

Commissioners Back 6-County Organization

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County's Commissioners endorsed today a proposal to create a six-county cooperative organization aimed at economic development in Pitt, Beaufort, Martin, Wilson, Nash and Edgecombe Counties.

A 20-page description of the Coastal Plain Planning and Development Commission was outlined before today's session of the commissioners by Dr. C. Sylvester Green, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission.

All five commissioners had been furnished copies of the document, proposed as a legislative act to create the area organization, prior to today's meeting.

Green, in his presentation today, said the six-county organization would be operated largely through voluntary service by its officers and committees. Appropriations by the member counties, he pointed out, would be decided upon by the six boards of county commissioners.

Several meetings of the organization's steering committee had set the stage for today's presentation, to be made simultaneously today to official boards of all six counties. Leaders in the organization of the area commission hope it will be operative by July 1.

Commissioner J. Vance Perkins of Greenville offered the motion of endorsement. Robert G. Little of Simpson seconded and the vote was unanimous.

Dr. Joe Pou, agricultural manager for Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. here, also appeared in behalf of the area commission. He cited the six-county organization as an avenue for cooperative planning in agriculture to raise the per capita farm income in the area.

Purpose of the organization, as stated by its steering committee, is "to improve economic development, stimulate cultural activities and recreational facilities and organize improved community and county planning."

Provisions in the document endorsed by the Pitt board today allow admittance of municipalities within the six-county area as members of the commission.

Wake Forest Baptists Drop Racial Barriers

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The 600-member Wake Forest Baptist Church removed all racial barriers Sunday in what officials said was an "overwhelming" vote of the congregation.

The church on the campus of Wake Forest College will become the first Baptist church in North Carolina to open its membership rolls to Negroes.

Dr. Glenn Blackburn, pastor, called the vote an overwhelming majority, despite the fact that many members still were in Raleigh where the Wake Forest basketball team won the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball title Saturday night.

Dr. Blackburn said, "I am grateful for the church that's willing to do this."

Only one member took a verbal stand on the issue when it was brought up at a congregational meeting by the church's Christian Life Committee.

Dr. J. Allen Easley, chairman in the future.

In other morning action, the commissioners referred a pair of road petitions to the State Highway Commission for proper action.

One involved Secondary Road 1243 (2.8 miles) in Arthur Township. Improvements were requested by the petitioners. Another petition requested improvements to Secondary Roads 1232 and 1236 near Fountain. A three-man delegation from Fountain, headed by Jimmy Sutton, attended the commissioners' meeting to appeal for improvements to the roads. Sutton said a petition had been filed previously last fall.

The commissioners, upon a motion by Bruce Strickland of Bell Arthur, endorsed a resolution asked by the State Highway Commission calling for a revision in plans for improving Secondary Road 1251 (Shivers Road) near Falkland.

The resolution, prepared by the highway commission, said the revision would serve the best interests of the county road system.

Seeking to untangle a parking problem behind the courthouse, the commissioners granted authority to the Building and Grounds Committee (Perkins and Little) to regulate parking in the 10-car parking lot recently provided between the courthouse and the Edwards Building.

In other action the commissioners: —appropriated $300 and $650 as donations to the Pitt County Fat Stock Show and Sale and the Greenville Rescue Squad, respectively.

—agreed to pay from funds allocated for that purpose a $77 bill for landscaping at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

—authorized Commissioner Strickland to appoint three freeholders to investigate the alleged loss of a calf and several goats owned by Glenn Newton of Farmville. Newton requested the board action on the grounds that the animals were killed by stray dogs. Freeholders are expected to make their recommendation at next month's meeting of the commissioners.

—appropriated school funds raised locally by several county schools to be used by the schools and to be matched with National Defense Education Act money.

—drew juries for April 16 and April 23 terms of Pitt County Superior Court.

of the college's Department of Religion, said: "This is the major domestic problem of our country today — to say nothing of its far-reaching international implications. The time for a breakdown in the old racial patterns has come. No white person can speak on this subject with a clear conscience — certainly I can not."

The church's action follows a recommendation by the Baptist State Convention, repeated since 1955, that all of the denominations churches "seek God's will concerning our responsibility and opportunity to open the doors of worship, service and fellowship to all Christians regardless of race."

Racial barriers have been taken down in the Wake Forest College law school, school of graduate studies, summer school, evening classes, and in the Bowman Gray School of Medicine. There have been requests that the undergraduate school be desegregated.

To Tell Story

WASHINGTON (AP)—U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers will tell his story in open session for the first time before the Senate Armed Services Committee Tuesday afternoon, Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., announced today.

Russell made the announcement after a secret briefing by Central Intelligence Director John A. McCone before two Senate subcommittees which monitor the super-secret agency.

The Georgia senator declined to give any personal evaluation of McCone's report, which was an account of the lengthy quizzing of Powers since his return to the United States.

Russell did say McCone would repeat the briefing before the full Senate Armed Services Committee Tuesday morning.

The two groups which heard today's report were subcommittees of the Armed Services and Appropriations committees.

The closed-briefing this morning lasted an hour and a half.

Earlier it had been reported that a special board of inquiry found that Powers generally complied with orders on his ill-fated flight over Russia.

Spring Quarter Begins At ECC

East Carolina College opened today for the Spring Quarter of the 1961-1962 school year.

Registration of students began this morning in the Wright Auditorium and will continue into the afternoon. Classes will begin tomorrow at 8 a.m.

No report on enrollment is as yet available. It is estimated that the number of students taking work on the campus this spring will exceed that for any other similar period in the history of the college.

A four-day recess followed the end of the Winter Quarter February 28. During this time faculty and staff members completed records for the quarter. Most students left the campus for vacations at home or elsewhere.

The Spring Quarter will include spring holidays beginning Thursday, April 19, at 5 p.m. and extending through April 23. Commencement exercises, at which all graduates of the 1961-1962 term will receive degrees, are scheduled for Sunday, May 27.

Monday, March 12, will be the last day on which a student may register, change courses on his schedule, add courses, and apply for graduation in May.

Air Raid Drills Stir War Fever In Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — War fever is mounting again in Indonesia over West New Guinea, whipped up by air raid drills in all major cities.

Military authorities are directing the exercises and warning everyone to be prepared in the event of raids by Dutch bombers from the disputed territory claimed by Indonesia.

Alerts are sounded with increasing frequency, bringing everything to a standstill. Diplomatic observers in Jakarta predict that when the Moslem fast month of Ramadan ends March 8, the Indonesian government may again start talking tough over the West New Guinea dispute.

President Sukarno conferred Sunday with U.S. Ambassador Howard P. Jones. The United States has been energetically trying to bring a peaceful settlement between Indonesia and the Dutch as a friend of both countries.

CLAIMS RECORD

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Disc jockey Dan Morgan of station WCWC claims a world record of 202 hours, 48 minutes and 47 seconds for marathon radio broadcasting. A physician says he apparently suffered ill effects from the stint.

The board will consult with County Attorney W. W. Speight on a request that the county schools donate or sell property in Pactolus to the Naotles Rural P.E. Department. Noel Lee appeared as spokesman for the Pactolus group.

The following faculty members have reached the age of 65, and through recommendation of their local school committees and approval of the county board will serve another year: Mrs. Katherine H. Adams, Stokes; J. W. Ormond, South Ayden; Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas, Farmville; Mrs. J. B. Joyner, Farmville.

Board members sent a remembrance to E. W. Fleming, board member from Grifton, who has been confined due to a broken hip.

Consolidation Of High Schools Recommended In Pitt Survey

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

A committee from the State Department of Public Instruction, which conducted a survey of schools north of the Tar River and Grimesland schools, has suggested consolidation for the county's high schools into three central units with one central high school for schools north of the river.

Copies of the report were presented this morning to members of the Pitt County Board of Education at their monthly meeting.

Representatives of the committee from the State Department of Public Instruction conducted the survey of high school organizational and educational needs in the area of Pitt County including the following high schools: Belvoir-Falkland, Bethel and Stokes-Pactolus, and also Grimesland, in response to a request from those schools, through the board of education. The survey was conducted Oct. 3-4, 1961.

In their suggestions, the committee said, "In view of the fact that some time would be required to effect a countywide high school consolidation program, immediate improvement might be possible on an interim basis by combining some of the small high schools within the framework of existing buildings. However, no major capital improvement should be made at any of the existing plants until a permanent county-wide plan is adopted."

During the project, the study committee discussed the total school situation in Pitt County, studied previous survey reports and visited all school plants in the survey. Members of the group also met with local district committees and interested citizens. The committee found it essential to examine the elementary schools in the area.

The committee specifically suggested: 1—That consideration be given to the establishment of a new central high school at a convenient location to serve high school pupils presently attending the Belvoir-Falkland, Stokes-Pactolus, and Bethel High Schools. A site containing a minimum of 30-35 acres should be acquired and a building with complete facilities for a comprehensive program for roughly 500 pupils should be constructed.

2—Due to location of the Grimesland district with respect to other schools in the county and to the Greenville unit, it is suggested that the Pitt Board of Education explore the possibility of working out a joint arrangement with the Greenville system for accommodating high school pupils in all, or a part, of the Grimesland district at Greenville's high school.

3—Elementary schools for grades 1-8 should be retained at each of the existing school sites.

4—Adequately renovate and adapt for the best possible elementary use all usable facilities at the existing union school sites.

5—Further, "that immediate consideration be given to the dissolution of the several special districts for capital improvement purposes in order that the total resources of the county may be placed behind all of the schools in the county."

6—That consideration be given to an adequate countywide supplemental tax levy to replace the several district supplemental tax levies.

7—Joint planning between the two administrative units.

8—In consequence of the foregoing suggestions, develop a county-wide high school organizational plan for the future to include high schools of sufficient size to provide adequate programs at a reasonable cost.

The county board of education, through Chairman Joseph S. Moye, stated that its policy for the time being would be "to approve no more capital outlay funds . . . for Grimesland and north of the river high schools until citizens of those communities have decided in which direction they wish to go."

Though the board stated it was making no recommendations about the survey report, they expressed a desire for the public to become fully aware of the report and information in it. Moye said, "It is hoped that the people in each school district would consider these recommendations and let us know their thinking."

Various members of the board noted it is important to know the reactions, especially of schools north of the river.

Moye asked that copies of the report be forwarded to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, Greenville Board of Education and each local school committee in the county.

Results of the survey and the committee's report indicated that in future planning, schools of the county will have several choices; to remain as they are; to enlarge existing facilities; to consolidate.

The suggestions submitted by the committee were long-range planning, the board members noted this morning.

In their study, the committee noted that the total net gain in all of the elementary schools in the high school district studied was only 46 pupils for the nine-year period of 1952-1961. "It will be observed that Grimesland experienced distinct losses in both elementary and high school memberships," the report said. The net overall increase in the other three high schools was 69 for the period studied.

The committee stated, "This analysis and general observations by the committee of developments in the area indicate little appreciable growth in school population in this area of the county in the near future." They noted that the population gain in the last census was primarily confined to Greenville.

They found in their survey that "Special facilities such as science laboratories, libraries, etc., even with recent improvements, are not adequate for today's high school instructional needs" in the high schools studied. "While considerable improvements have been made in these older buildings, they are of poor design and do not lend themselves well to modern high school educational programs," the report said.

"The Belvoir-Falkland, Bethel, Stokes-Pactolus and Grimesland Schools are all union schools with grades 1-12, an organization which the best educational thought seems to be agreed now is not the most desirable and should be replaced as rapidly as conditions will permit," the committee said. They added, "One obvious fact about these high schools is that they are entirely too small on the basis of all recognized criteria to offer, at a reasonable cost, the type of high school program that people are increasingly demanding for their children."

Larger high schools would provide a greater variety of course offerings, provide better opportunity for teachers to work in their specialized fields, permit grouping to better meet needs of students, enable the school to provide better training for both college prospects and those who do not wish to go to college, and to render better service to elementary students when the high school is separated from the lower grades, among other things.

Wave Of Bombings Rock Algiers In Display Of Secret Army's Power

ALGIERS (AP) — A record-breaking wave of 135 plastic bomb explosions rocked Algiers for 90 minutes before dawn today in a new demonstration of strength by the European Secret Army Organization.

Twelve persons were injured, but no deaths were reported from the thundering blasts.

Police headquarters said 13 men were arrested either fleeing the scenes of the blasts or preparing to set off new charges. They formed three of what police estimated were a score of teams that carried out the attacks. Most of the blasts were aimed against Moslem stores or parked automobiles belonging to Moslems. Police said no public buildings were damaged.

Thousands of Europeans in night clothes crowded to their windows and onto balconies, listening to the blasts and counting them. Cheers went up in the Bab-el-Oued section with every explosion.

"It was a real festival," one European woman said beaming.

European settlers close to the right-wing underground said the operation was part of a Secret Army plan to keep the Moslems in check.

The explosions ended at daybreak with the same suddenness they began in an expertly timed, massive show of strength by the European terrorists.

By noon life in Algiers appeared normal again except for tense troops patrolling the city.

The wave of plastic explosions came on the heels of a government communique which said the authorities were scoring important progress in their fight against the Secret Army.

The first blasts went off at 4:45 a.m. in the heart of the capital and then spread with rapid-fire precision to all sections of the city.

Rows of shop windows were shattered, covering several streets with glass and debris. Many stores were set on fire.

The raiders steered clear of heavily guarded government buildings.

Troops and police patrolled downtown Algiers in a nightmarish atmosphere. Bursts of machine-gun fire were heard.

The bombing was the first major outbreak by the underground army to hit Algiers in two months.

The secret army showed increasing boldness and desperation with the final peace accord between the Algerian Moslem nationalists and French President Charles de Gaulle coming closer to pave the way for Algeria's independence.

Eleven of 12 Italian newsmen covering the Algerian developments fled home after being threatened with death. American and British reporters were warned to watch their step—or else.

The one Italian correspondent who chose to stay, Nicola Caracolo of Rome's Il Giorno, went to French government general headquarters accompanied by American and British newsmen to appeal for protection.

"We cannot protect our own people," one French official told them. "How do you expect us to protect you?"

Hearing Set Monday Over Bid To Move Grifton Firm

TRENTON — Federal Judge John D. Larkins today granted a temporary order calling for a hearing in New Bern next Monday of a case in which a labor union seeks to remove Grifton Clothing Co. to Philadelphia.

A group of Grifton businessmen, who spearheaded a drive to locate the garment manufacturing plant in Grifton two years ago, appeared here today to ask an injunction to block the union move.

NCEA Elects New Officers

Dr. Frank G. Fuller of East Carolina College has been elected vice president of the North Carolina Education Association as a result of the annual election held Feb. 21.

Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, supervisor of Pitt County schools was elected president of the Northeastern District of the N.C. E.A. and Dr. Richard S. Spear of East Carolina College was elected vice president of the district N.C.E.A.

Another member of the Pitt County schools faculty, Willard Finch, was elected a delegate to the National Education Association Convention to be held in Denver, Colo., in July.

The Board of Directors of the N.C.E.A. announced during the weekend the results of the election, following the canvassing of ballots by a special Canvassing Committee. Dan S. Davis, superintendent of Union County Schools, was unopposed for presidency of the association.

Hearing Opens

A preliminary hearing for F. D. Sledge, supervisor of Pitt County Negro Schools, who was charged last week with the rape of a 15-year-old Negro girl got underway today in Greenville Recorders Court.

First witness for the state in the hearing was the alleged victim. She was followed on the witness stand by her aunt, who was at home when the girl returned following the incident.

Court was recessed at 1 p.m. and scheduled to resume at 2:30.

The Grifton plant, operated by the Evans Manufacturing Co. of Philadelphia, owned by Sidney H. Evans, was charged by the union with breaking provisions in the union-management contract signed between the Evans firm and the International Ladies Garment Workers.

Larkins' temporary order today set a hearing for the matter in which the union and Sidney Evans must show cause for the intended move.

According to a spokesman for the Grifton businessmen, the matter has already been referred to an arbitrator, identified as Allen Dash, who ruled in favor of the union.

The matter is scheduled for hearing in federal court in Philadelphia Tuesday, according to the Grifton spokesman.

He said the injunction sought today was "to declare void that section of the agreement (between the union and Evans Manufacturing Co.) which requires the employer to unionize the Grifton plant known as the Evans Manufacturing Co."

May Determine Soon How Many Hunger-Strikers

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—Army officials may be able to determine in the next few days how many of the 550 men of a N.W. Hampshire National Guard unit are on a so-called "hunger strike."

Some members of the 4th Howitzer Battalion, in an effort to learn when they will be released from active duty, began boycotting mess halls last Friday.

The outfit was to begin three days of routine training in the field today and field kitchens have been told to advise how many men eat in the kitchens. The field training is routine, and was not prompted by the boycott, officials said.

This will be the first time since the mess hall boycott began that the men will have no opportunity to eat at the post exchange or elsewhere. They admit they've been eating at the PX and civilian restaurants.

One officer called the boycott nothing more than "a maligned milk and hamburger kick."

PHANTOM RUNNER-UP . . . Alan McArthur and Billy James receive runner-up trophy as Coach Farley looks on.

By GEORGE BRYANT Reflector Sports Editor

After Roanoke Rapids captured the Northeastern Athletic Conference championship Saturday night by downing Greenville 60-54 the East Carolina gym was a mass of confusion as happy and disappointed fans alike swarmed down on the court to congratulate the players and coaches.

One officer called the boycott nothing more than "a maligned milk and hamburger kick."

Coach Don Curtis and the Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets received the conference chamionship trophy as well and the district trophy presented by the High School Athletic Association. Coach Curtis and Captain Graham Dean accepted the awards for the winners.

Coach Bo Farley and Co-Captains Alan McArthur and Billy James received the conference runner-up trophy and the district runner-up trophy for the Greenville Phantoms.

Both Roanoke Rapids and Greenville will represent the conference in the state tourney to be held in Kinston March 14-17.

In addition to the awards presented the winner and the runner-up, the New Bern Bears received the consolation trophy.

Coach Bob Lewis and Glenn Dunn accepted the award for the Bears.

The All-Tournament team, selected by a ballot of the coaches, was also announced by the conference officials. Billy James of Greenville and Tommy Merritt of Roanoke Rapids headed up the selections. Merritt hit the nets at a 20.3 clip during the tourney and James was close behind at 20.

Industrial Training School's Director Arriving Around May 1

The recently hired director of Pitt's industrial training school, Lloyd Spaulding, will report for duty about May 1, the Pitt County Board of Education announced this morning.

At their regular monthly meeting, the board agreed to a request that Spaulding report in May rather than in April.

A report on progress of clearing land of the industrial school site, submitted by S. J. Peterson of Ayden, showed that undergrowth and undesirable trees had been cleared over the entire site and that desirable trees had been saved. Peterson reported that an east-west drive connecting the two highways near the north boundary had been cleared of trees, brush and stumps and that progress was underway for a second drive.

The board commended Peterson for his service to the county and recommended that he remain in the capacity of supervisory official on the site clearing until the new director arrives. They also authorized Peterson to proceed with drainage plans.

On the motion of T. G. Worthington of Ayden, the board voted to accept Peterson's report and express appreciation for his services.

On motion of G. E. Trevathan of Fountain, the board recommended that W. O. Price, school building maintenance, handle all accounts for the industrial school.

Bids on the Grifton school improvements will be opened at 2:30 p.m. on Thursday, March 15, it was reported.

Reel-Starling Vows Spoken

Miss Goldis Staron Starling and John Calvin Reel were united in marriage on Saturday afternoon, March 3, in a 4:00 o'clock ceremony. Their pastor, Rev. Thomas Money, officiated as the couple exchanged the vows of the double-ring ceremony in Hooker Memorial Christian Church of Greenville.

The couple's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Belvin Starling of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. George Othel Reel of Madison, Fla.

The church was decorated with bridal decorations. Proceeding to the altar were single candleholders with bouquets of white mums. Extending from the center were seven branched candelabra, arca palms and brass floor baskets of mums, glads and pom poms. Back of the altar were a semi-circle brass candelabra with myriads of cathedral candles and tall arrangements of white mums and glads.

At the altar was a brass Pri Dieu with white cushions of either side with pyramidal candelabra interspersed with white chrysanthemums between burning tapers. Tall palmetta palms completed the setting. Pews were marked with white satin bows and plumosus greenery.

Miss Brenda Thigpen was organist. She played a program of nuptial music prior to the ceremony. Traditional processional and recessional music was used. Mrs. Moye Dail was soloist. Her selections were "The Wedding Prayer," by Lovelace, "Because," by Harelott, and "The Lord's Prayer," by Malotte.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a Chantilly lace silk organza gown with scalloped neckline. Her long sleeves tapered to a point on each hand. Her bouffant skirt was caught up with roses of Chantilly lace and a scalloped ruffle of lace which edged in a chapel sweep. The bride's double crown was custom made to match the lace, iridescent sequins and pearls on her wedding dress. She wore a three-tiered fingertip veil of imported French illusion. The bride carried a white satin covered Bible with white orchids showered with frenched carnations.

Miss Ann Green was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Leo Starling, Miss Joyce Jackson, Miss Bobbie Newman, and Mrs. R. H. Heath Jr. All of the attendants are from Greenville.

They wore street length dresses of yellow organza over yellow taffeta with accessories to match. They carried cascade bouquets of orchid chrysanthemums and orchid pom poms tied with orchid satin and nylon tulle. Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Millie Overton, Miss Kay Kennedy, Miss Barbara Boyd, Miss Ina Brynum and Miss Ginny James. Their dresses were ballerina length of pastel colors. They wore wristlets of yellow mums tied with yellow tulle and yellow satin ribbon.

The bridegroom's father, Mr. George Reel, of Madison, Fla., served as best man. The ushers were Raymond Reel of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom; Leo Starling of Greenville, brother of the bride; Jerry Byrd of Elkin; and Larry Tuten of Madison, Fla.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Robert Starling wore a green lace dress with green satin shoes and purse. Her hat and gloves were beige.

The bridegroom's mother wore a gold silk dress with light brown hat and gloves, and bone colored shoes and purse.

Both mothers wore hybrid orchid corsages.

After the reception, the bride changed for her wedding trip. She wore a brown and bone linen suit-dress with brown and bone accessories. Her bone colored coat was wool. She wore white orchids that were lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. John Calvin Reel received her education from Junius H. Rose High School and is now a junior at East Carolina College, majoring in Primary Education.

Mr. Reel graduated from Madison High School, Madison, Fla., served with the navy three and a half years and is now a student at East Carolina College, majoring in Accounting.

Reception

Following the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Starling, parents of the bride, entertained at a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Calvin Reel.

Mrs. S. B. Tucker and Mrs. Owen Marshburn directed the guests to the church parlor.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton May received the guests and presented Rev. and Mrs. Money, who introduced the guests to the receiving line composed of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Starling, Mr. and Mrs. George Reel, the bride and the bridegroom, and their wedding party.

Mrs. Helen Sermons presided at the registration table. Mrs. Hubert Haynes invited the guests to the appointed refreshment table, which was covered with a bridal green cloth with white nylon tulle. The centerpiece was white snaps and white carnations with tall white candles in crystal holders. Mrs. Thurman Hale poured punch. Assisting in serving assorted nuts, mints, cheese straws and decorated cakes were Mrs. Charles Jackson, Miss Beulah Harrington, Miss Marie Hale, Mrs. Raymond Smith and Mrs. Karl Hardee, the honorary bridesmaids.

A three-tier wedding cake graced a separate decorated table. The first slice of cake was cut by the bride and the bridegroom. Miss Millie Overton cut and served wedding cake to the wedding party and other friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Evans said the goodbyes.

Dinner

John Reel Jr. and Miss Goldis Starling were entertained Thursday evening at a turkey dinner

Mrs. Spilman Club Speaker

The Woman's Club met Friday at the clubhouse. Mrs. Hicks Corey, membership chairman, introduced new members. They were honored at tea before the meeting.

Hostesses were Mrs. Frank Little, chairman, Mrs. Hinton Best, Mrs. Troy Rouse, Mrs. Ellen Petrie, Mrs. C. C. Hilton, Mrs. Gilbert Peel.

Decorations consisted of spring flowers and magnolia leaves. The theme of St. Patrick's Day was carried out in the green and white colors on the tea table.

In the absence of Mrs. Dink James, Mrs. W. E. Roseware called the meeting to order and received reports from the various committees.

Mrs. F. L. Davison, Vogue Pattern Sewing Contest chairman, presented the judges, Miss Alice Strawn, Mrs. O. Welborn, Mrs. Manning and Mrs. Briley. The winner of the contest, Miss Lynn Dodson, a high school student, modeled the dress she had made.

Mrs. J. E. Ricks, chairman of Home Life Department, presented Mrs. J. B. Spilman who is head of North Carolina Mental Health Department.

Mrs. Spilman said there is no more need to be ashamed of mental sickness than of physical illness. Just as help can be secured for the one, so also can it be for the other. There are several institutions set up to supply that need. Good mental health has three laws: 1) Ability to love, 2) ability to work, 3) ability to enjoy these things.

Many people are mentally disturbed, not because they have severe troubles, but because they have not found the right place for themselves, and they have not found something they enjoy doing. They crave the right kind of work and companionship, and a feeling of accomplishment. In the absence of these, they feel out of touch with others, will long for something which will bring them happiness instead of frustration. They hesitate to ask for help where it can be obtained, from institutions set up for that purpose.

Mrs. Spilman spoke of older people, who also suffer from frustrations. Many, who because of age have been compelled to retire, feel they have been discarded. They suffer from depression, loneliness and a feeling of being useless.

She urged everyone to keep busy, to get out and meet others, and find something worthwhile to do, so there would be no time to feel frustrated. Always remember you are a person, Mrs. Spilman said.

Good mental health is indicated by an absence of hatred.

It happened 100 YEARS ago

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862 . . . the same year that

IN NORTH CAROLINA the much-feared Union Ironclad Monitor, limping southward after its sea-duel with the Confederate Merrimack, sank off Cape Hatteras. As news spread throughout the South, steins of foaming beer toasted the sinking of this worthy foe.

For then, as now, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation—light, sparkling refreshment that adds a touch of Southern hospitality to any occasion. North Carolinians have always enjoyed the good fellowship that goes with every glass.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

Move To Put Soviet On Defensive

President Kennedy's decision to order further American nuclear tests in the atmosphere, and his challenge to the Soviets to forestall the tests by signing a realistic agreement banning nuclear testing, evidences a new thrust of U.S. initiative in international affairs.

These simultaneous, decisive moves by the President place the Soviets on the defensive to respond to the new U.S. assertions. It was made amply clear by Mr. Kennedy that the United States is not willing to sit idly by and allow the Soviets to gain nuclear superiority.

The two major points, we believe, have the support of the American people and likewise the people of other free nations throughout the world. There is likewise reason to believe that the majority of other nations of the world—while they may not like the idea of a new series of nuclear tests—will agree with the logical reasoning behind the U.S. decision. The President was careful to explain the importance of the tests in assuring continued U.S. superiority in the field of nuclear development. He likewise provided a means by which the tests could be eliminated if the Soviets would join in an agreement to guarantee a ban on future nuclear tests.

It would be surprising if the Soviets do not attempt to tie a new propaganda campaign to the announcement that the United States will conduct a new series of nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

Sensitive Over 'Ramp' Decision

By LYNN NISBET

RAMPING ON THE RAMP—Governor Sanford devoted a good part of an overlong news conference this week to discussion of the proposed ramp to be built at the Hayes Corporation's Weeksville plant and to defending his decision to build it as a matter of policy. In response to a question from another reporter about the matter, the Governor launched a caustic criticism of TV Channel 5, whose news director, Bill Armstrong, featured his newscast the other day with a story about the difficulty experienced in getting facts on the deal. He quoted Chairman Evans of the highway commission as saying an allocation of $150,000 for the project was made on February 12, and then he quoted the Governor as saying at his news conference on February 22 that he did not know where the money to build the ramp would come from. He further said he had been referred from one office to another throughout his efforts to get the story.

The Governor explained that an allocation from the highway surplus fund had been tentatively made as a guarantee to the company in its negotiations with the navy, but he did not think the money would be used. He said for the past week or more delicate negotiations have been in progress among the State, the army engineers, the navy and the corporation and that detailed publicity earlier would have quered the whole project. There is no question of legality involved, he said, but only a question of policy, whether it would be a wise use of money. Faced with probability of losing the plant, which that area sorely needs, Governor Sanford said he decided it would be good policy to build the ramp.

SENSITIVE—The Governor's explanation of his thinking and actions appeared logical justification of the project. The vigor with which he defended his position indicated that the criticism had gotten under his skin. He said he had about three years more in the Governor's office and he has no plans to steal the capitol or to haul off the silver and china from the mansion.

SCHOOLS—He said he would not comment in detail now on the United Forces for Education plan announced last week calling for an additional spending of $45 million a year on public schools. He feels sure the State cannot meet that goal in one year or two, but said it is the duty of UFE to set the goal at what they believe it should be, and then ask the people to provide as much of it as possible. He reiterated what he has said many times that money is not the sole answer to the school problem. For that reason is not so much concerned about meeting national "averages" as over pupil spending. He noted that New York City has just about the same number of public school pupils as North Carolina. The NY budget is double the NC amount, and the Governor doubts seriously that the schools are any better. More important than money is a sense of dedication and responsibility on part of professional school people, parents and pupils. The State of North Carolina is doing proportionately more for schools than any other State, and is approaching the limit of its capacity. That means greater effort on part of local government and individuals.

PORTS—The State ports at Morehead City and Wilmington mean so much to the future development of North Carolina, we cannot afford to wait longer to improve them, the Governor said. His administration is now toward placing the ports virtually on a self-supporting basis. Noting that this policy has both good and bad features, the Governor said serious study was being made of the proposal to issue revenue bonds. He reminded newsmen that the act setting up the ports authority provided for this contingency, and added that this method of financing is as good as the port of London.

PLATFORM—Selection of Arch T. Allen of Raleigh to be chairman of the State Department platform committee offers further proof that the platform will not be extreme with respect to conservative or liberal interpretations. Before the executive committee meeting when the platform builders were selected from the congressional districts there had been expressions of fear it might be written so as to put North Carolina more definitely on the liberal side than the average citizens want. Membership of the committee and now designation of the chairman dispel any fears along that line.

It will likewise be surprising if the Soviets agree to a ban on nuclear tests with sufficient guarantees to make the agreement realistic. Yet, the President's statement squarely places the burden of proof of good faith on the Soviets to act now in keeping with their previous assertions that they do not want further nuclear tests by either the East or West.

The President's statement, in our opinion, was the most effective and most forceful assertion on a major point of international policy to be issued by the present administration. It placed all the cards on the table in a forthright manner for all the world to see.

It stated the American position in terms which cannot be misunderstood.

National Debt Ceiling Can Go Just So High

How high can a ceiling be pushed without making a structure top-heavy?

The ink is hardly dry on legislative action boosting the legal limit on the nation's debt to $300 billion—an increase of $2 billion—and already work has started on another measure that will bring about a new and higher ceiling by the end of the current fiscal year.

Senate action last week upped "temporarily" the national debt limit by $2 billion in accordance with a presidential request that also said Congress would be asked to add another $8 billion to the debt limit by June 30.

As has been the case with most other "temporary" additions to the ceiling on the national debt, there is every reason to believe this latest addition will become more a permanent part of the fiscal structure of the government than a "temporary" addition. The same will apply to another $8 billion "temporary" hike to the debt limit if Congress goes along with the President's request for additional action on the matter by the end of the current fiscal year.

Before Congress pushes the national debt ceiling any higher, it should take a careful look at the foundation and the other segments of the structure to make sure the new ceilings haven't made it top-heavy. Some of the nation's leading financial architects already assert—apparently with good reason—the ceiling already is making the entire structure unound.

Slower Growth Of Labor Force

By RALPH ROBEY

Everyone knows that the total population of this country increases week by week, month by month, and year by year. The rate of growth varies, but it is persistent. It appears reasonable to assume, therefore, that our labor force necessarily would grow by about the same proportion.

But this assumption is not correct. There is a relationship between population increase and labor force growth, but it is far from fixed or even approximately steady. Only about 40 percent of our population is in the labor force at all, even in June and July when the total is the largest of the year. Between the high and low of the year there is now a difference of about 4 million. But from year to year the growth varies widely. For example from 1955 to 1956 the increase was 1.7 million and 1957 showed a growth of only 400,000 over 1956.

The labor force figure includes the armed forces. In addition we have a civilian labor force tabulation, and this is the one against which the percentage of unemployment is calculated. From this point of view it is the really important figure.

This deserves emphasis because in January of this year the civilian labor force was 100,000 below January 1961. That is an amazing development, and doubly so since last March the total was 13 million above March 1960.

Among those who work extensively in this field this decline is to be accounted for by the following:

First, the calling up of reserves by the military reduced the civilian labor force by almost an equal number. This means simply that the reservists were in the civilian labor force, and most of them had jobs.

Second, the first session of the present Congress amended the Social Security Act to enable men to retire at 62. A surprising number of men have elected to take advantage of this early retirement, and almost all of them have

Third, fewer women entered the labor force than is normally expected. No one knows why this was so, but the statistics leave no doubt that this is what happened. No one knows, either, whether this is the start of a new trend, or a short-term aberration.

Fourth, the labor force figures and the data on the civilian labor force are estimated from a scientifically selected sample, and this makes monthly comparisons rather dubious. The Department of Labor prefers to use quarterly comparisons, and says specifically that such figures "are more reliable than data for specific months." This does not mean that there is carelessness in the compilation of the figures. There is not. But in any calculation of this magnitude it is desirable, if possible, to allow for errors to average out. When the February figure on the civilian labor force appears we probably shall find that it shows an increase over January.

As mentioned earlier it is the civilian labor force against which the rate of unemployment is calculated. Had we got the normal, or expected, increase over the past twelve months the rate of unemployment would have declined slightly more than it did, granting the number of persons without jobs did not change. Actually, of course, it is probable that the number of out-of-work would have increased by approximately the additions to the labor force.

Opinions In Brief

"Writing a column is serious business because six months later you have your statements staring you in the face in a black-and-white record. Listeners forget what you said on radio and tv."—Eric Sevareid.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE REALLY BIG LIFE
Are you a weeper and a hand-wringer? If so, everybody ought to be sorry for you and you ought to be sorry for yourself. Tears have a place in life.

There are times when indeed we wring our hands in frustration, agony, or real sorrow. But there are some people who go through life weeping on shoulders if they can find them or weeping without shoulders if they cannot. They wring their hands every day. Despair, frustration, and the blowing of their tops happen almost as often as every hour on the hour.

There are a lot of us who just plain need to get hold of ourselves. Maybe we throw our weight around. Maybe we talk to much. Maybe we gossip. Maybe we weep and shriek and carry on. If so, we are causing a lot of people in the world unhappiness. The divorce courts are clogged with cases of people who have no real grievance against each other but who appear to have fallen into the habit of going wild frequently. Problems which are large and overwhelming only arise a few times in the life of most individuals, but we are continually torn apart by the rigor of little things. When we should reflect, we rant. When we should control ourselves, we wring our hands and weep.

Tribulation is too significant and sacred thus to be treated. Control in little things means triumph in the living of a big life.

Sorry to Disappoint You, Chairman

—BUT U.S. RADIO IS NOT SAYING AMERIKANSKI. SPACEMEN ARE COMMUNISTS!

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Failure Can Ruin Nikita

Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

When one receives as large a mail response as I do, the readers are speaking their minds and what they say is important. Sometimes when I quote from correspondents' letters, they express annoyance that I do not give them in full, they not realizing that when they debate they must leave room for the other side, meaning me.

A. Robert Groenke, Jr., of Cincinnati, takes me to task on several points worth discussing. First, he raises the point: "Now... you say that Russia does not intend to destroy the capitalist world by force and violence. You do not specify this strategy as being applied only by the present leadership of Russia..."

The use of the term, "force and violence," so general in this country to fit antiquated laws, is, in my opinion, misleading. In the historic struggle, now affecting the entire world, which involves both a Communist Revolution and the erection of a Soviet Universal State, it is more correct to say that all sides, including force and violence, will be employed by all sides to achieve their goals. Soviet Russia has, up to the present, been more skillful in employing propaganda, infiltration, Machiavellian diplomacy than its opponents. In the use of spies and Fifth Columnists, Soviet Russia has done well.

Again Groenke asks with regard to the internecine quarrel within the Soviet Universal State:

"Perhaps it is based upon the fact that disagreement exists between Mr. K and the Chinese-Albanian group. However, isn't it possible this is mostly a sham designed to confuse the Western world?"

Differences among Communists have been continuous since the first meeting in London in 1903. There has been no period since 1917, when the Bolshevik Revolution was successful, that the party was not torn by vast differences of position. Lenin managed to hold the Bolsheviks together for a time, but upon his death the differences sharpened; Trotsky was driven into exile; Stalin established a personal dictatorship and steadily killed off Right and Left Deviationists until all but a few old Bolsheviks remained. What Stalin sought to prevent was the crumbling of the Revolution by private opinion, by what in this country, we hold to be sacred—the provisions of the First Amendment of the Constitution. Having no faith in either the Bolsheviks or the Russian people, Stalin set up a monolithic state in which differences of opinion could not be tolerated. Khrushchev has neither the prestige nor the power to maintain this monolithic state. He himself, attacked the "cult of personality."

The Chinese-Albanian deviation is very different from that of Tito and neither is a sham. Tito believes in national Communism, an idea originally advocated by Earl Browder as applying to the United States. In a word, what in the 18th Century appeared as the nationalistic revolt among Christian nations, leading to the establishment of numerous state churches, is happening in the Soviet Universal State, viz: that while all Communists respect Marxism, many wish to manage their own Communist affairs.

The Chinese Communists want that and more, too. They want to manage their own affairs and also have a senior voice in the Soviet Universal State. Originally, the Chinese Communists were Trotskyists and were influenced by Karl Radek whom Stalin undoubtedly had killed. Mao Tse-tung and his associate, Chu Teh, were given power by Stalin. Thus, there is an intellectual loyalty to Lenin and a political loyalty to Stalin. But there is no basis for loyalty to Khrushchev. In fact, Mao Tse-tung, who is a philosopher, must regard Khrushchev as a yoke.

There is no sham in their differences but we would, indeed, be a stupid people if we believed that in a war, these differences would count for very much. For to a Communist the ultimate enemy must be the survival of capitalism as a meaningful economic and social system anywhere and for them, the worst example of such a survival is the United States (Continued on page five)

Other Editors Saying... That Sickening Feeling

(The Henderson Dispatch)

When there is pause to consider the surge of crime, however minor, in this and other communities there comes a sickening feeling deep down in the stomach. Accompanying it is frustration as to the cause and the remedy.

Break-ins, thefts, vandalism, false fire alarms and the like are not restricted to juveniles and adolescents, though most of it seems to be.

The explanation lies in a lapse of parental care and direction somewhere down the short years of these youthful offenders. But that conclusion offers with it nothing to guarantee a remedy or a cure. The preventive is less difficult to envision, but there arises the brick wall of the indifference of elders who, at least in the earlier years, were responsible for proper training of their off-spring, and which was neglected.

Where does the Christian church fit into the picture? Is it striking at the root of the trouble by bringing within its influence these offending youngsters and before them their parents? What indeed is the church doing toward that end? The Christian religion, to be sure, has not failed, for it has not been given adequate trial, since its communicants draw their garments tightly about them in smugness and even in an air of semi-indifference beyond "me and mine." So thousands of boys and girls across the land are growing into adulthood without the teachings which, if given, accepted and practiced, could eliminate these evils of society.

No capital offenses have been charged against those caught within the meshes of the law, except in very rare instances. But minor crime, left to its logical course, could so easily lead to such excesses.

What has been happening here and elsewhere is a condition which should cause far more than lifting of eyebrows. There ought to be a lot of honest - to - goodness soul-searching to find the remedy and apply it. A large percentage of the cost of civil government could be eliminated if petty crimes and their kindred and ultimate results were removed from society. While this is well known, it does not supply the answer to trends of boldness and irresponsibility where these evils exist, for they do exist as everyone must recognize.

When citizens become conscious of the menace to their own future and well-being they will do more than talk or gripe. They will do, or attempt to do, something tangible and effective toward higher standards of conduct and better living, spiritually, morally and even physically. Here, then, is the problem; here is the remedy. Who will apply it, and when and where and how?

For Women Supervising Men

By ELMER ROESSNER

Rules by which women can supervise men in business have been drawn up by Maude A. Hudson, city supervisor of the distributive education service of the Norfolk, Va., city schools.

Professor Eleanor Casebier, of Northern Illinois University, recently drew up 22 rules on how to handle women employees. Her rules were circulated by the Small Business Administration.

Prof. Casebier's rules including, "Try to understand why women employees act as they do," provoked Mrs. Hudson into drawing up an equal number of rules for women bosses. The fact that Mrs. Hudson had just finished a busy week supervising men only gave some point to her work.

RULES FOR LADY BOSSES
Here are the more important of Mrs. Hudson's rules:

"There's no rhyme nor reason for male employees' behavior, so don't try to understand them."
"Don't bother with the well-being of your male employee.

A sincere interest in him may prove fatal.

"The less you know about your male employees and their interests the better off you'll be. They have too many peculiarities anyway."

"If you listen to more than one side when settling disagreements among male employees, it will just confuse you. Why lay yourself open to confusion? LET THEM KNOW."

"Let them know when you're fit to be tied. They're so unperceptive that they'll never know the differences unless you come right out and tell them. And, of course, your bad moods, provided you've told them about them, make them co-operative and pleasant."

"Bluff at every chance you get. Male employees don't want straight answers and couldn't help you solve the problems anyway. Aren't you being paid to do the thinking?"

"In teaching men, tell them absolutely nothing except the end results you expect. Under no circumstances must you explain, demonstrate, observe, check and repeat as it would only confuse them.

GUARD THAT JOB
"Squelch any initiative in the male worker. He might get your job!"

"Unless you want a man to get more conceited (heaven forbid), never praise him before others."

"Develop a well-rounded spy system to supplement your own snooping. Men know dogone well you shouldn't trust them. They don't even trust themselves."

There were more rules. Mrs. Hudson, of course, was parodying Prof. Casebier. Of course she was! Of course!

CONGRESSMAN SHAKES TREE FOR FAT COPYRIGHT PLUM

Risking Future Slump

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass.—The United States will probably suffer from another business depression. But it will not be like that of the "Thirties." The President and Congress are willing to risk "breaking the nation's credit" rather than risk a year of serious unemployment.

We will see a rash of failures; but the "smart boys" in Washington may not let them be called "failures."

They will be listed as "consolidations" or "mergers" or "going out of business." We will not see the unemployed selling apples on the street; but we may see apples given away to all who call for them. It will be known as the great "give-away era." The 5-hour day may temporarily be cut to a 2-hour day.

The legislation that President Kennedy now wants to help the aged and the ill will then quickly be enacted. The government will subsidize small business as it now does the farmers. We will be approaching socialism; but under some new name.

WHAT ABOUT THE STOCK MARKET?

Ah! this is something different. For over 50 years I have studied the stock market. Hence, now I will discuss what I know something about! I am a statistician, not a politician. Let me start by saying that over 7,000,000 (seven billion) shares of common stock are listed on the New York Stock Exchange and less than one billion more on the American Exchange. Ninety per cent of the latter are of small speculative companies which we will not now count. None of the latter affect the Dow-Jones Industrial Average. Of the above-mentioned shares I will estimate approximately how many shares are tied up and how many are free to break quickly in a crash.

SHARES

Totals	7,000,000,000
The New York Stock Exchange has over 1300 members. Of these 680 are Banking Firms in active business. These should have an average 500,000 owned by customers.
All these figures are estimates	340,000,000
Mutual Funds	10,000,000
Banks, Insurance Companies, Labor Unions, and Closed-end Investment Trusts	10,000,000
Shares held abroad or in trust	1,000,000
Private Investors with Certificates in their Safe-Deposit Boxes (5,000,000 persons averaging 200 shares)	1,000,000,000
Speculators holding their shares outright	1,000,000,000
Certificates of deceased or sick persons which are not "good delivery"	1,000,000,000
Estimated Total	3,361,000,000

ANALYZING THIS SEVEN-BILLION FIGURE

Now let us form an estimate another way. Of these 7 billion shares about 3,500,000 are traded 5 days a week, or say 260 days a year (3,500,000 x 260) or about one billion shares in a year.

When we consider that for every seller there must be a buyer, and that the specialists cannot allow the sales to be quoted at too much of a spread, this is another brake on the sales. This is of itself a curb on a panic crash and is now being carefully watched by the SEC. Furthermore, if we take these 7 billion shares, less the deductions, and adjust same to the stock splits, stock dividends, number of population, assessment of real property, gross national product, and value of the dollar, these figures would be severely changed. The final result, however, would show that the percentages would not be materially changed.

POWER OF COMPOUND INTEREST

Now to my conclusion: The percentage of deductions indicates the possible percentage of cushions or curbs to any eventual crash, including (Continued on page five)

THE MORAL IS—WELL, WHAT IS IT?

It is possible for a man to get an income-tax deduction for his mother-in-law but not his wife, Prentice-Hall reports.

One Daniels got a quickie Mexican divorce and married a second wife, bringing her mother into the household. His first wife had the divorce declared void.

When Daniels tax affairs would up in court, the court ruled that he could claim no deduction for his second wife because she was not legally his mate. But it granted a deduction for her mother, because he supported her for the entire year. (Buckley, 37 TC Bo. 55.)

Screen Actors Guild Publicly Censures Conduct Of Members

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—In a rare move for a labor union, the Screen Actors Guild has publicly criticized the misbehavior of some of its members on movie sets.

Thus the guild has taken a stand on an issue that has caused alarm among the responsible elements in show business: The lack of professionalism on the part of some performers today.

Its official publication, Screen Actor, last week printed an editorial declaring members must "give a full day's work for a full day's pay" or face disciplinary action.

"The time has come," the editorial stated, "to challenge the misbehavior on the sets of some actors whose conduct on occasion dishonors the guild's and their own contracts with producers."

Among the offenses cited: Showing up late for work, taking a two-hour lunch instead of one-hour, talking on the phone when wanted for a take, taking too many nips out of the bottle, being "too busy" to learn dialogue.

The guild didn't name names, nor will it (can't afford a lawyer). But an observer of the Hollywood scene can cite recent examples:

1. A top star whose dispute with a studio over the script of an epic reached epic proportions itself. At one point, he no longer argued but merely went into the scene and read his lines in an expressionless monotone. Many days of worthless filming were expended.

2. An actress who seldom appeared less than two hours late every morning and left the studio in midafternoon to visit her doctor. Her tardiness was said to have wiped out chances for a profit on the picture.

3. A character actor whose passion for the grape was so strong that he finally had to be written out of an adventure film.

4. A young actress who staged a sit-down strike on the set until she got script changes she wanted. It was her third movie.

There have been others—not in epidemic proportions, but with enough frequency to worry producers, and now the Screen Actors Guild. The worry is compounded by everyone's concern over the future of Hollywood as the movie center—Item: 16 film starts so far in 1962 vs. 25 last year.

Troublemakers were never a problem in Hollywood as long as the studios were ruled by iron hands. If an actor held up shooting, he soon discovered no studio would hire him.

But studio control has virtually disappeared in recent years. The situation is not limited to movies. Variety, which serves as the conscience as well as the Bible of show business, has lately criticized the sloppy manners, onstage and off, of many performers, especially in the music and nitery fields.

The paper recently cited the fine example of the Flying Wallendas carrying on with their aerial act after two members were killed in a fall. This contrasted, said Variety, "with the self-pitying, self-indulging, contract-jumping, performance-skipping performers and musicians who have made such a bad impression during the last season."

Winter-Wearry Midwest Buffeted By Snow, Cold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Blistery weather—snow, stiff northerly winds and cold—buffeted the winter-weary Midwest today and snow, sleet and rain hit many other parts of the nation.

The fresh snow, measuring up to nearly a foot in parts of Minnesota, added to the heavy covering which blankets most of the Midwest. The strong winds, with gusts up to 40 m.p.h., whipped the heavy snow and caused hazardous driving conditions in many sections. Six primary highways in northeastern Iowa were blocked by drifting snow.

Temperatures dropped sharply as the cold air spread from Canada.

In North Dakota, the mercury dropped to 15 below in Dickinson, -10 in Minot and -7 in Bismarck. In Montana, it was -8 in Miles City, -7 in Cut Bank, and -4 in Billings and Great Falls.

REV. JOE ANGE, of Royal Oak, Mich., is serving as Evangelist for Revival Services now underway at Gum Swamp F.W.B. Church. The services begin each evening at 7:30 and run through Sunday, March 11. Special music is planned for each night. Rev. Ange is known to many people of the area, having held revivals here previously.

Some of the cold air penetrated into the Southeast, with freezing weather and light snow in Asheville, N.C. Sleet hit Raleigh, N.C., and snow flurries flecked Chattanooga, Tenn.

Sleet and freezing rain mixed with snow pelleted sections of western Virginia, mountain areas of North Carolina, central Ohio, northern Indiana and southeastern Wisconsin.

In New England, snow fell in interior and northern sections with rain and drizzle along the southern coast. Rains were general from the upper Ohio Valley southward to Georgia, Alabama and Florida.

In the West, more rain fell along the coast from San Francisco to Seattle. A mixture of rain, snow and freezing rain dampened inland sections of the Pacific Northwest. Gale warnings were displayed along coastal areas of Washington and Oregon.

Push-Button Saving Tried To Attract U.S. Public

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Push-button saving is one of the new lures being tried by banks to get you to prepare for that rainy day.

They know their most effective sales point is the higher interest rate many now pay. But they're trying also to make saving easy, automatic or automated. They seek to eliminate the line at the teller's window or speed it up to a trot.

The banks are especially wooing savers just now for two reasons:

1. They're in a tough competitive battle with many other havens for savings—security and loan associations, U. S. savings bonds, insurance, mutual funds, real estate and stock investing.

2. Banks need a bigger total of savings to get the funds for the increased demand for credit they anticipate. In other words, one man's savings finances another man's installment plan.

So the banks are turning to automation and self-service to thrift clubs and bank-at-work plans, partly to cut their costs, but also to make saving as painless as possible.

Sam M. Fleming, president of the American Bankers Association, says that some banks are installing a new machine that looks a bit like an automatic washer. Customers drop their deposit slip along with the accompanying checks, paper money or coin into a slot. The machine quickly whips out a stamped receipt for the customer, and at the same time photographs everything for the bank. Employees later check the film for errors and then credit the customer's account.

Fleming, who is president of the Third National Bank, Nashville, Tenn., is in town for the ABA's annual savings conference. He says banks are also plugging their automatic savings plans, whereby a set amount is transferred each month from your checking account to savings. They also are pushing their in-plant and bank-at-work plans, so that workers can find all the deposit slips and other forms at a convenient rank in factory or office.

One push-button, electronic system called Telefile is presently being test run at the Howard Savings Institution in Newark, N. J. Telefile connects headquarters with seven branch offices for instantaneous handling of deposits, withdrawals, mortgage accounting and the like.

The system, designed by the Teleregister Corporation of Stamford, Conn., will handle 200,000 Howard savings accounts. Magnetic drums at headquarters store all account records. A customer may present his passbook at any branch and the teller puts it in a machine. The account number, current transaction and any necessary instructions are flashed to headquarters where the central computers provide the current balance or interest due, enter the new deposit or withdrawal and automatically update the magnetic record.

Fleming says savers now have added incentive beyond convenience—for the first time in 20 years it pays to put aside dollars for the future. He means that from 1940 to 1958 inflation robbed the saved dollar of more than half of its buying power. Since then inflation has slowed to a crawl and has taken a toll of less than one cent a year.

Also interest rates are higher than any time since 1932. Many commercial banks are now paying 4 per cent on savings on deposit for one year or more. Some of their competitors offer even higher inducements.

(Continued from page four) legislation as to margins. The percentage of these "ushions" is increasing more rapidly than the total shares. This is due to a far greater public interest in investments and a greater percentage of money coming into the treasuries of mutual funds, insurance companies, labor unions, and savings accounts. Also important is the increased increment of compound interest, which applies mainly to the deductions. All the above means that although we will continue to have "bear and bull" trends (due to Newton's Law of Action and Reaction) — barring World War III, no reader of this column will see another stock market crash like 1929.

I cannot overemphasize the great importance of cumulative compound interest. At 6% money doubles in 12 years. Most of the deductible funds mentioned above will yield about 4%. This means that they are constantly increasing while the 7 billion listed common shares are not increasing in comparison therewith — probably around 2%. This means that the Dow Jones 30 Industrials are no fair barometer of what the 7 billion shares are doing. Certainly an expert investment adviser should ALWAYS be able to select some "growing companies" from the 7 billion shares now listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

FTA Club Sponsors Cuba's Sugar Program And Dance Crop Badly Off

By MELBA EVERETTE
BELOVOIR — Belvoir-Falkland High School seniors Anna Sue McLawhorn and Alan Witherington were crowned queen and king of hearts at the Falkland Community Building last Saturday as the climax of a festive program and dance sponsored by the Future Teachers of America. The following girls were elected by the high school student body to compose the queen's court:
 Becky Sue Harris, freshman; Linda McLawhorn, Mary Rose Mills and Faye Pollard, sophomores; Sue Pierce, Harriette Turner and Melba Everette, juniors; and Joy Strickland, Linda Phillips and Frances Stepps, seniors.

Other highlights for the evening included entertainment of various presentations by students and practice teachers Brent Baker and William Hammond.

Music for the dance was provided by Gerald Nethercutt's band, "The Twisters." The entire program and dance was under the direction of Mrs. Ann Cozart, FTA advisor.

Proceeds from this dance will be contributed to a growing fund to be used for an FTA-awarded scholarship.

 Belvoir-Falkland's high-flying girls basketball Eagles have been seeded first in the Pitt County Tournament that gets underway in Greenville tonight.

The Eagles enter tourney action Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. opposite the winner of Monday's game between Chicod and Grimesland.

The boys get their first taste of tournament play at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday when they tangle with Coach Dan Wooten's tough Bethel Indians. Coach George James' charges are in the bracket with Bethel, Winterville and Grifton. Bob Warren's girls share the upper bracket in girls play with Winterville and Stokes.

Proud members of the top-ranking girls squad include three of 12 All-County selections for 1962: seniors Frances Stepps and Betty Norville and junior forward Mary Pollard.

Other members of the team include Carol Peaden, Lois Peaden and Linda Morris, freshmen; Faye Pollard, Faye Everette and Donna Stancill, sophomores; and Sue Pierce and Mary Wainwright, juniors.

Student Teachers
 Sad farewells were expressed by Belvoir-Falkland students to last semester's student teachers last Wednesday.

Among those completing their teaching requirements were Business Department teachers Everette Roberson and Bob Darden, Health and Physical Education Department teacher Horace Gill, Science Department teachers Brent Baker and William Hammond, and Home Economics Department teacher Miss Sandra Jeanette.

Reflecting On SPORTS

By George Bryant

It's time for the Pitt County Tournament again and the long awaited event starts tonight in the East Carolina gym at 6:30 p.m. For all but the boys champion, the tourney means the end of basketball until next fall. However, the Pitt County boys' championship trophy means a berth in the district playoffs to be held at East Carolina next week.

Fans Eager

Not only are the players and the coaches eager for the tournament play to get underway, but the fans have been waiting patiently for this event also. In years gone by a record attendance has been set each year for the Pitt County playoffs and this year should be no exception.

Three games, two of them of the girls version, get the tourney underway tonight. The same number will be played each night through Thursday. Two games will be played Friday and Saturday nights.

The action tonight in the first game will see the Chicod girls and the Grimesland girls battle for the bottom position in the pairings. The teams finished eighth and ninth during the regular season. In the second game the Grimesland boys and the Stokes-Pactolus boys will play for the right to meet league leading Ayden on Wednesday. In the third contest tonight the Farmville girls will meet the Ayden girls.

Favorites

Every tournament has to have a favorite and the Pitt County Tournament is no exception. However, the event in the past has seen the predictions go haywire. But, if regular season records mean anything, and sometimes they do, we will have to pick Ayden to win the boys division and Belvoir-Falkland to capture the girls title.

Tornados Lead

Leading the boys standings during most of the regular season were Coach Stuart Tripp's Ayden Tornados. Their only loss during the 1961-62 campaign was to Winterville early in the season. This could be attributed to the fact that Ayden got a late start because of the Coastal Conference football playoffs and the district tournament they participated in. Coach Tripp has the distinction of fielding winning teams in the past and this one came as no surprise. His record during the many years he has been piloting the Ayden clubs is excellent.

Eagle Girls On Top

In the girls division Belvoir-Falkland and Farmville had identical records of 13-3 during the season. Belvoir-Falkland got the top-seeded position in the tournament on the flip of a coin. The Eagles, placing three players on the All-County teams, worked hard during the season for first year coach, Bob Warren. Farmville, led the standings the majority of the regular season. It was not until the last couple of weeks that Belvoir-Falkland moved ahead. As we see it, both Farmville and Belvoir-Falkland are about equal, but we feel like the Eagles might be able to pull ahead in the tournament.

Welcome To Greenville

The sports department of the Daily Reflector wishes to welcome the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball coaches, athletic directors, publicity men and sports writers and announcers to the first "Batters Up" golf tournament to be held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club tomorrow.

The event, the first of its kind, according to the promoters, is hoped to become an annual affair to get college baseball off to a good start. A luncheon will be held at the club at noon with the golf tournament getting underway at 1:30. Closing out the day will be a social hour and a dinner at which time the baseball coaches will be given an opportunity to discuss their prospects for the coming season.

The weather today looks somewhat discouraging for the golf tournament, but the outlook for tomorrow at the present time is better. However, we wish this week were like the first three days of last week. The 80 degree weather would be perfect for all concerned, especially those taking part in the tournament.

Roanoke Rapids Wins NEAC Championship

By CHARLES VAUGHAN
Reflector Sports Writer
Coach Don Curtis and the Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets won the NEAC championship Saturday night by defeating the Greenville Phantoms 60-54. However, both teams travel to Kinston March 14 to play in the State Tournament.

Phants Place Two
Even though the Phantoms failed to down the Yellow Jackets, Greenville had two players voted to the NEAC All Tournament team. They were Billy James and Kroghie Andresen, both boys were outstanding in leading Greenville to the finals and against Roanoke Rapids.

Roanoke Rapids, who was also the District Champion this past season, had one man voted to the All Tournament squad. Tommy Merritt, the Yellow Jackets high scoring center, was worthy of the honor he received. Merritt scored the most points for a single game in the tournament Friday night against Tarboro when he hit the nets for 30 points.

Greenville Leads
Roanoke Rapids was able to go ahead of the tense Phantoms 6-0 early in the first quarter of the contest before Greenville could break into the scoring column. However, the Phantoms led by sophomore Rodney Knowles, started hitting the nets at a fast clip to surge ahead of the Yellow Jackets 11-10 with two minutes remaining in the opening stanza. At the end of the first quarter, Greenville had increased their lead to 18-12 over lagging Roanoke Rapids.

Greenville, who won one of two games with Roanoke Rapids during the regular season, was unable to maintain their six point spread as the Yellow Jackets surged ahead 19-18 with six minutes left in the first half. However, the Phantoms were not willing to fall behind the district winners as they once again moved ahead of Roanoke Rapids 32-30 at the close of the first half.

Deliberate Game
When the two teams returned to the court in the second half, it appeared as if both teams had decided to play a slower and more deliberate game. Taking their time and shooting accurately, the Phantoms were able to increase their advantage to six points after three minutes of the third quarter. The Yellow

Jackets, fighting desperately to retain the lead, rallied towards the end of the third period to narrow Greenville's advantage. At the close of the quarter, Greenville led by only one point 42-41. In the fourth period, the Phantoms were able to maintain their lead until the last four minutes of the ballgame. With four minutes remaining, Roanoke Rapids tied the game at 48 all on a jump shot by Jimmy Conner. The Yellow Jackets then went on to score eight points before the stunned Phantoms could regroup their forces. Roanoke Rapids went on to outscore Greenville 19-12 in the last quarter and surge to a last period victory 60-54.

Knowles Leads Phants
The Phantoms were led in their futile effort by Rodney Knowles, who scored only one field goal in the second half, with a total of 14 points. Billy James, who incidentally played the entire ballgame with a bruised rib, managed to toss in 11 points for Greenville. The Phantoms were headed by Jack Foley, a livewire under the backboards, in the rebounding department. Foley also scored 11 points in the contest and Kroghie Andresen tallied 10 markers.

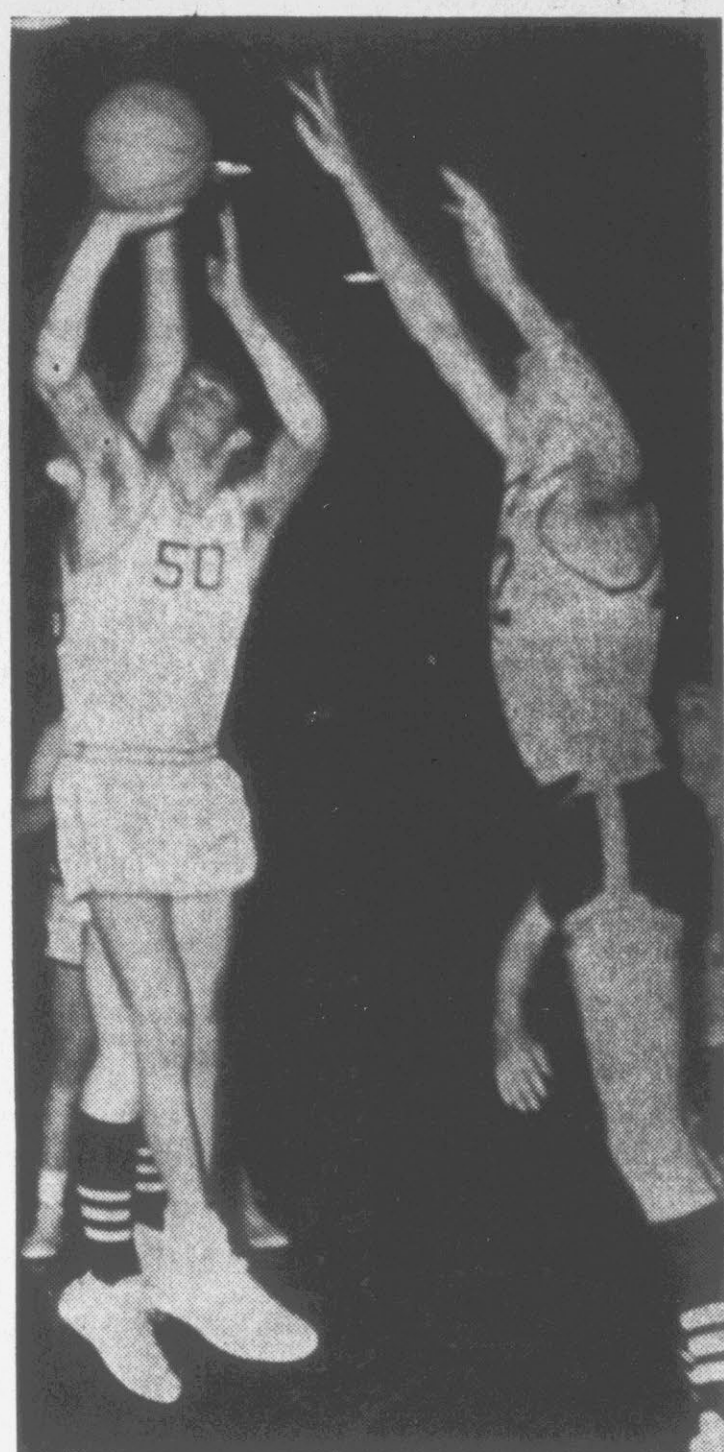

Graham Dean stole the scoring honors for the night with seven field goals and two free throws to lead the Yellow Jackets with 16 points. Graham Dean ended the tournament with a 15.5 average per game for Roanoke Rapids. Also in the double figures for the winners were Tommy Merritt and Jimmy Conner with 14 and 12 points respectively.

Foul Trouble
Greenville outscored the Yellow Jackets in field goals as they hit 25 compared to Roanoke Rapids 23. However, the Phantoms were called for 15 personal fouls while the Yellow Jackets were charged with only six. Roanoke Rapids took advantage of their free throws, hitting 14-21, to defeat the Phantoms.

Coach Bo Farley remarked, "No sour grapes because Roanoke Rapids played a fine ballgame, but its a little unusual for one team to commit so many more fouls than the other."

New Bern Defeats Tarboro 75-58

By CHARLES VAUGHAN
Reflector Sports Writer

The New Bern Bears, coached by Bob Lewis, won the consolation game of the NEAC Saturday night by defeating the Tarboro Tigers 75-58.

Early Advantage
Led by Glenn Dunn, the Bears marched to an early first quarter advantage. New Bern managed to maintain their lead until early in the third period when Jack Bobbitt hit a free throw to put the Tigers ahead 38-37.

The lead changed hands six times in the last five minutes of the third quarter with New Bern taking the advantage 49-44 at the end of the period. Tarboro was unable to keep pace with New Bern in the final stage of the game as the Bears went on to victory 75-58.

The Bears were paced by Glenn Dunn who tallied 16 points in their victory. Dunn later was elected to the NEAC All-Tournament squad along with Billy Freuler from Tarboro. Freuler led the Tigers with four field goals and seven free throws for a total of 15 points.

Tarboro Behind
New Bern, recovering from a defeat Friday night at the hands of Greenville, surged ahead of the Tigers 9-3 after six minutes of the first quarter. Tarboro was unable to catch the sharp-shooting Bears as they went on to increase their lead to 18-14 at the end of the opening period.

The Tigers rallied early in the second quarter to cut New Bern's advantage to one point 26-25. However, the Bears were unwilling to relinquish the lead as they fought on to a halftime advantage of 37-32.

Tigers Rally
Down by five points at the half, Tarboro returned in the third quarter to make a desperate attempt to take control of the contest. Gus Andrews scored on a free throw to tie the game 37-37 for the Tigers. A few seconds later, Tarboro surged ahead for the first time of the night on a free throw by Jack Bobbitt. The Tigers were unable to keep pace, however, as New Bern regained their lead and went on to a 49-44 third quarter advantage.

Tarboro was unable to group their forces to overtake the high scoring Bears in the fourth quarter. New Bern outscored Tarboro 26-16 in the last period to increase their game winning margin to 75-58.

In double figures for the Bears was Dunn with 16 points and Donald Flynn with 13 tallies. However, the high scorer for the New Bern Bears was Butch Ricks with a game high total of 19 points. During the tournament Ricks averaged 11 points per game for the Bears.

Billy Freuler led the Tigers with a total of 15 points while his teammates Mac Fountain and Gus Andrews tallied 13 and 11 points respectively.

Wilt About To Set New Record

Wilt Chamberlain is about six days away from becoming the first player ever to hit 4,000 points in a single National Basketball Association season.

The 7-foot-1 star of the Philadelphia Warriors, who scored 100 points Friday night against New York for another of many league firsts, has 3,921 points so far this season. He hit 53 against the Knicks Sunday in helping the Warriors score a 129-128 victory. He goes against Boston on Wednesday and Bill Russell of the Celtics is not about let any man score 79 points against him. But Chamberlain should do well enough to set up the record tally for his game Sunday in Syracuse. And he'll still have another game to go if he needs it.

The Philadelphia victory, coming on Chamberlain's feed to Paul Arizin with only 29 seconds to play, did nothing to change the Eastern Division lineup. Permament winning Boston blew a 24-point lead, fell behind by 14, then roared back to beat St. Louis 123-120.

Some Of Top Amateur Golfers To Participate; Pairings Set

Reynolds May, chairman of the Batters Up Golf Tournament, said today that some of the leading amateur players in the state will be among those taking part in the tournament here tomorrow for the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball coaches, athletic directors, publicity men and sports writers and announcers.

In mentioning some of the better players May noted Ace Parker of Duke University who has won the championship eight out of nine years in the annual Football Coaches Association tournament held in Chapel Hill last fall.

Bruce Phillips, sports editor of the Raleigh Times and formerly of the Daily Reflector, will also be on hand for the event. Phillips won the Sports Editors Association tournament last week in Raleigh in connection with the ACC playoffs.

Chuck Erickson, University of North Carolina Athletic Director and coach of the golf team, will also take part in the tournament. An excellent golfer himself, Erickson has coached such players as Harvey Ward, who won two national championships.

May noted that in addition to the visitors in tomorrow's tournament, the "cream of the crop" of local golfers will be on hand competing for the special guest prize. Among these are—W. L. Allen, five time club champion, Simon Moyer, Ercel Webb, Boley Farley, Joe Exum, Joe Harvey, Sam Kee, Ben Harrison and Wally Howard. Farley has won the club championship twice and Exum was the runner-up in the Coastal Golf Association tournament last year.

The tournament pairings and the tee off time for the four-somes are as follows:

Chuck Erickson, UNC, Bob Myers, Charlotte Observer, W. S. Moyer, Greenville and Wally Howard, Greenville. Time 1:30. Eddie Cameron, Duke, Dick Herbert, News and Observer, Howard Porter, Greenville and Boley Farley, Greenville. Time 1:35.

Jack Stallings, Wake Forest, Ray Reeves, WRAL, Raleigh, Joe

Exum, Greenville and Bill Allen, Greenville. Time 1:40.

Ace Parker, Duke, Ercel Webb, Greenville, Joe Harvey, Greenville and Sam Kee, Greenville. Time 1:45.

Walter Rabb, UNC, Jake Wade UNC, Bob Lang, Greenville and Tyson Bibbro, Greenville. Time 1:50.

Bill Wilhelm, Clemson, Elton Jackson, Maryland, Jack Gates, Greenville and Ben Harrison, Greenville. Time 1:55.

Jim West, U. Va., J. D. Gragan, USC, Jack Marston, Greenville and Jim Mallory, ECC. Time 2:00.

Seventh Win In Eight Years For W. Virginia

By ED YOUNG

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—West Virginia won the championship and its star, Rod Rhorn, won personal vindication in the 42nd Southern Conference basketball tournament that ended Saturday night.

The Mountaineers, for the seventh time in eight years, claimed the conference crown and a trip to the NCAA playoffs by trouncing Virginia Tech, 88-72, in the tournament finals.

Thorn, a sophomore then, failed to score a single point in the 1961 semifinals when William and Mary shocked the favored Mountaineers, 88-76. He took a very hard.

By his own account, Thorn came to the tournament this year with "something even greater than determination" to make people forget what happened a year ago.

His success can be gauged by the fact that today he became the only unanimous choice of 37 newsmen for the 1962 all-tournament team.

Joining Thorn on the honor roll were VMI's remarkable sharpshooter, Norm Halberstadt, who was named on all but one ballot; West Virginia's Kenny Ward, and Virginia Tech's Bucky Keller and Howard Pardue.

On the second team were the Citadel's Gary Daniels; George Washington's Jon Feldman; Furman's Gerald Glur, and two more West Virginia players — sophomores Tom Lowry and Donnie Weir.

Thorn, a wizard in ball-handling, floor generalship, shooting and defense, led all tournament players in scoring, with 70 points; in rebounding, with 39 retrieves; and in assists, with 13. Pardue scored 52 points, Ward 52, Keller 49 in three games. Halberstadt had 47 in two starts.

West Virginia's win over Virginia Tech, its first really impressive performance in the tournament, carried the Mountaineers into the NCAA Eastern Regional playoffs. They meet Villanova as part of a triple-header in the Palestra at Philadelphia one week from tonight.

Coach George King, taking inventory of his wounded, said he planned no practice sessions before Thursday — "And I'll be scared to work the boys hard even then."

The physical situation, rather alarming, is this:

Starters Jim McCormick and Paul Miller, definitely out. Substitute starter Dick Dubois, immobilized with a knee injury.

Starter Gale Catlett, painful muscle injury in leg.

Starter Kenny Ward, banged-up knee and foot, but still among the walking wounded.

"If Dubois and Catlett are out of commission next Monday," we'll be hurting against Villanova," said King. "Even if they're back we'll have our hands full. We just did beat them on our home court (88-82 on Jan. 6) and we were at full strength, then."

Agreed It's A Big Contest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coaches Doug Harvey of the New York Rangers and Sid Abel of the Detroit Red Wings are agreed on one point: "It's a big game in Detroit Tuesday."

That's about all the glum Harvey had to say after Detroit whipped the Rangers 4-2 Sunday night and crept to within one point of New York in the scramble for fourth place in the National Hockey League—the last playoff position.

Abel, while not much more talkative, did comment, "We're in better position now than we were a couple of nights ago."

In that time the Red Wings have cut three points off New York's dwindling lead and now hold an advantage on the schedule. Detroit has 10 games left to play, New York seven. They have two more head-on matches, and the one in Detroit Tuesday could be the key.

Their struggle is the tightest now going on, though Chicago still has a mathematical chance of catching second place Toronto. Both teams won Sunday night, Chicago 5-2 over Montreal and Toronto 5-1 over Boston, leaving Chicago still three points back.

Weatherly Wins Asheville Race

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Little Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Va., broke away from the field in the late stages Sunday to win the $5,000 NASCAR grand national 10-mile auto race at Asheville-Weaverville Speedway.

Weatherly set a new track record of 77.04 miles per hour. Weatherly, driving a 1962 Pontiac, was in contention all the way and took over the lead with 54 laps to go when two race drivers, Rex White of Spartanburg and Tommy Irwin of Keyesville, Va., were forced out of the race because of mechanical troubles.

A crowd of 5,000 watched White, Irwin and Weatherly stage a stirring duel through 144 laps of the 200-lap race.

Jim Paschal of High Point finished second, Buddy Baker of Charlotte third, Maurice Petty of Randleman fourth and Jack Smith, Spartanburg, fifth.

Baltimore's 1961 pitching staff led the American League in shutouts with 21, seven more than Minnesota and New York.

Bear Grass Wins Martin Tourney

WILLIAMSTON — The Bear Grass Bears upset the Jamesville Red Devils Saturday night 53-47 to win the Martin County Tournament. Because Jamesville won the regular season, there will be a playoff Tuesday night to determine the district representative to the District Tournament to be played in Greenville during the week of March 14.

Earlier in the night, the Jamesville High School girls downed the Oak City girls 29-27 to win the Martin County championship. Thursday night the Jamesville girls defeated Robersonville, advancing to the finals.

Robersonville, who was eliminated by Bear Grass on Friday night, received the sportsmanship trophies for both the boys and girls teams. Robersonville also placed two boys and one girl on the All-Martin County squad picked Saturday night.

The boys selected to the All-Martin County team are Eddie Brown, Jamesville; Charles Aske, Jamesville; Van Parker, Bear Grass; Grover Whitley, Oak City; Butch Brown and Wayne Britton, Robersonville.

Butch Brown, Robersonville, is the only freshman in the history of the Martin County Conference to be selected to the All-Martin County squad. All five of the other boys are seniors.

Those holding the honor of being members on the girls All-Martin County team are Linda Gardner and Anne Gaylord, Jamesville; Lib Beach, Robersonville; Judy Clark, Bear Grass; Linda Etheridge and Lucille Scott, Oak City.

Wake Forest Meets Yale

RALEIGH (AP)—A Wake Forest basketball team that has begun to look more like its pre-season ranking of No. 3 in the nation begins NCAA tournament play next Monday against Yale with a nine-game winning streak.

The Deacons dashed the hopes of ambitious Clemson 77-66 Saturday night to win the Atlantic Coast Conference championship tournament for the second year in a row.

Coach Bones McKinney's Wake

Forest club has an all games record of 18-8 against 18-5 for Yale's Ivy League champions, whom they meet at Philadelphia next Monday night in the final game of an Eastern Regional first round tripleheader. The winners go on to College Park, Md., March 16-17.

Wake Forest lost four of its first seven games and was 9-8 when it began its victory march.

Len Chappell, the 6-8, 240-pound Portage, Pa., All America, was the big gun in the Deacon drive. He raised his scoring average from 27 points for the first 13 games to 30.7 for 26 games to date.

In three tournament games he scored 87 points, including 31 in the final against Clemson.

Little Billy Packer, a mere 5-9 and weighing 175 pounds, capped an outstanding tournament with 21 points for the Deacons, his season's high. Packer entered the tournament with a 12.7 average and scored 55 points in three games, while pairing with Dave Wiedeman to form a first rate backcourt combination.

And 6-10 Bob Woollard played a vital part in the caging of Clemson's Tigers with nine rebounds and seven points.

League To Start With 4 Teams

SHELBY, N.C. (AP)—The Class D Western Carolina Baseball League is going ahead as a four-team operation this year.

At a "deadline" meeting Sunday at Statesville, John Moss, head of the league, said the circuit would begin its third season May 7 and play a 100-game schedule ending Aug. 18.

Statesville, Shelby, Salisbury and Newton-Conover will field teams. Belmont and Lexington, 1961 entries, will not operate.

Two all-star games and post-season playoffs are planned. Another meeting will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday at Shelby.

A New JOHN CREASEY Thriller

A ROCKET FOR ROLLISON

CHAPTER 7

When Richard Rollison dialed his Gresham Terrace flat, the bell had hardly started to ring before he was answered by his man, Jolly. "This is the Honorable Richard Rollison's residence."

"Hallo, Jolly," Rollison said briskly. "This job isn't at all uninteresting, and it will stop me from getting rusty if nothing else. There's an outside chance that it might be wise to watch Miss Lawson's apartment. Will you telephone Ebbutt, get a couple of his chaps laid on, and then come here until they can take over?"

"Immediately, sir," answered Jolly. "Is there any special thing to look out for?"

"I'd just like to be sure she doesn't have any visitors," Rollison said.

He rang off on Jolly's assurances, hesitated, then walked to the spot from which he could see along Gillyvry Street. He stood staring along it for fully five minutes, not sure why he felt on edge, yet anxious to make sure that the girl was not left unattended.

Then he saw two men walk along the street and turn into Number 17, or a house very close by. One of them went into the house; the other stayed outside. Rollison turned into the street, walking on the other side of the road. He saw the man by the porch staring towards him. Number 17 was between two street lamps and there was very little light. Rollison passed the man, and out of the corner of his eyes saw that the other was wearing a hat pulled low over his forehead so that it was difficult to see his face.

Rollison strode on, as if he had not noticed the man, and drew level with him. He could imagine the other's relief, could imagine the very moment when he relaxed. And in that moment, Rollison spun around and darted across the road.

He needed several seconds' start—and his tactics so startled the other that he won them. As he reached the pavement the man was turning and leaping desperately for the door. He reached it, and pushed it open as Rollison caught up with him in a flying tackle.

The man crashed against the door. Rollison knocked his knee painfully, winced, but did not let it deter him. He knelt over his victim, lifted the man's head in his hands, and banged it sharply on the one step. He felt the body go limp. "That should put you to sleep for twenty minutes or so," he said, "but I'd better make sure you are."

He slid his hands into the other's pockets, and took out the usual odds-and-ends and the unusual .32 automatic pistol from the hip pocket.

He took out a wallet and some letters, thrust these into his own pocket, then straightened up. He dragged the other inside, closed the door, and went to the foot of the stairs. He heard no sound. He hurried up the stairs, watching every landing and every shadow cautiously, knowing that the man who had come in here might have heard the struggle downstairs and be waiting ready to pounce or shoot—or might be in Kate Lawson's flat.

Kate thought, in a strangely calm mood, that Dr. Kennedy had really given her a drug which worked wonders.

Five minutes after taking it and a glass of hot milk, her anxiety seemed to ease.

She was yawning when she got into bed. She turned off the light, sure that she would be asleep in five minutes. There was no sound, and it was very dark up here.

She heard a sound outside. It did not worry her, only puzzled her.

She heard the sound again. What was it?

She stared at the door. There was no sound for at least a minute, and she began to think that she had been imagining things when she heard an unmistakable creak not far from the door.

She thought: Perhaps it's Maurice. She lay still, her heart beating faster. If it were Maurice, why had he come in so furtively? Who else had a key?

Then she heard the handle of the door turn. Any other night, she would have been terrified, but that induced calm was upon her. She eased herself up on one elbow, and called clearly: "Maurice is that you?"

"Yes," she heard, vaguely.

"Yes, Kate."

She hitched herself up in bed, quite convinced in her own mind that it was Maurice, not knowing what to say or how to greet him. There was no sense in the way she was behaving, but there seemed nothing she could do about it. She waited for the door to open.

When it did, the room beyond was in darkness of course. She could just make out the shape of a man's head and shoulders as she stretched out to switch on the bedside light.

"Don't put on a light," he called in a whisper.

Maurice seldom whispered, but there seemed nothing remarkable about the furtiveness now. He had missed her—perhaps actually avoided her—at the airport, and now he had crept up here late at night. Could he have been here before, for those letters? What could he possibly want from them?

The door opened wider, and she whispered back: "No one will see us. Why mustn't we have the light?"

"Just a minute," he urged.

She felt quite sure of one thing; he was scared. She heard his heavy, agitated breathing. He was moving so slowly, too, as if he feared that there was someone else in the room—or else, someone on his heels. Could that be it? Was he being followed?

He was at the foot of the bed when she realized for the first time that it wasn't Maurice. This man wasn't tall enough.

All the false calm vanished. She opened her mouth to scream, but her voice died. She raised her hands in front of her, and the man flung himself forward.

But for one thing, she would have had no chance at all to save herself. The one thing was the narrow gap between the bed and the wall; the man could not be as swift as he wanted to, and her nails scratched his hand.

She tried to snatch up the lamp from the dressing table, but it slipped and fell. She thrust her hands out again to fend him off, and felt the nails of her right hand scratch his face; then suddenly he was upon her, pushing her back on to the bed, hands

Cruiser Berthed In Swim Pool

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The heated waters of a motel swimming pool provide a snug winter berth for Norman Sherman's 25-foot cabin cruiser.

The motel borrowed it for use as a Christmas decoration and then decided, along with Sherman, it would be mutually beneficial to leave it there until summer. Sherman won't have to worry about ice damage to the hull. And the motel plans to offer it on a charter basis for cocktail parties.

IN RETALIATION

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A Tucson doctor who keeps a supply of lollipops and whistles on hand for youngsters has admitted the whistles go to the children of uncooperative parents.

Count The Fish Before Catching

SANDY HOOK, N. J. (AP) — The American Littoral Society counts its fish before they're caught.

The group numbers about 200 natural history enthusiasts of all ages who conduct a dorsal to dorsal census on the coastal fish population from Maine to Florida.

All are capable skin divers who, in addition to enjoying themselves, provide the U. S. Department of the Interior with information on the quantity and habits of fish.

Heating Pad For Pampered Pup

BUCKEYE, Ariz. (AP) — Gall Taylor of Buckeye was mighty fond of his dog. The pough would not sleep anywhere but in the cab of his master's pickup truck.

When winter approached, Taylor bought an electric pad for the dog. Electricity is run by extension cord through a bedroom window to the seat of the vehicle.

Library-Users Buzzed By Bat

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — An errant bat had the bookworms batty for about an hour before he finally found sanctuary in a belfry.

The bat made his appearance in the Louisville Free Public Library, apparently coming out of the stack room. With a janitor and a page in hot pursuit, the bat cruised through the reference and catalog rooms and the lobby.

The posse finally got him outside and swear he was last seen heading for the belfry of a nearby church.

The Farm Scene

By C.J. GOODMAN

We have just rounded the first turn in producing better pork. Our consumers want more lean meat in the pork they buy, and many of our producers are trying hard to improve their hogs to meet consumer demand.

Even though many of our producers are a little short on reaching meat-type standards they are doing a good job in preventing and controlling diseases and parasites.

There is no official definition yet for a meat-type hog, but here are some specifications that should come fairly close.

A meat-type hog should come from a litter of at least eight pigs and make rapid, efficient gain. The back fat thickness can be between 1.1 and 1.6 inches. Muscling should show plainly.

The loin eye area must measure at least 3.75 square inches. The weight percentage in the lean primal cuts should be at least 34 for the live and hog and over 50 for the dressed carcass.

A rather convincing argument for producing the modern meat-type hog comes to us in a report from one of the major packers. It points out that the cost of the boar is about the only extra expense incurred in setting up such a program, and even this is more than offset by "feed savings and the greater price received from packers who buy hogs on a value basis."

Supposing the meat-type boar costs $100 more than the usual type, the report continues, and that you use this boar on 20 sows twice in one year. If losses average one pig for each eight-pig litter, you would market 280 pigs from this boar; by dividing $100 by 280 you will find that the meat-type boar costs only 36 cents more for each hog sent to market.

And what do you get back? Well, if a 200-pound meat-type hog brings 50 cents per hundredweight above what the packer calls a base price, that puts an extra dollar in your pocket. If these meat hogs get from weaning to 200 pounds on 31 pounds less feed, as tests at Ohio State University have shown, you save 84 cents on your feed costs (feed figured at 4.5 cents per pound).

The greater selling price and savings on feed, then, combined come to $1.84 per pig. From this, deduct 36 cents (the extra cost of having a meat-type boar). That leaves you, the producer, a net gain of $2.03 per hog marketed.

Remember too, concludes the report, that a young boar of this type has a good salvage value, which is extra, of course.

Snow Falls Over Part Of State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow in western and central North Carolina today forced closing of some schools and threatened hazardous driving conditions.

By midmorning there was three inches on the ground in Avery, Watauga and Ashe counties. County schools were closed in Buncombe, Avery, Watauga and Ashe.

An inch was on the ground in Asheville and vicinity by midmorning. And it was being mixed with sleet and rain that turned streets and highways slushy. The State Highway Patrol said, however, that all roads in the Asheville vicinity were passable without chains.

The Weather Bureau at Asheville said the snow will continue intermittently through Tuesday and will be worse in the northern counties.

Driving conditions were more hazardous north and west of Asheville, especially on bridges. Hickory and reensboro had snow and sleet this morning. Winston-Salem snow and freezing rain, and Charlotte snow.

During February, Stabilization sold a total of 6,560,963 pounds from old crop stocks, it reported March 1.

More Honors For 5 Seniors

Scholastic honor has been accorded five more seniors of Junius Rose High School who were recently named finalists in the National Merit Scholarship program. Principal O. E. Dowd announced today.

They are Jimmy Eatman, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Eatman of 1207 Ragsdale Rd.; Dennis Eagan, son of Mrs. Elsie Eagan of 200 S. Elm St.; Jimmy Blyth, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Blyth of 407 Greenville Dr.; David Mosier, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Mosier of the Falkland Highway; and Esther Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Johnson of 104 Longmeadow Rd.

These five students were among the 10,000 highest scorers from over 600,000 second semester high school juniors who took the test in the spring of 1961. Less than two per cent of those who took the test were named finalists.

Two hundred and sixty-seven students from North Carolina representing 98 high schools were named finalists in the National Merit Scholarship program.

Winners of the scholarships will be announced late in April or early in May. Scholarship grants range in value from a minimum of $100 per year to a maximum of $1,500 per year based on demonstrated need.

Dowd noted that Greenville has had two National Merit winners in the past: Mary Ann Bryant, now Mrs. Godfrey Oakley, and Mary Lou Berry.

Talked Out Of Suicidal Jump

CHARLOTTE (AP)—For an hour and a half Sunday night, Pat McGraw stood atop a 175-foot grain elevator threatening to jump.

He held a crowd that gathered below that he was going to jump. Relatives hurried to the scene and pleaded with him, among them L. L. McGraw, an uncle who is a policeman here. Another uncle, Earl Pope, also talked with McGraw with a megaphone. Finally, McGraw, 26, unemployed and separated from his wife, heeded their pleas. He was brought down on the elevator and taken to a hospital for observation.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Temperatures will average five to 10 degrees below normal for next five days. Cold through Thursday with moderating temperatures Friday and Saturday. Precipitation about late Friday and Saturday expected to average one-half to one inch.

Tobacco Tips

By S. J. WEEAS
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

Tobacco plant beds are the natural feeding grounds of several species of insects. To bring plants successfully through the critical plant bed stage of tobacco production, the grower must always be on his guard. Control of damaging insects result in a more perfect plant at transplanting time.

Midge larvae are among the first insects to cause damage to your tobacco seedlings. They burrow in the plant bed, disturb the plant roots and air out the soil so much that the young plants dry out.

Grub worms, larvae of June beetles, also burrow in the plant bed and uproot seedlings. Quite often the damage caused by grub worms is so severe that the young plants dry out and die. After reaching full maturity late in the fall, the grub worm burrows down eight to 15 inches deep and spends the winter in a half sleeping state. In early spring, the grubs become extremely active and move toward the surface of the soil in search of food. It is this strong burrowing just before the pupal stage that causes damage to the plant bed.

Flea beetles feed on tobacco in the plant bed and in the field. If this pest is controlled in the plant bed a big step has been taken toward keeping them out of the field, for flea beetle larvae travel from bed to field on the roots of the plant. After hibernating all winter, flea beetles emerge in the spring, feed for three or four weeks on tobacco leaves, lay eggs, and then die. The larvae which hatch from the eggs feed on the roots of tobacco in the plant bed. Tight cover and side walls will keep the flea beetles out of the plant bed.

Aphids feed on tobacco plants in the plant bed and in the fields. They suck juice from the tobacco leaves. Aphids may be carried to the fields on seedlings at transplanting time. Growers can help keep aphids out of the plant bed by thoroughly weeding the area surrounding the plant bed, because aphids do feed on certain weeds.

Other potential plant bed enemies are vegetable weevils, cutworms, crane fly larvae, and snails. They are insecticides that will help keep these insects under control. It is very important that you check your plant beds often for insect damage. When you see evidence of injurious insects begin the use of a recommended insecticide immediately.

Revelers Await Final Big Blast

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Mardi Gras revelers rested up today in preparation for the final big blast of the carnival season Tuesday.

Only one parade, the traditional night march of the Krewe of Proteus, was scheduled after a weekend of festivities that saw three parades Saturday and five Sunday.

Eight parades will march through New Orleans on Mardi Gras (Shrove Tuesday), as the festive pre-Lenten season reaches its climax.

GUM SWAMP CANAL AND COMMITTEE

The Soil Conservation Service has estimated the benefits-cost ratio to be 3.7 to 1 for the complete project, which also includes three lateral ditches to be dug in 1963, and 1964.

The group has selected Joe Dudley as chairman, Pierce Sumrell as treasurer, and C. W. Burney and Lester Garris to work with Soil Conservation Service personnel on the project. Leon H. Lamb, Jr., has been appointed as agent for the project by the ASCS County Committee.

WILLIAM F. STOKES of the Stokes Community is planning to install several pipe overfalls on a main outlet canal he constructed a few years ago on his Woolard Farm No. 2.

Surface water has been running directly into the canal, causing gullies to form. By using concrete pipe with sand and cement bag apron for water to spill on, he hopes to eliminate these wash-

WATER CONSERVATION PLAN

This practice is part of his basic soil and water conservation plan being worked out by the Coastal Plain Soil and Water Conservation District.

The following high schools will participate in the land judging contest at Belvoir-Falkland on March 28, 1962: Ayden, Bethel, Belvoir - Falkland, Chicod, Grimesland, Farnville, Stokes-Pactolus and Winterville.

The contest is held to teach recognition and value of the physical characteristics of soil which affect the use and treatment of land in relation to growing crops and conserving soil and water resources.

The boys who participate in the contest must judge these physical characteristics and decide what land capability class each soil should be placed in.

They then list the maximum level at which the land can be safely used and the conservation practices needed to maintain the land permanently productive at that level of use.

Each team will be composed of four members. Each member will have a separate score card. At the end of the contest, the scores will be combined to determine the winning team.

The winning team will represent the Pitt County Federation at the state contest to be held April 7 at East Montgomery High School in Biscoe.

T O R E I G N — Margaret Ann Goldwater, 17-year-old daughter of the Arizona senator, will be the queen of the International Azalea Festival at Norfolk, Va., in April.

Bob Hope Gets Surprise Honor

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It was "Operation Hope" Sunday night as the movie industry—and President Kennedy—paid tribute to Bob Hope for his tireless trips to entertain American servicemen.

The British-born comic was presented with the Milestone Award at the Screen Producers Guild annual dinner, attended by the Hollywood elite.

Seldom at a loss for words, Hope seemed genuinely surprised by telephone messages from servicemen in Berlin; Korea; Thule, Greenland; Anchorage, Alaska, and other far-off places where he has entertained.

The calls were heard on loudspeakers by the audience of about 1,500.

The biggest surprise was the tape-recorded voice of President Kennedy, who cited Hope as having always been generous and enthusiastic in giving his talents to the President mentioned Hope's "Road" pictures and said he might be considering a "Road to Washington" — "From my own experience I can tell him it's not the easiest road to travel."

California GOP Endorses Ticket

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—The California Republican Assembly endorsed its 1962 election ticket in a weekend convention marked by bitter flareups over both candidates and the John Birch Society.

Richard M. Nixon got the endorsement for governor over Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell of Los Angeles, 263 to 176. But he didn't get his way on the Birch issue—a prime target of Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown's campaign for re-election.

The former vice president had asked the CRA to tell Republicans to quit the ultra-right wing group. His request split the convention between party regulars and conservatives. Boos and heckling broke out in the emotion-packed debate.

In the end, delegates agreed only to denounce the Birch founder, Robert Welch, after pleas not to alienate conservative Republican voters.

Nixon, in a statement from Los Angeles, expressed regret that the resolution was watered down. "It is essential," he said, "that Republicans disassociate themselves from any organization whose members are required to take dictation from a man who has attacked President Eisenhower as a 'dedicated conscious agent of the Communist conspiracy.'"

One species of snakeroot is the source of a tranquilizer. The plant has been used for that purpose in India for centuries.

WANTED! MEN - WOMEN

from ages 18 to 52. Prepare now for U.S. Civil Service job openings in this area during the next 12 months.

Government positions pay as high as $446.00 a month to start. They provide much greater security than private employment and excellent opportunity for advancement. Many positions require little or no specialized education or experience.

But to get one of these jobs, you must pass a test. The competition is keen and in some cases only one out of five pass.

Lincoln Service helps thousands and prepare for these tests every year. It is one of the largest and oldest privately owned schools of its kind and is not connected with the Government.

For FREE information on Government jobs, including list of positions and salaries, fill out coupon and mail at once—TODAY. You will also get full details on how you can qualify yourself to pass these tests.

What makes one health plan better than the other?

Chances are you'll choose the plan with benefits that start with the first dollar of cost—not only for hospital coverage, but for doctor bills too! That's only one of the many advantages you get with the doctor bill protection which is endorsed by the Medical Society of North Carolina—Blue Shield.

Because Blue Shield is sponsored by doctors, Hospital Saving Association of Chapel Hill works closely with a committee of doctors to review your benefits regularly and thus make sure your coverage is always kept as liberal as sensible rates allow.

There are extra dividends for you too, in the way this Blue Shield doctor committee constantly studies your needs and how best to meet them—often eliminating obsolete procedures or introducing new programs that improve your coverage.

Talk to any representative of Hospital Saving Association, North Carolina's Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plan. He'll tell you more about how the partnership between Blue Shield and the medical profession guarantees the most up-to-date doctor bill protection for you and your employees.

Nikita Agrees To Geneva Talk On Ministers' Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House confirmed today that President Kennedy has received a message from Soviet Premier Khrushchev on the forthcoming Geneva disarmament conference.

It was learned that Khrushchev advised the President he would send Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to Geneva, thus accepting a U.S.-British suggestion that the conference open at the foreign minister level.

And it was learned that Khrushchev denounced Kennedy's announcement that the United States would resume nuclear testing in the atmosphere unless the world powers complete a test ban treaty before the end of April.

There was no immediate comment from the White House on Khrushchev's latest move in a continuing exchange among Moscow, London and Washington. None was expected until the message is carefully studied.

From what is known of the message, it remains unclear whether Khrushchev himself intends to go to Geneva early in the conference which begins March 14. The Soviet premier had advocated a summit gathering of the 18 heads of state whose countries will be represented at Geneva.

The United States plans to send Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan had proposed earlier that their foreign ministers and Gromyko arrive at Geneva before the conference opens for an early discussion of the nuclear test issue.

U. S. disarmament chief William

Foster said in a television interview Sunday night that the United States now wants an even tighter inspection system than it would have been willing to accept last year prior to Soviet nuclear test series which began in September after months of secret preparations.

He said the West would not be prepared to take Khrushchev's word that the Soviets would not test again.

The new note from Moscow was expected to get personal attention from President Kennedy. He returned today from a weekend at Middleburg, Va.

Kennedy announced Friday night that the United States will resume nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere in late April unless the Soviet Union signs an effective test ban treaty before that time.

The meeting of foreign ministers in advance of the general arms talks would deal primarily with the nuclear test ban problem. For the past three years negotiations on that particular issue were conducted by the three powers at Geneva until they broke down after the surprise Soviet test series.

Authorities said the note from Moscow put an end to the uncertainty which has troubled U. S. officials over the level at which the disarmament talks would start.

Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan said they would be prepared to go to a summit meeting at a later stage if progress in the talks warranted that, but they argued a top-level beginning of disarmament negotiations would do more harm than good by tending to freeze national positions on the whole range of disarmament issues.

Four Cars Crash At Intersection Here Saturday

An estimated $900 damage resulted from a four-vehicle collision at the intersection of Ninth and Washington Sts. Saturday, Greenville Traffic officers reported.

Involved in the mishap were David Proctor, 51 of Route 3, Greenville; Tony Lorinza Mills, 26, of Ayden; Roy Phillips, Jr., 34, of 1109 Cedar Lane and a car owned by O. E. Dowd, 56, of 231 Orton Drive.

Officers, who charged Proctor with failing to stop for a stop sign said the Proctor car collided with the Mills auto, then struck the Phillips car. The Proctor auto then hit the Dowd vehicle which was parked.

Damage to the Proctor car and the Mills auto was set at $250 each while damage to the Phillips auto was placed at $350. An estimated $50 damage was done to the Dowd car officers estimated.

No injuries were reported in the 12:32 p.m. collision.

Tshombe Claims Surprise Attack

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, (Continued from page one) mer director of the Division of Instructional Service in the State Dept. of Public Instruction; E. S. Simpson, superintendent of Johnston County schools; D. J. Dark, transportation assistant, Division of Transportation with the State Board of Education; Henry W. Shannon, Dept. of Education, State College; John H. Blackmon, consultant in Agricultural Technology Education, Division of Vocational Education; and W. L. Lathan of the Division of School Planning.

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, (Continued from page one) Tshombe claimed today 1,200 United Nations troops from Kamina base launched a surprise attack this morning on the nearby town of Kaminaville, Katanga. He said bitter fighting was still going on and there were an unknown number of killed and wounded on both sides.

The Katanga leader told a news conference the U.N. troops began their attack at 11:30 a.m.

The town of Kaminaville is 16 miles from the big U.N. air and military base.

Famed Physicist Is Critically Ill

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Arthur H. Compton, world-famous physicist and Nobel Prize-winner who directed the creation of the world's first nuclear chain reaction during World War II, remained critically ill today following a stroke Saturday.

Dr. Compton, 69, former chancellor of Washington University in St. Louis, entered the hospital Saturday suffering dizziness and nausea. He was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage at 4 p.m. and has not regained consciousness, his doctors reported.

Dr. Compton and his wife arrived here last month. As professor-at-large at the University of California he was to hold a series of seminars and lectures on man, science and society at various UC campuses throughout the state.

He served as chancellor of Washington University from 1945 to 1953 after 22 years as a physicist at the University of Chicago.

At Chicago Compton headed the American Academy of Science committee which produced the first nuclear chain reaction leading to the atomic bomb and the mass production of plutonium.

The Loyalist Spanish government surrendered Barcelona to the Insurgents on January 26, 1939.

Card of Thanks

The Rev. Carrie Gooding of Grifton wishes to thank friends of both races here for contributions given to boost the treasury of the Samaritan Boys' Club. The name of their club was chosen from St. Luke 10:33. Their aims are to prove to you that to serve God you must serve your fellowman. They now have 11 widows on their list to help and they do not accept pay for their work.

The Rev. Gooding is director and I also thank the parents for their cooperation. If we want our boys and girls to make a success in their future life, we must give them a religious foundation.
