New York Mayor's Wife Cultivates A Deaf Ear

Mrs. Robert F. Wagner, wife of New York City's mayor.

By CINDY ADAMS
 NEW YORK—(WNS)—"With so many lies written about my husband in the newspapers, all I read these days is the woman's page," sighed Mrs. Robert F. Wagner, First Lady of the city of New York since 1953.

Following his election to a third term last November, Wagner has been under fire from all sides. Besides his natural-born enemies, the Republicans, and the newborn defectors, the regular Democrats who were by-passed on patronage in favor of the reformers, the Mayor's been hit with a bus strike which has crippled half the city; a rift down the middle of his party; an open feud with Governor Rockefeller and a cry that he's sloughing campaign promises.

From the living room of Gracie Mansion, the Mayor's official residence, Susan Wagner watched her husband clamber into that new Cadillac limousine which triggered the latest anti-Wagner blast.

"Even Republicans agree this charge is ridiculous. Our other car wasn't safe any more. The wind came in on both sides. Wouldn't you think the Mayor of New York should have a respectable automobile?"

"I mean, how does it look to pick up dignitaries like General de Gaulle in a car that's always breaking down? One said, 'You mean the city can't afford a better car than this?' The springs were broken!"

In a chic blue suit that matched her eyes ("I don't know the designer. I bought it on sale"), tall, blonde, handsome Susan, who'd be a First Lady wherever she was, laughed. "Politicians' wives need a sense of humor. That's besides patience, thick skin, and an ability NOT to hear remarks like 'I've seen that dress on you before.' I answer, 'You're going to see it again.'"

"Take when the comptroller's office called. Some little clerk trying to be important said, 'we buy food for humans not dogs. Seems somebody accidentally put two cans of dog food on the bill for the upkeep of Gracie Mansion. What can you do, get angry?' I said, 'It'll never happen again.'"

"With a pushier person this wouldn't happen, but I'm sensitive when I'm not spending my money."

"Remember that fuss about the mansion's food bills? Nobody mentioned the Park Department employees, the police and Wag's chauffeurs (her nickname for the Mayor) used to have their big meals here in the middle of the day. Those tabs ran pretty high."

A conference was in progress next door. Occasionally a stray commissioner wandered through while a secretary kept handing her messages and a maid dusted the dozens of framed photographs of Nehru, Kennedy, Queen Elizabeth and the like. Meetings to the right of her, phones jangling to the left of her, Susan Wagner smiled on forever.

"I've always been against the city's political bossism and I'm for the so-called change in Wag." Mr. Wagner was elected with reform backing on a platform to throw the bosses out. He turned against Tammany Hall, his former sponsor, became in effect the reform candidate and virtually took over Tammany.

"Politics is vicious. This campaign was unusually bad, but had I anticipated it would be this horrible, I'd still be for it because it's my husband's life." Gotham's First Lady, whose figure rivals that of America's First Lady, puffed lazily at a cigarette. "Duncan—he's 15—gets furious if anybody says anything about his father, Bobby's."

"He's going into government, but having seen so much he says he wouldn't want an executive job."

"When Bob ran for Senator, Bobby was quite upset at hearing his father attacked. He missed days at school. Since then he's attended several interviews and seen his father misquoted next day. Now he takes things in stride."

"I wish we had some private life. Lately, with the bus strike and all, it has been terrible. There are meetings constantly. Last night, the first time in weeks, he had dinner home, but dashed right out again to make a speech. Everybody's trying to produce him at too many places."

"Sometimes if I look fast I can see him across a dais. Of course, I'm busy, but it gets sort of lonely. I'm marooned upstairs and we're never together. Lately, I can't even breakfast with him because you never know who's going to be here."

Miss Graber Given Shower

Miss Ruth Graber, April bride-elect, was honored Tuesday evening with a gadget shower at the home of Mrs. Paul Hickfang.

The guests were greeted by the hostesses, Mrs. Hickfang, Mrs. Cleveland Bradner, Mrs. Jack Kittrell, and Mrs. Wolfgang Fettsch. A corsage of cookie cutters decorated with spring flowers was presented to the guest of honor by Mrs. Bradner, who also designed the flower arrangements used throughout the Hickfang home.

The gifts were displayed in a miniature surrey driven by a rag doll bride and groom. After Miss Graber opened her gifts, the refreshments were served from a table decorated with yellow and green, the colors chosen by Miss Graber for her wedding. The centerpiece of jonquils and white narcissus was accented by pale yellow tapers and a tiny bride and groom. Heart and bell shaped sandwiches and tiny cakes all decorated with yellow and green continued the color motif. Nuts, mints, and a golden fruit punch completed the party fare.

Dutch Luncheon For Book Club

The Pickwick Book Club met Tuesday, March 20 for a Dutch Luncheon at the Greenville Country Club. Members of the Social Committee, Mrs. J. H. Ward, Jr., Mrs. Charles Stokes, Mrs. David Whitchard and Mrs. S. E. Coffman served as hostesses.

An arrangement of jonquils, forsythia and spring lilies centered the luncheon table. Members were served a luncheon plate of barbecued chicken, congealed salad and lemon meringue tarts. Mrs. Mout Massey, Jr., vice president, welcomed members and thanked the Social Committee for arranging the luncheon and the decorations.

Following the luncheon, books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Girl Scouts Collecting Items For Outer Banks Residents

The Girl Scout Council of Coastal Carolina has moved swiftly into a service project to aid the victims of the recent storm which caused much damage to the outer banks of eastern North Carolina. The Girl Scouts in the 20 county area are donating and collecting donations of blankets, non-perishable foods and clothing to send to their sister Scouts who reside on the outer banks. Three of the 401 troops of the council reside on this storm stricken area. Upon receipt of the various deliveries of needed supplies, the outer banks Scouts will either distribute them or donate them to other agencies for distribution.

One shipment has already been flown in, and another shipment is due for flight immediately. Many governmental, civilian and volunteer agencies will assist the Scouts with their project.

Herbert Lee Aries Speaker

The Aries Book Club met with Mrs. Virginia Pierce Basnigt for its March 20 meeting. Mrs. Carl Pierce, the outgoing president, recognized Mr. Herbert White Lee and Mrs. Robert Powell as guests for the evening.

Mrs. W. Z. Morton Jr. had the program and introduced Mr. Lee as her guest speaker.

Mr. Lee discussed informatively his thoughts and ideas concerning the present day political movement, that's called "Conservatism." He called to the attention of the group that this country has been noticeably within the past year, divided into two distinct trends of political thought—Liberalism and Conservatism.

To understand Conservatism, one must think of the implications of Liberalism and to what extent it involves Communism, Socialism and Capitalism. He traced the growth of socialism in Russia and the inroads it has made into other countries. It was recalled that as Mr. Khrushchev spoke to the American people several years ago, he said that our grandchildren would live under socialism—not communism. Russia has had the dictatorship of the proletariat for 40 years.

Mr. Lee says Conservatism is basically an anti-socialist reaction. It is a reaction against the steady concentration of all government power in Washington. For the past 50 years gradually the Supreme Court has been interpreting the Constitution in such a manner that traditional state powers have been slowly taken away from the states and given to the Federal Government. The Conservatives—generally speaking—would like to see these traditional powers returned to state and local governments. This involves such things as education, state and national elections, local police protection and so on.

Mr. Lee closed by mentioning the socialistic trend which is threatening the church both internally and externally. "Dr. Will Durant expressed it very well when he compared the philosophies of Julius Caesar and Jesus of Nazareth. He said Caesar wanted to change existing institutions so that the lot of mankind would be better. Christ wanted to change the hearts and minds of men, so that existing institutions would be better."

Following the program, Mrs. Howard Moye, incoming president for the new year, presided at the business meeting. Mrs. Basnigt invited members and guests to the dining room for refreshments. From an appointed table, Mrs. Moye poured coffee which was accompanied by cookies, cheese biscuits and nuts.

Jenkins Buffet Supper Hosts

"The Duke's Men", a group of singers from Yale University, were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins at a buffet supper Tuesday evening, prior to the concert given in Wright Auditorium. These 18 young men, students at Yale, most of them in their junior year, are on a short concert tour giving a program of popular and semi-classical songs in colleges in North Carolina and other southern states.

The Jenkins home was lovely with a profusion of jonquils, camellias and tulips. In addition to the students from Yale, presidents of the eight campus sororities and officers of the Student Government Association and candidates for Student Government officers for the coming year, were guests. Mrs. Charles Stevens and Mrs. Otis Strother assisted Mrs. Jenkins in serving a three course dinner to the 45 guests.

Here's How Start With A Basic Sofa

Same basic furniture can be used for a French country look (top) and contemporary

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Are you furnishing your first home?

If you are a prospective home-maker, curb the impulse to furnish your home completely as soon as you are married, advises interior designer David Barrett.

"Many newlyweds furnish all rooms with inexpensive furnishings, spreading the money so thin that they cannot possibly achieve quality. No matter how much money one has, I believe it is better to start with a plan, allocating the bulk of the money to living room or den and dining room, the rooms you may want to use for entertaining."

More consideration should be given to selecting basic upholstered pieces in the beginning than smaller essentials, he points out. Upholstered pieces should be bought for keeps.

"It's a mistake to buy a curving free-form sofa that just fits in one certain corner of your house or apartment, especially if you plan to expand to a new home within a few years," Barrett says. "It is better to buy a traditional basic six- or seven-foot sofa with simple, pure lines which will fit in the home you have now or one you will have later. The basic look can take on any look you desire in the future."

"You may want stark contemporary or a Louis XV look the next time around. A new fabric cover, abstract or a period silk damask, will give it the character of the period you are trying to create."

Choose other furnishings with the same idea in mind, he says. Simple cabriole or directoire legs on end tables and chairs will go with just about anything, he points out. A mid-Victorian chair with French legs may be covered in a French toile and worked into a French country room. Plaids can give it a contemporary look.

Spend money wisely in the dining room, he says. "Instead of buying a six- or seven-piece suite of dining room furniture, invest in a good pedestal table or oblong table with leaves. Choose a handsome set of chairs. It is not necessary that they match the table. A good looking sideboard may be created by using a long marble slab held up by two or three brackets. One can put a dining room cabinet in the living room until more funds are accumulated and something else can replace it. Then it could be moved to the dining room."

The wall over the sofa is the ideal place for good art, he says, but few people can afford it in the first home.

"If you can't afford good paintings, do the area in good prints.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

It is hard to visualize spring without the beauty of azaleas. They make clear the break between wintertime and the year's most welcome season. They have many uses in the garden and on the grounds. But for many, this fine plant never lives up to advance notice. The fault in most cases lies with the gardener.

Planting

Azaleas are shallow rooted plants. They do all their growing in the upper part of the soil. Therefore they should never be planted any deeper than they were growing in the nursery.

If you are going to plant azaleas this year, the first thing is to make soil tests of area to be planted. Azaleas like a PH of between 4.5 and 6.0. Be sure the area drains well. A raised bed is the best bet in any area. That is if the planting is on the flat. Hillside plantings are ideal.

When you have picked the area for your bed—clean off all rocks, sticks, etc. Be sure there is no plaster hidden in the soil. This is a common cause of bad results with azaleas around the new house area.

When site is ready, spread 4" of damp peat-moss over entire area. Spade this in about 18". Rake bed level—the soil should be in such condition that you can scoop it out with your hands. You can spread three pints of 8-8-8 fertilizer on peat moss.

Place plants on area before planting. In this way you can get accurate spacing.

In planting the azaleas, scoop out soil with hand or shovel. Place plant in hole and spread soil around it. Firm soil in with hand. After entire bed is planted, water well. Then mulch with pine straw or old sawdust. Use about 4 to 5 inches of pine straw or 1 to 2 inches of old sawdust.

The Best Picture

To get the best picture with azaleas, plant them in masses of one color or different shades of that color. Start at the edge of the bed with the lightest shade and work toward the back—the darkest shade should be at the back of bed. Spotty planting results from dotting one color here and there. Azaleas can be used as a border around the foundation planting or as face down plants in front of camellias, hollies, etc. The use of azaleas as hedge material is also recommended by some gardeners. For informal hedges try the large leafed kinds and for more formal hedges or outlines, use the small leafed varieties.

If possible, plant your azaleas where they can be seen from a window in your house. In this way you can enjoy them when outdoor viewing is too uncomfortable.

Plant Hardest Kind

Plant the azaleas that do best in your section. The best way to determine this is to ask other gardeners and visit closely nurseries to find out what kinds they grow. As the trial and error method is too costly, know beforehand what kinds to plant and what others to leave alone.

Suggestions

Plant in semi-shade—such as under pine trees. Plant on north side of house—plant on south only if the area is at least partially shady.

Plant only in properly prepared areas. Feed lightly—about ¼ pint of Camellia Azalea Faulkner or 8-8-8 per 100 sq. feet of bed where growth starts and repeat 3 times at monthly intervals.

Plant shallow. Don't plant too deep.

Water during dry spells. Check for diseases and insects.

Don't plant azaleas unless you have a site with good drainage.

In fact, unless you can give those plants a good growing place, they are best left alone. They won't be worth time and effort spent on them.

Don't plant near shallow rooted trees. Don't plant in too much shade—flowers will be few and plants spindly.

Thomas Discusses Interior Decorating

The Home Life Department of the Woman's Club met Tuesday, March 20, at the showrooms of Jack Thomas Interior Decorators Inc. on the Ayden Highway.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, hosts, served tea and cookies from a table centered with an arrangement of yellow spring flowers.

Mr. Thomas gave a demonstrated talk on the different phases of decorating. He stressed the fact that decorating need not be expensive to be effective. One does not have to be rich in order to have a home suited to individual taste and personality. What is required is harmony of color, line, form and arrangement.

Professional guidance can enable one to avoid pitfalls, help in wise decision about furniture and furnishings.

There should be a focal point in each room—probably a fireplace—and one must decide whether the atmosphere desired is formal or informal.

Favorite possessions must be given the limelight, and the room must compliment the owner's personality and taste.

Floors, wall areas, ceilings, and lines, both vertical and horizontal, are as important as furniture in the decorating of a room, which must display, dignity and livability, suited to the individuality of the owner.

It is important to know when to skimp on a large piece, in order to splurge on a small piece of unique design, or extra quality, to give accent, and to produce a pleasing effect.

Old furniture can be blended with new, and different woods can be used together satisfactorily, with discretion.

One should make a basic plan, have the courage of one's convictions, and remember that good design is not expensive. An outline should be made of all requirements, such as fabrics, carpet, furniture, color of walls, etc., so that the whole, when finished, is what the individual had visualized. We should remember that the most expensive items are not always the most desirable. Professional help is always available.

At a short business meeting which followed, three new members were welcomed to the Home Life Department. They were Mrs. E. B. Fisher, Mrs. Wellington Gray and Mrs. Sylvester Greene.

Staff Writer Thetis Speaker

Mrs. Patricia Moore, staff member of the Daily Reflector, was guest speaker when Mrs. Carlton Taylor was hostess to members of the Thetis Book Club on Tuesday afternoon.

After a short business meeting presided over by Mrs. Bill Howard, the hostess introduced Mrs. Moore, who spoke on Civil Defense. She explained that the Pitt County Civil Defense Council was organized in order to aid Pitt citizens in the event of a major disaster.

Much has already been done by the council, especially in the area of emergency communications. Under the present set-up, if an emergency should occur, communication would be possible from points in the county into Greenville, and from Greenville to the district headquarters and on to the state headquarters.

Mrs. Moore also discussed fall-out shelters, both private and public shelters. A survey has been made, she said, of buildings in Greenville and Pitt County to determine which ones could afford some safety as shelters for the public.

At the conclusion of her talk, Mrs. Moore showed a free booklet about fall-out protection and suggested that interested persons could obtain one at the post office.

An informative question and answer period followed her talk. Mrs. Bill Laughinghouse and Mrs. Gordon Lynch assisted the hostess in serving.

Keep replacing them with better art as you go along. You must build and grow. I have never known anybody whose taste hasn't changed, most of the time for the better," he says.

Barrett suggests visiting museums and libraries to acquaint yourself with furnishings you choose so that you know what goes with the style or period you prefer. You should have a floor plan too, he says, and a layout before you start doing anything, so that you will have a point of view and know in what direction you are heading.

"One must do research to create the proper atmosphere. Love every piece you purchase instead of buying it to fill up space. You will have your basic sofa, but chairs, console or cabinets should fit in with the period. If you can't afford good rugs, then scrape, sand and color-stain your floors and cover them with small area rugs which can be cleaned easily."

He suggests furnishing the bedroom with good beds and unpainted chests which you can paint, adding some good hardware to give them a distinctive look. These may be repainted for a nursery room when children come along, he says. You can then continue your quality furnishings scheme in the bedroom.

Club Has Hat Showing

Mrs. B. B. Sugg, Jr., was hostess to the Thalian Book Club on Tuesday, March 20. The home was decorated with Spring flowers for the occasion.

After a luncheon, Mrs. H. L. Hodges, Jr., Vice-President, turned the meeting over to Mrs. T. W. Rivers, who introduced Mrs. Morris Brody as guest speaker. Mrs. Brody gave a program on "Hats." Modeling Spring hats while Mrs. Brody talked were Mrs. W. W. Brown, Mrs. V. C. Fleming, Jr., and Mrs. Charles Gaskins.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. B. S. Barnes, Mrs. B. B. Sugg, Sr., Mrs. Morris Brody, Mrs. J. D. McGlohn, Mrs. Percy Cox, and Mrs. Sam Weeks.

MANY OTHER NATURAL BRIDGE SPRING FASHIONS

Events Began In '46

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

On June 14, 1946, Bernard Baruch, representing the United States on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, proposed the following:

1. Managerial control or ownership of all atomic-energy activities potentially dangerous to world security.
2. Power to control, inspect, and license all other atomic activities.
3. The duty of fostering the beneficial uses of atomic energy.
4. Research and development responsibilities of an affirmative character intended to put the Authority in the forefront of atomic knowledge and thus to enable it to comprehend, and therefore to detect, misuse of atomic energy. To be effective, the Authority must itself be the world's leader in the field of atomic knowledge and development and thus supplement its legal authority with the great power inherent in possession of leadership in knowledge.

Then Baruch said: "I offer this as a basis for beginning our discussion. We are still at the beginning of this discussion. The Geneva Conference in 1962 is not much further along than Baruch and Gromyko were in 1946. Always it has been Soviet Russia that has refused to accept 'inspection and control.' It is Soviet Russia that demands unlimited sovereignty, which in this matter is impossible because the chemistry of the bomb is such that the consequences of its explosion are universal. In each country, partisans of Soviet Russia and others who are not so inclined agitate for a sane nuclear policy. This the United States offered in 1946 and has continued to offer since to no avail.

Soviet Russia fears inspection and therefore resists it. The United States does not fear inspection and therefore can conduct its affairs in the open. Soviet Russia sent her cosmonauts into orbit with the greatest secrecy; our astronauts worked in an open, blue sky operation which the Russians observed as closely as we did. One nation fears; the other lives without fear. But all the world fears the consequence of Khrushchev's continuation of Stalin's blind policy.

But as Baruch said in 1946: "Peace is never long preserved by weight of metal or by an armament race. Peace can be made tranquil and secure only by understanding and agreement fortified by sanctions. We must embrace international cooperation or international disintegration.

"Science has taught us how to put the atom to work. But to make it work for good instead of for evil lies in the domain of dealing with the principles of human duty. We are now facing a problem more of ethics than of physics."

The question that arises is whether Soviet Russia really dares to want peace. It is surely a bad omen that the Russians put on a show in the Berlin corridor while the Geneva Foreign Ministers Conference is taking place. One serious collision or a shooting could bring on war. Is Soviet Russia testing our patience? It is a dangerous game to play, for whereas, everyone in this country wants peace, the will of the American people is not broken and Khrushchev had better not make the mistake that the Kaiser and Hitler made of underestimating Americans. Always, in our history, American public opinion has outrun its officials who succumb to mass pressures, as they should, although some try to channel public opinion in their own direction.

From 1946 to 1962, a period of 16 years, we have been trying to find a way to internationalize atomic fission and fusion, to remove the bomb from the inventory of weapons of war (Continued on Page 5)

Problems Should Be Set Forth

As school officials and citizens of Pitt County consider problems involved in future consolidation, it appears evident that the major problem may center around consolidation of school districts rather than consolidation of schools themselves.

Because of the complicated matter of individual school district taxes, and also because it appears almost impossible to separate consolidation of schools from the consolidation of school districts, the Pitt Board of Education should furnish citizens of the county with information relating to the fiscal arrangements under which the county's school districts are operated. Such information, in our opinion, would clear up much of the present confusion over the matter.

Pitt is one of the very few counties in North Carolina which operates its schools under what is known as the Cleveland County Act. This particular piece of legislation gives the county permission to divide itself into school districts, if it wishes, for the purpose of levying special school taxes. Under this program each district stands on its own feet, with its property standing for its own bonded indebtedness and taxes levied on the property in the district to retire school bonds. The same applies to special tax levies for current operation supplements for schools of the district and for current capital outlay funds.

Having operated under this plan for many years, Pitt now has 13 school districts, all but two of which have outstanding bonded indebtedness requiring a special tax levy for debt service. Twelve of the districts also levy a current capital improvements tax and 11 levy a special tax for supplementing current operating expense within the district.

School tax levies in the 13 districts of Pitt range from a low of 10c per $100 valuation in Arthur district (which no longer has a school) to a high of 66c in Greenville and Gritton school districts.

It is only natural for residents of any district to ask how a merger with another school district will affect the special tax rate they have been paying for support of their district schools. Unless citizens are provided with this information from an authoritative source such as the School Board, it is likely that much erroneous information will become widespread, causing even greater confusion in public consideration of the problem.

Immediate discussion centers around possible consolidation in one high school the students from Bethel, Belvoir-Falkland, Stokes and Pactolus school districts. Such a move would of necessity have to involve, sooner or later, the consolidation of these school districts, at least from the standpoint of funds with which to support a consolidated high school.

At present each of these four school districts has a different school tax levy. The levies range from a high of 64c in Bethel district to a low of 27c in Pactolus district. The Stokes district rate is 40c and the Belvoir-Falkland rate is 32c.

These different rates, levied on the tax valuation of the respective districts, will produce a combined total of approximately $59,490 during the current fiscal year. If the four districts were combined into one district and the property valuation pledged to produce a like amount of revenue, an overall levy of approximately 42c would be required in place of the four different rates now in effect.

Taking the county as a whole, the varying rates of the 13 school districts are budgeted to produce a combined total of $471,767 during the current fiscal year. If the county were combined into one school district a special county-wide school tax of approximately 50c would be required to produce an amount of revenue equal to that now produced by the different rates in the 13 school districts.

While the goal of any school consolidation program is to provide better educational opportunities for the students, Pitt cannot ignore the financial problems which must be resolved before a comprehensive consolidation program can be planned.

It appears to us that school officials should first focus public attention on the existing financial problems involved in consolidation and their possible solutions. Only after these matters have been resolved satisfactorily can any consolidation program involving several school districts be effectively carried out.

Season For All To File Returns

By JACK RILEY
Carolina Power & Light Company

TAXES — Lengthening days, swelling dogwood buds and daffodils bursting into full bloom remind us of the promise of spring, and perhaps this article should say how great it is to be alive.

But this season suggests a less pleasant subject: Taxes. Forms W-2 and NC-2 remind us that, if we have not done so already, we soon must file our income tax returns. The withholding system was devised to make taxpaying as painless as possible and to take our minds off the weight of federal and state taxes we bear.

Rather than filing as quickly as possible and hiding our copy out of sight, perhaps we should take a critical look at the size of the tax bite. It may alarm you. If you are average, 20 per cent of your personal income goes to Uncle Sam and a lesser amount to the state. If you own securities, you pay a personal income tax on dividends as the second stage of double taxation. Uncle Sam gets 52 per cent in most cases as corporate income tax before you ever see a dividend check.

Add 3 per cent sales tax, 30 per cent gasoline tax, 10 per cent luxury taxes, 25 per cent of your power bill, and other hidden levies and the total quickly runs to a third or more of your gross income.

NOT ENOUGH—Yet we are not paying enough taxes. Now, before you blow a fuse, consider some facts.

We are not paying enough taxes because federal spending outruns revenues and the national debt grows larger. The federal debt now approaches $300 billion and the administration is asking that the limit be kicked up another eight or ten billion! In addition, Uncle Sam has firm commitments for civil service and military pensions, Social Security, insurance and other obligations on the Treasury far exceeding $500 billion, or equal to the total gross national product.

These obligations must be paid if paying debts is still the honest, though unfashionable, thing to do. We cannot count on inflation to adjust for our extravagance. People who are still productive may enjoy the heady wine of inflation, for the extra paper money in hand at least makes us feel more prosperous; but it is a form of cowardice to charge our debts to our senior citizens, whose productive days are past and whose annuities and pensions we pilfer. It is an even more unconscionable form of cowardice to charge our debts to our children and their children's children—and there are many who assert we cannot hope to repay our federal debt within a half-century.

So, if persistent inflation is our only hope, then we are not paying enough taxes.

We are not paying enough taxes unless we are content with deficit spending, an infinitesimal. Our national leaders find abundant justification for the deficit spending which is mortgaging the earnings of generations yet unborn.

DEBT STILL CLIMBING — The "great depression" was justification for running the federal debt from $19 billion in 1932 to $48 in 1941. World War II justified running the debt to $258 billion in 1945. The peace that followed ran it to $269 billion in 1946. The "cold war" that followed justified still more debt. Recession justified still more recent deficit spending.

Today the prospect of prosperity is used to justify a federal budget which sound businessmen say cannot possibly be balanced on the basis of pending proposals.

Democrats justify deficit spending and so do Republicans. The current budget is expected to be overspent by $7 billion, and budget requests for the next fiscal year top $92 billion, the largest peacetime spending in history and topping all except the wartime budgets of 1944 and 1945.

If taxes demand that we spend one-third of our productive life working for the government, then taxes deprive us of the personal freedom of choosing how we otherwise might spend a third of the production of a lifetime. Each of us has but one lifetime from which to take this time.

Wise old John Randolph of Roanoke said in 1813: "The people of this country, if ever they lose their liberties, will do it by sacrificing some great principle of free government to temporary passion."

Deficit spending has become a "temporary passion" extending over several national administrations, both Republican and Democratic.

BITTER IRONY—In the light of traditional Tar Heel conservatism, this federal profligacy has its bitter irony. Last year, while Tar Heels were exercising their proper right to deny $61 million in bonds for permanent improvements, Uncle Sam was overspending the federal budget more than $5 billion. As their share, North Carolinians will pay $140 million of this deficit, or twice as much as the bond issue they beat. And unfortunately, the federal deficit is not a one-time proposition, such as the bond issue for permanent improvements but seems likely to grow as it has for decades.

Tar Heel conservatism had its voice in a number of hard-headed Governors who kept taxes low and demanded that state services measure up to their cost. In Washington, Tar Heel conservatism has its voice in the vast majority of the North Carolina delegation. At the N. C. Democratic Club dinner in Washington last Saturday night, the delegation appeared to stand solidly together.

Rep. Harold Cooley, dean of the delegation and unopposed for renomination, took occasion to express his hope that all four of those opposed in the primary will be renominated. He expressed his endorsement in this order: David Henderson of the third district, Ralph J. Scott of the fifth, Horace Kornegay of the sixth and Paul Kitchin of the eighth. The last got the most play because a close race is expected, with the winner taking on Republican Charles Jonas.

WILMINGTON CHANNEL—Lots of people were surprised by the Washington decision to deepen the Cape Fear channel to 40 feet across the bar and 38 feet to Wilmington. This is four feet deeper than the present Wilmington channel. Watch for developments in Southeastern North Carolina which have not yet made print.

Civilized, But Questioned, Too

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Compared with the olden days — when men never heard of a barber and communicated with clubs — this is a civilized world, although a man from the olden days might doubt it.

Modern man, unlike his long-haired ancestor, can read, wears clothes, and lives in a house. This is quite a lot of progress in 50,000 years, if you never lived in a house.

He discusses philosophy and the rule of reason, if not as a fact at least as a theory; he is proud of his system of jurisprudence which he says enables him to live by the rule of law, more or less.

He has a moral code which makes him feel good — except when it gets too inconvenient to be observed, and a trained respect for the rights of others — except when he forgets about it.

He also trusts his neighbor, although not completely, and keeps a few instruments handy to protect himself, as he says, like jets, tanks, rifles, pistols, night sticks, brass knuckles, knives, bayonets, flamethrowers, germ spreaders, plastic bombs and nuclear bombs.

There are some days, practically every day, when a man from the olden times might think it was safer back in the woods where he used to lie in wait for anything that moved.

Tuesday was one of those days, although it was rather mild, the first day of spring.

Still, it was a good example of man's boundless enthusiasm for the no-nonsense way of getting things done. There were much better days this past year. There will be even better days ahead.

In Algeria, two days after the Moslem rebels and the French government had agreed on a cease-fire to eight years of war, Moslems, Europeans and French security forces blazed away at one another, leaving death and blood in Oran.

All three sides probably knew, as they slaughtered one another, that this was as mild as a table tennis game compared with what's coming when the assassins of the French secret army hit their stride.

At Geneva the United States and the Soviet Union, which have enough missiles and nuclear bombs to make the world look like a piece of bread that was left in the toaster too long, still couldn't agree.

What they couldn't agree on was some way of not demonstrating the weapons which have them both scared half silly. (Continued on page five)

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
MAKING THE IMPORTANT MOVE

Somebody always has to absorb the loss of a counterfeit coin. To pass it on to others is, of course, dishonest. The honest person on whom such coin has been passed takes the loss himself and puts the spurious coin out of circulation.

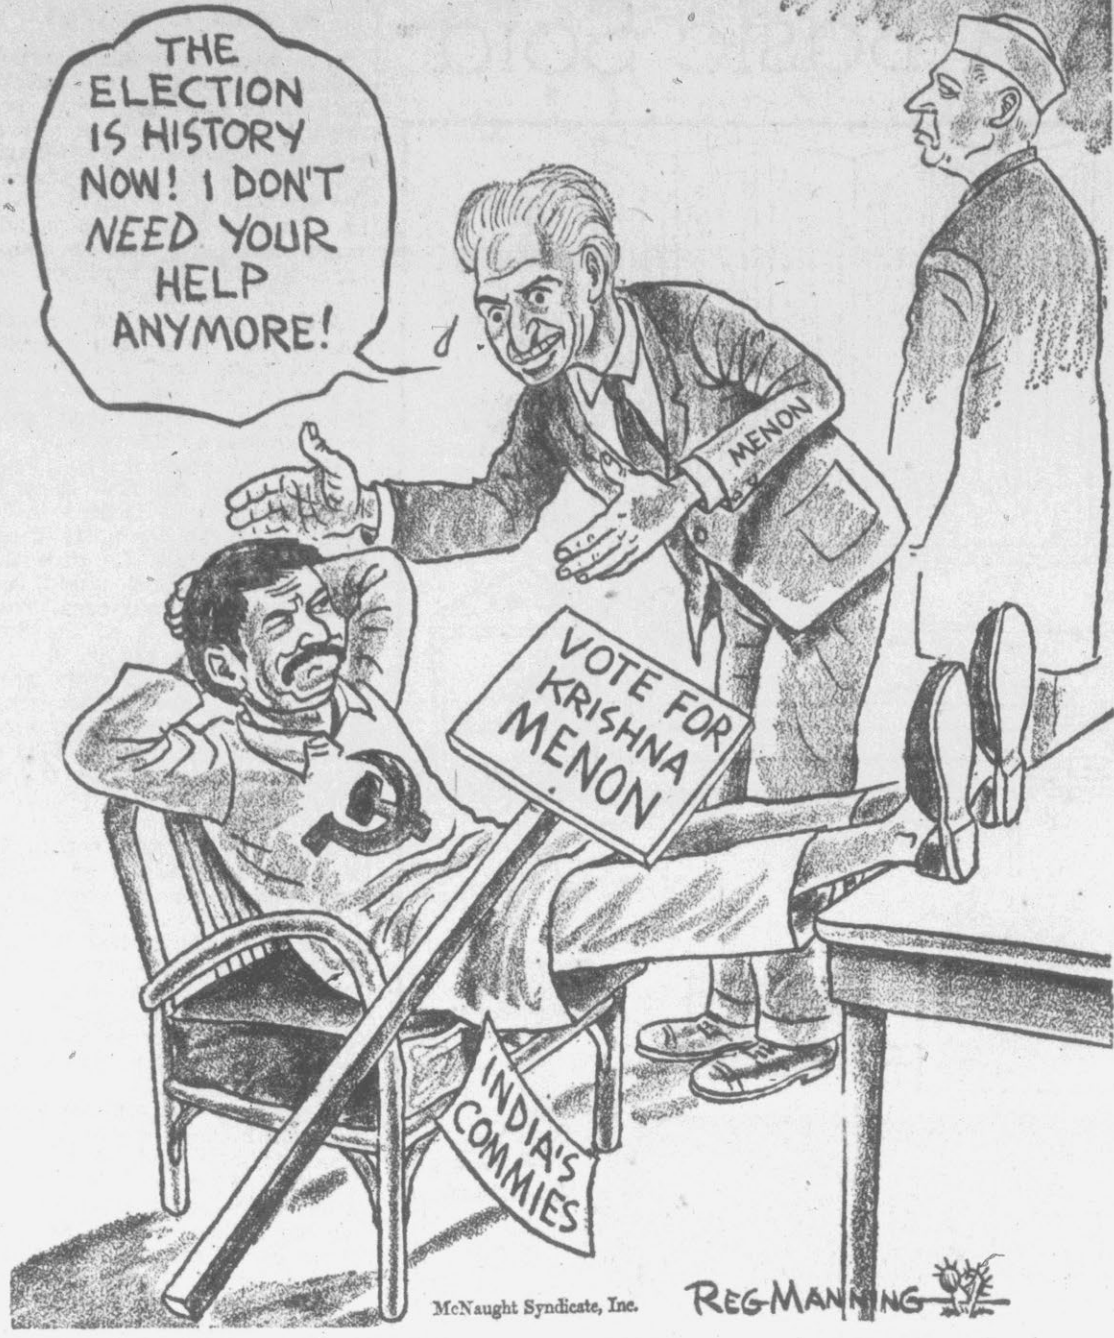

There are three things we can do with a personal injury. We can nurse a grudge. We can take our spite out on other people. Or, we can absorb the loss. This latter method is, of course, the Christian way to handle such a situation.

In the whole of his teachings Jesus was constantly emphasizing the fact that somewhere in the circle of retaliation for evil, someone has to be big enough to absorb the loss within himself, and let the matter end there. Somebody has to be willing to give in. Pride, hatefulness, jealousy, envy, general ill-will, and the like, are all clear bombs to make the world up. It is only when the situation gets around to a person who has a nature which does not give up in a craven fashion but in a courageous fashion that a matter is really settled.

Somebody, somewhere along the line has to be willing to forgive, to forget, to put the matter behind him—or her—as if it never happened. It is the unwillingness to do this which keeps families, communities, and, indeed, the world, order disturbed and out of joint.

Somebody, somewhere has to make the move of bigness and love.

Young Creative Writers

The art of written expression is just that, an art. But given that added curiosity and uninhibited creativeness of a child's wonderful little mind, it seems delightful and intriguing to us.

This week we came in contact with a copy of "The Elm Leaf," a mimeographed copy of the paper written by students of Elmhurst School, from primary grades on up.

We won't try to describe what we found that interested us so—we are going to let the excerpts speak for themselves.

Fourth grade student, Cindy Jo Ellington, authored the following poem, entitled "Sounds on the Beach":

"As I go walking on the beach, I heard the sounds within my reach
The ocean waves come washing by.
The birds are flying high in the sky.
Children are playing in the sand while older folks are getting a tan.

A day at the beach is lots of fun, playing and frolicking in the sun."

Allan Wilson Wilson of the primary school — first through third grades—demonstrates a bit of knowledge in his short piece entitled "The North Star."

"I am going to tell you about the North Star. The constellations look like they are moving around the North Star, but they aren't. We are moving around and around so that is why the constellations do not go around. The people from old ages used the North Star to guide them."

Anne Petrie of the primary school has described a visit to the planets, and the moon, in a long piece. Excerpts follow:

"One day I took a visit to outer space. It was exciting! First, I went to Cape Canaveral to get my space ship. The countdown was just about to start. It took a whole day for it to get over, with, from 1:00 in the morning to 12:00 midnight. Then we blasted off. First, we went to Mercury because that planet was nearest the sun. I had to change my lead suit into one that wouldn't burn, because it was daytime and we were on Mercury's sun side."

She describes Mercury — "There were lots of rocks and mountains around, so they were all melting in the heat of the sun. Streams of melted rock were running everywhere. They were fun to wade in! Soon we had to leave Mercury to get on to Venus..."

Venus, Anne described as having "lots of flowers and trees." On Mars she got Mars Candy Bars. And then went on to Jupiter, in her story. "Wow! That was almost the end of me, going through those poisonous clouds! I was surprised at the big new world around me," she quoted.

Leaving the cold world of Jupiter, Anne continued to Saturn with its rings. "Oh, boy! Now I could hold onto grains of sand and ride around on it like a merry-go-round! At least, thought I could. But the rings didn't go around! So I had to get off the icicle I was sitting on and get onto the actual planet..."

Her trip took her to Uranus which "looked horrible," and had tall trees with eyes. When the trees began chasing her, she left in her space ship and went to Neptune, which had lots of polar bears, which also chased her. Then on by Pluto, with a stop on the moon on the way back to earth.

Landing on earth, she "went to bed immediately, because it was... four o'clock in the morning."

The issue of "The Elm Leaf" which we have just quoted in part was composed entirely of creative writings by the children from all age levels, thus differing from previous issues of the paper. The introduction says effort is being made at the school to encourage and assist children in the art of writing. (Continued on page five)

Old Trusts In Modern Dress?

By ELMER ROESSNER

The suspicion that the old trusts are coming back in modern dress — the corporate joint venture — is being entertained by Paul Rand Dixon, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission.

In a talk that attracted remarkably little attention in relation to its import, Dixon warned large corporations that it is conducting a broad investigation of joint ventures.

A joint venture is the formation of a third corporation by two other corporations for activities in a field in which they have mutual interests. Dixon gave as an example the action of Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Corning Glass, which jointly own Pittsburgh Corning Corp., which makes glass building blocks and foaming insulation and flotation material. Joint ventures are also called jointly-owned subsidiaries, fifty-fifty corporations, business co-operatives and corporate partnership.

Another large glass company, Owens-Illinois, is a partner with Corning in Owens-Corning Fiberglas, which in turn controls fiber glass companies in Canada, Mexico, Japan, Australia and South Africa, he said.

A WEB OF MUTUAL INTERESTS
Corning and Dow Chemical own Dow Corning, which manufactures a long line of products and, in turn, owns Processed Surfaces, Inc., Dow Corning Silicones Co. of Canada, Dow Corning A. G., organized in Switzerland and which in turn owns Dow Corning International S. A., of Panama.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Koppers own Koppers Pittsburgh, he went on. Pittsburgh Plate owns 51 per cent of Southern Minerals and Southern Petroleum, while American Cyanamid holds the remaining 49 per cent. Southern Minerals owns Southern Pipe Line.

"One of our young economists started with Sinclair-Koppers Chemical Co., jointly owned by Koppers and Sinclair Oil," Dixon said, turning to the petrochemical field. "He then moved into the involvements between Cities Service and Sinclair through their wholly owned subsidiaries, Sinclair Delaware and Empire Gas and Fuel. These two latter companies each have a 30 per cent interest in Richfield Oil. A little more work revealed that Richfield and Stauffer Chemical Co., each have a fifty-fifty interest in American Chemical Corp."

MORE INVOLVEMENTS
He traced another equally complex network growing out of relations between Cities Service and Continental Oil, and a far more complicated series in international joint ventures by Du Pont and Imperial Chemical Industries of England.

Discussing the situation in the iron and steel industry, he said in seeming gentle sarcasm, "It is difficult to believe that economists can have from one interlocking ownerships in mind when they talk about prices being determined in open markets in which rivalry among competitors determines behavior."

It looks as if it is time for corporations with joint ventures to call upon their lawyers to batten down the legal hatches. Storm's coming.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photography is a hobby which often breeds ingenuity among its devotees. That's how Elliot Clarke developed the 'polecat' some years ago and has now come up with a 'timber-topper.' He needed a convenient place to hang his lights when shooting indoors and found that normal light stands didn't go up high enough.

A 'polecat' is a telescoping aluminum spring-pole which is wedged between floor and ceiling anywhere in a room. It is adjustable to varying ceiling heights and supports lights, reflectors, or backgrounds at any height. Its location can be quickly shifted as the camera position changes.

From a photographic accessory, the 'polecat' has since become an article of furniture for standard household lighting fixtures and bric-a-brac shelves. As it found more elaborate uses, it also became more expensive.

Clarke, who now produces training movies at General Dynamics' nuclear submarine division in Groton, Conn., recently figured out a method by which photographers could make their own 'polecats' at the lowest cost. He devised an inexpensive, ready-made top with a built-in spring called a 'timber-topper.' When this is slipped over the right length of lumber, the camera fan has made his own 'polecat' for a specific room.

The 'timber-toppers' come in two shapes. One is a round hardwood cap about seven inches long. Its corrugated rubber base rests against the ceiling without marring it. Its other open end just fits over a standard 1 1/2 inch wooden dowel which can be obtained in most lumber yards in lengths up to 16 feet. Inside the cap is a spring which provides the tension to hold the pole rigid. The correct pole length is exactly three inches shorter than the height from floor to ceiling.

The other 'timber-topper' is a metal oblong box which fits over 2 x 3 inch lumber. Eight inches long, it also has a nonskid rubber base which grips and protects the ceiling and an inner spring. The 2 x 3 lumber is cut three and a half inches shorter than the measurement from floor to ceiling to fit snugly in the box when upright.

Lamps can be clamped anywhere on the pole and other items can be nailed or stapled

Set High School Choral Clinic At ECC Mar. 31

East Carolina College's first Choral Clinic for high school students and directors in Eastern North Carolina will take place in Music Hall on the campus Saturday, March 31, under the sponsorship of the college Department of Music. Gordon A. Johnson, director of the East Carolina College Choir, is chairman in charge of arrangements for the event.

The purpose of the clinic, Mr. Johnson stated, is "to provide the opportunity for students from many schools to rehearse fine choral literature in a larger, more selective group than is possible in each individual school."

Approximately 270 students from 23 high schools in eastern counties in the state will be organized into a choral ensemble and will rehearse during the morning under Mr. Johnson's direction. Sectional rehearsals in the early afternoon will be conducted by members of the choral staff of the Department of Music.

Presented as a special event of the day will be a concert for visiting students at 4 p.m. by the East Carolina College Choir.

As an additional feature of the program, private hearings of promising young singers attending the clinic will be held by teachers of voice in the college Department of Music. Faculty members Paul Hickfang, Dan E. Vornholt, Mrs. Gladys White and Dr. Carl T. Hjortsvang will conduct the auditions.

To be represented at the clinic are schools in Aulander, Aurora, Bath, Beaufort, Chocowinity, Elizabeth City, Elm City, Enfield, Farmville, Edenton (John A. Holmes), Trenton (Jones Central), Jacksonville, Newton Grove (Hobbs), LaGrange, Morehead City, New Bern, Pantego, Smithfield, Beaufort (Smyrna Consolidated), Snow Hill, Washington, Weldon, and Winterville.

Most Impressed By Price Rise

OMAHA (AP)—During her lifetime, Mrs. Emma Kaufman has seen the advent of the automobile, the electric light and the airplane.

And what is the most impressive change witnessed by the 100-year-old barber's widow?

"The price of a haircut and shave. Why do you know that my husband got only a dime for a shave and a quarter for a haircut?"

Tuition Payment Has 'Authority'

February Fire Losses Climbed

A total of 49 calls were answered by the Greenville Fire Department during the month of February.

Fire Chief George Gardner, in his monthly report said 19 telephone calls were answered and a total of five box alarms were received. The department's rescue units responded to 25 calls.

Included in the number of fire calls were six to residence fires and six to trash fires. Two mercantile fires were reported while trucks responded to five auto fires.

Firemen inspected 22 homes during the month and visited an additional 14 at which no one was at home. Ninety-five buildings were inspected within the fire district while an additional 62 were checked in outlying districts, for a total of 157.

Volunteer firemen's payroll for the month of January was $130.50 while for the fiscal year the payroll totals $1,532.75.

Fire losses for the month of January were $120,244.70. Losses for the month of February totaled $156,811.26.

Rent-A-Frog Is 6-Year Business

MIDDLETOWN, N. J. (AP)—"Frogs for Hire" is the call of Clifton Smith, 19.

He keeps 35 of them for use by children in pet show racing events. His renting service costs 25 cents.

After six years in business Smith boasts his own company, "Ye Old Ponde Frog Farm, Inc." But there's no telling which of his charges is champion, he says, because they all look so much alike.

Harriman Plans Thailand Talks

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Assistant Secretary of State W. Averell Harriman arrived Wednesday for talks with Prime Minister Marshal Sarit Thanarat and Foreign Minister Thanet Khoman.

Harriman told reporters he would discuss, among other things, the recent U.S. pledge to come to Thailand's assistance in case of Communist aggression.

Guardsmen In Spain Send Sympathies To Protestors

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Members of the South Carolina Air National Guard serving in Spain have written a letter of "sympathy," dripping with sarcasm, to New Hampshire Guardsmen who staged a so-called hunger strike earlier this month at Ft. Bragg.

The letter, from members of the 157th Fighter Interceptor Squadron stationed in Moron, Spain, was published in today's edition of the Charlotte Observer.

Like the New Hampshire National Guardsmen, the South Carolina unit was called to active duty during the Berlin crisis. The boycott of mess halls at Ft. Bragg was staged by some members of the 4th Howitzer Battalion who said they wanted to know when they would be released from active duty.

The letter read in part:

"We the men of the 157th Fighter Interceptor Squadron are deeply moved by the action you have taken concerning your releases from active duty. You have definitely shown the spirit of the true fighting, American men.

"We understand the hardships that have been placed upon you by being stationed so far from your homes and families. It must indeed be hard to go home at least every other weekend.

"It probably was very hard to tear yourselves away from camp over the Christmas holidays. The best we could look forward to at Christmas was a phone call from home. This took five days and a considerable amount of cash.

"We read in the 'Stars and Stripes' that your outfit was going on field training for three days. All of you had better eat a minimum of at least ten hamburgers and six milk shakes before you leave.

"Please accept this letter with our deepest sympathy."

In the same forum column, Pfc. Thomas J. Dion, a New Hampshire Guardsman wrote:

"As long as I'm in the Army, I'll do my job as well as I can.

"This whole hunger strike was a quick impulsive thing that started over an incident in the unit. It got way out of control and was distorted by reporters."

The mess hall boycott began March 2. The Army said "strikers" admitted they were eating at the Post Exchange or at civilian restaurants near the post.

Three days later, the Army reported the boycott was over "for practical purposes" when the unit moved to the field.

Now Known As 'Nyet Sherwood'

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Some months ago Elliott Sherwood received a circular saying a series of reference was being reserved for him, the first volume to be on Russia.

An enclosed return address card asked whether Sherwood wanted to buy the books. He wrote "nyet" on the appropriate line and mailed the card.

Someone in the publishing firm apparently didn't know "nyet" was Russian for "no." One by one Sherwood has received the reference volumes, which he has kept unopened to await developments. His correspondence from the publisher comes addressed to "Nyet Sherwood."

The company apparently has sold its mailing list, because Sherwood now is receiving circulars from other companies addressed to "Nyet Sherwood."

80-Plus Taking Up New Interest

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—Former bank executive Vincent R. Tilden is carving a new interest out of life at 83.

Two years ago he saw a woodcarving set advertised for folks "from 8 to 80." He was one year over-age and had never carved before, but he took the plunge anyway.

The result has been top prizes two years running in hobby shows for senior citizens.

Frozen To Death As Valve Opened

CAHOKIA, Ill. (AP)—A shipbuilding company employe was frozen to death almost instantly Wednesday when a relief valve popped open and sprayed him with liquid ammonia being unloaded from a barge.

John Thomas Fernandez, 27, was dead on arrival at a hospital in East St. Louis, Fernandez, the father of two children, was an electrician for the St. Louis Shipbuilding Co.

Officials of the firm said Fernandez was working with two other men, feeding the liquid ammonia under pressure at 28 degrees below zero into a Monsanto Chemical Co. line.

Americans spend more than a billion dollars each year for professional laundry services.

Urge Support Tariff-Cutting

RALEIGH (AP) — A cabinet member and an undersecretary have urged business support for President Kennedy's tariff-cutting proposals.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and Undersecretary of Commerce Hickman Price Jr., both discussed the subject in addresses Wednesday to the business-minded North Carolina Citizens Association.

Dillon introduced by Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, former Tar Heel governor, said North Carolina has a "tremendous stake" in the nation's export trade.

He said the administration plan to reduce tariff walls between the United States and Western Europe would stimulate the state's overseas business.

Noting that the state's top exporting industry is tobacco, he said "It is significant that among the best customers for such products are France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg — four of the six members of the Common Market."

He emphasized the promises of aid given the state's textile industry by the Kennedy administration.

Price, who was chief U.S. negotiator at the recent 19-nation Geneva conference on textiles, was introduced for a luncheon address by Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C.

Price said, "We can't fight history by opposing this great liberalization of trade."

The number of U. S. grocery stores dropped by over one-fourth in the 10 years preceding 1948. Sales, however, rose by three-fourths.

Poison Observance Week Aims To Underscore Dangers In A Home

Poison prevention week, a national observance, is being observed in Greenville this week by proclamation of Mayor Charles King.

The purpose of the observance is to make people more aware of the dangers of poison, particularly in the home.

The Pitt County Health Department, through its chief sanitation officer, E. L. Kilpatrick, has made available facts about poisoning and has made suggestions about protecting the family against poisoning.

All drugs, poisons and other household chemicals should be kept out of the reach of children, and away from food.

Dangerous substances should be kept locked up, and poisonous or inflammable substances such as kerosene, gasoline, rat poison and others should never be stored in food or beverage containers.

People have been advised to read all labels and carefully follow "caution" statements. Even if a chemical is not labeled "poison," incorrect use may be dangerous.

Housewives should not eat or serve foods which smell or look abnormal. They should remember that these foods also may poison household and farm animals.

Other facts about poison are: Be sure all poisons are clearly marked. This can be done by sealing with adhesive tape or using a special marker.

When throwing away drugs or hazardous materials, be sure the contents cannot be reached by children or pets.

Warn small children not to eat or drink drugs, chemicals, plants, or berries they find without permission.

Use cleaning fluids with adequate ventilation only and avoid breathing vapors.

Protect skin and eyes when using insect poisons, weed killers, solvents and cleaning agents. Be sure to wash thoroughly after use of such things and promptly remove contaminated clothing. Do not allow food or food utensils to become contaminated when using insect sprays, aerosol mists, rat poisons, weed killers or cleaning agents.

Do not take or give medicine in the dark. Be sure you can clearly read the label on the container.

When measuring drugs, give you full attention.

Give infants and young children drugs only as directed by a physician.

As for medicine, always shake the bottle thoroughly before measuring liquid medicine. Do not take medicine from an unlabeled bottle—transparent tape over the label will protect it. Safeguard tablets which are candied, flavored or colored, since children eat them like candy. Date all drug supplies when you buy them.

Left-over medicines should be regularly discarded from the medicine chest, especially a prescription drug ordered for a particular illness.

Use a prescription drug only for the patient for whom it was ordered.

In the event of an accident,

a physician or the nearest hospital should be called immediately.

Lead Poisoning
Lead poisoning differs from some of the dangers above in that it may be obtained from different sources. Lead poisoning is a serious illness, affecting both children and adults. When eaten, some forms of lead damage many tissues of the body and in children especially, the brain.

The damage may last for life or may cause death. Signs of sickness which may be caused by lead call for quick medical treatment.

Children from one to four years old are most often victims of this type of poisoning. Common sources of the poison are paint—children eat dried paint which contains lead. Many little children like to chew on things, especially when they are cutting teeth, chewing on objects such as woodwork, window sills and stair railings. Outdoors, benches, swings, fences and other painted surfaces may attract them.

Even when not teething, some children have an "appetite" for such things.

Some types of paint are more dangerous than others. Paint made for outdoor use usually contains more lead than that for indoor use. Outdoor paint should never be used for toys, walls, woodwork, furniture or anywhere inside the home.

Another way of getting lead poisoning is by breathing fumes from old automobile battery casings which are burned for heat. All members of the family can be poisoned thus.

Signs of lead poisoning are pains in the stomach, a sick stomach and frequent vomiting, crossness and irritation without a visible reason, many headaches, muscle weakness or constant tiredness, spasms.

However, if a child has eaten flakes of paint, or has a habit of eating dirt or chewing painted surfaces, the parent should take him immediately to a doctor.

Safeguards against lead poisoning are marking paint that contains lead; removing peeling or flaking paint from wood surfaces; using paint with less than one per cent lead on indoor work; discarding storage-battery casings; and making sure a child has safe things to chew on.

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a $1,000-a-week director and a $72,000 budget, the U.S. Information Agency is producing color movies of Mrs. John F. Kennedy's journey through India and Pakistan.

USIA Director Edward R. Murrow disclosed this Wednesday after Rep. Elford A. Cederberg, R-Mich., asked about the production.

Cederberg is a member of the House Appropriations subcommittee which handles USIA spending.

The Michigan Republican said he thinks the First Lady's tour is "being adequately covered" by newsmen and photographers.

Even if the USIA must make the films itself, he said, "I believe the salaries being paid for cameramen and directors to make this documentary film are exorbitant."

Murrow wrote the congressman the movies are being made under a $45,807.50 contract with Hearst Metrotone News, Inc. He said that covers a two-reel film of the visit to India, and a one-reel documentary on the Pakistan tour.

In addition, he said, an estimated $27,000 in U.S.-owned foreign currency will be spent for transportation and equipment secured in India and Pakistan.

"After the film is produced, there will be substantial additional costs for release prints and language versions," the Murrow letter said.

Murrow said the contract provides $1,000 a week for the director, $1,050 weekly for a cameraman accompanying the director, and $425 a week for a second cameraman traveling on the press plane.

SNOW BIRD—Bird watchers at Miles City, Mont., were stumped by this "bird." At first it was identified as a stork. Others thought a Blue Jay or Cardinal would be more accurate. Then it was correctly identified as a long-tailed, white-throated icicle bird. It melted when the sun came out. (AP Wirephoto)

Ayden Defense, Free Throws Top Tryon 54-44

TAP-IN TRY . . . Tigers' Dennis Freeman (32) appears to fend off Ayden's Duane Gwynn (18) on follow-up attempt as teammate Larry Rudisill (44) clutches air.

By GEORGE BRYANT
Reflector Sports Editor

DURHAM—Coach Stuart Tripp's Ayden Tornados, using a strong defensive zone and demonstrating an excellent free throw shooting performance, gained a berth in the semifinal round of the State Class A Tournament here last night by defeating a big Tryon team, 54-44.

Ayden took an early lead in the game, but the Tigers of Tryon managed to tie the score four times before Ayden moved ahead to stay. The struggling Tigers tied the score at 2-2, 4-4, 6-6, and 8-8 before the determined Tornados went ahead 10-8 to stay for the remainder of the contest.

Probably A Record
While no definite statistics are available, it is a good guess that the Ayden team set a record with their accurate shooting from the foul line. The Tornados hit on 26 of 28 from the line which was a big factor in their victory. This was 92.8 per cent.

The Tryon boys outshot Ayden in the final goal department 17-14. However, this was not near enough to overcome the Tornados' free throw action. Ayden dropped in 19 of 20 from the line in the fourth quarter and one from the floor for 21 points in the final period.

The Ayden team demonstrated to the fans some fine stealing action. Tommy Dunn, William Edwards, and Wayne Dail were able to capture the ball from the Tryon offense on numerous occasions last night which was a big help in keeping the Tigers from closing the gap.

Tryon's Top Man Held
Tryon's top scorer for the season, Dennis Freeman, a 6-foot 4-inch junior, was held to 13 points which was a big disappointment to Coach Howard Saine. He was the only

Tiger to hit in the double figures and during the regular season three of the Tryon starting players had double figure averages.

Ayden player the slow deliberate game they have been playing all season. They picked their shots as usual and kept their opponents under pressure with their zone the entire contest.

At the end of the first quarter the Tornados held a 12-8 lead over Tryon. During the second period Ayden boosted their lead one more point for a 20-15 halftime advantage.

When the two teams returned to the court to start the second half the Tryon boys appeared determined to cut the Tornado lead. However, Ayden managed to stay in front outscoring the Tigers 13-12 in this quarter. Tryon cut the Tornado lead to four with about four minutes left in the period, but Ayden aided by Dunn and Dail held a six point lead when the period ended.

Tigers' Press Failed
During the fourth and final quarter of the game the Tryon Coach ordered a full court press trying for a comeback, but the action resulted in a lot of fouling for the Tigers.

Ayden scored only one field goal during this quarter, but stayed in front on the accurate foul shooting of Dail and Clem

McLawnhorn.

The Tornados did not miss a free throw in the last half of the game until the last 16 seconds when Dail missed the second try of a one-and-one situation.

Ayden increased their advantage during the last quarter for the biggest margin of the contest when Dail dropped in two from the line with one second remaining, giving Ayden a 10 point lead with the final score 54-44.

Ayden placed two men in the double figures during the contest. Dail had three field goals and 16 of 17 from the line for a game high total of 22 points. Edwards dropped in four from the floor and five of six from the line for a total of 13 points. Clem McLawnhorn had two field goals and four of four free throws for a total of eight points.

Freeman led the Tigers' shooting with five from the floor and three of three from the line for 13 points. Wallace Forest, Larry Rudisill and Bobby Sellers each had eight points during the contest.

Tornados Please Crowd; In Semifinals Friday

By GEORGE BRYANT
Reflector Sports Editor

DURHAM—Following the Ayden victory over Tryon here last night in the first round of the State Class A Tournament all that could be seen in the Ayden cheering section were smiles and laughter.

The more than 200 fans who traveled the 240-mile round trip to the Durham High School gym could have asked for nothing more. The Tornados played one of their best games of the season and the excellent action on the foul line most likely set a record for Class A ball, if not in other classes.

Following the contest, Coach Stuart Tripp said, "I am tickled to death. We played well under the pressure and I feel this was Tryon's downfall."

Earlier in the day Tripp said that this year was the happiest of his life because his football all the way to the State finals before being knocked out and now the basketball team was on its way to a State championship now only two games away. "We also had a son this year," the coach noted which added to making this one of his best, if not the best of his 16-year coaching career at Ayden.

The veteran coach played his starting five the entire game and not one of them appeared tired until the contest was over and they returned to the dressing rooms full of laughter and as proud a group of boys there ever was.

Before going to the tournament E. F. Johnson, principal of Ayden High School, told the group that they should be free from the "jitters" as all but one were seasoned veterans as far as tournaments were concerned. This statement was apparently true as the Tornados played with the sureness of veterans, making few mistakes.

Of course, their field goal shooting was ragged at times, but this has been the case all year. Their victories have come as a result of an excellent defense which is a part of the game that few of the fans really seem to notice. However, last night was an exception to this. The first round victory gives the Ayden team a berth in the semifinals on Friday night. They will meet a powerful Warrenton team that defeated Yadkinville in the second game last night/65-58. The Ayden-Warrenton semifinal contest will be played at 7:30 p.m. on Friday. Both schools are expected to be out in full force for the contest and it should be a good one. In the second game Friday night the winner of the Leland-Colfax game will meet the winner of the Southern Pines-Valley Springs game.

Warrenton Defeats Yadkinville 65-58

DURHAM—Warrenton's Yellow Jackets pulled ahead in the second quarter defeating the Yadkinville Hornets 65-58 in the first round of the State Class A Tournament here last night.

The win gives the Jackets a berth in the semifinals Friday night when they will take on Ayden at 7:30 for the right to play in the finals which begin at 9 p.m. Saturday.

The John Graham High Jackets picked up 11 points in a row during the second period which moved them into the lead to stay. However, Yadkinville had not run out of steam as they narrowed the Warrenton lead to four in the third period.

Another scoring spree for the Jackets put them back on solid ground for the remainder of the contest. This time the Warrenton five collected nine points in a row to strengthen their lead.

At the end of the first quarter Warrenton trailed 15-13, but by the time the half ended they had pulled ahead for an eight point lead with the score 31-23.

In the third quarter the Hornets outscored Warrenton 16-14, narrowing the margin by two points. However, in the final period the Yellow Jackets took one of the Hornets' two points when they outscored them 20-19.

Leading the scoring for the winners was Bill Benson, a 6-foot sophomore, who dropped in 10 field goals and two of eight from the line for a game high total of 22 points. Also in the double figures for the winners were Gordon Halthcock and Clinton Neal with 18 and 11 points respectively.

Yadkinville placed three men in the double figures. Jimmy Whitaker was high with seven field goals and five of five free throws for 19 points. Junior Steelman picked up 18 points and Steve Zachary dropped in 14 points.

Bones Fighting Deacs' Jitters

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—How do you keep your team from getting the jitters in the semifinals of the NCAA basketball tournament?

If Coach Bones McKinney comes up with the answer, he predicts Wake Forest will wreck Ohio State's chances for another crack at the crown.

"We think we have a pretty good basketball club. If we get by without opening-minute jitters, we'll be all right."

Their meeting Friday night will be followed by the clash between defending champion Cincinnati and UCLA with the winners returning Saturday night for the title game. Friday games are at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. EST; the finals Saturday.

Ohio State already holds a victory over Wake Forest (84-62) but Coach Fred Taylor isn't sure what effect this will have on the return engagement.

"They probably were a little too excited when they played us the first time this season," Taylor said. "We scouted them later and the team was much improved."

Wake Forest won its last 12 games for a 21-8 record. Ohio State, the nation's top-ranked team, is 25-1.

Women Golfers To Play Friday

Kay Whichard, co-publicity chairman for the women of the Greenville Golf and Country Club, announced today that the women golfers will hold a "Bingle-Bangle-Bungle" Tournament Friday afternoon at the club.

Foursomes will tee off at 9:30 a.m. each Friday. Golfers who plan to participate in the Friday tournaments each week are asked to notify their telephone chairman by Wednesday of each week from now on. This week will be an exception to this rule.

The Greenville Club women have been invited to two out of town invitationals this spring. Wilson is planning an invitation tournament for April 26 and Jacksonville has invited Greenville golfers to a May 15 tournament. Mrs. Whichard said that there will be a $5 entrance fee and an 18-hole handicap for the Wilson event and a $3 fee and handicap for the Jacksonville match.

Any club women interested in these tournaments are asked to sign up at the pro shop by April 10.

Thursday May 10 is the date for the Greenville Women's Invitational Tournament. The handicaps for this tourney will be established by five scores turned in prior to tournament time.

Mrs. Whichard also announced that the spring Ringer-Score Tournament is now underway with two months playing time remaining.

Four ACC Teams To Play Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four Atlantic Coast Conference baseball teams were to see action today, with defending champion Duke opening the season at Durham, N.C., against touring Dartmouth.

North Carolina was to play Florida in Gainesville, Fla., again after beating the Gators Wednesday 13-9 in the season's opener. Wake Forest was to take on Kent State again at Winston-Salem, N.C., after opening with a 4-1 victory over the Ohio team.

South Carolina was to play a double-header at Georgia Southern today after being rained out Wednesday.

In another Wednesday game, North Carolina State beat Dartmouth 5-0 in a game called after 5 2/3 innings because of rain. The Wolfpack lost its opener to the touring Indians 4-2 Tuesday.

The Blue Devils took the conference crown last year with an 11-3 record, but this year Coach Ace Parker said he is starting from scratch with only four men left from the championship team.

Parker's only returning players are Lynn Fader, a shortstop last year who has been moved to third base; Bobby Hawn, a second baseman; Bobby Rankin, a rightfielder, and Rex McKinley, a left fielder. In Wednesday's action, the winning pitcher for N.C. State was John Boughan, a West Point, Va., junior, who hurled only three innings last year. He yielded only three hits to the Indians. State rightfielder Les Young hit a home run in the fourth with none on.

The Tar Heels were helped by timely doubles by Ross Hollers and Larry Neal. Hollers doubled home three runs in the fifth, a seven-run inning for North Carolina. Neal drove home two runs with a double in the eighth when North Carolina's four runs broke a tie.

Bob Cox, third North Carolina pitcher, was the winner. He allowed only one hit in three innings.

Bob Muller and Don Roth shared the pitching chores for Wake Forest and allowed Kent State seven hits. Muller was the winner.

Alert UCLA Could Turn Out To Be The Sleeper

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A team noted for its alertness, UCLA may turn out to be the sleeper in the National Collegiate (NCAA) basketball championships that move into the show-down stage at spacious Freedom Hall Friday night.

The Uclans (18-9) champions of the Far West regional eliminations, play defending national champion Cincinnati (27-2) in the second game of a semi-final doubleheader that opens with top-ranked Ohio State (25-1) meeting Wake Forest (21-8).

No one who remembers the way another West Coast sleeper, California, came from out of the also-rans to win the national title the last time the championships were held in Louisville—in 1959—is overlooking the Bruins.

Their record? Forget it. They lost seven of their first 11 games. They've traveled at a 14-2 pace since.

Their lack of height, which shows 6-5, 230-pound Fred Slaughter as the over-all biggest man among the front liners? Forget that, too, in winning the Far West regional at Provo, Utah, they disposed of the biggest team in the NCAA tournament—Oregon State, with 7-1 Mel Counts—by the tidy score of 88-69.

Their low national ranking? They were rated third best in the Big Five conference in pre-season estimates, yet here they are only two victories away from the national championship.

"I've never been so proud of a team in my life," Coach John Wooden said.

"They play well together now," said Coach Jack Gardner of Utah, which beat the Uclans 88-79 in the Los Angeles Classic last December while Wooden's team was developing.

Walt Hazzard, another sophomore, joins Slaughter in the Uclans' starting lineup along with three seniors—Gary Cunningham, who is 6-6 but weighs only 190; 6-2 Johnny Green, and 6-5 Pete Blackburn. Green is the top scorer with a 19.4 average, although his .387 field goal percentage is the poorest among the regulars.

Coach Ed Jucker of Cincinnati remembers too well what California did in the 1959 tournament (he was an assistant when un-sung Cal beat the Bearcats in the national semifinals) to underestimate any team that has come this far.

"I learned my lesson then," he said. "You don't underestimate any team at this stage."

As the nation's coaches began streaming into town for the games and the concurrent meetings, most were talking of an anticipated rematch of last year's championship—in which Cincinnati upset unbeaten Ohio State 70-65 in overtime.

The Buckeyes and their great three-time All-America, Jerry Lucas, beat Wake Forest 84-62 at Wake Forest in December and polished off UCLA 105-84 in the Los Angeles Classic a few days later. But the Deacons, like UCLA, found themselves late—winning their last 12 after standing 9-8 at mid-season. In 6-8, 230-pound All-America Len Chappell, Wake Forest has one of the top big men in basketball.

"We had our days, but we kept battling back," said Coach Bones McKinney of the Deacons. "I think we've licked our troubles."

First Timer Takes Three-Stroke Lead Into Finals

By KEN ALYTA
HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S. C. (AP)—Davis Love, a transplanted Texan playing in his first Carolinas PGA golf tournament, carried a three-stroke lead over his two nearest rivals into today's final round of the 54-hole competition.

Challenging the 26-year-old Charlotte, N. C., Country Club professional were Charlie Farlow of Greensboro, N. C., and Mac Main of Danville, Va.

Love, settling down to the life of a club professional after three years fling on pro golf's tournament circuit, shot a three-under-par 69 Wednesday for a 36-hole total of 141.

Farlow, who at 53 is more than double Love's age, shot his second successive par 72 for a 144 runner-up total that tied him with Main.

The stocky little Virginian, with a 71 round, was the only other sub-par shooter on a day that began with light rain and ended under sunny skies with a mischievous wind. Sweeping the 7,000-yard Sea Pines Course.

At 145 and still in contention for top money of $465 out of the $3,000 total jackpot were defending champion Wayne Haley of Martinsville, Va., Lawrence Cook, Wilmington, N.C., and Thorne Wood, Asheboro, N.C. left-hander.

Love, who attended the University of Texas, and went on to graduate from Mississippi Southern, left the post of assistant to West Ellis Jr. at West Caldwell, N. J., a few months ago to take the first head position at Charleston.

lotte. A soft-spoken bespectacled native of San Antonio, Tex., he won the Southwest Conference title and reached the quarter finals of the 1954 National Amateur tournament which was won by Arnold Palmer.

In three years of national circuit competition his best tournament was a $1,200 first place finish in the $7,500 Monroe, La., tournament four years ago.

Love began the second round in a seventh place tie, three shots behind Cook and Chuck Alexander of Rocky Mount, N.C. By the time they reached the nine hole turn, Love had moved into a 27-hole tie for the lead with Cook and Haley.

While the others faltered, Davis eluded bogey trouble until the final hole where he missed his third green, chipped up and missed the four-foot putt.

Earlier, he had made four birdies, one on a 15-foot putt and another from seven feet. Two other birdies resulted from sharp iron play but left putts of less than a foot on the 13th and 16th holes. The par-four 16th has yielded only three birdies to the field of 40 in the first two rounds of the tournament.

Main missed only two greens and had nine hole scores of 35-36 as he gained a familiar position in this tournament. He has been second for the last two years.

Farlow, who also is leading the race for top senior money of $100, had to birdie the last two holes, the 18th from 45 feet, after hooking his drive into the woods to draw even with par. He followed a double bogie six on the second hole with 14 consecutive pars.

Haley, three under par through five holes, dropped back even with par, as he left the 17th tee. On that hole he put his second shot into the water and wound up with a double bogey seven that led to a 74 round and cost him second place.

Chuck Alexander, the first round co-leader with Cook at 69, suffered an acute attack of putting miseries to shoot 77 for a 146 total that tied him with Joe Maples of Boone, N.C., and Al Goodrich of Goldsboro, N.C.

Bob Cousy Decides To Play Another Season

BOSTON (AP)—Bob Cousy has bad news for the rest of the National Basketball Association. He'll be back for another season with the world champion Boston Celtics.

A veteran—at 33—of a dozen years in the physically exhausting NBA, the 6-1 floor general and court magician decided Wednesday after talking it over with the boss, Walter Brown, to play one more year.

"If Walter wants me to return for another season I'll do it," Cousy said before the conference. "I owe him that much."

The former Holy Cross star had been mulling over two other possibilities: staying with the Celtics in a front office job or leaving pro basketball to coach the sport at Boston College.

Though Cousy did not admit it was believed the BC post was his for the asking. He planned to talk with officials at Boston College today, explaining personally his decision to remain with the Celtics.

It was believed that the non-playing Boston job would have been a combination of scouting and public relations work for the Celtics, who despite their three consecutive NBA championships are not particularly good gate attractions in Boston.

"I guess you fellows will have to watch me running up and down the court for another season," the Cooz grinningly cracked to writers as he and Brown emerged from the 90-minute conference in Brown's office.

Brown felt the answer to a question whether he was glad to have Cousy returning was obvious.

"Of course we're glad he's coming back," he said. "Where would we ever get another player like him?"

Cousy had made it clear for some time that if he did play next year it definitely would be his last.

Though Cousy has been mentioned as a logical successor to Celtics Coach Arnold (Red) Auerbach, Bob has said in the past that he would prefer to become a college coach—preferably in the Boston area or near Worcester, where he lives.

Gloves Must Be Regulation

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick is making sure major league pitchers don't try any hanky-panky with their gloves this year.

He has sent a telegram to all teams stating: "Rule 1.15 A states: 'The pitcher's glove shall be uniform in color and shall not be white or gray.' Please make certain no pitcher on your club uses a glove in violation of this rule."

Roberts Slated For Fast Time

ATLANTA (AP)—Glenn (Fireball) Roberts of Daytona Beach, Fla., was favored to post the fastest time in today's qualifying trial for the Atlanta 500.

The driver registering the fastest time wins the inside pole position for the 500-mile stock car race scheduled Sunday at Atlanta International Raceway.

Forty-six of the fastest cars will comprise the starting field for the $60,000 race.

Three drivers, including defending champion Bob Burdick, are without cars. Burdick's machine blew an engine in Daytona last month and he has been unable to get parts. The young Nebraskan still hoped to find a car for Sunday, but indicated chances were slim he's in the running for another crown.

Sidelined Wednesday were Dick Rathmann and Dan Gurney. Rathmann wrecked a new Ford assigned to Gurney and the owner of the machine, Ralph Moody of Charlotte, said he could not have it ready for the race. Rathmann would have driven the auto if Gurney had been unable to return to Atlanta in time for the race. Gurney is entered in Saturday's grand prix race for sports cars at Sebring, Fla.

The Baltimore Orioles' prized Kiddie Korps consisted today of Chuck Estrada, a possible weekend recruit, an appendicitis case and a big fat question mark.

That big question mark was penciled in after the name of Jack Fisher, towering young right-hander jolted by a series of sharp pains in his right shoulder while warming up to pitch Wednesday's exhibition game against the Cincinnati Reds.

The 23-year-old, 6-foot-2 fireballer turned up with an inflamed shoulder earlier in the spring grind, then reported himself ready to take his turn on the mound.

He is being flown to Baltimore for X rays.

The sudden loss of Fisher, who served home run No. 60 to Roger Maris during the 1961 campaign while posting a 10-13 record with a .390 earned run average, left only Estrada as a full-time, able-bodied member of the Birds' big four.

Steve Barber, the club's big winner last season with 18 triumphs, is tolling for Uncle Sam, but may be available to pitch weekends. Milt Pappas, 13-9 last year, is recuperating from an emergency appendectomy and will not resume workouts until April.

The series of stunning setbacks has forced rookie manager Billy

Hitchcock to realign his starting quartet, using Estrada with veteran Hal Brown, Dick Hall and Billy Hoelt. Hoelt, acquired from Detroit, pitched five innings as the Orioles whipped the Reds 12-6 at Tampa.

Kansas City, getting strong pitching from Norm Bass and Bob Grim, edged Washington 2-1 at West Palm Beach and then announced that $125,000 bonus hurler Lew Krausse was being shipped to their minor league camp.

Elsewhere, top pitching performances were turned in as the Chicago Cubs shut out Cleveland 2-0 at Tucson. The New York Mets blanked Detroit 1-0 at St. Petersburg and St. Louis kept the Chicago White Sox scoreless 2-0 at Sarasota.

The New York Yankees belted Philadelphia 13-10 at Clearwater for their 10th victory in 11 games. Los Angeles' Angels blasted San Francisco 16-3 at Palm Springs, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat Pittsburgh 4-1 at Fort Myers and Boston edged Houston 8-7 in 13 innings at Scottsdale.

The Orioles hammered 17 hits against the Reds with Marv Throneberry getting four, including two homers, and Russ Snyder chipping in with a circuit shot. Bass and Grim checked the Senators on seven hits with Haywood Sullivan driving in both A's runs on a homer and double.

Glen Hobbie, Dave Gerard and George Schultz fashioned a three-hitter for the Cubs as Lou Brock led the attack against the Indians. Elio Chacon squeezed Gus Bell home with the lone run as Mets pitchers Ray Davault, Herb Motford and Charles Moorhead four-hit the Tigers.

Larry Jackson and Paul Toth checked the White Sox on five hits. Former teammate Minnie Minoso and Carl Sawatski picked up the RBI for the Cards. A three-run homer by pitcher Marshall Bridges and a solo shot by Pedro Gonzalez powered the Yanks to their triumph over the Phils.

The Angels scored 12 runs in the third, all off Giants' pitcher Billy Pierce, as every regular but catcher Bob Rodgers had a hit in the uprising. Lee Walls had three hits, drove in two runs with a homer and scored twice himself to insure the Dodgers win over the Pirates.

A double by Pidge Brown and Don Taussig's two-out single gave the Red Sox a come-from-behind victory against the Colts.

Cases Disposed Of In Pitt Superior Court This Week

Judge Joseph W. Parker in Pitt County Superior Court Monday and Tuesday disposed of the following cases:

Robert E. Leggett, charged with seven counts of larceny, pleaded no contest and was sentenced to 18 months on the roads. Sentence was suspended and Leggett was placed on three-year probation upon his payment of a $100 fine and court costs.

In another larceny case, Thomas Ray Allen drew a 12-month road term suspended upon the same conditions when he pleaded no contest to three charges.

Roderick Moore, charged with larceny, also pleaded nolo contendere and has his six-month sentence suspended upon payment of a $50 fine and costs.

He was placed on probation for three years.

Eddie Mack Diggins, charged with breaking, entering and larceny in connection with a Farmville jewelry store theft, was given a three-to-five-year jail sentence after he pleaded guilty to breaking and entering.

Prayer for judgment on the larceny charge was continued for Diggins and Judge Parker recommended that the defendant be given a "thorough psychiatric examination."

Embezzlement charges against Claude C. Joyner were continued for the defendant.

Thurbar Clark, charged with breaking, entering and larceny, was convicted by jury and sentenced to three to five years in prison. Clark had pleaded not guilty to the charges. Another case against Clark was not prosecuted.

Robert Lee Belcher, charged with drunken driving, pleaded guilty to careless and reckless driving and was handed a 60-day prison term, suspended upon his payment of a $25 fine and costs.

John T. McMurray was given an additional 12-month prison term after he pleaded guilty to escape charges. Judge Parker ordered his 12-month sentence to begin at the expiration of the jail term he was serving when he escaped.

Gerald R. Wilcox, charged with attempted escape, pleaded not guilty but was convicted by jury. Judge Parker sentenced Wilcox to three years in prison, the term to begin at the expiration of his present term, and Wilcox appealed to the Supreme Court.

Richard Eldridge was also convicted by jury of an escape charge and was sentenced to an additional 12 months on the roads, to begin at the expiration of the term he is now serving.

Lloyd Brannock pleaded guilty to an escape charge and was sentenced to an additional six months on the roads, to run consecutively with his present term.

Travis Gardner answered charges of drunken driving by pleading guilty to public drunkenness. Judge Parker suspended a 30-day jail term for Gardner upon payment of a $25 fine and court costs.

Fewer Persons Said Building Homes In 1962

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Are you thinking of buying a home this spring? A lot of people would like to know. And an increasing number are afraid not enough of you are to make life glow for builders, appliance makers and dealers, home furnishers, the various utilities and the mortgage lenders.

A consumer intention survey by the University of Michigan's survey research center says fewer persons than in any of the last three years are planning to buy a home this year. But those who are have set their sights on a more expensive one than in the preceding years.

The government says that new housing construction in February fell 2 per cent below a year ago and on a seasonally adjusted basis was the lowest for any month since December 1960.

Mortgage bankers report that lack of demand is weakening interest rates in many sections of the nation. They also report the number of foreclosures rose to 72,000 in 1961, the highest since 1940. The rate, however, is less disturbing because there are more mortgages now than then. The 1961 rate is 3.3 foreclosures for each 1,000 mortgages.

Diehard optimists stress that housing starts usually drop in late winter, and weather this year has been particularly nasty in many sections of the nation. They hope that spring will revive the home building industry on schedule. The Commerce Department still sticks, at least officially, to its forecast that private housing starts this year will reach 1.4 million units, up 100,000 from 1961.

The chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Joseph P. McMurray, notes an offsetting factor to the slump in building of one family homes. He stresses the steady rise in the demand for apartments. He says: "As our population has aged, many people have surrendered the amenities of a single family dwelling suitable for a younger family for a new bundle of advantages available in apartment houses. Also, young couples prefer to get their start in an apartment unit. We anticipate that in a few years when marriage rates are again on the rise the demand for apartment units will be even greater."

The marriage rate cycle is one reason given for the slackening demand for houses. Those of a age to move from bridal apartment to the house for a growing family belong to the depressed baby crops of the troubled 1930s. The big war and postwar crops have yet to reach the home-buying age.

Young Aspiring Astronauts Try Their Courage

ELGIN, ILL. (AP)—Two boys, 9 years old, who told the head of America's space agency they "did something brave" so they could become astronauts, have disclosed their training technique.

"I laid at the bottom of a hill on the other side of a pile of snow," Tom Wicklein said Wednesday night, "and my friend, Matt Fischer, went across me on his sled."

"That took a lot of courage," the two boys said in a letter which found its way to the desk of James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Washington.

NASA officials said that among the thousands of letters received since the orbital flight of Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. Feb. 20, none has expressed greater determination.

The two Elgin fourth graders wrote Webb: "We will both take any training that is to be done. 'Must we prove we have guts? We just did today."

"Matt and I did something brave. I laid down at the bottom of a hill and my best friend, Matt, rode over me."

The boys neglected to mention in the letter that Matt rode a sled.

"I think it took more courage to go over me," Tom said.

"It was more difficult for Tom," young Fischer assured a reporter.

"I could feel the blades, that's all," said Tom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter R. Wicklein. "I told my mother about the letter, and she just laughed."

"He's always writing letters, and I didn't pay any attention," Mrs. Wicklein said. "They're mostly to book publishers and people who advertise in magazines."

Matt said his folks, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Fischer, thought the idea was "pretty good."

"I didn't tell them about the sled ride yet," Matt confided to a newsman.

Webb said he had answered the boys' letter and told them that while it takes courage to orbit the earth, it takes book learning, too.

Tom and Matt, who performed their feat of courage last Saturday, said they haven't received Webb's letter yet but they have been just as busy with book learning as they have with sled riding.

"We went to the library Tuesday and got a bunch of books on rockets and the moon," Tom said. "I finished one of them today."

"We both decided to become astronauts shortly after Glenn went up," Tom said. "Before that I wanted to be a carpenter."

The War Never Ended For Riddick Carney

By JOHN G. DUNCAN
The war never ended for Riddick Carney. Over in his home near Pactolus, the elder Carney brooded over the loss of his son, James. He never could forgive or forget the Yankees who on some far off battlefield had cut his son down. He hated all Yankees and everything they stood for. Openly, he defied their authority and the restrictions they had put on the people of the area. Federals tried to catch him, but he slipped through their nets.

Early 1866
The night was cold and starless, and the mists moving in off the Tar, hung between rain and snow. It was early in the year 1866 and peace wasn't a year old. Federals at Washington, fed up with Carney and others who held the same thoughts as he had, sent a squad of soldiers under a Lieutenant to bring Carney in.

The squad approached the house in silence. It was dark, the only lights showing were in the downstairs front room. The officer deployed his men around the house and walked up and knocked on the front door. It was answered by one of the Carney women. She told the officer that the house was empty except for the other woman in the room with her. The officer had his doubts and he took a torch from the fireplace and started up the stairs.

Halfway up, he was met by the thunder of a gun and a hail of buckshot. The officer tumbled back down the stairs, the torch he was carrying showering sparks as it followed him down the stairs.

The soldiers did not press the matter. They picked up the wounded officer and rode off through the night toward Pactolus.

At this place, they stopped to get the officer's wound dressed. But the Lieutenant was beyond help—his entire right breast had been blown away.

Throwing the corpse across his horse, the squad rode off through the cold mists toward their base at Washington.

They had missed a good catch at the Carney place—for in addition to Riddick Carney were Enoch Moore, J. T. Renfrow and others wanted by the Federal authorities.

Try Again
Sometime later the Federals came from Washington to take Carney. They stopped at Pactolus and stated their business. A wealthy and prominent citizen of the village invited the officers to stop on their way back and have supper with him. Carney and his friends must have been too sure of their safety, for the Yankees caught them all. Elated with their success, the officers with prisoners in tow started back to Washington.

Open Window
The group stopped at Pactolus to take advantage of the supper offered earlier. Officers, prisoners and all were ushered into the living room. Drinks were passed around to the officers. After a round or two, the officers, their appetites whetted, made their way to the dining room. They left behind the prisoners who were being served drinks by the owner of the house. The officers sat down to the table expecting to be joined by the prisoners. But time told them something was amiss, for the prisoners didn't show up. They had taken advantage of the alcoholic interlude and an open window and made off into the underbrush. The officers, somewhat sobered by the loss of their prisoners, returned and ate their cold supper.

Time Passes
It was sometime before another attempt would be made to take Carney again. For about two years, he would be free to come and go, but there must have been the fear (if he had any) that he really would never be free again. He was said to be a hard man and to have dealt harshly with some people in the area. Even these times of not being hunted did not soften him. He still hated the Yankees with a passion. But it was easy for people of Pactolus to hate in those days. Carpetbaggers and other northerners, hiding under the cloak of piety, teamed with others of the ilk of greed and revenge to make life tough. So the sore that festered openly in Riddick Carney, festered inwardly in many others.

This war had been ended for three years and a few days. It was Saturday April 25th. Over in Greenville, Major Lyman with his militiamen had just finished supervising an election. Word came to him that Carney was at home. Determined to close out the Carney case, Lyman and ten militiamen, with the local sheriff, set out early the morning of Sunday the 26th for the house near Grindle Creek.

The land, full of the promises of spring lay still and damp beneath the trod of the horsemen as they went on their quest.

Shortly before day, they surrounded the house. Carney was ordered to come out and surrender.

In the house where his wife, George his son his son-in-law, Alonzo Whitehurst, and Whitehurst's wife, George, pleaded with his father to go out, but Carney said he would die first. Whitehurst told the Federals that Carney wasn't there, but Lyman ordered his men to attack and broke into the house.

The Fire
Once in the house, Lyman made the same mistake the Lieutenant had made a couple of years back—he started to go up the stairs. A load of buckshot caught him in the left arm. The major tumbled back down the stairs. On his orders, the house was set on fire. George Carney came down the stairs and finding a soldier in the parlor, shot him dead. A soldier standing in the door, raised his gun to shoot George, but at that instance George fired and both fell dead. George's body fell in the fire and was burned badly before the Federals let his sister drag it away. The brother-in-law, Alonzo Whitehurst was wounded twice, although he had taken no hand in the affair. He was pulled out of the burning house.

Riddick was last seen alive at one of the upstairs windows trying to get in a shot at one of the militiamen. The house with its belligerent owner inside burned to the ground.

The major and the militiamen, carrying the bodies of their two slain companions in company with the Carney woman and the wounded Whitehurst, returned to Greenville. Whitehurst and the woman were left with friends in Greenville.

Later Major Lyman and his men returned to Goldsboro.

So died Riddick Carney, in a way he must have wanted to go—fighting the blue coats, getting in a lick or two for James, his oldest son, who died on some shell torn field several years back.

But even then, Riddick Carney wasn't done with the Yankees. For it seems his long revengeful arm reached up out of the embers of his burned out house—out of the depth of his grave to pull in with him the major who had ended his earthly stay. For Major Lyman died of the wounds he received on the Carney stairway.

Now
Ninety-four times, spring has quickened the ground around the Grindle Creek area, since that "horrible affair" took place on that Sunday morning of 1868. Rains, snows have washed away the dying spot of Riddick and George Carney. The gunshots, the cracking flames, the dying of men are cloaked over with the years, and have taken their places in history of the county.

Business Notes

A New JOHN CREASEY Thriller

A ROCKET FOR ROLLISON

CHAPTER 22

It was a little after three-thirty when Richard Rollison and Superintendent Grice turned into the gateway of Scotland Yard.

They had said very little on the return journey, after Wedlake, Bilston, Carmichael, and two other Malling Motors directors who had arrived for the afternoon conference had given them an excellent lunch.

One after the other, the directors had urged the vital importance of finding Maurice Holmes.

The car pulled up at the foot of the steps and the two sergeants in the hall saluted as Grice and Rollison walked up. Still silently, Grice led the way to his office.

He lifted a telephone, and said: "Is Bennett still across at Cannon Row?"

"Right. Have him brought across to me in twenty minutes." He put down the receiver, smiled a little wryly at Rollison, and said: "I seem to be able to hear Bilston talking all the time."

"The never ceasing record-player," Rollison murmured. "I should hate to sit on a board meeting with him. It would always go on for hours too long. Bill."

"Yes?"

"I think I would like to find out the names of all the men who are putting their money into the Rocket."

"Might be wise," agreed Grice. "If one of them has large interests in another car manufacturer, it might pay him to sell Malling's out. Is that what you think?"

"It's obviously possible," answered Rollison. "What do you think?"

"Nothing at all. Nothing was found at the addresses you got. The name of the girl was discovered just after we left London—it's June. Apparently she and her brother lived at 40, Park View. We haven't yet found out where they lived before going there. There is one thing: before the estate was settled the solicitors in charge gave permission to Holmes to let off the house, furnished, to some people named Thompson. The rent was a useful contribution towards the general expenses of clearing up the estate. That's reasonable enough."

"Was it reasonable that Holmes should do it without letting his fiancée know?"

"I don't see why not," Grice argued. "There are plenty of men who keep all their business affairs from their wives. I wish—" he broke off when his telephone bell rang, lifted it, announced himself, said: "Right," and put down the receiver at once.

"Here's Bennett," he announced. "Do something for me, Rolly. Don't say anything for the first five minutes."

He lifted the telephone again, and said: "In ten minutes' time, give me a single ring on this telephone will you?" There was an echo-like sound of the operator saying: "Yes, sir," followed by a sharp tap at the door.

Rollison was standing behind the door, in a position where he could see but not be seen immediately. Grice was standing behind his desk.

"Come in," he called, and the door opened and Bennett appeared.

Rollison saw the way Bennett's dark eyes glittered. The flattened nose spoiled his looks and, with his jaw thrust forward and his teeth obviously clenched, gave him a savage look. He turned his head as soon as he had seen Grice.

He saw Rollison.

Grice said: "All right, sergeant, leave him and stay just outside the door." Rollison moved to a chair and sat down with his foot up on a window ledge. Grice motioned to a chair in front of the desk. "Sit down, Bennett."

Bennett neither moved nor spoke.

Grice said, evenly: "Where are the Thompsons now, and who are they?"

It was like talking to a blank wall.

"Bennett," Grice said, with the patience of long experience, "we don't mind whether we take two hours or two months to break you down. You'll break. You've attempted to murder a woman, and that will see you in prison for a large slice of your life, unless you can prove that you had extreme provocation, then it could be a short period. Or," he added, almost casually, "if you can prove that you were under any kind of pressure or coercion."

Bennett stood stiff as a sentry outside Buckingham Palace.

Grice glanced at Rollison. "He's been like this ever since we brought him in, Mr. Rollison."

"Struck dumb," murmured Rollison. "It was a pity I didn't have ten minutes with him alone. To do a thing like that. It was one of the most vicious things I've ever come across."

Bennett was gritting his teeth. "And the dog first," Rollison said. "That would have been bad enough. It looked as if it had been in convulsions. If I had the killers here—"

Bennett turned round to face him, eyes glittering and lips parted.

The telephone bell jarred out and Grice very slowly stretched out his right hand, lifted the receiver, and put the instrument to his ear.

"Grice speaking."

There was a pause.

"Yes, sir," he said. "Yes, right away. Er—I needn't be long, need I? There was another pause. "Thank you, sir." He put the telephone down, and stood up slowly.

"I've got to see the A. C.," he announced. "I won't be more than five minutes." The sergeant will be outside the door if you want anything, Mr. Rollison."

He went out rather slowly, and Rollison could well believe that he was hesitant because of what he was doing. If Bennett escaped, Grice would be blamed for allowing the prisoner to stay there without a police guard.

"You bloody liar!" Bennett screeched and leaped at Rollison bodily. The story continues here tomorrow.

Russians Planning Elaborate CD Program

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union claims to be planning an elaborate system of civil defense shelters plus the mass distribution of gas masks and special protective clothing.

These claims, which contrast sharply with Russian charges that the U.S. civil defense program reflects war-mongering, were revealed today in a 406-page translation of an official Soviet document.

Called "Medical and Civil Defense in Total War," the volume was placed on sale by the Commerce Department's Office of Technical Services. It was originally published in 1959 by the Byelorussian Ministry of Health, and was written by L. F. Supron and F. P. Zverev.

The book, based on lectures given at a medical institute in Minsk in 1955-58, gives no hint of how much progress has been made in carrying out the various plans.

In discussing steps to be taken in the event of an attack alert, the authors state that every citizen "must have his own gas mask, a cape made of white, close-knit material, individual first aid kits, and protective stockings and gloves."

No mention is made of whether these items have been distributed. The text makes clear elsewhere that the articles of clothing are of special design and material.

The book gives almost as much attention to germ and gas warfare as to the hazards of nuclear attack.

The volume is heavily laced with political propaganda and starts out with an attack on "the aggressive, ruling circles of certain capitalist states."

There are references throughout the book to standby plans for the populace to take shelter in an attack and one statement refers to plans "to expand the network of existing shelters."

Communist propagandists have been particularly critical of the Kennedy administration's promotion of fallout shelters. According to the Soviet document, the civil defense program of the U.S.S.R. embraces not only the protection of the population and the economy during and after an attack, but also the interception and destruction of enemy bombers and missiles.

While boasting of Soviet defenses, they say that "even with the most effective anti-aircraft defense, the possibility of penetration of single planes or pilotless missiles into rear areas must not be excluded."

Despite the frequent emphasis on modern devices, the authors indicate that in at least some sections of the Soviet Union the attack warning system is primitive. They say that if an air alert were ordered, the warning would be relayed through pamphlets, newspapers and posters as well as radio broadcasts, the sounding of electric sirens and the blowing of factory whistles.

Yeomen Wardens in the Tower of London wear scarlet and red uniforms. This garb has survived from Tudor times.

City Folk Like Windjammers

SOUTH BRISTOL, Maine (AP)—For a century or more, Maine's coastal villages received and shipped their freight in bluff-bowed, two masted schooners called "coasters."

But with the advent of the macadam road and trucks, the white sails of the coasting schooners disappeared from the "down east" harbors.

A mere handful have survived. They carry vacationers, rather than goods and chattels. And they're so old their cruising, for safety's sake, is confined to sheltered waters such as Penobscot Bay.

But windjammer cruises still are popular with city people. So Capt. Havilah Hawkins of Sedgwick had a new one built—the first to be launched in 30 years. Harvey Gamage built the 83-foot "Mary Day" at his South Bristol yard. Mrs. Hawkins christened the stubby little hull, and it slipped down the ways in a snowstorm.

Teamsters Win Aircraft Vote

STRATFORD, Conn. (AP)—The Teamsters Union defeated the Independent Aircraft Guild by 367 votes Wednesday and became the bargaining agent for the 5,000 production and maintenance workers at Sikorsky Aircraft.

The Teamsters picked up 2,431 votes in the National Labor Relations board certification election of 2,064 for the IAG, a local union.

Sikorsky, a major helicopter producer, is the first aircraft company organized by the Teamsters.

Missionary Will Speak Sunday

Mrs. Kenneth Hendricks, life-long missionary to Japan, will tell of her work at First Christian Church both at 11 a. m. and 7:15 p. m. worship service Sunday. She and her husband first went to Tokyo in 1921.

She has been teaching at Joeli Seigakun, large Christian high school for girls since 1946. In addition, she was responsible for distributing relief supplies from

MRS. HENDRICKS

American churches to destitute Japanese.

A native of Idaho, Mrs. Hendricks is a graduate of the College of Idaho, Northwest Christian College and College of Missions. She and her husband have worked in Fukushima and Akita, where she conducted cooking classes and mothers' clubs. When missionary funds declined during the Depression, they returned to this country and served pastorates in Oregon and Idaho. During World War II they helped Nisei Japanese in a relocation camp. After returning to Japan, she has been on the Board of Directors of Tokyo. Woman's Christian College in addition to her teaching duties.

Mrs. Hendrick's message will be part of the closing session of First Christian Church's March School of Missions studying Latin America. After supper at 5:45 p. m., during which Mrs. Hendricks will talk briefly to the children, classes will be held. A Latin American Festival in charge of the youth groups and their leaders, Mrs. Willie Faulkner and Mrs. William Hjalmer, will present Latin music by Mr. Walter Lyerly and friends.

Charles Cannon Receives Award

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Citizens Association has presented its "distinguished citizenship award" to Charles A. Cannon of Concord, head of Cannon Mills.

In a ceremony Wednesday night the organization praised Cannon "for a half-century of public service to his community, state and nation."

The citation said: "For many years as employer of 20,000 people whose welfare, health, education of their children, hospitals, churches of all faiths for their worship, unsurpassed recreational facilities, causes Charles Cannon to be the good shepherd of a large and devoted community. "The textile community of North Carolina has been enriched by the championship and leadership of its economic and legislative battles by Charles Albert Cannon."

'Dear Sir—'

OPELIKA, Ala. (AP)—Secret Service agents say Audrey Chappell sent a letter to President Kennedy which read: "Dear Sir: I will come to Washington and put a bullet between your eyes. Thank you, Audrey Chappell."

The envelope bore a Lanett, Ala., postmark dated March 10, 1962. There was no return address.

Chappell was arraigned Wednesday on a charge of using U. S. mails to threaten the life of the President. He waived a preliminary hearing and was taken to jail in Montgomery in lieu of $25,000 bond. Chappell lives in Chambers County, Ala., and listed his address as a rural route out of West Point, Ga. Lanett, in Chambers County, is adjacent to West Point, separated by the Alabama-Georgia state line.

Band Contest Ratings Listed

Bands which received the ratings of superior and excellent in the State-Eastern Senior High School Band Contest at East Carolina College March 17 have been officially announced by Dr. Edmund Durham of the college Department of Music, who was in charge of arrangements for the event.

The Rocky Mount High School Band, conducted by Frank Hammond, was the only participating ensemble which received the top ratings of superior.

Bands given excellent ratings and their directors represented the following high schools: Benson, Kenneth Killebrew; Four Oaks, H. B. Burt; Camp Lejeune, Donald K. Griffin; Robertsonville, Robert Watson; Dunn, Ernest Black; Fike High, Wilson, R. H. Babelay; Jacksonville, Robert B. Gaskins; Clinton, Edward W. Taylor; and J. H. Rose High, Greenville, James Rodgers.

Seventeen bands competed for ratings at the contest, which was sponsored by the N. C. Music Association. Approximately 1,000 students made up the personnel of participating groups.

Judges were Bernard Hirsch, Lenoir High School; Allan Bone, Duke University; and Earl Sloucum, University of North Carolina.

EXCUSE DIDN'T WORK
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — School Supt. W. H. Oliver says the teacher didn't accept a second grader's excuse for tardiness. The excuse "It's your fault. You gave me so much homework last night we missed the first movie and had to catch the last one."

Library Lists Available Films

The following films will be available at Sheppard Memorial Library from March 19 to April 6:

WORLD WAR II: PROLOGUE, U.S.A. EBF 1956 28 min. sd, b&w—Brings to life some of the kaleidoscope events of the stirring period between the end of World War I and Pearl Harbor. The surprise Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor, the diplomatic efforts by the U.S. to forestall possible outbreak of war, and ends with Roosevelt's war message to Congress on December 8, 1941.

WILDLIFE IN ROCKIES: Can Travel, 14 min. sd, color—After many years of careful conservation, Banff and Jasper National Parks have become vast zoological gardens. This film shows us many intimate views of the creatures of the wild, big and small, that inhabit the forested mountain slopes of these peaks.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN: EBF 1949, 17 min. sd, b&w—Events in the life of this great American statesman, writer, scientist and diplomat are shown — starting with young Franklin sweeping out his brother's office as an apprentice to the printing trade. Takes his life into its eighty-first year as he gives his message to the Constitutional Convention on the day our Constitution was signed—an honored man who contributed much to his country and the world.

No Diploma 'Til Ducktail Goes

ATLANTA (AP)—The Georgia Board of Education says a high school pupil must do away with his ducktail style haircut if he wants his diploma.

The board voted 7-1 to uphold a county school board which suspended Stanley Sorrells, 17.

After the board's decision Wednesday, Stanley's father, Walter C. Sorrells, said, "This is not American."

Eric Staples, principal at Perry High School, had banned ducktail styles, calling them symbols of juvenile delinquency.

Sorrells' attorney, John P. Nixon, asked the board: "Do we in Georgia have the right to dictate how a man shall fix his hair so long as it does not offend public morality? If a school principal can say how hair should be worn he can say what kind of pants a man must wear and what color shoes."

Helicopters were used to fight 213 forest fires in 1961.

'Ideal TV Programming' Has FCC Examiner In Quandary

By CARROLL ARMOND
CHICAGO (AP)—The ideal television programming, a string of witnesses at a FCC hearing indicate, might be 24 hours a day of Marcel Marceau, the French pantomimist.

He does not speak, so he could not possibly say Jap and offend the Japanese.

Commercial Art Is Exhibited

Work in advertising design by Emily Neale of Wilmington, North Carolina, senior at East Carolina College, is now on exhibition in the Kate Lewis Gallery, R. A. W. building, on the campus. This art show will be open to the public through March 29.

The exhibition is made up of examples of poster design, magazine ads, direct mail brochures, programs, outdoor ads, and packaging.

Miss Neale has studied art at East Carolina College since 1959. She studied graphics under Dr. Bruce Carter for two years and has studied commercial art, her major interest, under Dr. Wellington B. Gray, director of the Art Department.

His face is too white to be mistaken for a real white man, a Negro, a Polynesian or a Chinese.

His costume, tights and a hat with a single flower, in no way resembles the $250 custom-tailored suits and pearl gray fedoras worn by gangsters with Italian names.

A close examination of his performance discloses no symbolism that might be construed as for or against Christians, Jews, Moslems, atheists or agnostics.

The little flower on the hat may have to go. The people promoting "say it with candy" may want equal time.

Since Monday witnesses have appeared in force before a Federal Communications Commission examiner in the U.S. Courthouse and told mostly what's wrong with locally produced Chicago television programs. A few had some nice things to say, but their time saying it was far from equal.

The television people will have their turn in April.

The proceeding, unprecedented in FCC annals, recalled a classic remark by the late Franklin P. Adams, newspaper columnist and radio panelist: "You tell a joke about a maneating shark." Adams said, "and the shark suit manufacturers association wants your scalp."

Some of the points raised by witnesses included:

A spokesman for Japanese-Americans protested vintage movies on the late, late shows. They are propaganda films left over from World War II and misrepresent his people, he said.

An Italo-American leader told of only limited success in getting television to disassociate his people and the underworld.

A Negro representative said all Chicago commercial stations had made time available to his organization but these were panel shows to which representatives from other fields had been invited and little, if anything, was accomplished in developing interest in racial understanding.

A Roman Catholic Church official declared time allotted, to his faith for religious programs consisted of undesirable hours.

His Jewish counterpart testified that until recently no effort had been made to determine what material would interest the Jewish community.

Each American used on the average of 41 pounds of paper or paper products in 1961.

Plan Pancake Supper Mar. 30

The Pitt District Chapter of the Order of the Arrow has scheduled a pancake supper for Friday, March 30, as a fund-raising effort to help build a summer camp lodge building.

Tickets are available from members of the Pitt Chapter for the supper at St. James Methodist Church between the hours of 5:30 and 8:30 p. m. next Friday.

Proceeds from the supper will go into the Croatan Lodge (East Carolina Council Order of the Arrow organization) treasury for construction of a building at summer camp that will serve as a lounge for ladies and children when visiting camp and as a meeting hall for Croatan Lodge on a year-round basis.

Included on the menu in addition to pancakes will be sausage, coffee and milk. The supper will be prepared and served by members of the Pitt Chapter.

Phil Shepard is chief of the chapter and Harold Bowers is the unit's advisor. Knott Proctor Jr. is ticket sales chairman and Dr. Ed Carter is in charge of providing supplies for the event.

The Pitt supper is another in the series of pancake suppers being conducted by chapters in the Croatan Lodge to raise funds for the building.

High Court Clears GI Of Conviction For Rape

RALEIGH (AP) — A Ft. Bragg Negro soldier has been cleared of a rape conviction and may go free from a life sentence as a result of State Supreme Court action.

The high court ruled Wednesday that Charles M. Birkhead, 36, was placed in double jeopardy during trials last year in Cumberland Superior Court.

Birkhead was first tried on a charge of attempted rape. In the midst of the trial, Solicitor Maurice Braswell asked for a mistrial so he could bring Birkhead to trial on a rape charge.

Birkhead was found guilty of the higher crime and was sentenced to life.

The Supreme Court ruled 5-1 in overturning the conviction. Associate Justice R. Hunt Parker cast the negative vote and newly-appointed Justice Susie Sharp did not participate.

The court said there had been no previous case in North Carolina similar to this one. But, it added, other states have held without exception "that where the trial court, without consent of the defendant, discharges the jury because it is of the opinion that the evidence shows him guilty of a higher crime, for which he is subsequently indicted or tried, he is twice in jeopardy and should so be held by the State Supreme Court."

The court left the way open for Birkhead to be indicted and tried on a charge of non-burglary breaking and entering of a dwelling house with felonious intent. This offense is punishable by a maximum of 10 years.

NEW YORK (AP) — A scattering of wide moves among selected issues highlighted a dull and irregular stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderate. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at 260.50 with industrials unchanged, rails off .20 and utilities up .20.

Gains or losses of most key stocks were fractional and quite a number were drifted.

Tobacco and oils drifted off generally while drugs were firm. Most major groups were thoroughly mixed.

North American Aviation was up fractionally. Similar gains were made by United Aircraft, Boeing and Douglas Aircraft.

Celestis was off about a point. Carter Products was off about 3 points.

Korvette and United Whelan spurted a couple of points each. Lockheed advanced well over a point.

Xerox had an upswing of 3 points or better while IBM lost about 4.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was unchanged at 716.62.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds advanced.

Pakistani Throughbred Is Given Delighted Jackie

LAHORE, Pakistan (AP) — Pakistan's President Mohammed Ayub Khan took America's horse-loving First Lady to one of the most colorful horse shows in the world today and then gave her a Pakistani throughbred to take home.

Delighted at the gift, Jacqueline Kennedy said she was worried about how the animal would get back to the United States. Officials told her the 10-year-old bay gelding, named Sardar or Chief — would travel by an American military plane.

The plane will also pick up the two tiger cubs she got in India Wednesday.

Mrs. Kennedy said she hoped the horse would not get a U.S. First Lady royal treatment. It was a school and government office holiday Wednesday when she

Guerrillas Said On Defensive

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says United States aid to Communist-threatened South Viet Nam has put the Southeast Asian nation on the offensive in the guerrilla war.

McNamara arrived here Wednesday night from Pearl Harbor, where he held his fourth strategy session in as many months on South Viet Nam. He will join President Kennedy in Berkeley Friday for a University of California Charter Day ceremony.

In a statement before leaving Hawaii, McNamara said, "There is every sign that the government and people of South Viet Nam have the will and the capacity, with our support, to win."

Wiley K. Clark, Sr. Funeral Set Friday

Mr. Wiley K. Clark Sr., 89, died at the home of his son, Ola Ray Clark of near Belvoir, Thursday morning at 5:35. He had been ill for the past five weeks and critically ill for a week.

Big Hailstones Fell Yesterday

Hail the size of moth balls fell here for a short period late yesterday during a rainy spring day which also brought 1.12 inches of precipitation to Greenville.

The rain was the largest accumulation of rain for a 24-hour period in some time here.

The temperature went as high as 74 degrees for Greenville's first full day of spring. David Sutton of the Greenville Utilities Department reported. The low for Wednesday was 53 degrees.

For today, temperatures were expected to be a bit cooler. The low during the night and early morning came at 8 a.m. when the utilities plant recorded a temperature of 48 degrees.

The weatherman predicted partial clearing in the north-east with otherwise some cloudiness and cooler today. For tonight he forecast increasing cloudiness with some rain beginning in the west late tonight, and cooler east of the mountains.

Friday will have little change in temperature and occasional rain is likely.

PTA Hospitality Night Saw Big Tuesday Turnout

WINTERVILLE — Over 200 parents and teachers met for the W. H. Robinson School P.T.A. Hospitality Night meeting on Tuesday, at which Dr. J. H. Barnhill spoke on "Dentistry and the Four Freedoms."

Dr. Barnhill is working with Pitt County in helping to alert citizens of the importance of good dental care. Presently he is at the Robinson School.

The four freedoms he referred to were freedom of pain, freedom of infection, freedom of disfiguration and freedom of disfunction.

Following his talk, the business session and a pageant took place.

The pageant, entitled "P.T.A. Cornerstones" featured Mrs. Doris Lacy, Mrs. Eurydice Worthington, Mrs. Bernice Streeter, Mrs. Olivia Ward, Mrs. Emanuel Smith, Mrs. Mable Hooks and Mrs. Emma Dixon.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion.

Greenville Attorney Considers Bid For Presidency Of YDC

A Greenville attorney says he is "seriously considering" candidacy for the presidency of North Carolina Young Democrats at next fall's annual YDC convention.

David E. Reid Jr., has confirmed reports that he may be a candidate to succeed W. E. (Dub) Graham of Charlotte as YDC president for 1963.

Reid, prominent among Graham's backers last November in Durham, has been active in YDC affairs during the past decade.

He said state YDC leaders have urged his candidacy next fall. "I have been extremely flattered by the expressions of support from friends across the state and I am giving serious consideration to becoming a candidate, he would be making a bid for the first state YDC presidency held by a Pitt Countyian since E. Hoover Taft of Greenville was elected to the position more than 10 years ago.

Reid, an Asheville native, served as local chairman for a statewide YDC rally in Greenville last month, highlighted by an appearance by national YDC President Allan Howe. State YDC leaders described the rally as highly successful and urged Reid to become a candidate to succeed Graham.

Next YDC president will come from the East under YDC rules which provide from Eastern and Western presidents in alternating years. Graham, a Charlotte attorney, was the Western choice last fall.

Reid was active in the 1960 Democratic campaign in Pitt County. A 1959 graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Law, he served as law clerk to then Chief Justice B. Wallace Winborne of the State Supreme Court for about a year. Now nearing his 30th birthday, Reid also completed his undergraduate studies at UNC where he was vice president of the campus YDC and was attorney general for the student government.

He came to Greenville in August, 1960, when he joined the legal practice of Frank M. Wood. He is married to the former Beverly Rippard of Clearwater, Fla., and they reside at 409 Hickory St.

Reid said the trip made by about 40 North Carolinians last month cost the state nothing. He said the group stayed busy and found no time for sight seeing.

Wade said, "You don't have to worry about Europeans not having enough money to travel. They are already traveling and the problem is to get them to come to North Carolina."

He reported finding travel agents who had sent tourists as far as India to play golf and had set up tours to Grand Rapids, Mich., for persons interested in furniture manufacturing.

Wade said that as a result of the North Carolina trip the agents know about the golf courses at Pinehurst and the Tar Heel furniture manufacturing industry.

Plan 'Reserved Seat' Showing

A special performance of "Guys and Dolls," the Spring musical comedy produced under sponsorship of the East Carolina College Student Government Association, has been announced for Saturday, March 31, at 8:15 p.m., in McGinnis Auditorium.

This Saturday night production will play to an "all reserved seat" audience, it was announced today. Reserved seats are now on sale at $2.00 each, the receipts going to the James S. Picklen Memorial Stadium Fund.

Each ticket purchaser will have a seat designated by section, row and number.

Tickets are now on sale in Greenville at these business firms: Belk-Tyler Company, Biggs Drug Stores, Brody's, Inc., Larry's Shoe Store, Lautares Jewelers, and Steinbeck's.

First performance of "Guys and Dolls" is scheduled for Monday night of next week. The final evening's production is a special performance for the benefit of the Stadium Fund.

Reid also completed his undergraduate studies at UNC where he was vice president of the campus YDC and was attorney general for the student government.

CHEVROLET CARS FOR EVERY FAMILY, EVERY BUDGET, EVERY TASTE

Chevrolet Want to pull out all the stops—except the one marked price? The Jet-smooth Chevrolet serves up all the room, refinement and riding comfort you could reasonably want. Spacious, gracious interiors. Body by Fisher 'craftsmanship. Jet-smooth ride. New V8 vinagar or 6 savings. Here's where you feel expensive—at a Chevrolet price. On the car ferry: an Impala Sport Sedan.

Chevy II Hungering for a car that's lovely, lively, easy to park and pay for? Here it is—the Chevy II that ran off with Car Life magazine's award for Engineering Excellence and earned these kudos from the editors: "Maximum transportation at minimum cost" ... "sound and solid" ... "delightful car to drive." That's the Nova 400 4-Door Station Wagon parallel to the shore.

Corvaire If you spark to the sporty things in life, this one ought to fire you up but good. With that engine-transmission weight astern, the steering responds like a bicycle's. The rear-engine traction keeps Corvaire clamped to the road with a vengeance. The cornering's darned near flat. And, for all its sportiness, Corvaire's as practical as a pie pan. That model at the ramp is the Monza Club Coupe.
