

Food And Other Staples In Cuba To Be Rationed

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro, admitting his 3-year-old revolution faces serious problems, announced drastic rationing of food and other staples Monday night and declared: "We are ashamed of not fulfilling the promises made." Castro blamed the current hardships on counter-revolutionary elements and "the brutal economic blockade"—the U.S. embargo. President Kennedy ordered last month on shipments to Cuba of nearly all American goods except medical supplies. The bearded prime minister also admitted that his regime had made serious blunders in planning "because we made subjective analyses." "The most serious problem of the revolution is that of supplies," he told the Cuban people in a radio-television speech. "This problem will put to the test the capacity of the revolution and the revolutionaries. There are thorns in the path." Castro was unsmiling and his tone was often bitter as he renegeed on his promise last July that food rationing in Cuba would end toward the middle of the year. He said nationwide rationing of rice and all types of beans—basic items in the Cuban diet—and of lard and cooking oils will begin next Monday. Every Cuban will be limited to six pounds of rice and 1 1/2 pounds of each type of beans a month, he said. Lard and cooking oils had already been rationed in most of Cuba. Castro said soap, toothpaste and detergents will go on the ration list in the major cities. The limit will be one bar of toilet soap and one box of detergent a month. The three items have long been scarce. The stiffest measures will affect Havana's more than one million residents. Beef will be limited to three-quarters of a pound per per-

West Delays Presenting Nuclear Testing Guards

GENEVA (AP)—The United States and Britain had decided against presenting any detailed and elaborate proposals at the 17-nation disarmament conference for guarding against secret preparations to test nuclear weapons, an authoritative Western source said today. This decision was reported as U.S. secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko talked for three hours at a luncheon, their second in two days. They were believed to have discussed some aspects of disarmament as well as the issue of Berlin, which has been their main topic. "It is too early for any conclusions," Gromyko said as he left Rusk's lakeside hotel—an indication no agreements were reached. Gromyko said that he presumed he and Rusk would meet again, but no date was set. On the question of Berlin and divided Germany, Gromyko indicated he was standing by Soviet insistence on the signing of a peace treaty that would recognize Communist East Germany by saying: "An agreed solution on a peace treaty is the best solution." As to the question of nuclear testing, the informed source said U.S. and British experts have failed to come up with a practical plan for an international inspection system that would guard against Soviet secret preparations to make a new series of nuclear tests. They also recognized that the Russians would reject any elaborate system as a scheme for espionage, it was said. In Washington, President Kennedy, speaking through Democratic congressional leaders after a breakfast at the White House, said U.S. negotiators are determined "to seek realistic avenues of agreement that will permit the world to move forward from this time of nuclear peril to a more secure and promising future."

He said the United States is "prepared to take action on whatever disarmament measures can be agreed upon as soon as such agreement is reached." Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home were reported to believe the best they can hope to negotiate is an agreement providing for some sort of spot checks in known testing areas. Kennedy recently cited the need for safeguards against secret test preparations because the West was taken in by the Russians last year. The Soviet Union began a surprise series of nuclear tests while still negotiating in Geneva for a test ban treaty. Informants said the Russians, in informal talks going on here in preparation for the 17-nation disarmament conference opening Wednesday, stood firm on their old position that on-the-spot inspection is no longer necessary to detect nuclear blasts. They contend that detection instruments are now so highly developed they can detect nuclear explosions anywhere. The Russians released a rehash of Soviet disarmament proposals Monday which Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko is expected to put before the disarmament conference. Replying to questionnaires from acting U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant, Gromyko called for an international convention banning the use of nuclear weapons; a pledge by the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union not to turn over nuclear weapons or information on how to produce them to other countries; a pledge by the non-nuclear countries not to produce or acquire nuclear weapons or allow their stationing on their territory, and the designation of Africa and central Europe as atom-free zones from which nuclear weapons would be barred. Gromyko's letters as usual said nothing about measures to enforce such nuclear bans. West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder joined the roster of Western statesmen meeting informally today with Gromyko to discuss major conflicts between East and West.

Union Attorneys Ask Dismissal Of Grifton Suit

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer NEW BERN — Union attorneys in federal court here Monday filed a motion to dismiss a suit brought by Grifton workers seeking to save their jobs at the Grifton Clothing Co. Eastern District Judge John D. Larkins considered the motion as an answer to his "show cause" order issued last week and called for legal briefs from plaintiffs' and defendants' attorneys by next Wednesday before ruling on the motion. The judge said he would review the briefs in his chambers in Trenton next week before deciding whether an additional court hearing will be necessary. Several of the Grifton plant's employees filed the suit last week to block closing down of the garment-producing factory and moving the operation to Philadelphia. This would be done under a January decision by an arbitrator in Philadelphia, described by attorneys for the Grifton workers as "so-called impartial." Action has been brought into Eastern District Federal Court in Pennsylvania by the union to enforce the arbitrator's decision. Judge Larkins has granted a temporary injunction to delay moving of the plant—and the Pennsylvania judge apparently is awaiting the North Carolina decision. The Pennsylvania action was brought against Sidney H. Evans, owner of the Evans Manufacturing Co. of Philadelphia, parent organization of the Grifton plant. The union charged that Evans violated a March, 1960 agreement when the Grifton plant did not become unionized. In the agreement the union allowed Evans' establishment of the Grifton plant if he would use his best efforts toward unionizing the North Carolina operation and if he would not reduce employment at his Philadelphia plant. Efforts in August, 1960, by union agents failed to produce any Grifton workers to petition for a union election, thus the unionization plan failed. Meantime, employment in Evans' Philadelphia plant has increased. Monday's union motion to dismiss was based upon contentions that Judge Larkins' court has no jurisdiction in the matter and upon a pair of affidavits alleged to render the union improperly before the court. Atlanta Attorney Robert Cohn, who filed the Grifton garment industry case as a pilot operation late in 1959. Several months later it moved into a $250,000 plant financed by Griftonians. Employment now is about 150. Should the judge disallow the defense motion and rule that his court has jurisdiction, he would set a hearing to determine whether the temporary injunction against moving the plant would become permanent. If Judge Larkins allows the motion to dismiss, the Grifton workers will be obliged to pursue their action with the National Labor Relations Board. A complaint has already been filed with that agency but the workers turned to the federal court for fear the plant would be moved before the NLRB could act. Nearly 30 Griftonians attended Monday's hearing scheduled as the last matter before Judge Larkins during the criminal term of federal court. Beginning at 4 p.m., the hearing lasted for an hour and a half. Wheeler, the Grifton attorney who originated the action in behalf of the workers, commented after Monday's hearing: "This could be a first impression case." That means the difference would have to be resolved without a precedent court decision involving the particular issues which are factors in the case. The Grifton garment industry began as a pilot operation late in 1959. Several months later it moved into a $250,000 plant financed by Griftonians. Employment now is about 150.

Atlanta Firm Has Recreation Study Go-ahead

An Atlanta, Georgia, firm was given the go-ahead by members of the Greenville Recreation Commission to complete a study and summary of present needs for the city's recreation program. At last night's meeting commission members voted to allow the Charles M. Graves organization to complete their study of the local recreation situation and prepare their final report on conditions. Graves himself presented his organization's preliminary report to a joint meeting of the commission and a special advisory group in February. In that report, Graves said estimated costs of the "immediate need" for the city would total about $590,000. He emphasized that this immediate needs segment is what is now needed to bring the city recreation facilities and program up to standard. Included in the immediate needs listed in the preliminary report were facilities at South Greenville and Elm Street Parks, a building at Guy Smith Stadium and in the Riverdale Section and the purchase of an estimated 35 acres of land to be used for future development. Additional facilities at the Elm Street and South Greenville parks would include new buildings or additions to present structures and swimming pools. To illustrate the fact that Greenville is lagging behind in its recreation programs, the report shows that Greenville, during 1960-61, spent only $2.11 per person for recreation, while other cities in the state far exceeded this figure. Morganton, for example, with a population of 9,186, spent last year $5.81 per person. Kinston and Wilson spend $4.38 and $3.61 for recreation respectively while Rocky Mount's expenditures last year totaled $3.72 per person. Kinston's population is 24,811 while Wilson's was reported at 28,753. Shelby, with a population of 17,998, is the highest spending city in the state with a total of $6.51 per capita spent last year on their program. The report by Graves is part of a "Master Plan" for future development of facilities here being made by the consulting firm.

$4.8 Billion Foreign Aid Program Given Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy formally submitted a $4.878,500,000 foreign aid program to Congress today. He insisted every dollar is vitally needed to combat threats of communism, chaos and tyranny in other lands. Kennedy drew a line against cutting the appropriation in a special message to Capitol Hill. Members of Congress always are inclined to cut the vast program—and show little inclination to break the habit this time. Some of the appropriations require authorizing legislation. Hearings get under way Wednesday before the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Except for fresh words of persuasion, the presidential message generally follows in all essentials previews of the aid program for the 1963 fiscal year already presented in Kennedy's budget and State of the Union message. The President proposed $3,378,500,000 of appropriations for economic help and $1,500,000,000 for military assistance, to make up the $4,878,500,000 total. Last year he asked for a total of $4,806,000,000 and got only $3,914,500,000—a reduction of $891,500,000. Congress provided $2,314,500,000 or economic and $1,600,000,000 for military aid. Expenditures, which always trail behind appropriations, would go up from an expected $1,925,000,000 to $2,235,000,000 for economic assistance for the 1962 and 1963 fiscal years. Those for military aid would remain unchanged at $1.4 billion for each year. Kennedy said his recommendations are based on careful examination or urgent needs. The amounts in every category, he said, are essential to achieving the goal of strengthening developing countries to meet the stress of rapid change and to "repel Communist efforts to exploit such stress." Contending that slashes by Congress would be hazardous, the chief executive said: "We should know by now that where weakness and dependence are not transformed into strength and self-reliance, we can expect only chaos, and then tyranny, to follow." The only major change in the aid program this year had been announced previously. This is a request that Congress authorize a $3 billion fund to be used over the next four years for the Alliance for Progress in Latin America. Kennedy asked Congress to appropriate $600 million of the total for the coming year and said about $500 million would go to loans and $100 million to grants.

Move Slated To Abolish Poll Tax

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration moves today to bring before the Senate a proposed constitutional amendment to abolish poll taxes as the first step toward stiffer civil rights legislation. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana announced Monday the poll tax measure, now stuck in the Senate Judiciary Committee, will be offered as a substitute for a House-passed bill on the calendar. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Democratic leader, told reporters the administration hopes thus to set a pattern for a post-Easter battle to strike down state literacy tests in federal elections. He said a bill to make the completion of a sixth-grade education the only literacy requirement for voting in federal elections also will be offered. "The abolition of state poll taxes is a modest, but necessary step in our civil rights program," Humphrey said. "We will follow the same pattern in trying to get action on the literacy test issue." Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., called the administration move for a poll tax amendment a subterfuge, designed to get a plus mark for the Democrats in the civil rights field. He said such an amendment may never be adopted by the states even if it passes Congress. He said he would offer a bill to accomplish the same purpose. The administration obviously has concluded it will not be able to get either the proposed poll tax constitutional amendment or the literacy bill out of the Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss. Mississippi is one of the five states which still have a poll tax. Others are Alabama, Arkansas, Texas and Virginia. The House Judiciary Committee was told Monday by Rep. William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, that only in Alabama and Mississippi is the tax used as a discriminatory device against Negro voters.

First Lady Sees Item Of U.S. Aid

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy got a look today at an Indian project financed by American aid, the All-India Medical Institute. She said she was delighted. Two young heart patients gave the American First Lady a bouquet of roses. Children suffering from various ailments left their beds to greet her. The medical center still is incomplete. It was built with $6 million in U.S. government aid and $828,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation, plus other foreign assistance. Mrs. Kennedy was the guest of President Rajendra Prasad at a glittering luncheon. Tonight she switched her residence from a borrowed bungalow to the pink suite of Prime Minister Nehru's home. She rested late this morning. Weary from a flight from Rome in which she had only 3 1/2 hours sleep, plus the excitement of her arrival here she slept 12 hours. She drove bareheaded to the presidential mansion for the luncheon. A change in her schedule provides for a sail Friday down the sacred Ganges River by the ghats of Banaras, where Hindus are cremated. After seeing the Taj Mahal by moonlight Thursday night, Mrs. Kennedy will fly to Banaras and spend the night there. Next morning, she will see the most holy city of the Hindus before flying to Udaipur, where she will stay in a white marble palace by a lake hidden in the west Indian hills. The change of schedule was announced by Jay Gildner, assistant White House press secretary. It reinstates one stop which had been canceled when her visit was shortened from the originally planned 17 days to nine days. Prasad invited 79 guests, including top government officials and their wives, to meet Mrs. Kennedy and her sister, Princess Lee Radziwill. The ailing, 77-year-old president sat on the sidelines while Prime Minister Nehru escorted Mrs. Kennedy around the horseshoe-shaped line of guests. Mrs. Kennedy shook hands with everyone. She wore a cool green, sleeveless linen dress by her official designer, Oleg Cassini, three strands of pearls and beige shoes. A white linen bow was pinned in the back of her hair. Princess Radziwill also wore green, a sleeveless silk print. Since the Indian government opposes the use of alcohol, no liquor was served. Silver trays of mango and grape juices were passed to the guests before luncheon. Prasad led Mrs. Kennedy into the banquet hall through a corridor lined with turbaned presidential guardsmen, splendid scarlet and gold tunics and holding lances.

London Leaf Shares Slump

LONDON (AP)—Tobacco shares slumped to their lowest point for three years on the London Stock Exchange today following the government's announcement of an educational drive against smoking. Two shillings (28 cents) was stuck from the shares of Imperial Tobacco, Britain's biggest cigarette firm. At 54 shillings 3 pence ($7.59) the were lower than at any time since 1959. Shares in the Gallaher tobacco combine also fell sharply by one shilling six pence (21 cents). The Conservative government said Monday night it had been "authoritatively and crushingly" shown that smoking is a cause of lung cancer. The government statement in the House of Commons followed last week's publication of a report by the Royal College of Physicians, linking cigarette smoking directly with the killer disease. Arrangements were in hand for a massive education program to be carried out in the schools by the government's health and education departments. The object of the campaign will be to wean children from the idea of tobacco smoking long before they reach the age of consent. NO DISSENT WASHINGTON (AP)—A resolution sponsored by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., breezed through the Senate Monday without a murmur of dissent. It congratulated the Girl Scouts of America on their 50th anniversary.

State Asks For 'Disaster' Label

RALEIGH (AP)—President Kennedy has been asked to designate North Carolina's storm-battered Outer Banks a major disaster area making it eligible for federal funds to repair public facilities. After a meeting with the governor Monday, state and federal Civil Defense officials tentatively estimated damage wrought by Wednesday's storm at $12 million. The governor relayed a telegram to the President requesting the disaster area designation. It was sent to Thomas H. Goodman, director of the Office of Emergency Planning's Southeast area at Thomasville, Ga. Goodman was one of several officials who met with the governor to discuss the damage and summarize rehabilitation efforts by state and federal agencies. Sanford promised the federal government he would submit a detailed damage estimate as soon as the figures are available. He also said he would specify how much federal aid is needed. The Highway Department reported it has moved 30 pieces of equipment into the stricken area from Duck to Hatteras to supplement those already there. It said ferry service had been restored except across Oregon Inlet where roads still are impassible. A special ferry is continuing to make emergency runs between Enslinhard and Hatteras supplying food, fuel and water to isolated residents.

Specialists Hope Hospital Salt Deaths Halted

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP)—This city of 75,000 took hope today that four babies critically ill after being fed a salt-laden formula at Binghamton General Hospital would not be added to the death toll of seven. Parents had the word of the hospital's chief pediatrician that the four had a chance. Six other babies who were fed the formula were being closely watched. Seventeen others have been discharged. State and local authorities were investigating the deaths, most of which are suspected of having resulted from salt-poisoning after salt was placed in a sugar container used for the infants' formula. Teams of specialists worked to save the survivors. Dr. Lawrence Finberg of the Johns Hopkins Medical School faculty flew from Baltimore to aid Dr. Jason K. Moyer, hospital medical director, said one of the babies who died had not been fed the salt formula. Dr. Moyer said there would be a general re-evaluation of procedures in the infant department. "We are not sure whether sodium intoxication (salt poisoning) was responsible for these deaths," Moyer told a news conference Monday night. The cause of the deaths, he said, will not be known definitely until autopsies and laboratory tests are completed. Finberg is an expert in dialysis, restoring chemical balance to the body. He joined Dr. John E. Kiley of Albany Medical College in directing the teams attempting to save the four. The treatment consists of removal and replacement of the infants' blood by transfusion. Dr. John Ford, chief pediatrician at the hospital, said reports were more favorable that the infants would survive. Ford said two of the infants were down to normal sodium (salt) levels and the salt levels in the blood of the other two were dropping. Latest to die was Michelle Dawn Bowser, 4 days, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowser of Binghamton. The bodies of six of the dead children—three boys and three girls ranging in age from 3 days to 8 months—were "apparently loaded with common table salt," a physician said. A practical nurse questioned about salt found in a sugar can in the formula room of the hospital, Lillie Colvin, 29, has denied any wrongdoing and extended her sympathy to the grief-stricken parents. Mrs. Colvin is the mother of three children and is pregnant. Mrs. Colvin, who filled the sugar can last Tuesday, was not charged but has been suspended from the hospital staff.

Benefit Staged By Faculty Wives Deemed Successful

The Faculty Wives of East Carolina College were hostesses Friday night to approximately 200 guests at a combination fashion show and card tournament held in the college cafeteria. All proceeds were donated to the stadium fund.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. F. D. Duncan and Mrs. William Durham and seated at tables where they were first entertained by the fashion show. Seven local stores participated in the show. Twenty-one faculty and staff men and women modeled 32 outfits, varying from sportswear and casual clothing to coats, suits and formal attire. Mrs. C. J. Bradner acted as narrator, accompanied by Mrs. Earl Beach at the piano. A candle tree with burning tapers and banked by red star chrysanthemums graced the room, in addition to numerous pots of shefflera.

Immediately following the fashion show guests were served apple pie and coffee, after which they spent the remainder of the evening playing bridge and canasta. Each table contained various favors for the guests and soft drinks were served halfway through the tournament. Mrs. John Reynolds received high prize for bridge while Frances Daniels held high canasta score.

Students Job Hunt

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—This spring some 150,000 college girl graduates—practically the population of Tacoma, Wash.—will descend upon the nation's employers in search of jobs.

What will be their reception—opened arms or closed doors? A recent survey of 30 college placement officials and 50 corporation personnel executives by the Wall Street Journal indicates the young women will have more jobs to choose from this year—but the positions won't necessarily be those dreamed of on campus.

BEST BETS
— New jobs opening in industry, particularly for girls training in mathematics and sciences.
— Acceptance increasing above the clerical level in finance, particularly insurance and banking.
— Old standbys still strong: teaching, nursing, retailing, secretarial and library work.

ROUGHER GOING
— Business management jobs practically inaccessible, not only because of downright prejudice against women as bosses, but because of a justified fear the girls won't stay long enough to make management training pay off.

— Glamour fields—advertising, television, publishing, foundation work—have few openings for liberal arts graduate without a specialty, except maybe as secretary (if she is proficient at typing and shorthand) to an executive.

PAY POSSIBILITIES
— Only women with scientific and technical training likely to get salaries on a par with men. One estimate puts women's salary lag behind men's pay for equivalent positions at $50-$100 a month.

The survey points out that Labor Department studies indicate around 80 per cent of girl graduates work full-time work. More than a third marry not long after getting a diploma but a majority of these will work anyway.

While most companies aren't against a woman or even motherhood—they don't see taking chances on a management level. One official, pointing out that the average college girl stays only three years, remarks:

"She regards her job as an interesting interim between school and raising a family. If we knew a man was going to be with us only three years, we wouldn't hire him."

A New York department store says retailing is one of the best bets for a girl looking for a job. And a university placement director says more girls are going into retailing every year.

Yet one retailing executive who recently cut the proportion of women employees in his store says: "We'll lose $4,000 by putting a girl through a training program only to find that she insists on getting married and having a baby."

Most college placement officials agree perhaps the biggest demand for women is in engineering, mathematics and the physical sciences. Says a placement officer at the University of Michigan:

"Women have just as good a chance as men in any science field and can earn comparable salaries."
Electronics Firms Interested

Several electronics firms say they're stepping up hiring of women. Another, which wants to complain colleges don't have enough girls specializing in the fields it's interested in. Electronics firms frequently make wide use of its technically trained women in programming computers.

At least one big pharmaceutical house finds women better suited than men for some laboratory jobs—"more patient and painstaking."

As with the scientific and technical fields, finance is opening up for women. More women are going into market research and investments, and several Wall Street investment firms now have training programs for women college graduates. A San Francisco banker says: "Women are becoming more important in the banking industry than ever before. We don't have enough of them."

Insurance companies want women for training as actuaries (that's figuring out insurance rates on the basis of life expectancies), for electronic data processing jobs and for selling.

But some industries still feel women don't fit in at all, except of course, for clerical work. Says the personnel director of a huge company producing steel, aluminum and cement: "We don't make any effort to recruit women because the opportunities are mainly for men. Can you imagine a female chemical engineer in a cement plant?"

Business, Prof. Women Meet

The Career Advancement Committee, Mrs. Kemp Baldwin, chairman, presented the program at the meeting of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club on Thursday night. The committee's theme is "Realizing Individual Career Potentials." Several humorous skits depicting the various occupations of the members were given by club members.

Mrs. Baldwin concluded the program by suggesting traits which are desirable for job advancement, such as personal appearance, personality and qualifications.

Mrs. Lou Smith, accompanied by Mrs. Jack Kittrell, gave several vocal numbers. Miss Gladys Stokes and Miss Elizabeth Deal reported on the Spotlight on Women Conference held recently in Chapel Hill.

The dates of guest night meetings of clubs in Goldsboro, New Bern, and Jacksonville were announced. Announcement was also made of District Meeting to be held in Jacksonville on April 1st. Nominations for Club Woman of the Year were asked for. Committee chairmen were reminded that annual reports should be in by April 15th. The president announced with regret that the secretary, Mrs. Elsie May, is moving from Greenville. Miss Alva Taylor will serve as secretary for the rest of the year. Mrs. Beulah Allen was a guest.

Sr. Citizens Meet Thursday

The Senior Citizens of Greenville will hold their regular meeting Thursday at 10 a. m. at Elm Street Park.

Featured at this meeting will be a "Handwork Share Fair," with each member invited to bring some item of handwork for a sharing of talent and ideas. Also included in the program is a short film on handcrafts done by other Senior Citizens in other parts of the United States.

The Senior Citizens, sponsored by the Greenville Recreation Department, is open to men and women in the retired age group. For further information, or for help with transportation, you are invited to contact Mrs. Terry Agner at Elm Street Park, PL 2-2355.

Georgia Choir To Sing In Farmville

FARMVILLE—A highlight of this season's musical programs will be a concert by the A Cappella Choir of the Woman's College of Mills College, Ga., to be given at the Farmville Methodist Church, Farmville, Tuesday night, March 20, at 8 o'clock.

Each year this choral group presents concerts to groups throughout the state of Georgia as well as to audiences in New York, Miami, and New Orleans. The director, Dr. Max Noah, who formerly directed music festivals which drew hundreds of high school musicians to Woman's College of Georgia each spring, is recognized as one of the nation's ablest figures in the music world. He has also assisted at the East Carolina College music clinic. Dr. Noah studied under Dr. John Finley Williamson, director of the Westminster Choir at Princeton, N. J. He was formerly head of the Dept. of Music at Guilford College, N. C., where he organized the Guilford College Choir, which celebrated its 25th anniversary in 1953. He has held the position as head of the Department of Music at the Woman's College of Georgia since 1935, the charter year of the WCG A Cappella Choir.

This year the group is touring to New York via Hartwell, Ga.; University of North Carolina; Farmville, North Carolina; Strasburg, Va.; Washington, D. C.; and Wilmington, Del. The public is cordially invited to hear this concert.

Mrs. R. O. Lang Jr., Farmville, was a charter member of the choir.

SATURDAY LAST DAY

Musical Program Given Benjamin May Chapter

FARMVILLE—The talent and musicianship of Miss Craig Daughtridge of Rocky Mount, senior at East Carolina College, a major in piano and music education, were given in a musical program to DAR Chapter members and guests present at the March meeting of that group held at the Major Benjamin May chapter house Saturday.

Mrs. E. P. Bass, joint hostess with Mrs. Hayward Smith and daughter, Mrs. Ralph Rector, of Washington, D. C., presented Miss Daughtridge and her piano instructor, Miss Elizabeth Drake.

The Major May Chapter has, during the past several years, lent active support to the progress and development of the Music Department at East Carolina College. Its members have contributed individually and collectively towards the musical careers of outstanding students, and shown special interest in the instructors, many of whom have, together with their pupils, made concert appearances here.

The Chapter's concert grand piano, purchased by members and friends in the community, has attracted attention in musical circles in this entire section of the State, and lent itself to the fine performance of musicians presenting programs here throughout the years.

The meeting was opened with the American's creed and pledge of allegiance, led by the Regent, Miss Elizabeth Lang, and the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" with Mrs. M. V. Jones at the piano. A cordial welcome to chapter members and guests was extended by the Regent.

With Revelations 7:12 as a theme for her meditation, Mrs. G. Alex Rouse, chaplain, outlined plans and activities now underway by an organized agency, Christian Witness In Century 21, Inc., composed of representatives from 33 Christian groups, which will assure predominance of the Christian Gospel and faith at the World's Fair at Seattle.

The minutes, read by Mrs. John B. Wright, were followed by a report of the treasurer, Mrs. J. O. Pollard. The usual Buffalo nickel offering was taken and the Regent announced that the Chapter's Indian work project last year was taken care of in this way.

Mrs. Henrietta M. Williamson, national defense chairman, read a selection, "Education For Socialism," in which was embodied views and the stand taken by the National Society against Federal aid for education. Mrs. Howard D. Moye, Honor Roll chairman, spoke briefly on this year's honor roll prospects. The Regent commended the special American History Month committee with Mrs. W. E. Joyner and Mrs. Vange Perkins as co-chairmen, for activities in observance of this period in Farmville and Greenville.

Mrs. Moye gave a report of the nominating committee which was accepted, resulting in the election of the following new officers: Miss Elizabeth Lang, 1st Vice Regent; Mrs. M. V. Jones, 2nd Vice Regent; Mrs. W. M. Murray, recording secretary; Mrs. R. T. Williams, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. E. Joyner, historian; Miss Nancy Lewis, librarian. Re-elected were: Mrs. G. Alex Rouse, chaplain; Mrs. J. O. Pollard, treasurer; Miss Tabitha DeVisconti, registrar.

Due to the fact that the slate of officers was incomplete, the Regent appointed, upon motion of Mrs. Moye, Greenville members to assist in this connection: Mrs. T. W. Rouse, Mrs. Dorothy W. Johnson and Mrs. Spruill Spain.

Announcement was made relative to the State Conference in Charlotte, March 13-15, at which the Chapter will be represented by the Regent, Miss Lang, Miss Tabitha DeVisconti and Miss Nannie P. Hearne, of Macleesfield.

Mrs. S. H. Aycock, Good Citizens chairman, presented the Chapter's candidate, Miss Annette Moseley, Farmville High senior, chosen for this honor by her fellow classmates and the faculty by reason of her scholastic standing and ideals. Miss Moseley gave impressions of her recent visit to Tryon Palace and the luncheon accorded candidates by the district. She was given an enthusiastic welcome by the Chapter.

Following adjournment, the hostesses served block ice in the St. Patrick colors and motif, snowballs and confections, consisting of minis, brown-eyed Susans and chocolate meringue drops.

Special guests were Mrs. R. E. Davenport Jr., Mrs. J. T. Thorne, Mrs. John T. Broome, Miss Moseley, and participants in the program. Smilax, magnolia leaves and daffodils were used to decorate the colonial mantels, and arrangements of Spring flowering shrubs in floor baskets and daffodils and camellias in bowls on the speaker's and auxiliary tables were designed to complete the theme.

In Australia, even sheep on the hoof are treated with a soapy solution—which helps to protect the wool while it grows!

Students attending a "Careers in Retailing" seminar sponsored by the National Retail Merchants Association would have been surprised by this comment of one nearby store owner: "Before those girls come around to my store looking for careers, they'd better take washcloths and scrub some of that soap off their faces!"

Those young ladies must have had a mistaken notion that makeup is a substitute for soap and water!

Altar Anxiety?

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Premarital jitters, an agony of doubt, is far more commonplace among engaged couples than is ever acknowledged, claims Mrs. Ruth Engel, marriage counselor.

But suffering there is not necessarily a good reason for postponing the wedding. "Mental torment before uttering 'I do' is just as often an indication of a good marriage as it is a bad one," she emphasizes.

There was an occasion three years ago when a frightened bride startled her wedding guest by exploding "No!" to the vital question at the altar and ran down the aisle in tears.

Not as rare are instances of terrified men and women who have jilted their supposed intended weeks or even hours before the wedding.

When fears are this strong calling off the ceremony, no matter how embarrassing, is probably the best thing. German-born and educated Mrs. Engel points out. What really determines the danger of premarital jitters to a marriage are the whys and the degree of them, says Mrs. Engel who is always careful not to generalize.

Women Wonder
Although the emotional sickness is predominant among men, it is more prevalent among women with education than among women who do not have educations and careers.

"She is not starry-eyed, as many brides-to-be from sheltered homes. She is aware of the possibility of difficulties. And she probably has an independent life of sorts that she wonders if she really wants to give up."

"The man, well, he wonders if he is willing to give up a lot of women for one. He partly wonders if he will have the ability to perform as a husband, to live up to his wife's expectations. And he speculates whether or not the woman he has chosen can really make him happy forever. Too the bridegroom may have trepidations about his financial responsibilities."

Still, the Manhattan psychologist points out, the very fact that a person considers these things to a point of worrying about them indicates he is conscientious and responsible. This type of man or woman makes a better mate than anyone who looks at life from an unrealistic, rose-colored point of view.

The fear can be no more serious than stage fright in some instances, she says. Or in the cases of second marriages, the jitters can result from having been burned before.

But this can be just more proof that the suffering bride or bridegroom-to-be is seriously interested in making a success of the marriage.

Fear of Sex
On the other hand, alarm may take its root in psychiatric difficulties such as a subconscious fear of sex, she says. At any rate, if any fear is intense, the couple should postpone their plans long enough to examine emotions carefully.

In serious cases, a psychiatrist's help may be needed to find the cause of the fear, and reconcile it if possible, she says.

Mrs. Engel feels that when a couple truly loves each other, they accept the bad with the good. Once they have really come through with the conviction that "this marriage is the right thing," they face the future with more than the usual assurance of happiness.

N.C. Outer Banks Need Reinforcing

Devastation along North Carolina's Outer Banks in the wake of the recent storm goes far beyond the millions of dollars represented in loss of homes, business places and personal property.

From the long-range standpoint the changes which took place in the beaches themselves during the storm may be of even greater importance to North Carolina than even the severe property losses. With effort—and in many cases considerable sacrifice—the homes and businesses can be rebuilt. A big question, however, is how much of the natural protection for such structures was lost during the storm? How vulnerable are the beaches left to future storms which certainly will strike the North Carolina coast?

Certainly not least among the questions, what

North Carolina Returns To Sea

(Note to Readers: Lynn Nisbet is out of state, visiting in Tampico, Mexico. During his absence guest writers will supply material for this column.)

L. C. BRUCE

Public Relations, N. C. State Ports Authority, guest writer
For the opportunity to be a guest of Lynn Nisbet in this column we are grateful. To tell thousands of North Carolinians this ever unfolding story, this rebirth of North Carolina as a maritime state, is a most happy task.

In the beginning, North Carolina was a maritime colony. Far back in 1700 the sounds and bays of the North Carolina coastline invited cargo movement and deepwater ocean traffic.

The port at Beaufort Inlet and the port near the mouth of the Cape Fear were cited for commercial activity in the year 1730. The history of the Cape Fear traffic during the Revolutionary War is common knowledge, and of course the Civil War "buffs" need not be told the story again of the capture of Fort Macon, Beaufort Inlet and Fort Fisher and Fort Caswell at the Cape Fear. Told and retold also is the tale of the blockade runners at the port of Wilmington.

Lost in the dusty files and archives were the years between 1865 and 1924 when the administration of Governor Cameron Morrison attempted to finance new port facilities by asking the people of the state for permission to borrow money through general obligation bonds. This loan of credit was turned down by the people, and many political historians credit this as one of our more serious errors regarding the economic growth of our state.

In 1945, interest in port facilities and port operations was revived. An act of legislation was passed to create the present port authority, and the legislature of 1949 issued general obligation bonds for 7.5 million dollars and new facilities at Wilmington (Cape Fear) and Morehead City (Beaufort Inlet), were constructed and dedicated for business in 1952.

Trade and commerce began to increase slowly, but steadily. Some new facilities were added in 1955. Then, in 1958, more efficient changes were incorporated in the operations: The present executive director, D. Leon Williams, was installed by a board that contained two of the present board—John M. Reeves, Chairman of Pinehurst, and W. G. Clark, Jr., of Tarboro. Shortly thereafter, the executive offices were moved to Raleigh, and the fact that port development is a statewide asset began to be appreciated. Additions were made to facilities in 1959 and 1960, and presently the North Carolina State Ports Authority operates two deepwater terminals; One at Morehead City, served by a 35 foot channel and turning basin.

Warehousing is the principle need at Morehead City since it lends itself to development as a commodity port and the tremendous growth of tobacco export business has caused it to be "spot lighted" recently, particularly in the top tobacco areas of the state.

Wilmington, on the other hand, is thriving principally as a general cargo terminal and is served by a 34 foot channel and turning basin. Here, too, are five modern berths for deepwater vessels, and the high rate of berth occupancy at Wilmington in the last two years has "spot lighted" that terminal.

So North Carolina operates two fine deepwater terminals, most of the development taking place in the past four years.

In 1960, with realization of a revival of North Carolina as a maritime state, with new emphasis being placed on stimulation of export trade, with an economic survey of present and future needs, it is logical to plan a long range expansion program in order to keep pace with the future and normal growth.

Our coastal and inland waterways represent the state's greatest physical, natural assets. If we subscribe to the lesson taught by the parable of the talents, wasting these "God Given Assets" is a violation of trust. There are three ways to prevent this waste—develop hydroelectricity, control floods, and aid navigation and commerce. Your North Carolina State Ports Authority is responsible for constructing, maintaining, and operating cargo terminals and developing commerce.

The basic policy of your Ports Authority is to meet its obligations and pay dividends to the state in services to the people. There are several ways to finance state operated deepwater terminals. One of the most popular among neighboring states which are keeping pace with maritime progress and commerce, is the issuing of revenue bonds. In North Carolina, good management and energetic application show good profits and private capital will invest. Your North Carolina State Ports Authority can, by the act of Legislature which created it, issue revenue bonds. The feasibility of much needed expansion at both Morehead City and Wilmington has been carefully studied. Potential situations point to continued growth.

From June 30th, 1959 to June 30th, 1961, income went up 55 percent. Operating profits were up 75 percent, tonnages up 31 percent, and number of vessels up 40 percent. Operations handled over 900,000 tons, and 624 vessels.

In July, Governor Sanford appointed seven members of the authority to serve with Reeves and Clark. They are: E. G. Anderson, Robersonville; Cooper D. Cass, Winston-Salem; L. S. Ficklen, Greenville; Joseph Foll, Greensboro; James F. Latham, Burlington; William Pharr, McAdenville; Ed N. Richards, Raleigh.

Energetic, serving as public-spirited citizens, these men accept the responsibility placed on them by the people and the Governor, and are actively engaged in planning for a brilliant future for North Carolina in maritime development.

can and will North Carolina do in an effort to prevent further loss of the Outer Banks themselves?

When severe damage was done along the Outer Banks of the state in the series of hurricanes which began years ago, there was considerable effort put forth to design some method by which the sandy strip of islands could be preserved. This planning was followed by specific projects in some areas of the Banks to give them greater stability and reduce the rate of erosion. As shown by the result of this latest storm along the northern-most finger of the Banks, however, more comprehensive preventive work as well as extensive repair work must be done to the banks themselves.

Aid in formulating and carrying out some feasible program may be forthcoming from the federal government, but for the most part the state will have to shoulder the major burden of designing a program and putting it into action.

It is a must if the famed Outer Banks are to be preserved.

Gratifying News That Dr. Jenkins Will Stay

While many North Carolinians may not be interested in the fact that the University of South Carolina has a new president, most Tar Heels should be interested in the fact that President Leo W. Jenkins has elected to retain his post as head of East Carolina College rather than accepting another offer.

During the years he has been associated with East Carolina College, Dr. Jenkins has made a major contribution to higher education in this state. Under his leadership as president during the past two years, East Carolina College has moved forward at a rapid pace, not only in terms of increased enrollment, but also in terms of academic excellence and the position it occupies in the overall picture of higher education in North Carolina.

It should be gratifying to the people of Greenville and to North Carolinians generally that Dr. Jenkins will continue to use his capacity for leadership, his capacity as an educator and his skill as a college president in the interest of East Carolina College and higher education in this state. At the same time the people of the state should fully recognize that its top leaders in higher education such as Dr. Jenkins are not immune to tempting offers from educational institutions of other states.

Capable educators are in great demand throughout the nation, and it would be a grave mistake for North Carolina to take for granted those who are now serving it. In order for the state to retain these capable men, it must not only be competitive with other areas in compensating these educators, but it must continue to evidence its interest in continued progress for higher education in North Carolina.

We share with other citizens of this community and this state the delight of knowing that Dr. Jenkins will remain as head of East Carolina College.

House Cool To Increasing Size

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP) —

How much again looks like the epitaph on efforts to boost the House membership and to force states to stop playing tricks with congressional districts. Every so often there's a burst of activity in the House on these twin problems. In the end the House shows too little interest to do anything. It seems the same this year. History tells the story.

The constitutional convention of 1787 decided each state should have two senators, elected by state legislatures. This was changed by the 17th amendment in 1913 to let the voters do the electing.

The convention, however, said voters should directly elect representatives in the House. This was to make Congress more democratic.

The arrangement was that the number of representatives allowed each state must be based on its population. To check on the population there had to be a census every 10 years. It's been that way since the first Congress, which began with 65 House members, representing about 30,000 each.

Every 10 years thereafter until 1913, with the exception of 1943, Congress increased the number of House members to keep pace with the growing population. In 1913 there were 435 members.

House membership has remained at 435 since, although the population of about 185 million now is twice what it was in 1913. All attempts since 1913 to raise the permanent House membership have failed.

There have been arguments for it: the work of the 435 has increased enormously. In 1913 theoretically each House member represented only 211,000 people, now it is 413,000. This means the people, so the argument goes, are getting less representation.

The overriding argument against enlargement comes down to this: to increase the membership every time the population went up would make the House eventually unmanageable; there has to be a stop some time, so make it now.

In recent years there have been proposals to up the membership from two or three to 50 or more representatives. The most recent, calling for a boost of three, was in effect killed last week.

So it seems the limit will remain at 435 for another 10 years when, after the 1970 census, more arguments begin.

There is also the question of cracking down on states' tricks with congressional districts. That has a long history of no desire to crack down.

The constitution lets states fix the time, place and manner of choosing representatives but it says Congress can alter the states' regulations when it wishes. It has done very feeble wishing.

It never passed a law until 1842. At that time 17 states were electing House members by districts. Nine were electing them at large. Running at large means a candidate must win the voters of an entire state instead of the simpler, easier job of winning them in one district.

The 1842 law told the states to elect by districts. It also said the districts should be contiguous. In less polite language, this meant a district should be in one piece and not scattered or separated.

State legislatures, then and now, have played politics in deciding the size and population of districts, depending upon which party ran the legislature. Some call this gerrymandering, some plain larceny.

Life gets all mixed up at times, but perhaps it is intended to be that way. We learn many things of permanent value, even eternal value as we unravel life, and as we try to find our way through the labyrinth.

There is purpose in it all. A good God made the universe and He still controls it. "Be of good cheer," were words often on the lips of Jesus.

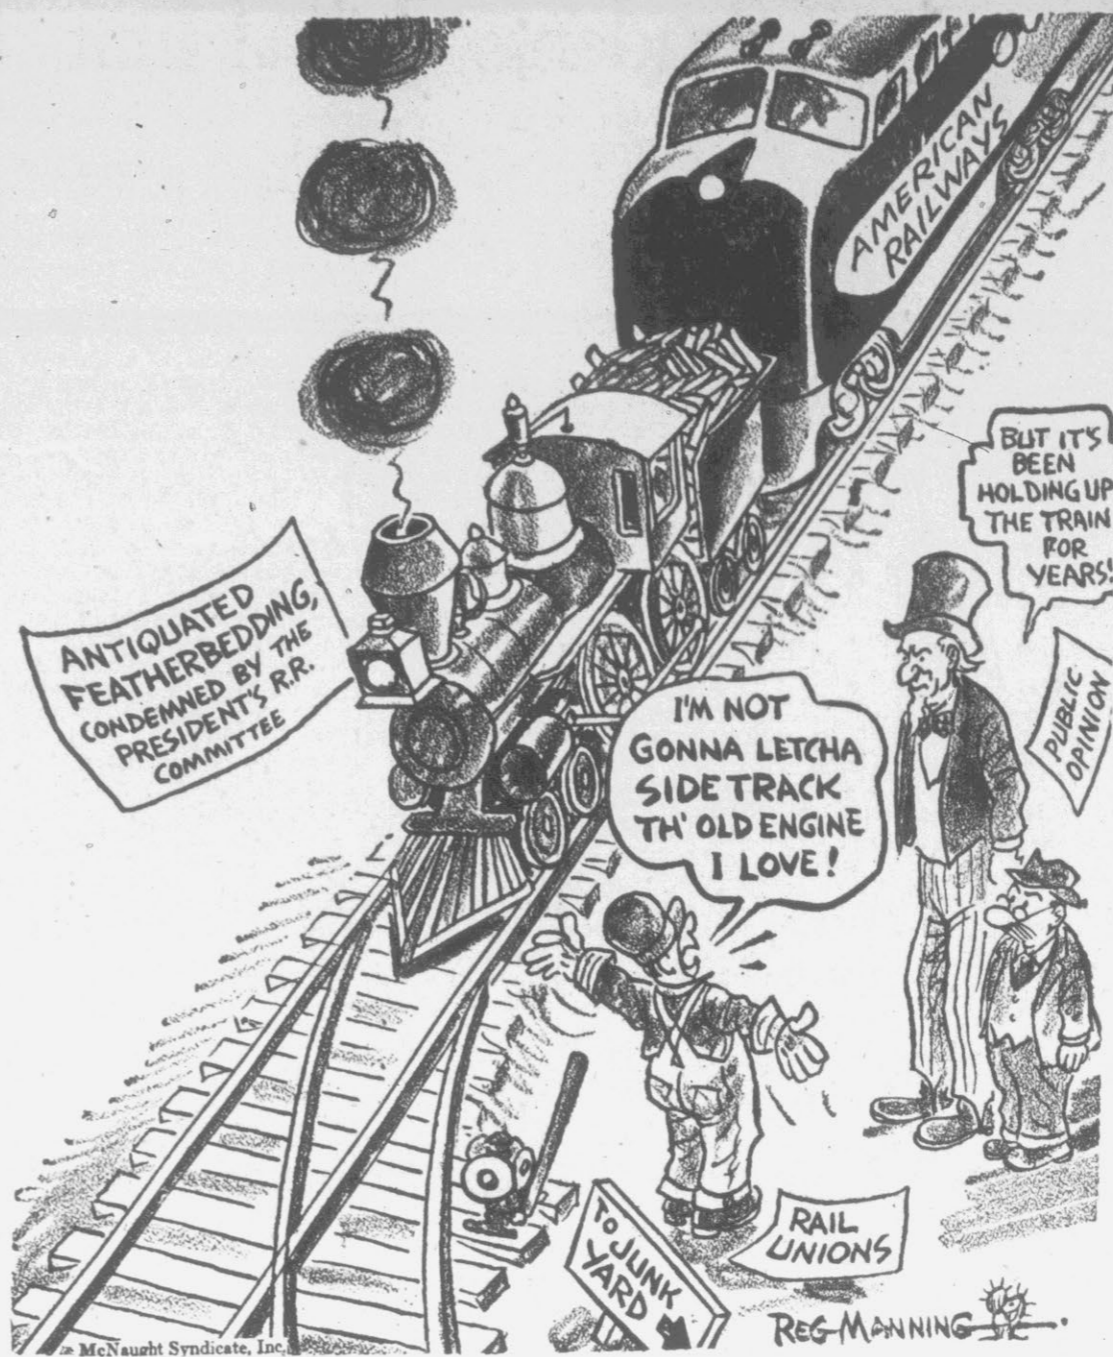

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS 'BE OF GOOD CHEER'

All life is transitory. This old planet of ours is billions of years old. Generations, nations, civilizations, have come and gone. Even the so-called eternal hills are not eternal. Many of them were under water millions of years ago. Erosion has ground many of them down from huge piles into mole hills.

We would be in utter despair over the transitory character of life were it not that all the world's principal religions teach that life here on earth is but a segment of something characterized by permanence. Some of life's injustices will be settled here, but many will have to wait for their final adjudication until they are brought before the High and Eternal

Keep Away From That Switch—

Just Try Doing 'Limbo'

Your columnist suffered from a sore back yesterday. Doing the twist? I'll have to admit that was part of it.

Some friends and I held a practice dance session during the weekend and between chachas, waltzes and fox trots we managed to sneak in an occasional twist.

That, as anyone who has tried it knows, is hard enough on the vertebrae, but alas, someone somewhere along the way suggests the limbo.

Now the limbo, if you don't know, involves a considerably different body movement from the twist. Twisting is done by moving the hips from side-to-side. But the limbo is a dance—or sport or whatever, that has come to us from the Caribbean. To do the limbo, you need two cooperative people to hold the ends of a pole—for us, it was a mop handle.

Then you crank up a Calypso record and, performing a slow shuffle, you bend backward and edge under the pole. This might not appear so bad but to do the thing properly you take several trips under the pole. And each time it is dropped lower and lower. The idea, of course, is to lean backward further and further without falling to the floor.

If you think twisting leaves you with sore muscles, try the limbo—but at your own risk!

North Carolina has never been so glad to see the sun. I'm talking about yesterday afternoon, of course.

Last week a terribly destructive storm struck the coast and brought with it overcast skies for this area.

Then Sunday a deluge came for Pitt County with rain which continued, off and on, during the afternoon and last night.

Yesterday morning it appeared there would be more of the same as a dreary day began—on Monday at that.

But Nature can be kind to humanity—as well as unpleasant—when she wants to be. Early in the afternoon the clouds were, almost suddenly, swept away and a bright sun caused a drenched world to glisten.

In a way the beauty of it makes the dark days worth it.

Man broke into the deliberations of the City Council at their regular meeting last week to ask a question concerning zoning.

Mayor Charles M. King had to inform him that this was a question that had to be answered at some other time. The council couldn't handle the problem, he said.

"Oh," replied the citizen, quite honestly, "I thought all problems could be solved up here."

City officials are, at times, inclined to believe this is an opinion shared by many citizens.

Opinions In Brief

"Is there any prospect of reducing the population explosion in the Federal family of employees? What a silly question! President Kennedy's latest estimate, according to the Wall Street Journal, is that it will take 131,361 more civilian employees to make the Federal government run than were on the payroll last summer." —Tulsa (Okla.) Daily World

"The chief complaint of young men seeking jobs is that employers demand experience. But how can they get experience without working? And how can they offer an employer both youth and experience? Does anybody have any answers to this deadlock?" —Huntington (W. Va.) Herald-Advertiser

"Poor old Grandma. All she had was eye soap. She made it herself, and it did everything. There would be a big market for it today, particularly with people who live in small apartments and don't have room for the 116 cleaners you've got to have today to keep house." —Orlando (Fla.) Sentinel

"Obviously something is seriously wrong when able-bodied boys of 15 are not allowed to do honorable work in daylight hours, but are allowed to roam the streets all night because they have nothing to do." —Nashville (Tenn.) Tennessean

"When will the communist be confident enough of their ideas to expose them to the competition of democratic ideas? I was disappointed to note that only a few days ago a Russian leader, while saying that coexistence with democratic social systems was possible, asserted emphatically that coexistence with democratic ideas was 'impossible and unthinkable.'"

"It would amount, he said, to (Continued on Page 8)

A Point Youths Ignored

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The rally of the Young Americans for Freedom at Madison Square Garden was attended by about 19,000 young men and women from all parts of the United States. The applause, the boos, the speeches indicated many shades of conservatism, but all were united in their opposition to Communism. But what surprised me was that their prejudgements forced them to overlook the fact that there is no wisdom in attacking others on their side whose name happened to be Kennedy.

As stirred as I was by this outpouring of Conservatives, I was equally moved by the speeches which Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy delivered in Germany—straightforward, anti-Communist speeches delivered on the firing line in Berlin. He said:

"I have seen the contrast between this city in the west part and in the Communist part as many hundreds of thousands of people have seen that contrast. And that is why Herr Ulbricht had to erect the wall. Because it was a contrast that he could not tolerate.

"That is the true meaning of the wall that lies like a snake across the heart of your city. Mr. Ulbricht and the Communists cannot have the contrast. Because this wall is an admission of failure by Communism. It is an attempt for the first time in the history of mankind to erect a wall not to keep marauders or bandits out, but to keep their people in."

At the University of Berlin, he said:

"The statistics on the flight of scholars offers us an idea of what communism has done to this free spirit. Since 1938, a total of 1606 scholars—mainly teachers in the humanities and sciences at long-established universities and technical institutes in East Germany—have left the eastern zone and registered in West German reception camps. In the last four years, Halle has lost a total of 143 faculty members—more than the current size of its teaching staff. Humboldt University has lost 275 members of its staff; Leipzig, 199; and so on down the list."

At the same university, he said:

"The free way of life proposes ends—but it does not prescribe means. It assumes that people, and nations, will often think differently—have the full right to do so—and that diversity is the source of progress. It believes that men advance by discussion, by debate, by trial and by error.

"It believes that the best ideas come, not from edict and ideology, but from free inquiry and free experiment; and it regards dissent, not as treason to the state, but as the tested mechanism of social progress.

"It knows that diverse nations will find diverse roads to the general goal of political independence and economic growth. It regards the free individual as the source of creativity—and believes that it is the role of the state to serve him, and not his role to serve the state."

And again, Robert Kennedy said:

"Communism everywhere has paid the price of rigidity and dogmatism. Freedom has the strength of compassion and flexibility. It has, above all, the strength of intellectual honesty. We do not claim to know all the answers, we make no pretense of infallibility. And we know this to be a sign, not of weakness, but of power.

"The proof of the power of freedom lies in the fact that Communism has always flinched from competition in the field where it counts most—the competition of ideas."

Commenting on this, he said:

"When will the communist be confident enough of their ideas to expose them to the competition of democratic ideas? I was disappointed to note that only a few days ago a Russian leader, while saying that coexistence with democratic social systems was possible, asserted emphatically that coexistence with democratic ideas was 'impossible and unthinkable.'"

"It would amount, he said, to (Continued on Page 8)

No Windfalls In New Tariffs

By ELMER ROESSNER

The new tariffs negotiated by the Kennedy Administration will create great opportunities for American businesses. But it is not likely that they will produce any immediate windfalls.

No date has been set for the lowering of American tariffs and the tariffs of the 24 agreeing nations. Negotiations on starting dates will begin soon. The United States proposes that they be made effective in two phases, beginning July 1, 1962, and July 1, 1963. Presumably, half of agreed cuts will go into effect on the first date and the remainder on the second.

For that reason, the effects will be gradual. And there is still another braking action. From time to time the United States and each of the other countries will have second thoughts on various commodities. When many one industry in any of the 25 nations falls on hard times, its government can be expected to rush demands for a special tariff to protect it.

OTHER RESTRICTIVE ACTIONS

There are more brakes. The agreement with Japan, for instance, provides for reductions in tariffs on canned smoked oysters and H.V. bulbs. These items are mentioned here because there is little likelihood that either will provide ruinous competition for any American industry. But if they should, and if Japan would not agree to a tariff adjustment, it would be a simple matter to put a use tax or a sales tax on those products when not harvested from domestic waters.

So, because of the phasing and because of other ways in which the effectiveness of the agreement can be slowed, the results will be slow. Nevertheless, there will be boundless opportunities as new foreign markets open for American manufacturers and exporters.

This will be fine for the companies experienced in exporting. But for those that are not, the time is already short.

Exporting is a complicated operation. It involves knowledge of tariffs, foreign restrictions, vastly confusing red tape, foreign tastes, foreign business practices, foreign slickers who love to prey on the amateur exporter, freight rates and a myriad of other factors. The novice exporter may find it best to work through established agents. Profits may not be so large, but the loss will largely be offset by savings on aspirin.

The company determined to do it itself should start now, studying the new tariffs as they affect its products, lining up distributors, studying varying freight rates and getting to know the hundred things that must be remembered.

One early step might be to hunt field offices of the Department of Commerce and the Small Business Administration, demanding facts and more facts, lists and more lists, and guidance and more guidance from the experts and quasi-experts there. IMPORT OPPORTUNITIES
There will be another field of opportunities in importing. With tariffs cuts on imports, importers, distributors and retailers will be able to bring in countless foreign items at lower prices, after customs, than ever before. Again, it will pay to start studying this field now, and to begin beseeching government offices.

The Kennedy Administration stressed its contention that the United States will gain more than it will lose by the tariff agreements. The White House claimed a 4-to-3 advantage in our gains over those of other nations. President Kennedy said that the tariff cuts would reduce the cost of the average American auto $126 in the Common Market, and the average European model $21.50.

While that may be true, it is a wiggly yardstick. The real gains under the tariff cuts will be made by those countries whose manufacturers, exporters, salesmen, advertisers and consular officials do the best job in creating demand for their products in foreign markets.

Massive Planning For Medicare Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is coordinating a massive grass roots effort aimed at driving President Kennedy's medical care program through Congress.

Administration sources point to Kennedy's engagement to address a rally boosting his program in New York's Madison Square Garden May 20 as an example of how much energy will go into the effort.

Kennedy accepted an invitation Monday to appear at the Madison Square Garden rally sponsored by an organization called the National Council of Senior Citizens and the Golden Ring Clubs of New York, White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said later the White House would welcome requests from networks interested in putting the event on television and radio.

Richard Maguire, a White House assistant, is understood to be coordinating and counseling outside organizations which back Kennedy's program to finance medical care for the aged through Social Security.

The purpose is to whip up broad public support for the administration plan and to direct that support toward influencing members of Congress to adopt it against vigorous opposition of the American Medical Association and insurance groups.

The Democratic National Committee also intends to print and distribute material promoting the Social Security approach to care of the aged.

The National Council of Senior Citizens is one of the major vehicles for pushing the campaign. The council was launched only last year but already claims the backing of a half million men and women around the country, many of them associated with local Golden Age clubs and other organizations of senior citizens.

The council is an outgrowth of Senior Citizens for Kennedy, former Rep. Alvin Forand, D-R.I., headed that unit in the 1960 presidential campaign and is chairman of the revived council. Forand was an ardent advocate of a broad scale plan to defray costs of caring for older citizens while he served in Congress.

Lawrence A. Oxley, a consultant to the council, said it intends to circulate a million copies of a pamphlet to advertise the program and to serve as a basis for discussion at meetings of community groups.

Secretary of Welfare Abraham Ribicoff has been speaking frequently around the country in support of the Social Security method and attacking the AMA for its opposition.

The Ladies Are Seeking Role In America's Astronaut Plans

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Philip A. Hart's blonde wife—mother of eight—is asking Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to help break up the "men only" exclusiveness of the Americans in space program. She would like to be the first woman in space herself.

The wife of the Michigan democrat wants the United States to launch a woman in space program. So far, she says, she has gotten the cold shoulder from the National Aeronautics and Space Agency.

A program for female astronauts "could be gotten off the ground very quickly if we could just convince men it would not destroy their virility," she said.

If she can't be the first woman in space, she is determined that an American woman will be—and not a Russian cosmonaut.

To further her campaign, Mrs. Hart—the former Jane Briggs, daughter of a Detroit millionaire—has an appointment Thursday with Johnson in his role as chairman of the National Aeronautics and Space Council.

She hopes Johnson will be able to swing a little weight with James E. Webb, NASA head. Up to this point, she told a reporter, Webb has treated her proposal with reluctance.

How has her husband reacted to the idea?

"I've never asked him," she said.

Hart, pressed on the matter, responded: "I've always thought my wife was an extraordinary woman and this is most interesting."

Mrs. Hart, who is in her early 40s, is one of 12 women to have successfully undergone the tough physical tests given the seven male Mercury astronauts when they first aspired to the job.

Mrs. Hart and her group have logged more than 1,000 hours of flying time. She is a licensed airplane and helicopter pilot.

Accompanying her Thursday will be Jerrie Cobb of Oklahoma City, a widely known woman pilot who was the first to take the tests. Mrs. Hart has written members of the Senate and House space committees, urging them to invite Miss Cobb's testimony and to include women in future space plans.

In her letter to space committee members, Mrs. Hart said, "It is my belief that the Russians will have successfully space flown a woman by next September. I sincerely hope that your interest in this matter will serve to help get this program off the ground."

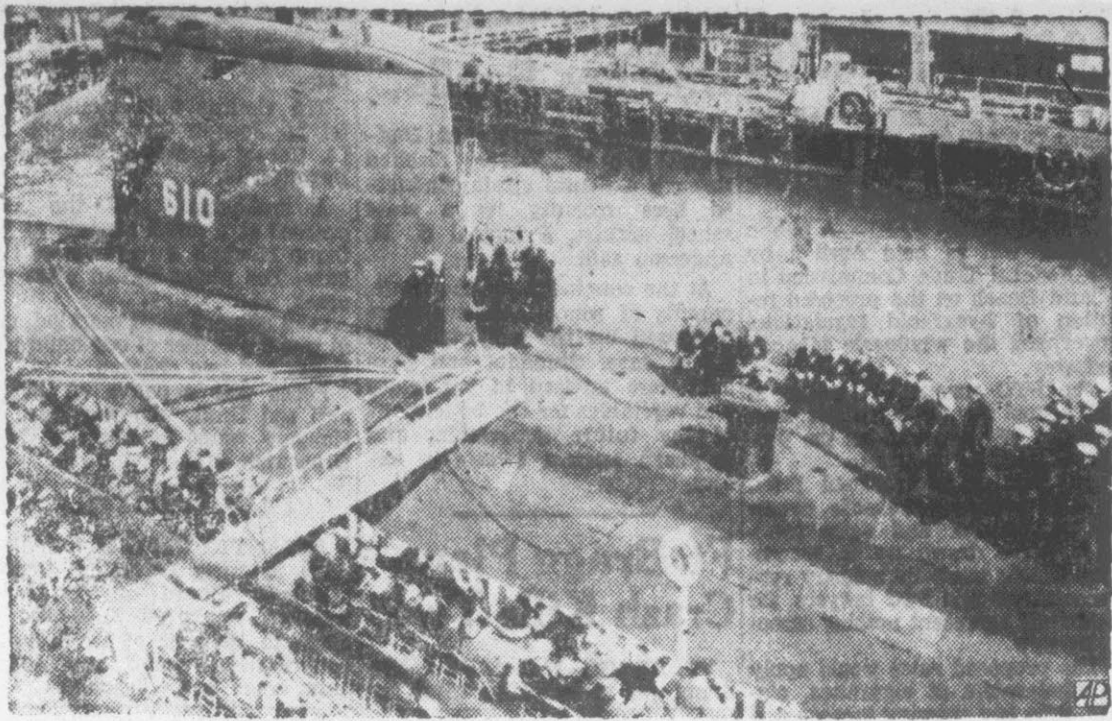

Mrs. Hart emphasized that her purpose is not seeking equality for women.

"We want to see this done for its scientific value," she said.

"Eventually, women are going to be needed. They might as well start in the early stages.

"When they start setting up these satellite stations, from which trips to far distant points will be made, people will be living on those stations for months, if not years," she said.

"They're going to have to provide some kind of family arrangements."

Six Bright Porpoises Are Going To School

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP)—Porpoises have turned out to be so bright the Navy's going to send six of them to school.

They'll start in an underwater kindergarten—a 50-foot-diameter pool now being built beside a lagoon at this headquarters of the Pacific Missile Range, where the sea-going mammals will be taught to count, fetch, tow objects under water and, hopefully, even talk.

While they're learning, Navy scientists will be learning, too.

The Navy wants to know how porpoises can swim so fast—up to 40 miles an hour—how they communicate with each other, and how their prey-spotting sonar works.

ECC Alumni To Meet In Raleigh

Alumni of East Carolina College from all sections of North Carolina will gather in Raleigh Friday, March 16, to attend their Annual Fellowship Breakfast and to hear a talk by Governor Terry Sanford.

The breakfast is scheduled for 7:45 a.m. in the West Dining Hall of the N. C. State College Cafeteria. It will be staged as a special event for East Carolina alumni attending the State Convention in Raleigh March 15-17 of the North Carolina Education Association.

Fodie Hodges of Kinston, president of the East Carolina College Alumni Association, will preside at the breakfast program. Mrs. Frances Coulter of Raleigh, president, and other members of the Raleigh-Wake County Chapter of the organization will act as hosts and hostesses.

President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina will introduce Governor Sanford and will speak briefly to alumni on new developments at the college.

Attending from the campus here will be a large group of administrative officers, faculty members, and students.

But in all the laws passed by Congress on districting since 1842—which hardly meant more than telling state legislatures to be nice—Congress has never told the states what its districts should be.

Under present law the simple requirement of the 1842 law have been dropped. So there are still cries of gerrymandering and some members still have to run at large.

In this year's congressional elections, as a result of the 1960 census showing shifts in population, nine states gain House seats, 16 lose some. Massachusetts is one of the losers.

There, where the Democratic legislature and the Republican governor can't agree on redistricting to allow for a lost two seats, if they don't get together, all candidates for the remaining 12 House seats may have to run at large.

New York also lost two seats but the Republican-run legislature has redistricted the state. Now New York Democrats are complaining the Republicans did them in.

As for doing anything about it—Congress' attitude is still ho-hum.

Answers to these questions could lead to torpedoes and submarines now envisioned only in science fiction. And who knows what else scientists will learn, once they start talking with porpoises?

Belief that porpoises can be taught to speak arose from experiments with a young female named Notty, who died a few months ago. Notty learned to recognize the words "ball," "hat," "ring" and "stick," and to fetch these items on voice command.

Porpoises apparently communicate with each other by means of beeps they make with the blowing heads. While Notty was alive, scientists began recording these sounds and duplicating them in an effort to converse with Notty in her own language.

Despite her achievements, Notty was a disappointment to Navy scientists. She wasn't very fast—16 knots was her best recorded speed—and there were rumors she wasn't too bright as porpoises go.

She may have been bored and lonely. Notty was always kept by herself in a special tank at Marineland in Los Angeles. The didn't want her picking up the horn-tooting, basketball-playing tricks of her show-business cousins.

Notty's successors won't have a chance to get lonesome, with six of the 200-pound six-footers in a pond not much bigger than a backyard swimming pool.

The pond is almost completed. Bulldozers have scooped out the basin and cables have been laid for the cameras and microphones which will record the porpoises' speed and speech.

The only thing lacking now is the porpoises. They haven't been caught yet.

It takes the Venus flytrap five to 10 days to digest an insect it has caught. The carnivorous plants can be found in the Carolina coastal highlands.

Thailand Troops Get Guerrilla Training

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. military advisers have started training Thailand's army to fight Communist guerrillas, apparently in anticipation that Thailand may be the next target of the Red drive to control Southeast Asia, informed sources said today.

Although there have been no reports of significant Communist guerrilla activity in Thailand, officials of the pro-Western Bangkok government have been increasingly concerned they may face such a threat if a Communist-leaning neutralist regime takes over neighboring Laos.

Laos has been a staging area and an avenue for Communist North Vietnamese irregulars trying to topple the anti-Communist government of South Viet Nam. Pro-Communist forces in Laos have operated close to the border.

The United States last week formally promised to come to Thailand's aid in event of Red aggression, regardless of what other members of the anti-Communist Southeast Asia Treaty Organization may do.

A possible clue to a quickening U.S. effort to bolster Thailand against any Communist offense came in Monday's announcement that Army Maj. Gen. Theodore J. Conway is being sent there in July to assume command of the U.S. Military Assistance Group.

Conway, 52, is leaving the command of the 82nd Airborne Division, one of the Army's crack outfits. No headquarters-bound soldier, he recently was the first paratrooper to leap from a transport plane in an airdrop exercise by troops of the 82nd in Panama.

There are believed to be 45 whooping cranes left in existence. In 1938 the number of the birds was 14.

There was no indication of any immediate increase in the military aid program in Thailand. This year, it totaled $8,594,000—some what more than one-third of that being applied in South Viet Nam where the Communist danger has been critical for some time.

The United States has about 219 military advisers working with Thailand's forces which total about 100,000 men, mostly in the army.

The United States has supplied Thailand with light tanks, howitzers, rifles and machine guns, trucks, personnel carriers, a few transport planes, a number of F84 and F86 jet fighters, and some patrol vessels.

communist ideological disarmament. I would have thought that he might have more faith in the capacity of communist ideas to survive such competition; but he may well be right in fearing to let communism stand on its own in a free forum.

There is much more. Here is a statement of anti-Communist doctrine which young Conservatives ought to applaud no matter who says it. The strength of the conservative cause must be its unprejudiced and total pursuit of the truth.

Career Consultants At Robinson Union School

WINTERVILLE — Consultants in 10 fields visited here on Friday for Robinson Union School's annual Career Day. The theme for this year was "Today's Youth in Tomorrow's World."

Consultants met the students in sectional meetings to discuss fields of direct interest.

Consultants were Dr. Joseph Jones, science, St. Augustine's College, Raleigh; Dr. Andrew A. Best, Greenville physician; D. D. Garrett and J. O. Smith of Mutual Life Insurance and Taff Office Equipment, Greenville; Raphael Thompson, commerce, N.C. College at Durham; J. N. Hasselrig, athletics, South Ayden High School; Herman Foust, trades, C. M. Epps High School, Greenville.

In addition to the above consultants, Miss Francis Perkins Vines from McGuire Veteran Hospital in Richmond, Va., attended. She works in the field of dietetics.

Following the sectional meetings, the high school department was entertained in chapel. The program included a short introduction and greetings to the guests. The purpose of Career Work, sectional reports, industrial arts display, a fashion show and remarks also made up the program.

The visiting consultants were served luncheon in the home economics department by Mrs. Pauline Anderson, home economics teacher.

Japan Society Lithographs On Display At ECC

Lithographs circulated by the Japan Society make up an exhibition hung during March in the Hallway Gallery, Rawl Building, at East Carolina College.

The works on display present a contemporary departure rather than a conformity to the traditional style of the Japanese print. They are experimental in approach and are characterized by bold calligraphy. Free-form shapes are employed in a number of the lithographs.

The background for the show and the circumstances of production add a note of interest to the exhibition.

In the early summer of 1960 the American lithographer Arthur Flory established in Tokyo a lithography workshop under the sponsorship of the Japan Society as part of a program of international exchange in the arts. Japanese artists in various media who were invited to attend produced the lithographs on display at East Carolina. The exhibition now on display is sent on tour under the auspices of the Japan Society.

Graham is planning to outline the requirements for Tranter's Creek landowners in obtaining federal technical and cost-sharing assistance in developing the project.

Naval Records Leave A Missing K Mystery

EDITOR'S NOTE—Virgil Carrington Jones, a veteran newspaperman, is a prize-winning Civil War author and member of the Civil War Centennial Commission. Here he deals with the intriguing question: What ever happened to "K" on the Merrimack?

By VIRGIL CARRINGTON JONES
Written for The Associated Press

How could the correct spelling of the name of one of the most famous ships in history get lost? That is what has happened to the "Merrimack," the ironclad frigate that spent the best part of a day battling the "Monitor" in the tide-controlled waters of Hampton Roads on March 9, 1862.

Newspapers, histories and encyclopedias spell it "Merrimack," ignoring the official naval records that show it should be spelled "Merrimack," with a "K."

The "Merrimack" cost $685,842.19, was of 3,200 tons, 275 feet long, and equipped with five boilers. Built at the Boston Navy Yard in 1855 and pierced for 40 guns, she was described as something beautiful to look upon—a specimen of the finest naval architecture afloat—when she first put to sea for a cruise in the West Indies. True, her name at the time she fought the "Monitor" had been changed to "Virginius," but because of the alliteration between her earlier name and that of her foe the change was ignored.

Prior to her fight with the "Monitor," the "Merrimack's" name was in most instances spelled correctly. On the morning of the historic battle, as an example, James B. Jones, Confederate soldier stationed at a nearby camp, wrote his sister: "The iron-plated steamer 'Merrimack' has been finished some time and was expected down last night to attack Newport News." In spreading the word about this strange craft, newspapers generally dropped the "K." So did contemporary histories, almost without exception. And so have subsequent source books on Civil War history.

Some years ago, attention was called to the fact that the Navy Department itself was guilty of the misspelling. Labels appearing on models of the vessel at the Boston Navy Yard and at the museum room at the Norfolk Naval Base dropped the "K."

This eventually brought the following directive from the secretary of the Navy: "Upon review of the matter by the Office of Naval Records and Library, the department is informed that the correct spelling of the name of the above-mentioned vessel is 'Merrimack,' and the bureau is, therefore, directed to take the necessary action to correct the spelling of the name on the labels of models of this vessel at all naval establishments where such models are on exhibition."

Two years ago, the Navy was asked for copies of the original records showing the proper spelling of the name. These included the architectural plans for the vessel drawn in 1854, letters written by the commandant of the Boston Navy Yard in 1855, the year the vessel was launched, and letters in the files of the secretary of the Navy.

In its reply to this request, the Navy admitted that most standard reference works and general histories gave the name as "Merrimack," and that the secretary of the Navy's annual reports used both spellings. But it pointed out that there seemed to be a preference for the spelling with the

Leaf Regulation Hearing April 2

WASHINGTON (AP)—A public hearing will be held April 2 by the Federal Trade Commission in Miami Beach on the proposed revision of 2-year-old regulations governing the wholesale tobacco industry.

The FTC announced Monday it will accept any written views, suggestions or objections on the proposals until the hearing.

An FTC attorney, Paul Butz, said the proposed revisions, covering advertising and sales practices, were drawn up on recommendations made by industry representatives and FTC lawyers. He said they represent nothing essentially new.

The proposed rules would apply to wholesalers of cigarettes, cigars, pipe and chewing tobacco and snuff. They cover misrepresentation and deception in advertising, false invoicing, deceptive use of trademarks, false and misleading price quotations, selling below cost with intent to cut competition, unlawful price fixing and other things.

Butz said the rules are proposed to bring wholesale tobacco regulations in line with recent amendments to the Clayton Antitrust Act and the FTC act.

"K," as shown in the official Navy Register issued annually.

"In the 1930's, there was a tendency among naval historians to use the spelling 'Merrimack.' In the manuscript log of the vessel we found both the spelling with and without the 'K.' The users of the spelling with the 'K' are only a small minority, but the name of our vessel was 'Merrimack,'" the Navy said.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—The West Side Adult School of Newark prepared a course on survival in a disaster for 400. Only four registered.

Butane boils and bubbles even though beaker is filled with ice cubes. It is rapidly turning into vapor—the way boiling water turns into steam. Butane's ability to vaporize at low temperatures helps Super Shell gasoline give you quick starts in cold weather.

One of Super Shell's 9 ingredients can boil on ice. Helps your car start fast for top performance on coldest days.

EVEN in zero weather, a car in good mechanical condition should start in 3 or 4 seconds.

If it doesn't, could be that your gasoline isn't vaporizing fast enough. Winter can have that effect on gasoline.

Shell scientists take care of this problem by including an ingredient called Butane in Super Shell's 9-ingredient formula.

Butane can hardly wait to vaporize. It will even boil on ice and turn to vapor (see picture above). Fast vaporization, fast starts. It's that simple.

Note: in very cold weather, Super Shell gets an extra dose of Butane.

Quick-starting Butane is only one of Super Shell's cold-weather ingredients. There are three in all. Read how the other two can also help you when winter's doing its worst.

Pentane mix—for fast warm-ups

The Pentane mix in Super Shell's winter blend helps speed the "warm-up" process inside your engine. Pentane mix works like kindling in a log fire. It ignites easily —gets everything going faster.

"Anti-icer" fights icing stalls

The third cold-weather ingredient in Super Shell's winter blend is an anti-icer.

Its job is to fight carburetor icing. This phenomenon can lead to sudden stalls when you least expect them.

Shell's "anti-icer" coats vital carburetor parts with a very thin chemical film. This film discourages critical ice buildup and cuts your chances of icing stalls.

How Super Shell's other ingredients help you get top performance

Now you know about three of the nine ingredients in today's Super Shell. Here's how the others help to give your car top performance.

TCP* additive helps restore the power that combustion deposits can take away.

"Cat-cracked" gasoline is for smooth, even power with a purr.

Alkylate helps control "high-speed knock."

Gum preventive helps keep carburetors clean inside.

Anti-knock mix gives extra resistance to knock.

Platformate is for extra mileage.

P.S. When you drive in for a tankful of Super Shell, ask your Shell dealer to check your anti-freeze. It's a small precaution, but it could save you a lot of trouble.

Top Honors Yet To Come

Basketball season in this area is over for most of the teams. The exceptions are those clubs that finished first and second in their respective conference tournaments.

Three teams from Pitt County have advanced to regional and state meets this year and all three will see action this week as the playoffs get underway. Greenville's Rose High Phantoms will travel to Kinston to take part in the state 3-A tournament which begins in the Grainger High School gym Wednesday night.

Coach Bo Farley's team gained the right to take part in the state event when they finished second to Roanoke Rapids in the Northeastern Conference tournament here a week ago Saturday.

The Phantoms meet Northern Durham at 9 o'clock Wednesday following the Sanford-Stanley contest which begins at 7:30. We understand that Sanford is the tournament favorite and was undefeated during the regular season.

Roanoke Rapids will meet Hendersonville Thursday night at 9 o'clock following the Mt. Airy-Massey Hill game. Mt. Airy is the defending state champion.

From the county the two teams to take part in the District 1 Tournament here this week are Ayden and Bethel. Ayden captured the Pitt County Conference title by defeating Bethel 52-50 Saturday night. The Tornados will take on Pasquotank Central in the East Carolina gym Wednesday night at 8:30 following the Windsor-Murfreesboro game which starts at 7 o'clock. On Thursday night Bethel will play Pantego, the Beaufort County champion, at 8:30 following the Knapp-Jamesville contest.

Kinston Going All Out

Kinston, hosting the 3-A Tournament for the first time in a number of years, has gone all out to make the tournament a success. The floor of the Mock Gym at Grainger High School has been refinished for the event. The Kinston Recreation Department, the high school Pep Club and the Boys Senior Hi-Y are sponsoring an open house for the players, coaches, parents and students on Friday and Saturday night following the last game.

The teams are to be housed at the Kinstonian Motel and the Hotel Kinston for the event. However, any team that loses on the first or second night will return home. There will be a consolation game on Saturday night prior to the championship game for the Thursday night losers.

The last time the state 3-A tournament was held in the eastern part of the state, the attendance was extremely poor and we understood that the state was somewhat reluctant to play in the east again. Admission prices for the tournament are $1 per person with no reduced rates for students.

Rose Swimmers

The Rose High School swimming team has done an outstanding job during its second year and fourth place in the State Meet is nothing to look down on. There was a lot of stiff competition in Raleigh Saturday and the boys showed up real well. Many of the schools have had swimming teams for years and this is a big help in addition to the fact that some of the schools conduct their swimming programs throughout the school year.

The meet Saturday was Coach Reggie Edgerton's last day with the Rose High team. The young coach graduated from East Carolina at the end of the winter quarter and has left for the University of Iowa to work on his masters degree. He will also coach the freshman swimming team at Iowa. This young man deserves a lot of credit for his work with the high school swimming team. He has done an outstanding job.

The Pool Parents, an organization formed this season by parents of swimming team members to help support the program, had a dinner party for Coach Edgerton and presented him with a gift of luggage.

School Superintendent J. H. Rose and Principal O. E. Dowd also expressed their appreciation to Edgerton along with the parents. At that time Dowd told the group that the swimming program would be continued and that they were working on a replacement for Edgerton.

Drawstring Troubles

An occurrence that seemed funny to many after it happened did not seem so to a couple of the Greenville swimmers Saturday. Two of the boys just about lost their pants in the state meet when they had trouble with the drawstrings while in competition. A spokesman for the Pool

Wake Forest Moves Into Semifinals Friday Night

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Favorites Wake Forest, Villanova and New York University ran true to form in winning opening round games in the Eastern Regionals of the NCAA Basketball Tournament. But not before they got a scare. Wake Forest, the Atlantic Coast Conference champion, was the hardest pressed in defeating Ivy League titleholder Yale 92-82 in overtime Monday night in the final game of the tripleheader at the Palestra.

Yale missed a good chance to score a big upset when Dave Schumacher, a poor foul shooter by his own word, missed a free throw with two seconds remaining in regulation time. Wake Forest now moves into the Eastern semifinals at College Park, Md., Friday night against St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, the Middle Atlantic Conference winner, which drew a first-round bye. Villanova, an at-large selection, had to overcome a three-point halftime deficit, but once the Wildcats got rolling the second half they made it a 90-75 runaway over injury-ridden West Virginia. The Southern Conference champion Mountaineers twice had leads of eight points in the first half. NYU, also an at-large selection which will meet Villanova in the semifinals, came on strong in the second half to overpower Yankee Conference titleholder Massachusetts 70-50. NYU couldn't pull ahead to stay until the last 39 seconds of the first half, and then by only four points.

The foul on Schumacher, a 6-6 sophomore, was called against All America Len Chappell, who led Wake Forest in scoring with 25 points. The score was tied 76-all. "It was just like any other foul," said Schumacher after the game. "I wasn't that nervous. I should have made it and missed. I'm not good on fouls."

Coach Bones McKinney of Wake Forest said: "We were not sharp and didn't play very good basketball. Yale did a tremendous job." Wake Forest looked particularly weak on defense. The smaller Eli outmaneuvered the slower Deacons who failed to play an aggressive defensive game.

Probably the outstanding performances of the night game came from senior Hubie White and sophomore Wally Jones of Villanova and second team All-American Rod Thorn of West Virginia. They were hitting from all over and White finished with 28 points, Jones 27 and Thorn 23.

Chicago Likes Florida Fine

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Chicago Majors like Florida just fine, thank you, after playing a four-game trip in the sunshine into first place in the American Basketball League's Eastern Division. The Majors and Hawaii Chiefs wound up their four-game, four-day Florida jaunt in Jacksonville Monday night and the Majors scored their third victory of the four games, 113-93. The victory gave Chicago a one-game lead over Pittsburgh.

Parents remarked later, "I think one of the first duties of the Pool Parents next year will be the acquisition of some fool-proof drawstrings."

While there is some humor in the incident, we are sure that there was none at the time for those involved and that it very well could have cost Greenville the few points they needed to finish third in the meet.

East Carolina football fans will be able to get a preview of the 1962 Pirate squad Saturday afternoon when the annual Purple and Gold game gets underway in college stadium at 2 o'clock.

Each year at the close of the winter drills, the Bucs display their talents to interested fans. This year the Pirates are offering something new.

Under new head football mentor Clarence Stasavich, the Bucs will be demonstrating their version of the single wing attack. Stasavich has been very successful in past seasons with the single wing when he was head coach at Lenoir Rhyne.

The team recently elected David Smith as captain for the 1962 season and Billy Strickland as alternate captain. Smith is a 6-foot 1-inch senior from Whiteville and at 190-pounds should prove valuable to the Pirates at center. He is described as "big and loves contact—a rugged defensive player."

Strickland, who will also be a senior during the next campaign, is 5-foot 9-inches, 185-pounds and is from Portsmouth, Va. He was switched from guard to fullback during the '61 season and is the leading contender for this spot again this year.

Sophomore Tom Michel and junior Frank Galloway, East Carolina's leading ground-gainers last year, will be present in the coming campaign to provide the fans with plenty to cheer about. Michel carried the ball 39 times for the Pirates in '61 for an average of 7.1 yards per carry. Galloway 6.5 yard per carry.

The starting lineup for the Purple and Gold contest have not yet been disclosed, but they are to be announced in the next couple of days.

Everybody is invited to attend the game Saturday. The athletic department has announced that admission is $1 and that all proceeds will go to the James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium fund.

Milwaukee Manager Says He Has Found Golden Boy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Milwaukee Mgr. Birdie Tebbetts doesn't claim everything he touches turns to gold, but he's beginning to think he has found a golden boy to plug up one of his gaping outfield holes.

Mack Jones, 23, up from Louisville, has hit four home runs in the Braves' three exhibition contests. He also has driven in eight runs and has been conducting himself as though he is made to order.

As a result of the expansion of the National League to 10 teams, the Braves lost flycatchers Frank Thomas and John Demerit to the New York Mets and Al Spangler to the Houston Colts.

That left Hank Aaron and Lee Maye to man two of the spots, and Tebbetts had to start scrambling for another replacement.

Jones, a 6-1, 180-pound lefty swinger, hit .326 with 11 homers at Louisville last year. Toward the end of the season the Braves brought him up for a look, and he compiled an undistinguished .231 mark in 28 games with nary a homer.

Jones clouted No. 4 Monday and drove in another run in the Braves' 5-1 decision over the Cincinnati Reds at Bradenton, Fla. Catcher Bob Uecker also hit a homer, and Howie Bedell, Jones No. 1 challenge for the vacant left-field spot, had a pair of singles.

While Tebbetts was rubbing his hands in glee at his new find, two other members of the lodge, Casey Stengel of the Mets and Billy Hitchcock of the Baltimore Orioles, came close to wringing their mitts in despair.

Stengel almost lost rookie outfielder Jim Hickman, who was struck high on the right cheekbone by Ray Herbert of the Chicago White Sox. Hickman, 21, went down when the ball hit and was taken to a Sarasota hospital.

X-rays proved negative, and physicians said they were certain he was not hurt badly. He was to return to the club today.

Hitchcock saw star pitcher Milt Pappas taken to a hospital, where he was operated on for appendicitis. Pappas, who compiled 3.03 last year on a 13-9 record, complained of pains Monday morning and was operated on a few hours later.

The Mets at least won their name, whipping the White Sox, 8-4. Don Zimmer collected four hits, and Elmer Chacon connected for a bases-loaded triple.

Pappas wasn't the Orioles' only loss of the day. They also dropped a 3-1 decision to the Kansas City A's at West Palm Beach.

The world-champion New York Yankees and the Los Angeles Angels, both going into the exhibition circuit. The Yanks whipped the Washington Senators 7-3 at Pompano Beach, with Elston Howard connecting for two 390-foot home runs.

The angels whipped the Boston Red Sox, also by 7-3, at Palm Springs, Calif. Ken McBride limited the Sox to one hit in his 3 1/2-inning stint.

The Cleveland Indians had to go 12 innings before Chuck Esserian tripped, and Jim Mahoney lifted a sacrifice fly to edge the Chicago Cubs 5-4 at Mesa, Ariz.

The Detroit Tigers sent seven runs across in the seventh inning to outlast the Minnesota Twins, 9-7, at Orlando, and the San Francisco Giants broke open a 1-all game in the eighth inning and ran away from the Colts 6-1 at Apache Junction, Ariz.

The Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 6-5 at Fort Myers, and the Los Angeles Dodgers halted the St. Louis Cardinals 5-4 at St. Petersburg.

Cincinnati Draws Creighton

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Defending champion Cincinnati, which didn't qualify for the NCAA postseason basketball tournament until two days after the regular season had ended, draws Creighton, a tough customer, in its first game.

The Bearcats, primed for another showdown battle with Ohio State, finally gained a tournament spot Monday night by defeating Bradley, 61-46, in a playoff for the Missouri Valley championship and the automatic spot in the playoff that goes with the title.

Last year Cincinnati, which finished the season with a 25-2 record, whipped Ohio State, 70-65, in overtime for the national title.

The Buckeyes, who clinched the Big Ten title long ago, have been waiting on the sidelines, itching to get another crack at the Bearcats. Ohio State finished the '61 season with a 23-1 mark.

Bradley, the Missouri Valley runner-up, didn't come out empty-handed. The Braves were tapped for the 12th and last spot in the National Invitation Tournament opening Thursday in New York. They'll be one of the favorites.

Cincinnati and Creighton (19-4) will meet at Kansas State University Friday night in part of a second-round doubleheader that also pairs Texas Tech and Colorado.

While Cincinnati was making it into the tournament, first-round games in the Midwest, East and Midwest regionals were played. Creighton whipped Memphis State 87-83, and Texas Tech edged the Air Force Academy 68-66 in the Midwest regional at Dallas.

Both the Missouri Valley winner and Big Eight titleholder drew byes into the second round of the Midwest regional.

In the East regional in Philadelphia, Villanova trounced West Virginia 90-75; New York University downed Massachusetts 70-50; and Wake Forest clipped Yale 92-82 in overtime.

Butler toppled Bowling Green, 56-35, and Western Kentucky vanquished Detroit 90-81 in the Midwest regional at Lexington, Ky.

The rest of the second round will be completed tonight when the West regional is played off at Corvallis, Ore. Oregon State plays Seattle and Utah State is paired with Arizona State U. in the doubleheader.

Here is how the second round shapes up Friday and Saturday: East at College Park, Md.—Wake Forest vs. St. Joseph's (Pa.), and Villanova vs. NYU. Midwest at Iowa City—Butler vs. Kentucky and Ohio State vs. Western Kentucky.

Midwest at Manhattan, Kan.—Texas Tech vs. Colorado and Creighton vs. Cincinnati.

West at Provo, Utah—Pepperdine vs. winner of Seattle-Oregon State game, and UCLA vs. winner of Utah State-Arizona State game.

The four regional champions then advance to the national semifinals and final at Louisville March 23-24.

Cincinnati had no easy time against Bradley in the playoff. Early in the second half Bradley pulled to within three points, 34-31 but then the Bearcats caught fire and pulled away. Sophomore Ron Bonham led the winners with 18 points.

Probably the biggest surprise of the first round NCAA games was Yale's near-miss against Wake Forest. With two seconds left in regulation time and the score tied at 76 all, All-America Len Chappell fouled Yale's Dave Schumacher. But Schumacher missed the free throw and Wake Forest ran away with it in the overtime period. Chappell had 25 points.

Can Break Own Victory Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Boston Celtics can break their own record for most victories in a National Basketball Association season when they go after No. 60 tonight against the Syracuse Nats at home.

The Celts hold a 9-2 margin over the Nats and a triumph in the regular season's finale would enable the Eastern Division champs to better their league mark of 59 set in the 1959-60 campaign.

The Los Angeles Lakers won their 52nd game Monday night to establish a mark for the most victories by a Western Division team. The St. Louis Hawks held the record of 51 wins made last season.

Los Angeles' Western Division titlist defeated the New York Knicks 119-106 at Seattle. In the only other game played, the Detroit Pistons turned back the Chicago Packers 121-116 at Green Bay, Wis.

Brushback Target Blasts Pitchers In Own Defense

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Frank Robinson, a favorite brushback target for National League pitchers, blasted a few line drives in the middle in his own defense today.

"Any fellow that feels he has to throw at somebody in order to get him out, ought to get out of the game," said Cincinnati's star outfielder and the National League's Most Valuable Player.

"I don't mean brushback pitches. Any hitter can tell the difference between a brushback and a ball thrown deliberately at him. I do give the pitchers a margin of error but when their pitches 'slip' too many times, I blame the pitcher.

"They have been knocking me down ever since I got in the league and I suppose they will continue, trying to make me back up and change my stance.

"Others stand just as close as I do but they don't get knocked down as much. The Dodger pitching staff as a team gives me the most trouble that way. It's normal to brush me back, trying to keep me honest. But throwing at a batter is something else."

Robinson was hit by the Dodgers' Don Drysdale in Los Angeles last July, an incident that resulted in a $100 fine and a five-day suspension for Drysdale.

The figures show that Robinson has been a favorite target. In six years, he has led the league in the "hit by pitcher" department three times. Last season he lost the unwanted title to Joe Cunningham, then of St. Louis. Cunningham was hit 11 times, Robinson 10.

Like most of the Reds, Robinson still is a little hot under the collar about the club's disappointing showing against the Yankees in the World Series. The October disaster rubbed some of the polish off a great 1961 season in which Robinson was a runaway choice for Most Valuable Player with 15 of 16 first-place votes.

Robinson led in slugging percentage with .613 and was second with 124 RBI and 117 runs and third with 37 homers and 22 stolen bases while batting .323.

As for 1962, Robinson said he thought he should add a few home runs batted in because of the addition of the two new clubs.

"Those 18 games with each of the new clubs ought to add a few points," he said. "The new teams don't have many front line, established pitchers. At least, I hope to do better. There always is room for improvement."

First Round Ends Tonight

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Top-seeded Westminister (Pa.) tangles with McMurry (Tex.) tonight as the 25th National Intercollegiate (NIAA) basketball tournament finishes first-round action.

The Titans of Westminister go into the game at 8 p.m. (EST) with a 22-2 record which includes victories over Duquesne and Pittsburg. McMurry isn't seeded but has a 24-4 record.

Two other highly-regarded teams, Winston-Salem (N.C.) and Pan American (Tex.), also will make their first appearances.

Fourth-seeded Winston-Salem (23-4) plays Indiana (Pa) State. And Pan American, the tourney dark horse and seeded fifth with a 23-4 record, plays Belmont (Tenn.) (16-8).

Monday's games in the opening session of the 32-team tournament were highlighted by the near upset of second-seeded Prairie View A&M (Tex.) and the ouster of third-seeded Georgetown (Ky.) in the Associated Press small college poll, was forced into overtime before beating Ashland (Ohio) 73-64. Carson-Newman (Tenn.) defeated Georgetown 75-51.

Skating Meet On Wednesday

PRAGUE (AP)—Canadian figure skaters, who played bridesmaids roles in the last world meet, will try to step up to the alter Wednesday at the start of the 4-day 1962 world championships.

Don Jackson, 21, of Toronto, begins his quest for the men's singles title; Maria and Otto Jelinek of Bronte, Ont., go after the pairs crown, and Virginia Thompson and William McLachlan, both of Toronto, bid for the ice dance championship.

Each of the three entries placed second in the 1960 world meet at Vancouver, B.C. Last year's championships, also scheduled for Prague, were canceled as a result of the Belgian air crash in which the entire American team died.

Canada has 10 entries, more than any other country, in the 16-nation field.

Ohio Is Still On Top; Duke 10th

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Buckeyes of Ohio State are college basketball's No. 1 team for the second straight year.

The Bucks, beaten only twice in the last two years while winning 50, finished first in the final Associated Press poll—a position they've held without interruption since the preseason poll of 1960.

Of 43 voters on the AP's selected nationwide panel, 38 cast a No. 1 ballot for Ohio State. The other five placed the Big Ten champions second, while splitting their first-place votes this way—two to Cincinnati, two to Mississippi State, and one to Kentucky.

On the basis of 10 points for first, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc. Ohio State wound up with 425 points and a clear edge over defending NCAA champion Cincinnati.

In the preseason poll, the experts had picked Ohio State and Cincinnati to finish one-two.

Of the 1961-62 Top Ten, Ohio State, Cincinnati, Kentucky, Bradley, Bowling Green and Colorado have postseason tournament commitments.

The final rankings with first-place votes in parentheses:

- Ohio State (38) 425
- Cincinnati (2) 362
- Kentucky (1) 321
- Mississippi State (2) 252
- Bradley 176
- Kansas State 146
- Bowling Green 132
- Utah 100
- Colorado 62
- Duke 61

Others receiving votes: Loyola (Chicago), St. John's (N.Y.), Wake Forest, Oregon State, West Virginia, Arizona State University, Duquesne, Utah State, UCLA, Villanova, St. Joseph's (Pa.), Texas Tech, Southern Methodist, Drake, Wisconsin.

Wealthy Golf Promoter Dies

CHICAGO (AP)—Funeral services will be held Thursday in suburban Glenview for George S. May, wealthy sports promoter who sponsored some of the richest tournaments in golf history.

May, who was 71, died Monday in his office at Tam O'Shanter Country Club, apparently of a heart attack.

May sponsored the All-America and World golf championships until he became entangled with the Professional Golfers Association in 1958 over his refusal to turn entry fees over to the PGA.

Several rifts developed between the colorful May and the PGA involving May's rule that golfers wear numbers on their back for identification, suspension of matches because of weather and on decisions of the rules of golf.

He distributed nearly $2 million in golf purses between 1941 and 1958.

CHAPTER 14
Detective Inspector Meer looked at Richard Rollison and said, "It didn't take us long to add things up, did it?"
Rollison replied, "The answer to one half of your question is a positive 'no' and to the other half a probable 'no'."
Meer put his head on one side, contemplatively, and then his eyes lit up, and he said with obvious satisfaction: "Which is the positive 'no,' sir? Could Dr. Kennedy have poisoned the dog or strangled the young woman?"
"He couldn't have poisoned the dog."
"Might be as well as if he could have," said Meer, musingly. "Did he have a real chance to injure the girl?"
"Ten minutes, at most—including getting in and persuading her to let him put the stocking round her neck. Also, he would have had to have a stocking in his pocket or go up to her bedroom and get one—unless there was some washing hanging up in the kitchen, but I don't recollect see-

What's that?
"Don't take offense, but would you mind if we had a look through your pockets? I mean, you might have come across something in this house and absent-mindedly tucked it away—just as well that we make sure that you don't take anything which might help us in our inquiries, sir, isn't it?"
Rollison chuckled deeply enough to forget the sight of the dead girl. He emptied his pockets. Among the things which he brought out was the .32 revolver, taken from the man outside Kate Lawson's place. Meer considered this very thoughtfully, but made no comment.
The only papers which interested him were those which Rollison had taken from the two men in Gillyray Street—and as Rollison knew, these were useful only in so far as they gave the names and addresses of the two men. Now, the police knew of the other two addresses he would have visited if he had drawn a blank here. Meer studied the letters solemnly, and then as solemnly handed them back.
"Nothing of value there, sir. Sure there's nothing you've taken from here?"
"You didn't give me time," mourned Rollison. "You would not expect me to want to be caught red-handed, would you?"
"Must be trying to be handi-capped with your knee as it is," said Meer. "Is that gun yours?"
"No. It belongs to the man who was concerned in the attack on Miss Lawson. He threatened me with it."
"Then I'd better have it, sir," said Meer. "I don't think I need worry you any more. Mr. Rollison, if Dr. Kennedy gets in touch with you tonight, I hope you will make quite sure that we know at once. Now—can I let you have a man to drive you back to Gresham Terrace? One of our chaps is a wov of a driver, and when he saw your Rolls-Bentley round the corner his eyes nearly popped out of his head."
"Let him drive me," Rollison said. "A policeman's eyes popping would be a sight I'd like to see tonight. Thanks, inspector."
"My privilege," Meer said, and then cocked an ear to sounds outside. The first of the reinforcements were here: ambulance, police car, or car with the fingerprint experts.
Meer seemed to have a genius for timings, as he went towards the door, calling "Wilson!" The man who had hovered behind the group on the porch came forward and exclaimed: "Would I mind?"
Twenty minutes later, turning into the Piccadilly end of Gresham Terrace, that street in the heart of Mayfair where Rollison had lived for over twenty years, Wilson said in tones almost of awe: "Loveliest job I've ever driven, sir. Any time you want to give this way, you know who'd like it, don't you?"
"I'll remember you," Rollison said solemnly. They pulled up

Conservation Notes

JUDSON WHITEHURST, a Coastal Plain Soil and Water Conservation District cooperater in the Grindle Creek Watershed, says he plans to protect his top soil during the windy spring months by leaving his cover crops undisturbed as long as possible before planting time.

Soil Conservationists give advice supporting Whitehurst's plans. They believe cover crops should be left on the last as long as possible. Turning up raw soil long before planting time only adds more dust when the winds blow, they say.

Crop residue left on the surface also helps to conserve top soil during the windy season. SCS personnel point out lying on the surface or disked into the upper layer of soil, the residue they say, will decay "just as fast or faster than it will when buried in the soil."

W. R. ROBERSON, district cooperater of the Sweet Gum Church Community in the Grindle Creek area, says he plans to convert a field ditch into a grassed waterway.

Roberson says he will fill up the existing ditch and install a line of drain tile to take care of the sub-surface water. After this is completed, he plans to shape the area and seed it in fescue grass.

His 20-foot-wide waterway will also serve as a turn row and will channel away excess surface water without an erosion problem.

BRYANT TRIPP, district cooperater in the Staton Mill Community in the Grindle Creek Watershed, also plans to convert an old field ditch into a grassed waterway.

Tripp remembers his service tenure in France during World War II when he observed many examples of grassed waterways on French farms. He says this practice enabled the farmers to utilize all their cleared land by using the grassed channels as turn rows and by mowing the grass for hay.

Tripp says the practice of grassing waterways also reduces maintenance costs of field ditching. More efficient drainage is another benefit of grassed waterways, Tripp believes.

His grass waterway plan is one of several practices developed with the technical assistance of the Soil Conservation Service.

ARCH J. FLANAGAN, chairman of the Pitt County Unit of the Coastal Plain district, has reported the following applications for basis soil and water conservation plans have been approved by the supervisors: Mrs. Lela P. Baker, Lonnie Baker, J. H. Boyd Jr., L. L. Branch, J. Paul Davenport Jr., Lorenzo Evans, William L. Harris, Mrs. Willie J. Stancil, William P. Stokes and Marvin B. Mewborn.

Panama Canal Treaty Is Due For Re-Negotiating

By HOWARD CRISWELL JR.

PANAMA (AP)—Within a few weeks the United States will face the sticky task of renegotiating the treaty governing the Panama Canal.

Panamanian negotiators, led by President Roberto F. Chiari, are expected to press for more revenue and Panamanian sovereignty over the canal which cuts through Panama.

The original treaty signed in 1903 gave the United States perpetual rights to the canal, a 50-mile stretch from Colon to Panama City, and a five-mile zone on either side.

Court Summons Brewer Over Refusing Testify

RALEIGH (AP)—Raleigh businessman Kidd Brewer is to appear in Wake Superior Court Friday in connection with his refusal to testify last week at a tax hearing before Revenue Commissioner William A. Johnson.

In a summons served Monday night and signed by Judge Raymond Mallard, Brewer was ordered to show cause why he should not be required to appear at the tax hearing.

Johnson had subpoenaed Brewer to the hearing last Tuesday to discuss income tax returns of the past eight years submitted by Brewer as an individual and by four firms with which he is affiliated.

However, Brewer, through his attorneys, said he would not show up at the hearing for fear the evidence could be used against him when he is tried next month on charges of conspiring to defraud the state.

The Wake County Grand Jury recently indicted Brewer, former highway engineer Robt. A. Burch and Burch's college-student son on charges of plotting to defraud the state in its purchase of highway sign materials.

Brewer was found with slashed wrists and throat in an apparent suicide attempt in January the night before he was to have appeared to answer an earlier tax summons issued by Johnson.

Burch was fired from his job as chief of the highway department's sign procurement and specification activities in January. Gov. Sanford said Burch had been too closely associated with Brewer, a manufacturer's representative for several sign firms.

Panama intends to bring up other issues in the treaty negotiations. For one thing, the nation wants access to the five-mile strip on either side of the canal.

Another issue is that of Canal Co. pay differentials, caused by a system of job classifications which Panamanians contend is discriminatory. Canal Co. officials say these differentials have all been eliminated.

Commissaries with low price merchandise maintained in the zone for U.S. citizens also are a sore point.

There is no feeling by Panama to take over canal operation.

Tarzan's Nemesis Now Tabbed For Hero's Role

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tarzan fans, already rocked by the controversy over whether he and Jane are wed, are due for another blow.

The screen's latest Tarzan, No. 12, as once the ape-man's nemesis.

Shocking though it may seem, Jock Mahoney is now playing the title role in "Tarzan goes to India." The same Jock Mahoney was television's range rider and menaced Gordon Scott in "Tarzan the Magnificent."

Now Jock has snatched away Scott's loincloth and is swinging through the Indian jungles as the 12th coming of Tarzan.

Before leaving for India, Mahoney discussed the strange turn in his career. He was finishing up another film in which he plays a dashing blade of early California.

"I hesitate to mention this," he said, "but I just bought a new home. It's on Cabellero Drive—in Tarzana."

Mahoney's acquaintance with Tarzan goes way back. He once tested for the role when Johnny Weissmuller was put out to pasture, or wherever old Tarzans go. Lex Barker won out, and Mahoney went on to other triumphs.

Last year, producer Sy Weintraub chose Jock to play the villain opposite Scott.

I gave him during the shooting in Africa," said Jock, whose know-how in the action stuff goes back to his beginnings as a stunt man. "I saved him thousands of dollars. He told me he would always find a place for me in the Tarzans."

"When Sy called me about the new picture, I figured he wanted me to play the heavy again," Jock said. "I was floored when he offered me Tarzan."

Jock said he pointed out the drawbacks: "My age (42). The fact that I don't have rippling muscles. Action is my business, and I've always kept loose, not muscle-bound."

The producer still wanted him, so Jock signed. It is the sequel to a prophetic incident in the shooting of the last Tarzan.

"We were doing a fight during the London interiors, Gordon Scott and I," the actor recalled. "I had him in a tight grip and he suddenly let out a yell. I was afraid I might be breaking his arm, and I released him immediately. There was Gordon, bare-backed naked and running for cover."

Jock is making sure that the same doesn't happen to him. Along with the leather loincloth he packed a number of nylon briefs.

About the marriage controversy, "Tarzan Goes to India," and leaves Jane at home to mind the tree house.

That should help quiet the unrest in Downey, Calif.

Bound Over To Superior Court

A Greenville man was ordered bound over to Pitt County Superior Court yesterday following a hearing of charges he had carnal knowledge of his 17-year-old daughter.

Greenville Recorders Court Judge Charles H. Whedbee ordered Stonewall Jackson Simpkins, 41, of 1114 West Fourth St. held without privilege of bond after finding "there is probable cause" that he is guilty of the "crime of incest."

Jackson's daughter was the only person to take the witness stand during the hearing.

She told the court that her father has been having relations with her for the past two years. She also testified that her 15-year-old step-brother has had intercourse with her.

He has been turned over to juvenile authorities.

The girl testified that she is now pregnant and told the court that the father of the expectant child is her step-brother.

New Highways Pictured As Key

RALEIGH (AP) — New highways have been pictured as the key to development of the Appalachian Mountains of North Carolina and several other Eastern states.

As soon as the idea was revealed Monday, Gov. Sanford cautioned a special advisory committee against expecting any immediate "miracles."

He said an Appalachian development program is not "the kind of thing that lends itself to a ready demonstration of results. It takes a long time to get people interested and to get organized."

The Appalachian region was discussed at an organizational meeting of the state advisory committee of the Appalachian Governor's Conference.

The group decided to recommend to the Appalachian Governor's Conference the development of a regional highway plan. The conference was formed last year to attack problems of the states in the mountain region.

The advisory group heard from Richard Kraft, a special assistant for regional planning of the U. S. Department of Commerce's Area Redevelopment Commission.

He said a stepped-up highway program "to break the isolation" was one of the first needs of the region.

State Highway Chairman Merrill Evans said if such a program is to be begun, new sources of revenue would be required. "A tremendous sum of new money would be needed," he commented.

JFK To Inspect Missile Base

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy will inspect missile sites at Vandenberg Air Force Base when he visits California next week.

The White House announced Monday that Kennedy will visit the base on the afternoon of March 23 after receiving an honorary degree and delivering a speech at Charter Day ceremonies at the University of California at Berkeley.

Property Owners Urged To Check

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Owners of Outer Banks beach property were urged today to check on their property so that the area may be opened as soon as possible.

Local Civil Defense, law enforcement and other officials were told Monday night that of the 977 houses or places of business between Kitty Hawk and Oregon Inlet, 823 now have been secured. This leaves 102 residences or businesses to be visited by owners and locked or boarded up.

The officials emphasized that the beach area will remain closed to all but property owners and officials until the entire area is secured.

Salk Vaccine Largely Ignored By Public; Doctors Concerned

In a report made public recently, the Medical Society of the State of North Carolina announced it views "with grave concern the failure of large segments of our population to be protected against poliomyelitis with Salk vaccine."

Freedom Award Goes To Kiwanis

Kiwanis International received a Distinguished Service Award for "Americanism and Citizenship Projects," in the 1961 Freedom Foundation Award presentation ceremony, February 22, at Valley Forge, according to Ed Rawl, president of the Kiwanis Club of Greenville. This is the most important award that the Freedom Foundation grants. It is the eleventh which Kiwanis has achieved.

"Kiwanis' award was based primarily on its dramatic CQ (Citizenship Quotient) project," Ed Rawl, club president, said. He described the CQ program as one which encourages citizens to determine their own citizenship activity, taking steps to correct any deficiencies noted.

A major award, the George Washington Honor Medal, also came to Circle K International for that group's "College Campus Citizenship Programs." Circle K International is a college men's service organization sponsored by Kiwanis. It numbers some 7200 members in 379 campus clubs.

Key Club International, a high school boys' service organization, also sponsored by Kiwanis, received an Honor Certificate from the Freedom Foundation for its "1961 Theme and Objectives," the inspirational guideposts toward which the organization oriented its 1961 service program.

Errors Cited In Accident Report

Greenville police said a mistake was made in their reporting of a Saturday night collision on 10th St. at the intersection of Elm.

Police said, through a typing error, it was reported that Jamie Carlton Briley, 20, of Rte. 5, Greenville, was charged with following too closely.

The driver actually charged with the violation was Robert Lewis Lane Jr., 16, of Route 2, Ayden.

Damage to the cars, originally reported as an estimated $200 to the Lane car and an estimated $400 to the Briley vehicle, was also incorrect.

Actually, damage of $400 should have been listed for the Lane auto and an estimated $200 to the Briley vehicle.

Warm And Sunny Days Return

Temperatures here Monday hit the 70-degree mark, and another warm, sunny day was on the weatherman's agenda for today.

John Buck of the Greenville Utilities Plant reported Monday's low was 54 degrees. Today had a low of 48 degrees at both the 4 a. m. and 8 a. m. readings at the utilities plant.

The weather forecast for tonight and Wednesday says mostly fair and a little cooler.

Rainfall which fell between midnight Saturday and midnight Sunday was .55 of an inch.

The Tar River today was at an 11.5-foot level and rising slowly, Buck reported.

Last Rites Set For Mrs. W. R. Willis

FARMVILLE — Mrs. Eva Chappell Willis, 69, widow of Wesley R. Willis, died at her home in Farmville early Monday morning of a sudden heart attack.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock from the Farmville Methodist Church by her pastor, the Rev. Allen C. Lee. Burial will follow in Beaver Hill Cemetery in Edenton.

Mrs. Willis, a native of Perquimans County, had resided in Farmville for the past 35 years. She was a member of the Farmville Methodist Church, being active in all phases of church work. She was a member of the North Carolina Society of Antiquities and a charter member of the Mery Matrons.

Mrs. Willis is survived by one daughter, Mrs. James McGoughlin of Lynchburg, Va.; three sisters, Mrs. R. T. Brinn of Hertford, Mrs. M. G. Brown of Edenton and Mrs. M. B. Horton Sr., of Farmville; one brother, Lee Chappell of Eureka, Calif., and one grandchild.

litis of the state medical society, said that a third of children up to five years of age had not been immunized, as well as half of the women and two-thirds of the men in the age group of 20 to 40 years. Dr. Ravenel pointed out that these are national figures.

A full course of five injections of Salk vaccine completely prevents paralytic poliomyelitis in well over 90 per cent of the cases.

In recent years, the report said, half the paralytic patients have been five years of age and under, but very young adults

Rose Kennedy Is Operated Upon

BOSTON (AP) — Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, 71, mother of the President, today underwent a successful operation for relief of a pelvic hernia. At the conclusion, her doctor said her condition was "excellent."

Mrs. Kennedy was on the operating table for an hour and five minutes.

The operation was performed by Dr. Roy J. Heffernan, a gynecologist, at St. Elizabeth's Hospital starting at 8 a. m. Mrs. Kennedy was taken to a recovery room shortly after 9 a. m.

Mrs. Kennedy entered the hospital Monday afternoon for a checkup. The decision to operate was made later in the day. Dr. Heffernan said then tests did not indicate any malignancy.

He added that the operation had verified the conclusion he had reached prior to surgery, that there was no malignancy.

Pierre Salinger, President Kennedy's press secretary, said in Washington the chief executive "is fully informed about his mother's condition."

President Kennedy did not plan to come here immediately.

Edward M. Kennedy, Mrs. Kennedy's youngest son, was expected to be in close contact with the hospital. An assistant district attorney in Suffolk County (Boston), Kennedy lives several miles from the hospital.

Satellite Might Have Warned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The orbiting Tros IV weather satellite could have warned of the sea-born storm that hit the East Coast last week if it had been in the right place, the head of the U. S. Weather Bureau says.

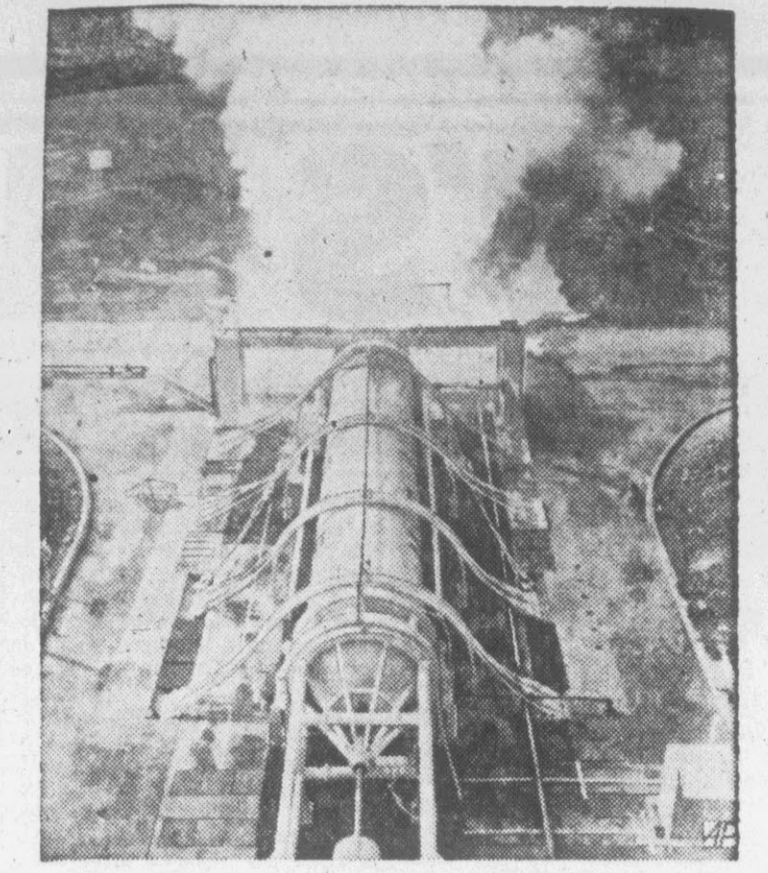

F. W. Reichelderfer, Weather Bureau chief, told the House Space Committee Monday that unfortunately the satellite was over the Southern Hemisphere while the storm was brewing in the Atlantic Ocean, 300 to 500 miles from the U. S. coast.

D. S. Johnson, head of the bureau meteorological satellite laboratory, said the disastrous storm was "a dramatic illustration of why we are pressing for observation at least once a day all over the earth."

President Sets News Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy plans to hold a news conference Wednesday at 3:30 p. m. est.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Monday the news conferences are in the afternoon because the timing is better suited to the president's schedule. But Salinger said, "There'll be some in the morning."

Evangelist Says Travels Uncovered Friendliness

RALEIGH (AP) — Billy Graham said today that on his recent trip to South America he found a huge reservoir of friendliness for the United States.

The evangelist said that among the masses of Latin America, "I found nothing but a warm outpouring" of good will for the United States.

Anti-American demonstrations, he said, are sparked by a "hard core" of professional agitators—some of whom are Communist inspired.

Three things, Graham said, have contributed towards the warm feelings toward the United States: (1) Cuba—"They don't like what's going on there"; (2) The Alliance for Progress; and (3) the recent South American visit of President and Mrs. Kennedy.

Before the news conference, Graham had attended the first annual governor's prayer breakfast along with Gov. Sanford, members of the Council of State, Justices of the State Supreme Court, and a host of state legislators.

Graham told the state leaders and lawmakers that a "great religious renaissance" has been underway in this country—with church attendance at an all-time high. But, paradoxically, he said, along with it has come a great increase in evil things—such as crime, immorality, and divorce.

Graham's visit to Raleigh marked the start of a week-long tour of the state. He is to speak in the State College Coliseum tonight.

On Thursday he will be in Chapel Hill, on Sunday at Camp Lejeune and Jacksonville, and next week he will be at Wake Forest College in Winston-Salem.

Graham said he had been asked if he is making the trip because of plans to enter politics. "I have no political intentions at all—no political ambition," he stated.

Small Blaze At Local Plant

Firemen responded to a call from the Piedcrest Mills plant at the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and Hooker Road yesterday at 10:08 p. m.

Responding fire officers said a sprinkler head went off when sparks from a welding machine caught a crying unit on fire. They noted the blaze was out when they arrived, however.

Henry Morris, manager of the mill, said no damage resulted from the small blaze.
