Oran's Moslems Heavily Bombed

ORAN, Algeria (AP) — The Secret Army Organization today staged its biggest plastic bomb attack to date in the Moslem quarter of Oran, touching off angry Moslem demonstrations. About 40 bombs exploded, starting several fires which firemen brought under control.

lems out of European quarters of the city. Moslems streamed into the streets, some of them panicking. Some were half-dressed and ran shouting through the streets. Demonstrators stoned cars driven by Europeans on the outskirts of the quarter. Police reported that young Europeans in another part of the city were stoning Moslem cars.

Kennedy Tells Khrushchev Preliminary Work Needed

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy told Soviet Premier Khrushchev today that "much clarifying work" toward disarmament will have to be completed before a summit meeting is possible. But Kennedy added in a message to the Soviet leader: "This may be necessary in any case before June 1 when a report is to be filed on the progress achieved."

menters level would be the best instrument for achieving progress at the opening stages" of the Geneva session. A Western proposal to start at the foreign ministers level was the trigger for Khrushchev's counter suggestion of a summit meeting. Kennedy's message said that the question is one of timing. He repeated the U.S.-British proposal that the conference open at the foreign minister level.

ance to keep the negotiators in session until positive results have been achieved. "I do not believe that the attendance by the heads of government at the outset of an 18-nation conference is the best way to move forward," Kennedy said today. The President said he agreed with Khrushchev's observation that a better basis exists now than previously for success of the conference, although substantial differences between the East and West linger on.

Stronger Tax Law Penalties Talked

RALEIGH (AP)—The possibility of stiffer penalties for future violators of state income tax laws has been raised in the wake of the arrest of a former highway engineer on tax evasion charges. Revenue Commissioner William Johnson said Tuesday the 1963 General Assembly will be asked to make tax violations felonies instead of misdemeanors.

utes in the 41 years since the income tax was enacted. And furthermore, Johnson said, Burch was arrested just four hours before the statute of limitations would have expired in his case. Maximum penalty for conviction of the tax evasion misdemeanor is six months in prison and a $500 fine on each count. "It is our own feeling that the penalties ought to be of a more serious nature," Johnson commented. "They ought to be more compatible with what we think is the seriousness of the crime."

Board Okays Office Work

GRIFTON—Improvements for the town clerk's office were approved last night by Grifton commissioners at their monthly meeting. Mayor Wiley Gaskins suggested that the improvements include new chairs for the council table and a private office. Estimated cost is $150 to $200. Reports were made by the police department, recorder's court and the Grifton Public Library. The police report listed 30 arrests for January, with 27 found guilty in court, one not guilty and two not prosed. The department investigated one accident and five fires.

Concern Over Reds' Build-Up

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — American officials here express increasing concern over intelligence reports that 10,000 North Vietnamese combat troops, advisers and technicians now are aiding neutralist and pro-Communist Laotian rebels. The new estimate, which American experts consider reliable, is that 7 to 10 battalions of North Vietnamese combat troops totaling about 5,000 men are in operation or stationed in five sensitive areas. Another 5,000 North Vietnamese advisers and technicians are reported helping the Pathet Lao and neutralist forces. This puts the total of Pathet Lao, neutralist and North Vietnamese forces in Laos at between 30,000 and 40,000 armed men, according to intelligence estimates. On the side of Prince Boun Oum's right-wing government are some 70,000 men in the regular army and militia aided by about 1,000 American advisers. Despite this apparent numerical superiority, the government has relatively few battalions capable of moving into action with mobility. Intelligence reports indicate the North Vietnamese are the shock troops for continuing rebel attacks and that after they soften up royal army positions, Pathet Lao forces follow up the attack.

Ayden Board To Push Petition On Annexation

AYDEN—Town Board members this week decided that continued effort should be made to secure necessary names on a petition for annexation of the Jack Stokes subdivision, located on the western edge of town. Discussing the matter at the monthly board session, the commissioners said that all names of real estate owners should be on the petition. There are about 12 people involved. The board authorized Town Manager Cleveland Taylor to secure bids on the cleaning and painting of the municipal water tank. They also released taxes in the amount of $24.51 on Dan Braxton for the year 1961. This amount was a charge for trucks that were not in the city limits at the time, it was explained. In a report to the board, Paylor stated that for January, 1962, the town purchased 1,058,400 kilowatt hours of electricity, which is the all-time high for the town. It topped the previous record of 1,017,000 kilowatt hours of electricity purchased last August. The increase was apparently the result of the Christmas load, and a growth of the town, as well as cold weather. Fred Bulow of Ayden appeared before the board and outlined the program and accomplishments of the Little League baseball club here. He indicated the $350 usually appropriated by the town would be sufficient for this year. Bulow said that the club opened the 1961 season with $151.97 and closed with a balance of $41.52. There were several expenses incurred in the new ball park which will not reoccur, he said.

Absentee Rate In Pitt Schools Continue High

Absentee rates continued to be high at five Pitt County schools today due to flu and virus infections. Greenville school absentees decreased, however, with 432 students out, compared to 561 for yesterday. Areas hardest hit by flu in Pitt County schools were Sallie Branch, with 113 out today; Ayden, 147; Winterville, 125; Chicod, 143; and Stokes, 162. While absentees increased at Stokes School, they decreased very slightly at Chicod. Sallie Branch and Winterville Schools had about the same rate as yesterday, while Ayden dropped from 165 for yesterday. Dr. John Futrell, Pitt County health director, said the flu seemed to be "tapering out in the city and hitting spots in the county, such as Stokes, Winterville and Ayden." He commented that the type of flu most common seems to be a mild form, usually Type B.

Bonds Sold For Pitt Industrial School Tuesday

Bonds to finance Pitt County's $395,000 technical training center, to be constructed south of Greenville, were sold Tuesday at a 2.5703 per cent interest rate. The $395,000 in bonds, in donations of $1,000 each, were sold by the local Government Commission to Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. of Winston-Salem. Average maturity of the bonds is 6.27 years. The bonds were approved last June by a wide majority of 2,712 Pitt Countians voting in a referendum. Only 386 voted against the issue for the industrial education center, last of 19 to be allocated by the State Board of Education. Site preparation for the school is already underway and initial construction on the educational facility is expected soon.

Pump Is Radio-Controlled

UTILITIES DIRECTOR Leonard Bloxam looks over the pump on the Utilities well at Greenville Blvd. and 14th St. The pump is turned on and off from the Utilities plant by two way radio. Plant operators send a tone over the radio system when additional water is needed in the elevated tanks. As the tanks reach their capacity the pump is turned off by transmission of a signal. Yesterday Is Part Of White House Today

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

Since John and Abigail Adams moved into the unfinished Executive Mansion in 1800, the President's residence on Pennsylvania Avenue has been furnished and refurbished with a frequency only a woman could understand.

Women, it is reputed, like to move furniture about. And what one First Lady doted upon, another thought in excruciating bad taste.

The White House—which got its name during the occupancy of Theodore Roosevelt—has now reached a peak in quiet elegance and historic dignity.

Just how the presidential mansion looks today, as a result of the work of Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her Fine Arts Committee, will be shown the public on a taped television tour to be broadcast by CBS on both WNCN and WITN at 10 p.m. tonight.

The First Lady will conduct the audience through the public rooms on the ground and first floors, and the Lincoln and Monroe Rooms on the second floor.

Mrs. Kennedy and her committee have been trying to put back originals from the White House that have been scattered over the years. Up until the Anderson Bill was passed in 1961 to protect donations to the White House, Presidents were free to auction furniture as they pleased. If a future President doesn't like pieces donated now, they'll go to the Smithsonian Institution.

Perhaps the biggest house-cleaning came when Chester Arthur succeeded to the presidency in 1881 after the assassination of James Garfield. He had 24 wagonloads of White House furniture hauled out and sold at auction. Congress appropriated money for him to redecorate to his taste, and his chief concoction was a series of stained glass screens with American and Islamic symbols, which cut off the long corridor from the drafty entrance hall. It lasted until Franklin D. Roosevelt moved in.

Not to let Arthur outdo him, Benjamin Harrison added stained glass windows to the Blue Room.

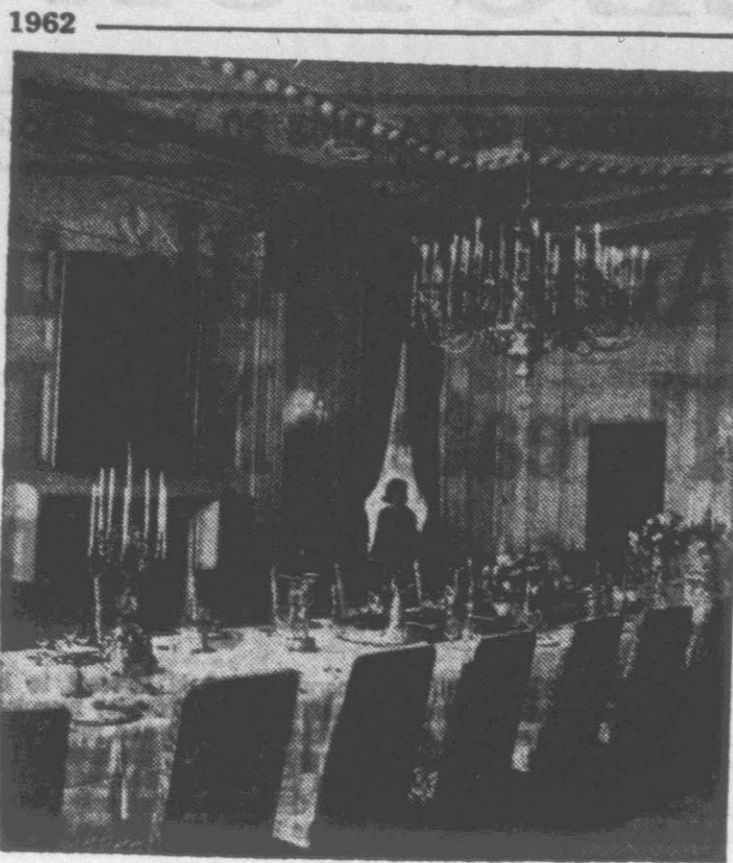

When Mrs. Kennedy conducts the tour, the audience will see that the huge East Room in which Abigail Adams used to dry her wash has antique white walls, but otherwise it's largely unchanged since it was redone in 1902.

The State Dining Room as the First Lady shows it will have its table set as for an official dinner. The gold china is the Eisenhowers; so is the gold flatware. Mrs. Kennedy has selected her own American glassware; for water, champagne, red and white wines. Centerpiece is the famous Monroe mirrored plateau—13½ feet long with fruits, flowers, sandalabras.

The dining room was enlarged in 1902 to double the number of guests to about 120, but the oak paneled walls are now white.

The Red Room today is American Empire style; chief sofas belonged to Nellie Custis, Martha Washington's granddaughter, and Dolly Madison. The Green Room is furnished as an American 19th century parlor.

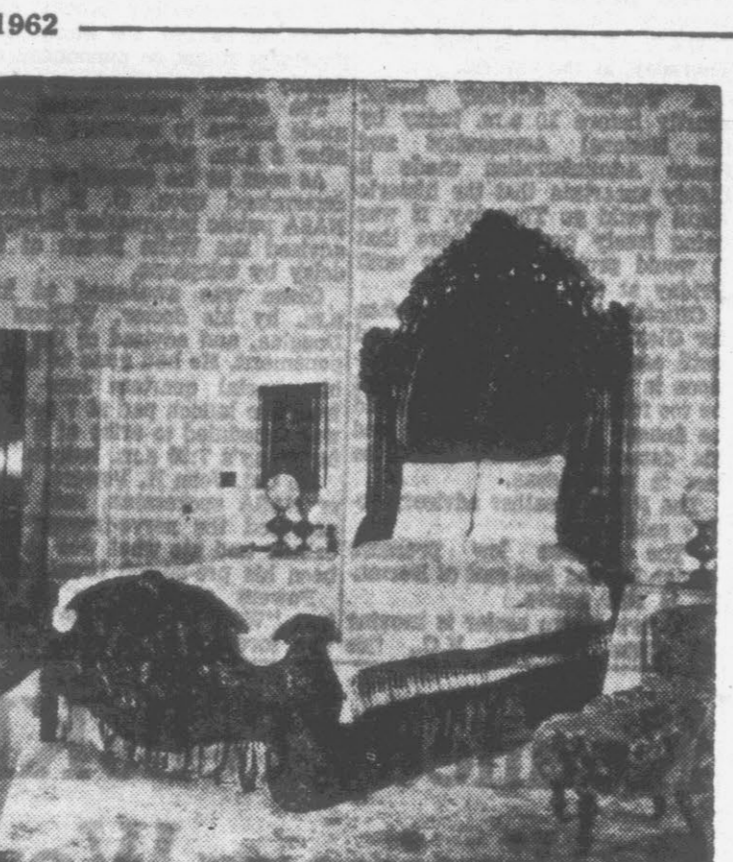

The Lincoln bed—8 feet long with a headboard 9 feet high—dominates the Lincoln Room, once the Civil War President's study, now used as a bedroom for distinguished guests. The ornate canopy that hung over it when it occupied the President's Bedroom has been removed. Pieces from Lincoln's time are in the room, placed there by Presidents Hoover, then Truman and later by Mrs. Kennedy.

STATE DINING ROOM . . . Mrs. J. F. Kennedy shows it set for official dinner. She had walls painted white.

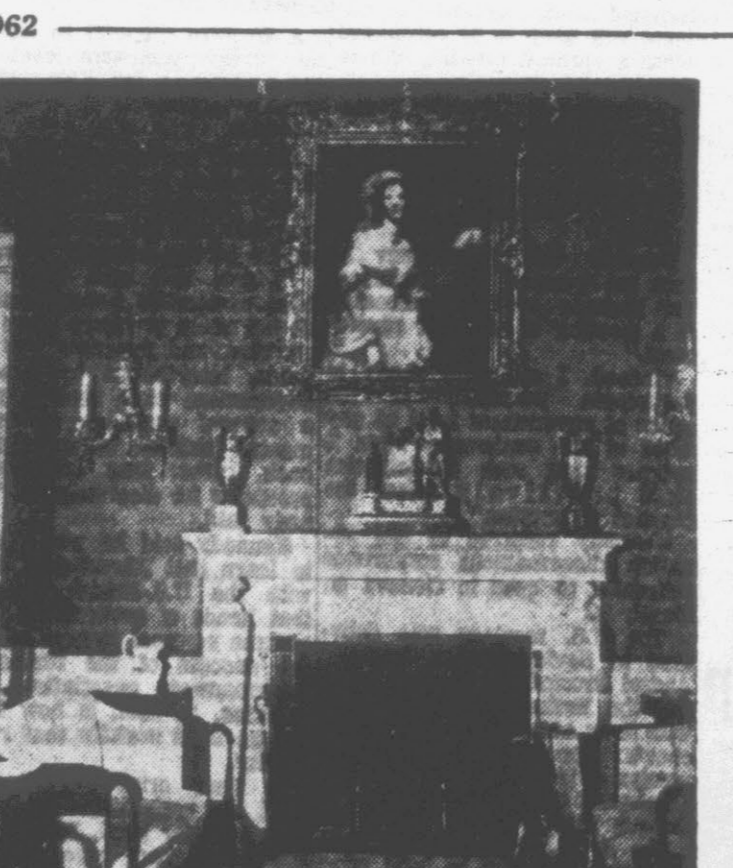

EARLY REFURNISHING . . . Dark oak paneling; heads of American game looked down from frieze.

LINCOLN ROOM . . . Famous Lincoln bed moved into Lincoln study by Truman; used as bedroom for distinguished visitors.

PRESIDENTIAL BEDROOM . . . Here's the Lincoln bed, elaborate canopy and all. Note HARRISON on pillow on chaise.

GREEN ROOM . . . Almost wholly redone, it's furnished with 19th century American antiques. Portrait is of Angelica Singleton Van Buren, daughter-in-law, hostess of Martin Van Buren.

OLD GREEN PARLOR . . . Plush, fringe, embroidery screen, huge mirror ornament onetime music room, small dining room. Wall covering is green silk velvet.

The table spread with lace over gold satin was centered with an arrangement of delight roses, gladioli, pom-poms and two gilt bells flanked by burning candles. The mantel featured greenery with a golden 50. Bridal cakes, mints, salted nuts and punch were served. The callers were directed to the gift room where many lovely and useful presents were displayed.

As the 130 friends were leaving they signed the register then said the goodbyes to Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Robinson.

Sharps Celebrate Anniversary
A pink and white color scheme was used when Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sharp celebrated their Tenth Wedding anniversary at their home on Pinetree Drive.

The guests were greeted by the couple and invited into the living room and the den where an informal period followed prior to the invitation to the dining room. The table was spared with a Madeira nutcrack cloth centered with a decorated two-tiered wedding cake flanked by white tapers in silver holders. Mrs. Sharp served the cake while Mrs. Claude R. Wilson poured the pink fruit punch. The other refreshments were assorted crackers, potato chips with dip, pickles and salted nuts.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharp said the goodbyes to the 30 guests.

Skirts In For Ride
PHILADELPHIA — (WNS) — Economist Lawrence C. Murdoch Jr. has worked out a theory that says skirts get shorter as cars get longer. Since both General Motors and Ford cars for 1962 are longer, Murdoch predicts higher hemlines for spring.

By JUNE WILSON Women's News Service
Whoever said that "some got it, some ain't" knew what he was talking about. You certainly ain't when it comes to furs, and that's what this is about.

With people in the White House being as they are, there is no status reason anymore for furs. The First Lady, that petite miss who has made the world safe for brunettes, hasn't let the public stare dissuade her from her born-to-the-purple habits which include — as anybody who is anybody at all understands — a pre-ference for cloth coats over mink.

Still, a bit of fur does things to a woman — and for her. And now is as good a time as any to get some.

If you've always thought of fur as a full-length coat, forget it. These days everywhere except the Arctic Circle, full-length coats are old hat, unless they're double and reversible with the fur on the inside.

When fur is next to whatever is next to you, a gentle, genteel look of quiet superiority oozes across your face. You know, like Grace Kelly.

Maybe you'll start with a three- or four-skinned scarf? Not if you know your onions. Scarves like this are some cold dead and out for now. Consider instead a four-hand necktie of flat fur, or a boa of well-sable, to wear a dozen ways.

If it isn't a "working" fur you crave but something smart for evening, forget fur stoles and evening wraps. Bourgeois! Instead, make it a huge evening bag of precious fur or a velvet stole rimmed deep with sable. Chic, conservative and oh so upper crust!

Tunics are back. If you are starting this project small, make a dive for a smart Russian tunic bordered in fur. Or a cocktail sheath, fur-bordered around a strapless top. It's better than sleeves anytime and where it counts.

To want furs and own them does not mean you must drench yourself in full-length mink or nothing. You can be better dressed and appear more well-bred more economically. Chic in fur doesn't depend upon a certain fur or how much there is of it, but on where it is.

Besides, the some that've got it have it because they've kept it. If you save long enough you will end up with the most well-bred and upper crust of all known snob appeals — old money!

Annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale Begins

The annual sale of Girl Scout cookies is conducted in order that the girls themselves might provide the finances needed to repair and maintain their camping sites. On-going services to girls in the 20 counties are financially provided for by contributions to various United Funds and Drives. The girls themselves, accept the responsibility for financing the majority of cost involved in maintaining and operating their camping program. A portion of the profit realized from the sale of cookies also remains with the troop to help carry out their troop plans.

'Groundwork' Must Come First

Moscow's new bid for a summit conference to kick off the new 18-nation disarmament conference in Geneva is another example of Soviet offensive action in the realm of international politics.

The Soviet proposal should not have come as a surprise and neither should the apparent rejection of the proposal by the United States have come as a surprise. Whatever the position of the United States on the matter, it leaves the offensive in the hands of the Soviet Union.

If the United States rejects the proposal—as Dean Rusk has said it will—it does not rule out the appearance of Premier Khrushchev at the conference an opportunity for him to make a major propaganda pitch before a ready-made international audience. If, on the other hand, the United States agrees to the preliminary summit meeting, it will afford the Soviets the opportunity to boast of its initiative in bringing about the new meeting of heads of states. In spite of these considerations, it is our opinion the administration has chosen the wise course by calling for a preliminary meeting of foreign ministers, and a summit conference only after sufficient progress has been made at the lower level to assure some constructive agreements coming out of the meeting.

The United States, in short, has called for an indication that the Soviets intend to negotiate in good faith before another summit conference is arranged. This is as it should be, for if nothing concrete can be agreed upon at the foreign minister level—at least in general terms—there is no reason to expect that the heads of state could come up with any worthwhile agreements without considerable preliminary work. The heads of state cannot be expected to disregard their other duties for an indefinite period in order to negotiate an agreement for which no groundwork has been done.

It is also evident, we believe, that the chances of a successful summit conference would be lessened considerably without preliminary negotiations at the foreign minister level. Certainly a summit conference which ended in disagreement, or with no constructive agreements reached, would contribute more to increasing rather than decreasing international tension.

While we are reluctant to see the United States out-manuevered in international politics, we are even more reluctant to see it dash into an ill-advised summit meeting which could have little chance of enhancing either the prestige of this nation or the cause of international peace.

Warm Primary In 8th District

By LYNN NISBET

EIGHTH DISTRICT — The primary campaign for the Democratic nomination for congress in the eighth district is opening up with all the vigor that had been predicted. The tone of the campaign was set at a sort of informal meeting of Democrats in Charlotte last Friday night.

John P. Kennedy, Charlotte lawyer-banker, announced his candidacy against Paul Kitchin, present eighth district representative. He moved in with a vigorous, almost bitter, attack on the quality of representation which Kitchin has given the district for the past six years. By implication, although he did not make very definite specific commitments as to his own philosophy, he made it clear he would be more liberal and progressive than Kitchin.

"I am entering this race," he is quoted by the Charlotte News, "out of a deep conviction that in all of our approach to government we need a positive attitude, not negative. We need from the eighth district not a congressman who seems to wish we lived in the last century and whose voting record might have been appropriate to the world as it was 50 to 100 years ago, but a congressman who realizes that we are living in the mid-20th century and that we must cope with the problems of the modern world in a realistic way."

He further accused Kitchin of drawing a tight circle around America and worrying only about the budget. This attack caught Kitchin by surprise. He had thought the meeting of the Democratic Men's Club was to be just a good fellowship affair, and he had not prepared a campaign speech. However, he came back to defend his record in Congress and as a former member of the FBI in fighting communism.

LINES — While this preliminary skirmish tended to draw the lines pretty well between the philosophies and methods of campaigning of Kennedy and Kitchin, this does not amount to very much until former Congressman C. B. Deane is heard from. Every day Deane acts and talks more like a candidate and his entry would bust up several of the houses of cards so carefully being constructed by the other two.

A bit of background is necessary to understanding of the situation. The eighth district is new, having been formed out of parts of the old eighth and the old tenth when it was necessary to reduce the number in the state from 12 to 11. Lincoln and Mecklenburg were taken from the tenth and put with Union, Anson, Richmond, Montgomery, Moore and Lee of the old eighth to form the new district. Because of the bigness of Mecklenburg the population and voting strength of the new district is about equally divided between the component parts. Traditionally, Union, Anson, Richmond, Moore and Lee have been preponderantly Democratic; Lincoln and Montgomery have been close, and Mecklenburg has been preponderantly Republican for congressional and national tickets.

North Carolina's only Republican congressman, Charles Raper Jonas, lives in Lincoln but his chief political strength has been in Mecklenburg. From his first race in 1952 a Mecklenburg Democrat has sought in every election to defeat him without success.

Paul Kitchin, representative of the old eighth district, lives in Anson. He defeated incumbent Charles Deane in 1956 and has won easily ever since in both primary and general elections. The six counties from the old eighth that are embraced in the new district have been strong for Kitchin. That is to his advantage now.

UNKNOWN — The unknown and unpredictable factors right now are whether Deane will enter the race, and what effect the Mecklenburg vote will have on the district total. The shuffle of counties removed from the district Davidson, Davie, Yadkin and Wilkes in which Deane was very strong. He will be campaigning largely in "minority" territory and in new country. Kitchin will be new in Lincoln and Mecklenburg, and Kennedy will be new all over for congress, although he has worked Mecklenburg for other offices.

But there are some things to be remembered in political speculation which many casual observers are apt to overlook. Always a lot is heard about bloc voting, about solid front Negro or Labor or Farm votes. These claims almost always are exaggerated. There is no solid bloc race or craft voting in North Carolina. But there is definite indication of "priority favor" for certain candidates among these groups.

By every political rule in the book Deane is entitled to a preponderant majority of the Negro vote and the ultra-liberal New Deal and New Frontier folks. Organized labor is indebted to him, but also to Kennedy for his advocacy of the North Carolina minimum wage law. His connection with big banking gives Kennedy claim on the business vote, but Kitchin holds prior claim to business conservatism.

MAIN GOAL — At Charlotte the other night Kitchin said the main objective should be kept in mind — and that is to replace Republican Jonas as the congressman from the district. Fact is, that goal might be attained without a primary. Jonas has not said he will run again and it will not be known until after the district Republican convention on Saturday of next week who the Republicans will nominate for Congress in the eighth district.

More Information On Gary Powers Is Due

Officials as well as the public are anxiously awaiting the full story of what happened to U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers from the time his plane went down in the Soviet Union until his sudden return to the United States a few days ago.

The public's desire for information concerning Powers has been increased by the action of security officials who have placed a tight curtain around Powers, and have offered no explanation of their action. In addition they have released none of the information which they have received from Powers concerning his flight and capture by the Soviets.

Most citizens and officials recognize the need for a certain amount of security in Powers' case in that he was involved in one of the top secret operations of the nation. To completely remove security precautions in such a case could have serious repercussions. At the same time the present policy of allowing no information from Powers, either directly or through security personnel, to be made public is, it seems to us, going to the other extreme.

The American people are entitled to more information than they have received on the Powers incident. The longer security officials delay in providing additional information, the greater the number of questions in the mind of the public, the greater the confusion over the incident itself and the unusual security measures which have hidden Powers since his return to the United States.

It should not be necessary for a congressional committee to launch a full-blown investigation of the incident in order to obtain adequate information. The information should be given to other officials and the public by security officers just as rapidly as it is obtained and evaluated.

Fine Sedatives For Optimistic

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time and the Red Chinese are fine sedatives for anyone getting optimistic about next month's disarmament conference which Premier Khrushchev wanted to turn into a summit conference.

Disarmament meetings in one form or another — whether it was just two or three big nations talking or many more — have been going on almost since the end of World War II without agreement.

This history alone should be a restraining influence on expectations which start March 14 in Geneva will turn out differently.

If it should, the time element involved in bringing about any kind of general disarmament is immense.

The problem much more immediate than general disarmament is getting agreement to ban nuclear tests. If this kind of agreement were achieved at Geneva it could be put into operation faster than general disarmament.

But it isn't clear that the Russians will even agree to discuss a nuclear ban at the Geneva disarmament discussions. The United Nations, which approved the conference, left the nuclear test ban question vague.

The West now and in the past has insisted on an inspection system — which means, for instance, that the United States and Russia would place inspectors in each other's country — to prevent cheating.

The Russians, balking at this in the past, have called it a spy system.

Granted, however, that East and West finally agreed on it, general disarmament would not happen all at once. It would be phased out by stages, as the experts say, meaning it would be carried out a step at a time.

The obvious purpose would be to give the participating nations time to be sure the first stage was being carried out honestly before they went on to dismantle some more of their armaments in the second stage.

So general disarmament, even with agreement to be spread out over some years.

Under the Soviet dictatorship, Premier Khrushchev, once he said "yes," could pretty well make his agreement an order.

In this country Congress would certainly have to consider any agreement President Kennedy made, or wanted to make. The congressional hassle over a step as monumental as disarmament can be imagined.

Yet, even if all the agreements were made and the United States and Russia felt confident each other would ful-

Back Issues Requested

Robert Starling, history teacher at Rose High School, had a request for assistance. There is a need for copies of "American Heritage" to be used by history students at Rose High.

He urged persons who subscribe to this unusual hard cover magazine to contribute back issues to the history department.

Your columnist, hopefully trying to be helpful, offered to contribute a whole stack of "Playboy" back copies to the Rose High History Department.

Starling sternly turned down this offer. Only "American Heritage" issues are wanted, he said.

A radio controlled switch operates the pump on Greenville Utilities' new well located on Greenville Blvd. near the 14th intersection. The well was recently drilled on the property and a pump was installed. The well pumps directly into the system and water then backs up into elevated tanks.

Plans are to install an elevated tank on the well site, but a control for the pump was needed.

Director Leonard Bloxam had planned to string a control cable from the power plant to the pump. Then, after observing such a system in operation at Washington, N. C., he decided to use the radio control. Since the Utilities already has two-way radio equipment, only a receiver at the pump and special tone equipment was needed.

Bloxam demonstrated this recently. He called the plant by radio from his office and asked them to switch on the pump. A steady tone was heard over the radio for a few seconds, then a click.

"That was it," he declared. The special tone activated a switch which set the electric pump in operation. The operator at the plant would have no way of knowing immediately if the signal did not start the pump, but he would know within a few minutes, Bloxam said.

Cables from the elevated water tanks show the levels of each in the plant operating room. As the pump runs and sends water into the system, the water in the tanks begins to rise in a very short time.

Bloxam said the control cable for the pump would have cost around $5,000, while the radio tone system cost a little more than $800.

When an elevated tank is constructed on the property a transmitting system will be placed with the receiver. This will send back the water level of the tank by radio.

Other Editors Saying Our Way Is Superior

(Rocky Mount Telegram)
North Carolina's Sen. B. Everett Jordan has pinpointed one of the basic reasons for Western superiority over the Communist system. That reason is agricultural abundance. Why an abundance of farm production under the free system, while the Marxist doctrines prove ever embarrassing to the very ones who shout Marxist superiority?

While we are concerned about keeping supply in line with demand, the vast populations of Russia, the Chinese mainland and other Communist areas are concerned about the starvation, deficient diets and insufficient clothing. Without these basic needs provided, how can any political system expect long-range success with the masses?

While abundance is a sign of agricultural strength some adjustments must be made. Sen. Jordan points out, in connection with getting total production at manageable levels and keeping it there. He suggests more policies along the lines of the tobacco program, which couples production curbs with price supports.

The U. S. has tremendous grain surpluses. Grain producers in general are of the opinion that the time has come when they must adjust production levels if they expect to get desirable prices. Happily, our problem of production is one of surplus; the problem of the Red areas is lack of any kind of production. This means hungry people, and hunger means political unrest and ultimate instability of government.

Why have the Communists failed miserably to provide the basic economic needs of the masses? Famine has always been nearby in China to serve as a reminder to the Chinese people that hunger is possible. But only since the Reds took over has famine become a way of life in China. Thousands die monthly, and the entire economic system is crumbling. Why? Because the Marxist system has taken from the individual his independence and pride in providing his own living.

Today the individual is merely a cog, working for the state, and because of this there is no initiative, no incentive, no drive. The Chinese peasant is the world's most diligent worker, but he is not an animal and it is even harder to drive him than the Russian peasant who prove stubborn enough.

It is difficult to understand the success of the Communist ideology. In country after country, they have exploited existing hunger, poverty, joblessness to take over government controls. Yet, they seldom fill the needs that were the reason for their success in the first place. Why, then, do the people continue to submit? Perhaps one day we'll have the answer. In the meantime, we can show the world how it is with the West — and how it is not with the East.

"Unless juries quit winking at obvious traffic violations tried before them, there can be no adequate traffic law enforcement for long here or anywhere." —Durham Herald.

What a sad commentary on the only animal equipped with both a reasoning mind and a prehensile thumb." — Chapel Hill Weekly.

"Most timely now is the need for United States self-reliance—in the imposing of tough economic sanctions, backed by our military might if necessary — against the spread of communism in the Western World." —The Spokesman-Review, Spokane, Washington.

"The true foundation of the brotherhood of man is belief in the knowledge that God is the Father of mankind. For us, therefore, brotherhood is not only a generous impulse but also a divine command." —Harry S. Truman.

Uneconomical Type Of Bidding

By ELMER ROESSNER
One of the big economic wastes in the United States today is caused by states and communities bidding against one another for each other's plants and factories.

Most states and many communities — and Puerto Rico — are trying to kidnap one another's plants and payrolls. They lure them with low rents, construction or construction loans, cheap local labor and other benefits.

To be sure, the kidnapers spray themselves with some sort of bathroom deodorant. They never, never never admit they are trying to lure a plant from a highly industrial high-way region, such as the Boston area, to an agricultural, low-wage region in the hook-worm states.

What they want, they say, are new plants. Let Boston, New York or whatever keep what they have. But if companies there want to expand by starting a new plant, then the plant is up for grabs. And they grab with tax exemptions, financing, low rent and a working class disinterested in unions. NO MATTER HOW THIN—

Of course, the wooing Romeo states and the beloved Juliet plants know that all those pro-plantations are boloney. True, from time to time, a state or locality may land a brand new industry that was floating around looking for a tax haven.

But in many, many instances, the companies they interest are firms that are simply looking for a softer spot. They announce they are starting a second plant to take care of regional orders and, after it gets going, they quietly close the old factory.

One of the most popular temptations to companies is tax concessions. Many states permit communities to exempt new plants from property taxes for a number of years. The communities figure that a new payroll is worth more than additional taxes. Meanwhile, the company enjoys police and fire protection, water, sewers, highways and other services without paying for them. LOW RENT — AND A PROFIT ON IT

Another tempting bit of bait is the offer of a plant for nominal rent. Because the community owns the plant, there are no taxes on it. Plants are often financed by the issuance of tax-free bonds.

Business Week recently pointed out a manufacturer can actually make money on such a deal. It said:

"Here's how it would work out: Say a plant cost $500,000. A manufacturer's annual rental payments would be $32,000 to pay off the bonds; but if he deducts the rent as a business expense, it will cost him only $15,360. If he buys the bonds himself and say, they pay 4% interest, he has a $23,750 income the first year and it's exempt from Federal income tax. Subtract the rent from that and he has a profit of $8,390. This without hiring a single person or turning out a widget!"

The economic wastes in a plant move are many. Older

Nothing In U.S. Like It

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

For an American to understand what is going on inside the Soviet Union, he must first adjust his mind to the Party. Nothing like it exists in our country. President Kennedy has in his Cabinet some Republicans and some who are unrelated to parties. This is impossible in any state within the Soviet Union. To belong at all, to hold any position, to function in any manner, it is essential to be a member of the Party.

Party membership does not involve mere belonging; it is a total acceptance of the Party line of the moment. It means the devotion of all the hours of one's life to the Party. There can be no deviation even of the minutest nature. In the time of Lenin and Stalin such deviation was punished by death. During Khrushchev's management of the Party, he has substituted exile for death.

Khrushchev's Party line is based upon the general principle of competitive co-existence with capitalist countries. Such co-existence means that ultimately the Soviet Union will absorb all nations in the world without exception. This will be accomplished without war, and even with a reduction of Communist penetration. Khrushchev assumes that Marxist economics and sociology are so superior to capitalism that there can be no resistance to this movement.

The present struggle within the Communist Party is perhaps the most serious that has ever taken place. Actually, from the point of Marxist-Leninist standpoint, what Khrushchev proposes is nationalistic Communism. Under Khrushchev's system Russia could become the richest and most powerful nation in the world, but it would not be a Marxist nation.

The idea of the dictatorship of the proletariat would be abandoned, and in its place would appear a managed society utilizing capitalist techniques. Whereas such a system might raise the standard of living of the Russian people, or of the people of any state, beyond the conception of man at the present time, it would nevertheless be a total rejection of Marxism and therefore must be rejected. The struggle between Khrushchev and Mao Tse-tung is on the issue; the struggle between Khrushchev and the remaining Stalinists is on this issue. For anyone to compromise would mean an abandonment of the Revolution.

We enter here upon a concept of the Party which is strictly ecclesiastical. Those who accept the Marxist-Leninist-Stalinist line regard the success of the Revolution as more important than the welfare of the people. They believe that when the Revolution has succeeded throughout the world all the benefits to man now existing in a capitalist state would automatically accrue to the people. They would use any method to achieve their end including war and regard Khrushchev's abandonment of war as a betrayal of the Revolution.

We must understand this conflict if we are not to be confused by current events in Russia. Any idea of liberalism in Russia is absurd. Neither side has a liberal program, by which I mean a program which recognizes the rights of man. The word "liberalism" is used incorrectly by those who think in Western terminology. Both sides adhere to the basic principle of the state must determine the nature and beliefs of man, but the difference is over the techniques by which the Revolution is to succeed.

From an American standpoint the defeat at this moment of Khrushchev would mean the success of Mao Tse-tung, Molotov and Suzlov. It would mean the success of the 'Albanians.' This could mean immediate war. This puts the Government of the United States in a very precarious situation. It has no techniques for supporting Khrushchev; at the same time it must recognize the enormous peril in the 'Albanians.' Mao Tse-tung wants war. From very logical standpoint it is sound for him to have provided that Russia

Another General Invited To Speak

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee today invited another member of the joint chiefs of staff to tell whether he thinks censors have "muzzled" his efforts to speak out against communism.

The special investigating subcommittee headed by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., summoned Gen. George H. Decker, Army chief of staff, to testify as it resumes its inquiry into allegations that the Defense and State departments have toned down or eliminated anti-communist statements in speeches of military officers.

The inquiry has been in recess since President Kennedy invoked the doctrine of executive privilege last Thursday in forbidding State or Defense Department employees to tell the Senators which censors had handled which speeches. Kennedy supported Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's view that the censors should not be held responsible for carrying out orders of their superiors.

Decker is the last of the joint chiefs scheduled to be heard. Thus far none of the witnesses has testified he felt he had been muzzled, although some witnesses criticized the censoring.

Already in evidence are transcripts of speeches showing that censors altered at least five of Decker's speeches in 1961.

In one, a caustic remark about those who would "rather be Red than dead" was cut out. In another a statement that "The aggressive designs of the Soviet Union became all too clear" after World War II, was changed to read "aggressive designs of the communists."

The administration says the censoring, or reviewing, is necessary to keep speeches by military officers in line with national policy.

Changes by Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., that the censoring has muzzled those who would denounce communism led to the investigation.

Caudle Quizzed In Probe

BALTIMORE (AP)—T. Lamar Caudle, head of the Tax Division of the Justice Department during the Truman administration, underwent two hours of questioning Tuesday before a federal grand jury probing land deals and savings and loan scandals.

Caudle, from Wadesboro, N.C., has acknowledged he was associated last year with ex-convict J. Kenneth Edlin in connection with two Maryland savings and loan associations, First Colony of Prince Frederick and First Continental land-developing projects in southern Maryland and Virginia.

Officials denied any connection between the federal panel's two probes.

After leaving the jury room, however, Caudle said he had acted as "consultant" for two of Chevy Chase.

His services, Caudle said, were performed on behalf of the two savings and loan firms he cited earlier.

His testimony and that of a dozen other witnesses involved land tracts — dubbed Linda City and Leisure City — in the suburbs of Washington. The panel is trying to determine who received the $6 million developer Francis J. Fineran said was paid for them.

IN MEMORIAM
LOUIS E. SCHEPERS, JR.

It is with profound sorrow that the officials of the Greenville Utilities Commission record the untimely passing of Louis E. Schepers, Jr. on January 21, 1962, who on June 1st, 1961 assumed the position of City Manager of the City of Greenville, N. C. and thereby, automatically, became a member of the Utilities Commission.

His dual responsibility placed him in position as liaison between the City Council and the Utilities Board and as such he expressed a keen discernment of his responsibilities in continuing the close coordination of the City and Utilities functions.

We have lost a faithful associate and friend, the Community has lost a loyal citizen and with a profound sense of loss is mingled deep sympathy for the members of his family.

Adopted by the Board of Commissioners of the Greenville Utilities Commission this the 13th day of February, 1962.

does the fighting. Red China would come out of such a situation as the principal Communist state unless there were a total defeat. The successor group to Khrushchev would be dependent upon Mao Tse-tung. Mao's greatest risk is the loss of Chinese population, of whom, if he lost 300,000,000 his country would be economically sounder and could be managed more efficiently.

This is a horrible picture that I paint, but I am convinced that it is the picture that we face today and that we may have to meet by war.

ly carry out the bargain, there would still be a frightening element missing. That is Red China.

It is not among the 18 nations which the United Nations decided should take part in the conference. All 18 are U. N. members and Red China is not. The conference will start without China, the world's biggest nation.

The Red Chinese, so far as is known, do not yet have nuclear power and so do not have nuclear weapons. But they're working on it and in time should have their own arsenal.

Any 18-nation agreement on disarmament would be ludicrous without agreement by Red China.

If the 18 should make real progress toward agreement, Red China probably would be called in. But the answer to whether Red China would agree is something the Western statesmen must look for in a crystal ball at this moment.

It's possible Red China—not recognized as a legitimate government by the United States and not a member of the so-called family of nations because it is kept out of the United Nations by this country—might want to agree for prestige and to have a voice in the United Nations.

But that's sheer guessing. If relations between Red China and Russia are as bad as sometimes reported, the Chinese Communists might want no part of a disarmament deal with the Soviets.

short, this disarmament conference will start its March meeting in a hazy way with no more reason to expect it to be successful than any of its predecessors except that mankind is getting more fearful of war every day.

Three members of Greenville Scout Troop 191 have received their Eagle Scout badges.

Two 15-year-olds, Cornelius Williams Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Williams, and Larry Joyner, son of Mrs. Mary C. Joyner, and 17-year-old Howard Lee Joyner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Joyner, were presented their Eagle badges at a Sunday ceremony at Mt. Calvary Free Will Baptist Church.

More than 500 persons, a capacity audience, attended the ceremony, a part of the Pitt County Division's observance of Scout Sunday during Boy Scout Week.

Frank Steinbeck of Greenville, East Carolina Council representative, presented the awards to the three Eagle scouts.

Clarence Bradley, division commissioner, presented second-class badges and Pitt District scout executive Rudolph Alexander presented first-class badges, merit badges and two Star scout insignias.

The program's Court of Honor arranged and prepared by Troop 191 under the leadership of Scoutmaster Willie Joyner, followed a chicken dinner furnished by the church for the entire Pitt Division.

Aura Of Harmony Hanging Over Start Of Steel Talk

By NORMAN WALKER
PITTSBURGH (AP)—An unprecedented era of harmony hung over opening steel labor contract negotiations today with both the industry and union bent on achieving the quick settlement asked by President Kennedy.

Selection of Valentine's Day for the bargaining start was described as strictly coincidental.

But it fit in with the sweetness-and-light approach the negotiators seem to have adopted in place of their knock-down battling stance in prior years.

Today's initial talks were expected to be mainly exploratory, clearing the way for private meetings between President David J. McDonald of the United Steelworkers Union and R. Conrad Cooper, chief negotiator for U.S. Steel Corp. and the industry.

With the bargaining getting under way 4½ months ahead of the June 30 expiration of the current contract, nobody has formally stated a target date for a new agreement, but it is generally believed to be in early March.

Kennedy has said the "earlier the better" will suit him for a new steel contract—thereby avoiding the threat of a midyear strike, disruptive effects of a steel inventory buildup and a consequent economic slowdown later on.

The talks today brought union bargaining teams into separate sessions with representatives of the 11 major steel companies.

McDonald was expected to look in on the U.S. Steel meeting, where Cooper also may show up, but the two key figures put off until at least Thursday a start of a huddle on their own.

As in the past, it was expected that McDonald and Cooper and their aides will eventually hammer out the new agreement terms privately when the spadeswork has been done in larger meetings.

In Washington, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges predicted an early, non-inflationary settlement—one that won't require "much of an increase, if any" in steel prices.

Close observers said the union could adhere to administration counseling to confine labor gains to increases in productivity and still come out with a handsome settlement in the neighborhood of 10 to 12 cents an hour. Workers presently earn between $2.28½ and $4.33½ an hour.

The union has set job and income security as the major goal for its 430,000 members involved in basic steel negotiations as well as its 500,000 members in other industries. It says it wants a wage boost, too, but there are no specific asking figures.

Future Architects Study City Project

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Last September, fifth-year architectural students at Clemson College began designing a new, more alluring frock for a Southern city named Florence.

Eighteen students in the five-year course devoted the first semester to a downtown redevelopment project, encouraged by the 24,000 people of Florence, and endorsed by the Greater Florence Chamber of Commerce.

Last week, the architects-of-tomorrow sat down with the city's fathers, broke bread, rubbed elbows, chatted about the geographic advantage the Pee Dee city enjoys, and suggested what might be done, both physically and functionally, to improve the city.

The students surmised that every town must have a heart, but after exhaustive research on traffic, land use Economics and growth possibilities, discovered that Florence had no real symbolic monuments—either historically or visually.

What they found, instead, was a confining railroad, running north and east across the central district. Even to architects this obstacle took on the form of a Chinese Wall.

Maurice Ferrault, director of education for the American Institute of Architects, admitted that "to develop a central business district scheme for a town without historic focal points would pose a problem for a professional." On hand from Washington last month to evaluate completed designs, Ferrault said: "I thought their efforts to be commendable."

The Clemson team, captained by Kenneth L. Pace of Sumter, recommended a central mall with a transportation center on one side, a new office building complex on the other.

The mall would retain existing structures and utilize new roofed-over galleries. This would provide unity and accommodation for first-floor spaces; new usefulness for second stories which are not rentable. A transportation center would combine new facilities for helicopter, rail and bus.

The double-gallery approach, judges of the project said, would be visually exciting, give Florence a unique charm without unreasonable expense. New building units, it was believed, could slide in to replace old ones without disruption.

Other proposed "hearts" for Florence: A continuous one-story canopied pedestrian mall; a medical arts center, with nursing home, teaching unit, offices for practitioners—around existing McLeod Infirmary; a double automobile loop to include a parking garage-hotel-apartment center, a new City Hall and a museum.

In the Florence of tomorrow, as in most urban renewal plans of today, the pedestrian would be king—and a pampered one, at that. He'd have a roof over his head most of the time, and be protected from rain and sun. If he couldn't flag a cab, he could take the next helicopter that happened along. The wife could be dropped off and picked up on a downtown shopping binge without being fanned by a fume-spraying semi-trailer or honked at by a speeding bicycle.

The Florence Daily News editorialized that the exploratory and preliminary work of the Clemson proposals will "focus attention upon an area of need which has greater urgency than officially recognized."

No other city in South Carolina has so much cause for interest in a growth and renewal program, said the News. Among all cities in the Southeast, it said, none is more fortunately located geographically, nor has shown more vigorous growth patterns in recent years.

The Clemson plan this year had the professional counsel of internationally-known Carl Feiss, urban renewal consultant for major U.S. cities and on-campus critic in the Clemson School of Architecture. For the students, it was the mule-loaded challenge of an accredited five-year curriculum in design.

In previous years master plans have been projected for Columbia, Pendleton, Greenville, and Anderson. In all cases, Clemson's young visionaries merely put their fresh, futuristic ideas face up on the civic banquet table.

Spain's coal production is more than 15 million tons annually.

CHAPTER 27

As the plane approached Nassau on their way back, James Bond asked Felix Leiter to take a look at the Disco lying off Palmyra.

She was there all right, just where she had been the day before. The only difference, which had little meaning, was that she had only her bow anchor out. There was no movement on board.

Bond was thinking that she looked beautiful and quite harmless lying there reflecting her elegant lines in the mirror of the sea when Leiter said excitedly, "Say, James, take a look at the beach place. The bathhouse alongside the creek. See those double tracks leading up out of the water? Up to the door of the bathhouse. They look odd to me. They're deep. What could have made them?"

Bond focused his glasses. The tracks ran parallel. Something, something heavy, had been hauled between the bathhouse and the sea. But it couldn't be, surely it couldn't! He said tensely, "Let's get away quick, Felix."

Then as they zoomed off over-land? "I'm damned if I can think of anything that could have made those. And dammit, if it was what it might have been, they'd have swept off those tracks pretty quick."

Leiter said laconically, "People make mistakes. We'll have to give that place the going-over. Ought to have done it before. Nice-looking dump. I think I'll take Mr. Largo up on his invitation and get out there on behalf of my esteemed client, Mr. Rockefeller Bond."

It was one o'clock by the time they got back to Windsor Field. The Governor's A. D. C., who had been waiting for them, handed Bond a thick envelope which contained signals for both of them.

The contents began with the demand for further news ("That they'll get!" commented Leiter as they raced toward Nassau in the comfortable back of the Governor's Humber Ship sedan.)

E. T. A. for the Manta was five o'clock that evening.

Inquiries through Interpol and the Italian police confirmed that Giuseppe Petacchi was in fact the brother of Domino Vitali, whose personal history as given to Bond stood up in all other respects.

The same sources confirmed that Emilio Largo was a big-time adventurer and suspected crook though technically his dossier was clean. The source of wealth was unknown but did not stem from funds held in Italy.

The Disco had been paid for in Swiss francs. The constructors confirmed the existence of the underwater compartment. It contained an electric hoist and provision for launching small underwater craft and releasing skin divers.

Further inquiry into the "shareholders" had yielded no further facts — with significant exception that most of their backgrounds and professions dated back no further than six years. This suggested the possibility that their identities might be of recent fabrication and, at any rate in theory, this would equate with possible membership of SPECTRE, if such a body did in fact exist.

Kotze had left Switzerland for an unknown destination four weeks previously. Latest photographs of the man were on the midday Pan American plane. Nevertheless the Thunderball war room had to accept the solidity of Largo's cover unless further evidence came to hand, and the present intention was to continue the world-wide search while allotting priority to the Bahamas area.

In view of this priority, and the extremely urgent time factor, Brigadier Fairchild, British Military Attaché in Washington, with Rear Admiral Carlson, U. S. N. Ret., until recently Secretary to the U. S. Chiefs of Staff Committee, would be arriving at 1900 E. S. T. by the President's plane, to take joint command of further operations.

The full cooperation of Messrs. Bond and Leiter was requested and, until the arrival of above-named officers, full reports were to be radioed to London, copy to Washington, under joint signature.

Leiter and Bond looked at each other in silence. Finally, Leiter said, "James, I propose we disregard the last bit and take formal note of the remainder. We've already missed four hours and I don't propose we spend the rest of the day sweating it out in our radio room. There's just too much to do. Tell you what, I'll do the stint of telling them the latest and then I'll say we're going off the air in view of the new emergency."

"I then propose to go and look over Palmyra on your behalf, sticking to our cover story. And I propose to have a damned good look at the bathhouse and see what those tracks mean. Right? Then, at five, we'll rendezvous with the Manta and prepare to intercept the Disco, if and when she sails.

"As for the Big Brass in the President's Special, well they can just play pinocle in Government House until tomorrow morning. Tonight's the night and we just can't waste it on the 'After you Alphonse' routine. Okay?"

Bond reflected. They were coming into the outskirts of Nassau, through the shanty-town slums tucked away behind the millionaire facade along the waterfront. He had disobeyed many orders in his life, but this was to disobey the Prime Minister of England and the President of the United States—a mighty left and right. But things were moving a damned sight too fast. M had given him this territory and right or wrong, M would back him up, as he always backed up his staff, even if meant M's own head.

Bond said, "I agree, Felix. With the Manta we can manage this on our own. The vital thing is to find out when those bombs go on board the Disco. I've got an idea for that. May work, may not. It means giving the Vitali girl a rough time, but I'll try and handle that side."

"Drop me at the hotel and I'll get cracking. Meet you here again around four-thirty. I'll call up Commissioner Harling and see if he's got anything new on the Disco and ask him to pass the word upstairs to you if anything's cooking. You've got all that straight about the plane? Okay. I'll hang on to Petacchi's identification disk for the time being. Be seeing you."

Bond almost ran through the lobby of the hotel. When he picked up his key at the reception desk they gave him a telephone message. He read it going up in the lift. It was from Domino Vitali: "Please telephone quickly."

In his room, Bond first ordered a club sandwich and then called the Police Commissioner. The Disco had moved to the oiling wharf at first light and had filled her tanks. Then she had moved back to her anchorage off Palmyra.

Half an hour ago, at one-thirty precisely, the seaplane had been lowered over the side and, with Largo and one other on board, had taken off eastward.

When the Commissioner had heard this on the walkie-talkie from his watchers he had got to the control tower at Windsor Field and had asked for the plane to be radar-tracked. But she had flown low, at about three hundred feet, and they had lost her among the islands about fifty miles to the southeast.

Nothing else had come up except that the harbor authorities had been alerted to expect an American submarine, the Manta, a nuclear-powered one, at around five in the evening. That was all. What did Bond know? Bond said carefully that it was

Tests For Peace Corps Duty Set On February 17

A new round of Peace Corps Placement Tests will be given at 8:30 a.m. February 17 in centers throughout the country.

In North Carolina, tests will be administered in the main post offices of Durham, Charlotte, Fayetteville, Goldsboro, Greensboro, Raleigh, Wilmington, Rocky Mount and Winston Salem; in the Federal Building at Asheville.

Those taking the tests will be considered for the many new projects scheduled to begin this spring and summer in Africa, Asia and Latin America.

Anyone interested in applying for these projects may do so by taking the tests and filling in a Peace Corps questionnaire.

Among the many fields providing opportunities for Peace Corps service are teaching, nursing, engineering, plumbing, carpentry, agriculture, medicine, home economics, architecture, city planning, geology, physical education.

While some of the projects call for technical skills, many others require men and women without such formal or specialized training. Among these are liberal arts graduates for community development projects and people with general farming backgrounds to serve as instructor-demonstrators in poultry and livestock care, irrigation, fertilization and horticulture.

"No one should automatically exclude himself from consideration because he considers himself either too highly skilled or not skilled enough," Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver said in announcing the tests. "We will match qualifications to the growing requests we are receiving from abroad."

The minimum age for applicants is 18; there is no maximum.

Standley retired and the work is continuing under Dr. Louis A. Williams who has received a new award of $29,500 from the National Science Foundation.

The collection of flora from Guatemala now is in its ninth volume published by the museum.

Dr. Williams lived a number of years in Central America as a botanist and subdirector of the Escuela Agricola Pan-Americana near Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

Robt. Kennedy Cheered By Indonesian Students

By PETER ARNETT
JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Robert F. Kennedy talked some more with President Sukarno about Dutch-held West New Guinea today after ducking a fried egg in the first incident of trouble on his visit to Indonesia. After his talk with Sukarno, the U.S. attorney general and his wife started on a three-day tour of Indonesian hinterlands, including the fabled island of Bali, in a Soviet-built Ilyushin transport plane. Kennedy was egged as he mounted the stage to address a student assembly at the University of Indonesia. The cold fried egg sailed out of the crowd. He ducked and the missile plopped behind him.

Three students grabbed the youthful thrower and hustled him out to police. Later a spokesman said the youth was not a student and had infiltrated into the hall. His identity was not announced. The brief incident was missed by most of the assemblage and did not appear to bother Kennedy. He displayed anger later, however, when students persisted with questions about what the United States would do if negotiations over West New Guinea were broken off. "What the United States does if negotiations break down depends on who breaks negotiations," he told the 1,200 students. "We will make a major effort to bring you and Holland together. We all have disagreements and sometimes we disagree with you and you with us. But that doesn't mean to say you can tell the United States to go to hell."

Believes Rebels Involved In Plot

GUATEMALA (AP) — President Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes says he considers rebels who struck Guatemala's Atlantic banana coast last week are taking part in a Communist plot against his government. The rebels deny it.

In leaflets calling on the armed forces and citizens to revolt, the band accused Ydigoras' government of "corruption, graft and gangsterism." The leaflets said the band has no connection with Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro and it just wants the establishment of a democratic regime. Ydigoras estimated in an interview the band numbered about 60. He said, however, he is more worried about the price of Guatemalan coffee, which has dropped from $80 to $22 per 100 pounds. "How can we get sufficient money to build our country when we suffer a loss like that?" he asked.

Guatemalan papers and radio are forbidden to print or broadcast anything about the rebel movement except government communiques.

A curfew is in effect nightly from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Ydigoras said the curfew is a precaution against terrorist shootings and bombings which flared earlier this month. Sporadic small arms fire continues to be heard at night. Troops patrol the streets.

A state of siege, a modified form of martial law, has been in effect since Jan. 24 when the chief of Guatemala's secret police, Raulo Gonzalez Ovalle, was assassinated by bullets fired from a speeding car.

Kinkajous Fooled By Zoo-Keeper

NEW YORK (AP) — A pair of kinkajous fooled by the Bronx Zoo into thinking day is night have, in turn, presened their keepers with an unexpected surprise. They produced a baby kinkajou.

The kinkajous, gentle little nocturnal animals from south of the border, don't normally breed in captivity. For the sake of visitors who wanted to see nocturnal animals awake, they were placed in a special animal house that has red lights on during the day. The animals, who can't see red, think night has arrived and go about their normal activities. At night, when the visitors have gone home, the zoo turns on bright white lights so the animals can sleep.

Zoo officials speculate that the arrangements mixed up the kinkajous so much they thought they were at home, and reproduced.

"We all have to show maturity. I don't ask your agreement on all we do—I ask your understanding. Let us not make it a one-way street. If we disagree, it doesn't mean we have to pick up our marbles and go home." In his speech Kennedy said the United States is sympathetic to nationalism and reminded the students "the American people fought for national independence in 1776 and have been its spearhead ever since." The students warmly applauded Kennedy and student leaders gave him a silver dinner gong. Foreign Minister Subandrio said Kennedy and Sukarno are seeking a speedy solution to the dispute brought about by Indonesia's claim to West New Guinea. He told newsmen the talks would resume Sunday when Kennedy returns to Jakarta.

Wave Of Textile Pay Hikes Begins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The chain of M. Lowenstein & Sons apparently joined the ranks Tuesday of textile companies giving blanket wage increases, and Burlington Industries, biggest textile firm of all, said it has the matter under study.

Burlington's Martel plant at Valley Falls, S.C., announced an "upward revision of wages" in the plant, effective March 5.

J. C. Cowan Jr., vice chairman of the board for Burlington, said in a statement that "Our general policy continues to be that wage rates within each type of operation will be competitive and among the top rates for the particular industry and jobs involved."

"Burlington operates some 40 different divisions and the management of each is responsible for deciding on rates appropriate for that particular segment of the industry."

The Burlington chain has about 140 plants with more than 65,000 workers. Lowenstein plants at Gaffney, S.C. and Rockingham, N.C. announced pay raises Tuesday effective March 5, and it was understood the raises will apply to all of the chain's mills in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama.

The raise for 1,250 Lowenstein workers in Gaffney was announced as about 5 per cent. No amount was mentioned at Rockingham. Robert Vance, spokesman for Lydia and Clinton, S.C. Cotton Mills, said there will be a pay raise Feb. 24, but that the amount will not be released for publication.

Employees of Woodside Mills, with plants in Greenville, Anderson, Pickens and Oconee counties in South Carolina, also will get wage increases March 5, amounts unannounced.

Dover Mills, which has about 2,000 workers at five plants in Cleveland and Gaston counties in North Carolina, was first to announce wage increases last week of about 5 per cent. Springs Cotton Mills of Lancaster, S.C. followed suit Monday and Cannon Mills in North Carolina is expected to raise pay also.

CLASS ATTENTION! To show steel's production and end use, Arthur d'Arzian had this skeleton school room set built in the Jones & Laughlin plant, Alliquippa, Pa. The picture could only be taken when the hot metal was ready to be poured . . . at 3 a.m. With safety engineers standing by, there was only two minutes pouring time in which to work.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

An industrial photographer is a specialist who starts with a thorough knowledge of fundamental photo techniques and has, in addition:

—courage to tackle giant-size projects from unusual heights or depths;

—stamina to cope with heavy equipment and props;

—diplomatic ability to deal with and direct many people behind or in front of a camera, and —artistic imagination to visualize and produce results of dramatic interest.

There probably are others to whom this description would apply, but to me it's a thumbnail portrait of Arthur d'Arzian.

There are many evidences that these attributes have spelled success in the 16-year span of his specialty. His most recent one-man show, "Moods in Industry," was on view at the IBM Exhibition Gallery in New York City. Previously there had been a display in Rochester's George Eastman House and recognition by the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

D'Arzian has traveled around the world many times for American industrial firms. His work has been reproduced in photographic annuals and national magazines and has received numerous art directors' awards. And, as a leading expert in this field, d'Arzian is a member of the guiding faculty of the Famous Photographers School, Wilton, Conn.

"I've learned to use every trick in the gadget bag," he confided as we walked through the IBM gallery discussing the pictures on display. "That night shot of Pittsburgh took seven different exposures, with the camera rigidly on a tripod, of course. This kiln shot had colored lights inside, out of sight of the lens. I wanted to duplicate the color of the kiln as if it were in actual operation.

"For some shots, I put a copper screen in front of the lens to get the Star of Bethlehem effects. For other effects, I smear petroleum jelly over part of a plate glass held in front of the lens. For vivid lighting, I've used railroad flares or colored gelatin over the lights. It all depends on the effect I'm after to show the power, beauty or drama of industry."

D'Arzian is also a man to "move mountains," if necessary.

—to remove walls, erect steel settings or even to convince 68 firemen to show up on a Sunday morning along with their 12 shiny red fire engines.

"It's merely that I have a good reason for every request," he explained, "and everything I ask for will make for a better picture. When people are convinced, they'll go all out to help you.

"For instance, when I explained to a steel firm that the best vantage point for a certain picture was from one certain spot, they bulldozed the top off a high hill. That leveled off an area to safely accommodate a crew of models, a set and my camera. The final result proved my point."

"What about the 68 firemen and 12 fire engines?" I asked.

"I told you that people are reasonable and cooperative," he said. "It was a case of appealing to their local pride. These volunteer firemen were proud of their new engines. I convinced them I could take a good action picture which would be published nationally. All of them showed up on their day off and I kept my part of the bargain."

Sounds simple, doesn't it? I wonder if it was easy to maneuver an 8x10 camera to the top of a six-story building and direct all the men and engines into position—with men climbing fire ladders, smoke bombs going off, water shooting up—while figuring the correct exposure for a great color picture. It must have been, for d'Arzian did it.

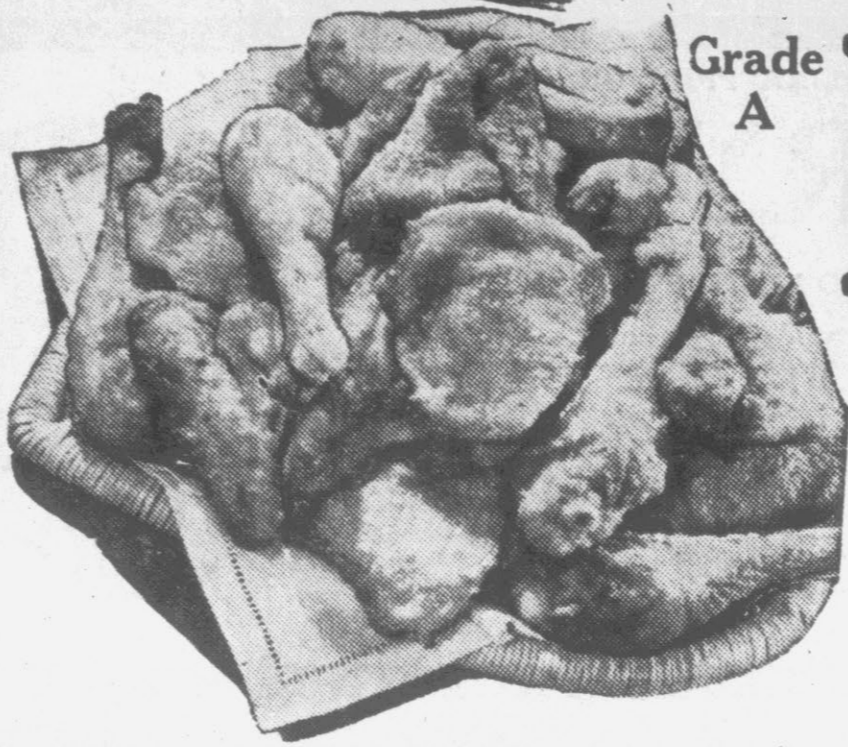

New Excuse Will Now Be Needed

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A campus bus system has been started at the sprawling University of Florida to help students make their classes on time.

Students complained that dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses were so far from classroom buildings it was impossible to get to class without being tardy. Student government leaders set up the new campus bus system to provide express service for the first three class changes each morning and the lunch break.

Sen. Dodd Drops Out Of Mar. 7 Conservative Rally

Teacher Credited With 5 Science Talent Winners

NEW YORK (AP)—Thomas G. Lawrence wrote poetry as a young man, but he gave it up when he joined the Erasmus Hall High School faculty in 1938.

"Whatever creativity I have comes out in the teaching," he says.

Erasmus Hall is not a special school. No entrance examination is required. It is a high school like thousands of others in the country, a neighborhood school attended by kids in Brooklyn.

Yet, Erasmus Hall recently became the first school in the 21-year history of the Westinghouse science talent search to produce five winners in one year. Erasmus students are regular award winners in the Science Fair, Future Scientists and other science competitions.

As noted in an article in today's New York Times, all of this shows the creative talent of Lawrence, who is chairman of the school's biology department.

As coordinator of talent searches for the school, Lawrence has sponsored 21 of the 23 students who have placed among the winners. Another 85 Erasmus students have placed with honors in the science talent search.

What makes a man a good teacher?

In Lawrence's case, he was fascinated by the natural sciences from his early childhood in Louisiana. With a $15 microscope bought for him by his father, he began his science career as a boy.

His curiosity hasn't abated. To this day, the window ledges of his school office are crowded with plants growing under experimental conditions.

Lawrence's knack with students, his associates agree, lies in his ability to infect them with his own curiosity. For eight years he has been conducting college-level courses in zoology at the high school. The hard, elective courses are so popular that students have to be turned away each term.

Despite his success with contests, Lawrence maintains he is more interested in helping bright students along in their intellectual growth than in having them win awards.

He shuns personal credit, praising instead the school's principal and his students.

For himself, he says only: "I have a particular interest in seeing pupils work on their own."

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., bowed out today from participation in the conservative Young Americans for Freedom anti-Communist rally scheduled for March 7 in New York.

At the same time it was disclosed that Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., was the prime mover in the organization's withdrawal of an invitation to resigned Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker to address a meeting billed as a "conservative rally for world liberation from communism."

Dodd, who had been designated to receive an award, wrote Donald B. Shaft, head of YAF, that he didn't want to be "the only publicly identifiable Democrat in a rather large group of Republicans" at the session.

Complaining that "at least one well-known political extremist had been invited to participate," Dodd went on to say: "I regard the anti-Communist cause as one which, if it is to succeed, must function as a bipartisan movement which is neither dominated nor identified with any political party or any political faction."

Dodd said he had expected to attend "a non-partisan meeting for the purpose of honoring a diverse group of Americans for contributions to freedom and anti-communism."

Instead, he said, "the meeting has come to represent in the minds of many a partisan gathering which seeks to claim some exclusive relationship with the anti-Communist movement."

As a Senate Foreign Relations Committee member, Dodd strongly supported President Dwight D. Eisenhower and condemned the United Nations for its military action to force Katanga back into the Congo.

Tshombe had been marked for a special award at the rally but has had trouble trying to get a visa for a visit to the United States.

Awards also had been arranged for former President Herbert Hoover and for Walker, Goldwater and Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., were listed among the speakers.

Goldwater, a member of the YAF advisory board, was reported to have notified the organization he could not appear on the same platform with Walker since the latter had announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor of Texas.

The Arizona senator was said to have contended that any such appearance would make it seem he was endorsing Walker's candidacy. The YAF was reported to have hinted to Walker he ought to withdraw. When the former general didn't, the YAF withdrew its invitation.

Goldwater also was keeping his distance from a new group of New York conservatives flexing their muscles for an attack on GOP Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Sen. Jacob K. Javits. Aides said he doesn't even know any of those forming under the leadership of Kierman O'Doherty, Manhattan lawyer, to oppose the governor and senator for renomination.

As chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, Goldwater is bound by the rules of the game not to interfere in state primaries.

Sen. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., a target for attacks from John Birch Society members, reported a poll in his state showed a conservative trend.

He said in a statement that a similar poll two years ago showed North Dakotans favored federal aid to education by a 3-2 margin.

"This poll indicates this thinking is completely reversed," he said. "While there is still strong sentiment for price supports among farmers, there is more criticism than previously."

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The fantastic mathematics of weight and size needed to reach the moon, a superquick memory for scientists, and a new approach to bring science to young school children are subjects for Science at Work.

THINKING AHEAD

The United States is aiming at getting a man to the moon. But take a look at what it will take to do the job.

A mammoth rocket, still being designed, called the Saturn C5, will land a man on the moon or carry a man around the moon, says Dr. Werner von Braun of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The Saturn C5 is a real space age giant, weighing as much as a naval destroyer. It will stand 350 feet tall, and be 33 feet in diameter. Its weight—about 3,000 tons—is about the same as 25 fully loaded Boeing 707 jetliners.

This 35-story, flying skyscraper will be able to put into orbit a capsule that weighs almost as much as one Boeing jetliner.

To carry three men to the moon and bring them back safely, Dr. von Braun says, will take a Nova rocket — almost three times as powerful as the Saturn C5.

THIN, FAST MEMORY

Scientists have made themselves a memory which can sort out a stowed bit of information in less than 100 billionths of a second.

Our brains and nerves operate at speeds considerably slower, but the brain still amazes computer scientists with the amount of information it can store within the confines of the skull.

The new electronic machinery is an experimental design of International Business Machines Corp. It actually records bits of data on a magnetized film laid down on a highly polished silver plate. The extremely fast speed will allow the memory to be used as a sort of a scratch pad or index memory for the more complex computers of the future.

IBM officials call it the fastest unit of its size to be demonstrated publicly. How fast is 100 billionths of a second—what scientists call 100 nanoseconds? Well, they explain, there are as many nanoseconds in a second as there are seconds in 30 years.

NOT FOR ADULTS ONLY

For your children—even in first grade and sometimes kindergarten, there is a beginning look at science. Teachers are finding high pupil interest in subjects that range from satellites to the weather.

One new encyclopedia has been designed for the youngest pupil. Each definition has an explanation in big type, simply worded, followed by a detailed, more difficult explanation in smaller type for the more advanced reader. Included too are simple experiments for the classroom.

Now being offered to schools and to libraries, the "Young People's Science Encyclopedia" (Children's Press)—may soon be offered to families too.

"Amber. Millions of years ago, evergreen trees gave off a sticky sap called resin. In time these trees fell or were blown down by wind and storm. They were buried in the mud or under water where the resin hardened into amber," is one definition.

In smaller type, the editors tell what amber looks like in its natural state, how insects were trapped in it to become fossils of life past, where amber is found, what it is used for and so forth.

With this sort of approach, the editors hope to reach the widest possible age range. They don't even rule out adults who want capsule definitions in simple language.

Friends Rally To A 'Hay Shower'

HOWARD, Colo. (AP) — Ever hear of a hay shower? Denzel Goodwin was burning weeds on his ranch when the flames spread out of control and destroyed 4,600 bales of hay, his entire winter's supply.

Later, while his wife was away and Goodwin was rounding up cattle in the hills, friends converged on the ranch with trucks, all loaded with hay. By the time Goodwin got home, 50 tons were stacked in his barn and storage sheds.

Admits Bloody, Fatal Beating

SPARTANBURG (AP) — A 65-year-old man was held today for investigation in the bloody fatal beating of his wife at their apartment here Tuesday.

Hugh Gary Thomas surrendered quietly after a neighbor called police, but on the way to jail tried to wrest revolvers from the officers' holsters.

The victim was the 68-year-old mother of City Councilman Shea West Thomas, mayor pro tem of Spartanburg. Police could not establish a motive.

C. H. Womick, a neighbor, told officers that Thomas said to him, "I've beat my wife and cut her all to hell."

While Womick was calling police, Thomas reportedly asked to borrow a rifle. Womick said that when he told Thomas he didn't have one, Thomas reportedly asked, "What would you do if I killed you?"

Womick said he pushed Thomas into a chair and kept him there until police arrived.

Officers found Mrs. Thomas' body lying on a blood-spattered sofa in the living room of the apartment, her face and head badly beaten and her throat slashed.

A metal paper weight bearing bloodstains and strands of hair similar in color to that of the victim was found lying on the floor. A television set was turned on in the room when they arrived, police said.

A 60 m.m. motor shell head was lying beneath the sofa. It, too, was covered by blood and matted hair, they added.

Broglio And Sherry Sign 1962 Contracts

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ Associated Press Sports Writer Pitchers Ernie Broglio and Larry Sherry, disappointments last year after excellent seasons in 1960, have signed their 1962 baseball contracts hopeful of regaining their effectiveness.

Broglio, 26, agreed to terms with the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday and took a substantial pay cut after getting more than $20,000 a year ago. The right-hander, beset by arm trouble, wound up with a 9-12 won-lost record and a 4.11 earned run average in 1961.

The previous season his 2.74 ERA was second best in the National League when he won 21 games while losing 9.

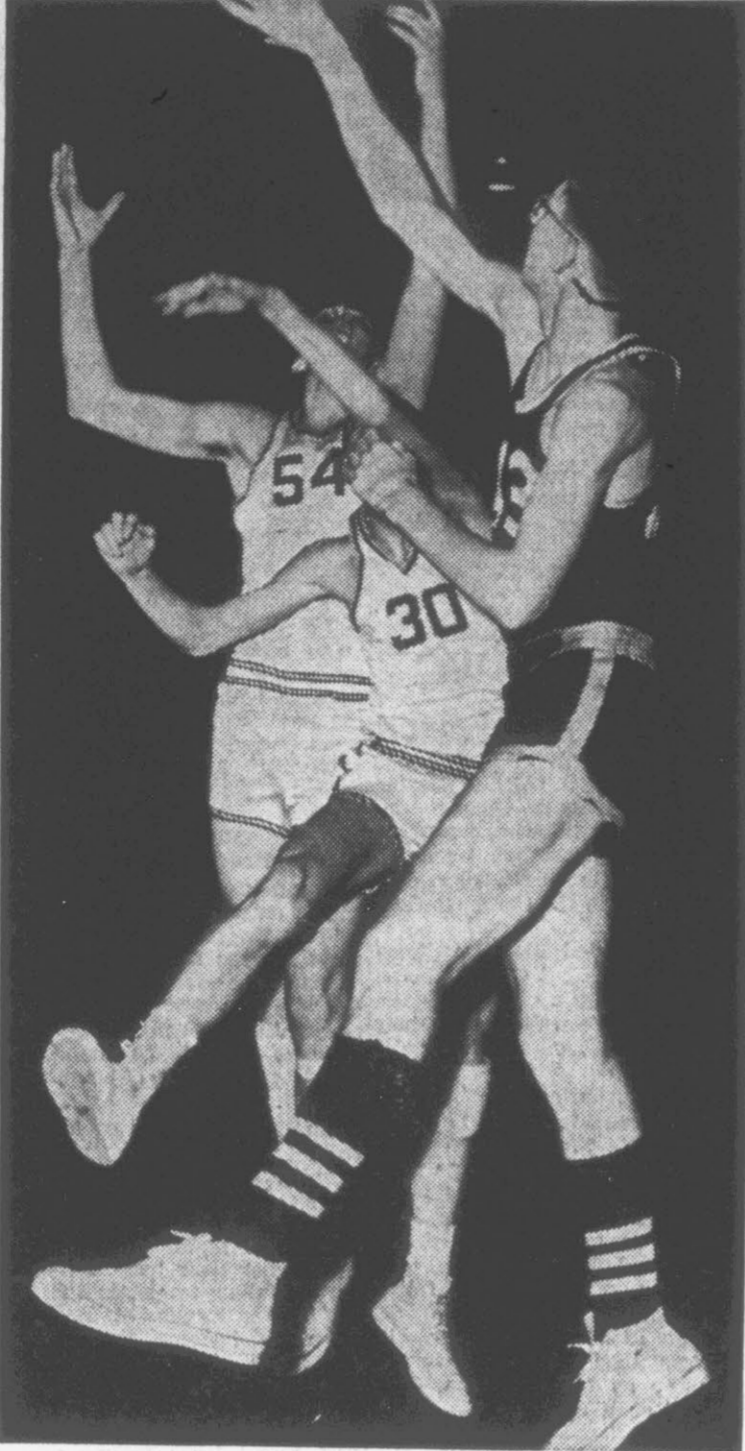

Sherry received a token boost in pay of about $1,000 and okayed his pact with the Los Angeles Dodgers, calling for a reported $25,000.

The relief specialist missed three weeks last season with a sprained ankle and compiled a 4-4 won-lost record, although being credited with 15 saves. In 1960 Sherry posted a 14-10 record while appearing in 57 games.

The signings' front was brisk Tuesday as the teams continued their tasks of getting the players signed before the advent of spring training. The Cards also corralled pitchers Bob Dilliba and Johnny Kucks to run their signees to 26. Second baseman Ken Aspromonte became the 33rd player in the Cleveland Indians' fold.

Only outfielder Bob Skinner and pitcher Larry Foss remained unsigned after pitcher Joe Gibbon came to terms with the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Pirates have 38 players under contract. The New York Mets completed the signing of their battery staff of 13 pitchers and 4 catchers when pitcher Bob Botz indicated he was satisfied with his pact.

Three rookies—shortstop Tom Tresh, second baseman Pedro Gonzales and outfielder Don Lock—agreed to terms with the New York Yankees. The Baltimore Orioles received signed contracts by

In the other two games the Robinson Union girls downed the Bethel Union girls 21-11 and the South Ayden girls defeated the Pitt County Training School girls 30-22.

In the only boys' game played, Bethel Union took the lead early in the first period and by the end of the first half they were out in front 43-20. Pitt County Training School was unable to narrow the margin during the second half.

The high scorer for Bethel Union was R. Stokes with 28 points. Others hitting in the double figures were S. Brown with 17 and L. Wynn with 12. Topping the scoring column for Pitt County Training School was J. Crys. He was the only player to hit doubles mark.

The Robinson Union girls and the Bethel Union girls were tied at the end of the first period, but Robinson went out in front in the second quarter and held a 9-6 halftime lead. The winners went on to increase their lead in the second half for the 21-11 victory.

Coach Bo Farley and the Greenville High School Phantom won their sixth conference game of the season last night, upsetting league-leading Roanoke Rapids 56-53.

The loss was the Yellow Jackets' second defeat of the current campaign. The Phantoms were led by Rodney Knowles, who was high scorer for the night with 22 points. Knowles, a sophomore center, grabbed 20 rebounds and played a tremendous defensive game as well as being the leading scorer. However, he was fouled out of the contest late in the last quarter.

The Yellow Jackets were led by Tommy Merritt, who tallied 15 points in the losing effort. Also in double figures for Roanoke Rapids were Graham Dean and Chris Felts who scored 14 points each.

Greenville Leads Early

Greenville went ahead six to four in the first quarter; however, the lead changed hands throughout the period. The score was tied 12 to 12 with one minute remaining in the first quarter. With two seconds left on the clock, Rodney Knowles hit the nets for two points, putting the Phantoms in the lead 14-13.

In the second period, Greenville went ahead 20-15 on three straight baskets by Knowles. However, Dean then hit the basket for six points to tie the game 21-21 with two minutes remaining in the half. The Phantoms managed to go ahead of the Yellow Jackets 29-26 as the buzzer sounded ending the first half.

Lead Increased

When the two teams returned to the court to start the second half, Greenville immediately increased their lead to 31-26. The Yellow Jackets, however, rallied to tie the game 37-37 with two minutes remaining in the third quarter. Felts scored two points to send the Yellow Jackets out in front for the first time of the second half.

The Roanoke Rapids advantage was quickly destroyed as Greenville substitute Robbie Powell scored on a long jump shot. The Phantoms moved ahead 43-40 at the end of the third quarter on a two-pointer by Kroghie Andresen.

The Greenville boys were able to maintain at least a three-point lead over the Yellow Jackets until the last five minutes of the game when Roanoke Rapids pulled within one point, 47-46. Powell once again sparked the Phantoms on another long jump shot, putting Greenville ahead 49-46. A few seconds later, Powell sank a free throw to give the Phantoms a six-point lead, 52-46. With one minute remaining in the contest, Rodney Knowles was forced out of the ball game on five personal fouls. However, once again Robbie Powell came through for the Phantoms, scoring two foul shots to seal the victory for Greenville 56-53.

Phant JV Wins

Earlier in the night, the Greenville Junior Varsity team defeated the Roanoke Rapids Junior Varsity by a score of 51-43. The Junior Phantoms were led by Chester Waldron and Tommy Smith who scored 19 and 17 points, respectively. Leading the Yellow Jackets was Bill Stanley with 17 points. Stanley was the only Yellow Jacket in double figures for Roanoke Rapids.

The Phantoms jumped to a 15-10 first quarter lead, but Roanoke Rapids narrowed the margin to one point at the end of the first half, 21-20. The Yellow Jackets were unable to keep pace with Greenville during the second half as the Phantoms went on to win the game 51-43.

Tar Heels Meet State Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Less than a month ago North Carolina State, its ranks decimated by graduation and its morale devastated by point-fixing scandals, took a 66-56 beating from Atlantic Coast Conference foe North Carolina.

It was State's third loss in five ACC games. The Wolfpack, identified with big time basketball for many years and holder of a winning record in 14 of the last 15 seasons, seemed headed for hard times.

Since that Jan. 17, however, State has won all five of its ACC games and pushed toward the top as a strong challenger for top seeding in the conference championship tournament March 1-3.

As an indication that this was no fluke, the Wolfpack during this string took its second straight from Duke, ACC leader which then was ranked fifth nationally. And State lost by one point, 82-81, to West Virginia, powerhouse of the Southern Conference.

That Jan. 17 game was a turning point of sorts for North Carolina, too. After the victory the Tar Heels held down first place in the ACC with a 5-1 record and was 6-2 for all games. Since then they have played three games, all in the conference, and have lost all three. They're now in fourth place in the ACC with a 5-4 mark behind State, which is in third place with a 7-3 record.

The two teams meet again tonight on State's home court, which also is the site for the conference tournament. The Wolfpack obviously is an improved team since the last meeting. UNC Coach Dean Smith says his boys are better, too.

UNC learned Tuesday that Belter Krause, a 6-5 junior, had played in all Tar Heel games this season. He'll try to bring up his averages with correspondence courses and summer school work.

The UNC-N.C. State game is the only one scheduled tonight. Duke is at Wake Forest to battle for the ACC leadership in Thursday's only game.

Duke, now seventh-ranked nationally, again took over undisputed possession of first place in the ACC by beating Maryland, 79-53.

High Point And EC Battle Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With Lenoir Rhyne unshakably set in first place in the Carolinas Conference, attention focuses now on the battle for second seeding in the championship basketball tournament at Lexington Feb. 21-24.

Two games are scheduled tonight. High Point at East Carolina and Appalachian at Western Carolina. Their outcome can affect second through fifth places, and there are a number of possible combinations.

Here's how things stand now: Lenoir Rhyne is first with a 13-4 record, Western Carolina second at 10-6, High Point third at 11-7 and East Carolina and Elon tied for fourth at 9-6.

If High Point and Appalachian win tonight, second through fifth places would run like this: High Point, Elon, WCC, ECC, if ECC and Appalachian win, it'll be ECC, Elon, WCC and High Point.

Suppose High Point and WCC win. Then it's WCC, High Point, Elon and ECC—same as now, except that the Pirates drop to fifth. If ECC and WCC win, they'll rank WCC, ECC, Elon and High Point. Put another way, Western Carolina must win to hold second place. High Point, too, can't lose and still hold third place. But the Panthers have one chance out of those four combinations of improving their standing.

Elon, idle tonight, can't do any worse than stay alone in fourth place and could move up to third. ECC can come up as far as second or slip to fifth.

Taken Aback By Tourney Rules

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Women entering the City Association's first annual bowling tournament were taken aback over a rule on proper attire.

Defining proper clothing the rule said: "nothing above the knee will be permitted." Tournament officials explained hastily that the rule referred to shorts. They must be at least knee length.

Basketball Tonight N. Carolina—N. C. State 8:00 WGTC 1500 EC

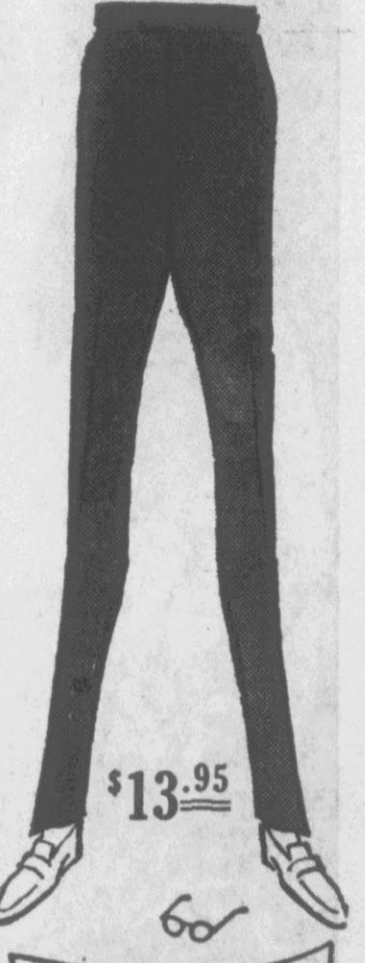

Tuesday night. The Blue Devils now are 9-2 in the league and Wake Forest is 8-2. South Carolina bowed to Furman of the Southern Conference, 67-59. Duke's victory on Maryland's home court was its first in five years. Two hot scoring streaks—19-1 in the first half and 14-2 in the second half—paved the way for the Blue Devils. Top Duke scorers were Jeff Mullins with 22 points and Art Heyman with 19. Maryland's were Ted Marshall and Paul Jelus with 12 each. The Terps cling to sixth place in the ACC with a 3-7 record. They are 8-12 overall. Duke is 16-3.

Winter Drills Running Smooth

WINTER DRILLS . . . Coach Clarence Stasavich looks on as Whitty Bass gets off a pass during practice Tuesday. Bass and Bill Cline (right) are two of the tailback possibilities for the '62 Pirate team.

East Carolina Football Coach Clarence Stasavich said today that the winter drills are running smoothly and he is "pleased with the attitude of the squad."

The new Pirate coach commented that the players seem to want to learn and that this is very encouraging. "The staff is also doing a fine job and are able to teach the single wing offense well," the coach noted.

So far the major portion of the practice sessions have been devoted to offense with some time spent on the kicking game. Stasavich said that the biggest problem is converting to the single wing and that the defense will be much the same as has been used in the past.

"I hope the players will know their assignments by Friday and then we will be able to spend more time on techniques and the execution of plays," the coach said.

The new head coach also added that he would not try to scrimmage until the boys have had at least 10 days of practice. "This is usually enough time to get in fairly good condition so they can take some harder knocks," Stasavich said.

"I am always concerned about the physical welfare of the players and I don't want anyone hurt," the coach noted.

At the present time the plans call for a good scrimmage session on Feb. 23 for about an hour. However, the coach noted that it would be a controlled session.

In the backfield, Stasavich is working Vince Duke, Bill Cline and Whitty Bass at tailback. Bass and Cline are freshmen and Duke handled the quarterback position some on the 1961 team. Last year's starting quarterback, Dan Rouse, has been moved to left end where his speed, size and receiving ability can best be used, according to Stasavich.

At blocking back, Stasavich has Pete Thorell and end Maurice Allen. Thorell was a halfback and Allen was listed at fullback, although he saw little action.

The fullbacks for the time being are Billy Strickland, Tom Michel, Bill Bailey and Frank Galloway. Bailey is a freshman and saw no action last fall.

Stasavich is working Larry Rudisill, Ricky Jarrell, Richard Jackson and Jerry Tolley at wingback. Rudisill and Jackson saw a lot of action at halfback last year.

CHICAGO (AP) — The breach between the NCAA and AAU doesn't appear to be closing although it is being filled up with meetings.

Official organization of federations in track and field and gymnastics will come at March 4-5 meetings in Chicago, Walt Myers, NCAA executive director, announced Tuesday.

A basketball federation already has been launched.

A prompt move forward for organizing federations in track and field and gymnastics was endorsed Tuesday by forces of the NCAA and the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations. The association is represented in every state except Texas.

The action, coming a day after a peace parley between leaders of the NCAA and AAU ended in failure, was interpreted as additional NCAA pressure in its battle over control of U.S. amateur athletics and for international recognition.

The AAU is recognized as the nation's international representative, setting policy and exercising jurisdiction. The NCAA feels the AAU has done a poor job and has initiated formation of federations.

GREENSBORO (AP) — Lenoir Rhyne and Western Carolina apparently have taken a stranglehold on the basketball team of offense and defense leaderships, respectively, in the Carolinas Conference.

Both solidified their positions the past week. And with the home stretch coming up, it will take tremendous performances by their nearest pursuers to overtake them.

Lenoir Rhyne leads on team offense with an average of 77 points per contest. That is 3.3 points better than the 73.7 average posted by Pfeiffer's second-place team, and 4.5 points higher than the 72.5 average compiled by Elon's third-place club.

On defense, Western Carolina has allowed the opposition an average of 61.7 points per tilt, 2.1 less than the 63.8 average given up by Lenoir Rhyne. Elon is third on a 64.6 average.

Coach George Myatt of the Detroit Tigers has a contract that extends through the 1963 campaign.

Physical Demands Great For Millionaire Jockey

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Big game hunter, trout fisherman, a fair golfer and a shrewd investor. That's John Longden today on his 55th birthday.

The hobbies of this millionaire jockey—the wealthiest rider of all time—don't set him apart from some other rich men.

But few persons will argue that the physical demands of Longden's calling are great for a man of his years.

Active is the word for Johnny. Even when he gets a day off.

A newsman trying to reach him for a pre-birthday interview was informed that Longden had driven up to the snow in the mountains.

"I took some hay to the deer at Crystal Lake," the nature-loving jockey explained later. "There isn't too much forage for them in winter."

Longden, with 5,578 winners to his credit, still rides almost daily. True, he averages 3 to 4 mounts instead of the 6 or 8 he used to ride. It's true, too, that he sleeps an extra hour in the morning.

"I'm up and out at 6 o'clock now," Longden said. "I spend an hour or so in the sweat box as I take off 1 to 3 pounds every riding day."

His winners have brought their owners $21 million. As the jockey, he gets 10 per cent.

Johnny, who rides these days at 114 pounds, eats a breakfast of eggs, dry toast and cereal. He skips lunch, then treats himself to steak or a roast at supper.

He's a regular at West Coast tracks. This doesn't give him much free time.

"I have to just take off when I want a rest or vacation," Johnny said. "In the fall I go to British Columbia for big game hunting and in the spring I go fishing at Crowley Lake in the high Sierra."

Longden unbends a bit when asked about his thoroughbred breeding farm about 45 miles from Arcadia. He believes Count Fleet was the greatest horse he ever rode, but has a growing fondness for the Alberta Ranches' Four - and - Twenty, trained by Johnny's 31-year-old son Vance.

"Count Fleet was the greatest," the jockey said, "but that Four-and-Twenty. If he keeps going like he's been going, I don't know. He might be greater."

Does Longden ever expect to retire?

"Gosh no," said Mr. Moneybags. "I'm not worried about that."

Kansas Manager Says '62 Team Is Stronger

By HANK BAUER

KANSAS CITY (AP) — I think our club is definitely stronger than last season. With a little luck we could contend for a berth in the first division.

Our biggest weakness last season was in our outfield. This year it can't help but be better with the addition of Gino Cimoli, whom we acquired in the minor league draft; Bill Lajoie, a recent acquisition from the Los Angeles Dodgers; and Manuel Jimenez, who we obtained from the Milwaukee Braves.

Cimoli is a proven big leaguer and is only 32 years old. In 1957, he hit .293 for the Dodgers and played in the All-Star game. Last year, Lajoie finished third in the American Association batting race with a .320 mark at Omaha. Jimenez hit .325 in the Pacific Coast League with 17 homers and 76 RBI.

Another spot that could show considerable improvement is the pitching staff. Norm Bass, Jim Archer, Bill Kunkel and Ed Radow should do much better with a year of major league experience under their belts. I look for Jerry Walker to regain the form he showed while at Baltimore when he became the youngest pitcher in big league history to win an All-Star game.

The strong point of our club is our infield with Norm Siebern at first base, Jerry Lumpe at second, Dick Houser at short and Wayne Causey at third.

We still need some help in the outfielder where the most glaring weakness is lack of a right-handed power hitter, and in pitching where we need a left-handed relief pitcher.

The Yankees are again the team to beat. Detroit was a good club, but the Tigers lack a good relief pitcher and bench strength.

Record Set For Free Throws

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ron Warner, Gettysburg's basketball star, may have set a national record for consecutive free throws made in one game but it still must be verified by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Warner made 22 out of 22 Tuesday night as his team lost 80-79 to St. Joseph's of Philadelphia in double overtime. Warner, a 5-10 senior from York, Pa., finished with 34 points.

York Lares, formerly of North Carolina and now with the Philadelphia Warriors, tied the national free throw record of 21 in a row during the 1959-60 season against Duke in the Dixie Classic. The 21 mark first was established in 1956-57 by Johnny Lee of Yale against Oregon State.

Misguided Pet Enjoys New Role

GARDINER, Maine (AP) — Mrs. Erland Jordan's misguided pet duck enjoys being a family man. He left the Jordan summer cottage recently to take his place with a mate and three ducklings he found on a neighboring lawn. He rarely leaves them, and then only to scare up food or chase away wild ducks.

One problem: His "family" is made of plastic and helps decorate the lawn.

VPI Favored Against W & M

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Virginia Tech's Gobblers are favored to whip Virginia Military Institute handily in tonight's only Southern Conference basketball game—and they may do the Keydets a favor in the process.

The clash will be played at Blacksburg, where the Gobblers now have won 34 in a row—eight of them this season.

A ticking now could result in the Keydets finishing sixth or seventh in the standings and thus knock them out of the same conference tournament bracket with regular season champion West Virginia.

The Gobblers will be seeking to tighten their grip on second place. Tech is 6-3, Furman is in third place at 6-4, VMI (6-6) is tied with Davidson (4-4) for fourth.

Furman whipped South Carolina of the Atlantic Coast Conference 67-59 in Tuesday night's only action for conference clubs. Jerry Smith poured in 29 points.

They could call the Southwest Conference the leapfrog league of college basketball.

The standings are scrambled with virtually every game, and heading into the final third of the conference schedule five of the eight clubs must be considered definite title contenders and still another a definite possibility.

Tuesday night, for instance, defending champion Texas Tech appeared a good bet to lengthen its Southwest lead in a home-court game against Southern Methodist—but instead got whacked by the Mustangs 63-63.

Texas A&M's Aggies trimmed Texas 54-48, Rice beat Arkansas 63-55, and Texas Christian clipped Baylor 80-66 in a meeting between the conference's two bottom clubs. The results left Tech, SMU and Texas A&M tied at the top with 6-3 records, Rice next at 5-4, Texas at 4-4, Arkansas 4-5, TCU 3-5, and Baylor 1-8.

SMU, loser at home to Tech earlier this season, led the Red Raiders by as many as 11 points, but for the most part it was a close one. Jan Loudermilk was high for the Mustangs with 19 points, while Mac Percival had 24 for Tech.

In another tight conference race, Duke's seventh-ranked Blue Devils (16-3) took back first place in the Atlantic Coast with a 79-53 runaway at Maryland. Duke now has a 9-2 conference mark to 8-2 for Wake Forest—with a meeting between the two coming up Thursday night at the Deacons' court.

Duke swamped Maryland with a pair of bursts, outscoring the Terps 19-1 during one streak in the first period and putting together a 14-2 string in the second. The Blue Devils' twin gunners led the attack, Jeff Mullins with 22 points and Art Heyman with 19.

Tom Wynne's two free throws with 25 seconds to go in the second overtime period enabled St. Joseph's (Pa.) to maintain its unbeaten record in the Middle Atlantic conference with an 80-79 victory over Gettysburg.

Bowling Green (17-2) pushed closer to the Mid-American Conference title by knocking off Kent State 82-70. Howie Komives scored 34 points for the 10th ranked Falcons, while Nate Thurmond controlled the backboards with 23 rebounds.

Connecticut continued its longstanding home-court domination over Massachusetts and tightened up the Yankee Conference, whipping the Redmen 72-56. Massachusetts, still without a victory at Connecticut since 1936, is first in the league at 6-2 with two games left, while Connecticut is 5-2 with three to go. The Huskies won it at the foul line with 28-for-33, getting 11 of 12 from Dom Perno and 10 of 11 from Len Carlson.

Ohio Valley leader Western Kentucky beat Middle Tennessee 87-81, and St. Mary's (Calif.), first in the West Coast Athletic Conference, downed Pacific 74-62.

In the upset department: Rhode Island stopped Providence 71-61, ending the Friars' winning streak at 10, and Marquette surprised Detroit 73-66.

Other scores: Marshall 7, Ohio Univ. 72; Furman 67, South Carolina 59; Bucknell 69, Penn State 68; Seton Hall 83, Long Island Univ. 56; Miami (Fla.) 86, Seton 78.

Pettigrew And Johnson Win

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Richard Pettigrew of Bethesda, Md., and James Johnson of Fort Campbell, Ky., top-ranking heavyweight Army and Navy fighters, won their semi-final matches Tuesday night in the Florida Amateur Athletic Union championships.

Pettigrew, a decision of Hank Wenz of the University of Florida, while Johnson took a split decision over Percy Price of Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Other winners included:

119-pound: Ted Whitfield, Ft. Campbell, beat Ron Cooper, Camp Lejeune, decision.

132-pound: Charles Taylor, Ft. Campbell, beat Leander Moore, Camp Lejeune, decision.

139-pound: Milton Harold, Jacksonville, beat Ken Corrigan, Camp Lejeune, TKO second round. Tom Nangia, Camp Lejeune, beat Rocky Grigando, Donaldson AFB, S.C., split decision.

147-pound: Ray Owens, Ft. Campbell, beat Tom Hennessy, Camp Lejeune, decision.

156-pound: Ray Phillips, Camp Lejeune, beat Martin Mack, Ft. Campbell, split decision.

165-pound: Alvin Brown, Ft. Campbell, beat Carlos Tattia, Camp Lejeune, decision.

178-pound: Isaac Davis, Ft. Campbell, beat Robert Sutton, Donaldson AFB, default.

They Save Stamps To Get Chapel

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NAPANOCH, N.Y. (AP)—Convicts at the prison here want a place to worship. And they've hit on a novel plan for getting it. The convicts are collecting trading stamps.

"It's an unusual procedure," said the Rev. Matthew Killion, Roman Catholic Chaplain at the prison. "But the usual methods of raising funds are not available here."

So the men behind bars, with an assist from the outside, began gathering the stamps—to be redeemed in cash or materials for construction of a prison chapel.

It'll be called "St. Jude's Within the Walls." St. Jude is the patron saint of the forlorn.

Through the Knights of Columbus, religious and fraternal organization, a call has gone out to Catholic men to send in stamps, individually or in books, to implement the project.

"It's a wonderful opportunity," said John Symonds of New York City, state deputy of the K. of C. "I'm quite confident that we can get sufficient stamps within a few months to defray the expense of this chapel."

There are about 1,100 inmates in the prison here, the Eastern State Correctional Institution. Some are mental defectives, serving indeterminate terms. Many are young men, serving three to five years.

At present, Father Killion said, services have to be held in the gymnasium, with a portable altar. About 250 to 300 go to Mass each Sunday.

"It's a very makeshift situation. We're trying to instill in these men the values that they should have learned before but didn't, and we need an appropriate setting to attract and inspire them," he said.

"With a chapel, set aside for the worship of God and nothing else, the services should make a far more vivid impression in the lives of our men, and have more lasting effects."

He worked out the stamp idea: obtaining agreements from various concerns that issue trading stamps to redeem them in money, or in building materials, instead of the usual merchandise.

Father Killion figures 65,000 books of stamps of any kind will do the job. They would be worth in cash, about $130,000.

"If each Knight were to collect one book, the drive would be a success and no other help would be needed," he said in a letter, asking their help.

Both the New York chapter of the K. of C., headed by James E. Foley; and the state office, coordinating the work of 345 councils throughout the state, promptly sent out notices urging support.

The stamps are to be mailed to committee officials, Joseph L. J. Borgatti, of 2316 Belmont Ave., New York City 58; or Lawrence M. Cote, Box 271, Champlain, N.Y.

Inmates use spare time to sort them and paste them in books.

Building A City For Girl Scouts

FERRISBURG, Vt. (AP)—Vermonters are busy this winter hewing a city out of the frozen, unyielding earth; one which will vibrate with life starting July 18, then disappear two weeks later leaving hardly a trace.

During that 14 days, 10,000 Girl Scouts and counselors from 56 states and many countries will be camped at Button Bay Park, a flat 1,500-acre tract wedged between the foothills of the Green Mountains and scenic Lake Champlain.

Vermont has spent two years preparing for these two weeks of the 3rd International Senior Girl Scout Roundup and close to a million dollars is being expended to ready the site.

Besides the Girl Scouts, an anticipated 40,000 visitors—mothers, fathers, friends—will jam the area.

Girl Scout City itself will contain 6,000 tents, a staff dining hall and a cluster of temporary buildings to house the headquarters.

The encampment this year coincides with the 50th anniversary of Girl Scouting.

Robert B. Williams, deputy commissioner of forests and parks is coordinating state preparations for the scout roundup. He has plenty of headaches.

Among them: Arranging for 327,000 meals, establishing systems to handle the expected 13,000 telephone calls and 300,000 pieces of mail, and finding a place for the 250,000 pieces of baggage which will be shipped to the site by the girls.

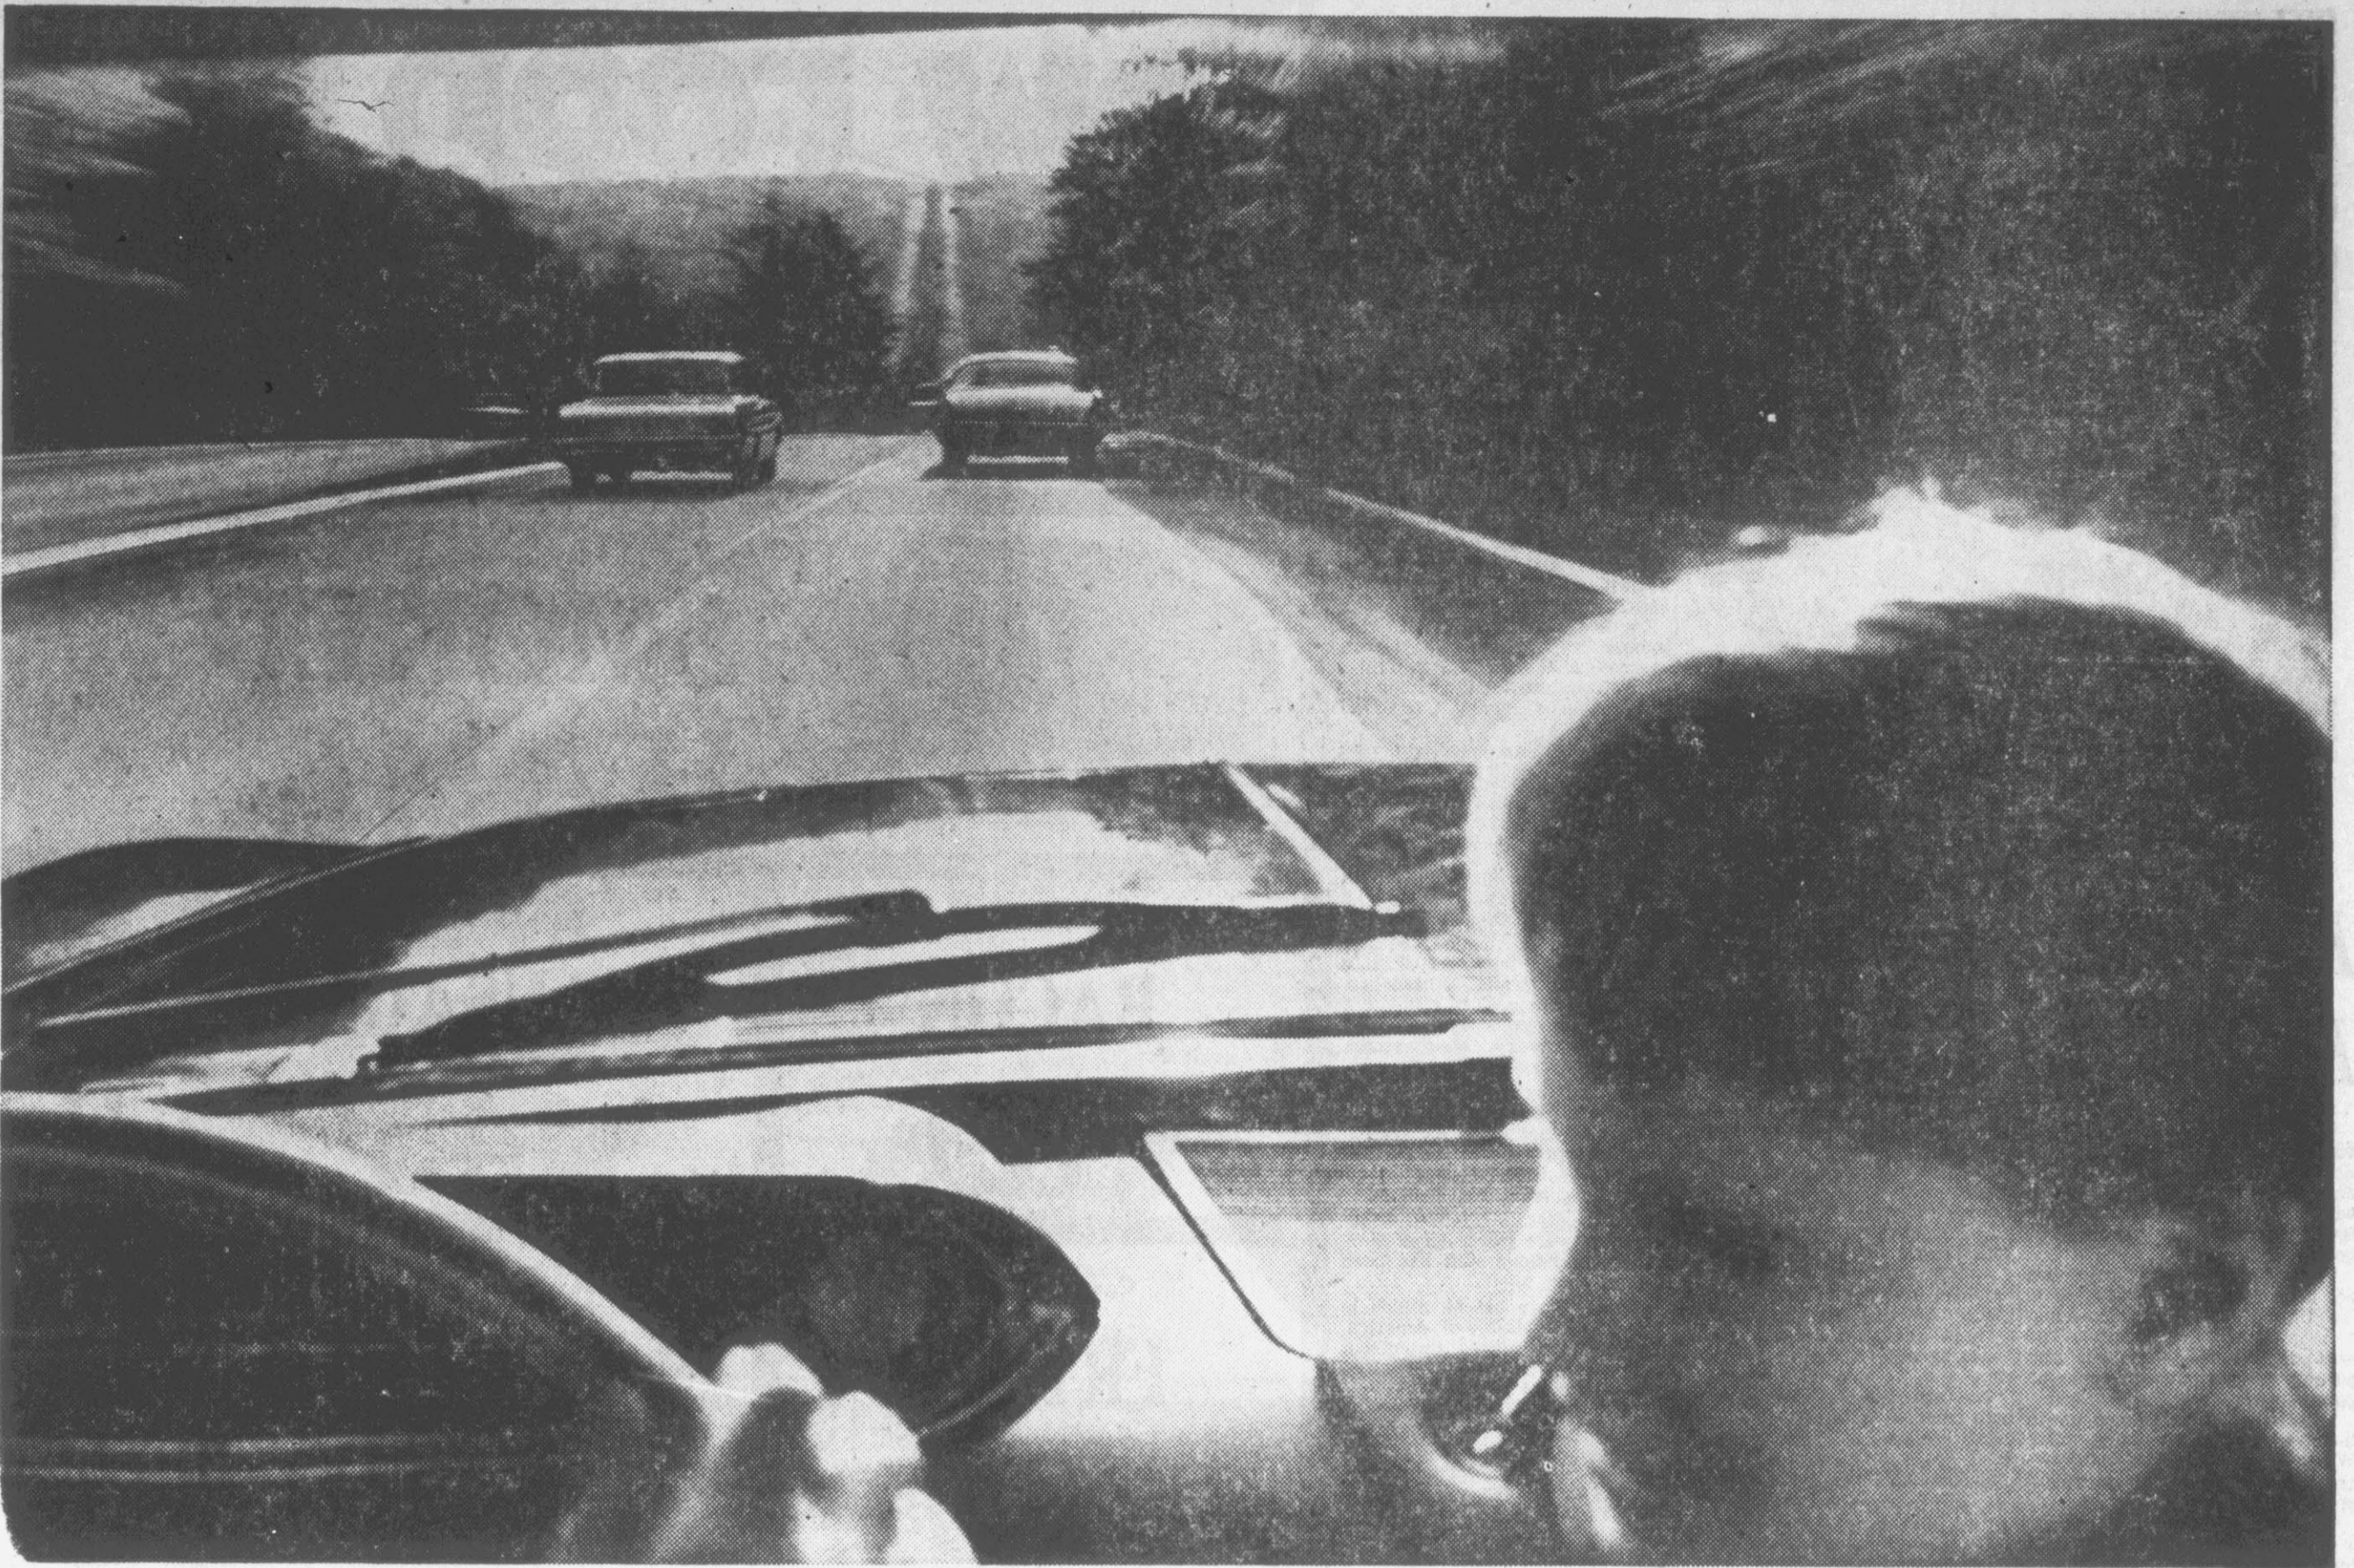

Saddlemaker In City Prospers

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Albert Thomas has an unusual way of earning his living in this bustling industrial city of 400,000. He makes saddles, by hand.

A disabled Navy veteran of World War II, Thomas learned leathercraft while hospitalized. He turned to saddle-making after leaving the VA hospital.

He has engaged in his craft in Jacksonville since 1950.

Thomas turns out an average of two saddles a week and sells them as fast as he completes them. The hand-made saddles sell from $265 to $800 and are eagerly sought by members of riding clubs.

On long trips or short hauls, Super Shell's energy-packed ingredient—Platformate—helps to increase mileage and give top performance.

This 2½-mile stretch shows the extra mileage you can get, in every 100 miles you drive—from one of Super Shell's 9 ingredients for top performance

A remarkable ingredient called Platformate increases the mileage you get from today's Super Shell.

Recent tests show that a half cupful of Super Shell with Platformate takes a car 48 feet farther than the same amount of a non-Platformate gasoline. This works out to 2½ bonus miles for every hundred. Here are the facts—and what they can mean to you.

MILES-PER-GALLON is an excellent measure of top performance. And Shell scientists want you to get the best mileage your car can deliver.

That's why they add a special mileage ingredient to every gallon of today's Super Shell. Its name: Platformate. And Shell makes it with eight million dollars' worth of precious platinum catalyst.

But Platformate is well worth every cent. A recent mileage test proves the point in a dramatic way.

The half-cupful test

Super Shell, with Platformate, was carefully fed into the fuel system of a conventional car. The car was started, accelerated and held at a constant 30 miles per hour until it ran out of gasoline.

Then, the same amount of gasoline without Platformate was poured in—and the test was run again. Same car—same driver—same test road.

In repeated tests, Shell engineers found that Super Shell took the car an average of 48 feet farther per half cupful.

That may not sound like much. But when you drive 100 miles, that 48 feet turns into 2½ extra miles.

NOTE: Platformate gets its strange name from the platinum re-forming process which Shell scientists use in making it.

Huge pressures and temperatures up to 1000 degrees literally tear petroleum apart and then re-form it into super-energy components which release 8 per cent more energy per gallon than the finest 100-octane aviation gasoline.

You now know how one of Super Shell's nine ingredients helps to give your car top performance. Each of the others does an equally important job. Take a few minutes now to read what they are and what they do.

Ingredient #2 is TCP for power, mileage and longer plug life

Super Shell now contains an even better version of this famous additive. Its chemical name is cresyl-diphenyl-phosphate.

TCP additive can help restore power lost to combustion deposits; give up to 17 extra miles per tankful; and can make plugs last up to twice as long.*

TCP does this by neutralizing certain harmful effects of combustion deposits. It is scientifically formulated to alter those deposits which are a major cause of power loss.

Ingredient #3 is "cat-cracked" gasoline for power with a purr

This is petroleum that has actually cracked under 900-degree heat and catalytic action. Its heavier molecules have been shattered into livelier, lighter ones.

The result: an ingredient that makes your engine purr with power the moment you put your foot down.

NOTE: "Cat-cracking" refers to the use of a catalyst—the mysterious substance that can alter molecules without changing itself.

Ingredient #4 is Alkylate, noted for knock control in hot engines

Jimmy Doolittle helped pioneer this outstanding high-octane ingredient for Shell aviation fuel.

Alkylate—the ingredient that took the dream of 100-octane gasoline out of the lab and put it into the skies—is now in Super Shell. It controls knocking in hot engines at high speeds better than anything else yet available.

Ingredient #5 is anti-knock mix for extra resistance to knocks

You might think that two high-octane ingredients are enough for knock-free performance.

But Shell's scientists insist on adding a special anti-knock mix which is so effective that one teaspoon per gallon can boost anti-knock rating by five points.

This mix has the tricky job of regulating combustion so that Super Shell gives each piston a firm, even push—rather than a sharp blow which would cause a knock.

Ingredient #6 is Butane for quick starts

Butane is noted for quick starts in cold weather (it's so volatile it would even boil on ice).

When the weather's warm, Butane does still another job. It helps Super Shell control knock.

Thus, Butane works to smooth out your car's performance throughout the year.

Ingredient #7 is Pentane mix for fast warm-ups

Pentanes are made by tearing gasoline apart, much as you split kindling to start a log fire.

In this case, the "logs" are petroleum's heavier hydrocarbons. A special process transforms their molecules from slow-burning "logs" into the quicker-firing "kindling."

NET RESULT: Fast "warm-up" and top performance in a hurry.

Ingredient #8 is an "anti-icer" to check stalling when temperatures drop

Super Shell's formula is adjusted as often as eight times a year to beat the weather. For example, whenever the temperature is likely to be less than forty-five degrees, a carburetor anti-icer is added.

Why add anti-icer at forty-five degrees? Because, even then, frost can form in your carburetor just as it does in your refrigerator. It can choke your engine dead.

Ingredient #9 is gum preventive to keep carburetors clean inside

Even the purest gasoline can form gum when stored. This can clog carburetors and foul automatic chokes.

But, with today's Super Shell, a special gum preventive acts like a policeman controlling a mob. This ingredient helps regulate unstable elements to keep them from clotting, thus giving resistance to gum.

Super Shell for top performance

Try a tankful of Super Shell in your car next time you fill up. Then, you'll know what top performance really is.

*Trademark for Shell's unique gasoline additive. Gasoline containing TCP is covered by U.S. Patent 2889212.

Maverick Bank Applies Country Business Rules

PACIFIC GROVE, Calif. (AP)—Pacific Grove has a pint-sized maverick bank doing country style battle against the conforming giants of California's banking industry.

The bank, Security State, is operated by William A. Burkett in this Monterey Peninsula town of 20,000. Burkett was state superintendent of banking from 1955 to 1960.

Pacific Grove's Security State is the only banking office in California open to customers on Saturdays—from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. On weekdays it is open to customers on the gas light era schedule of 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

"We're interested in keeping the little banks surviving," declared Burkett.

"We have the old-fashioned idea that the independent small bank can survive if you give your customers the kind of service they want."

Security State is one of only 57 one-office independent banks remaining in California, the nation's biggest branch banking state.

The 64 other nationally and state chartered banks in the state operate more than 1,700 branches. All these are open to customers from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Most remain open until 5 p.m. Friday.

The banking industry is not happy with Burkett's style. The California Bankers Association strongly supported in the legislature a 1957 law declaring Saturday a legal holiday in banking.

Security State's extended banking hours were put in effect Nov. 1, and the bank's staff has been doubled since.

Security State has $4 million in deposits. The Bank of America, operating 733 offices throughout California at the close of 1961, had $11,475,436,000.

Hideaway Place Believed Found

BELLEVUE, Md. (AP)—U2 spy pilot Francis Gary Powers, who dropped out of sight last Saturday, may be holding a reunion with his family at a Chesapeake Bay hideaway owned by the U.S. government.

The 32-year-old Virginian has not been seen since he arrived in the United States after spending 21 months in a Soviet prison. The next day, Sunday, his wife and parents also vanished from the public eye.

The only official word as to their whereabouts was a terse White House statement that Powers "was meeting with members of his family."

There were indications that the reunion was taking place at Ashford Farms, a 150-acre estate overlooking the Choptank River about five miles south of here. Bellevue is a tiny community on Maryland's Eastern Shore about eight miles southwest of Easton, Md.

A blue Chevrolet station wagon, which a reporter saw parked near the luxurious brick mansion on the estate, fits the description of one which met Mrs. Powers at the Ocean City, Md., airport Sunday.

A photograph of Powers released by the White House the day of his return showed two doors in the background. The doors—and their colonial hinges and latches—resembled those of the $75,000 colonial mansion as described Tuesday night by the former owner, who said the government bought the property 10 years ago.

A CIA spokesman in Washington said he "never heard of the place," but this type of comment is used by the hush-hush intelligence agency for almost all queries.

The mansion is ringed with a high fence. It is impossible to get close because of German shepherd dogs, which run loose, guarding the place.

Police Help To Deter Jokesters

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Not everyday does someone drop in at the Lincoln Police Station to borrow a pair of handcuffs.

But Asst. Chief W. H. Manchester was understanding when the request came from a pair of newlyweds.

"They're trying to steal me," the bride explained. College friends planned to separate the bride and groom as a prank. The honeymooners left the station happily handcuffed.

Everly Brother Is Wed Tuesday

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Don Everly, one of the singing Everly brothers of rock 'n' roll fame, married ex-Hollywood actress Veneta Stevenson Tuesday only a short while after he had graduated from the Marine Corps Recruit Depot.

Phil Everly, who also completed his 12 weeks of Marine Corps boot training, was his brother's best man.

Mary Jane Nelan of Hollywood was the maid of honor. It was the second marriage for each. Miss Stevenson formerly was the wife of actor Russ Tamblyn.

AMA Announce Education Loans

CHICAGO (AP)—The American Medical Association announced today a medical education loan program that would advance students up to $10,000 over a seven-year period and defer the payment-due dates until they are ready to start practicing.

The loan program is designed to assist needy students at any stage of their medical education—from the start of their first year of medical school to physicians in residency and training.

The loans, to be offered at 5½ per cent simple interest, will be guaranteed against default by the AMA Education and Research Foundation. Guarantee funds will be solicited from physicians and other private sources.

The AMA announcement said the loans will be available to full-time students in good academic standing who are United States citizens, providing they attend a medical school approved by the AMA's Council on Medical Education or are in residency or internship training in a hospital approved by the council. Applications can be made sometime after March 1.

Under the plan, borrowers will be limited to $1,500 plus interest in any single 12-month period and a $10,000 total in seven years. Borrowers may not be indebted for more than $15,000 for educational purposes from all sources.

Thinks Trawlers Hunt Diamonds

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP)—A new theory has been advanced about the activities of Soviet fishing fleets which have for months been reported off of South Africa and neighboring South West Africa. They may be fishing for diamonds.

That is the suspicion of Cmdr. Peter Keeble, director of English-American companies that are prospecting for diamonds on the sea bed.

Keeble said he suspected the ships were taking samples of diamond-bearing gravel in the same area as his companies' boats.

Separation Suit By Linda Darnell

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Actress Linda Darnell sued her airline pilot husband for separate maintenance Tuesday.

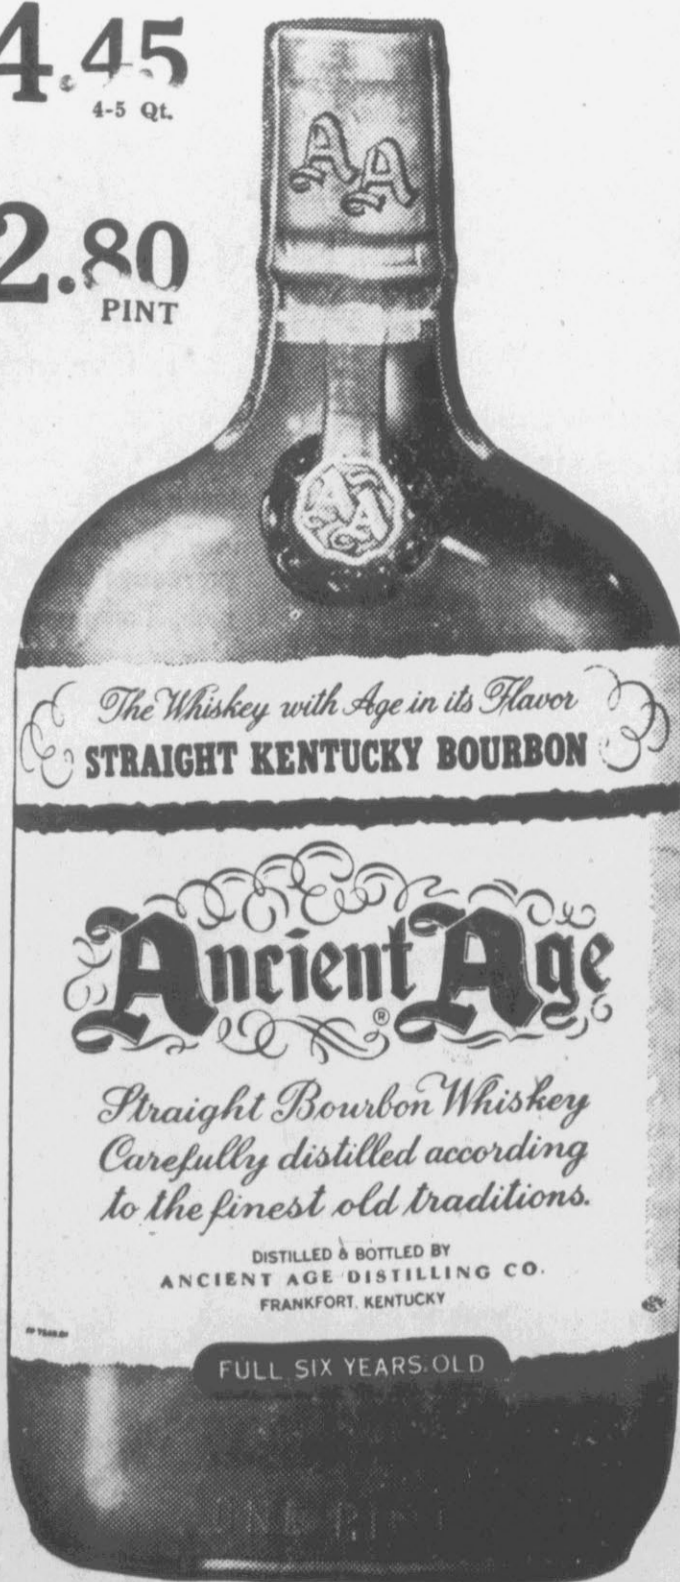

Her counsel said Miss Darnell, 30, and Merle Roy Robertson, 44, separated earlier in the day. The brief complaint said Robertson caused her embarrassment and humiliation by acts of cruelty.

The actress asked for community property and support. She and Robertson wed March 3, 1957. They have no children.

WINTER LOGGING

Off to the day's work. The loggers, warmly clad, carry power saws, hand axes, for their logging amid the quiet of the deep woodland snows.

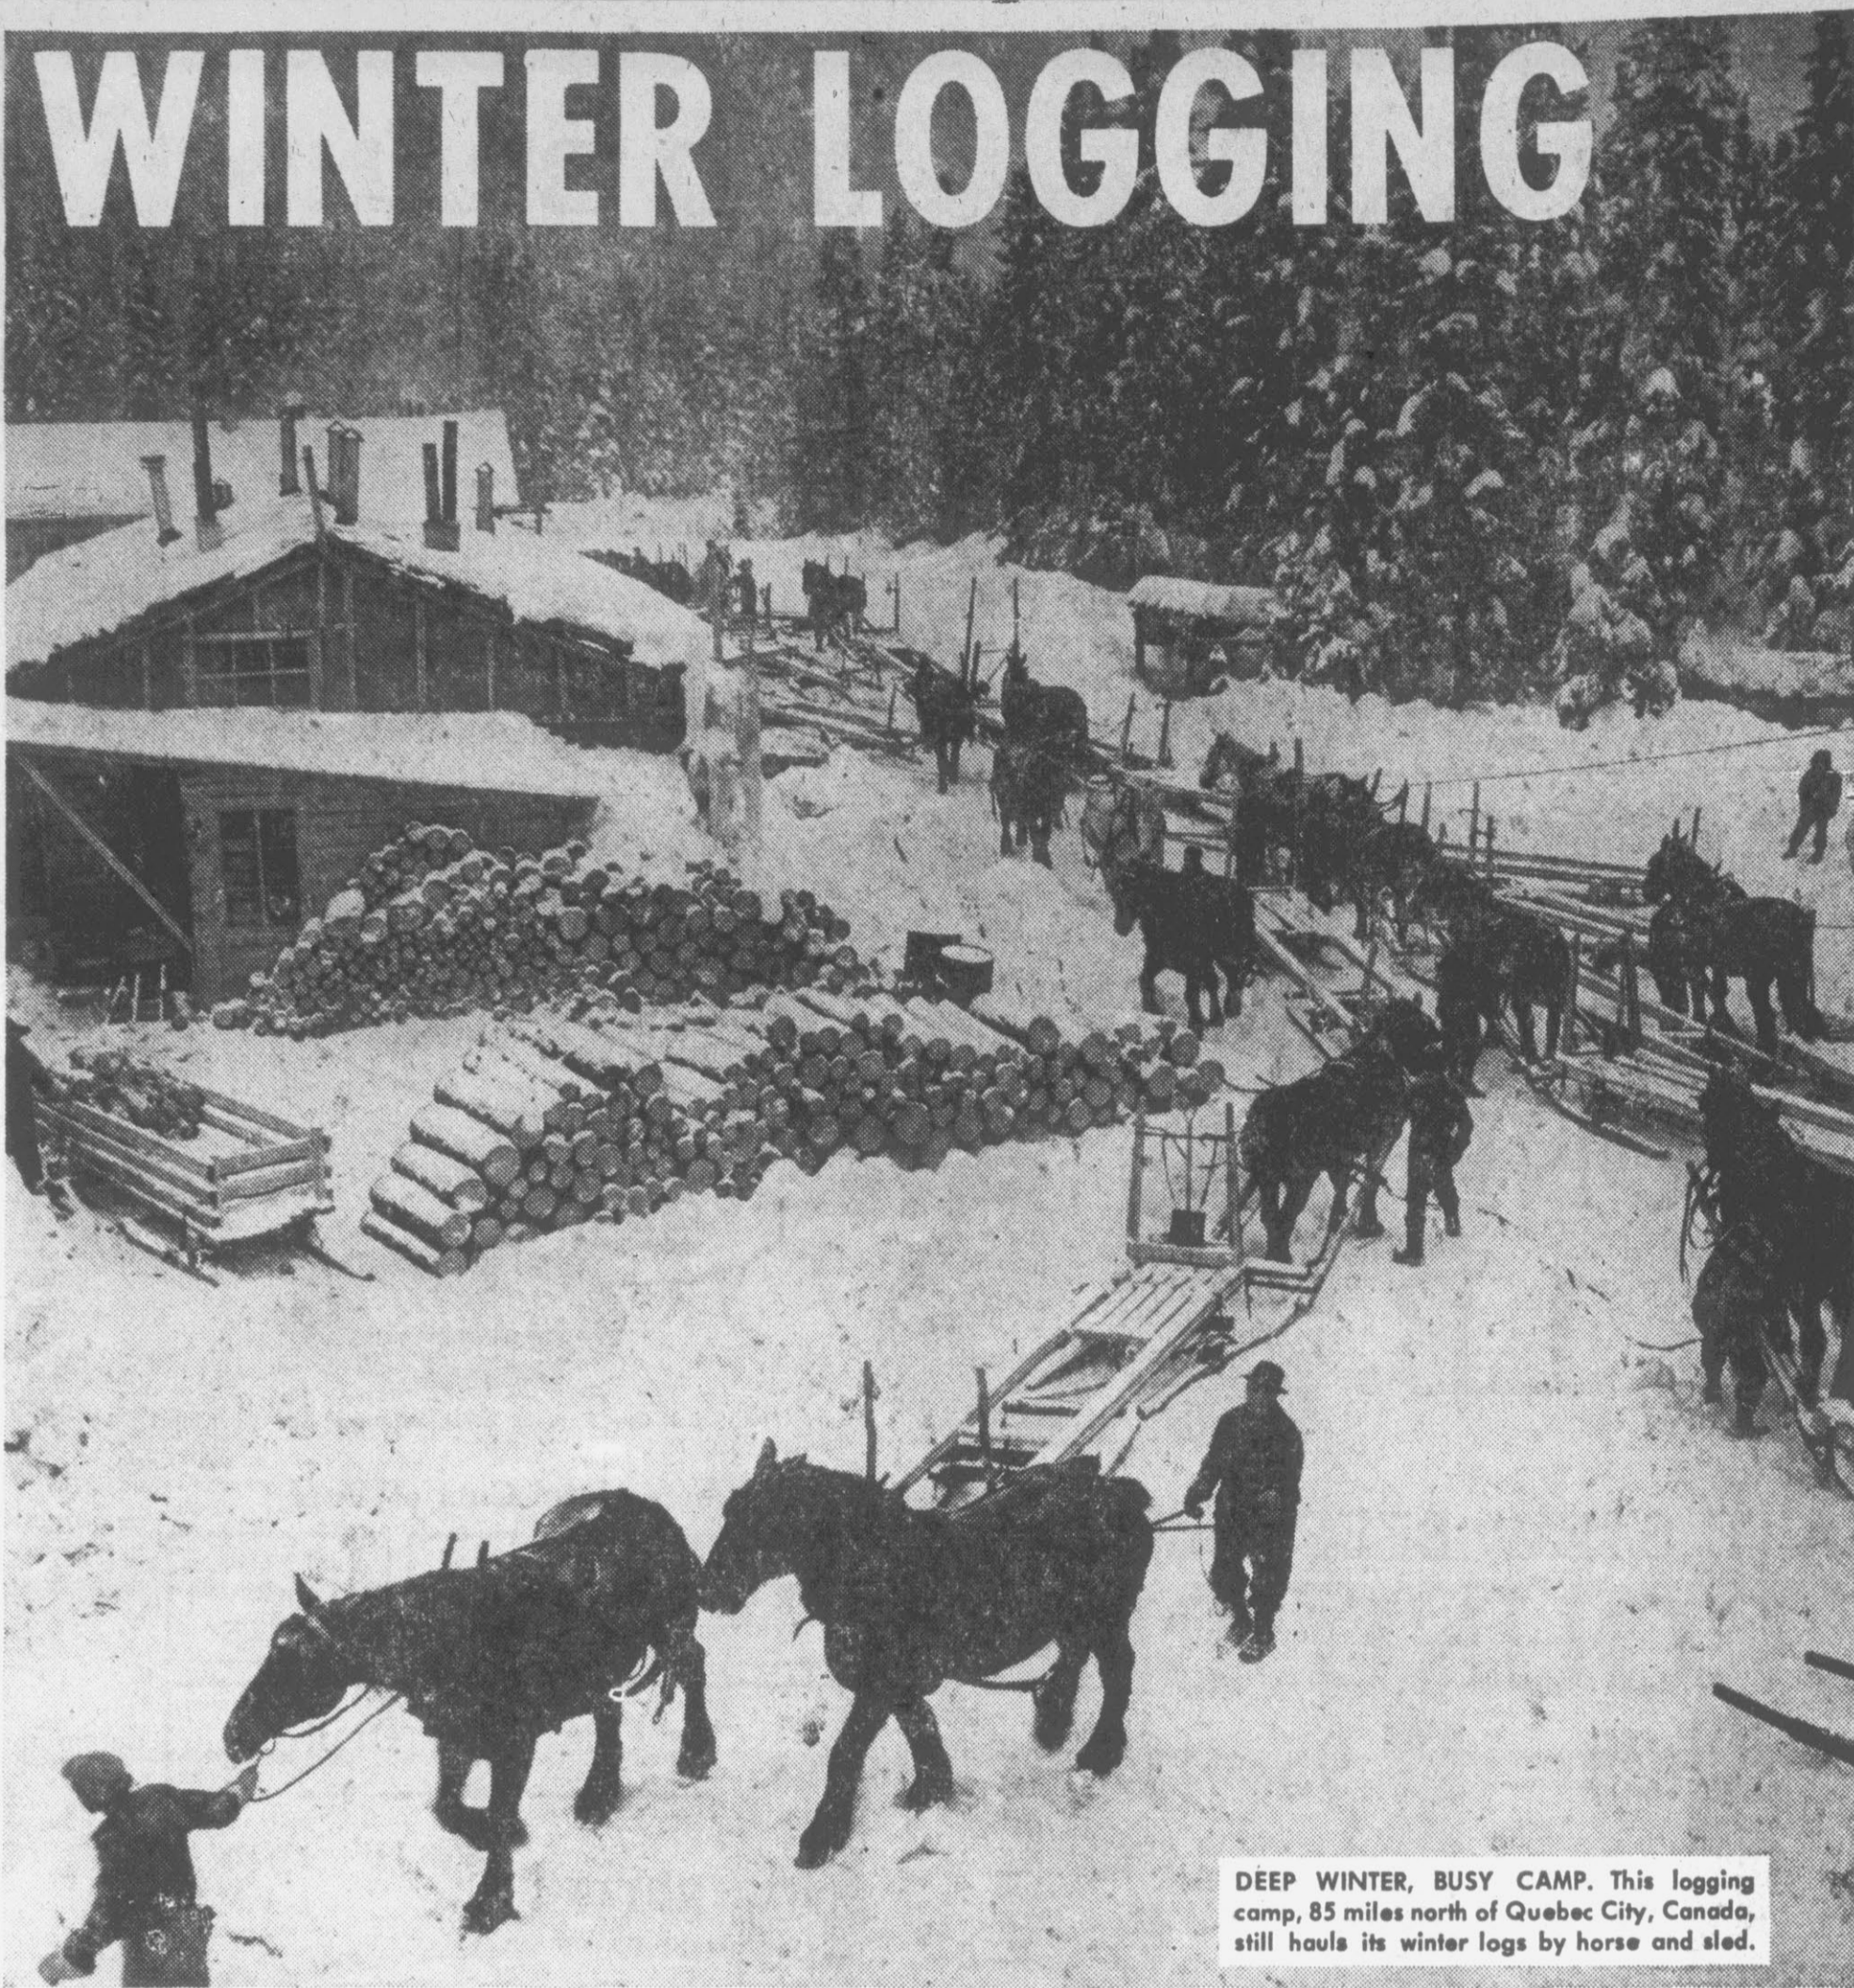

The long Canadian winter of deep snows and icy blasts hold no terror for the hardy woodsmen.

From late autumn, when the first snow falls, until the first thaws of spring, the forests east of the Rockies ring with the sound of the axe and the power saw and buzz with the movement of men, horses, and machines engaged in the task of harvesting some 350 million cubic feet of wood—over half the nation's annual total.

Though many come and go, some 50,000 men are engaged at the season's peak. The expert loggers, mostly French-Canadian, spend as much as three months in the woods, take home about $2,000 clear after their stint in the frozen forest. They work eight hours a day, live in camps set up long before the men arrive.

Though mechanical logging is increasing with the use of the power saw, snowmobile, giant tractor, and multi-purpose harvesting machine, the veteran lumberjack is still on the job with his axe and bucksaw, and horses, 12,000 of them, are still used to haul the big logs away.

Canada's winter logging operations are pictured here.

DEEP WINTER, BUSY CAMP. This logging camp, 85 miles north of Quebec City, Canada, still hauls its winter logs by horse and sled.

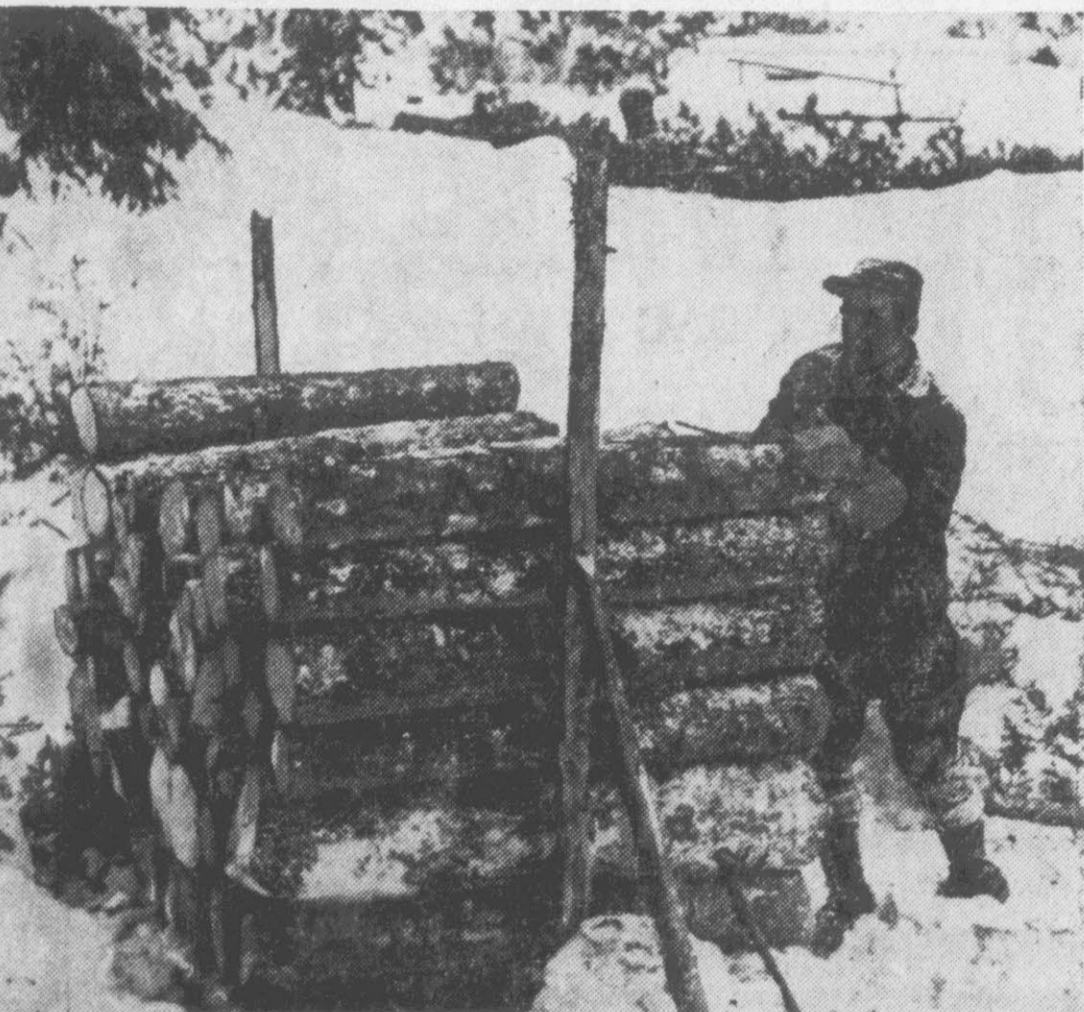

Work goes on after a fresh fall of snow. Loggers trim cut trees near their camp in Quebec Province.

A timber cruiser marks a tree while outlining a new cutting area.

A logger trims a fallen tree with power saw at the Chantier Cooperatif #2 camp, north of Quebec City.

Logs are piled on a logging sled. The load will be pulled by horses to the mill.

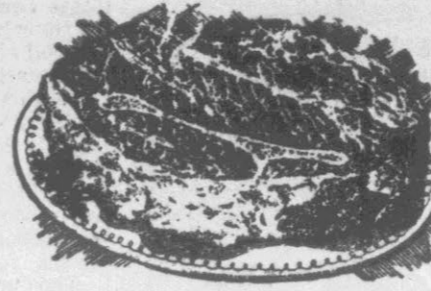

The old and the new. Horses and tractor haul the loads of logs through the deep snows at Heron Bay, Ontario.

Democrats Eke Out Victory In Michigan Vote

DETROIT (AP)—Democratic State Sen. Harold M. Ryan barely squeaked through to victory in special election in Michigan's 14th Congressional District.

So thin was Ryan's margin in a district which Democrats have called their own for the better part of a quarter century that the loser, Republican Robert E. Waldron, also a state legislator, was considering a demand for a recount.

The unofficial tabulation gave labor-backed Ryan a margin of 764 votes among nearly 60,000 cast. Ryan had 30,366, Waldron 29,602.

Waldron said the unofficial result indicated victory for neither Ryan nor himself. He said he would decide on a recount request after an official canvass of the vote Thursday.

Waldron said the result failed to show "any sweeping approval" of the Democratic administration.

The 14th's contest, filling the vacancy left by the death last fall of veteran Democratic Rep. Louis C. Rabaut, was considered of national import.

President Kennedy plumped for Ryan. Prior to the election Kennedy wrote Ryan expressing confidence the voters were aware of the election's importance and saying he counted on Ryan's future support of the administration in Washington.

Cabinet member, Abraham Ribicoff, secretary of health, education and welfare, visited Detroit in behalf of Ryan.

Sens. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Everett Dirksen of Illinois and Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana endorsed Waldron.

Waldron's overwhelming support in the so-called silk-stocking precincts of Detroit's suburban Grosse Pointes helped to make the race close.

Waldron, serving his fourth term in Michigan's House of Representatives, had a 13,835-3,740 margin outside Detroit, mostly in the Pointe communities.

Southeast Idaho Bracing For More Floods; Damage Rise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southeastern Idaho braced for more flooding today as damage estimates reached the $5-million mark. Thousands were homeless.

Southern California cleaned up after a devastating six-day rainstorm which left a sea of mud and debris, property damage estimated by officials at nearly $1.5 million and 26 storm-related deaths.

A body of water 16 miles long and two miles wide—but shallow—was moving slowly toward Blackfoot, Idaho. This was melted snow, augmented by continued rains.

Water was five feet deep in parts of Pocatello, a city of 27,000 in southeastern Idaho.

In northern Nevada, U.S. Highway 40 was washed out near Elko. Tracks of the Western Pacific Railroad were flooded.

At Battle Mountain, Nev. Southern Pacific Railroad officials refused permission to dynamite the line's tracks, claiming that it was U.S. 40 that was backing up Reese River flood waters. Some citizens dynamited the tracks anyway.

When the flooding Big Horn River in north central Wyoming roared down the town of Greybull its 2,286 residents fled to the hills. However, the crest—caused by two ice jams upstream—was held in check by dikes and the refugees returned to their homes Tuesday night.

High water and ice floes threatened to rip out a bridge across the Green River between Green River, Wyo., and the Flaming Gorge dam construction town of Dutch John in northeastern Utah. Gov. Robert E. Smylie asked President Kennedy to declare southeastern Idaho a disaster area and provide $250,000 in immediate aid. He put the damage at $5 million.

In Pocatello, thousands joined in the fight to hold back the Portneuf River, which was six feet over flood stage. Fifty thousand sandbags were flown to Pocatello from an Army depot at Stockton, Calif.

At Blackfoot, Civil Defense Director Maynard Taylor said the huge body of water heading toward the city came from the Sand Creek area. It was from that region that water poured down upon Idaho Falls Monday.

A spokesman for the Army Engineers said three streams of water were moving through lowlands between mountain ranges and would empty into the already full Blackfoot River.

Lt. Col. James S. Keel, Idaho's civil defense director, said that at least 450 homes in Pocatello were awash; 600 were flooded to some degree in Idaho Falls; most of the homes of the 500 persons in Bancroft and 680 in Sugar City also were flooded. Keel said the major trouble spots were Pocatello and, potentially Blackfoot.

No severe cold weather was reported in the country but rain, sleet and snow hit sections of the Midwest and East. Up to six inches of snow fell in a six-hour period in Escanaba and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

The snow-rain-sleet belt extended to the upper Mississippi Valley into much of the Great Lakes region, eastern Pennsylvania, western New York State and northern Maryland.

A sleet storm pelted a wide section of Chautauque County in New York along the shore of Lake Erie. Heavy accumulations of ice on power lines disrupted service and created hazardous driving conditions. Rain and fog extended across areas in the eastern Ohio Valley and the mid-Atlantic coast.

Coldest weather was in the Northeast but temperatures moderated from below-zero marks.

Record high temperatures for the date were set in some Midwest and Southern cities Monday. The 85 in Montgomery, Ala., was a record high for February and the 84 in Mobile, Ala., was a record high for Feb. 13. Other records included 82 in St. Louis, Mo. 80 in Memphis and 74 in Cairo, Ill.

Business Pressures In Current Merger Trend

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Posting of marriage bans by American corporations is increasing. It usually does when general business activity rises. But today's changing business pressures account for much of the new vigor in the already long postwar trend.

The Federal Trade Commission puts mergers in 1961 at 1,234, up 222 from 1960 when business was slipping, and 334 more than in another recession period, 1958. A generally bullish stock market helped increase merger ardor last year. This always makes it easier to consummate a corporate marriage by the exchange of stocks.

But this year some of the merger proposals have been in industries fallen on hard times, without much relief so far from the rise in general prosperity. Examples are the railroads and the airlines.

Many Eastern railroads have gone through a spell of red-ink bookkeeping. They look on mergers as a way to cut costly competition, to save money by ending duplication of services and facilities and by pooling equipment and maintenance, and to use the savings to get much needed new rolling stock.

The airlines' hard times were brought on by a sharp increase in competition as route extensions were granted in recent years, and then by going in hock to get the speedy jets that fly many more passenger miles—without benefit of enough passengers to fill the seats.

Red ink often adds enchantment to a corporate courtship because of our tax laws. When a company running at a loss is bought up by a prospering one, the buyer can use the tax loss credits to reduce its own tax liability. This makes its reported net earnings much bigger. On a bullish stock market that can be quite an item.

But prospering small companies also are prizes in the marriage market. Sometimes they are bought up to get an outstand-

Robber Advises Leaving Town

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A young gunman robbed R. D. Head of Dixie Finance Co. for the second time within a month.

"He told me I need not worry about him any more," Head told police Tuesday. "He told me he was leaving town this time."

The robber fled with a small amount of cash, Head said. Last time he got $232.

Says City Full Of Chickencoops

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington, says former President Harry S. Truman, is "full of chicken coops and crackerboxes."

Truman, chatting with a reporter about Washington's new buildings, added: "I'm no architect, but some day they are going to have hallstones here—and we'll find out about these crackerboxes."

Boy Scout Exposition Award Winners Named

Twenty-eight Pitt District scout units carried a total of 39 ribbons and citations away from Saturday's Exposition in Greenville.

In addition to the honorary awards, based upon the decisions of a judging committee, the district awarded prizes for leading ticket salesmen in the county.

Blue, red, yellow and white ribbons were awarded to units with booths. Blue denoted the top displays, red second rank, yellow third and white fourth. All participating units received ribbons.

Judges awarded a total of 20 blue ribbons and six special citations in recognition of excellence in preparing the booths. Ten red ribbons were awarded, two yellow and one white.

In the ticket sales category, Josh Weeks of Greenville Pack 330, was awarded a camera outfit as the top individual ticket salesman in the district. Young Weeks sold a total of 134 tickets for the Exposition.

The top unit in the district was Greenville Pack 9 which sold a total of 561 tickets. Its cubmaster, Robert Gilbert, received a gas stove as an award.

Eleven district scouts—three cubs and eight scouts—qualified for top unit salesman awards of an electric lantern by selling 50 or more tickets.

The 11 included: Barry Billica, Greenville Pack 9; Tommy Worsley, Greenville Pack 205; Bubber Rawl, Pack 385; Ferral Blount, Bethel Troop 15; Clifton W. Moore, Griffon Troop 24; Fred Derrick, Greenville Troop 30; Junior Lewis, Fountain Troop 92; Frankie Carson, Greenville Troop 340; Ray Webb, Bell Greenville Troop 452; and Randy Smith, Gardnersville Troop 471.

Three scouts sold 50 or more tickets and were not their units' top salesmen. Still, they were awarded a swim mask and a snorkel. These included Randy Warren, Greenville Pack 9; Coy Buck, Greenville Troop 471; and

Mrs. Kennedy In New York Visit

NEW YORK (AP)—Jacqueline Kennedy came to New York City Tuesday for a private overnight visit.

A Secret Service man at the Carlyle Hotel, where the President's wife stays when in the city, answered the telephone by saying "New York White House."

When Europeans arrived in Australia, about 300,000 aborigines inhabited the continent.

Raps Pressures On Philippines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William S. Broomfield, R-Mich., said today "certain Southern congressmen" are attempting to engineer a "power play" to force the Philippines to buy U.S. tobacco.

Broomfield said the Southern group has already succeeded in blocking House action on the $73 million Philippine war claims bill and is trying to cut the Philippines sugar quota. He said the group also seeks to block U.S. foreign aid, such as the recent $300 million currency stabilization loan, to the government or President Diosdado Macapagal.

Broomfield did not mention any names in his statement. Rep. Philipines he halted until that Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., has demanded that all U.S. aid to the country agree to admit a controversial shipment of tobacco that has been held up in the port of Manila since last December.

Macapagal said the tobacco was illegally imported under the administration of his predecessor, former President arlos Garcia. Macapagal, however, has cleared the seven U.S. exporting companies of any wrongdoing.

Broomfield, a member of the Far East subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, described the Philippines as "America's best ally in the Far East."

He said the delay in consideration of the war claims bill, which would authorize paying he Philippines for damage incurred in fighting the Japanese in World War II, "is a shame and a blight on American foreign policy."

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market held to a narrowly irregular pattern in moderate trading early this afternoon. The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was down .10 to 26.20 with industrials down .70, rails up .10 and utilities up .40. Changes of key issues continued to be only fractions for the most part.

Steels were mostly lower as industry negotiations for a new labor contract began with a generally hopeful tone. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem eased, while Jones & Laughlin advanced slightly. Mail order and retail firms showed little reaction to news of a decline in personal income for January. Woolworth eased, but Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward edged ahead fractionally. Teletypegraph widened an early edge to around a point. Revlon and Public Service also were ahead around a point. High-priced IBM was down a point or so. Chemicals showed scattered strength, with Du Pont and Air Reduction ahead around a point. Kennecott was down and Anacosta a shade higher.

Big Three motors were weak. Airlines were quiet. At noon the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off .89 at 713.43. Prices were mostly higher on the American Stock Exchange. Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds resumed their rise.

Raccoons Found Warmth In Tent
NAPLES, Fla. (AP)—A Florida raccoon will never be cold or hungry as long as there are humans about. Mr. and Mrs. Davis Shavin, who had been camping on a deserted island near here, got acquainted with the ingenious creatures. "We had barely set up our tent when the raccoons started lining up for food handouts," Shavin said. "Then, the first nippy night, we woke up to find several with us in the blankets. They easily figured out how to work the zipper on the tent flaps and get inside."

Sen. Sparkman Expecting Report On Francis Powers

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., said today he expects a report within 10 days on Francis Gary Powers' ill-fated U2 spy flight over the Soviet Union. Sparkman is acting chairman of the Senate Foreign-Relations Committee, which is resuming its inquiry into what happened to the high-flying reconnaissance plane. Presumably Powers, released by the Russians Saturday, is being or will be questioned on this point by Central Intelligence agents. One of the things that senators and government officials want to know is, was he shot down by some Soviet super-rocket, as the Russians claimed, or did the U2 develop engine trouble. Powers remained in seclusion, his whereabouts secret. David Brinkley, NBC correspondent, said in a broadcast from Washington Tuesday night it had been learned that Powers had mechanical trouble and was forced to descend to a much lower altitude where the U2 was in reach of Russian groundfire and that for more than three months before his Moscow trial, Powers was kept in isolation, given "psychological conditioning," including drugs, before he was put on the stand.

Steroid Therapy Use Discussed

The use and abuse of steroid therapy in current day practice was discussed by Dr. Sully Nelson of Ayden at the recent meeting of the Pitt County Medical Society. Steroids are adrenal gland products usually referred to as cortisone or its derivatives. Dr. Nelson enumerated many of the current day uses and pointed out the undesirable side effects continuing use of these drugs in spite of their perfection. However, the hormones have been refined and developed now so that the side effects are minimal and the desired effects are obtained. Cortisone is used in many types of illness, ranging from acute allergy to rheumatoid diseases such as rheumatic fever and other diseases of collagen tissue. During a business session, members of the society discussed one of their current projects: to attempt tetanus immunization on a countywide basis for as many persons as possible. Dr. Tom Patterson of Farmville, chairman of the committee working on the project, reported that the committee is now making active plans to formulate tetanus immunization in the county. Dr. Charles Adams, president of the society, said, "In doing this we are cooperating with an effort of the state society and working in conjunction with the state and county health departments." Dr. Adams presided at the meeting.

N. C. Democrats Expecting Fight

RALEIGH (AP)—The Tar Heel Democratic organization, expecting a tough fight from Republicans in this fall's elections, is working to shore up its strong areas. The party announced Tuesday a statewide voter registration drive aimed strongly at eastern North Carolina, the state's Democratic stronghold. State Party Chairman Bert Bennett has named John R. Jenkins Jr., an Aulander lawyer, to chair the drive. No goal was set. Bennett said the idea came from a study of voting trends and registration which showed that less than 70 per cent of those eligible to vote are registered and less than half of those actually cast ballots. In the eastern part of the state less than 30 per cent of the eligible voters actually vote in many counties.

Worst Of Flu May Be Over

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina still is in the throes of a widespread flu epidemic, but the worst may be over. Dr. Jacob Koomen, assistant state health officer, said Tuesday that estimates received from 66 county health departments indicated there were at least 112,000 cases of flu in the state last week. That figure compared with 124,000 cases reported the previous week from 84 local units. Haywood County reported a jump from 300 to 4,000 cases in a week. Mecklenburg County held firm at an estimated 24,000 and Forsyth County dropped from 15,400 to 8,000.

Skelton Didn't Stay In Hospital

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Red Skelton went to the hospital for a rest, but he didn't stay long. The comedian was admitted at St. John's Tuesday and Dr. William C. Pomeroy Jr. said he would remain until Thursday for "a much needed rest" and a two-day checkup. But after dinner Skelton packed up and went home. Pomeroy said Skelton would fight his fatigue in his own residence.

Billy Graham To Speak In Raleigh

RALEIGH (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham will speak in Reynolds Coliseum on the North Carolina State College campus on March 13. Coliseum Director Roy B. Clogston announced today that Graham will appear on a 7:30 p.m. program.

Ruritans Hear Project Plans

WINTERVILLE — Winterville Ruritans Tuesday heard an outline of plans for raising money to finance installation of a heating-and-air-conditioning plant in the Community Center. Chairman of the club's Program Committee, Vernon E. White, told the membership several fund-raising projects have been planned to finance the community service project. The club holds its regular monthly meetings in the community building that also serves multiple other purposes. At Tuesday's regular February meeting, the Ruritans watched a program of various stunts and participated in a program of group singing, led by Ronald Carroll and Willard Finch. Ruritan Reid McLawhorn introduced to the club's membership a new Winterville resident, Paul Loth who recently moved here with his family from Holland.

Sanford Pushes Bridge Decision

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Sanford acted today to get a decision on location of a new bridge between Morehead City and Beaufort. "I do not know where the bridge should be built," Sanford declared in a statement, "but I am satisfied we must build it without further delay." The governor said he had asked a group of persons "all of whom can give me expert advice to confer with me today so that we might make a final determination." The session was to be held in the governor's office this afternoon.

Prefers Safety To House Seat

RALEIGH (AP)—Highway Department safety officer Herb Hardy says he will remain at his post rather than run for reelection as Greene County's representative in the House. Hardy said he preferred to devote all his time to his safety job for which he receives better than $8,000 a year. He said he had received authorization from Gov. Terry Sanford to take a leave of absence to run for the House seat which he has held for the past three terms. Hardy said he took the action over the objections of friends "who think I should continue to represent Greene County and in spite of my interest in serving in the Legislature."

Blue Law Debate Slated March 6

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Supreme Court will hear arguments March 6 in a suit contesting constitutionality of the state's new Sunday blue law. Lawyers for four Mecklenburg County discount stores filed their brief in the case with the high court Tuesday. Judge J. Will Pless upheld the law's legality in Mecklenburg Superior Court. The law prohibits the sale of several assorted items on Sundays. In a built-in escape clause, the law provided that municipalities could exempt themselves by resolution of city council or board of county commissioners. The four Mecklenburg stores contended in their brief the law was in violation of the state and federal constitutions and was vague, uncertain and indefinite.

'No Mercy' For Narcotics Gang

NEW YORK (AP)—Pledging "no mercy from the courts," a federal judge Tuesday sentenced 11 members of an international narcotics ring to prison for from 5 to 25 years for smuggling $150 million worth of dope into this country. In the case of three other men alleged to have been members of the ring, Judge William B. Herlands set bail of $350,000 each. The 11 men sentenced were convicted Dec. 27 after a two-month trial. The heaviest sentence, 25 years, was given Charles Shiffman, 59, described in court as "one of the main sources of supply for narcotics in Chicago." Others sentenced were Joseph Valachi, Robert Gippino and Matthew Palmieri, 20 years each; Charles Tandler, Anthony Porcelli, Michael Mieleo, Vito Arecchi and Luigi Lo Bue, 15 years each; Rocco Scopelliti, 10 years; and Filippo Cattone, 5 years.
