New York City's Millions Turn Out To Honor Glenn

NEW YORK (AP)—John Glenn, America's hero of outer space, rode up spaceless Manhattan today in a titanic thunder of cheers and torrent of confetti.

Up the canyons of lower Broadway—where Lindbergh and Byrd and Ederle had gone before him—came the beaming, freckled Marine. The motorcade began from Bowling Green at 12:10 p.m.

"It's wonderful, wonderful!" shouted Glenn as the crowds shrieked and confetti, torn paper, and at times, whole newspapers came pouring down from the skyscrapers.

Glenn rode atop the back seat of an open car and each time he waved it was like a conductor leading a massive symphony; the crowd roared still louder each time.

In the avalanche of confetti, thousands of signs in the hands of shrieking adults and school children welcomed Glenn up the canyon of heroes. Several said "Glenn for president."

From Bowling Green, up through the jammed financial district, past historic Trinity Church and the corner of Wall Street, all the way up to City Hall, the crowd blew its stack in joyous welcome to Glenn, his family and six fellow astronauts.

At many points screaming spectators broke through police barriers and tried to reach Glenn's car, but were pushed back by police.

All along lower Broadway, the crowd was packed tight, curbside to building line. Amid the noise, the chimes of Trinity Church playing the Marine Corps Hymn could barely be heard as Glenn's car went by.

With him in his open car rode his beaming wife, Annie and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson. Glenn delighted the mob with his smile, his frequent waving and his thumbs-up gesture.

At City Hall, another dense crowd roared "We want Glenn!" as he climbed the steps of the reviewing stand followed by his six astronauts.

In their wake they had left thousands of hoarse starry-eyed spectators and confetti piled up like snowdrifts.

"Stupendous! Stupendous!" said Asst. Chief Inspector James Nidds who was there in 1927 when Charles A. Lindbergh was welcomed home by the big town.

Along the way, there were hundreds of signs and full newspaper photographs of Glenn. Some of the welcoming signs in the hands of school children had been printed in crayon on torn bed sheets.

At City Hall, Mayor Robert F. Wagner opened the ceremony by introducing each of America's seven astronauts one at a time. And the crowd roared seven times.

In the first response, Dr. Robert R. Gilruth, director of Project Mercury told the throng: "I am very proud of John Glenn. I am also very proud of the Mercury team." The same team, he said, "with the kind of support you have shown here" will be "equal to the tough task ahead of us."

The blue-eyed freckled hero of America's first manned orbit landed at LaGuardia Airport at 11:06, a few minutes after his six fellow astronauts arrived.

The weather was perfect—bright and sunny—but the mood of the city was marred. About an hour before the astronauts landed, a huge American Airlines jet crashed at Idlewild with 95 aboard.

Fortunately for the millions waiting to cheer the astronauts, the bad news did not immediately spread to them.

The space heroes arrived in white and orange planes and were cheered by a waiting crowd of several hundred, many of them carrying signs. There were signs saying, "Remember Lindbergh" and "What's Up John" and "Hello

"The fire is out and a third alarm was sounded about 11:15 a.m. as a call for more men to help in rescue operations. We understand the plane blew up when it hit the marshes and blew into many small pieces. However, some reports say large sections of the plane still are intact."

Lottie Lennon, Broad Channel said her house shook "like an explosion."

"I never heard anything like it," said said "I thought it was the house next door."

"I was afraid to open the door. I went upstairs and looked out the window. The sky was filled with heavy black smoke. I woke up my son, Desmond, who works nights for United Air Lines at Idlewild. Desmond was in the Air Force. He knows all about planes. He got dressed right away and went out into the bay to try to help."

Mrs. Lennon said the smoke rose from a spot in the swampland about a mile from her home at the corner of Fourth Rd. and Cross Bay Blvd.

John Petersen, Bayport, N.Y., an executive, said:

"I was pulling into Jamaica Railroad Station this morning when this plane was taking off. I just happened to turn my head and look out the train window and saw this giant airplane climbing and then head straight down to the ground. I didn't see it hit. I didn't see any fire while the plane was heading down."

"I couldn't believe my eyes. It went absolutely straight down—on a 90 degree angle. I was so shocked I could hardly move. I bet it was maybe 12 miles away from the scene."

In Washington, the White House announced that Federal Aviation Administrator Najeeb Halaby and a number of aides left for New York within minutes of learning of the crash.

Police at Idlewild said at the same time: "Apparently there were no survivors."

The crash scene was about three miles from the Idlewild control tower.

The crew of a Mohawk Airlines plane that had taken off immediately after the Astrojet witnessed the crash and radioed an alarm back to the airport.

William Martin, a member of the Broad Channel volunteer fire department, said: "There was an awfully loud explosion that actually shook the fire house building a half mile from the scene. Then a few minutes later we could see heavy black smoke—a very thick column of it. It went about 150 feet into the air."

The Broad Channel and other fire companies in the area sent ambulances and fire apparatus. Coast Guard helicopters and a city fireboat converged on the scene.

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy sent a large detachment of police, including 55 who had been assigned to Manhattan for the Glenn parade.

Also assigned to the crash were 125 detectives who had been attending a session on narcotics at the Police Academy.

The Civil Aeronautics Board office at Idlewild dispatched its agents.

Three alarms were sounded for the fire erupting from the plane.

The fire was reported under control at 10:30 a.m.—but by that time only wreckage remained.

All eight crew members in the crash wore California uniforms. A spokesman for the line said the crew had arrived in New York from Boston this morning to make the West Coast flight.

Martin gave this account on the basis of reports from the scene by two-way radio:

"The rescue workers are walking out into the marshes about a block or a block and a half to try and find survivors and pick up bodies. They tell me they sink into the water about up to their boot tops and sometimes to their knees. Since it is low tide that is a break, because otherwise they would sink much deeper.

Russian Again Urges 13-Nation Summit Meeting

PARIS (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev today again urged an 18-nation summit meeting on disarmament and said that the world's four nuclear powers could easily have special talks within the framework of the larger meeting.

The premier's renewal of a summit call was contained in a letter to French President Charles de Gaulle.

De Gaulle proposed destruction of all nuclear stocks and delivery systems in a letter to Khrushchev late last month and said he would be willing to discuss such matters among the four nuclear powers.

Khrushchev in his response to De Gaulle, disclosed today, said: "The peoples of other states, among them the neutral states, which constitute an important part of humanity, are not less interested in the realization of a general and complete disarmament."

The premier, in effect, rejected De Gaulle's proposal to limit disarmament talks to the four nuclear powers.

"There is no doubt the nuclear powers are called upon to play an important, even decisive, role in the talks on disarmament," Khrushchev said.

"Without the agreement of these powers, it is not possible to resolve the question of the liquidation of nuclear arms as well as the question of the banning of tests. The peoples (of the world) demand that a quick agreement on this subject should be reached by the nuclear powers."

But, he asked, referring to nations which do not have nuclear weapons: "Would they be spared in a thermonuclear war? Are they not threatened by heavy consequences?"

The premier declared the cause of disarmament could best be served by having the 18-power summit meeting. A disarmament meeting is scheduled at Geneva later this month, but the Big Three Western powers will not be represented by their chiefs of state or governments.

Khrushchev went on to say: "The participation in the committee on disarmament of numerous states not having nuclear arms among them the neutral states, certainly does not exclude in any way the possibility for the nuclear powers to maintain contacts on an exchange views during the course of talks on the question of disarmament."

The Supreme Court upheld Judge Bickett's ruling.

The office was vacated last summer by the death of Cloyd Philpott.

The Supreme Court ruling means that Philpott's successor as lieutenant governor will not be elected until 1964.

The State Senate convenes again in regular session next year and will elect a president, or presiding officer. In the case of incapacity of Gov. Sanford, the Senate president would become acting governor.

Should a vacancy exist in the governor's chair before the legislature meets, Secretary of State Thad Eure is empowered to call the Senate into special session to pick a president.

Lt. Governor's Election Barred

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Supreme Court has ruled out an election for lieutenant governor this year and has clarified constitutional provisions relating to succession to the governorship.

The court said Wednesday the constitution does not authorize the filling of vacancies for unexpired terms in the governorship or lieutenant governorship by election.

Instead, the court ruled, it is up to the State Senate to elect a president who would assume the duties of the lieutenant governor and succeed to the governorship if necessary.

The opinion dealt with a case brought by State Sen. O. Max Thomas of Union County, who sought to file as a candidate for lieutenant governor in an election this year.

Thomas was turned down by the State Board of Elections, Gen. Wade Bruton. Bruton and the board were upheld by Judge William Y. Bickett in Wake Superior Court.

Miss Dora E. Coates, of Raleigh, retired member of the East Carolina College faculty, and one of North Carolina's most distinguished women in the field of elementary education, was honored at East Carolina College Wednesday afternoon, February 28, when her portrait was unveiled in a ceremony held in the McGinnis auditorium on the campus here.

Present for the occasion were administrative officers and faculty members of East Carolina College, members of Miss Coates' family, a large number of her former students, and friends from a wide area of the state.

The portrait, an oil painting done by Mrs. Harold V. Joslin of Raleigh, was a gift of the East Carolina College Chapter of the Association for Childhood Education, of which Miss Coates is the founder and in which she served for many years as advisor to student members.

Exercises for the afternoon were arranged by the college ACE, with Dr. Mary Lois Staton of the Department of Education as their advisor. When permanently placed, the portrait will be hung in the library of the Wahl-Coates Laboratory School at the college as a companion piece to a portrait of Miss Frances Wahl, retired principal. The school is named for the two educators in recognition of their long and outstanding service.

Dr. Douglas Jones, director of the East Carolina Department of Education, presided at Wednesday's ceremony, which was held, he said, "to honor a great lady."

Robt. Kennedy Reports On Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert F. Kennedy has reported to his brother, the President, on his round the world flying trip.

The attorney general returned Wednesday, looking tanned and weary, and told newsmen he found a vast potential of good will for America but that it might be developed.

He declined to say what special points he covered in his talk with the President but added he was lunching today with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and would go into more detail then.

Kennedy said that particularly among students and intellectuals there are "a great many reservations about our position, what we do in the United States, our policies."

Many of these reservations, he said, are based on misunderstandings and factual inaccuracies—but many of them can be straightened out.

And many of the reservations, said Kennedy, are based on what the Communist party says about the United States, and the Communists have vocal, very determined people who, he said, have sold the idea that the United States has made no progress for 100 years.

One way to straighten out the misconceptions, said the attorney general, would be for others to undertake a trip such as he and his wife made, to bring more people to this country, to get other nations into an exchange to bolster the Voice of America.

Harbor Project For Wilmington

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army Engineers' Board of Rivers and Harbors has recommended navigation improvements at Wilmington, N.C., which will cost the federal government an estimated $6,370,000.

The board listed the Wilmington project as one of 10 flood control and navigation improvement contracts with a total estimated cost of $145,102,000. In addition, the board deferred action until March on the Cape Fear River flood control project in North Carolina.

The Wilmington harbor project provides for a channel 40 feet deep and 500 feet wide through the ocean bar to natural deep water at Southport, N.C. The channel would then be 38 feet deep over the existing 400-foot width to Castle Street in Wilmington with the same depth in the existing anchorage basin.

back lines be changed from 50 feet to 40 feet.

They approved a plat of Johnson Heights Addition No. 2 on Meade St. from First to Willow. Approximately 30 lots are included.

A preliminary plat of additions to Oakmont and Drexelbrook subdivisions received commission approval. The area would stretch from the present subdivisions to Red Banks Road. It would also open on N.C. 43. The area would be developed by David Evans and Associates and Vance Harrington.

Commissioners tabled further planning on the neighborhood conservation area pending a report from Mayor Charles King and Neighborhood Conservation Chairman Charles Cobb on a meeting in High Point.

Sledge Hearing Re-Scheduled

A preliminary hearing for F. D. Sledge, charged with raping a 15-year-old girl last Sunday, was postponed in Greenville Recorder's Court today.

New date set by Judge Charles H. Whebe for the hearing is March 5.

Judge Whebe explained that "because the defendant claimed he employed a lawyer and the lawyer was not in court, and we could not get in touch with him" the case was rescheduled.

"Since there was reason to think that a lawyer may have been employed we could not hear the case in the lawyer's absence," the judge concluded.

Sledge, 55, supervisor of the Pitt County Negro Schools, was arrested Monday on the charges. The warrant under which the official was taken into custody was signed by the mother of the victim.

Sledge has been held on the capital charge in Greenville City Jail without bond pending a hearing.

Will Slowly Add To Astronauts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration says it will expand its seven-man astronaut team very slowly.

Only a few will be added in the foreseeable future despite the growing manned flight program, a NASA spokesman said Wednesday.

"You can see how long it takes to use those we already have," he said. "It will be quite a while before they (the original seven) all get to fly."

Rusk To Provide Policy Briefing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk has invited 2,000 American editors and television and radio broadcasters to a foreign policy briefing at which President Kennedy will take part.

The two-day conference will open March 26, it was announced Wednesday.

Forbes Files For Pitt House Seat

W. A. (Red) Forbes of Winterville has filed as a candidate for Pitt County's remaining seat in the House, creating a three-way race in the May 26 Democratic nomination primary.

Forbes, 47-year-old tobaccoist, paid his $18 filing fee to Board of Elections Chairman D. S. Spain to become a candidate opposite incumbent Frank M. Wooten of Greenville and Robert D. Wheeler of Grifton, a 1960 candidate for Pitt's Senate seat held by Robert L. Humber.

Forbes, the grandson of a former Pitt legislator, has engaged in tobacco market work in Greenville and other towns for about 25 years. He has been in the feed and grain business for nearly 20 years.

His grandfather, the late Elder Fred McGlohon, a former minister at Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church, was a farmer and served a term as a Pitt representative in the General Assembly of 1893.

A native of the Winterville area, Forbes was born at Kings Crossroads. He was graduated from Winterville High School in 1931 and attended East Carolina College in 1931-32.

A member of the Winterville District School Board for six years, two years as chairman, Forbes is seeking his first major elective office.

He is a charter member of the Winterville Ruritan and Kiwanis Clubs and is a member of the Greenville Moose Lodge. He is also a member of the Redmen

City Side Yard Requirements For Apartments Face Review

Planning - Zoning Chairman Frank Little last night appointed a committee to study the city ordinance side yard requirements for apartment dwellings.

The committee was appointed after M. E. Sutton appeared to request that the side yard requirements be changed.

Chairman Little named Thomas W. Rivers and H. T. Chapin to study the matter and made recommendations to the full commission. The Planning-Zoning Commission would then have to recommend the changes to the City Council.

Sutton plans to build a ten-unit apartment at Third and Laurel St. He maintained that a law which requires an additional five feet on the side of an apartment dwelling for each unit over four was prohibitive to apartment construction. This requirement is in addition to the normal side yard required for residences.

Sutton said he had plans for a 122 foot building on a 141 foot lot. He said that since land is bought by the front foot such a requirement is prohibitive and unnecessary.

This morning Sutton said he wanted to make it clear he was not asking special consideration for his own particular lot. "I think the thing is set up wrong in the entire code," he declared.

He pointed out that a 50 unit apartment building would require 251 feet of side yard. However a 50 unit rooming house could be built with no such side yards.

The commissioners approved Eastwood Addition No. 1 final plat but they declined to go along with a request that set

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Another helper to the home gardener is a reliable commercial spraying company. This type of aid is very helpful for those having large grounds and big shade trees. The commercial sprayer may be your local nurseryman, a tree service company, or an outfit that specializes in this type spraying alone.

Advantages
The engaging of a commercial sprayer does away with the handling of sprayer material, and the upkeep of equipment. The sprayer who knows his business should be able to anticipate the time of the arrival of garden enemies and have his spray material on plant foliage. He also knows conditions conducive to growth of plant diseases. These preventive measures should be steps forward in good health for your garden.

Many large trees have to fight off insects and diseases without any help, because the average gardener doesn't have the proper equipment to spray them. Proper spraying of these trees will add years to their lives and make them safer to have around. Old trees that have been subject to years of insect and disease onslaughts are usually weak and hazardous.

Disadvantages
The main disadvantages of having your spraying done on the contract basis is perhaps the cost. However, if money isn't the object, your spraying jobs are easily solved. There may be other disadvantages, also, and in the long run they could turn out to be the most costly. The reliance on another may cause you to stop your garden inspections. This shouldn't be of much importance if your sprayer is on the ball, but sometimes conditions arise that are beyond control. So even if you do have your spraying done by a commercial sprayer, keep up your garden inspections.

When
When is the best time to go about engaging an operator to do your spray work? Perhaps the best time is during the last of the winter, or no later than early spring. An early spray will clean up a lot of trouble that is now in the egg stage. So having your contract in order before plants begin to put out this year's growth will be a step in the right direction. Be sure the person engaged knows to what extent you expect him to go in your garden spraying program. Is it complete control, or just periodic spraying, such as winter clean up, pre-spring spray or just on-call spraying?

Complete control is the most satisfactory method.

Costs
Exact figures are hard to come by, but for the average yard about $84 for the entire year should not be far off base. This fee also includes grub proofing lawn area (this should keep moles out of your ground). But the gardener should know exactly what he has to pay and what the payment covers. If interested, get in touch with a local outfit.

Standard Flower Show
On Wednesday, March 14, the Greenville Garden Club will sponsor a Standard Flower Show entitled "Spring Mood." The show will be held at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

All members of Greenville Garden Clubs are urged to make entries.

Sons and daughters of members (up to 18) are invited to participate in a Junior Class.

If you want to enter an exhibit, register with your club's entry chairman one week in advance. All entries should be in place by 9:30 a.m. on March 14.

Judging will start at 10 a.m. and the public will be admitted from 2 p.m. until 9:30 p.m. Admission is 75c for adults and 25c for children.

All gardeners are urged to take part in and attend the Flower Show. Proceeds from all council projects are put to worthwhile use—making Greenville a more attractive place.

Chairmen for the Flower Show are as follows: Mrs. R. P. Heller, general; Mrs. Harry Billica, staging; Mrs. Sam Mitchell, schedule; Mrs. W. M. Reading Jr., entries; Mrs. W. J. Stell Jr., artistic arrangements; Mrs. Floyd Hendrix, horticultural arrangements; Mrs. C. C. Hughes, judges and hospitality; Mrs. O. W. Coefield, publicity; Mrs. Howard Moye, dismantling.

Local gardeners should get behind this project 100 per cent, for the benefits will be city- and county-wide.

Greenville and Pitt County are known all over the state as educational and agricultural centers. Let's make it known also as a place of beauty—a place to look forward to visit and a place to want to come back to for a second look.

Quality Tobacco Crop Still Needed

The increase of approximately 1,300 acres in Pitt County's tobacco allotment for this year could represent a major boost to the local economy if the 1962 tobacco crop compares in yield and average price with the 1961 crop.

The increase in allotments could mean an increase of upwards of $1.5 million in income for Pitt County farmers this year which in turn would be reflected in the entire economy of the county. Such an increase in income would have no small impact upon the economy of the county.

Conditions of the growing season this spring and summer will, of course, determine largely the yield of this year's tobacco crop in Pitt County. Prices paid when the markets open here in August will determine the income to the farmers. There is every reason to believe, however, that tobacco prices will not be adversely affected by the increase in allotments. And on the basis of recent years, we may expect some increase in tobacco production.

It is important that farmers of this and other counties seek to produce this year a quality crop of tobacco which will meet the standards of both the domestic purchasers of their commodity and the foreign purchasers. To some extent, at least, the quality of the tobacco crop produced this year will have a long-range influence on the stability of the acreage increase which has been authorized for the first time in 11 years.

Citizens Have Reason For Pride In School

Citizens of Greenville have reason to be proud of the three young men, all seniors at J. H. Rose High School, who have been selected among 30 finalists in North Carolina for the coveted Angier B. Duke Scholarships awarded annually by Duke University.

It is unique indeed for three members of the same high school to be chosen as finalists in competition for such scholarships. Particularly is it unusual for three to come from a relatively small high school such as Rose High in Greenville.

Their achievement in reaching the finals for this scholarship competition reflects great credit not only upon themselves, but likewise upon the public school system which they have attended.

Over the years students from Greenville have ranked well in competition among high school students throughout the state for various college scholarships. To have three students from a single graduating class to rank as finalists in the Angier B. Duke competition, however, represents a new high point of achievement for Rose High representatives.

We join other citizens of this community in congratulating Jimmy Eatman, Jimmy Jenkins and Dennis Eagan, and we wish them continued success.

Superior Court Judges Running

By LYNN NISBET
JUDGES — At least three judges of the superior court whose terms expire December 31 this year have announced they will not seek re-election. They are Judges Walter J. Bone of Nashville, Henry L. Stevens of Warsaw and Hubert E. Olive of Lexington. There is possibility of others stepping down. The three retiring judges are all eligible and are expected to assume the status of emergency judge. That means they will be available if needed to man the courts.

Presently there are five emergency judges — W. H. S. Burgwyn of Jackson, Paul Frizelle of Snow Hill, Zeb V. Nettles of Asheville, Quincey Q. Nimocks of Fayetteville and Hoyle Sink of Greensboro. Because of his health Judge Frizelle has not been active, had held no courts since his retirement. Judges Burgwyn and Sink have been almost as busy as when they were on the regular list, and Judges Nettles and Nimocks each has held some ten or twelve weeks of court a year.

The prospective addition of three able jurists to the emergency panel with the four already active there raises question of whether the state will need as many special judges as now authorized by the General Assembly.

The 1955 Legislature increased the number of resident regular judges from 21 to 34 and reduced the number of special judges to four. The 1961 session increased the number of special judges to eight. The present judicial manpower is 32 regular, eight special and four active emergency judges. Most of these judges have been kept busy during the past year. As a result the log jam in civil calendars has been greatly reduced and the criminal dockets are fairly up to date.

EXPERIENCE — Bert Montague, administrative assistant to the Chief Justice, said the case load throughout the state appears to be a little bit lighter this spring. The terms of incumbent special judges run until June 30 of next year. Whether the same number will be continued, increased or reduced will be determined by the 1963 Legislature. Montague said he believes that by the time the Legislature is ready to act his office will be in position to furnish an experience record as a guide to determining how many judges may be needed.

The authority granted the Governor to appoint four extra special judges is permissive, not mandatory. One special judge, Judge Jack Hooks of Kenly, died this week. The Governor may, but does not have to, fill that vacancy. Another, Judge George Fountain of Tarboro has announced his candidacy for the regular resident judgeship being relinquished by Judge Bone. If he wins that election his place on the special judge panel will be vacated.

as of January 1, 1963. It will be to the Governor's discretion whether it will be filled.

REDISTRICTING — The 1961 General Assembly is guilty of enough misfeasance with respect to congressional redistricting without being subjected to criticism or indictment for something it could not do anything about. The total impact of the constitution and statutes of the United States and of North Carolina, the natural laws of population growth and economic fact that North Carolina didn't keep pace in that growth, made it absolutely necessary for the General Assembly to rearrange the congressional districts to provide for eleven representatives instead of twelve in the Congress. That readjustment was a big job, and despite the fact many people think the Legislature "loused it up" more than was necessary, the fact remains the Legislature had to do something about it.

CHILDISH — To put 11 representatives in the area formerly occupied by 12 meant one of the new districts had to contain the residence of two incumbents. At least a dozen proposals were made, three or four of which got some attention in the Legislature, but the plan finally adopted put Paul Kitchen, Democratic incumbent in the old eighth, in the same new district with Charles Raper Jonas, incumbent representative of the old 10th and the only Republican from North Carolina in Congress.

The eastern folks dominated the Legislature, so few changes were made in that area, but the only district that got by without some boundary changes was the compact sixth composed of Durham, Orange, Alamance and Guilford. Every other district underwent some change, none other as serious as in the old eighth-tenth.

It was understood by everybody that changes would have to be made in most district lines, and everybody (?) was willing to accept them — so long as they applied only to districts other than his own. The constant plea before the legislative committees was "Just leave us be — do your stuff somewhere else."

All of which leads up to the eighth district Republican convention at Rockingham last Saturday which nominated Jonas the district candidate for Congress. In accepting the nomination Jonas criticized the Democrat administrations, national and state, and blamed the Democratic Legislature for redistricting. All of that was in order and expected as a partisan candidate in a political meeting. But he carried his indictment almost to the extreme stage when he said: "I doubt I would be running if the districts had been left as they were."

That seemed an almost childish appeal to resentment against the inevitable.

submit his medical care program until Feb. 9. A few days later he told congressional leaders medical care was must legislation.

Congress ignored him. His program never got out of the mothballs in the highly conservative House Ways and Means Committee, dominated by Democrats.

Kennedy was criticized for failure of leadership in not appealing directly to the people in nationwide broadcasts to put the heat on the reluctant members of Congress.

This medical care program has had a mixed career. President Eisenhower's conference on aging recommended, a few days before he retired from the White House last year, the kind of program Kennedy suggests.

The AFL-CIO was behind it. So, too, were a couple of Eisenhower's former top advisers who spoke out before he left the White House: Marion B. Folsom, secretary of welfare, and Arthur Larson, under secretary of labor.

Main opposition, outside Congress, came from the heads of the American Medical Association, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, and the National Association of Manufacturers.

Only a few days ago he suffered a smashing defeat on his plan to set up a new department of urban affairs and housing when Democrats, mostly Southerners, teamed up with Republicans in the House to beat it.

His program of federal aid to public schools seems a cinch to get clobbered again. This writer has seen no indication Kennedy is going to make much of a fight on this one.

He won't have easy sailing either in getting Congress to vote $100 million to buy U.N. bonds, or to liberalize American trade policies, or to give him all he wants for foreign aid.

In one of his more optimistic moments in the 1960 presidential campaign Kennedy promised if elected, "I can tell you that next January a Democratic administration, will push through a bill providing for adequate — and honorable — medical care for the aged."

"Nowadays many young folks make a living by working their parents and their parents make a living by working the government." — Aztec (New Mex.) Independent-Review.

"The Soviet Union is claiming another first: six-year-old brandy made in six days. We beat that record 'way back in Production.'" — Knoxville News-Sentinel.

"Jet planes, mile runners — about the only things that don't go around faster than they used to are phonograph records." — Jacksonville (Fla.) Times-Union.

"There is no substantial peace between nations. There is no permanent peace between social classes. The dust is always rising, the curse is always being flung. Is it any use, we say to ourselves? Why not get off in an ivory tower somewhere, if we can manage to do so, and forget the whole sordid mess? Because of the good factors. This is sufficient reason for staying right down in the midst of the battle, exchanging blows when they have to be given, but trying to make it ten acts of kindness to one smiting of the heavy hand. Love will solve everything if we allow it to do so. Don't forget those good factors. They have more potency than the evil factors and we can rely upon their power."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
GOOD AND EVIL FACTORS
There are three evil things which we will encounter any place on this planet which we happen to visit. These three things are filth, conflict, and pain. There are three good things, however, which we can always be sure of confronting. These three good things are kindness, diligence, and love. A clamorous conflict appears at all times to be going on between the good factors of life and the evil. These is a peace which passeth all understanding and this, the Bible confidently claims, is the result of religious faith. Surely the only peace we can have in this tumultuous world of ours is an inner peace.

Verbal Warfare Rises

It will be interesting to sit back and watch the verbal fray generated by the latest issue of our basic verbal reference (G. & C. Merriam Co.'s "Webster's Third New International Dictionary of the English Language" marketed last fall).

In fact, there's interest aplenty already. The Merriam Co.'s president and the 2,662-page giant's editor-in-chief have already answered charges from various quarters. Curiously enough, the charges utilize some of the most descriptive words to be found in Webster's pages.

In every case so far, the dictionary's severest critics have used as a launching pad for their verbal blasts a contention that Webster's—the old reliable among English dictionaries—is pouring an undebatable foundation for certain words viewed as deterioration of "good old English." After all, they say, people believe what they read in Webster's. This is undoubtedly true. It's a very, very useful and faithful pal to have around. But there's at least one thing for sure: it is indeed seldom that anybody sits down with Webster I, II or III in quest of learning a host of words, whether or not they are representative of "good old English" or "deterioration" of same.

When somebody consults the dictionary, he (by definition—Webster's again) seeks more standard information about a word or phrase HE HAS ALREADY SEEN OR HEARD.

Don't get the wrong idea. This is not an appeal in behalf of the dictionary's staff experts who compiled Webster III in just 27 years. No indeed. It seems that both sides of the argument have missed the point.

It takes no more than casual observation to see how very obvious a role the dictionary plays. Language dictionaries follow, not lead the people; they interpret, not inaugurate the language; they explain, not dictate what people are saying.

It seems that a dictionary (again by definition) serves its mission well if it lists alphabetically the words being used by the people who will have access to the volume itself. Maybe this is what Webster III has done.

To be a little more specific: it may be true that many a person would be pretty much in the dark if many of the new words objected to were omitted.

Think of a foreigner who learned English from a more classical source and then came to America. Without an authentic guide to some of the words we're using today, he might as well have spent the time learning another language.

The point to it all goes something like this:

Critic and publisher now actively engaged in the verbal exchange apparently have nothing better to do, can find no more important questions to wrangle over.

A pair of suggestions may be similar to these:

Let the critic spend his time investigating an area in which he conceivably could affect good. Does he really think Webster III could be junked?

Let the publisher settle down to work on Webster IV. How else can he produce another guide to what Americans will do to the English language in another 27 years?

Let the critic spend his time investigating an area in which he conceivably could affect good. Does he really think Webster III could be junked?

TO THE EDITOR:
The 1962 Pitt District Scout Exposition, is now history. It was the largest and finest Boy Scout event ever held in Pitt County, and this program happened because hundreds of people planned and worked to make it happen. It would be an impossible task for me to try to thank each one personally who contributed to the success of the Exposition; therefore, through you and the Daily Reflector I want to express my appreciation to all who helped in this activity.

Sponsoring the Scout Exposition was a major project for the Greenville Kiwanis Club. Never have I seen an organization show such enthusiasm, work harder, and achieve results to equal the Kiwanians in any endeavor as they did in this program. Every Scout and Scouter in Pitt District appreciates very much the fine job done by the Greenville Kiwanis Club.

The quality of the demonstrations and exhibits by the Cubs, Scouts, and Explorers, and their leaders was superb. Many hours of planning and preparation went into every feature of the program, and the results showed this. I congratulate every boy, leader and den mother for a job well done.

Publicity on the Exposition played a major role in getting over six thousand people to attend the event on one of the coldest days of the year. We are most appreciative of the help in getting the story to the public of what scouting is doing for the boys in Pitt County. To the Daily Reflector, the newspapers in Farmville, Ayden, and Grifton; to the radio stations in Pitt County, and to WNCN, thank you all very much.

A considerable number of business contributed skilled labor and materials to the physical arrangements for the exposition. There were many men, neither Scouters nor Kiwanians, who worked in the Trading Post and on other jobs. The contributions by all are appreciated.

To all governmental departments and volunteer organizations that provided health and safety protection, we are grateful for your support. It would have been very difficult to produce a show on the scale we had without the aid of these groups.

Raynor-Forbes Warehouse was an ideal site for the exposition, and we are indebted to the owners for making their building available. Also, we are grateful to the Moose Lodge for the use of their parking areas and for their other contributions to the program.

In closing, let me again say "thank you" to everyone who had a part in the Scout Exposition. Never have I been so proud to be a part of Scouting and to serve Pitt District as I was on February 10th — the day of the 1962 Scout Exposition.

Sincerely,
East Carolina Council

Critical Month For Business

By ELMER ROESSNER
This March is a critical month. Business will find out whether the so-called Kennedy boom is flattening out or whether it has been merely yawning recently.

The boom was big last November. Industrial production was 114 per cent of the 1957 average. Personal income was at an annual rate of $429.3 billion. Employment was 67,349,000 — not a high for the year but high for November. Retail sales, buoyed by high demand for autos, was $19.1 billion on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Something happened in December. Industrial production continued to rise, going to 115.1 per cent. So did personal income, reaching an annual rate of $431.8 billion. But employment dropped to 66,467,000 and retail sales were down to $18.9 billion on an adjusted basis.

Industrial production declined a full percentage point to 114.1. Personal income declined slightly to an annual rate of $430.3 billion. Employment, which usually declines somewhat in January, fell 1,409,000 to 65,058,000. And retail sales declined to $18.7 billion. The weather was blamed by some.

These January dips are less disturbing when compared with the record of January, 1961. In that month, the industrial production figure was 102.3, 11.8 percentage points less than January, 1962. Personal income was at an annual rate of $403.6 billion, $26.7 billion less than last January. Employment was 64,452,000 which was 606,000 less than in January, 1962. And retail sales were $17.3 billion, or $900 million less than January, 1962.

These figures show that the setback in January was small compared with the gains made in the year.

WHAT OF FEBRUARY?

The figures for February will not be available for two weeks or more.

However, preliminary indications are cheering. Department store sales, according to Federal Reserve statistics, were more than 6 per cent higher than a year ago during the first three weeks. Steel production gained in six of the seven weeks ended February 17, and in that week was the highest in more than 22 months.

General Motors reports that it has turned out more cars this model year than in any model since 1956. Total car production of all companies for the first seven weeks of this year was 948,783, a tremendous rise over the 640,944 cars in the same period, plus one day, in 1961.

HUAC Critics Feeble

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Each session of Congress faces a heavy barrage for the abolition of the House Un-American Activities Committee. The names attached to such petitions usually are a collection of constant signers of pro-Communist petitions. The recurrence of names proves only that the Communist "hard core" exists, is effective and that the organization has not withered on the vine in this country. At any rate, when it comes to such matters, it is preferable to rely on J. Edgar Hoover rather than on Clarence E. Pickett, who signs himself as Chairman, Ad Hoc Committee.

This year, the Ad Hoc Committee's advertisement, which is given a full page in the "New York Times," produces these arguments against the House Committee on Un-American Activities. These are:

1. "Dividing the nation; setting neighbor against neighbor." Of course, it might be said that the existence of Republicans and Democrats divides the nation; or having Catholics, Protestants and Jews divides the nation; or for that matter having sharp differences of opinion divides the nation. We are not a monolithic state. Differences of view do not divide the nation; they make for enlightenment. But no difference can make espionage tolerable—that is a different story.

As for setting neighbor against neighbor, it seems that that is carrying toleration too far. For instance, if a neighbor of mine is engaged in pushing dope, should I tell or in a neighborly fashion be silent? Many issues arise which require that we set ourselves against our neighbors. Sometimes over a matter of principle, we quarrel with our best friends or with our brothers. It would seem that the Ad Hoc Committee's argument No. 1 is untenable.

2. "Depriving the nation of the benefits of free discussion." Quite the contrary! The existence of the House Committee on Un-American Activities provides opportunity for free discussion. If the witness chooses to plead the Fifth Amendment and be silent, that is his privilege and responsibility. Otherwise, he can state his case as he desires, under oath, in the presence of his neighbors.

It would seem that the Ad Hoc Committee's argument No. 2 falls to the ground.

3. "Diverting attention and energy from the critical world situation to the minuscule domestic Communist movement." The critical world problem is our continuing war with Soviet Russia, a war that takes on new phases every day. The present phase is a struggle to contain Soviet imperialism within its present boundaries. This involves us in a fighting war in Vietnam and a dangerous political war, approaching a fighting war, in Germany. From this, there can be no diversion of attention.

In this war, the Communist Party USA plays the role of a Fifth Column, engaged principally in espionage and in intellectual and moral sabotage. Three agencies of government exist to observe this Soviet effort within the United States — the FBI, the House Committee on Un-American Activities, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee. Because of the nature of our laws, it is necessary to have more than one agency. Experience over two decades has shown that this method, while slow, works satisfactorily. A swifter method would degenerate into a police state.

Including the McCarran and McCarran Investigations which have been especially attacked, the result has been that the Communist conspiracy, so effective in other free countries, has been under constant exposure in this country and while some claim martyrdom by association or error of private judgement, the enemy has had a difficult time here.

It would seem that the Ad Hoc Committee's argument does not hold water.

4. "Creating doubt among the people of the world who look to us for a living example of the values of freedom." Surely the peoples of the world do not expect the United States to tolerate Soviet infiltration. (Continued on page 11)

Mounting Terrorism Menaces Algeria's Prospects

GALLIC BEAUTY — Monique Lemaire is crowned Miss France during Paris ceremony. Placing tiara on the brunette is Genevieve Mercier, reigning Miss Paris.

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
ALGIERS (AP) — The final round of Algerian peace talks is expected to open this weekend, but a bloody step-up of European terrorism promised continuing violence in the North African territory long after France and the Algerian rebels proclaim a cease-fire.

Terrorist attacks, blamed on the Secret Army Organization opposed to Algerian independence, killed 65 persons and wounded 106 Wednesday. It was Algeria's worst day of violence this year.

Terrorism mounted in the territory as the Algerian rebel parliament reportedly gave its provisional government a free hand to sign peace terms with France after further talks. Both French and rebel quarters indicated the talks would open Saturday or Sunday somewhere near the French-Swiss border.

Speedy agreement was expected on a cease-fire and political agreements providing for a self-determination referendum. Algeria's Moslem majority is certain to vote overwhelmingly for independence.

But the impending truce in the 7½-year Algerian rebellion against the French still will leave unresolved the battle against the underground secret army, which threatens a major insurrection in its campaign to keep Algeria French.

Secret army bombs killed 30 Moslems and wounded 50 others in Oran's Ville Nouvelle Moslem quarter Wednesday.

The blasts, from bombs hidden under cars, collapsed three houses and left bodies scattered in the streets. French troops quickly sealed off the quarter to prevent Moslem reprisals.

Five more powerful bombs exploded in a Moslem quarter of Oran before dawn today, bringing angry Moslem mobs into the streets shouting nationalist slogans. But the demonstrations ended within three hours, despite two more explosions, and there was no immediate report of casualties from the bombing.

Authorities in Algiers claimed important progress was being made in efforts to break up the European underground. A 10-man secret army commando unit was captured in eastern Algeria and a six-man unit surrendered in Algiers, they said.

The secret army appeared to be gaining more than it was losing, French army sources said an entire commando unit of Moslem auxiliaries commanded by three French officers and one noncommissioned officer had deserted, apparently to join the secret army.

More defections are expected as a result of the French army's announcement of plans to demobilize 140,000 Moslems who have fought with the French against the Algerian Nationalists. Many Moslem soldiers feel deserted by France and their feelings are being exploited by officers with strong leanings toward ex-Gen. Raoul Salan's secret army.

An army spokesman said, however, the army is confident of the loyalty of the 20,000 troops already in Algiers and the 30,000 more ringed the city. Most of these troops are from France and have no sympathy for the European settlers, he said.

President Charles de Gaulle met with his cabinet shortly after the Algerian rebel parliament issued a carefully worded communique ordering its negotiators to continue the negotiations.

No major obstacles were believed to remain in the way of a peace agreement.

The cabinet heard a report from Louis Joxe, minister for Algerian affairs, who conducted the secret negotiations with the Algerian nationalists.

Gaullist members of the French National Assembly were told at a caucus that De Gaulle plans a special session of Parliament early this month to hear a statement on the Algerian settlement. This reportedly would be followed by a referendum in France to approve the accord.

The tentative date for the referendum—distinct from the proposed self-determination vote in Algeria—was given as April 8. It should provide no obstacle to an Algerian settlement. The French people in an earlier referendum gave De Gaulle a free hand to settle the Algerian question.

Glenn Looks To Routine Flights

WASHINGTON (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. says the day will come when man will cruise in the skies much as he now maneuvers his automobile on the highways.

To travel in space like that, Glenn said in congressional testimony Wednesday, spacecraft many times more powerful than the Friendship 7 in which he orbited the globe three times will have to be developed.

When they are, Glenn said, a spaceman will be able to steer wherever his curiosity dictates, or go from one orbit to another as if in a sky auto.

Then, the Marine lieutenant colonel said, "Man will really take his rightful place in space." Glenn said the hydrogen peroxide jets on his space capsule could change only its attitude (roll, pitch or yaw), not its path.

And, he said, the more powerful retro (braking) rockets could only slow him down to take him out of orbit and start his fall to earth.

That's life in TV-land. CBS won't do any talking, but it looks pretty definite that Marshal Dillon will be losing Chester next season. Dennis Weaver, who has played the comedy side-kick role for seven long seasons, was in New York last weekend taping a 45-minute sample of a show called "TV Tonight" which CBS is thinking of putting into a late-evening weekly spot.

It looks as if ABC's "Lawman" will vanish completely next season along with "The Tall Man," "Tales of Wells Fargo," and "Frontier Circus." This will make the once overwhelmingly popular western the rarest category of programs on the schedules.

Although science-fiction programs haven't done very well on television to date, show packagers are considering series based on space explorations. One of the first will be tried out next season on "The Dick Powell Show."

Recommended tonight: "The Great Challenge," CBS, 10-11 (Eastern Standard Time)—another in the series studying the relationship of Americans to their government, jobs and moral codes.

Mrs. Kennedy To Stop In Rome

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy will stop off in Rome March 10 and 11 on her way to India and Pakistan.

A White House press officer, Jay Gildner, who will accompany the First Lady on her trip, said Wednesday he didn't know if Mrs. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, would visit the Vatican.

The Rome visit, he said, is "private" and no schedule has been worked out.

TV Camera Backgrounds Avoid Houses And Offices

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The American television viewing public can be forgiven if they start thinking that houses are for hens and offices for secretaries.

When a network foreign news correspondent wants to read his report on current events, he straps himself into his trench coat and stations himself in front of the Arc de Triomphe or with a background view of the Thames (preferably in the rain) and begins to talk.

When intense coverage of Lieut. Col. John H. Glenn's space trip was in progress, correspondent Roy Neal of NBC was stationed for no apparent reason—at a large desk set in the middle of an open field. CBS' Walter Cronkite, dripping wires and microphones, was just standing—apparently without benefit of notes or assistants—in what looked like a bit of abandoned farmland.

When the White House has any news bulletins to impart, the importer is usually standing in front of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. When CBS' "Twentieth Century" was interviewing the Drs. Karl and William Menninger last Sunday, the psychiatrists chatted while sitting under some trees—far from their offices where, presumably, they keep their files.

Even the commercials are imbued with the spirit of the great outdoors. Most cigarettes are smoked at beach picnics and it is on or near beaches that pretty girls have their worst experiences with bad breath. Models shampoo their hair in front of old Greek temples and currently there is a girl taking a bath in an ordinary tub set in the midst of a ferny glade.

Paradoxically, most automobiles are exhibited on turntables in what look like grand ballrooms of hotels.

Parade Ordered For Exiled King

WAYNE, Pa. (AP)—When Simeon II, exiled king of Bulgaria, visited the Valley Forge Military Academy he told the superintendent, Lt. Gen. Milton G. Baker, that he had participated in many regimental parades but never watched one.

Baker was quick to take the hint Wednesday from the exiled king who had attended the academy as a cadet in 1958-59. He said he will stage a parade Saturday in Simeon's honor.

Admission to the U.S. Military Academy may be obtained only by appointment to one of the 2,512 cadetships authorized by law.

A New JOHN CREASEY Thriller

A ROCKET FOR ROLLISON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
Kate Lowson was waiting apprehensively at a London airport to meet her fiancé, Maurice Holmes. They had been apart two years, while he was on business in the U. S. After so long a time did Maurice still have the same affection for her that had led to their becoming engaged? His letters hadn't appeared to change in tone, but they had been arriving further apart. Possibly that was only because of business demands and distractions. The plane landed and her heart beat faster. Straining her eyes for a sight of Maurice as the passengers departed, Kate was bowled over viciously by an Alsatian dog. Sprawled on the ground, she was conscious of being hit on the side of her head, and then blackness came over her. When she regained consciousness, a young doctor, Mike Kennedy, was attending her. Looking around, Kate's first thought was Maurice. There was no sign of him. After a search proved he was nowhere at the airport, Kennedy drove Kate to her home. She hoped to find Maurice waiting there for her, but instead she was greeted by another shock—in her absence her desk had been ransacked. Money and Maurice's letters from the U. S. were missing.

CHAPTER 4
Kate Lowson caught her breath as she answered the telephone. When she said "Hallo," it was as if she had a frog in her throat. She felt a sense of relief, sure that she was hearing from Maurice at last, yet knew a kind of bewilderment, almost dismay, because she could not imagine what he would say, what explanation either of them could give. A man whose voice she only vaguely recognized said: "Is that Miss Lowson?"
"Yes." She tried to keep her voice steady.
"I just rang up to find out if the missing lover had turned up, and how your head is," the man said, and Kate realized belatedly who it was. "Mike Kennedy here."
"Oh," Kate said, and for a moment could not bring herself to go on. Kennedy must think that she was a helpless fool. "Oh, I thought it would be Mr.

Holmes."
Suddenly, she was eager to talk to Kennedy, and tell him everything. She found the words pouring out, even though she reminded herself once or twice that if she didn't stop he would think she was the most garrulous woman he had ever met.
At least he listened patiently and without interruption, until at last she said: "I can't imagine where he is, and I can't imagine why anyone should want to take his letters. I can understand the money, of course, but the letters—" she broke off.
"Puzzling and peculiar," Kennedy agreed. "I suppose he was on that plane."
"Of course, he was."
"Did you ask at the airport?" She had not, had simply inquired where Maurice's plane would arrive.
He had told her what time he was leaving New York, given the flight number—107. She hadn't actually checked to find out if his name was among the passengers.
"So you didn't," said Kennedy brightly. "How about it if I call them and check—I know the people concerned and I can get it without a lot of holding on."
"Will you?" She was really grateful.
"Of course."
"But if he's missed the aircraft he would have cabled me," Kate said, in sudden alarm.
"You've got a point there," agreed Kennedy, but I may as well make sure. I don't want to be an alarmist, but there's always a possibility of an accident in New York—or else someone might have forgotten to send a cable for him. I'll check, and call back in five minutes or so. How's the head?"
"Not very good, I'm afraid."
"What you need is a good night's sleep," declared Kennedy. "We'll have to fix it. I'll ring off now." He heard his telephone being hung up and ran edgewise back to the upright chair, so that she could rest the back of her head against it.
She wondered, a little vaguely, why anyone should take as much trouble as Mike Kennedy was taking, but her main preoccupation was with Maurice. Kennedy had brought an obvious possibility into the open, and with it there was a fear which had been there all the time. If Maurice had been hurt in New York it would explain everything, too.
She knew that Kennedy was right; she would not really feel herself again until she had slept soundly. But what chance was there of going to sleep?
Why did everything take so long?
She was waiting for it. Intently, but when the bell rang again, it startled her. She leaned forward and snatched up the receiver.
"Kate Lowson speaking."
"Hallo, Kate Lowson," greeted Kennedy, but the tone of his voice did nothing to raise her spirits. "At least I've one kind of good news for you. Maurice Holmes was on the plane. He's on the manifest, his luggage was checked and taken away, and the Customs chaps ticked him off their list after he's been through Passport Control. There's no doubt that he reached London Airport. Er—was he expecting you?"
Kate made herself say: "Yes, of course. He's not at his hotel either. I called there earlier."
"If it were daytime we could check his office or wherever he'd be likely to report," mused Kennedy, "but that will have to wait until the morning. What about his relations?"
"He has no close relations." Kate hesitated, then went on: "His only close relation was an uncle, Uncle Jerry, who died about two months ago. He has a cousin whom I've never met."
Again, she found it easy to talk to Mike Kennedy, and yet had a feeling that she talked too much. "I can't understand it, but I expect there will be a message from him soon."
"Checked his hotel more than once?"
"No."
"You said it was the Craddock, didn't you?" said Kennedy. "I know it slightly. Did you have dinner before you left home this evening?"
"No." It was hardly worth saying that she had expected to have dinner with Maurice.
"Tell you what—you get yourself some food, your head is bound to be bad if you're hungry," Kennedy declared. "I'll call the Craddock Hotel, check again, and then come round and give you a dose of a sedative to keep you quiet all night. That's what you need more than anything else."
"No, really, I—"
"Doctor's order," said Kennedy firmly, and rang off.
After a minute or two, Kate got up, went into the kitchen, took out eggs and bacon, and began to cook them; suddenly she realized how ravenously hungry she was. She kept the kitchen door shut so that the odor of frying bacon would not be too noticeable in the big room, made herself some toast, an date at the corner of the tiny table.
still ached. She ran a comb through her hair, very gingerly at the spot where her head was tender, and put on more lipstick. Sitting in front of the mirror she saw that her eyes were slightly bloodshot; there seemed to be dark patches under them.
Then she heard footsteps on the stairs coming up to this apartment, and when she reached the big room, she realized that not one man but two were coming up.
Could Kennedy and Maurice be together?
"Coming," she found herself calling, as she always did to Maurice, and fumbled as she slid back the door knob, she was so anxious to see him.

Conference Of AAUP Slated Here March 10

The North Carolina Conference of the American Association of University Professors will hold its annual meeting Saturday, March 10, at East Carolina College, Dr. James E. Poindexter of the East Carolina faculty, president, has announced.

The event is expected to bring to the campus members and interested non-members from universities, colleges, and junior colleges from all parts of the state.

Dr. William Archie, Director of the State Board of Higher Education, will be featured speaker at a 12:30 p.m. luncheon in the Buccaneer Dining Room, the opening event of the day's program. He recently assumed his duties as Director of the State Board of Higher Education after a distinguished and versatile career in major colleges in the eastern United States. His topic at the luncheon will be "State-Supported Quality Higher Education."

Two concurrent discussion sessions will take place at 2 p.m. in the Joyner Library. Of special interest will be a discussion by Prof. Robert Duden of Duke University on the new program for the master's degree at Duke. The program, designed to speed up the production of teachers for colleges, is of special and immediate interest to AAUP members and to others interested in higher education.

Sharing ideas in an open forum during afternoon sessions, participants will discuss conditions in colleges which are of common interest. Such topics as recruitment of faculty members, fringe benefits, and faculty participation in institutional programs will be considered.

Peggy Heim of the Washington, D. C., Office of the AAUP will report during the afternoon on "The Economic Status of the Academic Scholar."

Closing event on the program will be a business session conducted at 3:30 p.m.

All interested faculty members in universities and senior and junior colleges in the state, whether or not they are AAUP members, are invited to attend the conference meeting at East Carolina College, President Poindexter stated.

Court Nullifies Award To Bette

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP)—An appeal court has nullified a $65,700 judgment won by actress Bette Davis for injuries suffered in a fall down the stairs of a Brentwood home.

The District Court of Appeal, reversing a 1958 Superior Court verdict, ruled Wednesday that there was no proof of negligence by the home owners, Ronald L. and Ann M. Buck.

Miss Davis fractured a vertebra and a right index finger when she opened what she thought was a closet door and fell down flight of stairs into a basement June 29, 1956.

The Record Bears Out Glenn That Thousands Made Flight Possible

By HOWARD BENEDICT
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—In modestly accepting the accolades heaped on him for his round-the-world orbit flight, astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. repeatedly has said thousands of persons deserve equal credit—that he considers himself a figurehead for this whole big tremendous effort.

Glenn refers to the engineers, the scientists, the technicians and the administrators who devised the program, the booster rocket, the space capsule, the global tracking network—and the 15,000 sailors on the far-flung recovery ships.

Without their teamwork, Glenn says, his flight would not have been possible.

He could cite as an example a drama which occurred just two weeks before the flight, when a fuel tank problem developed in the Atlas booster. Officials at first believed the rocket would have to be taken down or replaced, with perhaps a two-month delay in the launching.

But engineers of General Dynamics - Astronautics, which makes the Atlas, came up with a solution. They constructed a scaffolding inside the fuel tank on which workmen stood to remove the trouble-causing plastic foam covering on the tank bulkhead.

The job was completed in four days and a series of tests pronounced the rocket fit.

The General Dynamics engineers also played key roles in adapting the military Atlas—with its 300,000 intricate parts—to a vehicle capable of lifting the two-ton Mercury capsule.

Of several early unmanned flights, the Atlas-capsule combination proved incompatible and twice the rocket exploded in flight.

Study of data indicated the Atlas was breaking up in a section just below the capsule when the rocket passed through an area of maximum aerodynamic stress. The top eight feet of the 75-foot tall rocket were strengthened and two successful orbit flights, including that of Enos the chimpanzee, paved the way for Glenn's ride.

Similar engineering and technical marvels were required to build the extremely complex capsule. Years of design and testing in wind tunnels, drops from airplanes, in laboratories and on rocket flights went into development of the bell-shaped vehicle, 9 feet tall and 6 feet across, the base, McDonnell Aircraft Co. is prime contractor.

The final product — Glenn's Friendship 7—was jammed with seven miles of wiring, 165 instruments, an environmental control system capable of sustaining life in comfortable surroundings for 28 hours, a heat shield to dissipate the searing 3,000-degree re-entry heat, an escape mechanism to pull the craft free in case of rocket trouble, radio devices to report capsule and astronaut condition, a set of automatic parachutes and even a window to give the astronaut a clear view of the earth and heavens.

Building the hardware was not enough. Mathematicians and scientists had to plot the speed and angle required by the Atlas to place the capsule in the desired orbit. This information had to be fed into the Burroughs-General Electric computer and guidance system in the rocket.

Much figuring was needed to calculate when to fire the capsule's reverse rockets to bring it out of orbit to land it in a designated recovery area in the Atlantic Ocean.

No wonder Glenn wasted little time when he returned to Cape Canaveral seeking out the men on the launch pad and in the control center to personally thank them for their roles in putting him in space.

Receiving special attention in Glenn's numerous public appearances have been the leaders of Project Mercury, those who in 3½ years—despite extreme pressure—masterminded orbital flight from the drawing board to reality.

These are men like Robert R. Gilruth, Project Mercury director; Walter C. Williams, operations director; Chris Kraft, flight director; Dr. William Douglas and Dr. Stanley White, Mercury medical specialists; Dr. Hugh Dryden, George Low and others of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration; and the other six astronauts.

Martha Raye Playing In Familiar Background

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The scene looked natural: Martha Raye was getting married.

But there was a difference. She was marrying Jimmy Durante, and it was a scene in "Jumbo," her first movie in 15 years.

"I never married in most of my other pictures," she reflected. "But I made up for that on the outside."

Martha's husbands have numbered six: makeup artist Buddy Westmore, conductor Dave Rose, businessman Neal Lang, dancer Nick Condos (still her manager), dancer Edward Begley, ex-policeman Bob O'Shea. She reported her current status as separated from O'Shea, who is in the service.

"I don't know what is going to happen," she admitted. "Marry again? I can't predict. I've never tried to plan or foresee the future. I just take life as it comes."

"I've always gone from one medium to another," she reflected. "I started out in the circus, when my folks had an acrobatic act. Then we went into vaudeville. When family acts were no longer popular, I did a single, starting when I was 16."

Martha moved from vaudeville to Broadway to night clubs, landing in films after she was discovered playing here at the old Trocadero. She scored in her first movie, "Rhythm on the Range," with Bing Crosby and Bob Burns in 1936.

She still does a television special yearly, plus four annual shots with Perry Como.

"Jumbo" puts her back where she started — in the circus. She plays Lulu, the girl who will do anything.

As performers leave the sinking circus (circa 1910), she assumes such duties as: fortune teller, snake charmer, fat lady, Statue of Liberty poser, dancer, strong woman, trapeze artist, unicyclist, bearded lady, clown, iron jaw girl.

"I also get shot out of a cannon and dance with a bear," she reported.

Mechanical Alibi Failed Convince

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Charles Marvin Bennett, a Tampa salesman, offered an unusual alibi when he was arrested on a charge of driving 50 miles an hour in a 30-mile zone.

At least, Justice of the Peace W. Marlon Hendry hadn't heard it before.

"My motor was overheated and I didn't want to burn it up," said Bennett.

"That's a new one to me," said Hendry. "That'll be $20 or 10 days."

In The Middle Of Family Fight

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—An 11-year-old child was treated at a hospital for a cut she received when she got caught in the middle of an argument between her mother and father.

Police quoted the 29-year-old mother, Fannie Barton, that her daughter, Alice, received the cut when she was struck by an ash tray. Mrs. Barton told officers she threw the ash tray at her husband, Leroy, 33, but missed.

STAR'S RETURN — Betty Bronson, a screen luminary more than 30 years ago, views Hollywood set with director Daniel Mann. She decided to vary her life as housewife and grandmother with an occasional acting job.

Town Preparing For Next Hero

SPARTA, Wis. (AP)—A 35-man Chamber of Commerce committee began planning Wednesday for the day Sparta's most famous citizen—astronaut Donald K. Slayton—is sent into space.

The Day of Slayton's Flight, Expected Sometime In April, Will Be A Municipal Holiday. Plans Call For Every Church In Town To Hold Prayer Services The Night Before.

The Slayton family has indicated it will remain in the family home in Leon, near this small west-central Wisconsin community, during the event.

Wants Congress To Be Represented At Event

WASHINGTON—Rep. Herbert C. Bonner Monday introduced a resolution in the House of Representatives creating a joint Congressional committee to represent Congress at ceremonies commemorating the 375th anniversary of the landing of Sir Walter Raleigh's colony on Roanoke Island.

The ceremonies, to be conducted Aug. 12-18 on Roanoke Island, also commemorate the birth of the first English child in America, Virginia Dare.

The Congressional group will be composed of six members of the House of Representatives, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House, and six members of the Senate, to be appointed by the President of the Senate. The resolution provides that the members of the joint committee will select a chairman from among their number.

Ceremonies will be conducted jointly by the Congressional Committee and the Governor's Commission for the Celebration of the 375th Anniversary of the Birth of Virginia Dare. William C. Friday, President of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, is chairman of the Governor's Commission.

This year's celebration will also be significant as the silver anniversary of The Lost Colony, a pageant successfully produced for the past 25 years by the Roanoke Island Historical Association to perpetuate the memory of the first English settlement in America on Roanoke Island in 1587.

Bonner said, "I think it is particularly appropriate that this significant milestone in the history and cultural heritage of the United States should be marked by joint ceremonies participated in by representatives of the State of North Carolina and of the Congress of the United States".

In 1960, 753 organizations held their conventions in New York City.

Honeymoon Is Now Half-Priced

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Newlyweds can honeymoon at Niagara Falls at half-price during June.

Hotels and motels in the plan will charge honeymooners single occupancy rates and restaurants will give them two meals for the price of one, the Chamber of Commerce announced Wednesday.

Under the plan, couples present their marriage certificates to the chamber office when they arrive. The chamber then supplies them with a list of cooperating merchants and tours.

Two Clubs Lead Pitt Selections

Coach Stuart Tripp's Ayden Tornados and Coach Dan Wooten's Bethel Indians, first and third place in the Pitt County Conference standings, placed three boys each on the Coach's All-County Team selected this week.

Other teams in the county that had players named to the squad were Winterville with two representatives and Chicod and Grifton with one each.

The teams were chosen by a vote of all the coaches in the county using the vertical point system.

Eight of the ten selected for the 1962 honorary squad were seniors who had played three or four years on the varsity teams at their respective schools. One junior and one sophomore were selected. The team consists of four forwards, four guards and two centers.

Named to the squad at forward were William Edwards and David McLawhorn of Ayden, Herman Daniels of Bethel and Ephraim Smith of Chicod. The guards were Wayne Dail of Ayden, Don Dewar of Bethel, Tommy Riley of Grifton and Bobby Hobgood of Winterville. The centers were Tex Everett of Bethel and James Braxton of Winterville. The only repeaters from last year's All-County Team were Smith and Braxton. Both boys have played varsity ball all four years and have been outstanding performers each year.

Edwards, who has been one of Ayden's best all-around athletes, is 5-foot 11-inches and has lettered for three years. His shooting average has been in the double figures this season and he has been the top scorer in most of the games for the Tornados.

Like teammate Edwards, McLawhorn has also been an outstanding athlete for Coach Tripp and has lettered in basketball for three years. Although his name is David, the 6-foot 1-inch senior is better known as "Clem."

Bethel's Herman Daniels, who is finishing his third year of varsity basketball, has been a big asset to Coach Dan Wooten in his first year with the Indians. Coach Wooten had a lot to live up to when he took over as Bethel coach this year.

Wayne Dail of Ayden, the only junior on the All-County Team this year, has been a big factor in the Tornados' climb to the top of the ladder. The 6-foot guard will be a big help to Coach Tripp next year.

Don Dewar, another one of the three representatives from Bethel, was up to his old tricks again this year, averaging about 18 points per game. The 6-foot senior is completing his third season on the varsity and has been a big threat to the Indians' opponents for the past two seasons.

Tommy Riley, the only member of the team from Grifton, is another four year varsity member and has been a big help to the Bulldogs this season, even though they have had a rough time of it. He has been their high scorer in almost every game.

The second representative from Winterville is Bobby Hobgood. A 5-foot 9-inch senior, he has been on the varsity team for three years and has been a big help to the Wolves. Although he is not noted for being a high scorer, Hobgood has been one of the defensive leaders for Coach Moyer this year.

All 10 members of the All-County Team have done outstanding jobs this year as well as in the past and the honorary team represents Pitt County at its best. However, the season is not over yet and there is still time for these boys to demonstrate their talents.

Games Friday night end up the regular season and the tournament begins in the East Carolina Gym on Monday. Girls All-County Team will be announced Friday in the Daily Reflector.

James Braxton of Winterville, a member of the '61 All-County Team, has again been one of the biggest assets to the Wolves. The 6-foot 6-inch senior aided the Wolves last year in their mid-season climb and has been the leading factor in many of the contests this year. He is averaging around 18 points per game this year and is also one to look out for under the boards. Braxton is the tallest member of the team.

Wayne Dail of Ayden, the only junior on the All-County Team this year, has been a big factor in the Tornados' climb to the top of the ladder. The 6-foot guard will be a big help to Coach Tripp next year.

Don Dewar, another one of the three representatives from Bethel, was up to his old tricks again this year, averaging about 18 points per game. The 6-foot senior is completing his third season on the varsity and has been a big threat to the Indians' opponents for the past two seasons.

Coach Bo Farley and the Greenville High School Phantoms defeated the Jacksonville Cardinals last night in the opening round of the NEAC basketball tournament by a score of 77-63.

The victory gives the Phantoms the right to meet the winner of the New Bern-Washington game, which is tonight, in the second round of the tournament on Friday night.

Early Lead
The Phantoms, behind the sharp-shooting of Billy James and the excellent rebounding of Jack Poley, surged to an early lead in the first quarter of the contest. Greenville managed to maintain this advantage throughout the entire ball game.

Rodney Knowles, the Phantoms' high scoring center, was called for four personal fouls after only five minutes of the first period. Therefore, he was only able to participate in the contest for a total of ten minutes, the last five minutes coming towards the end of the ball game. However, Knowles still found time to score 11 points in his team's opening victory. The Cardinals fell behind the Phantoms early in the contest and were never able to catch their opponents. After six minutes of the first quarter, Greenville raced to a 14-7 advantage over Jacksonville. The Cardinals rallied in the closing seconds of the opening period to cut the Phantoms lead to 17-13, at the end of the quarter.

Cardinals Narrow Lead
Fred Willett hit the nets for the Cardinals to start the second quarter and narrowed Greenville's advantage to two points. However, Coach Farley's charges were not ready to be overcome by the victory-hunting Cardinals. Greenville rallied to pull ahead of Jacksonville 25-19, half-way through the second period. The Cardinals were able to cut this six-point lead to five points at the close of the first half 35-30.

Greenville returned in the third quarter to immediately increase their advantage over the lagging Jacksonville five. The Phantoms increased their lead to nine points after two minutes of the third period. Led by James, Rose High went on to lead at the end of the period by a score of 56-49.

Fight Desperately
The Cardinals fought desperately in the last quarter to overtake the Phantoms, but Greenville continued to increase their advantage. Rose High outscored Jacksonville 21-14 in the fourth quarter to surge to victory 77-63.

Greenville placed four men in double figures for the night with James leading the way with 11 field goals for a total of 22 points. Poley and Krogie Andresen tallied 17 and 14 points respectively, while Rodney Knowles scored 11 points.

Jim Henson, Jacksonville's high scoring guard, led all scorers with seven field goals and nine free throws for a total of 23 points. Also in double digits for the Cardinals were Phil Harries and William Davis with 11 points apiece.

Coach Don Curtis and the Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets roared to victory last night defeating the Elizabeth City Yellow Jackets by a score of 74-45.

Behind the sharp shooting of Graham Dean, the Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets surged to an early first quarter lead, 20-7. Elizabeth City was unable to keep pace with Roanoke Rapids as the victors raced to a 36-21 half-time lead. Both teams emptied their benches of substitutes in the second half as Roanoke Rapids easily won the contest.

Dean Led Roanoke Rapids
Roanoke Rapids was led by Graham Dean who scored eight field goals and three free throws for a total of 19 points. Tommy Merritt and Sonny Pruette tallied 17 points each, while Jimmy Conner scored 10 points in the Roanoke Rapids victory.

Leading Elizabeth City in the scoring department was Don Sivills with a total of 12 points. He was the only Yellow Jacket in double digits for Elizabeth City, although Mel Wright and Ike Jackson added nine points each to the losers' total.

After four minutes of the first quarter Roanoke Rapids led Elizabeth City by a score of 10-3. Elizabeth City was unable to come close to Roanoke Rapids as the Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets went on to a 20-7 first period lead.

Roanoke Rapids continued to increase their advantage in the second quarter, behind the shooting of Graham Dean to 17 points. Although Elizabeth City fought desperately to keep pace with Roanoke Rapids, they were unable to score effectively against their opponents. Roanoke Rapids outscored Elizabeth City 16-14 in the second quarter to surge to a 36-21 lead. Roanoke Rapids Increased Lead
When the two teams returned to the court to begin the second half, it was Roanoke Rapids who immediately began to increase their lead. Elizabeth City fell behind as their opponents increased their lead to 47-27 after five minutes of the third quarter. At the end of this period, Roanoke Rapids led the Yellow Jackets of Elizabeth City by a score of 56-35.

During the fourth quarter, both coaches began to substitute freely. However, Roanoke Rapids continued to widen their margin over Elizabeth City. With five minutes remaining in the last stanza, Chris Felts sank a field goal to send Roanoke Rapids ahead by 24 points, 66-42. The Yellow Jackets from Roanoke Rapids went on to win the game 74 to 45.

Friday night, Roanoke Rapids plays the winner of the Tarboro-Kinston contest which will be played tonight at 9:00 o'clock.

Coaches And Writers To Attend Tournament

Reynolds May, chairman of the first Batters Up Gold Tournament, has announced that eight Atlantic Coast Conference baseball coaches have accepted invitations to attend the event here March 6.

The affair, which it is hoped will be an annual meeting, was first discussed by May and Coach Walter Rabb of the University of North Carolina. The "get-together," according to May, is the first of its kind and is designed to get college baseball off to a good start.

In addition to the coaches attending the event, four athletic directors and four publicity men have indicated that they will be able to take part in the festivities. Also 12 sports writers and announcers will be on hand.

The out of town guests will be quartered at the Kenland and the Smith motels on Memorial Drive near the country club as all of the planned activities will take place there.

The day begins at noon with a buffet lunch, followed by an 18-hole medal play golf tournament. Prizes will be awarded to the winner and runnerup for athletic directors, coaches, sports writers and publicity men.

After the tournament a social hour will be held at the country club, followed by dinner. At the banquet the coaches will discuss the baseball prospects for the coming season.

Coaches scheduled to attend the event are Walter Rabb of UNC, Ace Parker of Duke, Jack Stallings of Wake Forest, Elton Jackson of Maryland, Dick Sorrell of Clemson, J. D. Grugan of USC and Jim West of Virginia. Athletic directors who have accepted the invitation are Ey Cameron of Duke, Chuck Erickson of UNC, Bill Gibson of Wake Forest and Roy Clogston of State. Frank Howard of Clemson, Steve Sebo of Virginia, W. W. Cohey of Maryland and Warren Giese of USC all had prior commitments.

Publicity men at the meeting will be Jake Wade of UNC, Ted Mann of Duke, Marvin Francis of Wake Forest and Frank Weedon of State.

Sports writers and announcers who have indicated they will attend are Ray Reeves, Hugo Germino of the Durham Sun, Bruce Phillips of the Raleigh Times, Dick Herbert and Grady Elmore of the News and Observer, Earl Helen of the Greensboro Record, Gene Warren and Smith Barrier of the Greensboro Daily News, Wilton Garrison of the Charlotte Observer, Bob Quincey and Bob Myers of the Charlotte News, Frank Spencer of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinal and George Bryant of the Daily Reflector.

In addition to the above persons, the East Carolina coaches will be on hand along with Publicity Director Cecil Heath to help with the event.

In commenting on the get-together, May said "We feel like it is a good thing" for Greenville and baseball.

USC's Giese Expected To Resign

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Warren Giese, who in 1960 resigned suddenly as football coach at the University of South Carolina, has made another surprise move and is stepping down as athletic director at the school.

Giese, who was in Raleigh, N.C. for the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament was expected to release a statement today.

Wednesday night Rutledge Osborne of Orangeburg, chairman of the university's board of trustees, said that Marvin Bass, the man who succeeded Giese as head football coach, would serve as interim director of athletics until a final decision on a successor is made.

Sources in Raleigh said Giese will become head of the department of physical education at the university. He was given lifetime tenure as a faculty member after his first year.

The 37-year-old Giese (pronounced "Geeze-Zay") succeeded the late Rex Enright as head football coach at USC in 1956. In five seasons he compiled a 28-21-1 record.

The Gamecocks compiled a 7-3 record the first year under Giese, dipped to 5-5 in 1957, and jumped to 7-3 in 1958. In 1959 the squad had a 6-4 record and in 1960 won three, lost six and tied one. The 7-3 records were matched only four previously by South Carolina teams.

After the 1960 season, Giese succeeded Enright as athletic director. Bass, who had been an assistant at Georgia Tech, took over as head football coach.

Giese, personable, handsome and articulate, came to South Carolina after serving as an assistant to the late Jim Tatum at the University of Maryland. He was called a brilliant young coach and a bright future lay ahead. His coaching resignation came without any forewarning.

A native of Milwaukee, Wis., Giese attended Wisconsin State College, Central Michigan and, after Navy service in World War II, played on Oklahoma's 1946 Gator Bowl team. During most of his playing days he was a half-back.

As a coach, Giese's demands on the time and attention of those who worked with him were heavy. He was a strict disciplinarian and read Prussian military theory to apply it to football.

New Crop Insurance Is Now Available In Pitt

New "High-Dollar, All-Risk" crop insurance is now available to Pitt County farmers through the Federal Crop Insurance Corp., an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, it was reported here today.

This insurance program is non-profit and is for the benefit of eligible tobacco farmers. It guarantees an adequate amount of protection and assures the return of the farmers' crop cost.

Crop damage beyond the farmers control affecting the cost of production can be safe-guarded against all types of weather damage, dry weather, too much rain, flood, hurricane, tornado or any other type of wind (with or without hail), frost or freeze or snow, and hail.

In addition, all types of tobacco diseases and parasites are insured including Black Shank, wilt and nematodes. The tobacco is also covered against fire in the curing barn and pack-house. Other insured causes of loss are unavoidable insects, wildlife and earthquake.

The insurance also features in addition to all-risk coverage, a discount plan, automatic renewal, all season protection and adequate coverage to assure return of crop cost.

The premium cost is low and many farmers have already made application to participate in this added protection. Premium can be paid soon after tobacco market opens.

Freezing March Breezes In For 31-Day Stand

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A freezing, shivering March lullon breezed in for a 31-day stand today and topped temperatures to record lows for the first day of the month across broad areas of the nation's midsection.

The late-winter cold spell of sub-zero weather held tight from Montana into Illinois. Temperatures dropped to 40 below zero in Bemidji, Minn., and in to 20-35 below zero range in other parts of Minnesota, the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Iowa.

The Weather Bureau reported that sub-zero and freezing weather covered more than 80 per cent of the country. The southern border and coastal regions were the only sections out of the cold air belt.

The arctic air which dipped into the flood-stricken sections of Kentucky and adjoining states appeared to have lessened the run-offs of rain-swollen rivers and streams. However, thousands of acres of farmland remained inundated in areas in eastern Kentucky and many persons still were unable to return to their flooded homes. Snow flurries flecked areas in middle and eastern Tennessee.

In the frigid northern Midwest, hit by below zero weather for nearly a week, new low marks for March 1 were set in many cities. The mercury plunged to -35 in International Falls, Minn., and to -32 in Minneapolis, the coldest March 1 on record.

In Iowa, it was -29 in Waterloo and -20 in Des Moines while South Dakota reported a reading of -29 in Aberdeen. In northern Illinois, Bradford reported -10 and it was -6 in suburban areas of Chicago. Flood water also appeared receding in areas in West Virginia, Tennessee and Ohio.

ment Program, President Leo W. Jenkins of the college has announced.

Graduation exercises will be held at the college Sunday, May 27, at 6 p.m. in the College Stadium.

Commencement weekend will begin Saturday, May 26, when alumni of the college will gather on the campus for their annual spring business meeting and for unions and social events, including a luncheon in the South Dining Hall and an afternoon tea.

In addition to graduation exercises, Sunday's program will include an outdoor concert by the East Carolina Symphonic Band at 2:30 p.m. on the South Quadrangle of the campus.

Before his appointment as U.S. Commissioner of Education, Dr. McMurrin had a distinguished career as a university professor and administrative officer.

Triplet Girls After Five Boys

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A 32-year-old mother of five boys gave birth to triplet girls Wednesday at Allegheny General Hospital.

Elizabeth Altman of North Hills and her girls were reported in good condition. The father, Ralph Altman, a certified accountant, said: "It's a shock."

A Score Of Dead And Many Hurt Due Hurricane

LONDON (AP)—At least a score of dead and hundreds of injured were reported today on the Indian Ocean islands of Mauritius and Reunion after a hurricane with winds up to 156 miles an hour.

The British Colonial office said the howling winds and driving rains Wednesday took at least 11 lives on Mauritius, a British-ruled island 530 miles east of Madagascar. Another 125 were injured and 1,300 buildings destroyed.

The Red Cross said special refugee centers were being put up to handle more than 8,000 left homeless on the 720-square mile island of about half a million population. Reports from Saint Denis, Reunion's capital, said the hurricane, called Jenny, killed nine, injured 250 more and left thousands homeless on that French-ruled island 110 miles southwest of Mauritius.

The atmosphere rests on the earth's surface with the weight equivalent to a layer of water 34 feet deep.

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The growing popularity of pills, a widespread drive to cut deaths from sudden heart standstill and a warning about little round white health hazards that will zoom across the nation's golf courses come spring figure in the medical news.

PILLS, PILLS, PILLS
A New Hampshire doctor believes medical personnel in hospitals are over-using tranquilizers, sleeping pills, laxatives—and even X-rays.

Dr. Wie L. Bong of Hanover held up this picture for young doctors and medical students: Apprehensive relatives of injured persons in the emergency room are given "indiscriminate shots of tranquilizers" to calm them even though the patients' injuries are minor in many cases.

At 10 p.m. a nurse makes the rounds of patients who have been sleeping most of the day asking if anyone wants a sleeping pill. Laxatives are "being devoured by the gallons" because patients aren't told that lack of normal action for a day or two won't do any harm.

X-rays are given routinely for sprain injuries that "obviously have no fracture on good clinical examination."

Writing in the New Physician, the journal of the Student American Medical Association, Dr. Bong said, "In my opinion all this misuse can be corrected if we, the doctors, are willing to take out a little time and effort for explanation to those of the public who are willing to listen."

HEART ARREST

Drowning, electric shock, strangulation, suffocation and severe reactions to anesthesia can cause hearts to stop beating. Many of these patients survive if the heart resumes beating—or is forced to do its work—within 4 to 6 minutes.

Opening the chest wall and squeezing the heart by hand was the only survival aid available until researchers found that external pressure on the breast bone squeezed the heart against the backbone and forced it to pump blood into the arteries.

The technique requires no special equipment and can be used anywhere.

Smith Kline & French Lagoraories, in cooperation with the Johns Hopkins medical institutions, has completed a film designed to train physician-directed rescue teams to perform the resuscitation measure safely and effectively.

RUGGED RECREATION

Spring is just around the corner and so is golf.

The Institute for Safer Living of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co. has completed a nationwide study which indicated more than 15,000 golfers, caddies and workmen were injured in golf accidents last year.

Many were victims of swinging clubs, heat prostration and lightning bolts.

But the report, carried in Medical World News, concluded that at least half the golfing injuries were caused by the golf ball itself, striking victims at speeds around 200 miles an hour.

Contraband On Friendship 7

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Friendship 7 space capsule apparently carried a contraband cargo of souvenir dollars as it orbited the earth and project officials are going to take steps so that it doesn't happen again.

One space agency official termed it a "foolish business" and congressmen expressed fear such articles might jam delicate electronic equipment.

Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., testifying before the House Space Committee, said he knew of only one $1 bill. That was wrapped in a wire bundle aboard the capsule.

However, Lt. Col. John A. Powers, the astronauts' public information officer, told newsmen something like 200 bills were hidden aboard Glenn's space craft by the launch crew.

He showed newsmen Monday one of the bills on which he was collecting signatures of the astronauts for a workman who had been stationed on the high gantry that serviced Friendship 7 before it rocketed into history.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — North Carolina's 48-member travel promotion delegation fanned out through Amsterdam today, visiting officials, travel agencies and Dutch relatives.

Mayor C. O. Allsbrook of Wilmington, where 1,000 or more persons of Dutch descent live, delivered the keys of his city of Amsterdam Mayor Gijbert Van Hall.

Members of the group praised the work KLM, the Royal Dutch Airline, is doing to promote travel to the United States. They said KLM's guidebook of advice to visitors to America is the best in the field.

The delegation leaves Friday for Frankfurt, Germany. The group came to Amsterdam Wednesday after a three-day visit to London during which plans for low-priced package holidays for European visitors to North Carolina were outlined. The state's campaign won the good wishes of one of Britain's leading newspapers, the Guardian, but the paper pointed to one big snag — the cost of getting there.

"The mission is to be wished well," said Guardian columnist. "But the economic fact remains that the cheapest air travel from here to North Carolina and back is around 250 pounds ($700) for two people."

The columnist gave this report on the delegation's campaign: "Nothing could be finer than to be in Carolina in the morning, or at any time at all, judging from the enthusiasm with which the North Carolina Travel Mission is urging Britons to come on a package holiday to the Tar Heel state."

Mr. Charles Wade, leader of the mission, said... that the snow was melting in London entirely because of the existence of North Carolina which diverted the Gulf Stream towards Britain. One gathers that what this state does not have is not worth having.

"There are beaches, mountains, Indians, tobacco, textiles and now a half-price holiday for enterprising British tourist at about three pounds 11 shillings ($10 a day inclusive of the hire of a spanking new Chevrolet. And for those with a tendency to homesickness, there are bowls, riding to hounds and highland games."

The Guardian added: "In view of the belief that Yankee knowhow is a quality of New Englanders and Midwesterners rather than Southerners, it is a little surprising that a North Carolina mission should be the first to reach us from the United States since their government recognized last year that tourists need not be exclusively Americans abroad but might also be Europeans coming to America."

Paid Way For Wrong Woman

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (AP) — Lan Davey, an immigrant from Jamaica, worked hard and saved his money so his girl friend back home could join him in England.

Finally he sent the fare—85 pounds ($238)—to Estella Francis with instructions for her to fly over.

Wednesday a stranger knocked on the door of Davey's home. She was 50 years old; Davey's girl friend is only 38.

"Who are you?" he asked. "Why, I'm Estella Francis," the woman replied. "Who are you?"

She was Estella Francis, all right, but not Davey's Estella. He had handed the money to a bank here with the request they arrange passage to England for Estella Francis of Sandy River, Jamaica.

The money was picked up at the Sandy River post office by Estella from lower Chapelton, two miles away.

"She thought it was a gift from her uncle who had emigrated to England," Davey said. "She was expecting to see him. She's gone to London now."

Davey said he didn't know whether he would ever get his 85 pounds back. But he was philosophical about it.

"I've got some more money for the right Estella," he said. "I'm hoping she'll arrive soon."

FCC Splits With Kennedy Over Satellite Corp. Plans

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission has split with President Kennedy over ownership of an American communications satellite corporation.

The FCC Wednesday came out in favor of limiting ownership of the corporation to communications companies.

Kennedy, in legislation submitted to Congress, would have the corporations sell its stock—up to $1-billion worth—not only to communications companies but also to other types of companies and the general public.

The FCC's position was set forth by Chairman Newton N. Minow at a hearing of the Senate Space Committee. He said the Budget Bureau had cleared the commission's statement even though the FCC was not in accord with the President's program.

While disagreeing with the administration's position on ownership of the corporation, the FCC agreed it should be a private enterprise.

Minow said the FCC members strongly favor the approach taken in a bill introduced by Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla., the space committee chairman, limiting ownership of the proposed corporation to authorized common carriers.

He said while concern had been expressed that this might give rise to domination of the corporation by a single carrier and other abuses, the FCC believed safeguards already in the legislation and others it recommended would prevent this.

In his message to Congress

Kennedy said the corporation would be, in effect, a government-created monopoly.

"We cannot in good conscience," he added, "limit its ownership to a few existing companies and exclude automatically all other potential investors who have equal rights to own a part of this federally developed enterprise."

Minow said one effect of limiting ownership to communications companies would be to make possible lower charges for use of the satellite system.

He testified this was because the companies could offset the initially high operating costs against profits from their other operations, as they now do when they introduce innovations.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Police took the man into custody for investigation, and no wonder.

The officers were called to Spa Beach by someone who noticed a man lying on the sand under a cloudy sky with a coat over his head. They found a 33-year-old man, fully clothed, partially buried under drifting sand.

They uncovered his head and asked him what he was doing. "I'm getting a sun tan," he replied.

Direct Mail To Cuba Cancelled

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A contract to haul surface mail between the United States and Cuba has been canceled by the Post Office Department.

Tampa Postmaster J. A. Gonzales said Wednesday the cancellation breaks the last direct surface link between the United States and Cuba. Air line flights still run daily between Miami and Havana.

Future surface mail for Cuba will be routed to a foreign country, probably Mexico for relay to Cuba, he said.

Airliners Sold Las Vegas Firm

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Trans World Airlines has sold its first 25 Constellation airliners, which cost almost $30 million 15 years ago, to Nevada Airmotive Corp. of Las Vegas for $700,000.

There was speculation here that they will be used to shuttle customers to and from the Nevada gambling and resort center.

The Constellations have averaged 40,000 hours in the air, in military service and on civilian passenger runs from the West Coast to Egypt.

Defendants Get Right In Court

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Defendants in criminal trials in Georgia now may give sworn testimony.

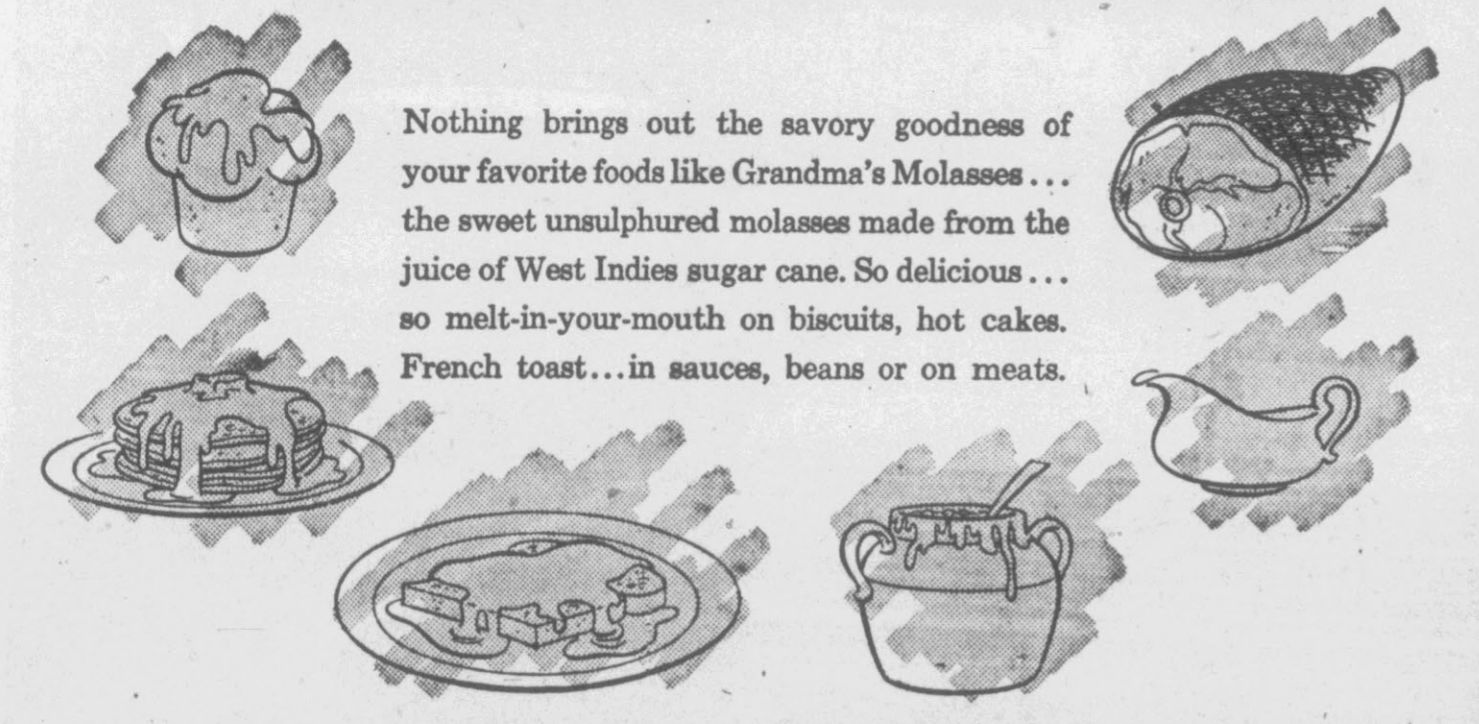

Gov. Ernest Vandiver signed into law Wednesday an act permitting defendants to testify under oath. Previously, defendants were permitted to make only unsworn statements to the jury and were not subject to cross-examination.

Authorities said Georgia was the last state to abandon an ancient common-law rule that anyone charged with a crime was incompetent to give sworn testimony.

Swallowed Fork

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Surgeons removed a dinner fork Wednesday night from the stomach of a pretty blonde.

They said the patient, Athlene LaRae Peterson, 21, was in satisfactory condition.

Miss Peterson, an accountant, said she was talking about her tonsils with a friend at a coffee shop Tuesday night.

"I was holding my tongue down with the fork handle," she explained. "I got to laughing and it just went down."

A hospital attendant said the fork was the largest item he ever had heard about anyone swallowing.

"I still don't see how she did it," he said.

"It was easy," blushed Miss Peterson. "No one will ever believe it."

Unsatisfactory Explanation

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Police took the man into custody for investigation, and no wonder.

The officers were called to Spa Beach by someone who noticed a man lying on the sand under a cloudy sky with a coat over his head. They found a 33-year-old man, fully clothed, partially buried under drifting sand.

"I knew she was going to make it when she began scratching for worms with that wadded leg," said Brown.

President 'Satisfied' With New Tax Revision Bill; Sen. Byrd Isn't

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has told Democratic leaders he is satisfied with a new tax revision bill which falls considerably short of meeting some of his recommendations and threatens a deficit.

But Sen. Harry S. Byrd, D-Va., said if the House passes the bill in its present form the Senate Finance Committee which he heads will take a good look at the measure to see if it can't eliminate what he said may be a $1.8-billion revenue loss.

Kennedy's word to the Democratic leaders that he is willing to take less than he asked for in tax revision was interpreted in some quarters as a presidential move to quiet political controversy in advance of congressional action on his international trade program.

There were indications the President recognizes that a squabble with the House Ways and Means Committee—which wrote the new tax bill—might endanger that group's approval later of a workable trade program.

Also in the background was the administration hope that the committee might eventually take some action on legislation to link the Social Security system. This legislation is now stalemated in the committee.

The administration has scheduled House action on its tax proposal by March 15. Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon urged Byrd's committee to curtail subsequent hearings to speed final congressional action. Byrd agreed to limit hearings to three weeks.

Byrd said in an interview that he is disturbed by the potential revenue loss to the Treasury industry a direct credit of 8 percent against income tax for new machinery and other productive equipment.

This credit would cut business taxes about $1.8 billion. Tightened provisions on expense accounts—which are considerably less stringent than Kennedy recommended—and the closing of other tax loopholes admittedly would not offset this revenue loss.

While rough estimates given to House members put the net loss to the Treasury at $600 million, Byrd said he is convinced the total would be $1 billion more than that. He said the lower estimates are based on contentions that the tax credit provision would boost productivity and thus increase the over-all tax intake.

"I don't think this credit will accomplish the purpose at which it is aimed," he said. "Industry is not going to expand or replace its equipment unless it sees a market available for its product."

Not A Matching Pair In The Lot

BLUEFIELD, W. Va. (AP)—The Salvation Army's pairless pile of 3,000 shoes has stocked a no-charge mail-order house for one-legged persons, Capt. Harold Hinson said Wednesday.

The shoes—not a matching pair in the bunch—were given Hinson last week by an unidentified Bluefield businessman. Because no use could be found for the shoes, Hinson planned to discard them.

But calls and letters from amputees throughout the eastern United States convinced him to offer the shoes at no cost, except payment of postage.

The pile had been reduced by 30 Wednesday, with gifts to both local residents and persons requesting the shoes by mail.

The stock includes all sizes, for either foot.

Astronauts Are Offered Homes

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Frank W. Sharp, Houston real estate developer, has disclosed offers of 50,000 homes to the seven U.S. astronauts.

Business firms here will build and furnish the homes, he told Rep. Albert Thomas, D-Tex. Tuesday night, at a cost to each astronaut of about $10,000.

"We want to show them that we are happy to have them as our neighbors," Sharp said.

The astronauts will train near here after the National Aeronautics and Space Administration completes its $90-million manned space center.

Beacon Slated To Mark Canal

WASHINGTON—A beacon to mark the mouth of the Outfall Canal, from Lake Mattamuskeet to the Pamlico Sound, will be installed to correct an after-dark hazard for small boats.

First District Rep. Herbert C. Bonner told the Daily Reflector by telephone he has been notified by a Coast Guard commandant that the light would be installed. He did not give a date.

Bonner said the light would aid operators of small boats making the trip from Ocracoke Island to a landing ramp near Swindell's Store after dark. The beacon, he said, would enable the operators to locate the mouth of Outfall Canal.

He said he has been directing efforts toward securing the beacon for the past three or four months.

Title Lost Over Pin-Up Photos

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Nancy Dimock, 19, whose brunette beauty and 37-24-35 figure won her the title of queen of the All City Employees Association, stepped down Wednesday.

The curves that won Nancy the title later stirred protests from some association members who viewed them in magazines that featured nudes.

She said she posed for the magazines because she needed extra money.

The ex-queen, an information girl in one of the City Hall offices, added, "I will resign my city job here and go to Seattle to appear in a revue at the world's fair. You know, that's how Sally Rand got her start—in the Chicago World's Fair of 1933."

Sees Berlin As Industrial City

BERLIN (AP)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay says West Berlin should be made into "a really international industrial and production area."

In an interview recorded for RIAS, the American broadcasting station in Berlin, President Kennedy's special envoy to Berlin expressed confidence that concessions would be made to get American firms established in West Berlin. He said they would find qualified workers and take satisfaction in working within the European Economic Community.

Says 8 Million Dads Deserted

NEW YORK (AP)—There are about eight million fathers in the country who have deserted their families and are not supporting them, a social workers' conference was told Wednesday.

The figure was supplied by Mrs. Harold D. Harvey, acting president of the Community Council of Greater New York, who said about 400,000 of the deserted women and children live in New York City.

Price, spice and everything nice!

Who ever thought a car that saves like this could have so much sizzle? Chevrolet engineers, that's who! Liveliness and luxury for a low, low price were exactly what they had in mind to begin with. And they began from scratch with a whole carload of ingenious new ideas designed to give you more car for your money. That spunky 6 with gas-sipping stinginess is just one example. Another: a new unitized Body by Fisher that's fit for a full-size family inside, easy to park outside. Still another: tough but gentle one-piece Mono-Plate rear springs that outdo many a bigger car for quiet comfort. And along with the dollar-saving dependability you just naturally expect in a Chevrolet-built car, Chevy II has a flock of features that cut upkeep costs to the bone. For example, the various front-end components—fenders, engine compartment, the works—bolt on and off to make repairing easy. Any wonder Chevy II won Car Life magazine's 1962 Engineering Excellence award hands down? (The only wonder would be if you settled for anything less—once you get your hands on one at your Chevrolet dealer's!)

lina, told the audience that in this day of "testing in all directions" no tests have yet been made to measure the influence which the individual exerts on the lives of others. Miss Coates, he said, is an "inspirational type of person" whose devotion to her work and high standards and ideals in teaching young children and training college students as teachers have been of immeasurable benefit to those privileged to work with her.

Greetings to Miss Coates and to those present were extended by Mrs. Clay Burnette of Greenville, president of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Wahl-Coates Laboratory School, and Mrs. Mack Stocks, president of the ACE Chapter in Greenville City Schools.

Ann Martin of Macesfield, president of the ACE Chapter at East Carolina, gave an inspirational talk on "The Spirit of ACE."

Miss Eunice McGee of the staff of the Dean of Women at East Carolina, who as a supervising teacher at the Wahl-Coates Laboratory School was associated with Miss Coates in her work, characterized Miss Coates from the point of view of a colleague as "devoted, understanding, sympathetic, calm, and collected." She drew a laugh from the audience when she cited Miss Coates' "courage with Kleenex, and patience with parents" in her association with her pupils and their mothers and fathers.

Mrs. Pauline H. Spain of the Fullilove School in Greenville, who did student teaching at East Carolina under Miss Coates' direction, said that she "gave much to young girls going out to teach and much to the cause of education."

John Dexter Githens, Miss Coates' young nephew from Durham, unveiled the portrait.

A choir composed of children from all grades of the Wahl-Coates School, drawing attention to the fact that the ceremony had special significance in being held on Miss Coates' birthday, sang "Happy Birthday to You."

At the close of the unveiling exercises an informal reception was held in the cafeteria of the Wahl-Coates School.

Among out-of-town guests attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Coates, Mrs. Arnold King and Miss Mary Ann King, of Chapel Hill; Mrs. Sherwood Githens and Misses Nancy and Janet Githens of Durham; Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Coates of Raleigh; Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Parker of Dudley; and Mr. and Mrs. George T. Whitley of Rutherford College, members of Miss Coates' immediate family.

Also attending were the Rev. and Mrs. Edwin Coates of Farmville, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hale and Miss Genny Hale of Scotland Neck, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Awaits Action Of Grand Jury

ROBERSONVILLE — Jesse Earl Wynne, 43, faces grand jury action as a result of a coroner's inquest into the shooting death of a New Bern man last Saturday.

Wynne allegedly shot Roland G. Moore, a New Bern forester who was a psychiatric patient at the Robersonville Clinic. The shooting occurred early Saturday morning at the Wynne home, near the clinic, as Moore was trying to enter Wynne's house.

A six-man coroner's jury ordered that Wynne be held for action of the Martin County grand jury which convenes again during the March 19 term of Superior Court in Williamston.

Coroner W. W. Biggs set Wynne's appearance bond at $2,000. Moore, a former employe of the Union-Camp Bag Corps, had reportedly been a patient at the local clinic for three weeks when he allegedly tried to enter the Wynne home about 6:30 a.m. Saturday. He died from two .22 caliber bullet wounds, one in the abdomen and another in the upper left chest.

President Recommends Vast New Outdoor Recreation Land-Buying

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy recommended today a vast new land purchase program ranging up to $1 billion to provide more outdoor recreation for millions of Americans. The proposal was part of a broad plan aimed at protecting and expanding the country's natural resources.

In a special conservation message to Congress, Kennedy called for the creation of a land conservation fund to acquire recreational areas across the country.

Administration sources estimated buying would total between $800 million and $1 billion over the next eight years. Costs would be paid by people who use existing federal parks and outdoor facilities, through admission and other fees; by the diversion of unclaimed motorboat fuel tax rebates from the highway trust fund and by receipts from the sale of surplus federal land.

While those funds build up, Kennedy recommended Treasury advances not exceeding $500 million for the eight-year span. He said Congress could make the money available by annual appropriations to the conservation fund and have it replaced by income from the fees and other sources.

Kennedy outlined the plan, fashioned from a study by his Outdoor Recreation Resources Review Commission, in a lengthy message declaring the nation's conservation effort must cover the entire spectrum of its resources.

The President defined conservation as "the wise use of our natural environment" and said, "It is, in the final analysis, the highest form of national thrift."

To evaluate past progress and plan for the future, Kennedy announced he would convene a White House conference on conservation sometime this year.

He promised the United States would continue to cooperate with other countries in scientific and research undertakings and share the techniques it develops—techniques such as making salt water fit to drink.

In the field of recreation, Kennedy asked Congress to establish a system of matching grants to help the states develop outdoor programs. He requested an additional $50 million to assist states and cities to acquire open spaces for the recreation of urban areas. And for the great outdoors, he urged Congress to pass controversial legislation introduced last year to preserve wilderness areas.

Kennedy again plugged for the program he submitted last summer to plan the most effective use of water resources to meet needs which he estimated will double by 1980 and triple by the end of the century. He said new measures are required to manage public and timber lands and to complete more watershed projects.

The President said he directed Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall to devise methods of dealing with serious erosion and river pollution caused by surface, or strip mining.
