State And Federal Workers Join Coastal Residents In Huge Clean-Up Undertaking

EVACUATION . . . was the keynote of the day. Here, men aid a family bringing personal possessions and food from beach-front cottage where the family spent Wednesday night.

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — State and federal workers and coastal residents rolled up their sleeves today and began the massive job of cleaning up from Wednesday's vicious northeaster. Officials were fearful that loss of life may have occurred in the storm which hit the Outer Banks at the same time as the year's peak tides. By late Thursday, no deaths or injuries had been reported in North Carolina, but Gov. Terry Sanford said property damage would run "into many millions of dollars." Much of the 33-mile strip of Dare County beach resorts was inaccessible Thursday and rescue workers feared that bodies may be discovered when all buildings can be checked. A Nags Head resident, Mrs. June Merrill, was rescued by helicopter along with her four young children from a house which was rapidly breaking up. Her husband, her parents and an aunt and uncle were left behind for lack of room. "The ocean had just taken over," she said in describing the storm. "It is everywhere." Sanford and Civil Defense officials flew over the stricken area to view first-hand the damage wrought by the storm which belted the Outer Banks with 60-mile-an-hour winds and tides 10 feet above normal. "I thought it was going to be (Continued on page 10)

Chief Justice Winbourne Retiring, E.B. Denny Is Appointed As Successor

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Sanford today appointed Emery B. Denny to succeed retiring J. Wallace Winbourne as Chief Justice of North Carolina. Denny is next in line to Winbourne in seniority on the State Supreme Court. Winbourne, 77, announced earlier today his resignation, effective next Monday. "Mr. Justice Denny is well qualified to perform his new duties in the great tradition of North Carolina's past chief justices and we are fortunate to have a man of his caliber for this position," Gov. Sanford said in making the announcement. Denny, 69, is a native of Surry County. He was appointed to the court by former Gov. J. Melville Broughton in 1942. His promotion leaves a vacancy for the governor to fill. He was born in Surry County, the son of a minister, but made his home in Gastonia. He practiced law there and served as Gaston County attorney from 1927-1942. A graduate of the University of North Carolina, Denny holds honorary doctor of laws degrees from his alma mater and from Wake Forest College. Chief Justice Winbourne recently had an operation on his eyes for removal of cataracts. In announcing Winbourne's retirement, Gov. Sanford said that for 25 years Winbourne has served "with distinction and unusual ability. He has added luster to the tradition of service of a long line of talented chief justices." Dr. Ralph Brimley was named by Mayor Charles M. King last night to look into plans for a new Carver Memorial Library and make recommendations to the full City Council. The mayor told Councilman Brimley to act as a committee of one and to obtain any assistance he might need. Dr. Brimley, who had brought the matter up earlier, assured the Council he would meet with the Carver Library Board and make a firm recommendation at the next Council meeting. The councilman said some of the members were "worried that the money was put into Elm St." He said he brought them to City Clerk William Moore's office and they were assured that the money is in the bank. This is expected approximately $9,000 spent for land purchases. Funds for construction of a new Carver Library were voted in a bond election. John Bizzell, chairman of the Carver Board, told the council, "The library is a disgrace to the city of Greenville. Sooner or later it is going to fall in on some of those children." The library is presently housed in a dilapidated dwelling on Sheppard St. Bizzell said the city has the money for constructing a building. "Actually we are dragging our feet." A site on Boyd Ave. has been chosen for the new building, although there has been some controversy over the size of the lot. The Council appointed Henry W. Payton to fill a vacancy on the Carver Library Board with Councilman Ford McGowan abstaining. Councilman Brimley presented the recommendation to the Carver board that Payton be appointed. McGowan asked Payton's qualifications when the recommendation was made. Councilmen held up the annexation of Carolina Heights Addition 3 pending compliance with the subdivision ordinance. A public hearing was held on the annexation last night. Involved were several lots which were left surrounded by the city as other areas were annexed. Mayor King reported the subdivision ordinance has not been complied with but that D. G. Nichols had told him engineers are studying it and he would turn in the amount of money necessary to complete the job. The council tabled the annexation until this is done. Also tabled was a request for annexation of Stratford Addition 3 until the subdivision ordinance regulations are met. Mayor King said the annexation was requested by developer Ollie VanNortwick in a letter. Councilman James Lee made the motion to table the matter. "I think that no subdivision should be allowed in this city under any conditions until the subdivision ordinance is complied with," Lee declared. The ordinance requires installation of utilities, drainage, street paving and curb and gutter, among other things. Approval of widening Second St. from Evans to Cotanche and Cotanche from Second to First was given by the council. Thomas W. Rivers and his attorney W. W. Speight appeared before the council concerning the matter. Rivers offered to give five feet of right-of-way along his property at Second and Cotanche contingent upon the street widening. He said he plans to construct a building on the property. Councilmen also: —refunded $200 in fees to Belvoir Oil Co. which it paid for wholesale dealers license. —endorsed a Jaycee project for sale of auto seat belts.

Redevelopment Body Approves Survey Payment

The Redevelopment Commission Thursday authorized payment of $4,799.58 to D. G. Nichols for property appraisal work recently completed as partial preparation of the city's urban renewal plan. Executive Director W. I. Cochran was authorized to convey payment to Nichols accompanied by a letter pointing out the confidential nature of the appraisal and the contract stipulation that final payment does not relieve Nichols from responsibility in the event errors need correction. The commissioners, in approving Nichols' payment, noted his total fee was slightly less than the original contract price because several parcels of property were omitted. An appraisal of each parcel in the Shore Drive redevelopment project area was required pending federal and city approval of the project's plan, a second round of appraisals is scheduled. The commissioners also adopted a resolution confirming members' attendance of the Feb. 26 Feasibility Conference in Atlanta with officials of the Urban Renewal Administration. At the conference, city officials heard advice from the Atlanta office regarding minor revisions in the Shore Drive plan before final submission to Atlanta for approval. Presentation of the plan in its final form is expected within a few weeks. Attending last night's meeting were three of the commission's five members, Chairman Badger Johnson, Howard Hodges and Bancroft Moseley. Commission attorney Kenneth G. Hite met briefly with the group before the session convened. In routine matters, the commissioners approved February's expenditures totaling $3,149.40 and the minutes of the previous meeting.

Gov't Civilian Payroll Declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of civilians on the government payroll decreased slightly from December to January, the Senate-House Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures reported today. The committee said 2,428,691 civilians were working for the government in January, a decrease of 2,307, or less than one-tenth of 1 per cent, from the preceding month. Civilian agencies showed a decrease of 3,209 while civilians working for the military increased by 902.

Another Nuclear Test Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another underground blast—the 21st announced by the Atomic Energy Commission in its current series—was touched off Thursday at the Nevada test site. The AEC said the test was of low yield—such blasts have force equivalent to less than 20,000 tons of TNT.

Brimley Named To Review Plans For New Library

Dr. Ralph Brimley was named by Mayor Charles M. King last night to look into plans for a new Carver Memorial Library and make recommendations to the full City Council. The mayor told Councilman Brimley to act as a committee of one and to obtain any assistance he might need. Dr. Brimley, who had brought the matter up earlier, assured the Council he would meet with the Carver Library Board and make a firm recommendation at the next Council meeting.

Beatty Elected To Ass'n Office

Director of Public Works Kenneth Beatty was elected vice president of the North Carolina Chapter of the American Public Works Association last month. This was announced last night by Mayor Charles M. King at the City Council meeting. As vice president Beatty will be in line to become president next year. "I'd like to compliment Mr. Beatty on that," the mayor said in making the announcement. Beatty, City Engineer C. A. Holiday and Street Maintenance Supt. Joe Sawyer attended a meeting of the annual Municipal Public Works Conference in Raleigh. The Public Works Association meeting was held in association with this. W. M. Garrison, city engineer of Burlington, was named president.

Yawl Found

MIAMI (AP) — The Coast Guard reported today that the yawl Guinevere, missing since Tuesday with three persons aboard, has been found 200 miles east of Jacksonville. The oil tanker Esso Greenville reported it found the 40-foot yawl at latitude 30:20 north and longitude 70:11 west and that all those aboard appeared to be in good condition. The Esso Greenville said heavy seas were in the area and it was attempting to get a line to the yawl and take it in tow. The tanker is bound for Freeport, Grand Bahama Island. It gave no further details.

Immunizing Against Tetanus

Pitt Doctors Schedule All-Out Drive In County On April 4

Dr. Charles Adams, president of the Pitt Medical and Dental Society, said today that this program is part of a joint effort being made on a statewide basis, endorsed by the N. C. Medical Society, American Academy of General Practice and the N. C. State Board of Health. Numerous other organizations are cooperating with the effort. He pointed out that local doctors have recognized the need for countywide protection against tetanus, which is popularly known as lockjaw. Tetanus immunization is almost 100 per cent effective. Public immunization points in locations throughout the county will be set up on the above dates of April 4 and April 25, staffed by doctors, nurses and clerical help on a volunteer basis. The only cost to the public will be a small fee of 50 cents for materials used. Those who cannot pay the fee will be immunized anyway, without cost, Dr. Adams said. Tetanus is still a real medical problem, Dr. Adams pointed out, with the survival rate about 40 per cent of those stricken. He said that out of six tetanus cases at Pitt Memorial Hospital since it opened, two died. There is a danger of reaction when the antitoxin is used, and sometimes a dangerous reaction. Again, Dr. Adams cited facts from the local hospital: in a two-and-a-half-year period there were 11 admissions at Pitt with acute or severe reaction to tetanus antitoxin. The antitoxin is administered when a person receives an injury and does not have the effective tetanus immunization. Proper immunization and booster shots eliminate need for antitoxin and the possible reaction. The focus of the county-wide program will be on the adult population, since most of the school population has been immunized. County doctors have pointed out that this is the season for outdoor working with farmers and those working in the fields, as well as those engaged in yardwork. The needs for countywide immunization against tetanus are accentuated by the facts that the adult population is inadequately immunized; numerous armed forces personnel have not kept up their booster shots since release from service; and that tetanus has remained a medical problem and there is danger from use of antitoxin. Dr. Tom Patterson of Farmville is overall chairman of the county-wide tetanus immunization planning committee for the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society. Dr. Earl Trevathan is publicity chairman. Registration will include a card with record of the immunization which will be referred to the physician designated by the person being immunized. This program has been initiated in like manner with the same sponsoring organizations in other counties of the state.

Party Loyalty Urged At YDC Meeting

Walter B. Jones of Farmville, former state legislator and 1960 candidate for Congress, urged East Carolina College Young Democrats in a Thursday night address to place loyalty to the party first. Jones, who announced Thursday morning he would not run for Congress this spring, told the student audience: "Loyalty is the factor that makes nations great, institutions such as East Carolina College great, and certainly loyalty is needed to make our Democratic Party great." He congratulated the Young Democrats on their choice of political party affiliation. "The Democratic Party," he asserted, "has done more for the betterment of mankind than any other political party in the history of the world." Jones continued: "We would be less than honest if we did not admit that there are those within our party with whom we do not agree, and that there are planks in our party platform with which we are not in agreement." He urged: "But let us be big enough to allow differences of opinion and conviction. In fact, the thing that has made the Democratic Party great in the right we maintain to differ and still remain loyal when the issue is settled." Jones, in declaring the leadership of the Democratic Party, cited "our greatest president of this century"—Wilson, Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy. "Surely history substantiates your choice of a political party," he said. Jones was introduced to the student gathering by another Farmville, Anne Frances Allen who is president of the East Carolina YDC.

Girl Scouts Will Celebrate Organization's 50th Birthday

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—Fifty years ago the early Girl Scouts were admitted to be womanly. "None of us likes women who ape men" is a rewarding line in the first handbook.

Eighteen and a half million Girl Scouts later the sentiment, if not the sentence, is substantially the same. Hardy hikers and campers though they are, the Girl Scouts who will celebrate the organization's 50th birthday next week are as feminine as teenagers can be.

Girl Scout Tea Sunday

Greenville's Annual Girl Scout Tea will be held Sunday from 3:00 until 4:30 p.m. in the Rotary Building.

Through Scouting, girls receive valuable lessons in becoming resourceful and responsible citizens in their homes, communities and country.

Brownies, Girl Scouts and their families are invited to attend. Projects and crafts undertaken by various troops will be on display. Guests will include Miss Catherine Crumpler, district advisor, and past presidents of the Greenville District.

Miss Camille Staton, president March meeting with the group singing "The Church's One Foundation" after which Mrs. R. E. Riddick read the purpose of the Society.

Mrs. J. C. Wynne, Jr., program chairman, introduced Mrs. A. M. McWhorter who presented a program on "Women's Changing Status" putting emphasis on women in politics.

"Women the world over have three things in common," said Mrs. McWhorter. "They love their children, hate war, and they love helping to heal the sick, but the women who are ignorant of the affairs of state are far too numerous." Even though we came to this country to separate church and state religion should play a part in the government in that man cannot live or rule successfully without Divine guidance.

The League of Nations were first to recognize woman and her potential in a political world, and suggested her education in political geography, political history and government. The United Nations has done a great deal toward bringing women into politics, asking for representatives to be sent at the expense of the United Nations, for instruction in public speaking, parliamentary procedure, and conducting meetings.

"Illiteracy weakens any government," continued Mrs. McWhorter. "Women should be trained to stand up and speak intelligently." We live in a country looked upon as being well educated and civilized with Christian principles, but some of the influence that goes out from our country is not as good as it could or should be. As an example, Mrs. McWhorter displayed a blackboard of visual aids showing pictures published in some magazines.

Mrs. McWhorter concluded her program with the thought that we open our eyes and view both sides of the picture, recognizing our weaknesses and accepting the responsibility placed upon us to teach our children to respect the laws of church and state in order to become better citizens building a Christian world.

After a short business session, the meeting was adjourned with the benediction.

Many U.S. Cities 'Sprucing' Up

Numerous communities around the country have recently put on real clean-up campaigns—by sudsing and scrubbing both streets and buildings. Included are the gold-plated dome of Nebraska's Capitol tower and the Oklahoma state Capitol.

Clean, self-respecting surroundings exert a good influence on people. Clean public and business buildings, schools, churches, and stores have a beneficial psychological effect on homemakers. It's a natural reaction to keep your home as clean as the shining face your city shows to the public.

Post-Shampoo Glamour Note

"Taking a shampoo" makes your hair glamorous—and to keep yourself glamorous with your hair in curlers, try wearing a frothy nylon lace bonnet topped with ruffles and a matching bow.

To keep this perky, swish it through warm soap or detergent suds and rinses after every shampoo. It will dry quickly, and needs no ironing.

Mrs. Bryant Is Civitan Speaker Pastor Is Installed In Brief Ceremony Dr. Allen Taylor Gives Program

Mrs. L. B. Bryant of Charlotte, executive secretary of the N. C. Association for Retarded Children, was the guest speaker at the regular bi-weekly dinner meeting of the Greenville Civitan Club Thursday.

After an introduction by Dr. Ken Quiggins, Mrs. Bryant discussed briefly the work of the association. She noted, "Public awareness of the problem of mental retardation needs strengthening. More local schools for the retarded are needed, especially since it is much cheaper to train these children in the community than in state schools."

The speaker emphasized that with adequate facilities and personnel 25 of 30 retarded children can be taught to be at least partially self supporting.

Prior to Mrs. Bryant's address, club President Herbert Wilkerson made several announcements concerning Civitan affairs and welcomed new member Jim Farmer into the Club.

"It is my pleasure and duty to officially install your new pastor, Father Maurice Spillane," Monsignor Edward Gilbert told a gathering of St. Peter's parish last night.

Monsignor Gilbert, of Goldsboro, was the officiating Dean for the installation ceremony held in the auditorium of St. Raphael's School in Greenville.

He read to the congregation the letter of appointment by Bishop Vincent S. Waters, of the Diocese of Raleigh, and presented the Ritual and keys of St. Peter's Church to Father Spillane, symbolizing his official assumption of the role as pastor.

Turning to the congregation, Msgr. Gilbert remarked that he had known Father Spillane for several years and the Greenville parish "is most fortunate to have him here."

Monsignor Peter McNerney, of Winston-Salem, told the gathering that Father Spillane had served as his assistant for three years immediately after coming to this country, and "I am sure you will find in him a true pastor, a true friend and a true shepherd."

He described the installation as a meaningful ceremony, impressive as to the importance of the pastor, "The Dean of the Deanery," he explained, "is authorized by the Bishop to officially make known to you the appointment of Father Spillane." The Ritual book turned over to the new pastor was explained to be the official prayer book of the Church by which the Priest administers the Sacraments. The keys, also handed the incoming pastor, were described as representative of his role as temporal custodian of church properties and accompanying responsibilities.

However, Msgr. McNerney cautioned, "the physical advancement of the parish will in large measure rest upon you."

"It is a great privilege to have a pastor," he noted, and called attention to a growing shortage of priests to meet the needs of today's rapid expansion of the church.

Father Spillane briefly expressed his appreciation to the visitors who came to his installation, many from considerable distance. "I have been here but three weeks," he said, "and the reception and cooperation experienced in that time has amazed me."

Benediction of the Most Holy Sacrament followed the brief ceremony.

Prior to the installation, the visiting priests were served a dinner by members of the Altar Society, in the school cafeteria.

The priests attending the official installation were: Fathers Roderick O'Connor of Goldsboro, Paul Termer of Newton Grove, Robert McMahon of Newton Grove, William Pharr of Winston-Salem, Justin Peculis of Jacksonville, James Noonan of New Bern, Lawrence Newman, Bernardine Boulard, Farmville, Thomas Colgan of Roanoke Rapids, Aeden Davis of Kinston, Edward Sullivan of Rocky Mount, Maurice Tew, C.P. of Greenville, Howard Chirdon, C.P. of Greenville, Kilian McNamara, C.P. of Washington, Daniel McDevitt, C.P. of Washington, Gerald Ryan, C.P. of New Bern, Thomas Carroll, C.P. of New Bern, and Joseph J. Lash, of Plymouth.

Dr. Allen Taylor presented a program on genetically related diseases and abnormalities at last night's meeting of the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society.

He noted the recent study of cell chromosomes in health, and the lack of pairing of the chromosomes evident in some diseases. In certain diseases, for instance, mental retardation, there is a lack of pairing of cell chromosomes in the development of the organism. It was pointed out.

Dr. Taylor also referred to chromosome distribution in determining the sex of an unborn child. During a short business session, the society was unanimous in accepting an invitation to meet jointly with the Pitt County Bar Association in April.

Guests of the society last night included three biology students from Rose High School: Tom Taft, Tom Irons and Nancy Tribley.

Red Cross Sends 16 Staffers To Disaster Areas

Mrs. Walter Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt chapter of the American Red Cross, has notified that 16 Red Cross disaster staff members have been assigned to the storm lashed area of North Carolina and the Outer Banks, from Hatteras to Elizabeth City.

They will administer disaster relief to the 300 persons displaced by the storm, which early survey indicates destroyed 100 dwellings on the Outer Banks, and wrought major damage to 300 other victims being housed and fed at Red Cross shelters at Manteo and Kitty Hawk.

Clifford B. Fligg of Southeastern Area Headquarters, Atlanta, Ga., Red Cross, notified Mrs. Taylor of the plans.

The Mecklenburg County Red Cross canteen left Charlotte for Manteo early Thursday. At the same time a second disaster canteen was dispatched to Manteo from Southeastern Area Headquarters in Atlanta.

Quarterly Publishes Article On Milton

Dr. John D. Ebbs, associate professor of English at East Carolina College, contributed to the current issue of "Modern Language Quarterly," Vol. 22, No. 4, a paper on "Milton's Treatment of Poetic Justice in 'Samson Agonistes'."

Dr. Ebbs' paper represents a contribution toward a better understanding of John Milton's meaning in "Samson Agonistes," a poetic drama modeled upon ancient Greek tragedy.

After a review of pertinent scholarship and criticism of the eighteenth, nineteenth and twentieth centuries on "Samson Agonistes," Dr. Ebbs interprets "Samson Agonistes" as a work showing that God's Providence bestows the reward of eternal redemption upon those who display "repentance, patience under trials, and faith in the ultimate manifestation of God's will." Milton chose the biblical story of Samson to teach this important lesson.

Milton's concept of poetic justice is defined by Dr. Ebbs as Providence, the working out of carrying out of God's will.

Divorcees Want Support Laws

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—"Now when my husband was going with this other woman," the lady began in the staid State Senate chamber.

She was quickly hushed by Republican Sen. Carlton H. Morris. "We're only concerned with the facts," Morris said over the laughter in the room. "Let's not put anything embarrassing on the record."

It was all in a day's work for members of the Senate Judiciary Committee Thursday as they heard 18 angry divorcees testify in favor of tighter laws providing for support of former wives and children by ex-husbands.

Morris and his committee listened sympathetically as the divorcees, some their eyes ablaze with anger and some near to tears, told their stories.

"My husband is $4,000 behind in his support payments," testified Bernice Pulliam of Jackson. "He can afford three cars but I'll be in the cemetery before I can collect that money."

Meredith Hollingsworth of Detroit said her former husband owns his own business but still doesn't meet his support payments.

To collect, she added, "I have to go and pay an attorney. Then the lawyer gets half the money."

"My former husband is $2,000 behind," testified Agatha Barnes of Detroit. "I haven't got a penny yet. I called the sheriff and the sheriff said he couldn't arrest him."

"I don't see why we can't get some help in picking up these men that owe us all this back alimony."

After all the women had testified, Morris mopped his brow, thanked the ladies for their testimony and promised their complaints would be given due consideration by the Legislature.

AAUW Is Offering $650 Award For Study Abroad

A scholarship of $650 to be awarded to a student at East Carolina College for summer study abroad during 1962 has been announced by the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women, according to Dr. Kathleen E. Dunlop, president of the organization. Applications are now being made to Mrs. Marguerite A. Perry, chairman of the AAUW Scholarship Fund.

Eligible to receive the 1962 grant, Mrs. Perry stated, are juniors and seniors with a "B" average "whose plans for a career would be particularly enhanced by study in another country and whose personality and character recommend them for such study." Choice of a recipient will be made by a committee of AAUW members and will be announced April 2.

Open to East Carolina students exclusively and to majors in any department of instruction, the AAUW award is designed to broaden undergraduate outlook and experience and to afford the exceptionally promising and ambitious student an opportunity for more extensive preparation in her chosen field, she said.

The 1962 grant is the fourth given to an East Carolina student by the local university group.

The most recent winner Jane Murray of Roxboro, 1960, Music, has only recently returned from an extended stay in Germany, where she studied voice.

School System Merger Decision

Before the Pitt County Board of Education moves into an extensive planning program looking toward consolidating high schools of the county system, some conclusion should be reached regarding the possible merger of the Pitt County and Greenville school systems into a single administrative unit.

If the County Board has no interest in the merger of the two administrative units, it should make clear that position at the outset of planning for high school consolidation within the county unit. If, on the other hand, there is an interest in studying the possible merger of the two systems into a single administrative unit, that should be done before long-range consolidation plans are developed.

Approximately a year ago when the city and the county administrative units were seeking to resolve a problem which arose between the Greenville administrative unit and the Winterville School district, the Greenville School Board indicated its willingness to work with the County Board of Education in framing and carrying out a program which would lead to a single school administrative unit for the entire county. Since that time, however, there has been no move toward following through with the suggestion offered by the Greenville Board of Education.

Obviously there would be many problems and many considerations involved in a merger of the two school systems into a single administrative unit.

Not the least of these would be the matter of bonded indebtedness of the various school districts of the county, the various tax levies in these districts and the different district levies for supplementing school operations.

These same factors, however, will prove major hurdles for the county administrative unit as it seeks to develop and carry out a high school consolidation program which excludes the Greenville School District and the Greenville administrative unit.

The special study committee which investigated possible consolidation of high schools in the northern section of the county for the Pitt County Board of Education made several recommendations which tend to indicate they may have had in mind a possible merger of Pitt County and Greenville school administrative units.

The committee asserted "no major capital improvement should be made at any of the existing plants until a permanent county-wide plan is adopted." The committee also asserted in its report that "immediate consideration be given to the dissolution of the several special districts for capital improvement purposes in order that the total resources of the county may be placed behind all the schools in the County."

It called for an adequate countywide supplemental tax to replace the different supplement rates in various districts. It also called for joint planning between the Pitt County and Greenville school administrative units.

If the County Board of Education follows the foregoing recommendation with regard to all of the other school districts of the county, the matter would not be greatly complicated by working out a merger with the Greenville school administrative unit simultaneously.

If the Pitt County Board of Education and the Greenville Board of Education are to develop long-range plans on a sound basis, it is imperative that they know whether to plan for the future as separate school units, or as one large unit. Certainly the answer to that question would affect building plans of both the present administrative units both in terms of the number of classrooms needed and in the location of future school buildings.

In the interest of the future of public education in all of Pitt County and in the interest of the citizens of the entire county, both the Greenville Board of Education and the Pitt County Board of Education should immediately declare whether they are interested in studying the possibilities of merging the two administrative units. If there is positive reaction from both bodies, work on the matter should begin immediately. If the reaction is negative in either or both of the school boards, at least each will know where it stands and on what basis to plan for the future.

If the matter is allowed to drag on without any clear-cut decision, adequate long-range planning by both education boards may be hampered if not stymied completely.

Little Reason For High Hopes

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — It's been a grim seven days.

The heart gets the better of the head when the mind stops merely hoping and, in the face of dubious evidence, begins expecting.

No doubt many people here and elsewhere, because they hope for it so much, have let themselves begin to expect the United States and Russia will agree in the next few weeks to ban nuclear tests.

The evidence is against them. The two nations, in all their dickerings since the war, have been unable to agree on any kind of disarmament.

There is no solid reason for believing it will be any different at the 17-nation disarmament talks which start in Geneva March 14.

And in the past seven days neither President Kennedy nor Premier Khrushchev has said anything to raise expectations. Kennedy himself expressed hope at his news conference Wednesday—he said hope for success is in the interest of the world—but he made a clear distinction between hoping and expecting.

He declined to line up on the side of expectation. In the past seven days Kennedy told the nation the United States will resume testing; Khrushchev wrote a letter to Kennedy; and Wednesday Kennedy had a news conference.

What was grim was buried deep in what they said—hardly more than a few phrases—but it was still ominously clear enough to make those seven days remembered perhaps as somberly as anything in recent history.

Kennedy had waited six months, since the Russians resumed testing last fall, to get the opinion of his advisers on whether this country also needed to test in the atmosphere now to stay ahead of the Soviets.

Last Friday night he said the tests would begin by the end of April unless before then Russia agreed to a nuclear test ban which included an inspection system to prevent cheating.

This didn't leave even much hope for an agreement since Khrushchev has consistently rejected an inspection system as part of a test ban agreement. Kennedy said this country wouldn't agree without it.

He said more: "If they persist in rejecting all means of true inspection, then we shall be left with no choice but to keep our own defensive arsenals adequate for the security of all free men."

And he said this country cannot keep its scientific momentum and leadership if its "weapons progress is limited to theory or the confines of laboratories and caves."

You can read into this a warning that if we test now, and then the Russians test, we will have to test again. This could go on endlessly.

Khrushchev, after complaining in his letter that the disarmament talks should begin with a summit conference instead of just a foreign ministers meeting, didn't express any hope, either.

The best he could say about the foreign ministers was "let us wish them success."

Then came his grim touch, confirming the suggestion in Kennedy's talk that if we test the Russians will probably test.

If the United States tests, the "Soviet Union will be faced with the need to hold tests of new types, as might be required."

Then Wednesday Kennedy was asked if the world is "justified" in attaching to the Geneva talks any "particular hope or expectations these negotiations" will be more fruitful than others that went before.

"Hope," Kennedy said, "should certainly be attached. Expectations are another matter. I am not making optimistic predictions about its success."

Opinions In Brief

"Not all fairy tales begin 'Once upon a time.' Some begin 'I have to work late at the office.'"—Chicago Tribune.

"President Kennedy, in voicing his disapproval of the provisions for a 25-hour work week written into a contract by an eastern electrical labor union, echoed the feelings of all who have the nation's future at heart. As he indicated, anything that tends to lessen our productivity cannot serve the best interests of the country."—Santa Paula (Calif.) Chronicle.

"In good government where there is some freedom of thought and expression, local subdivisions where the people are in authority must play the dominant part. Thus township, school district, and county must receive adequate attention if we are to maintain a semblance of freedom."—Corisca (S.D.) Globe.

"There is always free cheese in a mousetrap, but you have never seen a happy mouse there."—Chicago (Ill.) AMA News.

"The Communists tell the Russian people that America is the worst place in the world, that half of us are starving to death. In the very next breath they are bragging that in the next couple of years they will catch up with our standard of living."—Farmingdale (N. J.) Howell Booster.

Bitter Sweet

By DON SCHLIENZ

Baffled By The Results

Of course I don't believe anyone can remove warts by "talking" or rubbing them. It's just not logical.

A wart is defined as a small usually hard, abnormal protrusion on the skin, caused by a filterable virus. And you can't tell me a virus (and its wart) can be made to disappear by anything less than scientific and logical means.

So how did our boy come to be rid of a wart on his pinkie? A neighbor with a reputation for such things just rubbed it about two months ago. Today, no wart. Simple as that.

As an oldtime medical corpsman I can't accept the procedure. My World War II reference books made no mention of it, at all.

And if, on a long dull day in the dispensary when a little diversion was called for, removing a wart might require local anesthetic, sterile scalpel and needles and sutures, topped off with merthiolate and dressing. All very professional.

But rubbing one off? The idea is unreasonable.

A more recent graduate of training in an Army center for medics tells me that while he learned what to do for various kinds of wounds and fractures and burns, his lessons included nothing about a magic touch to do away with warts. Which confirms my own impression that medicine hasn't departed from traditional methods.

Going back to the case history of our son and heir... the wart in question had been present for a year or more before disappearing under the technique of our neighbor.

Yes, the boy was directed to go next door with instructions to have the growth rubbed. Believe in it? Friend, the practice is merely a conversation-piece.

We merely sent the lad next door because maybe three years previously the neighbor performed the same service on another growth on his hand. It too disappeared soon afterwards.

There are apparently wart-removers all about us. They don't advertise.

One of the composing-room crew was telling me (with a straight face) he inquired how best to get rid of some growths on one hand; and was told to count them, then put a nickle and two pennies in his wallet and forget it.

"They went away, too", he says.

Is that any way to beat a filterable virus?

You've probably heard of the man at the post office who has a reputation for "talking and rubbing" off warts. One doesn't build a reputation like that overnight, or on one lucky cure.

An interviewee volunteered that warts lack stability, they just come and go. But must they "go" soon after rubbing by an unlicensed practitioner?

Convictions have been shaken for less reason. One listener to my ravings suggested "auto-suggestion" as an explanation. But on that basis we could conquer colds, influenza, measles, and so on... into an infinity of virus diseases. You just can't depend on logic anymore.

Other Editors Saying... Explicit Speed Laws Strength For Today

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Over the past weekend 16 deaths were recorded on North Carolina roads. Yet little hue and cry was noted from among the citizenry. At the end of this year a total of close to a thousand lives will have been lost on our roads. It happens each year. One of the reasons is speed—there are lots of reasons why our roads aren't any safer, but speed is the big killer.

Gov. Sanford has asked the Traffic Safety Council to make a study of speed limits and laws relating to motor vehicle speeds on the state's lawbooks. The governor, concerned over the continuing high tolls on our highways, has asked for a detailed report with specific recommendations on needed speed legislation that is clearly and explicitly stated, based on sound and realistic principles, designed to establish safe standards of driver conduct and that is reasonably, readily understood and acceptable by the public.

This is a large order, of course, but one that is not impossible. Sanford noted that speed consistently ranks as one of the major causes in North Carolina's accidents on the roads. Improved laws are clearly needed. The horse and buggy called for a few simple traffic laws but in the past 50 years the picture has become so complicated that it almost defies solution.

The motor car on the streets and highways of North Carolina marked the beginning of city-wide traffic laws in 1900; county-wide laws in 1905, and by 1909 there were state-wide road laws. In recent years the Motor Vehicles Department has taken the lead in seeking better laws and revising old ones.

From the early 1950s the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill has been cooperating with the Motor Vehicles Department in the task of writing to police, solicitors, judges, mayors and others working with traffic problems in this state and other areas, seeking proposals for changes these officials would make in the laws and the reason for such changes.

These suggested law changes and improvements have been analyzed by the Institute which has then transmitted them to the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles who studies them and submits them to the General Assembly. It is through such processes that our improved traffic safety laws are derived.

A traffic safety program for 1962 calls for more and better traffic laws and enforcement. In order for these laws, such as Gov. Sanford has requested, to be effective, they must be clear, explicit and without confusion to drivers. Speed limits and enforcement of these limits should be rigid, stringent, without compromise. Under such a policy the driving public would soon be instilled with a sense of discipline, the type of discipline that is needed to prevent slaughter on the roads.

GOD (EMERITUS)

How long has it been since you attended church? Do you pray regularly and intelligently every day or are you like the youngster who wrote out the Lord's Prayer, tucked it up the side of the bed, and every night as he jumped in pointed to it and said, "Lord, them's my sentiments!"

There are not only two sides to most questions; there are twenty sides to many of them. But there are only two sides to the question as to whether God does or does not exist. He either does exist or He does not. There is no middle ground. If He does not exist, then anyone who has religious faith is naive and churches are an unnecessary expense. If He does exist, then there is no service too great for you and me to render Him. Our devotion must be complete.

The word "emeritus" means "retired from office or active duty on account of age, infirmity, or long and faithful service..." Have you given God this rating? Oh, to be sure, your parents and grandparents were devoted to their religious duties. God meant something in their lives. He was not just an idea, or an idol, or an honored name — He was the Creator and Sustainer of the universe, King and Lord of all.

The Lord probably doesn't regard the retirement status with too much favor.

Unique Trend In 'Going Public'

By ELMER ROESSNER

More than 50 real estate corporations have gone public in the last two years and that adds up to an interesting trend.

One authority estimates that two million Americans now own shares of real estate corporations, but the estimate seems high.

However, several hundred thousand people seem to be active in this fourth way by which individuals can own real estate.

Fourth way? So. The first way is to buy a lot, an acre or some other bit of ground, with or without a house or other structures on it. That's the way in which generations of human's have satisfied the primal urge to own a segment of the earth. People buy farms, estates, acres in the mountains, wash-away plots on the dunes and plots on marshes they never expect to — or can — see under brackish water, all in satisfying the compulsion to own, own, own a little bit of this fugacious sphere.

"SYNDICATE" SECOND METHOD

The second way is to participate in a syndicate which is also a method generations old. A bit of property on sale looks like an attractive buy, but none of those interested can raise all the cash needed. Then a syndicate is formed, usually under the direction of an experienced real estate operator, and those interested are invited to buy shares. These can range from thin slices for $100 or less to large chunks running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The third way is to participate in a real estate investment trust. This is somewhat like a syndicate, but based on somewhat different legal lines. Investors are usually required to put at least $500 into the trust, which leases the property to tenants. The rentals pay the investors' interest, taxes, maintenance and, usually, their original investment. In the end, the investor has no real estate but he may have a nice return, some of it tax free.

THE STOCK WAY

The method coming in for more attention consists of buying shares or stocks in publicly held corporations, just like buying stock in any public corporation, in one of the exchanges or over the counter.

"Public real estate companies are just like any other corporations in which 15 million Americans own stock," said Robert K. Lifton, president of Transcontinental Investing Corp., said to be one of the largest of the publicly held real estate firms.

Time Out To Relax

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It is essential even for one who earns his living watching the doings of Khrushchev, struggling over what the inventions mean, which politician is really what one thinks he is and why another should believe some of the things that some do believe — it is essential to get away from it all and my way is to go to the opera of a Saturday afternoon when the atmosphere is more musical than on a Monday night for many reasons.

Last Saturday it was "Aida" which no singer or conductor can spoil or improve. So I settled down to a pleasant enough performance with the best lighting I have seen on any stage. After the first act, I dropped into Francis Robinson's cubby-hole of an office which I like to do because he is also a man of extremely wide culture and there is always good conversation which grows rarer these days as we limit ourselves either to the escapism of gossip or the arguing about things we know nothing about.

So last Saturday afternoon, Roland Hayes, the singer, also dropped in and we talked about how hard it is for a young conductor and if perhaps it would not be wise for them to get their apprenticeships with high school orchestras, some of which, over the country, are quite good. For doctors, there is internship and a residency; for lawyers, there is clerkship. But young conductors have a rare chance to lead an orchestra or even a section of one. I am told that Leonard Bernstein takes three assistants a year which must do a great deal for young conductors. So we talked until the time came for Act II.

Then we all foregathered for tea and there was George Jessel and he reminded me of the very distant days of the Gus Edwards show in vaudeville when many who later became great stars sang, "School Days, School Days, Dear Old Golden Rule Days." And we talked of Eddie Cantor, a childhood friend, who has been ill but does not take it lightly, which everyone should do, for ills of the flesh must come to us at one time or another and one either is frightened by them or says his prayers and leaves the rest to God.

And I remembered how one day when I was in the hospital with what looked like a terminal thing and Charlie Coburn, the actor, had a nurse roll him into my room to have a visit and Charlie asked me not to spread it that he was in the hospital because then nobody would hire him to act. And we had several good laughs together. Charlie lived to a good ripe age and his passing was regretted but I often see him on the Late Show or even the Late State Show since I have become addicted to such she-nigans at bed-time.

Then there was Act III to hear and Bill Ormerod, who should be addressed as S1R Berkeley, he being a British knight for whatever virtues or sins one becomes such, and I climbed some stairs, which I should not do, to hear Francis Robinson speak over the radio brilliantly and beautifully about Grace Moore. Robinson originated in Nashville, Tennessee, and is gifted with a speaking voice which reminds me of William Jennings Bryan although he is less resonant. The story he told of Grace Moore was most attractive, as she was.

And I conjured up the days when I could only afford Standing Room to listen to Farrar and Carson and then it became so difficult to listen to the rest of the afternoon's "Aida." For as Roland Hayes said, it is hard to know where genius will strike and one must be helpful.

And I could not help thinking of youth as I looked into the eyes of Maria Jeritza, of another generation, when she first sang at the Metropolitan Opera stirred opera lovers as they had not been in some time. She is still beautiful, for natural beauty never fades.

So here an entire afternoon passed and no one said one word about politicians and con-ning and the trickeries of life. No wonder musicians have such longevity—they throw off the burdens of time and live in the eternities. Or might it be that all their work requires so much exercise?

IBM CARDS GIVE SHOPPERS BAD NEWS

A new supermarket system is being tested in France. When a shopper takes a package, she also takes an IBM punch card from the same shelf. When she reaches the check-out counter, she hands in the cards and a tabulating machine shows how much she owes. The customer gets an itemized invoice, so she can compare supermarket prices with those of other shops.

Advertising Is Proving Value

By LYNN NISBET — ADVERTISING PAYS — A

searching examination of advertising is going on in the Department of Conservation and Development which is responsible for investment of some $400,000 a year advertising North Carolina's attractions as a place to live, work and play. C & D has no doubt about advertising's value. The sensational increase in the State's travel industry and the great number of new industries attracted since the advertising program was initiated in 1937 are evidence of that.

What C & D's Advertising committee is concerned about is whether the State is doing the best possible advertising under conditions existing now, and in harmony with trends indicated for the immediate future.

It's concern is not new. It is reflected in radical changes over the last 12 months. These are now being appraised as accurately as anything as intangible as "image" advertising can be appraised. The changes, introduced with the employment of a new agency in 1961, are evidenced chiefly in greater use of radio and television for travel advertising, and a switch to a more sophisticated approach in industrial advertising.

The recent advertisement in TIME magazine built around research brainpower is an example of this. It is a far cry from conventional State industrial advertisements parroting clichés about labor, climate and taxes.

The type of industrial advertising now being done by the State is unique. It is a mature approach that has attracted some nice compliments from people who know advertising. More important, C & D's Division of Commerce and Industry reports stepped up inquiries about plant sites. It is difficult to determine to what extent this quickening of interest in North Carolina by industrialists is traceable to the new type of advertising, but it is a fact that the two things occurred simultaneously.

On the other hand, the stepped up radio and television advertising for tourists last year failed to produce many more inquiries to the Travel Division than the program of the year before, when travel advertising was done almost exclusively in newspapers and magazines.

MEDIA — The new Agency, Bennett of High Point, says it is too early to draw definite conclusions about this. A strong advocate of air media, Bennett contends that while radio and tv advertising may not produce as many written inquiries as newspaper and magazine advertisements carrying coupons, that they WILL generate more travel business, which is the main objective anyway. Experience in 1962, during which the State will devote more of its tourist advertising funds to radio and television than ever before, will be weighed carefully before plans are made for 1963.

For several years the allocation of State advertising funds has been 60 percent for travel advertising and 40 percent for industrial advertising. There has been recent and serious discussion at policy levels not only as to whether this division is best, but whether advertising for industry cannot best be done through concentration on the State's natural and man-made attractions for visitors. In other words, lure them here on a visit and make it easy for them to see opportunities for industrial development at first hand.

There are examples of new industries being located in North Carolina exactly this way — one is a large hosiery manufacturer located a plant near the Great Smoky Mountains after officers of the company were first attracted to North Carolina by its vacation attractions. There is an electronics plant in the Piedmont today on a visit to Pinehurst.

WASTED — A recent report by Dr. Howard G. Schaller, dean of the Tulane school of business administration and a member of two national committees studying economic problems of the South, is causing some eyebrow-arching. Dr. Schaller said: "Advertising campaigns to attract new industry usually have little success simply because businessmen do not make plant location decisions on the same basis that consumers decide on a brand of toothpaste."

Tax concessions and government subsidies are also frowned upon as ineffective by the Tulane economist, and who holds that, instead of gimmicks and gadgets, the real attractions for new industry and essentials for continued Southern growth are outstanding programs of research, education, healthy service institutions and an adequate tax structure.

The new trend in North Carolina industrial advertising is to draw attention dramatically to the State's leadership in these fields.

The Need to Be Truthful ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:16; Matthew 12:33-37; 26:69-75; Proverbs 12-17.

"Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor," commanded God. When Christ healed a blind and dumb man, the Pharisees accused Him of working with the devil. Jesus condemned them for their lies.—Exodus 20:16; Matthew 12:22-32.

He went on to condemn the Pharisees for their hypocrisy, saying, "How can you speak good, when you are evil?" He pointed out that a good tree bears good fruit, and a corrupt tree, corrupt fruit; a person is known by his words.—Matthew 12:33-34.

When Christ was betrayed and taken before the Jewish council at night, Simon Peter followed and waited in the courtyard. Three times bystanders accused him of being one of Christ's followers; three times Peter denied.—Matthew 26:69-74.

When a cock crowed Peter remembered "the word which Jesus had said, Before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice. And he went out, and wept bitterly."—Matthew 26:74-75. GOLDEN TEXT: Matthew 12:37.

The Obligation to Be Truthful

THE RIGHTNESS OF SPEAKING THE TRUTH AND AN ILLUSTRATION OF YIELDING TO THE TEMPTATION TO SPEAK FALSELY

Scripture—Exodus 20:16; Matthew 12:33-37; 26:69-75; Proverbs 12-17.

By N. SPEER JONES
SO OFTEN we hear good people referring glibly to "a little white lie" they may have told. They usually confess this without shame, for a "white lie" may even be told with the best of motives—to spare someone else some unpleasantness, for instance.

Such a little deception is really cause for grave concern, though it may not seem so. In a situation where love appears to override truth, it would seem better to say nothing at all, rather than yield to the temptation to lie slightly. For the whole trouble with the "little white lie" is that it leads very easily and imperceptibly into a larger and grayer lie, then on to a "big black lie."

Man's heart is never static. It changes constantly, growing more good or more evil in dif-

"put his best foot forward" in the area of outward appearance and expressions. Over a period of time, however, a man's words usually reveal his true self, just as will a crisis in which he has no time to plan to "put his best foot forward."

It was this kind of crisis which smote Peter when he betrayed Christ. (Matthew 26:69-75).

Just as man's words proceed from his heart, however, so his heart is built up in turn by the things he says; the process works both ways. This is the most basic reason why God's commandment against lying is so vital. God is truth, and as we are made in God's image, when we are untruthful we are unGodlike, violating our own natures and betraying God.

When Christ warns us that our words can condemn us

GOLDEN TEXT

"By your words you will be justified, and by your words you will be condemned."—Matthew 12:37.

ferent ways, as he feeds it from his store of experience. The little grains imbedded there—like little white lies or little truths—build upon each other to form either great malignancies or great pearls.

For this reason, the Bible exhorts us constantly, especially in the New Testament, to maintain strict vigilance over our hearts. In today's lesson Christ reminds us that "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh" (Matthew 12:34).

Man's heart is a treasure, created by him as he moves through life. The word "treasure" (Matthew 12:35) is a translation of the Greek "thesaurus," treasure chest. The words he speaks generally reflect this reservoir.

It is true that people often say one thing and do another, and certainly everyone tries to (Matthew 12:37). He reminds us of the enormous power of speech, a tool which we all use and which most of us take pretty much for granted.

Just as the motorist is apt to forget that his toe unleashes the power of 300 horses, the housewife or salesman is apt to forget that his or her words can make or break hearts, ruin young lives or endow them with greatness.

It is also true that those who wield their tool of speech with the greatest power are often those least qualified to do so. The demagogues like Hitler can rouse people to frenzies and ruin whole nations, while some of our wisest men sit silent.

So it behooves us all to pay close attention to what we say, and to develop our tool of speech for good—both immediate good and for the treasure of our hearts.

Bethel Tops Winterville 72-44

MASS SCRAMBLE . . . Bethel's Jimmy Lewis (35), Don Dewar (44) and an unidentified Indian go after this rebound as if it were the last one. Winterville's Jay Hill (15) tries to interfere, but doesn't have a chance. (Reflector Photos by George Bryant)

By CHARLES VAUGHAN
Reflector Sports Writer
The Bethel High School Indians, coached by Dan Wooten, defeated the Winterville Wolves last night by a score of 72-44.

This was the third time this season that Bethel has downed the Wolves. In their last meeting, the Indians barely nipped the Wolves 68-66, which led fans to believe that last night's contest was going to be a close one.

Wolves Hold Lead
With three minutes remaining in the first period, the Winterville Wolves held an 11-9 lead over the Bethel Indians. However, the Indians rallied to pull to a 19-11 first quarter advantage. The Indians increased their lead in the second period to a 36-22 halftime advantage.

Winterville could not gain on Bethel in the third quarter as the Indians continued to put the pressure on the Wolves. Bethel outscored Winterville 19-10 in the third period and 17-14 in the fourth quarter to surge to an easy victory.

Bethel tallied 21 field goals in the contest as compared to 16 for the Wolves. In the free throw department, the Indians also held the advantage over Winterville. Bethel scored 30 for 39 from the foul line for 77 per cent, while Winterville shot 80 per cent with 19 for 15.

Looked Like Close Battle
At the beginning of the first period, it looked as if the contest was going to be a nip-and-tuck battle all the way. Don Dewar led the Indians to a 7-4 advantage over the Wolves after three minutes of the opening quarter. However, the Wolves rallied to overcome the Indians and go ahead by a score of 11-9. Bethel was not willing to fall prey to Winterville as they outscored the Wolves 10-0 in the last three minutes of the period. Winterville found the going rough in the second quarter as Bethel was unwilling to slow the pace. After three minutes of this period, the Indians had increased their advantage to twelve points over the tiring Wolves. Winterville, fighting desperately to regroup its forces, managed to cut Bethel's lead to 26-18 with four minutes left in the half. However, the Indians proved that they were in complete control of the contest as they surged to a 36-22 halftime lead.

Basket For-Basket
The Wolves managed to match the Indians basket for basket in the early moments of the second half, but Bethel slowly began to increase their advantage. Led by Tex Everett, All-County sophomore, Bethel raced to a 55-32 third quarter lead over the lagging Wolves.

In the fourth and final period of the contest, Coach Wooten began to use his substitutes, and they also were ready to play some fine basketball. The Indians' substitutes continued to overwhelm the Wolves as they pushed on to a 72-44 victory.

Daniels Paced Indians
Herman Daniels paced the high scoring Indians with seven field goals and seven free throws for a game high total of 21 points. Don Dewar, who along with Daniels, is an All-County selection, tallied 14 points for the victors.

Tex Everette, Bethel's sophomore center, was very impressive last night throughout the contest. Everette, who scored 11 points for the Indians, was five for five from the free throw line. He also appeared to be about seven feet tall as he soared into the air to control the rebounds for Bethel.

The Winterville Wolves were led by All-County James Braxton who tallied four field goals and four free throws for a total of 12 points. Steve Worthington was also in double figures for the Wolves as he sank a total of ten points.

In the finals on Saturday night, Bethel will meet the winner of tonight's Ayden-Farmville contest. The Saturday night contest will determine the Pitt County Conference champions.

A New JOHN CREASEY Thriller

A ROCKET FOR ROLLISON

CHAPTER 11

Richard Rollison pulled on a pair of thin cotton gloves, then tried the handle of the back door and found it locked. He took out the knife which had some remarkable blades, fiddled for a few seconds, and heard the lock click back.

When he pushed, the door yielded. He stepped inside, and the door creaked. He was on the alert for the slightest hint that there might be a dog waiting for him.

He smelled a doggy kind of odor, the curious mustiness and the smell of dog food which permeated this room, but he heard and saw nothing. He switched on the light, and looked about. In one corner was a huge dog basket. There was no sound in here. He stepped through a doorway, which was ajar, and as he did so heard a murmur of voices; he felt quite sure that these came from the front porch.

He smothered a grin at Kennedy's likely reaction to that and heard Kennedy protest: "I can't exactly help being locked out, can I?"

Rollison stepped slowly forward. The light from behind him would shine on the glass panels of the door, and both Kennedy and the policeman would have noticed it by now. He put his hat on the newel post of the banisters, stepped past an open doorway, confident that once he opened the door it would satisfy the policeman.

Then he glanced through the open doorway.

"...there's a light" exclaimed Kennedy. "Someone's awake!"

Rollison heard him, and yet the words seemed to have lost their significance; everything lost its significance because of the sight in front of him. Just inside the doorway, lying on a couch which stood over a small table, lay a girl.

He could not see her face. He could see the way her head dropped over the side of the couch, hair falling down in an odd way, and he could see the utter stillness of the body — as well as the stocking, or what looked like a stocking, around her neck.

Rollison stood absolutely still. The sight of the girl's fair hair hanging down had a horrid fascination, and for a few seconds he could not make himself move away. At last he stretched forward, closed the door cautiously, and went to the front door.

As he opened it he said, "Damn it, Mike, did you have to wake the street?"

"I had to wake you."

"And you did," Rollison glanced at the policeman, who said, "Is everything all right, sir?"

"Perfectly all right. This gentleman is staying with me for a few days. He did have a key."

"Lost it," declared Mike sadly. "Thanks a lot, officer." He stepped inside, as Rollison drew back.

"That's all right, sir. Good-night."

"...night," Rollison echoed. The moment the policeman was cut off from sight, Kennedy was beaming and rubbing his hands together.

"What's up?" he demanded.

"Just check in that room," Rollison pointed to the door which he had closed, and Kennedy pushed it open, stepped inside, switched on the light — and stopped short.

Rollison saw his change of expression. In a strange way, Mike Kennedy seemed to age ten years in ten seconds.

He turned to stare at Rollison. "No wonder you looked as if someone had kicked you in the teeth," he said, bleekly. He went forward, bent down on one knee, and gently raised the girl's head and shoulders. Her mouth was slack, her eyes half-closed. He shifted her position a little, and felt her pulse. "She's a goner," he announced.

Rollison nodded.

"Think she was his 'sister'?"

"I think she must have known a lot which we weren't to find out from her," Rollison said, harshly. "I think—" he broke off.

"If we could have half an hour sooner, we might have saved her," Kennedy said savagely.

"If we could have half an hour sooner, Kate Lawson might be dead instead of this woman," Rollison said. "Mike, I want to look through this place quickly, just in case we can pick up some odds and ends we might be able to use but the police couldn't."

Kennedy stared at him.

Rollison glanced about the room, saw nothing that interested him, and went out. He put on all the lights as he went about the house. There were three large rooms downstairs. He was looking for those missing letters and for a pile of money which might have been stolen recently.

None of the beds had been slept in, but two or three dressing tables had obviously been emptied in a hurry. Only one room had any women's clothes. He went in a small room, and stopped short. In the corner was a safe, its door open and the shelves empty except for a few odds and ends which he felt sure would not be of any help to him.

This was a little office, and the drawers of the only desk and of a green steel filing cabinet were also open. He glanced in these. There was plenty that the police would want to look at, but obviously anything likely to be important had been taken away in the panic rush from this house.

The explanation of this seemed so obvious that he began to wonder if it could be the true one; that the man who had escaped had telephoned a message, and that this girl had been killed as a result of it.

He went downstairs. He found Kennedy in the room with the dead girl. Kennedy was looking at him bleekly.

"There's only one place in the house we haven't visited yet," Rollison said briskly. "That's the cellar. Let's go have a look around." He moved towards a door which he had noticed. He turned the handle, careful to use a glove so that he did not leave any prints, and the door opened without any trouble.

"Look out for that dog," Kennedy muttered.

Rollison stood with the door open an inch or two, listening; and he was quite sure that if a dog had been breathing close to the door, he would have heard it. So he shone a torch about the little landing at the top of the steps, found the electric switch, and pressed it down. Bright light flooded the top and the foot of the stairs. The two men walked down to a little passage with a closed door to the right and an open one straight in front.

Rollison pushed open the closed door, groped for a light, and pressed it down.

On the floor lay a great Alsatian, stretched out stiffly, as obviously dead as the girl had been.

Joe Hunt Seeks Seat In Senate

GREENSBORO (AP) — Speaker of the State House of Representatives, Joseph M. Hunt Jr., has announced he will seek election to the State Senate, thus boosting speculation he may run for governor in 1964.

In announcing his intention to run for a Senate seat Thursday, Hunt said it was too early to comment on speculation he is a likely future gubernatorial candidate.

Made 120-Mile Trip To Rescue Another's Dog

ELKHART, Ind. (AP)—A local couple who made a 120-mile round trip to rescue a dog caught in a fence received more than 200 letters of praise from dog lovers—but they didn't get to keep the dog.

Robert D. Martin, brakeman for the New York Central Railroad, saw the dog's predicament Dec. 26 on a run from Elkhart to Chicago. When he got home, he and his wife set out at 3 a.m. to drive the 60 miles to where the dog was caught near Otis, Ind.

Associated Press stories of the good deed not only brought hundreds of letters but also Claude L. Humphrey of Otis in person. The Martins gave the dog to Humphrey after he identified the big Irish wolfhound-labrador retriever.

Humphrey, himself a former railroadman, said he has a tendency to fall on ice or snow because of a back injury and the dog, Prince, helps him back on his feet.

Prince suffered a broken leg in the fence but a veterinarian reported it is healing nicely.

BOONE NOT BURLEY

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—Do you picture Daniel Boone as a big, rough-looking man? Not so, says George Chinn of the Kentucky Historical Society. Chinn says Boone was a lean, wiry man who stood about five-foot-ten and would have looked good in an Ivy League suit.

Yale Univ. Singing Group To Perform

The Duke's Men of Yale University, an informal singing group, will perform at East Carolina College on Tuesday evening, March 20, it was announced today.

The group, composed of about 14 members, will present a variety of arrangements ranging from popular and show tunes to songs from the thirties.

During their career of 10 years, the group has enjoyed success and in recent years has toured Florida, the southeast and midwestern colleges. Some points on their tours in the springs of 1958-61 were Pinehurst Country Club, Fort Bragg, Hollins College, Ponte Vedra, Bath and Tennis Club and the Colony Hotel in Palm Beach, the Hillsboro Club in Pompano Beach and the Ivanhoe, Algiers, and Fountainbleau Hotels in Miami. In the spring of 1956 they took a successful tour through some of the midwestern colleges during spring vacation.

This month they plan to visit Nassau, fulfilling an engagement at the Nassau Harbour Club over the weekend of March 23. They have also sung at the Gulfstream Race Track Clubhouse for two of their annual Dinner Stakes parties and have been invited back on March 27.

The Duke's Men have sung at debutante parties at Palm Beach, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Buffalo, New York, Boston and Grosse Pointe, Mich.

The choral group has been considered among the best at Yale University for a number of years.

During their visit here, they will dine with Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina College, and Mrs. Jenkins as their guests for dinner.

U.S. And Soviet Agree On Cultural Exchanges

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union, where kings and jazz officials are decadent, soon will have both in a visit by Benny Goodman, "The King of Swing."

A two-year cultural exchange agreement signed Thursday by American and Soviet officials will boost by 10 to 15 per cent the number of exchange visits of teachers, technicians, artists, officials, athletes and others between the two countries. An estimated 2,000 exchanges a year were carried out under the 1960-1 agreement.

This will be the first time a Goodman jazz group has played in the Soviet Union.

Communist negotiators first balked at including the clarinetist in the exchange. Red officials don't frown on jazz as a demoralized bourgeois product.

But, U.S. negotiators prevailed after pointing out that Goodman has performed with classical music groups in this country and will be able to do the same in the Soviet Union as well as play jazz.

U.S. officials declined to label the 3-page pact as a victory for the United States, but they favored the program generally as a means of penetrating the isolationism of the Soviet Union.

While the U.S. negotiators won some new projects, as did the Soviets, the American side admittedly made little headway in expanding the free flow of information in winning broader research opportunities for U.S. students in the Soviet Union or in gaining financial compensation for U.S. artistic performances in the Soviet Union comparable to what the Soviets get here.

The Soviets did agree to a U.S. proposal to double, from 50,000 to 100,000, the circulation of each other's official monthly magazine. The United States has been providing "Amerika" for Soviet readers and the Soviets have printed "U.S.S.R." in this country.

Rotation Urged In Senate Post

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Democratic party leaders of Iredell, Catawba and Lincoln counties have urged to work out a rotation agreement in their senatorial district or face intervention by state headquarters.

State Democratic Chairman Bert Bennett told party rally in Wayne County Thursday night that one senatorial district has not changed its rotation in more than 20 years.

He did not mention the 25th district, comprising Iredell, Catawba and Lincoln counties, by name, but there is little doubt as to which district he had in mind.

Triples Named For Astronauts

MOSCOW (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Aleksandr Revkov of Guryev, Kazakhstan, announced today they have named their twin triplet sons Yuri, Gherman and John—after the first three astronauts to orbit the earth.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the couple promised to bring up the triplets to be as courageous and brave as their famous namesakes, Yuri Gagarin, Gherman Titov and John Glenn.

Is There Really A DIFFERENCE?

Before you trade for a new tractor this year, find out if there really is any difference in 3-point hitch systems.

Go to the Dealer of your choice and find out if that Tractor offers you the following:

- Does this tractor offer fully automatic hydraulic control of the 3-point hitch, Both Up and Down (The International B-414 Does.)
- Does this tractor offer complete Live Hydraulics as standard equipment, live even when clutch is all the way down? (The International B-414 Does.)
- Are there Two Levers on the control quadrant, one to raise and lower the implement, the other to set and Vary the draft control? (There are on the International B-414.)
- Is the draft control system on this tractor sensitive enough that you can cause it to work merely by applying your own bodily pressure to the upper link? (It is on the International B-414.)
- Can you actually Vary the amount of draft control on this tractor? (You can on the International B-414.)

These five questions will give you an idea of the differences in lift system. In addition, the International B-414 offers such features as (1) differential lock (2) live PTO (3) 2-stage clutch (4) 8 forward speeds (5) two reverses.

Yes, there really is a difference and you will do yourself a favor to take a close look at the New International B-414 before you trade for any tractor this year. Remember, this is the tractor that PLANTS and CULTIVATES OVER THE TERRACES!

Adult Education In Area Of Agriculture Discussed To Attend Conference

WINTERVILLE — An adult education conference in vocational agriculture was held here yesterday for the purpose of planning for adult education in agriculture in Pitt County.

Attending the meeting were A. G. Bullard, state supervisor of vocational agriculture from Raleigh; V. B. Hairr, district supervisor of vocational agriculture from District one; W. W. McClure, curriculum specialist from Raleigh; Superintendent of County Schools D. H. Conley; and Pitt County Agriculture teachers with members of their advisory committees.

Bullard emphasized that there is a need for more adult education in the area of agriculture. He pointed to the fact that there are 36,000 boys enrolled in agriculture programs in the state, while there are only 18,000 adults enrolled in such programs.

Procedures for organizing adult education programs for farmers in agriculture were outlined by Hairr. He said technical assistance to these programs may be secured through the area vocational schools, such as industrial training schools. Until the Pitt industrial school becomes operative, aid for adults here will come through the Wilson center, he said.

Conley discussed the value of the agriculture program in the county towards meeting the changing technical needs in agriculture.

At the meeting, plans were announced by J. H. Mobley of Winterville, S. F. Peterson of Ayden and L. E. Tetterton of Grimesland, agriculture instructors, to hold welding courses for adults within the next few weeks at the local agriculture departments. The exact date will be announced.

Adults in Pitt County are urged to make known their interests in any area of agriculture to the agriculture teachers.

Temperatures Up To 44 Degrees

Temperatures here had warmed up to 44 degrees by noon today, turning the precipitation into rain.

Snow had been forecast for a large part of the state, but here it was too warm for snow. Precipitation is supposed to end tonight except possibly for coastal regions.

Saturday will bring improving weather conditions, with rather cold temperatures, the weatherman said.

In Greenville, temperatures during the night remained at 36 degrees, Kent Glisson of the Greenville Utilities Plant reported. Thursday's high and low temperatures were 51 and 30 degrees.

The Tar River level today was 9.7 feet.

Brewer Fails To Attend Hearing

RALEIGH (AP) — Raleigh businessman Kidd Brewer and his attorneys failed to appear today for a scheduled hearing on Brewer's state income tax returns.

Revenue Commissioner William A. Johnson had set the hearing for 10 a.m. but he also was absent. Johnson has been sick for the last two or three days with a cold at his home in Lillington.

Asst. Revenue Commissioner I. L. Clayton said nothing would be done on the matter until Johnson gets back to his office.

Clean-Up ...

Sanford issued a proclamation saying that a state of emergency existed in the Dare County area and parts of Currituck and Hyde counties. President Kennedy already had declared it a disaster area.

The designations were required to enable residents in the area to make use of federal loans and other relief.

State Civil Defense Director Edward F. Griffin said, "This is really a catastrophe. I'd say every house over there had been damaged—by sand or water or something."

About 200 persons were plucked by helicopters, amphibious ducks or wide-wheeled highway department road graders from danger spots at the height of the storm.

Abandoned on the chopped-up roads which traverse the strip were cars, trucks, a trailways bus and a large tanker truck. Damage to U.S. 158 and 158 bypass was severe.

Cottages, motels and hotels along the strip were washed away, crushed or toppled by the relentless tidal action. The strip's northern section around Kill Devil Hills appeared to have been hit the hardest.

Is your daughter getting married?

The next 10 years will see a 52% increase in the 18-24 age group. In 1962, there will be 1,620,000 new brides. More than 2,000,000 weddings are predicted for 1968, and 2,500,000 in 1975.

In Pitt County, a boy and girl can be married for $4.00, but that, of course, is only the down payment. By the time you add up the cost of a trousseau, engraved invitations, matching gowns for bride's maids, and a wedding reception, it can really run into money.

What can you do about it? Here's a hint: $1.00 deposited each month in a savings account at this bank, with daily interest, compounded quarterly, will grow to $140.04 in 10 years, or it will total $266.17 in 17 years. (One bride in every seven now-a-days is 17 years old or younger.)

But let's be realistic: If you have a baby girl now, who might be getting married at 18, how much a month would it take, beginning now, to save up about $500.00 for her wedding? Answer: $2.00 a month will give you $572.89. How much for a $1,000.00 wedding? Answer: $4.00 a month will amount to $1,145.78 in 18 years. How about a $5,000.00 wedding? Answer: About $18.00 a month will do it.

So, open a special savings account today. Make sure your daughter has the kind of wedding you'd like for her to have.

J. T. Marston, Jr.
President
