

Astronaut Glenn Relaxes, Reports On Space Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., relaxing after his fantastic space voyage, today began to tell the world about the round-the-world trip and prepared to receive the nation's thanks from President Kennedy Friday.

Out of the meetings will come answers to such questions as: What are man's capabilities and limitations in the weightless world of space? What changes must be made in the Mercury capsule before astronaut Donald Slayton attempts the next U.S. orbital flight, tentatively in April?

restraining straps, attached to the capsule. If the heat shield had dropped off before the capsule encountered the terrific friction of re-entry into the atmosphere, the capsule would have burned up in the 3,000-degree heat.

since Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov reported a feeling of nausea during much of his 17-orbit flight last August. Titov reported it was especially pronounced when he turned his head sharply or when he observed fast moving objects outside his spaceship.

sensitive inner ear, to see if that would cause nausea. White explained. "But John reported no discomfort. "Neither did he become sick after eating in space. He tried different type foods — paste-like meat and vegetable mixture, fruit squeezed from a bottle and salt malt pills. But there was no adverse reaction."

Throughout the flight, the daring Marine astronaut performed like a test pilot, handling his craft, making observations, keeping a flight log. He even found time to take pictures—black and white and color—of the earth and heavens with a small camera. He changed the film roll at least four times during the mission.

contact with the ground stations of the worldwide Mercury tracking network. From his 100 to 160-mile high vantage point in space he had breathtaking views of the earth stretching 1,800 miles from horizon to horizon.

"Tremendous. A beautiful sight," he described the view below.

'Deke' Slayton Chosen For Next Orbit Launch Sometime In April

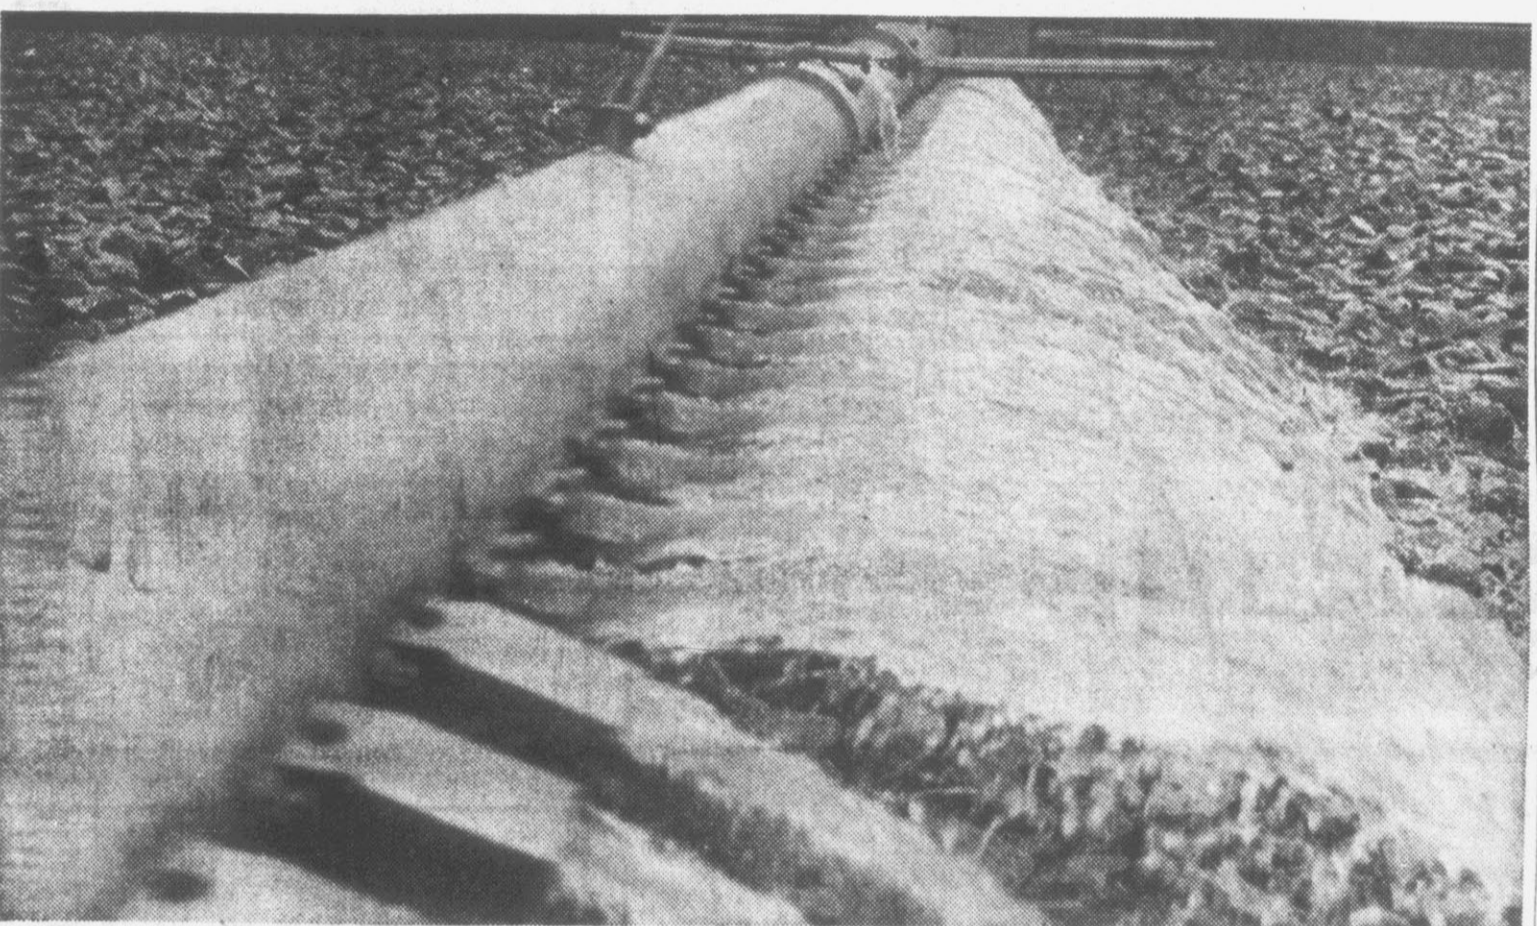

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Now it's Donald K. (Deke) Slayton in the astronauts' go position. Sometime in April, the muscular 37-year-old Air Force major will ride his own space capsule into orbit aboard Atlas 107D—already on its way to the launching pad.

He will, that is, unless a combination of weather and technical troubles touch off a series of delays like those which thwarted spaceman John H. Glenn Jr. for so long.

Slayton, a ready man with a wisecrack, monitored Glenn's trail-flight Tuesday from the Mercury control center at the Cape. Then he flew down the missile range to Grand Turk Island to welcome Glenn back from a space with a vigorous handshake.

Still waiting at the launch pad for a flight assignment are Scott Carpenter of Boulder, Colo., Gordon Cooper Jr. of Shawnee, Okla., and Schirra.

Support Prices Go With Controls

It should be apparent to farmers of certain areas of the nation that the present administration does not intend to continue the practice of paying high support prices for farm commodities over which there is no corresponding control over production.

While Congress has not yet indicated its support of the administration in this particular matter, such an indication should be forthcoming in the near future.

The agricultural interests which expect the federal government to continue price supports without reasonable controls on production are asserting they should have their cake and eat it too. They are taking the position that the government should guarantee prices regardless of production and that resulting surpluses of commodities which result are not the problem of the farmers.

The administration, in our opinion, is taking the correct position in its assertion that production controls should go along with price supports, and further that if farmers do not want production controls they should be willing to let the old law of supply and demand control both production and prices in the market place.

A program of rigid price supports and strict production controls has worked well for tobacco over a period of almost three decades and it is on this basis that the administration is seeking to broaden this basic principle to other farm commodities. While various crops have their particular problems, the idea of continuing high price supports without some sort of reasonable control on production seems completely out of the question.

The farm program offered by the Kennedy administration is far more realistic than the farm programs offered under either the Truman or the Eisenhower administrations. It will, in our opinion, serve the interest of agriculture and the public interest much better than the programs proposed under either of the earlier administrations. It deserves the support of agricultural interests and of Congress.

Historic Achievement Ends The Long Wait

It was a day of historic achievement as Lt. Col. John Glenn piloted the first successful orbital flight of a U.S. space vehicle through its three orbits around the earth and a safe landing in the Atlantic.

It brought to an end the long waiting of Americans and other people of the free world for one of their own to shatter the bonds of gravity and move into free flight through space. It pushed back the horizons of achievement for the American space effort and it paved the way for deeper manned probes into the universe. Obviously it offered new evidence that the space-age gap between the program of the United States and that of the Soviet Union is not as wide as a great many people may have been led to believe.

The long months of waiting and the disappointment of delays which have surrounded the Mercury manned-space flight project gave way to elation in this country and in others as literally millions watched and listened to the progress of the flight of Lt. Col. Glenn. The choice to conduct the space flight in full public view through live broadcasts and telecasts was fully vindicated by the reaction here and abroad to the minute-by-minute progress of the astronaut as he circled the globe in space.

Success of the orbital flight by Lt. Col. Glenn moves the United States up another important rung on the space ladder. It offers positive proof of the capabilities of the scientists who have worked diligently to bring this country into age of manned space travel, and it proves also the capabilities of the men who have been assigned the hazardous task of piloting the first crafts into outer space.

The thrill that John Glenn received by being the first American to orbit the earth surpassed only slightly the thrill of other Americans who watched his progress that they had long waited for, hoped for and prayed for. It was a day the generation of Americans who witnessed it will long remember.

Questioning Of Francis Powers

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Public quizzing of Francis C. Gary Powers, after the government finishes questioning him, might make headlines for a few days but probably wouldn't illuminate or prove much.

There have been some persistent questions about the case of the 32-year-old U2 pilot whose spy plane was downed while on a flight over Russia May 1, 1960.

Did a Russian rocket bring him down? Why didn't he destroy his plane to keep it and its equipment out of Russian hands? Why did he admit his guilt so readily at his trial?

Powers already has answered some of them. President Kennedy has put a limit on how much he can say publicly.

The government has been questioning Powers, with the press kept away, since the Russians released him and he returned here over a week ago after serving 30 months of a 10-year sentence for spying.

Once the government has finished, Kennedy said last week, Powers "will give whatever information would be in the national interest to give. This limits what he can answer."

There's been talk, but nothing final, about a further congressional investigation. The chairman of a couple of Senate committees have expressed interest in digging deeper into his case. Some other senators are reluctant.

When Powers' plane started down, 1200 miles inside Russia, he was supposedly flying at 68,000 feet, or 12 miles. There has been doubt the Russians had a rocket good enough to bring him down from that height.

After Powers' Moscow trial Pravda published a letter it said he had written to clear up the point of why his plane went down.

It quoted him as saying he didn't feel any blow of a direct hit but believed the plane was wrecked by the shock wave of an explosion and thought the tail was blown off, forcing the plane to nose down with the wings then dropping off.

Why didn't Powers blow up his plane, when he knew it was going down inside Russia, instead of taking to his parachute, as he said he did at about 14,000 feet?

At his trial Powers denied he was supposed to blow up the plane.

The Russians suggested at the trial that he was supposed to commit suicide with a poison needle they said they found on him. Powers said this was to be used only if, after capture, he was tortured and couldn't stand it.

The answer to the question—why did he ever admit at his trial he was on a spying mission over Russia?—seems simple enough. He could hardly deny it when the U. S. State Department had already admitted it.

There's no answer yet to this question: why did he seem to cooperate with the Russians at his trial to the extent of saying, "I realize I committed a grave crime" and expressing regret he had ever made the flight?

It has been reported, but not publicly verified by him, that he was brainwashed and drugged.

The answer might be as natural as this: that the Russians promised to let him off with a comparatively light sentence. Instead of shooting him for spying, as they could have done—if he frankly admitted what he had done.

During the trial the Russians deliberately handled him like a mechanical man who had been merely carrying out orders. Soviet authorities made it clear their main purpose was to convict the United States before world opinion.

Before anyone starts condemning Powers for not being a tight-lipped hero who should have killed himself or kept silent at his trial, he might ask himself: what would I have done in Powers' place?

Some men bend more easily under pressure than others. Some are extraordinary in resistance to it. There's nothing in Powers' known record to suggest he was ever extraordinary in anything, from school on up.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
BETTER, OR JUST DIFFERENT?

A few days ago I had the privilege of examining one of the few surviving copies of the first English Bible translated by John Wycliffe in 1378. I asked the specialist who was in charge of this precious volume to read me a familiar passage. He did, and while I was able to follow the meaning, certainly the language was different from anything we know today.

It was a long time ago, in the eighteenth century we should not doubt find much of the ordinary conversation of our fellow countrymen rather hard to understand. Go back six hundred years to the days of Wycliffe and we probably would hardly be able to understand more than a word or two out of each sentence which our English-speaking friends uttered. There has been an unbelievable change and growth in language from ancient days to the present. There has been a great difference in the way people live. On the whole, the world is better. Certainly it is more comfortable. Also we aspire to better things.

Wycliffe was hated in his day. Later generations dug up his body and cast his ashes upon the flowing current of a nearby river. William Tyndale was strangled and burned at the stake for translating the New Testament. Yet in the twentieth century are we any better? We are building shelters and talking about weapons which may blast whole civilizations off the planet.

Where is our culture and learning leading us? Are we really better than the ancients or just different?

Can't Happen To A Dog

NEW YORK (AP) — Something happened to me today that maybe shouldn't happen to a dog — and never has.

I became 51 years old. The day was made memorable by a birthday card from my 74-year-old mother in Kansas City, who is quietly proud of the fact that the five children she bore are still alive — all are over 40 — ulcer-free and able to enjoy three meals a day.

Her card said "Congratulations on your birthday," and added in rhyme: "There are many delights, great and small, but the best in life is to share it all."

That is so typical of Mama I didn't know whether to chuckle or cry. Whenever she gives one of her offspring a pat on the back, she also tosses in a bit of wholesome advice, figuring it won't do his immortal soul any permanent harm. Some firm lost a great personnel executive when Mama turned from the world of business to the business of washing diapers and wiping runny noses.

There are some who might regard being 51 as a major disaster, but no birthday can be totally dismal to a man so long as the woman who gave him life can share that milestone with him, even though she be half a continent away.

This alone, though all the rest of his world were gray, should be enough to stir a boundless gratitude in his heart. No man ever walks companionless while his mother lives.

Actually, however, I find a great deal to be cheerful about at 51, and life is looking up.

Some months ago a Harvard professor pointed out that the "Frantic Fifties" were perilous years for many men troubled by frustration, disappointed dreams, hectic living and the fear of advancing age.

Much as I hate to disagree with anyone from Harvard, I think more men go into a spiritual nosedive at 40 than at 50. Women do, too, even though they get a few years of grace — as they don't usually turn 40 publicly until privately they've reached 45.

A person at 40 is often a middle-aged adolescent, feeling as lost and lonely as a rebellious teenager, a stranger in a suddenly strange world.

But at 50 a second dawn comes. One who escapes the black tunnel of the forties is like a prisoner released from a 10-year solitary confinement. When I turned 50, I felt born anew. I wanted to throw my hat in the air like a schoolboy—and would have, except that at 50 you aren't supposed to do things like that.

Being 51 is even better. But, of course, there are limits to the joy. There are times, as you get deeper into middle age, when the days crawl by on crutches and the years whiz by on wheels. That's one of the tricks time plays on you.

Other Editors Saying... Home Of The Brave

(Richmond News Leader)

Virginia's own Representative Joel T. Broyhill is manning the battle stations again to convince Congress it should enact an official version of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

When Francis Scott Key wrote the anthem during bombardment of Ft. Mchenry in 1814, the only paper he had handy was the back of an envelope an unusually fertile stimulus to patriotic writings, which he later discarded.

Copyrighted his words — the music is a London drinking song—but more than 200 patriots have rectified his oversight since then, each with slight variants of words, spelling, and notation, when the Congress chose a national anthem in 1931, it neatly side-stepped the whole issue by designating simply "the composition known as 'The Star-Spangled Banner.'"

Since then Americans have been content if they hear a reasonable facsimile thereof.

Mr. Broyhill set out to bring some order into this situation in 1955. It seemed a simple thing at the time. He offered Congress a set of words and music, the first time that solemn assembly had ever been presented with a bill containing printed musical notes. Wouldn't every patriotic citizen like to see the national anthem given the same careful attention that in other years had defined the Great Seal, the national motto, and even the Flag itself which

In the 1775 version inspired the song?

Alas, the wrath of professional patriots descended upon a stunned Mr. Broyhill. He was trying to tamper with the American Heritage. He had taken his version from a manuscript prepared by Key late in life, which probably differed from the pirated editions, in several small particulars. Mr. Broyhill gamely tried again in 1958, with a simple melody line and amended lyrics, but met the same fate.

The gentleman was moved to try a third time when he learned that the U.S. Army Band had solved the problem for itself by working with the version he had proposed in 1958. So this time he has arranged for the Band to play a concert performance in Constitution Hall, and has invited representatives of no fewer than 38 patriotic and musical organizations to be on hand.

For the life of us, we can't see why there can't be accord on something that appeals so strongly to common sense as a standard national anthem. The "Banner" isn't the most practical song for a national anthem; we ourselves have had a wistful twinge of regret when the trumpets left us to go on up to the rockets' red glare. But the entire composition is beautiful and stirring, and bears the testimony of history. To the patriotic societies we would say, please, ladies and gentlemen, the war is over.

Shorter Work Week's Impact

By ELMER ROESSNER

The shorter work week, urged as a means of relieving unemployment caused by automation, may create more ills than it cures. And it may make government employment statistics less meaningful than they are today.

It will spread moonlighting—the holding of more than one job by one man. And this practice may actually increase rather than diminish the number of unemployed.

New York construction electricians recently won a five-hour day with a sixth hour at overtime rates, which figures out to six and one-half hours pay for six hours work. Many of these electricians hold second jobs and more are said to operate electric shops, appliance stores and the like.

WANTED MORE MONEY
In their honesty, the electricians did not pretend that a shorter week was necessary to relieve unemployment. They are fully employed; in fact, one of the terms of their settlement was a promise to let more apprentices into the union. Nevertheless, the shorter work week—down from seven hours work for seven and one-half hours pay—simply increases the opportunities of members to hold second jobs.

Even more recently, union workers at Macy's, New York, announced that they would demand that members not be required to work more than one night a week.

Union stewards were frank in their reasons: members didn't want to lose opportunities to moonlight. The union president announced he would seek a law to prevent all night openings by department stores.

Presumably the law would not affect neighborhood shops, bowling alleys, taxi operations and other places where department store employees might find second post-sunset jobs.

WHERE DOES COUNT BEGIN?
The average industrial week's now about 40 hours. Many skills and trades enjoy a 35-hour week. With advances in automation, a 30-hour week seems reasonably certain in the next decade or two.

hours of work a week; in fact, it has done it for more than 20 centuries.

Figures at the end of last year showed there were 70.6 million persons in the labor force, with 66.5 million employed and 4.1 million unemployed.

If the 30-hour week became general and moonlighting became popular, the statistics would be puzzling indeed. Suppose that when the 30-hour week arrives there are 75 million in the labor force; that 25 million work on one job; 25 million work on two, and 25 million more are unemployed. That would mean 75 million in the work force, 75 million jobs—and still one-third of the people unemployed.

ONLY ONE SOLUTION
A still shorter work week would not be the answer. That would mean more moonlighting and hence more unemployment.

The only answer in sight would appear to be restrictions on the number of jobs a man could have.

Newer Figures Appear

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

I receive many letters asking why I have turned out what may be called the "Rightist Extremists." Many of my old friends feel that I have deserted them. And now Bill Buckley and J. Edgar Hoover have stepped forward to speak against them.

What we are all talking about are the very new anti-Communist Movements, such as the John Birch Society, the efforts of Dr. Fred Schwarz and many others who have suddenly emerged as protagonists of Rightism. It takes a little courage and even anger to speak roughly of those who fight in a common cause.

I have been in opposition to the Communist Movement for nearly half a century. During that period a vast literature has passed before me and I have read most of it. I have known the activists in the Communist Movement since 1917; I have attended many of the formative and constituent assemblies; I observed the Revolution in Russia, Siberia, China, Japan and the United States and, having lived to a good age, have reached certain moral conclusions about it.

This is not biographical boasting. It is a statement of fact of what it takes to know what is going on. It does not necessarily mean that one understands what one sees and reads; but the opportunity for reaching a conclusion was available to me under exceptionally satisfactory conditions.

Of course, we old-timers will, in due course, die and our places will be taken by youngsters. The researchers will write about a world totally unknown to them with what they will regard as objectivity, as one today writes about Julius Caesar or Theodor. When, for instance, I write of Sun Yat-sen, I write of a man with whom I spent several hundred afternoons sipping tea and gossiping of the important and the trivial; a century from now no one will be able to write of him with such intimacy because no one will be able to tell such a tale.

The new-comer who devotes himself to research, at any rate, attempts to discover the truth; but the new-comer who becomes an advocate may be a devotee like St. Francis or a charlatan like Torquemada or a money collector who used a faith to enrich his coffers. All ages have known such and we must be tolerant in understanding each kind of person who projects himself before us. Talleyrand, at this distance, saved France and it may be that a century hence we shall look upon De Gaulle as the equivalent of Joan of Arc.

The anti-Communist Movement has been invaded by two distinct groups:

1. The thieves who move in on any movement to enrich themselves. They are the opportunists who find a way of living on other men's enthusiasms and fears. Every movement has been plagued by them.

2. The honest convert to an ideal who does not understand the ideal and does not take the trouble to discover what it means. Every religion has known the excessively pious who, permitting pity to run rampant, turns love into hate and forgets that moderation is the essence of intelligence. In the end, such good people pervert everything they touch and the flowers of faith die on the vine before them.

The first movement soon exposes itself as the thief leaves his mark by fingerprints. The second is more subtle because it is essentially honest. Its ignorance sounds reasonable and its argument palatable.

Thus one turns on the opponent and asks, how can you doubt so good a man? How indeed? Except that goodness need not mean truth; it may only mean the willingness to find truth.

Communism is essentially an evil because it is anti-moral. It denies the existence of God and of moral law. It reduces man to a thing, which exists only because its environment permits it to exist. It denies the doctrine of Natural Law which lifts man from the biological abyss

Left In Charge, Runs Store Since

"I definitely think it has been an advantage being a woman managing a store," commented Miss Eloise Porter, manager of Saslow's Jewelry Store. "If a customer is dissatisfied he would say things to a man he wouldn't to a woman," says the jewelry store manager. "It is not as customary for a woman to manage a jewelry store as it would be a clothing chain store." Miss Porter manages one of the 17 store chain which operates in North Carolina. She started work for Saslow's while a junior in high school working during the summer, holidays and Saturdays. In 1949 she started working fulltime with the understanding that she would just work until the fall quarter began at East Carolina College. In June, circumstances caused the local store to be without a manager and she was left in charge until they could send someone, but they never did. "It was never a situation of them hiring me for the job or me asking for it." Miss Porter, who more or less grew up in the jewelry business, does all the ring sizing and quite a bit of the jewelry repair at Saslow's. Her position entails the selling end and collections. The store has two fulltime employees with extra help during the busy seasons. At present the Greenville business woman is taking a correspondence course from the University of Pennsylvania. Miss Porter recommends working at some time, possibly early in life, for everyone; it gives an appreciation of how to deal with other people's problems. Originally from Farmville, Miss Porter was raised at Portertown but now makes her home in Greenville. She is the daughter of Mrs. Bettie Porter who makes her home with her daughter.

IAN FLEMING'S Greatest Thriller THUNDERBALL

CHAPTER 33

Smoking a cigar and carrying a container of ice cubes, Emilio Largo entered Domino Vitali's cabin. A red riding light hung from the ceiling. Under it, the girl lay strapped to a bunk. Largo put the icebox down on the chest of drawers and balanced the cigar carefully beside it.

The girl watched him, her eyes glittering red points in the semi-darkness.

Largo said, "My dear, unless you tell me who gave you that Geiger counter to bring on board, I shall be forced to cause you great pain. It will be caused with these two simple instruments."

He held up the clear and blew on the tip until it glowed brightly.

"This for heat, and these ice cubes for cold. Applied scientifically, as I shall apply them, they will have the inevitable effect of causing your voice, when it has stopped screaming, to speak, and speak the truth. Now then. Which is it to be?"

The girl's voice was deadly with hate. She said, "You killed my brother and you will now kill me. Go on and enjoy yourself. You are already a piece of death yourself. When the rest of it comes, very soon. I pray you will suffer a million times more than both of us."

Largo's laugh was a short, harsh bark. He walked over to the edge of the bunk. He said, "Very well, my dear. We must see what we can do with you, very softly and very, very slowly."

Aboard the Manta, Commander Pedersen left the echo-sounder and came over to James Bond and Felix Leiter.

He smiled cheerfully. "Thirty fathoms and the nearest cay is a mile to westwards. Now we've got a clear course all the way to Grand Bahama. And we're making good speed.

"If we keep it up, we've got about four hours' sailing. Be off before first light. How about some food and a bit of sleep? There won't be anything on the radar for an hour—these Berry Islands'll fill the screen until we're clear of them. Then I'll come the big question.

"When we clear them, shall we see that one of the smallest of the cays has broken loose and is sailing fast northwards on a parallel course to ours? If we see that on the screen, it'll be the Disco.

"If she's there, we'll submerge. You'll hear the alarm bells. But you can just roll over and have a bit more sleep. Nothing can happen until it's certain that she's in the target area. Then we'll have to think again."

The captain made for the stairway. "Mind if I lead the way? Watch your head on the pipes. This is the one part of the ship where there isn't much clearance."

They followed him down and along a passage to the mess hall and took their places at the head of one of the tables away from the other officers and men, who looked curiously at the two civilians.

There was a gnawing tension inside Bond which would be released only when the Disco was picked up on the radar and there would be a prospect of action. And lurking behind his concern about the whole operation was worry about the girl.

Had he been right to trust her with so much of the truth? Had she betrayed him? Had she been caught? Was she alive? He drank down a glass of iced water, and listened to the captain explaining how the ice cubes and water were distilled from the sea.

Finally Bond became impatient with the cheerful, even tone of the conversation. He said, "Forgive me, Captain, but could I interrupt for a moment and clear my mind about what we're going to do if we're right about the Disco and if we come up with her off the Grand Bahama?"

The captain's gray eyes were quizzical. He said, "I was kind of leaving all that to you fellows. The Navy Department says that I'm under your orders. I'm just the chauffeur. Supposing you tell me what you have in mind and I'll be glad to go along with anything you suggest so long as it doesn't endanger my ship."

In the last resort, if the Navy Department means what it says, and from your account of this operation it does, the safety of the ship will also have to go by the board. Now then, you tell me."

The food came. Bond pecked at his eggs and pushed them away. He lit a cigarette. He said, looking at Felix Leiter, "Well, I don't know what you've worked out, Felix, but this is how I see the picture we may find around four o'clock in the morning, on the assumption that the Disco has been sailing north in shoal water under cover of the Berry Islands and that she'll then make for the Grand Bahama shore somewhere off the site of the missile station. Well now, on that assumption, I've had a good look at the charts and it seems to me that, if she's going to lay that bomb as close to the target as she can, she'll have to anchor about a mile off-shore in about ten fathoms and get the bomb another half-mile or so closer to the target, lay it in twelve feet of water or so, switch on the time mechanism, and get the hell away. That's how I'd go about it.

"She'd be away by first light and there's plenty of yacht traffic around West End from what I can gather from the pilot. She'd show up on the station radar, or course, but she'd be just another yacht. Assuming the bomb's set for the twelve hours Largo's got before the time limit expires, he could be back in Nassau or twice as far away if he wanted in the time he's got.

"For my money, he'll go back to Nassau with his treasure-hunting story and wait for the next lot of orders from SPECTRE," Bond paused. He avoided Leiter's eyes. "That is, unless he's managed to get information out of the girl."

Leiter said staunchly, "Hell, I don't believe that girl would talk. She's a tough cookie. And supposing she did? He's only got to drop her overboard with some lead around her neck and say her equaling failed on the treasure hunt, or some spiel of that sort. He'd go back to Nassau all right. That man's cover's as solid as J. J. Morgan and Company."

The captain interrupted. "Leaving all that aside, Commander Bond, and sticking to the operational angles, how do you suggest he's going to get that bomb out of the ship and right into the target area? I agree that according to the charts he can't get much closer in the yacht, and if he did he might be in trouble with the waterfront guard at the missile station. I see from my dope on the place that they've got some kind of a guard boat for chasing away fishermen and suchlike when they're going to do a practice shoot."

Bond said decisively, "I'm sure that's the real purpose of the underwater compartment in the Disco. They've got one of those underwater sleds in there, and probably an electric torpedo to haul it. They'll load the bomb on the sled and take it in with a team of underwater swimmers, lay it, and come back to the ship. Otherwise, why have all that underwater gear?"

The captain said slowly, "You may be right, Commander. It makes sense. But so what do you want me to do about it?"

Bond looked the captain in the eye. "There's only one moment to nail those people. If we show our hand too soon, the Disco can get the hell away—only a few hundred yards maybe, and dump the bombs in a hundred fathoms. The only time to get them, and the bomb, the first bomb anyway, is when that team has left the ship and is on its way to the laying point. We've got to get their underwater team without underwater team. The second bomb, if it's aboard, doesn't matter. We can sink the ship with second bomb inside her."

"Bond made the signal for the attack and he plunged forward, his spear held in front of him like a lance. . . ." the story continues tomorrow.

Hiding Place For A Diamond Ring

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — A woman's quick thinking saved her the loss of an $1,800 diamond ring during an armed robbery on the street.

Harold West reported to police that he and his wife, Virginia, were walking to their parked car when two men approached them, one of the men brandishing a revolver.

While West gave them money from his billfold, his wife slipped her diamond ring from her finger and dropped it in the snow on the sidewalk.

After the men left the couple returned to the scene and found the ring.

Leder's INCORPORATED

COLOR WINNER. This miss with the contagious smile and the brilliant purple party hat—as seen on the original Type F Kodachrome—was photographed by Mrs. Rosemary Elkes, Toledo, Ohio. It won a $600 second prize in the color class for children's pictures in the 1961 Annual Newspaper Snapshot Awards contest.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newscasters

Things are humming in the color film field in this country. Several changes have been announced in American-made films and a couple of foreign color brands, well established in Europe, are seeking a foothold here.

First there is the news that amateur photographers will no longer be able to get the Type F Kodachrome, the transparency film for shooting indoors with clear flashbulbs. It is being discontinued; Kodak announces, because other methods are available to shoot the same type of pictures.

Here are the alternative ways: (1) Switch to Type F Ektachrome film and continue to use clear flash bulbs. An advantage is that the film is faster than the old Kodachrome F. (2) Use daylight type Kodachrome II film and switch to blue flashbulbs. The advantage here is that the film is ready for either daylight or indoor shooting at all times. (3) Use the new Kodachrome II with electronic flash, if you have such a unit.

It should be noted that Kodachrome professional film, Type A, for artificial light indoors is not affected by the change and remains available.

Some changes are also taking place with Ektachrome film, at present only in the 127 roll film size. An "Improved Ektachrome 127" film is now available, aimed principally at box camera users. The new film is double the speed—ASA 64—of the old Ektachrome and it also has better color quality. The color slides look sharper and have truer colors than before and, because of its extra speed, it can reach into shadow areas and put a little color where it didn't heretofore.

It is anticipated that this improved color film will become available in the other popular roll film sizes soon.

Another note, quite easy to take, is the announcement that the premium price tag on the new Kodachrome II film is being removed so that it now costs the same as the old Kodachrome. Its speed is faster—ASA 25 compared with ASA 10 for daylight shooting—giving its users the advantage of closing the lens one-and-one-half stops, under the same lighting conditions. Its quality has also been changed so as to give more subtle and truer color renditions, particularly in the yellows and greens. However, camera fans who prefer the more brilliant, poster-like colors can continue to use the original Kodachrome despite its slower speed. It is probable that Kodachrome I will remain on the market as long as consumers demand it.

Perutz and Agfa are the West German firms which are introducing their European color films and color processing plants in the United States. Perutz has already been established for several months with a plant in Chicago and color processing operations soon to open in San Francisco and Washington D. C. The Agfa color plant is scheduled to get under way in May in Flushing, New York City.

Both the Perutz and Agfa color films are 35mm positive, transparency slide films and each has an ASA speed of 50. The Perutz films have been tested and found to be of high color quality. Each transparency is given a protective lacquer-coating and returned in a durable plastic mount which will not warp or become discolored in time.

However, the advantage of the plastic mount is offset by the loss of several conveniences which we get with our cardboard mounts: 1. The plastic ones are not numbered in sequence of shooting. This is often the way we keep track of and check our exposures and learn how to shoot properly in the future. 2. They are not dated. It is a handy aid to have the processing date permanently recorded. 3. It is not as easy to write identifications on plastic as it was on cardboard. 4. They do not fit in some slide magazines.

CUT-OFF 30 HOMES
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A Philadelphia Electric Co. repair crew cut off power to 30 homes in northeast Philadelphia to make routine repairs Tuesday, silencing radio and television sets during astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.'s blastoff. The countdown then stood at 25 seconds. When power was restored, Glenn was soaring over Africa.

Up until 1900 more American high school students studied Latin than English.

Kiev Is Prosperous And Pleasant Looking, Compared With Moscow

By REINHOLD ENSZ

KIEV (AP)—Premier Khrushchev often boasts about plans for catching up with the United States, but first his country will have to catch up with Kiev. Kiev is the capital of the Soviet Union's breadbasket, the Ukraine, and in Kiev many standards seem to be a little higher than elsewhere in the Soviet Union.

Western diplomats and newsmen are always pleasantly surprised when they visit Kiev after long sojourns in Moscow.

Moscow is afflicted with vast expanses of tumbledown houses and log cabins. In Kiev, there are NO log cabins and most of the buildings have a substantial air about them. The outskirts of Kiev are dotted with tiny stucco cottages and each of them is painted.

There are two reasons for Kiev's better appearance: much of Kiev's old housing was destroyed during the war; and secondly, the Ukrainians seem to take more pride in making their capital neat and presentable.

No "Tile Catchers"
The architecture of the new buildings in Kiev is similar to that of Moscow—dullish-looking buildings plastered with bathroom-like tiles. But there is a significant difference in the way the buildings are constructed. In Moscow, many of the postwar buildings have wire netting stretched around them at the second story level, to prevent pedestrians from being knocked down by falling tiles. In Kiev, I did NOT see a single "tile catcher," and I did NOT see a building that needed one.

In Kiev, it is nothing unusual to see people smiling and laughing. Waiters and waitresses in Kiev are more friendly than in Moscow, but they are plagued with the same problems as their counterparts in Moscow—food shortages. For example, one morning recently, the waitress in one of Kiev's leading hotels refused to accept an order for an omelet, apparently because of the Soviet Union's chronic shortage of eggs.

"Then I'll have nothing except tea and bread," I told her. But half an hour later, without explanation, she proudly brought a very good omelet.

An East German journalist who saw the omelet immediately demanded one too. At first she discouraged him, but gave in when he became angry and repeatedly pointed at my table.

As for the Ukrainians in the dining room, they were breakfasting—at 8 a.m.—on piles of white rice and fried meat, washed down with glass after glass of thick yogurt.

Lumpy Mattresses
The accommodations in the hotel, such as beds, bathrooms, etc., were as dreary as elsewhere in the Soviet Union. The mattress was lumpy, the hot water spout in the wash basin didn't work and the toilet was liberally supplied with old newspapers, neatly cut into squares.

The Soviet Union's longstanding paper shortage was also reflected in the dining room, where the napkins were cut into quarters.

In Kiev, incidentally, hotels are called "hotels," instead of "gostinitsi" as in Moscow. The "g" in hotel stems from the fact that the Ukrainian and Russian languages lack the equivalent of "h."

Although waitresses in Kiev are generally cheerful, the service they give is about like that in Moscow—slow. Even a glass of tea requires something like 30 minutes. And because of the fruit shortage, there were NO lemon slices to go with it.

People Better Dressed
Pedestrians in Kiev are better dressed than in 1958 when I visited the city as a tourist. At that time, I was accosted several times by furtive men who offered to buy everything I was wearing. This time, I didn't get a single offer.

The only furtive approach was from a short, middle-aged man who appeared to have some Arab blood in him. He desperately wanted me to smuggle out a letter to President Nasser of Egypt.

Since I had just left a courtroom where two West German tourists were sentenced for espionage, I was in NO mood to be caught violating Soviet postal regulations. I turned him down and walked away.

And in Kiev, one DOES do a lot of walking. The taxi and bus situation is just as bad as in Moscow.

But Kiev definitely leads Moscow in the matter of shop window displays. In Moscow, many window decorators figure that a pyramid of tin cans, or a couple of bolts of cloth, is enough.

In Kiev, more imagination is shown and some of the displays are nearly as good as those in Poland or East Germany.

John Glenn Was Big Topic At State Dinner

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House social season opened with glamor and song and toasts to the man who was the talk of the party—astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.

Tuesday night's state dinner was given by President and Mrs. Kennedy in honor of Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., and Chief Justice Earl Warren. But Glenn was the guest of honor in absentia.

He was the subject of toasts at the banquet of veal filet aspic for 120 guests.

Both Warren and Johnson rose to toast the Marine flier who became the first American to orbit the earth.

"Tonight climaxes a memorable day for John Glenn and for the free world," Johnson said.

The song was provided by mezzo soprano Grace Bumbry, 24, St. Louis-born Negro who has been performing in Europe but flew in from Paris for her special White House concert.

But it was Glenn's performance that sparked the evening—even its humor.

Kennedy, who earlier had expressed the thanks of a proud nation to Glenn, observed jestingly that one of the guests—Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois—had sent him and Vice President Johnson into political orbit during the day.

Republicans contributed heavily to a vote sidetracking the Kennedy administration's strategy on a proposal to establish a department of urban affairs. And with a House vote coming up, Kennedy said McCormack faced being boosted into the same kind of orbit.

Tape Recorder Resolves TVA Bird Problem

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—The starling, a familiar pest to cities and parks, has taken a dangerous fancy to Tennessee Valley Authority high power lines.

TVA's troubles came when starlings, perching only inches apart on wires, cause "flashover" danger. Foreign objects on wire insulators may cause a circuit to ground, permitting an uncontrolled surge of power which can damage equipment and cause power interruptions.

Borrowing a technique developed at Pennsylvania State College and used successfully in Nashville, agency officials tape-recorded starling distress cries and amplified them from a portable loudspeaker about starling bedtime. The startled starlings fled their roosts within a half-mile radius. A few repeated performances and they stayed away for good.

How do you get a distress call on tape? "It's simple," said Dr. George Mayfield, Nashville ornithologist, "once you've caught a starling, just turn him upside down."

THE JOB OF LAYMEN

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—"If the world is going to be won for Christ, it's going to be won by the laity—the people of God," says the Rev. Dr. Robert G. Mayfield, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Lay Activities. "Our function is to be a redemptive agent in the world."

Robert Kennedy Focus On Health Vatican Visitor

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII received U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy today and expressed his congratulations for the space flight of American astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.

Pope John, who reportedly prayed for the successful outcome of the space flight while Glenn orbited the earth, received Kennedy and his wife, Ethel, at the threshold of his private library. The Pope was smiling broadly. Attendees said.

The supreme ruler of the Roman Catholic Church expressed his hope to the President's brother, a Catholic, that scientific progress, as demonstrated by Glenn's orbital flight would "always and only" be used for the welfare of mankind and the service of peace. The pontiff said he hoped such developments would never be used as a means of destruction.

Pope John first received Kennedy alone in his private library a large, many-windowed chamber. A few minutes later Mrs. Kennedy joined the audience. The meeting lasted about 25 minutes. Then the pontiff went to an adjoining chamber where the other members of the Kennedy party were waiting. The pontiff spoke with them for about five minutes.

The Pope gave Kennedy gold medals of his pontificate. He gave Mrs. Kennedy a mother of pearl and gold rosary.

Msgr. Thomas Ryan acted as interpreter. The Irish prelate is Pope John's English instructor.

After the audience, Kennedy visited Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, Vatican secretary of state who served for 25 years as apostolic delegate in the United States. He also visited the Sistine Chapel.

Kennedy got up early for his appointment with the Pope and slipped out of his hotel not long after dawn for a walk in nearby gardens.

He had gone to bed early the night before but was awakened by his press secretary to hear the news of Glenn's safe return to earth.

"That's wonderful," Kennedy exclaimed. "I'm very proud for the United States and very pleased for Col. Glenn and his family."

His two-day visit in Rome has been described by the U.S. Embassy as private. However, he planned a number of courtesy calls on leaders of the Italian government before leaving Thursday for Berlin.

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Medical facilities in the event of atomic attack, new studies on hardening of the arteries and cancer deaths that are labeled unnecessary figure in the medical news.

ATOMIC ATTACK

If atomic attack ever is made on America, many exposed victims in hot fallout areas probably would be pretty much on their own until the radiation subsided to safe levels.

Education Talks

ROCKINGHAM (AP)—Gov. Sanford spoke Tuesday to about 11,000 students and adults as he addressed 11 education rallies and one groundbreaking ceremony for a new school.

Sanford tied his speeches, the last one here, to astronaut John Glenn's historic space flight.

He said the need for "quality education is demonstrated best by what is happening in outer space today. When we talk about mastery of space, we are talking about education."

The governor predicted that North Carolina would lead the nation in public school opportunities if everyone works together in carrying out a "quality education" program.

A North Carolina physician queried the American Medical Association on the ethical duties of physicians under such circumstances, saying: "I am not sure I would be capable, even if I had an adequate shelter, of turning down requests for treatment."

An AMA consultant replied: "Civil defense authorities agree that the physician is in the same category as everyone else regarding shelter protection from radioactive fallout. It would be short sighted for a physician to provide medical services to casualties in a hot area that would in a short time incapacitate him to fulfill subsequent medical responsibilities. While this does not appear to be a question of ethics, the physician should recognize that all health services be conserved to provide maximum recovery from such a disaster."

HARDENED ARTERIES

Hardening of the arteries is a major cause of heart attacks in the United States and a recent study in New Orleans indicates it can have a good start in boys by the time they are 10.

Heart researchers studied the coronary arteries of 548 persons who died at various ages from various causes. Their report was carried in the American Journal of Pathology.

It showed that between the ages of 10 and 39, white males have approximately three times as much atherosclerotic involvement—plugging of the artery channel—as white females. The difference decreases after age 40. No such clear-cut difference exists between the sexes among Negroes because Negro women do not seem to share the immunity of young and middle-aged white women.

After age 50, the study indicated, differences between all four groups disappear.

CANCER DEATHS

The Cancer Cytology Foundation of America estimates that 9,000-10,000 deaths among women could be prevented each year if all women over 20 would go to their doctor once a year for a vaginal smear test for cervical cancer and if all women patients would use this test routinely.

Dr. Ernest Ayre, the foundation's medical and scientific director, said the type of cancer can be cured readily when detected early.

"Up to the present time in this country only 9 per cent of the 55 million women over 20 years of age are protected by cervical cytodiagnostic tests. Russia reports twice that percentage," he said.

Bicycling Safety Is Featured At Meet

Officers of the Greenville Police Department's Traffic Division last night showed parents attending a meeting of St. Raphael's Home-School Association the series of slides and described the accompanying lecture earlier given pupils on bicycle safety.

J. B. Cannon, T. E. Gladson and M. T. Vernon were featured participants of the program. The slides illustrated safety rules and regulations as well as traffic signals to be used by bicyclists.

"We believe this will not only help our children now," said Vernon, "but in later years as well, when they are driving automobiles."

Father Maurice Spillane, newly assigned pastor here, was introduced to the gathering. He reminded "we want our children to have the best, and they can have the best only with cooperation of parents in school affairs."

The priest added that "our school should be very personal to us and something in which we can take pride." He urged that parents participate in the Home-School Association, saying that responsibility does not end with merely seeing children off to school and there is an obligation to seeing how children are behaving in school and how they are doing in their studies.

Committee reports on functions and projects undertaken since the January meeting were heard. Among them: successful participation in the Mothers' March, the initiation of dancing classes with 64 children taking part, the initiation of sewing instruction for girls in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

Sunday's music festival at St. Raphael's school was described as one of the best-attended in the state, with 360 children taking part.

Attention was called to preliminary competition (March 18) in an oratorical contest.

Parents and teachers held individual conferences prior to and after the meeting.

Goldfine To Be Paroled Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aging Bernard Goldfine, his health failing and his textile empire besieged by federal tax claims, will be paroled Friday after serving 8½ months of a year and a day sentence for income tax evasion.

The Justice Department announced Tuesday Goldfine will be released on condition that he go to a private hospital or convalescent home.

The parole board, in deciding to release the Boston industrialist, took note of his "serious medical condition," a Justice Department spokesman said. The board also noted that, with time off for good behavior, Goldfine was due for release March 25 anyhow.

Goldfine, 71, whose gifts to men high in government made headlines in a 1958 congressional investigation, has been under treatment at a Public Health Service hospital at Staten Island, N.Y.

He was sent there last December after suffering a cerebral stroke at the Federal Correctional Institution in Danbury, Conn. Officials said Goldfine also was being treated for recurrence of an emotional disturbance.

He was sentenced to prison, fined $110,000 and put on probation for five years in federal court at Boston last June 5. Goldfine had pleaded guilty to evasion of nearly $300,000 in income taxes, and lost a last-ditch bid to withdraw the plea.

The industrialist and his textile firms now face federal tax suits totaling more than $7.8 million, filed in New England last month.

Man, 2 Children Burn To Death

POINT LOOKOUT, N.Y. (AP) — A man and two of his children burned to death early today in a fire that destroyed their home in this Long Island community.

Firemen listed the dead as John Hagerstrom, 45; his son, Nells 6, and daughter, Christen, 10.

Two sons, Edward, 11, and John 12, were badly burned and taken to a hospital. The wife and mother, who works as a waitress, was not home at the time of the fire.

Another Snowstorm Is Heading Into Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The winter-weary Midwest, hit by biting cold and heavy snow for weeks, plowed through another snowstorm today and shivered at the thought of another month until the arrival of spring.

The new storm, moving out of the Rockies across the midlands, appeared to follow the pattern of the weekend storm which dumped up to two feet of snow and sheets of ice across eight states.

Heavy snow warnings, with blowing and drifting, were in effect from eastern Nebraska, southeast South Dakota, Iowa, southern Minnesota, northern Illinois, southern Wisconsin, the northern third of Indiana, southern lower Michigan and northern Ohio.

Below zero weather stung northern Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana. The freezing line extended across most all of the Midwest.

A covering of 10 inches or more was forecast for some areas in Iowa and South Dakota. Falls of 4 to 8 inches were indicated in most their sections. Cleanup operations were slowed as the fresh storm swept eastward.

In Nebraska many schools called off classes today as drifting snow blocked roads in eastern and central sections. Tuesday night 33 of 41 high school basketball tournaments were postponed.

In South Dakota, about 100 persons and the Augustana College basketball team remained in Vermillion after a game with South Dakota State because of poor visibility caused by blowing snow. It was the second time in three days the team was marooned by a snowstorm, having been forced to remain in Beresford 15 hours Sunday while returning to Sioux Falls from a game in Sioux City, Iowa.

Outside the snow zone, showers dampened southern parts of the Mississippi Valley; snow flurries flecked northern Maine and the southern Plateau region and rain and showers again hit Southern California.

Spiritual leader of over half the people in the Upper Volta is called the Moro Naba.

Pope Creates A New Province

WASHINGTON (AP) — Creation of a new Roman Catholic province in the South and three new dioceses in California was announced today. Bishop Paul A. Hallinan of Charleston, S. C., is being transferred to Atlanta to head the new province with the rank of archbishop.

These actions by Pope John XXIII, announced through Archbishop Egidio Vagnozzi, apostolic delegate to the United States; creation of the new province headquartered in Atlanta, with Bishop Hallinan transferred there as archbishop.

Assignment of Bishop Joseph T. McGucken of Sacramento to take over as archbishop in San Francisco. He succeeds the late Archbishop John H. Mitty.

Formation of new dioceses of Oakland, Stockton and Santa Rosa.

The new province of Atlanta comprises five dioceses in addition to Atlanta — Charleston, Miami, Raleigh, St. Augustine and Savannah, all formerly part of the Baltimore province which now is left with the suffragan sees of Richmond, Wheeling and Wilmington.

The archbishop of the Atlanta province, Bishop Hallinan has headed the Charleston see since Dec. 28, 1958. He succeeds Bishop Francis E. Hyland, who resigned last year.

Thirteen Feet Of Snow Is 'Nothing' To This Town

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP)—Snow is only a piddlin' 32 inches deep and only snow flurries were forecast for today in this Upper Michigan college town that lays claim to "snow capital of the Midwest."

Tuesday wasn't much of a snow day, either. Somewhere between half an inch and an inch fell, lifting the season's fall to 13 feet, 1 inch.

Back in the 1949-50 season it really snowed—23 feet, 5 inches worth. That set a record for this copper-mining country on the Keweenaw Peninsula that juts into Lake Superior from Upper Michigan.

The season's first snow usually can be expected around Nov. 18, and it has snowed as late as May 3.

But a six-inch overnight that would paralyze New York or Washington hardly turns morning coffee-break conversations to the weather here. It just isn't unusual enough.

There is no real interruption with everyday life or business. Trunkline traffic moves considerably faster than at a snail's pace, even within a few hours after a real dumper storm. And this is hilly country.

But it always has lived with snow and knows how to handle it. Winter snowfall seldom measures less than 120 inches—10 feet in Houghton and the neighboring counties of Keweenaw, Baraga and Ontonagon.

So it isn't big news in the Houghton Mining Gazette when a few inches paralyze New York or Detroit.

Right now Gazette Publisher Jack Rice has to stand up if he wants to look through his living room's picture window. Snow's too high for an outside look sitting down.

Folks don't go outside through the first door they come to. That's because they don't try to keep more than one pathway cleared to the outside.

And usually that pathway is across a boardwalk—an elevated wooden walk supported by two-by-fours—that runs out to the street, reached by steps carved in the snow. Boardwalks are put out before the snows come.

Sidewalks just aren't used in winter, but the streets and main highways generally are swept clean. First scrapers with double-width blades come by. Behind them are vacuum-cleaners of sorts that suck up the snow and blow it across the roadside banks which often tower six to eight feet above the pavement level.

Some motorists run up their radio aerials and attach red flags at the top. That's so they can be seen by others as they approach intersections made blind by the snowbanks.

Temperatures in this northern region often drop to zero or below, and some farm families still warm beds for the children by placing between the sheets stacks of wood or bricks heated in the oven.

Authorities are keeping a special vigil against roadside snow caves dug by children. They are afraid passing snow plows might collapse them on the little fellows.

Snows, especially when driven into road-plugging drifts, have forced school closings. But so far this winter schools have been closed only five days, and the record for a season is only 16 days.

Govm't Business Came To Halt Yesterday

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the halls of Congress and in the wide stretches of government offices, business virtually came to a dead stop.

File clerks and senators, stenographers and Cabinet members gathered around television sets and radios as Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. blasted off into space and then landed safely at sea to become the first American to orbit the earth.

In between, while the astronaut three times circled the earth, the workings of governments may have dropped a stitch as workers cocked one eye on the television screen and a voice sounded over the clatter of typewriters—"Col. Glenn reports all systems go."

"After it was over, President Kennedy walked out into the White House rose garden and saluted Glenn "as the kind of American of whom we are most proud."

"I know that I express the great happiness and thanksgiving of all of us that Col. Glenn has completed his trip," said the President.

Then back in his office Kennedy talked directly with Glenn over a special radio hookup between the White House and the destroyer "Noa."

The President congratulated the Marine flier and told him he would see him at Cape Canaveral, Fla., on Friday.

It was also announced that Kennedy would receive the astronaut at the White House Monday or Tuesday.

A mammoth Washington celebration is being put together, including a parade from the White House up Pennsylvania Avenue to the Capitol.

But even without brass bands or tickertape, Col. Glenn took over Washington Tuesday.

The House of Representatives twice broke off debate on the national debt limit bill to applaud Glenn's safe return from space.

By standing ovation, they passed a resolution congratulating Glenn on his achievement.

On the other side of the Capitol, the Senate quit work for the day as the climax neared.

At 2:30 p.m., when Glenn's Friendship 7 capsule began descending, the Democratic leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana, announced that the Senate would adjourn.

Most of the members had already adjourned to wherever a television set or radio was handy.

The Securities and Exchange Commission delayed for 15 minutes the start of a public hearing so the commissioners could keep up with Glenn's final progress through space.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges watched portable television sets in their offices.

At the Labor Department, Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg put off for a day a speech before officials of the Machinists Union and United Auto Workers so that he could hear about the flight's end.

This was all right with the union officials, for they too wanted to stick by the television set.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara heard the start of Glenn's voyage on the car radio as he motored to the Pentagon from the airport after returning from a conference on South Vietnam in Hawaii. Inside his office he found that Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, had a TV set warmed up and waiting.

Even the never-say-die Washington news conferences bit the dust or were shoved deep into the background.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall announced at the opening of his news conference that he hoped it would be over before the capsule started down, it was.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Democratic leader in the Senate, broke off his news conference when he got word the Freedom 7 was on its way down.

The weekly "Ev and Charlie" news conference of Republican leaders Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, went off on schedule. But Dirksen acknowledged he didn't expect to "share the front pages" with Glenn.

Mrs. Dean Rusk joined her husband in the secretary of state's office for the finale of the flight.

"A tremendous achievement," said Secretary Rusk.

The excitement even penetrated to the Supreme Court. The justices assembled to hear cases at 10 a.m., after Glenn had rocketed into orbit. They were kept informed of his progress by notes passed from aides.

And not much business was done at Kennedy's morning meeting with Democratic legislative leaders.

"Our interest was focused on this great historic event," said House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass.

Sees Double-Use For Expressway

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — State Road Board member Warren Cason thinks the elevated Tampa Expressway, on which construction will start soon, should transport people in time of peace and protect them in time of war.

Cason, noting that there's lots of concrete and dirt piled up for overpasses on an elevated highway, suggests that public fallout shelters could be built in the overpass approaches.

Astronaut Glenn Opened Door To Space Program

By BEM PRICE
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The flight of U.S. astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., three times around the world was but a beginning.

Space programs are coming into being from one end of the nation to the other.

The success of Glenn's venture into space Tuesday was a signal. Throughout the remainder of 1962, the United States plans to fly five orbital missions—four identical to Glenn's and one of 16 orbits.

This program will continue into 1963 until four men have orbited the earth 18 times each.

Even now the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is in the process of recruiting 2,000 additional scientists and engineers to add to its roster of 6,000.

The object of the prolonged orbital program is to accustom astronauts to life and working conditions in the dark of space and during periods of prolonged weightlessness.

On Dec. 7, NASA announced a $500-million program to build space trains for use as bases for exploration of the moon.

Eventually, under this program two-man space ships will be lifted into orbit along with extra fuel tanks and then coupled in space in much the same fashion as railroad trains are assembled in a marshaling yard.

The purpose of the space train program is to train astronauts for future trips around and to the moon. The two-man spaceships will remain in orbit for a week or longer.

Flights by the two-man spacecraft are scheduled to begin in the 1963-64 period, NASA said, with the present seven astronauts acting as pilots.

Toward the end of this experiment, the United States will begin to recruit additional space pilots.

The creation of space trains and their use as launching pads for lunar exploration is but one technique for reaching the moon. There is always the possibility of a direct flight.

While the space train program is in full swing the nation will be striving to build a huge rocket capable of producing thrusts upwards of 22 million pounds.

If this vehicle proves feasible, direct flights to the moon will be attempted. This is known as Project Nova.

Parallel to all this the United States will be engaged in still another moon landing program known as Project Apollo.

North American Aviation recently was awarded a $400-million contract to build a three-man space capsule for Project Apollo. On Dec. 15, NASA announced that Boeing Co. had been awarded a $300-million contract to build airframes for the huge Apollo rocket known as Saturn.

Eight of these early Saturns, each costing $8 million, will be

'Christmas' For Aussies Came Twice In 1962

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Australians are smiling these days. Autos are cheaper, there are more jobs, money can be borrowed to build a house—and income taxes have been cut.

"Christmas comes twice this year," said the Melbourne Age in an editorial.

Back in November 1960 the government, fearful of inflation in the then booming conditions imposed economic restrictions. These made money tight, knocked the bottom out of the auto industry, caused unemployment, slowed industry, sliced into company profits and made Australia look less attractive to would-be migrants.

The measures about halted inflation and improved Australia's overseas trade balance, but unemployment continued.

Last week Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies announced measures to stimulate the economy and restore employment:

A 5 per cent income tax cut was dated back to July 1, 1961. As most Australians handle personal income tax on the pay-as-you-go system, Menzies said the cut for the year would be squared off by giving 15 per cent reductions for four months.

An immediate cut from 30 to 22½ per cent in sales tax on new automobiles. This lowered the price of the cheapest six-seater compact to $2,354.

An increase in the maximum advance to war veterans to build homes from $6,160 to $7,840.

Increased payments to unemployed who lack other means of support.

There were some other measures, increased advances to states, a promise to speed government works, tax allowances to companies putting in new plants.

The result was electric. Share prices advanced strongly. Business leaders said the measures would lift the level of spending and thus ease unemployment.

Some fears have been expressed that the injection of extra cash into people's pockets will spark a new inflationary trend, but few working people appear concerned.

tested throughout 1962-63. Later Saturns to be built by Boeing at Michoud, La., will be powered by clusters of new engines known as the F1 and built by Rocketdyne Division of North American Aviation.

Each of these F1 engines alone will pack 1.5 million pounds of thrust and will be clustered about a central fuel tank in numbers up to five. Thus, this huge rocket will turn out 7.5 million pounds of thrust in the end. Tests of the big booster are scheduled to be completed in 1966.

With two additional stages, this rocket should be able to hurl a 100-ton spaceship into low orbit—say 300 miles—around the earth or send a 40-ton space ship around the moon.

If the space train idea is used, the advanced Saturn will be employed to assemble space trains from which men in Apollo capsules will take off for the moon.

THE POOR FISH
DENVER (AP)—Fishermen in Colorado no longer have to wait until May for their first crack at trout in streams and lakes.

The State Game and Fish Commission has voted to allow year-around fishing in the Centennial State.

and return. This business of landing on the moon is technically feasible right now. The problem is to get away again.

For this, NASA scientists have pointed out, wholly new techniques will have to be developed. To return from the moon, the three occupants of the Apollo space craft will have to carry out the complex launching procedures which involve hundreds of men on earth.

As for exploring the more distant cosmos, beyond the solar system, the United States is already hard at work on that, too, in a very preliminary way.

What is needed for these beyond-the-moon expeditions is a power source producing speeds somewhere close to that of light.

Already the United States has developed a prototype electrical propulsion system, for use in space only which purely hypothetically could approach this speed—186,000 miles per second.

A prototype of this engine has been tested for 15 hours in a vacuum chamber at NASA's Lewis Research Center at Cleveland, Ohio.

To date, the United States has sent 63 scientific satellites into earth orbit and also sent 2 around a scientific package on the moon itself. They were the first to orbit a satellite and the first to place a man in orbit.

The Russians also have landed a satellite and the first to place a man in orbit.

Speeders Easily Seen From Plane

OTTAWA, Ill. (AP)—Motorists noticing an airplane overhead better check speedometers.

At least 11,300 speeders have been arrested since the Illinois State Police started its air check method two years ago.

Cars are clocked between white lines placed one-eighth of a mile apart on the highway. When a speeder is spotted and clocked by the observer, the pilot radios a "catch" squad car into the area to make the arrest.

Exciting And Exhausting Bit Of History On TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—From splintering launching to folksy wind-up, the three major television networks concentrated Tuesday on the history-making flight of Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. The viewer who watched, from dawn's early light until dusk, had an exciting and exhausting experience.

The great moments of the day were, of course, the takeoff and landing of the capsule. Unfortunately, after the rocket moved off its pad with a great burst of smoke and flame, there wasn't much the cameras could do in actually covering the flight. But through the five long hours when the capsule was hurtling around the world, TV teams of the three networks—ABC, CBS and NBC—kept the audience glued to their sets.

They supplemented the oral reports from the spaceman himself and Cape Canaveral headquarters with interviews and explanations. They hopped around the country to tracking stations where we heard Col. Glenn's heartbeat and saw a machine drawing a chart of his breathing. We saw the exterior of his home and the home of his parents.

The basic coverage was a pooled network effort, and it was a fine, smooth job. When the launching was held up for a few minutes by a broken nut on the capsule hatch, the cameras were right there with a closeup of the men making repairs.

All through the day, the viewer in his living room felt as if he were in an orchestra seat, except for the landing, when voice reports still kept us fully informed.

One survey of the New York metropolitan area alone showed almost half the TV sets were turned on when the rocket blasted off. The normal percentage for that time of day is just under 10 per cent.

Once the astronaut was safely out of the ocean, the networks turned their full attention on the family of the new hero. Mrs. Glenn's interview with reporters was natural and charming. The shots of the spaceman's mother and father were warm and in just the right emotional key.

There was even comedy relief—particularly the TV exchange between Mrs. Glenn Sr. and her granddaughter, Lyn, after the pretty teen-ager affectionately accused her grandfather of being a ham.

The evening news programs were almost entirely devoted to the space shoot. CBS' Douglas Edwards found time for only one non-Glenn item. Both CBS and NBC bumped regular evening entertainment programs to present news specials on the big event. But this reporter, after a TV vigil of over 10 hours, missed them. Tired eyes.

It was a great day for television and one of which it can be proud.

ABC has added Ron Cochran to its expanding news staff. Cochran, a CBS news veteran, quit his news job in order to become narrator of CBS' "Circle Theater. CBS has a house rule forbidding its newsmen to appear on entertainment shows, but in his new job Cochran can keep the assignment.

CBS will drop its morning game show, "Your Surprise Package," next Friday, and next Monday will resume with a soap opera, "The Clear Horizon," which had its original premiere in July 1960.

Recommended tonight: Perry Como Show, NBC, 9-10 (EST)—Johnny Carson, guest star.

ICY BRAKE—Winter weather has idled the old wheel at Mrs. Robert Becker's home in Seattle but its freezing temperature created a scene of glazed beauty.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene: There will be no career slowdown for Debbie Reynolds, expecting a baby in September. In fact, she signed on to play a 60-year-old in the final sequence of "How the West Was Won."

She had already done two sequences in the episodic super-Western and wasn't wild to do another (She had been promised four weeks on the film; it spread to six months). When the studio passes put the film together, they decided a finale was needed. She agreed to serve—her last act after 14 years under contract to MGM.

Before the 10-day stint, she goes to New York to help husband Harry Karl open 10 shoe stores. After winning the West, she goes to Paramount to make "My Six Loves" under Gower Champion's direction.

Horst Buchholz returned to London to finish "Nine Days to Rama," in which he plays Gandhi's murderer. Before leaving, he reported that his newborn son will have triple citizenship until 21—German for his father, French for his mother, American for his place of birth.

Why was he born here? "Because I like America," said Horst. The actor has no plans to change his own citizenship and will let son Christopher decide about his own when the lad reaches 21.

Quote from Eddie Cantor: "Bob Hope has traveled a million miles to entertain our troops, displaying as much bravery as any soldier in uniform. It would be a grave injustice if Congress doesn't vote him a medal during this session."

Jerry Lewis flew down from his stand at the Sands in Las Vegas to open the restaurant bearing his name. It is the classiest joint on the Sunset Strip, where the night life can use some class.

Gene Kelly predicts this will be the big year for a return of musicals. If producers heed the success of "West Side Story" and "Flower Drum Song," his prediction could prove correct. But Gene won't be able to cash in on a musical trend; he'll be tied up most of the year with "Going My Way" on TV.

Parks Hunting Hawks On Meter

MOUNT VERNON, Wash. (AP)—Hank Morgan has an unusual use for a parking meter.

Morgan, a Skagit Valley College student, trains hawks for hunters. They are taught to hunt other birds, or rabbits.

He does much training nights. On coming into town for coffee or a snack, he often parks the bird on a meter.

However, during the second period they could not increase their margin as both teams scored 17 points for a 31-23 halftime score in favor of the Rams. Williamston outscored the Rams in the third period 16-12, but the extra four points did not help as Robersonville came back in the final period and picked up 12 points to Williamston's nine.

Lewis And Otte All-Conference

CHARLIE LEWIS

BILL OTTE

Coach Earl Smith's East Carolina basketball team placed two men on the All-Carolinas Conference basketball team selected Tuesday by coaches for the Greensboro Daily News.

Representing the Pirates on the squad were senior co-captain Charlie Lewis and sophomore Bill Otte. The 6-foot 1-inch Lewis is from Kinston and Otte, 6-foot 7-inches, is from Hawthorne, N. J.

Lewis has led the Bucs in the scoring department most of the year and Otte has been at the top of the rebounding list. Both boys have done outstanding jobs for the team this year as well as in the past.

Lenoir Rhyne had three men placed on the team and Elon had two. Representing the Bears are Tommy Burton, a 6-foot junior from High Point, Jerry Wells, a 6-foot 5-inch junior from Canton, and Jim Wilkes, a 6-foot 1-inch junior from North Wilkesboro. Representing Elon were Jess Branson, a 6-foot 7-inch freshman from Burlington, and Dewey Andrew, a 6-foot 6-inch junior from Snow Camp.

Other choices in the balloting of the 11 coaches were Pfeiffer's Bobby Frank, Western Carolina's Mel Gibson, and Catawba's Al Johnson. Frank, who is leading the conference scoring rate, is a 6-foot 8-inch senior from Greensboro. Gibson is a 6-foot 3-inch junior from Rockingham and Johnson is a 6-foot 1-inch sophomore from Roanoke, Va.

All of the choices were from teams which will participate in the conference's annual tournament which opens tonight in Lexington.

KINSTON—Greenville's Rose High Phantoms gained their seventh win of the season last night when they defeated the Kinston Red Devils 58-55 in a Northeastern Conference battle.

This was the second victory for the Phantoms over Kinston this season. Coach Bo Farley's Phantoms took the lead in the first period of the contest 15-13 and the game continued to be a close one for the remainder of the night. Greenville also outscored their opponents during the second quarter for a 29-26 halftime advantage with Rodney Knowles and Billy James scoring all but eight of the points for the Phantoms in the first half.

In the third period the Red Devils rallied and outscored the Phantoms 15-12 to tie the score as the final quarter got underway. However, the Phantoms pulled ahead in the last period by outscoring their opponents 17-14 for the three-point advantage when the final horn sounded.

The high scorer for the night for Greenville was Knowles. The 6-foot 7-inch sophomore dropped in 11 field goals and one of one from the line for the total. James was second in the scoring department with six field goals and one of two free throws for a total of 13 points.

Kroghie Andersen came through in the second half as usual for five from the floor and 10 points.

Topping the scoring column for Kinston was Babe Hardison with 15 points. He had seven field goals and one free throw for his total. Others in the double figures for the Red Devils were Tommy Dail with 11 points and Johnny Avery with 10 points.

Earlier in the night the Greenville junior varsity team also came out on top by downing the junior Red Devils 40-37 in a close contest.

The young Phants trailed at the end of the first period 11-10 and were behind at the half 22-20. However, in the third quarter they held the Kinston boys to six points compared to 10 tallies for Greenville. In the last period Greenville outscored Kinston by one point for the three point advantage when the final horn sounded.

The high scorer of the night for Greenville was Sonny Taylor with 16 points. He was the only Phantom player in the double figures with six field goals and four of seven from the line. Kinston's high man was Marvin Oliver with 14 points. Jimmie Adkins had 12 points.

Friday night the Phantoms will play their last regular season game of the season when they host the Pam Pack of Washington.

Southern Loop Teams Finish Up Saturday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Just about the entire Southern Conference basketball season will be wrapped up in one game apiece Saturday night as far as Richmond's Spiders, The Citadel's Cadets and William and Mary's Indians are concerned.

One of two crucial games sends Richmond to William and Mary. The other has The Citadel playing host to Davidson's Wildcats.

Depending on how the two games come out, two of the three teams will earn berths in the conference's championship tournament March 1-3 and the third will be on the outside looking in.

As a result of Tuesday night's Richmond defeat by Davidson 72-62 and William and Mary's 92-84 loss to George Washington, Richmond now is 5-10. The Citadel 3-8 and William and Mary 4-11.

Should The Citadel lose to Davidson, Richmond and William and Mary will clinch the tournament's final two berths regardless of the outcome of their tussle. Such a situation would leave the Indians and Cadets tied, but William and Mary and Mary's victory spread in their two games was greater.

If The Citadel and Richmond win, those two teams will earn tournament spots. Should The Citadel and William and Mary win, there would be a tie between William and Mary and Richmond for the final spot—and again the point spread would be used. Richmond beat the Indians earlier by eight points.

In Tuesday night's only action aside from the two conference games, front-running West Virginia ran its over-all record to 20-5 with a 79-60 romp over Penn State.

Richmond, down by 37-22 at halftime, narrowed the gap to six points several points down the stretch but couldn't get any closer. The Spiders had 24 field goals to 19 for Davidson, but the Wildcats hit on 24 free throws.

Bill Jarman led the Wildcats with 28 points and Bill Bearman added 18. Sophomore John Teleo was high for the Spiders with 21. Richmond ace Danny Higgins missed the game because of illness.

win. The Bears were top-seeded in 1957 and the following year and won both tournaments.

But in 1960 and '61, after taking the top seeding into tournament play, they were beaten. Catawba stopped them in an overtime final's duel two years ago and last season they were walloped in the semifinals by Atlantic Christian, 66-48.

Now they carry the top designation into action for the fifth time in six years and run into a High Point team that handed them one of their four conference losses and pushed them into double overtime before losing last Saturday in the regular season finale.

Big Bobby Frank, key man in Pfeiffer's initial appearance in tournament competition, is conference scoring leader and an outstanding rebounder. He and his mates split a pair with Elon, each winning away from home.

Top Ranked Teams Are Tempting Fate

By KEN ALYTA

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — In 18 years of North State conference championship basketball tournament play the first seeded team won the tourney only five times.

Tonight the teams, playing under the Carolinas Conference banner for the first time, begin what again looks like a tournament in which it's tempting fate to be highly ranked.

Only Appalachian (9-11) of the eight teams failed to at least break even in the season's play. Top-seeded Lenoir Rhyne carries a 14-4 league record into tonight's 9:15 game against High Point (11-9). The doubleheader opens with fourth-seeded Elon (9-7) engaging Pfeiffer (9-9) at 7:30.

Thursday's concluding first round games match East Carolina, third seeded on an 11-6 record, and Catawba (11-9) at 7:30 and Western Carolina, second-seeded and 12-6 against Appalachian, with a 9-11 record.

Tonight's winners meet in one semifinal Friday, with Thursday survivors playing the other game. The title will be decided at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Willie Mays Slowing Up

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Wondrous Willie Mays, the San Francisco flash, finally is slowing up.

The authority of this startling statement is none other than Alvin Dark, the Giants' manager and Mays' most ardent admirer.

"I think Willie is better now than he's ever been," Dark began. "He certainly was more valuable to the club last season than ever before."

How and where has Mays slowed up then?

"On the bases," Dark replied. "I think he's a half step slower. You can't detect it in the field where he still makes those seemingly impossible plays, but you can tell it when he runs the bases."

"Half step slower or not, Willie is still the greatest all-around player in the game today. He hasn't lost any of his power and, if anything, he's a better hitter today because he has a greater knowledge of the strike zone."

"The tipoff on Willie's greatness is this. He hit 40 home runs last year, drove in 123 runs, led the league with 129 runs scored, batted .308 and still there were some who wrote that he didn't have a good year."

Dark was unusually optimistic about the Giants' pennant chances this season.

"I honestly believe we have as good a chance to win as any team in the league. Last year I felt the Braves and Dodgers were stronger but not this year. I think we have strengthened our pitching greatly with the acquisition of Billy Pierce and Don Larsen."

"I wasn't too familiar with the personnel last year and had to feel my way. There'll be no experimenting this year. I intend to put Orlando Cepeda back at first base where he belongs. Harvey Kuenn is my left fielder."

Farmville Tops Chicod 61-56

CHICOD—Coach Bob Howell's Chicod Hornets suffered their fourth conference loss of the season last night when they were defeated by Farmville's Red Devils 61-56 in a makeup game.

Farmville took the lead early in the game and by the end of the first half they held a nine point margin with the score 32-23. The Red Devils managed to increase their lead in the third quarter, but in the final stanza the Hornets narrowed the advantage, but not enough to give them the win.

Farmville also came out on top in the girls game by downing the Hornets 53-27 for their tenth win of the season.

The Red Devils pulled out in front in the first period and by the half they held the lead 26-8. During the second half they went on to increase the margin for the victory. Chicod never threatened the high scoring Farmville team.

The high scorer for the Farmville girls was Kay Allen with 15 points. Others hitting in the double figures for the Red Devils were Becky Williams with 14 points and Betsy Allen with 10 points. Pansy Jones was the high scorer for Chicod with 20 points.

Remarkable Rate For Field Goals In ACC

GREENSBORO (AP)—Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams are making field goals at a remarkable rate with the season almost completed, with four of the eight teams shooting at what would have been an ACC record pace before last season.

A year ago Duke set a new conference record by hitting 47.3 per cent of its shots over the entire season. Prior to the 1960-61 season, the ACC record was 46.0 per cent, set by Wake Forest's team of 1965.

With only one week of action remaining in the 1961-62 season, North Carolina, Duke, Wake Forest and South Carolina are all scoring from the floor at 46.1 per cent or better, and N.C. State is hitting right at 45.9 per cent.

North Carolina is the leader by a slim margin, 47.0 per cent to Duke's 46.7 per cent. Wake Forest has made 46.5 per cent and South Carolina 46.1 per cent.

Duke's Blue Devils, meantime, continue to top the ACC in scoring offense with an average of 82.3 points a game, with N.C. State the hardest to score against, giving up only 66.6 per cent.

Duke also tops the conference in team rebounding with 51.3 recoveries a game, and in average margin over the opposition, 14.8 points.

ACC Service Bureau figures show that Maryland is No. 1 again in free throw accuracy, having made good 74.9 per cent of its FT chances. Wake forest is second at 69.6.

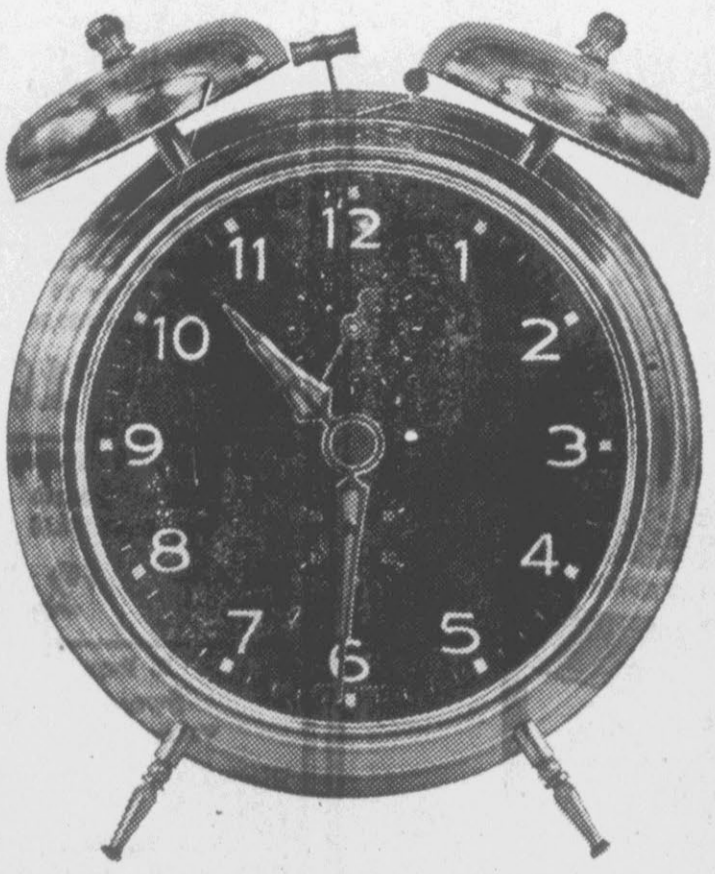

In the individual races, Len Chappell of Wake Forest is ahead by a comfortable margin in scoring average and rebounding and has inched ahead in field goal accuracy. Chappell is averaging 30.7 points, 15.5 points and is hitting 55.0 per cent of his field goal shots. Art Heyman of Duke is second in scoring with 25.8 points a game and in rebounding with 10.9 recoveries per contest. Donnie Walsh of North Carolina trails in field goal shooting at 53.9 per cent.

Orioles Report To Camp Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Baltimore Orioles' batmen reported to Manager Billy Hitchcock in their Miami camp today and their worst suspicions were confirmed.

Hitchcock announced that he was setting up organized calisthenics for the club. They will be a daily routine right up until the first exhibition game on March 10.

The players had heard talk of Hitchcock's idea, but they hoped he would change his mind. He wasted no time in giving the 21 pitchers, 6 catchers, plus a couple of stray outfielders and an infielder the bad news.

Hitchcock said his plan was not as bad as it sounds. In fact, he said he would prefer to call them "loosening up exercises."

"Our routine will be very simple," he told the players. "Bends and twists and side straddle hops for between five and seven minutes each morning to loosen up the muscles of the neck, arms, torso, waist and legs. It's being done as a preventive measure to reduce the possibility of pulled muscles."

First baseman Jim Gentile, third baseman Brooks Robinson and rookie outfielder Carroll Powell showed up with the batmen. The tug of war between Roger Maris, the New York Yankees' home run king and American League Most Valuable Player, continued with neither side showing any inclination to retreat. Maris is asking $75,000 and the Yanks are offering $60,000, a $20,000 raise. "We met for about 20 minutes yesterday," said General Manager Roy Hamey. "We're about as far apart as ever."

The St. Louis Cardinals and the Orioles had better news on the signing front. The Cards signed four players including first baseman Bill White, infielder Alex Grammas, catcher Jimmie Schaffer and pitcher John Anderson. Seven Redbirds remain unsigned.

The Orioles signed centerfielder Jackie Brandt, who had been threatening to hold out, for $20,000 and bonus rookie second baseman Waillard Oplinger. Four Baltimore players remain unsigned.

Former pitchers Ted Lyons and Hugh Mulcahy have signed new contracts to scout for the Chicago White Sox.

Nine Berths Still Open In 2 Major Conferences

By JIM HACKLEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Nine berths remain to be filled in the two major college basketball tournaments after five more prize teams were picked off Tuesday.

Four at-large clubs were named to the NCAA championship whirl, leaving two to go, and St. John's of New York (15-4) made the field for the 25th National Invitation Tourney, leaving seven to be picked for that 12-team competition.

Air Force (13-4), Seattle (14-6), New York University (13-3) and Butler (20-5) were chosen for the NCAA, the postseason classic that decides the national title. They join Oregon State, Villanova, Detroit and Creighton as independents in the 25-member field that also will include representatives from 15 conferences.

St. John's turned down a bid to the NCAA to make its 16th appearance in the NIT, at New York's Madison Square Garden, March 15-24. The Redmen, who have won three NIT crowns in the past, enter a field that also includes Loyola of Chicago, Duquesne, Houston and defending champion Providence.

Butler celebrated its first invitation to the NCAA Tuesday night

Difference Is Small In Poles

NEW YORK (AP)—There's not much difference between the new type fiber glass poles and the old-fashioned bamboo poles, according to a scientific test made by a research laboratory.

Because of the controversy over the fiber glass pole used by John Uelses in becoming the first 16-foot pole vaulter in history, Sports Illustrated asked the Johns-Manville research laboratory to test fiber glass, bamboo, steel, and aluminum poles for flexibility and catapulting qualities.

The test showed the fiber glass pole closely approximates the performance of the bamboo pole, said the weekly magazine in an article in its latest issue.

According to the tests, the most resilient pole was the bamboo followed by fiber glass, aluminum and steel.

by closing out its regular season with an 87-86 victory over Ball State. NIT-bound Houston won its 19th in 24 starts, rolling over Tulsa 98-71.

The Southwest Conference race unscrambled a bit, leaving only two teams tied at the top. Texas Tech beat Texas Christian 74-66 and Southern Methodist downed Texas 69-64, while Rice edged Texas A&M 63-62. Tech and SMU now are 8-3 in the conference, the Aggies are 7-4 and Rice is 6-5—all with three games to go.

Maine all but finished off Connecticut's shot at the Yankee Conference title, upsetting the Huskies 70-68. West Virginia became a 20-game winner for the seventh straight year, whipping Penn State 79-60 despite the absence of two starters.

Canius won for the first time in seven road games this season, beating Syracuse 66-61, the 24th successive defeat for the Orange. Other results—Georgia Tech 67 Tennessee 50, South Carolina 87 Clemson 81, Davidson 72 Richmond 62, George Washington 92 William & Mary 84, Santa Clara 76 Pacific (Calif.) 55, Fordham 76 Rutgers 62, Colgate 71, St. Lawrence 64, North Texas 74 Abilene Christian 67, Rhode Island 75 Springfield (Mass.) 55.

Group To Continue Drive On Obscene Literature

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

A committee interested in ridding local newsstands of obscene literature last night agreed to continue their efforts to get action through voluntary cooperation from newsstand dealers.

The committee, composed of members representing citywide P.T.A. groups, met in the Directors Room of Wachovia Bank Building, with John D. Grier, chairman, in charge.

nude women in detail, using vulgar language abundantly and making "fornication and adultery very glamorous." Grier said.

The committee has worked since that time to talk directly with newsstand dealers, who for the most part have voluntarily taken this type of literature off their stands. Twenty local organizations endorsed the committee's work last spring.

CD Radio Set Up And Tested

AYDEN—Civil Defense radio communications equipment has been installed at the town hall building and was reported in good working condition this week by Town Manager Cleveland Paylor, who also serves as Civil Defense director.

The antenna was installed on the roof of the town hall, with a mobile unit at the police station, housed in the same building. Eugene Underwood accepted the equipment for Ayden at a meeting in Greenville last week.

The equipment was tested Monday evening with communications headquarters at the Pitt courthouse. Heber Adams is in charge of communications for the countywide Civil Defense plan.

Another test will be conducted Friday evening.

Booklets on "Fallout Protection: What To Know and Do About Nuclear Attack" are available at the town office during office hours, at no cost to the public.

Another publication on "Family Shelter Designs" will be available soon at the town office. It is a 30-page booklet containing detailed instructions on the building of eight types of home shelters. It is being distributed by the Department of Defense, office of Civil Defense, to state and local CD offices for redistribution to the public without charge.

SAILFISH EXPERT

DALLAS (AP) — Elmore L. Finch of Dallas was told the fish weren't biting in rough and cold weather. Yet he took five sailfish within 31 minutes at Acapulco, Mex., early last December, says the maker of the 18-pound test braided Dacron line Finch used.

Nikita Says—

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev congratulated America today on Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr.'s orbital flight and suggested that the United States and the Soviet Union pool their resources to explore outer space.

He made his proposal in a message to President Kennedy, quoted by the official Soviet news agency Tass.

Khrushchev said such a joint effort "would be very beneficial to the advance of science and would be acclaimed by all peoples who would like to see scientific achievements benefit man and not be used for cold war purposes and the arms race."

Tass quoted Khrushchev as saying: "I should like to hope that the genius of man, who penetrated the depth of the universe," will be able to find a road to an enduring peace and to ensure prosperity to all peoples on our planet earth which in the space age, though it does not seem to be so large, is still dear to all its inhabitants."

Publications Conference Will Be Held At ECC On Mar. 31

East Carolina College will sponsor Saturday, March 31, the Second Annual High School Publications Conference to be held on the campus.

Invitations have been sent to staff members of newspapers and yearbooks and their sponsors in 44 counties of Eastern North Carolina. Immediate acceptances from approximately 100 students and faculty members indicate interest in the conference over a wide area.

On April 8, 1961, the first conference for high school journalists and staff members of yearbooks brought to the campus approximately 200 students from the eastern counties of the state. Attendance this year is expected to exceed that of last year.

Plans for the March 31 conference are now being made by Mary H. Greene, director of the college News Bureau and Mrs. Mdry Goodman of the English department, co-chairmen; and Dr. James W. Butler, coordinator.

Featured as speakers on morning and afternoon programs will be editors and news and feature writers representing newspapers in the state, faculty advisors of high school and college publications, and personnel from publishing companies of yearbooks.

A luncheon in the South Dining Room on the campus will be a special feature of the day.

Participating in arrangements for the conference are the Student Government Association of the college headed by Otis F. Strother III of Wilmington, president; the "East Carolinian," student newspaper, Patricia Elliott of Hertford and Imogene Peace of Norfolk, editor and editor-elect; the "Buccanner," college yearbook, Walter Faulkner of Henderson, editor; and the "Rebel," college literary magazine, Junius D. Grimes III of Washington, editor.

The program for the day and awards to be presented to high school staff members as winners in several types of writing and editing will be announced at an early date.

Explosion Rips Apartment

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — An explosion and fire wrecked one apartment house and badly damaged another Tuesday night. Fourteen persons were treated for shock or had glass removed from their bodies.

Fire Chief Leslie Coon said a blast blamed on an accumulation of natural gas tore through the year-old apartment building, shattering every window, broke windows in adjoining apartment houses and was felt three blocks away.

Woman Died In Cloudburst

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A torrent of rainwater swept the former wife of radio performer Walter O'Keefe to her death Tuesday night in a Beverly Hills street.

Roberta O'Keefe was a victim of the third storm to hit Southern California in 12 days.

A sudden cloudburst had swept the hills above Coldwater Canyon when Mrs. O'Keefe, 50, stepped from her car on the canyon road. A mass of runoff water caught her and she lost her footing, falling beneath the car. A block downstream, in a storm drain, police found her handbag—and in its Mrs. O'Keefe's toy poodle, also drowned.

Control Of Business Cycles Is Behind Plan

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—How far can major ups and downs in the business cycle be controlled? Can they be licked by government ac-

Not Giving Up

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's legal officials are not ready to give up on the state's Pearsall Plan as a valid means of avoiding school integration where public sentiment is against it.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Ralph Moody commented Tuesday, "I am not prepared to say our system is unconstitutional although I would admit attacks can be made against it."

The vulnerability of the Pearsall Plan came up for discussion after the U. S. Supreme Court struck down a Louisiana local option plan as unconstitutional. The Louisiana law was similar to the Pearsall Plan.

The Pearsall Plan permits the closing of an integrated school on vote of the citizens in that school district. Moody said, "I think we always ought to say state law is valid and good" until the courts ruled otherwise.

tion? These are the questions behind President Kennedy's request for standby public works spending authority to halt any future sharp rise in unemployment.

One extreme school of thought is that we already have tamed the business cycle which used periodically to bring on major depressions like the big one in the 1930s. The numerous economic cushions and safeguards set up since then has made any like disaster impossible—according to this school.

At the other end of the economic thinking is the view that the real strength of the business cycle hasn't been tested thoroughly since the 1930s, that it's far from sure yet that a major slump couldn't happen again.

Counterfeiters Had A 'Front'

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Police said today they had arrested four persons who made souvenir religious medals by day and phoney money by night.

Police said the counterfeiters, hiding behind the legitimate production of the religious medals, turned out 500-lire — 80 cent—pieces that were almost perfect.

The downturns we've had since World War II—known by the less frightening name of recession—have had their own short-term causes and short-term effects. They show the business cycle still exists, that it is restricted by such cushions as unemployment insurance, and to some extent at least by government pump priming.

The question is whether the cycle can be counted upon to stay short term and relatively mild—and if it can be made even milder.

The President thinks there should be more cushions and that they should be of a preventive or fast acting nature. He wants to be able to start up public works spending quickly, rather than the present process of voting for it, planning details, and then getting it under way many months after the slump has hit.

He also wants coverage of state unemployment compensation expanded and benefits enlarged. And he'd like to be in position to cut individual income tax rates fairly quickly to stimulate consumer spending.

His chances of getting Congress to grant such authority remain to be seen. When times are good or seem likely to improve, Americans in and out of Congress are slow to consider the possibilities of bad times returning.

The relatively quick return of generally prosperous business after each of the postwar recessions has added recruits to the ranks of the believers that the once feared business cycle has been licked.

Kornegay Given Vets' Duties

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Horace R. Kornegay, D-N.C., today was named chairman of a House Veterans subcommittee whose goal is to draft legislation that would give veterans the right to appeal a decision of the Veterans Administration.

Rep. Olin E. Teague, D-Tex., chairman of the full committee, who announced the appointment of Kornegay, said: "Under existing law, decisions of the Veterans Administration are final and conclusive so that veterans whose claims have been denied do not have a right to appeal to the courts or any other agency. The committee has been engaged in a study of this subject for several years."

Kornegay went to England last year to observe the operation of that nation's system of appeals which has been in effect since shortly after World War I.

Teague said he is hopeful the subcommittee's hearings will result in the enactment of legislation to give veterans their day in court.

Other members of the subcommittee are Reps. James A. Haley, D-Fla., Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., John P. Saylor, R-Pa., and Robert F. Ellsworth, R-Kan.

Georgia Growers Request Increase

WAYCROSS, Ga. (AP)—A request that Congress increase tobacco allotments 3 per cent for the flue-cured tobacco states has been made by Georgia growers.

The action came Tuesday at a meeting of tobacco growers and followed the election of W. P. Langdale of Valdosta to succeed state Rep. Dorsey Matthews of Colquitt County as director of the Georgia-Alabama district of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp.

An increase in acreage allotments is possible, the meeting was told, because of the release of federal funds to subsidize the disposition of 121 million pounds of surplus low grade tobacco from the 1955-56 crops.

Critic Resorted To Shooting

GUAYMAS, Sonora, Mexico (AP)—Carlos Soto, 20, of Guaymas, Mexico, walked into a restaurant, plunked a nickel into the jukebox, and began a rock 'n' roll routine.

A restaurant employe, Rangel Martinez, 18, picked up a pistol and shot Soto in the leg. When questioned by police, Martinez said, "This Soto wasn't dancing the real rock 'n' roll."

Glenn Family Will Try To Regain 'Normalcy' Today

By MARTHA COLE

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — The family of astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. had no special plans for today — just an attempt to get back to normal.

It was back to school for the two teen-age children, David, 16, and Lynn, 14.

They stayed home Tuesday with their mother, her parents, and family friends to watch television broadcasts of Glenn's historic orbital space flight.

It was a happy group that gathered for a neighborhood celebration Tuesday night at the end of a day that began for the family before 6 a.m.

"The most wonderful day for my family," Mrs. Glenn called it. Glenn called his wife and children about 4:40 p.m. from the destroyer which had picked him up. Minutes later President Kennedy called Mrs. Glenn with his congratulations.

Flowers and telegrams kept coming to the attractive contemporary brick home the Glenns built on a wooded hillside in this suburb of Washington.

The party was at the home of Lt. Col. Thomas H. Miller and his wife, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Leslie E. Brown came, too. Like Lt. Col. Glenn, Miller and Brown are Marines. The Millers and Mrs. Brown had stayed in the Glenn home to watch the three TV sets tuned to Glenn's mission. Also there were Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Castor of New Concord, Ohio, Mrs. Glenn's parents.

Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Brown fixed up a roast beef dinner for the Glenns.

Mrs. Glenn, 41, a small brunette, did not see the crowd of reporters and photographers until after Glenn's capsule was recovered and word was flashed that he was all right. Then she came out on the front porch with her children.

"I'm happy—I feel great," she said with a big smile. She probably was worried some of the time, she acknowledged, but "it's faith that makes things look right, like everything's going to be fine" she said.

The group inside the house had bowed their heads for a prayer of thanksgiving after Glenn's recovery. The Rev. Frank A. Erwin, pastor of the Little Falls United Presbyterian church which the Glenns attend, led the prayer. The Rev. Mr. Erwin, a family friend, spent the day at the Glenn home.

While Glenn was making his historic flight, honor came, too, to his pretty, freckle-faced daughter.

Five of Lynn's chums at Williamsburg Junior High School came to the Glenn home at noon to report she had been nominated for president of the ninth grade. She was one of 15 nominees.

Dave is more of the quiet type in comparison with Lynn. When someone asked him how he felt, he said it was "the greatest day of my life."

Mrs. Brown said Mrs. Glenn seemed calm and helped the others understand what was going on during the launch and orbit.

"This is an amazing woman in here," Mrs. Brown said of Mrs. Glenn. "The perfect choice for an astronaut's wife."

Geo. Washington Also Worried By Teen-Ager

NEW YORK (AP) — George Washington, too, worried about the teen-ager.

His concern was expressed in 1770 about his stepson, John Parke Custis, then 17.

Washington, in a letter to young Custis' tutor, the Rev. Jonathan Boucher, an Anglican clergyman in Annapolis, said in part:

"The time of life he is now advancing into requires the most friendly aid and counsel (especially in such a place as Annapolis); otherwise the warmth of his own passions, assisted by the bad example of other youth may prompt him to actions derogatory to virtue and that innocence of manners which one could wish to preserve him in.

For which reason, I would beg leave to request, that, he may not be suffered to sleep from under your own roof, unless it be at such places as you are sure he can have no bad examples set him; nor allow him to be rambling about at nights in company with those, who do not care how debauched and vicious his conduct may be."

Washington said he had the youth's well-being at heart and would be "to see him fall into any vice, or evil course, which there is a possibility of restraining him from."

The letter was one of 42 letters and documents of the Revolutionary War period presented to Columbia University by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Berold of New York City.

Columbia made it public in connection with the Washington birthday observance Thursday.

Curtis was Martha Washington's son by her first marriage, to Daniel Parke Custis. Washington reared the boy as if he were his own son.

Keep him "as much as possible under your own eye," Washington told the tutor.

Student Artist Exhibiting Work

Howard Mallard, senior at East Carolina College, is now exhibiting his work as a student artist in the Kate Lewis Gallery, Rawl building, at East Carolina College. The art show is sponsored by the college Department of Art and will be open to the public through February 28.

Nine oil paintings, impressionistic in approach, are of chief interest in the exhibition. Mr. Mallard, a major in art education, has had painting as his studio field since he entered East Carolina in 1959. He has studied paintings here under John Gordon, former faculty member; and M. Tran Gordley and Dr. W. B. Gray, director, of the Art Department.

Also included in the show are examples of Mr. Mallard's work in crafts, including ceramics, weaving, sculpture, and drawing.

In the student Art Club at East Carolina, Mr. Mallard has headed a number of committees of the organization. He has also been an active member of the East Carolina Playhouse and has had important roles in a number of its major dramatic productions.

Scheduled for graduation in May, 1962, he plans to become a public-school teacher of art.

Admits Ballet Is Hard On Toes

NASHVILLE (AP) — An international ballet star has admitted with unprofessional frankness what the non-dancer has believed all along: toe dancing can be hard on the toes.

"Dancing is not really a natural thing for the body but we have to make it look natural," said Toni Lander, blonde beauty who was born in Copenhagen, lives in Paris and dances with the American Ballet Theater.

"Many times our legs get tired and our toes hurt."

The remedy, she said, is universal: "We soak our feet. But if we don't have time to worry with them, we just grin and bear it."

ALUMINUM-GLASS ENCLOSURE is designed to provide year-round swimming facilities for residential pool owners.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

We are sure they won't say so out loud, but the manufacturers of recreational facilities are not exactly disturbed by the continuing trend toward a shorter work week in this country. Even though the trend may eventually affect their own employees, those who turn out bowling equipment, small boats and residential swimming pools know that increased leisure time for American workers means more business for them.

Still another trend favorable to the expansion of these companies is that toward family participation in recreational activities. Once a decided part of the American way of life, family fun went out of style for a long time. Now it is gradually making a comeback, even if it sometimes is pinned with the overworked label of "togetherness."

The backyard swimming pool ranks high on the list of products getting a big play in the family recreational field. In some areas, it has even become a kind of status symbol, side by side with automobiles, big homes and mink coats, to name just a few items which previously fell into this category.

Heated pools can make backyard swimming comfortable. But only the hardest of souls will take a dip unless the air around the pool also is warm. The manufacturers of residential swimming pools are, therefore, figuring out ways and means to enable families to enjoy swimming all year 'round. On display at the recent "Exposition of the National Swimming Pool Institute in Las Vegas, for example, was an all-aluminum and glass swimming pool enclosure designed for use 12 months during the year.

This enclosure has a completely prefabricated frame work made under what is called the unibeam building system, enabling it to be erected with ordinary hand tools by unskilled workmen or do-it-yourselfers. It is made in four basic widths and any lengths in modulars of four feet. The same heating equipment which warms the pool water is used for the enclosure, which seals in the heat and keeps out the cold, yet allows the warmth of the sun's rays to penetrate.

By means of sliding patio door panels on the sides and ends and, if required, sliding self-storing roof glass panels, ample ventilation is available when the outside temperatures are high.

Hey, Mom, look what's happening to our backyard.

At That Hour, It's Slave Labor

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Dial 118 and you get the correct time and temperature, courtesy of a savings and loan association. It's entirely automatic, and also confusing to one young citizen.

Mrs. Odette Patterson, the firm's advertising manager, said a mother told her that her son got up at 3 a.m. and dialed 118. Wide-eyed, he woke her up and told her: "Mother, that man's still there."

Would Repeal Age Of Goof-Off

ATLANTA (AP)—A speaker at an anti-Communism seminar in Atlanta has provided his own unusual formula for a capitalistic victory.

"We need to repeal the age of the 'goof-off,'" says Dr. Frank R. Barnett, program director of the Institute for American Strategy.

Humphrey Sees Chance Weaver Joining Cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said today there is a very good chance that U. S. Senator Weaver will become the first Negro Cabinet member—as secretary of welfare, Republicans are publicly urging the move.

Humphrey, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said he would not be at all surprised if President Kennedy names Weaver to succeed Secretary of Welfare Abraham A. Ribicoff. The senator said Weaver is well qualified for the post.

Ribicoff has announced he expects to campaign in Connecticut this year. Friends have said they have no doubt he will seek the Democratic nomination to oppose GOP Sen. Prescott Bush.

Republicans have accused Kennedy of injecting the racial issue in the controversy over his proposed cabinet-level department of urban affairs by his announcement he would name Weaver, the housing administrator, to head the agency.

With the House expected to kill Kennedy's reorganization plan, there would be no new department for Weaver to head.

In this situation, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois suggested that Kennedy could name Weaver to succeed Ribicoff "and there wouldn't be a Republican vote against him" when his nomination was considered.

Rep. Bob Wilson of California, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, followed this up with a telegram to the President in which he said an announcement that Weaver would succeed Ribicoff would "eliminate completely any suggestion of racism" in connection with the urban affairs proposal.

New HD Club Officers Named

GRIMESLAND — Mrs. Jessie Payton was elected president of the Grimesland Home Demonstration Club at a meeting Monday afternoon at her home.

Also elected were Mrs. James Wilson, vice president; Mrs. Rubelle Smith, secretary; Mrs. Lillie Mills, assistant secretary; Mrs. Lillian Gatlin, treasurer; and Mrs. Willie Hawkins, reporter.

Miss A. R. Gore, Negro home economics agent, presented the monthly demonstration on "Be Kind to Your Eyes When Viewing TV." One's eyes can never be replaced, Miss Gore stated, so eyesight should be cherished.

Plans were made for the County Council meeting to be held Saturday in the Tucker Building, and for the State Council meeting to be held in Raleigh on March 28. Discussion was also held on the county delineation program now in progress.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Lillie Mills, with Mrs. Willie Hawkins in charge of devotions and Mrs. Thelma Little in charge of recreation.

Those present at the meeting this week included Mrs. Little, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Hawkins, Mrs. James Wilson, Mrs. John Wilson, Miss Effie Whichard, Mrs. Payton and Mrs. Gatlin.

Foresight In Her Call To Police

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—Some people don't wait until something happens to call police. A woman here called police recently and complained that a youngster next door was piling snow on her fence.

A patrolman arrived and found no boy and no snow piled on the fence. So he checked with the woman.

She explained that the boy hadn't thrown any snow her way yet this winter but that he had done it every other year.

More Men Than Women In City

NEW DELHI (AP)—The population of the new and old parts of Delhi contains 320,144 more men than women, according to detailed figures now available on the 1961 census.

Many laborers come to Delhi from overpopulated rural areas but leave their wives and children in their villages, where they can be supported more cheaply.

The total population of the Delhi Territory, a federal district like Washington, D. C., is 2,638,612. This is 52 percent more than in 1951.

HOW TO PATROL A HIGHWAY-- and LIVE

Whizzing along on the Academy's high speed track, driving instructor Sgt. Robert Phillips hits siren and attempts to distract cadet in car ahead. This exercise teaches cadets proper pursuit tactics at high speed.

Cadets engage in defensive firing practice on range. Teacher is Patrolman John Pedri, right.

Patroling a highway can be dangerous business. To protect its highway patrol officers, the state of California is placing special emphasis on the best way to stop a car, just in case the car happens to be carrying a killer instead of an ordinary motorist.

Teachers at the highway patrol academy near Sacramento cite the murder of Officer Richard Duvall less than two years ago. He made what seemed to be a routine stop of a car on a lonely stretch of highway in San Bernardino county. The car driver wasn't an ordinary motorist but an escaping bandit who without warning shot Duvall dead.

"We're trying to make our people more aware of the dangers involved," says Capt. Leonard A. Overhouse, veteran commander at the academy.

A cadet is taught to use a stopped car as a shield by approaching it from the rear. When close by, he stands away from the door so that the driver can't open it suddenly and smash it against him. His holstered gun is ready for action.

How to drive a car at high speed is another subject taught. The classroom is a curvy highway back of the academy, and class is conducted at 100 miles an hour.

There are other courses besides survival. In 12 weeks the cadets learn much about such things as accident prevention and court procedure.

Each student must pass a civil service examination to get into the academy, may be assigned any place in the state if he completes his training successfully.

Got a balky motorist resisting arrest? FBI agent Robert Barthol demonstrates to cadets a way of getting culprit out of the car.

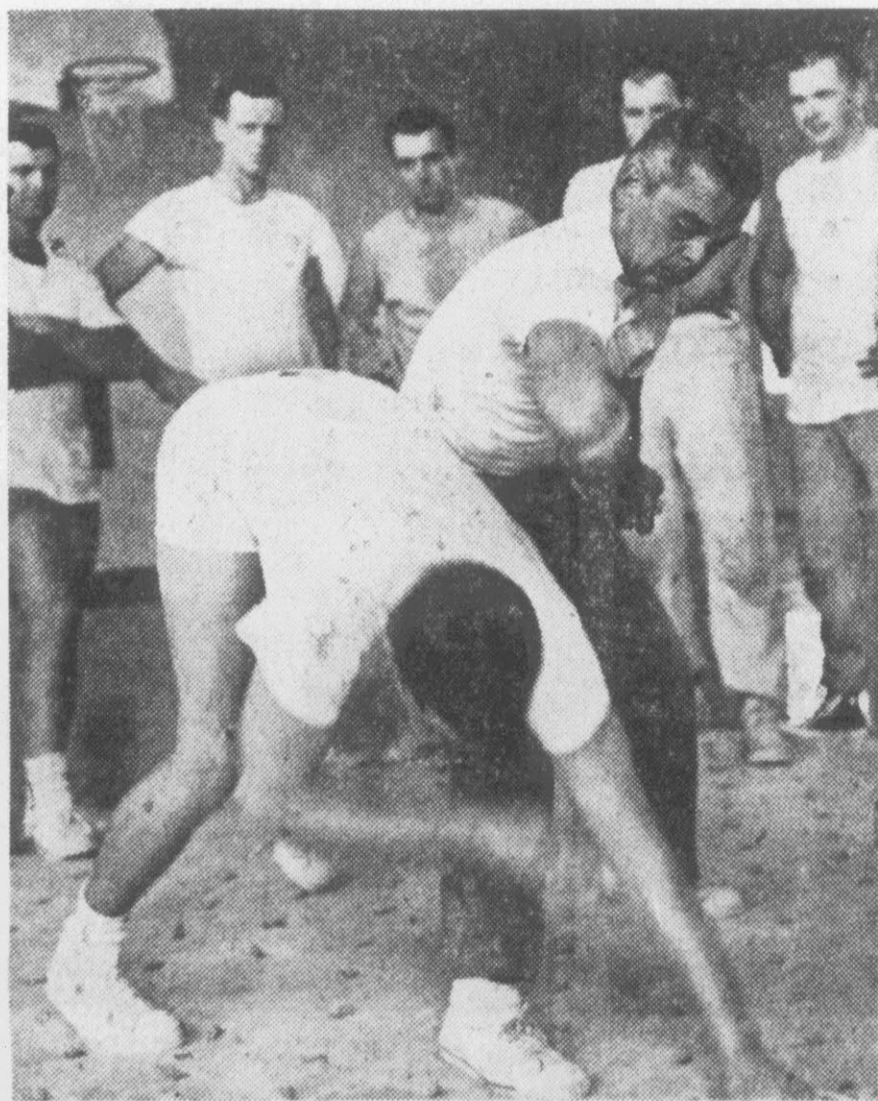

Driver-instructor Patrolman Ed Gamble briefs Cadet Fred Pumphrey before sending cadet out on high-speed academy track. Pumphrey wears special seat belt and shoulder harness.

Instructor Robert Phillips keeps tabs on cadets as they learn to handle car on slick road. Emergency course, or skid pan, is covered with oil and water and cars equipped with smooth tires.

Wheel and drum casualties of academy's high speed track are examined by Sgt. Robert Phillips, left, Capt. Leonard Overhouse, center, commander of academy, and Cadet Verby Pierce. Even with reinforced wheel drums and wheels, parts crack under strain of hard driving.

FBI agent Ray Miller, a judo expert, shows cadets how to throw criminal after breaking neck strangle hold. At end of judo session, cadets then practice defensive judo tactics.

Cadets are taught to approach halted vehicle from rear. If driver starts to shoot and you're behind the car, this is a good position to be in. Auto deflects shots of driver.

Councilman Finds Satisfaction In 'Thankless Job'

DR. M. W. ALDRIDGE . . . finds satisfaction by participating in community improvements.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

To Greenville City Councilman, Dr. M. W. "Henry" Aldridge, being a councilman is a "thankless job with poor pay" but giving satisfaction through the opportunity to "participate in improvements of the entire community."

Aldridge, a native of the Epworth community of Craven County (near Pitt's Clayroot) attended Farm Life High School in Vanceboro where he graduated in 1939. The next decade saw a combination of schooling and military service for him.

Aldridge explains that he intended to study agriculture but his father didn't want him to be a farmer so an effort to discourage him, gave him the hardest jobs on the farm to do during summers when not in school.

It worked, Aldridge remembers. "I was too lazy" to become a farmer the councilman noted, so dentistry became the prime objective. And, after attending East Carolina College and the University of North Carolina, he was graduated from the Medical College of Virginia's Dentistry in 1950.

Aldridge's military service came between his high school graduation and doctorate. He entered the Army in 1943 as a member of the Medical Corps. Trained as a company aid man, Aldridge served most of his time as a corpsman in an Evacuation Hospital. His overseas tour of duty included England, France, Belgium and Germany. The last four months in Europe was served in Berlin following the close of World War II. He was discharged in 1946 as a sergeant.

In August of 1950, following his graduation, Aldridge entered practice here. He explains that he chose Greenville for two reasons. First, because it is close to his home and second because he had "always liked Greenville."

PONDERS A POINT . . . as he considers a problem which arises in city's business.

First Ran In 1959
The Councilman's first venture into politics came in 1959 when he was first elected a member of the city's governing body. He sought re-election in last year's race and led the ticket. "Encouragement from friends and supporters" was his primary reason for running in the 1961 race, he explained.

Aldridge also stated that "at this time, I have no intent to seek reelection."

Commenting on a council seat, Aldridge noted "my interpretation is that a councilman is one of a group of five . . . who sit in judgment of city problems . . . and try to resolve the problems as they come up. The duties are not to run the city."

A councilman has his own business and therefore is limited in the amount of time he has to give to the city. "one person must be responsible . . . devoting full time to the business of the city". That person, according to Aldridge, should be the city manager.

He is or should be more competent and have training in the field. The council should "set policy . . . on non-routine business."

Being a councilman is, according to Aldridge, "a thankless job with poor pay!"

The main thing he does not like about the job of city-law maker is "the inability of the average citizen to understand what extent you (the councilman) is elected."

CONFERS WITH CITY CLERK . . . W. N. Moore discusses matter with Councilman Aldridge.

"We have to look out for the overall good of the city . . . whether we or some few citizens like it or not and keep personalities out of it."

"When we do things that are pleasing to the people we don't know about it but if we do things they don't like, we do hear from it!"

It gives a good feeling however, Aldridge noted, serving on the council and having a part in improvements made in the community.

Active Civically
At present the doctor is a member of the Elks and Moose Lodges, the Country Club, the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society and the District, State and American Dental Societies. He is also a member of the Loblolly Dental Study Club and a member of the American Society for Children's Dentistry.

In the past, he has served as a director of the Merchants Association and is a past president of the Chamber of Commerce, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Lions Club. He is also a past D.S.A. winner, receiving the honor in 1957.

Aldridge is a member of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

His hobbies include golf, bowling, and he has participated in "a little bit of everything," including racing and boating.

Aldridge married the former Dorothy Flye and they have three children, Jeff, 2, Steve 10 and Mike, 11.

Rotarians Hear Warren Kinlaw

AYDEN—Ayden Rotarians heard a program on liability insurance as presented by Warren Kinlaw at their meeting last week.

Although liability insurance rates here seem high, Kinlaw said, they are the cheapest east of the Mississippi River with the exception of the state of Delaware. He distributed folders entitled "Your Safe Driver Reward Plan" which contained information on the point assignment and point evaluation system.

Gwynn Merritt, president of the club, reminded program chairmen that they have been exceeding the time allotted for their programs.

Harry Stillman was welcomed back to the club following an illness. J. H. Rose, member of the Greenville club, was a visitor for the evening.

Guy Corbett gave the invocation. Dr. Sully Nelson of Ayden will present the program this week on the Rotary magazine.

Plan To Enforce Tag Ordinance

AYDEN—Town officials announced this week they will take "such action as is necessary" to enforce an ordinance which requires automobile owners to purchase and display city license tags.

Police Chief W. D. Brooks pointed out that the ordinance is very clear in intent. "Many people are not complying" with it, he said.

A total of 790 city tags were sold up to the Feb. 15 deadline. Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said that last year the city had almost 100 per cent cooperation from auto owners in buying and displaying the tags. The tags are still on sale at the town office.

Billy Graham Joins In Tribute

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Billy Graham joined the rest of the nation in paying tribute to astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. and recommended the marine colonel for a goodwill tour of South America. The evangelist, who just returned from a six-week crusade in South America, described Glenn as "an ideal man—physically, mentally, in every way."

Graham predicted Glenn's three trips around the globe will have spiritual propaganda value as well as scientific.

The space age will provide a new challenge to evangelism, Graham predicted jestingly. The Baptists, he said with a smile, are sure to have "a space foreign mission board" and "gospel astronauts."

One Suggestion: Mail It Away

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The conversation on a radio program featuring answers to telephoned inquiries centered on a strike of city garbage collectors who protested working in sub-zero temperatures. One caller, critical of the strikers, noted postmen worked in cold weather. The next caller had a solution to the problem: Mail your garbage to the city incinerators.

Astronaut's Home Town Basking In Reflected Glory.. And Has A Right

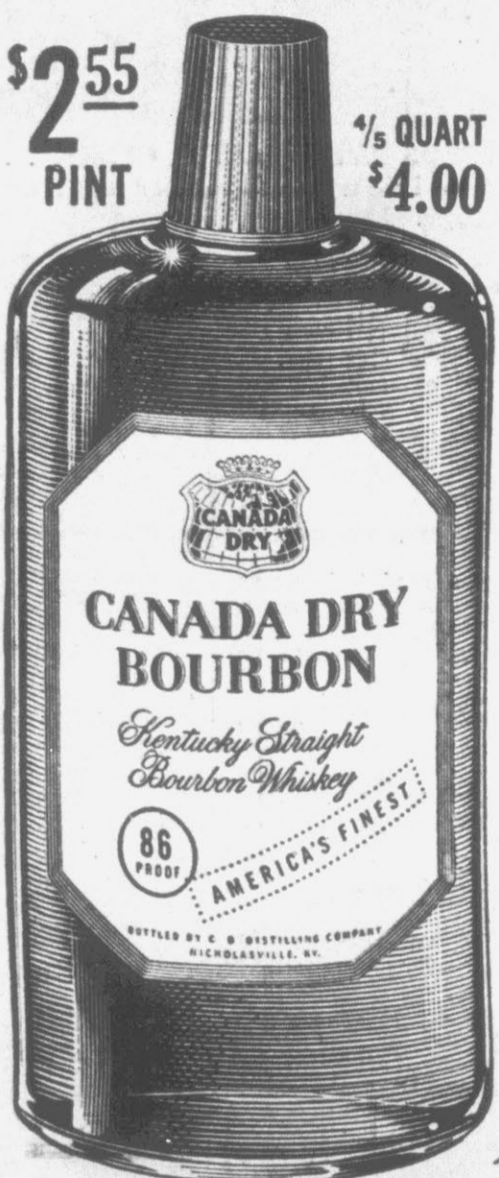

By ALFRED C. HALL
NEW CONCORD, Ohio (AP)—This little Muskingum County, Ohio, town basked today in the reflected glory of astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.—and not many other places had a better right. America's first man to orbit the earth lived here half his life. He went to primary, grade and high school here, and even to college.

He wed his childhood New Concord sweetheart, and it was here he played as a boy and won remembrance of the townfolk as a freckle-faced, red-haired lad who loved everything about aviation. Already his home town has honored the astronaut. It has named a little community park northwest of town—between Columbus, Ohio and Wheeling, W. Va., on U.S. 40

—after him. Now a move is under way to put his name to a new consolidated high school. The big excitement for this town of little more than 2,000 people isn't all over now that their favorite son has made his orbital space flight. Mayor James K. Taylor believes that in the near future, John Glenn will come home, and then there will be a big celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. John Glenn Sr., the astronaut's parents, who starred in a news conference at Muskingum College after the space flight, went home Tuesday night to spend a quiet evening—perhaps their first really restful one in many weeks. They assured everyone that there had never been any doubt in their minds that their son's trip into space would be anything but successful. They were jolly and smiling when it was all over—but they have been that way through the tense days and hours before and during the actual blastoff of the orbital project.

Arrested 3 In Police Station

AYDEN—Lt. James Ross had a busy weekend in the police station. He made three arrests for public drunkenness, all in the police station lobby. Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Lucille Reddick, Negro, Rt. 1, Ayden, entered the station and told Lt. Ross she wanted to swear out a warrant. Ross charged Mrs. Reddick with public drunkenness and detained her at the jail. A little later, Fate Reddick, her husband, went into the station to check on his wife. He, too, was arrested on a charge of public drunkenness. ### Catch Artillery Shells In The Air

DOVER, N. J. (AP)—Engineers at Picatinny Arsenal, the Army's research center for ammunition and special weapons, are able to catch artillery shells in the fly. The feat is achieved by synchronizing the firing of a 155 mm gun and the launching of a rocket sled, traveling in the same direction as the shell. The shell, which moves at a speed of 1,625 feet per second, pops undamaged into a padded box on the sled, which rockets along at 1,450 feet per second. The method was developed to enable engineers to study initial firing effects on shells. Masonic Notice
Crown Point Lodge No. 708, A.F.&A.M., will have a Stated communication Thursday, Feb. 22, at 7:30 p.m. All Master Masons are cordially invited.

Chapel Program Culminates Negro History Week Observance

GRIMESLAND—Negro History Week culminated at Pitt County Training School in Grimesland last Friday with chapel programs in both elementary and high school grades. The elementary program, under the direction of Mrs. V. R. Smith and Mrs. Harriet B. Russell, featured numbers from each class commemorating an outstanding Negro, or a significant event concerning the Negro. The newly formed band, under the direction of Willie Lee Morris of Bruce-Falkland School, played for the first time in both the elementary and high school chapels, rendering "Mary Had a Little Lamb" and other numbers illustrating rests and harmony. The high school program, under the direction of M. W. Rountree, assistant principal of the school and his homeroom class, eighth grade "A," was divided into two parts. In the first, students performed readings, songs and gave biographical sketches of and by famous Negroes. In the second part, students presented a play in the form of an interview depicting important Negroes who are making history to-

Heard Glenn On Their Own Radio

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Thomas A. Benham, Haverford College physics instructor, said he and a group of students heard astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.'s voice three minutes after he blasted off from Cape Canaveral Tuesday over a homemade radio set. Benham said Glenn was heard again for a total of five and a half minutes during the first and second orbits on a set he and his pupils built and set up in a trailer on the campus. The play was written and directed by Wilsonia Emma Delena Cherry, member of the class.

Dived Through Glass Windows

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—It was 11:10 p.m. Mary McLaughlin was sitting quietly in her kitchen.

Wham! A window gave way with a crash and a stocky man came flying through and sprawled on the floor.

Mrs. McLaughlin screamed. The man picked himself up, ran through the house and left—head first—through a back bedroom window.

Fifteen minutes later, and four blocks away, Richard Souder, 24, was awakened by the crash of breaking glass. He saw a man getting up from the bedroom floor. The man looked at Souder for a second, ran through the apartment and dived out another closed window.

The man ran from Souder's house, across the street, jumped through a window of George Averell's home and then, head first again, out a kitchen window.

By this time police were all over the neighborhood.

Mrs. James Wylie was reading in her living room when, crash, the man came jumping through a window a few feet from her. She screamed and the man ran through the glass front door—and sat down.

That's where police found him. He was treated for a broken ankle, head injuries and numerous cuts of the head, face, arms and neck.

He gave his name as James Edward Givins, 31, and his occupation as a presser.

Why the window smashing? Givins was quoted as saying he had had terrific headaches and hadn't slept for three or four days.

He was held without charge.

Five Children Died In Flames

STRAFORD, Conn. (AP)—Five young brothers and sisters burned to death in a fire that tore through their home today.

The dead children were James, 14 months; Carl, 4; Laurie, 7; George, 8; and John, 9.

Their brother, Timothy, 2, was alive when fireman Michael Bank reached him on the second floor, but he was critically hurt. The parents and two children, Beverly, 6, and Charles, 10, stood in the snow on their lawn and shouted for help.

Delivers Reply To Khrushchev

MOSCOW (AP)—West German Ambassador Hans Kroll delivered to the Soviet Foreign Office today Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's answer to a proposal for direct West German-Soviet talks.

A Soviet memorandum last December requested the direct talks to settle some outstanding questions between the two countries and said such talks would be in West Germany's "national interests." The Soviet note was seen as an effort to lure West Germany away from its Western Allies.

Glenn Postage Stamp Issue Has Quick Demand

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hidden away in 300 post offices across the country were mysterious sealed packages that carried orders, "Do not open."

The mystery was solved Tuesday. The moment astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. was plucked from the Atlantic as the first American to orbit the earth, the Post Office Department in Washington flashed the word: "open package and sell stamps."

The packages contained a special issue of four-cent stamps commemorating Glenn's flight—a simple blue rectangle with a space capsule, catching the rays of the sun, soaring over the earth. It carries the legend, "U. S. Man in Space," and in capital letters: PROJECT MERCURY.

Demand was instant. More than 70,000 stamps were sold in the first two hours at the philatelic window of the Benjamin Franklin Post Office in Washington.

In New York City the crowds were so large at the philatelic window of the main post office that Postmaster Robert Christenberry ordered general sale at all windows.

In Baltimore and San Francisco some people questioned the fact that the words "U.S. Postage" were omitted from the stamp.

In Woodland, Calif., a stamp collector of 20 years experience called it the greatest philatelic blunder in post office history.

But a Post Office Department spokesman in Washington said it was no blunder, it was intentional. The idea was to emphasize the space flight and it was felt the words "U.S. Postage" were not necessary, he said.

The project, cloaked in secrecy until Glenn's safe landings, was begun months ago by Postmaster General J. Edward Day and his deputy, H. W. Brawley.

Department officials said that the stamp designer worked at home; the engraver came in late at night and worked on weekends; the Bureau of Printing and Engraving cooperated by printing the stamps in a locked press room.

All communications were handled by telephone and word of mouth. Shipping was done on weekends, after postal inspectors had been informed they would receive a package that was not to be opened until the word was given.
