McGahey-Day Vows Spoken

WASHINGTON, N. C.—Miss Sally Ann Day and Thad Morris McGahey pledged their marriage vows in the First Presbyterian Church Sunday afternoon, February 18, in a 4:00 o'clock ceremony. Officiating ministers were the Rev. W. D. McInnis of Henderson, uncle of the bride and former minister of the church, and the Rev. R. R. Gammon of Greenville's First Presbyterian Church.

The couple's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Day and Mr. and Mrs. E. Ward McGahey, both families of Washington.

Mrs. D. Burke Kerr was organist and played a program of nuptial music prior to the ceremony. "Hymn to Joy" was played as the recessional while the traditional Lehengrni's Wedding March was used as the processional. Miss Jane Woodard was soloist and her selections were "The Song of Ruth," "The Greatest of These Is Love," and as a benediction, "Seal Us O Holy Spirit."

A tall central brass basket filled with white gladioli and chrysanthemums was used before a background of Palmietta and Arecia palms and deep green huckleberry, to form the setting for the ceremony. At each side was a seven branched candelabra with white cathedral candles, and before the altar was a brass Pri Dieu where the couple knelt for prayer. Extending from the altar were two brass pyramidal candelabra with lighted white candles. Fewer in the family were marked by bridal satin ribbon, and the extreme back of the church featured 15 semi-circular brass candelabra.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of silk mist taffeta with bracelet sleeves and scoop neckline. Soft box pleats formed a bell-shaped skirt that flowed into a full chapel train. The fitted waistline was accented by a summerbund of re-embroidered Alencon lace applique, and her tiered veil of imported silk illusion was attached to a crown of seed pearls. The bride carried a white satin covered prayer book with white orchid showered with frenched mums.

Miss Mary Day attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary DeWitt Dukes of Montgomery, Ala., former college roommate, and Mrs. William Russell Wiley. The attendants wore brocaded peau de sole sheath dresses with overskirts in "happiness red" shade. The style was a low square neckline and short sleeves, with the waistline accented by a flat self bow. Their bow headresses was completed with short face veil, and they carried cascade bouquets of white mums tied with red satin ribbon.

Young Misses Nancy Rae Tetterton of Chocowinity and Billy Faye Webb of Wilson, cousins of the bride, were flower girls. They wore white outwork embroidered dresses, made with puffed sleeves and gathered skirts accented by large back bows, and carried white baskets filled with rose petals.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother-in-law, Horace Dixon of Williamston, as best man. The bride's brother, Theodore Malcolm Day, was chief usher, and other ushers were Stuart B. Moore of Washington and Tarboro, Colon W. McLean Jr. and Edward L. Snow, both of Washington.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Day selected a royal blue shantung sheath dress, using blue accessories and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. McGahey chose a yellow-gold silk shantung sheath with short jacket, marked by bone accessories and white orchid corsage.

Following a reception at the church, the new Mrs. McGahey changed for traveling, wearing a beige shantung suit-dress accented by brown accessories. Her costume was complemented by a fur hat and stole, and she wore the white orchid taken from her wedding prayer book.

The bride is a cum laude graduate of Flora Macdonald College, and is listed in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." She is Director of Religious Education at the First Presbyterian Church in Greenville. Mrs. McGahey attended Oak Ridge Military Institute before entering North Carolina State College in Raleigh, and will continue his education at East Carolina College, Greenville.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., Mr. and Mrs. McGahey will reside in Greenville.

Reception
Following the wedding of Miss

Sally Day and Morris McGahey in the First Presbyterian Church here on Sunday afternoon, the Women of the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville entertained with a reception in the Fellowship Hall. Throughout the reception area were arrangements of white gladioli and chrysanthemums, against a background of magnolia clusters and palms.

Upon arrival in the hall, guests were greeted and introduced to the receiving line by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Cratch. Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Day were the bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. McGahey Sr. and members of the wedding party.

The wedding table was laid with pastel green organza, the center marked by an appointment of silver candelabra with lighted white candles and epergnettes of miniature white blossoms. A wreath of greenery interspersed with white flowers encircled the silver punch bowl, and guests served themselves to cheese straws, salted nuts, bridal mints and wedding cake squares, while Mrs. W. H. Gurkin poured punch. Assisting at the table also were Miss Mary Eakes, Miss Brandon McDaniel, Miss Patricia Stapleton, all of Greenville.

During the hour, guests were invited to sign the bride's book by Miss Jeanette McHorney, and goodbyes were said to Dr. and Mrs. J. N. LeConte of Greenville.

ABC Advocates Chip Away At Dry Areas

By REESE HART
RALEIGH (AP)—Advocates of ABC liquor stores have been gradually chipping away at North Carolina's dry areas since 1933. The scored perhaps their biggest victories last year when seven municipalities voted to establish ABC stores. These were Burlington, Sanford, Hertford, Sparta, Jamestown, Long Beach, and Ocean Isle Beach.

Wet forces added another victory recently when Dunn voted in favor of legal liquor sales.

"We like to think that these victories have been scored on their own," said Victor Aldridge, chairman of the State ABC Board. "We do not advocate the use of alcohol, but at the same time we feel that control is the best way to handle the liquor problem."

Aldridge said the ABC system was set up on the theory that whisky should be priced high enough not to attract buyers, yet low enough to discourage bootlegging.

"Control of liquor sales is far better than non-control," he asserted.

The ABC system now has 32 county and 16 municipal units, compared with 17 county units in 1935 when the first stores were established.

North Carolina has not had a statewide liquor referendum since 1908 when dry forces won. For many years the state had a so-called "quart law" under which a person could have one quart of bonded liquor shipped to them from another state.

However, the Turlington Act passed by the 1923 legislature abolished the quart law and made the state bone dry as far as legal liquor sales were concerned.

Carl Wester, veteran auditor for the State ABC Board, recalls that ABC store advocates made their big advance in 1935.

Wet forces sponsored a bill in the 1935 legislative session calling for a statewide liquor referendum. Drys strongly opposed it. The measure died in committee, but late in the session bills were introduced authorizing liquor referendums in New Hanover and Pasquotank counties. Sixteen other counties, 15 in the east, asked to be brought under the bills which won approval.

The 18 counties held elections during the summer of 1935 and all but Rockingham County approved the establishment of ABC stores. Counties voting them in included Beaufort, Carteret, Craven, Edgecombe, Franklin, Greene, Halifax, Lenoir, Martin, Nash, New Hanover, Pasquotank, Pitt, Vance, Warren, Wilson and Washington.

Wester noted it was not until 1937 that state control of the ABC system was set up. The 1937 legislature approved a bill creating the ABC Board and setting up the machinery for counties to hold elections if they desired on the question of establishing liquor stores.

Wester said that nine counties voted in 1937 in favor of legalizing liquor sales — Chowan, Cumberland, Dare, Durham, Johnston, Moore, Onslow, Tyrrell and Wake.

During the 1937 legislative session dry forces sought unsuccessfully to get a statewide election on the liquor question. Similar efforts through the years have been beaten down.

In July, 1940, dry forces presented petitions in Vance, Warren, Franklin, Bertie and Johnston calling for liquor referendums. Of the five, Franklin and Johnston voted out the stores.

The wet-dry picture remained unchanged from 1940 until July, 1947. The 1947 legislature approved a bill by the late Rep. Edwin H. Malone of Franklin authorizing Lenoir and Johnston to hold liquor elections. The two towns voted in favor of establishing ABC stores.

The 1947 session also approved a measure authorizing a referendum in Asheboro, Mecklenburg County and Asheboro voted that year to join the ABC store system.

The 1949 General Assembly enacted bills authorizing liquor elections in Dunn, Hickory, Statesville and Salisbury provided no referendums were held in their counties within 60 days. Catawba and Rowan voted wet, but Iredeil voted dry. Neither Harnett nor Dunn called an election on the question.

It was not until a few weeks ago that Dunn called a referendum under the 1949 act.

Winston-Salem, Greensboro, and the town of Tryon voted in 1951 to have ABC stores. Pamlico County approved them in 1952, followed by Caswell County in 1953.

Wet forces scored victories in Jones County, Clinton and Southport in 1957. Shallotte and Orange County voted in favor of ABC stores in 1959 and Hendersonville followed suit in 1960.

Bobby Kennedy's Tour Is Reviving Speculation

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorney Gen. Robert Kennedy's world tour has revived speculation that sometime later the President's brother may move to the White House to expand his operations as presidential adviser.

Although those accompanying the attorney general have tried to make it clear he isn't armed with specific diplomatic powers, Kennedy has not hesitated to wade directly into ticklish international waters.

Kennedy's blunt weekend declaration to Indonesians that they would be crazy to think the United States will drop its neutral attitude and oppose the Dutch in Indonesia's claim to West New Guinea apparently illustrated the confidence he has that he reflects accurately the President's views.

Republicans already have begun to depict Kennedy's trip as a kind of training mission for him to become what a few of them call a super secretary of state. Others have hinted that the younger Kennedy already is beginning to prepare himself to bid for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960.

While they can only guess about any such developments, the Republicans have shown that they are assaying line-by-line everything the attorney general says.

They obviously are searching for some major boo-boo that goes beyond the attorney general's statement in Jakarta that the 1946-48 war with Mexico was unjustified and not a very bright page in American history.

The Republican National Committee interpreted this as "another startling example of the Kennedy administration's obsession with catering to 'neutralist' opinion."

Texas of both parties howled protests. Some amused Democrats in Congress said that for Kennedy to take on Texas was like taking on the U.S. Marines—you couldn't win. But they didn't regard the matter as more than an incident.

Democratic opinion apparently is divided on whether Kennedy ought to move his advisory shop to the White House. He is in and out of his brother's office almost daily but still has to spend time in the Justice Department.

There was evidence at the time he was named to the post that Kennedy was reluctant to become attorney general, that he was more interested in foreign than legal affairs. There has been subsequent evidence that President Kennedy has had some second thoughts and has wished he had brother at his elbow all the time.

But some Democrats privately contend this would create a "clear it with Bobby" situation in the White House.

Honors Given To Kiwanis Club

Greenville's Kiwanis Club was honored Friday for its sponsorship of the 1962 Pitt Scout District Exposition staged Feb. 10.

Kiwanis President Ed Rawl, who served as general chairman of the elaborate scouting event, received a plaque presented by the county scout organization in behalf of the Kiwanians.

In addition to the plaque, certificates of merit were presented to various Kiwanians who headed specific committees in the Exposition organization.

Friday's speaker, M. E. (Red) Cavendish, urged the Kiwanians to concentrate on building character in today's youth as a deterrent to crime.

Cavendish appeared on the Kiwanis program as a representative of the Greenville Exchange Club's local observance of Crime Prevention Week.

The Greenville attorney advised parents to "encourage children to be helpful around the house, designate responsibilities to them and encourage them to accept those responsibilities."

He called on members of his audience to "freely accept the obligations of parenthood, then be willing to carry them out."

Three Circle K members attended Friday's meeting: Joe Flake, Buddy Wyatt and Benny Bowes. Other guests were Eddy Rawl, Bubba Rawl and Roy Haltheotte.

Pitt Students On Honor Roll

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Thailand and the United States are "in accord" on efforts to settle the Laos crisis peacefully, U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said today.

Kennedy, here on a whirlwind 22½ hour visit during his world tour, spent more than an hour in private conversation with Thai Prime Minister Marshal Sarit Thanarat, with Laos as one of their major topics.

In brief comments to newsmen after the meeting in Sarit's office, Kennedy said, "We are hoping Thailand and the United States—that the matter can be resolved in Laos in a satisfactory manner. We are both in accord on efforts being made" to reach a settlement.

He declined, however, to be pinned down on whether his reference to efforts meant a U.S.-supported move to form a coalition government for Laos under neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma.

Thailand is opposed to such a government, fearful that the pro-Communist Pathet Lao led by Souvanna's half brother, Prince Souphanouvong, would eventually gain control of the neighboring Southeast Asia kingdom bringing a threat to Thai security.

U.S. aid to Thailand—which has totaled $220 million plus $300 million more in military assistance over the past 10 years—was re-with government officials.

Kennedy went from Sarit's office to the residential palace of King Bhumibol Adulyadej and Queen Sirikit, where he was joined by his wife Ethel for a royal audience.

Kennedy and his wife managed to sandwich an hour sightseeing tour of Bangkok's Grand Palace into their tight schedule.

They were accompanied by ambassador and Mrs. Kenneth Todd Young as they strolled through the sunlit courts of the walled-in palace compound, once the seat of the kings of old Siam.

En route here from Jakarta, Kennedy and his wife touched down briefly Sunday night at the South Viet Nam capital of Saigon. He told officials and newsmen there that the United States was standing fast in support of South Viet Nam and President Ngo Dinh Diem, adding that "the U.S. will remain here until we win."

Rain Dominates Weather Picture For Greenville

Rain dominated the weather picture for Greenville today, beginning last night and continuing throughout the day.

Some scattered thunderstorms were expected for the south coast of the state, with warm weather prevailing. The weatherman said it would be clearing tonight and colder, with Tuesday fair and cool.

The five-day forecast predicted rainfall averaging one-half to three-fourths of an inch about Wednesday or Thursday and again on Saturday.

Temperatures were up to 60 degrees at 8 o'clock this morning, John Buck of the Greenville Utilities Plant said. The lowest recorded all night was 47 degrees at midnight. For Sunday the high was 58 and the low was 32 degrees.

Not enough rain fell prior to midnight to be measured at the utilities plant. The Tar River level was 6.1 feet this morning.

Two-Fold Program For Tobacco

Approval by the Department of Agriculture of a plan to help sell inferior tobacco held by the Stabilization Corporation will enhance the competitive position of U.S. tobacco in the world market.

It will put the United States in a position to remove some of the stock of inferior tobacco it has had on hand since 1955 and 1956; it will provide a means of holding foreign customers for American tobacco; and it will pave the way for future tobacco production to more nearly meet the foreign demands for American leaf.

The new Department of Agriculture plan, in effect, will provide a 20 per cent reduction in the foreign sale price of stocks from the 1956 and earlier crops. Approximately 85 per cent of the tobacco eligible under the new program is flue-cured, which means the program will be of greatest importance to flue-cured producers.

In the past decade while tobacco consumption throughout the world has been increasing, the United States' share of the world market in tobacco has dropped from 37.9 per cent to 32.6 per cent. This reflects the fact that the United States is losing foreign markets to competitors, and primarily because it is unable to produce sufficient quantities of the kind of leaf which foreign purchasers can buy at somewhere reasonable prices.

If the situation continues in the future as it has for the past several years, many of the customers of U.S. tobacco will become permanently attached to other sources of leaf and our portion of the world market will continue to decline. Because approximately one-third of our flue-cured tobacco production goes into foreign sales, a continued decline in the world market will be reflected in a decline in tobacco production in this country.

Now that the Department of Agriculture has approved the logical plan for disposing of these stocks of old tobacco, we trust the second phase of the overall plan—a five per cent increase in acreage allotments for this year—will likewise be allowed by the Department. This would afford a further stabilization of U.S. leaf in the world market. It would enable American producers to fill more of the needs of foreign purchasers, and prevent their turning to other sources for tobacco.

At the same time, this modest increase in acreage allotments and production would not, in our opinion, cause a decline in the price being received by producers for their leaf.

Half of this two-fold program has been approved by the Department of Agriculture. The other half should be assured by a prompt announcement by the Department of an increase in acreage allotments of flue-cured leaf for the current year.

Only A Preliminary Study Of City Needs

A tentative outline of the 'immediate needs' of Greenville's recreation program brought to the local Recreation Committee last week points up the fact that considerable funds will have to be spent by the city to meet the needs for public recreation.

The program outlined before the Commission is only a preliminary survey of the needs and possible means of meeting those needs. Even so the preliminary estimates indicated that the cost of meeting the immediate needs would be upwards of half million dollars.

Such a figure tends to make some citizens jump to the conclusion that it is foolish even to contemplate a program of that sort. And yet, if the tentative survey of the needs indicate that the cost of meeting them may be this much, it is well for the citizens to face the reality of the situation.

The study now underway of the recreation needs of Greenville is in its preliminary stages and it will be some time before the final program is outlined in final form for consideration of the Recreation Commission. Whatever the estimated cost of the final program might be, it should not obviate careful consideration of the longrange proposals by the Recreation Commission and other officials.

Only by such longrange planning can an adequate program in future years be assured. And only by implementing such a program year-by-year as conditions permit can we hope to arrive in some future year at the point where Greenville's public recreation facilities will be adequate to meet the needs of the city's population.

Room To Push Credit Buying

One of the worries in 1961 was the hesitancy of consumers to spend. Their income rose month after month but total consumer outlays remained below the level which previous recovery periods indicate as normal. Only in the last month or two of the year did purchasing really increase. This was enough to make retail sales show a slight improvement over 1960, but the rise was small and it was spotty.

Paralleling this spending record was the behavior of installment loans. During the first three quarters of the year there was a decline of this type of credit. In the final three months there was an increase which was large enough to offset the decline in the first nine months. But for the year as a whole the increase was only $575 million as compared with a growth of $3.6 billion in 1960.

Total consumer credit outstanding in the nation is a little over $57 billion. Of this some 75 per cent is installment credit, and of this installment credit about 40 per cent is automobile paper.

The total of automobile installment credit outstanding depends, of course, primarily upon the number of cars sold and the rapidity with which such loans are repaid. Since 1961 was not too favorable from the viewpoint of automobile sales the volume of installment credit tended to be held down. And the public used the occasion to pay off its loans. Even at the end of 1961 the total volume of automobile paper outstanding was $484 million less than a year earlier.

But—and this is the most important point—starting in October the volume of automobile installment credit sharply increased and this was also true in November and December. This was the first time during the year that there were three consecutive months which, on a seasonally adjusted basis, showed an increase of automobile installment paper.

Automobiles are only one of innumerable big-ticket items sold upon an installment basis. The credit extended on these other consumer goods rose $83 million in December, which was one-third more than in November, and the greatest expansion since the second quarter of 1960.

Now there is a limit as to how much consumer credit, including both installment and noninstallment paper, may safely and properly be outstanding. No one knows exactly what this limit is, or just how to determine it. But among those who are regarded as experts in this field, it is not believed that we are close to that maximum. In 1952, for example, consumer credit was about 10 per cent of personal income. Today it is under 8 per cent.

Granting that there is room for substantial further expansion of consumer credit, this recent upward trend is most encouraging. It means that retail sales should continue to improve—not spurt upward, but gradually rise month after month. And this improvement should be pretty well across the board—automobiles, household major appliances, furniture, soft goods, and so forth.

It also means that there is no reason for worry about inadequate purchasing power, and there is no justification for the federal government to increase its spending for the purpose of getting more buying capacity in the hands of consumers. Finally there is no legitimate cause for our Federal Reserve officials to maintain artificially low interest rates.

In fact if the federal government persists in pumping (Continued on page five)

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THAT CITY "God is not ashamed to be called their God, for he hath prepared for them a city" (Hebrews 11:16).

No one knows who wrote this marvelous Epistle to the Hebrews, but whoever it was he had true courage and power. Furthermore, he was a man of vision. His eyes were raised above the furthest horizon, and he had visions of a great heavenly city which God Himself would build. His idea of heaven was that it was a glorious place in which the souls of the departed would find their habitation.

We of this day and age think all too little of heaven, yet from the beginning of Scripture to the end, heaven is spoken about, emphasized, and occasionally described. Heaven is not described in detail, probably because heavenly realities are far beyond the capacity of the human mind to comprehend. But the Bible declares that heaven is indeed more real than this earthly life which we are living all the time. God has prepared for us a city. Some day it will come out of heaven prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. To it the blessed have gone. Its gates await us if we are worthy to enter.

The city—the glorious city—let it never fade out of our mind or conscience. God who is love has built it for you and for me.

The Humane Hunter

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Rob't Kennedy's Travel

Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Henry J. Taylor, against whom I bear no malice and with whom oft on a Tuesday I chat over a viand in good company, regards himself as an authority on international relations, having been Ambassador to Sweden, a lesser country engaged mostly in producing milk-chocolate and providing tax havens.

Harry apparently does not appreciate Bobby Kennedy traveling over Asia and Europe and having a look-see at the doings of diplomats, politicians, merchants, and others who live outside the United States.

Bobby Kennedy, apart from the President's brother and despite such a relationship, is an experienced investigator, having served on the McCarthy Committee and the McClellan Committee of the United States Senate and having written an important book, "The Enemy Within." He has gone through the labor unions of the country, leaving nothing to be discovered that is corrupt and he is now teaching American business that the law must be obeyed, no matter how big the company.

Were he not the President's brother, it would be found satisfactory to send him on a mission of investigation underwritten by a foundation or some other enterprise. Because he is the President's brother political enemies raise the cry of nepotism which gives the impression that only one member of a family is genetically endowed with ability, capacity and imagination. Of the Kennedy brothers, Bobby is to my liking because he fights for many causes that I believe important.

One of the misfortunes of our country is the mismanagement of the State Department and the CIA. The President has to do something about it. President Eisenhower should have done something about it. Therefore a prime investigator, who happens to be Attorney General of the United States, is moving about the world looking at why this country is so badly represented abroad.

Nearly all the Kennedys are on this job and when they come home the President will have first-hand knowledge of what goes.

My good friend, Harry, the erstwhile Ambassador, calls it a "junket." Bobby Kennedy and his wife take the cheers and jeers that now-a-days come to American celebrities. Harry Taylor worries about the cost of this trip. He says:

"The government's spending is colossal. We foot the bill for every penny. Anything that smacks of an idea that a few millions here or there makes little difference is a terrible injustice. It is a symptom of a malaise at the top."

We are throwing away billions of dollars on futile activities. If a prime investigator, which Robert Kennedy is, can discover what is done with this money and why it is being spent, we might not only get a dollar's worth of return for our money but we might even save huge amounts. At any rate, someone is on the job who could discover what Hoffa was up to and who can discover what all the little devils who sit around eating cream-puffs and denouncing their own country, are up to.

This does not mean that there is a quarrel between the President and Secretary of State, Dean Rusk. It does not mean that the President plans to make his brother Secretary of State. It does mean that the President knows that he was misinformed concerning Cuba; that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was misinformed concerning Cuba and that that must not happen again to a President of the United States and a Secretary of State.

Henry Taylor says: "It is especially lamentable that Mr. Kennedy would permit even the slightest impression that he is squandering anything on his brother. Propriety was already strained when he appointed his younger brother Attorney General of the United States in the first place. Hazard To Life At Home

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass., — Competition is the big word in our business world today. This is natural, since healthy and unfettered rivalry is the cornerstone on which our system of free enterprise has been built. With the emergence of super-automated production and super-retailing, there little hope for a company unless it is willing and ready to compete with rivals. Today, however, I want to talk to you about the personal dangers for workers and their families that can arise from cut-throat competition.

HOME AND BUSINESS EQUALLY IMPORTANT

First of all, you should never forget that it is all too easy for business to damage the home life of those who think of absolutely nothing but how to "make a bundle." One of the chief causes of juvenile delinquency is the father who devotes his evenings and week ends to his work instead of to his family. This can easily lead, also, to a kind of "women's auxiliary" of wives who give far more thought to entertaining their husbands' business associates than to tending to their children's physical and emotional needs.

There is no sadder home in America than the one in which the father realizes too late that his son is practically a grown man—and that he (the father) has missed the fun and fury of the whole process. The frenzied pursuit of company business, at the expense of family life, results in a loss to both. Of what value is a man's economic advancement if personal and family values have to go by the board "until later"? That "later" will almost certainly become "too late!"

CHILD GUIDANCE: PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY

Many a father appears to be actually proud of placing his children in one "fine" school after another, so that he can give all his time to his executive work. One man told me not long ago that he has "never had to bother bringing up his children, that a series of good prep schools taught them all they would ever need to know." I asked if the schools taught his youngsters family understanding, and the marvel of mutual need during the growing-up time.

There is no question but that we are moving through a difficult dog-eat-dog business period. But let us not forget that our responsibility to our family is at least as important as our loyalty to our occupation. Guidance centers and mental hospitals are filled with girls and boys who are emotionally unstable because their parents never played with them enough, never shared their recreations enough, never taught them the religious and moral truths that alone can build a strong family unit. When the home ceases to be the focal center of a family, we may well be heading into social anarchy or to a heart attack!

IS "BIG BUSINESS" TO BLAME?

It is a bad sign when a business executive says he does not want his kids to work as hard as he worked. It means, first, that he must have worn himself to a frazzle to get where he is, or he would not be so vehement about it. Second, it undoubtedly means that he is giving his youngsters fat allowances, a fancy education and each an automobile. He feels better that way; it saves him considerable money. Then say that he has given his children "everything." But ask the children. They will tell you that he has not given them what they want most—understanding and companionship.

He has, in fact, paid somebody else to do what he should have done himself, with the loving help of his wife. And this wet-nursing can develop a whole generation of young people who are emotionally undeveloped and self-centered, and who think the world owes them a living. Who is to blame? It is my honest feeling that the pace of today's business has something to do with the situation. (Continued on page five)

Other Editors Saying... Too Much Delay

(Kinston Free Press)
For more than a year Piedmont Airlines has been awaiting approval of the Civil Aeronautics Board of a report of its examiner on the request of the Company to establish North and South air service through Kinston and Eastern Carolina.

The Free Press is glad to see City Attorney Fitzhugh Wallace, Jr. taking the matter up with our Senators and Congressman Fountain. The matter has been brought to their attention before.

As Mr. Wallace states, an effort on the part of Greenville airport to establish an Eastern Carolina Airport somewhere else has not met with any success but it has apparently delayed the decision of the CAB.

The Free Press has often pointed out that Stallings Air Base here in which some $15,000,000 has been invested, is within about 2 miles of the exact geographical center of the eastern third of the State. If the proponents of a central airport really want one and are not primarily interested in getting an airport at their own door, it would appear that it would be sensible and reasonable for them to support Piedmont and Kinston's effort to get North and South service.

HARD, COLD FACTS (Henderson Dispatch)

It is not pleasant for any newspaper to discuss its problems before its readers, who naturally are not greatly interested, since they have enough of their own. But some trends across the country might be enlightening.

A recent survey made by the American Newspaper Publishers Association revealed that 130 daily newspapers increased their single copy price to ten cents in 1961, for a total of 414 that are now charging that figure. In 1951, ten years ago, ninety percent of daily newspapers were selling at five cents; in 1961 less than half that many were still charging five cents a copy. In between were many that are selling at six, seven and eight cents.

This comment is not made here as a forerunner of a price increase of the Daily Dispatch. The line will be held as long as possible at the present five cents level. There is, of course, a limit beyond which it will be impossible to move and stay in business. It is hoped that time will not come soon.

But the trend over the country as a whole is very evident, and is the result of consistently mounting costs of production. The number of daily newspapers selling in the low price field is constantly declining, and there are far fewer of them today than ever before.

White paper on which your newspaper is printed is by no means the whole cost of production, even as to printing. Numerous other items enter into the picture, and all are advancing in price to the publication.

More Spending On New Products

By ELMER ROESSNER

Industry will this year spend more than ever before in developing new products. More and more, new products are becoming the area of growth in American business.

Many of the older products have leveled off. Automobile, radio, television, refrigerator and many other lines are being produced at little more than the replacement level, tempered by rises and falls of the economic curve. The old surges in sales of many products have died down. While there may not be any such thing as true saturation, many products are approaching that limit.

But in new products may be the magic that opens new markets. In recent years, hi-fi and stereophonic equipment, recording devices, compact cars, fiber glass boats and new drugs are only a few of the new or sensationally improved devices that have built multimillion-dollar markets.

HUGE INVESTMENT
Figures on the investment in developing new products are not sharp. One estimate is that corporations spent about $5 billion last year on research and development. This does not include the amount spent by individuals and partnerships, by universities, government and institutions. The total may have been closer to $10 billion.

These facts are more impressive. One out of eight American businesses got its start with a single new product.

About 35 per cent of the Gross National Product comes from products that were unknown 15 years ago.

One authority estimates that five years from now 70 per cent of the money spent for health and beauty aids will go for products now unknown.

More than $1 billion a year is being spent to test new products on the market after development.

There are other sources of new products and new ideas.

The National Patent Development Corp., 375 Park Ave., New York 22, with Jess Larson, former General Service Administrator, was organized a little over a year ago to serve as a catalyst between patent holders and manufacturers. It was organized to search out the hundreds of thousands of patents and new ideas and to channel them to businesses, many of which do not know of their existence.

The Small Business Administration, Washington 25, D. C., publishes a monthly "Products List Circular" listing private and government patents available.

The Office of Technical Services, Washington 25, D. C., lists government-owned patents—largely technical—available for use on a royalty-free, non-exclusive basis.

Hamilton Herman, director of research and development for American Machine & Foundry they are eager to license to other companies. AMF, in fact, bought its automatic bowling pin setter patents from an inventor who worked for a paper company. And every Keeler knows the millions this has brought into AMF.

Search of patent office files also yields possible new products. So does close reading of technical magazines and idea-catalyst between patent holders and manufacturers. It was organized to search out the hundreds of thousands of patents and new ideas and to channel them to businesses, many of which do not know of their existence.

Employees, too, are a fertile source of ideas. Many suggestion plans have yielded fine results. In fact, ideas can come from anywhere—customers, professors, or housewives struggling to open a bottle.

UNCLE SAM ASKS WHAT DOES 'BARBECUE' MEAN?

Present regulations provide that meat labeled "barbecued" must be cooked by dry heat from burning hardwood or hardwood coals. A packer has asked that meat cooked by infrared heat also be called barbecued. The U. S. Department of Agriculture will accept protests or approvals up to Feb. 24. (Continued on page five)

GOP Ranks Increase In State, But Demos Keep Pace

HEART TAG SATURDAY . . . was conducted over the weekend in conjunction with the 1962 Heart Fund Drive. Above, Dianne Nesbitt of Black Mountain, Carol Barrett and Nancy Compton of Sanford, members of Alpha Phi Sorority at East Carolina College, set out to make collections for the heart fund. Lt. McGowan and Sgt. Warren of the Greenville Police Department appear with them.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
If North Carolina's Republican Party can maintain a trend of recent years, its representation on the voter registration books is in for a swelling when full registration begins for the 1962 elections.

But unless the minority party can stir up even more interest than in the past, its increase in registration won't outgrow that of the Democrats. The GOP no longer has the prestige of holding the national administration offices, and it lacks national and state patronage. These factors may weigh heavily against it in attempting to increase its voter registration.

These points are deduced from a survey by member newspapers of The Associated Press, who investigated the trend in counties across the state.

So far, few Republicans have announced for county and city offices in this year's elections. But Republican leaders throughout the state say Democratic candidates in several counties will have GOP opposition.

If so, the General Assembly's 1961 sales tax on food is in for some severe tongue-lashings. Dr. Daniel McFarland, a member of the GOP's State Platform Committee, says that will be the party's main issue.

There was no question in his mind that the Tar Heel Republicans are of the conservative type. "In eastern North Carolina I think it is true that Republican party members are 100 per cent Gold-water fans," he said.

At High Point, which Gov. Terry Sanford called the "worst Republican town in the state" during the 1960 campaign, Township GOP Chairman John Eshelman echoed McFarland's comments on the food tax and added, "We also blame the Democratic machine for the lieutenant governor-mess."

He referred to the vacancy in the state's second highest office, created by the death last August of Lt. Gov. H. Cloyd Philpott. The question of how the office should be filled is in the courts.

High Point was one place where Republican registration percentage is actually outgrowing Democratic registration. The GOP has 36.6 more names on the High Point books now than it did two years ago. The figures are 5,396 Republicans now, 3,952 in 1960.

At the same time, Democratic registration in High Point increased only 19.9 per cent, 13,981 to 16,718.

Forsyth County had a similar situation. In November, 1961, the last complete tally of the registration books, the Republicans gained 2,887 for a total of 15,343, a 23 per cent increase. Democratic registration totaled 64,386, an 8 per cent gain.

In Durham County last fall, the GOP had a registration of 3,519. A year before it had 3,871. The Democrats had 53,940 last fall, a loss of about 1,000 from the previous year.

Most of the Republican gain in Wake County came in 1960, and dropped off last year. The current GOP registration is 4,601. In May, 1960, it was 3,418 and in November, 1960, it was 4,594, a six-month gain of over 1,000.

Meanwhile, the registered Democrats in and around the capital city gained from 48,815 in May, 1960, to 54,584.

In Henderson, the Vance County, Board of Elections estimated the total Republican registration at 650, a 10 per cent gain over two years ago, and 5 per cent of the total registration of 13,000.

Gaston County is discarding its old registration books, and a completely new registration is to start April 21. The GOP is holding precinct meetings and urging voters to switch from Democrat to Republican.

In Buncombe County, the last general election showed these registrations: Democrats 43,739; Republicans 12,654; Independents 1,038, and non-affiliates 128.

An increase of about 3 per cent in registered Republicans was estimated in Alamance County in the last two years.

In Mecklenburg County, GOP registration from November, 1960 to December, 1961, remained at about 18,500. Democratic registration edged from 87,502 to 87,721.

The following tables show how North Carolina voted in the last five presidential election years for president and for governor:

Dancing masqueraders and decorated coaches paraded for hours through principal Havana streets. Every Saturday and Sunday will be carnival day until March 18, the broadcast said.

Sen. Hayden Looks Back On 50 Years In Congress

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Carl Hayden, who swapped his Western sheriff's badge for a seat in Congress five days after Arizona became a state, today becomes the first man to serve as a member of Congress for 50 years.

The 84-year-old Democrat, third in line of succession to the presidency, was sworn into the House of Representatives Feb. 19, 1912. After 15 years as Arizona's only representative in the House, Hayden moved to the Senate in 1927.

Today he is dean of the Senate and the Congress. However, he is little known outside Washington because he resolutely shuns publicity and rarely speaks in public.

Hayden was asked in a recent interview to name his greatest accomplishment.

Hayden identifies as his biggest piece of unfinished business the authorization and construction of a billion-dollar federal irrigation project for central Arizona.

Hayden was born Oct. 2, 1877 at Hayden's Ferry, now Tempe. His father had founded the settlement.

Hayden was educated in the public schools of Tempe and Stanford University, where he met his future wife, Nan Downing, whom he married in 1908. Mrs. Hayden died last June.

He was elected treasurer of Maricopa County in 1904 and was sheriff from 1907 to 1912.

Hayden concedes that his performance as a sheriff in the pioneer West would be a disappointment to TV Western fans.

"I never shot at anyone and nobody ever shot at me," he said.

"The nearest I came to shooting anyone was the day I identified a horse thief who was described as badly wanted in Utah, Colorado and Wyoming.

"I found him standing at a bar. I stuck my gun in his back and took his pistol away from him."

Hayden said he could only jail the suspect for 10 days on a concealed weapons charge while he notified law officers in the other states.

Hayden said, "They weren't interested enough to come get him. So I turned him loose. I told him: 'As long as you don't steal any horses in Arizona, it's all right with me.'"

Specializing in roads, Hayden deplored the lack of a definite plan for a network of roads covering the whole United States. He recalls that he told state highway commissioners meeting in Washington to go home and work out something for a national system.

"They did that," Hayden said. "And the result is the fine system we have today."

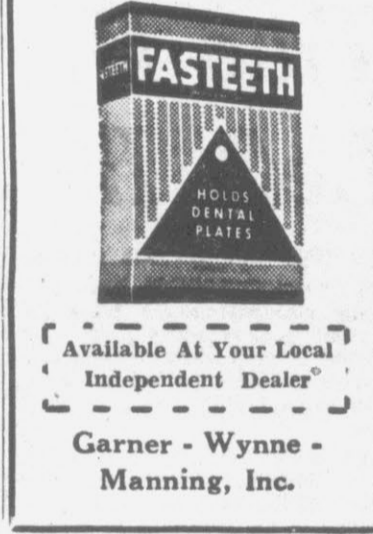

Although he frequently has been pictured as the "silent senator," Hayden admits to having participated in two filibusters.

In 1928, he and his Arizona Senate colleague, Henry Fountain Ashurst, blocked Senate action for about a month on legislation to authorize the construction of Boulder, (now Hoover) Dam. The bill passed in the next session after concessions to Arizona on water rights.

In another two-day talkfest, Hayden recalled, he caused a Georgia senator to drop efforts to obtain a vote on a bill to forbid the importation of Mexican farm

Windblown Snow And Sleet Move Into Northeast Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Crippling wind-blown snow and sleet storms which battered the Midwest over the weekend, leaving a blanket of up to two feet of snow and sheets of ice, blustered into the Northeast today.

Effects of the damaging weather in the eight-state storm belt from the Dakotas to Michigan were widespread. Some areas were virtually paralyzed.

Thirty-one inches of snow covered Sioux Falls, S.D., as the heaviest snow of the season swept eastern South Dakota and southwestern Minnesota.

The storms spread into areas in North Dakota, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois and Michigan. They moved into northern Indiana and Ohio and headed northeastward, with heavy snowfall indicated in the northeastern upper lakes to Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

The violent wintry weather which whipped across the nation's midlands from the Rockies created monumental traffic jams.

Thousands of motorists were temporarily stranded as strong winds whipped the snow into high drifts on highways and streets.

Traffic was sharply curtailed. Many schools called off classes today. Church services were cancelled in many areas Sunday.

Hundreds of secondary roads were blocked. Travel in southern Minnesota was virtually halted. Many airports in Minnesota and South Dakota were closed.

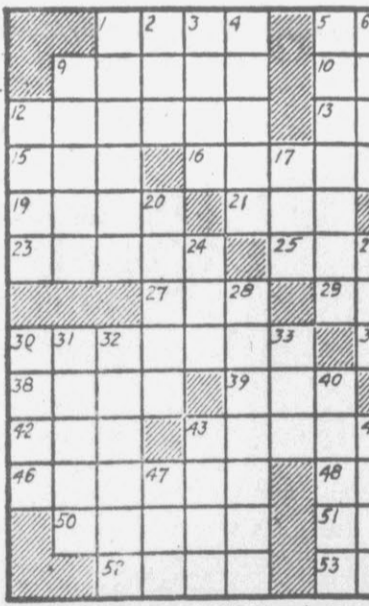

In Wisconsin, up to 150 cars were stalled on a single highway in Sheboygan and Ozaukee counties.

EC Downs Bulldogs In Late Rally 61-60

By CHARLES VAUGHAN
Reflector Sports Writer

WILSON — The East Carolina Pirates successfully staged a last minute rally Saturday night to defeat the Atlantic Christian Bulldogs, 61-60.

A victory by the Bucs and a loss by Western Carolina would have placed East Carolina in second place in the conference.

However, Western Carolina defeated Elon in a close battle to hold on to the second spot in the league and East Carolina is third.

Bucs On Defensive

The Pirates, who were on the defensive most of the night, had to overcome a 14-point deficit in the last half to defeat the Bulldogs. East Carolina missed only three free throws in the contest and two of these misses were in the last minute of the game.

As important as these foul shots were, East Carolina managed to hold Atlantic Christian scoreless for the last two minutes of the game which made their one point advantage enough for the win.

With only two seconds remaining in the contest, the Bulldogs had a chance to upset the Pirates. Jack Hussey, a senior who was playing his last game for Atlantic Christian, attempted a 15-foot jump shot. However, the shot was unsuccessful and there was no chance for a follow-up by the Bulldogs as Bill Otte collected the rebound.

Bulldogs Take Lead

East Carolina controlled the ball at the start of the game and immediately went ahead of the Bulldogs, 2-0. However, Atlantic Christian rallied to surge in front of the Bucs 17-11 with twelve minutes left in the first half. The Bulldogs were able to maintain their advantage over their opponents for the next eight minutes of play.

With four minutes remaining in the first stanza, Lacy West hit the nets for the Pirates to send them in the lead 25-23. However, the Bulldogs were not ready to fall behind the sharp-shooting Bucs. Atlantic Christian overtook the Pirates in the last minute of the half and scored three times in succession to take a 33-27 halftime lead.

14-Point Lead For AC

Atlantic Christian returned to the court in the second half to immediately take full control of the contest. After six minutes of the second stanza, the Bulldogs had increased their advantage over the Pirates to fourteen points, 46-32. Co-captain Benny Bowes then started the Bucs on their successful comeback with eleven minutes remaining in the game.

East Carolina rallied to outscore the Bulldogs 13-3 in the next four minutes which pulled the Bucs within two points of Atlantic Christian. Co-captain Charlie Lewis then sank a pair of free throws for the Pirates to tie the score 49 all.

Lead Changes

However, the lead changed hands six times in the last seven minutes of play. Jack Hussey sent the Bulldogs in the lead 60-59 with two minutes remaining in the contest. Bill Otte, East Carolina's high scoring sophomore, then sank two free throws that put the Pirates out in front for the victory.

Atlantic Christian missed several opportunities to overtake the Bucs, and East Carolina passed up a chance to increase their lead by missing two free throws. However, the Pirates did not need a wider margin to win as they held the Bulldogs scoreless for the remainder of the ball game.

Otte High Scorer

The Pirates placed four men in double figures for the night. Bill Otte led all scorers with eight field goals and three free throws for a total of 19 points. Billy Brodgen, East Carolina freshman, hit the nets for 12 points, while teammates Lacy West and Charlie Lewis scored ten points each.

Ray Smith led the Bulldogs in the scoring department with a total of 19 tallies. Jack Hussey and John Eskew scored 16 and 12 points respectively for Atlantic Christian in their losing effort.

Pirates Host Guilford

The contest was the last game of the season for the Bulldogs, while the Bucs have one more conference game. East Carolina meets Guilford tonight on the Pirates home court to close their regular season competition.

Should East Carolina win tonight, the Pirates will tie Western Carolina in the regular season standings, but the tournament pairings were made up yesterday so the Bucs had to settle for third place. The Pirates will play fifth place Catawba at 7:30 Thursday night in the Carolinas Conference tournament at Lexington.

Baylor Helped Lakers Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pvt. Elgin Baylor, U. S. Army, probably is looking forward today to getting back to some nice quiet military maneuvers — the ones where he crawls through a swamp under live ammunition.

Baylor got a taste of the calm civilian life Sunday when he helped the Los Angeles Lakers to a 125-99 victory over the Boston Celtics in a National Basketball Association game.

During the game: 1. Boston's Tommy Heinsohn was bashed by a stray elbow and suffered a mild concussion and a bruise under his left eye.

2. Boston coach Red Auerbach took a swing at a photographer and had to be restrained by referee Willy Smith.

3. The harassed Smith had to warn Auerbach for protesting too vigorously on a call.

4. Los Angeles' Rudy Larusso and Boston's Bob Cousy got in a fist fight during the first minute of play over a loose ball. Both benches emptied but no one was thrown out.

Baylor tended strictly to business and led the Lakers with 38 points.

In other games, the Syracuse Nationals defeated the New York Knicks 141-126 and the Cincinnati Royals downed the Chicago Packers, 138-121, in a double-header at Syracuse, and the Detroit Pistons rolled to a 119-112 decision over the St. Louis Hawks in Detroit.

Dieting And More Training

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A husky young Florida A&M university sophomore who thinks he can run 100 yards in 9 seconds flat is in for some dieting and more training.

Robert Hayes, who tied the world's record of 9.2 seconds in a meet at the University of Miami Saturday, said, "I think I can beat that time." He expressed confidence he eventually will run the distance in 9 seconds. "I think the fact that he tied the record will give him the determination to break it," said Pete Griffin, who coaches the Florida A&M football line and the track team.

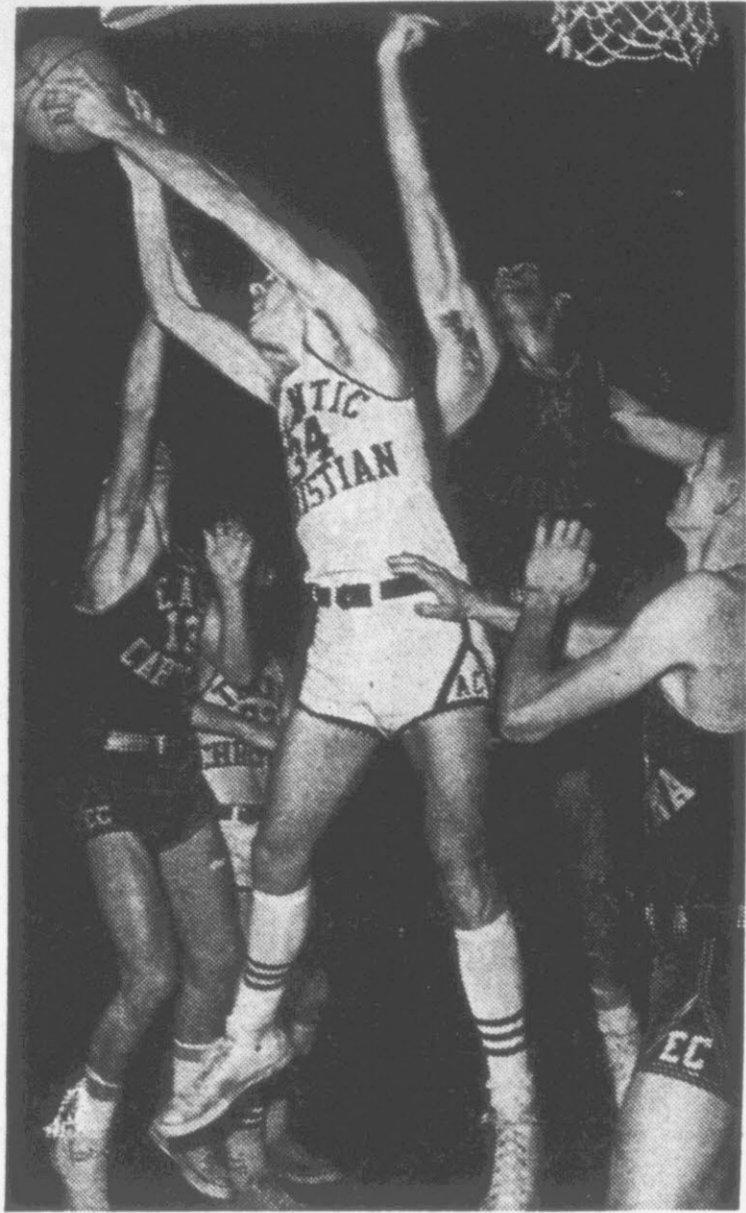

"He has the potential to break the record. Now he has the determination to do it. His 182 pounds is a little heavy, so we will watch his diet carefully. He needs to take off a few pounds." The 19-year-old Negro from Jacksonville, who stands 5-feet 11, equalled the record set by Frank Budd of Villanova in New York on June 24, 1961.

Caribbean Golf Tour In Caracas

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP) — The Caribbean golf tour heads for Caracas today with young George Knudson of Canada and Jim Ferree of Crystal River, Fla., established as the players to beat. Knudson, who wound up three strokes back when Ferree won the Caribbean's opening event, the Panama Open, on Feb. 11, captured the second leg of the five-part tour Sunday. He beat Ferree in a sudden death playoff after they had finished the regulation 72-hole distance tied at 296. Both players parred the first extra hole but Knudson birdied No. 2 and won the $1,500 first prize.

Ronnie Thomas of Burlington, N.C., was not among the leaders. The $10,000 Caracas Open begins Thursday and continues through Sunday.

The Chicago Cubs have a new working agreement with San Antonio of the Texas League.

Two Berths Are Left In S. Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southern Conference basketball teams start the final week of the regular season today with two berths in next week's championship tournament still up for grabs and three teams trying to grab 'em.

Richmond, 5-8 in conference play; William and Mary, 4-10, and The Citadel, 3-8, are the ones involved in the scramble to escape the basement — a scramble that won't be settled until Saturday night.

Richmond needs only one victory to nail down a spot in the eight-team tourney opening March 1 at the Richmond Arena. They have three chances to get it this week — at Furman tonight, at Davidson Tuesday, and at W&M on Saturday.

By contrast, W&M has two conference games left — at George Washington Tuesday, at home against Richmond Saturday night — and The Citadel has just one. It's on Saturday when the Cadets entertain Davidson.

Teams already certain to be in the tournament are West Virginia (11-1), Virginia Tech (8-3), Furman (7-4), George Washington (5-6), Davidson (4-5) and VMI (6-8). George Washington won the championship last year.

Seven conference games this week doubtless will give the current standings a new look, though no change is anticipated in the 1-2-3 order at the top: West Virginia, Virginia Tech, and Furman.

Richmond's game at Furman is the only one scheduled for a conference team tonight.

The Paladins' Jerry Smith, conference scoring leader with a 27.3-point average for 24 games, hit a career high of 40 points last Saturday night when Furman trounced Wofford, 95-69, in a non-conference bout.

The biggest noise, however, was at Williamsburg, where W&M hit the century mark in scoring for the first time this season in its romp past well-regarded VMI. Virginia Tech, 16-5 over — all came from behind to whip Richmond 76-69 Saturday night at the arena.

West Virginia's regular-season champs lifted their over-all mark to 19-5 with an 86-72 win at Syracuse.

Petty Lodges Protest; Officials Meet Today

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — NASCAR officials scheduled a meeting today to determine whether Glenn (Fireball) Roberts or Richard Petty won Sunday's rich Daytona 500 mile stock car race.

Roberts, of Daytona Beach, crossed the finish line first in his Pontiac 27 seconds ahead of Petty but Petty lodged a protest.

The Randleman, N.C., driver, who drove a Plymouth, claimed that Roberts used too many men to service his car on the last pit stop.

Regardless of who is adjudged winner, a world's record will have been set for a continuous 500-mile auto race.

Roberts toured the track, which has steeply banked turns, at an average speed of 152.529 miles an hour. The old mark of 149.601 was set in last year's Daytona 500 by Marvin Panch of Daytona Beach.

Following Petty's Plymouth across the finish line were Joe Weatherly, Norfolk, in a 1962 Pontiac; Jack Smith, Spartanburg, in a 1962 Pontiac; and Fred Lorenzen, Elmhurst, Ill., in a 1962 Ford.

Rounding out the top 10 in order were David Pearson, Spartanburg, 1961 Pontiac; Rex White, Spartanburg, 1962 Chevrolet; Edwin (Babe) Matthews, Asheville, 1962 Pontiac; Ned Jarrett, Newton, N.C., 1962 Chevrolet; and Bob Welborn, Greensboro, 1962 Pontiac.

First place was worth more than $21,000. Other purses brought the total for the race to approximately $106,000, making it the richest stock car race ever.

Another record was set when more than 62,000 persons jammed into the Speedway. Speedway President Bill France said it was the largest crowd ever to attend one of his races here.

Roberts, a favorite in any stock car race he enters, was in the lead 144 of the 200 laps but he had rough competition most of the way. In the early stages Junior Johnson of Ronda, N.C., fought a hubcap to hubcap duel with Roberts for the front spot.

When Johnson's car went out with mechanical difficulties at around the 175-mile mark, Petty became the top challenger.

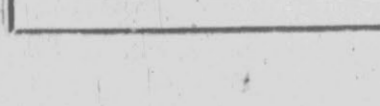

There were several accidents, but only one driver, Elzie (Buck) Baker of Charlotte was hospitalized. Doctors said he cracked three ribs when his big Chrysler ripped into a retaining fence. The race was run without use of the caution flag.

Other top contenders who were forced out with mechanical difficulties included Nelson Stacy of Daytona Beach; Bobby Johns of Miami; Cotton Owens of Spartanburg; Bobby Burdick of Omaha; and Panch.

Third Place EC Draws Catawba In First Round

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

By formula, tournament seedings are supposed to offer the top-rated teams the best chance to play each other for the championship, by matching them in the early stages of the tournament with much weaker teams.

But seedings determined Sunday for the Carolinas Conference championship basketball tournament this week seem to leave things pretty much of a horse race.

Here's how things line up:
Upper bracket, Wednesday night:
7:30 p.m., Elon 4 vs. Pfeiffer 7; 9:15, Lenoir Rhyne 1 vs. High Point 5.

Lower bracket, Thursday night:
7:30 p.m., East Carolina 3 vs. Catawba 5; 9:15, Western Carolina 2 vs. Appalachian 8.

The pairings for the Feb. 21-24 tournament at Lexington, N. C., determined by lot, resulted in fairly even matches. In three of four cases, the two teams paired split their regular season games with each other. In only one case was there a regular season sweep-and in that instance it was fifth-ranked Catawba which won both games with third-place East Carolina. Or take another example: Lenoir Rhyne needed two overtimes Saturday night to defeat its first round opponent, High Point, 98-92.

Semifinals will be played Friday night, finals Saturday at 8 p.m.

There are two No. 5 teams because High Point and Catawba tied at the end of the regular season. Guilford is at East Carolina tonight in the one remaining conference game, but it can't affect the pairings. Here is how the teams ranked after Saturday night's games, with conference and overall records:

Lenoir Rhyne 14-4, 17-8; Western Carolina 12-6, 18-8; East Carolina 11-6, 14-10; Elon 9-7, 18-9; High Point 11-9, 12-11; Catawba 11-9, 13-12; Pfeiffer 9-9, 17-10; Newberry, 4-4, 13-12; Appalachian 9-11, 10-13; Atlantic Christian 3-15, 6-18; Guilford 2-15, 7-18.

Newberry did not play enough conference games in this, its first year in the league, to qualify for a tournament berth. The Indians will play in the South Carolina Little Four tournament.

Results of Saturday night games: East Carolina 61, Atlantic Christian 60; Lenoir Rhyne 98, High Point 92 double overtime; Catawba 97, Appalachian 77; Western Carolina 54, Elon 53; Pfeiffer 75, College of Charleston 56; Campbell 86, Guilford 69.

Record Set By Phants

CHAPEL HILL — The Rose Chapel High School Swimming team set a new state high school record in the time trials of the Interscholastic Meet here Saturday.

The Phantom 300 yard freestyle relay team consisting of Jehu Taff, Don Pierce, Tom Arthur and Buddy Waters set the new mark at 1:39.3. However, in the meet the team failed to place, but the record still stands.

Phantom swimmer Don Pierce also set a new state high school record in the time trials for the 100 yard backstroke with 1:05, but this mark was broken in the meet.

The Interscholastic Meet was won by Georgia Military Academy with 57 points. Staunton Military came in second with 37 points and Myers Park High School of Charlotte was third with 33 points.

The next meet for the Phantom tankmen will be Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock when they host the Needham Broughton Caps of Raleigh.

Nine games are on this week's Atlantic Coast Conference basketball card, winding up the regular season. And there's room for shuffling among the leaders heading into the March 1-3 ACC tournament at Raleigh.

Wake Forest, North Carolina State and Duke were one-two-three on games through Saturday, but if the Blue Devils come through as expected in one of tonight's two games, they will pull into a second place tie with State at 10-3.

Leading with a 10-2 margin, Wake Forest has two more games, including a Wednesday showdown with N.C. State. Duke also has two games, playing host to last place Virginia (1-10) tonight, while Maryland (3-8) is at North Carolina.

South Carolina came out of the weekend pair of North-South doubleheaders in Charlotte with a 6-6 fourth place tie with North Carolina, winning one and losing one. Clemson fell further behind at 2-9 on the strength of its two defeats. In Friday night's action, N.C. State skinned by South Carolina 76-75, while North Carolina overcame Clemson 69-59. State squeezed by again Saturday night, nipping Clemson 73-71 as the final buzzer sounded, while South Carolina's Gamecocks won handily over the Tar Heels, 97-82.

In other Saturday action, Wake Forest defeated Maryland 81-78, and Duke beat Navy 91-72 in a regionally televised game.

It's mathematically possible for the three leaders—Wake Forest, N.C. State and Duke—to wind up in a season-end first place tie. Since final standings determine the tournament pairings, a three-way knot would result in the usual tie-breaking coin-toss, but, in this instance, only to determine second and third place.

Wake Forest, as defending champion, would be top seeded. Duke and State would flip for No. 2 and No. 3 seed. However, they would be in the same bracket, and the flip would determine only their first round opponent.

This week's schedule:
Tonight — Duke at Virginia; Maryland at North Carolina.

Tuesday — South Carolina at Clemson.

Wednesday — Virginia at Maryland; Wake Forest at N.C. State.

Thursday — No games.

Friday — Clemson at Virginia.

Saturday — Duke at North Carolina; Clemson at Maryland; South Carolina at Wake Forest.

CHAPTER 31

The interior of the Manta was incredibly roomy. Preceded by the officer of the watch, a young man of about twenty-eight, James Bond and Felix Leiter went down two decks. The air (70 degrees with 46 per cent humidity, explained the officer) was beautifully cool. At the bottom of the stairs he turned left and knocked on a door that said "Commander P. Pedersen, U. S. N."

The captain looked about forty. He had a square, rather Scandinavian face with a black crew-cut just going gray. He had shrewd, humorous eyes but a dangerous mouth and jaw. He was sitting behind a neatly stacked metal desk smoking a pipe. There was an empty coffee cup in front of him and a signal pad on which he had just been writing. He got up and shook hands, waved them to two chairs in front of his desk, and said to the officer of the watch, "Coffee, please, Stanton. And have this sent, would you?" He tore the top sheet off the signal pad and handed it across. "Most immediate."

He sat down. "Well, gentlemen. Welcome aboard. Commander Bond, it's a pleasure to have a member of the Royal Navy visit the ship."

He looked at Leiter. "What's the score? Haven't had such a flood of Top Secret Most Immediate since Korea. I don't mind telling you, the last one was from the Chief of the Navy, Personal Staff I was to consider myself under your orders, or, on your death or incapacity, under Commander Bond's until Admiral Carlson arrives at 1900 this evening. What's cooking? All I know is that all signals have been prefixed Operation Thunderball. What is this operation?"

Leiter told his story down to the departure of Largo's amphibian at one-thirty and the instructions Bond had given to Domino Vitali.

Commander Pedersen sat back, reached for his pipe and began filling it absent-mindedly. He said, "Well, that's one hell of a story. What are we to do? As I see it, the idea of you gentlemen is that this man Largo will be coming back any minute now in his plane after picking up the bombs from where he hid them. If he's got the bombs, and on what you've told me I'll go along with the probability that he has, this girl will give us the tip-off. Then we close in and arrest his ship or blow it out of the water. Right? But supposing he hasn't got the bombs on board, or for one reason or another we don't get the tip-off, what do we do then?"

Bond said quietly, "We follow him, sit close on his tail, until the time limit, that's about twenty-four hours from now, is up. That's all we can do without causing one hell of a legal stink. When the time limit's up, we can hand the whole problem back to our governments and they can decide what to do with the 'Disco and the sunken plane and all the rest. By that time, some little man in a speedboat we've never heard of may have left one of the bombs off the coast of America and Miami may have gone up in the air. Or there may be a big bang somewhere else in the world."

"There's been plenty of time to take those bombs off the plane and get them thousands of miles from here. Well, that'll be too bad and we'll have muffed it. But at this moment we're in the position of a detective watching a man he thinks is going to commit a murder. Doesn't even know for sure whether he's got a gun on him or not. There's nothing the detective can do but follow the man and wait until he actually pulls the gun out of his pocket and points it. Then, and only then, the detective can shoot the man or arrest him."

Bond turned to Leiter. "Isn't that about it, Felix?"

"That's how it figures. And Captain, Commander Bond here and I are damn sure Largo's our man and that he'll be sailing for his target in no time at all. That's why we agreed to panic and ask you along. One gets you a hundred he'll be placing that bomb at night and tonight's the last night he's got. By the way, Captain, have you got steam up, or whatever the atom boys call it?"

"I have, and we can be under way in just about five minutes." The captain shook his head. "But there's one bit of bad news for you gentlemen. I just can't figure how we're going to keep track of the 'Disco.'"

"How's that?" Leiter asked. "You've got the speed, haven't you?"

The captain smiled. "Guess so. Guess we could give her a good race on a straight course, but you gentlemen don't seem to have figured on the navigational hazards in this part of the ocean."

He pointed at the British Admiralty chart on the wall. "Take a look at that. Ever seen a chart with so many figures on it? Looks like a spilled ants' nest. Those are soundings, gentlemen, and I can tell you that unless the Disco sticks to one of the deep-water channels—Tongue of the Ocean, Northwest Providence Channel, or the Northeast—we've had it."

"All the rest of that area?" he waved a hand—"may look the same blue color on the map, but after your trip in that Grumman Goose you know darned well it isn't the same blue color. Darned near the whole of that area is banks and shoal with only around three to ten fathoms over it. If I was quite crazy and looking for a nice cozy job shore, I'd take the ship along surfaced in ten fathoms—if I could bribe the navigator and seal off the echo-sounder from crew members."

"But even if we get a long spell of ten fathoms on the chart," you got to remember that's an old chart, dates back to the days of sail, and these banks have been shifting for more than fifty years since it was drawn up. Then there's the tides that set directly onto and off the banks, and the coral outcroppings that won't show up on the echo-sounder until you hear the echo of them smashing up the hull or the screw."

The captain turned back to his desk. "No, gentlemen. This Italian vessel was darned well chosen. With that hydrofoil device of hers, she probably doesn't draw more than a fathom. If she chooses to keep to the shallows, we just haven't got a chance. And that's flat."

The captain looked from one to another of them. "Want me to call up the Navy Department and have Fort Lauderdale take over with those fighter bombers you've got on call—get them to do a shadowing job?"

The two men looked at each other. Bond said, "She won't be showing lights. They'll have the hell of a job picking her up at night. What do you say, Felix? Maybe we'd better call them out even if it's only to keep some sort of watch off the American coast. Then, if the Captain's willing, we'll take the Northwest Channel—if the Disco sails, that is—and bank on the Bahamas Rocket Station being Target No. 1."

Felix Leiter ran his left hand through the mop of straw-colored hair. "Darnmit," he said angrily. "Hell, yes, I suppose so. We're looking fools enough already bringing the Manta on stage. What's a squadron of planes? Sure, we've just got to back our hunch that it's Largo and the Disco."

C-of-C To Aid Ass'n Program

A Chamber of Commerce committee will work with the Merchants Association on plans for Pitt Mental Health Association workshop concerning recognition of people with mental or emotional problems. Chamber board members voted Friday night to appoint a committee which will work with the Merchants Association. The committee will be appointed by Chamber president John Ray Hardy.

Action was taken as the result of a letter from Frank G. Fuller, president of the Mental Health Association, proposing such a workshop for employers. He pointed out that costs of the workshop will be absorbed by the Mental Health Association.

The Chamber board also adopted the budget Friday night, approved an activities program and made committee appointments.

They learned that Greenville had lost out in its bid for the spring meeting of the State Board of Conservation and Development. The meeting will be held in New Bern.

Honks Bring Out Humane Society

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP)—Folks complained about the honking so the Humane Society picked up the culprits—a Canadian goose and four wild ducks. The fowls were jailed, so to speak, under the city leash law for pets. A bird lover anonymously hired attorney Ramon Poltevin to go to bat for the goose. The lawyer told police his client's detention violated the U.S. Migratory Bird Act. They were ahead of him. "Mr. Poltevin," he says they told him Saturday, "We're gonna loose your goose." "That's ducky," he replied. The goose soared off where the wild goose goes. But his four feathered buddies, without a friend at court, are still jailed birds. Said a sympathizer. "It's a fowl blow."

Adlai's Son Is On Honeymoon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—John Fell Stevenson, 25, youngest son of Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, is on his honeymoon today with his bride of two days, the former Natalie Raymond Owings, 22. The couple was married Saturday in a 15-minute private ceremony at the Big Sur, Calif., home of the bride's father, architect Nathaniel A. Owings. The ambassador to the United Nations was best man. John's brothers, Adlai III and Borden, were ushers. The couple's honeymoon destination was given only as South America. The couple will settle in San Francisco on their return. He is in real estate development. His tall, slender, brunette bride is an artist.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

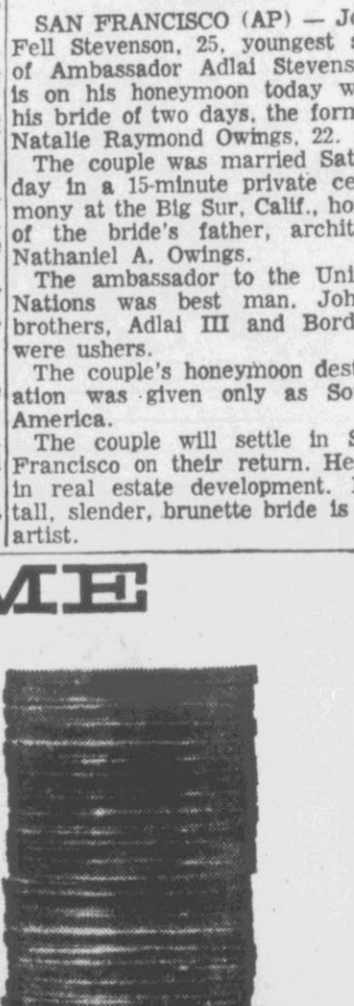

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®, At all drug counters.

The Farm Scene

By S. C. WINCHESTER

Should you sign up for the 1962 Feed Grain Program? There are several questions you will want to consider in deciding this matter...

1. How would diverted acreage affect your income? You probably want to do some figuring on this question. You have probably received from the county ASCS office a notification of your base acreage (1959-60 average acreage) for corn and grain sorghum. Then compare the normal yield established for your farm with the rate of production you might expect if feed grains were planted in 1962.
2. Do you have storage (farm or commercial) to qualify for price support loans? If so, are the county price supports above the price you expect grain to sell for on the open market? Since there were few CCC stocks released in North Carolina last year free market grain prices remained around the support rate. You cannot use price supports unless you divert 20 per cent of your base acreage to conservation uses.

In summary, the income effect of participating in the program depends on which is greater: payments for diverting acreage or profits above operating expenses on the same acreage.

2. Would the program reduce your risks? By diverting part of your land you are assured of a certain income.

3. Will participation give you more time for other farm jobs? For custom work or an off-farm job? Or do you need your feed grain acreage to remain fully employed?

4. Do you need extra cash during the spring? Advance payments, up to about half the total payments for participation, will be made shortly after sign-up. However, receipts at harvest time might be smaller than usual if you reduce grain acreage.

Generally speaking, the grower who produces 50-60 bushels per acre or less will find it more profitable to participate in the program. Production levels above this gives a better opportunity to really figure which way is more profitable.

Livestock producers should not participate in the program if it would seriously jeopardize their livestock programs.

You are urged to consider the effects of the program on your total farm operation. Sign-up may be made with the ASCS office up to March 30.

A brief description of the 1962 program may be obtained upon request. Get in touch with our office or the ASCS for further details. Then study all factors before you make up your mind.

A meeting of importance to peanut producers will be held Thursday, Feb. 22, at 7:30 p.m., in the Pitt County Courthouse. Peanut growers, and others interested, are urged to attend this meeting.

Still Opposing River Project
DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Sunday Syria is prepared to "go to the farthest end" to bar Israel from diverting water from the Jordan River.

The spokesman said Syria has called other members of the Arab League to confer on "joint measures to prevent Israel from realizing this dangerous project." Syrian Premier Marouf Dawlani recently charged that Israel was massing troops along the border for a showdown on the issue. Israel wants to channel water from a point inside the Syrian-Israeli demilitarized frontier zone to the southern Negev Desert for irrigation. The Arab countries, which refuse any dealings with Israel, oppose the plan.

Tobacco Tips

By S. J. WEEKS
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

There are many different kinds of soil used to produce tobacco. Certain types are more suitable than others. Tobacco of higher quality and with desirable characteristics for smoking purposes can be grown on the better adapted soils. Good quality tobacco may be produced on less desirable soils under the most favorable conditions of weather and management.

The main characteristics of soil suitable for the production of high quality flue-cured tobacco include: (1) Sandy or sandy loam topsoil, (2) Sandy clay subsoil, and (3) Relatively low level of natural fertility.

Good drainage is one of the most important factors to consider when selecting a good topsoil for tobacco production. The topsoil should be of such nature that it will not harden when dry or get sticky when wet.

A desirable topsoil for tobacco production should crumble easily when you feel it with your fingers. It should not be hard. Usually a light-colored sandy topsoil drains well and is easy to cultivate.

The nature of the subsoil is also important. The most satisfactory subsoils for tobacco are yellow to reddish-yellow in color, of medium texture and 30 or more inches deep. It should not be tight.

This type of subsoil drains well, yet it retains enough moisture for adequate plant growth. A medium-textured subsoil lets air reach the roots and also enables the roots to penetrate deeply, but it holds together enough to keep the fertilizer from leaching.

The natural fertility level requirements of a soil used for tobacco production are not generally as high as for the production of most other crops. A certain amount of organic matter improves the aeration and moisture-holding capacity and promotes the growth of beneficial organisms.

It should be remembered that organic matter from lespedeza, cowpeas, soybeans, crotalaria, and other leguminous crops may release too much nitrogen to the plant and may result in producing a thick, heavy leaf, late maturing, and curing difficulties.

It is very important for the fertility level of the soil to be known before planning a tobacco fertilization program for a special field. This can be determined by having a soil test made by the State Department of Agriculture.

It is realized that many growers must use land that is not considered ideal tobacco soil. Proper management, of less desirable soil, can help overcome some of these disadvantages.

Rites Set For Bruno Walter

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Conductor Bruno Walter, a perfectionist with a gentle temperament, is dead of a heart attack at the age of 85.

Funeral services for the famed interpreter of Mozart, Beethoven and Mahler symphonies will be held Tuesday. Cremation will follow.

The German-born Walter, who wielded his baton for 63 years, died suddenly Saturday in his Beverly Hills home.

Walter, a naturalized U.S. citizen, came to this country in 1939 when Adolf Hitler stepped up his persecution of German Jews. He was virtually a world citizen, conducting famous symphony orchestras throughout Europe.

Though known as a perfectionist, Walter didn't have the temperamental fire of some conductors. He didn't even like to be called genius. "It perhaps gives too big a responsibility," he said on his last birthday.

Walter's career began at 4 when a musician friend told Bruno's shopkeeper father that the youth had true pitch—he could exactly duplicate the finest tonal differences of a pitchpipe. He made his debut as a concert pianist at 9 and at 17 he conducted for the first time.

Walter's wife, Elsa, died in 1945. He lived with his daughter, Lilli, and her husband, actor Carl Ludwig Lindt.

Italy Again Wins Bridge Crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Italy's Blue team edged out a North American team 331 to 305 Sunday night to win the world bridge championship for the fifth consecutive time.

Italy began its romp in 1957 with the team's revolutionary bidding styles and accurate play. There was no tournament in 1960. The 26-point margin by which the Italians took the 1962 title was their narrowest.

The North American team, composed of five Americans and a Canadian, made a valiant effort to overcome the Italian lead in the final 20 deals, outscoring Italy 44-32, but it wasn't enough.

The tournament opened Feb. 10. Italy defeated Argentina 429-308 and Great Britain 365-286. The North American team edged Britain 345-332 and swamped Argentina 400-242. Each match consisted of 144 deals. Italy won the most matches—three—and thereby took the tournament title.

McNamara And Military Confer On S. Viet Nam

HONOLULU (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara meets top military leaders here today for the third time in two months on United States involvement in Communist-beleaguered South Viet Nam.

Accompanied by 11 military and diplomatic officials, McNamara arrived Sunday night from Washington and repeated remarks made earlier that the South Viet Nam government appears to be making progress in the fight against Communist subversion and infiltration.

He declined specific comment when asked whether the United States was becoming directly involved in guerrilla warfare against the Viet Cong Troops.

Before leaving Washington, however, McNamara said that President Kennedy had made it quite clear that U.S. military personnel in South Viet Nam serve only in technical and advisory capacities, and discounted a suggestion that U.S. involvement might develop into another Korea.

President Kennedy said at a news conference last week that U.S. personnel in Viet Nam, although not combat troops, have been ordered to "fire back to protect themselves" if they are fired upon.

Since the defense secretary's last trip to Hawaii in January, the United States has attempted to coordinate its aid program to the United States of Vietnam.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ahmadou Ahidjo of the Federal Republic of Cameroon will visit the United States for five days beginning March 13. Ahidjo will spend the first two days in Washington.

was recently appointed to head a new U.S. military assistance command in Saigon.

Some Republicans in recent weeks have charged that the Kennedy administration was minimizing direct U.S. involvement in South Viet Nam.

But McNamara said he felt that the campaign against the Communists was headed in the right direction.

"I think I can see increasing effectiveness of South Viet Nam's forces against the very savage Viet Cong troops," he said.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia (AP)—Mirko Malinowski can write faster and more legibly than many of his fellow students at Skopje Law University. He writes with his mouth.

Mirko lost his arms when he was 9 after being struck by a train. During World War II he joined the partisans and soon became a marksman. Using his mouth to load his gun, he triggered it with his right elbow.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ahmadou Ahidjo of the Federal Republic of Cameroon will visit the United States for five days beginning March 13. Ahidjo will spend the first two days in Washington.

82nd Airborne Units Starting New Exercise

By HOWARD CRISWELL JR., FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — The first elements of an airborne task force leave here today for Panama where a massive training drop of paratroopers and equipment is scheduled for Thursday.

The re-informed task force from the famed 82nd Airborne Division will be commanded by Brig. Gen. Edward L. Rowny, 44, a native of Baltimore, Md.

During Exercise Banyan Tree III, 1,200 men and more than 80 plane loads of equipment will be dropped. The exercise is designed to train the men in jungle warfare and to test the speed and effectiveness in moving the unit of the Strategic Army Corps (STRAC).

The 82nd is a member of STRAC forces, units kept ready for movement anywhere in the world to combat brush wars.

Giant C130s will carry the troops to Panama by way of Puerto Rico. The equipment drop, which the Army said will be one of the largest it has staged outside of the United States, will be followed by air landings of more troops and equipment.

After the drop at the Rio Hato zone outside of Panama City, the battle group from the 82nd will maneuver against a battle group from the Caribbean command for three days. An air exercise will be held Feb. 25 and the following week the paratroopers will attend an abbreviated course at the Army's Jungle Warfare School.

The reinforced battle group will include the 2nd Airborne Battle Group Combat Team, 504th Infantry, with Lt. Col. J. P. Carley, the acting commander; Battery C of the 320th Airborne Field Artillery, and engineer, aviation, medical, intelligence and support units of the 82nd.

The theory of the war games is that the Republic of Panama has been invaded by an aggressor force and the Panamanian government has called on the Organization of American States (OAS) for military assistance, provided by U.S. STRAC forces.

Health Director Reviews TB Incidence In County

Health director Dr. John Futrell spoke at Eppes High School last week to discuss tuberculosis as it applies to Pitt County.

Remarks were heard from Mrs. Mavis Mitchell of East Carolina College, A. T. Mills, Mrs. Milton V. Clarke, executive secretary of the Pitt County tuberculosis association, and a representative from the N. C. Tuberculosis Association in Raleigh.

The Rev. Lafayette Williams of Simpson school gave the prayer. In tuberculosis eradication, education of the lower socio-economic groups is a "must," Dr. Futrell said. The reason for the higher tuberculosis incidence in Negroes compared to the white people is due to a combination of factors including poor nutrition and greater exposure as a result of low socio-economic conditions.

It was pointed out that it is important to keep resistance high to fight off germs.

Dr. Futrell mentioned diagnostic measures such as the chest x-ray, physical examinations, and others. He stated that one out of three persons has a positive tuberculosis test.

D. H. Conley, superintendent of Pitt County schools, and F. D. Sledge, supervisor, were also present and made remarks.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Edward M. Kennedy, brother of the U.S. President, arrived here today from a two-day visit to Communist Poland and said he was "tremendously impressed by the friendship of the Polish people toward the American people."

Kennedy, whose visit to Poland was part of a European tour, said he had talks with Deputy Foreign Minister Jozef Wlanczewicz in Warsaw and also met a number of leading officials and newspapermen. He said his talks with Wlanczewicz concentrated on "mutual problems of foreign policy of Poland and the United States."

Kennedy said he expects to have talks in Paris with common market officials before proceeding to West Berlin Friday, where he is scheduled to meet his touring brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Heavy Damage As Car Crashes Into Building

Heavy damage resulted and a number of persons were injured just after midnight last night when a car, traveling on Dickinson Ave., went out of control and crashed into a building at the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and Wade St.

Greenville police, who set the time of the collision at 12:04 a.m., identified the driver of the auto as Isaiah Jackson, 23-year-old Negro of Jersey City, N. J.

Officers said the Jackson vehicle went out of control, ran through the yard at 1307 Dickinson Ave., crossed Wade Street, then slammed into the old Stout Service Center building at 1401 Dickinson Ave.

Injured in the mishap, in addition to Jackson, were Viola Jackson, 21; Ada Green Jackson, 48; Beulah Jackson, 13, and Ada Jean Stocks, 18, all of Winterville. All but Miss Stocks, who was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital with a fractured hand and arm, were treated for minor bruises and cuts and released.

The driver was charged with careless and reckless driving. Property damage estimate given by investigators included an estimated $595 damage to the car, an estimated $20 damage to property at 1307 Dickinson Ave., and an estimated $2,500 damage to the building.

Pitt Officers In Beaufort Raid

Pitt County ABC officers assisted Beaufort County officers and federal agents last night in a raid on an illegal distillery and in the arrest of its operator in the Edwards section of Beaufort County.

Officers reported that William H. Moore, Jr., of Route 1, Blounts Creek was charged with the manufacture of whiskey and possessing non-tax-paid booze. At a hearing before the U. S. Commissioner in Washington early today, bond for Moore was placed at $1,000.

Moore was found at the site by officers who raided the unit. Destroyed at the site were two 55 gallon stills, 1,000 gallons of mash, two 100 gallon coolers with copper condensers, two 55-gallon doublers and a 150 gallon boiler.

Seven gallons of non-taxed booze had been run off at the site. The unit was still in operation when the raid was made.

Officers said the unit had just been started up. It appeared to be a new steam distillery, they noted. It was fired by coal.

In addition to Pitt officers, J. M. Ward, H. B. Lilley and Walter Taylor, Beaufort County ABC enforcer Harry Stokes, and Federal Alcohol and Tobacco Tax unit officers, Don Alphin and Jim Saunders of New Bern participated in the raid.

The still was destroyed with dynamite.
