By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

Speaking to about 130 growers, warehousemen, agricultural officials and bankers, Fred Bond said the supply and demand relationship of flue-cured leaf has become continuously brighter since 1956.

Using a presentation of charts, Bond pointed out: "Our (Stabilization Corp.) sales have exceeded receipts each year except one (1959) since 1956."

He noted the following percentages of Stabilization's take already sold—1955: crop, 83 per cent; 1956 crop, 77 per cent; 1957 crop, 61 per cent; 1958 crop, 44 per cent; 1959 crop, 53 per cent; and 1960 crop, 34 per cent.

Bond said Stabilization's stock inventory has been nearly halved since the all-time high of 650 million pounds several years ago.

Sale of about five million pounds during the past 10 days, he said, reduced the holdings to about 360 million.

The assistant manager appeared at Tuesday's meeting of District 6, including Pitt, Bertie, Martin, Washington, Tyrrell, Dare, Beaufort, Lenoir, Jones, Craven, Carteret and Pamlico Counties.

Following Bond's discussion, a brief address by Stabilization President Carl T. Hicks of Walstonburg and a question-and-answer period conducted by Bond, each county represented conducted caucuses to elect county committeemen.

Pitt's 35-member delegation at the meeting named Ralph C. Tucker, president of the county Farm Bureau unit, chairman and the following 15 members, one from each Pitt township: Chester Worthington, Arthur Harry Jarvis, Ayden; Harold Staton, Bethel; Roy Stancill, Belvoir; Eric Whitchard, Carolina; John King, Farmville; Atlas Wooten, Falkland; John Fountain, Fountain; Ralph Tucker, Greenville; Lloyd Fornes, Chicod; Mrs. Mattie Hardee, Swift Creek; Vernon White, Winterville; Harry Ferguson, Pactolus; Elmore Hodges, Grimesland; Wiley Gaskins, Grifton.

Hicks, in his address, told the meeting the most serious problem facing the American tobacco economy is the inability to cope with competition of the European economic union called the Common Market.

He said, "If we do not find some way to meet these competitive conditions, and that means getting behind our legislators to give the President authority to act on reciprocal trade agreements, we could find ourselves in a very untenable position."

Continuing, Hicks noted a sharp increase on imports of above-55-cent tobacco into the Common Market nations that will "undoubtedly be approved," and proposed a solution: "If the President is granted broader authority, it's conceivable we could initiate some effective trading opportunities."

Bond, in his presentation, said U. S. tobacco manufacturers are "not taking their proportionate share of top grades" of flue-cured tobacco. He noted a steady rise during the past five years in Stabilization's receipts in cutters and lugs (notably grades C5L and X3L).

He said while the manufacturers bought about 95 per cent of the 1961 crop of flue-cured leaf, they took only 73 per cent of the C5L volume.

That condition, he pointed out, "creates a problem for us." For the 1962 crop, Bond said, Stabilization plans to revise its handling methods for the high-priced grades (averaging about $71 a hundred last fall).

Instead of bundling and packing the grades in hogsheads, a process that jacks the price per pound from the $71 average to about $90, a stemming and blending process will be used that will cut Stabilization's market price for the top grades by $8 to $10. Export grades, he said, will still be bundled and packed.

Bond said the $90 price for the grades "is obviously an unrealistic one." He said Stabilization has had to settle for less in order to move its heavy top-grade stocks. "You just can't sell it at that price," he said. "What we are trying to do here," he pointed out, "is to be competitive."

W. A. (Alec) Allen of Farmville, District 6's member on Stabilization's Board of Directors, presided at Tuesday's meeting and introduced Bond for his presentation.

He expressed appreciation to Pitt County Agent S. C. Winchester and tobacco specialist S. J. Weeks for making necessary arrangements for the meeting at the Greenville Moose Temple.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C. Temperatures will average a few degrees below normal and rainfall of a half-inch or more Thursday through Monday. Turning colder tonight and Thursday, then continuing rather cold remainder of period. Rain tonight, ending Thursday, with rain likely again about weekend.

NEXT DRAFT CALL The next Selective Service call for Pitt County will be March 21, when four men will be called for induction and 17 for pre-induction, it was reported today by Mrs. Selma Rogers, clerk of the local board.

Pitt's 1962 Tobacco Planting Allotment Hits 26,300 Acres

Pitt County's flue-cured tobacco allotment for 1962 was raised to 26,300 acres today — the first increase in 11 years — if it gets a 4.3 increase announced today by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

An announcement about noon by USDA confirmed a 4.3-per-cent hike in the nation's 716-147-acre allotment to 747,262 acres. The confirmed increase had been expected today since March 1 was the deadline for a change in acreage to become effective this crop year.

Based on the announced 4.3 per cent increase, Pitt's already-announced 25,214.97-acre allotment for 1962 would grow to 26,299.21 acres.

However, First District Congressman Herbert C. Bonner told the Daily Reflector this morning it was his understanding that the increase would amount to an actual 5 per cent.

Bonner said he received notification about 9:30 a.m. today saying the increase was "in the bag" and that the 4.3 per cent hike, when figured into formulas for assigning allotments, would amount to a 5 per cent boost.

That would mean Pitt's 1962 plantings would total 26,475.72. The original figure for Pitt, announced by USDA in November, was about the same as last year's. Pitt growers were notified of their allotments in December.

It was expected that the Pitt Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office would immediately begin the process of notifying individual growers of their respective acreage adjustments.

Tar Heel congressmen said the increase would mean an increase in farm income of about $25 million for the 1962 flue-cured leaf crop, based on yields and averages posted in 1961, a good tobacco year.

Ralph C. Tucker, president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, noted that both the Pitt Bureau and the North Carolina Bureau Federation adopted resolutions recommending the acreage allotments remain constant for 1962.

Tucker said the reasoning of the Farm Bureau was based on the position of the supply-demand ratio, still above the ideal 2.5.

S. J. Weeks, Pitt County tobacco specialist of the Agricultural Extension Service, noted that his field is more closely connected with actual crop-production and improvement than with tobacco economics.

However, he commented: "The increase creates the possibility for our farmers to increase their income by producing additional tobacco, but at the same time, they should strive to produce the best quality possible so that the increase in production will not cause the wrong type of tobacco to be produced for consumer needs."

Farm Agent S. C. Winchester commented, "Yesterday afternoon we had a district Stabilization Corp. meeting here. On the basis of their report to the growers this percentage increase is certainly justified. Our growers will be happy for the increase. However, many of the growers were willing to go along with last year's acreage unless the increase actually was needed."

Greenville Tobacco Market of export tobacco abroad which I understand from the Stabilization Corp. meeting yesterday for the farmers. It is my hope was in short supply in the that this will stimulate the sale stocks in this country."

Price Supports Also Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department increased the 1962 crop flue-cured tobacco planting allotment today by 31,115 acres or 4.3 per cent over an allotment announced last November.

This put the allotment at 747,262 acres compared with 716,147 acres set originally. The increase was made, the department said to maintain a reserve supply at levels specified by farm law authorizing production controls.

Officials said this action will have the effect of increasing individual farm allotments 4.3 per cent above those already given tobacco farms for this year.

The department also announced price supports for this year's flue-cured crop will average 56.1 cents a pound compared with an average 55.5 cents last year.

The department said that during each of the past five years, production of flue-cured tobacco has been below consumption, including export. Although stocks are now at relatively normal levels, stocks of certain grades were said to be inadequate to meet anticipated domestic and export requirements.

The department recently increased the 1962 crop burley allotment 6 per cent over the 1961 allotment. The revised allotments, compared with the original ones respectively, by states, include:

Georgia 73,736.94 and 72,585.21; North Carolina 491,898.64 and 471,416.34; South Carolina 86,670.79 and 82,966.04 and Virginia 74,794.55 and 71,680.16.

A national reserve for allotments for new farms was set at 1,868.63 compared with 1,790.82 set originally.

Astronauts Cite One Discovery

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's astronauts told Congress today that Lt. Col. John H. Glenn's orbital flight showed that future spacemen can navigate by the stars much like a sailor at sea and steer their own course to the moon.

Glenn, accompanied by Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Capt. Virgil I. Grissom, testified before the Senate space committee in their third appearance in as many days at the capitol.

The committee members stood and applauded as the three astronauts strode into the big Senate caucus room, filled to overflowing with cheering spectators.

Shepard, the Navy officer whose suborbital flight last year made him the first American in space, said he feels one discovery made by Glenn that has been generally overlooked is the visibility of stars in daylight.

"We intend to use the stars as a fix on the way to the moon," Shepard said, "and John's observation of the stars during daylight shows we could use them for navigation."

Shepard offered this observation after Glenn had explained anew that his triple orbit of the earth a week ago Tuesday had proved that man can operate a spacecraft in the new and strange environment of weightless outer space.

In the future, he said, "we can plug man into the system" and have to depend less on automation.

At one point Glenn was asked by Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla., the committee chairman, what advice he had for young Americans who would like to have a part in the space age, either as astronauts or in work backing them up.

"A basic good sound education is a prerequisite to any progress in this field," Glenn replied.

He said his advice to young Americans was to get this good basic education and then to let their own talents guide them as to the particular field they should enter.

The astronauts have already had sessions with the House space committee and a House appropriations unit.

Glenn cautioned the House committee members that the nation should realize that all future space flights may not be so successful as the first three.

"We are riding a crest of enthusiasm and happiness at this moment," the Marine lieutenant colonel said. "There will be times when we are not on such a big crest."

Glenn and his family were guests Tuesday night at a Pentagon dinner given by Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth, civilian chief of the Marine Corps as well as the Navy. Many high ranking government officials and military officers were among the 38 guests.

UFE Will Ask $90 Million Hike In School Outlay

RALEIGH (AP)—United Forces for Education will ask the 1963 legislature to boost public school appropriations by $90 million for the 1963-65 biennium.

UFE Secretary A. C. Dawson called it a conservative program, aimed primarily at holding the state in its present position in national standings.

The plan was revealed Tuesday by Dawson and UFE Vice Chairman W. W. Sutton of Goldsboro at a special news conference.

The $90 million, they said, would permit the state to increase by $41 its expenditures per pupil.

They said this would enable North Carolina to hold its ranking at 42nd in the nation in per-pupil spending and 32nd in teacher pay.

It was United Forces for Education, a group of seven civic and school groups, which gave Gov. Sanford the specifics for his program in 1961.

Through Sanford's prodding, the 1961 legislature boosted 1961-63 school appropriations by $102 million and financed the increase by placing the sales tax on food.

Cost Of Living Is Unchanged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living costs last month were unchanged from December, the government announced today. Higher food prices prevented a decline.

While consumer prices were stable, the buying power and after-tax income of factory workers dropped nearly 2 per cent—due largely to a 42-minute reduction in the average work week.

The Labor Department, unveiling a revised consumer price index, said living costs in January were 4.5 per cent higher than the average for 1957-59, or the same level as in December.

The new index, at 104.5 compared with the new base period, would have been 128.2 under the old index which used the 1947-49 average as 100.

Ewan Clague, commissioner of labor statistics, told a news conference there has been some grumbling about the change in the base for the index. He emphasized that while the numbers are different, none of the relationships are changed.

To avoid confusion, he said, the department will continue for many months to release two sets of figures each month—based on the new and old index levels.

Algerian Rebels Propose Final Phase Of Peace Talk

TUNIS (AP) — Algerian rebel leaders propose now to open "the ultimate phase" of peace negotiations with France and it should end with a cease-fire in Algeria, a rebel spokesman said today.

Information Minister Mohamed Yazid told newsmen the logical windup of the negotiations would be the close of the 7½-year-old Algerian rebellion.

A green light to enter the final negotiations was given in an announcement by the rebels' 54-member parliament—the National Council of the Algerian Revolution, which had met secretly in Tripoli, Libya, for six days to weigh Paris-approved peace terms. The wording of the announcement indicated no major obstacles remain.

Provisional Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda's government, in the opinion of various rebel sources, was given a free hand by the council to sign a pact with France after further talks.

"After a discussion of the negotiations with the government of the French republic," the parliament's communique said, "the National Council of the Algerian Revolution orders the provisional government of the Algerian republic to continue the negotiations in course."

Informed sources in Tripoli said Tuesday the parliament was to announce approval of the terms, which the French cabinet endorsed last week.

But the final session in a police-guarded Libyan legislative building ran long and apparently encountered difficulty over some minor points. The agreement, sought by Ben Khedda, required the backing of four-fifths of the 54 parliamentarians.

The parliamentary announcement came after return of the rebel leaders from Tripoli to their Tunis headquarters in exile.

Other rebel informants indicated an Algerian delegation may leave Tunis Saturday for Paris or some other French city for the final talks.

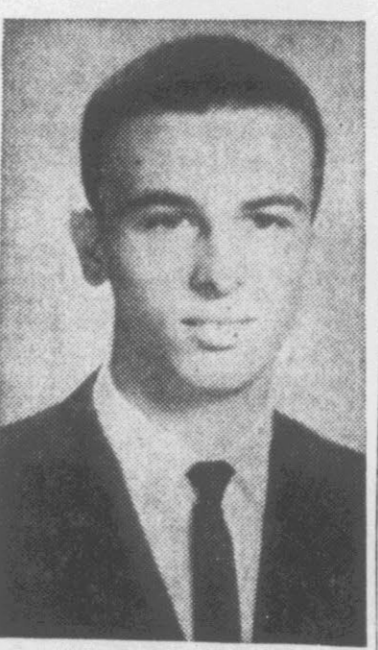

Rebel sources interpreted the communique to mean that the rebel parliament had given the rebel government a free hand to sign peace terms with France after the new round of talks. No further session of the council will be necessary, the sources said.

They added that the new talks with France will be overt and held secretly as the recent negotiations near the French-Swiss border.

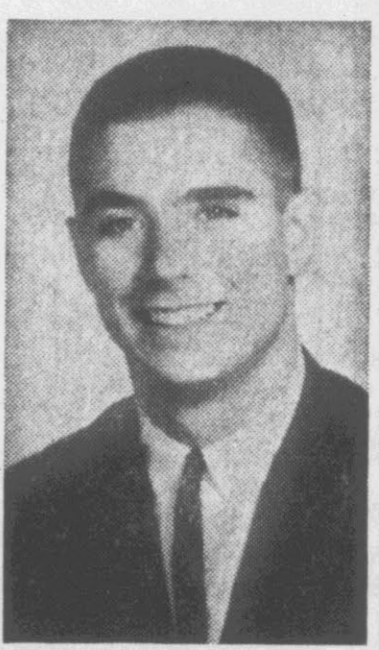

The accord approved by the French Cabinet provides for a council of French and Moslem Algerians to govern Algeria during a referendum. Moslems make up about 90 per cent of Algeria's 10 million population, and the referendum is certain to decide overwhelmingly for independence.

The pact also provides for guarantees for Algeria's European minority. French use of the Mers-el-Kebir naval base near Oran, French interests in the Sahara oil fields and the aid of the French army in policing Algeria until local forces are strong enough to keep order.

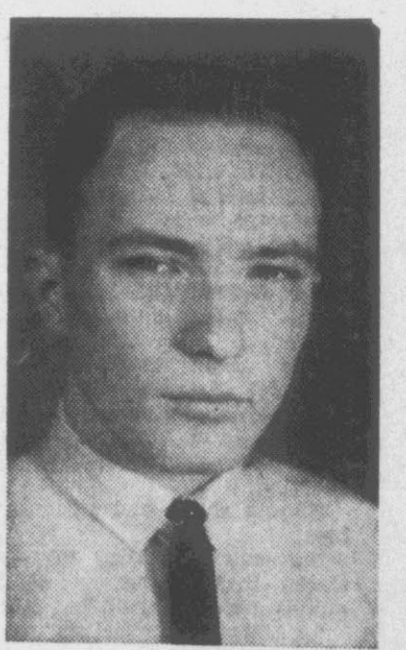

Three Rose High Seniors Are Scholarship Finalists

JIMMY EATMAN

JIMMY JENKINS

DENNIS EAGAN

Three Rose High School seniors, Jimmy Eatman, Dennis Eagan and Jimmy Jenkins, have been selected as finalists for the Angier B. Duke Scholarship awards from the Eastern District for Men, setting a record for the local school.

The three took for Greenville the majority of the allotment of five finalists from the Eastern District. Each of the six state districts is represented by five finalists, totaling 30 in all.

Superintendent J. H. Rose today commended "the boys, their teachers and their parents who teamed up on this to make it possible. They have brought great credit to our school and to our town. I am very proud of them."

Having three finalists for the coveted Duke scholarship awards not only set a record "but is rather unusual for a small high school," Rose noted.

The three students have been outstanding in scholarship and in activities during high school. Jenkins is currently vice president of the Student Council, a member of the National Honor Society and a marshal. Active in church work, he is vice president of the Greenville U.C.Y.M. and is a member of St. James Methodist Church.

In athletics, he has played varsity football, and as a member of the track team has run the 100-yard dash and participated in low hurdles and the mile relay. He is secretary-treasurer of the Monogram Club and sports editor of "Green Lights." Jenkins was president of the junior class last year.

He placed fourth in the state in a statewide French examination. He is currently secretary of the Science Club, a member of the "Tau" (annual) staff and a former member of the band and also the school wrestling team.

The son of Mrs. Elsie Simpson Eagan, he is a member of Eighth Street Christian Church.

Eatman this year is co-chief marshal and a finalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition. For the past two summers he has been awarded a scholarship to Western Carolina College for special study.

He has served this year as associate editor of "Green Lights" and was high magazine salesman. Eatman last year was a varsity debater. He has also received recognition for placing high in the French examination for two previous years.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Eatman and is a member of St. James Methodist Church.

Exchange Chairman Is Indicted, Resigns

NEW YORK (AP)—J. Truman Bidwell has resigned the powerful post of chairman of the Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange following a federal grand jury indictment charging him with evading $55,908 in income taxes.

He claimed persecution from "high places in Washington," and said "neither the investing public nor the stock exchange is involved."

The government, too, took pains to emphasize that the indictment dealt with Bidwell's personal taxes and had nothing to do with his activities at the exchange.

Nevertheless, the indictment added fire to the persistent rumors of a widespread tax investigation in the securities field.

The Internal Revenue Service began its tax investigation of Bidwell more than three years ago last year, the Securities and Exchange Commission turned an investigative eye on Wall Street that resulted in a shakeup at the American Stock Exchange.

The SEC probe was based on charges of abuse of trading rules and tight domination of the American Exchange. It resulted last month in the resignations of President Edward T. McCormick and Board Chairman Joseph Rellly.

The two-count indictment handed up against Bidwell, 58, Tuesday, accused him of concealing capital gains, and faking expenses for travel, charitable contributions and entertainment.

The grand jury charged Bidwell with listing joint income with his wife for 1956 and 1957 at $124,404, when the actual income totaled $208,202. It said Bidwell listed taxes for the two years as $55,035, when the figure should have been $110,943.

Conviction could put him in prison for a maximum of 5 years and carries the possibility of a fine up to $10,000.

Bidwell, who will plead to the indictment on Monday before federal Judge John M. Cashin, issued a statement in which he declared, "I have fully paid all my taxes."

He said he had been engaged in controversy with the Internal Revenue Service over his 1956 and 1957 returns for more than three years.

Police Raid Results In Charging Of Three Today

Greenville police staged an early-morning raid on two Pitt Street buildings and charged three persons with having lottery tickets after allegedly finding the illegal devices in their possession.

The raids, which occurred about 5:15 a.m., were directed at 601 and 602 Pitt St.

Arrested were Caesar Corbett Sr., 62, who runs a store at 602 Pitt, and Isolene Moye, 32, and George Willoughby, 52, who reside at 601 Pitt. All are Negro.

Officers who made the arrests explained that a total of 32 tickets found in the Corbett building while 27 tickets were discovered in the 601 Pitt building.

Both Corbett and Willoughby were charged with possession of tickets while Miss Moye was charged with possessing tickets for the purpose of sale.

Officers quoted her as saying she bought the tickets for sale because she needed the money.

Police officials noted that the two cases (the Corbett case and the Willoughby-Moye case) are not connected and the raids were based on "information received outside the department."

All three were released under $200 bonds each shortly after their arrest today.

Prices of the tickets found, according to police, ranged from 25c to $1.50.

The raiders also noted that an estimated 25-30 tickets were found under a garbage can near the rear of the Corbett store but nothing indicates they were connected with the ones found inside the store.

Housewife With Servant Must Heed New Tax Hike

By MORTON YARMON
Women's News Service

NEW YORK—(WNS)— If you pay a domestic as much as $50 in any calendar quarter, better forget that you must file and pay a tax under Social Security laws. Effective this past January 1, you're to pay 3% and your employee the same, for a total of 6 1/2 percent of her wages. This is up from the previous 3 percent and 6 percent.

If you fail to file and pay, you can be assessed the back taxes due, together with interest at 6 percent a year and penalty that can amount to as much as 25 percent of the total due.

The burden is on you rather than your employee. If she balks at letting you withhold tax from her pay, you'll be in trouble if you simply throw up your hands and decide to forget all about it. For you are obligated to pay the 6 1/2 percent of her wages in taxes even if you have not withheld her 3 1/2 percent.

You're supposed to file for every three-month period, ending

March 31, June 30, September 30 and December 31, by the end of the month following. Thus you file by April 30, July 31, October 31, and January 31.

Toward the end of each quarter you should get in the mail from the District Director of Internal Revenue a copy of Form 942, whose full title is Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees. If you are not getting these blanks regularly, inquire at the director's office.

In filing, you are to list each employee and her account number. If she has none, simply mark, "Account number unknown." She will then be assigned a number and contacted accordingly.

Whom do you file for? Generally cooks, waiters, butlers, housekeepers, governesses, maids, valets, baby sitters, janitors, laundresses, furnacemen, caretakers, handymen, gardeners, footmen, grooms and chauffeurs of automobiles for family use. In the government's words: "any workers who perform services of a household nature in or about a private home."

The test as to whether an employee is covered is not whether she works full time or part time but simply whether you pay her $50 or more in a calendar quarter. If you do, she's covered; otherwise she is not. That's why baby sitters are on the list. In figuring this $50, don't include anything other than cash. That is, food, lodging, clothing and anything else with which you may pay your employees is not to be considered.

When you reach $4,800 on the wages to any one employee during a single year, you stop paying the 3 1/2 percent and her share as well. For this tax, as with other Social Security levies, covers only the first $4,800 of wages.

One type of employee is exclusive. That's the independent contractor—generally the self-employed carpenter, painter, plumber, or repairman, who probably brings his own equipment, or the workman hired by a service company and assigned to handle your job.

When hiring an employee, make a written record of her name and Social Security account number. It's wise to copy this from her Social Security card at the end of the calendar year you're supposed to provide her with a written statement of wages and the amount of Social Security tax you withheld during the year.

If an employee leaves you during the year, you should mail the statement to her home within a month after you have paid her for the last time. The district tax office will provide you with Form SS-14 to do this.

Social Security officials say they are stepping up compliance with the law. As a housewife-employer, they may catch up with you years later, when your employee reaches retirement age and asks for benefits. So it's wise to comply with the law now.

Her Trips Are Legion

Patriots' Promoter

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)— Melisse Jean McKay's itinerary reads like a schedule enthusiastically arranged for the visiting postulate of some uncommitted nation.

Lv. Ar., Flight No., hotel reservation at 1:20 p.m. speech, 7 p.m. dinner address are by now as familiar to the president of American Legion Auxiliary as the Bill of Rights.

But the auxiliary has nearly a million members, which is about five times the population of Monaco. And she has to visit every state, including Alaska and Hawaii, during her year in office. Before her term is out, grandmotherly Mrs. McKay will also have traveled to the Far East, Colombia, Mexico and Puerto Rico.

"My only problem," she says, "is taking along clothes for both hot and cold climates in my 60 pounds of luggage."

"But you'll never know," she adds, with a twinkle gleaming behind her spectacles, "how much I can cram into my huge carry-all handbag."

Everybody has his own Revolutionary War hero. Morton is mine. He cast the deciding vote for the Declaration of Independence.

She says she doesn't believe any groups in the country are more dedicated to the Constitution and the democratic form of government than the Legion and its auxiliary.

"We're wholeheartedly in favor of the Bill of Rights—these are the men who fought for them. Nationally we support the United Nations. Sometimes one group goes off on a tangent and makes a point, but it's often reprimanded by the national group."

Mrs. McKay spends only a day or two a month at home in Springfield, Pa. She still lives in the house she was brought to as a bride 36 years ago. "I joined the auxiliary right away," she says. "It seemed the best way to get acquainted."

Her husband, J. Howard McKay, a civil engineer, was a doughboy in World War I, a Navy officer in World War II. He died last November.

Her two sons also served as Naval officers in World War II. Her daughter is married to a biochemistry student at Johns Hopkins University.

She thinks too many people are apathetic about world affairs. "I'd like to open eyes to what's going on. The average woman is not really cognizant of how close we are to the edge sometimes. That doesn't apply to our members, who are alerted."

That's why, even as she admits her president's tour is a year out of her life, she says she can't think of a better way to spend it.

Since then she has spent 10 days on a Radio Free Europe trip to Germany and Portugal; spoken at various regional conferences and state auxiliary meetings; visited the leprosiarium at Carville, La., which the auxiliary provides with a new station wagon each year; spent a week judging school exhibits in the annual Freedoms Foundation contest; received a distinguished service citation at the Chapel of Four Chaplains in Philadelphia, presented a television award for the most educational commercial announcement.

Perhaps her greatest pleasure in office will come Feb. 22 when she hands the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge a check for $30,000 for the John Morton Briefing Room, which will house all available data on ways to combat Communism, and will sponsor lectures for interested groups. It will be equipped similarly to the briefing room at the Pentagon.

Attractive Women Passe On Riviera Next Summer

ST. TROPEZ, France—(WNS) There is no hope for women who want to look attractive on Riviera beaches this summer.

The Big Seven of resort wear have decreed that chic mannequines must look "folle" (crazy) instead.

The seven leaders, Beaud, Feraud, Cattagne, Marie-Martine, Lapidus, Bob and Keston-Vahine, agree that pretty girls on swank boardwalks will be sporting:

Bicycle shoes and straw derbies.

Suspenders holding up tight slacks that blouse out at the ankles like elephant hooves.

"American intellectual" goggles, and high-necked sweaters in prisoner stripes.

Long cigarette holders and long, loose hair.

In the water, they may wear two-piece, "frou frou" bikinis in lame, or lace, or one-piece, heavy-knit swimsuits that hang like potato sacks.

And where is the smart place for vacations this summer? "I'm heading for the mountains," declared starlet Chantel Beaufort.

If you have been in a place where chiggers abounded, Charles W. Warren, consulting forster in Nebraska, advises taking a hot, soapy bath as soon as possible to help prevent infection.

Program On Church Work Given

"The Church at Work On Our College Campus" was the title of the program presented by Mrs. F. D. Duncan to the Inter Se Club when it met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. T. H. Henderson.

"We have a number of full time Christian college workers and ministers on the campus at East Carolina. This is true all over America today, but it has not always been so," said Mrs. Duncan. "For years all church groups on campuses were voluntarily organized and operated by the students without any help from ministers or trained workers," she continued.

After reviewing the history of the voluntary Christian organizations in American colleges, Mrs. Duncan stated that early in this century the denominations became aware that they must meet the spiritual needs of the colleges and began to set up their own student groups and leaders on campus.

Mrs. Duncan introduced the Rev. Richard Oltoway, Episcopal chaplain to East Carolina College, who explained many facets of his ministry to the college community including Canterbury, a married couples' group and Faculty Fellowship. He answered questions posed by Mrs. Duncan to explain the scope of his work and replied to a number of questions and comments from the club members.

During the informal discussion period, coffee and a sweet course were served by the hostess, Mrs. Henderson.

Life In Governor's Mansion Can Also Prove To Be Lonely

By PATRICIA G. MCNEELY
The Columbia Record

Written for The Associated Press
COLUMBIA (AP) — Living in the goldfish bowl called the governor's mansion can also be a lonely life, says Mrs. Ernest F. Hollings, South Carolina's first lady.

"Many of our friends don't feel easy about dropping in for a cup of coffee in the morning like they used to. In fact, there's so much else to do that we seldom get to do the things that we want to do or see the things that we want to see."

Mrs. Hollings—Pat to her friends—said that she had tried not to let life in the governor's mansion change her or her family too much.

"One of the worst things, as far as the children are concerned, has been all the help we have had with the house. (The Hollings have four children: Mike, 11; Helen, 9; Sally, 5, and Fritz Jr., almost 3.) Sometimes the children would say, 'oh, let Robert do this,' or 'Why can't Joe do that' when I've given them things to do. Sometimes it's been difficult explaining to them why they must learn to do things for themselves. 'I've tried not to let the fact that they're the governor's children affect them anymore than I can help. Once I heard one of my children say, 'I can do that because my father is the governor.' I called him aside and asked him just what was so special about being a governor's child. I never heard any of them say that again, and I believe that after they got used to the idea, that it didn't make that much difference. In fact, their friends come here to play as much as our children do to their homes now, and I think they really enjoy themselves and relax here."

The warm and charming hostess at the governor's mansion believes that running the first house is just like running any other household—except the problems are bigger.

When Mrs. Hollings plans dinner parties, she spends hours planning suitable menus, multiplying the recipes by sometimes as much as 400 and overseeing the preparation of the food in the kitchen.

Since she has had only one dinner party catered since she has been in the governor's mansion, she has developed several meat dishes that are her favorites.

"I have to plan foods—meat in particular—that do not have to be cut up," she said. "Since large dinners here are usually served buffet style and everyone sits around the house wherever there is a place to sit. I've found that the three easiest meats to serve are veal scallopini, various types of curries, and cubed steak."

Since there are usually more men than women at many of the parties, she hears many of her men to men's tastes.

Unlike Jackie Kennedy, Mrs. Hollings has not redecorated the house, since it had been redecorated just two years before she moved in. "I think that Mrs. Kennedy's plans for the White House are admirable," she said. "I believe that the White House will really be a worthwhile place to visit now. The children and I saw it a few years ago, and I really have to admit that I was a little disappointed."

She believes that the governor's mansion would be a much more pleasing place to visit if it too were redecorated in the period in which it was built and refurbished with South Carolina antiques. "I didn't feel that I should be the one to do this since it had been so recently redecorated," she said. "But I feel that it would be a worthwhile undertaking."

Posada parties are the heart of pre-Christmas celebrations in Mexico. Posada means "lodging."

Funeral Today For N. C. Judge

KENLY, N.C. (AP)—Superior Court Judge W. Jack Hooks who died Tuesday of a cerebral hemorrhage at the age of 58, was to be buried today after funeral services here.

The funeral was scheduled for 11 a.m. in the Kenly Presbyterian church with burial in the Kenly cemetery. The Rev. William Leist was to officiate.

Hooks was stricken Friday while charging a jury in a civil case in Johnston Superior Court at Smithfield. He did not regain consciousness, and died in Johnston Memorial Hospital.

He is survived by the widow, the former Marie Cobb of Elm City; a daughter, Mrs. Joe Sander of Blackstone, Va.; a son, W. Jack Hooks III, a student at Wake Forest College; and five sisters, Mrs. Margaret Booker and Mrs. Clara Smith of Selma, Mrs. Doris Bailey of near Kenly, Mrs. Beatrice Jones of Greensboro, and Mrs. Vivian Cox of New Bern.

After a career as private lawyer and solicitor, Hooks was appointed special judge in 1959 by former Gov. Luther Hodges. Gov. Sanford renewed the appointment.

9 Shipwrecked Men On Island

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Nine shipwrecked tuna fishermen—one of them injured—are awaiting rescue on a tiny Pacific island where they have been stranded 22 days.

The men are on Clipperton Island, which is so narrow and so low in the water that breakers sometimes sweep almost all the way across it. It lies 1,400 miles south of here and about the same distance off the coast of Central America.

The crew of the San Diego fishing boat Monarch was stranded on Clipperton early this month when the 72-foot craft went down. The men lived on tuna, wild pigs and coconuts until last weekend, when a Mexican fishing boat, the Fanita, discovered them.

Word of the castaways was relayed here by radio. The American Tuna Boat Association asked for Coast Guard and Navy assistance.

A Navy guided missile destroyer, the USS Robison, was diverted to Clipperton. Members of the Tuna Boat association said the Fanita was too small to take the crewmen off the island.

The Navy said it will be Thursday morning before the Robison can reach the island.

"That's a nasty island," said a Coast Guard officer who had seen it. "It's fringed by coral reefs and the sea breaks heavily—sometimes sweeping almost over the whole island."

Clipperton is two miles long, a quarter of a mile wide at the widest point, a few yards wide at its narrowest.

The Monarch, skippered by Manuel Chula, 55, of San Diego, left here Jan. 16 with a five-week fuel supply. Her last reported position, on Feb. 5, was in the vicinity of Clipperton.

Marine With A Fabulous Background Is Retiring

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP)—In his slightly less than 41 years, John Bryan Lippard has been, besides a U. S. Marine:

—A cub reporter.

—A "master electrician" with eight imaginary years of experience.

—A crane operator with a penchant for dropping things.

—A lead miner.

—A Domi (bad) American.

Except for the reporter part, Capt. Lippard carried out all these functions as a prisoner of Japan during World War II.

He retires today after a little more than 22 years in the Marines, more than three of those years as a war prisoner. After that, he'll head for the West Texas Panhandle where he was born and settle down with his wife to bring up their five children, and work to help underprivileged boys.

Lippard was born April 13, 1921 at Sudan, Tex., a farming community of about 150 people. He and his family lived in several West Texas towns, among them Littlefield from 1933 to 1939. Here he met Bonnie Jo Vanney of O'Brien, Tex., and they were sweethearts by the time he was graduated from Littlefield High in 1939.

He put in a hitch as cub reporter on the Lubbock Avalanche Journal, waiting for the Marines to accept him. They did, later in 1939.

In April, 1941, while on duty as guard aboard the naval ferry between Cavite and Manila in the Philippines, he rescued a sailor who fell overboard into shark-infested waters. He was awarded the Silver Lifesaving Medal by the Treasury Department, but World War II broke out and he didn't get the medal until five years later.

His unit evacuated Cavite and moved to Bataan. When the Japanese pressed them hard there, most of the Marines were transferred to Corregidor—and Lippard thus missed the Bataan Death March on which many Americans died.

Corregidor fell too, and Cpl. John Lippard spent five months in prison on Luzon with other Americans. There began his adventures at outwitting the Japanese.

Their captors gave the prisoners long forms to fill out that would give detailed information on their lives.

"We filled them out completely," said Lippard, "but on advice of our senior officers put down everything but the truth. I was 21 years old, but I stated I was a master electrician with eight years' experience."

This fib helped land Lippard, along with 1,200 other prisoners, in a machine tool and die factory in Mukden, China. He declined to take an electrician's examination, but they gave him pliers and screwdriver anyway and told him to fix a metal lathe. "I had never seen a lathe," recalls Lippard. "But I poked around with my screwdriver and made a lot of sparks fly. Then I disconnected a couple of wires and put them back together. All of a sudden the lathe started running."

From then on, Lippard was a top electrician. He also sold the Japanese on his alleged ability to operate a crane, and used it to drop heavy items from great heights. He says he and his mates managed about $3 million in sabotage and some 150 of them were publicly labeled by the Japanese as Domi (bad) Americans, a badge of honor for the prisoners.

Finally he and others were put in the lead mines in Japan, where the incorrigibles worked, and stayed there until the war ended.

Lippard returned to the States in October, 1945, about 50 pounds lighter. "But I was in fine shape compared to most," he says, "because I was an accomplished artist at stealing from the Japs and bartering with them—often with the same goods I had stolen."

While recuperating at the Naval Hospital in Norman, Okla., he renewed his attachment to Bonnie Jo Vanney. They were married in May, 1946.

Since then he has done public information work at Dallas and Corpus Christi, Tex., Chicago, San Diego, and Santa Ana, Calif., Philadelphia and Camp Lejeune—and back in Japan, meanwhile working his way up to captain.

The Lippards have five children. Matt, 9, and Sam, 5, are here with the parents. Nancy, 14, Jonette, 13, and Mark, 11, have entered school in Dimmitt, Tex., where the family will live.

Capt. Lippard's life of service will continue as a civilian. He will have an administrative job with Cal Farley's Boys' Ranch in Amarillo, Tex., about 60 miles from Dimmitt.

The Ainu people of Japan expect a husband to destroy his house when his wife dies so it will be conveyed to heaven for her use.

More Than 2 Parties

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Political mechanics develop out of history and tradition of a people rather than by planned foresight. Nothing in the Constitution provides for the two party system or any party at all.

Nevertheless, political parties did develop in the United States very early and the two party system was well-established by the end of the single term in office of John Adams. It would be false, however, to suggest that throughout American history, only two parties have existed.

There have been times when the minority party was so small as to give the impression that it had practically gone out of existence. When Abraham Lincoln was President, all the Southern Democrats withdrew, leaving the Democratic Party a weak limb in Congress.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, after his first term, encountered a shattered Republican Party which had so little strength that Roosevelt managed the unprecedented feat of being elected four times.

From the standpoint of political history, the choice of Eisenhower rather than Taft, was an error, because the Republican Party was left without a program and without organic leadership.

A clear distinction must be made between the assertions of leadership of Barry Goldwater and Nelson Rockefeller.

Such was one newspaper of a bygone era. "Where's that American optimism? A church group, requesting seed packets for the Congo, specified ANNUAL flowers." — Tallahassee (Fla.) Democrat.

This proposal from a strictly political standpoint, was as much an error as Roosevelt's Court packing plan except that the Negro vote is becoming so great a factor that politicians of both parties will cater to it.

Some less complex measure will be needed in Congress to establish the nature of the two party system in the Kennedy (Continued on page 12)

Good News For Tobacco Producers

The first tobacco allotment increase in 11 years for flue-cured tobacco producers represents good news for all of North Carolina as it does for the other flue-cured tobacco areas in this section of the nation.

Although the acreage increase is relatively small at 4.3 per cent, it is expected to produce approximately $25 million in additional income for tobacco farmers in North Carolina this year if prices and yields equal those of last year.

The current increase in allotments provides the second major move for the flue-cured tobacco industry that the Department of Agriculture has made within the past month.

North Carolina, which produces approximately two-thirds of all the flue-cured tobacco grown annually in the United States, has a major interest in this acreage for the crop. Pitt County, which produces the largest tobacco acreage in the state, likewise has a major stake in the increase for this year.

While the immediate benefits of the acreage increase are apparent, the long-range benefits perhaps are of even greater importance to the flue-cured tobacco sections.

Overall, it is a step which will strengthen the entire tobacco industry which is so important to the economy of North Carolina, and which is also an important segment of the agricultural economy of the nation.

Those who have pressed so diligently for this forward step deserve commendation for the success of their endeavors.

Speculation Based On Wishful Thinking

We get the impression sometime that speculation that something has happened to this high communist official or that is based more on wishful thinking than on fairly logical grounds.

Every now and then a story comes out of Moscow or somewhere in the Soviet Union suggesting perhaps Premier Khrushchev or some other high official has lost his position because he hasn't made a public appearance for a few days or a few weeks.

If there had been only one such incident, perhaps it would have been marked off as just a mistake on someone's part. But there have been many such stories involving many officials in recent years.

In the past few days there have been stories along this line about Premier Castro of Cuba, suggesting he has been removed from power because, among other things, he hasn't been seen lately in public.

Then the story about his being removed from power will suddenly be forgotten . . . until the next time he disappears from the public eye for a few days.

Fresh Jolts To Our Ego Ahead

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Now that the nation has honored astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. and itself through him—it had better get ready for some fresh jolts to its ego.

Glenn's journey gave the nation's morale a needed boost, since this country's prestige and self-confidence had been somewhat fractured by Soviet achievements in space.

It's a good bet new jolts will come from Russia which is still ahead in manned space shots, including Glenn's triple orbit.

The Russians not only put the first man into orbit, a once-around journey, but a second one went around 17 times.

It may be 1963 before the United States can orbit a man that often. This country hopes to fly five orbital missions this year, the last one to go the Russians one better with 18 orbits.

As a result this country has collected far more scientific information about what goes on in space than the Russians. Still, that first Sputnik, the first man-shot, and the first moon-shot got more attention and propaganda mileage than the more useful and numerous American satellites.

Since the Russians' last manned space shot by Maj. Gherman S. Titov was last August—when he orbited 17 times—they seem overdue for another sensation.

And, because they're ahead, it seems likely they would hit the moon with a man before the United States can. The Russians, who like space speculators, would score their biggest with a man on the moon.

That Glenn has excited and stimulated the nation to greater efforts was clear from the extremely enthusiastic greeting given him by the President, Congress, the Supreme Court, and people lining the streets for Monday's big Washington welcome.

The two giants in this contest in space and national prestige could accomplish a lot more if they pooled their space efforts. President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev said pooling is a fine idea.

But both sides will have had time to build bicycle factories on the moon before they ever agree to cooperate if they have as much trouble agreeing on this as they have had on disarmament and nuclear testing.

Strength For Today

INVISIBLE LIVING

What odd people we encounter in the world sometimes. I am not speaking now of the social misfit but of that person who appears to have had experiences fantastically different from anything we ever experienced or ever heard of other people experiencing.

There are some people for instance, who are confident that they have lived before. I know a woman of great education and charming, normal personality who makes claims about experiences under conditions other than those through which we pass in this present world.

every minute? Are those who have gone before us looking up on us with understanding eyes? Are those who are to be born a decade or a century from now being prepared for entry into terrestrial life? We know so little about ultimate reality that we can be said to know practically nothing at all.

The Bible gives us all the knowledge we need in order to live upright and happy lives. But there is reality which is described in no book. There are undoubtedly experiences going on in this vast universe about which we know nothing, and perhaps never know anything.

Years Brought Changes

Newspapers have undergone many changes in style and content as anyone who has ever looked back in files of many years ago knows.

The newspaper of today has a more modern look, its style of writing is perhaps less folksy and, of course, the camera is an indispensable aid in news reporting.

This last was not always so. Many years ago before the art of reproducing engravings from photographs for printing purposes there was no way of printing pictures in newspapers.

Some papers overcame the problem by using engravings of drawings to illustrate the news of the day.

Such was the case with "The Illustrated Police News" a paper published in Boston in bygone years. Your columnist happened to come in possession of a copy of this paper dated Dec.

21, 1878. On its front is such an engraving showing Sarah Bernhardt in her coffin. The drawing depicts a photographer of the day taking a picture of the deceased lady.

In side are two full pages of such engravings. One shows a man hanging from a log after he had gone over a water fall. The caption reads: "Horrible situation and remarkable rescue of Henry Green, at Otis, Mass.—hanging over a dam by his clothes catching on a chance spike in a log."

A second reads, "Another school m'arn outraged by tramps—two miscreants, near Rockport, Ill., violate the person of Miss Carrie Tully and leave her tied to a tree."

The engraving shows a woman, presumably Miss Tully, securely fastened to a tree. Two men are disappearing in the darkness. Another engraving shows a teacher twisting a student's ear as her class looks on in horror. The caption reads: "A school m'arn at Lowell, Mass., on a spree. She appears in her school room intoxicated and has to be carried home in a carriage by a committee-man."

Still another engraving shows an ostrich grasping a woman's skirt. The caption reads: "An ostrich at Portland, Me., who is 'on the pickup'—he manifests an appetite for feminine dry goods, and very rudely and improperly endeavors to devour a young lady's dress."

The tabloid size paper opens to reveal still more engravings, but on these inside pages details of the stories begin to appear. Opened again smaller type and still more details are available to the reader. They are written in the flagrant style of the day.

Example: "A horrible accident—terrible hand car collision at California Railroad—An intended bride crushed and suffering amputation of both legs."

Such was one newspaper of a bygone era.

Other Editors Saying... Search For Justice

(Washington Daily News) The eternal search for justice goes on every day. At this very minute in America hundreds of courts are wrestling with problems for which there seem to be no just answers.

We often look at these problems and ask ourselves "where does justice lie?" We search, we study, and we hesitate, because justice for one man might mean injustice to his family.

Every so often we read about a case of a man being sent to the roads for a year or so. That man might have several children, and outside of whatever criminal activity he might be guilty of, the fact remains that sending the father to the roads also means that the family breadwinner will be gone.

That sounds cruel and inhuman in one sense, but in most cases it is the father himself who has brought the troubles about himself and his family.

Just recently we were talking with a man about a case very similar to the one above. It seems that this man is the father of 11 children. He today is looking prison square in the face. If and when he is sent away, it means that these 11 children and their mother are thrown upon society as wards of the Welfare department.

Perhaps in some ways they will be better off being cared for by a welfare agency. In other ways the home, whatever that home might mean to the mother and children, is broken.

Where does justice lie in such a case? If the man deserves punishment and if he should be sent to prison, then which becomes more important... punishment for him or punishment for those 11 children?

We do not have the answer, and we doubt that in all of America today there is any just answer. America just does not know how to handle such a case, and despite the great attention being given to problems like this one, who is to say where justice lies?

Juries can convict defendants, and Judges can mete out sentences, and society might somehow look at the picture and say justice has been done. But has it really? Not all men who hold the position of father are worthy of that title. And not all fathers are men of honor, responsibility, and sincerity.

Despite a man's criminal tendencies, if he is providing the semblance of a home for his family, if he is supporting it to the best of his ability and if outwardly he is doing normal things a father is expected to do, sending him to prison could bring a greater injustice to those it hurts most than the justice meted out to the defendant as an individual.

Mistakes are made in justice, and they will continue to be made so long as human beings judge other human beings. Thus the search for justice goes on. It will continue always, because there is a fine line between justice and true injustice.

In the final analysis all we can hope for and expect is the best judgment society has to offer.

Opinions In Brief

"Casual Observation: Some doctors must feel they've engaged in socialized medicine for years—giving free diagnoses at cocktail parties."—Greenville (S.C.) Piedmont.

"Where's that American optimism? A church group, requesting seed packets for the Congo, specified ANNUAL flowers."—Tallahassee (Fla.) Democrat.

Out of this conflict of attitudes may develop a new political party of strength. The current opposition to the Kennedy Administration, as demonstrated by the vote on the establishment of the Urban Secretariat, is principally within the Democratic Party. However, this is not exclusively a political issue because racial and self-government factors are involved. It is not, for instance, to be expected that a Democratic Senator from Mississippi will favor a Negro in the Cabinet or that the large cities will support the idea of federal control of municipalities.

This proposal from a strictly political standpoint, was as much an error as Roosevelt's Court packing plan except that the Negro vote is becoming so great a factor that politicians of both parties will cater to it.

Some less complex measure will be needed in Congress to establish the nature of the two party system in the Kennedy

New Interest In Political Scene

By LYNN NISBET

VOTING — The activity shown at recent county and congressional district Republican rallies throughout the state, and the record-breaking attendance at most of the Democratic rallies, testify to the growing interest in partisan politics. The official Democratic party meetings do not come along until in May. Advance information is that they will be better attended than in many years. It has been a long time since there was as much interest as shown this year in Republican meetings throughout the eastern part of the state. Western Republicans also have shown more disposition to attend meetings and perform their duty as citizens and patriots, rather than leave the machinery entirely in the hands of a few self-appointed engineers.

Traditionally the Republican congressional district meetings have picked the candidates for Congress. That practice was followed in majority of the districts this year. In at least two, the 9th and 11th, the issue will be decided in the primary May 26. The fourth district named a committee composed of one member from each county to pick a candidate before close of filing time on March 16.

It has been conceded by Democrats that the 9th and 11th districts will be real battlegrounds next fall. The Republican leaders apparently felt it would be safer for them to have candidates named by a majority in the primary rather than hand-picked by a few men at the convention.

As had been expected the eighth district Republicans nominated Charles R. Jonas, incumbent representative from the 10th district, but whose home county of Lincoln and strong supporting county of Mecklenburg were put into the revamped eighth district.

KEY POINT — In many respects the eighth district is regarded a key point in indicating Republican strength or trends in North Carolina. There are many observers in both parties who regard the 9th and 11th as more significant, because although they have not had Republicans in Congress for a great many years, the chances are better this time for the Republicans to win.

Republican Jonas will face in November either Paul Kitchin, incumbent congressman of the old eighth district, or John A. Kennedy of Charlotte, who is challenging Kitchin for the Democratic nomination. On basis of voting in the past two elections, the Democrats have an advantage of some 8,000 votes in the district. Questions now being asked are whether a primary contest will stimulate interest and insure a full Democratic vote, or if the friction likely to be caused by a heated primary fight will tend to reduce the November vote.

On basis of registration of voters the Democrats have an overwhelming majority. Even in Mecklenburg, where the vote has gone Republican by large majority the registration books show nearly twice as many Democrats.

New rules adopted by the Democrats at the recent executive committee meeting will make it slightly more difficult in some instances for registered Democrats to vote Republican, but the effect of these rules will be slight because they apply only to holders of office in the party organization, not to the rank and file voter.

LOYALTY OATH — The folks who were writing the new draft of the Plan of Organization, which included provision for disciplinary action against party officials, were very careful to steer away from anything like a "loyalty oath" for the rank and file voter. A recent interpretation of an old statute by Attorney General Wade Bruton indicates that such requirement has been on the law books for a long time covering some of the situations involved.

When a voter registers for the first time he is required to state his party affiliation — Democratic, Republican or Independent. He does not have to take an oath to support the nominees of any party. But — if later on a registered Democrat wants to change to Republican, or vice versa, he must take an oath to support his new party's nominee. The question posed to General Bruton was whether a party registrant could change to Independent and then later go to the other party without taking the oath to support its nominees. The Attorney General says he cannot, "because he cannot do legally by indirect way that is forbidden for direct action."

It still is not apparent why a man or woman can register for the first time without swearing to vote like somebody else suggests, but if they decide later to cross the road they must take an oath to go all the way with their new party.

Spotlight Put On Versatility

By ELMER ROESSNER

A device that can serve as a bed in a bomb shelter, a stretcher or — if the user doesn't survive — a burial unit has been entered in the 1962 Hess Brothers Versatility in Design and Use contest. It can save space in a shelter, allowing a little more room for the kiddies to play on the floor. It was entered by Joseph R. MacDonald, 62 Long Wharf, Boston.

Other entries in the contest were less macabre. The contest was originally contrived 11 years ago by press-agent Bert Nevins to publicize the store, now directed by Max Hess, Jr. And what was started as a gay gimmick has become an institution. So many entries have poured in for this year that handling entries and judging will cost Hess and Nevins a small fortune.

Prizes are awarded in various categories for products that have two or more uses, to save shoppers money, storage space and trouble.

Among the 1962 entries are: A tie clasp that holds an emergency key, for men who lose keys. An electrical appliance that does 78 jobs, ranging from a demoting generator to a hair dryer. A combination indoor TV antenna and pole lamp. An all-in-one kitchen, consisting of a stove, sink, refrigerator and storage cabinet all in a hardwood unit.

A battery-powered device has 14 beauty and health attachments.

A mink coat by Jean Desses, Paris, that can be worn full length, three-quarters length or as a stole. An appliance that can be used as a cooker, chafing dish, casserole or brazier. A combination storage chest for baby things, a dressing table, with laundry bags and an accessory shelf, which folds into compact size.

VERSATILITY OBSCURE The multiple uses of some entries is not clear. However, here is a list of some of the more interesting of these:

A car-top tent that opens into a double bed, and includes a canopy and a ladder to get into it. A man's dress hat that can be rolled, folded and packed without damaging the shape. An ashtray that automatically loses a forgotten cigarette into the tray. A diaper cover that buzzes when wet.

A device that converts shank buttons into earrings. A collapsible, 3-wheel auto that can be stowed on a boat. An electronic gavel which, at a push of a button, gives forth the sound of a wooden gavel beating for order.

A battery-powered toothbrush handle into which each member of a family can insert his or her brush head for electric brushing.

LITTLE FISHES SWIM AWAY FROM MAINE Only 6,500 cases of sardines have been packed in Maine since December 1, making the season a failure. The 675,000 cases produced in the regular season are almost all sold out and the price is firming.

AIR PURIFIERS RULED USELESS FOR ALLERGIES The Food and Drug Administration has ruled that household air filters sold in retail stores are not effective in preventing or treating allergies, sinus trouble or respiratory ailments, and has warned that filters so advertised are liable to seizure.

Commission Advises Unions Aid Rail Economy

By NORMAN WALKER
Associated Press Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—A presidential commission recommended today that labor unions give the nation's railroads broad leeway to streamline operations and eliminate thousands of jobs found unnecessary to run the trains.

The commission, reporting to President Kennedy conclusions of an exhaustive year-long study, said however the carriers would have to be prepared to ease the blow on displaced workers by providing them with partial pay for periods up to three years as well as schooling for other jobs.

The report agreed with industry complaints that the railroads have been saddled with costly feather bedding rules and practices, requiring pay for unneeded work. Most locomotive firemen were found to serve no useful purpose and gradual elimination of their jobs was recommended.

But the commission also had much to say about the plight of the rail workers, whose ranks have dwindled from more than 800,000 today. The study was concerned only with the problems of the 200,000 rail operating employees—those manning the moving trains.

continue on passenger train locomotives. Give the railroads "an unlimited right to introduce technological change," subject to the continued pay and other protections provided for employees losing their jobs. Eliminate crew change requirements at inter-divisional terminals.

Chairman Riffkind said the public members of the commission, from long study and on-the-spot inspections of railroads coast to coast, had unanimously decided the firemen, who once stoked the coal-burning locomotives, have no useful function aboard the present oil-burning diesel engines.

The commission was established by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in early 1961. James P. Mitchell, secretary of labor under Eisenhower, obtained an agreement between the carriers and the operating unions to establish the commission study.

Besides Riffkind, the public members are Russell A. Smith, vice chairman, associate dean, University of Michigan Law School; John T. Dunlop, Harvard economist; Charles W. Myers, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Francis J. Robertson, Washington attorney and arbitrator.

Million School Dropouts Of 1962 Already Defeated

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer
ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Almost a million lost, bewildered, defeated, hopeless youngsters will leave school before graduation this year and enter a world which has no place for them, an expert on youth problems said today.

Schreiber said half the dropouts will be unable to find work. Those that do, he said, will be restricted to such unskilled jobs as filling station attendants, stock clerks and car washers.

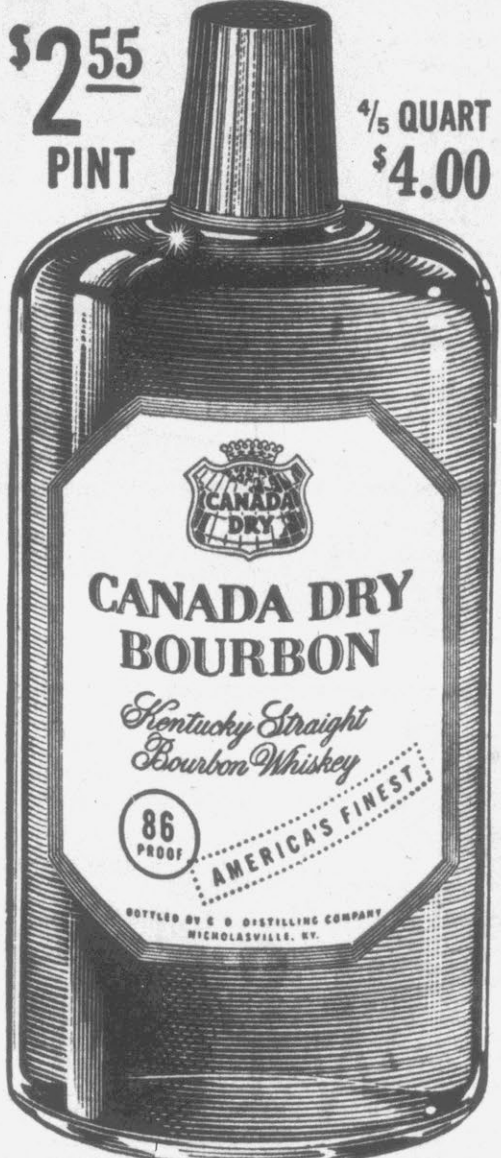

Automated examining equipment for checking transistors permit four men to do the work that 100 did a few years ago.

Daniel Schreiber, director of the school drop-out project of the National Education Association said of them, "Constantly running from work half-done, from school half-completed, these drop-outs are truly fugitives from failure."

He cited these figures: During the past 10 years, 50,000 elevator operator jobs disappeared in New York City alone, 8,000 during the past year.

The greatest single factor in school drop-outs, Schreiber said, is inability to read.

Family attitudes toward education is another important factor, Schreiber said. He cited studies in Louisiana and New York in which two-thirds of the parents interviewed didn't think that lack of a high school education would hamper their children's chances of getting a job.

Schreiber said the schools must devise better programs of instruction, particularly in reading; work closely with parents to impress upon them the importance of a high school education; provide more and better guidance for the potential drop-out.

Abolish firemen gradually beginning next July 1 from all freight and yard service locomotive crews. This alone would wipe out some 35,000 jobs within a decade—at eventual savings the carriers have estimated at $250 million a year. Firemen would cost the railroads about $60 mil-

The report brought an angry dissent from the commission's union members who said it may lead to a nationwide strike. It was also disappointing to the rail industry, which had hoped for greater savings than will be immediately possible.

Simon H. Riffkind, former New York U.S. District judge and the commission chairman, expressed confidence that if both sides used the report "as a candle to light their way, and not as a radiator to heat them up," early agreement could be reached to help put the rail industry back on its feet.

The commission called on the carriers and unions—the engineers, firemen, trainmen, conductors and switchmen—to begin prompt negotiations on the recommendations with the view of ending what it called 19th century labor practices and launching of a new rail progress.

These are the principal recommendations: Abolish firemen gradually beginning next July 1 from all freight and yard service locomotive crews. This alone would wipe out some 35,000 jobs within a decade—at eventual savings the carriers have estimated at $250 million a year. Firemen would Overhaul the complex operating employe pay system, so workers will be paid both for the time and mileage on their runs. The commission found widespread pay disparities and inequities which it recommended be corrected.

Shorten work hours for many workers. The commission found some employes work only four hours for a day's pay, others as much as 15 hours. It said a present 16-hour limit on a work day should be quickly reduced to 14 and eventually to 12.

Require more overtime pay to discourage the management from working men long hours. This also would help spread jobs. Along that line an immediate mandatory retirement for men 70 or older was recommended. Over a five-year period the mandatory retirement age would be reduced to 65.

The commission estimated the net effect of the various pay changes would mean about a two per cent hourly wage increase for all the employes as a group. About three-fourths of the workers would realize increased earnings. The remainder would get less unless they worked longer hours.

These pay adjustments would cost the railroads about $60 million a year. But eliminating the firemen and freedom to make other changes would mean considerably greater economies than that.

Doing away with the firemen would follow an example set on Canadian railroads five years ago. The same U.S. unions agreed to the Canadian move after a royal commission recommended it.

However, the Canadian change-over provided that no currently employed fireman would lose his job. It simply required no new firemen would be hired. The Riffkind commission said this attrition plan would work too slowly in this country.

It recommended, instead, gradually removing firemen with less than 10 years seniority from jobs over the next year or so. Firemen with greater seniority would be gradually retired or promoted to engineers.

Workers displaced would receive 60 per cent of their prior regular pay for up to three years regardless of earnings realized in newly found employment. They also would receive up to two years railroad-provided training for other employment. Men held off would go on a na-

A New JOHN CREASEY Thriller

A ROCKET FOR ROLLISON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Kate Lawson was waiting apprehensively at a London airport to meet her fiancé, Maurice Holmes. They had been apart two years, while he was on business in the U. S. After so long a time did Maurice still have the same affection for her that had led to their becoming engaged? His letters hadn't appeared to change in tone, but they had been arriving further apart. Possibly that was only because of business demands and distractions. The plane landed and her heart beat faster. Straining her eyes for a sight of Maurice as the passengers departed, Kate was bowled over viciously by an Alsatian dog. Sprawled on the ground, she was conscious of being hit on the side of her head, and then blackness came over her.

When she regained consciousness, a young doctor, Mike Kennedy, was attending her. Looking around, Kate's first thought was Maurice. There was no sign of him. After a search proved he was nowhere at the airport, Kennedy drove Kate to her home.

CHAPTER 3

Dr. Kennedy jumped out and rounded the car to open the door for Kate Lawson. "You'll probably find Mr. Holmes here soon," he said.

"Yes, I expect I shall," Kate made herself say, and went on: "You've been most helpful—thank you very much indeed."

"Only sorry I couldn't do more," Dr. Kennedy said.

He escorted her to the front door, which was always kept unlocked during the day. He opened it. A flight of stairs covered with red linoleum stretched in front of her, and her head was beating badly enough to make her wish she hadn't to face four such flights. But she turned round and held out her hand.

"Goodbye—and thank you very much again."

"Oh, forget it," Dr. Kennedy said. He had a firm handclasp, and his smile was still broad.

Kate turned and went into the house, closing the door behind her. She stopped at each of three landings, feeling sure that Maurice wasn't here yet; he would have come running down once he heard her. She reached her own landing, and stood holding the rail tightly. The door was closed and locked, of course.

She let herself in.

"Flat" was hardly the right word for this apartment, which was little more than one huge room with an enormous north window. Leading off on one side were a kitchen and bathroom, each so tiny that there was hardly room to move freely; on the other side was a cubicle which she used as a bedroom. She had spent a lot of time and thought on decorating the flat, in order to please Maurice.

She immediately took three aspirin and then sat down on an upright chair with a high back. She could never remember a worse headache. She leaned back and closed her eyes for fully five minutes, telling herself that she would hear the moment the door opened, and would recognize Maurice's tread on the first staircase.

How would she? Two years. Has he b'gosh? Why had Dr. Kennedy said that? Why was it difficult to think of the pink-faced man as a doctor? "My name's Kennedy, Mike Kennedy," and that seemed exactly the right name for him.

A little chiming clock in the bedroom struck nine.

It was no use telling herself that Maurice had taken all this time to get from the airport; he had left in the taxi, possibly in a huff, and hadn't come straight here. She had booked a room for him at a small Kensington hotel, near his offices, and he was almost certainly there. Surely he would telephone before long. If he didn't, she would have to but he could hardly have taken this so badly that he would not even lift a telephone to find out what had happened.

She looked across at the telephone standing on the side of her desk.

Then she noticed that one of the side drawers was open an inch.

That puzzled her, because being something of a creature of habit, she always made sure that each drawer was closed properly before locking the center drawer—which in turn locked all the others.

She hadn't used the desk today, but had spent most of last evening at it, getting invoices, checks, letters, and everything to do with her business up-to-date, so that for a few days she would be able to take off as much time as Maurice needed. She remembered closing each drawer last night.

Frowning, she stood up and went towards the desk. There was an ache in front of her eyes and at the back of her head, but she felt better. She pulled at the drawer, and it came open; it was the one in which she kept her writing paper, bill heads and hopes. She must have been in the drawer and it opened.

Now she felt really alarmed, because she was quite sure that she hadn't left this unlocked. She pulled it out further, and saw that all the contents were out of order.

The pens and pencils and little oddments she kept at the front were pushed to one side. A shallow tray of pins and paper clips had been upset. A blotting pad, her address book and her bank statements, all kept in here, were ying in the wrong positions.

She left the drawer open, bent down and snatched at the bottom one on the right, where she kept her cash box. There had been upwards of a hundred pounds in the box last night—cash against any emergency, chiefly in case Maurice couldn't get to a bank quickly and needed some.

The cash box was still there. She picked it up, and the lid came back. She saw at a glance that the lock had been forced—light glinted on the brass where it had been broken. She hardly needed to open the inside box, to check that it was empty.

Even the stamps, the silver and the few postal orders she kept here were gone. She felt a sense of shock and disability that this should have happened to her.

Then she put the cash box on the desk, and opened the other drawers, including the double-depth drawer in which she kept her business files. This did not seem to be touched. She checked the others, then realized with a sense of shock that Maurice's letters were gone.

There were ninety-one of them; she had counted them only last night. Ninety-one, eleven of them blue airmail letter forms, AYDEN—Coach Stuart Tripp's league leading Tornadoes won their fourteenth game of the season last night by downing Stokes-Pactolus 57-37 in a makeup contest.

The two teams were tied at the end of the first period 15-15. However, Ayden pulled ahead in the second quarter for a five point halftime lead with the score 27-22. The Tornadoes went on to increase their lead during the second half for the 20 point margin when the final horn sounded.

The high scorers for the winners were William Edwards and Clem McLawhorn with 16 points each. The only other Ayden player in the double figures was Emmitt Gibson with 11 points. The high scorers for Stokes-Pactolus were Carroll Flemming and Billy Roebuck with nine points each.

In the girls game the outcome was reversed with the Blue Jays defeating the Ayden girls 39-27 for their eighth win of the season.

At the end of the first period of play the two teams were tied 7-7, but Stokes-Pactolus moved ahead in the second quarter when they outscored Ayden 10-8 for a 17-15 halftime lead. The third quarter was a nip and tuck battle. However, in the final period the Blue Jays added another 10 points to their lead for the win.

The high scorer for the winners was Lillian Crisp with 17 points. She was followed by Jenny Forbes with 14 points. For Ayden the high scorer was Nancy Stokes with 16 points.

Ayden will host Farmville Friday night in the final game of the season for both teams. On the same night Stokes will travel to Belvoir-Palkland.

Northeastern Tourney Begins Tonight

Holy Cross Expected To Be Ninth Team In NIT

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

(Jack the Shot) Foley and his free-wheeling Crusaders from Holy Cross were expected today to be named the ninth team in the National Invitational Tournament in Madison Square Garden.

The Shot, No. 2 scorer in the nation's major colleges, plunked in 34 points Tuesday night to lead the Crusaders to an 86-75 victory over Boston College in a show-down for an NIT spot.

Ken Norton, chief of the NIT selection committee, said he was watching the Holy Cross-BC game "with great interest," meaning that the winner got an invitation to the tournament starting on March 15.

In the Southwest Conference the race for the title and the NCAA tournament spot remained a two-way scramble between Southern Methodist and Texas Tech. SMU turned back Baylor 69-52, and Tech downed Texas A&M 69-49, and in the process eliminated the Aggies from the race.

Both SMU and Texas Tech now are 10-3 in the league with one more game to play. SMU goes up against Arkansas and Tech faces Rice next Tuesday. If they wind up in a tie for the title, they'll have a one-game playoff.

Holy Cross' victory over Boston College avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of the Eagles. The Shot, a 6-5 senior and Crusader co-captain, now has scored 734 points in 22 games. He hit on 14 of 28 shots from the floor and 6 of 8 from the foul line.

The Shot had a big assist from 5-10 Joe Kelly, who acted as play-maker and court general. When he was taken out just before the first half ended, the Eagles ran up nine straight points.

Southern Methodist, which has been getting stronger as the season progresses, has won seven straight games. Joe Loudermilk, leading scorer in the Southwest Conference, pitched in 27 points to pace SMU. Harold Henson had 22 for Baylor.

Harold Hudgens was the big man in the Texas Tech victory over the Aggies, scoring 24 points and grabbing 13 rebounds.

Bowling Green, No. 7, was the only team in the top ten of the current Associated Press poll to play. The Mid-American Conference champions downed Detroit, an NCAA at-large entry, 89-55. Nate Thurmond had 24 points for the Falcons.

Detroit got a bad break when Dave Debusschere sprained his ankle early in the game. The Titan ace was used sparingly the rest of the way connecting on only 2 of 11 field goal attempts.

Connecticut, still hoping to push through to the Yankee Conference crown, whipped New Hampshire, 85-72, with Dave Conney getting 23 points, 19 of them in the second half. The Nutmeggers are in third place with a 6-3 record behind Massachusetts, 8-1, and Rhode Island, 6-2.

In other major games, NCAA-bound Air Force Academy vanquished South Dakota, 84-57, and Notre Dame halted Evansville, 99-91. Texas edged Arkansas, 61-60 and Texas Christian put away Rice, 75-73, in other Southwest Conference games; Arizona State U. polished off Arizona 67-53; Drake stopped Tulsa, 84-75 in a Missouri Valley Conference game, Montana State scored over Gonzaga, 73-71, and Idaho beat Washington State 65-60.

The season of the year is here again when basketball teams everywhere are making their final efforts in tournament play to see who reigns for another year.

Eastern North Carolina is no different, and the tournament which Greenville is most concerned with this week is the Northeastern Conference battle in the East Carolina gym which begins tonight and runs through Saturday.

Phantoms Meet Cardinals
The opening game tonight has a special meaning to Greenville as the Phantoms of Rose High school will take on the Jacksonville Cardinals at 7 p.m. Greenville and Jacksonville finished in a tie during the regular season with 8-6 records in league play.

The two clubs split the regular season games with the Phantoms coming out on top in the first contest 70-69 on Jan. 5 and Jacksonville winning the second game on Feb. 6, 75-68. According to these scores the two teams appear to be evenly matched and the contest tonight should be exciting.

To review the season briefly, the Phantoms got off to a bad start with two defeats to Wilson and two to Rocky Mount. However, when the conference schedule got underway on Jan. 2 Coach Bo Farley's charges gained their first victory of the season by downing Tarboro 79-73. Then came the win over Jacksonville and next was a loss to New Bern. After that, the Phantoms won three games in a row and looked as if they might continue that way. However, Tarboro handed them a loss which was the first of three in a row. During the rest of the season the Greenville team saw one loss and three wins.

Jacksonville Starts Rough
Coach Tom Pritchard's Cardinals also had a rough start. They lost their first eight outings before recording a win.

Leading the Phantoms most of the season in the scoring department has been Rodney Knowles. The 6-foot 7-inch sophomore finished the regular schedule with 331 points in 16 games for a 20.7 average. His highest game of the season was against Jacksonville on the Cardinals' home court with 37 points. Oddly enough, Jacksonville's high scorer, Jimmy Henson, had his best night at the same time with 31 points.

Next in line in the Greenville scoring department is Kroghie Andresen with 178 points in 16 games for an 11.1 average. Andresen was slow at first, but managed to pick up about half way through the season. The second half of a contest seems to be Kroghie's best, according to the score book.

Billy James is the third place man with the points. His average has held right around 10 most of the season. However, when the final totals were run, he had 163 points in 17 games for a 9.6 average.

Other averages for Greenville are Kenneth Allen with 76, Jack Foley with 75 and Alan McArthur with 61. All three of these boys have done good jobs under the boards this season. Allen is a sophomore and Foley is a junior so both boys will be big assets to the team next year.

Henson Leads Cardinals
Jacksonville's Henson leads the scoring department for the Cardinals with 372 points in 19 games for a 19.6 average. Next in line is William Davis with 214 points and an 11.3 average. Other averages are Phil Harris with 104 and 198 points, Fred Willett with 98 and 187 points and Jerry Wallace with 52 and 94 points.

In the second game tonight Roanoke Rapids, who finished first during the regular season, will take on eight place Elizabeth City.

On Thursday night, second place New Bern will meet seventh place Washington and third place Tarboro will play Kinston. Friday night the winners of the Greenville-Jacksonville game will play the winner of New Bern-Washington game and the winner of the Roanoke Rapids-Elizabeth City game will take on the winner of the Tarboro-Kinston game.

Phant Wrestlers Gain Three Pins In Finals

KINSTON—In the Northeastern Conference wrestling tournament here this week the New Bern Bears came out on top with 91 points. Kinston was in second place with 77 points and Greenville and Jacksonville tied for fourth place with 76 points.

During the meet Coach Don Bennett's Greenville Phantoms received three first places, two second places, three third places and four fourth places.

Greenville was the only school to gain pins during the final round of the tournament. Paul Evans, Sammy Pugh and Dalton Owens were the boys who pinned their men for the Phantoms.

The outcome of the title matches was as follows:

Paul Evans of Greenville pinned Taylor of Kinston in the 98-pound class, Oliver of New Bern decided Wiggins of Jacksonville in the 106-pound class, Sammy Pugh of Greenville pinned Skinner of Kinston in the 115-pound class, Hadder of New Bern decided Hoge of Jacksonville in the 123-pound class, Dalton Owens of Greenville pinned Taylor of Jacksonville in the 130-pound class and Taylor of Jacksonville decided Hayes of Kinston in the 136-pound class.

Deacons Earn Top Seeding In ACC

RALEIGH (AP)—The hottest team and the hottest scorer of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball stretch run have earned for Wake Forest's defending champions the top seeding in the championship tournament starting here Thursday.

When the Deacons oppose Virginia's tail-enders in the 7:30 game that opens the night double-header, they will be seeking their seventh straight victory.

Their over-all record is 15-8 and the conference mark is 12-2, but they've had to take 8 of their last 10 games to achieve this status.

Perhaps the most awesome figure in the conference is 6-8, 240-pound Len Chappell, Wake Forest's super senior from Portage, Pa.

Large Lennie has been scoring points like a machine through the last 10 games. For the first 13, during which Wake Forest had a modest 7-6 record, he had a 27-point average on 352 points. But in the last 10 games he scored 359 points, a 35.9 average. He's averaged more than 15 rebounds a game and been the man that makes the team go.

He's brought his season mark to 30.9 and raised his three-year career total to 1,944.

It's been a yearly pattern with him since his sophomore season to sharply step up production after the mid-exam break.

Chappell hit a career high of 50 points against Virginia two weeks ago as Wake Forest won 116-67. Although he went almost the first 10 minutes without a basket, he finished with 18 on 24 shots, hitting 14 of 16 in the last half.

In the last 10 games he also scored in the 30s seven times and closed the regular season last Saturday night with 42 against South Carolina. His low over the stretch was 25 against N.C. State last week in a tough game in which he sparked a last half comeback to beat Sate and clinch top seeding for the Deacons.

"Leonard", as coach Bones McKinney often refers to him, has demonstrated in several games

Martin County Tourney Begins

In the opening round of the Martin County Tournament Thursday night in the Williams-ton gym the Jamesville girls play the Robersonville girls and the Jamesville boys will meet the Oak City boys.

In the four team conference for the boys standings Jamesville came out on top with Robersonville second, Oak City third and Bear Grass fourth. In the girls standings Jamesville and Oak City tied for first place with Robersonville and Bear Grass following in that order.

In the second round of the tournament Friday night the Robersonville boys will play the Bear Grass boys and the Oak City girls will meet the Bear Grass girls.

The girls game begins at 7:30 with the boys following around 8:45 p.m.

Two Of Four In Opening Round Have Not Met Yet

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Two of the four opening round games in the Southern Conference basketball tournament here Thursday match teams who did not face each other during the regular season, while a third pairs off two quintets who tangled just once.

This year that he can hit from outside as well as from close to the basket. He's led his team in scoring in every game and a 15-point night against Ohio State is the only time he failed to hit at least 21.

Thursday's program opens at 2 p.m. with N.C. State, the third-seeded team, facing Clemson and Duke, second-seeded and nationally ranked since before the season started, taking on Maryland at 4 p.m. In Art Heyman Duke hopes to have the answer to Chappell if the two top teams make the finals.

North Carolina and South Carolina, who deadlocked for fourth place, meet at 9:30 to complete the first round.

Only one scrap, the one that sends West Virginia's top-seeded Mountaineers against Richmond's home-standing Spiders, involves clubs who faced each other in home-and-home warfare.

George Washington's fourth-seeded defending champion Colonials tangle with Davidson's Wildcats in the tourney's 2 p.m. opener, while the second afternoon contest at 4 p.m. sends second-ranked Virginia Tech against The Citadel's Cadets.

The West Virginia-Richmond encounter opens the night program at 7:36 p.m. while Furman's third-ranked Paladins go against Virginia Military Institute's Keydets in the 9:30 p.m. finale.

George Washington and Davidson met once during the season with the Colonials handing the Wildcats a 95-77 lacing on GW's home court. That was one of the six straight defeats Davidson suffered before the Wildcats embarked on a school-record 12 straight victories and an eventual 14-10 record.

Remodeled Dictionary Has Set Off Storm Of Words

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
 NEW YORK (AP)—That big, remodeled word book, "Webster's Third New International Dictionary of the English Language," is stirring up a storm of words. "A scandal," say some critics. "Debased verbal currency." "Accurate," say the book's editors. "The language that is used." Ever since the new, 2,662-page, linguistic tome came out last fall, it has provided a steady tumult of reaction, pro and con.

What seems to have produced the main outcry is that the dictionary doesn't classify as slang or colloquial usage a lot of terms that formerly were put in that category.

For instance: on the lam, stick-up, con, softsoap, conny. All these were downgraded in the old dictionary, not in the new.

Many terms not included at all in the old dictionary—such as hot-rod, goon, price-wise, jalopy, yeah, gobbledygook, hipster—are elevated to fully respectable English in the new.

So is the best set's disparaging term, "square," which is defined: "a person who is an outsider or adversary because of the conventionality, conservatism or respectability of his taste, behavior or way of life: one who is not in the know: unsophisticated."

This characterization just about sums up the publisher's view of the critics. Gordon J. Gallan, president of G. & C. Merriam Co., which has put out Webster's dictionaries for more than a century, terms the complaints, "Superficial comments of a few journalists who are reluctant to admit that our language has changed rapidly in the last few decades."

The objections have come—headily—from a variety of sources, however, ranging from writers and reference book specialists to teachers and a law journal.

"Webster III has thrust upon us a dismaying assortment of the questionable, the perverse, the unworthy and the downright outrageous," says author Wilson Follitt, writing in last month's Atlantic Monthly.

"It has gone over bodily to the school that construes traditions as enslaving, the rudimentary principles of syntax as crippling, and taste as irrelevant."

Among other things, he protests the dictionary's approval of the usage of various words in ways widely considered improper before—such as using "like" for "as if" and "due to" for "because of."

The dictionary, the first completely revised, unabridged Webster's in a quarter century, includes 450,000 entries. Among them, the editors say, are 100,000 new words or new meanings.

The New York Times, in an indignant bit of editorial irony, commented, "A passel of double-domes at the G. and C. Merriam Co. joint in Springfield, Mass., have been confabbing and yakking for 27 years—and have now finalized—a new edition of that swell and esteemed book."

The Times said that Webster's for generations had been a "peerless authority" on sound usage, but that the new edition was "bound to cause dismay" to teachers, editors and others interested in good taste in English.

Dr. Philip B. Cove, editor-in-chief of the new dictionary, said the words ridiculed by the Times appear in "serious writing today."

He said the dictionary's aim was to "report the language" as it is, not to prescribe what belongs in it.

It is just this policy that aroused many of the objections.

"The great mass of dictionary users want and need a dictionary to prescribe for them," says B. Sumner Smeaton, of Los Angeles State College, writing in the Library Journal.

He said a dictionary doesn't need to prescribe in "an authoritarian sense" so as to ban perpetual changes in language, but it should point up the current "most widely acceptable" usages among teachers and editors.

"It is no snobbery to ask a yardstick to measure by," he said.

Last month's issue of the American Bar Association Journal also criticized the new edition, saying "a serious blow has recently befallen the cause of good English."

The editorial adds: "The most serious indictment of the new dictionary is that it has utterly abdicated any role as judge of what is good English usage."

Dr. Cove responded that the dictionary simply sought to do what Noah Webster did when he brought out his early two-volume work in 1828—"interpret the culture and language" of the day.

Publisher Gallan observed, "Popular outcry on changes in language is an old story to dictionary makers. It began with Noah Webster and continues right down to the present day. The language belongs to the people who use it, not to the critics who try to dictate."

Protests also have been made to the first inclusion of some four-letter vulgar words. Other common obscenities, however, still are out.

There also have been objections to the new edition's omission of the biographical and gazetteer sections from the back of the book.

The new dictionary also omits proper names, such as Jesus.

Cove said the biographical and gazetteer information now was available from so many other sources that it seemed unnecessary to include it in the new edition.

Last week, James Parton, president of the American Heritage Co. here, disclosed efforts by that firm to buy control of the Merriam Company, saying it was "atrociously managed," lagging in sales growth and "badly in need of new guidance."

He said the "world of scholarship is horrified" by the new dictionary.

Gallan reported that Merriam had just completed "the most successful year in its history" that Parton's firm had managed to buy only 300 of 45,000 Merriam shares, and that Merriam directors controlled a substantial part of the stock and weren't interested in selling.

Parton's statement, Gallan said, was "not worthy of consideration" and was "without foundation in fact."

As for contents of the new dictionary, he said, "Only a few scholars have so far studied the book and reported on their findings, and these few have been enthusiastically favorable."

In the preface of the new dictionary, Cove says that definitions and status of words were drawn mainly from examples of usage collected in the last 25 years, but that "material of unsubstantial or evanescent quality" was discarded and terms added only if they have found a place in the language.

The new dictionary, he said, "is offered with confidence that it will supply in full measure that information on the general language which is required for accurate, clear and comprehensive understanding of the vocabulary of today's society."

Boy's Invention Licked Problem

WILLIAMSON, N. Y. (AP)—W. John Knapp is an inventor at 14, and the State Agriculture Department says he's licked a problem which has bothered farmers for years.

Farmers spraying their fields have a tough time telling what part they've sprayed and what part they've missed.

John filled a cylinder with chalk and attached it, by means of a special rod, to a farmer's spray rig. Every time the wheel of the spray rig turned, a measured amount of chalk dropped out of the cylinder, marking the field to show where it had been sprayed.

The agriculture department tested the device and said it saved them more than $500 in labor costs in 27 days of spraying.

ENVOY—William E. Stevenson, 61-year-old educator, is the new United States ambassador to the Philippines. He is the former president of Oberlin College in Ohio.

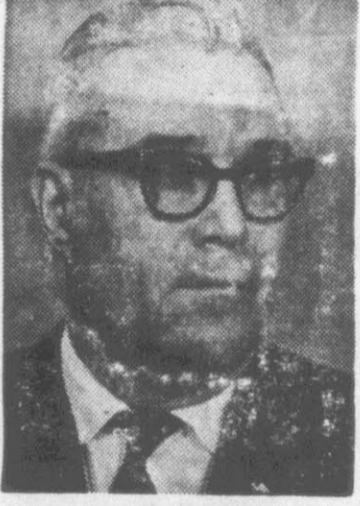

Retiring Judge To Study Music

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Retiring Washington State Supreme Court Judge Joseph A. Mallery, a fiddler since he was 14, now plans to study music.

"I want to go back to school to learn what I've been missing—harmony, and how to read music," Judge Mallery said.

He was the justice who dropped the baton on the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP) back in 1948. He wrote the majority opinion in a state case in which it was said America's music lovers might be shocked to learn that ASCAP was "asserting a right to royalties from Beethoven's 'Minuet.'"

Looking ahead to less-busy days, Judge Mallery said he might compose some melodies he has had in mind since boyhood but did not know how to put down in a musical score.

Healing Service Set Tomorrow

The monthly healing service held at St. Paul's Church will be conducted tomorrow, Thursday at 7:30 p.m. This is a regular event for the first Thursday in each month. The service is held in the church and is open to persons of all faiths.

The New Testament bears record of many healings by Our Lord. That same spiritual power is made available to the sick of today in His body the Church.

The Rector, the Rev. John W. Drake, Jr., will offer a meditation on Temptation of Jesus Matt. 4:1-11 as a portion of the service. In a very informal service prayers will be offered for healing and health; hymns will be sung about the strengthening grace of Jesus Christ; intercessions for the sick will lift up their names before God; the ministrations of laying on of hands will be proffered to those assembled. These persons can come for their own need or in behalf of others.

Administration. When Nixon was defeated in 1960, the Republican Party showed little life. The Nixon campaign had been undramatic and the influence of Madison Avenue was too marked in its operations. Then Goldwater took over, and apart from the prospects of his own candidacy, he gave the Republican Party a strong shot of purpose and goal. The election of Senator John Tower in Texas added new life to what seemed to be a dying party. In this country, however, a party to affect the country, must have a large personnel of able leaders. This the Republicans must find in the generations now emerging.

Oscar Award Season's Timing Seems Hexed

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Something seems to hex Oscar's timing.

Three years ago the awards telecast proved 20 minutes short. There was much embarrassment stalling until the show went off the air.

This week the nominations were announced at the precise time astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. was addressing Congress.

Everyone knows how the awards are handed out; what about the nominations? It's kind of dull, really.

Reporters mill about in the lobby of the academy's theater. They are joined by a covey of press agents, eager to get the news first to their clients.

An upstairs door opens, and the host charges up to the academy library. Reporters pick up the announcement kits and hurry to a long table laden with typewriters and telephones.

That's all that happens. The reporters cogitate or dictate, each according to his deadline. Academy officers beam for the television cameras. Press agents gloat or groan, each according to the fortunes of his clients.

What hath the 34th annual nominations wrought?

Some rather surprising omissions. How come Maurice Chevalier was overlooked for his role in "Fanny" while Charles Boyer wasn't? Why wouldn't the academy take Jimmy Cagney's great comic performance in "One, Two, Three" seriously? How could voters ignore Albert Finney in "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning"?

Did Shirley Maclaine and Audrey Hepburn cancel each other out of contention for "The Children's Hour"? Audrey was nominated for "Breakfast at Tiffany's".

How come no recognition for Rosalind Russell's transformation

Burch-Brewer Trial Date Set

RALEIGH (AP)— Trial of former Highway Engineer Robert A. Burch, his son, Bobby, and Raleigh businessman Kidd Brewer on a conspiracy charge has been set for April 16 in Wake Superior Court.

Attorneys for the trio and District Solicitor Lester Chalmers told Judge Raymond Mallard Tuesday they had agreed on the date.

Mallard had said he would schedule the trial himself if the attorneys were unable to agree.

The three were indicted last week on charges of conspiring to defraud the state by rigging Highway Department sign specifications.

The indictment said he men had plotted to get the elder Burch to write sign specifications which caused the state "to have to purchase materials at the highest prices."

Chalmers said he would have other indictments to send to the grand jury. Judge Mallard told him to give the defense attorneys two weeks notice before calling trial of any other indictments.

Passenger Train Rams Wreck; 9 People Injured

LEWISTOWN, Pa. (AP)— A Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train today plowed into the wreckage of a freight train which had derailed almost simultaneously. Three diesel locomotives and 17 of the 18 cars of the passenger train derailed, injuring at least nine persons.

The passenger train, the Pennsylvania Limited No. 55, was bound from New York to Chicago when the accident occurred 23 miles east of this central Pennsylvania community.

Ambulances took seven of the injured to Lewistown Hospital and two others to the Black Community Hospital here. A spokesman at Lewistown Hospital said only one person there appeared to be seriously injured.

Railroad spokesmen said the passenger train carried some 100 passengers and a crew of 21.

Railroad spokesmen said the locomotives of the passenger train upset but the passenger cars remained in an upright position.

The spokesmen said a burned-out journal might have caused the freight train to derail. Twelve cars of the Chicago to New York freight left the track. About 2,000 feet of track on both the passenger and freight trains were torn up. The passenger train did not have a chance to stop, the spokesmen said.

The engineer of the passenger train was identified as S. D. Miller, of Altoona, Pa. He suffered a fractured leg, the spokesmen said.

Dorothy Schlossberg, 45, of Wilmette, Ill., who was taken to Black Hospital for treatment of a bruised leg and X rays said she had her eyes half shut when "I heard this jar and it all happened so fast."

"It was quite a jar," she said. "But there was no panic."

The spokesmen said the passenger train left New York at 10 p.m. and Philadelphia at 11:32. It was due to arrive in Chicago at 3:25 p.m. today. The accident occurred at 2:50 a.m.

Wreck trains were sent to the scene.

An eastbound passenger train picked up the passengers from the wrecked train and took them to Tyrone where they were met by a relief train from Harrisburg which took them on westward.

N. C. Guidance Service Speaker At Meeting

FARMVILLE—The second in a series of meetings sponsored by the H. B. Sugg School Guidance Committee was held here Tuesday in the school gymnasium.

The theme for the meeting encompassed requirements and expenses of college and employment opportunities.

D. D. Burge listed requirements and expenses of several North Carolina schools. Mrs. L. B. Cobb discussed the job opportunities upon completion of college work.

Miss Thelma L. Cumbo, member of the State Department of Guidance Service and North Carolina College faculty member, was the featured speaker. "Your future is what you make it," keyed her address.

She emphasized that students

At Least Nine U-2 Planes Lost

WASHINGTON (AP)—At least nine U2 high altitude jets—like the one Francis Gary Powers flew over Russia—have been lost in crashes in the United States.

The Air Force disclosed this today in reply to a query.

The tally includes only the U2 aircraft operated by the Air Force itself and used for high altitude sampling of fallout, weather surveys and other research, the Air Force said.

It does not count the Powers' plane that went down deep in Soviet Russia in May 1960 or possible others operated by the Central Intelligence Agency.

The Air Force said the reported losses of its U2s have been caused by various factors, including flame-outs, trouble with electrical systems and landing crashes.

Early last month, a U2 pilot flying near Picayune, Miss., ejected from his plane after what he said was a malfunction in the electrical system.

The U2 was built for a highly specialized purpose—to fly at altitudes of 70,000 feet or more, at speeds comparatively slow for a jet and for long distances.

In designing these specialized features into the U2, some built-in problems also came. The U2 is something like a jet-powered glider. It has very low wing loading (the ratio of weight carried to wing area). And, compared with combat jet fighters, it is fragile in turbulent air or rough landings.

Last Rites Set For Mrs. John Culifer

FALKLAND — Mrs. Rebecca Ann Culifer, 92, died while in a doctor's office in Fountain Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock following a heart attack.

Interest was at a high peak among the more than 40 members of the community who gathered to further the fire department movement.

A report of the survey committee appointed by President Rob Jones Jr. revealed that the coverage area of the new department included around 1,000 buildings. The group then voted to charge $15 for the main frame dwelling and $5.00 for each additional building 12 by 12 feet in size.

Before the meeting ended several large checks were handed in from the group assembled with G. R. Gurganus being the first member to officially join.

Surviving are seven sons: Walter Culifer of Ernul, John Culifer of Crisp, Luther Culifer of Pinetops, Ashley (Jack) Culifer of New Bern, Amos Culifer of Mt. Wilson, Md., William Culifer of Syracuse, N. Y., Calvin Culifer of Tarboro; two daughters: Mrs. Lucy Belle Strickland of Morehead City, and Mrs. Helen Clark of Falkland; 26 grandchildren; 28 great grandchildren; a brother—Amos Stocks of Greenville; and a sister, Mrs. Dollie Dail of Pitt County.

Rites Thursday For Mrs. B. F. Owens

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home by the Rev. L. B. Manning of Fountain, assisted by the Rev. Frank Ray Harrison of Wilson. Burial will follow in Queen Anne Cemetery in Fountain.

Mrs. Owens was a life long resident of the Farmville community. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Annie Lee Webb, Rt. 2, Farmville, Mrs. John Thomas Moore, Rt. 2, Farmville; two sisters, Mrs. W. B. Bridges, Wilson, Mrs. S. C. Luper, Rocky Mount; three grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Another Rural Fire Dept. Organizing

BELL ARTHUR—The second rural volunteer fire department to be organized in Pitt County in less than one month, the Bell Arthur Fire Department last night launched its drive for funds to buy a truck.

Interest was at a high peak among the more than 40 members of the community who gathered to further the fire department movement.

A report of the survey committee appointed by President Rob Jones Jr. revealed that the coverage area of the new department included around 1,000 buildings. The group then voted to charge $15 for the main frame dwelling and $5.00 for each additional building 12 by 12 feet in size.

Before the meeting ended several large checks were handed in from the group assembled with G. R. Gurganus being the first member to officially join.

President of the Pitt Fireman's Association Roy Hardee of Greenville appeared before the group to discuss the overall progress which has been made in the fire protection program in Pitt in recent months.

"We are pleased that your community is forming its department and it will play a vital role in the county protection program," Hardee said. "You are giving your family and neighbors protection which they now do not have and the kind of insurance which they can not buy anywhere. Your investment in a fire truck is not just a matter of one or two years but much, much longer. It is a small outlay for the returns you will receive."

"The fire departments of the county and the Pitt Fireman's Association stand ready and willing to help you with your new department, its training and operations so you are not alone in this venture," the Fire Association president said in closing.

A third meeting will be held on Tuesday night, March 6, in the Methodist church at which time collection reports will be made. It is also anticipated that one of the county rural trucks will be on display.

Members of the collection committee for the Bell Arthur fire department include: A. D. McArthur, Glenn Strickland, John Planagan, R. R. Webb, Jack Tyson, K. M. Crawford, G. R. Gurganus, C. V. Nichols, Dawford Baker, Douglas Baker, Fred Caraway, Willis Vandford, Davis Harris and Rob Jones Jr.

Some dragonflies migrate hundreds of miles each year. These insects are as agile as the hummingbird.

Fifty-Eight At Planning Meet

The Negro staff of the Pitt County Extension Service held a Program Planning meeting at the Simpson School, Monday evening with 58 leaders from the Simpson and Grimesland area in attendance.

The purpose of the meeting was to arrive at some of the problems the Pitt Negro citizens are concerned with and to set up goals and objectives to be worked toward this year.

A similar meeting is being planned for all of the communities in the county with the following community meetings scheduled for this week:

Feb. 28—Calico at the Tabernacle Baptist Church; Feb. 28—Sally Branch School; March 1—North Fountain School; and March 1—Nichols School.

All meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Direct Distance Dialing Process Shown To Club

Greenville Kiwanians at their meeting last week watched a demonstration of the process employed in direct distance dialing by a telephone company.

Linwood Langley, commercial manager for Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co.'s Greenville exchange, introduced Ken Lamm of New Bern who presented the program.

Using a lighted board, Lamm explained the mechanics involved in the distant dialing system. Kiwanians Ed Rawl and John Drake placed long distance phone calls as Lamm explained the system.

Guests of the Kiwanians included W. C. (Red) Taylor, Dr. M. W. Aldridge, R. T. Rogerson, B. G. Clark III; Circle K members, Bill Grubbs and Walter Lee Adams; and members of the Smithfield Kiwanis Club, Glenn Greer, T. Ray, Delma Brown, John Lassiter and Ed Batten.
