Terrorist Band Raids Prison

Secret Army Attempts Own Vengeance Against Captive Moslems

ORAN, Algeria (AP)—Hundreds of Moslems demonstrated today before a prison where Secret Army Organization commandos killed two Moslem prisoners and wounded 30 others in a fire raid. Squads of riot police held back the tattered Moslems as they screamed nationalist slogans and shook their fists. Several hundred yards away another crowd of Moslems stood behind a barbed wire entanglement sealing off an entrance to the Vieille Nouvelle, Oran's largest Moslem quarter. Squads of soldiers and a half-track with a machine gun faced them.

Special convoys of riot police were rushed to the prison area on the edge of the city. Authorities said the secret army apparently attacked the prison in Oran to mete out its own punishment to Moslem terrorists. Almost all the 1,850 inmates were imprisoned for terrorist activities in support of Algerian independence. The secret army, pledged to keep Algeria French, has often expressed anger because Moslem rebels sentenced to death have not been executed. President Charles de Gaulle commuted all death sentences shortly after he assumed power in 1958.

The 50 terrorist commandos forced a prison driver at gunpoint to drive his van through the prison gate as eight terrorists in paratrooper uniforms crouched in the back. Once inside, the eight disarmed prison guards and opened the gate for the other raiders to enter. The guards were taken from the prison in trucks and held captive until the attack was over. The raiders piled up a huge charge of explosives and containers of gasoline and butane gas inside the prison walls and then set it off. As they retreated they locked the prison gate. The terrorists fired bullets into the flames as they fled.

High winds fanned the flames and firemen had difficulty bringing the fire under control. There was panic in the prison's sprawling cell blocks. Moslems in neighboring sections of the city massed in crowds, screaming and waving. All the uninjured prisoners were transferred to detention quarters outside the prison. Throughout Algeria Monday 35 persons were killed—27 of them Moslems—and 130 wounded. The terrorism continued as French and Algerian rebel leaders headed for the French-Swiss border for the opening Wednesday of a cease-fire and independence agreement for Algeria.

JFK Warns Khrushchev Real Progress Is Needed

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy told Soviet Premier Khrushchev today that the purpose of the great powers now in approaching negotiations at Geneva must be to avoid "sterile exchanges of propaganda" and make real progress toward disarmament.

Kennedy welcomed Khrushchev's decision to send Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to meet with U.S. and British foreign ministers at Geneva in advance of the March 14 disarmament conference. The President suggested March 12—next Monday—as the starting date for three-power talks.

Kennedy, meanwhile, arranged to meet with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, and other diplomatic, military and atomic advisers, at 5 p.m. today to talk about U.S. disarmament policy. Rusk is expected to leave Washington Saturday for Geneva.

The White House announced those at the meeting will include, in addition to the President and Rusk: William Foster, disarmament director; and Adrian Fisher, deputy director; Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara; and Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, director of the Atomic Energy Commission. Kennedy's message to Khrushchev, replying to a lengthy note from the Soviet leader which was delivered here Sunday, was very brief. It was delivered in Moscow early today and released by the White House here later.

Khrushchev, disappointed in his campaign to press Kennedy and other Western and neutralist leaders into a summit meeting at Geneva, had reluctantly agreed to his message, to send Gromyko to meet with Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home.

The Soviet chief also used the note to denounce Kennedy's decision last week to resume nuclear weapons testing in the atmosphere in late April. He characterized as atomic blackmail the test series if Russia would agree to a test-ban treaty with an international inspection system acceptable to the West.

The President, obviously referring to such points as those, said there were many comments in Khrushchev's letter with which the United States "cannot agree." But he said he did not want to engage in a propaganda exchange with Khrushchev, and declared: "Let us, instead, join in giving our close personal support and direction to the work of our representatives (at Geneva), and let us join in working for their success." It was disclosed Monday that the Soviet premier, in a switch from his previous proposals for starting the March 14 Geneva disarmament conference at the summit level:

1. Agreed to the Kennedy-Macmillan proposal to launch the Geneva gathering at the foreign ministers level.

2. Agreed to send Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko to Geneva a few days early to confer with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home, as Kennedy and Macmillan had suggested.

Aides said Rusk planned to leave Washington in time to meet Gromyko and Home in Geneva about March 12, with a main topic to be a treaty on banning nuclear tests.

District Social Security Office Will Open Monday

The new Greenville Social Security district office will be opened to the public next Monday and will be located in temporary quarters at 814 W. Fifth St. (old Sentinel Life building).

This was announced today by Edmund Baxter, Regional Director of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Charlottesville, Va.

Icen Wilson will serve as district manager of the new office. Wilson, formerly assistant district manager of the Charleston West Va. district office, has already assumed his duties here in order to make necessary arrangements for the March 12 opening.

The Regional Representative for Social Security Maurice D. Dewberry, stated that the new Greenville district office will be one of over 600 Social Security district offices in the United States. Its location here will offer more accessible service to residents of Beaufort, Bertie, Chowan, Martin, Pitt, Tyrrell and Washington Counties and all of Hyde County except Ocracoke Island.

The total population of the new district office's service area is almost 200,000 of which some 15,000 individuals are already receiving some type of Social Security monthly benefit.

Residents of these counties have formerly been required to go into the district offices located at Rocky Mount, New Bern or Norfolk, Va.

The offices will eventually be located in a new building at 205 Boyd Ave. which is now being constructed by J. J. Perkins.

Wilson said the authorized staff of 18 persons is expected to be on hand when the office opens Monday.

Wilson is married and he and his wife, Lucille, have three boys.

Nikita Says Short Of Food

MOSCOW (AP)—Radio announcers today began reading Soviet Premier Khrushchev's six-hour speech telling the people what they already knew—the Soviet Union is short of food, especially meat.

Khrushchev warned the Communist party Central Committee Monday that poor management of collective farms has seriously jeopardized the seven-year agricultural plan.

Khrushchev blamed a long-dead Soviet agricultural scientist with a name from British ancestors, Vasily Williams, for wrong methods long followed.

It was Williams, he said, who stood at the elbow of Stalin and led him to adopt a system of grass crop rotation which keeps a large part of the land each year in grass to restore its fertility. Williams died in 1939.

To cope with the resulting food shortage now plaguing a growing Soviet population, Khrushchev said about a third of the 150 million acres now in grass will be plowed up and planted in corn, sugar beets and legumes to supply more food and more feed for livestock.

Seven pages of every major morning paper were given over to the Khrushchev speech. It was piped into the main room of practically every home in the land through loudspeakers that are considered as much a part of the dwelling as the front window.

The Central Committee today took up the Khrushchev report and began debating it, with Genady Voronov as the lead-off man. Voronov is a newly elected member of the Presidium who made a reputation in Siberia as a successful farm leader.

Sledge Case Is Scheduled For Pitt Grand Jury

Fredrick D. Sledge, Pitt County school official who last week was charged with raping a 15-year-old Negro girl, was placed under a $3,000 bond for appearance at the next sitting of the Pitt County Grand Jury after "probable cause" was found yesterday in a preliminary hearing of the case.

Sledge was released under the bond following the hearing. Greenville Recorder's Court Judge Charles H. Whedbee said in announcing his decision after hearing the evidence presented, "the court finds that there is probable cause that the man is guilty as charged."

Sledge, a 55-year-old Negro, was arrested on the charge February 26, the day following the alleged attack. He is supervisor of the Pitt County Negro schools, working under the Pitt County Board of Education.

The first witness to take the stand yesterday was the 15-year-old girl herself, followed by her aunt, mother and uncle. Both her mother and uncle are from Baltimore, Md. and were called the night of the alleged attack and came to Greenville the following morning, according to testimony.

The child's mother is a case supervisor in the children's division of the Baltimore Welfare Department, it was brought out.

Testimony given in the hearing showed that the 10th grade student was taken to a doctor that night (February 25) and examined.

The physician who examined the child testified that "there was evidence of recent intercourse" but said there was "no macroscopic evidence of damage beyond that of a usual penetration." He noted that the child had been crying and was in a near hysterical condition at the time of the examination.

Miss Faggart Bride Of Mr. Tyson

CHINA GROVE—In a ceremony at four o'clock Sunday, March 4, Miss Patricia Sue Faggart became the bride of Glenn Easus Tyson Jr. at St. Mark's Lutheran Church. The Rev. Brady Faggart, pastor of the church, officiated.

Mrs. Glenn Easus Tyson Jr.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Brown Faggart of China Grove. Mr. Tyson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Easus Tyson Sr.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Lt. Gerald E. Murphy of Fort Lee, Va., soloist, and Harry Freeze of Kannapolis, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza taffeta and alencon lace. The circlet neckline edged with lace featured an empire bodice of alencon lace and three quarter length sleeves. The tulip-shaped skirt encrusted with pearls and crystals and appliqued with alencon lace extended into a chapel train. Her veil was attached to a pearl crown and she carried a bouquet of mixed flowers, centered with an orchid.

Mrs. Geneva Bostin, aunt of the bride, was the bride's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Ann Day of Durham, Miss Brenda Fleming of Laurinburg, Mrs. Melvin Sauls of Fremont and Mrs. Chad Henderickson of Kannapolis. All the attendants wore floor length dresses of Emperor Blue Satin designed with circlet neckline and quarter length sleeves. Their headpieces were blue satin pillboxes and they carried bouquets of yellow roses, carnations and pom poms.

Miss Rita Overcash of China Grove was flower girl. Best man was W. M. West of Greenville. Ushers were Charles Faggart Jr. of China Grove, Fred Nobles of Greenville, Bobby Edwards of Greenville and Melvin Sauls of Fremont.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. Harold Speck of China Grove, Miss Martha Corbett of Greenville, Mrs. David Starrett of Gastonia, and Mrs. Bobby Edwards of Greenville.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the Community Building following the wedding. For a wedding trip to the western part of the state, the bride wore a light blue wool sheath with black accessories and an orchid corsage.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina College and the bridegroom is associated with the North Carolina Prison Department in Salisbury.

District 15 Day March 10

Winners in each of these contests will go on to compete in the State Contest.

Strange Customs, Bottled Water Ahead For Mrs. Kennedy On Trip

Cindy Adams, writer, actress and wife of Joey Adams, president of the American Guild of Variety Artists, recently returned from a tour of Asia for the United States Information Agency. From her own experience and from the India and Pakistan delegations at the United Nations, she warns Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy what to expect on her coming tour.

By CINDY ADAMS
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—(WNS)—When Prime Minister Nehru invited Mrs. John F. Kennedy to visit his neck of the woods, he didn't mention she might sleep under mosquito netting at some time, might eat with her hands at another time and will brush her teeth with bottled water all the time.

Tandoori chicken which is first boiled then frozen, powdered underground in chili powder, maybe some yummy Dahl Wada, fried cereal patties soaked in seasoned yogurt, and Indian curries ranging from the very highly spiced to the ultra-highly spiced.

Although she'll have utensils, it's the custom to wrestle chicken with your hands. It's also proper for one to eat the rice with one's hands. This is done even amongst the Westernized, highly educated Brahmins who are wearing their best company manners. It won't be expected of Jackie. It will, however, be appreciated.

Possibly she'll be separated on occasion from the gentlemen in accordance with ancient traditions which frown upon coed functions. And probably she'll encounter headwinds in making small talk because even silver-tongued orators like William Jennings Bryan or Zsa Zsa Gabor would find the English-speaking memsahibs shy, retiring and not given to conversation.

According to the press attaches of the Pakistani and Indian missions of the United Nations, she'll be shown India's national dance, the Bharatanatyam, and the Pushtu folk dance of Pakistan's border tribes, the Pathans. She is scheduled to see India's Taj Mahal and Pakistan's National Day Parade on March 23.

stick, mosquito-ey and there she'll sleep under netting and several layers of insect repellent. She'll need a quantity of stockings because they're unavailable. She'll need sufficient cosmetics because they're short on sanitation, let alone mascara, and replacements are difficult. She'll require an electric adaptor since American appliances like hair-dryers work on 110 watts and Asian outlets are 200.

If her troupe numbers any tinted brunettes, they'd best bring hair dye along since everybody's dark-haired in Asia and those beauticians can make you blonde, red or even bald but not black! All the ladies in her party would do well to pack facial tissues and soaps that suds in hard water.

+ Births + League Members Meet

Walston
Born to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Edward Walston of 108 S. Pitt St., Farmville, a daughter, Lisa Lynn, on March 5, 1962 in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The Greenville Service League held its February meeting Monday morning at the Elm Street Recreation Park. Mrs. D. C. Wade Jr., president, opened the meeting by asking the members to repeat the Service League Prayer for Christian Service. The minutes were read by Mrs. Troy Burnett, secretary, were approved, and a report was heard from Mrs. Ralph Brimley, treasurer. Mrs. W. R. Guice, corresponding secretary, announced the League regretfully accepted resignations from Mrs. Pace Fuller and Mrs. Lewis Tebeau.

Mrs. Ray Minges, co-chairman of the League's recent dance, along with Mrs. Dwight Garrett, reported the affair successful. She expressed appreciation to the overall committee and to Mrs. Knott Proctor Jr. and Mrs. Richard Heller for the entertainment and decorations. A letter was read from Mrs. Wesley Harvey, a past president, who attended the dance. Mrs. Minges stated that the committee was pleased to have Advisory Board members present for this social.

Standing committee reports were given by the various committee chairmen Mrs. K. G. Harris, Layette chairman, requested that grocery stamps be turned in to help toward the purchase of baby blankets. Emergency Charity chairman, Mrs. Louise Ficklen, reported three calls for assistance. Mrs. Knott Proctor Jr., Hospital Activities chairman, said that 125 Valentine favors were made and delivered to the hospital. In the absence of Mrs. W. S. Bost, Hospital Bed chairman, Mrs. Wade stated that one patient had been helped during the month with four in the hospital at present.

Bloodmobile chairman Mrs. Frank Longino reported the past visit of the Bloodmobile a success and thanked all volunteers who assisted. She announced that the next visit will be at the college April 25 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Mrs. Agnes Wilkinson presented the Coffee Shop report in the absence of Coffee Shop chairman Mrs. James Little. She requested members to bring the purchase price of the Coffee Shop pinafores to the April meeting. The members recently voted to wear these pinafores for hospital activities.

First Aid classes for Service League members have been scheduled, according to Mrs. Cecil Bilbro, Civil Defense chairman. These classes will be held at 8 p.m. on March 7, March 9, March 12, March 16 and March 19. Any members interested should contact Mrs. Bilbro immediately.

Friday activities will include bridge and golf. Golfers will be competing for a ring-a-score prize to be awarded in May and will participate in a varied golf program throughout the spring.

Auxiliary Has Meeting

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Grace Free Will Baptist Church met at the church last Tuesday. Prayer was offered and then it was turned over to the program chairman.

Mrs. Ruby Norris brought out points on missions pertaining to the four missionaries which our circles are named after, Marie Hanna, Aileen Calvary, Ethel Whaley and Mabel Willey. Norman Pollard brought the message on "What It Cost To Be A Good Christian". He pointed out that salvation was a free gift from God purchased by the shedding of the blood of Jesus Christ and that it doesn't cost us anything to be a Christian, but it does cost to be a good Christian. It cost friends, love, ones, self denial, and cross bearing. In order to be a missionary you would have to be a good Christian.

The business meeting was opened with the reading of the minutes, prayer, and reports from each officer.

Swim Champion Bares Facts

BIENNE, Switzerland—(WNS)—A German housemaid passed herself off as Olympic swimming champion Judy Grinham and gave lessons at the local swimming club. Her false identity was not suspected even when she lost races to her pupils. But when she was interviewed by the press, her story became so conflicting that she admitted her ignorance of Olympic games and swimming matches.

Installing New Pastor For Local Church Thursday

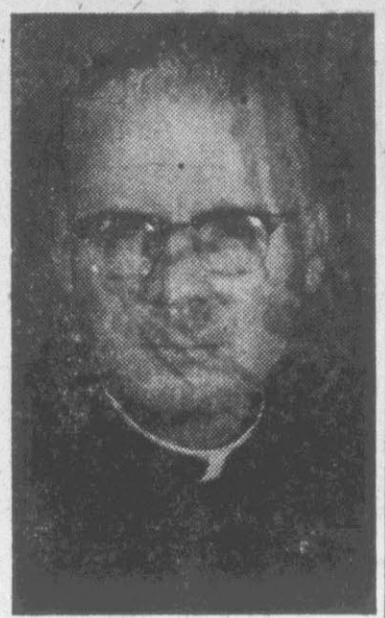

Series Of Speed Records Set By B58 Bomber

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An Air Force B58 bomber has broken three transcontinental speed records, uncounted dozens of windows and the tranquility of citizens along a 40-mile corridor from coast to coast.

The 1,300-m.p.h. jet made the trip Monday from Los Angeles to New York in 2 hours, 1 minute and 26-plus minutes to turn-around and refuel over the Atlantic, and streaked back here in 2 hours, 15 minutes.

Total elapsed time for the 4,900-mile, non-stop round trip: 4 hours, 42 minutes, 32 seconds.

The installation of the Reverend Maurice Spillane as new pastor of St. Peter's parish, in Greenville, will be held Thursday in the auditorium of St. Raphael's School at 8:00 p.m.

FATHER SPILLANE

Monsignor Edward Gilbert, of Goldsboro, will officiate at the ceremonial which marks the formal taking over of parish responsibilities by Father Spillane. A number of priests from Eastern North Carolina communities are expected to attend.

The installation is open to the public.

Father Spillane is a native of County Kerry, Ireland. He completed his theological studies in the Pontifical Lateran University, Rome, and was ordained April 4, 1942.

At his own request he was assigned to serve in the Diocese of Raleigh; and was assistant pastor in Whiteville and Goldsboro. He was named the first pastor for a new parish in Elizabethtown and subsequently appointed pastor of the church in Mt. Airy where he remained for eight years.

He was assigned to St. Peter's parish by Bishop Vincent S. Waters, effective February 9 of this year.

Late Winter Storm Sees Snow In Eastern States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A late winter storm slammed across the eastern quarter of the nation today, dumping nearly two feet of snow in sections of Virginia and dusting areas southward into Alabama.

The storm, moving from the Northern Plains, centered along the Eastern seaboard and hit hard across the central and southern Appalachians and Middle Atlantic coast states.

Heavy snow warnings were in effect for inland sections of Virginia, eastern West Virginia, western and northern Maryland, most of Pennsylvania, New York and southern New England. Rain and sleet pelted coastal areas.

At Washington the Weather Bureau in a special bulletin predicted heavy flooding in the coastal lowlands of New Jersey northward into southern New England.

It said tides 3 to 5 feet above normal would be caused by 50 of 60 miles an hour onshore winds north of the storm center, which was just east of Ocean City, Md.

The blanket of snow piled up to 22 to 23 inches in Culpeper, Manassas and Winchester, in northern Virginia, and more than 15 inches in the Piedmont district in the central part of the state.

Falls of two feet also were in prospect in southern Maryland. In Washington, above freezing temperatures melted most of the snow Monday but falls of four inches were indicated.

The Weather Bureau in Columbus, Ohio, reported heaviest falls along a 50-mile path from Lima, in the northwestern part of the state, to Columbus. A foot of snow covered Kenton and nearly a foot in areas near Columbus. In Columbus, the accumulation of nine inches resulted in a snow emergency declared, with parking banned on 23 main streets to allow snow removal. Falls measured 8 inches in Toledo, 7 in Springfield and 6 in Findlay.

A light snow in Cincinnati turned the city's hilly streets into sheets of ice and police reported 107 accidents in a six-hour period Monday night. A tractor-trailer jackknifed west of Springfield, tying up westbound traffic for three hours.

snow across most of Kentucky and Tennessee and into the mountain regions of northern Georgia, the western Carolinas and parts of Alabama. Light snow fell in the 26-above temperature in Huntsville, Ala.

Cold air, powered by brisk northerly winds, spread deep into Texas and eastward to Georgia.

The below-zero belt extended from the eastern Dakotas into the upper Mississippi Valley. Temperatures were generally below freezing in most areas to the Gulf and the northern border of Florida.

THIRD TERM

RALEIGH (AP) — Robert Carr of Wallace was re-elected Monday for an unprecedented third one-year term as chairman of the State Wildlife Resources Commission at a meeting of the commission here.

No Relaxing From Grind For Busy Red Skelton

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—How does he do it?

That's what the entertainment world has wondered about Red Skelton, longest-lasting of television comedians.

The high-flying redhead is rocketing through his 11th year in television. Last week he signed a new six-year contract with CBS that will expand his Tuesday night show to an hour next season.

The new contract was announced after Red had returned to work following a hospital siege, one of several during his television career.

The doctors' diagnosis: overwork, change of altitude—he had just finished a stand at Harrah's Club, Lake Tahoe—kickback from a mild sedative.

The prescription: rest, relaxation.

Outlook: he'll get neither.

When I caught up with Red, he was rehearsing a television show at his studio, which once housed the comic genius of another era, Charlie Chaplin.

"The doctors said all I needed was some rest," he mused, fingering the ever-present cigar, he never lights. "But how can I?"

"I've put $4.5 million in this studio, and it came right out of my own pocket. Today I'll be signing the payroll for the studio, it comes to $60,000 a week. So you can see that I've got to keep working."

He talked wistfully of what he might do if he did quit the grind. "I'd like to travel and study," he said. "There are all kinds of things I want to learn. For instance, I want to find out about the Scandinavian comics and why they are funny."

Such plans are idle dreams now that he has signed to double his output next season. During the summer he will play the Nevada pleasure spots and then do a month of fairs that will bring him $600,000.

To get back to our question: how does he do it?

The answer seems to be that making people laugh is not just a profession for Red. It is a dedication.

"I don't do anything else," he admitted. "Georgia and I never go to night clubs. We don't go to parties. We don't even take vacations."

He spends his days working on television production. He spends his nights dreaming up new ideas and techniques, watching the three television sets placed above his bed. He seldom sleeps before dawn; the early morning hours are devoted to his hobbies and interests. His current pursuit is tracing the life of Christ from birth to 12 years.

Snow Requires Chains In Western Carolina

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow began falling before dawn today over most of Western North Carolina. Some highways in the mountain areas were impassable without chains.

Meanwhile, the rest of the state felt the backlash of a storm off the Maryland coast, the U.S. Weather Bureau said.

The outlook for today was considerable cloudiness, quite cold and snow flurries in the mountains. Temperatures were expected to dip to around 20 degrees in the northwest and upper 20s along the south coast tonight.

Mount Pisgah recorded zero this morning and Asheville had a low of 20 degrees. Snow was reported this morning at Waynesville, Soco Gap and Asheville.

Six inches of snow was reported on Clingman's Peak and snow accumulation around Asheville amounted to an average of about 1/2 inch. Heavier amounts of snow were reported north and west of Asheville toward Hot Springs, Marshall and Spruce Pine where accumulations were from about two to four inches.

The Highway Patrol said U.S. 441, U.S. 19-23 and U.S. 25-70 required chains in the western portion of the state. Chains also are reported necessary in all counties in the northwest corner of the state.

The patrol also reported hazardous driving in some northern Piedmont sections.

Asheville city Buncombe County schools were closed today.

Snow was reported as far east as Raleigh, where about an inch was on the ground and more snow was falling. Light snow flurries also were reported in Greensboro and Winston-Salem.

A trace of snow was reported early today at Fayetteville, but there was no accumulation on the ground.

Some low temperatures during the night included Asheville 20 degrees, Charlotte 31, Greensboro 28, Raleigh 28, Wilmington 32 and Fayetteville 32.

Last Rites Set For Mrs. J. L. Tucker

Mrs. Cumie Hardee Tucker, 73, wife of J. Lonnie Tucker of near Simpson, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital Monday afternoon at 4:20. She had been in failing health for the past year and critically ill for two weeks.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 by her pastor, the Rev. Alton S. Lancaster, assisted by the Rev. Ray Giles, pastor of Mt. Pleasant Christian Church. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Tucker, daughter of the late Bryant H. and Talitha Nelson Hardee, was born and reared near Greenville in the Eastern Pines community. She was married to Mr. Tucker in 1909 and since that time had made her home near Simpson. She was a member of the Salem Methodist Church, the Woman's Missionary Society of the Church, and the Simpson Home Demonstration Club.

Surviving are her husband; three daughters, Mrs. Robert D. Stanell of Greenville, Mrs. Jimmie R. Rogers of Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. Charles R. Townsend Jr. of New Bern; two sons, Floyd O. Tucker of Grimesland and R. Leo Tucker of Orange, Va.; seven grandchildren; one great grandchild; and two brothers, Leon T. Hardee of near Greenville and Cleveland F. Hardee of Greenville.

Plane Crew Dies In B58's Crash

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—A B58 jet bomber crashed and exploded here Monday night while fellow airmen still cheered the cross-country speed records set a few hours earlier by another B58 of the 43rd Bomb Wing.

All three crewmen were killed. "It looked like an A-bomb," said Leonard Sanders, a Fort Worth Star-Telegram copy editor who was at a drive-in theater close by.

"The sky lit up behind the movie screen and a huge cloud of smoke rose almost immediately."

Residents heard and felt three blasts—two small ones and then a blinding explosion which sent bits of metal flying 250 yards.

Killed in the crash were Capt. Robert Eugene Harter, 34, pilot; Capt. D. V. Jones, 29, navigator; and Lt. James T. McKenzie, 28, defense systems operator.

Carswell Air Force Base authorities said the plane was starting a night training flight and carried no weapons. The delta-winged craft swerved on takeoff, crashed through a chain link fence and exploded.

McKenzie, whose wife Carolyn Sue lives in Fort Worth, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hush H. McKenzie of Box 1021, Pinehurst, N. C.

Tobacco Exports Await Policies

RALEIGH (AP) — Undersecretary of Agriculture Charles S. Murphy said today U.S. foreign trade policies will determine largely the future of tobacco exports.

He said trade legislation recommended by President Kennedy is needed to enable this country to maneuver effectively in trade with the common market area of Western Europe—France, Belgium, the Netherlands, West Germany, Luxembourg and Italy.

"We must be able to live with and to trade with this powerful new European economic community," he said. "If we fail to do so, we will not only hurt ourselves economically, but also we will lend strength to the diverse forces that exist in the world today."

In a talk prepared for a meeting of Tobacco Associates, Inc., a flue-cured tobacco industry group, Murphy said tariff policies of the common market pose a threat to U.S. exports to that region.

Murphy said passage of the President's program — which would extend and broaden the President's authority in tariff regulation and in entering trade agreements—would give U.S. officials "the broad authority needed to help negotiate advantageous terms of trade for our tobacco."

4-H Club Elects New Officers

Officers of the Sallis Branch 4-H Club have been elected at the club's annual re-organization meeting.

They include William Hunter, president; Geraldine Williams, vice president; Gene Rogers, secretary-treasurer; Peggie Savage, recreational leader; Deloris Council and Bettie Moore, reporters.

Milton Merritt and Miss Betty Thompson, county 4-H advisors, conducted a program at last Thursday's meeting entitled: "Grow a Better Garden."

Jordan Endorses Buying Bonds

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., has told a Charlotte group that he will support President Kennedy's proposal that the United States buy $100 million in U.N. bonds.

Jordan made his views known in an answer to Charlotte members of the United World Federalists who support purchase of the bonds.

Sen. Sam Ervin, D-NC, reiterated his backing of the bonds purchase which he first made public last month.

Sen. Jordan wrote, "I came to the same conclusion in view of the importance of the U.N. in helping us to find peaceful solutions to our world problems."

Sen. Ervin said he had been tempted to oppose the purchase, but added, "I have reached the conclusion that responsible action on my part obliges me to vote for it."

Logical Next Step In Our Schools

It should have come as no surprise that consolidation of high schools comprised the heart of a special survey conducted by a committee from the State Department of Public Instruction.

Consolidation moves have been the dominant feature of improved education facilities all over the nation, across the State, and to some extent within our own country.

Remember when one-room schools were commonplace? A form of consolidation became an obvious necessity, and it was adopted. A number of larger schools took their place; and in turn, even these saw mergers of one degree or another.

It is a logical next-step in the course of improved education facilities that consolidation of high schools be accomplished.

Monday's Daily Reflector carried an extensive story on the surveying committee's report to the Pitt County Board of Education, and we do not propose here to go into detail as to their recommendations. Suffice it to say, they included consolidation of the county's high schools into three central units.

The report added a reminder that the county schools involved, are "entirely too small on the basis of all recognized criteria to offer, at a reasonable cost, the type of high school program that people are increasingly demanding for their children."

What kind of high school program is in increasing demand?

It's the kind that includes such things as more courses be made available, more facilities (labs and libraries), more teachers to allow special grouping

Politics Has Practical Side

By LYNN NISBET

INFLUENCE — One of the questions propounded to the panel discussing governmental affairs at the Jaycee session in the capital last Saturday was: "What really happens to our Knight-in-Shining-Armor when he reaches Raleigh?" The sub-head is "Influence on legislators." There is a sort of subtle implication here that the new members of the General Assembly are in some way corrupted or misled by sinister influences when they get to the capitol. They come with high hopes, often with promises of performance in the public interest, promises made in full good faith but impossible to keep.

There are rare instances when a legislator succumbs to the wiles of lobbyists, forgets the obligation he owes to his constituents and devotes his time and energy to promoting his own advancement. From the vantage point of more than half a century observation your reporter can testify that these cases are exceptional. In great majority of the cases the opposite is true, the member largely submerges his own personality into the common cause for progress.

This too is the result of influence exerted by others upon him and it means his armor loses its shining luster and becomes instead the dull drab dress of a fighting man in the ranks. That is when he becomes of value to his constituency. The knight in shining armor seldom accomplishes very much except to make a show of himself. Every legislature has a few of them, but it is the less spectacular who come year after year to carry the burden of State government.

LOBBYISTS — Nearly every act which comes out of the legislative mill is the product of compromise and revision, the putting together of the thoughts of a number of people. The term "lobbyist" has a sort of sinister connotation. The two common impressions of a lobbyist is a slick-witted sharpie who by devious means of pressure and actual buying of votes achieves the passage of bills favorable to his interests and detrimental to the public good.

The picture is just as wrong as can be. The most effective lobbyist is the honest, well informed State or local official, the school administrator, the business man who serves the public in many ways.

A few years ago a representative from one of the mountain counties was caught, along with a number of his colleagues, with obligations to his constituents after the pay time for legislative service ran out. He was very bitter about some lawyers for big corporations being able to stay. Then a group of school teachers in his county made up a purse of two or three hundred dollars to pay his expenses here. He was happy and proud of this situation—and was terribly offended when he was reminded that his guilt in accepting the money from a special group for a special purpose was just as great as the regular employed business lobbyist.

What happens to the knight in shining armor is that he soon learns to discern between the informed men who can help him with problems of fact and those who would mislead him for their own selfish reasons.

Any experienced legislator can testify that the lobbyist, the man who is well informed about one subject, often renders very highly valuable service to the public by presenting facts to the lawmakers.

COOPERATION — Legislative halls are no place for plumed knights who seek only glory for themselves. Rather it is a place where cooperative effort is necessary. There is the true story of a man who ran for the legislature and was elected on the sole platform plank of repeal of the ABC system. He announced at home and on his arrival in Raleigh with considerable fanfare that he was going to slay this giant all by his own little self. In a few days he realized how foolhardy his boasting had been, abandoned his ideas of individual glory and pitched in with other members to strengthen the law regulating the sale of liquor. His contribution to good government was substantial — after he quit being a plumed knight.

So what happens to the knight in shining armor when he gets to Raleigh is not that he is seduced or corrupted, but that he soon discovers that however advantageous the role might have been in the campaign, it has no practical purpose in governmental administration.

of students. All of which is economically impractical when small classes prevail.

And we think, too, it's important for parents to remember that without these earmarks of "quality education" it is more difficult for even a gifted student to compete scholastically in his college years with others who have enjoyed benefits of a well-rounded basis provided by the larger high school.

We hope and trust the general program of high school consolidation in Pitt County will fall on receptive ears.

There are, unquestionably, many factors involved; and they are going to require much consideration and exchanging of ideas and opinions. But the basic premise of the desirability of consolidation is sound.

The next step is for citizens of our school districts to thoroughly familiarize themselves with the problems at hand and decide just what they want to do.

This could be an exciting year on the education front in Pitt County.

Governor, It's Time For A Real Hard Look

The half-baked idea of a "hunger strike" with in ranks of a military unit is well-nigh inconceivable.

True, Fort Bragg officials are unable to determine as yet just how many of the New Hampshire National Guard unit are involved . . . presumably only a few . . . nor if it has gotten beyond the talk stage. There are good reasons why it has been impossible to determine the extent of the "boycott", among them being availability of post exchanges and off-post eateries.

But the mere thought of a handful of malcontents making a "hunger strike" play is upsetting and disgusting.

It displays, for instance, that some members of this unit lack pride; lack in assimilating one basic lesson of military life, patience; lack a sense of discipline that is prerequisite to dependability in the defense establishment.

We remember some months ago it was the same New Hampshire unit which was the source of complaints that brought their governor to Fort Bragg for a look-see.

The visiting governor found no grounds for the griping and passed it off as nothing to get excited over.

Well Governor, it's time to get excited. From what we read in the newspapers, we'd infer you have some bad apples in what should be a very fine National Guard outfit. It's something that calls for a real hard look, and some stern words.

They're in the Army now, and not playing marbles.

In A Race Not To Be Second

By JAMES MARLTW

WASHINGTON (AP) — In their race not to be second, the United States and Russia are caught in their own gigantic and gruesome trap.

They're too stuck with fear of each other not to test their terrible weapons to make them even more terrible.

What they say to each other about it, and about each other, is taking a monotonous repetition. They even use the same word, "blackmail," against each other. They're beginning to look incapable of getting unstuck. The result is no end of testing in the sight.

Last August, when the Soviets said they would end a three-year voluntary ban on testing, the White House issued a statement that said the Russian announcement was primarily a form of "atomic blackmail, designed to substitute terror for reason."

Now, six months later, President Kennedy says the United States will resume testing to keep the Russians from getting ahead unless they agree to a test ban with an inspection system to prevent cheating.

To this over the weekend the Russian news agency Tass responded, "This 'strongly resembles blackmail.'"

Last Sept. 9, eight days after the Soviets had resumed testing, this country and Britain appealed to Premier Khrushchev for an immediate test ban, un-inspected until a treaty could be agreed on.

Khrushchev rejected this, saying Russia "will not agree to such a deal; it is possible to end nuclear tests only on the basis of general and complete disarmament."

General disarmament discussion is scheduled to begin March 14 in Geneva and Russia has suggested letting a nuclear test ban be made part of the talks, but the Kremlin has already said it will not buy a policed inspection system.

Without an inspection system, no agreement seems possible, because ever since World War II this country has refused any disarmament without inspection.

This is the biggest sticking point between East and West. Yet, although Khrushchev last September turned down a temporary un-inspected test ban, now Kennedy says the United States will resume testing unless Russia agrees to an inspected ban.

So, Khrushchev, who turned down an un-inspected ban, seems certain to turn down the opposite kind, which is the kind he wants least. Tass has already indicated he will do just that.

It said Kennedy's proposal is "completely unacceptable," claiming the inspection system would leave Russia wide open to spying.

When the Russians resumed atmospheric testing last September, and the world shuddered at the thought of radioactive fallout, Washington took quick propaganda advantage of it.

The White House at the time issued a statement saying, "This presents a hazard to every human being and a threat to the entire world by increasing the danger of nuclear holocaust."

Now the shoe is on the other foot. The Soviets can be expected to make their own propaganda mileage out of American testing.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

LOOK AROUND YOU

This column feels the necessity of constantly reminding its readers that whether we know it or not we are in the midst of a serious moral decline. Crime is increasing percentage-wise six times as fast as the percentage increase in population. Certain types of misbehavior—especially sexual misbehavior—have experienced such an increase in the past fifty years that one gasps at the seriousness of the resulting situation.

The truth of the matter is that people are very seldom aware of the seriousness of conditions amid which they live. As we turn back the pages of history and read about great turning points in human affairs, we are astounded that the generations which stood at these turning points recognized so little the significance of the days in which they lived.

We are thinking today primarily in terms of world war and bombing. This may not, by any means, be the most important issue which we confront. If we are really experiencing a moral decline—and statistics affirm that we are—then the social customs in which we participate, the moral standards by which we abide, the results of our actions every day in home, office, factory, and group association, may be far more significant than what is going on in the Kremlin in Moscow or in the White House and Capitol in Washington.

We need to peer deeply into our own hearts and into the significance of the circumstances by which we are surrounded.

Cultural Exchange Note

Cultural exchange is a rather dreary sounding matter to most people. It conjures up visions of visiting artists or presentations of the folk music of some far off land.

In short, such exchanges might not prove popular with the masses of this country, with some exceptions.

Strangely enough, however, cultural exchanges, while being valuable in allowing us to know the peoples of other countries better through their cultural achievements, also have value in round about ways.

I'm thinking about the Burma prime minister U Nu's play which was presented by the East Carolina College Playhouse week before last. The play "Wages of Sin" proved entertaining to those who saw it. Still only about a thousand persons attended—a small portion of Pitt County's population.

Nevertheless, the play brought wide publicity and most local residents were aware that it was an anti-communist play written by the Burmese prime minister.

In less than a week U Nu was toppled from office in Burma in a military coup. That was big news back here, for most local people were now familiar with U Nu through the play presentation. Therefore locally we were genuinely concerned about the Burmese situation simply because of this one link with that Eastern country.

And now we have the twist

Other Editors Saying Reapportionment Issues

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The new congressional reapportionment task figured to cost some seats for 14 states, a result which was certain to raise quite a pained outcry from the areas affected—North Carolina included. But a proposal came up to salvage seats for three states: Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Missouri. Of course this is little short of political manipulation, and certainly none of the states in the South stood to benefit by such a move.

But now it looks as if the three states mentioned will be in the same boat as the others. Time is working against the proposal to salvage the seats for the trio of states. The hope for increasing House membership is thus not as bright as formerly. At present there is a 435-seat limit in the House. With this limit somebody had to give ground to take care of the representation of the two new states.

To take care of all the losers and at the same time provide equal representation for the others would require an increase of three seats on the ground that it wasn't fair to penalize any of the 48 older states, simply because the two new states were entitled to a total of three representatives.

But since the plan has worked out enthusiasm for it has cooled off. Members from states not in line to benefit by the three-member boost don't like the idea of voting to help three other states while not doing anything to prevent losses for themselves. Except for Massachusetts, home state of House Speaker John McCormack, all the states involved—including North Carolina—have redistricted to accommodate the reapportionment changes.

The deadline for candidates to enter primaries in Pennsylvania is March 12, and there is little chance that Congress will act that fast. Some influential House leaders now believe the bill will never be listed for a vote, even if it won the now-doubtful approval of the rules committee.

It is not feasible to continue to increase the House membership to accommodate the nation's continued population increase. The House, at 400-plus members, is already too widely to be an effective law-making body. Thus, the only alternative is to apportion the representation according to population. This is done on the basis of the latest census report. The 1960 census, for example, was what caused North Carolina to lose a seat. The General Assembly faced by merely squeezing out the district of the only Republican member in the state.

But even this census-based measure isn't fair because North Carolina showed an increase in population. Some states seem to benefit more than others, raising cries of inequality and imbalance. This may not be true in every case but it has caused enough problems to merit a serious study of the entire apparatus for putting representatives in Congress from the 50 states.

chain. Ed M. Vann of Rocky Mount is inventor of it. The chain has rather large links, a clasp at each end and two gold medallions in its middle.

The idea is to fasten the chain to your belt loops. As you do the dance craze, the Twist, the medallions are suppose to clank rhythmically.

Vann said the chains are being manufactured in Chicago and the initial order was for 1,000. However if the things catch on, they can be turned out at the rate of 100,000 a day.

Opinions In Brief

"Newspaper critics seldom stop to think the better the newspaper does its job of reporting and informing, the less it can argue its readers into sharing unjustifiable opinions and false theories. Revival Of Old Values

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Most striking in the Glenn excitement has been the quiet dignity and decorum of this ordinary American family from a little Ohio town suddenly thrust into the most exacting limelight. Big city folk might learn much from this quiet family that fitted the situation as though to the manner born. There was no letting down the bars; no acting up. Colonel Glenn addressed the Mayor's luncheon in New York without a manuscript, in eloquent, forensic English. He reminded me of Will Rogers at his best.

The astronaut's wife, Anne, riding through the rain in Washington, was a picture of what in Europe would be called the "well-born," for this is universally true, that they who are aristocrats by nature need not wear the trappings of aristocracy to be appreciated. Somehow, this family brought back the American small town into our lives and it is clean and wholesome and decent.

One of the major social ills of American life since Prohibition has been an increasing vulgarity in private conduct. Good manners have gone by the board and nobody wants to be a square, not even a grandmother who finds it necessary to wear a wig and nowadays do the twist, an imitation of African licentiousness, particularly ugly when done by adults. Maybe Victorian manners were stuffy and heavy but they were not cheap and vulgar. The bar-room was not brought into the home nor did one sit down to dinner with floosies and degenerates. They had their place somewhere in the dark. When manners go by the board, morals cease to exist and a home can be a brothel no matter how many children are in it.

The Prohibition era with its Flappers and the mixing of "family" people with whoever could provide liquid entertainment left its mark upon society and whoever raises his voice "for the good, old days" sounds like an old fogey which he may very well be. But as one saw on the television screen, hour after hour, this fine family of Americans who so obviously live in the family life, which holds out to our way of life, whose relationship is one of unshamed love, one for the other, who required no artificial stimulants to cover up the "each goes his own way" attitude which is so fashionable in the big cities—this family on the screen taught us a lesson which is not too easily forgotten.

Colonel Glenn himself is conscious of the moral values in his fight, for in his extemporaneous address at the Waldorf Astoria he referred to them and speaking of patriotism, he said that it was not out of fashion. The Russians and West Germans, each in a different way, have shown to us what a disciplined life can accomplish in a short time. We have been showing our youngsters an untruthful picture of an undisciplined life, of sheriffs and drunkards and gun-fighters and such who are supposed to be the heroes of the West. But such people could not have built a great country such as ours. They could not have done much even to improve Dodge City. They could not have built anything. Into the building of the West went brains and brawn and character and the small towns of states like Ohio have given back to this country a fair return on that investment in men and women of character who have served this country not for their private advantage but for its glory.

Thus we come back to our main theme — by the accident of his heroism, Colonel Glenn permitted us of the big cities to take a peek at the real strength of the United States, the small towns where neighbors live together in fair amity and understand that theirs is much to do for the United States and that there must be strong and clean men and women to do it.

Perhaps out of it will come some moral advantage, some strengthening of our young people. Perhaps out of it will come a revival of values which have been lost in the madness of sterile years of selfish heroism which usually follow wars. If such a change may come upon us, the astronaut has done (Continued on page five)

'Instant Dividend' Is Dropped

By ELMER ROESSNER
One of the biggest puzzles in business today is exactly why Philco dropped its "Instant Dividend" plan. Neither Philco nor Ford, which took Philco over in a merger deal shortly after the plan was announced, will give explanations in depth.

Under the plan, introduced last fall, supermarket cash-register tapes were accepted as all or part of installment payments for Philco appliances, which were promoted in the supermarkets. It drew a large number of imitators and a larger number of complaints.

Appliance dealers and supermarket operators who were not in one of the plans charged unfair competition. Trade associations screamed. Although the details of plans were made explicit, Better Business Bureaus, possibly under local pressures, issued "warnings" about them.

ALL OVER NOW

started dropping the plans. And a few days ago Philco announced that it was dropping the plan. All participants will be able to complete purchases under the original terms.

Philco said that surveys had not proved that the sales volume was profitable enough to satisfy dealers, supermarkets and customers. But business operators think there were deeper reasons.

One theory is that Ford didn't want to tangle with the Better Business Bureaus, although it seemed to have right on its side.

Another is that imitators had made extravagant claims that might reflect on the Philco plan.

TOO MANY ENEMIES?
But most observers think that the biggest reason was that Ford was piling up too many enemies.

Philco, as a separately-owned company, might take on other appliance companies in competition, as it has for years. And while Ford may cheerfully look competitive horns with the other auto manufacturers, the dividend deal was giving it more instant enemies than it cared for.

It had aroused the anger of electrical dealers outside the Philco circle. Many trade associations denounced the plan and at least one challenged its legality. It stirred up the wrath of the trading stamp companies, who are now big business. It angered supermarkets who did not have the Philco plan or who could not get plans just as good.

This was a heady situation. An array of Philco enemies might become an array of Ford enemies. And that, most observers believe, is what derailed the plan. Ford would feel foolish losing friends and sales simply to sell a few more refrigerators through supermarkets.

ELECTRICITY GENERATED FROM SUGAR, PROTEINS

A new method to produce small electric current may have some interesting business applications. The Electro-Optical Systems, Inc., and Sonotone Corp., have used ordinary food compounds such as sugar and proteins to take electricity. Currents as high as seventenths of a volt have been produced.

At present, the discovering engineers are working on a package fuel cell. They say that it is possible that in some future space flights human wastes could be used with lightweight equipment, to generate instant electricity.

Two Questions In Stalled Steel Labor Parleys

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—The two big questions in the stalled steel labor talks for the ordinary fellow on the outside looking in are:
1. What will the Kennedy Administration do under its newly announced labor policy to get talks started again?
2. Will steel customers start fresh and stepped-up ordering as a hedge against a strike or a price hike—and if they do, will it spark a boom followed by a letdown?
And for many there's the underlying question—the one that some say is the biggest stumbling block at the talks: What kind of a plan will the steel industry finally work out to satisfy labor's demands for job security?
The answer to the last might become a guide for other larger contracts in industries where workers fear job losses. And many do these days, whether from automation or mergers.
The answers to the administration's stand and to steel customer reaction, and to the kind of contract finally drawn, could eventually mean a lot to everyone. Involved could be the cost of living, if the final result should lead to another whirl of the wage-price spiral.
The Kennedy administration has been involved in the steel situation for many months, since the President's appeal to the steel companies to hold the price line despite a raise in wages effective last October. The President also successfully urged both management and labor to start the new contract talks early. They began in mid-February, although the present contract doesn't expire until June 30. They were broken off Friday night.
The administration policy in labor disputes, as put forth by labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg, contains an important new note. Up to now government officials have tried to prevent or halt strikes by seeking a compromise both sides will accept with varying degrees of grace.
The new idea, Goldberg says, is that it's the government's duty to advise both sides in advance as to what it considers would best serve the public interest. This idea has been criticized both by steel labor and management as making government a third party to bargaining.
One thing the administration seems sure to consider in the best public interest in the case of steel is for the talks to get going again soon, and not wait until the final weeks before the strike deadline.

South Vietnamese Forces Applying Air Power; Gain Major Victories

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—South Vietnamese forces using decisive airpower scored two major victories over the Communist Viet Cong in the past two days, killing more than 100 Red guerrillas and wounding or capturing hundreds more, officials of President Ngo Dinh Diem's government said today.
U.S. Army helicopters with American crews supported the followup of one operation and U.S.-supplied fighter bombers provided the knockout punch for the other, the officials said.
The reported military successes are understood to be South Viet Nam's biggest of the year. They followed closely on three straight setbacks for Diem's pro-Western government.
Government ground forces following up a strike by the South Viet Nam air force in Phuoc Thanh Province found 60 Viet Cong bodies Monday. They estimated at least 240 more Communist guerrillas were wounded in the attack by the single-engine propeller planes Sunday.
Phuoc Thanh and parts of surrounding provinces are classified by the Communists as a liberated area long under their domination and relatively free of government control.
U.S. Army helicopters carried a battalion of South Vietnamese troops today into Tay Ninh Province—100 miles northwest of Saigon and about 3 miles from the Cambodian frontier—to follow up another government victory.
The operation centered around the government outpost of Bo Tle, which was attacked Sunday night by a Viet Cong force now estimated at 1,000. Only 79 civil guards and militiamen manned the post. They managed to hold on through the night, but 15 were killed and 10 were missing the next day. The attackers burned the post.
South Vietnamese air force planes dropped a battalion of 540 paratroops near the post Monday. Before the battle was done, 56 Viet Cong were killed and large numbers were reported wounded or captured.
U.S. Army helicopters shuttled in a second battalion today to assist in running down fleeing Communist guerrillas.
So far no victories have been recorded on either side that could be considered decisive. But military observers here consider this new direct contact between opposing forces is highly favorable to the government. The main problem for Diem's forces has been in finding the Viet Cong in large enough concentrations to attack them in force.

Two More School Years Suggested For 'Retooling'

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—There is so much to learn, and so little time in which to learn it, that American education must be retooled from top to bottom, some of the nation's top educators said today.
Oliver J. Caldwell of the U.S. Office of Education suggested, for instance, that the traditional 12 years of free public education should be extended to 14 years.
For some students, he said, the last two years would consist of semiprofessional or vocational education. For others it would be the start of advanced academic training.
Caldwell, in a prepared address to the 17th National Conference on Higher Education, also proposed a new and more rigorous college program.

Four-year liberal arts colleges should be established, he said, which would start about where the present junior year of college work begins.
Graduate work and professional education thus would be based on 18 years of formal education instead of the present 16, Caldwell said.
Caldwell said the present 12-year program of elementary and secondary education is not strong enough for an era in which the body of man's knowledge doubles every 15 years.
In another prepared paper, Prof. G. Bailey Price of the University of Kansas said that new developments in mathematics are bringing a radical change at all levels of education.

"In the past," Price said, "only the best of the universities in the United States have expected their freshmen to start with calculus and analytic geometry; but in the future, almost all colleges and universities will demand this new standard, and almost all of their students will meet it."
"Furthermore, many high school students study calculus and begin their college mathematics at an even higher level."
Prof. Claude A. Welch of Michigan State University said U. S. colleges and universities must prepare themselves for more enlightened and critical students in the years ahead.
As an example, Welch cited the new 10th grade biology course which requires an understanding of concepts about energy, the atom and molecule, simple chemical reactions, and graphic analysis.

Film Shows Astronaut During Orbital Flight

WASHINGTON (AP)—You watch astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. squeeze space food into his mouth as he hurtles over Africa. You see his exultant smile as he emerges into dawn. You see the light grow to almost blinding intensity as he comes down in his fireball ride to the sea.
It's all in a remarkable film taken inside his Friendship 7 capsule while he made his historic triple orbit of the earth Feb. 20.
The movie got a sneak preview Monday in a darkened hearing room on Capitol Hill. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration says it soon will be available for public viewings.
The close-up color film of Glenn's trip—from donning his space suit through excellent views of the capsule's recovery by the destroyer Noa—gives new excitement and immediacy to the now off-told tale.

You watch as Glenn as he experiences the heavy forces in the takeoff. You see the straps of his space suit floating freely in the air as the astronaut becomes weightless.
You watch as Glenn lifts his face plate and takes space food from a plastic bottle as he crosses Africa on the first orbit.
Perhaps the eeriest part is when the capsule races into the shadow of the earth and flies on through the night. It is dark inside the capsule except for a red light clock face and a few winking orange lights on the control panel.
You see Glenn's big smile as the capsule emerges into dawn over the Pacific for the first time.
There is a perceptible bump or jerk as the retro rockets fire to slow the capsule for its re-entry into the atmosphere. The light grows to almost blinding intensity as Glenn plunges to the sea, the most critical part of the journey.
The film, hastily edited down to 32 minutes by NASA, was shown without sound track. NASA official George Low provided a narrative for the standing room audience of congressmen and congressional workers.
To save weight in the capsule, the film was exposed frame by frame very slowly, so that the motion is jerky. But Glenn's calmness and self-possession at all times are apparent.
In an old tradition, the movie ends with Glenn flying off in a helicopter into the sunset — his fourth sunset that day.

Kornegay Will Seek Reelection

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Horace R. Kornegay, D-N.C., whose only Democratic opposition so far is High Point businessman A. G. Whitener, has announced he will seek re-election to Congress from the Sixth North Carolina District.
Kornegay, who made the announcement Monday, will be seeking his second term, subject to the May 26 Democratic primary.
The only other announced candidate is Republican Donald Badgley of Greensboro, N.C., a 43-year-old insurance man. Two other men, Blackwell Robinson of Greensboro and Walter Green of Furlington, N.C., have indicated they may seek the Republican nomination.
The U.S. Naval Academy for education and training of midshipmen was opened in 1845.

Officers for 1962 were elected Saturday at a meeting of the Negro 4-H County Council in Greenville attended by some 65 4-H'ers.
Heading the list of officers is the council's new president, Joyce Phillips of the Farmville Senior 4-H Club.
Other officers include Annie Hall of Bethel, vice president; Amy Mills of Winterville, secretary; Zeddie Hardy of Farmville, assistant secretary; and Walter Council of Bethel, treasurer.
Reporters elected were Peggy Perkins, Mary Perkins, Edward Joyner and Diane Worsley. Song leaders chosen include Josephine Spell, Rosa Rogers, Cynthia Cherry, Velma Roberson, Charlie Vance, Linda P. Vance and Alice Roberson.
The meeting was conducted by Milton Merritt, assistant Negro county agent. In addition to the 4-H'ers attending, 16 parents and teacher-leaders were present.

Sledge's School Office Closed

The office of the Negro supervisor of county schools, F. D. Sledge, has been temporarily closed, and Assistant Superintendent A. S. Alford will direct the program for March, April and May, it was reported yesterday.
Alford will be in charge of scheduled meetings and distribution of materials and supplies and other functions with reference to Negro students and faculty.
Sledge was bound over to Superior Court yesterday following a preliminary hearing on a rape charge.

CD Booklet

"Family Shelter Designs," a new Civil Defense booklet, is now available at the office of J. H. Rose, Civil Defense director, in the Greenville Board of Education Administration building.
Rose said this week he has a number of books on hand for those interested. The publications are free to the public.

Participating In March Events

Director Earl E. Beach of the East Carolina College Department of Music is participating in a number of music clinics, conferences, and other professional meetings both in and out of the state during March.
During the past weekend he conducted March 23 a band clinic in Whiteville for Columbus County Schools.
At Radford College, Radford, Va., March 4, he is taking part in an evaluation of the institution by the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education and the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.
On March 16-20 he will attend in Chicago, Illinois, a convention of the Music Educators National Conference. As a member of the Board of Directors, he will engage in various activities of the conference. On March 18 at the Conference Breakfast he will serve as toastmaster.
Prof. Beach will be guest speaker March 22 at the Annual Banquet of the Georgia Music Educators Association. The event will take place at Emory University.
Dean Eva Warren of the School of Nursing at East Carolina College and Mrs. Louise Bullock, faculty member, will appear on the program of the annual conference of the Southeastern Public Health Workers in Lumberton Friday, March 9.
The conference is an annual event held by the Southeastern division of the N. C. State Public Health Workers. The theme of the March 9 meeting will focus attention on new trends in public health work.
Dean Warren, addressing the Nurses' Section of the Conference, will discuss "Some Trends in Basic Nursing Education."
Mrs. Bullock will serve as chairman of this sectional meeting.

Inhibitions Tossed Aside For Revelry

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Anywhere else it would be considered lunacy, but this Deep South city throws away its inhibitions today and calls it Mardi Gras.
It's a frenzied, happy madness that annually grips New Orleans on the day before the beginning of the solemn, penitential Lenten season.
It officially ends when the tower clock in historic St. Louis Cathedral strikes midnight and Comus, the oldest Mardi Gras deity, drink a solemn champagne toast.
A multicolored sea of masked revelers cavort through the city the entire day and well into the night. Costumes and makeup turn sedate businessmen into whirling dervishes, kids into clowns, women into creatures from outer space and inner depths, and teenagers into bottles, acrobats, historical characters and hundreds of ingenious figures.
Some of the costumed marvels began appearing on Canal Street and in the famed French Quarter in the early pre-dawn hours, mingling with all-night revelers.
For many visitors—largely college students—Mardi Gras climaxes a five-day "lost weekend" which began Friday night.
In theory, the happy crowds who fill the streets shortly after sunrise are out to hail Rex, who leads his parade of fantastic floats over city streets in mid-morning.
But they'll spend some very pleasant hours before Rex' arrival, entertaining themselves and each other. Some dance in the street to music from portable radios and nearby bars. Others spread picnic lunches on unused street car tracks.
Tons of debris will litter the center of the city—paper, beer cans, broken carnival trinkets, beer cans, and more beer cans.

JFK Has Date In Miami Area

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy may spend the weekend in the Miami area. He has a date to address a fund-raising dinner for Florida Democrats at Miami Beach Saturday night.
White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said the dinner would honor Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., among others. No weekend plans were announced, but it was learned the President is considering the idea of spending a couple of days in the Miami neighborhood.

Oldest Active Publisher Marks 99th Birthday

By REMER TYSON
Valdosta Times Staff Writer
VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP)—It will be just another day for E. L. Turner. This means coming to the office, observing that things are running without abnormal knks, opening the mail, chewing tobacco, and reading newspapers—one in particular—his.

He won't like the fuss being made about his birthday, but he has learned over the years to put up with it.

Turner, publisher of The Valdosta Times, is 99 years old today. He notes with pride that he is the oldest active publisher of a daily newspaper in the United States.

He has been in the newspaper business all his life. Born "right in the middle of the Civil War" at Nashville, Ga., March 6, 1863, he grew up smelling ink and hearing the clanking of printing machinery. His father owned a weekly newspaper at Nashville.

"I could set type when I was 12 years old," he said Monday in a rare interview. He shies from stories about himself.

"I was a pretty good typesetter, too," he added with pride, explaining setting type in those days was by hand.

His adeptness at setting type got him a job with The Hawkinsville (Ga.) Dispatch when he was 19 at a salary of $40 a month.

After seven years at Hawkinsville Turner went to Thomasville for seven months, then took a job in 1889 with The South Georgia Times, published twice weekly in Valdosta. He was still earning $40 a month.

He was named general manager of the Valdosta newspaper in 1898. News writing had become part of his job.

One of south Georgia's most famous murder trials began at Valdosta in October 1905, and it spawned a daily newspaper, J. G. Rawlings, his three sons, and Alf Moore, a Negro, were being tried for the murder of two small children. Rawlings and Moore were hanged in Valdosta, and the three sons were sent to prison.

Interest in the trial was so intense Turner and Editor C. C. Brantly began turning out The Valdosta Daily Times Oct. 16, 1905.

Writing a history of The Valdosta Times recently, Turner related: "The directors of the company were never consulted as to the advisability of this venture. But we were never hauled over the coals about it."

Turner was named publisher about 40 years ago, although he doesn't remember exactly when.

When the Times moved to its new building in 1958, the tobacco-chewing publisher had one major complaint. His spittoon got lost in the shuffle. Editor Turner Rockwell went right out and bought him a bright new one.

Shell dealers suggest 10 ways to cut repair bills

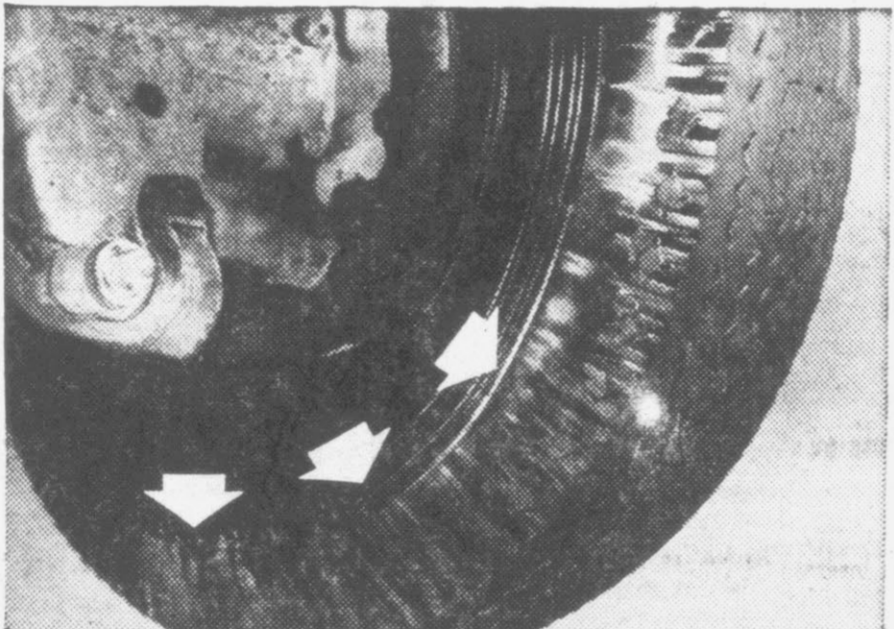

1. Avoid 100-foot trips. It's a mean trick to start a cold car, drive it just a few feet, then turn it off. Yet people often park in front of their homes, then drive into the garage later on. This can increase engine wear, dilute your oil with unburned fuel and give sludge more chance to form. If at all possible, drive right into the garage when you arrive home.

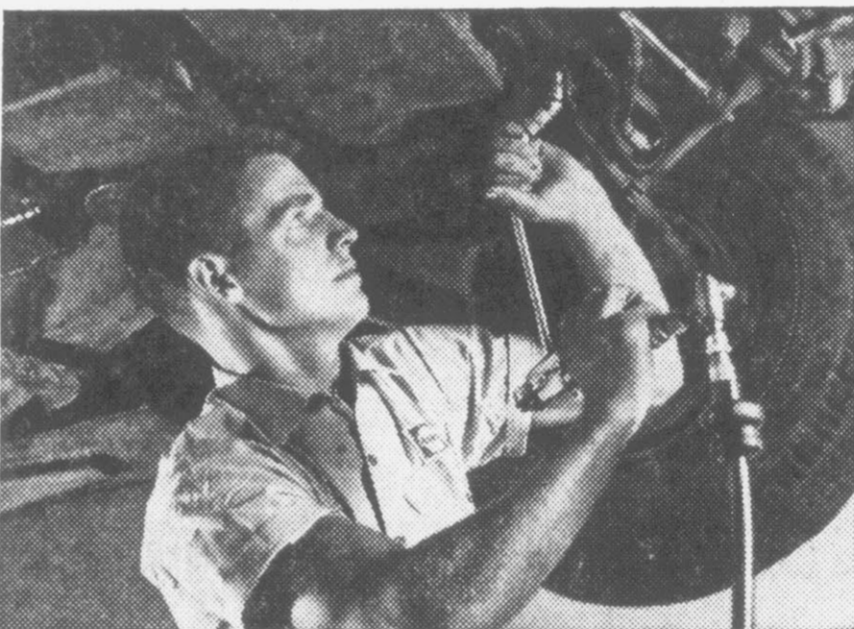

2. Touch up scratches before rust sets in. You can discourage the spread of rust by using touch-up paint on body scratches. Rust also likes to plug drainage holes on the underside of car doors and body panels. Keep those holes open (a screwdriver or any pointed instrument works fine) and you may well prevent a rusted-through door or body section.

3. Check your cooling system hose for weak spots. Inspect all of the rubber hoses that interconnect your cooling system. If they are cracked or swollen, they could give way at any time and cause your engine to get hot—and stop dead. Less serious, but a potential cause of overheating, is a debris-clogged radiator. Ask your Shell dealer to clear away external radiator clutter with air pressure.

4. Look for oil streaks on inner walls of tires. It may take a bit of back-bending, but it's well worth the effort to check the side of your tires you seldom see—the side facing in. If there's any sign of leaking fluid on tire walls, tell your Shell dealer. A leaking brake cylinder or rear axle oil seals could be at fault. Either can lead to extensive repairs if not corrected right away.

5. Obey the cardinal rule of car care. A professional lubrication job is still the best way to keep your car in good health. But it should be done on a regular basis—not "every so often." For safety's sake, Shellubricate every 1000 miles. If your car has an automatic transmission, your transmission fluid level should be checked regularly. Your Shell dealer can do this during Shellubrication.

6. Never "gun" your car to warm up your engine. It doesn't help a bit. Matter of fact, it can increase engine wear. Many drivers also think it's worthwhile to idle their cars on a cold morning. But, with today's modern engines, it isn't necessary. It just wastes gasoline. Far better to start your engine, wait a few seconds until it's running smoothly—then be on your way at a moderate speed.

Again Finalist For Scholarship

James Ponda (Jimmy) Eatman, Rose High Senior, has been notified of his selection as one of 61 finalists in the G. F. Hankins Scholarship contest at Wake Forest College.

Principal O.E. Dowd of Rose High School said that the Hankins scholarship finalists are chosen from over the state on a basis of competitive tests. Thirty of the scholarships are given each year, each valued at $4,800 for four years of college.

The G. F. Hankins scholarship fund was given to Wake Forest College as an endowment of $1 million in 1955 by Col. G. F. Hankins.

Finalists will be called to Wake Forest for their final interviews on March 16 and March 23.

Eatman, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Eatman of 1207 Ragsdale Rd., is also one of three Rose High finalists for the Angier B. Duke Scholarship awards from the Eastern District for Men and is a finalist in the National Merit Scholarship program.

For the past two summers, Eatman has been awarded scholarships to Western Carolina College for special study. He is co-chief marshal at Rose High School and associate editor of the "Green Lights."

7. Check a terribly neglected little accessory. People seldom give their windshield wipers a second thought—except when it rains. But wipers wear out too. Instead of wiping your windshield, they can smear and scratch it. Wiper blades are easy to replace—but windshields aren't. Ask your Shell dealer to check your blades and wiper arms next time you see him.

8. Get a midwinter anti-freeze check. If you've had to add water to your radiator in the last few months, you may have less anti-freeze protection than you think. Let your Shell dealer check your coolant with a hydrometer (above). Reminder: If you got a Shellzone anti-freeze guarantee this winter, you're entitled to free refills, if necessary, until April 1, 1962.

9. Don't let front wheels hit the curb. Banging front wheels against the curb is tough on wheel alignment—and tires too. So, approach the curb carefully. This sounds like a small thing, but it can help prevent costly front end problems. (Suggestion: take a look at the tread on your front wheels now. If they show uneven wear, your front wheel alignment may need attention.)

10. Give your car a change of scenery. A steady diet of city driving adds to the combustion deposits inside your engine. This deposit build-up can lead to knocking and eventual trouble. But many deposits will fly out the exhaust when you hit the open road. So, take your car for a turnpike drive this weekend. It can be good exercise for it. And a pleasant afternoon for you.

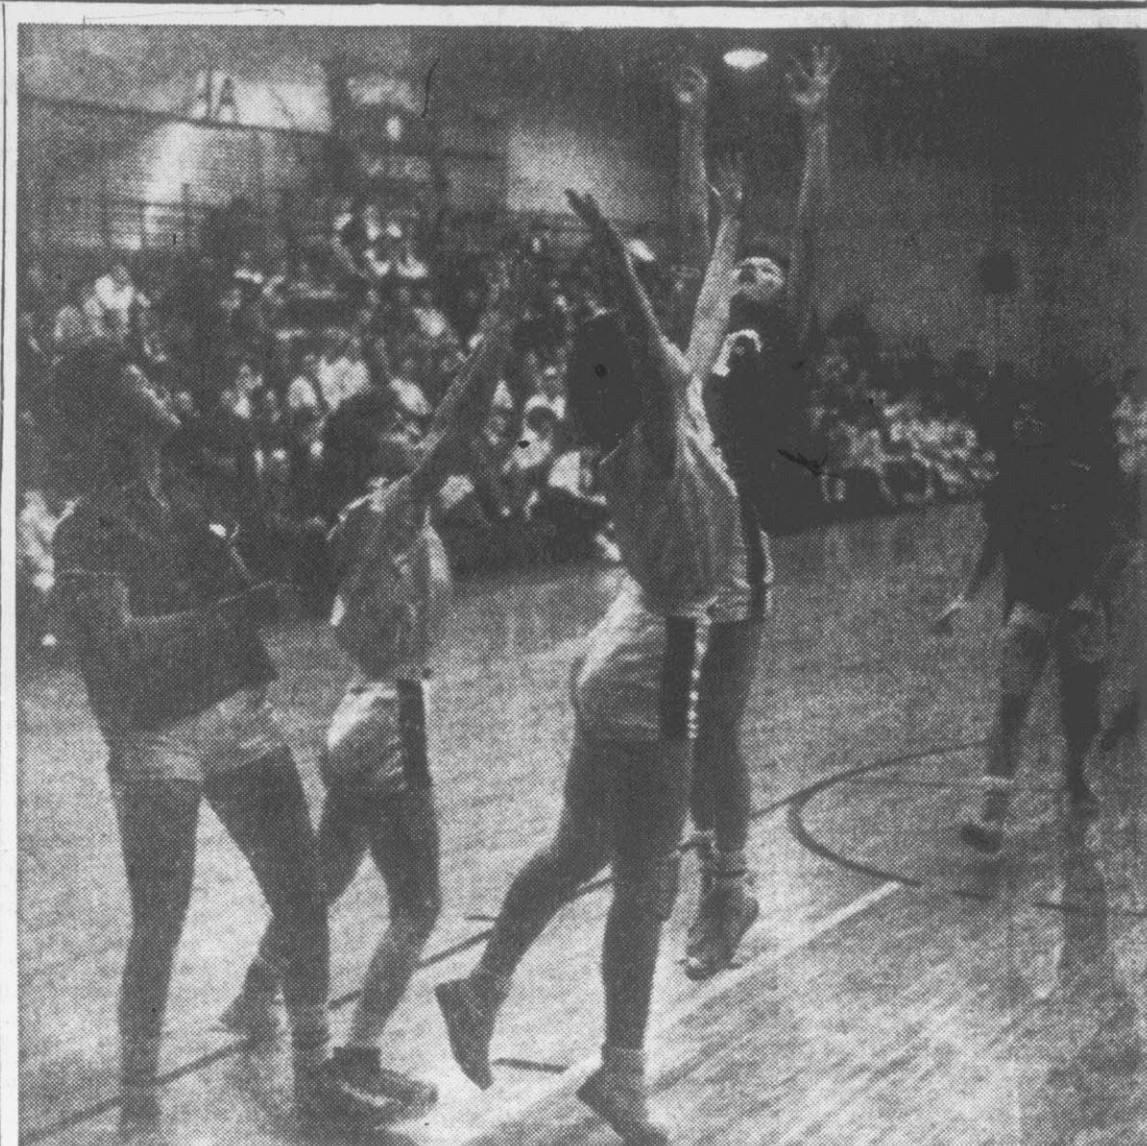

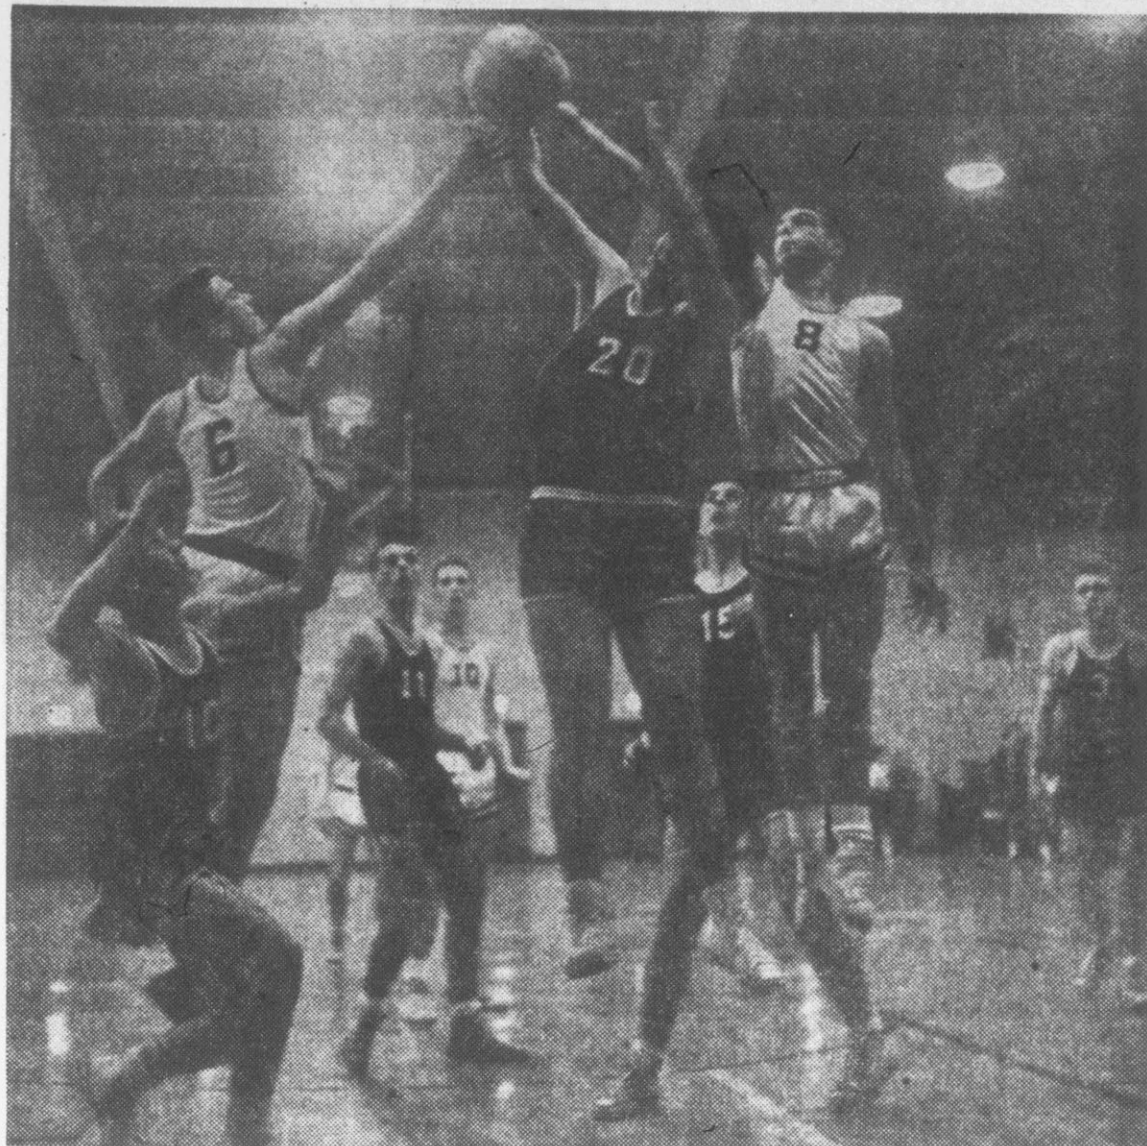

The 9 Ingredients in Super Shell and what they do to give your car top performance

- #1 is TCP* for power, mileage, and longer plug life.
- #2 is Pentane mix for fast warm-ups.
- #3 is anti-knock mix to resist all kinds of knocks.
- #4 is gum preventive to help keep carburetors clean inside.
- #5 is Butane for quick starts.
- #6 is "cat-cracked" gasoline—for power.
- #7 is an "anti-icer." (Added in cold weather.)
- #8 is Alkylate to help control "high-speed knock."
- #9 is Platformate for extra mileage.

S-P Boys Down Panthers, Earn Berth In Tourney

By CHARLES VAUGHAN
Reflector Sports Writer

Coach Bill Harrison and the Stokes-Pactolus Blue Jays won the first boys' game of the Pitt County Tournament last night by defeating the Grimesland Panthers by a score of 51-38.

These two teams finished eighth and ninth during the regular season so this contest was played to determine who would receive a berth in the tournament.

Blue Jays Control

The Blue Jays took an early commanding lead in the first quarter of last night's contest as if they were going to soundly whip the Panthers. Led by Carroll Fleming, the Blue Jays surged ahead of the Panthers 13-3 after six minutes of the initial period. At the end of the first quarter, Stokes-Pactolus had increased their advantage to 14-6. Billy Hardee scored all six of Grimesland's points during this period.

The Panthers began to hit the nets more consistently in the second quarter as they managed to keep pace with the high-scoring Blue Jays. However, the Blue Jays once again began to outscore the Panthers towards the end of the half as they moved ahead 25-14 with two minutes remaining. Grimesland was unable to catch the Blue Jays as Stokes-Pactolus went on to a 27-16 halftime advantage.

Lead Narrows

When the two teams returned to the court in the second half, Grimesland slowly started to narrow the Blue Jays' advantage. During this quarter, both teams began to take their time and try to set themselves up for easy shots. Slowing the game's pace seemed to work well for the Panthers as they were able to cut Stokes-Pactolus' lead to 34-28 at the end of the third period.

Early in the final quarter of play, the Panthers were able to narrow their opponents' margin to five points, but the Blue Jays were not willing to have Grimesland overtake them. Although Billy Hardee scored eight points in this fourth period, it was not enough to overcome the stubborn Blue Jays. Stokes-Pactolus, behind the sharp-shooting of Donnie Whitehurst, once again began to increase their advantage over Grimesland. The Blue Jays went on to increase their lead and defeat the Panthers 51-38.

Billy Hardee Top Scorer

Billy Hardee, Grimesland's high scoring freshman, led all scorers for the night with a game high total of 24 points. Hardee, an exceptional ball handler and scorer, tossed in nine field goals and six free throws for his total. He was the only Panther to score in double figures.

Stokes-Pactolus was led by Billy Roebuck as he hit four field goals and five free throws for a total of 13 points. Most of Roebuck's points came on long jump shots from around the foul circle. Also in double figures for the victors was Donnie Whitehurst, who scored 10 points in the last half for a total of 12 points. Carroll Fleming tossed in 10 points for the Blue Jays and he also controlled the rebounds for the night.

Panther Girls Edge Chicod For Berth

Coach Henry Meares and the Grimesland High School Panthers defeated the Chicod Hornets last night in the girls contest 35-33.

The game was a qualifying contest between the last two finishers of the regular season for a berth in the Pitt County Tournament, which will be played during the rest of the week.

Four Point Lead

Grimesland, led by Sarah Tucker, surged to an early advantage in the first quarter. At the end of the opening period, the Panthers had increased their lead to four points 11-7.

Both teams scored only six points in the second quarter as they slowed the game and began playing very deliberately. Pansy Jones, Chicod's high scoring forward, scored all six of her team's points during this period.

Grimesland Rallies

Chicod, down by six points at halftime, rallied to tie the score at 19 all after three minutes of the second stanza. The Hornets went on to increase their advantage to five points with one minute remaining in the third quarter. However, the Grimesland girls rallied to cut Chicod's margin to 26-25 at the close of the period.

Panthers Go Ahead

Late in the final quarter, Mary Jo Mills hit a free throw for the Panthers to tie the score once again at 33-33. Sarah Tucker then scored a foul shot to send Grimesland ahead 34-33. A few seconds later, with only 18 seconds left in the game, Annette Smith missed a chance to tie the game when she missed a free throw. With seven seconds remaining in the ball game, Sarah Tucker sank another free throw to lead Grimesland to victory 35-33.

The victors were led in the scoring department by Sarah Tucker who scored 19 points for the Panthers, while the losers were paced by Pansy Jones who tallied a game high total of 23 points. The only other player in double figures for the night was Annette Smith who scored 10 points for the losers.

Deacons Have 13 Lettermen

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Coach Jack Stallings will have 13 lettermen on the Wake Forest baseball team that faces a 26-game schedule, beginning March 21.

The returns include five pitchers, but Bob Plemmons, who won 21 games over the previous three seasons, will be missing. Bob Muller, a senior lefthander, is expected to head the pitching staff.

Roger Coon, an outfielder who hit .318 last year, will be back. Stallings announced this schedule Monday.

March 21-22, Kent State; 26, Yale; 31, at East Carolina.

April 3, at North Carolina; 4, Colby; 7, at Duke; 10, Virginia Tech; 11, N.C. State; 12, Georgia Southern; 14, North Carolina; 17, Duke; 19, at Furman; 20, at Clemson; 21, at South Carolina; 23-24, at Georgia Southern; 27, Virginia; 28, Maryland.

May 4, Clemson; 5, South Carolina; 7, East Carolina; 8, at Virginia Tech; 11, at Virginia; 12, at Maryland; 16, at N.C. State.

Hole-In-One

The third hole-in-one of 1962 was made over the weekend at the Greenville Golf and Country Club by Erzell Webb.

The second hole-in-one of his golfing career, Webb hit a five-iron on the 165-yard tenth hole. His first hole-in-one was last year on the same hole.

Playing in the foursome with Webb at the time were W. L. Allen, Bo Farley and Jack Gates.

Ohio Still On Top; Duke 8th

By JIM HACKLEMAN

Ohio State suffered the most stunning upset of the college basketball season Saturday but the Buckeyes still hold a firm grip on the top ranking in this week's Associated Press poll.

However, for the first time in 12 weeks the Bucks were not unanimous choice for No. 1. They received 40 first-place votes from the panel of experts, Mississippi State picked up three and Cincinnati got the other two.

Wisconsin's hustling Badgers pinned the surprising setback on Ohio State, spoiling the Bucks' chances for a perfect season with an 86-67 victory at Madison. The loss was Ohio State's first in 23 starts this season and ended its Big Ten conference winning streak at 27 games.

The Buckeyes who have one game remaining — against Indiana Saturday—piled up 444 points on a basis of 10 for a first, nine for a second and so on. They were given four seconds and one third.

Cincinnati's Bearcats, who closed out their regular season with a 61-59 decision over Xavier (Ohio) for a 24-2 record, gained 32 votes for second and stayed in the runnerup spot with 392 points. Kansas State in third, Kentucky in fourth, Mississippi State in fifth and Bradley in sixth also kept the spots they held last week.

Utah's Skyline champions climbed three places to seventh, Bowling Green and Duke each slipped one notch, and Loyola of Chicago took over tenth from Colorado.

The rankings with first-place votes in parentheses:
1. Ohio State (40) 444
2. Cincinnati (2) 392

Others receiving votes: Colorado, Wake Forest, St. John's, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Oregon, State, New York University, Arizona State University, Utah State, UCLA, Southern California, Creighton, Duquesne, Villanova, Providence, Houston, Drake and Texas Tech, St. Joseph's, Stanford.

RUSTPROOFING?

Rambler spills more than others use

Rust normally starts inside automobile body panels and girders. To stop that, Rambler goes to extra lengths no other car does. Every Rambler body is Deep-Dipped—right up to the roof—in a tank of rustproofing primer paint. Hundreds of gallons surge inside girders and pillars.

Far more rustproofing
When the body comes out, dripping excess solution, over 15 pounds of rustproofing chemicals coat the steel—more rustproofing than any other American car gets, and more spilled, literally, than others use. But Deep-Dip is just one of 14 steps in Rambler's all-out rust fight—9 steps in the body alone.

9-step body protection
1. Lower body panels are zinc-clad . . .
2. Zinc-rich primer is used on critical metal surfaces before welding . . .

3. Body is spray rustproofed with phosphate paint bond . . .
4. Entire body is Deep-Dipped . . .
5. Primer-surfacer is sprayed, then is baked on . . .
6. Rust-fighting wax compound is sprayed inside girders, rocker panels, fenders . . .
7. Two coats of chip- and salt-resistant super enamel are baked on . . .
8. Sound-deadening rustproofing material is sprayed on vital areas . . .
9. Abrasion-resistant sealer is sprayed on critical underbody areas to protect against stones.

Is it any wonder that Rambler is the world's most rustproofed car?

Colorado Is Back In Control Of Big Eight

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
In-and-out Colorado is in again—in solid control of the Big Eight basketball chase, that is.

The Buffaloes, getting a big assist from Oklahoma State, have regained the conference lead and are now only one step away from the NCAA tourney, a berth they apparently had lost for good in a defeat by potent Kansas State last week.

But Oklahoma State found the third-ranked Wildcats looking the other way Monday night and registered a 78-68 upset, the first time the Cowboys had beaten

Kansas State in 19 games. It dropped Kansas State into second place in the conference with an 11-2 mark. Colorado, which took Missouri 73-64, is now 12-1. Each has one game left. Kansas State must beat Nebraska Wednesday to retain a chance for a tie while Colorado, which led most of the season only to fall in the last couple of weeks, can win it all with a victory over Kansas Saturday.

Kansas State was only one of three nationally ranked teams which suffered upsets Monday night, but the Wildcats' loss may have been the most costly.

Sixth-ranked Bradley was nipped 73-72 by Duquesne, but it didn't affect the Braves' tie for the top in the Missouri Valley Conference. They meet Cincinnati in a one-game playoff for the conference title and the NCAA spot. The loser goes to the NIT.

Loyola of Chicago, which just moved into the No. 10 spot nationally, fell before Xavier of Ohio 95-89. Loyola, however, is an independent and was passed over for the at-large post in the NCAA.

Only Kentucky, No. 4, of the nationally ranked teams in action Monday night, came through on schedule. The Wildcats, already headed for the NCAA, rolled over Tulane 97-72 and increased their record to 21-2 for the season.

None of the top 10 sees action tonight, and most of the top action is centered in the Southwest Conference. There Southern Methodist and Texas Tech, tied for the top, play their final conference games of the season. Each is 10-3.

SMU goes against Arkansas, a team it beat 77-70 earlier this season, while Tech visits Rice, a team it crushed 85-66 previously. In the event they finish in a tie, they'll meet in Fort Worth Friday in a one-game playoff.

Another top match pits St. Joseph's, still in the scramble for the Mid-Atlantic title, against Lafayette.

Kansas State, which had lost only two games before the Oklahoma State upset, was simply overpowered by the Cowboys. Oklahoma State shot an eye-popping 71.9 from the floor.

In some of the other major games, Syracuse won its second straight—after losing a record of 27 in a row—76-67 over Connecticut; Jimmy Ray popped in 37 points and moved into a tie for the Big Ten scoring leadership with Purdue's Terry Dischinger in the Hoosiers' 104-92 triumph over Illinois; Daryl Patsch hit the winning field goal with two seconds left in overtime for Nebraska's 71-69 victory over Oklahoma; Minnesota walloped Michigan 102-80; and Kansas upset Iowa State 76-71.

MASS IN MOTION — The street in Mt. Vernon became considerably crowded when 1,288 cattle were driven through by fanner John Cawse. It was near end of the road for herd heading for its winter holding pens in east Oregon.

Red's Manager Faces Crisis

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer
Manager Freddie Hutchinson of the National League champion Cincinnati Reds is faced with his first on-the-field crisis today when he must try to find a replacement for slugging third baseman Gene Freese.

Freese broke an ankle in the Reds' intra-squad game Monday. Hutchinson indicated that he would give rookie Cliff Cook the chance to take over.

Not only is Hutch on the spot, but Cook is walking into a lions den.

The 25-year old infielder already has flunked two tests with the Reds, but may just have been a slow starter. He was voted the American Association's Most Valuable Player last year, playing for Indianapolis, where he batted .311 and slammed 32 home runs.

Cook's home run potential will be needed to compensate for the loss of the 28-year-old Freese. Doctors say he will miss the first two months of the season. Freese had his finest major league season in helping the Reds to the pennant. He hit .277, slammed 26 home runs and drove in 87 runs after being acquired from the Chicago White Sox.

Cook was mentioned last week as back to get Don Demeter from the Philadelphia Phillies, who need a third baseman now that Andy Carey has decided to retire. The Phils traded Charley Smith to the White Sox during the winter for Carey, and Phils' Manager Gene Mauch has been grooming Demeter for the spot.

General Manager John Quinn of the Phils said Monday before learning of Freese's injury. "We are not interested in Cliff Cook."

It's a cinch that Hutchinson doesn't feel the same way.

Pitchers Jack Sanford and Pete Ramos felt interested enough about the coming season to sign their contracts Monday. Sanford signed at San Francisco's Phoenix, Ariz., camp for a reported $25,000, a token raise for his 13-9 record, and Ramos, of Washington, ended his holdout by taking a slight cut from the $20,000 he got a year ago. Ramos had an 11-20 American League record and led in gopher balls with 39.

Pitcher Bob Belinsky of the Los Angeles Angels also signed for the major league minimum of $6,000 which will be boosted to $7,000 if he still is with the team 30 days after the season begins. He had protested that he was being treated unfairly by the Angels.

Boston Red Sox outfielder Gary Geiger was back in uniform despite a painful shoulder injury. Pitcher Ted Willis was still sidelined by a shin injury suffered last Saturday.

The Pirates will be without utilityman Dick Schofield for a couple of days. He jammed his right ankle Sunday. Kansas City's Jerry Walker, a pitcher, was doing light work after suffering a muscle spasm last week.

final period before Ayden once again began to overtake the tiring Red Devils. With two minutes remaining in the contest, the Tornados went ahead of the Red Devils 41-40 on a shot by Nancy Stokes.

Ayden's advantage was short-lived, however, as Kay Allen hit the nets for four points to send the Red Devils back in front 44-41. Suzie Murphey, Ayden's high scoring forward, then scored three successive points to tie the game at 44 all with eight seconds remaining in the contest.

However, Kay Allen once again came through for Farmville scoring on a free throw with four seconds left on the clock to give the Red Devils a 46-44 victory.

Named To Post With Society

ROBERT E. SIMMONS

OMAHA, Neb.—Robert E. Simmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Simmons of Kinston, N.C. and grandson of W. Jesse Coward of Ayden, N.C., has been appointed to the post of educational director for the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society.

He assumed his position on Feb. 1, having previously been named assistant educational director in April of 1961. He began his career with Woodmen of the World in 1947 after his return from duty with the U.S. Air Force, during which time he served as a B-24 pilot in the Pacific Theatre of World War II. He was discharged with the rank of major.

Simmons served as district manager of the Society in Eastern North Carolina until he was named state manager of Southeast Texas in 1958 with headquarters in Houston.

Scholarship Recognition Club Is Organized At South Ayden School

AYDEN—A scholarship recognition club for freshmen and sophomores, the Prospect Club, has been organized at South Ayden School by members of the Crown and Scepter State Honor Society here.

Qualifications for the new club include a "B" average or above, fine moral standing and freshman or sophomore status. The club was organized to encourage students to keep their scholarship high during the first two years of high school in order to qualify for membership in the Crown and Scepter Club.

Twenty-four students were installed in the club on Friday, following a week of initiation. Three members of the Crown and Scepter Club were also installed.

Mrs. R. L. Brown, school counselor, spoke during the initiation and assembly program on the subject of "Mind Stretching." She challenged students, "I dare you to read with discrimination; I dare you to learn, to think, to dig into a particular phase of a subject; to travel by books, maps, . . ." She concluded with 10 helpful hints on improving personality.

Robert Brown, president of the Crown and Scepter Club, performed installation rites.

AYDEN — Cleveland Faylor, Civil Defense director and town manager for Ayden, attended the quarterly meeting of the North Carolina Civil Defense Association in Rocky Mount this week.

The meeting was held at the Ricks Hotel. This year's theme was "Civil Defense Is Government in Operation During an Emergency." The Edgecombe-Nash CD agency was host for the event.

Islandians Must Boat To Vote

ISLANDIA, Fla. (AP)—In Islandia you must boat to vote.

Islandia, 33 islands offshore from Miami, is Dade County's newest municipality. Its 15 or so registered voters have been having their troubles trying to hold an election to choose a mayor and councilmen.

They will vote today, after boating over—if they can float a 1,000-pound voting machine from Miami to Elliott Key, largest of the islands.

Islanders were all set Monday to elect municipal officers the old-fashioned way, with paper ballots. Then city attorney Jack Watson took note a voting machine was a legal necessity.

Dade County offered a voting machine, but it was 30 miles from the legally advertised polling place. Arrangements were made for a boat to haul the machine, then it was learned the Elliott Key dock wouldn't support the 1,000-pound machine. A derrick was obtained late Monday to swing the machine from the boat to solid beach.

Two years ago, property owners on the island chain south of Miami Beach obtained county approval to incorporate into a city so they could build a causeway. There still is no land link to the islands.

A few families maintain year-around residence on the islands, but most of the property owners live in Miami. Dade County officials have been investigating the validity of their Islandia residency.

Two previous Islandia elections—for incorporation and adoption of a charter—were held on the mainland.

A New JOHN CREASEY Thriller

A ROCKET FOR ROLLISON

CHAPTER 8

Richard Rollison heard Kate Lawson scream as he reached the door of her flat. It was a muted scream, and seemed to be cut off immediately. He thrust his hand on the handle and pushed the door—and it swung open. Beyond was darkness but for the grey outline of the big windows. He heard gasping and struggling coming from the bedroom. He sprang towards the door, flashing his pencil torch until the beam shone on the light switch. He pressed this down, and saw the man bending over the girl. Dashing closer, he raised his right hand and brought the side of it down on the man's neck, and as he did so, gripped the other's right shoulder with his own hand, to stop him from falling on the girl.

The man twisted around. The girl was struggling for breath. Somehow the man managed to kick at Rollison, and caught him painfully on the knee which he had bruised downstairs. Rollison winced, and slackened his grip, but he was in the narrow space between the bed and the wall, and the other had no chance to push past him. He remembered that the man downstairs had had a gun—and he saw this man's right hand moving towards his pocket.

He thrust his own hand forward to try and push the killer off his balance, but the space restricted all freedom of movement.

He saw a knife flash in the other's hand.

He knew from the speed of the movement that he was dealing with an expert. The knife came stabbing towards him, pointing slightly upwards; if it struck home, it would rip into his stomach. Yet he could not twist round or back away. He brought up his right knee. He felt sharp pain as the knife caught the knee, but the blade was deflected, and the other had concentrated all his effort into that blow and was lurching forward. Rollison brought his left fist up in a slashing uppercut, and jarred his knuckles on the hard jaw. The man's head jerked backwards, and his eyes rolled.

Kate Lawson was still gasping for breath.

Rollison had the pain at his knee and the reaction from that moment of fear. He backed away. At least the girl was all right. She was lying back on the pillows, her face grey, her hair very dark against the white. The man had collapsed in a curious crouching position, one arm crooked on the bed preventing him from falling, head lolling forward.

Rollison limped towards the door to make sure all was well. No one was coming up, but he reminded himself that the man he had attacked might have come round more quickly than he anticipated.

He knee felt sticky.

He pulled up his right trouser leg and saw a wound about two inches long, on the right side of the knee cap. He tied a handkerchief round it, all the time on the alert for any sound outside or in the bedroom.

He heard only the girl, breathing very heavily, and went to her again. The man was in exactly the same position, and Kate Lawson was beginning to hitch herself up in bed.

"Take it easy," Rollison advised. "There's no hurry and nothing more to worry about. He leaned forward, gripped the unconscious man's wrist, hauled him to his feet, and dragged him bodily into the big room. He stood him in front of a large armchair, then pushed him into it.

He was dark-haired, youngish, about five feet ten—and his nose was flattened and pushed to one side. There was little doubt that this was the man who had released the Alsatian at the airport.

As he realized that, Rollison heard another sound. Someone was coming stealthily up the stairs.

Rollison crept to the door. He had left it ajar, and knew that whoever was coming up would see the light on. He stepped just behind the door as the newcomer reached the landing, still moving very stealthily.

Rollison stood waiting, right knee stinging more than aching, thoughts concentrated on the unknown outside.

The door began to open. Flat Nose was sitting in front of it, so that no one could miss him.

There was a moment's pause, and then Kennedy exclaimed, "Good Lord!"

Rollison eased himself away from the wall, and said heavily, "You took your time, didn't you?" But when Kennedy stepped swiftly inside and stared at him, Rollison was smiling.

"Thanks?"

"What is it?" Kennedy almost squeaked. "The place looks like a battlefield!" He thrust the door back with a bang, and streaked for the bedroom, and Rollison saw him pull up short at the foot of Kate's bed.

"The swine tried to strangle her," Kennedy said angrily. "So it seems."

"Seems be damned!" barked Kennedy. "He did. Her throat's swollen and puffy from the bruising."

"How is she?"

Kennedy turned to Rollison. "Er—she's all right. Pretty badly shaken up, but—Rolly, what the hell happened?"

"You were telling me."

"Why the heck should anyone want to kill her?"

"It would certainly be a waste," Rollison agreed. He took out cigarettes and proffered them. Kennedy took one, lit it, and began to puff hard. Then he glanced down at Rollison's leg, and exclaimed: "There's blood on your shoe!"

"Our Mr. Flat Nose meant business all right," said Rollison. "The knife's by the side of the bed. I'll get it in a minute. Did you see the chap downstairs?"

"Yes," answered Kennedy, huskily. "I couldn't understand why you hadn't turned up, toddled along to your car, and when I didn't see you there, decided I'd better come here. Good thing you hadn't locked that street door. The chap downstairs was just coming round, and when I bent over him he tried to butt me in the head, so I clouted him one to make sure that he didn't get up too soon. Was that all right?"

"Perfect," agreed Rollison. "And Jolly should be along here quite soon." He paused, drew deeply on his cigarette, and added: "What we have to decide is how soon to call the police."

"Ah, yes," said Kennedy. "A case for the coppers, all right." He smoothed his hand over his forehead, and there was a note of anxiety in his voice. "I'm glad I called you in, Rolly, and even more glad you wouldn't leave Kate on her own. If it hadn't been for that she would be dead now."

District Piano Contest At ECC On March 10

The Piano Contest of the Greenville District of the North Carolina Music Educators Conference will take place on the East Carolina College Campus Saturday, March 10. Around 125 pianists from 26 junior and senior high schools in Eastern North Carolina will participate in the contest.

Judges will be Stuart Pratt of Meredith College, Robert Darnell of Woman's College UNC, and Kenneth Lee of Lenoir Rhyne College. Performers will be given ratings of Superior, Excellent, Good Average, or Below Average. High school pianists who receive Superior Ratings may take part in a State Contest to be held in Greensboro in the Spring. Schools to be represented in Saturday's contest in Greenville will be Greenville, Winterville, Ahsokie, Black Creek, Bailey, Wilson, Kenly, Murfreesboro, Kingston, Whitakers, Newport, Beaufort, Pamlico, New Bern, Edenton, Washington, Bridgeton, Havelock, Jacksonville, Jones Central, Goldsboro, Princeton, Rocky Mount, Ayden, LaGrange, and Scotland Neck.

Prof. Earl Beach, Chairman of the Music Department of East Carolina College, is Chairman of the Greenville District Contest of NCMEC. Arrangements for the Piano Contest are being made by Dr. Robert Carter and Charles Stevens of the East Carolina Music Department.

Fine Sheriff For Misdemeanor

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP)—Sheriff Arthur Wermuth, 46, was fined $240 in County Court Monday after pleading guilty to a misdemeanor.

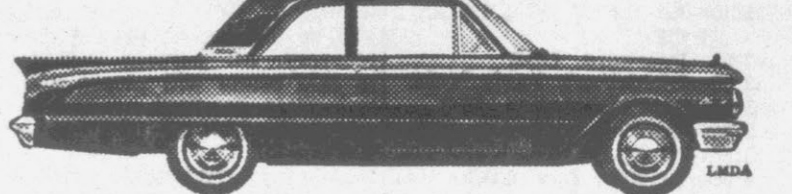

He was charged with converting to his own use $37 worth of county-owned paint. This was used in redecorating a house owned by the sheriff's wife, Julia.

Wermuth became known as the "one-man army of Bataan" because of his Philippines exploits in World War II.

Earlier Monday the county commissioners accepted Wermuth's resignation, effective May 1, and ordered an investigation of the sheriff's office.

Endorse Action On Watersheds

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate Agriculture subcommittee recommended to the full committee Monday approval of seven watershed projects in as many states.

The projects are in California, Massachusetts, Nebraska, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas. The subcommittee said its action should not be construed as a recommendation for a 100-year, rather than a 50-year amortization period.

This came after the committee was told the Soil Conservation Service is considering the longer amortization period.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., objected that if the 100-period were used, projects which had previously been rejected as not economically feasible might now be found feasible.

how do YOU measure the worth of electricity?

By electricity's cost? If that's your measure, you'll see that electric rates are low . . . and the more electricity you use, the lower the price.

By what electricity does? Again you're getting a lot. It cooks, cleans and washes clothes. It heats water and freezes foods. It washes dishes . . . lights your home . . . does dozens of other chores.

However you measure its worth, electricity is a bargain—a bargain in better living!

Reluctantly Cut Dept. Spending

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg says the labor department reluctantly agreed to cut authorized spending this year by $4.8 million in an economy move.

In closed session testimony before a House Appropriations subcommittee, released Monday, Goldberg said the cuts were pushed by the Budget Bureau after President Kennedy ordered an economy drive to offset part of the additional spending prompted by last year's Berlin crisis.

MULTIPLY SEVEN BY ONE MILLION and you'll get some idea of the amount of money retailers and other local advertisers invest in daily newspaper advertising EVERY DAY!

These advertisers know that the more than $7 million they invest daily in newspapers* is a wise investment that regularly pays off in buying action at the cash register. People want and look for advertising messages in the daily newspaper, and no other medium equals daily newspapers' ability to move merchandise out of shops and showrooms into homes and onto shelves.

Call-Up Termed Most Successful

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John D. Stennis, D-Miss., said Monday the call-up of National Guard and Reserve units during the Berlin crisis has been "the most successful, by far, in our nation's history."

Stennis, chairman of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, said there were some shortcomings in the mobilization and some complaints.

"But they represented only such a small percentage of those recalled," he said.

Scout District And Lions Plan More Scout Units

The Pitt Scout District and the Greenville Lions Club are scheduled to launch a joint effort, called "Together Plan," to organize more scout units at a banquet tonight.

The plan, designed to inaugurate at least 11 new scout units sponsored by eight new institutions, is sponsored by the Lions Club with guiding by adult scouters.

A. Hartwell Campbell is chairman of the Together Plan for the Lions Club. Scouter advisor for the plan is D. C. Wade Jr., a district vice chairman.

The dinner is scheduled for 7 p.m. at Respass Brothers Restaurant on N. Greene Street here. Campbell will preside.

According to Rudolph Alexander, district scout executive, the program is "dedicated to the purpose of providing every boy in Pitt County the chance to become a scout through drawing more institutions into scouting as sponsors."

Alexander said current figures show one out of three Pitt County youths of scouting age is embraced by the district's scouting program. Aim of the "Together Plan" is to reach more Pitt boys with scouting.

Institutions already contacted by representatives of the "Together Plan" include: Hooker Memorial Christian Church in Greenville, Greenville Free Will Baptist Church, Bell Arthur Christian Church, Bethany Free Will Baptist Church near Ayden, the community of Winterville, Stokes Ruritan Club, Falkland Parent-Teacher Association and the Grimesland community.

Postal Receipts, Mail Volume Are Rising Here

Increases in total mail volume for the ninth accounting period and a 9.5 per cent increase in receipts for the quarter so far this year were reported today by Postmaster J. Knott Proctor of Greenville Post Office.

The total mail volume for the ninth accounting period this year was 1,370,300 pieces, compared to 1,311,600 pieces for the corresponding period last year, an increase of 4.5 per cent. Outgoing mail for the period increased 5.1 per cent this year, with 472,100 pieces, compared to 449,300 for the same time last year.

Incoming mail for the accounting period this year was 898,200 compared to 862,300 for the same time last year, an increase of 4.2 per cent.

The ninth accounting period ended March 2. The quarter started Jan. 6 and will end March 30.

William J. Bundy of Greenville, past grand master of Masons in North Carolina, was honored Monday night by Greenville Masonic Lodge 284 as a life membership in the lodge was presented to him.

Presentation of the certificate, citing Bundy's "outstanding work and achievement in Masonry," was made by James W. Brewer of Greenville, grand master of Masons in North Carolina.

In presenting the certificate, Brewer noted "the great interest that Brother Bundy displayed in the furtherance of ideals of Masonry not only in his local lodge but also throughout the state."

Brewer said Bundy is highly respected in lodges throughout North Carolina.

In accepting the citation and the life membership, Bundy expressed appreciation for "this token of esteem presented by the brethren."

Got Him Coming And Going

LEBANON, Ind. (AP) — Mechanic-Justice of the Peace Joe F. Cooper got motorist James O. Darnall coming and going.

Darnall told mechanic Cooper his car was sluggish and lacked "get up and go." Cooper tuned it up—possibly too well. A little later Darnall came back to Justice Cooper with a speeding ticket.

Cooper fined Darnall $18.75 for speeding. He didn't say what the tuneup bill would be.

On Dean's List At Bob Jones U.

The following Pitt County students have been included on the Dean's List of Bob Jones University in Greenville, S. C. for the first semester:

Carol Lou Braxton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos B. Braxton, 700 W. Second St., Ayden, sophomore in the School of Education; and Jimmy Franklin Garris, son of Mrs. L. Earl Garris, Rt. 3, Greenville, a freshman in the School of Business Administration.

Thirteen students from North Carolina were on the Dean's List, with scholastic averages of at least "B." Bob Jones University, known as the "World's Most Unusual University," is a liberal arts, co-educational, Christian institution with a student body of over 3,000.

Snow And Rain In Early Hours

Fine snow mixed with rain fell in Greenville this morning, but the snow was scarce compared to heavy flurries in the sister state of Virginia.

The weatherman predicted that eastern North Carolina would have considerable cloudiness and be windy and quite cold today with partial clearing and cold tonight. The noon temperature for Greenville was 36 degrees, L. M. Bullock of the Greenville Utilities Plant said.

The temperature during the night remained at the 32-degree mark.

Precipitation from yesterday's rain measured .7 of an inch up to midnight. Monday's high and low temperatures ranged from 40 to 32 degrees.

The Tar River level was on an 11.2-foot standstill, and winds were out of the southwest from 10 to 15 miles per hour this morning.

Though the weatherman forecast snow flurries mainly in the mountains and the northern counties, Pitt was expected to miss the snow storm.

Nixon Again Raps Birchites

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"I still believe you can't be a Republican candidate and a John Birch Society member at the same time," says former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon, a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, denounced the militantly conservative Birch Society again Monday at the opening of his campaign headquarters here.

"We've got a lot of data to look over in the next few days," Glenn commented as he got off the plane.

With him were Donald Slayton, the astronaut picked to make the next orbital flight; Walter Williams, Project Mercury operations director; and Dr. William Douglas, the astronauts' personal physician.

Slayton's mission also is scheduled for three orbits and he will be working closely with Glenn in the next few weeks. His flight tentatively is slated for sometime in May. Project Mercury officials have been carefully plotting changes prompted by Glenn's 4-hour, 56-minute ride.

Optimists Plan Observance Of Ladies Night

Greenville Optimists Monday heard plans for next Tuesday's annual Ladies Night observance. Chairman E. R. (Pete) Carraway announced the Ladies Night will be held at the Greenville Moose Temple auditorium and will include dinner and dancing for Optimists and their wives and dates.

President H. Thomas Money announced the Tuesday affair will result in postponement of next Monday's regularly scheduled Optimist meeting.

Money also announced the final transactions of the Optimists' 1961 Christmas tree sale have been completed. He said results of the sale were the best of any in the club's three-year history in Greenville.

Funds from the Christmas tree sale go into the Optimist treasury for use in various youth development and improvement projects.

Farmers Asked For Tax Increase

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP)—Twenty-seven farmers startled officials Monday night by asking that their road taxes be increased.

When the Moberly special road district was formed in 1902, the tax levy was set at 35 cents per $1,000 valuation. It never has been changed.

The farmers want the roads made passable for modern cars and proposed raising the levy to 45 cents.

The board said it would study the matter.

Vetoes Bill For Speedier Traffic

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia might have had the fastest moving auto traffic in the world except for a sharp-eyed legal aide to Gov. Ernest Vandiver.

The legislature passed a bill to increase the speed limit on super-highways from 60 to 70 miles an hour. That was all right. But through error the bill also said that any speed slower than 60 on other highways or slower than 35 in cities would be unlawful.

Vandiver vetoed the bill.

Satellite Launch Delayed At Cape

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Technical problems forced postponement today of an attempt to launch a solar observatory into orbit to study earth-sun relations.

The countdown on the Thor-Delta booster rocket had progressed to within a few seconds of the scheduled launch time when the trouble developed. No new launching date was set.

Traffic Toll

RALEIGH (AP) — The Motor Vehicles Department's tally of highway deaths and injuries for the 24 hours ending at 10 a.m. today:

Killed 31
 Injured (rural) 3
 Killed this year 160
 Killed to date last year 162
 Injured in 1961 34,438
 Injured in 1960 26,947

Glenn Resumes Familiar Work

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. goes back to work today, reviewing his orbital space flight and helping lay plans for the future.

The spaceman flew here Monday night from Langley Air Force Base, Va., following more than a week of banquets, parties, parades and honors at Cape Canaveral, in Washington, New York and New Concord, Ohio, his hometown.

"We've got a lot of data to look over in the next few days," Glenn commented as he got off the plane.

With him were Donald Slayton, the astronaut picked to make the next orbital flight; Walter Williams, Project Mercury operations director; and Dr. William Douglas, the astronauts' personal physician.

Slayton's mission also is scheduled for three orbits and he will be working closely with Glenn in the next few weeks. His flight tentatively is slated for sometime in May. Project Mercury officials have been carefully plotting changes prompted by Glenn's 4-hour, 56-minute ride.

Adlai Says 'No' To Senate Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, United States ambassador to the United Nations, says he would reject any offer to run for the Senate from New York.

The twice-defeated presidential candidate turned down a similar move in his home state of Illinois last year.

"The President wishes me to remain at my U. N. post and I think he is right," Stevenson said Monday. "My decision in New York must be the same as it was in Illinois."
