Several Hundred Square Feet Of Plaster Fell

Plaster Falls At Junior High Gym; No One Injured

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer

Chance timing Thursday averted tragedy as several hundred square feet of plaster ceiling crashed onto the Greenville Junior High School gym floor, halting a basketball game in progress.

A section of the plaster ceiling, estimated to be about 40 by 25 feet, broke loose from the structure's rafters about 7:40 p.m. and fell to the north end of the gym floor. Two teams in the city recreational program's Industrial Basketball League were on the south end.

Operations were reported already underway before noon to tear the remaining part of the gym-auditorium's ceiling out and replace it with a lightweight, non-plaster material.

Eyewitnesses said the players on the two teams, sponsored by Cozart's Auto Supply and Greenville Parts and Metal, would certainly have been seriously injured and perhaps killed if they had been under the north basket when the ceiling fell.

W. C. James, scorekeeper for the league's Monday, Wednesday and Thursday night games, said today, "It was just the Lord's blessing that nobody was down there or somebody would have been killed. Some parts of that plaster were heavy enough that somebody hit on the head by it would have been killed."

James said the players had just left the north end of the basketball court and an out-of-bounds play at the south end halted the game momentarily. He said three or four substitutes for one of the teams were sitting along the sidelines near the north end.

"They heard something cracking and looked up. They saw it breaking loose and ran." James Noted that the men were under the balcony that encircles most of the gymnasium.

The gymnasium, added to the school building in 1929, serves as a physical education facility for the 576 seventh- and eighth-grade students who attend the Junior High School. It also serves as an assembly hall and has been used for band practice recently.

Schools Supt. J. H. Rose said the entire ceiling would be torn out within two or three days and the auditorium could be used again.

He said the ceiling apparently fell because moisture had caused nails which held the plaster-and-wire-lathe covering to rust. Rose said an inspection this morning indicated no structural defects in the building.

The superintendent reported at least monthly inspections of the Junior High School are conducted by the City Schools' building and grounds department. The department's supervisor is C. J. Moye.

Junior High Principal Joseph Smith said the gymnasium area is occupied during most of a normal school day. He recalled a student assembly in the auditorium Wednesday.

Smith said today's class schedule was uninterrupted by last night's incident. Students were kept out of the auditorium during today, he noted, and would not be allowed inside until authorities declare it is safe.

Architect George Shoe inspected the damage and the remainder of the building today, Rose said. The Chapin Construction Co. of Greenville, the superintendent reported, was already at work on the project replacing the ceiling.

Ovation And Hero's Medal For Col. Glenn On Return To U. S.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. received a medal from President Kennedy today amid roaring acclaim for his fantastic space flight.

Returning to the jumping off point of his great adventure, Glenn got a long ovation from perhaps 100,000 persons who lined an 18-mile parade route from Patrick Air Force Base to Cape Canaveral.

Kennedy flew into Cape Canaveral from Palm Beach and was greeted by Glenn, who escorted him on a tour of major Project Mercury facilities.

Then, in a brief ceremony at Hangar S, Kennedy awarded Glenn the Distinguished Service Medal of the National Aeronautic and Space Administration. The President also presented the same medal to Robert R. Gilruth, Project Mercury director.

Glenn flew into Patrick at 8:40 a.m.

To greet the President, Glenn had driven 18 miles from Patrick Air Force Base to this space center past the greatest crowd in the history of nearby Cocoa Beach, a cheering applauding crowd estimated by police at 100,000.

It was at Patrick Air Force Base that Glenn was re-united with his family. While a happy, laughing and proud crowd looked on Glenn gave Mrs. Glenn a hug and a kiss and threw his arms around his two children.

Glenn, the icy-nerved Marine lieutenant colonel, who had flown around the world three times in four hours and 56 minutes, tugged a white handkerchief from his pocket, and made a swift wipe at his eyes.

Glenn, accompanied by Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, arrived back in his homeland at 8:40 a.m. from Grand Turk Island in the Bahamas where he had been undergoing a debriefing since he landed back on earth Tuesday.

On the tour of the Cape area the President and Glenn first stopped at Project Mercury control center.

This was the President's first visit to this space and missile center and he appeared to ask a number of questions about how this place, jammed with electronic consoles, worked.

Joining them were Robert R. Gilruth, Project Mercury director, and Walter C. Williams, operations director. Members of Glenn's family were given a separate tour of the facility.

After 20 minutes in the control center, the party re-entered the cars at 11:01 a.m. and moved toward Launch Pad 14, where Glenn was hurled away from the earth by a mighty Atlas rocket at 9:47 a.m. Tuesday.

About 200 engineers, technicians and workmen on the pad applauded as the car approached. Glenn shook hands with many of these men who had helped send him aloft.

B. G. MacNabb, base manager for General Dynamics-Astronautic, which makes the Atlas, handed Glenn a hard hat. Glenn read the words inscribed on it:

"First U.S. manned orbital flight. President John F. Kennedy."

The President's name on the helmet meant it belonged to Kennedy and Glenn placed it on Kennedy's tousled head.

The two stepped to a microphone and Glenn, with much emotion in his voice, thanked the launch crew for the job they did getting him into space.

"It was as near perfect a flight as I can envision," Glenn said.

"The booster performance was near perfect. As you know we were only off a few feet per second on the speed we wanted.

"My heartfelt thanks for a job excellently well done."

The motorcade left Pad 14 at 11:22 a.m. The 10-story tall gantry was empty today, but before long, Atlas booster 107D will be erected there for Donald K. Slayton's orbit trip.

Glenn, as astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr., and Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom did after their flights, stressed the "we" element in the space adventures.

He noted that the suborbital flights of Shepard and Grissom laid the groundwork for his three circuits of the globe.

"We learned a lot from these flights," Glenn said, "and future flights will tell us a lot more."

He said he happened to be receiving much of the acclaim and attention now, but that similar glory should also go to the thousands of persons who made the flight possible—the people who built the Atlas, the capsule, also the tracking people and men of the recovery fleet.

Tough Khrushchev Note Insists On March Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tough new message from Premier Khrushchev, insisting that President Kennedy agree to a March summit meeting, chilled U.S. hopes today for an kind of successful negotiations with the Soviet Union at the forthcoming Geneva conference.

The letter, delivered to the State Department Thursday, also raised grave suspicion among officials here that Khrushchev is trying to use the approaching disarmament conference as a device to prevent Kennedy from ordering a new series of atmospheric nuclear tests. Officials judged the 20-page message to be loaded with propaganda.

The State Department forwarded an English translation of the letter to the White House late Thursday afternoon, a little more than two hours after Kennedy left for Florida. Presumably, his special assistant, McGeorge Bundy, relayed it to the President immediately.

The United States planned to start immediate consultation with Britain and other Allies on a Kennedy reply to Khrushchev turning down his latest summit conference bid. But the State Department informally rejected Khrushchev's insistent urging in a statement Thursday night.

The statement said the U.S. government feels that its proposal to open disarmament talks with foreign ministers, with the possibility of a summit session later on, "is the proper one and the one best designed to lead to orderly progress in the disarmament negotiations."

This statement undoubtedly foreshadows the line of Kennedy's reply which is also expected to express hope once again that, as the statement said, "The Soviet Union will agree to the joint United States-United Kingdom proposal for the foreign ministers meeting."

Khrushchev's letter was the latest in a series of exchanges involving him, Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Kennedy and Macmillan opened the series Feb. 7 with a call for a foreign ministers meeting. Khrushchev on Feb. 10 raised the bid to a summit conference. His proposal was rejected by the two Western leaders Feb. 14 and his message Thursday was a reply to their rejection.

The letter from Khrushchev gave no indication whether he would go to Geneva even though Kennedy and Macmillan did not. But in the initial study of the letter here officials were less concerned with that aspect of the problem than with the change in tone which Khrushchev employed.

Informants said that the text, which still has not been made public, was filled with familiar Soviet propaganda arguments and was sharp and insistent, whereas Khrushchev's earlier response had been relatively mild and cordial.

This time, too, he is reported to have said that he questions the sincerity of the United States in its approach to Geneva in view of press reports that Kennedy was considering resumption of nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere. The President has indicated he will make a decision around the end of this month.

Khrushchev apparently did not refer to the fact that he started atmospheric tests last Sept. 1, breaking the three-year East-West moratorium, and fired around 50 shots which in the U.S. view increased the Soviet Union's nuclear weapons effectiveness.

What Khrushchev did do, informants said, was to advise Kennedy of his threat to resume Soviet testing if the United States starts atmospheric explosions.

Destroyer Noa Is Marked Ship

MAYPORT, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. Navy destroyer Noa came home a marked ship.

On the deck in white paint was a large circle outlining a "7," marking the spot where astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.'s Friendship 7 space capsule was set down after his orbital flight Tuesday.

Also marked in white paint were the five footsteps Glenn took on the deck.

A large crowd greeted the recovery ship when it pulled into Mayport Naval Station Thursday night.

The skipper, Cmdr. John D. Exum of Jacksonville Beach, was presented with a gold plated baseball glove mounted on a plaque symbolizing the Noa as the ship that "fielded" the capsule.

Gov. Sanford Is Confined To Bed

RALEIGH (AP) — A severe cold caused Gov. Terry Sanford to cancel all his engagements today and take to his bed.

Mrs. Sanford said she did not think the governor is seriously sick and that a doctor had not been called in, but probably will be.

She said the governor had guests in for breakfast and then decided to go to bed and rest a while because he was feeling bad.

Rusk Reaffirms Berlin Position

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP)— Secretary of State Dean Rusk voiced again Thursday night the West's determination to defend the freedom of West Berlin, and said reunification of Germany is the only real solution to the divided nation's problems.

Rusk wound up a two-day visit to North Carolina with an address at Davidson College, where he was graduated a Phi Beta Kappa in 1931. He spent all of Thursday visiting and speaking at the Presbyterian - affiliated college. On Wednesday night he spoke to the Chamber of Commerce at nearby Charlotte.

The secretary declared that in Berlin, "we face the most direct and fundamental Soviet challenge to the position of the United States —and indeed of the entire Free World.

"The Western Allies, backed by all the NATO powers, have the most solemn obligation to protect the freedom of the West Berliners," he said. "This is a duty to ourselves as well, and to our own security, for the freedom of West Berlin is the key to the freedom of us all."

Rusk also touched on foreign trade and on disarmament talks he will attend starting in Geneva next month.

"We must negotiate with Europe," he asserted, "in ways which do not merely protect American economic interests but which also reduce tariff barriers and trade discrimination throughout the whole of the Free World."

On disarmament, he said, "We shall be prepared to talk seriously and precisely but we shall not mistake talk for progress, slogans for workable arrangements."

Tshombe Good Faith Doubted

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The United Nations accused President Moise Tshombe today of preparing for a new military showdown with its force.

It expressed doubt about the Katanga president's good faith in seeking a peaceful settlement with the rest of the Congo.

In sharp departure from a recent atmosphere of conciliation and confidence concerning Katanga, the United Nations said Tshombe's military action in north Katanga violates conditions laid down by the United Nations.

Reliable sources said the central government is airlifting troops toward the north Katanga town of Albertville in anticipation of an all-out attack by Katangan gendarmerie. Tshombe's troops reoccupied the town of Kongolo early this week after central government forces had withdrawn.

The United Nations said it intends to send a military mission to Kongolo without delay despite Tshombe's opposition.

The U.N. charges were made in a sarcastic and tough statement handed to newsmen by U.N. headquarters spokesman Dik Lehmkuhl.

Bitter Reaction To Demobilizing

ALGIERS (AP)— Both French and Moslem officers reacted bitterly today to a government plan to demobilize 140,000 Algerian Moslems wearing the French uniform.

The government move was an obvious sign of its confidence that an Algerian cease-fire is imminent. But it posed a possible internal crisis in the French army in Algeria at a time when it faces a test by the right-wing European Secret Army Organization pledged to keep Algeria French.

The Algerian rebel national council, meanwhile, met in secret session in Tripoli, Libya, for the second day to consider the tentative accord with France for a cease-fire clearing the way for Algerian independence. France endorsed the accord Wednesday night.

President Charles de Gaulle's government Thursday announced plans for progressive demobilization of Moslems serving in the French army and said they will be given bonuses and pensions and offered the opportunity to reenlist or resettle in France.

Tribute Paid Sheriff Tyson At Peace Officers' Meeting

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson, president of the Pitt County Peace Officers Association, was presented a gift last night in appreciation of his services.

The sheriff has announced that he will not seek re-election to office this year. The gift, an electric razor, was presented at the annual meeting of the Peace Officers Association by Robert Martin, Pitt commissioner.

Deputy Sheriff Duke Andrews accepted the gift on behalf of Sheriff Tyson who was unable to attend last night. Andrews has announced that he will seek election as sheriff.

Martin paid tribute to Sheriff Tyson for his contribution to law enforcement during his years of service.

Capt. S. H. Mitchell, commanding officer of Highway Patrol Troop A with headquarters here, presented a memorial plaque to Mrs. Lester Jones. The plaque was in commemoration of Capt. Lester Jones' distinguished service in Eastern North Carolina as a highway patrol member. The late Capt. Jones was commander of Troop A.

District Solicitor Robert Rouse of Farmville urged the law officers to "fight for honest law enforcement."

"Law enforcement today at all levels and all across the nation faces its greatest challenge," Rouse declared.

"I have personally come to have respect for law enforcement. I have been very proud to have been your spokesman in court." Rouse has announced that he will not seek re-election as district solicitor.

He cited the Lautares Jewelry robbery case as an example of cooperation between officers. A motel match cover found at the scene led investigating officers to discovery of a car discription and license number.

Rouse recalled that within an hour after the description was distributed an officer in Washington, N. C. spotted the car in a supermarket parking lot. This brought about a subsequent conviction for the crime.

He urged the officers to prepare themselves.

"Recognition and higher pay will then be yours," he declared.

"The person who wants to be a good officer to whom his community can look with pride.

"As law enforcement officers you have the burden and duty to preserve, protect and build the character and standards of this country."

Greenville Police Chief Guy Langston presided over last night's annual meeting in the absence of Sheriff Tyson. Invited guests included officials of the various courts in the county, magistrates and others.

Many Dignitaries Expected For Premiere

The American premiere showing of "The Wages of Sin" by Prime Minister of Burma U Nu is expected to draw capacity audiences, including dignitaries from the state and the Burmese Embassy in Washington, D. C., at its opening here tonight and again tomorrow night.

The opening tonight at 8:30 o'clock in McGinnis Auditorium will attract large numbers of students and local residents, while some 50 prominent guests will attend both the play and a dinner tomorrow honoring His Excellency U On Stein, ambassador to the United States from the Union of Burma, and members of his staff at the Burmese Embassy in Washington, D. C. President of East Carolina College Leo W. Jenkins and Mrs. Jenkins will be hosts at the dinner.

In addition to an impressive list of dinner guests on Saturday, more dignitaries are expected to attend the play. Over 400 invitations have been sent out for Saturday's performance, it was learned today.

Some of the honored guests include His Excellency U On Stein and members of his staff, and Daw Mya Sein, one of the most distinguished women in the political life of Burma, who has been in Greenville serving as advisor and consultant to the East Carolina Playhouse. She will return to Greenville Saturday afternoon in time for the festivities.

Daw Mya Sein is an educator, historian, and former representative to the United Nations.

Representing the state of North Carolina at the dinner will be Hugh Cannon, director of the N. C. Department of Administration; Joel L. Fleishman, legal assistant to Governor Sanford; D. S. Coltrane, special consultant to the governor, and Mrs. Coltrane; Charles Holloman, budget analyst, and Mrs. Holloman; and Thomas Lambeth, assistant to the Governor.

Members of the East Carolina College Board of Trustees and their wives who have accepted invitations for Saturday's events are Chairman Herbert L. Waldrop of Greenville and Mrs. Waldrop; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Belk of Goldsboro; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Taylor of Warrenton; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morgan of Lillington; and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oglesby of Washington, D. C.

Other out-of-town guests for the dinner include Raymond Lowery of the News and Observer, Raleigh; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woodard of Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. Dail Holderness of Tarboro; and Mrs. Rosemary T. Davis of Goldsboro.

Dinner guests from Greenville include Mrs. James S. Ficklen, Sen. and Mrs. Robert Lee Humber, Frank Wooten, and Mr. and Mrs. David J. Whichard III.

From the college faculty and administrative staff will be J. A. Withey, director of "The Wages of Sin," and Mrs. Withey; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holt; Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Duncan; Mrs. Agnes Barrett; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rickert; Mr. and Mrs. George Pasti; Mr. and Mrs. James E. Poindexter; Ovid W. Pierce; and Miss Bessie McNiel.

Dinner music will be provided by a duo composed of Donald H. Hayes, violinist, and Charles Stevens, pianist. Both are faculty members.

The play itself is a moralistic drama with a modern political background, dealing with the evils of communism. The plot centers around U Po Lone, Burmese home minister, whose vices make him unworthy of his position and a danger both to his party and the democratic government in his country.

The play brings out the theory that debauched leaders can pave the way for communism, while democracy can give man his dignity.

More than thirty students and two faculty members will make up the cast of the play.

East Carolina College and Greenville became the location for the premiere showing of this play through efforts of Dr. Withey, playhouse director. While a Fulbright scholar in theater arts at the University of Mandalay in 1960-61, he became interested in the drama by U Nu. In December, U Nu granted Dr. Withey's request to give the American premiere showing of the play here.

Authenticity will be ensured through the advice of Daw Mya Sein. Costumes, by Mrs. Lois Garren of Greenville, follow designs of the Burmese national dress. Dr. Withey designed the scenery.

Prime Minister U Nu is author of several other works including "Burma Under the Japanese" and "The People Win Through," which was written shortly after World War II and presented in the United States in 1955 by the Pasadena Playhouse. He has also translated works including Marx's "Das Kapital" and Dale Carnegie's "How To Win Friends and Influence People."

"The Wages of Sin" is a major attraction of the 1961-62 program of dramas at East Carolina College.

Apples Topping For Cake

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Do you enjoy changing dishes about?

Then the upsidedown cake belongs in your bailiwick.

This strictly American confection allows cooks free play. It takes to different fruits for its upsidedown topping, and to so many varieties of cake for its base.

Originally the best known of the upsidedown cakes was the pineapple made with a butter or sponge cake base.

Then along came the pear version with a gingerbread partner.

Prunes and apricots also became favorites in the upsidedown team—the prune edition one that's especially delicious with a spice cake foundation.

Now it's the apple's turn to take part in this upsidedown combination. Like brown sugar flavor? Then the chances are you'll favor this recipe. Over the apple slices, along with plump raisins, goes a cake base sweetened chiefly with light brown sugar.

We think this dessert tastes best warm. If you can't serve it straight from the oven, reheat it. We offered this apple cake with unsweetened whipped cream, but it would also taste delightful with a custard, eggnog, rum or brandy sauce.

BROWN SUGAR APPLE CAKE

3 tablespoons butter
1 1-3 cups firmly packed dark brown sugar
3 medium (3-4 pound) Golden Delicious apples (pared, quartered, cored and sliced 1-8-inch thick)
1-3 cup raisins (rinsed in hot water and drained)
1½ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1-3 cup shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 large eggs (separated)
2-3 cup undiluted evaporated milk
¼ cup granulated sugar

Melt butter over low heat in a round (10 by 2 inches) cake pan; remove from heat. Sprinkle 2-3 cup of the brown sugar over the butter. Arrange apple slices over sugar; sprinkle with raisins. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening, the remaining 2-3 cup brown sugar and the vanilla; beat in egg yolks thoroughly. Beat in gently the sifted dry ingredients, in 4 additions, alternately with the evaported milk. With clean beater, beat egg whites until soft peaks form; beat in granulated sugar, a tablespoon at a time; continue to beat, if necessary, until stiff peaks form. Fold meringue into batter. Spread over apple layer. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven 35 to 45 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out without any batter particles sticking to it. Place on wire rack for 5 minutes; invert on serving plate. Serve warm with unsweetened whipped cream or an appropriate pudding sauce. Makes 8 to 12 servings.

UPSIDEDOWN CAKE has a brown-sugar underneath its layer of Golden Delicious apples studded with plump raisins.

Missionary To Speak Here

Miss Joselyn Gordon, missionary to a small village in northern India, will speak to the Churchwomen of St. Paul's Episcopal Church at a 12:30 p.m. luncheon meeting in the Parish House on Monday. She will also speak in St. Paul's Church at 7:30 Monday night which will be open to the general public.

Miss Gordon is a native of Spray, where her father, the late Rev. Wm. J. Gordon, was rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church. Three of her four sisters have been in the missionary field. Her brother is the Right Rev. Wm. J. Gordon Jr., Bishop of the Missionary District of Alaska.

Benefit Bridge Dinner Planned

The Episcopal Churchwomen are sponsoring a benefit bridge luncheon at 12:30 on Thursday, March 1, in the Parish House. The proceeds from this project will aid three graduates of the Virginia Seminary: Charles Tait, Todd Trefts, and Philip Turner who have volunteered to join the faculty of The Bishop Tucker Memorial Seminary in Nukone, Uganda, East Africa.

Two of these young men are married and have families and have recently completed special training in England for this work. The third is unmarried and received his special training in the States. Last year 200 native students sought entrance to this Seminary and only 40 were accepted due to a lack of teachers. The Churchwomen are anxious to assist these young ministers and their families who have committed themselves to service in Africa. Bishop Thomas H. Wright of the Diocese of East Carolina is the present chairman of the Overseas Department of the Protestant Episcopal Church National Council.

Mrs. Robert Powell is accepting reservations for the bridge luncheon.

This old trick may be new to beginning cooks: heat leftover rolls by putting them in a paper bag, twisting the top closed, and leaving them in a hot oven for about 10 minutes.

Miss McGee Gives Program

On Tuesday, Mrs. Owen Marshburn was hostess to members of the Atheneum Book Club and guests, Mrs. Leighton Blount, Mrs. W. E. Debnam and Miss Eunice McGee, at a luncheon at her home, Andalusia, on the Ayden Highway.

Following luncheon, the hostess introduced Miss Eunice McGee, who gave a talk on her recent trip to Ireland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland. Among the color slides and cards shown by the speaker was a picture of the ancestral home of President John F. Kennedy at New Ross in Ireland. A sidelight of the trip was a snapshot of Miss McGee kissing the Blarney Stone at Blarney Castle, also in Ireland.

All business was dispensed with in order that members and guests might view history in the making—the televised safe return of Astronaut John H. Glenn. The approaching spring season was made evident in Mrs. Marshburn's home by her use of early spring flowers in shades of yellow white and green.

Mrs. Coffman Club Speaker

The Chicora Book Club held its Feb. 20 meeting at the home of Mrs. John Farley. Guests were Mrs. Robert Goodin, Mrs. Richard Ottaway, and Mrs. Roy Upchurch.

Mrs. George Coffman, book club member, was the speaker for the afternoon. Her talk was on the United States Ambassador to Japan, Edwin Reischauer, and the United States relationship with Japan.

Ambassador Reischauer is a scholarly Harvard economics professor who reads and speaks Japanese. The Japanese regard him as a man of humility to whom they can speak openly.

Speaking of the United States relations with Japan, Mrs. Coffman said the main problem is the restrictive trade we have put on Japan. Japan buys more from us than they sell to us. Other problems are the United States' occupation in Okinawa and the maintenance of friendship between the two countries.

Mrs. Coffman concluded by quoting Ambassador Reischauer, "Japan's future depends on the United States and the United States' future may rely more on Japan than any other country in Asia."

'Americanism' Miss Hardison's Topic At Auxiliary Meeting

On Thursday evening the America Legion Auxiliary met in the home of Mrs. B. M. Reagan.

After the opening prayer by the chaplain, Mrs. W. C. Harris, followed by the singing of "America the Beautiful," the meeting was declared in session by the president, Mrs. Ann DeLaMater. The Preamble was then recited.

It was reported by Mrs. W. C. Eagles, Child Welfare chairman, that the chapter had provided clothing for two deaf and dumb children of an ex-service man to wear to Duke Hospital, as well as gas for the trip. It was decided to give a donation to "CARE" for the purchase of a Classroom Supply Kit to be used by Peace Corpsmen in Colombia. Another donation was given to assist in the work of the School for Trainable Children in this community.

The speaker for the evening was Miss Janice Hardison, one of the faculty in the English Department of East Carolina College, and her subject was "Americanism." She stressed that Americanism involves faith in civilization as founded in this country; it involves the restoring and keeping before us the ideals of our forefathers; and it involves the appreciation of those great founding fathers who have gone before.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments of cherry tarts, nuts and coffee were served by the hostesses, Mrs. B. M. Reagan, Mrs. W. C. Martin, Mrs. Martha Forrest, Mrs. J. L. Rollins, and Mrs. Alberta Taylor.

Luncheon Fetes Miss Blount

Miss Nelson Blount, bride-elect of April, was entertained at a luncheon Thursday at the home of Mrs. Graham Flanagan.

Mrs. Flanagan and Miss Terry Flanagan were hostesses at the three course luncheon.

In the living room where guests were served punch, arrangements of pink and white gladiolas were used.

The dining table featured a center arrangement of pink carnations and baby's breath. Placecards were favors for the eight guests.

Miss Blount was given a gift in crystal and a corsage of carnations by the hostesses.

Simpson H. D. Has Joint Meet

"Trends in Agricultural Production and Homemaking Education" was the program presented to members of the Simpson Home Demonstration Club, husbands and friends by S. C. Winchester, County Agricultural Agent, and Mrs. Sue May, Home Economics Agent.

The meeting was held in the Community Building on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Winchester showed charts explaining the past and present figures in farm production. He said we as growers have the opportunity to improve our net income in the future.

Mrs. May said that as homemakers we should study and decide if we were using the best home management practices in homemaking, home management, clothing, housing, and nutrition.

The program followed a covered dish supper. Mrs. S. D. Tucker, president, welcomed the members and guests, and Mr. Erastus Briley responded.

Mrs. J. E. Briley, recreation leader, and Mrs. Roy Edwards directed in games and music.

City Trains Straight-Shooters

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—(WNS) To fight juvenile delinquency, the city has set up a $60,000 rifle range. It expects to finance the project by selling lead that will result from target practice.

New Lower Group Rates Cut European Trip Cost

By MORTON YARMON

NEW YORK—(WNS)—Want to cut down on your coming vacation costs? Plan to travel in a group.

Biggest news in togetherness travel is the agreement among most airlines to reduce transatlantic fares for groups of 25 or more.

To give you an idea of what these new fares mean: Economy round trip fare between New York and London will be $300 on a jet, representing a reduction of $186 from the previous single-passenger rate during season. If you're willing to go by propeller plane, you can get to the British capital and back for $278. Children go for half fare.

Unlike other cut-rate air fares, these will be in effect all year, except for weekend travel to Europe during May, June, and July and from Europe during August, September, and October. But such restrictions will not wreak hardship on the real bargain-hunter.

Only approved groups are to be counted, though what constitutes an "approved group" is not yet clear. The International Air Transport Association had this to say: "The groups may be made up of 25 or more persons having a definite affinity as members of an existing organization or who assemble spontaneously." The months to come undoubtedly will spell out just what this rather ambiguous statement means.

Group bookings can be made through travel agents, but agents are forbidden to solicit such business. Bookings must be made at least 30 days in advance.

London is by no means the only spot to which these group cut rates apply. Round-trip jet flights to Paris will now cost $326, to Rome $385, to Copenhagen $329, to Athens $471, to Madrid $326, to Tel Aviv $592.

The problem is to find the like-minded 25 prepared to go to the same spot you want to reach. London and Paris, however, are always appealing since they are the gateways to other exciting spots in Europe and elsewhere.

Another way to save on air travel to Europe is to go vy chartered flight, which has become increasingly popular in recent years. Last year, more than a quarter-million passengers flow between the U. S. and Europe on chartered flights. Here the problem is a little more complicated. To make the project worthwhile, you have to find about 100 members of a bona fide group willing to go to the same place at the same time.

If your club can arrange such a trip, you can each get to Europe for as little as $250. The cost depends on the airline, the number of passengers, the time of year and your destination. The airline gives you a flat price for the round-trip flight, and it's up to you to break it down among your members. The larger the party, the lower the cost to each individual. It's cheaper, incidentally, to charter a flight at other times than summer.

Weighty Problem

NEW YORK — (WNS) — The Russians want to change their image in the world—the image that they are fat.

They've learned about cholesterol but have yet to discover the low-calorie diet liquids, said Mrs. Iraida Vorontsova, a Moscow schoolteacher here as guide to a children's art exhibit.

But sports are encouraged, she said, to keep fit. Skiing is popular. In Moscow it's farily easy; you just take a subway to the slope.

But weight or no weight, she said, it will be a while before the Russians give up their thick soups.

Mrs. Vorontsova, 32, is on the slender side.

Mrs. Lautares Club Hostess

Mrs. George Lautares was hostess to the Cosmos Book Club at the Greenville Country Club Tuesday.

The luncheon table was decorated with American flags, carnations and cherries which depicted Washington's birthday.

Mrs. Joseph Withey was the guest speaker. Her talk was on Burma and the experiences she and her family had while Dr. Withey studied drama on a Fulbright Scholarship for nine months in Rangoon. Burma is a Republic with a union government. Unlike its southeastern neighbors, it is more sparsely populated and has plenty of food. Ninety-three per cent of its population is Buddhist, which believes in reincarnation and who gain merit by bringing riches to the pagodas.

Mrs. George Lautares Sr. was welcomed, also, as a guest.

Near 600 Absent From Schools

Almost 600 students were absent from city schools today and an undetermined number were absent from county schools, apparently as the result of flu.

Over the past three weeks, flu and viruses have continued to absentee rates high in the city and county schools. The office of the Greenville Board of Education reported the number of absentees in city schools reached 976 on Monday, mostly due to flu. The exact tally for today was 593.

Schools in the city most affected appeared to be Elmhurst Elementary School and Junius Rose High School, while Wahl-Coates Laboratory School also felt the impact. Some absentee rates for these schools were Elmhurst 103 today compared to 149 on Monday; Rose High School, 72 today compared to 123 on Monday; Wahl-Coates, 87 today compared to 124 on Monday.

D. H. Conley, superintendent of county schools, said principals made no report on flu absentees at a meeting yesterday, though "it's still in the schools." He commented that he believed prevalence of flu is "leveling off" now and would be sharply curbed it the weather cleared up.

Newsstand Operator Says 'Unfairly Treated'

A Greenville newsstand operator says he feels his business has been unfairly treated by a local PTA effort to discontinue sale of what it calls obscene literature in local shops.

W. F. Young, 59-year-old former Greenville department store operator, told the Daily Reflector in an interview Thursday that proceedings of a Tuesday meeting of the PTA representatives, reported in Wednesday's Reflector, were in conflict with the facts.

Young, co-owner of the Greenville Newsstand on Fifth Street, said he is not the only newsstand dealer in town who has refused to remove the literature from his shop. "I know of at least one more newsstand operator in Greenville who told the PTA he could not afford to quit selling what the PTA is objecting to," he said.

He also answered a report given the PTA group Tuesday that said the literature was available to 12- and 13-year-olds at Greenville Junior High School.

"The only way any person under 18 years of age can get one of the books is to steal it," Young declared. "I have two signs up in my shop." The signs disallow anyone under 18 reading or buying the literature.

Asked what nature of literature is termed "obscene," Young said the books and magazines referred to are the sexy periodicals and paperbacks.

He said his business would "have to close up if we didn't sell them." Young estimated his business volume is about 50 per cent of the sexy publications with the remainder including classic literature, the "better" books, academic outline publications and newspapers and news magazines.

Young answered another point made by the committee:

"These magazines," he said, "are handled by the U. S mail constantly as subscriptions." He said his shipments by truck come from a wholesaler who furnishes the publications to newsstands in bulk. The committee has said that books not accepted by Post Office regulations are brought into Greenville by trucks.

Young said wholesalers for the publications are located in Rocky Mount, New Bern, Elizabeth City and other towns in the area.

In discussing the publications, Young said he could not afford to eliminate them from his business. "The public seemingly is demanding sex from the newsstands," he said.

Young said he feels youngsters under 18 should be kept away from the sexy publications, "and I try very hard to enforce that." But, he said, "After that age, I think it's everybody's privilege to read what they want to read."

He added: "I don't think any one organization can dictate to you what you can read and what you can't read."

The dealer's shop is just a block from the local Junior High School and little farther from the East Carolina College campus.

Young said there are few under-18 students who patronize his business. "The word gets around," he said. "They find out that I'm not going to let them look at or buy the books. I have a few of the younger boys in here, but I always watch them very closely."

As for the college customers, Young said he feels the college students "are old enough by now to read what they want to." Young himself has a 20-year-old son enrolled at ECC.

"I've never had any complaints from the college," he said, noting: "Some of the faculty members are my best customers." He said his publications are arranged according to their nature. "Some people just don't like to see the sexy publications," he explained.

Young began operation of the newsstand about five years ago. He was forced out of the department store business for health reasons. For about 30 years, he operated Young's Department Store here, now Collins-Pridmore.

He is a Wilson native, but has spent most of his years in Greenville. His current residence is at 110 S. Woodlawn Ave.

Child In 'Good Condition After Struck By A Car

A four-year-old Greenville boy was reported in good condition today, after being struck down by a car on Evans St. yesterday.

Greenville traffic officers identified the youth as Phillip Woodford Tetterton of 905 East 14th St.

Officers, who are continuing investigation of the incident, said the child reportedly ran from between two parked cars and into the path of a vehicle driven by Jimmy Dalton Haddock, 24, of Route 3, Greenville.

The mishap occurred about 39 feet south of the intersection of Evans and Seventh Sts. at 3:55 p.m.

Physicians this morning said the lad received a concussion from the impact with the auto. X-rays were being made this morning to determine if the child's skull and left arm were fractured in the collision, officials noted.

Doctors described young Tetterton's condition as "good" and "alert."

In a second mishap on Evans, at the intersection of 11th St. at 5:40 p.m., no charges were placed.

Officers said cars driven by Margie Rae Harrington, 20, of Kannapolis and Melvin Eugene Fussell, 22, of Ayden were involved in the mishap.

They noted that the Harrington auto was traveling west on 11th St. while the Fussell car was headed south on Evans St.

They explained that a truck was parked blocking the view of the stop sign at the intersection, causing Miss Harrington not to stop.

Damage to the Harrington car was set at $75 while damage to the Fussell vehicle was placed at $175. No injuries were reported.

Welch Asserts Society Growing

BELMONT, Mass. (AP)—Robert Welch, founder of the John Birch Society, says his organization is gaining members faster than it loses them.

Welch told the Men's Club of the Plymouth Congregational church Wednesday night the society is growing solidly.

"In 1961," he said, "only two per cent of the membership resigned. And we average that many new members each week."

Speaking in this Boston suburb where the society has its headquarters, Welch said in response to a question that there are plenty of good men available for the presidency in 1964. In particular, he mentioned Sens. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Strom Thurmond, D-S.C.

Goldwater, a spokesman for the GOP conservative wing, said recently he thinks Welch is a liability to the society and should resign.

Retirement Plans Of Pioneer WAC Revised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Little more than a week ago Lt. Col. Emily Carla Gorman was an ex-schoolmarm planning on retiring from the Women's Army Corps and going back to college.

But after almost 20 years of Army life, Col. Gorman is used to changes and being a part of events in the making.

Last month she was in South Viet Nam, attending a conference on U.S. military aid to that Communist-haunted country. She has attended meetings in Latin America, visited Bangkok and Tokyo.

When the end of fighting in World War II came, she was an executive secretary for the Allied Control Authority—and heard the talks between Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and his opposites in phe four - power authority, including Soviet Marshal Georgi Zhukov.

Col. Gorman was among the pioneers in today's WAC organization. She joined up in July 1942.

Asked how she came to decide to abandon a teaching career and go into military service, she says she thinks it was "principally patriotic reasons, perhaps with a bit of pioneer spirit."

Col. Gorman was a teacher in upstate New York public schools, at Pulaski, Massena and Rochester for 10 years, then for two years was employed in personnel placement work and served with the Oswego, N.Y., office of Civil Defense.

She has been making plans to retire from the Army and go to a school, probably here in Washington, to get a doctorate.

But, unknown to her, her plans were being rewritten. The present WAC commander, Col. Mary Louise M. Rasmuson, will leave the directorship, effective Aug. 1. The Army began checking records. They pointed to Emily Gorman as the logical choice from about 50 lieutenant colonels of the corps. The director moves up to full colonel rank while in office.

She had wide experience in the WACs, especially in training and personnel aspects.

Among other assignments, she was chief of the WAC Training Center Administrative School at Ft. Lee, Va. She also had served with the Continental Army Command headquarters at Ft. Monroe, Va., as deputy chief of plans and training.

Presently she is assistant chief, foreign military training division, in the office of Army deputy chief of staff for military operations. This accounts for her trip to Viet Nam, where U.S. Army personnel are aiding in the training of South Viet Nam's growing army.

Her teaching career provided an invaluable background for her work in the WACs, Col. Gorman says. And schooling is part of Army life, she adds, saying that "Army officers always are either going to school or teaching somebody."

Col. Pulaski is a native of Pulaski, N.Y., born there on April 9, 1909. She received her bachelor of arts degree from Cornell University, did graduate work in English and education at Syracuse University and the University of Rochester.

Salmon have an acute sense of smell. They are also reportedly good astronomers.

Is Bobby Kennedy Looking To '68?

Does Bobby Kennedy have his eyes on the Presidency in 1968 when his older brother would be stepping down from a presumed two terms in the White House?

The recent global tour of the Attorney General has given rise to a wave of speculation that he may soon be given a considerably more responsible position in the administration than he has today, perhaps the second step on the road to becoming the second most informed man on governmental affairs by 1968.

Already many of the close observers of activities in Washington are asserting that Robert Kennedy has in a very real sense assumed the position as "assistant President" and that his influence is much greater than that occupied by Sherman Adams during the Eisenhower administration, or even Harry Hopkins during the Roosevelt administration.

There appears to be general agreement that the President has great confidence in the opinion of his younger brother and that he is often the sounding board of the President even if he doesn't make decisions on some matters of national scope. It is also apparently the concensus of most veteran observers that Robert Kennedy is a man of considerable ability along with being a tireless worker in whatever assignment he is given.

As the manager of the Kennedy presidential campaign, both during the battle for the nomination and during the fight with the Republicans, it appears that the younger Kennedy is still handling the primary duties of keeping domestic fences mended for the President. That in itself would afford him invaluable contacts should he launch his own effort for public office at some future date.

The fact that he sits on the National Security Council at the direction of the President has caused little stir, but it perhaps is significant in that normally the Attorney General does not sit with this high level group. It is perhaps also significant that the Attorney General played a leading role in the investigation and subsequent realignment of the Central Intelligence Agency following the fiasco of the Cuban invasion.

Now with his semi-official world tour projecting him prominently into the realm of international affairs so far as the United States government is concerned, there is justification in speculation that he may play a more prominent role in future decisions relating to international relations.

If he does not already occupy that position, there is growing indication that Robert Kennedy may soon be the second most influential individual in the nation's capital, and some day in the future may make a bid to occupy the post now held by his brother, the President.

Space Race No Longer In The Sprint Stage

With Col. Glenn's successful orbit of the earth a matter of history and space experts still going over the data collected from the flight, it is well that the U.S. pause to take stock of its position in the space-age race.

The crash program of the space age which opened with the success of the Soviet's Sputnik I apparently is over. The race is leveling out into a distance contest rather than a sprint. Russia put a man into orbit months before the United States. Now the U.S. has also put a man into orbit. The next big jump appears to be putting a man on the moon.

In the meantime, looking back over the first years of the space age, many achievements have filled the spaces between the big milestones of first successful orbits and manned orbital flights.

The United States followed the Soviet Union both in putting a satellite into orbit and in putting a man into orbital flight. It apparently is behind the Soviet Union in achieving maximum power in its rockets which propell space vehicles. On the other hand, the United States has put many more satellites into orbit than have the Soviets. The United States still has many satellites in orbit sending back information on conditions in space, and over the years this data has given the U.S. considerably more information on space than have the Soviet instruments.

For the most part the satellites orbited by the United States have been considerably more sophisticated than those of the Soviets, and this too indicates a long-range advantage for the U.S. The broad program of space exploration undertaken by by the United States stands in distinct contrast to the rather limited program of exploration undertaken by the Soviets.

It seems reasonable to assume that the United States is now in a position to build on its basic space program foundation with considerably more speed than the Soviets. It also appears reasonable to assume that the next few years will see the United States achieve clear superiority over the Soviets in space achievements.

Non-Money Help That's Provided

By LYNN NISBET

NON-MONEY — Most people think of public welfare in terms of financial aid it renders to indigents. The whole program comes in for vigorous criticism every once in a while for wasting money by paying it to unworthy recipients. Dr. Ellen Winston, state commissioner, told the Wake County Cancer Society the other day that financial aid is by no means the only service her agency renders. Many more people come seeking assistance with problems that do not need money. Among these services are adoptions, parole supervision, and numerous phases of domestic relations.

PICTURE — The little flurry about who authorized — and with what authority — the hanging of a photo portrait of Speaker Joe Hunt in the office of the House of Representatives recalls another more famous instance of a strange protrait appearing on the capitol walls.

For many years a life size portrait of Henry Clay occupied the space between the windows on the south wall of the hall of the House behind the Speaker's stand. Many people asked questions about why it was there, without getting satisfactory answers. Year after year nothing was done about.

During his campaign for Governor in 1940 the late A. J. Maxwell spoke all over North Carolina in criticism of the Clay portrait in a place of honor when there was no similar portrait of Zeb Vance or Charles B. Aycock.

MISPLACED — He said the only connection Henry Clay ever had with Raleigh or North Carolina was when he sat under a tree on capitol square and wrote the famous letter in which he declared he would rather be right than president. With a grin Maxwell suggested he wound up by being neither.

Anyway it wasn't many years after that until the Clay portrait was replaced with one of Zeb Vance, and the old capitol took on more of a North Carolina atmosphere.

It has been the custom for several years to have photo-portraits of the Governor and Lieutenant Governor displayed on the reception desk in the rotunda of the capitol. Walls of the Attorney General's office are filled with pictures of former occupants of that office, living and dead. The highway commission posts photo-portraits of all chairmen and C&D has all former directors. There is ample general precedent for the hanging of a picture of the Speaker of the House in the office, but no specific precedent. It has never been done before. Many people question whether the mere fact that by accident of history he was the last Speaker to preside over the House in the old capitol is sufficient reason for posting his picture. And, anyway, it isn't at all certain he will prove to be the last. It is hoped to have the new State House ready for the 1963 session, but many things might happen to delay its opening. Will the first Speaker to officiate in the new building be entitled to a picture on the wall for that?

EAGLES — The National Audubon Society has recently come up with some literature regarding eagles, — legal and illegal, golden and bald. The bald eagle, our national symbol, has been protected by federal law since 1940, but the golden eagle has had no such protection. As matters stand now, it is legal to kill a golden eagle but illegal to kill a bald eagle.

Further, the Society has started a movement to ask congress to put both birds under federal (and therefore state) protection. There are some good reasons for this. First, both species have become scarce enough to stand in danger of extinction. Secondly, it takes a trained ornithologist to distinguish the species until the two become four years old. Bald eagles do not grow a white head and tail feathers until they are four years old.

North Carolina has both the bald and the golden eagle. This state also had a number of hunters who still think that any kind of hawk-like bird ought to be shot on sight. Perhaps it would be a good idea to have all eagles protected, jus to keep the breed from getting into the whooping crane or passenger pigeon category. It takes a good man, and a good sport, to refrain from pulling the trigger when he is not sure whether the intended victim is legal quarry.

Viet Nam Lost If No Reforms

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration emphasizes the military aid it is giving South Viet Nam. Little is said about the reforms that are supposed to be taking place there.

The military aid is to help the Vietnamese to fight Communist guerrillas. The administration deliberately has not gone into details on this. President Kennedy says it is a sensitive subject.

But it's the reforms, under the dictatorial regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem and his family, which are intended to give the people a reason for fighting communism.

It can be assumed they won't fight much unless they feel they have more to lose than gain under communism. The record indicates they haven't been fighting much.

Reports from South Viet Nam put the Communist guerrilla forces, coming down from Red-held North Viet Nam, at a maximum of 20,000 men. They've been taking over the country although Diem has 150,000 to 175,000 men.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, at the end of his third trip in two months to Pearl Harbor to talk about the military problem in Viet Nam with American officials from there and Washington, said that this country has trained South Vietnamese guerrilla forces which have now been able to "stabilize Communist forces."

That doesn't sound very firm, but it may be understandable since he also said the end is not in sight.

Eight years ago, when he was a senator, President Kennedy very clearly, much more clearly than the Eisenhower administration, saw the problem in what was then Indochina, made up of the two Viet Nams.

The French had held the country since the 19th century and refused to give the people independence or to train either native officers or administrators. The Vietnamese Communists made war on them and were smashing them.

More than $1 billion in American aid wasn't saving the French. In a Senate speech in 1954 Kennedy called on the French to give the Vietnamese independence.

The problem, as he saw it, if Indochina was to be saved, was to give the masses of the people some reason for fighting communism.

He said then: "The hard truth of the matter is; first, that without the wholehearted support of the people—without a reliable and crusading native army with a dependable officer corps, a military victory, even with American support, in that area is difficult."

He was right. The Communists broke the French back and took half the country. North Viet Nam. That finished the French. They got out.

The United States moved in to keep the rest of the country from going Communist by helping the new, anti-Red government of Diem.

Six years ago, while still in the Senate, Kennedy called for big aid to Diem and his people, not just to keep the country non-Communist but for the welfare of the people.

After he became president, Kennedy, like the Eisenhower administration before him, shoved military and economic aid into South Viet Nam. In the past few months he has intensified the military aid.

Republicans have criticized him for not being candid about the nature of this aid. But he said Democratic and Republican leaders have been consulted. He does not want to go into details.

Altogether this country has given Viet Nam more than $2 billion in aid.

Still the living standards of the Vietnamese are extremely low and the Communists continued to make big gains, which was why this country had to step up military help.

Kennedy, who saw the problem clearly in 1954 and 1956, was in office almost a year before his administration announced agreement with Diem to put in broad reforms to the people. Since then practically nothing has been said about them.

Unreal Views Of Job

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Whoever in the Treasury is responsible for the current excitement over expense account deductions, needs to be put on the job of selling nuts and screws or some such objects, so that he will learn what it really takes. After all, the customer does not have to buy the ABC brand if he can get a German brand for less money or a Japanese brand for still less. Even Canadian goods are sold in the American market to the advantage of the Canadians.

Apart from price, salesmanship is a tremendous factor in any business and salesmanship costs money. I often receive letters from businessmen denying that theater tickets in New York, steaks at night clubs and similar expenditures are necessary but it depends upon whether one is selling shoelaces or steel. It is not that the customer wants to be bribed but he likes to feel important enough to deserve the "Diamond Jim Brady" treatment and if the the American salesman cannot give it to him, a British salesman can right here in New York.

Goods being goods, the buyer gives the good fellow a break, it not bothering him at all that the bill is paid by Uncle Sam or John Bull or whoever has money for such purposes. True, yachts are expensive and I do not particularly like the ocean, but many a big deal is consummated while the characters are deep-sea fishing, as they call it.

If that is the way business is done, who can really object? Our task is to sell goods and to provide work for more than 60,000,000 of our citizens and if anybody believes that that can be achieved with no effort, he does not know how to sell anything and make a profit at it.

Before the depression of 1929, nobody had any doubts as to how to sell. Charley Schwab could go into any market and unload American steel and the smoke poured out of the stacks in Pittsburgh and Bethlehem. Instead he moved about the world and American steel competed with any of them and Charley spent money like a wild man, making the customer feel good and swear by Charley's product.

Expense accounts are normal in business everywhere except in the minds of the Treasury officials who probably learned salesmanship at the Harvard Business School. If we try hard enough, we shall, in the next quarter of a century, turn your own market over to some other country. We have been very careless over the years about our products and salesmanship and the Yankee salesman, who could sell anything from the Brooklyn Bridge to a wooden nutmeg, today wonders why a Hongkong tailor can sell suits in New York—the textile market of America.

Something is wrong if we cannot hold our own in our own markets, particularly now when the theoreticians are complicating the problem by depriving a salesman of his expense account. Of course, businessmen will find a way to protect themselves from being impoverished. If nothing else is left to them, they will bootleg their expense accounts as they bootlegged whiskey when Mabel Walker Willebrandt sought to legislate morality. There must be a way out and we are not going to go broke because a student of economic virtue prefers to give our markets to our competitors.

Let us return to realism. An expense account ought not to be a warrant to engage in petty larceny, but there ought to be enough accountancy skill and wisdom to protect the Treasury from losses of revenue and not at the same time ruin business. Of course, the businessman who lives on his expense account is a thief but that is no reason to stand in the way of sales or to give Canadians an advantage over the United States.

We are becoming so good-natured that we shall be cutting our own throats, like those who insist on smoking Cuban cigars no matter how much it helps Fidel Castro. So, we are financing the sale of steel pipe

Then And Now Together

The old and the new, the wise and the impetuous, the there and the here . . .

An old plow — from 1860 — stood in an upstairs room of the Greenville Art Center in the midst of painting by very alive artists competing for entry into the Associated Artists' show.

A multicolor of hues stood immediately behind the old plow. Some iron sculpture was in front. Across, a collage using newspaper. Modern art modern people, flowers, buildings.

The old wood plow, a leftover from the year 1860, just before the ravages of the Civil War, had survived the war and the 200th birthday exhibition of Pitt County held at the art center in December.

There was a notation telling how much could be plowed with it, compared to the advances of the plow of today. The old wood was raw.

The plow stood alone and compared to the present.

How much longer would it be there. . .exposed to the age its owner never dreamed of?

Into the halls of the art center has come an exhibition which will be worthy of view and representative of some of North Carolina's best artists. Some of it, of course, is what you call modern, and some is sort of architectural; there are collages, now popular. And some wonderful contemporary paintings which anyone could identify with.

The exhibition will open Sunday, with the meeting of the Associated Artists of North Carolina. It will remain open for several weeks.

And speaking of North Carolina, did you feel any sense of pride when John Glenn took off — that this is the state which gave life to aviation and the space age?

Somebody up here commented that John Glenn was actually more protected for the type of flight he undertook than were the Wright brothers in their simple machine — just buckled in.

That was in December of 1903.

Other Editors Saying . . . A Community College

(Washington Daily News)

There is a fight to be made. It could be a long fight, and in the end we might lose. But we happen to be among those who had rather make a worthy fight and lose than never to fight at all.

Last week the Washington Chamber of commerce gave credence to a suggestion that here in Beaufort county we ought to make the fight for a two-year community college.

Already there are those who are saying, "Well, it will never happen here," or they are saying, "With East Carolina college only 21 miles away, it is only day dreaming to talk of such a college."

It is almost safe to say that the very ones making such suggestions are the ones who will do nothing toward helping with such a fight.

To say that we do not need such a community college is equivalent to not recognizing facts.

With each passing year it is becoming every more difficult for a boy or a girl to get into college. There are just more youngsters seeking admission than present college facilities can handle. Either we must have more community colleges in North Carolina or else many boys and girls will never have the advantages of a higher education and therefore they will be denied the accompanying opportunities which go with a better education.

We cannot deny facts; we can refuse to face them. We say quite frankly and without apology that a community college here in Beaufort county would be a wonderful asset and a great institution.

What are we going to do about it then? Are we willing to sit back and make a suggestion or an observation and let it die right there?

If a boy or a girl needs individual help, the parents are not only available to give whatever help is possible, but they are happy and anxious to go the full mile to help someone they love.

What do we have to lose if we make the fight and do not realize a two-year community college? It should occur to every right thinking person in Beaufort county today that all we have to lose is the efforts we expend.

If we win, and if we gain a community college, we have gained a facility which will stand us in good stead the rest of our lives.

Is the fight worthwhile? There can be only one answer as we look at the proposition.

If someone interested in this two-year college would come forward and offer the land, we could be well on the way toward making a determined and forward fight.

When we realize that within this decade college enrollments will double—if facilities can be made available — then we will have on our minds and consciences the true challenge before us.

Let us now chart our course, stick to it, and make whatever fight is necessary.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

ARE YOU STUPID?

There is probably not a family in this broad land containing adolescent children where loud and angry arguments are not at least occasionally heard over regulations and morals. Young people, like their elders, tend to accept social customs as they find them. Frequently these social customs do not meet with the approval of parents. Then the fireworks begin.

"You are the strictest parents in town. Why Helen's mother allows her. . ." "Gee, Pop, you and Mom think we should just sit around pious-like saying our prayers." "No, it's just plain stupid to say we have to leave the gang at midnight." "Sure there's some drinking, but why not? Don't your friends take a drink now and then?"

And so it goes. The record is cracked and warped but it has to be played over and over again. Perhaps you remember the indignation you had and the remonstrance you made in your youth against certain rules your parents laid down. Probably it has always been so. It would be interesting if we could go back to the Garden of Eden and hear what Cain and Abel had to say to their parents — and what their parents said to them.

There is some justice, of course, on both sides. Customs change, but there are some of us who believe that in most areas today they are changing for the worse. Also parents have rights and responsibilities, and woe unto the parent who does not face this fact courageously.

Slick Tax-Collecting Maneuver

By ELMER ROESSNER

Mortimer Caplin, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, is planning one of the most ingenious, slickest maneuvers to collect more taxes at no cost to the government.

He is preparing to do this through the simple step of accepting tax returns prepared by certified public accountants without further examination. The plan is under study in several forms, he told the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Proper safeguards would be taken, he said, adding, "Ethical standards with respect to tax return preparation would have to be carefully formulated by professional societies to minimize any possible misunderstandings in the mind of tax practitioners."

FAR-REACHING CONSEQUENCES

The proposal is a great tribute to the rigid standards of CPAs. And Mr. Caplin is about to take shrewd advantage of those standards.

It may be assumed that with the added responsibility offered CPAs there will be added liabilities. A CPA who certifies a dishonest tax return may face stiffer penalties than a service station operator.

However, the threat of great penalties seems superfluous. CPA standards are as high as those of any profession and a CPA who fails to follow those standards is a ruined man.

But Mr. Caplin's plan would impose even greater responsibilities. CPAs would be obligated to be more searching in the preliminary work before accounting, and to keep abreast of changing nuances of tax regulations.

REWARDS

An ordinary tax accountant usually accepts the figures supplied him by his client. A CPA, if Mr. Caplin's plan is to work, would have to verify the figures.

And a CPA would not be encouraged to make his own interpretation of tax rules to the benefit of his client. No misunderstanding in the mind of tax practitioners, Mr. Caplin said.

And thus Mr. Caplin will add thousands of CPAs to his organization, each under considerable compulsion to produce the last penny in tax revenues.

The CPAs will not be unrewarded. If only CPA-prepared tax forms are to be accepted without further examination, individuals will witch from gas station proprietors, insurance agent, driving schools and all other part-time income tax advisors; businesses will switch from bookkeepers and noncertified accounting employees.

TAXPAYER PAYS

This will be true of honest taxpayers no less than the others. The nuisance and cost of an honest error can be great.

Mr. Caplin will get a secondary force at no cost to the government; the CPAs, in return for greater responsibilities, will get more fees.

In the end, the taxpayers will pay. CPAs ordinarily get higher fees than uncertified tax accountants since they must check back the figures. And, in all probability, avoiding 'possible misunderstandings in the mind of tax practitioners," they will eliminate oversights and resolve more borderline cases in favor of the government.

COMMUNITY TV SYSTEMS EXPECTED TO EXPAND

CATV is expected to grow this year. That's the community antenna television industry.

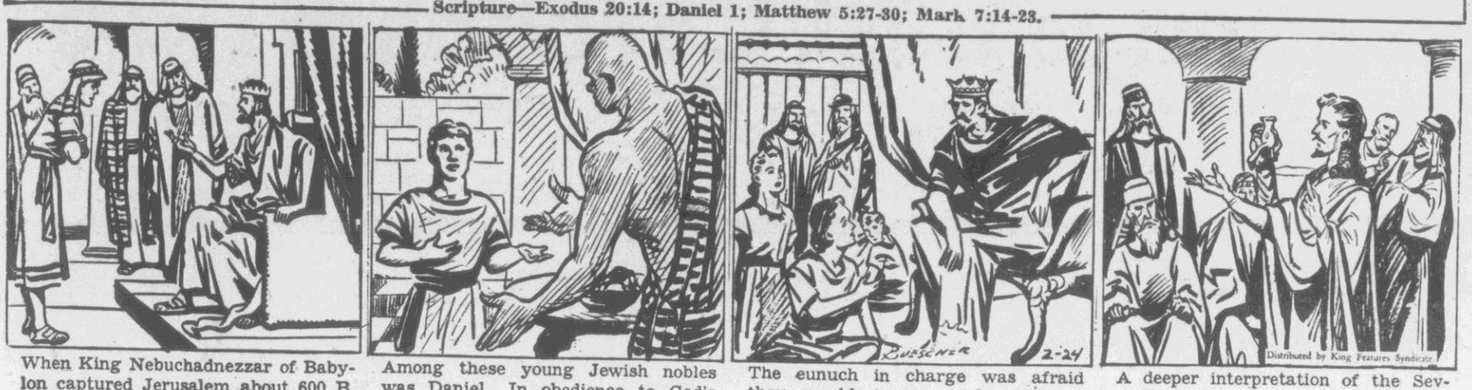
It was born 12 years ago to bring television to communities in valleys which big-city television stations missed. A community antenna on a hilltop could catch signals and send them to TV sets below by cable. Jerrold Electronics, a pioneer in the field, estimates that 1,000 communities have CATV today.

Now many communities receiving one or two stations without it are considering CATV systems are owned by local companies, several investment groups have been financing them, including H. & B. American, National Theatres and Television, Siegler Corp., RKO General, Teleprompter, Jerrold and others. Some of these are interested because CATV systems can also be used for pay-TV.

The Clean Life — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:14; Daniel 1; Matthew 5:27-30; Mark 7:14-23.



When King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon captured Jerusalem about 600 B. C., he took back to his palace some of the young nobility to be trained in his court. He treated them well, assigning them food from the royal table.—Daniel 1:1-5.

Among these young Jewish nobles was Daniel. In obedience to God's commandment against defilement, and to specific Mosaic laws pertaining to food, he requested plain, common food instead of the king's rich fare.—Daniel 1:6-8.

The eunuch in charge was afraid they would appear undernourished and incapable, but at the end of the prescribed three years, Daniel and his three friends who had eaten plain fare outshone all the others.—Daniel 1:9-20.

A deeper interpretation of the Seventh Commandment was given by Christ, when He said that "every one that looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart."—Matthew 5:28.

The Clean Life

PURITY OF CONDUCT IN ALL PHASES OF LIFE

Scripture—Exodus 20:14; Daniel 1; Matthew 5:27-30; Mark 7:14-23.

By N. SPEER JONES

THIS WEEK'S lesson, on the Seventh Commandment, points out the two-fold meaning of the Lord's law, "Thou shalt not commit adultery"—the literal and the figurative.

It might be well to begin with some definitions. In the Bible, adultery generally means the unfaithfulness of a husband or wife in sexual relationships. Fornication refers to all forms of sex relationship outside marriage. Lust, in English, originally meant any kind of strong desire, good or bad. The Biblical meaning of the word which we translate "lust" means chiefly evil and uncontrollable desire. In current usage usually lust means evil desire related to sex.

The many references in the New Testament to purity in sexual relationships give indication of the growing moral decadence of the Roman Empire, a decadence which contributed greatly to its fall.

It well behooves us to consider some of our own habits in this respect. The rocketing increase in divorce rates; the frightening ascendancy of crime, especially among our young people; the shocking statistics on illegitimate births; the moral laxity of many of our best sellers; even the universal striving to "relax" and work less for more money—all these are grave indications of a possible parallel with the late Roman days and a heralding of another long Dark Age. As people seek less responsibility and fewer channels of giving, they are more willing to let others decide things and control them. The result is a feudal caste system.

Campbell Morgan (in "Peloubet's Select Notes," p. 66) points out that adultery is a sin against the individual (physically and spiritually), against the family (divorce harming children incalculably), against society and against the nation, both of which depend on the family unit.

Jesus' interpretation of His Father's Seventh Commandment (Matt. 5:27-30) has been called the most drastic ethical teaching in history.

How many of us read in the papers all the lurid details of a sticky divorce case or love slaying?

Christ says this vicarious experience of sin is a sin in itself; adultery of the mind and heart is like physical adultery in its wrongness. This is the figurative meaning of the commandment.

The gist of verses 29 and 30 of Matthew 5 is that our most important function in this life is to prepare ourselves for eternity; nothing must be allowed to stand in the way of this objective.

The citations from Daniel and Mark illustrate specifically the difference in Old and New Testament emphasis on one phase of this commandment for clean living.

Daniel demonstrates superior independence and strength of will in sticking to the letter of the Mosaic laws about purity of food, requesting simple fare instead of the rich food of the king.

In the passage from Mark, Christ does not criticize Daniel's zeal in this matter. He does point out, however, that the real defilement of man's soul does not depend literally on the specific foods he eats, but, figuratively, on the thoughts that he digests, for they are his nourishment for good or for bad.

Juliet, Sinatra Called It Off

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dancer Juliet Prowse won't be the third Mrs. Frank Sinatra.

She and the singer abruptly broke off their engagement Thursday night, blaming career trouble.

Sinatra and Miss Prowse announced six weeks ago that they planned to marry. They hadn't gotten around to setting the date, although April and June had been mentioned.

The break came suddenly. A terse announcement said: "A conflict of career interests has led us to make this decision jointly. We both feel it is better to make it now rather than later."

A publicity spokesman added: "Neither will be available for comment. There will be no amplification."

Sinatra, 46, long a bachelor, a millionaire with a string of gorgeous girls, surprised even many close friends when he announced he planned to marry the leggy dancer from South Africa.

Miss Prowse, 25, never married before and new in Hollywood, was much less famous than some of Sinatra's dates and less flashy than others.

Sinatra's two previous marriages — to childhood sweetheart Nancy Barbato and actress Ava Gardner—also were plagued with career troubles. His skyrocketing fame as a crooner rocked the first, and Miss Gardner's prominence for a while outstripped his own.

Gold Fever May Be Rising Again

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—Nome, a fabled spot in the Alaska gold rush of '98, may be hit by the gold fever again. The state disclosed Thursday prospectors are eyeing Norton Sound, off Nome.

State Lands Director Roscoe Bell said the Shell Oil Co. and eight individuals have filed applications for mineral prospecting permits on 32,318 acres of shallow bottomland in the sound.

Gov. William A. Egan cautioned against overoptimism, but said Nome's offshore area "may be every bit as rich as the beach and inland area which made Nome famous at the turn of the century."

An estimated $80 to $100 million in placer gold was taken from the black sands of three Nome beach areas then.

Event Not Lost On Boat Owners

ASBURY PARK N.J. (AP)—Paint pots were out at the ninth annual Jersey Coast Boat Show Thursday as boat owners took note of astronaut John H. Glenn's space flight.

Old names, like Helen M. were being discarded and the crafts rechristened with such titles as: What now, Nikita: Orbit four. Friendship 7.

Tagless Drivers Will Be Fined

BETHEL—Mayor Joe Butterworth announced today that all Bethel residents owning automobiles and not having obtained the required city tags will be subject to a citation, resulting in a $10 fine.

Deadline for the city tags was Feb. 15. Tags may still be obtained at the Town Hall in Bethel and the cost of the tags is $1.

'The Rebel' Features Interviews

Interviews with Edward R. Murrow, Director of the U. S. Information Agency, and Hodding Carter, publisher of the Delta Democrat-Times, Greenville, Miss., are featured in the Winter, 1962, edition of The Rebel, literary magazine sponsored by the East Carolina College Student Government Association.

Murrow's comments in his interview with staff members of the student magazine deal with the means by which the USIA endeavors to tell the American story abroad by acquainting people with the way of life in the United States, the complex system of government here, American foreign policy, the high standard of living in this country, and the generosity of the American people.

Discussing the presentation of "the American legend or creed" to other countries, Murrow states, "I think our major problem has been in conveying to people abroad that we do have a diverse pluralistic society, one that is not always intelligible in its constitutional construction even to more literate persons in western Europe. But I think we have our basic success by doing what every nation has done in time of crisis: by going back to its rootholes, by making it clear that we are a revolutionary people, that we are not allergic to change, that we have no desire to sanctify the status quo, that we are a nation of change, that we recognize imperfections and constantly strive to improve them, and that we want to improve the conditions under which we live."

A noted Southern liberal and Pulitzer Prize winner, Carter discusses conditions in the South today, particularly the impact of the 1954 Supreme Court Decision.

"In terms of widespread urban acceptance of token integration only," he told The Rebel, "it might be said that the Southern 'core of resistance' has been dented, if not broken; but in the small town and rural areas of the deep South there has been little softening of the white will to resist by almost any means."

Asked whether a pattern of the future of the South is yet discernible, he stated, "I am not worried about the South's future—if there is going to be any future for anyone of us at all. The pattern is clear: increased industrialism, large scale mechanized agriculture with more and more diversification, a desertion of the countryside and growth of the larger towns and cities, and a continuing radical shift of the center of Negro population from South to somewhere in the Mid-west. I think most, if not all of these trends, will be helpful."

Contents of the winter issue of The Rebel include also short stories by Jim Rockey, Omak, Washington; Richard Taylor, Kamuela, Hawaii; and Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the faculty; an essay by Editor Junius D. Grimes III, Washington, N. C.; and poems by Sarah Hansen, New Bern; Dr. Utterback; G. Carroll Norwood, Black Mountain; Betsy Orr, Robbinsville; and Joyce Evans, Robersonville.

A special section of the magazine is devoted to figure drawings by student artists at the college. Contributors are Ann Marshburn, Washington, N. C.; Betsy Ross, Edenton; Robert Schmitz, Erie, Pa.; and Patricia Waff, Edenton.

The cover design of The Rebel is by Alvin S. Dunkle of St. Petersburg, Florida. Lawrence M. Blizard of Whiteville contributed sketches illustrating stories and poems.

Book reviews in the winter issue are by Sue Ellen Hunsucker, Winterville; Jane Teal, Raleigh; Milton G. Crocker, Greenville; Robert C. Averette, Fayetteville; and Dr. J. A. Withey and Dr. Francis Adams of the faculty.

Reflecting On SPORTS

By George Bryant

We got this bit of information in the mail today from the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission. As the matter hits directly at one of the most hunted birds in the area during the season, we thought that many of the area hunters might be interested.

"Hunting privileges, like freedom, are something we have to continually fight for. Latest attempt to infringe on a shotgunner's prerogative of blowing holes in the sky is a bill introduced to Congress that says, '. . . the Secretary (of the Interior) shall not allow the hunting, taking, capturing, killing, possession, sale, purchase, shipment, transportation, carriage or export at any time of the mourning dove!

"Now, there's one to chew on for a while. This classic bit of Congressional crud is contained in a bill, H. R. 9882, introduced by Representative Karth of Minnesota.

"To be completely honest in behalf of the Honorable Mr. Karth, it should be reported that he introduced this little number 'by request.' Even he, coming from a section of the country where the mourning dove is considered a song bird, must have experienced a slight sensation of wet feathers in his mouth when he tossed this masterpiece of balderdash into the congressional mill.

"The meaning of the bill is as clear and simple as eleven descriptive verbs can make it: no more hunting for the most shot-at and most often missed game bird in North America.

"Again in Mr. Karth's defense, it should be pointed out that he comes from Ramsey County, Minnesota, where the state capital is located. Located also in that county is a Mr. Guy Atherton who has been a foremost advocator of mourning dove protection.

"H. R. 9882 has been referred to the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, of which North Carolina's Congressman Herbert Bonner is chairman. Clyde Patton, Executive Director of the Wildlife Resources Commission, has asked Bonner for permission to be heard when the bill comes up for subcommittee hearing, and this permission has been granted. It is doubtful that H. R. 9882 will get beyond the committee hearing stage, but if you are interested in continued dove shooting, it might be a good idea to let your congressman and senator know your thinking on the matter.

"Folks in northern states don't get any dove hunting simply because all the while doves are in Yankee territory they are nesting, and they head south as soon as nesting is completed. Any dove shooting would have to be done while the birds are still on the nests, and that is not good conversation. Northern hunters envy us our good dove shooting, but few would pull the dog-in-the-manger bit far enough to want us to have a closed season foisted on us."

Now, after reading all of that with the added spice, we want to add our two-cents worth. We feel like the writer for the Wildlife Resources Commission, that H. R. 9882 won't get beyond the committee hearing. However, we felt like the hunters of this area would like to know what could happen to the fine fall sport of shooting doves.

Catawba Dumps East Carolina 81-76

Pirates Show Skills To Junior Orphanage

By CHARLES VAUGHAN
Reflector Sports Writer

LEXINGTON — Coach Earl Smith took the East Carolina Pirates to the gym of the Junior Order Orphanage Home to practice early Wednesday night. The team received a warm reception as most of the younger boys at the home turned out to watch the Pirates practice.

The Bucs, led by Benny Bowes, Bill Otte, and Lacy West showed the orphanage boys how to "dunk" the ball. Coach Smith also took the time to introduce several of the Pirates to the boys.

Following the practice session, Smith and players traveled to the Lexington YMCA to watch the Elon-Pfeiffer and the Lenoir Rhyne-High Point contests. The Bucs seemed well pleased with the results of both contests. Unofficially, the Pirates moved up to the fourth spot of NAIA competition as a result of top seeded Lenoir Rhyne's loss.

After watching the openers Wednesday night Smith and the Pirates turned their attention to their Thursday night game. The boys apparently knew that they had their work cut out for them. They all agreed with Coach Smith's remarks, "Well, boys, the first step in staying on top is to whip Catawba."

As it neared game time last night, the Pirates seemed eager to begin. They began to take the right attitude towards the importance of their first game. Smith told the team, "We have got to have this one." However, the Bucs found the going rough as they lost to Catawba 81-76.

After the game Coach Smith commented, "We did not run our offense the first half. You have got to play a whole game and not just a half."

During the second half when East Carolina began to pick up steam they did not get into a one and one foul shot situation until the last 20 seconds of the contest. Catawba had only four fouls called on them in the second stanza until the last minute.

However, Coach Smith did note that the team still has a chance to play in the NAIA tournament if Western Carolina or Elon wins the Carolinas tourney.

LEXINGTON — Coach Earl Smith and the East Carolina Pirates suffered their third loss of the year to Catawba last night 81-76. However, East Carolina, beaten twice by the Indians during the regular season, fought desperately for the victory.

The Bucs managed to match the Indians basket for basket during the first two minutes of the contest. However, behind the sharp-shooting of Al Johnson, Catawba surged out in front of the Pirates 33-24.

For the remaining six minutes of the first half, the Indians continued to increase their lead. Co-Captain Charlie Lewis scored seven points for the fading Pirates in the last three minutes of the opening stanza, but Catawba increased their advantage to 46-33 at the end of the half.

Pirates At Lead

East Carolina returned to the court in the second half to give Catawba a lot to worry about. Behind Lewis and Billy Brogden, the Pirates rallied to cut the Indians' lead to three points with six minutes left on the clock. The Pirates could not overtake the high scoring Indians, however, as Catawba went on for the win.

The Pirates were called for 26 fouls, while Catawba was set back with only 16. The Bucs lost three starters to personal fouls. The Indians had only five fouls called on them the second half compared to 15 for the Bucs.

Indians Take Lead

The Catawba Indians scored the first two points of the contest last night and managed to maintain their advantage for the first seven minutes of the game. Brogden, East Carolina's talented freshman, scored five straight points to send the Bucs ahead 13-12 with 13 minutes remaining in the half. The lead changed hands eight times in the next three minutes with Catawba emerging on top 22-20.

Johnson, Catawba's sophomore from Roanoke, Va., hit the nets for two long baskets to send the Indians ahead 28-22 with eight minutes left on the clock. Catawba went on to increase their lead over the Bucs to 46-33 at the close of the half.

When the two teams returned to the court for the second half East Carolina began to outpace Catawba. After eight minutes had elapsed in the second stanza, the Pirates had cut the Indians lead to 11 points. Lacy West then scored four points for the Bucs to close the gap to seven points. However, once again Catawba increased their lead to 11 points behind the accurate shooting of Johnson.

Final Effort

Co-Captain Lewis then led the Pirates in a final effort to take control of the contest. Lewis and Richie Williams teamed together to narrow Catawba's lead to 66-60 with eight minutes left on the clock. With seven minutes remaining Lewis hit on a long push shot to pull the Bucs within four points of the tiring Indians.

Co-Captain Benny Bowes then hit on a free throw to boost East Carolina within three points of Catawba. However, the fighting Pirates could not overcome the Indians as Catawba went on to victory 81-76.

Even though East Carolina failed to "bring home the bacon," Greenville and the college can be proud of Coach Earl Smith and his fighting Bucs. As one spectator remarked, "That team just doesn't know when to give up . . . they are a great ballclub."

Leading the Bucs in their losing effort was Lewis with 10 field goals and 10 out of 11 free throws for a total of 30 points. Lewis scored 19 of his points in the second half. Also in double figures for East Carolina was Brogden with 13 points. West and Bowes scored nine points each for the Pirates and led the team in rebounds.

Johnson and Bucky Pope led the scoring for the Catawba Indians with 27 and 22 points respectively. Their teammate, Jim Sessoms scored 10 points in the Indian victory.

Wrestling Nets About $1,300

W. C. Scales Jr., chairman of the James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium Fund, announced today that the wrestling match brought in about $1,300 after expenses were paid.

Scales estimated that 2,200 persons attended the event and noted that there is a possibility of holding another wrestling match in about six weeks. However, another match is not definite at this time.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina College, asked the crowd during one of the intermissions if they would like to have another match. The indications were that they would if applause and noise can be counted as a yes answer.

Terps Leading Swim Tourney

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —Maryland took the team lead in first events of the Atlantic Coast Conference swimming and diving championships, but North Carolina was only a step behind.

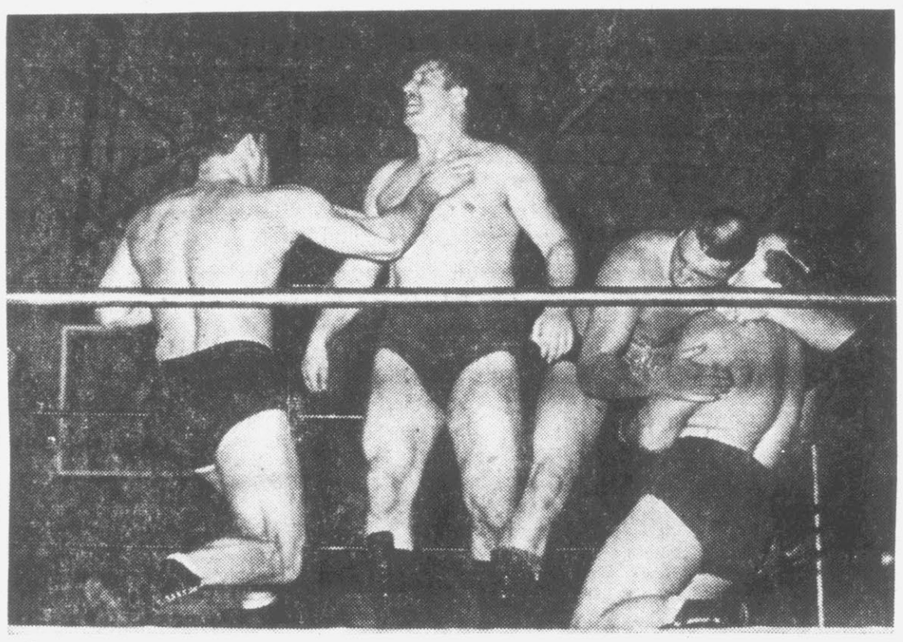
The conference meet continues today with trials in the afternoon and finals tonight in seven events. More activity Saturday afternoon and night will bring it to an end.

Maryland had 18 points, and North Carolina 17 at the conclusion of the 1,500 meter free style and the 200-yard individual medley Thursday night. North Carolina State had 7. The three schools have been rated co-favorites.

Hugh Lupien of Maryland captured the 1,500 meter free style with a time of 19:27.0. Frank Lea of North Carolina was second.

The 200-yard individual medley was won by Pete Fogarasy of N. C. State. His time was 2:08.1. Hugh Roddin of Maryland, who posted a 2:08 time for the event during the regular season, came in second.

Finals will be held tonight in the 200-yard butterfly, 50 yard freestyle, 200-yard backstroke, 200-yard freestyle, low board diving and 400 yard freestyle.



FREE FOR ALL . . . Both members of both teams in the tag match began fighting it out despite the objections of the referee in last night's wrestling match at East Carolina. In the ring in addition to the referee are Sir Alan Garfield, Tinker Todd, Guy LaRose and Young Bill Dromo. The officials ruled the match a tie. In the girl's event The Fabrlous Moola, in place of Rita Cortez, defeated Carol Little. Poncho Villa won the main event over Lenny Montana after winning two out of three hard fought falls.

CC Tourney Moves Into Semifinals

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP)—The uprising of the underdogs finally was put down in the Carolinas Conference basketball tournament which moves into the semifinals tonight with High Point meeting Elon at 7:30 and Western Carolina taking on Catawba at 9:15.

For a while Thursday night it appeared that Western Carolina would be the third seeded team to go down to defeat in the opening round. But coach Jim Gudger's Catamounts came up with a 47-point last half to wallop Appalachian 83-62.

The Cats are second seeded and the only remaining member of the top three still in contention. Third ranked East Carolina, playing its last game in the conference before pulling out to go independent, was bumped by Catawba 81-76 in Thursday's opening game.

Top-seeded Lenoir Rhyne was whipped by High Point and Elon, ranked fourth, had to play an overtime period before ousting Pfeiffer in the initial first round games Wednesday.

Over the regular season stretch Western Carolina had a 12-6 conference record, splitting with Catawba, which had an 11-9 record.

High Point, which tied Catawba for fifth place, divided its games with Elon, which held fourth place on a 9-7 record.

Western Carolina galloped into a 28-19 lead over Appalachian after 13 minutes before the Apps cracked through the zone defense with a late flurry of baskets that cut the lead to 36-33 at the half.

But the Catamounts stepped on the gas and their fast break quickly put daylight between them and the struggling Mountaineers who found themselves down 57-41 early in the second half.

VIP Ends Season Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Virginia Tech's streaking basketball team closes out its regular season tonight with Coach Chuck Noe nervously recalling the way the campaign began for his boys three months ago.

The sad recollection of things past comes naturally to Noe, for tonight's Tech foe at Blacksburg — George Washington — is the same team that whipped the Techmen, 80-74, in the season opener Dec. 1.

Furthermore, as Tech prepared to go out in quest of its 36th consecutive home - court triumph, there was the memory that it was GW which handed the Techmen their last home defeat — on Feb. 7, 1958.

"Those guys are always ready for us," says Noe, "and I don't care what their record is, they've got real fine personnel. They can shoot, they can handle the ball, and they're mean under the boards."

George Washington goes into tonight's scrap in Tech's new Coliseum with an 8-13 over-all record and a 6-6 conference mark. Tech, by contrast, is 16-5 against all comers and No. 2 in the league with an 8-3 record.

Going into the game, Tech has a seven-game winning string and since its early-season misfortunes has won 16 of 18 starts, including a triumph at Blacksburg over West Virginia's regular season conference champions.

The Tech-GW game is the only one scheduled for Southern Conference teams tonight. No teams played Thursday night.

Since the minor league meetings in Tampa, the Chicago White Sox have added nine players to their 1962 roster. In the deals, three veterans replaced five other veterans who were with the Pale Hose in 1961.

CHAPTER 35

Emilio Largo's team was moving forward and at a speed that surprised James Bond until he saw the small whirring propellers on the backs of the enemy.

Largo's men were wearing compressed-air speed packs, bulky cylinders strapped between the twin cylinders of their aqualungs, that operated small screws.

Combined with the trudge of the fins, this gave them at least double normal swimming speed in open water, but here, among the broken coral, and slowed by the maneuvering of the sled preceded by the electric Chariot, the team was perhaps only a knot faster than Bond's group, now thrashing their way forward to an interception point that was rapidly escaping them.

And there were the hell of a lot of the enemy. Bond stopped counting after twelve. And most of them carried underwater guns with extra spears in quivers strapped to their legs. The odds were bad. If only he could get within spear range before the alarm was given.

Thirty yards, twenty. Bond glanced behind him. There were six of his men almost at arm's length; the rest straggled out in a crooked line. Still the masks of Largo's men pointed forward. Still they hadn't seen the black shapes making for them through the coral.

But now, when Bond was level with Largo's rear guard, the moon threw his shadow forward across a pale patch of sand and one man, then another, glanced quickly round.

Bond got a foot against a lump of coral and, with this to give him impetus, flung himself forward. The man had no time to defend himself. Bond's spear caught him in the side and hurled him against the next man in line. Bond bored on into the mass of naked men now scattering in all directions, with their jet packs accelerated.

A spear ripped into the rubber protecting Bond's stomach and Bond felt pain and wetness that might be blood or sea water. He dodged another flash of metal and a gun butt hit him hard on the head, but with most of its force spent against the cushion of water. It knocked him silly and he clung for a moment to a coral outcropping.

The battleground had now shifted to a wide expanse of clear water fringed with broken coral. On the far side of this, Bond saw the grounded sled laden with something long and bulky with a rubber covering, the silver torpedo of the Chariot, and a close group of men that included the unmistakable, oversize figure of Largo.

Now Bond kept well in the forest of coral and began his stalk at Largo. On the bottom, among the coral clumps, there were several spears from the underwater guns. Bond picked up two.

With frightening suddenness, out of the mists to Bond's right, the gleaming torpedo shape of the electric Chariot shot into the arena. Largo sat astride it in the saddle. He was bent down behind the small perspex shield to get extra speed and his left hand held two of the Manta spears pointing forward while he controlled the single joystick with his right.

As he appeared, the two guards dropped their guns on the sand and help up the coupling of the sled. Largo slowed down and drifted up to them. One man caught the rudder and wrestled to pull the Chariot backward toward the couplings. They were going to get out! Largo was going to take the bomb out through the reef and drop it in deep water or bury it! The same thing would be done with the second bomb in the Disco.

With the evidence gone, Largo would say that he had been ambushed by rival treasure hunters. How was he to know they came from a United States submarine? His men had fought back with their shark guns, but only because they had been attacked first. Once again the treasure-hunt cover would hide everything!

The men were still wrestling with the coupling. Largo was looking back anxiously. Bond measured the distance and flung himself forward with a great kick against the coral.

Largo turned in time to fling up an arm and parry Bond's stab with his right-hand spear and Bond's stab with the left rattled harmlessly off the aqualung cylinders on Largo's back. Bond drove on head first, his hands outstretched for the air tube in Largo's mouth.

Largo's hands flashed to protect himself, dropping his two spears and jerking back the joystick he had been holding in his right. The Chariot surged forward away from the two guards and shot obliquely upward toward the surface while the two bodies clung and struggled on its back.

It was impossible to fight scientifically. Both men tore vaguely at each other while their teeth clenched desperately on the rubber mouthpieces that were their lifelines, but Largo had a firm grip on the Chariot between his knees while Bond had to use one hand to hang on to Largo's equipment to prevent himself from being thrown.

Again and again Largo's elbow crashed into Bond's face while Bond dodged from side to side to take the blows on the mouth and not on the precious glass of his mask. At the same time Bond hammered with his free hand at his only target, Largo's kidneys, beneath the brown square of flesh that was all he could reach.

The Chariot broke surface fifty yards down the wide channel leading to the open sea and tore crazily on, its nose, tilted by Bond's weight over the tail, sticking at forty-five degrees out of the water.

Now Bond was half in the wash, and it would only be minutes before Largo managed to twiest and get both hands to him. Bond made up his mind. He let go of Largo's aqualung and, clutching the stern of the torpedo between his legs, slid back until he felt the top of the rudder at his back. Now, if he could avoid the screw!

He reached one hand down between his legs, got a firm grip on the rudder, and heaved himself backward and off the machine. Now his face, inches away from the whirring propeller, was buffeted by the turbulence, but he dragged hard downward and felt the stern coming with him. Soon the damned thing would be almost upright. Bond wrenched the blade of the rudder sideways in a right-angled turn and then, his arms almost torn out of their sockets by the strain, let go. Above and in front of him, as the torpedo veered right-handed, Largo's body, thrown by the sharp turn and the change of balance, crashed into the water, twisted quickly over and faced downward, the mask searching for Bond.

Bond was beat, utterly defeated by exhaustion. Now there was nothing for him but to get away and somehow stay alive. The bomb was immobilized, the Chariot gone, careering in circles over the sea. Largo was finished. Bond summoned the remains of his strength and sluggishly dived down toward his last hope, a refuge among the coral.

Almost lazily, Largo, his strength unimpaired, came down after him, swimming in a giant, easy crawl. Bond swerved in among the coral heads. A white sand passage showed up and he followed it; hen there was a fork.

Bond, trusting to the small extra protection of his rubber suit, followed the narrower lane between the sharp clumps. But now a black shadow was above him, following him. Largo had not bothered to get into the channel. He was swimming above the coral, looking down, watching Bond, biding his time. Bond looked up. There was a gleam of teeth round the mouthpiece. Largo knew he had got him. Bond flexed his fingers to get more life into them. How could he hope to defeat those great hands, those hands that were machine tools?

And now the narrow passage was widening. There was the glint of a sandy channel ahead. There was no room for Bond to turn round. He could only swim on into the open trap. Bond stopped and stood. It was the only thing to do. Largo had him like a rat in a trap. But at least Largo would have to come in and get him.

Bond's fate (and Domino Vitali's) will be decided as the story comes to a conclusion here tomorrow.

Dr. Batten Described Training Given Glenn

Dr. James W. Batten, associate professor of education at East Carolina College, speaking to members of the college Future Business Leaders of America Tuesday evening, Feb. 20, told his audience he trained the astronauts, including Lt. Col. John H. Glenn, Jr., in recognition of celestial mechanics and celestial bodies.

Scheduled on the date of Glenn's epic voyage into space, the talk was of particular interest and significance to those present.

Dr. Batten, who holds a doctorate from the University of N. C. in earth and space science, has played an important part in the long process of training the United States' seven astronauts. He was selected as part of a vast force chosen by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Dr. Batten performed his task of teaching at the Morehead Planetarium in Chapel Hill.

"In the capsule," he said, "the astronaut is traveling east and facing west. He must be able to locate his position every second of the trip by recognition of celestial bodies."

Pointing out the fast pace in which we live, Dr. Batten brought to the attention of his audience that within the past sixty years our country has climbed from the discovery of the Wright Brothers' plane to Glenn's orbital flight.

Mary Helen Mumford of Kinston, president of FBLA at East Carolina, an organization of business majors and minors, presided during the meeting.

ECC Drill Team To Competition

The Honor Drill Team of East Carolina College, commanded by Cadet Major Edward Farrell of Durham, and assisted by Cadet First Lt. William Trower, is in preparation for the forthcoming Area C-2 Drill Competition to be held at A & T College in Greensboro March 3. This is an annual competition involving the drill teams of all the AF ROTC Detachments in this area.

Registration will begin that morning and the competition will begin at three o'clock that afternoon. Among the drill teams with which East Carolina will be competing are N. C. State, Duke, Carolina, and the University of Virginia.

The competition will consist of two parts; the first part being regular movements, and the second part being the fancy or "monkey" drill. The monkey drill movements are usually original and intricate movements which test a team's ability to execute difficult movements in unison.

Last year the competition was held on the campus of East Carolina College in Wright Auditorium, and East Carolina's Honor Drill Team won third place in the overall judging.

U. S. Battle Group Backs Up Bob Kennedy's Pledge

BERLIN (AP) — American troops rushed through the streets of West Berlin today in a dramatic demonstration of Robert F. Kennedy's pledge that the United States would defend this city against Communist as it would New York or Chicago.

About 1,500 men of the 2nd Battle Group, 6th Infantry, tumbled from their bunks before dawn to take up battle positions in the American sector of the divided city. Grabbing weapons, the troops set up machine gun posts at crossroads and dug in antitank positions while infantry paroled the dark streets.

The U.S. Army said the two-hour practice alert, over before breakfast, was designed "to evaluate the unit's ability to react to various situations" and called it routine. But it was significantly timed with the U.S. attorney general's visit here and his assurance to West Berliners that "the full strength of American power" will protect their vital links with the West against Communist encroachment.

Kennedy and his wife, Ethel, received a tumultuous reception as they darted around West Berlin on the first day of their visit Thursday. In speech after speech, Kennedy reaffirmed U.S. commitments to protect the Communist-encircled city and pledged the United States to the "peaceful but persistent purpose that Germans shall once again find themselves reunited."

Before a crowd of 180,000 at West Berlin's City Hall, Kennedy declared Berlin will not be attacked because "an armed attack on West Berlin is the same thing as an armed attack on Chicago, New York, London or Paris. You are our brothers and we will stand by you."

Police estimated a half million West Berliners turned out despite cold wintry weather to cheer the attorney general. Kennedy's younger brother, Edward, also on tour, flew here to see him but was almost overlooked by the huge crowds greeting the attorney general.

Speaking to an overflow audience at West Berlin's Free University he drew applause when he asserted that the trend in the United States is not conservative or reactionary, but toward social welfare.

"Far from being a workers' paradise," he said, "communism has become the most effective machine ever devised for the exploitation of the working classes."

The attorney general also alluded to Soviet attempts to preempt space in Berlin's vital air corridors to the West.

"We have stood in the past—and we will stand in the future—for uncontrolled access to and from Berlin," Kennedy said. "We will permit no interference with this access, as we have recently demonstrated with regard to the air corridors."

Kennedy also asserted that the United States was firmly committed to full freedom for West Berliners; continuation of West Berlin's ties with West Germany and the Free World; maintenance of Allied forces in West Berlin "as long as you desire"; and "an active and viable West Berlin."

"Berlin will not merely exist," he said. "It will grow and prosper."

Fire Damage To Tenant House

BETHEL—The Bethel Fire Department answered a call at 8:10 a.m. Sunday to go to the W. C. Whitehurst "Old Glory" farm where a vacant tenant house was on fire.

Average natural gas wells today are over 4,000 feet deep.

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Marilyn Monroe, a three-time loser in the field of matrimony, says she hasn't given up trying.

"I'm keeping my eyes open," the movie star told a packed news conference Thursday.

The actress, here on vacation, said she was happy that her latest ex-spouse, Arthur Miller, Pulitzer prize-winning playwright, had remarried.

"I learned a lot from him and I'm glad," she said. "I wish him the best." Miller married an Austrian-born photographer, Ingeborg Morath, last weekend.

Asked about recurring rumors that she might rewed Joe DiMaggio, all-time baseball great, whom she saw this week in Florida, Miss Monroe shook her head.

"We tried that once," she said.

She commented that even though her three previous marriages had failed, "I haven't given up."

Asked if she had anyone in mind, she merely said "I'm keeping my eyes open."

"Which of your marriages were the happiest?" one reporter asked.

"The last two," she said.

Miss Monroe was married at 16 to a merchant seaman, Jim Dougherty. The union lasted two years.

Miss Monroe kept newsmen waiting nearly an hour Thursday before showing up in a tight lime-green silk jersey dress. She looked tired and slightly red-eyed, but posed for pictures and readily parried questions.

"What do you like best in a man?"

"Masculinity."

"What don't you like about a man?"

"Nothing I can think of."

TALLY OF GIVING

CINCINNATI (AP) — More than $27 million was contributed last year by the nation's 3,200,000 United Presbyterians to the general mission of the church, almost a 6 per cent increase over the previous year, it was reported here.

Bonner Says Never To Take Vote For Granted

BETHEL—Speaking on the world's problems, U. S. Congressman Herbert Bonner told over 400 Beta Club members here today to "never take for granted the vote you have as a citizen of the United States."

"With this vote you have some control of your destiny and you shape your country by the men you put in office," Bonner said. Answering the question "What can I do for my country?", Bonner advised students to "stay informed and well informed, vote carefully when the opportunity is offered, be concerned with those around you and with this you can tackle any job."

Bonner was principal speaker at the Northeastern District Beta Club Convention being held at Bethel High School today. He spoke about 11 o'clock this morning.

Bringing in the idea of education, Bonner pointed out that the strong are not the only ones who succeed. The weak can also succeed if they will only apply their minds in education, he said. He noted that life does not stop changing "just because we would like for it to." He added that we have our own frontier and our prairies are the moon, stars and planets.

Bonner commented that the man-in-space effort was a result of those willing to learn.

Early in his speech, he asked his audience of young people, What is the purpose of our being here? How do you go about preparing a girl or boy for life successfully? What is right and what is wrong? He said time is moving on and the big responsibility today is to bring others into the world and to help them—the newcomers—to go about solving these questions on their own.

Don Dewar of Bethel High School is president of the district club and presided this morning.

According to officials of the Greenville Merchants Association, the George Washington birthday sales promotion program held throughout the city yesterday was successful.

Yesterday's event was the second annual Washington Birthday celebration held by local erchants, but was the first time the sales promotion was sponsored by the Merchants Association.

Perhaps Really Not Hardboiled

TURNERS FALLS, Mass. (AP) — Hard-boiled? Perhaps young America isn't quite what some dramatists have pictured it.

When principal George F. Wrightson permitted the "twist" at a Turners Falls High School dance, the school newspaper said the student body had "received one of the greatest compliments ever given to it by an adult."

The page one editorial said: "The 'twist' is a dance that has caused much controversy, and we must realize that it was no small thing for Mr. Wrightson to allow us to do this dance.

"It showed trust, understanding and a type of pride on his part. "The student body thanks him for this honor showed us."

Jealousy Among Zoo's Gorillas

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Carrol Soo-Hoo of Berkeley, a technician at Mare Island Naval Shipyard, has two hobbies: Making money in the stock market and using the profits to buy animals for Fleishhacker Zoo here.

Recently he bought a 3-year-old female gorilla, Pogo, for the zoo. But Missus, the zoo's 6-year-old female gorilla, throws a tantrum if her boy friend, Bwana, 4, even looks at Pogo.

"So we're going to get Pogo a mate and Mr. Soo-Hoo will pay for him," said a representative of the San Francisco Zoological Society.

Gorillas cost about $5,000.

Howell Speaks At Civitan Meet

The relationship between the United Nations and the fostering of brotherhood among the peoples of the world was the theme of an address Thursday by Dr. John Howell, East Carolina College social studies professor, to the Greenville Civitan Club.

Dr. Howell noted that the idea of the individual worth of man began as a philosophy developed by the Stoics of ancient Greece. The international approach to brotherhood began with the formation of the United Nations.

The speaker outlined the many good works of the UN, "which are not generally publicized, but contribute a great deal to the growth of international brotherhood."

Club President Herbert Wilkerson presided at last night's meeting, and after several announcements concerning Civitan affairs called for recognition of the following persons who were present as guests of the club: Carl Yorks, Ross Malloy, the Rev. C. E. Manning and "Bud" Wilson.

Skyscraper May End Privacy

LONDON (AP)—The privacy of Buckingham Palace was described Thursday to be threatened by possible skyscraper snooping from a big hotel now going up on London's Park Lane.

The complaint was aired in the House of Lords during a debate on the merits of the new towers springing up in profusion over London's skyline.

Lord Brabazon of Tara singled out the new Hilton Hotel as a "grave disfigurement." He said, "I think when you look down from the 27th story you will be looking very intimately down into the backyard of Buckingham Palace."

Government spokesman Earl Jellicoe said the trend toward high buildings in London and other crowded British cities in inevitable, but that some control must be exercised on aesthetic and similar grounds.

Astronaut Stamp Is Now On Sale Here

A four-cent stamp commemorating the first orbital flight of a United States astronaut, John Glenn, was issued Feb. 20 simultaneously with the completion of the flight and will be available at the Greenville Post Office, J. Knott Proctor, postmaster, said today.

The stamps arrived at the local post office this morning.

The new stamp portrays a capsule in space with a portion of the earth in the lower left corner of the design. The wording "4c U.S. Man In Space" is superimposed over the globe and "Project Mercury" is across the bottom of the stamp.

The commemorative stamp is 0.84 by 1.44 inches in dimension, arranged horizontally, printed on the Giori presses in blue and yellow on white paper and issued in panes of 50. An initial printing of 100 million has been authorized.

The stamp was released at 300 of the larger post offices throughout the country immediately upon the successful conclusion of the flight. The official first day cancellation was Cape Canaveral, Florida.

Provision has been made for collectors to obtain envelopes bearing the new stamp with the cancellation "Cape Canaveral, Florida," the date and hour of recovery of the capsule, and the wording "First Day of Issue," from the Philatelic Sales Agency Post Office Department, Washington 25, D. C., at 1-cent above the face value of the stamps involved. Thus the cost of a cover bearing a single stamp will be 5-cents, a block of four 17-cents, etc.

Orders to the Philatelic Sales Agency for these special covers must include no other issues and outer envelopes should be endorsed "4c Project Mercury Covers," to expedite service. Orders for first day covers should not be sent to Cape Canaveral.

Wreath Laid At Berlin Wall By Bobby Kennedy

BERLIN (AP)—Robert F. Kennedy laid a wreath "to the victims of Communist tyranny" at the Red Wall dividing Berlin today and received some cautious waves from East Berliners beyond the barricade.

East Berliners could be seen peeking from behind curtains as the U.S. attorney general's motorcade drove up to the wall at Bernauerstrasse. Apartment houses along the East side there have been boarded up and evacuated. But houses lying a little back from the wall are still occupied and from several of their windows appeared hands, fluttering briefly before being quickly withdrawn.

Thousands of West Berliners had gathered on their side of the barricade to cheer the attorney general, some shouting "Away with the wall!" But the crowd fell silent as Kennedy laid a wreath on a wooden cross on the sidewalk commemorating an elderly woman who was killed when she jumped from her window to the West last August.

The ceremony took place a few hours after American troops rushed through the streets of West Berlin in a dramatic demonstration of Kennedy's pledge that the United States would defend West Berlin against Communist attack as it would New York or Chicago.

Kennedy was out early today for his second look at the Red wall he has denounced as a medieval instrument of torture.

West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt pointed out features of the wall to the attorney general and his younger brother, Edward M., from an observation platform. No East German guards were in sight. But East German photographers were seen focusing their lenses on the Kennedy party.

Kennedy also visited the Ploetzensee prison memorial to Germans executed by the Nazis after the failure of the 1944 generals' plot against Adolf Hitler.

Kennedy was taken to Berlin's "America House." It is a combined library, exhibition gallery and lecture hall where thousands of Communist-ruled East Berliners—in the day before the wall—used to come to read Western books and newspapers. He was joined there by Arthur Schlesinger Jr., special assistant to President Kennedy.

At this point Kennedy announced that he would walk to the crowning event of the morning's program — the presentation of an American bald eagle to the West Berlin zoo.

This took him almost half a mile across one of the busiest parts of town. He was joined by about 2,000 West Berliners, mostly teen-agers.

The result was a good-natured near-riot that jammed traffic around West Berlin's main railroad station.

About 20 policemen managed to form a ring around him and get him safely into the zoo's big eagle cage. The eagle named "Willy Brandt" for the mayor, made the trip in a small cage, carried by four of the Kennedy party.

There was a 5-minute ceremony at the zoo, in which the mayor, Kennedy and the zoo director participated.
