Economic Development Body Meets In Bethel

BETHEL—Pitt County Development Commissioners Wednesday tasted Bethel hospitality—including a steak dinner—as the economic development body gathered here for the fifth in a series of meetings in various Pitt communities.

A party of about 30—including commission members, three Pitt legislators, four county commissioners and nine Bethel hosts—toured the Diana Hosiery Co. and residential and business areas of Bethel before dining at the Bethel Rotary Club as guests of the Bethel Merchants Association.

During the business meeting of the commission, its chairman, Leonard Bloxam of Greenville, announced appointments to six newly-authorized subcommittees within the organization.

The chairman was authorized in January to name Sites, Buildings, Finance, Agribusiness, Contacts and Advisory committees. The study groups are scheduled to meet with commission executive director Dr. C. Sylvester Green and formulate reports to be presented at the commission's March meeting, to be held in Fountain.

At the invitation of J. M. Horton in behalf of the town of Fountain and the Fountain Ruritan Club, the commission voted to move its March 21 meeting site to the western Pitt community.

Committees announced by Bloxam included:

Sites—Dal Cox, chairman; Floyd P. Harris and R. P. Michaels; Buildings—Corey Stokes, chairman; W. Leslie Elks and James R. Norville; Finances—Wiley A. Gaskins, chairman; J. M. Horton and Frank K. Allen;

Agribusiness—Vernon E. White, chairman; James J. Edwards, B. Alton Gardner and Norman R. Wooten; Contacts—Robert Lee Humber, chairman, J. B. Congleton Jr. and D. R. House Jr.; Advisory—Bloxam as chairman and Cox, Stokes, Gaskins, White and Humber as chairmen of the five subcommittees.

In commenting on the new committees, executive director Green said they "will deal with immediate matters of sites, buildings, financing, agribusiness and contacts. It is my hope to meet with each of these committees within the next month, and that each committee will have a report for the commission at the March meeting."

In his regular report to the commission, Dr. Green said 146 new leaders were developed during the five-week period since the last meeting. "Replies from several of them indicate a potential interest which is being cultivated," he said.

He said four industrial prospects visited Pitt County during the last five weeks. Three of them Dr. Green described as exploratory visits "with no indication of interest beyond that." The fourth, however, was a "second visit on which this office has been working for almost a year, with excellent potentials developing."

Dr. Green said the Pitt office is still working hand-in-hand with the N. C. Department of Conservation and Development's Commerce and Industry Division. He re-announced the location of a Holiday Inn in Greenville, describing it as "good news for this area."

The director expressed hope that the Coastal Plain Planning and Development Commission could be activated by mid-April at a general meeting in Greenville.

He said tentative organizational plans for the area association are scheduled for presentation at the March meetings of the county commissioners in Pitt, Edgecombe, Wilson, Nash, Martin and Beaufort Counties—the six counties involved.

Attending Wednesday's meeting, in addition to the development commission members, were: County Commissioners Robert G. Little, Bruce Strickland, J. Vance Perkins and Robert L. Martin; Pitt Reps. Clifton W. Everett and Frank M. Wooten.

Dave O. Speir of Bethel was in charge of arrangements for the program and Mayor J. M. Butterworth presided at the dinner meeting. Action of the commission during its business session expressed gratitude to Bethel for its hospitality.

Will Not Run For District Solicitor

Charles H. Whedbee, Greenville municipal recorder's court judge, will not be a candidate for the solicitor post in the Fifth Solicitorial District, he announced today.

While no public statement had been previously made by Whedbee, speculation had been that the Greenville attorney-jurist would seek to succeed Robert D. Rouse Jr. of Farmville who declined to run for a third consecutive four-year term.

In making his announcement today, Judge Whedbee said: "After much prayerful and thoughtful consideration, I have decided not to seek the office of District Solicitor. For the present time I have decided to devote my time to the practice of law and to becoming the very best Recorder's Court Judge that I can."

He continued: "Words cannot express the humility and appreciation I feel to my many friends who have expressed confidence in me and offered their support."

Judge Whedbee's decision to pass up a try for the office left only one candidate to date for the $9,000-a-year state office. New Bern attorney Cecil D. May filed his candidacy in the May 26 Democratic primary more than two weeks ago.

The Fifth Solicitorial District includes Pitt, Craven, Greene, Jones, Pamlico and Carteret counties.

Whedbee, a Greenville native, has been local recorder's court judge for 10 years. Prior to his election to that bench, he served for 12 years as solicitor of Pitt County Recorder's Court.

His work in the Greenville court, especially with traffic cases, has received favorable recognition in Greenville, Raleigh, Charlotte, Richmond, Charleston, S.C., Charleston, W. Va., and other newspapers.

The son of the late Superior Court Judge Harry W. Whedbee and Mrs. Sallie Lipscomb Whedbee he attended Greenville schools, the University of North Carolina and UNC's School of Law.

CHARLES H. WHEDBEE

Whedbee is one of the organizers of the Pitt County Safety Council and has served as that organization's president twice. He is a Mason, a Shriner and a Master of the 11th Degree, Scottish Rite Masonry.

Active in Boy Scout work, he is a member of the Pitt County Bar Association and the N. C. State Bar. He is a member of the local Moose Lodge and of St. Paul's Episcopal Church here, having served on the Vestry of that church. He is now the chancellor of the church and is a past senior warden.

He is married to the former Rachel Morgan of Spring Hope and they have no children. The Whedbees now reside at 601 W. Third St.

Terrorists Attack In Algiers

ALGIERS (AP) — A wave of terrorist attacks swept Algiers today as the right-wing Secret Army Organization made a last-ditch effort to wreck an impending French-Algerian agreement to end the 7½-year rebellion.

Police reported more than a score of scattered attacks between 7 a.m. and noon, as European gunmen in cars and afoot fired at Europeans and Moslems, killing at least 11 persons and wounding 15.

The violence erupted as the Algerian rebel National Council was called into session in Tripoli to act on an agreement with France to end the strife.

The 60-member parliament was expected to give the needed four-fifths approval to the accord paving the way for Algerian independence, a measure already endorsed by France.

With the measure reported approved by the rebel Cabinet, hopes soared for a cease-fire in the North African territory by Sunday.

Among the victims in today's outbreak were four postmen killed and three wounded. Harried officials accused the secret army of desperately seeking to provoke strikes and major disturbances on the eve of peace.

French headquarters for Algeria appeared confident that the army will succeed in keeping the tense situation in hand when a cease-fire is announced. But the command is not taking any chances on the loyalty of various field commanders.

Informed sources said that the 500,000-man French army in Algeria has been permitted only 15 days of food and fuel supplies.

Camera Showed Strain On Glenn

NEW YORK (AP)—Motion pictures taken inside Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr.'s space capsule showed today that the force of the retrorocket braking as he reentered the atmosphere caused him to close his eyes.

This was the point at which he said:

"It felt like it was going to send me clear back to Hawaii."

The rest of the film shows him glancing left and right, looking at various instruments, or out a porthole, without apparent discomfort.

The automatically operated camera took the pictures in 16 mm color to show Glenn's facial reactions during his triple orbit of the earth Tuesday.

The camera clicked at a much slower rate, however, than the 32 frames a second in the average movie.

Glenn's reaction was but temporary and his eyes soon were wide open and observant again.

The camera was fixed so that it showed Glenn from the top of his helmet to the lower part of his chest.

A mirror about six inches in diameter was attached to his space suit, about six inches below his chin, and reflected readings on the instrument panel in front of him.

Secret Satellite Put Into Orbit

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The U.S. Air Force has a new satellite in orbit—one it doesn't want to talk about.

The satellite was launched, in secrecy, from this big missile base Wednesday.

The Air Force said only it was an Agena B rocket, boosted aloft by an Atlas missile and the launching was successful.

Experts theorized it was a test vehicle for the sky-spy Samos and Midas satellites, which are designed to keep Soviet missile bases under surveillance.

Mental Check Move Defeated

RALEIGH (AP) — District Solicitor Lester Chalmers today lost his effort to have Raleigh businessman Kidd Brewer committed to the State Hospital here for observation to determine whether he is mentally capable of standing trial.

Brewer, one-time candidate for lieutenant governor, has been charged with conspiring to defraud the state in the procurement of highway signs and sign materials.

Malcolm B. Seawell, an attorney for Brewer, presented affidavits today in support of his contention that Brewer is competent to stand trial. Dr. Bernard Bressler, a psychiatrist at Duke Hospital, stated in an affidavit, "Brewer has the mental capacity to undertake his defense and to advise with and consult with attorneys and otherwise prepare and present his defense."

Brewer has been in Duke Hospital since Jan. 23 undergoing psychiatric observation and treatment following an apparent suicide attempt Jan. 20.

FDR Memorial Design Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Fine Arts Commission has turned down a contemporary design consisting of eight towering concrete slabs as a memorial to the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The design, the arts group said, was too big for its setting, lacked repose and would compete with, rather than supplement, other memorials that would surround it.

'Spacetown' Prepares Welcome Returning Astronaut On Friday

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The high school band polished its instruments. The mayor prepared a special proclamation. The Chamber of Commerce readied a big red, white and blue "Welcome home, John" banner.

The nearby town of Cocoa Beach, which prides itself as "Spacetown, USA," was getting set to let go Friday with a big open-arms greeting to Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., first American to orbit the earth.

The joy was tinged slightly with disappointment.

The townsmen had hoped President Kennedy would ride through on his way to greet Glenn at the cape. But word got around Wednesday that the President planned to bypass Cocoa Beach and fly right to this missile test center to give Glenn a medal and make a quick inspection before returning to Palm Beach.

Somewhat ruefully, City Manager Jerry A. Singer said "It would have been a privilege to have the President come into our town. "But he said he understood the President had his reasons for doing it another way.

And, Singer said, it wouldn't prevent this space age boomtown from showing it is "bursting with pride" at the historic accomplishment scored by Glenn last Tuesday.

Glenn is still on Grand Turk Island in the Bahamas, winding up a series of exhaustive checks in which doctors and psychologists are trying to gauge how he was affected by prolonged weightlessness and other phenomena of flight in space.

So far, Glenn's condition has checked out as excellent.

The astronaut's wife, two children, parents and in-laws were to head South today for their reunion with the Marine lieutenant colonel Friday.

And they were going prestige class—as guests of Kennedy on his plane bound from Washington to Palm Beach.

The President invited along Glenn's wife, Anne, their son David, 16, and daughter Lyn, 14; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Glenn Sr.; and Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Castor, Mrs. Glenn's father and mother.

From Palm Beach, the astronaut's relatives were due to turn around and fly here aboard an Air Force plane, with the President following on Friday.

Kennedy will spend the weekend at the family's winter home at Palm Beach, Fla., visiting with his father, Joseph P. Kennedy. The elder Kennedy is recuperating from a stroke suffered Dec. 19. The President's wife and their two children, Caroline, 4, and John Jr., 1, flew to Palm Beach Wednesday in the family plane.

At his news conference Wednesday Kennedy called Glenn's mission a "magnificent achievement." The President said it goes "far beyond our own time and our own country."

"The success of this flight, the new knowledge it will give us, and the new steps which can now be undertaken, will affect life on this planet for many years to come," he said.

Cocoa Beach, which considers itself Glenn's second home, will show its feelings for him during a slow-moving motorcade which will carry the red-haired, green-eyed Marine war hero the 20 miles from Patrick Air Froce Base to the cape.

Brevard County schools will be out. And thousands of persons from other central Florida communities, perhaps from even further away, are expected to flow into Cocoa Beach and line the broad highway that forms its main street.

Police Chief William M. Walker was bracing for a big traffic snarl, perhaps bigger than the one last Tuesday when about 55,000 persons jammed the beaches to watch Glenn's rocket take off.

Mayor Thomas S. Kennedy was drafting a proclamation of welcomé to mark Glenn's return.

Many are likely to drive down to Patrick Air Force Base to see Glenn land and possibly witness his reunion with his family.

The motorcade will move from the Air Force base to the south gate of Cape Canaveral, passing under a 100-foot "Welcome home" banner stretched across highway A1A.

Glenn is due to reach the cape's own airfield about 15 minutes before the President's planned touchdown at about 10:30 a.m. There, they will meet again—Glenn visited the President at the White House early this month.

Kennedy probably will look in on the ground control center, heart of the man-in-space operation, and see Pad 14 from which Glenn blasted off.

At Hangar "S", where Glenn prepared for his great adventure, Kennedy will present him with the space agency's Distinguished Service Medal—the climax of the day.

The President will return to Palm Beach about noon, and Glenn then will face what promises to be a heavily covered news conference before he and his family go off on what a space agency official said will be a quiet weekend.

Next Monday, the Glenns will link up with the President again at Palm Beach and fly from there to Washington where this country's ranking space explorer will receive the thanks of Congress and the fullest possible honors.

GRAND TURK ISLAND, Bahamas (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. backed up his backup pilot in a sea rescue a day after Glenn himself was pulled from the ocean in his space capsule.

Glenn, brought to this Air Force tracking station for a physical examination and interviews about his 17,500-mile-an-hour flight around the globe, took part in the rescue of a skin diver Wednesday.

His fellow astronaut and backup pilot, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Malcolm S. Carpenter, had been swimming with two unidentified skin divers who live on the island. One had dived to see how deep he could go without a supply of air.

Carpenter accompanied him down and said the man apparently became unconscious at the 80-foot depth, on his way up from 110 feet. Carpenter could not succeed in giving him his mouthpiece for air and pulled him to the surface, where Glenn, sitting in a boat, helped pull the man aboard.

Glenn was taking time out from physical examinations and giving details of his orbital flight to National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials.

House Sinks Urban Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has torpedoed President Kennedy's plan to establish a Cabinet-level department of urban affairs. But he says there will be such a department "sooner or later."

The lopsided 264-150 House vote Wednesday also killed Kennedy's plans to put a Negro, Robert C. Weaver, in the Cabinet for the first time. Weaver, now head of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, would have become the urban affairs secretary.

In turning back Kennedy's reorganization proposal 111 Democrats, mostly Southerners, joined 153 Republicans. Thirteen Republicans crossed over to support the President, voting with 137 Democrats for the plan.

At his news conference Kennedy blamed his expected but stunning setback on sectionalism.

He said: "If we in this country began to adopt the system that everyone who lives in a city area voted against those things which were of assistance to the farmer, and everybody who comes from a rural area voted against those policies which provided a better life for people in the city this country would come to a grinding halt."

Expressing regret that Congress had rejected the plan, Kennedy said he still regarded creation of such a department vitally important. "I don't think it is so much the administration's loss as it is a loss for the cities and the country," he said.

In a statement blistering the Republican party as "blindly obstructionist," Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey took no note of the heavy Democratic vote against the plan. If Democrats had gone down the line for the President his proposal would have gone through.

Pitt Road Work Among Projects

A total of nearly one mile of grading, base course and widening resurfacing in Winterville, Farmville and Stokes was included in 44 road projects in 40 counties advertised for bids Monday by the State Highway Commission.

The project in Winterville involves Main Street while the Farmville project will be on US Highway 258. Highway NC 903 in Stokes is included in the project.

Bids will be opened next Tuesday at the highway letting in Raleigh and the State Highway Commission will review low bids when it meets in Raleigh March 8

Spaceship 'Friendship 7' In Good Shape After Trip

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Engineers and technicians today examined the Friendship 7 spaceship which John H. Glenn Jr. rode into orbit Tuesday.

Except for some surface scorching from the 3,000-degree re-entry heat, a preliminary look showed it to be in exceptionally good condition, reported a spokesman for McDonnell Aircraft Co., which made the capsule.

He said these two areas are receiving special attention.

They are the automatic attitude control system which malfunctioned slightly and forced Glenn to take over partial manual control for much of the 4-hour 56-minute space journey when one of 18 gas jets on the capsule surface apparently failed to work, reducing effectiveness of control on the yaw axis; and the difficulty Glenn had trying to exit the capsule after the craft had been pulled from the sea and placed on the deck of the destroyer Noa.

Egress involves removal of a parachute canister and other equipment. But after several minutes trying to remove a section of instrument panel, the astronaut gave up and pushed a plunger which blew out an escape hatch on the side.

In practice sessions, Glenn had been able to leave within a few minutes. He had hoped to avoid blowing the hatch to keep the capsule as intact as possible.

An Air Force plane flew the spacecraft here from Grand Turk Island Wednesday. The plane crew had written on it: "Rescued from the Navy by the 17th Air Transport Squadron, Charleston Air Force Base, S.C."

Earlier, sailors of the Noa had added two Noa decals, similar to baggage stickers used by travelers.

The searing re-entry heat had nearly wiped out the Friendship 7 label and an American flag painted on the side. But large white letters spelling "United States" were only partly obscured. Glenn was protected from the heat by a heat shield at the base of the vehicle.

After several weeks study, Friendship 7 probably will be taken to either the Smithsonian Institution in Washington or to Langley Air Force Base, Va., headquarters of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's space task group.

The Freedom 7 capsule which Alan B. Shepard Jr. rode on a suborbital space trip last year has an honored place in the Smithsonian. The Liberty Bell 7 which bore Virgil I. Grisson on a similar trip sank in the Atlantic after landing.

The capsules which chimpanzees Ham and Enos rode and several used in instrument flights are on display at Langley. These may be moved to Houston, Tex., where the space task group soon will shift its operation.

Police Chief Saw Speeding Car Ram Cemetery Entrance

A teen-aged driver last night crashed head-on into a gate and masonry pillar at the Cherry Hill Cemetery as Greenville Police Chief Guy C. Langston, who was attempting to stop the youth, looked on.

Investigators reported that the lawman was stopped at the intersection of Fourth and Evans Sts. about 10:30 p.m. when he observed a vehicle traveling the wrong way on Fourth St. The auto traveled from Cotanche St., west toward Evans, then on to Washington Street. After reaching Washington, it turned northward—again the wrong way—and headed toward the river.

Chief Langston explained that as the auto passed his stopped car, he motioned for the driver to stop. The car kept going, he said.

Upon seeing the vehicle turn the wrong way on Washington St., the chief proceeded to pursue the car.

As the official turned onto Second St., he saw the speeding vehicle cross the intersection of Greene St., then only seconds later, saw the car crash head-on into a metal gate and masonry pillar at the entrance of the city-owned Cherry Hill Cemetery at the west end of Second St.

Driver of the fleeing vehicle was identified as Richard Scott Morris of Route 2, Farmville. Morris, 16-year-old, was charged with careless and reckless driving.

Traffic officers who investigated the crash quoted Morris as saying he was headed west on Second Street at about 50 miles per hour when he lost control of the car.

Damage in the crash was set at $600 to the car and an estimated $200 to the iron gate and brick-work at the cemetery.

Chief Langston reported the youth gave no reason for his actions. According to the official, the auto was not speeding when first observed and picked up speed only after he had passed the law enforcement vehicle.

DRIVER CHARGED . . . Operator of this car was charged with careless and reckless driving by officers after the vehicle crashed into masonry pillar and gate at Cherry Hill Cemetery last night.

Burmese Ambassador To Be Guest At Dinner And Drama

President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College and Mrs. Jenkins will entertain approximately 50 guests Saturday, Feb. 24, at a dinner honoring His Excellency U On Stein, Ambassador to the United States from the Union of Burma, and members of his staff at the Burmese Embassy, Washington, D. C.

The Burmese Ambassador will be at East Carolina Saturday to attend a performance by the East Carolina Playhouse of "The Wages of Sin" by U Nu, Prime Minister of Burma. The drama will be presented at the college here in its first performances in the United States Feb. 23 and 24 at 8:30 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium.

U On Sein

Among honored guests also will be U Ba Myint, cultural attache at the Burmese Embassy, and Daw Mya Sein, educator, historian, former representative to the United Nations, and one of the most distinguished women in the political life of her country.

Daw Mya Sein arrived at East Carolina College early this week, and has acted as advisor and consultant to the East Carolina Playhouse during final rehearsals of the U Nu drama.

Mr. Hugh Cannon, director of the N. C. Department of Administration; Mr. Joel L. Fleishman, legal assistant to Governor Sanford; D. S. Coltrane, special consultant to the Governor, and Mrs. Coltrane; Mr. Charles Holloman, budget analyst, and Mrs. Holloman; and Thomas Lambeth, Assistant to the Governor, will come from Raleigh to attend the dinner and the performance.

Members of the college Board of Trustees and their wives who have accepted invitations for Saturday's events are Chairman Herbert L. Waldrop of Greenville and Mrs. Waldrop; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Belk of Goldsboro; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Taylor of Warrenton; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morgan of Lillington; and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oglesby of Washington, D. C.

Other out-of-town guests will include Mr. Raymond Lowery of the Raleigh News and Observer; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woodard of Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. Dail Holderness of Tarboro; and Mrs. Rosemary T. Davis of Goldsboro.

Guests from Greenville will be Mrs. James S. Ficklen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Humber, Frank Wooten, and Mr. and Mrs. David J. Whichard III.

Members of the college faculty and administrative staff who will attend the dinner are J. A. Withey, director of "The Wages of Sin," and Mrs. Withey; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holt; Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Duncan; Mrs. Agnes Barrett; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rickert; Mr. and Mrs. George Pasti; Mr. and Mrs. James E. Poindexter; Ovid W. Pierce; and Miss Bessie McNiel.

A duo composed of Donald H. Hayes, violinist, and Charles Stevens, pianist, faculty members, will provide music at the dinner.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Almost everyone has a favorite plant or flower. Some have come by use in the garden, others from memory in a childhood garden. This week two Greenville gardeners tell of their favorites. You may have used these yourself, but if you haven't, the information passed on may be worth putting to use in your own garden.

Day Lilies

Mrs. J. C. Galloway of the Greenville Garden Club gives day lilies as her favorite and tells how to care for them.

It is difficult to say that any particular flower is a special favorite since there are so many kinds and varieties and each so beautiful and important in our gardens. I do my own gardening; therefore, I'm especially conscious of getting the most flowers possible for my efforts, and in this respect, at the present time, I believe day lilies are my favorite.

Day lilies, or if you prefer hemerocallis, is one of our most adaptable perennials. There are a variety of colors, yellow pink, red, cream, purple and bicolor varieties to choose from. By planting some early, some midseason, and some late blooming varieties we can have blooms from early spring until late fall. Very little care is needed other than light cultivation and application of fertilizer in the early spring, and dividing and replanting in the fall. The rhizomes multiply so I can have even more plants from year to year. They seem to thrive in most any type or well drained soil and are not so susceptible to disease or insects. All of these advantages plus the array of beautiful flowers I can enjoy blooming in my garden or use in arrangements in my home are most attractive to me.

Achimenes

Dr. Christine Wilton of East Carolina College tells of Achimenes and gives information on care and use.

Flowers of Achimenes resemble gloxinias to which they are related, but are somewhat smaller, being only about an inch in diameter. However, the flowers are produced abundantly from late spring until frost and compensate in numbers for their lack of size.

Achimenes are often recommended for summer display in window boxes and hanging baskets. Their floppy habit of growth makes them especially suitable for covering the edges of such containers. But they are also attractive in sunny borders where they grow to be eight to 12 inches tall and at the same time cover the ground nicely. The usual method of propagation is by rhizomes which resemble fleshy catkins. Gardening books advise that these rhizomes be stored over winter in a cool dry place, but here in Greenville they can be left in the ground year after year. The only attention they require is thinning when they become too crowded.

The rhizomes that have been outside through the winter do not begin their growth until after the spring flowering bulbs have come and gone. Then when you have perhaps decided that Achimenes did not survive the winter (its name means "to suffer from cold") the shoots will appear. By mid-June, the first flowers opn and thereafter until late fall there are always flowers.

This plant is not suitable for winter potting because it "hibernates." Even in a greenhouse with what would appear to be ideal conditions of temperature, water and light, the tops die in October and the rhizomes lie dormant for several weeks or months. If one wishes to have plants and flowers earlier than June or July, the rhizomes can be planted in pots as early as January and kept in a warm sunny room until time to move them out to the summer location.

Conclusion

Write to this column and tell other Greenville and Pitt County gardeners of your favorite flower, tree or shrub. In this way, you might give others a chance to use them in their garden if they haven't done so already.

Southeastern Flower And Garden Show Begins Feb. 23 In Raleigh

Mrs. Tommy Bright of Chicago, Ill., International Designer and Commentator, who is recognized by the Florist Industry as being one of the outstanding authorities in floral design, will appear each day in the Arena at the Southeastern Flower and Garden Show from 3:00 to 4:30 p.m., except Sunday.

Mrs. Bright's ability as a commentator is unsurpassed. She will delight each with limitless suggestions of designing, care, treatment and short cuts for the use of flowers. As a floral stylist, she has promoted a greater use of flowers in fashion and in the home.

For years, Mrs. Bright conducted a school for advance floral design, but now devotes all her time lecturing and commentating at state, regional and national florist meetings and for club groups. She prepares the floral arrangements for "Pause for Living" and "Living with Flowers."

Mrs. Bright has designed arrangements for presentation to Mrs. Eisenhower, President Roosevelt, the late Cardinal Mundelein, Queen Elizabeth of England, and many other notables.

In addition to her lectures in the United States, Mrs. Bright has presented lectures to Garden Clubs and Florist Groups throughout the Union of South Africa, Rhodesia and Canada.

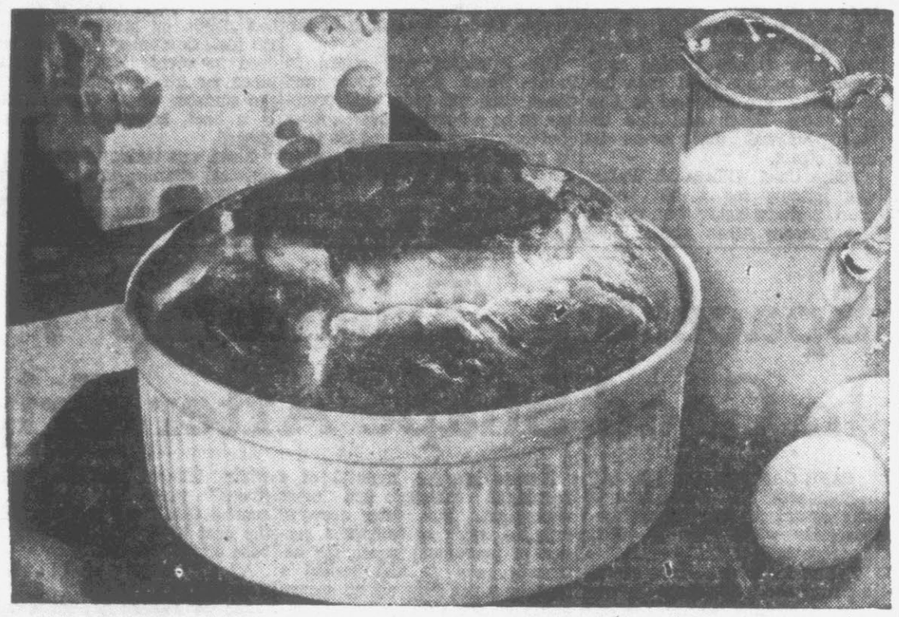
Swiss Cheese Hits The Spot



CHEESE SOUFFLE doesn't have to be made with cheddar cheese; try Swiss cheese in this dish for an interesting flavor change.

Associated Press Food Editor

SUCH DELIGHTFUL things to do with Swiss Cheese! Do you usually use cheddar cheese in a souffle? Change about! Try Swiss for an interesting flavor turnaround.

A chef's salad simply isn't the real thing without Swiss cheese. But one must the cheese must be cut in matchlike strips. Don't ask us why. All we know is that this way it tastes best.

Use the cheese for grilled sandwiches, adding ham if you like. You can make these in a skillet, adding plenty of butter and toasting the sandwiches until golden brown. We think these are particularly good made with a robust whole-wheat bread. Company coming for lunch? Serve these sandwiches with mango chutney spooned into tiny lettuce cups; add a tossed green salad dressed with olive oil and wine vinegar, salt and freshly ground pepper.

Some cooks we know dote on adding cubes of Swiss cheese to a Waldorf salad — you know the old-time combination of celery, apple, mayonnaise and sometimes nuts.

SWISS CHEESE SOUFFLE

1-3 cup butter
1-3 cup flour
1½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups milk
1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce
½ pound finely grated Swiss cheese (about 2 cups)
6 eggs (separated)

Melt butter in a saucepan over low heat; stir in flour, salt, paprika and pepper. Add milk; cook and stir constantly until thickened. Remove from heat. Add Worchestershire and gradually the cheese, stirring vigorously until melted. Cook slightly. Beat egg yolks until thick and pale colored; fold thoroughly into cheese mixture. Beat egg whites until they hold soft peaks; fold gently but thoroughly into cheese mixture. Pour into an ungreased 2-quart souffle dish or similar casserole. Set in pan of hot water. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven about 1 hour or until a silver knife inserted in center comes out clean. Makes 6 servings.

'Higher Education As It Effects Women' Topic Of Dr. Nixon

The American Association of University Women met on Feb. 19 in the Alumni Building of East Carolina College.

Refreshments were served by the hostess committee: Mrs. Austin Perry, chairman, Mrs. Daisy Rogers, Dr. Mildred Southwick, Mrs. D. S. Spain, and Mrs. David Taylor. The table was appointed and centered with a bowl of red camellias flanked by lighted tapers in silver candelabra.

Dr. Kathleen Dunlop presided over a business meeting. Mrs. D. S. Spain gave the proposed legislative program to be submitted to the national AAUW at the Denver meeting in 1963. Miss Lela Brown Stancil asked for support for the United Forces for Education.

It was unanimously voted to give a summer scholarship of $650 to a woman student of superior academic ability at East Carolina College for foreign study this summer.

Dr. Ruth Modlin, chairman of the Education Committee, introduced Dr. Ruth Nixon of the Education Department who spoke on the topic, "Higher Education As It Affects Women." In her talk she spoke briefly on the stereotyped educated woman in fiction, how the potential of women is being put to use today, and the many opportunities in the professions and business for career women or for those who would give only part time. After her talk, an informal question and answer session was conducted.

East Carolina Art Society Elects Officers At Meet

At their annual meeting last night, the East Carolina Art Society elected Mrs. James Ficklen Jr. as their new president and elected Mrs. J. H. B. Moore as honorary president.

Other officers elected at the dinner meeting held at the local Art Center were R. W. Howard, first vice president; Francis Lee Neel, second vice president; James T. Cheatham Jr., third vice president; Mrs. W. I. Wooten, recording secretary; Mrs. J. Hampton Thomas, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. J. H. Harrell, treasurer.

The society elected Frank Wooten as legal advisor.

Also elected were 12 directors as follows: Sen. Robert Lee Humber, Mrs. Edwin Monroe, Ralph Garrett Jr., Dr. K. B. Pace, M. K. Blount, Mrs. W. E. Debnam, Mrs. Louis Gaylord Jr., Dr. Leo Jenkins, T. I. Wagner, Rev. Terry Agner, Dr. Sylvester Green and Mrs. Reid Perkins.

Outgoing president of the society was M. K. Blount.

During a program following dinner, members heard remarks from Francis Speight and from Mrs. Bernard Jackson, director of the art center.

Mrs. Jackson noted that a film on the famous Russian ballet, the Bolshoi Ballet, will be shown at the Pitt Theater on March 8 under sponsorship of the East Carolina Art Society. The film will feature the "Swan Lake Ballet." The art society will receive a commission on advance sale of tickets.

Those interested in the various types of membership in the art society may contact Mrs. Jackson at the Greenville Art Center.

Dominican Republic Has New State Of Emergency

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic AP—The Dominican Republic was held under a state of emergency today as authorities clamped down on terrorists accused of trying to restore dictatorship.

President Rafael Bonnelly's government went into action as vandals set fire to cane fields and sugar mills in the worst flareup since last month's abortive military coup was quelled.

Bonnelly ordered seizure of property belonging to members of the ousted Trujillo dictatorship, charging that his regime was menaced by a conspiracy from both the left and right.

Calling the state of emergency to "defend our incipient democracy," Bonnelly accused terrorists of following a plan aimed at "taking the country down the road to chaos or totalitarian dictatorship."

Six fires broke out as the state of emergency was called, bringing to 116 the total of blazes set in cane fields and mills in recent weeks.

Informed sources said five young leftists had been arrested on charges of smuggling arms into this island nation.

The government charged that Communists were using funds taken from the treasury by the Trujillo family to create agitation and hamper restoration of the nation's economy and credit abroad.

It accused agitators of provoking unrest and warned that anyone considered a threat to the national peace could be deported.

Among those whose property was seized on grounds it had been acquired illegally were Manuel Moya Alonzo, Felix Bernardino and Julian Suardi.

Moya was former ambassador to Washington. Bernardino once served as consul general in New York. Suardi was a deputy in the Trujillo-controlled Congress.

Business Notes

In Burroughs Legion of Honor

J. Carlton Taylor, Burroughs Corp. representative of Greenville, has earned membership in the Burroughs Legion of Honor and a trip to Grand Bahama Island for a convention sales meeting-vacation.

He will leave Sunday. The honors were won through his 1961 sales record with business machines and electronic data processing equipment firm.

To earn the trip, he achieved 155 percent of his annual sales quota, placing him in the top 20 percent of the Equipment and Systems Marketing division's 2,000-man field sales force.

A five-year Burroughs sales representative, Taylor is married and the father of two children. He lives at 1622 Longwood Dr.

To Exhibit Boats

G and W Boats of Greenville will be among the hundreds of exhibitors at the 29th annual Chicago National Boat Show March 2-11 in McCormick Place, the lakefront exhibition hall.

The show, produced by the Outboard Boating Club of America, is the largest single exhibit of pleasure boats, motors and related equipment in the world, according to the club's announcement. More than 360,000 visitors are expected to attend.

Glamour Wagon Visits

Chevrolet's "Glamour Wagon," a modern automotive beauty shop on wheels, is in Greenville.

The traveling unit, specially outfitted with the latest equipment and materials for sprucing up used cars and trucks, is visiting White Chevrolet Co. through tomorrow.

It is one of 14 units now touring the 10 Chevrolet sales regions. Each traveling workshop is staffed with a specially trained instructor who conducts the dealership clinic on used car and truck recondftioning. W. J. Barber, Southeast Regional instructor, will direct the clinic at White Chevrolet Co.

Italian Leftist Govm't Sworn In

ROME (AP) — Premier Amintore Fanfani's new Italian government—furthest to the left in 15 years—took office today opening a new era in the nation's postwar politics.

Fanfani and a coalition Cabinet—backed by Pietro Nenni's Socialists, once allies of the Communists—were sworn in by President Giovanni Gronchi.

Fanfani announced the 24-member Cabinet Wednesday night after getting Gronchi's approval of the list of ministers. They include 19 Christian Democrats three Democratic Socialists and two Republicans.

FBI Director Is Again Honored

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP)—Freedoms Foundation has singled out FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover as the American in 1961 who made "the most outstanding contribution to freedom."

Hoover, for the second time in the history of the non-political foundation, was given its top award worth $5,000.

Cancer Poster Girl Is Chosen

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Two years ago a Weaverville kindergarten student was one of Buncombe county's two delegates to North Carolina's first Cured Cancer Congress in Raleigh.

This year, Kathy Battle, now 7 and a second-grader at West Buncombe School, will be the official poster girl for the 1962 National Cancer Crusade.

Her selection was announced by the American Cancer Society and the Buncombe County Unit of ACS, under whose auspices the little girl was sent to the congress.

The posters will appear on public display throughout the nation in April, Cancer Crusade Month.

Kathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Battle.

On Monday, Kathy and her mother will fly to Hollywood, Calif., where film strips will be made for use in the 1962 crusade. Appearing with Kathy in the film strips will be movie and television personalities Danny Thomas, Joanne Woodard and Paul Newman.

Kathy underwent surgery when she was a year old for a malignancy in one of her kidneys. She is completely cured today and is a normal, active child.

Snowstorm Battering States In Northeast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More stormy weather battered wide areas in eastern half of the nation today, with snow in northern sections and heavy rain, hail and strong winds in the Southeast.

Blizzard warnings, with snow and strong northerly winds sweeping out of northern Alberta, Canada, were posted for eastern sections of Montana and Wyoming, the Dakotas and extreme western Nebraska.

The snowstorm which swept across the Midwest into the Northeast Wednesday continued in many areas during the night and morning. Heavy snow warnings were issued for parts of Lower Michigan and most of New England. Snow continued across wide areas from the Mississippi Valley eastward to the Atlantic Seaboard.

Heavy rain pelted most of the Southeast, with unofficial falls of 3 to 6 inches in a three-hour period in Macon, Ga. Water was reported two to three feet deep in low-lying areas and some homes were flooded.

The Weather Bureau issued a warning of possible severe thunderstorms with hail and strong winds and possibly tornadoes for extreme east-central Mississippi, most of west-central and east-central Alabama and extreme western part of west-central Georgia.

The new snowstorms forced the closing of schools in many parts of the Midwest, as well as in some eastern sections, including North Carolina which reported snow measuring 5 to 6 inches in mountain areas.

The cleanup operations throughout the snow belt were sharply curtailed as the new storm swept out of the Rockies and dumped up to a foot of snow in some Midwest areas. The snow covered sections in Pennsylvania, New York state and southern New England, ranging up to more than six inches in many places. Heavier falls were indicated in northern New England.

The rain belt extended across the Upper Ohio Valley, the middle and southern Atlantic Coast and the central Gulf Coast states. Freezing rain slicked roads in parts of Pennsylvania and northern Virginia.

Below zero weather again was reported in the Dakotas and in northern Maine.

Early morning lows ranged from 12 below zero in Dickinson, N.D., and Huron, S.D., to 75 in Key West, Fla., and Brownsville, Tex.

Not A Chance Of Tax Reduction

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy says that "for the present there is not a chance of a tax reduction."

As for the future, he told a news conference Wednesday that barring a recession and with a continuation of the present tax structure, "a tax reduction in a few years or in a period of time might be possible."

Morale 'Good' In Fallout Shelter

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy says morale is good among 100 sailors holed up in a 25-by-48 foot fallout shelter in nearby Bethesda, Md. Their behavior is described as "frisky rather than lethargic."

Last Saturday the men, all volunteers, began a two-week test of the effects of prolonged isolation in shelters. To make the experiment realistic, decontamination teams emerge periodically to measure simulated radiation.

Tyrrell Unsuited As Bomb Range

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force says a Tyrrell County, N.C., site is unsuitable for a proposed bombing range and the White House has confirmed earlier reports that a Hyde County, N.C., site will not be used as a range.

Rep. Herbert C. Bonner, D-N.C., reported Wednesday he received a letter from Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert that the Tyrrell County land would cost too much, contains valuable timber and is swamp.

The Tyrell County site was suggested after protest were raised that a proposed bombing range in Hyde County would infere migratory fowl preservation in the area of Lake Mattamuskett.

Bonner said he was informed by the White House and the Cabinet that the Hyde County land would not be used.

Zukert said there is a pressing need for a range for jet bombers at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, Goldsboro, N.C., and Myrtle Beach Air Force Base, S.C.

The Air Force said the Tyrrell land is owned by the West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. and construction costs would be high there because it is mostly swamp.

SIGN TRADE DEAL

TOKYO (AP) — Communist North Korea and the West African Republic of Guinea have signed a 1962 trade agreement, Peiping Radio said today. No money figures were given.

"MY DOCTOR . . ."

Costly Facility Was Needed Here

When Greenville's sewage treatment plant goes into full-time operation Friday it will mark a major step of progress for the city which has hereto-fore used Tar River for a dumping ground for its raw sewage.

The million-dollar-plus pollution control plant will fill a need the city has had for many decades. It will provide a modern method of disposing of the city's waste and it will enable the city to meet the stream Sanitation Commission.

Construction of the new facility was a costly item for the local Utilities Commission, but it is a facility which was a must for the city. Even without the requirements of the Stream Sanitation Commission—which pushed officials to construct the new plant—there was a great need for it in Greenville. With the specifications for stream sanitation covering the Tar River, Greenville—like other cities of the state which have been dumping raw sewage into rivers and streams—had no alternative but to construct the plant.

Utilities officials are to be commended for the new facility which is a major asset for Greenville. They are also to be commended for the careful fiscal planning begun several years ago which enabled the Utilities Commission to construct the new plant without the necessity of issuing bonds for the project.

In all probability there will be some citizens who will object the sewage charge to be added to their utilities bills beginning next month, but the rates that will be charged in Greenville compare favorably with those charged for similar service by other cities in North Carolina.

In Which An Old Idea Receives A New Push

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's congratulations on America's first orbital space flight included a suggestion that we must admit is a good one.

Says the Russian, we should pool our resources to expore outer space. He points out that such a joint effort would be beneficial to the advance of science and would be acclaimed by all peoples who would like to see scientific achievements benefit man and not be used for cold war purposes and the arms race.

To this we say "Amen".

It is a very good idea.

Only it isn't new.

Proposals for international cooperation in space exploration have been proposed in the United Nations for some time, now . . . beginning in 1958.

A committee was even organized; and it was promptly boycotted by the Soviet Union on grounds it was overloaded with representatives of the West (interjecting cold war overtones, Mr. Khrushchev?).

In late 1958 all hands agreed on a new committee, but even that was boycotted by the Russians until last November when a program was finally put to the body and proposing inclusion of Outer Mongolia and three African nations, Chad, Morocco and Sierra Leone. Their role in space exploration is a puzzler, but we won't even try to explain it.

Anyway, the committee is supposed to meet before the end of March to get an international program in operation.

The 28-nation committee includes perhaps eight governments who have capabilities of serious contributions to space exploration. The remainder presumably are there for voting purposes.

It is a mad world, and Nikita Khrushchev does little to restore sanity; even with a good (and old) idea.

Time to Spin Again

Aches, Pains In Job

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Columnists, like everybody else, have their headaches and backaches and their pleasures and excitements. We even make mistakes and sometimes do not catch them and chew the paint off a pencil in chagrin. We, who are supposed to know everything, are tripped by a comma or a wrong country or a chemical formula.

And then we wait for the world to blow up. Instead, a linotypesetter or a proof-reader catches the mistake and the wise man looks wise and the world wonders how so small a head can contain so much.

One works many hours and writes what he has to say, having spent much time and thought bringing it all together, only to receive a letter from someone who has not spent 10 minutes of inquiry, saying that the columnist is motivated by corruption, meanness, hatred and bitterness.

For instance, by and large, I have with more or less intimacy, seen or spoken with every President since 1930. With such a one as Herbert Hoover, the relationship has been close; with Harry Truman, it has been distant. But in my profession, a President is what we call copy and we get to know him, if for no other reason than that it helps to earn a living. So one gets a little hard-boiled as Westbrook Pegler or Walter Trohan might be. On the other hand, there are those who cannot say an unkind word about anyone, like Bob Considine, because he undoubtedly feels that the poor guy is trying to do a job and the breaks are against him.

But along comes the letter writer and says that you always hated everybody but now you don't hate Jack Kennedy, so you must be sick. Or maybe the Pope bought you. Or maybe Joe Kennedy gave you an automobile for Christmas. Or maybe you are just plain crazy with love.

Well, that is next to nothing compared with the fellow who writes that he hopes you will drop dead because you do not believe that Franklin D. Roosevelt was the greatest man since time began. Then the same hand-writing comes on a postcard and asks why, if you were for Nixon, do you believe that Eisenhower isn't the greatest man since time began? If we both live that long, seven years from now the guy will write me that Jack Kennedy was the greatest President since time began and so help me, I'll write back and settle for Theodore Roosevelt who started the whole business of racial equality by asking Booker T. Washington to lunch or something.

It is not that I am pessimistic about the human race but one wonders what is the good of everybody going to public schools and high school and even college and reading newspapers and magazines if they end up unwilling to add a column of figures to discover that 1962 is not 1929 and that the human mind must adjust to its own mistakes. And most historic mistakes cannot be corrected except by war or revolution.

And that is another one! Every time I write about war, I get a flock of letters saying that I want war. One woman believes that I have a passion for war. What she does not understand is that my passion is against fools whose conduct brings war to this world.

It is not war that I have a passion for; rather it is human decency, a restoration of morality, an acceptance of moral law. This resurrection will not be accomplished by corrupt or perverted or cowardly retreat. Sure, it is possible to have peace at any price, even the price of slavery and the reduction of the soul of man to futility.

I have seen death and therefore know the job of life. It is a false assumption to believe that peace can be purchased by the sale of self-respect, by a loss of the character of a civilization, by advocating false doctrines and by substituting fear for knowledge.

In this article, I have answered half a hundred letters from readers who will not recognize that all the errors of man must be paid for in conduct.

Republicans Do Display Humor

By LYNN NISBET

HUMOR—Humor has many definitions and many facets. What is very humorous to some people often is intensely serious with others. It develops that even Republicans, at least the Republicans in Moore county, have a sense of humor somewhat different from the usual. At their county convention the other day they shouted approval of a resolution recognizing "the contribution made to the growth and progress of the Republican Party by Governor Terry Sanford."

JAYCEES AND GOVERNMENT — The North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a program on political and governmental activity to be given in the State Capitol Saturday of next week. Governor Sanford is scheduled to open the day-long session with an address of welcome and brief discussion of current problems. Following will be short talks on legislative procedure by Joe Hunt, Speaker of the House, and Lunsford Crew, president pro tem of the Senate; relationship among the several branches of government by Ed Rankin, long time secretary to Governors Umstead and Hodges. Party organization will be discussed by Thad Eure, secretary of state, and "Fleet" Williams, veteran newsman and for many years associate editor of the News and Observer. The impact and influence of lobbying activities on new legislators will be discussed by Lynn Nisbet, and a preview of the 1963 General Assembly will be presented by Sen. John Jordan of Wake county.

None of the talks are supposed to go more than 15 minutes, which means the speakers will have barely time to state the points which need discussion. At end of the day those who have sat through the program may be assured they will know there are complexities and problems in government, even if they haven't learned much about how to deal with them.

INTERSTATE HIGHWAYS—The Interstate Highway System when completed in 1972 will be a network of 41,000 miles of four-lane limited-access toll-free highways. The network is designed to connect the nation's seaports, agricultural areas, major cities, military bases and other points essential to the nation's defense. There will be no grade crossings, no traffic lights. It will be the largest and best highway system in the world. The roads are built under a 90-10 participation between Federal and State governments. The Federal pays 90 percent, the State 10 percent of construction. After that, however, main burden of maintenance falls upon the State.

North Carolina will have 770 miles of Interstate roads when the program is completed. Many of our people feel that is not a fair share, and there has been protest too that no east-west route across the state was provided. Interstate highways connect with ports at Baltimore, Norfolk, Charleston and Savannah — but not with our State ports at Morehead City and Wilmington.

Five routes are assigned to this state. Their origin, destination, location in North Carolina, mileage within the state and approximate construction status is as follows:

1. INTERSTATE HIGHWAY NUMBER 95, which will begin at Houlton, Maine and run to Miami, Florida will go via Weldon, Rocky Mount, Wilson, Fayetteville and on to the South Carolina State line. At present about 60 miles of this highway has been completed—the section from Kenly, North Carolina to Fayetteville.

2. INTERSTATE HIGHWAY 85 will begin at Richmond, Virginia and run to Montgomery, Alabama. This highway will go via Oxford, Durham, Greensboro, High Point, Thomasville, Lexington, Salisbury, Kannapolis, Concord, Charlotte, Gastonia and on to the South Carolina line at Grover. At present about 71 miles has been completed. The section from the Virginia-North Carolina line down to Henderson, N. C.; between N. C. 54 and N. C. 61; below Lexington, N. C. to China Grove and the Charlotte bypass to Belmont are not open to traffic.

3. INTERSTATE HIGHWAY NUMBER 40, which will begin at Greensboro, N. C. will run to Barstow, California. This highway goes via Winston-Salem, Statesville, Hickory, Marion, Asheville and the Great Smoky Mountain National Park. At present about 77 miles are completed. Sections open include Greensboro to Kernersville, Winston-Salem to the intersection of N. C. 801, Statesville to Claremont and Hildebran to Marion, N. C.

4. INTERSTATE HIGHWAY NUMBER 77 Will run from Cleveland, Ohio to Charlotte, N. C. Construction has not been started on this section.

5. INTERSTATE HIGHWAY NUMBER 26 begins in Asheville, N. C. and runs to Charleston; S. C. There has been no construction on this section in N. C.

Today's World Not Like 1796

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world today — or maybe just some of the people in it—would confuse even George Washington.

This nation, celebrating the 230th anniversary of his birth, is honoring him for many things while still acclaiming an event which this week demonstrated both his foresight and his lack of it.

This was Tuesday's triple orbit of the earth by Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.., who, by traveling 81,000 miles in a few hours, showed how much closer the nations are than they were in Washington's time.

The Russians not only joined in praising Glenn by Premier Khrushchev, in a congratulatory note to President Kennedy, suggested America and Russia pool their resources to conquer space.

Kennedy, full of pride in the astronaut but also thinking of the future, reminding Khrushchev he had proposed cooperation in the past, said it would be fine and that he'd try to figure a way of bringing it about.

But, while Khrushchev was saying nice things to Kennedy out of one side of his mouth, and never mentioning Washington, his newspaper Izvestia was praising Washington and denouncing America's "rulers."

The newspaper said "the facts show that the current rulers of the United States have trampled the great heritage of the founder of independent American government.

"America today is the stronghold of warmongers, war and colonialism."

But if Washington were President today—judging from his final advice to America—he'd show a lot less responsiveness than Kennedy to Khrushchev's proposal to collaborate on overcoming space.

In his farewell address in 1796 Washington warned his countrymen against getting tangled up with Europeans.

He said: "Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambitions, rivalship, interest, humour, or caprice?"

This made sense then when it took weeks to sail to Europe and the Atlantic Ocean was America's greatest protection against European attack.

It made sense, too, to other Americans for more than a hundred years in which they took Washington's advice and stayed out of European alliances.

But after two world wars—and the development of planes and missiles which made the Atlantic look no larger than a ditch and Europe right next door—Washington's advice was found to be out of date.

He might be astonished, if he were alive today, to find the United States, so confidently remote, isolated and safe in his time, now not only a member of the United Nations but in alliances around the world.

It was either line up with allies or watch communism take over the rest of the earth. So on this point—the belief that America would remain isolated—Washington lacked foresight.

But his foresight was excellent—and still valid—in being suspicious about entanglements. There was a lot of soul-searching in this country before it became allied at all.

But suspicion of making deals with Russia has never subsided. Nothing illustrates this better than the Kennedy-Khrushchev proposals about cooperation in space. No such cooperation is anywhere in sight.

The United States and Russia, because of their suspicion of each other, so far not only haven't been able to cooperate in space but still haven't been able to cooperate on earth.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
G. WASHINGTON

Every privilege the citizens of the United States enjoy goes back at last to the man who always signed his name G. Washington. He was indeed the father of his country. There were other generals as skillful as he. Amazingly enough, he personally commanded in only a few battles and lost as many as he won. Yet he was the great personality who held the colonies together. His bravery in battle was astounding. How he escaped death, considering all the chances he took is something no historian has ever been able to figure out.

When he retired to Mt. Vernon after the war and things began to go badly with the liberated colonies, the eyes of the nation turned to this man. He presided over the constitutional convention in Philadelphia. He had almost nothing to say about the form of the constitution. His mind was not creative in that way. But he held the group together, and when the constitution was finally adopted there was only one person, of course, in the minds of the people as they thought of their head of state.

Washington was not a man of particularly great ability, but he was a man of lofty ideals, of unflinching courage, of unyielding purpose. His character was matchless. His influence on world history has been stupendous.

Washington fought for principles in which the welfare of all free men everywhere was, and still is, involved.

By HENRY HOWARD

Translation Was Needed

There was no question about it: she was far and away the best-informed student in the group. Everybody knew that.

In fact the whole class could rest assured any given question posed by the professor could be answered by her in the most efficient manner.

Such was the case very recently when the question sought the origins of imperialism. The answer came back something like this:

"Imperialism is caused by an internal war machine resulting from atavistic and feudal tendencies remaining in a society." (I think this is approximately the answer given.)

All members of the class listened intently, as if the words were sort of musical. What was amazing was the complete blankness on each face when the professor wanted to know the meaning of the answer. Nobody could offer a single word.

The professor wanted to know: "What's the matter?" Then it became obvious. "That's not in East Carolina College language, is it?" he asked. Then he called for a translation. Funny thing was, nobody in the class could do that either.

Then came the mark of a genuine professor. He did it himself. He translated an efficient answer to a broad question into choppy, rambling, colloquial, gutteral, ambiguous and sometimes meaningless campus lingo.

To reproduce it here would be indeed risky.

Last weekend, when a host of Young and Old Democrats gathered in Greenville to eat, drink and be merry (and also politic a little), most of the 425 persons sitting in on the Saturday night banquet had at least a couple of good chuckles.

J. Henry Harrell introduced a long list of DDDs (distinguished Democratic dignitaries) before the real speech-making got started.

After the last one had taken his bows, Harrell closed his recognition procedure like this:

"Now. That's all the names I have on the list. If any of you here think you should have been recognized but didn't make the list, there are two reasons: either they didn't think you should be recognized or you just weren't politician enough to get on the list."

Then, after most of the speech-making was over, a strong-voiced Democrat near the back of the auditorium stood and loudly proclaimed a recognition ceremony for a Pitt County Democrat.

His, perhaps, was the most classic speech of the evening since (as those who attended will remember) it added to the usual Democratic drum-beating picturesque words like Mayflower and Pocahontas. The connection with the Democratic Party was vague, but there were some good laughs.

Public Forum

To The Editor

A little more than two years ago a group of far-seeing, unselfish interested citizens of Ayden saw the need of a Public Library.

They realized that the increased amount of leisure time, that had been brought about my merchinization and automation, gave more time for other activities. And nothing could be more beneficial than to spend much of that increased leisure time in reading. Because with the astounding changes of the "New Era" it is absolutely necessary to read more than ever.

Out of this realized need, and upon realizing the task was too much for individuals, it was decided to apply to the Ayden Town Board. The Board graciously considered the application. And agreed that if a place could be obtained it would pay for its operation.

Efforts were begun to find a suitable place. After being applied to, the members of Queen of the South Masonic Lodge decided to grant the use of part of its lower floor, which was accepted as an appreciation offer of unselfish community service. Contact was made with Miss Elizabeth Copeland, librarian of Sheppard Memorial Library, Greenville, N. C., who willingly gave time and advice to the project. Not only that, she made available the facilities of Sheppard Memorial Library. Without her assistance, many problems would have been harder to solve, and its success would have been hard to achieve.

When it came to choosing a name many were suggested, but finally it was named Charlotte Hawkins Brown Library, in honor of that great educator who found Palmer Memorial Institute at Sedalia, N. C.

Mrs. Mary B. Dixon was chosen as librarian. Thousands of books have been borrowed and read. A large variety of books are available for use.

The Town Board appointed a local administrative committee composed of Mrs. Josephine Reaves, chmn. Mrs. Bessie Sealy, Odell Smith, Roosevelt Hardy, Mrs. Nina S. Phillips, David Braxton, and Rev. W. M. Dixon.

The library will celebrate its second anniversary at Zion Chapel F. W. B. Church, Ayden, N.C., 7:30 p.m. Thursday, February 22. An interesting program will be presented and the public is invited to attend.

Though the Masons have kindly granted the use of part of its hall as a library, because of their requests, it has become necessary to make other arrangements.

Therefore the committee is beginning a drive to raise enough money to purchase a lot, for a Library Building, to be erected on. Every citizen of the community is asked to make a liberal contribution for this most worthy cause. So far as has been ascertained Ayden is one of the smallest towns in N. C. to have a Public Library supported by the town.

Opinions In Brief

"The constant probing of our government into business practices could finally result in businessmen wanting no part of government contracts lest they innocently become entangled in a price-fixing controversy." — Mattoon (Ill.) Journal-Gazette.

"If your wife complains that she is shabilly dressed, console her with this statistic: Only one in every 1,666 American women wears mink."—Mattoon (Ill.) Journal-Gazette.

"There are so many possibilities for the shooting to come from any direction that we advise Uncle Sam to take a lesson from the TV marshals and always sit with his back to the wall."—Jacksonville (Fla.) Times-Union.

Some Business World Oddities

By ELMER ROESSNER

There are more things in business, too, than were ever dreamt of in Horatio's philosophy. And here are some curious ones in today's business news:

. The Iowa Outdoor Advertising Association has put up 66 billboards reading: "There is no California. Stay in Iowa."

. That aroma that rises when a can of roasted coffee is opened has been captured and added to jars of instant coffee.

. "Sandang pangan" shops at which rationed goods were sold at fixed prices have been abandoned by the Indonesian government. Co-ops now handle rationed foods.

. A surcharge of from $25 to $1,000 a month will be levied on U. S. Industries automated machines. The proceeds will be paid to a foundation to find jobs for men the machines displace.

FIGHT FOR CITRUS MARKET

. Spain and Israel are conducting campaigns in Europe to capture markets for citrus fruits from the United States. The Israeli campaign includes a lottery in which dealers who display posters get a chance on a free trip.

. A patent for artificial ski slides made of glass beads imbedded in wax has been granted to a Toledo company.

When two cars insured by the same company collide, the company will pay all costs and waive the $100 deductible clause, under a new ruling by the National Automobile Underwriters Association.

. The New York Telephone Co., is using matchbooks to advertise a special phone number at which callers may learn of special phone services.

. Wax on some leafy plants resists herbicides. Now the Department of Agriculture has found a chemical that inhibits wax development, making weed-killers more effective.

MOVING WHERE THE BOSS WANTS

. The personal preference of the owners rather than hard facts often determines new locations when plants move, a Small Business Administration study indicates.

. A "rug of the month plan" for dealers will be launched March 1.

. A baby safety harness that gives youngsters a 360-degree range without entangling straps has been put into production by a New York lawyer.

. Of 1,400,000 new dwelling units started last year, 100,000 were shells, and 50,000 of these were later finished.

. Customers financing appliances through the General Electric Credit Corp., can now be insured against death, disability or property damage.

. Federal tax legislation now pending provides for complete disallowance (complete, that is) for all travel and entertainment expenses not substantiated by full and complete records.

LITTLE HOPE SEEN FOR 'FAIR TRADE' LAW

The Kennedy Administration appears opposed to a new Federal law permitting price fixing under the "fair trade" banner.

So-called fair-trade legislation has been having a tough time in recent years. Many laws permitting manufacturers to fix resale prices have been found unconstitutional, and in other states law enforcement is spotty and often weakened by mail order companies which ship in merchandise below the fixed prices.

There is no Federal "fair trade" law, but one law exempts the practice from antitrust legislation. Pending, however, is a bill which would declare the owner of a brand name to have a property right in the name, and thereby be allowed to refuse to sell to a retailer who did not observe a fixed price.

However, the Justice Department, the Federal Trade Commission and the Commerce Department have declared themselves opposed to the bill. This reduces its chance of passage and, if it should get through, increases the chance of a veto.

Two Winners In Nat'l Giveaway

Two Pitt Countians have been notified they are prize-winners in a national give-away of 555 prizes by the National LP-Gas Council.

Lou R. Roberson of Route 1 Stokes was winner of a Caloric Heritage LP-gas range; and Ernest Harrell of Greenville Route 1 won a Country Cook Book in the drawings.

More than 108,000 persons registered for prizes.

Army 'Urgently' Needs 560 Dogs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army urgently needs 560 German Shepherd dogs for guard duty at Army and Air Force bases to meet immediate requirements.

It said it also will seek 1,700 more during the balance of this year.

High standards are set: The dogs must be pure-bred German Shepherd; one to three years old; a minimum height at shoulder of 23 inches, minimum weight 60 pounds, physically and mentally sound.

Buying will be done by the U. S. Animal Procurement Office, Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex.

Scholars To Get Varsity Letters

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Varsity letters will be awarded scholastic leaders as well as athletes at the new Archbishop Curley High School.

The principal of the school, The Very Rev. Alysius B. Balcerak, O. F. M., said "I see no reason why the scholar should not receive the same or better prestige symbol as that given the athlete. We want to be proud of our brains—and our halfbacks."

Father Blacerak said extra-curricular activity leaders also would be given letter awards.

Church Plans Observe World Missions Day

Sunday, February 25, will be World Missions Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church, and missionaries to the Congo and Brazil will be guest speakers.

Dr. and Mrs. L. A. McMurray, missionaries to the Congo, will tell of their work during the Sunday School hour and the morning worship hour. Sunday evening, Miss Rose Cameron, missionary to Brazil, will illustrate her talk with slides of her work following a Family Night Supper at 6:00 o'clock.

Wednesday evening at 7:00 o'clock, Dr. and Mrs. McMurray will be guests at the Hollywood Presbyterian hurch at a Family Night Supper. Thursday morning he will appear on WNCT television program "Carolina Today."

During the violence in the Congo in July, 1960, Dr. McMurray evacuated carrying with him two suitcases. These suitcases contained portions of the Old Testament translated into the Tshiluba language. Dr. McMurray is serving on a committee with Congolese Christians and missionaries, working on a new translation.

Presently, Dr. and Mrs. McMurray are on furlough in Martinsburg, West Virginia.

It is not unusual for a former Director of Christian Education for the First Presbyterian Church of Washington, North Carolina to travel by river launch or by mule in Brazil's hot northern climate. This person is Miss Rose Cameron who is a traveling director of Christian education, and goes into all sections of Brazil. Following her first year of orientation and study of the Portuguese language in Campinas, Miss Cameron was transferred to Crato and Fortaleza, in the state of Ceara. In 1959 she was transferred further north in Brazil, where she became area director of Christian Education for two states; Maranhao and Piaui.

A native of Raleigh, Miss Cameron attended Peace College, the University of North Carolina, and the Presbyterian School of Christian Education in Richmond, Virginia.

Friends and members of these churches are invited to attend these services of special emphasis on World Missions.

Reflecting On SPORTS

By George Bryant

Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina College, was present at the gym Wednesday afternoon to see the basketball Pirates off on their journey to Lexington and their first and last Carolinas Conference Tournament.

The tournament is their first because the conference had been the North State for 18 years and the name was changed to Carolinas last fall. It is their last because East Carolina will be independent next year as it prepares to join the Southern Conference for bigger and better things.

The enthusiasm and confidence that Dr. Jenkins has in East Carolina and its athletic teams were shown in the fact that he arrived at the gym an hour before the departure and patiently waited until the team arrived and got ready to leave.

The college president told the Pirates that he, the faculty and the student body had the "utmost confidence" in the team and expressed his best wishes to them.

Jenkins also noted that he was sure the team would do a good job of representing East Carolina.

Meet Catawba

The first job for the Pirates in the Lexington tourney will be to tangle with Catawba and win. The Indians have an 11-9 record in conference action and finished fifth in the regular season play. East Carolina finished 11-6 and was in third place.

Catawba picked up two wins from the Pirates during the season during the season. East Carolina hosted the Indians on Dec. 1 in their first game of the season and lost 78-74. In the second contest the Indians defeated the Bucs 85-72 in Salisbury. At the time of this defeat the Pirates were at the top of the conference standings, but the loss dropped them to second place and moved Lenoir Rhyne back to the number one spot.

If the Pirates can win the game tonight they will meet Friday the winner of the Western Carolina-Appalachian game which is also scheduled for tonight. The winner of this contest would gain the right to meet the winner of the second Friday night game on Saturday for the championship.

Oddly enough, East Carolina is the only team in the tournament that did not split the regular season games with its first round opponent.

Phantoms Meet Cardinals In 1st Round

By GEORGE BRYANT
Reflector Sports Editor

WASHINGTON, N. C.—Greenville and Jacksonville will play the first game of the Northeastern Athletic Conference tournament at East Carolina College's gymnasium Wednesday night.

The pairings were set up at a conference meeting here last night. The tournament will begin Feb. 28 and continue through March 3.

Pairings were arranged according to the conference standings as they were last night.

Greenville and Jacksonville, who are tied for fourth place, will play the first game Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. The other game Wednesday will consist of first place Roanoke Rapids and eighth place Elizabeth City. On Thursday night, second place New Bern will meet seventh place Washington and third place Tarboro will take on sixth place Kinston.

On Friday night the winners of the Roanoke Rapids-Elizabeth City game and the Tarboro-Kinston game will play in the semi-finals along with the winners of the New Bern-Washington game and Greenville-Jacksonville games. The two Friday night winners will meet Saturday night in the finals.

Possibility of Tie

At the present time there is a possibility of a tie in the regular season standings. Roanoke Rapids is on top with an 11-2 record in the conference. However, the Yellow Jackets play New Bern Friday night in their final game of the season. The Bears now have a 10-3 record and should they down Roanoke Rapids the two teams would be in a tie for the regular season. However, the tournament pairings will remain the same should this happen.

In other business last night the group voted on and approved the recommendations of the basketball tournament committee consisting of Bo Farley, Bill Branch and Bob Lewis.

The recommendations for the tournament were concerned mainly with the business of operating the event which will take place Feb. 28 to March 3 in the East Carolina gym.

The conference also decided to allow the Washington High School girls' drill team to perform during the half on Thursday night of the tournament and that the New Bern girls' drill team would perform on Saturday night.

Wrestling Tourney

Preparations for the wrestling tournament to be held in Kinston on Feb. 26 were also discussed. The tourney will begin at 11 a.m. with weigh-in-time, and the first match will take place at 1 p.m. The sectional meet will take place on March 9-10 at Goldsboro with the state tournament scheduled for March 16-17 in High Point.

In other business last night, the conference discussed and approved the spring sports schedule. The conference track meet will be held in Greenville on Thursday, May 3, with Rose High serving as host for the event. The sectional track meet will be held on May 11 and the State meet on May 18.

Arrangements are being made to play the conference tennis tournament at East Carolina on the same day at the conference track meet. The group felt that the college would be a more central location and also would offer more playing courts. The state tennis tournament will be held May 11-12.

Spring Golf

The golf schedule will be handled in much the same way as last year. Each school will be the host for a team match and an individual medal play tournament. Elizabeth City, Roanoke Rapids and Jacksonville were allowed to miss two of the golf meets due to the travel distance involved. The other four schools were allowed to miss one meet for the same reason.

The golf tournament will be held on May 10 at Kinston and the state tournament will be May 14-15.

The basketball standings and the won-and-loss record for each team as of today are as follows: (Final games to be played tomorrow night.)

	W	L
Roanoke Rapids	11	2
New Bern	10	3
Tarboro	9	4
Jacksonville	7	6
Greenville	7	6
Kinston	5	8
Washington	2	11
Elizabeth City	1	12

NEAC Donates To Stadium Fund

WASHINGTON, N.C.—The Northeastern Athletic Conference of which Rose High School is a member voted last night to donate $250 to the James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium Fund.

The matter was brought before the members of the conference at their meeting here by O. E. Dowd, principal of Rose High School.

The matter passed unanimously with very little discussion. Dowd told the group that East Carolina College has done a lot for the schools in the conference, not only in athletics, but also from an academic standpoint.

Pro Wrestling Tonight At ECC; Stadium Benefit

The big day has finally arrived and Greenville will have a chance to see professional wrestling for the first time in five or six years.

However, the wrestling match in East Carolina Memorial Gym at 8 o'clock tonight will have a different purpose than those that use to be held in the armory and in tobacco warehouses around town.

This match has a purpose and an excellent one at that. All proceeds from the event will go to the James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium Fund to help provide the additional funds needed to construct the stadium.

The need for additional funds arose when the soil at the stadium site near the Elmhurst School was found to be infirm and it was decided that pilings would be needed to help support the permanent stands. The people of Greenville and Pitt County had already donated over $260,000 for the construction of the stadium.

The main attraction on the wrestling program is Poncho Villa and Lenny Montana. According to W. M. Scales Jr., who is organizing the match, they are two of the best known wrestlers in the country today. Their match will be two out of three falls with a 60 minute time limit.

In addition to the main event, there will be a girls' wrestling match consisting of Carol Little and Rita Cortez. Cortez is one of the better known women wrestlers. This match will be a one fall event with a 30 minute time limit.

A tag team match is also included on the program. For this event there will be Sir Alan Garfield and Tinker Todd vs. Young Bill Brono and Guy LaRose.

Most of the wrestlers taking part in the event here tonight have been performing in Richmond, Baltimore, Norfolk, Charlotte and Raleigh.

An advance ticket sale has been going on for almost two weeks now and at last report more than 1200 had already been sold. Any tickets that remain prior to this evening will be sold at the door on a first come first serve basis.

All proceeds from the ticket sales and concession stands will go to the Stadium Fund.

HERE TONIGHT . . . Rita Cortez and Carol Little will be part of the wrestling program at East Carolina tonight.

Panthers Claw Bears And Elon Wins In Overtime

By KEN ALYTA

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) —They changed the name to the Carolinas Conference, but it's the same smack-the-favorite basketball tournament of the old North State Conference days.

Top-seeded Lenoir Rhyne was clawed by High Point's Panthers 91-77 and fourth-seeded Elon had to struggle through an overtime period before beating Pfeiffer 68-59 in Wednesday night's openers.

The first round will be concluded tonight with East Carolina, seed No. 3, playing Catawba at 7:30 and second-seeded Western Carolina meeting Appalachian at 9:15.

In 18 years of North State tournaments the top-seeded team won only five times. Lenoir Rhyne managed two such feats, but Wednesday's loss marked the third year in a row that a Lenoir Rhyne team that had led regular season play fell by the wayside in the tournament.

A crowd of 3,000, a tournament first night record, saw High Point and Elon qualify for a Friday night semifinal game. Tonight's winners will play the other semifinal contest.

Coach Virgil Yow's High Pointers, aching for revenge after outshooting Lenoir Rhyne, 40 baskets to 30, only to lose in double overtime last Saturday, were loaded for bear this time.

They forged ahead 44-38 at the half and went on from there to manhandle the regular season leaders. Phil Garrison, 6-1 sophomore from Glenwood, Ind., was the busiest of the Panthers, scoring 28 points and grabbing 16 rebounds.

Garrison made the all-tournament team as a freshman last year when High Point won the tournament, but gave up the title after it was learned an ineligible player was used.

Garrison and his four freshman teammate starters outraced and outshot Lenoir Rhyne in a game that was an exciting spectacle for about 30 minutes before it became apparent that the Bears were trapped.

Barry Smith, hitting on his first six shots, wound up with 22 points, and Joe Keith added a dozen for High Point. Jerry Wells carried the Lenoir Rhyne load with 22 points and 15 rebounds.

Elon, which has split two regular season games with High Point, came from 10 points behind in the last half in beating Pfeiffer.

Big Bobby Frank crammed 9 of his 19 points into 2½ minutes midway of the second half as Pfeiffer appeared on the way to a convincing victory, but he fouled out with three minutes to go and Elon came charging back. It was 57-all after regulation ended, Harold McManus saving Pfeiffer with two free throws in the last minute.

In the overtime, Elon scored 11 points before Pfeiffer tallied in the final minute.

Dewey Andrew led Elon with 27 points and Jesse Branson and Dave Winfrey each collected 15, Winfrey popping seven last half baskets and Branson scoring five successive late clutch points.

Tonight Catawba seeks its third victory of the season over East Carolina. The Indians downed ECC 78-74 and 85-72 in earlier games.

WCC and Appalachian split their games, aech winning at home. Western Carolina won 66-56 and Appalachian scored by 74-73.

Pardue Leads S. Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In what has been a bumper season for sophomore basketball stars in the Southern Conference, the unchallenged leader has been Howard Pardue of Virginia Tech.

Around Blacksburg, Va., they're already calling the 6-6 jump shot artist from Jonesville, N.C., as good as West Virginia's Rod Thorn.

His his 24 games as a sophomore last year, Thorn scored 44.5 points for an 18.5-point average, shot from the floor at a 46.2 clip, made 57.5 per cent of his free throws and hauled down 299 rebounds for a 12.5 average.

Eight other first-year varsity players are averaging in double figures, including Davidson's Terry Holland (15.9), Richmond's John Telepo (14.9), VMI's Bill Blair (14.6), George Washington's Joe Adamitis (14.5) and Mike Checkan (13.6), Furman's Leroy Peacock (13.4), Tech's Frankie Alvis (10.1) and West Virginia's Tom Lowry (10.1)..

Roberts Is The Official Winner

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) —Despite a protest by an arch rival, Glenn (Fireball) Roberts is the official winner of the Daytona 500 stock car race held Sunday.

The National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing rejected as based on hearsay a contention by Lee Petty of Randleman, N.C., that Roberts' pit crew numbered more than the maximum six authorized.

NASCAR said Wednesday an investigation showed no violation by Roberts.

Petty, himself a famed stock car racer, owned the runnerup car which was driven by his son, Richard.

In the race, Roberts finished 27 seconds in the lead and set a world record of 152.529 miles per hour for a continuous 500-mile auto race of any kind.

Note Of Suspense In ACC Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Atlantic Coast Conference teams take a well-earned breather tonight before the last weekend of the regular season after Wake Forest successfully warded off a North Carolina State team eager to tie the league lead.

The ACC race still carrys a note of suspense. With N.C. State out of the running, Duke can still tie for the confernce crown. For that two-way tie, Duke will have to beat North Carolina and the Deacons would have to lose to South Carolina on Saturday.

South Carolina, which looms as a tournament darkhorse after a commendable showing in the North - South doubleheader last weekend, lost its last game to Wake Forest 78-74.

In Wednesday night's game, N. C. State took an early lead and guarded it jealously through most of the first half. Wake took the lead after 12½ minutes of the second half and came out on top 69-72.

League individual scoring leader Len Chappell got only 9 points in the first half, but he led the second half rally with 16 more points, tallying 25 for the night.

The Deacons boosted their league mark to 11-2 and are 14-3 over-all. N.C. State, which had been tied with Duke for second place, dropped to third with a 10-4 league record. Duke is 10-3 in conference play.

In another game Wednesday night, last place Virginia broke a nine-game losing streak by beating sixth place Maryland 72-68. The Cavaliers boosted their league mark to 2-11, but continued to dwell in the cellar. Maryland now has a 4-10 league mark.

N.C. State Coach Everett Case blamed errors, plus the scoring of Len Chappell, for his team's defeat. State had 17 errors, 11 leading to baskets for Wake Forest, Case said.

Wake's colorful Coach Horace (Bones) McKinney analyzed the game simply:

"State was cocked and primed to win. We came to win. They walked on the court to win. We got our way."

In the Virginia-Maryland game, the Cavaliers avenged a 91;70 loss earlier this season to the Terps in Charlottesville. It was Maryland's sixth straight loss.

Maryland pulled within one point of the Cavaliers at 67-66 with 1:30 remaining in the game but Virginia successfully warded off the drive.

Tony Laquintano, Virginia's workhorse, was high with 29 points. Maryland's Bruce Kelleher was high for the evening with 32 points.

Dayton Flyers Named To NIT

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dayton, perennial also-ran in the National Invitation Tournament, will take another crack at the elusive title.

The Flyers were named to the 1962 NIT Wednesday, making it six teams in and six to go for the New York basketball post season classic. A few hours later they marked their selection with a 78-67 home court victory over Memphis State, running their record to 16-6.

Dayton has competed in nine of the last eleven NIT's and has been the beaten finalist no less than five times. For this year's tourney at Madison Square Garden, March 15-24, the Flyers go into a field that so far includes defending champion Providence, Loyola of Chicago, Duquesne, Houston and St. John's of New York. NIT selectors are expected to land non-champions from the Missouri Valley, Skyline and Middle Atlantic conferences after those races are settled, then fill up its field with the addition of two or three more leading independents.

Basketball's other big post-season affair, the NCAA, did not pick up any new entrants but did announce the sites for three first round games. On March 12, Arizona State University's Border Conference champions will meet the Skyline Conference representative at Tempe, Ariz., and Air Force Academy will play the Southwest Conference winner on the latter's floor. On March 13, Oregon State and Seattle will tangle at Corvallis, Ore.

Wake Forest clinched at least a tie for regular season first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference, coming from behind in the final ten minutes and beating North Carolina State 69-62. Len Chappell, the Deacons' 30-point-a-game man, netted only nine in the first half at N.C. State but led the later rally and finished with 25.

Providence blew seven points of an eight-point lead in the closing seconds but hung on for a 76-73 victory over St. Joseph's (Pa.) in the windup of a doubleheader at Philadelphia's Palestra. In the opener at Philadelphia, Lafayette won for the first time in 26 games and protected its Middle Atlantic Conference lead with a 73-69 upset of LaSalle.

Duquesne ended a three-game losing string and Pitt scored a surprise at the Pitt Field House. The Dukes overwhelmed Georgetown University 72-52 and Pitt upended Temple 71-65.

Bowling Green's Mid-American Conference champions smothered DePaul 83-51, zipping away to a 16-13 lead and coasting in.

Western Kentucky, champion of the Ohio Valley Conference, outpointed Xavier of Ohio 53-48 in a torrid second half shooting display beating the visitors 88-83.

Air Force clicked on 22 of 25 foul shots in tripping Valparaiso 74-59, and Bud Olsen fired in 14 of 19 field goal tries and totaled 35 points as Louisville crushed Marquette 85-63.

Other scores — Kansas 73 Nebraska 70. Virginia 72 Maryland 68. Eastern Kentucky 113 Middle Tennessee 69. Toledo 82 Kent State 80 (overtime). Florida State 79 Florida 56. Boston University 76 Tufts 64.

New Orleans Tourney Opens

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A wide open field without any pronounced favorite tees off today in the $30,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

Biggest threat in the ranks of the touring pros is Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif. The 23-year-old pro comes here fresh from a victory in last week's Tucson Open.

Other top contenders include Gardner Dickinson who copped the pro-am Wednesday with a 4-under-par 67, defending titlist Doug Sanders, Mike Souchak, former Louisisna State ace Johnny Pott, veteran Doug Ford and former National Amateur champion Jack Nicklaus.

The tourney is being played on the 6,662-yard City Park course.

ACC Swimming Tourney Begins

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Atlantic Coast Conference swim champions splash off today for the start of the annual ACC meet.

The three-day affair will be staged in the sparkling new North Carolina State indoor pool, and likely will end with a host of new records in the books.

N.C. State, Maryland and North Carolina — tri-champions last year — ranks as favorites. The season's dual meet competition ended with Maryland first, State second and North Carolina third.

The outcome of the meet will be combined with dual meet standings to determine the 1961-62 conference champion.

First events tonight will be the 1,500 freestyle and the 200 individual medley. On Friday and Saturday, trials will be held in the afternoon and finals at night.

Feels Refs Lost Control

BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — Belmont Abbey Coach Al McGuire said he withdrew his team from Monday's game with Jacksonville University after one of his players received a broken nose when hit by a fan and the crowd continued to be unruly.

McGuire said Wednesday that he felt officials of the game, played in Jacksonville, Fla., had lost control of the crowd and that "to have continued would have caused serious reaction by the fans." The game was forfeited to Jacksonville 2-0.

McGuire, a former New York Knickerbocker player, took his team off the floor with 8:32 remaining in the game. Earlier fans and players traded blows on the floor and Belmont Abbey's Jim Lytle received a broken nose.

The Very Rev. John A. Otgen, president of Belmont Abbey, said in a statement released Wednesday that at times situations develop over which "neither college has control," including spectator reaction and interference and "statements made by coaches in the frenzy of immediate post-game reaction."

CHAPTER 34

James Bond, asleep in one of the duty officers' bunks aboard the Manta, was awakened by the alarm bell. The iron voice of the P. A. system said: "Diving stations. Diving stations," and almost at once his bunk tilted slightly and the distant whine of the engines altered pitch.

Bond slipped off the bunk and went along and up to the attack center. Felix Leiter was already there. Commander Pedersen's face was tense.

He said, "It looks as if you were right, gentlemen. We've got the Disco all right. about five miles ahead and two points to starboard. She's showing no lights. Here, care to have a look through the scope? She's raising quite a wake."

Bond bent to the rubber eye sockets. In a minute he had her, a white scut on the horizon of the soft, feathery swell. He stood back. "What's her course?"

"Same as ours—western end of Grand Bahama. We'll go deeper now and put on a bit of speed. We've got her on the Sonar as well, so we shan't lose her."

He turned to a powerful-looking man in white ducks. "This is Petty Officer Fallon. He's in command of the swimming party, under your and Mr. Leiter's orders, of course. All the top swimmers volunteered. He's chosen nine of them. I've taken them off all duties. Maybe you gentlemen would like to get acquainted with your team. You'll want to discuss your routines. The sergeant at arms is looking after the weapons."

He smiled. "He's rustled up a dozen flick knives. He's barbed them and sharpened them down almost to needles, then fitted them into the tops of broom handles. All right then. Be seeing you. Ask for anything you want."

Bond and Leiter followed Petty Officer Fallon along the lower deck to the engine room and then to the engine-repair shop. At one end were grouped the nine swimmers clad only in bathing trunks, their fine bodies glowing with sunburn. Some of the swimmers already had their spears.

After the introductions, Bond took one and examined it. It was a deadly weapon, the blade, sharpened to a stiletto and notched near the top into a barb, firmly wired into the top of a long stout stave. Bond thumbed the needle-sharp steel and touched the tip. Even a shark's skin would not stand up to that.

Bond turned to Petty Officer Fallon: "I suppose you don't have rubber suits on board?"

"Why sure, Commander. Have to, for escape in cold waters." He smiled. "We're not always sailing in the tropics."

"We'll all need them. And could you get white or yellow numbers, big ones, painted on their backs? Then we'll know more or less who's who."

Later, with the gleaming black suits hanging like giant bat skins along the wall, Bond called the team together. "Men, we'll take it easy and go in triangle formation with me, No. 1, leading followed by Mr. Leiter here as No. 2 and Petty Officer Fallon as No. 3. Then we broaden out behind like a wedge of geese. All you have to do is follow the number in front of you and no one'll get lost."

Bond shot upward out of the escape hatch in a blast of compressed air. Far above him the surface of the sea was a glittering plate of quicksilver bubbling and swirling with the small waves that Bond was glad to see had materialized.

There was a sharp pain in his ears. To get decompression he fought with his fins and slowed down until he hung suspended ten feet below the surface.

Now there came a great explosion from the escape hatch as if the Manta was firing at Bond, and the black projectile of Leiter shot up at him through the burst of silver air bubbles. Bond moved out of his path and swam on up to the surface. Cautiously he looked above the small flurry of waves.

The Disco, still blacked out, lay stopped less than a mile away to his left. There were no signs of activity on board. A mile to the north lay the long dark outline of Grand Bahama edged with the white of sand and small waves. Bond got his bearings and quietly jack-knifed his body down below the surface.

He stopped at about ten feet and, keeping his body pointed like a compass needle along the course he would have to follow, lay, paddling softly with his fins to keep position, and waited for the rest of his team.

Soon Bond felt a tap on his shoulder. It was Leiter. He grinned through his mask and jerked up a thumb. Bond took a quick look behind him. The men lay spread out in a rough wedge, their fins and hands working slowly as they marked time in the water.

Bond nodded and got going, moving forward with a slow, even trudge, one hand at his side and the other holding his spear up the shaft against his chest. Behind him, the black wedge fanned out into formation and cruised forward like some giant delta-winged stingray on the prowl.

It was hot and sticky inside the black suit and the recirculating oxygen coming through the mouthpiece tasted of rubber, but Bond forgot the discomfort as he concentrated on keeping an even pace and a dead steady course on a prominent outcrop of coral with waves washing its head that he had chosen as a fix for his first contact with the shoal waters.

When he reacked it, he gave the halt signal and came slowly up under its protection. With infinite caution he raised his head through the sucking waves. He glanced first toward the Disco. Yes, she was still there, showing more plainly with the moon now full on her. No sign of life.

Bond inched his gaze slowly across the intervening sea. Nothing. A flurry of wavelets down the mirrored pathway of the moon. Now Bond slid round to the other side of the coral head. Nothing but the broken waters of the shoal and, five or six hundred yards away, the clear coastline and the beach.

Bond searched the clear channels for unusual turbulence in the water, for shapes, for anything moving. What was that? A hundred yards away, on the edge of a big patch, almost a lagoon of clear water among the coral, a head, a pale head with the glitter of a mask across it had broken the surface for an instant, taken a quick look round, and immediately submerged.

Bond held his breath. He could feel his thrilled heart hammering against the inside of his rubber suit. Feeling stifled, he took the breathing tube from between his teeth and let his breath burst out of him. He quickly gulped in some mouthfuls of fresh air, got a good fix on the position, crammed the tube roughly between his lips, and slid back and down.

Behind, the masks gazed blankly at him, waiting for a signal. Bond jerked up his thumb several times. Through the near masks he could see the answering flash of teeth. Bond shifted his grasp on the spear down to an attacking position and surged forward over the low coral.

Now it was only a question of speed and careful navigation among the occasional higher outcrops. Fish squirted out of his path and all the reef seemed to waken with the shock wave of the twelve hastening bodies.

Fifty yards on, Bond signaled to slow, to fan out in the attacking line. Then he crept on again, his eyes, aching and bloodshot with the strain, boring ahead through the jagged shapes among the pale mist.

Yes! There was the glitter of white flesh, and there and there. Bond's arm made the hurling signal for the attack. He plunged forward, his spear held in front of him like a lance.

"Bond stopped and stood. It was the only thing to do, for Largo had him like a rat in a trap. . ." the story continues here tomorrow.

Cotton Growers Urged To Report '62 Acreage Needs

Pitt County cotton growers were urged today to release their cotton acreage not planned for use or to request additional allotment if they desire as soon as possible.

County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office manager Livingston Roberts noted that acreage already released (1,341 acres) exceeds requested acreage (850) by about 500 acres.

He said that Pitt County would lose any unrequested released acreage on record March 23. The allotment then would go to the state ASCS office for reallocation to other counties.

Roberts pointed out: "Any producer with an allotment who desires additional cotton for 1962 and has labor and equipment and land suitable to production of cotton is eligible to receive the released acreage."

If the requested acreage should exceed the cotton allotments released, Roberts said, additional released acreage could be obtained if available from the state office.

Roberts said the requesting or releasing of cotton acreage should be done soon because of the nearness of planting season for cotton. Pitt farmers seed their cotton between late March and the last of April.

The office manager noted the reason for releasing unused cotton acreage: "The farmer must plant as much as 75 per cent of his allotment or release it to the county committee each year or he will lose some of his allotment. And he must plant some cotton one year out of three or he will lose the entire allotment."

INTEGRITY

INTEGRITY . . . "1. the quality or state of being complete; wholeness. 2. unimpaired condition; soundness. 3. uprightness, honesty, and sincerity."

This is the definition of INTEGRITY according to Webster's New World Dictionary. Apparently there are those among us who would use the word INTEGRITY "loosely" without even the faintest conception of its meaning. This informative ad is sincerely directed at those few.

Arthur Miller Takes 3rd Wife

ROXBURY, Conn. (AP)—Playwright Arthur Miller, 46, whose four-year marriage to movie star Marilyn Monroe broke up last year, has quietly married again.

The new wife of the tall, lean Pulitzer prizewinner is Ingeborg Morath, 38, an Austrian-born photographer.

The civil ceremony was performed without announcement by a justice of the peace in neighboring New Milford Saturday. The marriage came to light Wednesday.

The marriage is the third for the author, whose play "Death of a Salesman" received a Pulitzer prize.

Miller and his bride are staying at his home here, where he once lived with Miss Monroe. He said they plan to leave on a European honeymoon shortly.

Miss Morath, who has homes in New York and Paris, works for Magnum, a French photo agency. She was married once before in England.

Mine Toll Now Is Set At 298

SAARBRUECKEN, Germany (AP)—Officials said Wednesday the final death toll in the Feb. 7 Luisenthal Mine disaster was 298.

A total of 287 bodies was recovered from the mine near here following the explosion. Eleven miners died of injuries.

Hawaii Shivers In 'Record Low'

HONOLULU (AP)—This exotic land of balmy breezes got out of weather focus Wednesday.

Honolulu residents shivered as northwest winds drove the sea-level temperature to a record low of 55. Sleepers hauled out blankets.

Small hailstones pelted two areas of Oahu Island Tuesday.

On Maui, 10,000-foot Mt. Haleakala was lashed by sleet and snow. The temperature there fell to 25.

Chippewas Sign Govm't Contract

JOLIET, Ill. (AP)—Two Chippewa Indians, wearing full tribal regalia, signed a contract with the U. S. government for $350,000 Wednesday to produce 162,000 wooden ammunition boxes for the Army.

The tribe has a basket-weaving plant at Hayward, Wis., which employs 60 persons. The contract, won in competitive bidding over 20 other companies, is expected to nearly double employment at the plant.

The tribe owns 68 per cent of the common stock in the Shelton Basket Co., which will manufacture the boxes for 105 mm. shells.

Representing the tribe in the contract signing were Joe Trepania, chairman of the tribe's council, and Charley Billelle, a council member. Lt. Col. Paul J. Savage, commander of the Joliet Arsenal, signed for the government.

Early Egyptians desiring air conditioning soaked their walls with water. The desert winds evaporated the water and in the process the houses became cool.

Rusk Describes Aim Of Policies

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk returned to the scene of his student days today and told a Davidson College student assembly that the United States can afford neither nuclear war nor surrender.

This country, he said, is less sovereign today than at any time in its history, because of its intention to get along with mankind everywhere.

Referring to President Kennedy's comment that there can be no victory in a nuclear war, the secretary of state said the family of man is determined to survive, with human dignity. This, said Rusk, is the aim of our foreign policy.

"In nuclear war or surrender," Rusk said, "There is defeat. We can have neither."

His 28-minute talk was the first of two addresses today on the campus of this Presbyterian College from which he was graduated in 1931. The talk reviewed in general terms the day-to-day work of the State Department.

Rusk speaks again at 8 p.m., delivering one of the college's Reynolds Lectures.

He hinted that his address tonight would touch on the Congo as well as other foreign policy problems.

Referring briefly to the Congo struggle, Rusk said:

"We are much encouraged by the recent happenings there."

Rusk spoke Wednesday night in Charlotte, at the annual banquet of the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce. He urged freer foreign trade and continued foreign aid. He said the President must have authority to reduce tariffs so this country can compete — and thrive — with the European Common Market. Rusk said foreign aid is an essential part of "Our commitment to freedom and to a decent world community of independent states."

Nikita Asked Prove Favors Joint Effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has challenged Soviet Premier Khrushchev to waste no time in proving he favors joint efforts to explore outer space.

"I think it is particularly important now, before space becomes devoted to uses of war," Kennedy said at his news conference Wednesday.

Khrushchev had sent a message congratulating the United States on Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.'s triple orbit of the globe and suggesting the two governments combine resources to explore outer space.

Less than four hours after the news conference the White House made public a direct reply to Khrushchev. In it Kennedy expressed hope "that at a very early date our representatives may meet to discuss our ideas and yours in a spirit of practical cooperation."

He added the United States would come up with "new and concrete proposals" for joint enterprises that could be undertaken without delay.

Kennedy opened his news conference with a statement noting that twice before he had offered the same sort of proposition Khrushchev advanced. But the President called the Soviet premier's move an encouraging sign for international cooperation.

Glenn's memorable flight and the possibility of U.S.-Soviet cooperation in space dominated the half-hour meeting with newsmen. But in answering questions Kennedy also disclosed a special board of inquiry is determining whether U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers violated the contract under which he made his ill-fated reconnaissance flight over the Soviet Union on May 1, 1960.

Government officials have interrogated Powers in secret ever since he was released Feb. 10 in a prisoner exchange with the Soviets.

As for the chance of lowering barriers between the United States and the Soviet Union on space projects, Kennedy said this country would be happy to discuss cooperation at the United Nations or anywhere else. But he insisted cooperation would have to be genuine. And he acknowledged there is no more assurance now than ever that the Soviets are willing to transform general expressions of togetherness into specific agreements.

The conference was Kennedy's sixth in as many weeks.

He had this to say on other subjects:

Urban Affairs — Despite the House vote killing for this session of Congress his proposal to establish a department of urban affairs, one will be created sooner or later.

Corridors — Any interference with Western rights of air or land transport over East Germany into West Berlin would carry "hazards which none of us should welcome if we look to the possible end of the road."

Berlin—If there are indications that bringing foreign ministers together on the Berlin crisis would produce results, "then I think we ought to do it."

Taxes—They can't be cut now.

Southeast Asia — The United States is still prepared to offer every bit of assistance to make the government of South Viet Nam more effective for the people themselves.

Image — One reason for the world tour of his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, was to correct the Marxist-oriented and false view held of the United States by many students in other countries.

Funeral Friday For Rufus D. Fleming

ROCKY MOUNT — Mr. Rufus D. Fleming, 66, of 1600 Lafayette Avenue, died at Memorial Hospital Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock after suffering a heart attack. Funeral services will be conducted at the First Baptist Church in Rocky Mount Friday afternoon at three o'clock by his pastor, the Rev. Lowell P. Sodeman. Burial will be in Pineview Cemetery. The body will be taken from the home to the Church one hour prior to the time of service.

Mr. Fleming, son of the late Sidney I. and Mamie Quinn Fleming, spent his early life in the House Station Community near Greenville and was married to Miss Bessie Hatton in 1913. For more than thirty years he had made his home in Rocky Mount. He was associated with the Thomas D. Murphy Company for over twenty years and for the past four years had operated the Carolina Advertising Service in Rocky Mount. He was a past president of the N.C. division of the Travelers Protective Association, a past president of the Rocky Mount division of Travelers Protective Association, and a member of the First Baptist Church.

Surviving are his wife; a son, Dr. Dell Fleming of Atlanta, Ga.; a daughter, Miss Elizabeth Fleming of the home; one grandchild; one great grandchild; and two sisters, Mrs. Leon Fleming and Mrs. Annie Washington of Greenville.

Last Rites Friday For Roland Mayo

Mr. Roland Arthur Mayo, 55, died at his home, 305 Raleigh Ave., at 11:10 Wednesday night following several months of illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Friday afternoon at three o'clock by the Rev. W. D. Morton, Presbyterian minister of Farmville, assisted by the Rev. Richard R. Gammon, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Greenville. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Mayo, son of Mrs. Arthur J. Mayo of Greenville and the late Mr. Mayo, was a native of Pitt County and had spent most of his life in Greenville. He was a livestock salesman and a member of the Greenville Saddle Club. He was married to Janet Gurley of Norfolk in 1933 who survives in addition to his mother, a niece, and a nephew.

Rep. Bonner To Address Meet

BETHEL—U. S. Congressman Herbert C. Bonner will address some 400 Beta Club members attending the Northeastern District Beta Convention at the Bethel High School tomorrow. The Bethel Beta Club is joint host for the meeting.

A major item of business during the session will be election of officers for next year. The meeting begins at 10 a.m. and is expected to conclude about 3:30 p.m.

Officers currently serving are Don Dewar of Bethel High School, president; Jane Mewborn of Grifton High School, vice president; Ronnie Edmondson of Oak City High School, secretary; Mrs. Jerry Bunting of Bethel High School, district sponsor.

Next year the convention will be held at the school of the newly-elected president.

Beta Club conventions are open to certified members, their parents, sponsors, school officials, chaperons and alumni.

Introduced To Junior 4-H Club

AYDEN — Members of the South Ayden Junior 4-H Club were introduced to Miss Bettye Thompson, county home agent; Milton Merritt, county farm agent; and Miss E. F. Jarmon, newly-elected junior teacher-leader, at their meeting last week.

Mrs. N. C. Phillips, former 4-H teacher-leader, presented the agents and new leader to the group at their first session of the 1961-62 term.

Following a business meeting, Merritt presented a resume' of the "History of 4-H Club Work."

Officers of the club are James Earl Williams, president; Joyce Holton, vice president; Cleo Kornegay, first vice president; June Ellen Pope, secretary; Deborah Reeves, assistant secretary; and Dollie Mae Wilson, treasurer.

Raleigh Group Hits United Fund

RALEIGH (AP) — A bi-racial civic group has assailed Raleigh's United Fund and questioned whether the fund should continue as a private organization.

The Raleigh Citizens Association said in a statement that the United Fund here is a channel through which "the poor contribute to the amusement and advancement of the rich."

John Fox, executive secretary of the fund, denied the charge.

The association said "Negores, resent subtle bits of discrimination connected with the fund-raising, but the problem goes deeper. It involves the whole philosophy and method of the organization."

The association said United Fund agencies are segregated and that the allocation of funds is not in accordance with needs. It also said the method of raising funds is unfair.

SUPPRESSION PREDICTED

Talton Is Named Grifton Solicitor

GRIFTON — Greenville attorney Willis A. Talton has been appointed solicitor of Grifton Recorder's Court, it was announced today by Mayor Wiley Gaskins.

Talton replaces Claude Harris of Greenville, who resigned recently to accept a position as attorney with the Federal Trade Commission with offices in Arlington, Va.

Talton, associated with the law firm of J. W. H. Roberts, is a native of Clayton. He graduated from Oxford High School.

During World War II he served primarily in North Africa, holding the rank of staff sergeant at the time of his discharge in 1945. He received his A. B. degree from the University of North Carolina in 1949 and his law degree from the University's School of Law in 1951.

For seven years following graduation from college Talton taught school in Granville County. He came to Greenville in March of 1959 and joined Judge Roberts in July of 1961.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Talton of Oxford.

Talton is a member of the Optimist Club, Moose Lodge and Exchange Club. He also is a member of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in Greenville.

He was to assume his duties as Grifton solicitor today.

Next Satellite To Make Study Of Sun Effects

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —An orbiting solar observatory, nicknamed Oso, is scheduled to be launched here next week to make the most comprehensive study yet of the sun and how it affects conditions on earth.

Flying in a circular orbit 350 miles above the earth, Oso's delicate instruments will be able take readings uncluttered by the earth's heavy atmosphere.

Major assignment of the 440-pound laboratory will be to measure X rays and gamma, ultraviolet and infrared rays streaming toward earth from the sun. Those potentially deadly particles are absorbed or distorted by the atmosphere and thus are prevented from reaching earth.

Scientists feel the rays and the directions in which they travel hold clues to the origin and history of the solar system. They also may help show how the sun controls our weather, interferes with communications and alters the composition of the globe-circling radiation belts.

Home Ec Class Hears Garrett

FARMVILLE — D. D. Garrett, insurance and real estate agent of Greenville, addressed the adult home economics class at H. B. Sugg School here Wednesday night.

Garrett explained correct procedure in filing state and federal income tax returns and also explained the value of social security, the benefits to be derived from various categories of the federal program.

He emphasized the importance of record-keeping as it effects income tax and various businesses.

Mrs. Amelia Capehart, former Pitt County home agent, and Mrs. H. R. Reaves of Ayden are scheduled to assist Mrs. B. W. Mebane in a hat workshop here next Thursday. All interested persons have been invited to participate and further announcements will be made later.

Hot air rises because it contains fewer molecules than cold air taking up the same amount of room. Therefore the hot air is lighter.

Winterville Kiwanians Plan Auction And Dinner

FOR FRIDAY SALE . . . Part of equipment which will go on sale at Kiwanis farm equipment auction is shown here.

WINTERVILLE—Members of the Winterville Kiwanis Club are making final preparations today for an auction sale and dinner planned for Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Norman Worthington, president of the local organization, said the sale of farm equipment is being sponsored by the club to raise funds for the club's youth development and education programs.

Auction of the equipment, which ranges in value from about 50 cents to $3,000, will begin at 10 a.m. Barbecue dinners will be available at noon, Worthington explained.

The auction will be held on the May Farm, now owned by Vernon White and located about one mile north of Winterville on N.C. 11.

Auctioneer for the sale will be Ray Oglesby of Winterville.

Worthington explained that farmers and friends of the club have donated much equipment and merchandise for the sale. Items range from tobacco sticks, plows, cultivators, transplanters and tobacco curers to ponies, mules, irrigation equipment, trucks, tractors and a motor-grader. Fertilizer, peanuts, corn and other item have also been donated to the club for sale.

The 24 members of the club now plan to make the sale an annual event, Worthington explained. The group has been organized for 10 months.

Worthington estimated there will be over 600 pieces of equipment on hand for the sale which will last all day. In case of rain Friday, the auction will be held March 2.

Patrolman Speaks At Grifton School PTA

GRIFTON — Safety measures and loss of life on North Carolina highways was the subject of an address by Patrolman R. E. Tayloe of Grifton at the Grifton Elementary School P.T.A. meeting Monday night.

Introduced by Principal H. R. Reaves, Tayloe called attention to the "terrific" loss of life on state and national highways. He said much of this loss could be prevented with the use of more caution and obedience of traffic laws.

Since 1940 nearly 300 persons have been killed on the highways in Pitt County alone, he stated. Several thousand have been injured. The public generally shows little concern about the situation, he noted.

A film showing experiments by the University of California on the importance of seat belts was shown. Many injuries and deaths could be prevented by use of seat belts, it was brought out. Seat belts will prevent a body from being thrown about inside the automobile in an accident and also from being thrown out when doors came open.

Another film showed that pedestrians who disregard safety rules in crossing streets and walking on highways "invite" injuries and death.

Care in riding and getting on and off school buses was stressed, as well as deportment on school buses.

Following the address, a short program on the observance of Negro History Week, which ended Sunday, was given. Impersonations of famous Negroes were given by pupils. Marion Roach impersonated "Mahaliah Jackson';' William Cobb, "Louis (Stachmo) Armstrong"; Janice Artice, humorist "Moms Mabley"; Samuel King, "Roland Hayes."

More than 150 attended the P.T.A. meeting. Mrs. Pamilia Gardner is president.

Continue Talk Steel Contract

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Top-level negotiating teams continue talks today in an effort to reach agreement on contracts for some 430,000 basic steelworkers.

The chief negotiators, David J. McDonald of the United Steelworkers Union, and R. Conrad Cooper of the U.S. Steel Corp., said at the end of Wednesday's talks that discussion still is centered on local problems and overall economic matters.
