WANDERLUST

You see a giant ship at dockside and suddenly, you yearn to board her and journey to far-off, exotic ports. Why? For the sake of excitement — adventure — or because, like most people, you feel the need to escape, at times, even from yourself? This desire to escape is human. But it is also impossible. No matter where you go, the self you'd like to fling away, travels with you. Sail the seven seas, Nettie E. Brogdon has just returned from a trip to South America covering a distance of 17,000 miles. She visited many interesting and unusual places including the Southern Lake Region of Chili. For 10 days she traveled through this scenic undeveloped country by bus over rugged dirt roads and sailed across lakes with snow capped mountains in the distance to Baralochi, a delightful resort in Argentina, resembling a Swiss village. She states that no where in her travels in Norway, Switzerland or Alaska has she seen more scenic grandeur. The people throughout South America were all times courteous and helpful. They were interested in the political and economic state of our country. The success of Col. John Glenn's orbital flight was much talked and the people were very pleased about this great achievement.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jenkins Sr. of Sandy Knoll Farm near Greenville will celebrate their 69th wedding anniversary on March 19th. The Jenkins are 87 years old and enjoy good health. Mr. Jenkins, a farmer, raises game chickens which he ships all over the United States, Mexico, Dominican Republic and Puerto Rico. Mrs. Jenkins, whose hobbies are reading, watching TV and sewing, at one time was reading more books in Sheppard Memorial Library than anyone else in Pitt County.

The Fashion Show and luncheon to be given at the Greenville Woman's Club Thursday is sponsored for the sole purpose of making money to beautify the public buildings and grounds of Greenville such as the Sheppard Memorial Library. It is sponsored by the Greenville Garden Club every year as a public event to keep Greenville beautiful and up-to-date. Following the Fashion Show and luncheon, bridge and canasta may be played for those who wish to participate.

On Friday, April 16, 1937, 13 young women met in the home of Mrs. J. B. Kittrell for the purpose of organizing a book club. Mrs. Kittrell, as sponsor, presided over the meeting calling for election of officers. Mrs. N. S. Beard graciously accepted the office as first president.

The name of Chatham was decided on for the Club. Pitt County was named for William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, who served as Prime Minister of England twice, and was one of the most powerful Ministers England ever had. This inspired the Club to have for the first study North Carolina history.

The Club motto "While We Live Let Us Live To Some Purpose", colors—green and gold, and flower—joniqual, were adopted.

The 13 charter members were: Mrs. C. L. Adams, Mrs. N. S. Beard, Mrs. F. A. Bendall, Mrs. H. G. Clayton, Mrs. J. C. Lanier, Mrs. E. Lee Moore, Mrs. W. P. Moore, Mrs. R. S. Neal, Mrs. E. D. Robinson, Mrs. A. C. Ruffin, Mrs. Mrs. R. W. Stark, Mrs. W. S. Tyson and Mrs. W. D. Tucker. Over a period of 25 years the Club has been interested in civic, social and cultural improvement of Greenville, and has supported all calls that have come to the Club pertaining to such improvements.

The present members are: Mrs. Carl Adams, Mrs. P. K. Anderson, Mrs. N. S. Beard, Mrs. F. A. Bendall, Mrs. C. A. Bowen, Mrs. L. H. Bowling, Mrs. J. Bryan Brown, Mrs. E. R. Conway, Mrs. R. H. Evans, Mrs. E. Lee Moore, Mrs. W. P. Moore, Mrs. A. C. Ruffin, Mrs. L. T. Shotwell, Mrs. R. W. Stark, Mrs. C. C. Studdard, Mrs. W. D. Tucker, Mrs. P. B. Upchurch, Mrs. Edgar B. Fisher, and Dr. Elizabeth Uterback.

The Chatham "girls" will celebrate their 25th anniversary on March 27 with a dinner at the home of Mrs. R. H. Evans, 614 Oak St.

The program was interspersed with poetry which added a note of humor. In closing, Mrs. Jackson read the inspiring poem: "The Sacred Church" by Harvey H. Stump.

Lack Of Policy Retards Schools

Lack of a clear-cut state policy with regard to construction of public schools has, in our opinion, retarded school construction in North Carolina during the past year.

Invitations To The President

By CHARLES PARKER
State Advertising Director

Guest Writer
Inevitably when the committee planning a dedication or an anniversary of consequence, thoughts turn to inviting the President of the United States. Nothing, as every arrangement committee member well knows, can generate more date-line publicity. Where the President goes, the Press goes. Publicity is built-in.

Most arrangements committees also are aware of what goes with inviting and getting the President to their function, and they are willing to accept the consequences. No one who hasn't been in on a Presidential invitation and acceptance from its beginnings can possibly imagine how intricate the circumstances can be.

It has fallen to my lot to have been a member of several such committees. Twice we invited the President to honor our school. The first time the scope—one was the dedication of the Blue Ridge Parkway and the other was the observance of the Sesquicentennial of the City of Raleigh. To the latter event we invited a lot of titled English people. They didn't come either.

We went through all the motions. Everybody knows you just don't write a letter inviting the President to honor your school. The first thing the committee does is cast about for the most influential voice it can prevail upon to utter the magic invitation in person at the White House. That could be a Senator, a Representative, a Cabinet member, the Governor, a political big wig or an industrialist who fattened the campaign chest.

Frequently the invitation mission falls to a group rather than an individual. Then, even if they don't get an acceptance, they can get their picture taken with the President and glean some publicity for the event that way.

There are subtler approaches when the people doing the inviting know somebody with a real good "in" at Washington. And there is a combination of both.

Sometimes there is a tentative acceptance and a genuine desire on the part of the President to accept—and unforeseen events intervene. That happened in the case of the Blue Ridge Parkway. Preparations for President Truman's visit had progressed to the point the Secret Service had cased the section of the Parkway over which the President would have ridden—but the Korean War broke out and His Excellency was otherwise occupied.

So a preliminary visit by the Secret Service doesn't always mean the invitations committee has caught the brass ring, but there is always the secret service where the President goes. They are an efficient, methodical and cold blooded lot. They say they've never lost a President, and they don't aim to. They can cause windows and roofs to be policed along entire streets, and they can absolutely stop all traffic except for the official party. They have a way of getting exactly what they require for the President's safety regardless of interference with normal life. They have a job to do and they do it.

The Secret Service is just one of the consequences of a Presidential visit. There are the arrangements, which the Secret Service oversees, for the Presidential Staff and the Press. This head count can be in the hundreds and they have to have a special and expensive communications net work. As public relations director for the State Democratic Party in 1948, it fell to my lot to be sort of vice president for arrangements for President Truman's visit during the campaign. There are always a lot of tickets to be issued and decisions about who to invite, so this is a vice presidential job with more work than honor. It also includes seeing that there are fresh flowers in the Presidential suite—something that I forgot until it was almost too late although I have taken care in due course to insure the President's having a nip of bourbon at his beck, in some places that is forgotten, and there are places likely to be recalled in high stations for their aridity in time of crisis.

Getting a reception committee and getting the President transported and housed is a breeze. The Secret Service holds a steady hand in that department. By this time the entire municipal police force and county constabulary have been mobilized and State Troopers are lined up in their inspection best. The public is slowed up by strange traffic regulations and usually public places are off limits, but everybody takes it in stride. The President is here. You can see him if you can't touch him. The crush used to be greater before TV.

But there is nothing simple about invitations, and places on the enchanted platform or at the head table—or just getting in the hall at all, for that matter. Any smart committee holds back some choice reservations for the vips sure to turn up at the last minute who have been overlooked.

We had a few such platform tickets in hand when President Truman dedicated the monument to the Three Presidents on the Capitol Square. At the last minute it was obvious that less than the normal quota had been overlooked—or weren't turning up unexpectedly. I didn't want to see the tickets wasted, and the girls in campaign headquarters were eager to see the President, so I gave them the last tickets and they trooped off to the Capitol.

Now, they didn't know, and it didn't occur to me to tell them that they had platform tickets. I thought they'd use them to get by the guards and mingle with the crowd. Not so. The Secret Service man spotted the gold-starred tickets, quickly concluded that here was a bundle of feminine political power, and he personally escorted them right to the front of the platform. When the speaking order came, the President greeted them personally while some real wheel-horses stood in line wondering what changes had occurred in officialdom.

The girls were in high cotton, but I wasn't. At the last minute, I broke loose and headed for the Capitol to get at least a glimpse of the event I had helped arrange.

There were no tickets left. I never occurred to me I'd need one. Surely the man who issued tickets wouldn't have to have one himself.

But I hadn't reckoned with Secret Service efficiency.

There were strange people guarding every entrance. Not one had ever heard of Charlie Parker or could have cared less. To get into this party you had to take a ticket. I didn't have one. And that's the way the very elaborate process of inviting the President can wind up if you don't mind every minute detail.

It is not so much that the state has not undertaken a major program of financing public school construction, but rather that the administration has not come forth with a clear-cut statement of its intentions with regard to state-financed construction of public schools.

Shortly after he took the oath of office early in 1961, Gov. Sanford outlined in detail his program of improving the public schools of the state. At that time he pointed to the needs for more school construction, but he adopted in effect a wait-and-see attitude that depended upon whether federal funds for school construction would be available.

This wait-and-see attitude on the part of the state apparently caused a chain reaction which led local governments to decide to wait and see what the state was going to do before launching any major school construction projects dependent upon their own financial resources. It has been almost a year since Congress rejected the proposed federal aid to education program of President Kennedy. Since that time, however, the administration has not indicated clearly whether it would push for a state-financed school construction program or leave the matter to local governments.

There have been administration statements urging local governments to move forward with local spending for school construction, but there has lingered in the background the possibility that the state might do something in the way of financing new school buildings. Too many local governments throughout the state are still waiting to see whether the state might do something before making heavy financial commitments for school buildings on their own.

A concise statement of intent on the part of the state administration with regard to financing school construction would do much to remove the confusion which exists today in North Carolina. Even if the administration intends to offer a program for financing public school construction, a statement to that effect would enable local governments to know better where they stand.

Until there is a clear-cut statement from the administration locally financed school construction will not reach the momentum it should in North Carolina. Many communities will delay meeting their school needs in the hope that the state may provide at least some of the funds required for the job.

In the meantime school construction in the state is not keeping pace with the growing needs for new classrooms and new school facilities.

A Lot Of Talk And No Results

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just about four years ago Russia switched its ambassadors to Washington. Mikhail A. Menshikov, attired in smiles, arrived to take over.

He smiled and was pleasant for four years. The day he arrived he promised to work to "establish and strengthen the atmosphere of understanding and trust between our countries."

It was just about the time the United States and Russia, as busy as could be polishing their missiles, were rejecting by long-distance, in letters and pronouncements, each other's ideas on disarmament.

After four years the Soviets decided to change ambassadors again and now Anatoly F. Dobrynin, an expert on American affairs, has arrived to replace Menshikov who has been reassigned to a minor Soviet post.

Dobrynin got off a train quizzing U.S.-Soviet relations are "tremendously important" in whether the world has peace or war and therefore it is "highly important to make a joint effort to normalize our relations and to improve them."

That was Thursday, the same day the United States and Russia at Geneva revealed plans which make them look no closer on disarmament and nuclear test bans than they were when Menshikov first arrived.

In the four years between arrivals of the two ambassadors there was much that happened, and much that didn't, on disarmament. There was much talking. But what didn't happen was agreement on anything.

When Menshikov came here the United States and Russia were still firing off their nuclear test bans in the atmosphere. Later that year, 1958, they voluntarily suspended them.

Then for three years of voluntary no-testing they talked about agreeing on a permanent ban on testing. Actually they had 333 sessions which broke up with no agreement last January.

In that three-year period the two sides conducted what the State Department likes to call a "series of probes" into each other's intentions.

Toward the end of that same three-year period Russia began testing again in the atmosphere. The United States plans to do likewise next month.

But this was not all that happened, or didn't happen, between Menshikov and Dobrynin because a ban on nuclear tests is not all there is to disarmament. There is the big, broad problem of general disarmament.

It is almost incredible to go back over the record and note all that was said on both sides — on tests and disarmament — in statements, letters, pronouncements, negotiations of one kind or another by Premier Khrushchev, Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy, secretaries of state and sundry representatives, statesmen and politicians.

A few examples of the conferences alone — and the conferences themselves were preceded by prodigious jockeying on both sides — make disarmament and modern man look as far off and windy as Mt. Everest.

In July 1958 East-West scientists met at Geneva to study the possibility of detecting violations of a possible agreement on suspension of nuclear tests.

On Nov. 1, 1958 there was a 10-nation conference on how to reduce the danger of surprise attack and this broke up in disagreement in six weeks.

Just two years ago this week — on March 15, 1960 — in the same place as now, general disarmament talks began. Both sides were miles apart, as they were this week. The talks collapsed after 48 meetings.

Then for three months, starting in June 1961, the two sides met again, not to discuss disarmament, but simply to discuss the question of how to start discussing disarmament.

Public Forum

TO THE EDITOR:

The city-wide P. T. A. Committee is trying to rid our city of obscene literature, and we, the Women of the First Presbyterian Church, wish to comment on it. It is high time we, as Christian people, let our voices also be heard and put our full support behind this movement.

At a recent meeting, we reviewed some of this smut and were shocked beyond words that this type of literature is available and accessible to teenagers and college students.

We endorsed the work of this committee last spring and put our full support behind them. We wish to thank those newsmen who have complied with their request and appeal to all others to clear their shelves at once. If this is not done immediately, we urge the City Council to take steps to insure the public that this material will be removed.

In a recent article by J. Edgar Hoover, F. B. I. Director, written for the American Legion magazine and printed, by permission, in the Daily Reflector last summer, he says,

"America's young people are today the targets of vile smut peddlers—those who would distort young lives by degenerate sex pictures, literature and movies. The manufacture and circulation of obscene material are today big business in America. These purveyors of filth are parasites of the most deadly variety. Interested only in making a monetary gain at the expense of the moral health of innocent victims. The time has come for parents of our nation and other interested adults to wake up — to see what is happening and to take firm action in order that influence exerted by these vicious hucksters of degeneracy can be eradicated from public life."

Greenville Citizens, we urge you to wake up!

Sincerely,

How It Is To Be Irish

EDITOR'S NOTE — More than 20 million Irish-Americans and their friends will honor the memory of blessed St. Patrick today. The following column, reprinted by request, tells how it feels to be Irish on this day of days.

NEW YORK (AP) — What is it to be Irish?

How can you put the wonder of it into words? If a psychiatrist stretched himself out on his own warm couch after his last customer had gone home, and he dreamed of the man he himself would most like to be — well, he might be perfect, but he'd still be only half an Irishman on St. Patrick's Day.

What is it to be Irish then? It is to have an angel in your mouth, turning your prose to poetry. It is to have the gift of tongues, to know the language of all living things. Does an Irishman pause and turn an ear to a tree? It is because on this day he wants to hear what one sleepy bud says to another as it opens its pale green hands to the warm sun of spring.

What is it to be Irish?

Oh, on this day it is music. Not just the cornet in the parade high school bands, but the deep, deep music of living; the low, sad rhythms of eternity. The Irishman hears the high song of the turning spheres, the dim lullaby of the worm in its cocoon. All the world is in tune, and he is in step with the tune, the tune that only he can hear.

What is it to be Irish?

It is to live the whole history of his race between a dawn and a dawn — the long wrongs, the birdswift joys, the endless hurt of his ancestors since the morning of time in a forgotten forest, the knock-at-his-heart that is part of his religion.

What is it to be Irish?

It isn't only the realization that he is descended from kings. It is the realization that he is a king himself, an empire on two feet striding in power, a strolling continent of awe.

Other Editors Saying Very Excellent Decision

(Elizabeth City Daily Advance)

Walter Jones of Farmville, a veteran North Carolina legislator and a candidate two years ago for that of Congressman from the First District, has announced that he will not oppose Congressman Herbert Bonner in the May primary.

In making that decision Jones used very sound judgment. The plain fact is that, for this year at least, he hasn't a chance of defeating the little man from Washington, N. C., who has served so long in the Halls of Congress in Washington, D. C.

And in making his decision not to run in the coming primary, Jones strengthened any political future he may have planned. The affable Jones whose wife is a native of Chowan County, always has shown common sense in his public service.

Two years ago he gave Bonner stiff opposition. And now, throughout the North Carolina First District, he is credited with making Bonner one of the most alert and strongest Congressmen from the South. In past years, whether he realized it or not, he took his job too much for granted. There's nothing like a good battle to shake a person, especially an official, out of his lethargy.

The general public feels that Bonner has been more of a Congressman to everyone in the First District during the past two years than ever before. The Daily Advance is inclined to agree because the veteran solon has mended a lot of fences. He has regained the confidence of a lot of people who put him in office and kept him there but who were beginning to wonder whether they were getting top representation.

But today Congressman Bonner is doing an outstanding job for the people of his district. And Walter Jones has shown wise judgment in his decision not to run in the 1962 primary. That decision will not hurt the Farmville man who already has made a fine record in Raleigh and whose services are still needed. There are not enough men of Jones' calibre available for public office.

More Steel Stockpiling Ahead

By ELMER ROESSNER

Steel stockpiling will increase, regardless of the trend of labor-management negotiations. The auto industry and other big users are not taking any chances. From experience they know that placid negotiations can erupt into a long strike, or that law-to-law dealing can unexpectedly result on a contract. So they are continuing to stockpile which—as reported here recently—can increase the chances of a strike.

And here are more look-aheads in business:

Congressional snarl: If you have a pet bill in Washington, better double your staff of lobbyists. Almost all legislation is getting wrecked by the splits in both parties, and with elections coming up later this year many Congressmen are unwilling to go on record on critical issues—and are willing to adjourn early so they can get home and reelection.

New CIGARETTE, TIRE
New mentholated smoke: A new king-size cigarette with menthol in the filter instead of the tobacco is being tested in Memphis and Indianapolis.

New tire: A new auto tire which is said to use the heat of high speeds to constantly re-vulcanize the tread may soon be introduced.

More soybeans to Asia: The soybean, which was imported from Asia to the United States, is flowing back a million fold. Japan and Southeast Asia are steadily increasing imports of American — grown soybeans. Reason one: American agricultural methods can produce them cheaper than they can be grown in nonmechanized agriculture in Asia; reason two: Red China, starving, is unable to export much.

INDUSTRIAL STOOLS
Job changing: More companies will start programs for job switching among more skilled employees. Having employees able to handle more than one job will be useful in case of tornadoes, floods, stores, fires — or nuclear attacks. The next step will be to extend job-swapping to higher echelons, so that if one part of an organization is bombed out, survivors can step in and run the whole works—or what's left of it.

Johnny-pole boomlet: Somebody has figured a way to utilize space above toilets; provide poles that will support shelves for storing bathroom supplies. Several companies are making these poles and shelves, and preliminary sales indicate a profitable, limited boom in sales.

Milk jumble: Expect anti-bomb agitators to call for boycotts of milk purchases with every nuclear bomb test. Meanwhile, others fearful of fall-out are storing fresh milk in freezers, and canned and powdered milk on shelves for use after such tests. Also expect sharp sellers to use scare techniques to increase sales of canned and dry milk.

MORE PAY-LATER PROMOTIONS
Credit selling push: Charge and instalment sales are rising less than merchants would like. Increases are not keeping pace with consumers' ability to pay. So look for an intensification of credit promotions and lowering of the bars against doubtful instalment applicants.

Sugar issue dodging: Cane and sugar beet Congressmen and tropical lobbyists are creating so much pressure for more favorable allotments of the American sugar market that Congress may be unable to untangle rival demands. So it may merely extend the present law for a year, planning to settle the wrangle in 1963.

Quick soufflé test: A new quick dessert soufflé is about to be tested in Fairfield County, Conn. It will be advertised as never failing to rise. If sales puff up, it will be marketed nationally.

OLD PROMOTER PROPOSES ITEMS FOR THE MOHOLE
"I see the National Science Foundation has picked a prime contractor to dig the Mohole—that hole through the Earth's crust," the Old Promoter observed after he blew in today. "So did I," I replied.

"That poses a problem," the old one said. "After the hole is dug, there's the question of what to use to fill it up."

"I guess used razor blades won't be enough," I ventured.

"Guess not. But of course, we can use the Kennedy speeches and campaign promises of 1961," the O. P. said.

"And Nixon's, of course. And subscription blanks for discontinued magazines. And used soda caps, faded red tape from the United Nations, income tax forms made before 1939, torn clippings, punctured inflatable bras, unsold chlorophyll insoles, and bottles of cancer cure."

"Old One," I said, "you have just invented a new parlor game — making the best lists of things to be dropped in the Mohole!" And maybe he has.

Rent Or Hire A Girl

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

I came across a circular which says: "You can rent a typist, stenographer, computer-operator or other office worker for a day, a week or even longer. Nothing is said about renting a wife for a short or long period! The idea is that if you rent a girl instead of hiring her, you avoid 'social security expense, compensation insurance, personal absence, vacation pay, holiday pay, sick pay, state disability insurance, payroll bookkeeping expense, unemployment insurance.' It seems like a good idea, except who pays for all this?"

Another ad shows exactly how this scheme works? "When you hire a typical temporary worker at $70.00 per week (35 hours at $2.00) fringe benefits bring it up to $91.95. Here's how:

- $1.57 Social Security
- 1.89 State Unemployment Insurance
- .21 Federal Unemployment Compensation Insurance
- 2.80 Vacation
- 1.18 Cost of Hiring Personnel
- 3.23 Average Sick Pay
- .77 Payroll and Bookkeeping Expenses
- 1.35 Average Christmas Bonus
- 3.22 Average Holiday Pay
- 3.50 Average Pensions
- .15 Election Day
- 1.44 Life, Insurance, Blue Cross, etc.
- .04 Severance or Termination Pay
- .21 Personal Absence
- .30 State Disability
- $21.95 plus $70.00 ..... $91.95 weekly.

The point of the matter is that there is an unbelievable shortage of competent, trained office help. Girls who are college graduates and know how to use a typewriter do not necessarily know anything about office routines nor are they necessarily intelligent outside their so-called fields of major disciplines and much depend upon what college a girl went to. An A in some classes may not bring a C at Radcliffe or Barnard and in an office, a very personable girl may be extremely dumb. An employer keeps changing in the hope that he will find someone as clever as the girl who married or died or went into business for herself.

The employment agencies charge the girls too much for getting jobs for them and smart ones seek women who will not be accepted for permanent positions because the insurance companies object to covering them in blanket insurance policies for fringe benefits. Of course, most women can top five or ten years off their age at little expense and if a boss will not ask for a birth certificate what difference does it make? A beautiful girl is an industrial expense and there ought to be an income tax deduction for her services.

The boss is desperate. He must get his work done. He does not find efficient girls, so he goes to any agency or service or whatever it may be. The service gives him an advantage because he is able to employ contract labor and avoid fringe benefits. Contract labor gives him the further advantage that if a girl conks out, the contractor replaces her. In such circumstances, the intimate secretary disappears; there is a laborer who is paid by the contractor who bills the boss. There are also no lapses between one girl and another. The contractor makes service continuous. But a middle man, a padrone, has stepped into the picture.

The girl, of course, is dissatisfied, first because she knows that she is getting only a part of her wage; the rest (Continued on Page 6)

Windsor Upsets Bethel 59-49

By GEORGE BRYANT
Reflector Sports Editor
Bethel's Indians suffered a 59-49 loss last night to the Windsor Lions which knocked the local club out of the running for a berth in the State tournament in Durham next week.

Bethel, runner-up in the Pitt County Conference, defeated Beaufort County's Partego Warriors Thursday night which put Coach Dan Wooten's Indians in the semifinals of the Class A District tournament last night.

Pierce Races Lions
The Lions were paced in their winning efforts by 6-foot 8-inch center, Al Pierce, who scored a game high total of 21 points. Pierce dropped in eight field goals and five of seven from the line for the total.

Windsor took an early lead in the first minute of the contest on a field goal by Randy White and free throws by White and Pierce. However, Bethel's Don Dewar hit two from the floor tying the score at 4-4 with about six minutes left in the opening period.

Free throws by Ricky Mitchell put the Lions back in front and Herman Daniels tied the score again for the Indians. The two teams matched basket for basket until the last two minutes of the quarter when Windsor pulled ahead to lead 18-14 at the end of the period.

Bethel Unable To Catch Up
Bethel was unable to catch up with the high scoring Lions the rest of the game. They lagged behind anywhere from four points to 17 points. Both teams played an excellent game, but the tight Windsor defense was hard on Bethel. The Indians were forced to shoot from the outside much of the time.

The Indians committed 24 fouls compared to the 12 committed by Windsor. The Lions picked up 25 points from the line. Bethel was only able to gain nine points on free throws.

In the field goal department Bethel outscored Windsor with 20 compared to 17. However, this was not near enough to make up the difference between the two teams at the foul line.

Everett Leads Indians
Tex Everett led the Indians in their losing efforts with 14 points. The only Bethel player to hit the double mark, Everett dropped in five field goals and four free throws for the total. Don Dewar and Daniels were next for the Indians with eight points each.

Windsor placed two other players in the double figures besides Pierce. Gene Bowen hit on four from the floor and seven of 11 from the line for a total of 15 points. Mitchell had four field goals and five free throws to his credit for 13 points.

At the end of the first half the Lions held a 27-19 lead over the Indians and when the teams returned to begin the second stanza Windsor wasted no time in widening their margin.

However, before the quarter was over Bethel started to narrow the Lions' lead behind the shooting of Jesse Thomas and Tex Everett. Windsor held a seven point advantage as the final period got underway.

Windsor Strengthens Lead
During this final quarter Windsor began strengthening their lead and were out in front as much as 15 points during the period. Bethel Coach Dan Wooten sent in several of his substitutes during the last two minutes when it was evident that the Indians did not have a chance to catch up with the high scoring Lions.

Windsor returns tonight to meet the Ayden Tornados at 8 o'clock for the final game of the tournament. The winner tonight will represent District One in the State tournament in Durham next week.

Knapp Ahead Once
The Knapp club pulled ahead of Ayden only once during the game in the early minutes with the score 2-1. However, with four minutes left at the first quarter the Tornados moved out in front 3-2 and continued to increase their lead for a nine point advantage at the close of

By GEORGE BRYANT

Coach Stuart Tripp's Ayden Tornados led the Knapp Knights all the way to win the semifinal round of the Class A District tournament 44-39 and a berth in the final round tonight.

The closest the Knights could get after the first five minutes of the contest was three points with 33 seconds remaining and the score 42-39.

Veteran pitcher Bobby Shantz, at 5-foot-6 1/4 one of the littlest big leaguers, is a towering figure at the Houston Colts camp, where he has turned in the most impressive report card among 20 hurlers in the National League club.

Making his second appearance of the spring, the 36-year-old southpaw plucked from Pittsburgh in the expansion draft hurled six innings of runless ball and allowed only three scratch singles as the Colts belted the Boston Red Sox 9-1 in an exhibition at Scottsdale Friday.

Shantz, most valuable player in the American League when he posted a 24-7 record for the Philadelphia Athletics in 1952, is the senior member of the Colts' mound crew but could be a valuable asset for Manager Harry Craft in Houston's first year of operation.

A poised, smooth pitcher with a career won-lost record of 105-86, Shantz has a low lifetime earned run of 3.48 for 14 seasons. He had a credible 6-3 mark with a 3.34 ERA in relief with the Pirates last season.

Bob Bruce, American League castoff acquired from Detroit, worked the last three innings for the Colts to complete a six-hit job. Home runs by Bob Aspromonte and Jim Pendleton 37 gave Houston its third win in seven games.

Chicago's White Sox and Cubs continued win streaks each taking their fourth in succession. The Sox defeated Kansas City 10-7 at West Palm Beach for their sixth triumph in seven games and the Cubs edged San Francisco 8-7 at Mesa.

In other games, St. Louis bopped Milwaukee 8-6 at St. Petersburg, Cleveland walloped the Los Angeles Angels 10-2 at Tucson, Cincinnati beat the New York Mets 5-3 at Tampa, Washington beat Minnesota 5-2 at Pompano Beach and Baltimore defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-4 in a night game at Miami.

The New York Yankees-Pittsburgh and Detroit-Philadelphia games were canceled due to rain and wet grounds.

Rookie Bob Farley and Floyd Robinson each drove in four runs apiece, as the White Sox tagged A's starter Norm Bass for eight runs in the first two innings. The Cubs scored five in the first on a two-run homer by Billy Williams and a three-run shot by George Altman.

The Reds snapped their slump, beating the Mets on home runs by Frank Robinson and Gordon Coleman while Jim O'Toole and Bill Henry spaced nine hits.

The Orioles won their first in five starts with five runs in the eighth on key singles by Earl Robinson and rookie John (Boog) Powell plus two errors by Dodgers shortstop Maury Wills.

Deacs Take On Villanova In NCAA Regional Finals

By GORDON BEARD

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Wake Forest and Villanova, two teams which refuse to fold under pressure, meet tonight in the final of the NCAA Eastern Regional Basketball Tournament.

Wake's Demon Deacons, Atlantic Coast Conference titlists, were extended into overtime for the second consecutive tournament game before prevailing over St. Joseph's of Philadelphia 96-85 in last night's semifinal round.

Then Villanova's Wildcats, in the nightcap of an exciting doubleheader before 21,700 in the University of Maryland's Cole Field House, overcame a 12-point deficit and upended New York's University 79-76.

Coach Bones McKinney, limp after Wake's 11th straight triumph and second overtime contest in five nights, said "if his team didn't stop this stuff, they'll make an old man out of me."

Noting the Deacons exploded in the extra five-minute periods to whip Yale by 10 points and St. Joseph's by 11, McKinney said, "I wish we could start the games in overtime."

St. Joseph's, champs of the Middle Atlantic Conference, had a chance to duplicate its 1961 Eastern Regional victory over Wake Forest. But Billy Hoy missed a free throw for the Hawks with 13 seconds remaining and gave the Deacons a final chance.

Billy Packer, Wake's 5-foot-9 speedster, tied the score at 74-74 on a 21-foot shot with 4 seconds left. Then, in the overtime, Wake poured in 22 points and rolled up an 87-74 lead before St. Joseph's scored.

Len Chappell, the 6-8 All American, topped Wake in scoring as he has done in every other game this season. He also led his team with 18 rebounds and 4 assists and earned from McKinney the tag of "The greatest player I ever coached."

Tom Wynne paced St. Joseph's with 26 points, but made only one basket during the final 7 minutes of regulation play and a meaningless field goal in the extra period.

Villanova had its own superstar in Hubie White, who scored 8 of his 31 points in the final 3 minutes as the Wildcats overcame NYU's 72-68 advantage. Barry Kramer topped the Violets with 26 points.

Coach Jack Kraft of Villanova raved over White's performance, which included 23 points in the second half, but said, "This was just a regular game for Hubie."

Mt. Airy Meets Sanford Tonight
KINSTON, N. C. (AP)—Mount Airy meets Sanford tonight in a bid to retain its crown as champion of the 3-A high school basketball conference.

The Granite Bears defeated Hendersonville, 71-40, and Sanford beat Northern Durham, 55-38, in the semi-finals Friday night.

Northern Durham and Hendersonville will play in a consolation game.

Sanford played the starting five throughout to beat Northern Durham. R. D. Carson, a senior who scored 43 Wednesday night to set a tourney record, was held to only 16 points. Charles Larue had 17, and Richard Such also had 16 for the winners.

Eddie Nester tossed in 29 points for Mount Airy. Jim Hyson was high for Hendersonville with 13.

Powerful Ohio State Will Meet Kentucky

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

They're all big now, but none may be bigger than Ohio State's match with careful Kentucky tonight in the finals of the NCAA regional tourney at Iowa City, Iowa.

The mighty Buckeyes, driving toward the NCAA title denied them in overtime by Cincinnati last season, handled Western Kentucky with ease 93-73 in their first tourney test Friday night.

Kentucky, however, may be a different matter. The Wildcats, whose disciplined attention to coach Adolph Rupp's deliberately designed patterns, brought them the No. 3 spot in the nation, romped past Butler 81-60 in the other semifinal Friday night.

Their match tonight may be the glomur game of the four regional tourneys, which also sees defending champion Cincinnati going against Colorado. Also on the night's schedule are finals in the NCAA small college tourney, finals in the NIAA, and two first-round and two quarter-final matches in the National Invitation Tourney.

Here's the NCAA lineup: Wake Forest (20-8) vs. Villanova (21-6) at College Park, Md. Kentucky (25-2) vs. Ohio State (24-1) at Iowa City, Iowa. Colorado (19-6) vs. Cincinnati (26-2) at Manhattan, Kan. Oregon State (23-4) vs. UCLA (17-10) at Provo, Utah.

The winners advance to the semi-finals at Louisville, Ky., March 23. Sacramento State (21-9) and Mount St. Mary's of Maryland (23-6) tangle for the NCAA small college championship at Evansville, Ind., while Prairie View A.M. (26-3) and Westminster (Pa.) (25-2) are matched for the NIAA title at Kansas City.

The NIT, in New York's Madison Square Garden, has Duquesne paired with Navy and Colorado State against Holy Cross in afternoon first-round games and Loyola of Chicago playing Temple and Houston vs. Dayton in quarterfinals tonight.

The victories by Kentucky and Ohio State, top-ranked team in the nation for the second year in a row, set up a replay of last year's midwest showdown won by Ohio State 87-74. Neither had much trouble in advancing last night.

Ohio State used its usual fast break to turn a 27-26 deficit late in the first half to a 43-30 lead at intermission, even though All America Jerry Lucas was on the bench with foul trouble at the time. Sophomore Gary Bradds and veteran John Havlicek led the surge, which put the Buckeyes ahead to stay.

Cotton Nash scored 23 points and Larry Pursifull had 26 in Kentucky's easy conquest.

Cincinnati, No. 2 in the nation, got a 24-point performance from hulking Paul Hogue in a 66-46 blasting of Creighton. Colorado swept into an 11-point halftime advantage then held off frantic Texas Tech rallies for a 67-60 victory.

In the east, Wake Forest took a 96-85 overtime triumph over St. Joseph's of Philadelphia while Villanova overcame a 12-point deficit and went on to defeat New York University 79-76 in the final. The Deacons then poured in 22 points in overtime.

Oregon State overcame small, determined Pepperdine 69-67 and UCLA took Utah State 73-62. Oregon State used its superior rebounding to offset Pepperdine's 41 per cent shooting, while UCLA built a 13-point halftime lead and took it from there.

The semifinals of the small college tourney were the closest of them all. Sacramento State edged Nebraska Wesleyan 74-73 in double overtime and Mount St. Mary's advanced with a 58-57 triumph over Southern Illinois. A free throw by Jim Greene won for Sacramento State and Ed Pfeiffer's 20-foot shot at the buzzer put Mount St. Mary's in the finals.

Prairie View A&M crushed Western Illinois 80-68 and Westminster advanced with a 54-45 decision over Southeastern Oklahoma State in the NIAA round of four.

Wilmington And R. Mount Play

By KEN ALYTA

GREENSBORO (AP)—Wilmington, which has won six of the 14 previous state 4-A high school basketball championship tournaments, and Rocky Mount, a finalist for the first time, meet for the title tonight.

Their 8:30 p. m. game will follow a consolation opener between Greensboro and Burlington. Rocky Mount of the Eastern Conference title Wilmington lost an overtime game at Rocky Mount 64-63 and beat the Blackbirds at Wilmington 48-36. Rocky Mount is 16-6 for the season and Wilmington's record is 19-4.

Burlington's winning streak was snapped at 16 games Friday night, but not before the never-say-die Bulldogs scared the Wildcats and had their partisans in the crowd of 2,800 beside themselves during the rip roaring finish.

Wilmington's early 12-point lead had melted to 31-30 at the half when Burlington scored 11 points in the last three minutes of the second period. But Leon Brogren's Port City Wildcats seemed on the way to a routine victory after the intermission. They pulled out front 47-34 after three quarters and led 56-34 a few minutes later with only 3:12 to go. Burlington was down 20 points 60-40.

Jim Donnan, who had scored only two points in the first three periods, came to life with 13 in the last quarter to spark a 26-point Burlington closing rally. The battling Bulldogs cut the lead to 64-60 with 20 seconds left, but here Wilmington's foul line steadiness saved the game. The Cats wrapped it up with four one-pointers, making 15 to 17 in the final period and 26 of 33 for the night.

Danny Mohr was Wilmington's top scorer with 18 points and he grabbed 12 rebounds. Gary Taylor hit 19 points for Burlington.

Greensboro scored only three points in the first quarter to Rocky Mount's nine and spent the rest of the night in futile pursuit of Bill Lundy's Blackbirds.

Rocky Mount led at the half 22-16 and 37-25 after three quarters. Wayne Dunn's 18 points, 10 in the third period, led the Birds, with Danny Talbot and Tom Parrish each totalling in 14.

Earl Strickland was Greensboro's top scorer with 14 points. A sticky man-to-man defense held Charlie Black, Greensboro's 17-point-a-game ace to six points as Parrish stayed on him all night.

A 22-7 rebound edge, with Ricky Creech collaring 12, played a prominent part in Rocky Mount's victory.

the quarter with the score 11-2. Both teams played a slow deliberate game most of the way, with Knapp speeding up the action in the final quarter and narrowing the Ayden margin. However, the Knights could not overtake the victory seeking Tornados.

William Edwards paced the victors with four field goals and six free throws for a total of 14 points. The only other Tornado in the double figures was Clem McLawhorn with 10 points. He hit on three field goal attempts and dropped in four of 17 from the line for the total.

Balance High Scorer
The high scorer of the night was Knapp's Dan Ballance with 17 points. He was the only Knight player hitting the double mark. Ballance dropped in six from the floor and five from the line for the high scoring honors.

During the second quarter of the contest the Tornados managed to increase their nine point first period advantage to 10 points with the score 21-11 at the half.

When the two teams returned to the court for the second stanza Ayden led off with a field goal by McLawhorn to widen their margin. However, it was not long before the Knights began scoring, but they were unable to keep pace with the high scoring Tornados.

The Ayden defense was especially fine last night as they forced the Knapp club to shoot from the outside a good bit of the time. However, Ayden was able to run through the Knight defense on most of their scoring attempts.

By the end of the third quarter Knapp had picked up some, and the Ayden advantage was just one point more than Knapp at the half, although the Ayden club held leads as high as 14 points during the third period.

Tornados Lead By 11
When the final quarter got underway Ayden held an 11-point lead over the Knights with the score 32-22. With about six minutes left in this last quarter, Knapp started to gain on the Tornados and did until they had narrowed the margin to three points with 33 seconds left when Ballance dropped in two free throws making the score 42-39.

However, Ayden's Tommy Dunn hit on a one and one situation from the line, adding another two points to the victor's score.

Tonight the Tornados will take on the Windsor Lions in the final game of the tournament at 8 o'clock. The winner of this contest will receive a berth in the State tournament in Durham next week.

Conservationist Addresses Club

Roy R. Beck, conservationist for the Pitt County work unit of the Soil Conservation Service, discussed the need in Pitt County for more soil and water conservation work as he addressed the Greenville Kiwanis Club Friday.

Beck pointed to the huge Grindle Creek Watershed flood prevention and drainage project nearing completion as an example of fruitful conservation planning. He also cited a project in the Conecote Creek watershed scheduled to begin soon.

The conservationist said there is a need for more technicians to adequately conserve the soil and water resources of this area.

Kiwanians, at their meeting, welcomed into the club a new member, Roy Halthotte, operator of a local dry-cleaning business. Ed Waldrop conducted the formal ceremonies which included Halthotte as a Kiwanian.

Club member Bill Corbett reported that eight members of the local club attended Wednesday's district meeting in Fayetteville. Guests of the club included two Circle K members, Walter Allen and Merle Bynum.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

There has hardly been a first novel in recent times introduced with the fanfare accorded "A Long and Happy Life" by Reynolds Price.

Just published by Atheneum, this work, as reported here earlier, will also come out as a precedent-breaking supplement to the April issue of Harper's. Furthermore it has been accorded an impressive reception by some of the most important critics in England as well as this country. All this is of special interest in North Carolina, since Price is a native and a graduate of Duke.

"A Long and Happy Life" is a simple story of a Southern country girl whose problem is that she must love a fellow who himself seems to be incapable of love. How this affair works out is the core of Price's book. Yet, for all its simplicity of plot and also of style, this work moves at a deep level of understanding and suggestiveness. It is the work of a fine talent and should be widely read.

Another Winner

Another item of book news which is of interest in the State is that Walker Percy's "The Moviegoers" has won the National Book Award for fiction. Percy, nephew of the late William Alexander Percy, who wrote the impressive "Lansons of the Levee," is a graduate of the University of North Carolina.

This novel deals with a man who finds a substitute for real life by constantly attending movies. Percy's citation says in part: "The Moviegoers" is a truthful novel with shocks of recognition and spasms of nostalgia for every—or very nearly every—American. Mr. Percy, with compassion and without sentimentality or the mannerisms of the clinic, examines the delusions and hallucinations and the daydreams and the dreams that afflict those who abstain from the customary way of making do."

Other winners of National Book Awards were Louis Mumford for his "The City in History," and Alan Dugan for a volume of verse entitled "Poems."

New Magazine

At a time when many magazines are having such a hard time, it is remarkable how many new ones have been launched recently.

Latest on the list is USA-1, a journal of monthly news and history. Its sponsors claim that it will be an unconventional "thoughtful new journal of news perspectives," which is what they all say and doesn't prove anything one way or another.

It does seem pretty clear that USA-1 will be for the carriage trade, since it will be issued in a semi-hardback format with many pages of color photography for fifteen dollars a year. A blend of Time, Life, and American Heritage, it seems.

Opinions of Pollsters

The Fund for the Republic has just published a pamphlet entitled "Opinion Polls," consisting of interviews with Elmo Roper and George Gallup. Both men are intelligent and well informed (that being their business), and some of their observations are rather disconcerting.

Gallup, for instance, feels that college level education has deteriorated in the past twenty-five years. He believes that the present college product

Dr. Trevathan To Speak At Conference Here

Dr. Earl Trevathan of Greenville will address a Conference for Members of Local Board of Health here Wednesday on "What the Average Practicing Physician Expects of the Local Health Department."

The N.C. Public Health Association, Institute of Government, and the N.C. State Board of Health are sponsoring a one-day meeting in three locations in the state so that every board member will have an opportunity to attend a meeting without undue travel from his home.

The meeting here will take place at the Greenville Country Club. Others are scheduled for Chapel Hill on March 28 and in Morganton on April 4.

The program has been arranged to give opportunities for sharing of ideas, answering questions and receiving new information about public health, board responsibilities and the relationship between public health and the private practice of medicine.

Officers Named At PTA Meet

Mrs. John Allen was elected president of the Third Street School P.T.A. Association at a meeting Thursday in the school auditorium.

Also elected were Mrs. Paul Flye Jr., vice president; Mrs. Dallas Cox, secretary; and James Davenport, treasurer.

Joe Taft presented a discussion on the physical fitness program being carried on at the school. Taft represented the parent's views on the program.

Ralph Stelle of the E.C.C. physical education department told parents and teachers that the physical fitness program is not slanted toward the athletically inclined child, but for all children. It is designed to provide a more adequate health appraisal.

Dr. John Futrell, Pitt County health director, said he felt testing for physical fitness in school had already gotten results. He urged all parents to cooperate with the inoculation program currently underway.

Mrs. Marvin Riddle, president of the P.T.A., presided at the meeting.

TB Emphasized At Sally Branch

A special tuberculosis emphasis program was held Friday at Sally Branch School for grammar grade pupils and their parents, with Dr. Malene Irons of Greenville as guest speaker.

Citizens as a group must work together to prevent tuberculosis, Dr. Irons said. Eighty per cent of the children who have T.B. get well and in many instances the cases could be prevented if proper precautions are taken to see that the child has good health habits, proper rest, balanced diet, sufficient clothing, plenty of exercise, fresh air and good medical care, she stated.

Dr. Irons was introduced by R. Reddick, who also presented Dr. A. A. Best and the school nurse. He also recognized parents who were present for the program.

Pupils from grades six, seven and eight presented a television skit during the program. The first scene showed a T.V. class in health learning facts about tuberculosis. The second scene took place at the home of one of the girls, where some friends were explaining to a younger girl the facts concerning tuberculosis.

Secondly, the employer cannot ever establish a confidential relationship with such a girl as I had, for instance, with a secretary who was with me nearly 20 years before she died. The contractor is the real boss and there is no telling how many girls he will provide in 20 years. Of course, some employers only use this form of contract labor for extras; but then extras have access to files, to interoffice correspondence and carbon copies and are come today, gone tomorrow.

Is contract labor of this type permissible under the law and does it violate various fringe benefit laws? The question is not telling how many girls he will provide in 20 years. ## Old Image Of The Country Doctor Given A Jolt

By MARTI MARTIN
Reflector Staff Writer

BETHEL—One would probably expect to see a rather pudgy man, about the age of 55, wearing an ill-fitting oversized tweed overcoat and a weather-beaten old hat. He'd probably be carrying an old leather satchel and have a stethoscope about his neck.

That is a typical picture of the country doctor, but C. G. Garrenton, M. D., is one of three doctors at the Bethel Clinic who serves the rural community about Bethel. One look at him would convince almost anyone that the idea of the country doctor is due for a little change.

His impeccable appearance is as revolutionary to the old idea of a country doctor as the Bethel Clinic is to the idea of rural medicine.

At the time of this interview, Dr. Garrenton, on his day off work, was dressed in a neatly fitting suit. There were no wrinkles in the suit or "baggy knees" in the pants. His white shirt was equally as flawless and his bow tie was straight and blended in nicely with the color of his suit. He wore glasses which seem to suit him in particular somehow, and had a neatly clipped moustache. In short, he would look quite in place on any New York City commuter train.

Dr. Garrenton served as a pioneer in the Pitt County area in establishing a private clinic to serve the community and nearby areas. In 1950, he dreamt that he and his father, who had served as a doctor in Bethel for about 20 years, came to be a reality with the building of the Bethel Clinic.

Successful Clinic

Here was a testing ground for clinics that were to follow. It was a financial gamble. Would it work?

Last year, doctors at the clinic saw 33,000 patients. An average of about 100 patients a day. This figure alone indicates success.

The clinic, located in downtown Bethel, was about 2,000 sq. ft. when it was built 12 years ago. It was built of cement blocks and brick veneer and had air conditioning. The structure cost about $22,000.

A later addition was made which almost doubled the size of the clinic and cost an additional $30,000. This 1954 addition of eight rooms brought the total number of rooms to 19.

This also brought the total of facilities for taking care of six obstetrical patients up to 13, and for the nursery a total of eight bassinets, two incubators and one heated bassinet.

The three doctors at the clinic deliver an average of 320 babies a year, almost one infant a day. Doctors at the clinic perform a total of about 200 operations a year, with the most frequent being the removal of tonsils and adenoids.

At least one doctor is on duty at all times. Sundays, nights and holidays are no exception. The three doctors at the clinic own a share in the hospital. Besides Dr. Garrenton, are partners W. A. Moody, M. D. and Dan Jordan, M. D.

Dr. Garrenton had approached Dan Jordan, a native of Greenville, about the clinic idea when Jordan was a medical student at the Medical College of Virginia. Dr. Jordan did his internship at Johnson Willis Hospital in Richmond and his residency in Cleveland, Ohio. He and Dr. Garrenton were the only two doctors at the clinic for the first six years.

"The practice grew rapidly and it was obvious in 1954 that the building was too small and that another doctor was needed," said Dr. Garrenton.

We almost doubled the size of the clinic that year and I approached Dr. W. A. Moody about joining us as a member of the staff and as a partner."

Dr. Moody did his undergraduate work at Wake Forest and medical work at the Duke University Medical School. His internship was at the U. S. Air Force Hospital near Buffalo, N.

Eighteen Years' Achievement

By Sarah Higgs Kirkpatrick
ECC News Bureau Staff Writer

Eighteen years ago Victor Reggie Edgerton was a victim of polio, which paralyzed his left forearm.

Reggie Edgerton was also a young man who was a born lover of sports and, spurred by the optimism of youth, was determined to overcome his disability.

Today, 22-year-old Edgerton is a candidate for the bachelor of science degree at East Carolina College, having specialized in physical education and science. He is also recipient of a graduate assistantship to the State University of Iowa, where in June he will begin work toward a master's degree in physical education and science.

The trials of his life during the past eighteen years—the despair, the achievement of a goal, and the dream of realizing a college education—tell a heart-warming story.

Born in Oriental, N. C., Edgerton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Edgerton. He attended the Pamlico County Elementary schools using his right hand for participation in the three R's—reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic.

While at Pamlico High in Bayboro, he became keenly interested in participating in basketball and baseball. Selected to play first baseman on the baseball team, his determination and skilled performance afforded him mastery of the sport as a one handed first baseman. With the glove on his right hand, he would catch the ball in his right hand, slip the baseball glove rapidly off and return the ball to the catcher as quick as—if not quicker than—the normal boy with two good hands.

For his ability in sports in high school, Edgerton in his senior year, was voted the best all-around student and for this honor was recipient of an athletic medal.

Needing financial help to realize a college education upon graduation from Pamlico High, Edgerton acquired aid from an East Carolina College administrative officer. "It was through the kindness of Dr. Ralph Brimley, Director of Extension at East Carolina, that I was able to find a job," Edgerton stated. Enrolled as a freshman student at East Carolina in 1958, he began work after school hours as laboratory assistant to Dr. Fred Irons of the college infirmary. He held this position for two years.

Utilizing his time wisely his freshman year between studies and work, Edgerton also became active in working on weights and lane markers in the indoor swimming pool of the gymnasium. "I had never been in a swimming pool before coming to East Carolina College," he said with a modest, but pleasing, smile on his face.

Promotions

Noting Edgerton's keen interest and ability in working with heavy weights around the pool, despite his handicap, Dr. Ray Martinez, swimming coach of the physical education department, appointed him student assistant manager of the swimming team.

The next year, as a sophomore, Edgerton's continued ability and interest in swimming earned for him promotion to manager of the swimming team and later to assistant coach.

With the approval of President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College, in 1960, Edgerton began to student-coach the J. H. Rose High School swimming team, the first swimming coach the high school ever secured.

As first-year coach, Edgerton produced two championships during a North Carolina High School Swimming Meet—the State Championship of the Medley Team and the State Championship Backstroke. Recently in Raleigh, J. H. Rose High, challenging Needham Broughton High with a dual meet, walked away with winning honors.

Requirements Senior Year

As a physical education major, Edgerton was required to complete a research paper his senior year. For his assignment, he conducted a fine study on "Changes in Selected Physiologic Responses and Anthropometric Measurements of Young Boys Engaged in a Competitive Swimming Program."

The purpose of the study was to attempt to determine the changes that may occur in selected physiologic responses and selected anthropometric measurements of young boys engaged in a five-month competitive-swimming training program.

Since Edgerton anticipates a teaching career, he was also required to devote one quarter his senior year as student teacher. During the fall of 1961, he taught health and physical education in the New Bern High School. His work was graded well above average and for this honor his name appeared on the college honor roll.

Edgerton, in addition to devoting time to the work of coach, spent long hours each night on studies. "It was nothing unusual," Dr. Martinez said, "to see Edgerton at 1 a.m. in the gymnasium with a book in his hand." As a result of his studies he achieved an outstanding record in academic work during his college career.

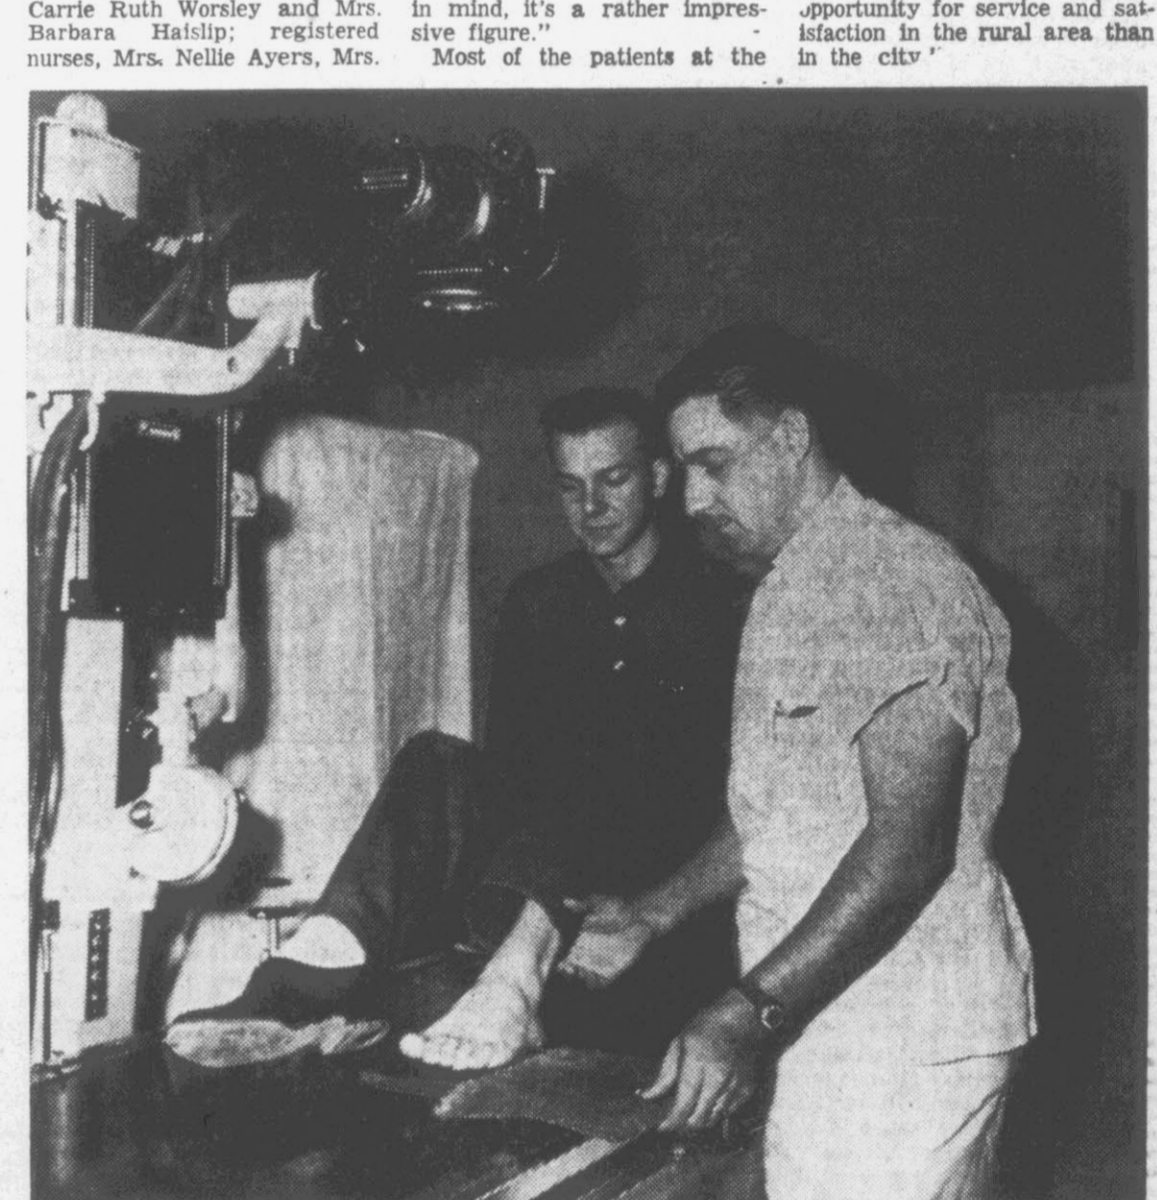

For his excellent record in scholarship, leadership, and participation in extra-curricular activities, he was chosen to represent the college in the 1961-1962 edition of the national publication "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

A member of the Physical Education Majors Club, he held the office of president during the 1961-1962 school year.

"It has been a pleasure to work with Edgerton," Dr. Martinez said. "In addition to his reliability, his exertion of power and ability to perform has always proved consistent. He shall certainly be missed by his friends and colleagues of the college."

"Clean living men like astronaut Lt. Col. John H. Glenn, Jr., and Reggie Edgerton are what the youths of America need today," stated J. H. Rose, Superintendent of Greenville schools, during a banquet this spring, when members of the J. H. Rose High School Swimming Team and their parents entertained Edgerton.

His glowing honors are promises of a bright future. Without faith and determination, Reggie Edgerton could never have conquered the results of a dread illness.

They Learn 'Slide Rule' Of Today

By MARY CAMPBELL

BLOOMFIELD, N. J. (AP)—"In my day, young people learned the slide rule," says 60-year-old organic chemist Dr. Bradley Whitman.

"Now they have to learn the computer."

And Saturday mornings, 9 to 12, finds 20 juniors and seniors from Montclair, N. J., High School learning about computers from Dr. Whitman and Gordon Thomas, 37-year-old biologist and statistician. Schering Corp., the pharmaceutical firm which employs the two men, underwrites the costs and provides facilities for the 13-week course, "Electronic Computer Programming."

At a recent meeting, half the class was upstairs "debugging" a routine which had been punched in tape in computer language. It was fed by one student into the computer for solution. The work was accompanied by a running commentary from Thomas. "Now we'll run the program through the computer to see if it runs. This'll show you how to debug the program. Incidentally, if you want to make money, buy stock in a computer paper company. . . Even experts make one mistake in every 15 commands. . . Now what you do in actual practice, you go to the key punch operator and get the correction punched into your program."

Downstairs Dr. Whitman's pupils worked on translating a mathematical problem into a program for the computer, while Dr. Whitman discussed the class.

"I knew high school students were taught about computers in Bethesda, Md., two years ago, and I felt this was something new to have here if the kids were interested in it.

"We're not trying to produce skillful programmers here. We're just giving them exposure to computers, so they know what a program looks like and how computers work. We're using a Burroughs machine, but we concentrate on basic commands, what to do with decimal points, things that are with you no matter what computer you use.

"This way, when they get to college they'll know whether this looks like something they might like to do."

Twenty-one students, most of them planning careers in science, were chosen for the class last fall by high school faculty.

PRODUCED TWO CHAMPIONS . . . When a junior student at East Carolina College, Reggie Edgerton was the first student swimming coach J. H. Rose High School ever secured.

I WILL GO. WHAT DOES SAMARIS WANT TO NEGOTIATE?

I DON'T KNOW, SIR!

WORD SPREADS...FOR MILES THEIR PATH IS LINED WITH CURIOUS NATIVES WHO WISH TO SEE THE LEGENDARY PHANTOM.

HERE HE COMES...ARROGANT FOOL...REFUSED MY FIRST INVITATION! HE'LL SEE HOW I DEAL WITH HIM!

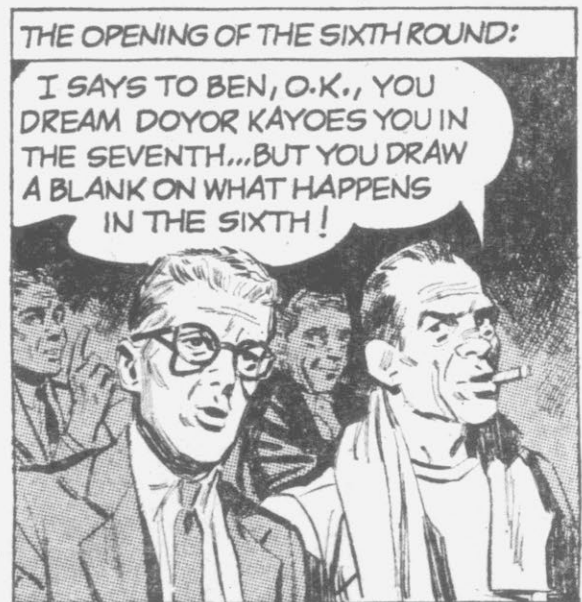

BUT...OH... HE IS SO STRONG AND HANDSOME...

THE OPENING OF THE SIXTH ROUND:

DAGWOOD--CAN I HAVE THE PLEASURE OF YOUR COMPANY AT LUNCH TODAY?

I'D BE DELIGHTED, BOSS.

I KNOW A PLACE WHERE THEY SERVE BIG, HOT, TENDER, JUICY CORNED-BEEF SANDWICHES

SOUNDS WONDERFUL

THEY SERVE THE CORNED BEEF ON BIG SLICES OF DELICIOUS RYE BREAD COVERED WITH A SPECIAL MUSTARD SAUCE

OH, BOY--AND I'M STARVED, TOO

YOU'RE IN LUCK, GENTLEMEN--WE'RE HAVING A FASHION SHOW HERE TODAY

WE'RE INTERESTED IN CORNED-BEEF SANDWICHES--NOT FASHION MODELS

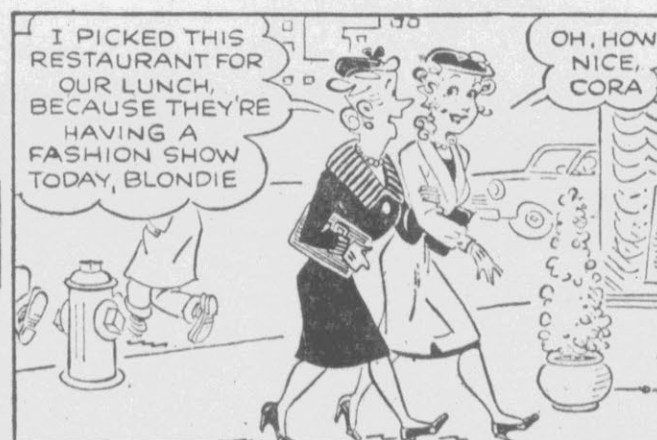

DO YOU GENTLEMEN LIKE THIS LONG-TORSO COCKTAIL DRESS?

WE DIDN'T COME HERE FOR TORSOS--WE CAME HERE TO EAT

I WISH THESE GLAMOROUS MODELS WOULD QUIT MILLING AROUND OUR TABLE

ME TOO--I'M TOO OLD FOR THIS KIND OF NONSENSE

I PICKED THIS RESTAURANT FOR OUR LUNCH, BECAUSE THEY'RE HAVING A FASHION SHOW TODAY, BLONDIE

OH, HOW NICE, CORA

AH--HERE COME OUR CORNED-BEEF SANDWICHES

AND THAT'S NOT ALL!

HERE COME OUR WIVES

IF THEY SEE US IN THERE, THEY'LL THINK THAT'S THE WAY WE SPEND OUR LUNCH HOUR EVERY DAY

WELL, AREN'T YOU GOING TO HAVE ANY LUNCH AT ALL?

NO--WE USED UP OUR LUNCH HOUR--WE'VE GOT TO GET BACK TO WORK

IF I HAD KNOWN WE WEREN'T GOING TO GET THE CORNED-BEEF SANDWICHES, I'D HAVE LOOKED AT THE MODELS

A New JOHN GREASEY Thriller

A ROCKET FOR ROLLISON

CHAPTER 18

A policeman in uniform and a little perky man wearing a tailored suit stood outside Kate Lowson's flat. They were talking together, but straightened up as Richard Rollison approached. The perky man greeted: "Didn't think it would be long before you turned up. Mr. Ar. 'Ow's tricks?"

"Nicely, thanks," said Rollison amiably. "How are things here?"

He smiled at the constable, a youthful-looking, earnest man.

"The grapevine tells me that the young lady woke up around eight thirty, and she's okay," answered the perky man, who came from Bill Ebbutt's training establishment in the Whitechapel Road. "The rozzers have took a statement."

"They didn't lose much time."

"Cor blimey, if I took as long to write me name as they do I'd go back to school," the perky man said, and grinned cheekily at the earnest policeman.

Rollison went into the tall house and by that time realized that at least a dozen neighbors were staring at him from windows in the street.

In the house, which was well served with daylight with tall windows at each landing, doors began to open and curious people peered at him. He reached the top floor and found two men there, one a constable, one a large, muscular, sitting on hardwood chairs obviously brought out for the occasion.

The constable saluted and the Cockney said: "Watcher, Mr. Ar!"

"Is Miss Lowson on her own?"

"Yes, sir."

"Thanks," said Rollison, and tapped on the door. A moment later, Kate answered him, hesitated for a moment obviously without recognizing him, and then backed into the room.

She looked rested, and she looked quite lovely; it was shocking to think that she had been within minutes of death last night. She was wearing a red hosiery coat, high at the neck, some pink tulle beneath the collar high up to the chin not only hid the bruises, but had a softening effect.

She hadn't made up, but had done her dark hair; any woman who could look a beauty in circumstances like these really was one.

She closed the door, and said: "Mr. Rollison, I shall never be able to tell you how grateful I am. I know that I owe you my life."

"Yes," said Rollison, gently. "I think you do." He took her hand.

"The frightening thing is that there might be other attempts. Kate, and I'm here to try to find out why. Is there anything at all that you didn't tell me last night?"

He had given her no chance to dissemble, no chance to prepare for this attack. He held her hands very tightly. She felt cold. The shock of the attack still lay heavily upon her, and from the look in her eyes he judged that she was touched with the horror of recollection.

His words were calculated to do nothing but help; rather, to make that horror worse, to frighten her into telling him if there was anything else she knew.

She said very huskily: "I've told you absolutely everything, Mr. Rollison. If there were anything else, I would tell you without a moment's hesitation." She paused for a moment, but before he could speak, she went on: "The police say they haven't found Maurice. Have you?"

"Did you know him?"

She said, with a rueful laugh: "Well—yes and no. I visited the house several times before Maurice left for America, of course, and the old man seemed all right then. He made me promise to go and see him at least once a week while Maurice was away, and I did go—twice."

She forced a laugh. "I've never met anyone quite so brazen. He seemed to think that he had a kind of equal rights with Maurice! Yet it wasn't possible actually to dislike him. I used to telephone him occasionally, and told him this was as near as I proposed to get to him again. He thought that a joke. Every week, a bottle of wine arrived here with a single red rose and an invitation to go and have dinner with him!"

Rollison said musingly: "So Uncle Jeremiah had some nice qualities and a sense of humor? Has Maurice a sense of humor?"

"Not the same kind as his uncle," Kate answered.

"Did you know that his uncle's house had been left furnished to some people named Thompson?"

"Let furnished?"

"Yes."

"Well, I'm not surprised in a way. Maurice asked me to look at the hotel instead of going straight to the house, but I assumed that was because he thought it better not to go straight to the empty house."

"The estate hasn't been cleared through probate for long," Kate went on. "The house belongs to Maurice, of course, and I would have thought he would let me know if he'd intended to let it." She hesitated, and then added as if to convince herself: "Of course he would."

"Do you know anyone named Thompson?"

"Not that I remember," Kate answered, after a pause.

"Have you ever seen this girl?" Inquired Rollison, and took out the photograph which had arrived just before he left his flat.

He saw Kate tighten her lips as she studied it, and suspected that she knew that she was looking at the photograph of a dead woman.

"I saw her last night, at the airport," she said at last. "That was the girl holding the dog which knocked me over."

"We won't get anywhere if the Malling Motors policy is one of the big lie," Rollison has reason to exclaim. Continue the story Monday.

Over 700 Students In Typing Contest

More than 700 typewriting students from 27 Eastern North Carolina counties have begun competing for top awards in the annual county typewriting contests sponsored by East Carolina College.

These contests, scheduled from March 13 to 27, are sponsored jointly by the College School of Business; Beta Kappa Chapter of Pi Omega Pi, national professional fraternity for business education college students; Phi Beta Lambda Chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America, national student organization for business students; and the Department of Public Relations of East Carolina.

Having grown from a one-county contest, beginning in Pitt in the spring of 1952, to the present twenty-seven county event, these contests are recognized by business teachers, high school principals, and superintendents of the school systems in this area as a motivating force in improving the standards of the achievement in the skill of using the typewriter for better writing.

Participating counties in 1962 contests are: Beaufort, Bertie, Camden, Carteret, Chowan, Craven, Currituck, Dare, Duplin, Edgecombe, Gates, Halifax, Hertford, Lenoir, Martin, Nash, Northampton, Onslow, Wayne, and Wilson.

Each participating school in these county contests enters one contestant for each 10 students enrolled in typing in beginning classes and one contestant for each 5 students enrolled in advanced typing classes. The 700 contestants indicate a total enrollment of more than 5,000 typing students in the competing schools. Both beginning students and advanced students participate in separate contests.
