said the nation has tremendous grain surpluses "and I feel that grain producers in general are of the opinion that the time has come when they must adjust production levels if they expect to get desirable prices."

Jordan made no specific references to the Kennedy administration's farm program which now is in the hearing stage in Congress. On another important legislative matter, tariff reduction and the European Common Market, Jordan was non-committal.

He said, "We export large amounts of a wide variety of farm products, but it is too early to tell at this time the effects the common market will have on them."

He said, "The impact of foreign trade on agriculture in future years can be very far-reaching."

Fast-Talked His 3 Holdup Men

LUTHER, Okla. (AP) — Frank Prokup, bus station operator here, tricked three gunmen out of a holdup with some fast talking, said Deputy Sheriff Jim Faris.

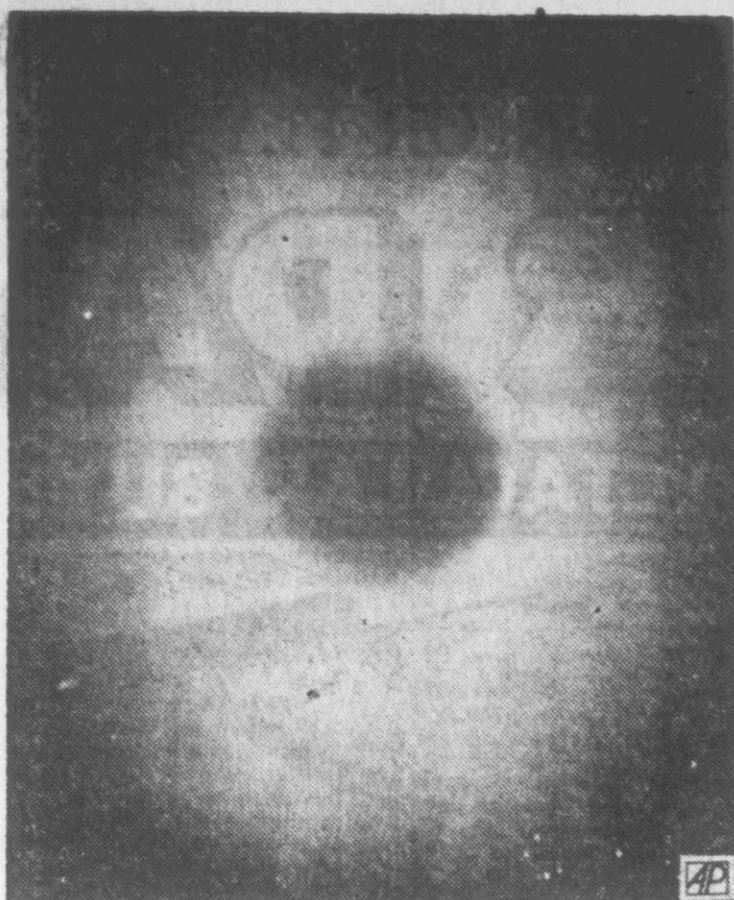

"Sorry boys," Prokup told the gunmen "You're a little late. I've just been hijacked and got cleaned. I just called the officers."

The three men fled.

RED-BLOODED REPORTING

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — George Foster, a reporter for the Waterbury American, was assigned to check the progress of a Red Cross bloodmobile visit. He was confronted by a smiling volunteer who said: "Yours will be the 100th pint."

It was.

Just One Car Had No Trouble

Ex-Dictator To Visit New York

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Former dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez of Venezuela has won court approval to go to New York City to confer with financial advisors and attorneys.

But, federal Judge William A. McRae Jr. said Monday, in the future Perez Jimenez should plan to conduct his business in Miami, where he lives. Venezuela is attempting to extradite the former dictator and the U.S. government is trying to get him to disclose his financial records. Perez Jimenez is under government order to remain in Miami while in this country.

Says Grabbers Can Be Trained

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Do you pass up small pleasures now to enjoy bigger ones later?

The Harvard University Center for Research in Personality is studying this subject—the ability to delay gratification.

Tests with children indicate a majority will grab a bag of candy immediately rather than rely on a promise of double that amount if they wait a week.

Dr. Walter Mischel, who heads the project, says people can train themselves to delay taking something favorable immediately in order to gain something more desirable later on. However, he adds, not every adult gives himself this training.

Four Charged In Chicago Kidnap

CHICAGO (AP) — Four men were charged Monday night with aggravated kidnaping and armed robbery in connection with the abduction and ransom of a South Side businessman's wife and their two teen-age children.

Irving Chanenson, 43, an auto parts dealer, reported to police Friday that he had just paid $4,600 to ransom his wife and two children from four Negro gunmen who invaded the Chanenson's home last Thursday night.

Police said the amount of ransom was first given as $8,200 in the hope of affecting a falling-out among the kidnapers. Chanenson told police the gunmen demanded $40,000 when they first invaded his home.

Held on charges of aggravated kidnaping and armed robbery were: Robert Hall, 28, an ex-convict who formerly worked for Chanenson; William Evans, 30, described by Pierson as a $40-a-day drug addict; Joseph Dear, 19 and Uwies Robinson, 27.

Police said $2,300 of the ransom money has been recovered. Mrs. Chanenson and the two children were taken to an unheated apartment where they were held under guard for several hours.

Chanenson's wife, Gloria, 41; his daughter, Elleen, 18, and his son, Larry, 14, were freed within minutes after the payoff. None was harmed.

Penalties for aggravated kidnaping range from one year in prison to death in the electric chair.

2nd-Thought Is Against Show

WASHINGTON (AP)—A television network president says that on second thought he should have canceled the show in which teen-age singer Fabian portrayed a psychopathic killer.

Oliver Treyz, president of the American Broadcasting Co. television network, told the Federal Communications Commission Monday orders have been given that ABC is not to rerun the controversial episode of the "Bus Stop" series which appeared last Dec. 3.

Treyz was testifying as the FCC resumed its hearings on television network programming practices. The commission recessed the hearings today for another meeting, but will return to the subject Wednesday with more testimony from ABC executives.

Prior to its showing, the regular sponsors of the "Bus Stop" series dropped the episode and 25 ABC affiliates declined to show it.

Entitled "A Lion Walks among Them," the show featured Fabian in the role of an immoral and murderous youth. Treyz called the show a borderline case when he testified last month before a Senate Juvenile Delinquency subcommittee hearing. Asked by FCC Chairman Newton Minow if he had acceded to a request by the National Association of Broadcasters for an advance screening, Treyz replied: "No. We didn't think that it was necessary because our standards are as high as theirs."

Police Tally 34 Traffic Accidents For January

A total of 34 traffic accidents which caused an estimated $15,325 in economic loss and resulted in nine persons being injured were investigated by Greenville police during January. These figures were reported by Chief Guy C. Langston as a part of the monthly traffic accident picture for January.

The police official reported that included in the wrecks were 17 which occurred at intersections and 17 which were non-intersection collisions. Fifteen occurred where traffic controls were in operation and 19 where no control was present.

Officers made a total of 22 arrests in the mishaps investigated.

Chief Langston reported that 41 of the persons involved in the collisions had addresses within the city while 23 were out-of-city persons. The period from 12 noon to 8 p.m. saw the heaviest traffic collision toll with 18 of the reported mishaps occurring within those hours. Next highest time period, with eight mishaps reported, was from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight, while third in line was the 8 a.m. to 12 noon time period.

Saturdays were the worst driving days, having eight of the 34 mishaps reported. Tuesdays and Fridays tied for second place with a total of seven each day, then Wednesdays followed with a total of six. Sundays, Thursdays and Mondays followed in that order with three, two and one respectively.

According to those figures, the most accident-prone time for motorists in Greenville during January was the period from 12 noon to 8 p.m. on Saturdays. Five of the 34 mishaps investigated occurred during this time.

'Marchers' Will Take Jail Stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine "peace marchers" arrested in front of the White House have chosen 10 days in jail instead of paying $10 fines for refusing to comply with a Washington picketing law.

The group was arrested Monday after refusing to obey a police order to move to the far end of a park across from the White House. Six others in the group sponsored by the Committee for Nonviolent Action of New York complied. All were protesting nuclear testing.

Police said they arrested the nine after explaining to them a Washington law forbidding demonstrations within 500 feet of an embassy or the grounds of any building occupied by foreign dignitaries. The police acted after Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula entered the White House for luncheon with President Kennedy.

The nine, who agreed to move across the street to the park but not to the far end of it, later told Municipal Judge Edward A. Beard they felt "morally obligated" not to pay the fine.

The nine were identified as Scott Herrick, 36; his wife Beatrice, 26; Robert Gilmore, 40; and Susan Hoffman, 19, all of New York; Lawrence Scott, 53, Washington; Gerald B. Lehmann, 25, Mokena, Ill.; Harry Purvis, 46, Northport, N.Y.; Stephen Grotf, 20, Souderton, Pa., and Beverley Kanegson, 21, Norwich, Conn.

Reflecting On SPORTS

Number One Now

East Carolina's basketball Pirates are now holding down the number one spot in the Carolinas Conference with nine wins and three losses to their credit in the loop. The former top team, Lenoir Rhyne, was upset by Appalachian Saturday night which left the Bears with a 10-4 record and moved the Pirates to the top of the ladder.

This is the first time an East Carolina cage team has been at the top in two years. At that time they were tied for first place with about one week remaining in the season, but injuries barred the Bucs from staying at the top. The possibility of injury to one or more players is always present.

So far this season the Bucs have been fortunate in the injury department and at the present time Benny Bowes is the only Pirate who is unable to play. Bowes suffered an ankle injury several weeks ago and is still out. Coach Earl Smith is not sure when the senior co-captain will be able to resume play.

However, we hope that the Pirates will be spared further injury this season and can remain at the top of the conference standings for the rest of the campaign. It would be especially good for them to finish on top as it is the last year East Carolina will be playing in the conference.

There are two or three rough games remaining on the Pirate's schedule. Coach Earl Smith seems to think that High Point and Elon will give them the most trouble, but he notes that in basketball anything can happen. Of course, this is true in any sport. The Elon game is away and that will add to the Bucs' troubles with the Christians. On the other hand, High Point will play here on Feb. 14 which is to the advantage of East Carolina. The last time the two teams met, High Point was able to come out on top.

The Pirates have six conference games left to play, but only five of them will count in the tournament pairings. The last scheduled game is with Guilford on Monday Feb. 19 which is one day after the pairings are drawn for the tourney which will be held in Lexington Feb. 21-24. In addition to Elon and High Point, East Carolina will meet Catawba, Pfeiffer and Atlantic Christian again before the season ends.

Coach Smith said that he plans to play the remaining games one at a time and he is hoping that other contenders for the number one spot will keep knocking each other out. However, Smith noted that the remaining schedule favors Lenoir Rhyne because most of their games from now on are at home.

"Our boys have fought their way up and they want to stay there. We are going to do everything in our power to keep them up there," the coach commented.

Possible Chance

We noted yesterday that Duke's number one scorer with a 27.8 average, Art Heyman, has his ankle back in a cast. The injured ankle was put in a cast for the first time last week. However, the cast was removed so Heyman could play in the Carolina game Saturday night. It is also our understanding that the cast will be removed again so that the high scoring Duke star can play in the State game tonight.

We feel sure that the ankle in question was examined by competent physicians and that playing on it against Carolina did not cause anymore damage.

However, we hate to think that the Duke coaching staff might risk a more serious injury to a fine athlete just so they can win one more game. In the past things such as this on the part of coaches have resulted in permanent injury to a player and we do not feel that any one player can or should be so valuable that it is worth risking permanent injury.

We hope this is not the case here. Even better would be to see Heyman sit out the State game tonight in view of the fact that he was way below par against the Tar Heels and only scored nine points.

Local Track Stars

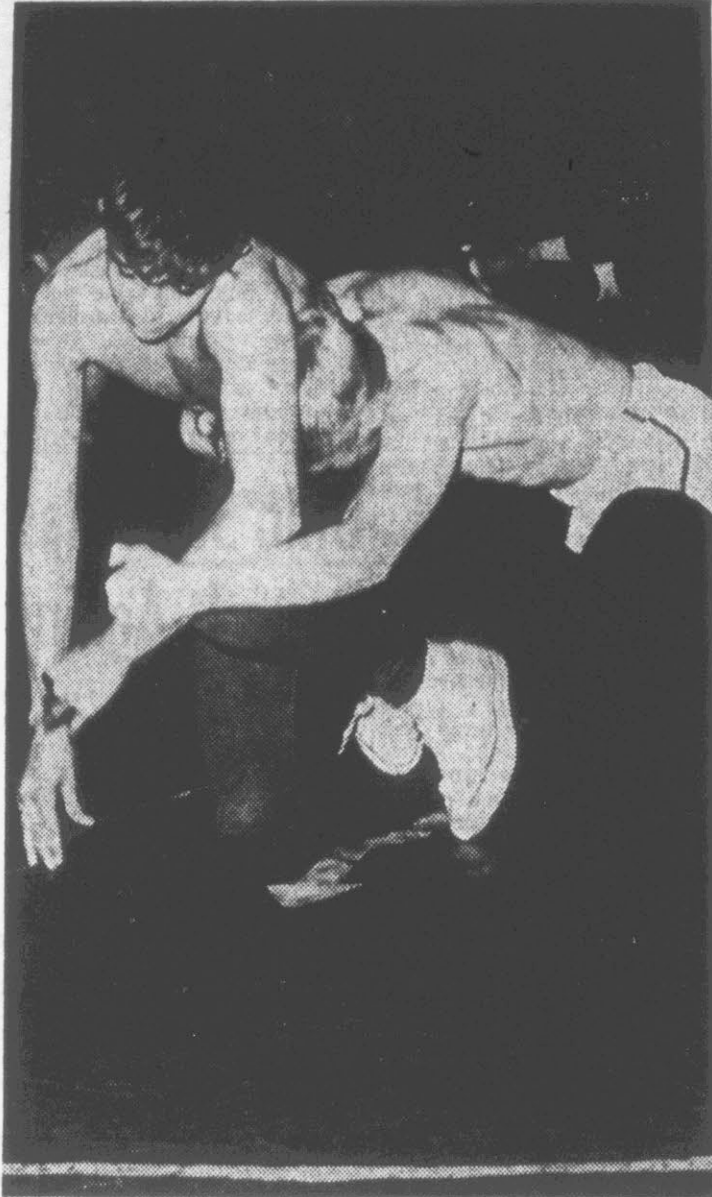

In the past several years Greenville has been fortunate in having some local boys on the University of North Carolina track team. Saturday in the VMI Winter Relays held at Lexington, Va., Rett Everette tied a record in winning the two-mile run in 9 minutes 30.1 seconds. Everette led all the way and oddly enough, the record he tied was set by a former UNC runner, Wayne Bishop in 1959. Both Bishop and Everette are from Greenville and both have been outstanding at UNC.

Beauty Too

The East Carolina basketball team has something that should make the boys work doubly hard when the tournament rolls around later this month. Miss Jean Lasater of Sanford and a senior at ECC has been selected as queen of the Carolinas Conference tournament. Her selection from among girls at colleges in the conference was announced yesterday by the Lexington Central YMCA where the tournament will be held.

It sure would be fine if the Pirates could leave the conference with a championship team and the queen as well. Miss Lasater was the ECC Homecoming Queen last year and the 1961 azalea princess.

Phant Wrestlers Down Goldsboro With Five Pins

The Rose High School wrestling team downed Goldsboro for the second time this season last night 33-19 with five of the Greenville boys winning their matches with pins.

This was the first home meet for Coach Don Bennett's team and it was the second win against two losses.

Those boys who pinned their opponent for Greenville were Paul Evans over Eddie Radford in the 106-pound class, Sammy Pugh over Joe Nass in the 115-pound class, David Mosier over Ed Gallager in the 148-pound class, Lee Whitehurst over Joe Husband in the 157-pound class, and Dalton Owens over Charles Goodwin in the 130-pound class.

Gaining decisions for Greenville were Chris Christopher over Tom Tarnity in the 123-pound class and Van Harris won by a forfeit over John Diviney in the unlimited class.

Gaining pins for Goldsboro were Butch Moomaw over Robert Brady in the 98-pound class and Richard Pascore over Roy Adams in the 183-pound class. Decisions for Goldsboro went to Jim Whitman over Johnny Speight in the 136-pound class, Ray Stallings over Bill Mosier in the 141-pound class, and Mike Trackburg in the 168-pound class.

The next meet for Greenville will also be a home contest when the Phantoms host Jacksonville at 4:30 Thursday afternoon.

Wants Athletics To Reach More

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Byron R. Whizzer White, U. S. deputy attorney general, says America needs more Paul Hornungs and Bob Fergusons and fewer spectators in athletics.

White addressed the 25th annual Maxwell Football Club dinner Monday night honoring Hornung of the National Football League champion Green Bay Packers and Ferguson of Ohio State as the professional and college football players of the year.

"I am and have been a rabid fan," said White. "But I am concerned because athletics are not reaching anywhere near the majority of our young people. We've got to have more participants."

White was a football star at Colorado.

SPORTS SHOW LISTED

NEW YORK (AP)—The National sports, vacation and travel show will be held at the New York Coliseum, Feb. 17-25. One of the features will be Orin Benson and his amazing collection of retrieving dogs.

The lowest nine-hole score during the 1961 PGA golf tour was a 28 turned in by Paul McGuire at Tucson, Ariz.

Ski Tournament Name Changed

CHAMONIX, France (AP)—The World Ski Championships, scheduled to open an eight-day run Saturday, instead will be known as the World Games of the International Ski Federation.

The change in title was announced Monday after the championships were canceled because of the refusal of the Allied Travel Office to issue travel permits to the East German team.

East Germans are banned from travel in the West under the general NATO policy that went into effect after the building of the Communist wall in Berlin.

Baseball Camps Involve 800

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Nobody can tell for sure just how successful the expanded 1962 major league season will be but one thing is certain as the athletes prepare to iron out winter's kinks. Spring training will be the most gigantic undertaking the national pastime has ever known.

More than 800 athletes between the ages of 18 and 41 will be trying for 500 places on 20 big league clubs.

Between mid-March and May 9, more than 300 will have been told to turn in their suits and head for such places as Honolulu or Vancouver, B.C., in the Pacific Coast; Atlanta or Jacksonville in the International League; Louisville or Omaha in the American Association.

Forty-man rosters are cut to 25 players by May 9, 30 days after the season opens.

Some high school graduates who starred for last June's varsity will go off in a dressing room corner and cry when informed they are headed for a classification lower than AAA.

Some will say they haven't had a fair chance, or that they had a sore arm or that they had of climate bothered them. None will say "they threw too many curves," or that "my fast ball wouldn't break."

Many anti-baseball people feel spring training is an excuse for a manager to get acquainted with his new players. That's only partially true. Actually, the manager has been well briefed on every player by his team's scouting reports. By last year's minor league phenomenon must adjust to big league conditions. That's what spring training means. It separates the men from the boys.

Spring bus rides from March 10—that's when the exhibition games start—until early April will lead to transcontinental airplane flights.

Last spring the Minnesota Twins and the Los Angeles Angels joined the expanded American League. This spring the New York Mets and Houston 45 Colts come alive as the new clubs in the 10-team National League. A good guess is that this setup will remain for at least five years. After that further expansion may lead to three major leagues.

Baseball has no hard and fast rule as to reporting dates, except that full squads must be on hand by March 1. Actually only two teams report that late this time. They are the Milwaukee Braves and Washington Senators.

Fourteen teams will train in Florida, five in Arizona and one, the Los Angeles Angels, in California. A number of teams have "early squads" in action already. The reason behind this is to see how last year's sore arms feel (Yankee Bob Turley and Pirate Vernon Law, to name two), and to learn how well some of the expensive bonus players know fundamentals that were dwelt on only lightly in the minors.

Changes in the 1962 camp setup find the world champion New York Yankees moving from St. Petersburg to a permanent base at Fort Lauderdale on Florida's east coast; the Mets taking the Yankees' old home (Miller Huggins Field) in St. Petersburg and the new Houston Colts going to an Arizona spot called Apache Junction.

Eight of the 20 teams start out with new managers. Casey Stengel, 72, returns after a year layoff to manage the Mets, Harry Craft has Houston, Birdie Tebbetts has Milwaukee and Johnny Keane is with St. Louis.

In the American League, Hank Bauer is handling Kansas City, Billy Hitchcock has Baltimore, Mel McGaha is with Cleveland and Sam Mele with Washington.

And the Chicago Cubs again assume that eight or more heads are better than one. They have eight coaches signed and plan no skipper. Charlie Metro, after great success at Denver, will be a newcomer to the mass strategy system.

Coach Bo Farley's Rose High School basketball Phantoms play their third away game in a row tonight when they travel to Jacksonville to meet the Cardinals in a Northeastern Conference contest.

The game will be the second battle between the two clubs. In the last game the local Phantoms came out on top by one point, 70-69. It was a nip and tuck game all the way with the score being tied 37-37 at the half. The win for Greenville came in the last three seconds of the game when Kroghie Andresen dropped in a free throw putting the Phantoms in front.

Tonight's game should be just as exciting if not more so. Both teams have improved a great deal since the first encounter early in the season. Greenville now has a 5-2 record in the league. The two losses were to New Bern and Tarboro. Both defeats were by two point margins during the last minute of the games.

Rodney Knowles, Greenville's 6-foot 7-inch sophomore center, is still leading the Phantoms in the scoring department with a 21.3 average.

Phants Meet Jacksonville Tonight; 1 County Game

Prior to the Tarboro game Friday night Knowles had a 22.0 average, but the Tigers held him to 16 points.

Andresen is the only Phantom player to boost his average in the Tarboro game. The 20 points he scored put him in the double figures at 10.8 from 9.6. The only other Greenville player in the double figures is Billy James with a 10.3 average. Prior to taking on the Tigers James' average was 10.8.

Other averages for the Greenville team are Kenneth Allen with 8.8 points, Jack Foley with 8.0 points and Alan McArthur with 5.6 points.

One County Game
There is only one Pitt

County Conference game scheduled for tonight. Stokes-Pactolus will travel to Oak City and Robersonville will host Jamesville.

In nearby Martin County Bear Grass will travel to Oak City and Robersonville will host Jamesville.

TRAINING CAMP SETUP With the addition of two new teams in the National League, major league baseball now has 20 spring training bases. Fourteen are in Florida, five in Arizona and one in California. Spring exhibition games begin Saturday, March 10. The major league season starts April 9.

Braves' Manager Thinks Club Has A Good Chance

By BIRDIE TEBBETTS

MILWAUKEE (AP) — I don't think I'm going out on a limb in saying that the Braves have a very good chance of winning the National League pennant. Not very many people figured Cincinnati would win last year or Pittsburgh the year before.

We finished fourth in 1961, 10 games out of first place, so we don't have to make up nearly as much ground as did the Reds. What we have to do is get more consistent pitching, more speed in the outfield and some help for our veteran players.

My immediate plan is to give some of the youngsters on the club the opportunity gradually to fit in with the veterans. I am referring to such rookies as pitchers Cecil Butler and Dennis Ribaunt, infielders Amado Samuel and Denis Menke, catcher Bob Uecker and outfielders Howie Bedell and Mack Jones.

Bedell is very fast. He had a tremendous record at Louisville last season, hitting 227 and leading the American Association in triples and hits. Hank Aaron, of course, is a regular at one of the outfield positions while Lee Maye will battle Bedell and Jones for the other two spots.

Bob Shaw is certain to help our pitching staff. He showed in the American League he had the ability to be a big winner. We got him from Kansas City. Every year you hear talk that Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette, our pitching mainstays, are going to start slipping. But they have yet to show signs of doing that. We also have Carl Willey, Bob Buhl, Don Nottebart and Don McMahon.

There's not too much room for improvement in our infield with Joe Adcock at first base, Frank Bolling at second, Roy McMillan at short and Eddie Mathews at third.

We are optimistic about the return of Del Crandall, who was out most of last season because of a shoulder injury.

Still Speculating On Melvin West's Fate

By ROBERT A. WILLIS
 MOREHEAD CITY, N. C. (AP)—Crisp seas slapped against the little boat, riding low in the choppy seas with an overload of fuel and supplies.

The pilot, a slender, 28-year-old radio disc jockey, sat drenched at the rudder, kept busy pointing the prow into the 16-mile-an-hour wind. Big drums of fuel, lashed to the deck, shifted slightly.

Suddenly a rope pulled loose and a 55-gallon fuel drum rolled with a crash to one side of the boat. She pitched over violently, dashing the seaman into cold, black water.

Was this the way Melvin West met his end, four years ago, in an attempt to make it to Bermuda alone in an outboard motorboat?

"I could be all wrong. Nobody knows for sure," says G. R. (Sonny) Ballou. "But I figure it had to be one of two things.

"Either the weather was too bad, or he passed out from sheer exhaustion and the waves swamped him."

Ballou, who operates a restaurant here, grew up with Melvin West and collaborated with the Korean War veteran in his attempt "to prove that the outboard motorboat has come of age."

West, a lean, handsome man with a sharp nose and dark hair, had been a radio announcer and a partner in an unsuccessful restaurant. But his consuming interest was to negotiate the 580 miles from here to Bermuda by outboard motorboat.

"It had become an obsession with him," said Mrs. Esther West, his attractive wife, while waiting one day four years ago for some word from the Coast Guard about her missing husband. The couple had three children—Morty, now 13; Melva, 7, and Barry Joe, 4.

West had tried the trip once before, in October, 1957, in a 15-foot outboard named "The Impossible" and powered with a 30-horsepower engine. He carried 117 gallons of fuel. Picked up by the Coast Guard after 10 days at sea, 160 miles short of Bermuda, West blamed a broken fuel line for his failure.

The Coast Guard took a dim view. A spokesman said the search cost $300,000, although West later said he was told the Coast Guard's expenses are constant, whether it is searching or not.

He laid plans for another trip, but quietly. There had been much ridicule of his first venture. This time he stocked a 16 1/2-foot boat, "The Empress of North Carolina," with 288 gallons of fuel, a radio receiver—no transmitter, for he had no license—rations for eight days, and six flares.

About midday Jan. 29, 1958, he kissed his wife and family goodbye and cast off without fanfare.

"There didn't seem to be any great hazard at the time," recalls Ballou. "There was a right good breeze, but we didn't expect too much weather. Mel thought he could ride out 35, 40, 45 mile an hour winds.

"He was in a hurry to go, anyway. He'd heard the Coast Guard was trying to get a permit to restrict him to shore.

"He was last spotted by some snapper fishermen on their way in, 45 or 50 miles off the coast.

"He had too much lead, I think maybe in the rolling, tumbling and tussling, one of those big fuel tanks worked loose. Once you get one of those rolled over to the side of a small boat, you know what happens.

"If the weather had hit on the third or fourth day, I think he could have made it. He'd have been rid of 700 or 800 pounds of fuel then.

"He stood to gain a lot from it—endorsements for a lot of boat and engine companies. It looked like easy money and not much risk to him."

West had told his family and friends not to worry for 12 days. On the 13th day Mrs. West called the Coast Guard.

Nineteen days and two hours after West's departure from Morehead City, the Coast Guard called off its search after hunting 120,000 to 150,000 square miles of ocean. No trace of West ever has been reported.

Less than a week later, Mrs. West started work at a drugstore here to support the children. "No, he won't be found," she said. "I have given up hope."

It may be questioned how much of an achievement West's trip would have been considered, had he made it.

In 1952, a man named William Andrews crossed the Atlantic alone in a 14 1/2-foot boat, and did it four more times in later years. Several other trips, in slightly larger boats and with two or three men in the crew, were recorded in the late 19th century.

Ballou suggests that West could have lived to sail another day. The weather he ran into, says Ballou, was a sou'wester. "He could have run before it and reached home port again before it hit. But he hadn't had much sleep. Maybe he passed out from sheer exhaustion.

"He'd have had to have amnesia not to come back, if he was able. He had a mighty fine wife and three mighty fine kids."

The widow still lives in this seaport town. She has professed a fear of water, dating back long before West's trips. Her children take no particular interest in the sea, she says.

As for her heartbroken days and nights in 1958, she now says, in a gentle but firm voice:

"I'd rather not go into that."

Corn Supports Expected To Be At '61 Levels

Support prices for the 1962 crop of feed grains in North Carolina should be about the same as in 1961, according to office manager Livingston Roberts of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

This prediction, Roberts said, is based on the fact that the feed grains for 1962 will be supported at the following national average support level:

Corn—$1.20 per bushel average for all grades; barley—93 cents per bushel for grade No. 2 or better; grain sorghum—$1.93 per hundredweight for grade No. 2 or better; oats—62 cents per bushel for grade No. 3; and rye—$1.02 per bushel for grade No. 2 or better, or grade No. 3 on test weight only.

The 1962 support prices reflect approximately 74 per cent of the January parity for corn, barley, and oats; 69 per cent for rye; and about 78 per cent for grain sorghum, Roberts explained.

Feed grain legislation provides that the Secretary of Agriculture may set the support level for corn at not less than 65 per cent of parity for the 1962 crop. The $1.20 per bushel support price, Roberts said, was determined as the price that would effectively meet the objectives of the feed grain program.

Support for the other feed grains requires consideration of several factors, including supply in relation to demand, the ability of the Commodity Credit Corporation to dispose of stocks acquired under price support, the ability and willingness of producers to keep supplies in line with

Chicago Banker Says You Richer Than You Think

By SAM DAWSON
 AP Business News Analyst
 NEW YORK (AP)—Here's one comforting thought today in a world beset by problems: You are richer than you think!

The thought is put forth by a Chicago banker who is president of the Trust Division of the American Bankers Association, now holding its annual midwinter trust conference here. He is Thomas H. Beacom, a senior vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago.

He doubts if you really know how much you're worth alive—nor how much you'd be worth dead. As a banker he, naturally, thinks you should find out right away.

"Most people are so close to what they own they fail to realize how well off they are," Beacom holds. "Many even are inclined to think their bank books are all there is to their estates."

He cites as an example a man who may have $3,000 in savings at the local bank or in U.S. Savings Bonds, and feel he's worth very little indeed. But the man owns his own home, probably worth $15,000, life insurance valued at $20,000, a car that may bring $1,000 if sold.

That adds up to $39,000 right there. But Beacom says that isn't all. Furniture, household appliances, jewelry, objects d'art and even personal clothing should be included—things that most people somehow rarely consider part of their wealth.

The moral? Because too few realize how much they're worth, too many die without leaving a will. Beacom adds that, worse yet, three out of ten wills in existence are outmoded or were drawn up without benefit of estate planning.

Without a will, the state steps in to dispose of your property, perhaps in a way you wouldn't approve, and certainly with legal fees and papers that eat into the total.

So check up now and see how much you're really worth, Beacom advises. He says estates of $60,000 and more have increased in number 300 per cent since 1944. And estates of that size are large enough to put you into the arms of the inheritance tax collector.

So here's what the Chicago banker thinks you ought to do:

First, make a household inventory, room by room. Services of a professional appraiser may be a worthwhile investment. Such a list helps not only in making a will, but also in estimating how much fire and casualty insurance you should own or in offering quick evidence in case of loss or fire.

Second, find out your net worth by measuring your assets against your liabilities. Assets include everything you own, including the cash value of your life insurance. Liabilities include the home mortgage or other real estate mortgages or liens, car loan, money due on furniture and appliances, personal loan balances and loans against life insurance, open accounts and current bills unpaid.

Subtract the liabilities from your total assets. The result is your net worth, alive.

Next, figure your worth dead. Subtract the cash value of your life insurance from your net worth and then add the face value of your policies.

Beacom suggests you then talk to your local banker if you want help in planning an estate, or perhaps in setting up a trust fund to be managed for you or your heirs by a professional.

Finally, make a will and keep it up to date. Go to a qualified lawyer, if you want to be sure of avoiding any technical error that could lead a court to invalidate or misinterpret a will you might try to write yourself.

Remember: you're worth more than you may think, so be careful.

Disparity Cut In Death Rates

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The foreign born in the United States have always experienced a higher death rate than native born Americans, but the disparity in the mortality rates has diminished appreciably since 1900, according to statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

In a review of the death rates from 1900 to 1950 the statisticians said that by mid-century the mortality rate for native born white males was 11.0 per 1,000, compared to 11.7 for the foreign born. For native born females, the rate in 1950 was 7.2 per 1,000 and 8.6 for the foreign born.

Under age 45, the death rate for native males in 1950 was 2.3 per 1,000, while the rate for foreign born was 2.9. A comparison of the female death rate shows a slightly greater difference. The mortality rate for native women in 1950 was 1.8 per 1,000 in the same age group, and 2.3 per 1,000 for the foreign born females.

In the group at ages 45 and over, the death rate in 1950 for native born males was 31.7 per 1,000, compared to 33.7 for the foreign born. For women, the respective rates were 20.9 and 24.5, the statisticians noted.

The higher mortality of the foreign born, particularly in the early decades of the century, has been attributable largely to such environmental factors as living and working under unhealthful conditions, nutritional imbalances and ignorance of available medical and public health facilities, the statisticians said.

But as time went on, many of the handicaps diminished, and immigrants have shared increasingly in the spectacular reductions in mortality.

Economic Boycott Talked In Desegregation Efforts

By The Associated Press
Negroes are making plans for an economic boycott of white merchants in Englewood, N.J., to fight what a Negro attorney described as "much more sophisticated segregation" than exists in the South.

The attorney, Paul Zuber, said such boycotts have proven effective in the South and that he supported the plan for a similar move in Englewood this weekend.

Zuber warned of the boycott Monday after he and attorney George Jeter filed suit in U.S. District Court at Newark seeking to bar what they called racial segregation in Englewood elementary schools.

The legal action followed an unsuccessful attempt to transfer nine Negro children from a 95 per cent Negro school to a predominantly white school, an all-night sit-in demonstration and the arrest of 15 demonstrators.

There is no segregation by law in Englewood, a community of 26,000, but residential patterns have tended to make some of its school districts predominantly white or Negro.

Members of the Congress of Racial Equality voted to suspend sit-in demonstrations at the University of Chicago after a meeting with university President George W. Beadle.

Beadle said he was willing to discuss ways of implementing the university's non discrimination policy in apartments and hotels it owns. Earlier, demonstrators seeking housing integration guarantees had been ordered to leave Beadle's office after nearly two weeks of intermittent sit-ins.

The school board at Houston, Tex., agreed to allow Negro children to enter white school even if the children have brothers or sisters in a Negro kindergarten. Negro parents contended that in the past children wishing to enroll in white first or second grades were turned away if other members of their family attended another school.

Houston's kindergartens are not desegregated and do not have to be until 1972 under a federal court approved plan for desegregating

Canadian Cold Hits Midsection

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Frigid air from Canada, powered by stiff northerly winds, enveloped broad areas of the nation's midsection today and the sting of the icy air was felt all the way into sections of the Gulf Coast.

Most of the eastern half of the nation was in the path of the arctic blasts, which ended a brief spell of mild weather.

Coldest weather appeared confined to Minnesota, with temperatures dropping nearly 30 degrees below zero in International Falls, Minn., on the Canadian border. Monday's high in the northern border town was 10 below, and it was -27 this morning. It was -16 in Minneapolis and -17 in Duluth, Minn. Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., reported -15.

Below zero readings also were reported in parts of Michigan, Wisconsin, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska and northern Illinois. It was -1 in Chicago, which had a spring-like reading of 50 Sunday.

Cold wave or freeze warnings were in effect as far south as the Gulf Coast states from southern Texas east, northeastward through the lower and middle Mississippi Valley, the Ohio Valley, most of the Great Lakes region and sections of the Northeast.

James Meredith, a 29-year-old Negro, appealed to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans a U.S. District Court decision denying him admission to the white university of Mississippi.

At Farmville, Va., the Prince Edward County Christian Association announced reopening of its training centers for Negro children who have been deprived of public schools for nearly three years.

In Columbia, S.C., David Lee, Negro publisher of a weekly newspaper at Anderson, filed a $10 million suit in U.S. District Court charging the NAACP with conspiracy to put him out of business by encouraging persons not to buy his newspaper.

In the past Lee has filed other libel and slander suits against the NAACP.

The NAACP's parks suit and Lee's actions are all pending in the courts.

Workers will be able to buy stock in the firm at reduced rates as a result of a State Utilities Commission decision Monday.

Employees are able to buy the stock at about 80 per cent of its market cost, which presently is about $54 a share. They can buy one share for each $500 in annual salary up to a 60-share limit.

Commissioner Tom Eller, dissenting, called attention to an order issued Jan. 12 in which the commission permitted the telephone firm to sell shares to its stockholders at $20 each.

In that order, the majority told the firm to finance future operations through bonds rather than stock. But the commission said Monday the new plan had nothing to do with the Jan. 12 situation.

Too Busy For Christmas Party

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP)—"Better late than never," commented the Professional Photographers of Worcester Association, as the members celebrated their Christmas party long after Christmas.

Why the belated observance? The photographers explained they were so busy taking pictures of everybody else's holiday parties, and processing them, that they just didn't have time to hold their own.

Raleigh (AP)—Carolina Telephone and Telephone Co. workers will be able to buy stock in the firm at reduced rates as a result of a State Utilities Commission decision Monday.

Employees are able to buy the stock at about 80 per cent of its market cost, which presently is about $54 a share. They can buy one share for each $500 in annual salary up to a 60-share limit.

Commissioner Tom Eller, dissenting, called attention to an order issued Jan. 12 in which the commission permitted the telephone firm to sell shares to its stockholders at $20 each.

In that order, the majority told the firm to finance future operations through bonds rather than stock. But the commission said Monday the new plan had nothing to do with the Jan. 12 situation.

No Restful Days For Visitors Or Inhabitants Of New Delhi

By JIM BECKER
India never lacks for dignitaries. They trek through here in a never-ending stream, bent on seeing the nation's two leading tourist attractions, the Taj Mahal and Prime Minister Nehru.

The guest lists at these various receptions—which are at the rate of three or four a night when the season is in full swing—are very, very similar. Since New Delhi's big industry is government, the various government and diplomatic officials all invite each other.

Another reason why New Delhi can claim the reception championship of the world is its prohibition.

There are no bars in New Delhi. Restaurants cannot serve liquor with meals. So people entertain at home and after they get tired of that, they go to receptions.

The bottle lid is always off there.

Gangs of waiters carry trays laden with glasses with a generous helping of whiskey (always Scotch in British-trained India). Behind each of these waiters is another with a pitcher of water in one hand and a pitcher of soda in the other.

Ice is almost unheard of, even at American functions.

Other waiters pass around fruit juice for the benefit of Indians and people from Arab nations, most of whom do not drink alcohol.

South Is Building Own Flying Force

By B. F. KELLUM
MERCEDES, Tex. (AP)—The South is rising again—this time right to the skies, with its own Southern flying force.

When the United States in 1945 ordered destruction of some World War II fighter planes, there arose to combat this "Yankee command" a wacky tongue-in-cheek organization calling itself The Confederate Air Force.

Operating mostly in the Rio Grande Valley, the force now numbers 10 planes and 66 men, most of them former military pilots. All are colonels "so nobody can pull rank."

The organization's leader is Col. Jethro E. Culpepper. But he doesn't exist.

Lloyd Noland of Mercedes, one of the colonels, explains: "We didn't want any chiefs in this tribe but we needed some sort of leader. Culpepper is a good old Southern name and there was a Culpepper Regiment in the Civil War. So we decided on Col. Jethro E. Culpepper."

The Confederate Air Force's stated object is to have the Capitol at Washington turned around so it faces South.

Other goals: preserve the Southern customs and traditions such as "good Southern cooking, leisurely drinking, catfishing, pocket-knife whittling, rocking-chair rocking and plain old shadetree sitting."

Nolan, 38, a wartime pilot instructor, adds, "We're collecting aging planes in top shape, the principal activity of the CAF is flying at air shows."

The group takes in a transplanted Yankee once in a while, but only after he has been thoroughly screened by the OSS (Office of Southern Security).

Members go in together to purchase a plane which they can find one. "None of us can afford to invest a lot of money for a piece of no practical purpose but this way we all get to fly them," Nolan said.

The group hopes eventually to have a complete line of World War II planes. They now have one F51 Mustang, two P8F Bearcats, one F4U Corsair, one P-51 Mustang, one P-40 Wildcat, one P-47 Thunderbolt and three TV Texans.

A recent addition was the Corsair, which was found on a desert where it has been exposed to the blowing sand for many years. It was soon whipped into CAF-approved shape, with a complete overhaul, a coat of paint and, of course, a Confederate flag.

Identification Beyond Dispute

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Again and again, Mrs. William Miller, clerk at the Arizona Public Service Co. office, explained to the customer that no personal checks were accepted without identification.

The man explained he had left his wallet at home and had no other identification with him. "I'm sorry," said Mrs. Miller.

Whereupon the man reached into his mouth, withdrew his upper plate and showed where his name was engraved on the choppers.

Pitt Youth Off For Marine Training

Tommy Irvin Luther, 17, son of Mrs. Elsie B. Luther and the late Mr. Robert Lee Luther of 145 Pitt Street, Grifton, enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps this week for four years, and left for the Marine Corps Recruit Training Depot at Parris Island, S. C. according to the local Marine Corps Recruiter Staff Sergeant Leo Smith.

The Parris Island Recruit Training is a rigorous training that is designed to "build-men" said Sergeant Smith. Luther will be given 10½ weeks of training at boot camp and four weeks of individual combat training at Camp Lejeune after which he will be eligible for 20 days leave.

The Recruit attended Grifton High School and was encouraged to complete his education. He will have the opportunity to finish his education through the Marine Corps Institute, and the United States Armed Forces Institute after completing his recruit training. While in boot camp, he will be given the opportunity to qualify also for a technical school.

BOSTON (AP)—Emerson College Professor Haig Der Merdrosian is dieting—at $100 a pound.

The money—contributed by students and alumni for every pound lost—is going to the college fund.

The professor's goal is 100 pounds. He's lost 75 since Nov. 1 when he weighed 342½ pounds. "Fat came off in layers when I started," the professor says. "It's like chipping granite block now. But I hope to make it eventually."

THE BUFFALO'S STILL WITH US

BUFFALO LINEUP ON THE OKLAHOMA GAME PRESERVE

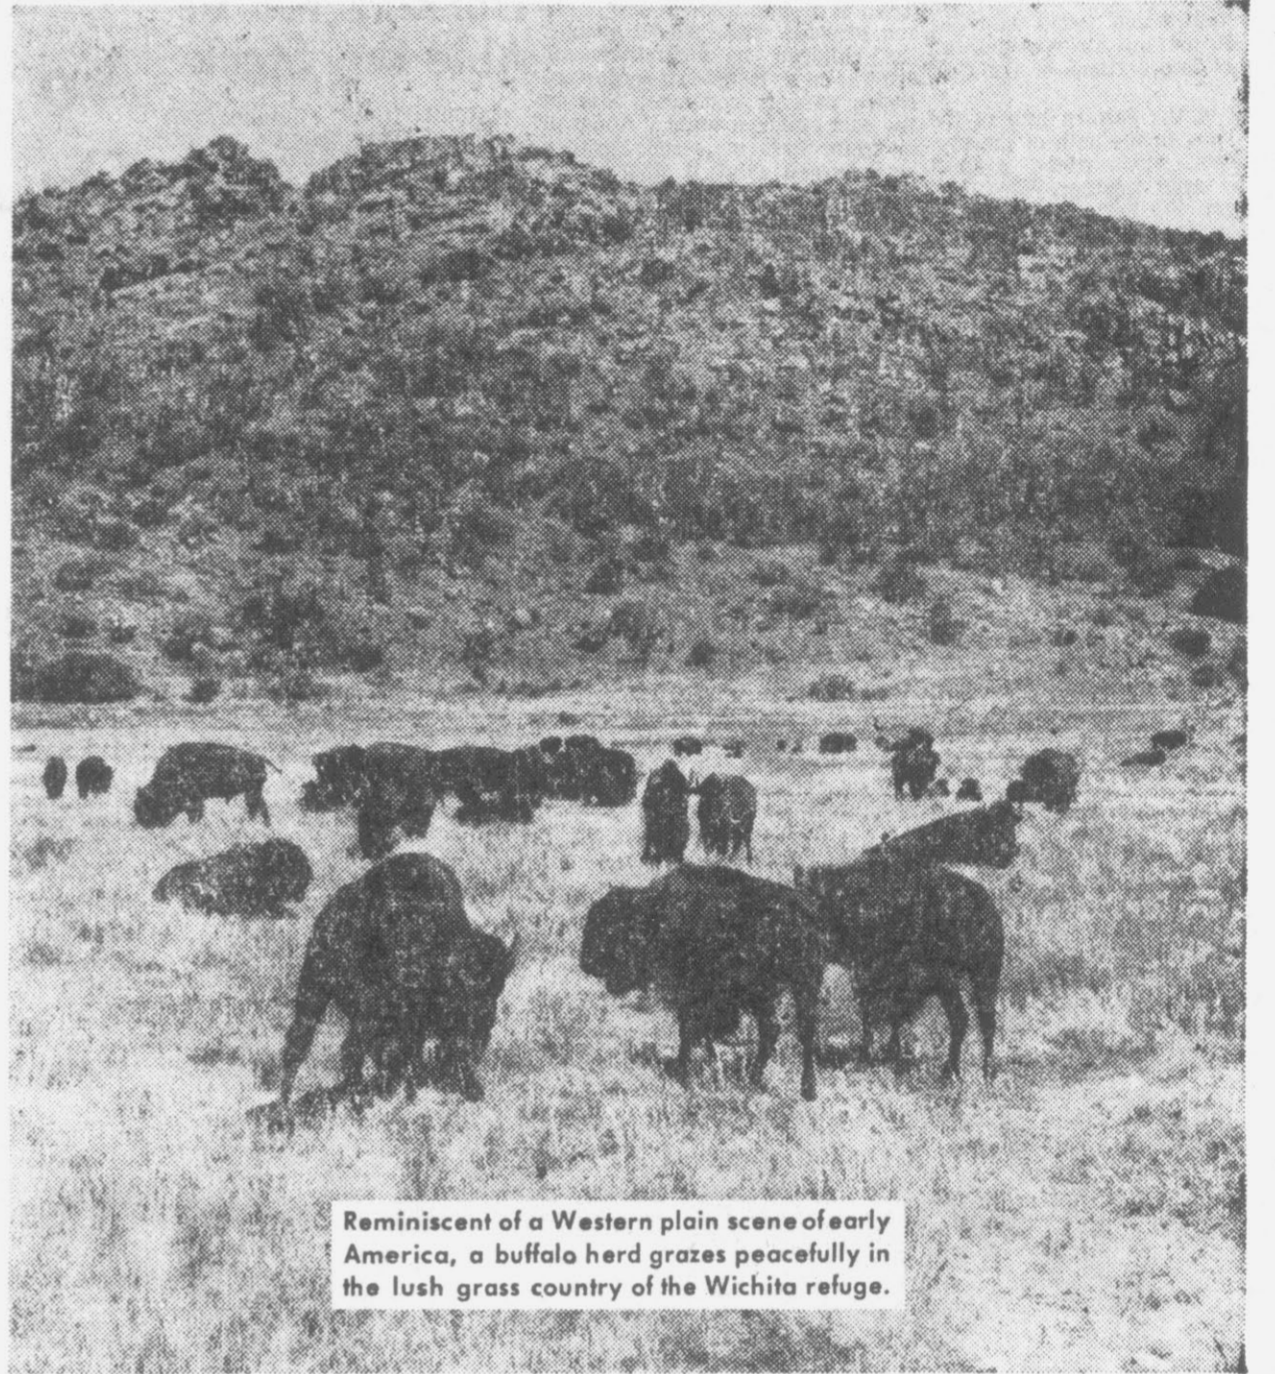

Buffalo-decorated sign stands near the entrance to the 60,000-acre Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge in southwest Oklahoma.

The American buffalo, or bison, which once dominated the great plains, is still around—numbering a meager 5,000 or so compared to the 20 million that thundered across the prairies a little over a century ago. Today's survivors are living on government game preserves, in national parks, or in zoos.

Though the buffalo for centuries was a prey to the Indian who sought its flesh for food and its hide for clothing and shelter, it was not until the middle of the 19th century that the herds began thinning fast. Between 1850 and 1890, the white man slaughtered vast numbers. Some were killed for sport, others by professional hunters for their meat and skins. Thousands were left to rot on the plains. By 1889, only 551 bison could be found alive in the entire United States.

By means of game laws and other protective measures, the 551 surviving bison were allowed to live and multiply.

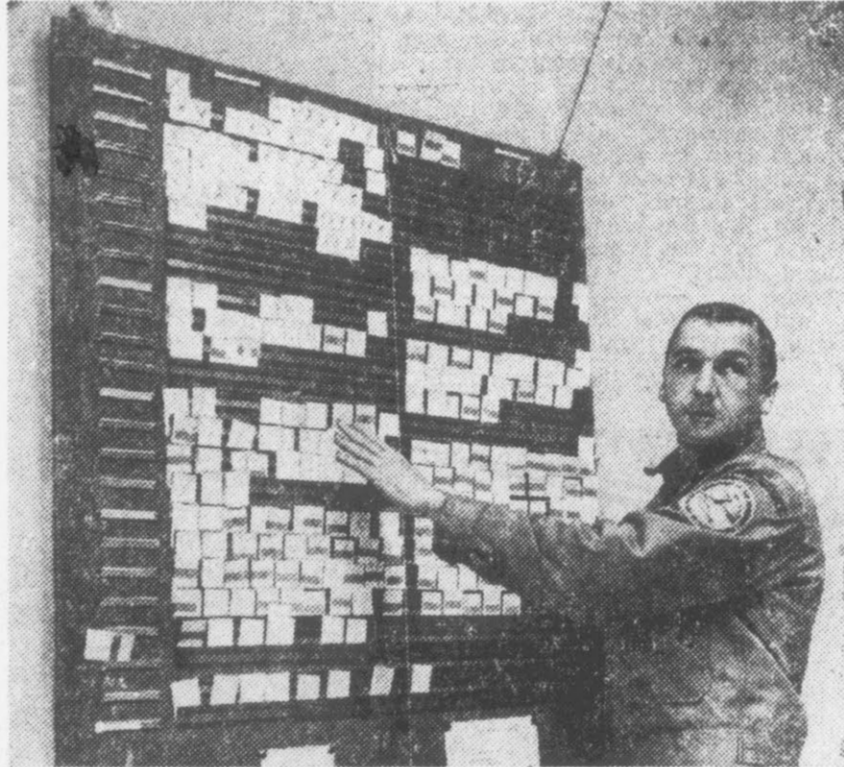

Today, one of the largest of the remaining herds is to be found on the 60,000-acre Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge in Oklahoma, pictured here. The herd numbers some 800 animals that roam at will among the elk, antelope and white-tailed deer also sheltered there. Each year a few of the buffaloes are taken out of the herd to keep it within the limits of the Refuge's grazing capacity. Some of these are sent to zoos, others sold for breeding, while still others are slaughtered and the meat sold.

Reminiscent of a Western plain scene of early America, a buffalo herd grazes peacefully in the lush grass country of the Wichita refuge.

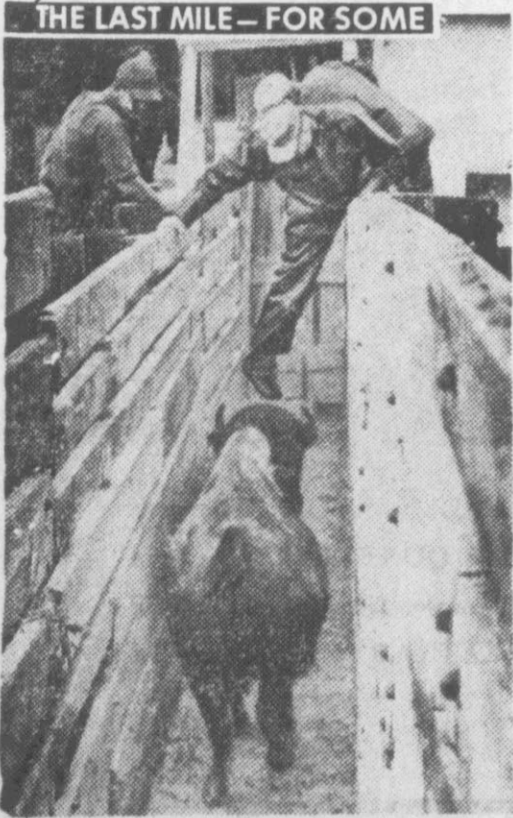

Signs like this one are posted in the refuge. Visitors are also warned that firearms are prohibited.

Merle Bennett, assistant refuge manager, keeps list on board of buyers of buffaloes or their meat.

With her babe right behind her, a mama buffalo ambles off in search of a good grazing spot.

A buffalo is prodded into the slaughter house chute.

Maintenance foreman Melvin Roach takes aim and kills the animal with a single shot.

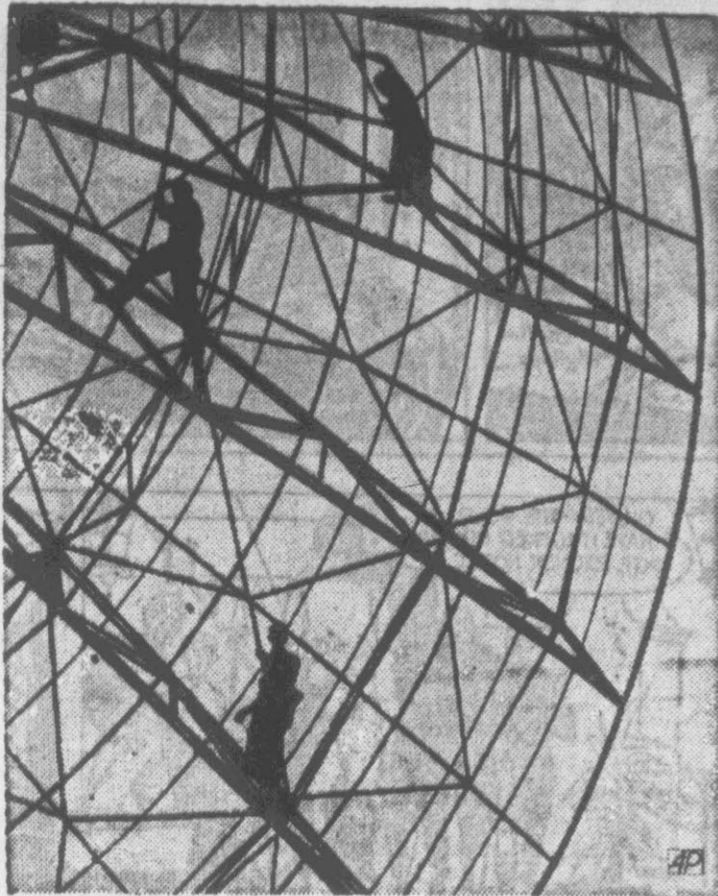

The hide is covered with coarse salt. It will be kept smothered in the salt for two months to cure, then sold.

Quarters of the buffalo meat are loaded into a truck which will take them to a packing plant for shipment to the purchaser.

Piles Of Registration Forms Still Await N.C. Commies; No Takers

By BILL EAST
Twin City Sentinel
Written for The Associated Press
WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) — In the offices of the three U. S. district attorneys for North Carolina are piles of official-looking registration forms.

They were sent to North Carolina late last year by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy in case any Communist wanted to register under the Internal Security Act of 1950.

The U. S. Supreme Court ruled last June that there was nothing in the Constitution to prevent the government's requirement that the Communists register as agents of a foreign power.

But the registration forms in North Carolina — as well as throughout the nation — remained untouched as the Dec. 20 deadline for registration passed.

Did that mean there are no more Communists in North Carolina? Or did it mean that those who remain are subjecting themselves to possible fine and imprisonment for their beliefs?

No one outside the investigative agencies of the government knows that answer for sure. And the Communists in North Carolina, who removed themselves from availability for interviews five years ago, aren't around to give the answer.

But the record of the last 15 years discloses there have been Communists in North Carolina, they have spoken loud and long and they have been busy.

The Communists opened a post-World War II North Carolina headquarters in Winston-Salem about 1947 and placed a quiet-spoken scholar named Sam Hall in charge.

Hall prepared press releases in the name of the party, answered students' questions about communism and once even debated a pastor in the pastor's church on "Christianity vs Communism." Later Hall was transferred to Birmingham, Ala., to head Communist operations there. He died in 1954 in New York City, where he was living under an assumed name.

In North Carolina, Hall was replaced by Junius Irving Scales who directed the Communist party for nearly six years.

Scales recruited members for the party, helped conduct security checks on Communists and frequently wrote radio and television stations demanding "equal time" for the party when the stations aired anti-Communist programs.

In 1951, an FBI report estimated that 95 of the nation's 31,608 Communists lived in North Carolina.

In August of the following year, according to testimony given later before House and Senate committees, the Communists conducted a training school for their members in North Carolina and Virginia on a farm near Walnut Cove.

In 1954, Scales was arrested and charged with violating the Smith Act by being a member of an organization whose goal was the overthrow of the government.

He was tried twice. Both times he received six years in prison. The U. S. Supreme Court upheld his second conviction last June on the same day it ruled Communists had to register.

In its opinion, the court cited two instances that the Communists in North Carolina were more than just a passive organization. One was the holding of the school near Walnut Cove.

The other was the fact that party officials encouraged a member (who later turned out to be a government undercover agent) to get a job with a Winston-Salem firm which manufactured defense materials.

Scales began his prison sentence last October. Since his conviction, he has announced that he disagreed with the party on the Communist action in the Hungarian revolution and on other tactics and has resigned.

In March, 1956, the House Un-American Activities Committee went to Charlotte. For three days, it turned the spotlight on Communist activities in North Carolina.

Ralph Clontz, a Charlotte attorney who joined the party to get information for the FBI, told the committee:

"I think a great mistake is made by a lot of people in assuming that the Communist party in North Carolina was Junius Scales. The mistake is in assuming that one individual was the only thing that was an evil force, so to speak, in the Carolinas, whereas actually the effect of the party was scattered through the state . . ."

Observers say the importance of keeping up with Communist activities in North Carolina has been emphasized by the government placing a least four undercover agents in the state since 1950.

The four, all of whom have been identified now, included Clontz; Charles Benson Childs, who attended the school at Walnut Cove; Odie Reavis, the man the Communists advised to get a job at the defense plant; and Armando Penha, who worked with Communists in industry, particularly textiles.

Since Scales' conviction, the Communists have steadfastly declined to disclose the name of a successor chairman of the party in North Carolina.

A large number of Communists who were sent into North Carolina as organizers or colonizers had left, their value damaged by their exposure to public view.

But is the state completely free of Communists? The answer to that question may have to await the hour when — and if — the Department of Justice decides to arrest the Communists for failure to register. And no one will say when that will come.

National Charter For Phi Kappa Tau

The Phi Kappa Tau fraternity at East Carolina College, accepting high honors this past weekend, were presented their national charter during ceremonies conducted at the college Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 3-4.

A "red-letter event" in the lives of the "brothers," the Gamma Eta Chapter of Phi Kappa Tau at East Carolina is the seventy-ninth colony in the nation to "go national."

John A. Wilkinson, Washington, N. C., attorney, served as master of ceremonies and introduced special guests to the approximately 100 present, including members and their escorts attending the formal banquet Sunday night, Feb. 4, in the South Dining Hall on the college campus.

Presenting the charter to Michael Wilkinson of Belhaven, president of Phi Kappa Tau, was Jack Anson of Oxford, Ohio, National Secretary of Phi Kappa Tau.

Mr. Anson urged the brothers to "perpetuate a two-way partnership with the chapter and the college" to continue their record of good scholarship, to let their pledge training be "truly training," and "to be of service to your college by growing and developing through the years."

Featured speaker for the occasion was Harold Angelo, National President of Phi Kappa Tau and Dean of Men at the University of Colorado. He stressed responsibility to both college and fraternity alumni organizations, to the college and community, individual responsibility to the group, and group responsibility to the individual member.

Other guests recognized were John Edwards of Raleigh, Domain Chief of the fraternity; Barney West of Durham, first president of the fraternity, who gave a brief history of the organization; and President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina and Mrs. Jenkins.

Other special guests from East Carolina College included Dean of Men James Mallory, who welcomed the brothers into the fraternity system and congratulated them on their fine record; Vice President F. D. Duncan, and Mrs. Duncan; Registrar John Horne and Mrs. Horne; Dean of Women Ruth White; and Dean of Student Affairs James Tucker. Robert Christensen of Washington, D. C., provided entertainment.

Wets And Dries Going To Polls

DUNN, N.C. (AP)—Wet and dry forces put away their soap boxes today, and Dunn citizens voted on the question of establishing ABC liquor stores in their city.

A large voter turnout was expected in the wake of a rugged campaign fought along emotional and financial grounds.

Dunn, with a population of 7,600, had about 4,000 persons on the registration books. About 500 names were added during the campaign.

Dunn's dry forces received help in the campaign from Baptist churches as far away as Lillington and Erwin.

The city council, which set the election date, said if the legal whisky stores are approved, the tax rate would be trimmed by 10 cents for each $100 valuation.

Death Is Probed By FBI Agents

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—The FBI is investigating the death of a U.S. school administrator whose body was found at the foot of a 150-foot cliff behind his home at the U.S. Army's Ft. Brooke here.

William V. Costello, 39, a native of Atlanta, was found dead Sunday afternoon. His wife was away visiting her sick mother in Winston-Salem, N.C.

Costello once was a reporter for the Greenville, S.C., Piedmont, and from 1952 to 1958 was publisher of the Cherokee Scout, a weekly newspaper at Murphy, N.C. He was a graduate of Clemson College and received a master's degree from Western Carolina Teachers College.

FBI special agent John Speakes said his office was investigating to learn whether foul play was involved in Costello's death. He explained that the federal bureau was called into the case because the death occurred on U.S. government property.

The Ft. Brooke provost marshal also is investigating. There has been no report yet on the results of an autopsy.

Costello was administrative assistant to the superintendent of Antilles consolidated schools for children of military personnel stationed in Puerto Rico.

Dr. Jas. White Plans Series Of School Talks

Discussing the topic of "Building a Better FBLA Chapter," Dr. White will appear as speaker before members of FBLA chapters at the Albemarle High School Tuesday night, February 6, and at the Needham Broughton High School in Raleigh Wednesday afternoon, February 7. Business teachers and students in nearby schools which do not have chapters of the FBLA have been invited to attend each of these meetings.

Dr. White will speak Monday afternoon, February 12, at a meeting of the Martin County Business Education Association in Williamston. He will discuss with members of the county organization "Improving Standards in Type-writing."

Over-Awed By Floral Offerings

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—State Supreme Court Justice Alfred M. Kramer likes to tell the story about the swearing in ceremonies for Mayor Bernard J. Dowd on New Year's Day 1946.

Justice Kramer, then secretary to Mayor Dowd, said the mayor arrived for the ceremonies and was over-awed by the large number of floral offerings in the office.

Turning to Kramer, the mayor cracked: "Al, you take the oath while I water the flowers."

Rocket Research Firm Is Asking For Assurances

CURRITUCK, N.C. (AP)—An official of a rocket research firm says the company needs assurances that it is wanted and a $500,000 access road before it can locate a plant on the Outer Banks near here.

Vice president and Treasurer Gerald T. Halpin of Atlantic Research Corp. was here Monday to discuss with Currituck County officials the nature of his firm's activity.

He said the plant, if located on the Outer Banks north of the community of Duck, would be a testing and laboratory facility.

Because of the classified nature of the operation, Halpin continued, it needs the isolation provided by the sparsely settled Outer Banks strip.

In addition to its classified work, the firm would perform research toward developing a new propellant for rocket engines.

Finer Points Of Law Debated

RALEIGH (AP)—The finer points of law and grammar were up for debate today in a State Supreme Court hearing to decide whether an off-year election should be held to fill the vacant post of lieutenant governor.

State Sen. Max Thomas of Union County appealed to the high court from a decision in Wake County which said the post should not be filled until the regular election of 1964.

Thomas contended that the constitution requires an election this year. He made an unsuccessful bid to file as a Democratic candidate for the post vacated by the death of H. Cloyd Philpott.

Atty. Gen. Wade Bruton has ruled that the Constitution requires that the vacancy remain until 1964.

Only Request Is Honored By King

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—When James J. Mirras left his home in Niata, Greece, for America in 1920, his mother made one request:

"My son," she said, "if you ever make any money, I want you to send enough to fill the holes in the church tower."

She was referring to the twin towers of the village church, empty because there was no money to buy clocks and bells.

Mirras, now a successful restaurant owner here, sent the money for new clocks and bells 30 years later. And he was recently awarded a medal from Greece's King Paul for public service.

Three Aliens In A Cardboard Box

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP)—No-gales police picked up three aliens, but were puzzled as to what official action should be taken.

DOG GONE COSTLY

NEW YORK (AP)—A dog's life is getting more and more expensive.

Including overhead, it takes $500 a month to maintain a laboratory dog and $300 a month for a single rat, reports a publication of American Cyanamid Company.

In Newfoundland, a Transland train was once charged regularly by a mouse until it changed its whistle, which sounded like a mouse's mating call.

Thurmond Asks Contempt Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., demanded today that Pentagon employees be cited for contempt of Congress if they obey Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's orders and refuse to tell a Senate investigation of "muzzling" who censored what speeches.

A series of Senate speeches by Thurmond charging that censorship had "muzzled" military men's anti-Communist speeches touched off the inquiry.

McNamara declared Monday he would stand pat on his refusal to tell the subcommittee which of the censors altered language of any particular speech text. He also has forbidden his subordinates to give such testimony.

McNamara said he hoped no contempt citations would result, but that if there are any they "should be directed to me and not the reviewers."

Addressing a news conference, he said it would undermine morale if he let subordinates answer to Congress for following his directives. He vouched for the censors as loyal Americans, saying that many of them are war veterans with distinguished combat records.

Angry Outcries Over Philippine Tobacco Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Action by the Philippines to re-export a $7 million American tobacco shipment which it has ruled illegal has sparked angry outcries from members of Congress.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., joined the chorus Monday when he called the decision of Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal "utterly indefensible."

Some congressmen from tobacco-producing areas threatened to bring up the controversial shipment when the house takes up a bill granting $73 million in Philippine war damage claims.

State department officials said that under Philippine law, Macapagal could have ordered the shipment burned. Instead, contending that American shippers were acting on good faith, he ordered it re-exported to some other nation.

Lawyers Argue Election Issues

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Supreme Court heard lawyers argue today on whether North Carolina should elect a lieutenant governor this year.

State Sen. J. Max Thomas of Union County, who brought on the court action by seeking to file for the office, was an interested listener.

Irving Carlyle of Winston-Salem and Floyd Crouse of Sparta represented Thomas in arguing to the court that a successor to the late H. Cloyd Philpott should be chosen this year.

Ralph Moody, senior assistant attorney general, maintained that under the state constitution the office should remain vacant for the remainder of the term to which Philpott was elected.

Moody argued that the farmers of the constitution would have spelled out an interim election if they wanted the office filled that way in the event of death or disability.

Associate Justice William B. Rodman noted there have been four instances of lieutenant governor taking over upon the death of governors. In no case, Rodman said, was it suggested an election should be held to fill the vacated office of lieutenant governor. He asked Crouse why the question hadn't come up before.

"Your honor," said Crouse, "why this matter has never been brought before this tribunal before, we do not know." He compared it to other questions of law which remain unanswered until the issue is raised.

Associate Justice R. Hunt Parker asked each lawyer whether the governor should not have appointed a successor to Philpott if the constitution requires interim election to fill the office. This is the procedure followed with other state offices below the rank of governor and lieutenant governor.

Moody said he thought so. Carlyle and Crouse did not agree.

Parker also asked Crouse if his arguments didn't lead to the conclusion there should be an interim election to fill the office of governor upon the death or disability of a chief executive. Crouse replied he didn't feel that question was before the court.

Tiros Satellite Launch Delayed By Troubles

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Technical troubles with the booster rocket forced postponement today of an attempt to launch an improved Tiros weather satellite into orbit.

Scientists had only a 47-minute period ending at 7:50 a.m. in which to launch the rocket to put the Tiros IV payload on the proper course. When it became apparent that the problem could not be corrected in this time, the shot was called off for the day.

No new launching date was set. If the trouble is minor another effort may be made Wednesday.

Tiros IV is the fourth in a series of satellites aimed at developing a worldwide network of space stations to forecast weather by photographing earth cloud cover.

Finnish Leftist Edge Overcome

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Center parties supporting President Urho Kekkonen's cold war neutrality overcame a one-vote leftist majority in the Finnish Parliament today as results from the weekend election showed a slight shift to the right.

The election result was interpreted as a popular defiance of Soviet pressure on this militarily weak nation on the Soviet Union's northwest border.

A coalition of the center parties appeared in prospect for Finland, but there was no indication yet which parties would get together. Finland has had 17 governments since World War II.

Alligator River Bridge Readied

EAST LAKE, N.C. (AP) — A 3 1/2-mile bridge spanning the Alligator River and replacing the Highway Department's ferry will go into use Friday.

Gov. Terry Sanford, First District Rep. Herbert Bonner and Highway Commission Chairman Merrill Evans will participate in ceremonies officially opening the span, named for State Sen. Lindsay Warren of Washington.

The official party will make the last ferry run and then, after Sanford cuts the ribbon, will cross the bridge in a motorcade. Sanford's limousine will be the first vehicle across the span.

SETTING THE SAME

WILLIMANTIC, Conn. (AP) — On Jan. 22, 21 years ago, Mrs. Richard F. Spellman gave birth to a daughter at Windham Community Hospital. This year, on the same date, the daughter—now Mrs. Robert Murphy—gave birth to a son in the same hospital. She had the same doctor, the same nurse and the same dietitian who served her mother.

Army Releasing Some Reservists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army reported today it is releasing an undisclosed number of reservists it acknowledged should not have been called to active duty during the Berlin crisis mobilization.

It said it "has instructed the field to advise those individuals erroneously called up they are eligible for release from the service."

Involved are men who, due to misinterpretation of policy, were kept in the ready Reserve when they should have been transferred to the inactive Reserve.

The Army said it does not have any figures on the number affected. Generally, they are among the more than 14,000 Army reservists ordered to duty specifically to fill up ranks of under-strength Reserve and National Guard units mustered into active service last fall.

During the mobilization, some protested they were called up unjustly. The Army in effect admitted this today, saying "during the build-up certain personnel were called to active duty erroneously."
