Economic Study Set For State

Sanford Says Project Would Be Basis For Programs, Corrections

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Sanford's administration has announced plans to study the state's over-all economy and tax structure this year in a broadly-based program aimed at continuing progress in industrial development.

Sanford told his news conference Thursday the economic study would become the basis for future planning in industrial expansion and would aid in correcting any deficiencies noted.

The two studies were included in a 12-point program which Sanford said was designed "to give all North Carolinians better chances to make better livings."

He said his administration intends to keep the state "in the lead in securing new industries and in aiding out established industries to expand."

Sanford said competition among states for new industry is keener than ever. There are more than 16,000 development groups throughout the United States, he noted.

In addition to the tax and economy studies, Sanford's plan includes:

An industrial exhibit to be shown at European trade fairs and another out-of-state industrial development mission.

Programs aimed at promoting products made in North Carolina and at catching the eyes of vacationing business executives visiting the state.

Conferences of industrial development executives and leading labor firms, industrial realtors and engineers. Other conferences on financing industrial buildings, on expanding sales to the federal government and on developing the state's export potential.

A training program for Commerce and Industry Division staff personnel.

Urban Post Has Committee OK

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's controversial plan to set up a Cabinet-level department of urban affairs has been endorsed by the House Government Operations Committee.

But supporters of the measure admit its chances of House approval are slim.

The new department will be created by executive order unless the House or Senate vetoes the plan before March 31.

Farmville Board Ratifies, Adopts List Ordinances

FARMVILLE — Farmville's Commissioners this week ratified and adopted a newly codified list of town ordinances and ordered them printed as "Code of the Town of Farmville."

Action of the board followed an extensive study of existing ordinances that included re-arranging and indexing of the town laws as well as elimination of outmoded provisions in the ordinances.

Printing of the newly-codified ordinances was ordered from the Rouse Printery, local printing establishment, at the rate of $7 per printed page. Specifications call for the printing in 10-point type on 8 1/2- by 11-inch rag bond paper.

Town Clerk H. M. Allred reported to the board that construction on a joint street project—financed by the town and by the State Highway Commission—is expected to begin during March. Allred said the contract between the town and the highway body

Soviet Believed Achieve Gains In Nuclear Testing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's top disarmament adviser reported today that the Soviet Union "achieved some substantial gains" in nuclear weapons development in its long series of test explosions last fall.

Disarmament Director William C. Foster said the Soviet accomplishment has become clear to U.S. officials "only in the last month."

His words indicated either that the United States has come into possession of new intelligence information or that fresh conclusions have recently been reached by the scientists analyzing such information as they have been able to get on the Soviet test series.

Foster made his statement about Soviet test results in a letter to the Washington Post which gave further indication that the Kennedy administration is moving steadily toward a decision within the next few weeks to order atmospheric testing of U.S. nuclear weapons.

Foster referred to the "substantial gains" made by the

Some Differences On Test Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite full agreement on the basic issues, the United States and Britain appeared today to differ in their approaches to a final decision on atmospheric testing of nuclear weapons by the West.

Whether the apparent differences will lead to any real disagreement probably depends on the kind of response the Soviet Union makes to the joint U.S.-British proposal for an East-West foreign ministers meeting at Geneva next month in connection with the opening of an 18-nation disarmament conference.

U.S. officials said President Kennedy feels the final decision on testing must be made independently of the Soviet reaction.

By contrast, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, in speaking to Parliament Thursday, expressed the hope that circumstances might develop in such a way that "we may be able to agree that further tests may be postponed."

He said that should the proposal for high-level East-West talks "lead to any great result, the whole political and military situation would be transformed."

Macmillan's words reflected a hopeful, if not optimistic attitude which is not shared by Washington officials.

At a news conference Wednesday Kennedy said the Soviet Union, having prepared in secret for its extensive nuclear tests last fall, could not be trusted not to make such secret preparations again.

Statements Thursday by Macmillan and Kennedy showed a complete agreement on the fundamental issues involved in any decision which may be made to test in the atmosphere.

The joint statement released by the White House said both governments agreed that because of the recent massive Soviet tests the West would be justified "in making such further series of nuclear tests as may be necessary for purely military reasons."

There was a hint of a possible future summit meeting if the disarmament talks make progress.

has been executed for the South Main Street project.

In other action, the board asked Allred to advise the Farmville Planning Commission that funds would be made available next fiscal year, if the commission deems necessary, to enable the planning group to finance a two-year contract.

The contract, which would afford the town the services of the Eastern Planning Office at the rate of $1,200 a year, would provide most of the maps and surveys required by the Planning Commission during the two-year period.

Allred told the board the Planning Commission had asked for tentative approval of the funds—a total of $2,400—as a foundation for the planning group's future plans.

The town commissioners approved a list of 13 rules governing the operation of the Farmville swimming pool this season. The regulations dealt mostly with sanitation, conduct of

Ambulance Hit Carload Of Students

Three Dead, Six Injured As Car Hurriedly Left School Parking Lot

NEWTON GROVE, N.C. (AP)—H. H. Simpson, principal of Hobbs High School, surveyed the tangled wreckage outside his school yard Thursday and said, "We had a senior class of 106—now we have only 103."

Simpson had just learned that a carload of his students had hurriedly left the school parking lot and driven into the path of an ambulance on U.S. 701 near here.

The toll was three dead and six injured, including two critically.

Those in critical condition included another student and an elderly woman being conveyed home from a Clinton hospital in the ambulance.

Simpson said the accident left such an impact on the school's students that he called off classes 20 minutes after the wreck.

He said six students piled in a car during their lunch break and began to drive off.

"They probably were trying to get away from the campus in a hurry without being seen and drove into the path of the ambulance," he commented.

The dead were Charles Ray Godwin, and O. J. Bradshaw, both 18 of Rt. 2 Faison, and Kent Sutton, 18 of Rt. 1 Faison.

Injured students were Harold Ray Jackson of Rt. 2, Faison, Noble Jernigan of Rt. 2, Dunn and David Cox of near Faison. Jackson was taken to Duke Hospital in critical condition. The other two were hospitalized in Clinton.

Mrs. June Warren of near Newton Grove was returned to the Clinton hospital from which she had just been taken. She suffered internal injuries in the wreck and was in critical condition.

A friend of Mrs. Warren's, Mrs. Gilbert Vann of near Newton Grove, was hospitalized in serious condition. Another ambulance passenger, Carey Robinson of Clinton, suffered minor injuries. Driver Tony Mason Lockerman of Salemburg was not hurt.

The accident had an ironic tie-in with an event which took place in Raleigh shortly afterwards.

Gov. Terry Sanford issued a statement at his weekly news conference on the teen-age driving situation. "Hardly a day passes that I do not receive a letter from a distressed parent who urges me to take some action to protect their teen-agers from death and injury on the highways," he said.

"I want them to know we are trying to do something," the governor added.

Sanford said his coordinating committee on traffic safety is considering possible limitations on teen-age driving permits—either issuing probationary licenses or requiring driver training courses, or both.

Sanford issued statistics which tied in grimly with the Newton Grove wreck: Age group 16 and 17 furnishes 2 per cent of the drivers, 6 per cent of the accidents; age group 18 and 19 furnishes 4 per cent of the drivers, 8 per cent of the accidents.

In Market For Budget Officer

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Terry Sanford is in the market for a new state budget officer as a result of the resignation announced Thursday of Charles R. Holloman.

Holloman said he was stepping down his $13,200-a-year job effective around March 1 to accept a post in the North Carolina State College business office and consequently have more time to spend with his family.

Sanford said, "I will be forever grateful for his work, dedication and may contributions to the development of a sound and progressive budget."

Approval was also granted for the table tennis or picnic purposes and the installation of tennis courts and badminton courts on the pavement at the local National Guard Armory.

Commissioner Joseph D. Joyner, as board spokesman, advised Albert Williams that the town would rule on the matter of public improvements in the Lincoln Park area after receipt of studies now underway.

Williams appeared before the board in behalf of a group of Negro citizens in the Lincoln Park area asking for street and utility improvements. Joyner said that once a cost analysis had been made for the improvements, which would be studies in connection with a current planning survey, actual construction would be contingent upon whether funds are available.

In other matters, the commissioners: —tabled action of a request by former commissioner W. C. Wooten that the town advertise for bids on municipal gas, oil and other automotive needs until the progress of a Street Department relocation project can be determined. —appropriated funds (between $25 and $50) at Wooten's request to purchase supplies needed in conducting a local nurses training course.

Paris Counts Eight Dead In Bloody Day Of Rioting

PARIS (AP)—Communists today threatened strikes and more demonstrations after a wild night of bloody rioting in Paris in which eight persons were killed and hundreds injured.

The Reds accused the police of "unbelievable savagery" in three hours of fierce street fighting which erupted from a Communist demonstration protesting the government's failure to quell the terrorists of the Secret Army Organization.

Interior Minister Roger Frey charged that the Communists provoked the bloodshed and declared: "These people wanted trouble. Rarely have such well-organized bands of rioters attacked the security forces."

The Communists, backed by other left-wing parties and Communist trade unions, retaliated with a threat to call a general strike during the funerals of Thursday night's victims.

The non-Communist Socialist splinter party led by former Premier Pierre Mendes-France demanded the resignation of Paris police Chief Maurice Papon and the dismissal of Frey. The party claimed many of its members were among the injured.

While the mobs of leftists surged through the streets battling police, terrorists of the anti-De Gaulle Secret Army Organization set off a dozen or more plastic bombs in scattered sections of the capital. As usual the bombers got away.

Communist party offices and printing plants were attacked. One bomb badly damaged the Paris office of the Soviet news agency Tass in a building owned by the Soviet Embassy. A woman worker at one publishing firm was injured.

Workers' organizations, and trade unions rained down protests against the police suppression of the demonstration.

The club-swinging police suffered heavy casualties in the furious fighting as they charged repeatedly to break up the mobs. A communiqué said 184 policemen were injured, 10 seriously.

Authorities said they could give no idea of the number of rioters injured but there probably were several hundred.

Among the dead was Jean-Pierre Bernard, Communist secretary of the 15th district of Paris. First reports indicated at least three women and a 15-year-old boy were killed.

The interior ministry said all the dead apparently were crushed in the stampede. It denied a charge by the Communist newspaper Humanité that the police had fired on the mob.

The skirmishes raged over much of eastern Paris with the heaviest fighting on the vast expanse of the historic Place de la Bastille, birthplace of the French Revolution in 1789.

Tech workers from the factory districts bombarded the helmeted police with paving blocks ripped up from the streets, gratings and iron bolts. A barrage of bottles rained down from windows and balconies.

At the height of the melee the De Gaulle government made an appeal for order and warned:

"The government cannot lend itself to the double game of the enemies of the nation, which can only shake republican institutions and result in anarchy."

Humanité claimed that 60,000 persons stormed into the streets in response to the Red call for a demonstration against the terrorists it denounced as "assassins" and "fascists." Police set the figure at 10,000.

While the battle raged in Paris other demonstrations broke out in Lille, Clermont-Ferrand, Lorient and other French cities. But no disorders were reported from the provinces.

Authorities reported 83 arrests were made in Paris and ordered an investigation into the rioting.

De Gaulle, under the constitution, can take over virtual dictatorial powers if he judges the country to be in danger. He hinted in an address to the nation last Monday that he might be forced to use emergency powers.

Sec. Of Defense Proposes Federal Shelter Financing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration proposed today that the federal government pay a percentage of the cost of building public fallout shelters.

The proposal was made in a letter sent to Congress by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. He outlined recommended legislation to carry out the Civil Defense shelter program already announced by the government.

Under the proposal, the maximum federal "incentive payment," as McNamara called it, would be $25 per shelter space.

That is, the federal payment would not run more than $25 for each person to be accommodated in the shelter.

The federal incentive payments would be only for public shelters. Although the Civil Defense Office is encouraging and advising on the building of home shelters, no financial assistance would be given for private shelter spaces.

Estimated federal outlay for the first year of the program is $450 million, to provide shelter space for 20 million persons. Other shelter areas provided in existing structures are expected to increase the total shelter protection to 30 million spaces.

The federal subsidy—to schools, hospitals, welfare institutions and other nonprofit organizations operated by state or local governments—would be provided for construction of shelters to house 50 or more persons.

McNamara's letter said: "It is anticipated that the rate of incentive payments to eligible institutions will be set at $25 per approved shelter space, or the cost of shelter construction, whichever is less. The average incremental cost is estimated at $40 per shelter space"—$4 per square foot of floor space allowing 10 square feet for each shelter space.

New construction or changes in existing construction to provide shelter areas will be based on standards already existing in the Federal Civil Defense Act.

McNamara said that any payment made for shelter would be in addition to any other assistance in construction given to nonprofit institutions by the federal government, irrespective of whether such assistance was in the form of a loan or grant.

World Bank To Finance Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — The World Bank has formally agreed to lend Ghana $47 million to help finance the giant Volta River power project.

All told, installations in the Volta project will cost $324 million, including a huge aluminum plant to be built by an American group headed by Kaiser Aluminum Co.

The station will have an initial capacity of 589,000 kilowatts, compared to the 70,000 kilowatts now available in the African nation. Steam plants are Ghana's only current source of electric power.

The loan formally approved Thursday is for 25 years at 5 1/2 per cent interest.

Ghana is putting up $98 million toward the dam. The United States is supplying almost all the outside financing. This help was granted only after long consideration here of how much aid should be given Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah, who has been flirting with the Soviet bloc.

U.S. financing includes loans of $27 million from the Agency for International Development, and $10 million from the Export-Import Bank.

Alligator River Bridge Is Formally Opened

COLUMBIA, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Sanford said today the opening of the Lindsay C. Warren Bridge across Alligator River "brings this entire area closer to the heart of the state."

Sanford declared the nearly 3-mile long bridge will speed the flow of traffic in the upper coastal region and lend itself to development of industry and the tourist trade.

He made his remarks in a speech at a ceremony officially opening the span which was named in honor of State Sen. Warren of Beaufort County. Built at a cost of more than $218 million, the bridge connects Sandy Point with the East Lake area.

Sanford said he considered the opening "a definite highlight in this administration. . . the building of the bridge constitutes a milestone in the progress of North Carolina."

Travel over Alligator River has been handled by ferry service for many years.

First District Congressman Herbert C. Bonner and Warren were on hand for the ribbon-cutting ceremonies.

Bonner was to welcome the gathering at the beginning of the ceremony on the west, or Tyrrell County, side of the bridge. Two ferries then were to make the final run to the Dare County side.

The ceremony was to end at the East Lake landing after speeches by Highway Chairman Merrill Evans and Sanford and the official ribbon cutting by Sanford.

Then, Sanford, Warren, Bonner and Evans were to pile into the No. 1 car of a motorcade and make the first trip across the bridge en route to Columbia for a luncheon.

The bridge was completed five months ahead of schedule by the contractor, the T. A. Loving Cand Co. of Goldsboro. The contractor established its own plant for making prestressed concrete piling and eliminated the need to bring them in over long distances.

Big Expansion Program Voted For Greenville Elks Building

Greenville Elks Lodge 1645 last night approved an expansion program which will more than double the building's floor space and cost a maximum of $89,000.

The expansion of the Elks building, located on W. Sixth St. between Memorial Drive and Pitt Memorial Hospital, was approved by the membership. Approximately 100 members attended last night's supper and meeting. A two-thirds favorable vote was required.

Exalted Ruler John A. Collins said the building program is to be carried out "to accommodate our increasing membership."

"The new building will be designed for more family participation," he declared.

The present building was constructed in 1954 and occupied June 1 of that year. It has 5,000 square feet and Exalted Ruler Collins said 6,500 square feet will be added, making a total of 11,500 square feet.

Additions will be made on the east side of the building and on the front. The lodge faces on Sixth St. but owns lands behind it. It also owns more land on the east side, which, Collins said, will be developed for a parking lot.

In Readiness

Pitt Scout District's Exposition—billed as the most elaborate event in the district's history—is scheduled to get underway at 2:30 p.m. Saturday Raynor-Forbes Warehouse in Greenville's western fringe.

Sponsored by the Greenville Kiwanis Club, the event is expected to attract some 10,000 persons. A total of 15,000 tickets were distributed throughout the county.

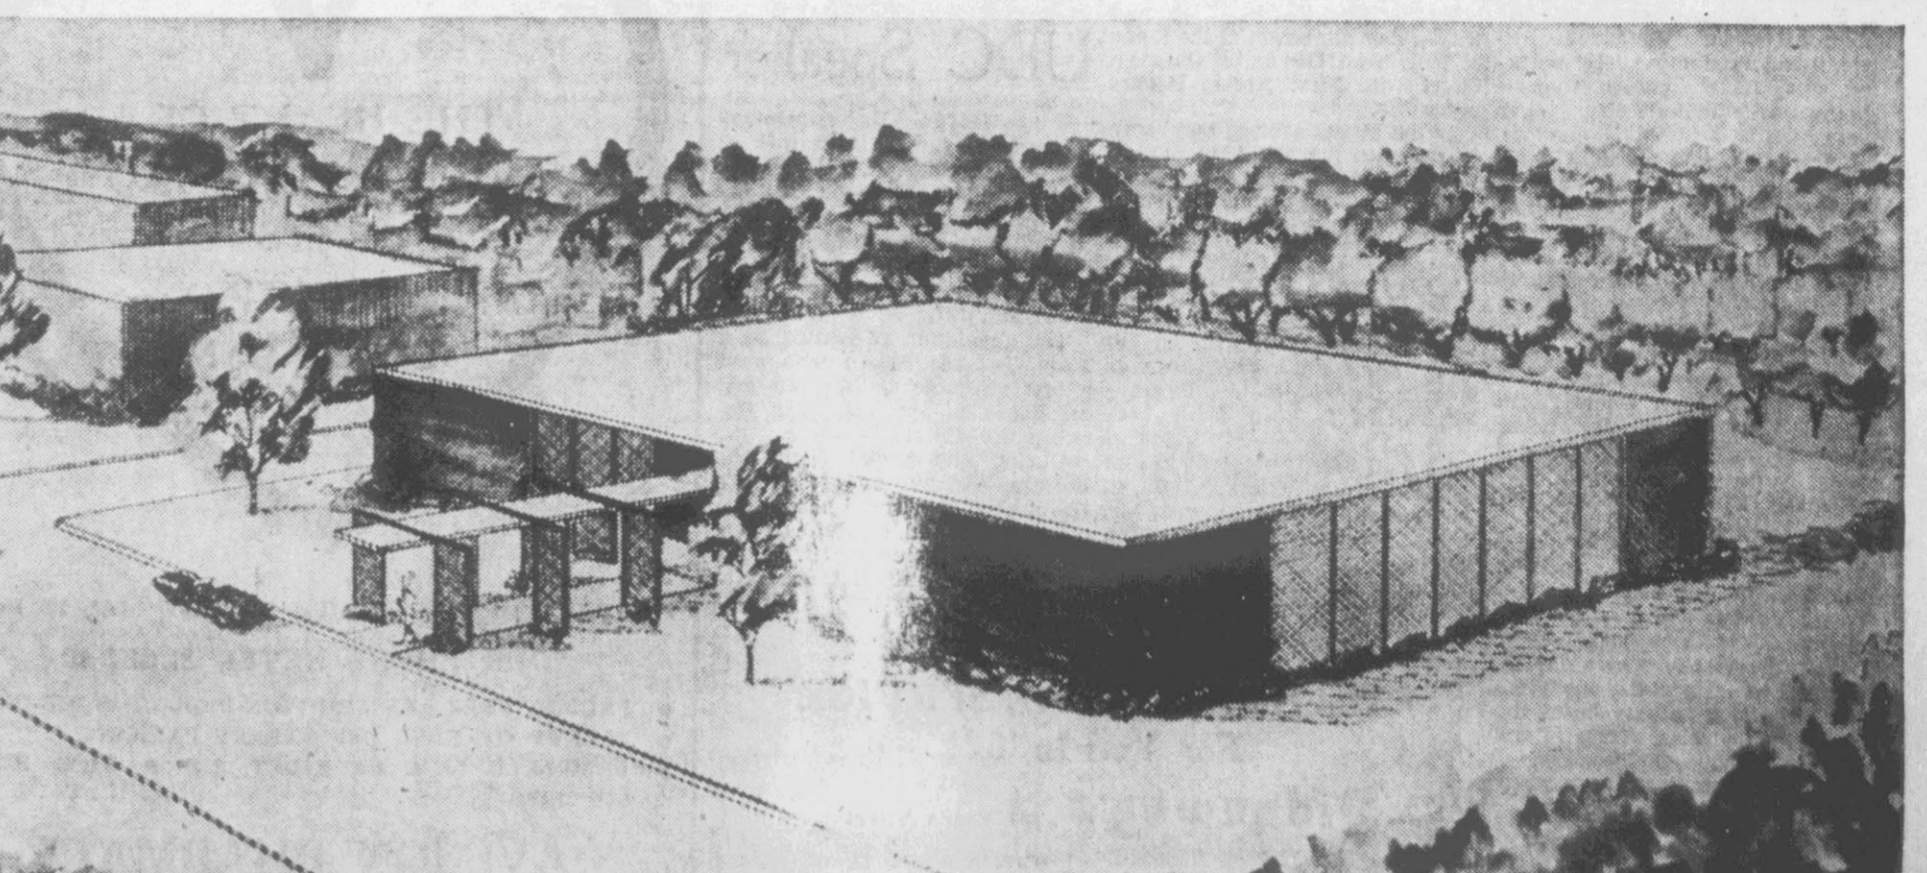

Features of the afternoon-evening event include demonstrations, display booths, Cub scout games and Pine-wood Derbies, an Order of the Arrow Indian pageant and an awards presentation ceremony.

Cub, Scout and Explorer units from throughout the county are participants in the Exposition.

The local lodge was established in 1942 with 40 charter members. Until it occupied its present building the Elks Lodge was located on Evans St. It now has 215 members.

Exalted Ruler Collins said construction should begin soon after the Grand Lodge of Elks approves the building plans.

Six new members were initiated last night. They are: Dr. M. W. Aldridge, W. H. Woolard Jr., Gordon Goodman, Ivy Coward, Albert Blanton III, and Daniel S. Mayo.

Bethel Board Discusses Buying Radio Equipment

BETHEL — Members of the Bethel Town Board this week discussed the possibility of obtaining a radio to be used as a base station for the police department.

M. S. Davis, chief technician stationed in Williamston with the Highway Patrol, appeared at the meeting to explain the type of radio equipment the town would need for a base station. Mayor Joe Butterworth said no decision had been made.

He explained that the town has a police car radio, but many times this radio won't reach Greenville. A base station would enable the town to maintain contact both with the Pitt County Sheriff's Department and the Greenville Police Department. The new night police telephone, which was approved by the board at their January meeting, was reported to be meeting with success. The telephone was installed downtown, with a loud bell on two corners, so that the night policeman could be reached at all times of his patrol duty.

Residents calling on the telephone were advised, however to let it ring longer. Butterworth said some people apparently are hanging up before the patrolman can reach the telephone and answer it.

Members of the board approved extending a water line to a new house under construction by Wayne Rogerson.

Dr. Taylor Gives Talk

The Cosmos Book Club was entertained by Mrs. Quinn Bostic at a luncheon at the Cinderella Restaurant Tuesday.

The Valentine theme of red carnations, red candles and valentines was used very attractively.

Dr. Allan Taylor was the guest speaker for the afternoon. "The Background of Marxism" was Dr. Taylor's program with a movie being shown to emphasize the need for America to wake-up and recognize the threat of communism. The differences between capitalism, socialism and communism was explained by going into the background of Leninism and Marxism.

After the business meeting, presided over by the president, Mrs. Don Calloway, the books were distributed and the meeting adjourned.

Valentine Motif Used At Club

Mrs. W. H. Watson was hostess to the Pickwick Book Club Tuesday at her home on E. Wright Road.

Upon arrival, members were served a dessert course with coffee. Valentine favors decorated each plate.

Mrs. Louis Boyd presided over the business meeting. A motion was made that meetings be changed from afternoon meetings to luncheon beginning in the fall, being flexible in scheduling meetings so that if it should be inconvenient for a member to have a luncheon meeting, that member may serve as a co-hostess. The motion was seconded and passed.

Proposed additions and corrections to the Constitution and By-Laws were presented to members for their consideration. A vote on these proposals will be taken at a later meeting.

There being no further business, books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Stylist Renames Lowly Wig It's Now Called 'Perma-Coif'

By CATHARINE BREWSTER NEW YORK—(WNS) — Richard Hartwich was brought up in West Germany, where part of a hair stylist's qualifying examination is to create and make a whole wig.

"I have too much respect for hair pieces to call them 'wigs,'" said Mr. Hartwich with a grimace. "They have always been part of fashion in Europe, and they are now coming into fashion here. So I created a new name for mine: Perma-Coifs."

The idea has been well received at his new Fifth Avenue salon, and at the many beauty salons throughout the country which carry his Perma-Coifs. The name induces many women to try hair pieces who would otherwise be put off by the idea of a "wig."

"Busy women find them a boon," explained Mr. Hartwich. "When they have no time for the hair stylist before an evening party, they can put on their new style in five minutes."

Mr. Hartwich has many customers in New York among stage, opera and TV stars. For these women, hair is a constant problem.

"Performing wrecks their own hair, if only with perspiration. How can they constantly have it re-done? Nowadays, many don't.

When they must be seen publicly, they put on a Perma-Coif."

I mentioned several personalties I had interviewed lately and discovered they were wearing hair pieces for the interview. But is this practical for the average woman?

"Yes, when they get used to the idea. I'll bet that right now there are many times when you wear a turban hat to hide your hair."

Since I was doing so at the moment, I had to agree.

He has come up with one innovation of which he is very proud. Most whole-head hair pieces are styled with waves or curls that hide the hairline around the face, making the artificiality apparent. But Mr. Hartwich's skill is such that even with styles that wave back from the face, the hairline looks natural.

If hair pieces are made of best-quality human hair, they can be handled pretty much as is natural hair. They are cleaned, however, by dipping in dry-cleaning fluid, since washing would affect the very fine mesh cap on which the hair piece is built.

Since a good whole-head hair piece must cost $300 or more, women generally return them to the maker for cleaning and restyling.

If this is done at home, however, Mr. Hartwich recommends having a block made. This is a wood form in the size and shape of the head, over which the Perma-Coif is placed after dry-cleaning. When it has dried, the hair can be dampened with water and re-set with rollers and pin curl clips, just like natural hair.

The cap base of a Perma-Coif is finest net of silk or nylon. Through it each hair is drawn and fastened. Since this work can be done only by hand, the cost of a whole-head piece is naturally high.

"Mine are made in West Germany," explained Mr. Hartwich. "There aren't such workers any more in this country, and nobody goes into it."

I asked him whether the business was growing here.

"Yes And they want the nuttiest colors nowadays — pink, green. But it's all fashion, so I don't mind. I'll give them purple if they want it."

The Newcomers Club met Thursday morning at the Cinderella Restaurant for cards and coffee followed by a dutch luncheon.

The membership chairman, Mrs. W. E. Roseveare, conducted the installation of officers for the new year. They are: Mrs. Max W. Eggleston, president; Mrs. A. E. Cox, vice president; Mrs. Wm. L. Hillgartner, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. W. R. Hooks, recreation chairman; Mrs. J. A. Cuthbertson, assistant recreation chairman; Mrs. Douglas Bunting Jr., telephone and reservation chairman; Mrs. H. F. Morris, assistant telephone chairman, and Mrs. Kenneth Bradbury, membership chairman.

The retiring president, Mrs. W. L. Thompson, was presented a gift of appreciation from the group by Mrs. W. R. Hooks.

After three progressions of bridge, prizes for scoring were awarded to Mrs. J. A. Cuthbertson, Mrs. J. E. Baker and Mrs. W. F. Stafford. The door prize was drawn by Mrs. E. J. Rodgers.

Ever saute chicken livers with onions and serve with scrambled eggs? Nice for lunch or Sunday night supper.

STEEL GRAIN SILOS—These three 24,000-bushel steel storage tanks will soon be joined by seven more as construction progresses at Farmville's new FCX feed mill and grain storage facility. The tanks are 56 feet high and will be grouped in two rows of five tanks each when the project is completed. A concrete slab that required more than 900 cubic yards of concrete supports the huge tanks. Other equipment being installed on the 13-acre site just south of Farmville's Formica Flakeboard plant includes grain-mixing facilities and warehouse storage space. The project is scheduled for completion in August. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Exhibition By Lillian Moye Hung In Gallery

An exhibition of paintings and drawings by Lillian B. Moye, of Greenville, is now hung in the Kate Lewis Gallery, Ravi building, at the college and will be shown through February 15. The public is invited to attend the show, which is sponsored by the Department of Art as one of a series of 1961-1962 exhibitions by talented seniors.

Included in Miss Moye's exhibition are oil paintings, water colors, and both wash and pencil drawings. The works shown range from the realistic to the abstract, and are characterized by an individualistic approach to subject matter, and, in the oil painting especially, a use of vivid colors.

Miss Moye is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Moye, Jr., of 525 W. Longmeadow Rd., Greenville. She was graduated from Junius H. Rose High School in June, 1958, and enrolled at East Carolina as a freshman in the fall of the same year.

While at the college, she has centered her interests around painting, her major field of study, and is now studying with Metz T. Gordley of the faculty.

After graduation in May of this year, she plans to teach art and to study in the field of interior decoration.

Civilians Hear Mallory On Athletics Program

"We are trying to keep the athletic program in step with educational progress at East Carolina," Coach James Mallory told members of the Greenville Civitan Club last night, in commenting on the anticipated entrance of the college into the Southern Conference.

Mallory, head baseball coach for the college, spoke at the bi-weekly dinner meeting of the club. Introduced by Gilbert Hopkins, he outlined some aspects of the athletic program at East Carolina College.

Emphasizing that E.C.C. is "first of all an educational institution," he noted that "we have no intentions of the tail wagging the dog," athletically speaking. Discussing the value of athletics in general, the speaker listed the importance of organized activities in helping to keep physically fit in today's "sedentary society."

Athletics teaches mental discipline and develops leadership by providing a medium in which qualified instructors can give proper supervision and counsel to young people. Coach Mallory concluded by noting that a professional wrestling attraction will be held at the college gymnasium on Feb. 22. Proceeds will go to the new stadium fund.

Bill Martin of Fayetteville, deputy governor of Civitan Area "C," was present and after remarks on club projects, formally inducted William M. Smith into the club.

James Farmer attended the meeting as guest of Dr. Kenneth Quiggins.

Seize $2 Million In Phony Bills

NEW YORK (AP)—Secret Service agents and city detectives have seized a hoard of $2 million in counterfeit $10 bills in the basement of a Brooklyn apartment house.

But they haven't gotten their hands on the plates used to print the bogus bills—the big prize in any counterfeit raid.

Five different plates apparently were used, because five different Federal Reserve District markings were on the bills.

One man was arrested in the raid Thursday night in Brooklyn's Bath Beach section, for many years a favorite dumping ground for gangland's corpses.

But authorities said the prisoner, Joseph Maggio, 35, a resident of the apartment house and a utility company service man, was not important in the counterfeit operation. He was silent under questioning.

Albert E. Whitaker, in charge of Secret Service men here, said Maggio would be arraigned on a charge of possession of counterfeit money.

Whitaker said Maggio had been under close surveillance for three months.

The counterfeit money—all crackling new and described as exceptional quality—was jammed into three suitcases and two large cartons. The raiders said the containers were in a basement storage bin assigned to Maggio.

Big Dolphin With High IQ Is Reported Dead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Notty's death. And Navy scientists are grieving the loss of one of the world's most unusual "school girls"—a hefty dolphin with a high IQ.

She was a potentially valuable Navy property.

The 6-foot, 180-pounder had been making great strides in the educational field under a civilian teacher who normally works with retarded children.

Notty's death from natural causes came to light today when a reporter sought further information after reading a story about her in a publication of the Office of Naval Research.

The story related that last spring, the Naval Ordnance Test Station, China Lake, Calif., commissioned Marineland of the Pacific at Palos Verdes to catch and train a dolphin. The Navy is interested in creatures like dolphins and bats because it is believed that study of their ingenious systems of navigating and communicating might help in the development of electronic devices useful to the military services.

A dolphin was caught and given the name "Notty"—a moniker derived from the first three letters of the naval station's name.

Tom Lang, an official of the station, enlisted the help of his friend Willard Humphrey, principal of a Los Angeles elementary school and specialist in teaching retarded children.

The Navy report related that last summer, Humphrey, without benefit of experience in porpoise (dolphin) training, spent 10 days with Notty and tried his school approach.

As a means of communication, an inexpensive underwater speaker was purchased. The teacher spent a brief period in teaching Notty word recognition.

"She quickly learned to identify the following words: ball, hat, ring and stick," the report said. "These items would be retrieved from across the pool on voice command."

But, alas, Notty apparently was not destined to go on to high school or college.

"Notty died about a month ago," Navy official reported when the newsman called.

ECC Opera Theater Plans Present 'Faust' By Gounod

East Carolina College's Opera Theatre will present Gounod's "Faust" Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 10 and 11, at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis Auditorium.

The opera will be presented with a cast of twelve student and faculty vocalists in principal roles, and a chorus of 26 students. The East Carolina Orchestra of more than 30 members will appear with the Opera Theatre for the first time in a full-length production.

Scenery was designed by Paul Minnis of the faculty, and costumes by Mrs. Lois Garren of Greenville. Paul Hickfang and Donald Hayes of the music faculty are directors of the production.

"Faust," long a favorite with the public, will be presented in four acts and will be sung in English.

Casts for the Saturday and the Sunday performances will differ with the exception of the roles of Mephistopheles and Siebel, in which Mr. Hickfang and Mrs. Martha Bradner of Greenville will appear, respectively, on both nights.

Mr. Hickfang, on leave from the college earlier this school year, sang then with the Boris Goldovsky Grand Opera Company on a tour of 55 cities in this country. During the 1955 season he was soloist with the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra.

Early Gardeners Receive Warning

AYDEN—Spring fever has already hit the gardeners here. Some eager green thumbs have made attempts to place sidewalk areas in cultivation.

As a result, town officials are reminding the gardeners that there is a city ordinance that says unpaired sidewalk areas "shall not" be plowed and placed in cultivation. "We have to enforce that ordinance," Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said.

Films On Safety Shown In Ayden

AYDEN—Two films on safety and emphasizing use of safety belts were shown at the town offices this week by Police Chief W. D. Brooks.

Forty-five persons, including some high school students, attended the film showing. Others included police officers, town supervisory personnel and interested citizens.

The films were based on the scientific point of view.

Mrs. Bradner has appeared in leading roles in previous Opera Theatre productions and has been soloist in presentations of "The Messiah" by the Department of Music and in concerts by the East Carolina Orchestra. She had the title role in "The Medium," Menotti opera staged by the Opera Theatre in 1960, and has also sung in "The Old Maid and the Thief," "Sister Angelica," and other productions.

Saturday's cast will be headed by Bill A. Newberry of Rockingham as Faust and Anne Vickery of Winston-Salem as Margarita. Miss Vickery was chosen in auditions to appear in concert last January before the N. C. Music Teachers Association in Greensboro and to represent this state in a recital February 13 in New Orleans at a meeting of the Southern Division of the Music Teachers National Association.

Other talented East Carolina students who will appear in Saturday's performance are Jerold Teachey of Washington, N. C.; Betsy Hancock Bullard of Fairmont; and William W. Modlin of Washington, N. C.

Alison H. Moss of Greenville as Margarita and Peter Johl of Groton, Conn., as Faust will be principals in Sunday's performance.

Mrs. Moss has had leading roles in Opera Theatre productions of "The Medium," "Sister Angelica," and "The Old Maid and the Thief." She has also been featured soloist at East Carolina in "The Messiah" and in concerts by the East Carolina Orchestra. During Mr. Hickfang's absence during the fall quarter she acted as a voice instructor in the Department of Music.

Mr. Johl starred in "South Pacific," presented at the college last spring, and played a leading role last summer in "The Lost Colony" at Manteo. He has also sung with the Opera Theatre in "The Old Maid and the Thief." Appearing with the East Carolina Playhouse, he was cast last year in a leading role in Christopher Fry's "The Lady's Not For Burning."

Supporting roles Sunday will be sung by Page Shaw of Elizabethtown, Bonnie Currin of Oxford, and John M. Aldridge of Kingston.

Plan Fire Dept. For Red Oak

Some 50 Red Oak Community residents Thursday night launched organization of a volunteer fire department for the community.

J. T. Manning Jr. was elected president of the fledgling fire company. Winterville Fire Chief Lloyd Worthington met with the group at the Red Oak Community Building.

Other officers elected at last night's meeting were Elvy Forrest, vice president; Carl Crawford, secretary; James Moye, treasurer. Eight directors named were Johnny Cassick, James Bullock, H. T. Savage Jr., Bruce Thigpen, Amos Evans, Hubert Crawford, June Hudson and Billy Jenkins.

A meeting of the board of directors has been called for 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Red Oak Community Building before another meeting Wednesday at the same hour and place of the entire group.

Worthington attended the meeting Thursday to help explain to the group the process of organizing a fire company. He is also expected to attend at least one of the meetings next week.

Jail Terms For Receiving Loot

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A judge ordered jail terms for two men convicted of receiving a portion of the $30,000 worth of property stolen from the home of comedian Jimmy Durante.

Superior Court Judge Alfred Peracca decreed one year in jail Thursday for Charles L. Pendergrath, 26, and 180 days for Roscoe Porter, 35, plus five years' probation each.

Pendergrath and Porter were acquitted of burglary. Durante's home was ransacked last July 2 during the absence of the comedian and his wife.

Farmville JC Officers Chosen

FARMVILLE — Rev. John Broome, Farmville Episcopal minister, was elected president of Farmville's newly-organized Junior Chamber of Commerce at a meeting here this week.

With 28 charter members, the new Jaycee organization was launched at its first general meeting Wednesday at Ray's Restaurant. Formal charter night ceremonies have been scheduled for Feb. 23.

Other officers elected this week were Charles Joyner, first vice president; Carl Venters, second vice president; Dewey Hathaway Jr., secretary; John Dilda, treasurer; and Bob McGaughey and Jim Lancaster, directors. Terms for the officers will expire in May, the end of the Jaycee year.

The prospective members of the new Jaycee group met last week with State Vice President Bill Singleton of Morehead City and representatives from Kingston and Greene County. Scheduled to attend the charter night ceremonies two weeks from today is State Jaycee President Fred Swartsberg of High Point.

George Washington led a small British force in a skirmish against the French on May 28, 1754, at Great Meadows, Pa. It was his first battle.

U.S. Involvement In Space Science

With each passing month it becomes more clear how deeply the United States is involved in the exploration of outer space and applying knowledge gained thereby to practical use.

Thursday's weather satellite-launch is but one good example of that involvement.

Tiros IV is only one of a series of experimental weather eyes contemplated by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration; eventually, should the weather observatory in space concept prove workable, such satellites will become as routine as airline schedules.

The President's proposal that Congress charter a space communications corporation is another example of how far we are going in the space field.

That project is deemed wholly feasible, and would mean worldwide television, radio and telephone service. The inherent potential of such an idea was left to fiction writers before the dawning of the satellite era.

Fantastic? Certainly. But so was the first gasoline engine-powered wagon.

But even these instances don't scratch the surface of world involvement in the space age.

Navigation satellites have already proven themselves. Refinements in this field are sure to come.

"Spy" satellites . . . fulfilling the U-2 mission . . . are a certainty; and may even have already proven their value. The public will never know the whole story about that particular mission in the space picture.

These examples of U.S. commitment to a very new field carry with them the hope of eventual returns on a very great investment. In all these fields weather forecasting, communications, navigational aids and spy-in-the-sky, there is basis for belief in practical benefits or "profits".

The man-in-space program remains as one in which no immediate returns are really pinpointed; and this may well be because we know so little about what can be accomplished and what awaits Man "out there".

Knowledge may well be the real prize; but whatever it is, we are counting on returns that dwarf robot-like services performed by the multitude of satellites the future holds.

Most costly of all, in terms of dollars, the man-in-space program can count on adding lives to the price we will be paying.

America's involvement in the space age has reached a point where its promises are more easily understood and appreciated. We are living with one foot in the doorway to the future. Would anyone turn the clock back?

Filing Deadlines Are Moving Up

By LYNN NISBET

CANDIDATES — It is just five weeks until March 16 when the door will be closed against anyone wanting to enter a race in the primary for Congress, justice of the Supreme Court, superior court judge or solicitor, or any other state or district office except the North Carolina senate. For all members of the General Assembly and all county and local officers—sheriff, county commissioner, etc., the lists will be open until April 13.

So far a number of candidates have paid the filing fee to the State Board of Elections. In these early filings there have been no surprises—except maybe the entry of A. G. Whitener of High Point as a candidate for Congress in the sixth district, opposing Rep. Horace Kornegay. Whitener had sought to form a new conservative party, but falling to get enough names on the petition to gain consideration, he decided to go into the Democratic primary.

There have been no Republican filings for major office, and it is not expected there will be many until after the party conventions. Republicans usually nominate candidates in convention and then have them file with the proper board of elections. Many county conventions, including Wake, are scheduled for Saturday of this week. The fourth congressional district rally is set for Siler City two weeks later, February 24. The State convention will meet at Durham on Saturday, March 3, with National Chairman William E. Miller as the keynote speaker.

It is expected the Republicans will offer statewide candidates for the U. S. Senate and the Supreme Court, and that every congressional district will have one or more candidates.

FULL SLATE—State Chairman William E. Cobb has said he expects to have a Republican candidate for every office above county level, and full tickets in many more counties than in the past 50 years. Republicans think they have better "issues" this year than in a long time. They will capitalize on the unpopularity of the so-called "food tax," although insisting upon the quality education program which that tax was levied to support. They are stirring as much resentment as they can against the general free-spending attitude of the Sanford administration—including the big salary raises accorded some appointed officials and the addition of high priced personnel in several agencies. The increasing tendency for secret meetings of governmental boards and the fact that some of the protested heavy spending was authorized at such closed door sessions is another target.

They will bear down heavily on the scandal (?) in the highway department sign matter, and will charge political favoritism in the location of highways and priority assignments for secondary road improvements.

One very astute political operator was asked if he really expected to discover or prove anything wrong in these situations. His answer was interesting and enlightening. "I don't think we can prove much," he said, "and I don't think we will make specific charges. There is enough to justify general charges and to put the Democrats on the defensive. In most instances perhaps they can explain the activities, but the fact they are forced to explain will be to our advantage."

An interesting sidelight on the upsurge of Republican strength is the possibility Democrats who are not in full favor and sympathy with the administration may tone down their campaign material. Hereafter whatever was said in the primary campaign had little importance in the general election. This year inside criticism might be more effectively turned against the Democrats in November.

C. & D. — Appointment of Paul H. Thompson of Fayetteville as a member of the Board of Conservation and Development, filling the vacancy occasioned by resignation of Eugene Simmons of Tarboro, has attracted very favorable comment around capital square. It is agreed that Thompson is the kind of man needed for such public service.

There has been some criticism because his appointment places two members from Fayetteville on the board, which already had two members from Raleigh and two from Guilford county. There is nothing in the law requiring geographic distribution of C&D board members. There is requirement they be named with respect to representation of the various phases of economic development of resources—minerals, forests, marine products, manufacturing, tourism, and the like.

REPAIR—Even the stern-visaged Justices of the Supreme Court smiled the other day when Ralph Moody, assistant attorney general, suggested that if the court should decide an election can be held this year for Lieutenant Governor it should hang out a sign above the entrance to the Justice Building reading: Constitutional Repair Shop. Imported Parts. Now in Business.

BUFFALO—Rod Arundson of the Wildlife Resources Commission says the only herd of buffalo or bison east of the Mississippi river is that on Cook's buffalo ranch near Concord. Apparently wild buffalo used to range that area. Highway 49 between Richfield and Jackson Training School crosses Little Buffalo Creek, Dutch Buffalo Creek, Irish Buffalo Creek—and there is in the same area a stream known as Big Buffalo Creek.

Mrs. Wheless' Death Is Loss To County

The people of Pitt County suffered a real loss in the untimely death of Register of Deeds Mrs. Blair Cox Wheless. Just how great, most of our citizens are unlikely to realize.

To be sure, her family and friends and associates will miss her; but those who had recurring business with the Register of Deeds office will long remember Mrs. Wheless' contributions toward bettering that office, her organizational ability and driving spirit to better serve the public.

She leaves the Pitt County Register of Deeds office as an exemplary monument to her own concept of able and devoted service.

Historical Line Of Reasoning

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has distinguished himself in refusing to let Congress get too nosy. Presidents from Washington to Eisenhower have done the same.

Through American history presidents have reasoned this way: The Constitution separates the powers of the three branches of government: Congress, the executive headed by the President, and federal courts.

So the President can assert his "executive privileges" — when he thinks it's in the public interest — to refuse Congress, request for certain information from the executive branch.

Who decides what's in the public interest? The President says he does in such a case. Does he have the right to refuse? He thinks so. The third branch, headed by the Supreme Court, has never ruled on it.

Congress has never forced it to a showdown. So it has only been a test of wills so far between presidents and Congress. Now Congress is heading into another test.

A Senate subcommittee investigating Pentagon censoring of speeches by the military brass had demanded that Defense Secretary Robert McNamara reveal the names of his men who censored specific speeches.

McNamara refused. Wednesday Kennedy backed him up publicly. McNamara has given the committee his censors, names and background. But he will not disclose what one of them changed what in what speech.

If he did, almost certainly the individual censors would be called before the subcommittee and extensively quizzed on why he did what he did. Kennedy didn't speak of this kind of thing as a quizzing.

He said it would be an "harassment" of men who were only carrying out policies dictated by their superiors. McNamara says he takes full responsibility for what they did.

Kennedy said he would invoke "executive privilege" if necessary to protect the censors. He may have to. The subcommittee decided to insist on its demand. Eisenhower ran into the same kind of thing — and reacted the same way — in 1954 when a Senate committee holding the Army-McCarthy hearings demanded information about a secret meeting of Eisenhower's top aides.

Eisenhower at the time cited some other presidents who took the same position, from Washington to Truman. The latter refused Congress 10 times.

Eisenhower said: "The messages of our past presidents reveal that almost everyone of them found it necessary to inform Congress of his constitutional duty to execute the office of president and, in furtherance of that duty, to withhold information and papers from the public good."

By the reckoning of Herman Workinson, a Justice Department attorney and a specialist in this field, at least 18 of the 34 presidents at one time or another took this stand. Kennedy would be the 19th.

This could happen if the subcommittee on censorship wants a showdown:

It could cite McNamara for contempt for refusing information. If the full Senate approved this, then:

1. The Senate sergeant-at-arms could be sent to arrest the secretary and the Senate could order him kept in custody indefinitely or sentence him to jail.

2. Or, more likely, having cited him, the Senate could turn the case over to the U.S. district attorney for prosecution in that third branch of government, the federal court, which has never ruled on this ancient dispute between the two other branches.

The President, of course, would be quickly involved in this fight on the side of McNamara and no doubt would push for the case to go to the Supreme Court in a hurry for a ruling at last.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

RELIGION OF THE BODY

Some years ago a French philosopher issued a book entitled "The Religion of the Spirit." By this he meant Christianity. A great theologian in speaking to a group of students said, "Christianity is not the religion of the spirit, it is the religion of the body."

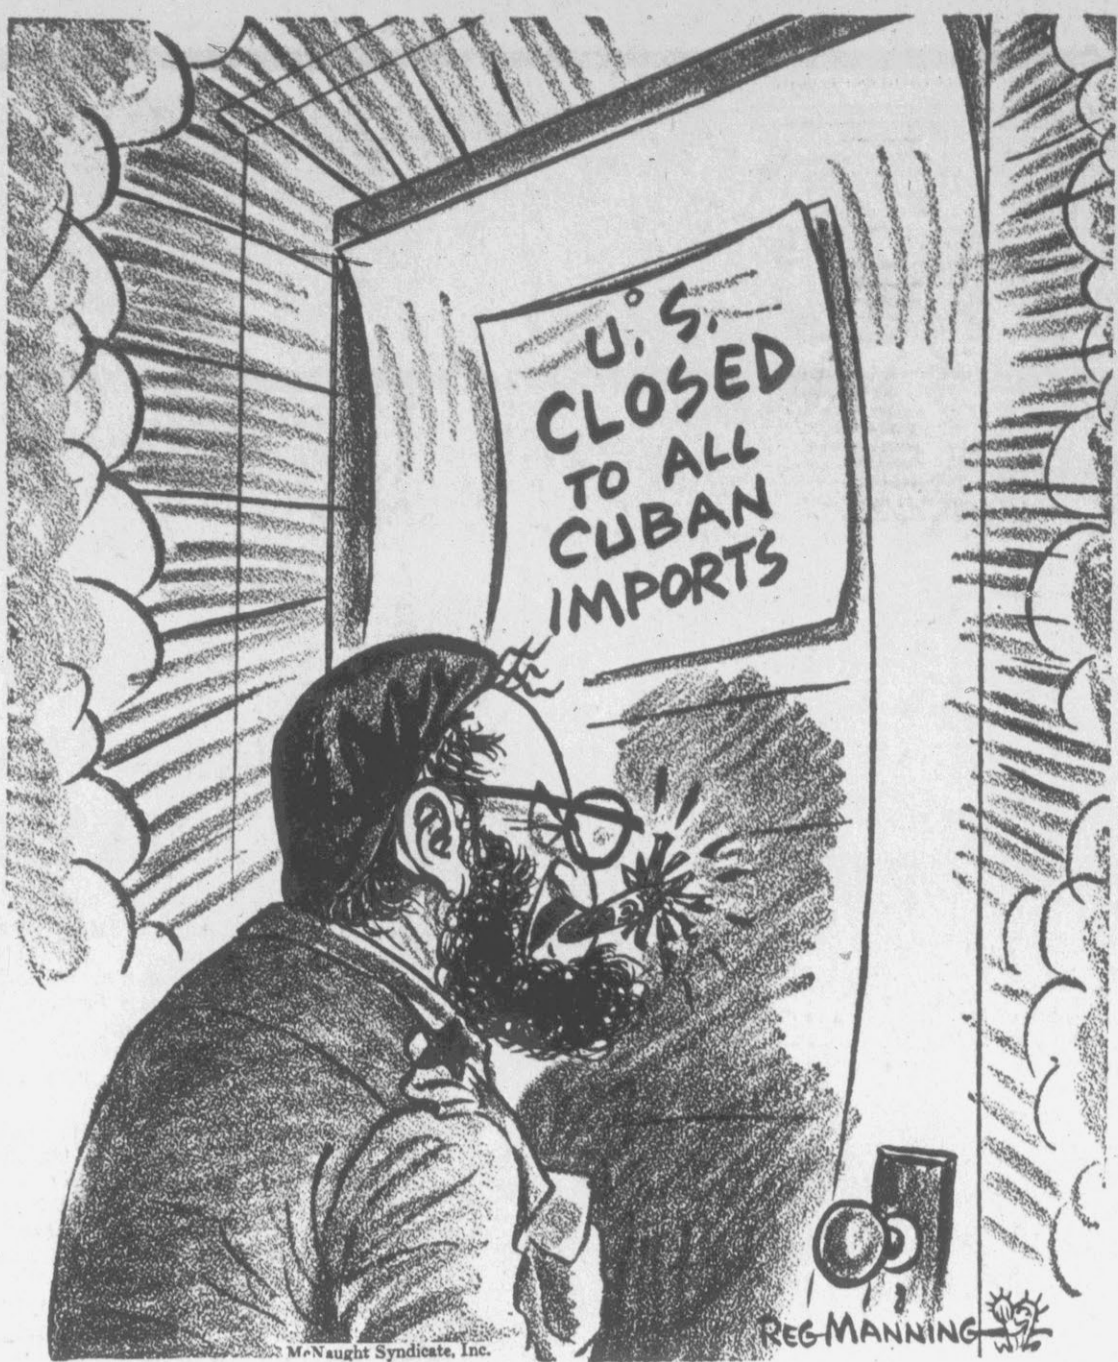

This shocked us all considerably, but the more we thought of it the more we saw what he meant. The body is the temple of the Holy Spirit. When God sent His Son into the world He gave him a body and the sacrifice of that body on the cross (the Atonement) lies at the center of our faith. The resurrection of that body from the dead was the crowning miracle of Christ's life and the basis of our Christian hope.

So Christianity has a lot to say about the body. We live in the body. Christianity is a way of life. Christianity is that divine revelation which shows us how to live a life that is necessarily conditioned in every aspect by a body. If our religion does not extend to our bodies then it has precious little value. There is a way in which, as the French philosopher said, Christianity is the religion of the spirit. But there is a greater way in which Christianity is the religion of the body.

Our bodies are not the enemies of the soul but the instruments of the soul. God evidently had a great purpose in mind when He gave us bodies.

Grand Slam!

By PATRICIA MOORE 'Small World' Evidence

It's a small world. And if you don't believe it, just read on:

We were sitting in the living room talking with the Paul Robert Loth family, who arrived just this week from the Netherlands to live in Winterville.

Something came up about metrecal.

"Oh, yes. I used metrecal," Paul Loth said. "Metrecal?" asked 18-year-old Margreth. "Oh, yes," she said.

In answer to a question from inquisitive yours truly, Paul Loth said he used to weigh considerably more than he does now (we won't divulge the exact amount) and that he was thoroughly familiar with metrecal. It was used in Europe. We always thought somehow that canned metrecal was "very American."

Another matter we discussed with the Loth family was their leaving Indonesia because of the Communists.

We learned that Loth supervised a group of workers, including some who belonged to a Communist labor union. Some of these apparently didn't want to conform to work regulations and since Loth insisted that work be done according to regulations, he eventually was told by these people that the safety of his family could no longer be guaranteed.

There was no police force to protect the family at their Indonesia home. Loth related that word of such events had a way of getting around to other Communist groups, and that even had he moved to another section of Indonesia, he believed the Communists would have caught up with him.

So he returned to the Netherlands. And now he is here out of touch with the threat.

Other Editors Saying... 3 Cents For Mr. Sanford

(The Warren Record)

A few days ago we made a purchase in a local store and the clerk told us the bill would be $1.00 and then added, "And three cents for Mr. Sanford."

"You mean," we were quick to reply, "three cents for our school children; Mr. Sanford does not receive a penny of this tax."

It is astonishing just how many merchants will say that the food tax is for Mr. Sanford, as if a concerted effort were on foot to discredit both the tax and Governor Sanford. It is unfair, it could do our schools much harm, and it is politics at its worst.

The tax on food is not a popular tax, but then few taxes are. If anyone can suggest any other way to raise the money, then we would be just as pleased to have the tax in some other form. Personally, we have never felt it a great injustice for a person with 34 children in school to pay 50 cents a week in a tax on food.

In asking the Legislature for the imposition of a sales tax on food, the Governor pointed out that several other sources had been suggested, and quoted figures showing just how much each item was estimated to raise. He said that none of these measures would be sufficient nor would a combination of the alternatives suggested. The Legislature believed that the schools needed the money — and so do we — and extended the sales tax to items of food.

If our farmers and other property owners had rather have their ad valorem taxes increased, for instance, we think that this could be arranged and the tax taken off food; if the people had rather a large group of people with many children in school, escape all direct taxes, then a sales tax on food would not be the proper tax. Incidentally, if the tax were to be placed on bottled drinks, one could hear plenty of griping about taxing the poor man's luxury; or on tobacco, about the injustice to the farmers.

The truth of the matter is that if the state imposes any kind of taxes, that there is no way for the poor to avoid paying a part of it. All taxes are paid by the ultimate consumer. If the merchant's tax is raised, it is going to be reflected in the price of food he sells, and in this pricing there are not going to be any concessions to the poor. If the tax is placed on real estate, the merchant is going to have to pay higher rent, and this is bound to be reflected in the prices he charges for the foods he sells. The merchant may kick against a sales tax, but it has been our observation that he is quick to raise the price of an article a few cents whenever he thinks the traffic will bear it, and there is then no talk of oppressing the poor in what is considered a good business move.

If North Carolina is going to spend millions of dollars on its schools, there is no way yet devised, in our opinion, that the poor can escape paying a part of this tax. If we want good schools, we have got to pay for them, and that means we all have to pay for them. So, please, let there be no more talk of "three cents for Mr. Sanford."

The Loths expressed their feelings about the work the Winterville United Fellowship had carried out in order to bring them here this way—"We were stunned. We didn't realize people like this still existed." They told us about the good impression the deed had made among their acquaintances in The Hague.

We also discussed the not so good impressions left by some "loud mouthed" tourists.

The work the Winterville United Fellowship did for the Loths, establishing a home and job for them, "showed the other side" of Americans for some of the Loths' Dutch friends.

Sitting there, we felt proud of the young people in that small town and of our country. To us, it's an accomplishment of "so much with so little."

The young people didn't have abounding financial help, nor did their elders do their work for them.

And there's been talk about their getting another project. Obviously their counsellors, Rita and Sherman Husted have done a lot for the young people and this project.

What we'd like to know is, if these young people from such a small community can do so much good, what about some of the other youth groups from larger communities, with more resources at their command?

Those who ignore the significance of gold in the world market only create confusion. They are as confused in their thinking as those who believe that it is possible to ignore tariffs, while tariffs exist. The question must arise as to whether Russia will dump gold into Western markets at prices which will drive the price of gold below $35, thus impoverishing the United States and all Western countries by running down the price of currency which internationally is determined by the value of gold. Russia's production may be priced politically rather than economically.

Tariff Front Pulling, Pushing

By ELMER ROESSNER

The problems of running a country are many and complex. They can involve plans for lowering tariffs to increase trade with the European Common Market and at the same time raising tariffs against certain goods coming from the other direction, such as textiles from Japan.

One solution may be to send Administration leaders around the country to convince the people that lower tariffs are good for them and, at the same time, use other leaders to convince the Japanese that higher tariffs are good for them.

The Administration has asked Congress for power to cut tariffs on goods from the European Common Market when such cuts will lead to more reciprocal exports to that area. This is the same administration which last May offered a seven-point program to Congress to benefit the cotton industry, one point of which was to offset the export subsidy.

That amounts to a raise in duties.

HOW IT CAME ABOUT

The Japanese, at the 19-na-

cotton growers and processors contented and voting straight tickets, has a two-price system. One is the domestic price. The other is the export price, about 6 cents a pound lower because the government subsidizes exports at that rate.

This tends to keep the domestic price 6 cents above the world market. It also helps get rid of the American surplus.

But part of this surplus comes back to us in the form of textiles, woven by low-paid Japanese workers.

The low wages and the 6-cent differential enable Japanese mills to buy American cotton, ship it to Japan, weave it, and send it back to sell under American prices. The differential is about to go up to 8½ cents.

Now Cotton Belt Senators are pushing for an equalization fee, which would be a duty on cotton imported into the United States to offset the differential to a tariff rise, at a time the Administration is talking about tariff cuts.

JAPANESE PROTEST

The Japanese, at the 19-nation Cotton Textiles Committee meeting in Geneva and through publicists in this country, are protesting. They make these rather salient points:

1. In buying cheaper 1960-61 crop cotton here, Japanese mills saved $2 million, but they also saved American taxpayers $213 million in price supports.

2. Japan is restricting cotton textile exports to the U. S. and since 1956 they have never exceeded more than 2.5 per cent of the domestic output.

3. Even with Japanese imports, the U. S. exports more cotton textiles than it brings in.

At Geneva, the United States delegation predicted that the U. S. could rapidly increase its consumption of cotton. But it said it would not interfere with hearings on an equalization fee pending before the U. S. Tariff Commission, or proceedings pending before the Office of Emergency Planning.

The Japanese delegation responded with the declaration that any long-term agreement

Soviet Deals In Gold

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

During 1961, Soviet Russia played an interesting and to an extent startling role in the gold market. While some American bankers have permitted themselves the luxury of denouncing the significance of gold in the economy of the world, gold has nevertheless played a most significant role and the role that Russian gold played was not ignored by business in other countries.

The economy of the United States is based on gold and no matter what efforts are made to lessen the significance of gold, it stands up in the world market. The United States Government sought to maintain gold at the official price of $35 but gold moved up and down, to a degree due to the appearance of Russian sales. Thus, Russia operated capitalistically in the gold market. During the year 1961, considerable gold was sold through the London market, thus distributing gold to some of the new countries as well as the older ones. The gold trade has been considerable and London maintained a gold exchange although in the United States we attempted to ignore the commodity.

It is interesting to note that the London market received 20,804,600 ounces of refined gold from the United States; 19,505,950 ounces of refined gold from the Union of South Africa; and 5,541,450 ounces of refined gold from Soviet Russia. The total amount of refined gold that was imported into the London market amounted to 46,710,400 ounces with Soviet Russia in the third place. This gives Soviet Russia an important position in the world market. The value of the Russian export into the British market was close to $200,000,000 which developed into an enormous purchasing power in the Western markets. This export of gold to London cannot be exclusive; there must have been an export to Zurich and Amsterdam. It is this gold which has made it possible for Soviet Russia to buy steel pipe which will become increasingly significant as the Russians build pipe-lines to carry oil into Central and Western Europe. This is likely to develop into a very important business in which American firms are engaged.

It is impossible to understand the politics of the world without a thorough mastery of its economics. Russia is utilizing capitalist methods everywhere. What the Soviet Union State presents now is a capitalist competitor with Western countries, battling for the rich markets of Central and Western Europe, as well as the American markets from Canada to the Argentine. It is this economic realism which affects the position not only of money but of goods and the power of Soviet Russia must be measured in terms of economic distribution, particularly the distribution of gold. It is to be admitted that there are many Communists of importance, like Sulezov who regard Khrushchev's new capitalism as a dangerous because it can lessen the significance of Marxism. There will be a great quarrel in Russia over this question of co-existence.

Those who ignore the significance of gold in the world market only create confusion. They are as confused in their thinking as those who believe that it is possible to ignore tariffs, while tariffs exist. The question must arise as to whether Russia will dump gold into Western markets at prices which will drive the price of gold below $35, thus impoverishing the United States and all Western countries by running down the price of currency which internationally is determined by the value of gold. Russia's production may be priced politically rather than economically.

Those who believe that Soviet Russia seeks to destroy the capitalist world by force and violence do not understand the world in which they live. More can be done with gold than with violence; more can be done with the erection of steel mills, using American money for that purpose, than by agitational efforts in the United States. So-

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:12; Proverbs 1:8; Mark 7:9-13; Luke 2:39-51; John 19:25-27.

God told the people to honor their parents. Solomon reinforced this by telling his children to hear his instruction and not to reject their mother's teaching.—Exodus 20:12; Deuteronomy 1:8

The hypocritical Pharisees criticized Christ's disciples for not eating without ritual washing. Christ rebuked the Pharisees for using such rituals as an excuse for not caring for their parents.—Mark 7:9-13.

After visiting Jerusalem, the boy Christ remained to discuss with the temple rabbis, unbeknownst to Mary and Joseph. When they found Him "was subject unto them" as a dutiful son.—Luke 2:39-51.

At the cross, even in the midst of His terrible suffering, Christ showed His true honor for His mother by asking John to care for her.—John 19:25-27.

THE HOME AS A PLACE FOR CHILDREN TO EXPERIENCE GOD'S FATHERHOOD AND TO LEARN REVERENCE FOR GOD BY REVERENCE FOR PARENTS

Scripture—Exodus 20:12; Proverbs 1:8; Mark 7:9-13; Luke 2:39-51; John 19:25-27.

By N. SPEER JONES IN THIS DAY the Lord's Fifth Commandment is probably more important than ever before. With the advances in medical science, the life span has increased enormously, virtually doubling what it was in Christ's time—and it promises to increase still more.

a sense of time which is more akin to the child's than those in the bustle of the middle years. Many parents complain that their children do not honor them, but are brash and sassy. It is the responsibility of the parent to teach the child to honor him; the child cannot know this unless it is taught, chiefly via obedience at first.

That this care of one's parents can often be burdensome and trying, especially in cases of long illness and senility, is obvious. It may be difficult to "honor thy father and mother" if that father or mother is hard-

With regard to some specific points in today's lesson: Mark 7:9-13 recites the habit, promoted by the Pharisees, of using service to God as an excuse for not caring properly for one's parents. Christ points out that the best service to God in this case is not the fulfilling of a ritual gift, but in fulfilling one's ly the father or mother we have known—when he or she is rendered a caricature of his former self by age and illness.

To help in this problem we must consider the meaning of the word "honor." It involves reverence, obedience, gratitude and—most important—love. Obedience we may outgrow, but not love. In a way, we may say that such care is a privilege in that it enables us to return a fraction of the loving care given us during our more or less helpless childhood by our parents.

When we truly honor our aging parents, we look for ways in which they can be useful, instead of emphasizing their dependence upon us. Many "middle-agers" have discovered what a marvelous role their parents can fulfill, for example in training their children. For one thing older people usually have obligations as children. In Luke's narrative of Christ at the temple, we should understand that Christ was not lecturing to the rabbis, but learning by discussion—the accepted method at that time, and an excellent one in any time. In staying at the temple, Christ has not dishonored Mary and Joseph in any way. He does not rebuke them for seeking Him; He is simply amazed that they knew not where he was. He returns with them to Nazareth as a dutiful son, for this, too, was part of His Father's affairs.

How important is our honor for our parents is indicated by Christ on the Cross. In the midst of all His suffering, He found the strength to make a disposition for the care of His Mother. This is honor in its highest form—understanding, selfless love.

Lincoln Involved In Religious Issue, Too

By JULES LOH AP Staff Writer

In 1846 there was a religious issue in an election campaign. Somebody claimed the candidate for the House of Representatives from Springfield, Ill.—Abraham Lincoln—was "an infidel."

"That I am not a member of any Christian church is true," replied Abe, honestly, "but I have never denied the truth of the Scriptures; and I have never spoken with intentional disrespect of religion in general or of any denomination of Christians in particular."

Lincoln won the election. But three years earlier it had been a different story. He had tried for a Whig party nomination without success, and laid at least part of the blame to religious intolerance. "It was everywhere contended," he wrote, "that no Christian ought to go for me because I belonged to no church, was suspected of being a deist, and had talked about fighting a duel."

Much has been written about Lincoln's religious beliefs, and as his birthday rolls around each year a popular pastime in some quarters is to try to figure out what denomination he belonged to.

His own words, however, provide the best insight regarding the innermost feelings of this deeply religious man. He himself admitted to being superstitious. In 1841 he wrote to his friend, Joshua F. Speed of Louisville, Ky., "I was always superstitious. I believe God made me one of the instruments for bringing your (wife) and you together, which union I have no doubt he foreordained."

But Lincoln also had a strong reliance on prayer:

"I went to my room and got down on my knees in prayer," he said shortly after the battle of Gettysburg. "Never before had I prayed with as much earnestness. I felt that I must put all my trust in Almighty God. . . . I prayed that he would not let the nation perish."

And on the Bible: "Take all of this book upon reason that you can, and the balance on faith," he wrote to Speed in 1864. "and you will live and die a happier and better man."

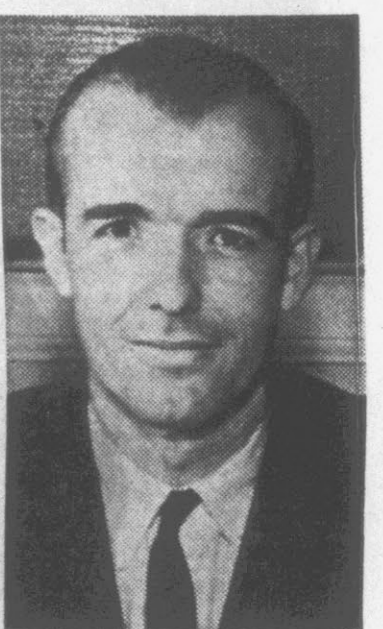

And a profound faith in divine providence: "If, after endeavoring to do my best in the light which (God) affords me, I find my efforts fail," he wrote in 1862, "I must believe that for some purpose unknown to me He wills it otherwise."

Perhaps the most revealing declaration of Lincoln's religious attitude was summed up in the latter part of his life when he said: "I have never united myself to any church because I have found difficulty in giving my assent. . . . to the long complicated statements of Christian doctrine which characterize their articles of belief."

"When any church will inscribe over its altar, as its sole qualification for membership, the Master's condensed statement of the substance of both law and gospel 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself' that church will I join with all my heart and with all my soul."

USC, Maryland Battle For Fifth Place Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS South Carolina and Maryland, battling for fifth place in the Atlantic Coast Conference, collide tonight at Columbia, S.C. The game will be the last one at home for the Gamecocks this season.

Chappell continued his sensational scoring surge Thursday night but the Deacons fell to Virginia Tech 87-81. Chappell scored 32 points to bring his total to 161 for the last five games.

During the past two years, he has hit his peak during the second half of the season. During his sophomore season he had a 13.3 average during the first 15 games, and a 22.2 average for the 13 games following the two-week exam break.

Blue Jays Led By Roebuck

By CHARLES VAUGHAN Reflector Sports Writer STOKES—Coach Bill Harrison and the Stokes-Pactolus Blue Jays have had their share of setbacks for the season. The Blue Jays have won only one game in the current season, while suffering ten defeats. A North Carolina native, Coach Harrison is in his second year at the Stokes-Pactolus high school. Harrison received his B.S. degree at Atlantic Christian College in 1948, and in 1953 he received the Master of Art's degree from East Carolina College.

Roebuck Leads Team The Blue Jays have been led during the season by Billy Roebuck, who is the team's leading scorer with about a 14-point average.

Lenoir Rhyne Led By Wells Thursday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Lenoir Rhyne's Jerry Wells showed Thursday night how the game of basketball is supposed to be played as the Bears thrashed Pfeiffer 92-58.

In other conference action, Appalachian defeated Elon 72-45, and Atlantic Christian beat Guilford 69-56. Meanwhile, Mike Reidy's 28 points sparked Campbell to an 83-73 victory over Erskine in the only other small college game Thursday night.

The Durham meet will be the second one this week for the team. This afternoon the squad took on the East Carolina freshmen in the college pool at 4 o'clock.

Four County Games

Phantoms Host Bears Tonight

The Rose High Phantoms will host the New Bern Bears tonight for the second contest between the two clubs this season.

Rodney Knowles, Greenville's high scoring 6-foot 7-inch sophomore center, boosted his average in the Jacksonville game Tuesday night when he scored 37 points.

At the present time the local boys hold a 5-3 record in the Northeastern Conference. Their losses in addition to New Bern were to Tarboro and Jacksonville. All three were away games for the Greenville team. Tonight's game is the first home game for the Phantoms in three outings. In Pitt County action tonight four games are scheduled. League-leading Ayden will host Stokes-Pactolus, second place Bethel will travel to Chicod, Winterville will host Farmville and Belvoir-Falkland will play at Grimesland. Grifton has an open date on its schedule, but the Bulldogs will resume play Tuesday night when they host Contentnea in a non-conference game.

AAU & NCAA Will Meet

CHICAGO (AP) — A summit meeting of leaders of the AAU and NCAA will be held in Chicago Sunday and Monday with the hope that there will be more swinging of an olive branch than a gavel.

Lenoir Rhyne now has a 12-4 conference record, and is 15-7 overall. Pfeiffer now is 7-9 in the conference and 12-11 overall.

Tom Burton and Jim Wiles chipped in 19 each for the Bears. Frank was Pfeiffer's high scorer.

Jofre Injured In Practice

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The world bantamweight championship match scheduled here Feb. 26 between champion Eder Jofre and Herman Marquie was postponed when Jofre injured his right wrist during training.

Aristides Jofre said in Sao Paulo, Brazil, Thursday that his son suffered the injury there while training on a heavy bag.

Lou Thomas, spokesman for the National Boxing Club said March 20 was the tentative new date for the bout between Jofre and his Mexican opponent.

Delay Sentence For Wagman

NEW YORK (AP) — General Sessions Court today postponed until March 14 the sentencing of Aaron Wagman, branded as the master fixer, and five others in the 1961 college basketball scandals.

No reason was given for the postponements. Wagman has pleaded guilty to 38 counts of bribery and conspiracy, which could bring him a penalty up to 370 years in prison and $370,000 in fines.

Wagman was arrested the day the scandal erupted, last March 17, and became the key figure in the ensuing probe. Eventually he was charged with bribing nine players from five schools to shave points, making individual payments as high as $1,500 and paying out $14,250 over a period of two seasons.

On Nov. 30, Wagman surprisingly entered a guilty plea to 38 counts of bribery and conspiracy including one count of attempting to bribe a detective from the district attorney's office to obtain information on the investigation.

Wagman, who was free on bail pending an appeal on his conviction for trying to fix a football game when he was arrested in the basketball scandals, is scheduled to be sentenced along with five others implicated in the basketball fix. The other five are Jerry Vogel and Dan Quinavall, former University of Alabama players; Lou Brown, who played for North Carolina; Joseph Green and Charles Tucker.

Buc Matmen Top Pfeiffer 21-11

The East Carolina wrestling team downed the Pfeiffer matmen in a home meet Thursday evening 21-11 with two of the Pirate wrestlers pinning their men and each team forfeiting one event.

Gaining pins for the Pirates were Jim Roberson over Gabriel in the 157-pound class and Deane Green over Asher in the 177-pound class.

Jacksonville was unable to win any events on decisions. The tie was between Ronnie Williams and Tom Justice in the 183-pound class.

Phantoms Host Bears Tonight

The Rose High Phantoms will host the New Bern Bears tonight for the second contest between the two clubs this season.

Rodney Knowles, Greenville's high scoring 6-foot 7-inch sophomore center, boosted his average in the Jacksonville game Tuesday night when he scored 37 points.

Others averaging in the double figures for the Phantoms are Kroehle Andresen with 10.7 and Billy James with 10.2. Jack Foley and Kenneth Allen are next in the scoring department with 8.0 averages. Alan McArthur has dropped from a six point average to 5.3.

In Pitt County action tonight four games are scheduled. League-leading Ayden will host Stokes-Pactolus, second place Bethel will travel to Chicod, Winterville will host Farmville and Belvoir-Falkland will play at Grimesland. U.S. Plans Piece-By-Piece S. Viet Nam Clean-Up

EDITOR'S NOTE—What's the new anti-guerrilla strategy being pushed by the United States in South Viet Nam? Why the administration's reluctance to talk about stepped-up U. S. assistance? What roles are American money and men playing in the troubled area? Fred S. Hoffman, Associated Press military affairs writer who covered Gen. Taylor's mission to Saigon, provides a comprehensive wrap-up of the current situation.

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Affairs Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is pushing a new strategy in South Viet Nam aimed at clearing Communist guerrillas from one area at a time rather than trying to mop up the whole country at once.
The intention is to make maximum use of manpower and equipment instead of spreading the resources thin, said informed sources. They are optimistic the plan will work.

The idea reportedly was advanced by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara during recent conferences in Honolulu with U.S. military leaders and diplomatic officials brought in from South Viet Nam.

According to the latest information available here, the Communist build-up in South Viet Nam is continuing with an unstemmed stream of guerrillas coming from North Viet Nam by way of Laos. Guerrilla strength has been estimated at close to 20,000.

Like the proverbial iceberg, most of the greatly increased U.S. effort to save South Viet Nam from communism has remained below the surface here, at least officially.

More of the icebergs came into view Thursday when the Pentagon announced creation of a major new U.S. military command in Saigon under a four-star general.

The new command, Pentagon officials said, will direct U.S. helicopter missions and other operations by U.S. military men in support of the South Vietnamese army, navy and air force.

American authorities are hopeful U.S. fighting men won't be needed—that the big boost in arms, training aid, transportation, communications and other support will enable the South Vietnamese army to root out the Communists by itself.

With American money, the South Vietnamese army is being increased to 200,000 men—about 50,000 more than a year ago.

If the use of U.S. combat troops becomes imperative to preserve South Viet Nam's independence, the new Military Assistance Command could form a base for directing such an operation.

Gen. Paul D. Harkins, named to head the new command, undoubtedly carries with him to Saigon a clear idea of what Kennedy wants done. Harkins conferred with the President at Palm Beach some time ago, it was learned.

Harkins, 57, a native of Boston who has been second in command of Army forces in the Pacific area, is understood to be a close friend of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Kennedy's personal military adviser.

The United States has seemed inconsistent in its policy on publicity about the U.S. effort in Viet Nam.

On occasion, the White House has spotlighted that effort—as on Dec. 15 when it made public a letter from Kennedy to Diem pledging measures "to help the republic of Viet Nam to protect its people and to preserve its independence."

But at the same time, officials here have refused to give specific information on the amount and type of military aid.

Administration refusal to talk about details of the stepped-up U.S. assistance or about efforts to bring about reforms in Viet Nam is grounded in two reasons:

1. American officials want to avoid the appearance that they are pulling the strings. This is intended in part to prevent ruffling South Vietnamese feelings and to thwart Communist propaganda seeking to picture Saigon as a puppet of the United States.

2. It puts on the Communists the burden of proving their charges the United States is mounting a huge military build-up in South Viet Nam in violation of the 1954 armistice agreement partitioning the country into Communist and non-Communist halves.

The eight-year-old agreement permits only 685 foreign military advisers in South Viet Nam and bars bringing in any new military gear except for replacements.

The United States will admit to only the 685 figure. But the total of American military men now in South Viet Nam is believed to be near 4,000. It is expected to rise as high as 7,000 within the scope of the present effort.

Some secrecy is imposed for obvious security reasons.
Thus, few will talk—and then only guardedly—about reported anti-Communist guerrilla activity inside North Viet Nam. Such activity is believed to be on a small scale so far.

American Special Forces, experts in training native fighters to operate as guerrillas, are working in South Viet Nam. A special center for schooling Vietnamese volunteers in these techniques is known to be functioning.

U.S. officials prefer not to talk about reports that some U.S. Navy minesweepers are patrolling off the Vietnamese coast.

These officials do acknowledge that U.S. Navy men are helping the small South Vietnamese navy to become more efficient in intercepting Communist junkloads of men and supplies junked down by sea from the North and to pursue Red guerrillas on the country's many rivers and canals.

U.S. Air Force men have come on the scene in sizeable numbers to support the Vietnamese how to set the most out of the helicopters, reconnaissance planes, transports and fighter-type craft being funneled into the country.

American Combat Troops Not To Be Used In Battle

HONOLULU (AP)—Gen. Paul D. Harkins strongly emphasizes the creation of his new command in South Viet Nam does not prophesy the use of U.S. combat troops against the Communists.
"There is no change in U.S. policy," he told The Associated Press.

The role of the U.S. military in South Viet Nam will continue to be training and support of native troops against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas, he said.

Harkins underscored Pentagon statements that the U.S. troops in South Viet Nam were "not combat," but advisory. The men do have orders to defend themselves if attacked, he said, but not to attack.

Harkins, deputy army commander in the Pacific, was named Thursday to head the new U.S. Military Assistance Command, bolstering President Kennedy's policy of expanded aid to Ngo Dinh Diem's pro-Western government.

With the new assignment, Harkins, 57, was promoted from lieutenant general to full general.

Harkins refused to speculate on any possible increase of U.S. military manpower in the Southeast Asian republic. He conceded, however, that support troops were in training in the United States for service with his new command.

Harkins sidestepped all questions on the internal political situation in the embattled republic. He called the South Vietnamese "a fine people" who want Communists out of their country. He will do his part, he said.

Harkins, a warm-mannered and dignified strapping six-footer, is not a novice in Asian combat. He was 8th Army chief of staff in Korea, later commanding the 45th and 24th Infantry Divisions respectively. He owns the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star medal.

Harkins said he expected to go to Southeast Asia shortly to tackle his new job. His headquarters will be in Saigon, the capital of South Viet Nam. He said his wife would join him later.

More Than One Test Site Likely

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP)—Christmas Island may be only one of several places where the United States will explode nuclear weapons if President Kennedy decides on new air tests.

This possibility was suggested today by several factors. Among them:

1. Announcement by the U.S. and British governments that preparations should be made "in various places" for possible testing. The two governments announced agreement on U.S. use of British-owned Christmas Island and British use of underground test facilities for low-yield devices in the United States.

2. The time required for installing test facilities at Christmas together with what weapon technicians consider the urgency of resuming testing. This may compel atmospheric tests even before Christmas Island can be made ready.

Any open air tests at the Nevada proving grounds almost certainly would be limited to detonations of something less than megaton force. Inhabited areas would have to be considered in connection with fallout and the brilliance of light created by thermonuclear explosions.

The Eniwetok-Bikini test area in the Marshall Islands group used for the big weapon tests until the moratorium began in 1958—is out of the picture for future use. Kennedy notes that the Marshall Islands are a trusteeship and that the United States is "anxious to maintain the spirit as well as the letter of the trustee agreement."

This leaves open the question of where some of the other "various places" mentioned in the announcement might be located.

Britain has tested nuclear devices in the Australian desert. What about sea-based tests, perhaps of weapons launched from ships or installed aboard expendable craft?

The United States has included sub-surface tests in lagoons and in deep water. It has launched atomic-tipped rockets, experimentally, to high altitudes. Kennedy included mention of Johnston Island, southwest of Hawaii, in his recent news conference discussion of testing. Johnston is a tiny island which can be used for missile launching.

Christmas smuggles close to the Equator, more than 1,000 miles south of Hawaii. Geographically and in other ways it is better suited for test of multimegaton weapons than the Marshall Islands site.

It is one of the largest atolls in the Pacific, much bigger than Eniwetok or Bikini.

It is 30 miles long, 15 miles wide at the west end, five miles at the east end. A network of small islets and reefs in the huge lagoon could provide ideal locations for test towers and recording instruments.

Thousands of miles of empty ocean, without even small islands, are east of Christmas, stretching off in the direction of South America. Air mass movement at high altitude, up where radioactivity climbs, is to the east. Surface weather at Christmas Island is generally good, with the island located in the so-called equatorial dry zone.

However, there is a March-June rainy season—which could be another factor in delaying use of Christmas Island.

Girl Swallowed Mouth Mirror

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP)—A 13-year-old girl has been awarded $2,500 in damages for injuries suffered when she swallowed a dentist's mouth mirror.

The girl, Nancy Hoffman, of Kenilworth, swallowed the mirror on June 6 while she was in the chair of Dr. H. F. Mitchem Jr., also of Kenilworth.

The mirror, which apparently became detached from a handle, later was removed by surgery. Union County Court Judge Milton A. Feller Thursday approved the settlement for the girl plus $4,000 for her father, William, for medical expenses and suit fees.

Teachers Urged Call On Public Health Services

SIMPSON—Dr. John Futrell, director of the Pitt County Health Department, urged teachers to call on public health nurses in dealing with problems related to the school health program, at a talk Monday evening at Simpson School.

Dr. Futrell was introduced by Lafayette Williams, principal of Simpson School.

The health director asked parents to send their children to school after seeing that they have eaten a good breakfast. A plea was made to all parents to share the responsibility of their children's health with school and public health officials.

He stressed the need for mothers of illegitimate children to name fathers of children born out of wedlock in order to qualify for welfare assistance.

In other points of the talk, which was titled "Public Health Activities," Dr. Futrell noted the close association between poor nutrition, alcohol consumption and low social-economic conditions, pointed out the superior case finding by experienced interviewing has been responsible for Pitt County's relatively low venereal disease rate; cited need for all women, regardless of age, to have yearly cancer examinations; made an appeal for everyone to support heart research, since more than one out of every two deaths in 1961 was due to cardiovascular-renal disease.

Dr. Futrell also pointed to the need for early diagnosis and treatment of upper respiratory symptoms in order to prevent more serious complications and made a plea for early rehabilitation at the most opportune time to reduce the chronic disease problem.

Hope was expressed that services would be made available for the county's unmet needs.

Dr. Futrell stated that the county is fortunate in having nurses and sanitarians who are qualified and dedicated.

CHAPTER 23

Emilio Largo took a deep breath and held out his hand to James Bond. Bond took it, folding his thumb inside his palm just in case Largo might give him a bone-crusher with his vast machine tool of a hand. But it was a firm grasp and no more.

Largo said, "Now I must wait for the shoe to come round again. You have taken all my winnings. I have a hard evening's work ahead of me just when I was going to take my niece for a drink and a dance."

He turned to Domino. "My dear, I don't think you know Mr. Bond, except on the telephone. I'm afraid he has upset my plans. You must find someone else to squeeze you."

Bond said, "How do you do. Didn't we meet in the tobacco shop's this morning?"

"I think you're a young girl, younger than you pretend to be. You were carefully brought up, in a red-carpet sort of way, and then the red carpet was suddenly jerked away from under your feet and you were thrown more or less into the street. So you picked yourself up and started to work your own way back to the red carpet you had got used to."

"You were probably fairly ruthless about it. You had to be. You only had a woman's weapons and you probably used them pretty coolly. But in getting what you wanted, your sensibilities had to be put aside. I don't expect they're very far underground. They certainly haven't atrophied. They've just lost their voice because you wouldn't listen to them."

"You couldn't afford to listen to them if you were to get back on that red carpet and have the things you wanted. And now you've got the things."

Bond touched the hand that lay on the banquet table. "And perhaps you've almost had enough of them." He laughed. "But I mustn't get too serious. Now about the smaller things. You know all about them, but just for the record, you're beautiful, sexy, provocative, independent, self-willed, quick-tempered, and cruel."

She looked at him thoughtfully. "I'm nothing very clever about all that. I told you most of it. You know something about Italian women. But why do you say I'm cruel?"

"If I was gambling and I took a knock like Largo did and I had my woman, a woman, sitting near me watching, and she didn't give me one word of comfort or encouragement I would say she was being cruel. Men don't like falling in front of their women."

She said impatiently, "I've had to sit there too often and watch him show off. I wanted you to win. I cannot pretend. You didn't mention my only virtue. It's honesty. I love to the hilt and I hate to the hilt. At the present time, with Emilio, I am halfway."

"Where were we lovers, we are now good friends who understand each other. When I told you he was my guardian, I was telling a white lie. I am his woman."

Largo laughed. His spirits had returned. He said, "You see, Mr. Bond, you are out of the frying pan into the fire. In Domietta's hands you may not fare so well as in mine. See you later, my dear fellow."

Bond said, "Well, thanks for the game. I will order champagne and caviar for three. My spectre also deserves his reward." Wandering again whether the shadow flickered in Largo's eyes at the word had more significance than Italian superstition, he got up and followed the girl between the crowded tables to the supper room.

"The girl screwed up her eyes. She said differently. 'Yes? It is possible. I have such a bad memory for faces.'"

Bond said, "Well, could I give you a drink? I can just afford even a Nassau drink now, thanks to the generosity of Mr. Largo, and I have finished here. This sort of thing can't last. I mustn't press my luck."

The girl got up. She said ungraciously, "If you have nothing better to do." She turned Largo: "Emilio, perhaps if I take this Mr. Bond away, your luck will run again. I will be in the supper room having caviar and champagne. We must try and get as much of your funds as we can back in the family."

Bond held his cigarette steady. He took a long draw at it and let the smoke out with a quiet hiss. "Is your family name Petacchi, then?"

"Oh, yes. Vitali is only a stage name. It sounded better so I changed it. Nobody knows the other. I've almost forgotten it myself. I've called myself Vitali since I came back to Italy. I wanted to change everything."

"What happened to your brother? What was his first name?"

"Giuseppe. He went wrong in various ways. But he was a wonderful flier. Last time I heard of him he'd been given some high-up job in Paris. Perhaps that'll make him settle down. I pray every night that it will. He's all I've got. I love him in spite of everything. You understand that?"

Bond stabbed out his cigarette in the ashtray. He called for the bill. He said, "Yes, I understand that."

"The great barracuda's eye looked coldly at Bond and then downward at the slowly sinking man. . . the story continues to a climax here tomorrow."

"The great barracuda's eye looked coldly at Bond and then downward at the slowly sinking man. . . the story continues to a climax here tomorrow."

Debating Society Ends Tradition

OXFORD, England (AP)—The Oxford Union Society, the famed university debating group, voted Thursday night to abandon the old tradition that has kept women out of its discussions.

The pro-women faction won hands down 404-122. But after the vote members of the anti-women group demanded a poll of the full society membership including members not present at the meeting.

The poll must be held if they can collect 150 signatures to a petition by tonight.

If they can't—it's come on in, girls.

Two From Pitt On Dean's List

MOUNT OLIVE—Two Pitt County students attending Mount Olive College made the Dean's List for the fall semester, it was announced by Dean Michael Peit.

They are Ruth Cotton Clark of 1719 S. Elm St., Greenville, and Linda Alice Worthington of Rt. 1, Ayden.

A student must earn a 2.5 average with no grade less than "C" to be on the Dean's List.

Dr. Troutman Is PTA Speaker

GRIFTON—Dr. B. C. Troutman, local physician, discussed several types of diseases, their causes, prevention and cures at the Griffon Elementary School P.T.A. meeting held recently.

Dr. Troutman also called attention to the discovery of new drugs that have reduced death rates in many diseases. He encouraged the public to take advantage of the anti-tetanus immunization.

It is the role of a doctor to keep people well as much as it is to get them well, he said. He also noted the necessity of proper diet.

The P.T.A. effort for the month was a request for each parent to give a dozen eggs or the price of a dozen eggs. About $14.90 was raised through the effort. Some 60 parents attended the meeting.

The luncheon program was discussed during the business session, and it was noted that even though the luncheon does not receive government aid, by careful planning and with assistance from the P.T.A., it is self supporting. Hot plates are sold for 15 cents, most sandwiches for 10 cents and milk for 4 cents per half pint. No hot plate costs more than 15 cents.

Free milk is given each day to many needy children through efforts of the Griffon Service League.

Mrs. M. L. Braxton and Simon Herby, both faculty members of the school, presented a duet.

R. E. Taylor, member of the State Highway Patrol and stationed in Griffon, will be speaker at the next meeting.

The project is that each parent pay one penny for the size of each shoe.

Mrs. Pamela G. Gardner is president of the P.T.A.

Eight Cub Packs Enter Pinewood Derby Series

Eight Pitt Scout District cub packs have entered cars in Saturday's Pinewood Derby series—a feature of the Pitt District Exposition.

Cubs in the eight packs are scheduled to begin registering their entries at 11 a.m. Saturday. Registration will close at 2:30 p.m. and the first round of Derbies will get underway at 3 p.m.

Following the preliminary rounds, the Pitt District championship will be decided at the District Pinewood Derby at 5 p.m.

The schedule for each pack in the preliminary events is: Pack 9 and Pack 200—3 p.m.; Pack 205 and Pack 330—3:25; Pack 25—3:50; Pack 34—4:10; Pack 375 and Pack 401—4:30.

Holding Boy For Setting 3 Fires

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—A 13-year-old boy has been ordered held for children's court after police said he admitted setting three fires within the last two months, including one at the Jamestown Consistory on Jan. 24 which caused $40,000 damage.

The youth said Thursday, according to police, that he also set a Christmas tree on fire in a church Dec. 20 and on the same day started another blaze in an empty apartment.

Job Security Is Key Steel Pact Pattern Of '62

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Save that job! That's the labor slogan for 1962 if the key steel contract talks starting next week set the pattern as expected.

In most of the postwar years the primary stress has been on how much one should be paid an hour for work. In recent years there has been added a growing emphasis on all the fringe benefits—pensions, medical care, vacations—all translatable into dollars and cents both by management and labor.

But this year labor more and more is putting at the top of its demands the security of the job itself.

It is fine to get a higher hourly wage scale. But workers this year are asking: What good is a high hourly wage scale, if I am going to be laid off—because of recessions, automation, of mergers—or if the company is going to cut down the number of hours I can work and draw that higher pay?

The basic steel labor-management negotiations open on Valentine Day. And the steel workers are set to ask as this year's Valentine far-ranging agreements by management to make their jobs more secure. They want to spread the available work among employees, perhaps by shortening the standard week, and also to ease the pains of being laid off or working shorter weeks than the standard one.

Job security as a key issue is recognized by the steel companies. The debates during the contract talks won't be over the desirability of this goal but over the means of securing jobs.

Management's stand is that many of the union's proposals will raise operational costs as surely as would wage scale increases. This could, they argue, more than eat up any savings made by mechanization. The result would be pressure for higher steel prices.

And that is something which the Kennedy administration is using all its influence to head off, if possible.

The steel union denies that its new demands for more job security and for more compensation if laid off will hike the mills' operating costs enough to justify any price increase. Labor's contention is that mechanization has already raised the output per hour of man labor high enough to take care of their security proposals.

Lana Collapses, Due Exhaustion
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Lana Turner collapsed on a motion picture set Thursday night and was hospitalized for what was described as nervous exhaustion.

Miss Turner was admitted to Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital at 10:15 p.m. The hospital said her condition was not considered serious.

An aide said the actress probably will return to work at Paramount Pictures Monday.

She collapsed during a party in honor of her 42nd birthday at the end of the day's shooting on "Who's Got the Action." She co-stars with Dean Martin in the film.
