Nightcaps Make Fashion Comeback

FLOWER FRILL
Non for Night time

By NANCY LOWE GRAY
Woofter (Mass.) Gazette
Written for The Associated Press

Nightcaps are back for the first time in more than a century, and women are wearing them everywhere.

The caps, which come in a variety of styles ranging from sturdy gingham to dainty nylon lace numbers, have been difficult for the nation's department stores to keep in stock during the past six months.

Now the menswear manufacturers have entered into the fashion spirit with nightcaps like those great grandfathers used to wear.

But women never did have a corner on the nightcap market. From the 14th to the mid-19th century, nightcaps were standard for women, men and children. They were worn indoors as well as in bed, mostly to give wig-wearers a bit of relaxation.

Men's nightcaps in the 19th century were called jolly bags, because of their shape. They were usually fashioned of knitted silk with a tassel on the top.

The Velvet Touch

Women's nightcaps were daintier at the time, but males had their share of finery, too. In the 16th century a coil cap was worn as an indoor cap and nightcap by males of learned professions. These often were embroidered in colored silks.

An advertisement in a Boston paper in 1760 advertised men's velvet nightgown caps. Silk nightgowns and matching nightcaps also were on the market.

Finally a rule was passed by the corporation of Harvard College that no student should wear any silk nightgowns or nightcaps. They were considered not only an unnecessary expense but "inconvenient with the gravity and demeanor proper to be observed."

An old costume book reveals that the governor of Massachusetts had a list of goods stolen from him. He named four nightcaps with lace edge and eight nightcaps with lace. Men at one time wore nightcaps in the daytime as a part of a lounging costume.

Hide Curlers

Today's nightcaps for women copy the 18th century dourmeuse, French nightcaps, worn during the day and at night. The bonnet-type caps featured puffed up crowns, ruffles and under-the-chin ties. Women are wearing them in bed, around the house, and on outside errands to cover up curlers.

The nightcaps range in price from $1 to $3. They come in dainty bouffant type laces to match nightgowns and peignoirs. They also come in nylon, rayon and cotton prints. The caps will fit any type hair style—even highly bouffant. Most have elastic banding so that they are face-hugging.

The women of the space age find them pretty and useful. Men may, too, at least those with bald patches should on cold winter nights.

PARIS—(WNS)—Stage, screen and ballet star Ludmilla Tchernina is exhibiting her paintings at the Galerie de Paris.

"If you are an artist in one field, you must be an artist in all fields," she explained. "Art comes to you like love, from the most unexpected sources and with the heat of passion."

The sophisticated brunette generally paints at midnight after a difficult ballet performance. Sometimes she awakens at 3 a.m., and finds inspiration to go directly to her easel and paints.

Presbyterian Women Meet Mrs. E. P. Satterthwaite was hostess in her home to the regular monthly meeting of the Women of Johnson Memorial Presbyterian Church, Monday March 12th at 7:30 p.m.

The president, Mrs. Satterthwaite, presided at a short business session after which a short program on the topic: "Introducing People to Christ on My Job" was discussed. This program was designed to help every person see that the daily round of common duties for the Christian—the things that occupy her time can become to her a vocation which would turn drudgery into joyous living.

After the program, Mrs. Sam Wilson, Bible leader, led in a discussion of the topic, "The Wise and Understanding Heart". The scripture reading was taken from James 3:13-18, Phillip's translation which was a study of James' way of recognizing a wise man. First—We know a good man by his good life and works, not only by what he says? Not by profundity of his knowledge, but by the quality of life he leads. Second—We know a wise man by his meekness, that is meekness toward God which means the absence of self-assertiveness in relation to God. Meekness involves courtesy, thoughtfulness, consideration and understanding. Such a man or woman is not weak. He simply has found the secret of living. He is truly a strong man. The study was concluded with prayer.

At the social hour, the hostess served delectable refreshments.

Unnerved By So Much Tax Agent Help

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Internal Revenue Service says it was only trying to be helpful in sending a flock of agents to a tiny Arkansas community. But some of the townspeople don't seem to appreciate it.

In fact, the citizens of Fordyce (pop. 3,890) got so nervous they stopped buying things, the local Chamber of Commerce complained Wednesday. It said business in Dallas County (pop. 10,522) declined 50 per cent since the 30 or so agents dropped into town 10 days ago.

"It has excited people beyond imagination," said one chamber official, and a Fordyce merchant quoted a would-be customer as saying: "I need to buy a TV, but I'm going to wait until I see what these revenue boys do to me."

All the IRS agents meant to do to the people of Fordyce was to help them with their tax returns—not to frighten them, a man said.

He said citizens were advised the agents would be available to talk with those whose 1960 returns were being audited or who needed help with 1961 returns.

It was an experimental thing, an effort to see if the operation could be made more useful and efficient, the spokesman said.

FACTOLUS SPEAKER—Mr. J. R. Boren, minister of West Riverside Church of Christ, McMinnville, Tenn., will preach in a gospel meeting March 19-23 at Pactolus in the Cedar Grove Church. ## Grifton Recreation Plans Progressing

GRIFTON—A move to establish a recreation program in Grifton progressed this week with a visit on Wednesday by Miss Virginia Gregory, assistant director of the North Carolina Recreation Commission.

Creation of a recreation commission is the first step in organizing a planned program, Miss Gregory said, outlining the way a town can start its own program. Financial backing is necessary for a successful program, she said.

A third step involves leadership and selection of a director. The fourth step mentioned by Miss Gregory is establishment of facilities for recreation and equipment.

"We must think in terms of a lot of games for a lot of children," Miss Gregory told her audience, assembled at Grifton High School. Children should be encouraged to develop self-reliance and a skill to be proud of, she said. She noted that in the various recreation activities, "Treasure Island" can be read under a tree on the playground by a leader. A playground is a place to learn to get along with others.

A skilled leader who knows what to do is a necessity for a good recreation program, she said.

She advised Grifton residents to plan a good 10- or eight-week summer program and plan it well, giving children an activity to look forward to each week.

The recreation leader also showed a film on Spring Valley. During her visit, Miss Gregory visited the local park, school, golf club and other points, and conferred with Mayor Wiley Gaskins and Principal Ed Bright of Grifton School. She is scheduled to assist in planning a recreation program for Grifton, to begin in June.

The move to establish a recreation program here began in recent weeks. Representatives of civic and educational organizations throughout Grifton formed the Citizens Recreation Organization, whose aim is to establish a functioning recreation commission. At present, Grifton has no planned program backed by a central organization.

A spokesman for the organization said the Grifton Town Board of Commissioners has given its approval of the program but lacks funds to completely finance the project in the present budget.

A spokesman for the group said that if the program as planned is successful, the members hope for a permanent endorsement of the program by the civic organizations as well as help from interested citizens.

Teenage guests at the dinner sponsored by the Citizens Recreation Organization included Joanne McGlohon, president of the Teenage Canteen; Robert Triplett, vice president; Julia Coward, treasurer; and Judy Rose, secretary.

Mayor Wiley Gaskins also attended the dinner.

This marriage can be saved . . .

Young couples getting married now-a-days need a fairly heavy down-payment, a reasonable amount of income, and good luck.

Monthly payments add up pretty high on a car, furniture, and perhaps a home mortgage. Add these to monthly bills for groceries, utilities, clothing, drugs, life insurance, and all the rest, and they have a comparatively heavy load.

Open a savings account for your son while he is a child. As he grows older, teach him to add something to it regularly each month. The happy result will enable him to have a financial start in life, without having to look to you for much assistance when you may be least able to help.

A dollar each month placed on deposit in one of our daily interest savings accounts, compounded quarterly, will grow to $328.85 in 20 years. Start today!

Make book on it.

What follows is fact—not fiction—and no names have been changed to protect anybody.

Chapter I starts with style. It asks who is the only compact ever to receive the Society of Illustrators' award for design excellence. Answer: The Valiant Signet 200—America's lowest-priced hardtop with bucket seats—that's who! Read on . . .

Chapter II talks about performance. The Valiant can, and has, run circles around every competitively priced compact, including the Falcon, Corvair and Lark. All of which leads many to suspect they know the plot—Valiant is priced with the so-called "super-compacts." Not so, reveals the surprise ending in Chapter III. Valiant is priced competitively, model for model, with Falcon, Corvair, Rambler and Lark.

Why not drive one this week? Could be you'll want to join those 347,000 folks for whom Valiant's a kind of love story that is continued every month. The title of our story: NOBODY BEATS VALIANT FOR VALUE!

Geneva Sure To Affect The Future

After Geneva, What?
 In many different forms, that question is being asked throughout the globe in high official circles and by the man on the street. Most eyes are on the disarmament negotiations now underway in Geneva, where for the first time in almost two years the Western Allies and the Soviets are sitting across the table from each other discussing possibilities for disarmament.

And although all eyes are looking to Geneva, there is not great optimism that a disarmament agreement will come out of the current meeting. It may end on a high note of greater harmony between the opposing camps, or the negotiations may conclude under a cloud of greater international tension, a continuation of the old stalemate with each side resorting to blistering verbal attacks upon the other for making impossible demands.

The Western Allies have shown no indication of being interested in any disarmament agreement which does not include realistic safeguards for both sides, rigid inspections and a ban on secret development. The Soviets, on the other hand, show no inclination to alter their previous position that inspections are out of the question, and safeguards can be granted only in their discretion. Negotiations may lead to some middleground between these two positions, but without guarantees and inspections, the free world would be foolish in entering into a disarmament agreement.

Whatever the outcome of the current talks at Geneva, they will have their impact on the future course of both East and West. Agreement or significant progress toward agreement will lead to an easing of international tension between the Western Allies and the Soviet Union. Lack of progress cannot help but increase international tension, resulting in both sides placing greater emphasis on the arms race.

The free world would much prefer the former outcome to the latter. Even so, to face life in the world of today realistically, the West cannot forfeit its place of military strength and hope to remain free. If the course is to be increased armament rather than disarmament, the West must continue to compete and compete effectively with the communist camp.

One way or the other, the current conference in Geneva will precipitate a change in international affairs.

Bridge Location Now Is A Closed Matter

Presumably the location of the new highway bridge between Morehead City and Beaufort has been finally settled by the State Highway Commission, but it is obvious there is still concern that the new bridge not hamper future development of the state's deep water port at Morehead City.

Certainly the Highway Commission should make every possible effort to have the bridge designed to fit into rather than block future development of the port facilities.

There is no reason, however, why both the need for the new highway bridge between the coastal cities and adequate protection for future development of the port cannot be fulfilled in plans for the new bridge. It is well, we think, that the Highway Commission has made a decision on the location of the bridge instead of further delaying the matter.

The bridge location approved by the Highway Commission yesterday is the same location as that approved more than 18 months ago under the Hodges administration. The location, therefore, should be considered a closed matter both by those who favored the location which was approved and by those who favored another location farther removed from the present bridge.

Both these groups should now join forces in an effort to assure construction of a bridge that will not hamper the port's development. Through the joint effort of these two local groups in Carteret County, plus the concerted efforts of the Highway Commission and the State Ports Authority, the best interests of both the highway users and the Morehead City port can be served.

Dusting Off The Green

Saint Patrick's Day is an occasion carried to four corners of the earth by people of a tiny island. It is The Day for the Irish and Near-Irish. Ireland's history didn't begin with St. Patrick, but the mystic link between the patron saint and the Irish and those of Irish descent is so strong that one might say there will no longer be an Ireland when there is no longer a St. Patrick's Day.

People who have seen celebration of The Day in New York or Boston say it out-rides by far the display of Irish in their own land. There are reasons, of course.

The natives of the Emerald Isle live as Irish 365 days of the year; their distant kin on these shores are Americans with pride only one day a year. Such occasions call for cheerful exuberance beyond the norm.

Another point: Some 20 million Americans, perhaps more, trace their ancestry to Ireland. That land's population today stands at around 4 million, so there are more potential observers "hereabouts" than "thereabouts."

It can be truthfully said that with arrival of the Irish, America would never be the same.

During sixty years of heavy Irish emigration, more people left Ireland than stayed behind. Famine and persecution were largely responsible. And history records that the major immigrant group ever embraced their new home with more ardor than

Other Editors Saying Clemency Not Deserved

(Rocky Mount Telegram) Rep. Francis E. Walter, Democrat of Pennsylvania, has offered a very substantial reason why he opposes the release from prison of former Communist leader Julius Scales of North Carolina. Says Walter: "Just before Scales began serving his prison sentence he told an interviewer, 'I can't say that I regret any of it. We did a lot of good things.' I would ask Mr. Scales if he includes among those good things the teaching of how to murder with a pencil point?"

ed publicly back in the 1940s that the Communist party of the United States is not dominated by the Soviet Union. But Congress, the executive branch and the judiciary have all found Scales wrong—if not a calculated liar—on that score.

After Scales was convicted in Greensboro in 1955 he said "my party has never advocated force and violence." On this claim he was also found incorrect. The Communist party would be delighted to see the Smith Act downgraded by his premature release from prison.

Apparently the peculiar breed of Americans pushing the clemency - for - Scales campaign are not bent so much on a mission for mercy as they are anti-Communist law of the land has been upheld by the Supreme Court. Well, it is something of a switch.

Was Julius Scales a victim of circumstances or a dupe when he joined the Reds in 1940? As a student at the University of North Carolina, as the son of a wealthy attorney, as the grandnephew of a governor of North Carolina, and as a descendant of college presidents, a Confederate general, ministers, editors, Revolutionary War soldiers and colonial judges dating back to 1623 in American history, Scales had far better reason than most U. S. Communists to know what he was betraying. Because of this he deserves no clemency. His violation of the law was deliberate. His punishment should be just as deliberate.

Clear Trend In Christmas Toys

television Christmas. It will be an expensive Christmas.

In the constantly growing model field, a series of electronic kits has been introduced by Revell, Venice, Calif. These include a hi-fi amplifier, a stereo record player, a stereo conversion kit and a short wave radio. The kits sell for half the price of comparable completed sets, and some regular electronic manufacturers may be worried.

Automation is all over the lot. There's an automated baseball game in which runners actually move around the diamond by Kenner, Cincinnati. There is a battery-powered lathe for turning foam plastic and attachments for six other home workshop tools. There's a dinosaur that roars and fights back and roars when hit by an arrow on a sensitive point on its tail. This is by Ideal, New York.

There is also a 23-inch basket ball that walks with a waddle and barks; it can also pick up a bone with its magnetized teeth. Also by Ideal. A hobby horse whinnies and asks, "How about some hay?"

MORE SCIENCE TOYS
 Science toys, which have been increasing in profusion in recent years, are more numerous than ever. There's a model atomic plant, a model prop-jet engine, several weather forecasting sets, and chemistry sets unlimited.

Television has become a two-way street. Toy manufacturers are drawing from television for dolls and characters. Almost any TV cartoon you can think of now appears, more or less animated, at the fair. Some are jointed, three-dimensional characters, some appear in colored slides, some are in coloring sets and make-it-yourself kits. At the same time, toy manufacturers are boasting how much they will spend on television advertising this year. TV toy advertising has become so spectacular in recent years that the Federal Communications Commission has warned advertisers to restrict themselves to the truth. That, however, has not lessened the

Ship Pilots Are Made, Not Born

(Note to Readers: Lynn Nisbet is in Tampico, Mexico. During his absence guest writers will supply material for this column.)

By BUD WILSON
 Guest Writer
 SOUTHPORT, N.C. — One of the more glamorous but least understood jobs in North Carolina is that of piloting the ships into and out of the twisting, shoaling Cape Fear River. Those who bring the freighters, tankers and passenger ships up the river have what the average male considers the ideal job — one which provides adventure, excellent pay and the respect of his fellow men.

And for a man with the ability, training, knowledge and that rare intangible known as good judgment, a pilot's job is ideal. Pilots are made, not born, although most if not all those actively engaged in the profession today can trace direct descent from blockade runners of the War Between the States.

In addition to holding a federal license to pilot the Cape Fear waters, a State license called a "branch" — is required. It is issued annually by the board which controls all activity on the Cape Fear River, the Board of Commissioners for Navigation and Pilotage for the Cape Fear River and Bar.

The commission, created by the 1921 General Assembly, consists of five men who are appointed by the Governor for four-year terms. They have ultimate, and absolute, responsibility for licensing pilots. Louis Hanson is chairman of the commission and recently started his 33rd year on the board. Other members are Prince O'Brien, vice chairman, and Oliver Carter, R. M. Williams and J. E. L. Wade.

The pilots themselves belong to an organization known as The Wilmington Cape Fear Pilots Association and elect a manager, or chairman, from their number annually. They maintain their own office, dispatching service, two stout boats with crews to carry them to sea where they board or leave ships, carry their own insurance, and collect their fees. Neither the pilots nor the commission receive State or federal funds of any sort. All fees collected — they run from about $100 to $150 per trip — go into a central fund from which all expenses are paid by the

Consistent In Meeting Press

By JAMES MARLOW
 WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Kennedy decided to resume atmospheric nuclear tests—a move of sensational magnitude and interest — he announced it in a tv-radio broadcast and not in a news conference.

This, if only by contrast, gives an insight into the nature of his meetings with the press where, while providing a lot of news, he avoids sensationalism. There were good reasons for the way he announced the tests. It got him maximum attention. But it was also a decision which needed full and detailed explanation, carefully prepared and stated.

It was in a field too dangerous and slippery to be skipped over casually or quickly, as might happen at a news conference, since a careless phrase could cause an explosion. And there was the time element.

Kennedy took almost 30 minutes in his broadcast. His news conferences last 30 minutes. If he had tried to use his news conference for the statement he gave on TV there would have been no time for a conference. An examination of his eight meetings with the press in 1962 shows a pattern which has been consistent in his news conferences with very few exceptions, since he took office in 1961.

If it is granted that a cardinal mark of maturity in a man with great power is the steady exercise of restraint and the ability to look beyond the immediate hazardous or angry moment, then Kennedy is very mature.

Restraint is the one word which can sum up the pattern of his news conferences. This is the pattern: Very little display of anger, particularly of a personal kind; an extraordinarily detailed knowledge of government, foreign and domestic; streaks of humor; avoidance of language which would humiliate or needlessly irritate and antagonize individuals who disagree with him but with whom he must continue to deal, whether it's Premier Khrushchev or members of Congress working to scuttle

Long before Christian thinkers had worked out what we have come to call a Christian theology, this pagan philosopher, Plato, put his finger on one of the most important truths of religion, namely that life gains its significance, its energy, and its purpose not primarily because of what we do but "by way of some divine disclosure coming into life from outside it."

We can look upon a created world and can easily come to the conclusion that a Creator

At Issue Is The Telling

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
 Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina has been raising an issue, not of the right to tell. Military men and many public officials come into possession of much information either because of the work they do or because of their proximity to others who do very important work.

The issue is: are they justified in telling what they know while they remain in the employ of the government? Does wearing the uniform enjoin a man from free speech?

This is an old issue and there had been many quarrels over it. The most recent one is that of General Edwin A. Walker who, after a brilliant military career, was, in effect, forced out of command in Germany because his anti-Communist activities were distasteful to the Administration. Many persons believe that General Walker was mistreated.

The attitude of the Kennedy Administration is that the foreign policy of this country is to be conducted by the President, assisted by the Secretary of State; that when public officials, particularly men in uniform, speak, we, in the United States, understand that each man speaks for himself but that in other countries, particularly Communist countries, whatever is said by an official person is assumed to be policy, determined in advance of the address. Also the Administration takes the position that it may wish to time a case softly, mildly or angrily and that it alone shall determine the degree of emphasis.

For instance, when a speaker wrote "Communist China has territorial objectives of its own and must be reckoned with quite apart from loyalties to Moscow, the censor removed the words "which must be reckoned with quite apart from loyalties to Moscow." It is possible to understand the reason for the destruction of the second clause of the sentence. It must be a matter of policy to acknowledge the degree of the split between Russia and Red China.

The issue then comes down to this:
 1. Public officials, unless authorized, should be silent;
 2. Public officials should speak but their speeches should conform to policy;
 3. Public officials should be free to say anything they choose.

The second choice, under most circumstances, is most likely to be correct, provided:
 1. That the national policy is known to all;
 2. That the censorship is done for the sake of national policy and not to satisfy the whimsicalities of the individual censor or perhaps his private decision as to what is policy;
 3. That the censor be a mature person of sound judgement at least equal in rank to the censored.

General B. A. Schriever, Air Research and Development Command, had the following sentence taken out of a speech which said that if the Communists "were to develop an effective anti-ICBM before we do, they would have a tremendous advantage." So, taken out was this:

"They might be able to negotiate any solution they desired without the fear of armed conflict or retaliation."

The censored sentence is correct. It is truthful. It does not baffle national policy. Why was the sentence taken out of the speech? As a matter of fact, President Kennedy has made similar statements as far back as his campaign — America must be on the move!

Similarly, General George H. Decker, Chief of Staff of the Army, who ought to know policy, was censored in this fashion:

The Sin of Greed

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:17; Mark 10:35-45; Luke 12:13-21.

God's last commandment prohibited covetousness. Such selfish motivation was evident even among Christ's disciples; James and John requested of Jesus places of preference in after life. Jesus replied that such honors were earned by service, not request. —Exodus 20:17; Mark 10:35-45.

Once when Christ was teaching, one of the multitude interrupted Him rudely to demand, "Teacher, bid my brother divide the inheritance with me." Christ refused, implying that such a petty and selfish legal matter should be taken up with the proper authorities.—Luke 12:13-14.

He went on to cite a parable of a rich man whose fields yielded so plentifully that he didn't know what to do with all his produce. He decided to tear down his old barns and build larger ones so he could keep all his wealth, and take his ease in future years.—Luke 12:16-19.

Just then, however, it came time for him to die. God rebuked him for his covetousness of material things and his neglect of the godly. "So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God." — Luke 12:20-21.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Luke 12:15

The Sin of Greed

COVETOUSNESS AND ITS MANIFESTATIONS

Scripture—Exodus 20:17; Mark 10:35-45; Luke 12:13-21.

By N. SPEER JONES THE LAST of God's Ten Commandments deals not with an overt act but with a desire or thought. In this desire is rooted, in some way, every overt sin (See W. S. Bruce: The Ethics of the Old Testament, pp. 164-170).

In the last lesson it was made clear that good deeds proceed, as good fruit, from a good heart, and evil deeds from an evil heart. If a man's innermost being is obsessed with thoughts of possession and envy, his actions reflect this, to the point of disobeying God's other commandments.

Lying, stealing, adultery, murder, dishonoring one's parents, ignoring the sabbath—all these are motivated partly by covetousness. Even more commonly it is reflected in disobedience of the First Commandment, allowing something other than God to take first place in one's life.

Greed is such an insidious and universal thing that we have an illustration of it even in the innermost circle of Christ's disciples (James, John and Peter), singled out by Christ Himself. (See Mark 8:37 and 9:2.)

Considering the version of Matthew (20:20-28), the brazen request of James and John was at least instigated, if not made directly, by their mother.

In both these versions it is plain that the request was made in a rather underhanded way, by asking Jesus to grant a promise before He knew what the request would be.

This is not only wrong on the part of the requester, but on Based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission. Distributed by King Features Syndicate centeredness of the petitioner is evident from his very first word, for he interrupts Jesus in the midst of His teachings about an entirely different subject.

Christ's rhetorical question, in reply, indicates that He is above such petty legal differences. His work deals with the soul, not His possessions. Just as He ordered the tribute money to be referred to those who dealt in money, He here implies that this same earthly government is equipped, through its courts, to handle another earthly matter—this man's inheritance.

Christ illustrates His point with the well-known parable of the rich man who, instead of giving to others of his largesse, builds an even larger storehouse to keep it for himself. These riches availed him nothing in the long run, for he was "not rich toward God."

now it's Pepsi for those who think young

All over America there's a great new feeling—people are putting more into their leisure, getting more out of their lives. It's a new outlook called thinking young. This is the life for Pepsi—light, bracing, clean-tasting Pepsi. So go ahead—think young. In stores, buy an extra carton. At fountains, say "Pepsi, please!"

Bethel Defeats Pantego 67-57

REBOUND FOR INDIANS . . . Bethel's Lester Warren (42) gets rebound as Pantego's Bencie Allen (17) and Donald Osborne (21) lose out on the try. (Reflector Staff Photo)

By CHARLES VAUGHAN
Reflector Sports Writer

The Bethel Indians rallied in the second half to overcome the Pantego Warriors last night by a score of 67-57.

Led by Billy Durham, the Warriors jumped in an early lead over the Indians in the first quarter of the contest. Pantego continued to outpace the Indians as they went on to a 19-14 first period advantage. Bethel managed to match the sharp-shooting Warriors basket for basket in the second quarter as they narrowed Pantego's lead to three points at the end of the half.

Indians Rally
After two minutes of the second half, the Indians rallied to overtake the slowing Warriors. Tex Everett tallied seven of his total fourteen points in this quarter as he paced Bethel to a 49-45 third quarter lead. In the final period of the contest, Bethel increased their advantage over the Warriors as they pushed to victory 67-57.

The high scoring Indians were led by Herman Daniels who sank eight field goals and four free throws for a game high total of 20 points. Also in double figures for the winners were Tex Everett and Don Dewar with 14 and 12 points respectively.

Respass Paced Pantego
Durwood Respass, Pantego's talented sophomore, paced the losers with a total of 18 points for the night. Durham sank 12 points for the Warriors.

After four minutes of the first period, Pantego began to take control of the contest as they surged ahead of the Indians. Durham hit the nets for a field goal and a free throw with thirty seconds left in the opening period to give the Warriors a 19-14 first quarter advantage over Bethel.

Bethel, fighting desperately to keep pace with high scoring Pantego, was unable to narrow the Warriors' advantage until late in the second period. With one minute remaining in the first half, substitute Lester Warren hit the nets to cut Pantego's lead to 31-30. However, the Warriors fought back to lead the Indians 35-32 at the end of the quarter.

Everett Ties Game
With six minutes left to play in the third period, Tex Everett sank a free throw to tie the contest at 37 all. Jesse Thomas then tested in his first field goal of the evening to put the Indians ahead for the first time. Pantego managed to regain their lead twice in the next few minutes, but Bethel refused to fall behind. Bethel went on to increase their advantage over the Warriors to 49-45 at the end of the third period. The Indians were untouchable in the fourth period as they continued to widen their lead over their tiring opponents. After five minutes of this period, the Indians led the Warriors by fifteen points. However, the Pantego Warriors made a last desperate effort to overtake the Indians. The effort fell short, however, as Bethel went on to a 67-57 victory.

Early in the first half of the contest, starter Jimmy Lewis for the Indians was called for three personal fouls. Coach Dan Wooten replaced Lewis with substitute Lester Warren. Warren, a junior, came through tremendously for Bethel as he controlled the rebounds for the winners. Aside from his powerful rebounding, Warren also tossed in six points for the Indians.

Jamesville Knocked Out Of Tournament By Knapp

Coach Bill Wilkerson and the Knapp Knights downed the Jamesville Red Devils 46-42 last night in the second round of the District One Class A tournament.

Dan Ballance paced the victors with eight field goals and three free throws for a game high total of 19 points. The Jamesville Red Devils were led by Charles Askew who tallied 13 points in the losing effort.

Jamesville Holds Knapp
Jamesville managed to hold Knapp to one point in the first four minutes of the opening period as they pushed to a 4-1 advantage. The Knapp Knights fought back to overtake the Red Devils 7-6 with three minutes left in the quarter. Jamesville was unable to regain their earlier lead as the Knights went on to a 9-8 first period advantage.

In the second quarter of the contest, the Red Devils managed to overcome the Knights after three minutes of play. Jamesville increased their advantage to three points at one stage of this quarter, before the Knights could regroup their forces. However, the Red Devils' lead was narrowed to 17-16 at the close of the first half.

Knights Surge Ahead
Knapp outscored Jamesville 12-8 in the third quarter to surge ahead of the lagging Red Devils. Led by Ballance, the Knights pushed to a 28-25 third period lead.

Jamesville was unable to gain on the Knights in the fourth and final quarter as Knapp continued to increase their lead. With three minutes remaining in the ball game, the Knights surged to a seven-point advantage over the Red Devils. However, Jamesville rallied late in the period to close Knapp's lead to four points. This was not enough, however, as the Knights went on to victory 46-42.

Knapp returns to the tournament tonight to meet the Tornadoes from Ayden. Ayden won their opening round Wednesday night by defeating Pasquotank Central.

Will Try To Improve Arena

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Operators of the Richmond Arena, faced with the possibility the Southern Conference basketball tournament might be moved elsewhere, have hired a contractor to see what can be done to improve the facility.

The arena seats fewer than 5,000 persons and annually is forced to turn away thousands of persons who would love to watch the conference tournament but can't be accommodated.

Earlier this week the chance that the conference might move the tournament grew with the announcement that a sports committee of the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce was studying the possibility of inviting the tournament to the 12,000-seat Charlotte Coliseum.

Richmond is regarded as an ideally located site for the tourney but there is no question the Southern Conference—which obtains most of its revenue from the basketball tournament—would like to stage it in a larger facility.

Clyde Ratcliffe, president of the Arena Corporation here, said Thursday night the corporation's Executive Committee has employed a contractor "who is making a survey to see what can be done" to improve the arena—a former city garage and fairgrounds exhibition building.

GREENSBORO (AP)—It's the Eastern Conference against the Central tonight in the semifinals of the state 4-A high school basketball championship tournament.

Defending state champion Wilmington, the Eastern titleholder, meets Burlington's big, rugged Central champs in the 9 o'clock second game. The 7:30 opener matches Rocky Mount, No. 3 team in the East, and Greensboro Senior Central runnerup.

Wilmington mauled High Point 55-38 and Burlington corralled Charlotte's Myers Park Mustangs 79-65 in concluding first round games Thursday night before 2,500.

Wilmington, although a 17-point winner, made one basket less than High Point. But the champs from the Port City took only 31 shots for their 14 hoops while the erratic Black Bison of High Point fired 64 times for 15 buckets.

Leon Brogden's cool, confident Wilmington club made it a run-away by sinking 27 of 31 free throws. The Wildcats, who lost an overtime game at High Point two months ago, held quarter leads of 12-5, 27-9 and 38-19.

Jimmy Long's 21 points and 12 by Billy King led Wilmington. Jimmy Simeon and Gil Ford each had 10 for High Point.

Fred Miller's powerful Burlington squad was the best looking team in the tournament for the first quarter as it ran up a 25-12 lead over Myers Park, last year's runnerup to Wilmington.

But the Charlotte scrappers fought back gamely to make it a real contest down the closing minutes. They outscored Burlington by a point in each of the next two quarters. Myers Park rallied from a 21-point deficit, 45-24, to trail by only six, 65-49, with 2:06 to play before Burlington finally applied the brakes to the rally.

HIGH POINT, N. C. (AP)—East Carolina and Catawba placed two players each on the 10-man Carolinas Conference all-star team that will play the North Carolina Big Four all-stars in a benefit game here next Tuesday.

Billy Wells of Lenoir Rhyne will coach this Carolinas Conference team.

Roger Snow and Jim Dew, Catawba; Charlie Lewis and Benny Bowes, East Carolina; Bobby Frank, Pfeiffer; Wolly Unger, High Point; Harold Oetting, Appalachian; Eddie Holbrook, Lenoir Rhyne; Jon Burwell, Guilford; and Jack Hussey, Atlantic Christian.

Proceeds from the annual game benefit the Boys Home, Inc., at Lake Waccamaw.

Benefit Game At South Ayden

The Elizabeth City State Teachers College Alumni Chapter will sponsor a scholarship benefit basketball game tomorrow night in the South Ayden High School gym.

The South Ayden championship team will meet the Pitt County All-Stars and the Bruce-Falkland champions will meet the Pitt County elementary All-Stars.

Bill Gentry, one of three huge Burlington front liners who average just under 6-4 and 208 pounds, came fast after a scoreless first period. He wound up as high scorer with 22 points and bulled his way up to the boards for 17 rebounds. Gary Taylor supplied 17-point help.

Two reserves, Ted Dubose and Jeff Weaver, each scored 13 points for Myers Park.

KINSTON, N. C. (AP)—The state high school 3-A basketball tourney enters the semifinal round tonight with co-favorites Sanford and Mount Airy favored to advance to the finals. Sanford, 23-0 for the season, meets Northern Durham in one game and Mount Airy, defending champion gunning for its third straight crown, plays Hendersonville in the other.

The winners will play for the championship in the finals Saturday night.

Hendersonville upset Roanoke Rapids in a first round game Thursday night 46-43. The winners took advantage of the Yellow Jackets' cold shooting in the first half and held a 25-14 advantage at intermission.

The Bear Cats put down Roanoke Rapids comeback drives in the second half.

Mount Airy, 20-3 for the season, had too much for outmanned Massey Hill. The winners advanced to a quick lead and widened it throughout. Buddy Perry was high for Mount Airy with 25 and Jim Eason led Massey Hill with 27.

Two Pitt Clubs In Semifinals

Two Pitt County teams will play tonight in the semifinals of the Class A District Tournament in the East Carolina gym.

Coach Stuart Tripp's Ayden Tornadoes, Pitt County Conference champions, and Coach Dan Wooten's Bethel Indians, the runner-up in the county, will both see action tonight and if both teams should win they will meet each other in the final game tomorrow night.

The winner of the tournament will earn a berth in the State Tournament to be held in Durham next week.

Tonight Ayden will take on the Knapp Knights in the first game at 7 o'clock and Bethel will meet Windsor in the second game at 8:30 p.m.

Wilf's Record Is Recognized

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Basketball Association officially recognized Wilt Chamberlain's record point production of 4,029 today and credited the most prolific scorer in league history with eight other marks.

Winning the individual scoring title for the third straight year, the 7-foot-1 star of Philadelphia became the first man in NBA records to enter the 4,000-point circle, set a record for scoring average with a 50.4 points a game and established these other standards:

Most field goals attempted (3,159); most field goals made (1,597); most free throws attempted (1,363); most free throws made (835); most minutes played (3,882); most games scoring 50 points (44); and most field goals missed in one season (528).

Two other league records were established. Walt Bellamy, rookie with the Chicago Packers who wound up second in the scoring race with 2,495 points and a 31.6 average, eclipsed Chamberlain's field goal percentage standard by hitting on .513 of his shots.

Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson was third in scoring with 2,432 points and a 30.8 average.

Probable Purple And Gold Lineups Listed

Coach Clarence Stasavich announced the probable starting lineups for the annual Purple and Gold game to be held in the East Carolina Stadium tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The list contains some of the old stars who will be well remembered by Pirate fans. However, a good many of the names are new or ones that have seldom been heard in the past.

According to reports both teams are ready to go and the game should give fans an excellent preview of the 1962 Pirate football team.

The starters for the Purple team will probably be Dave Bumgarner at left end, a 6-foot 2-inch, 180-pounder from Valdese, Colon Quinn at left tackle, a 5-foot 11-inch, 185-pounder from Warsaw, and Ted Day, a 6-foot 195-pounder from Washington, N. C., will take care of the left guard spot.

Heading up the Purple line at center will be 6-foot 1-inch Dave Smith of Whiteville. At right guard will be 5-foot 9-inch 195-pounder, Ralph Royster of Henderson, the right tackle spot will be taken care of by Murray McDiarmid, a 6-foot 2-inch, 200-pounder from Rocky Mount and the right end will be handled by Bobby Bumgardner, a 6-foot 1-inch, 185-pounder from Granite Falls.

The quarterback spot will probably be taken care of by Maurice Allen, a 6-foot, 190-pounder from Henderson. The halfback will be Bill Cline on the left and Larry Rudisill on the right. Tom Michel will handle the fullback position.

The Gold team line will be headed up by Coley Brown, a 5-foot 11-inch, 180-pounder from Lake Charles, La. The right side of the line will consist of Buddy Stewart, a 6-foot 4-inch, 215-pounder from Wilmington, at guard, the tackle spot will be taken care of by 6-foot 3-inch Bill Burton of Edenton, and the right end will be handled by Richard Huneycutt, a 6-foot 2-inch, 198-pounder from Portsmouth, Va.

The left side of the Gold line will probably consist of Mickey Brown, a 5-foot 11-inch, 200-pounder from Asheboro at tackle, Earl Sweet, a 5-foot 11-inch, 215-pounder from Portsmouth will handle the guard spot and the left end will be held down by Leroy Spivey, a 5-foot 1-inch, 175-pounder from Edenton.

Quarterbacking for the Gold team will most likely be Ralph Kinsey of Charlotte. The halfbacks are listed as Ricky Jarrell on the right and Whity Bass on the left. At fullback will be Bill Bailey, a 6-foot 1-inch, 195-pounder from Tarboro.

All proceeds from the game will go to the James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium fund.

Yanks Stretch Wins To Four

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
The New York Yankees have stretched their winning streak to four over Cincinnati by beating the National League pennant winners in their first meeting since the 1961 World Series.
Mickey Mantle provided an early lead with a three-run homer in the first inning as the Yanks boosted their unbeaten streak to six games Thursday with an 8-3 victory over the inept Reds at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.
It was the world champion Yankees' first victory over National League competition and maintained the only unblemished record in the exhibition standings while pushing the Reds into sole possession of 10th place among senior circuit clubs with a 1-5 mark.
The Yanks collected nine hits. Bud Daley, Rolie Sheldon and former Red Marshall Bridges checked Cincinnati on six hits.
The Chicago White Sox remained right behind the Yanks in the AL standings, winning their third straight for a 5-1 record by whipping the Detroit Tigers 4-3 in 10 innings at Sarasota, Fla.
In other games, Boston edged San Francisco 7-6 in 11 innings at Phoenix. Washington walloped the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-4 at Pompano Beach. Kansas City whipped Minnesota 7-3 at West Palm Beach. Chicago's Cubs defeated the Los Angeles Angels 7-3 at Mesa and Houston beat Cleveland 4-2 at Apache Junction.
The New York Mets-Pittsburgh and Philadelphia-Milwaukee tilts were canceled due to rain. Baltimore and St. Louis were not scheduled.

Al Smith's third hit, a double leading off the 10th, led to the White Sox' winning run when Joe Cunningham singled him home.
Rookies Larry Witek and Bob Tillman hit three-run pinch-hit homers in the ninth as the Red Sox tied it and went on to beat the Giants in the 11th when rookie Dick Holden wild pitched Eddie Bressoud home.
The Senators continued their long-distance clouting with Dale Long hitting two homers and Joe Hicks one against the Dodgers, who retaliated with Tommy Davis' third in three days and one by pitcher Larry Sherry. The A's struck for five runs in the second—three on a Manny Jimenez homer—as they handed the winless Twins their sixth defeat.
Home runs by Bob Will and Ken Hubbs carried the Cubs to their triumph over the Angels.
The Colts, outhit 7-4 by the Indians, were able to score three times in the sixth for win No. 2.

Patterson And Liston To Sign

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson and challenger Sonny Liston are scheduled to sign for a title fight today that may be the biggest money-maker of them all.
Both Patterson and the controversial challenger from Philadelphia are expected to be present for the signing ceremony at a midtown hotel.
The site and date of the fight have not been disclosed, but it is expected to be held in a New York ball park in late June or early July.
The fight is expected to gross more than $3 million at the gate and from ancillary rights. Some estimates have ranged as high as $10 million.
Patterson will get about 55 per cent of it. Liston will receive 12½ per cent. The contract also calls for a return bout clause, approved by Patterson, should Liston win.
The heavy-handed Philadelphia is ranked No. 1 challenger by both the National Boxing Association and Ring Magazine.

Batley Owes Catching Skills To His Mother

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A great deal of what Earl Batley knows about catching today he owes to his mother.
"Mom was a catcher on a girls' softball team back home in Los Angeles," said Minnesota's brilliant backstop and the American League's top fielding catcher two years in a row. "She was a fine catcher. I ought to know. As a kid, I used to watch her play."
Mrs. Batley quit playing ball in 1947, shortly before the arrival of the sixth of her 10 children. Earl was 12 then. Earl Sr., was an outstanding softball pitcher, and the husband-and-wife Batley battery was the star attraction at the church picnics.
"Imagine mom coming home with dishpan hands and broken fingers," grinned Batley.
"Yet she was opposed to my becoming a catcher. She even refused to give me permission to catch on the high school team. I had to forge her signature. When she found out, it was too late. "Even later, when I was offered a contract by the Chicago White Sox organization, she refused to give her permission. I was only 18 at the time. I had an athletic scholarship to UCLA, a basketball scholarship, that is, and she wanted me to get a college education first.

"I entered UCLA but my heart wasn't in it. I wanted to play professional ball. I kept after her until she finally relented. I quit school after a couple of months and joined the Colorado Springs Club. Mom didn't see me play until my fifth year in pro ball. That was in 1957 when I was with Los Angeles in the Pacific Coast League."
Batley came up to the White Sox to stay in 1957 and was traded to Washington in 1960. He was the club's top hitter last year, batting .302 with 17 home runs.
"I surprised myself," said Batley modestly. "I never hit .300 before in my life, not even in high school."

Can Now Trade In Stalin Prizes

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union announced Thursday foreign holders of Stalin international peace prizes can trade them in now for Lenin prizes.

Holders of Stalin prizes abroad include these Americans: Arthur Moulton, a former Protestant bishop; singer Paul Robeson, and author Howard Fast.

Americans who have received the Lenin prize include William Dubois, William Edward, and Cyrus Eaton.

WINDSTORM

ROME (AP)—A March windstorm claimed four lives and damaged trees and some rooftops Thursday. Winds reached gale force in some coastal areas of Italy.

CHAPTER 17

Richard Rollison glanced round the room at his guests and said, "I have never believed there was a driver in that car—I believe there was a dummy. There was no smell of burnish flesh at any time. If I'm right, then it was a car which could drive itself—and could be guided under remote control."

"If this is the hush-hush business which brought Holmes over, then it's fabulous. As for the crashed car—it might have been controlled by the man whom Jolly saw, further along the street. Whoever it was, the control was good, but not absolutely accurate. The controller made the car come to the spot where he judged you ought to be—not where you were."

Rollison paused. "Could be, Bill?"

"It certainly could be," Superintendent Grice agreed.

"And so you think Holmes was kidnapped because he knows all about some new kind of car?" asked Mike Kennedy in a low-pitched voice. "Or do you—" he broke off. "I know one thing, I'm right out of my depths. Mr. Grice, do you really need a statement from me tonight? What as if I could go to sleep on my feet?"

"Provided you stay here for the night, and talk to one of my men first thing in the morning, you can have your sleep," Grice conceded.

"Thanks," said Kennedy, gratefully; there was no doubt that he looked fit to drop. After a few perfunctory goodnights, Jolly took him along to the spare room, leaving Grice and Rollison together in the big room.

"Is he tired or is he scared?" Grice asked, thoughtfully.

"My question, too," said Rollison. "Sometimes I think he's leading me right up the garden, and at other times I think he's exactly what he makes out to be —a good doctor and a bit of an ass in everything else. My turn to know one thing, Bill."

"What's that?"

"I'm really tired," Rollison answered.

Grice laughed.

The only thing Rollison waited for was to allow Jolly to change the bandage on his knee. Already the cut had lost its anger, and he did not think that it would be much to worry about.

He was asleep within five minutes of getting into bed, and slept dreamlessly, but when he woke a little before eight o'clock, his mind began to hum with all the questions which had been in it the night before.

He had none of the answers yet, his subconscious had not greatly helped during the night. The problem of Mike Kennedy remained, but he set this aside as a secondary one. He knew that Grice would make sure that there was no release of the remote control theory, but as soon as the wreckage was cool enough, someone would discover whether there had been a driver or a robot in control; and once that reached the newspapers, it would be the week's sensation.

At ten past eight Jolly came in with his tea tray, announced that Mr. Kennedy was still asleep, that he, Jolly, had telephoned Miss Lawson's apartment and been told that she also was still asleep, and that Grice had telephoned at five minutes to eight.

"That's what woke me," Rollison said. "Give me time to drink one cup of tea and then get him for me."

"Very good, sir," Jolly said.

"What's the mess like in the street?"

"Nearly cleared away, sir."

"Fine," said Rollison. He drank his weak morning tea and almost as soon as he had finished the cup, heard the faint ting of the telephone bell; Jolly had a genius for perfect timing. A moment or two later, Grice was on the other end of the telephone.

"Rolly, two or three things quickly," Grice said. "In the first place, I've made sure that the laboratory keeps everything quiet for the next twenty-four hours. We needn't fear any leakage of information. In the second place, I've had a word with Birdie" — Dr. Willison Camper-Birdie — "and after a quick check he says he doesn't think we'll find any human remains. In the third place, I've had a preliminary Fire Department report that the car was made of a new kind of plastic which is highly inflammable, and of course shouldn't be used in car manufacture at all. In the fourth—"

"Let me breathe," begged Rollison.

Grice laughed. "Don't tell me you're slowing down! I've also had a talk with Meer, of the R. P. Division — you seem to have made a hit with him."

"You watch Meer, he'll take your job one day," warned Rollison. "I've breathed."

"The fourth thing is that I think that it would be better for you, not me, to go and see Mallory Motors," Grice said. "We'll have to get around to it, but if we make too much of a song and dance it might be given the wrong emphasis — and knowing you, it's possible that you'll be able to dig out some facts which we could build on. Can you see them by ten o'clock?"

"I certainly can," said Rollison. "Have you identified the girl at 40, Park View yet?"

"No," answered Grice. "Her handbag was missing, and there was no name we could find. Neighbors don't know her. The house was supposed to be let furnished to people named Thompson." After a pause, Grice asked: "Do you know her?"

"Not yet," Rollison said. "Will you let me have a photograph?"

"Yes," promised Grice. "I'll send it round right away."

At five past nine, Rollison was leaving the flat. Kennedy was awake but not yet up, and Rollison had told him where he was going. By the time he reached the street, he knew that his knee was going to be stiff, but not too painful.

He wished he had asked Grice what the man with the broken nose had said, then consoled himself by thinking that if the man had talked, Grice would have told him. The police seldom refused to be co-operative, now; happy days!

He was smiling to himself when he saw a Yan detective officer standing on the other side of the street. Some roadmen were patching up the hole which had been burned in the road, and a few men were examining the spot—probably police chemists.

Rollison found that the paint at the nose and front wings of the Rolls-Bentley, now in the garage, had blistered a little in the searing heat of the fire; the marvel was that there was no more damage. He started the engine at a touch, and drove not to Bickley Square headquarters of Mallory Motors, but to Gillivry street to see Kate Lawson.

"His words were calculated to make her horror worse, to frighten her into telling him if there was anything else she knew..." the story continues here tomorrow.

Police Recover Stolen Paintings

COMO, Italy (AP)—Police announced Thursday the recovery of 57 stolen paintings valued at $480,000. They were taken last December from a villa here.

The masterpieces were found near Florence following the arrest Wednesday of Ambrogio Gatti, 41, police said.

Investigators did not say whether Gatti had any part in the theft but revealed he had indicated how to find the paintings. The paintings included works by Canaletto, Corot, Fattori and Jacques and were stolen from a private mansion owned by Neddada Mieli Grassi.

Pactolus Ruritan's Projects Announced

PACTOLUS — Pactolus Ruritan Club, this community's only civic organization, has announced its community service program for the year.

The Ruritans, 24 men strong, list two new projects this year in addition to a group of activities which they plan to maintain again.

A clean-up job for the old cemetery at Yankee Hall and the establishment of a Furniture and Clothing Bank are the two new projects this year.

Ruritan President Burney W. Baker cites the Yankee Hall cemetery project as a means of rendering the premises of the historic slave-trading port of call on the Tar River just south of here accessible as a place of interest.

The Furniture Bank will be stocked by solicitation and request by Ruritans among the Pactolus community for used or discarded furniture and clothing to be repaired and stored. Regulations, including provisions for aiding families whose houses have been the victims of fire, will govern eligibility to receive the furniture and clothing.

Its Furniture Bank marks the second step in that direction for the Ruritan Club. Its current program includes continued aid to the Pactolus Rural Fire Department, keeping the membership informed of the latest developments in agriculture, nucleus of the life of the Pactolus Community.

During the year, the Ruritans will continue their various fundraising ventures as means of support for their array of community service projects.

Truffles, small black fungi prized by gourmets, are found by their aroma. Pigs, dogs and roosters are employed in the hunting.

NEW YORK (AP) — Elements of selective strength appeared in a mixed stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderate.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 10 to 26.70 with industrials down .60, rails up .10 and utilities up .30. The "little two" automakers were fairly active and fractional higher, apparently in response to reports of their big increase in sales. Trading interest rotated away from the big three which showed a generally lower tone.

Some of the building materials were up substantially. In the ragged chemical group, a gain of more than 2 points by Du Pont was a high spot.

Aerospace issues were irregular. Most of the important stock groups showed a scrambled pattern.

Ford and Chrysler fell about a point. General Motors erased a small early gain and traded about unchanged. Steels were irregularly lower.

Rails were generally firm. The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 40 at 723.94. Prices were irregularly higher on the American Stock Exchange in moderate trading.

Corporate bonds showed a slightly higher trend. U.S. government bonds were unchanged to lower.

NBC Relieved Bullwinkle Is Leaving TV Network

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It is likely that a brush and off-beat cartoon program, "The Bullwinkle Show," will be leaving NBC next season. And that will be good news to the network's department of continuity and acceptance (that's televisionese for "censorship").

It has had nothing but trouble with the irreverent creators of the show, Jay Ward and Bill Scott, who take delight in treading on sensitive toes.

The show started poking fun at "Disneyland," calling it "Dizzy Walter's Land." Early in the season, attorneys for Durward Kirby of the Garry Moore Show, formally notified them to stop using the name "Kurwood Derby" for a magic hat. They invented a pyromaniac bear, Stokely, which got quick angry action from the U.S. Forest Service, pointing out that Smokey Bear was a trademark, copyrighted property of the service and not to be kidded.

Red Skelton registered annoyance with Bullwinkle's voice (a moose) claiming it sounded like Red's Clem Caddiehopper character (and it does).

But worst was a sequence that slipped by the censors in which they cooked, for Thanksgiving dinner, a peacock. A peacock is NBC's symbol of color shows.

"We got complaints," said Ward. "So we offered to apologize on another show. But they said that it was forbidden. It's sacred."

Last Sunday, Ward and Scott took another poke at Disney. They preceded his expensive, lavishly mounted adaptation of "The Prince and the Pauper" with a fast nonsense tale called "The Prince and The Popper."

The censors let the cartoon through, but made Ward and Scott remove the title from their little satire.

The show may be a headache to NBC, but its sponsor loves it. And because the sponsor has a lot of money to spend for other shows, it won't have any trouble finding a new home for "Bullwinkle" next season.

Eight Named To Advisory Group

GRIMESLAND — Eight Grimesland men were appointed to an advisory committee on adult education at a meeting here last night.

The committee members are J. Bryant Hudson, C. S. Eiks, L. E. Barrington, Linwood Edwards, Coley Vainright, Dennis Manning, Noah Hardee and Robert L. Wilson. H. Glenn Hardee will serve as an ex-officio member as representative of the local school committee.

An effort is being made to establish adult education courses for interested citizens throughout Pitt County. Acting chairman for Grimesland's program, L. E. Tetterton, announced today that initial planning has been completed for Grimesland's program.

A welding course will begin Tuesday, March 20, in the agriculture department of Grimesland High School, and will last from 7:30 until 9 p.m. It will be held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings and continue for five weeks. V. P. Brinson of Washington will conduct the course.

The course will consist of 20 hours of instruction, at a cost of $4 per student.

A minimum of 15 students will be allowed in the class. Those interested should contact L. E. Tetterton at the Grimesland High School Agriculture Department immediately.

They have shown and sold their work in St. Louis, Oklahoma City and Columbus, Ohio, as well as Illinois and North Dakota, and as far west as California. During the past two and a half years they have had work accepted in numerous competitive and non-competitive exhibitions in North Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee.

Mrs. Gordley, a native of St. Louis, Mo., is a housewife and mother in addition to being an artist. She has taught drawing and painting classes at the Greenville Art Center. She has worked each year on the Pine Arts Festival and Sidewalk Art Show sponsored by the Greenville Woman's Club and is often in demand as lecturer at the art center and at club meetings.

Gordley is a native of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Their exhibition will continue on display until April 6. The present closing show is the Associated Artists of North Carolina Membership Competition Exhibition.

Art Exhibit To Open Sunday

Beginning on Sunday, the Greenville Art Center will present a two-man show of paintings by Mr. and Mrs. M. Tran Gordley. An open house from 2 until 4 p.m. will formally open the Gordley show.

Tran and Marilyn Gordley have been residents of Greenville since September of 1959, when Gordley joined the art faculty at East Carolina College. He now holds the rank of associate professor.

Both the Gordleys received their B.F.A. degrees from Washington University at St. Louis and following their marriage they studied at the University of Oklahoma, where they received the degrees of Masters of Fine Arts. They have partially fulfilled the requirements for their doctorates of fine arts in painting at Ohio State University.

They have shown and sold their work in St. Louis, Oklahoma City and Columbus, Ohio, as well as Illinois and North Dakota, and as far west as California. During the past two and a half years they have had work accepted in numerous competitive and non-competitive exhibitions in North Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee.

Mrs. Gordley, a native of St. Louis, Mo., is a housewife and mother in addition to being an artist. She has taught drawing and painting classes at the Greenville Art Center. # Sightseers Still Restrained From Dare Beaches

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Rigid security measures which have been in effect since last week's savage storm are gradually being relaxed, but sightseers still will be kept from Dare beaches.

National Guardsmen were to be relieved at noon today, Dare County Sheriff Frank Cahoon said, however, that check points will continue to be maintained at Wright Memorial Bridge and Roanoke Island Sound approaches to prevent sightseers from entering the beach area. Various other checkpoints also will be set up, Cahoon said careful screening of visitors to the beach area will continue.

Cahoon said the checkpoints will be manned on a 24-hour basis by the Highway Patrol and special deputies. County authorities were to relieve the Guardsmen.

Revival Starting Sunday Night

Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church begins revival services Sunday night, March 18-24th. The Reverend C. L. Patrick will conduct the services. The pastor, Reverend Charles Sapp, will direct the singing.

Reverend Patrick is a native of Ayden, one time pastored the First Free Will Baptist Church in Greenville, and is married to Clara Belle Smith of Winterville. Mr. Patrick is presently pastor of Free Union Free Will Baptist Church, Greene County, near Snow Hill.

The public is cordially invited to attend these services, which begin promptly at 7:30 each evening.

Funerals

Funeral services for Mrs. Janie Artis Ricks, who died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Monday night, will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at Phillippi Christian Church.

The Rev. J. F. McLaurin will officiate. Burial will follow in Brown Hill Cemetery.

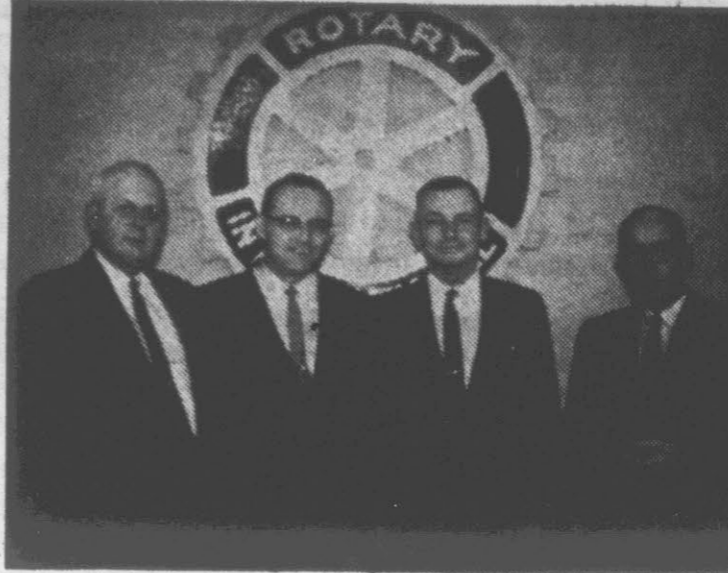

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Naomi McCray of Baltimore, Md.; two grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Rosa L. Whitfield of Durham, Mrs. Gladys Beard of Baltimore, and Mrs. Lula Dunlop of Trenton.
