French Troops Are Attacked By Secret Army Units In Algiers

E. Germans Fire On U.S. Vehicle

BERLIN (AP) — East German police shot up a khaki-colored U.S. mission military car this week, and Western officials are concerned about what may be behind the incident. It was the second time this month the East Germans have fired on an automobile belonging to a Western Allied liaison mission attached to Soviet headquarters at Potsdam. The latest incident occurred Tuesday near Gotha, an East German town about 150 miles southwest of Berlin, but was not disclosed until Thursday night. No one was hurt. An East German patrol stopped the American staff car, which was carrying a major and a driver on an official mission. The major said the East Germans had no right to stop him and demanded to see a Soviet officer. The police squad leader said, "We are in charge here." The U.S. officer repeated his demand and time was spent in argument. Finally, when no Soviet officer appeared, the major gave his driver orders to drive on. East German police opened fire with a submachine gun. Bullets punctured a tire and rattled the trunk without hitting the Americans. After some miles the two Americans stopped to fix the tire and asked an East German for assistance. East German police soon caught up, however, and arrested the East German. A message to U.S. liaison headquarters at Potsdam resulted in another American staff car arriving to help. U.S. officials said no further information could be given out because of action in progress, but it was reported U.S. military officials were making a strong protest to Soviet authorities. East German border guards fired on a British military vehicle just outside Berlin on March 10, seriously wounding the driver. The Soviets have not yet replied to a British protest. The United States, Britain and France each have liaison missions at Soviet headquarters in Potsdam, and in turn the Soviets have missions at American, British and French headquarters in West Germany. The Western staff cars, identified by big plates in Russian, freely roam East German territory normally off limits to Westerners.

ALGIERS (AP) — French military planes strafed the defiant worker suburb of Bab El Oued today and authorities reported heavy street fighting continues in the area. Four U.S.-made T6 training planes sprayed machinegun bullets into large apartment buildings from which men with Secret Army armbands fired bullets and tossed grenades on French ground troops below them. At 5 p.m. (11 a.m. EST, officials reported at least 10 soldiers killed and 30 wounded in the street fighting. Troops backed by armored cars sealed off Bab El Oued, setting up barbed wire barriers at entrances to the area, which houses about 50,000 Europeans, mainly of Spanish and Italian origin. European residents hurled plastic bags of motor oil into the streets to impede vehicles. Troops poured ashes on the streets to counteract the oil. By noon, military authorities reported at least three attacks against the troops. In one case, a secret army commando unit surrounded a patrol of young draftees and seized their weapons. Not a shot was fired. The streets of Bab El Oued were practically deserted and all shops were closed. But from balconies and windows the Europeans screamed defiance at the army. European gunmen staged eight terrorist attacks against Moslems throughout the city, killing four and wounding five others. Inside the ancient Casbah, where 80,000 Moslems live in squalor, life appeared to be going on normally, while outside European extremists fought their battle against French authority. The European terrorists were not deterred by an impressive military buildup in the city. Armored vehicles were stationed at many points, and military units ringed the Bab El Oued quarter, which the Secret Army said Thursday it would clear of French troops and police. Despite the government's military show, Secret Army activists spread oil and tacks on the streets, slowing traffic to a crawl in several parts of the city. In a traffic tunnel near the University of Algiers, a 10-man unit stopped pedestrians and motorists to examine their papers, apparently searching for government plainclothesmen. Gunfire, punctuated by plastic bomb explosions, raged for 6 1/2 hours in the worst night since proclamation of the cease-fire Monday. Two civilians were reported killed and at least three French gendarmes and nine civilians were wounded in the shooting, which rattled through a dozen areas of the city. The Algiers zone command said the attacks had no major military significance. Other government officials described them as nothing but harassment. Secret Army commandos struck at heavily guarded government buildings and at two riot police camps in the eastern part of the capital but they made no attempt to capture the key points. French security forces, loyal to the armistice pact President Charles de Gaulle's government made with the Algerian nationalists, fired back. The terrorists were supported by European settlers firing from rooftops and windows, spraying machine-gun bullets and lobbing grenades and mortar shells into concentrations of French gendarmes guarding strategic points in the city.

Low Bids Total $116,574 For School Project

Low bids submitted yesterday to the Pitt County Board of Education for construction of six classrooms and a library for Grifton School totaled $116,574, including the architect's fee, Superintendent D. H. Conley reported. The Board of Education did not award contracts yesterday, but determined the low and best bids. Contracts will be awarded following sale of school bonds, scheduled to take place about April 10. Low bid for the general contract was submitted by Leo Hawkins and totaled $74,913. Alternates included in the bid were $6,365 for a covered walk; $3,400 for lockers; and $1,200 for folding partitions. On the electrical contract low bidder was Kinston Electric Co. $7,579; plumbing, R. F. Beland, of Wilson, $3,672; and heating, Kinston Plumbing and Heating, $12,847. Conley noted there were a number of bidders on the project, including eight general bidders, nine electrical, seven plumbing and seven heating. If the project continues as expected, work on the additional wing to Grifton School probably will begin following sale of bonds. The addition will include science classrooms and laboratories. Grifton voters approved $155,000 in bonds to finance completion of the new high school wing last December. Four classrooms of the wing had been completed prior to the bond election.

Grain Export To Reds Is Blocked

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Seattle, Wash., trading firm's request for permission to ship $400 million of grain to Communist China and North Korea was rejected today by the government. Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges announced the denial of export license applications from the International Trading Corp., Seattle, for the sales of wheat and barley to the two Communist nations in Asia. A two-sentence announcement said there was no evidence that the order was based upon a request from the governments concerned. Officials indicated this was a roundabout way of saying that the proposed grain shipment had been subject to discussions between the Commerce Department and the International Trading Corp. and did not involve any talks with the governments of Red China and North Korea. There is a complete embargo on shipments of American goods and produce to the two countries. However, the Commerce Department at least considered making an exception to the rule in this case. Officials said they could not say why this had been done.

Fronzizi Under Heavy Pressure On Two Sides

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Followers of exiled dictator Juan D. Peron launched a nationwide anti-government strike today as military pressure mounted for President Arturo Fronzizi's ouster. National police went on battle alert as the strike began at midnight amid fears of violence. Peron labor unions summoned nearly 2 million workers to strike for 24 hours in protest against Fronzizi's decree—ordering by the military—nullifying sweeping Peronist victories in National Assembly and provincial elections last Sunday. The full effect of the strike was not expected to be felt until later in the day, but officials predicted it would not be paralyzing. The powerful Transport Workers Union said it would not take part. Other unions also refused to join in, but went on record as opposed to Fronzizi. The three armed service secretaries huddled with top military commanders at Government House in an early morning meeting at first described as decisive. The 90-minute conference broke up at 3:30 a.m. with no announcement. Word leaked out that irate navy leaders once again pressed their demands that Fronzizi resign. Army and air force chiefs, who had stood for retaining Fronzizi, were reported wavering under the navy officers' insistence that he be ousted. The military tossed Peron out in 1955 and is violently opposed to his return. It stopped short of taking over the government earlier this week when Fronzizi agreed to form a new anti-Peron coalition government with a half-military, half-civilian cabinet and to once again ban Peronist political activity. Fronzizi rushed from a glittering banquet for Britain's visiting Prince Philip to his private residence for an early morning conference with the president of the lower house of Congress, Fernandez de Monjardin. There was no report from the conference.

Rusk Says Soviet Blocking Ban Pact, Planning Tests

GENEVA (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk accused the Soviet Union today of blocking a nuclear test ban treaty while presumably planning a new series of atomic weapon explosions. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko sharply denied the charge and blamed the United States for the failure to reach agreement on a test ban. The clash came in the 17-nation disarmament conference when the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union reported collapse of their efforts to start new negotiations on a test ban treaty. Gromyko said the United States is to blame for the failure because it has scheduled a new series of atmospheric nuclear tests and does not want a test prohibition. Rusk said President Kennedy had emphasized the United States would stop all tests if the Soviet Union would sign a treaty with effective controls against cheating. Kennedy has ordered the tests to start in late April unless such a treaty is signed. British Foreign Secretary Lord Home said the Western powers are prepared to work out a control system on the most objective scientific basis possible. Home promised minimum controls to Gromyko earlier in the week but Gromyko rejected any kind of international controls which would put foreign observers inside the Soviet Union. Gromyko renewed the Soviet charge that the West wants to set up an espionage system. He brushed aside Rusk's charge of new Soviet test plans by saying it was a pretext to cover known American test plans. Rusk said the Russians three to four years ago had approved scientific plans for international inspection to police a test ban. The ban is no less urgent now than it was in 1958, he said. He declared the Soviet spy charge had no rational basis because the proposed inspection system could not be used that way. Rusk spoke from a prepared text. Gromyko replied extemporaneously. An informant said he accused the United States of an aggressive act in deciding to resume testing in the atmosphere. He denied the Soviet Union had broken a moratorium when it started its series of about 50 tests last September. There was no moratorium in existence then, Gromyko said. Rusk appealed to the Soviet Union to join the United States and Britain in working out a treaty based on adequate international control arrangements and said time was getting short to reach a decision. The American secretary told the 17-nation disarmament conference the United States and Britain could not be expected to accept a treaty based solely on pure faith. The United States meanwhile stood firmly opposed to a Soviet proposal for East German control of West Berlin's supply lines under international supervision. U.S. sources here dismissed the Soviet plan as a minor variation in the Soviet campaign to get the Western powers out of Berlin and to win Western recognition for the Communist East German regime. The proposal was put forward in connection with the talks between Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko during the past two weeks. President Kennedy suggested last fall that the surface and air routes to West Berlin be put under the control of an international authority. Gromyko proposed that the East Germans control the routes and an international supervisory body have power only to settle disputes arising out of use of the routes. Western diplomats regarded the international supervision proposed by Gromyko as a cover for East German operation of the supply lines. Actually the East German regime already controls all surface traffic to West Berlin except Allied military personnel and supplies of the Allied garrisons in the city. Air travel also is still under the control of the four occupation powers. Rusk and Gromyko will have one or two more meetings on Berlin in the next few days.

Pitt Man Felt 'At Home' In Visiting Astronaut John Glenn

By MARTI MARTIN Reflector Staff Writer BALLARDS — The latest of many meanderings of 71-year-old Will Elks — a visit this month with U.S. astronaut Col. John Glenn — has left him "amused." "I felt awful strange and amused at being in the Glenn home," said Elks. "I had never imagined I would someday be sitting in an astronaut's home chatting calmly about the first American orbital flight with the man who made the trip." Actually it was Elks' sister, Mrs. David Willford of Arlington, Va., who arranged the meeting at the Glenn home. She is a good friend of the Glenns and surprised her brother with the informal visit with the astronaut at his home. "The Glenns made me feel right at home," said Elks. "treated me royal. Both Col. Glenn and his wife look exactly like their pictures on television and in the newspapers. "We talked for about 20 or 30 minutes. There were a lot of questions asked, I only wish I could remember everything that was said. "I do remember asking Col. Glenn if he had been afraid of being the first American to attempt such a flight into orbit and he replied that he wasn't afraid. He said he just thought that he would be safe and that he was thankful that he landed safely." Elks stated that he also asked the astronaut if he ever thought that he might be going into outer-space again and Glenn replied that it was possible. The Pitt Countian described the Glenn's home as "plain and straight" more like a simple home than an elaborate one. Elks said "Col. Glenn appeared to be a calm and peaceful man who liked to laugh a lot. Mrs. Glenn was attractive and very intelligent. "I remember watching the Glenn flight on television," said Elks. "It was a thrilling experience. I watched the entire flight. You can imagine my delight to find later on that I would be having the chance of actually speaking with Col. Glenn and congratulating him in person for his courage and sense of duty." Elks is a native of Ormondsville in Greene County but has been living and farming in Pitt County most of his life. He doesn't stay still long. He just recently made a trip to Miami and has been in at least 15 states from Maine to Florida.

ICC To Consider Hiking Rates On Parcel Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission has announced it will consider proposals to boost parcel post rates by $9 million a year. The decision Thursday means an ICC investigation to determine whether the commission will consent to increases in the size and weight limits on parcels and a rate boost averaging 6 per cent. By law, the postmaster general must get ICC consent to change the parcel post rates or make other changes in the fourth-class mail rules. Postmaster General J. Edward Day is seeking: An increase to 50 pounds in the weight limit on parcel post shipments. The limit now is 40 pounds for parcels mailed up to 150 miles, and 20 pounds for longer shipments; and

His Bomb 'Joke' Has Backfired

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Assemblyman Charles E. Chapel of Los Angeles was formally charged Thursday with falsely reporting a bomb aboard an airliner. The complaint filed with Municipal Judge Elvin F. Sheehy, called for the lawmaker's arrest. Legislative immunity does not apply in cases of felony. The Republican legislator, 33, had said he was only joking when he told a stewardess he had a gun and nitro-glycerine in his briefcase on March 15.

Rapid Rise In N.C. Business Activity

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Business in North Carolina increased faster from February to December last year than in any comparable period since World War II, according to figures released today by Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. Economic activity in the state, as measured by the Wachovia North Carolina Business Index, climbed to a peak of 121.3 in December from a recession low of 110.6 in February based on a 1957-59 average of 100, Wachovia economists reported. The best previous gain during a recovery from recession was from 83.3 to 92.9 in 1954-55, they said. Business volume since the first of the year, however, has leveled off. Preliminary reports indicate a February index figure of 120.9, slightly ahead of January's 120.8, and far ahead of any previous January and February, the economists said. The index was developed by Wachovia as a comprehensive measure of the state's overall economic activity. It reflects total check book spending, personal income, cash receipts from farm marketing, employment and consumer spending in the state's 100 counties. "A leveling off in our state economy at this point is not unusual, particularly in view of the unprecedented growth attained during 1961 and since North Carolina felt the last national recession much less than most parts of the country," they said. After a fast advance "it is only normal for the economy to slow down to catch its breath, and this hesitation has been felt all across the nation." Probably the best indicator of total spending in North Carolina is bank deposits, which represent checking account activity, the economists said. Seasonally adjusted daily deposits for February were 16 per cent above year-ago figures and unchanged from January levels although down slightly from December's peak. Total nonagricultural employment in the state, seasonally adjusted, increased slightly in February to 1,220,000 from 1,211,800 in January and 1,211,700 in December to provide most of the increase in February's index figure. Manufacturing employment, seasonally adjusted, continued at record levels during February, with employment in textiles, furniture and tobacco showing gains over the depressed levels of a year ago. Textile employees worked 40.7 hours per week on the average last month compared with 38 hours in February 1961. Furniture employment and hours have also picked up substantially from year-ago levels with employment up 5 1/2 per cent and average weekly hours up by two. Important also are gains in cash farm receipts. They increased last year by 4.8 per cent to $1,151,504,000 as compared to an increase of 4.4 per cent for the United States, according to the Wachovia report.

Incumbents File For Re-Election

Incumbent constables in Arthur, Falkland and Farmville Townships paid their filing fees this week to become candidates for re-election, subject to the May 26 Democratic primary. D. S. Spain, chairman of the Pitt Elections Board, said Charles Ray Stocks of Arthur, Frank Peaden of Falkland and Pennell Burnett of Farmville filed their respective candidacies. All three men were elected in 1960 without opposition. Stocks and Peaden paid $30 filing fees while Burnett paid the $10 minimum. Filing fees for constable are a minimum of $10 plus one per cent of the previous year's income from the job. After a fast advance "it is only

Jarell Is Given Gardner Award

GREENSBORO (AP)—Randall Jarell, poet, literary critic and professor at Woman's College here, was given the O. Max Gardner Award for 1962 at a dinner here Thursday night. The award, first presented in 1945, was established by the late Gov. Gardner, who directed that it be presented to the member of the faculty of the consolidated university "who has been adjudged by the trustees as having made the greatest contribution to the welfare of the human race during the past year." The winner also receives the income of a $25,000 fund left by Gardner. Jarell is a professor of English and has been at Woman's College since 1947.

Executive Committee Is Planned In C-of-C Future

The Chamber of Commerce will work towards the formation of an executive committee to bring about closer cooperation between the Chamber, Committee of 100, Greenville Industries and the Pitt Development Commission. This was recommended by the Chamber's Industrial Committee and accepted by the Chamber board of directors as a part of the organization's program for the coming year. The committee chairman, Leonard Bloxam, said the three industry seeking groups are already cooperating. However, his committee recommended the formation of an executive committee "to further coordinate any efforts and to avoid any possibility of duplication of accomplishments." The Chamber board also accepted a recommendation from the committee that the Chamber consider its annual banquet being a salute to new industries and businesses, large and small. The program for the banquet would be geared to welcoming and thanking new industry and business, Bloxam said. Wholehearted endorsement of the Coastal Plains Planning and Development Commission was given by the Chamber in adopting the committee recommendations. However, Bloxam said his committee had no recommendation for any particular effort, pending receipt of more detailed information on the organization and what the Chamber might do to assist it. The committee also recommended that the Chamber prepare a list of services it is prepared to render to local industries. It recommended that personal letters from the Chamber be mailed to the industries outlining these services and offering assistance. Also recommended were improvements in the Chamber's brochure based on information to be obtained from the Department of Conservation and Development concerning data needed by industrial prospects.

Adult Class Conducted On Losing To Win

Mrs. Betty Turner, Home Economics teacher at Chicod High School, gave an adult class entitled "Losing To Win" on Wednesday, March 21. Her adult class pointed out the dangers of obesity, and encouraged overweight adults to reduce. Mrs. Turner showed a film, "Losing To Win." The gain or loss of weight obeys three simple rules:

1. Any animal that takes into the body food which produces more energy than the body consumes will gain in weight.
2. Any animal which takes into the body less food energy than the body consumes will use the body tissue, itself, for energy and will lose weight.
3. Any animal which takes into the body food which produces the same energy that the body uses will neither gain nor lose weight.

There are only two factors which determine the weight status and they are the amount of energy used up and food taken in.

The following simple suggestions will enable almost anyone to lose weight if followed conscientiously:

1. Eat nothing between meals.
2. Use very little butter or salad dressing.
3. Cut the amount of sugar used in your cereal, fruit, or coffee in half.
4. Satisfy your hunger by the use of bulky, low energy foods such as leafy vegetables, fresh fruit, raw salads, etc.
5. Eat sparingly of bread, potatoes and desserts of all kinds.

You should weigh once each week and record your weight. Mrs. Turner encouraged the ladies to sample the low-calorie foods that she prepared and compare them with the high-calorie foods. She also performed a routine of exercises to aid in figure faults. The class was brought to a close with an illustrative poster: a smiling, slim, trim lady coming out through the looking glass.

Mrs. Turner's next class is a hat making workshop beginning March 26.

Luncheon Fetes Bride-Elect

Miss Nelson Blount, whose marriage to Dr. Sellers Crisp of Baltimore, Md., and Greenville will take place in April, was honored at a luncheon at the Greenville Golf and Country Club on Thursday, March 22, at 1 p.m.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Helene Higgs Kirkpatrick and Miss Sarah Kirkpatrick.

The bride-elect, attired in a yellow and white two-piece ensemble with matching accessories of beige, wore for her headpiece a dainty bridal crown of white flowers. To complement her costume, the hostesses presented to Miss Blount a white orchid corsage centered with a yellow throat.

Upon arrival at the Club House, guests were greeted by the bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. Marvin K. Blount, and the hostesses.

The appointed table, where a three-course luncheon was served to nine guests of the honoree, carried the bridal motif of pink and white. An arrangement of snapdragons interspersed with smilax decorated the table, and flanked on either side of the centerpiece were silver candelabras with white burning tapers. Bridal corsages of white pom-poms and miniature wedding ring place cards marked the seating arrangement of guests.

Miss Blount was remembered with a set of pearl-handled steak knives as a gift from the hostesses.

Washer-Dryer Must In Pre-Baby Plans

Novices may wonder how tiny infants can accumulate such enormous amounts of laundry. But new mothers quickly discover that even doll-sized shirts and socks and diapers pile up rapidly—not to mention sheets and towels and receiving blankets.

That's one reason why many prospective parents give top priority to new laundry equipment as they plan pre-baby purchases.

To polish charred shish kabob skewers, draw them through a folded wet dishcloth liberally sprinkled with scouring powder. Then wash in hot suds.

How To Wash With Dry Hands!

To do light laundry without wetting your hands, look around for a new gadget designed for that purpose.

This is a hand-manipulated washing device with a perforated rubber nose which contains a rustproof steel spring. The spring creates a powerful suck and jet-squirt action that causes suds to penetrate fabrics as you push a plastic handle up and down.

No matter what else you do to your face, wash it with soap and water before you go to bed!

"Such remarks have caused the wreck of many new converts. She ended her remark by saying, "Take Stock of your driving" and closed with the prayer, "Help us to live that We may be pleasing in His sight."

John Duncan Club Speaker

Mrs. Bernard Jackson was hostess to the Elmhurst Garden Club on Monday night at her home on Longwood Drive.

Arrangements of spring flowers were used throughout the home.

Mrs. Carl Kinlaw, program chairman, introduced John Duncan as guest speaker.

Mr. Duncan spoke on the planting and care of camellias and azaleas. Both shrubs do best when planted on the north or when protected from the morning sun. Correct planting will get your shrubs off to a good start. Land that has good drainage is essential for azaleas. Azaleas are very popular in this area as they are a sign of spring.

During a short business session presided over by Mrs. Phil Goodson Jr., president, the club voted to add a new gardening book to the club's library.

The State Convention will be in Morehead City on April 25-26. The hostess served refreshments to the members and guest, Mrs. Elizabeth Powell.

Asset Of Art Center Is Stressed By Speaker

"The Greenville Art Center is a valuable cultural asset and should be patronized," stated Mrs. Garge Jackson in an address to members of the Greenville Civic Club last night.

Mrs. Jackson, who is director of the Art Center, traced the history of the center from its beginning in 1935 to the present day. Originally founded with assistance from WPA funds and located on the second floor of the Sheppard Memorial Library, the center now has its own building at 802 Evans St.

Formerly the Flanagan residence, the current home of the Art Center was purchased in late 1959, and after extensive renovation, the grand opening was held in May, 1960. Mrs. Jackson praised Mrs. J. H. B. Moore as the person most responsible for the successful growth of the Center. "Dr. Robert L. Humber also helped us a great deal," she said.

Noting that a current drive for funds and members is being conducted, Mrs. Jackson asked interested members of the community for their support and invited persons to become members. Anyone interested in learning art skills may enroll in various classes which are held at the Center throughout the year, she said.

A question and answer session followed Mrs. Jackson's speech. Prior to the evening's program, club President Herbert Wilkerson recognized Kiwanians Billy Laughinghouse and John Barnhill who outlined plans for the proposed new multi-purpose Civic Center, which, if plans materialize, will be built near Green Springs Park in east Greenville and will provide meeting space for local civic clubs as well as other community activities.

President Wilkerson recognized the following guests present at last night's meeting: J. Robert Russ, Icen Wilson, Jack Tyler and Amos Evans.

Didn't Adhere To Policy Statements

Routing awards handed down by the Civil Aeronautics Board this week for Piedmont schedules through Eastern North Carolina killed, for all practical purposes, a decade of efforts to acquire a major area airport for this section of the state.

In the face of the CAB decision regarding the joint application of Wilson and Greenville for commercial air service, the Board indicated its favor individual community points of service rather than inter-city efforts to join together in using one air facility.

At least on the surface, the decision excluding service for a joint Wilson-Greenville undertaking appears in direct conflict with assertions of the CAB that it favors cities banding together to seek new air service.

Less than a year ago the Federal Aviation Agency and the CAB issued a joint policy statement on the development of air carrier airports which concluded with the following paragraph:

"The Federal Aviation Agency and the Civil Aeronautics Board agree that the use of a single airport serving adjacent communities, where such action may result in a saving, both to the Federal Government and the locality served, as well as improving the air service to the area, should be an increasingly important factor in considering applications for federal funds for airport construction and applications for certificated airline service."

The action of the CAB this week in refuting its own examiners recommendation for certificated service at a joint Wilson-Greenville airport spoke much louder than its words of last May.

We can only conclude that if the CAB is not guided at least in part by its own assertions when it comes to certifying air service, it cannot expect cities of the country which are seeking air service to be guided by policy statements of the CAB.

Certainly we do not begrudge the additional air service awarded this week to our neighboring cities of Goldsboro, Kinston and Rocky Mount by the CAB. We do feel, however, that in fairness to all parties in every part of the country that the CAB should either follow its policy statements or refute them verbally before they refute them by their decisions.

The CAB decision handed down this week has done more to discourage efforts to establish joint air facilities than any of its statements has in recent years to encourage the sort of development it has said it favors.

Bloodiest Battles In Algeria Still Ahead?

In spite of high hopes that the cease-fire agreement reached between the French and the Moslems in Algeria will end more than seven years of warfare, the dark cloud of the European Secret Army still looms as a force to be reckoned with.

These Europeans who are determined to keep Algeria French have defied the deGaulle government openly by words and action. They have fought the cease-fire, and already they have voiced their intention to continue the war which already has cost more than 17,000 lives of French soldiers and 141,000 Moslems. Unless the secret army is persuaded to lay down its arms, Algeria will continue to be torn by civil strife and bloodshed.

President deGaulle's ability to negotiate a cease fire between his government and the Algerian rebels appears to be only the first step in restoring peace to Algeria. It has, in effect, brought together two of the elements which have been carrying on the fight for Algeria, the French government and the Moslems. There remains, however, the third element of the secret army.

Whether the first two groups will have to join in open warfare against the third before an election of self-determination can be held in Algeria remains to be seen.

Suffice it to say that the cease-fire which has been effected in Algeria is no guarantee that the bloodbath will not continue. The bloodiest battles may still be ahead.

Deft Evader Of Head-On Clash

WASHINGTON (AP) — If President Kennedy were a traffic cop, there'd be no head-on crashes at his corner, at least head on into him.

After 14 months in office he's a firm believer that a soft answer turneth away wrath and that grievous words stir up anger.

He uses the soft, and avoids the grievous, particularly with people with whom he has to keep on doing business.

In this year alone a number of people have headed straight for him, but he managed to detour them without using a black-jack.

One was New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller who, like the very conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, is a possible Republican presidential candidate in 1964.

Rockefeller accused Kennedy of political fakery when the President said he'd like to have a Negro, Robert C. Weaver, head up a proposed department of urban affairs and housing.

Kennedy was asked about the governor's crack at his next news conference. He could have gotten into a shouting match with the governor. But he brushed him aside. He said he had heard nobody could get to the right of Goldwater but now he doubted it.

Next came the highly conservative Sen. Strom Thurmond, South Carolina Democrat, who went after the Kennedy administration for censoring military officers, speeches and forced a Senate investigation.

It was just at the time Kennedy, rejecting Soviet Premier Khrushchev's bid for a summit meeting at the disarmament conference, said things ought to be worked out first at a lower level by foreign ministers.

At his next news conference a reporter, noting it was Valentine Day, asked Kennedy about having a "heart-to-heart" talk with Thurmond who had called his foreign policy defeatist.

Kennedy, instead of giving Thurmond what-for, grinned and suggested a meeting with the senator should first be arranged at a "lower level." Not long afterward Thurmond excitement about censorship melted away.

This week the President and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who bumped heads in the 1960 presidential race, tangled again. Nixon started the tangling.

In his new book Nixon said he got angry at Kennedy in 1960 for calling for action against Fidel Castro after being briefed by the Eisenhower administration.

"Next to being shot at, and missed, nothing is quite as satisfying as an income tax refund." — Onawa (Ia.) Sentinel.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
SECURITY
Every parent should bear in mind that the happiness of a child depends most of all upon his sense of security. This is sometimes not recognized, but it is absolutely fundamental in the cultivation of happy and creative childhood. The child must feel secure in his environment.

He must be sure of the love of his parents; he must have great confidence in their wisdom; he must have complete trust in their integrity. The greatest evil of divorce is not just that it leaves one parent to raise a child, but that it leaves a child bereft of that sense of security which the presence of two loving parents produces. Widows frequently raise children quite successfully. It is not absolutely essential that a child have two parents to be well raised. But when a child has two parents that are separated, he loses much of that sense of security which comes from loving cooperation. Educators everywhere maintain that most of their discipline problems arise among children from divorced homes. The reason is that the child, having lost his sense of security, inwardly protests and frequently goes haywire.

The most fertile soil in which childhood can grow is that of security. Give a child a sense of security and you preclude his nature with a sense of well-being and balance from which normal life develops.

True love means security, and upon security childhood almost invariably depends for happiness.

His "Sweeping Proposals"

By DON SCHLIENZ

Nothing Like That Here

Yesterday's report of increasing service rendered by Pitt Memorial Hospital (more patients, more days of care, etc.) in the annual report to the trustees, called to mind a problem met head on by the Wayne Memorial Hospital board.

Some months ago that hospital took up the problem of hospital visitation and announced that unless visitors began to show some measure of heeding rules and such, there was going to be tough measures imposed.

The Goldsboro News-Argus took up the cudgels, and aired some of the everyday gripes of hospital staffers and patients. It turned out the visiting situation in Haywood County Hospital was much the same; but that's another story. Back to the News-Argus:

"Professional visitors" who regularly make the rounds of wards to visit patient they barely know, and patients they don't know, came in for hard knocks. (Patients didn't want 'em, and they cluttered up crowded corridors and wards.)

"No smoking" signs were ignored, and one patient with an oxygen tent (and no-smoking sign) was badly "shook" by vivid imagination of perils involved.

Then there were instances wherein too many visitors left patients in such a state they needed sedatives at the end of the ordeal.

There was also the complaint that "No Visitors" signs were frequently ignored, and the visitors who disregarded such signs were often belligerent when asked to stand aside or leave the rooms.

Visiting hours? At Wayne Memorial that was apparently by something for the birds.

Sunday's corridor traffic was described as often so bad that nurses and doctors had trouble getting through the crowds to give medical treatment.

One Goldsboro hospital patient wrote his corridor audience problem was solved by closing the door. "But first thing I knew a guy burst in without knocking. Never saw him before. He was about as surprised as I was and I firmly believe he thought "Isolation" was a medical term for "Men's Room."

These complaints were liberally publicized by the Goldsboro paper as a service to patients and the hospital staff. The purpose, of course, was to head off necessity of stringent measures that nobody wanted but would have to be imposed if the situation didn't improve.

All this happened several weeks ago, and I've been watching to learn the outcome. Thus far, I've read nothing to indicate the hospital board had to call in the police or Sheriff's Department. Maybe airing the problem helped.

The Waynesville Mountaineer (in Haywood County) formerly the Goldsboro story and recently let it be known their local hospital was suffering from the same problems and cautioned unless the situation cleared up their hospital could and would take drastic measures.

Of course we don't have any of these problems in Pitt Memorial Hospital. Visitors scrupulously read and heed all signs. No more than two visitors are ever found at one time at a patient's bedside. "Family only" signs are duly heeded. You never see smoking when signs advise otherwise. And professional visitors or sightseers looking around to see if they know anyone, just don't exist here.

Did someone just raise their eyebrows?

Other Editors Saying Shirtless Ones Return

(Christian Science Monitor)

Irony lies heavy over the Argentine election results.

— President Frondizi has been set back essentially because of the legacy of economic chaos left him by dictator Juan Peron.

— But at the next elections Peron's followers may possibly reap the economic fruits of Frondizi's long austerity program.

— Once more the forces most devoted to responsible democratic government in Argentina have been forced to use undemocratic means on its behalf.

— Argentina's slap at the Alliance for Progress may help persuade a hesitant United States Congress that funds for the alliance are crucial at this time.

Such paradoxes seem normal for Latin-American affairs at this point. They are so mainly because of the kind of economic time lag that has so bedeviled Arturo Frondizi's four years in power.

Genuine liberal reformers who have come to power (Venezuela's Betancourt, Colombia's Lloera Camargo, Frondizi, etc.), have inherited bankruptcy from expelled dictators of the right. (Castroist or Peronist) firebrands who challenge their power can promise impatient audiences a chicken in every pot. Castro's example — no chickens and very few beans in every pot — is blurred by distance and el dorado oratory. And the alliance — the responsible but not very dramatic alternative — may, like Frondizi's austerity program, produce few immediate results for the shirtless ones.

The Argentine elections help explain what to many North Americans and Europeans was a puzzling performance six weeks ago. At that time the more modern industrialized states of Latin America — the ABC countries (Argentina, Brazil, Chile) plus Mexico — were the abstainers in hemispheric moves against Castroism. The strong states were apparently the weakest. Senor Frondizi himself made overtures to pro-Castro leftist groups in his country.

This week's election returns indicate that his voting was not enough. The potent "desarmados" — shirtless ones — of Peron's day had risen again. And they are being used, wherever possible, by local Castroists and Communists.

Alliance for Progress officials are dealing with established governments — the inside of each country. The desarmados have been essentially outside the government and economies of their countries. The alliance seeks to reach the outsiders via the insiders. The method is social and economic reform. But impatience with the establishment sometimes mounts past the exploding point, as has been the case in the Argentine vote and Guatemalan student riots.

The solution lies in cutting the dangerous economic time lag. Congressmen in the United States are confronted with the necessity of taking a calculated risk and approving money for an advance wave of dramatic village-level projects. The best cure for the desarmados' impatience is news that in some areas democratic governments have been able to make chickens appear in humble pots.

Each spring, William Karpinsky, of American Cyanamid previews the year's collective bargaining for the American Management Association's "Management Review." Here are significant excerpts from his 1962 forecast:

"The shorter work week and other means of reducing working time without loss of pay will be appearing more frequently in collective bargaining negotiations during the years ahead. This does not mean that wage demands will be abandoned; in fact, pressures for greater wage increases will mount during 1962.

"The drive for greater employee security is becoming a real force among employees. Higher pensions, vested pension rights, company payment of full health and insurance plan premiums, relocation and severance pay, job training when transferred, pay for lost time due to short scheduled work weeks — are being pushed more vigorously.

RESISTANCE

"Employer resistance to shortened weeks is strong, however, simply because reduced hours without a corresponding cut in pay is too costly a package in these times of declining profit margins.

"Work rules will grow important as management attempts to curtail wasteful practices and unions strive to retain and expand job security. It might be recalled that it was the toilet controversy that did much to precipitate the two most widespread strikes in recent years: steel in 1959 and autos in 1961.

"The prospects of profit sharing being widely adopted are not very bright.

"Theoretically, the benefits of productivity should be shared by labor through higher wages, by business through higher profits, and by the consumer through lower prices. Actually, however, private wages and salaries in private industry have risen about 75 per cent and average weekly wages by about 50 per cent since 1950, while corporate profits before taxes have grown about 10 per cent and industrial profits have advanced about 22 per cent."

Karpinsky did not report it, but consumer prices rose 24.7 per cent in the same period.

MODERATE AGE INCREASES

Continuing his preview: "Direct wages will probably continue to move in the range of 6 to 8 cents per hour in manufacturing with bigger gains being forced in transportation and construction. Wage advances held within these ranges would average slightly more 3 per cent, which is a considerable improvement, from an inflation standpoint, over the 4 to 5 per cent increases of five years ago.

"In the export industries, the bargaining position of unions will be strengthened by added output aimed abroad and they will press more militantly for subjective benefits unless deterred by strong management resistance of government fiat.

"The Administration is confronted by a serious dilemma in combating wage-push inflation. . . . The failure of the government 'wage pause' policies in England and France attest the difficulty. Education of the public and the call for voluntary restraints is one approach

Burden U.S. Carries

The problem that President Kennedy faces, as President Eisenhower faced it, is how to disengage the United States not only from the complications of World War II but the consequences of a long series of events and agreements prior and subsequent thereto. It is much like an individual's attempt to get out from under, as the expression goes. It very often is impossible.

To the layman, this particular problem always seems easy. Some say that we ought to go to war with Soviet Russia and thus solve all problems. There's a catch in that. There's the most horrible event imaginable and that is to avoid such a war, it is necessary to give in to Khrushchev, then we ought to give in. But Khrushchev is not our only problem. What about all the financial obligations we have undertaken in all parts of the world? Must we keep on pouring out our wealth? Must we accept the responsibility for every new country that has come into the United Nations alive even should it prove to be an instrument for our damage?

Some say, why not let these little countries go their own way even if that way leads to the Kremlin. Others say that we assumed the responsibility of world leadership and that having gone this far, there is nothing we can do about it. And then there is a mass of Americans who believe that making distinctions between the countries they like and the countries they dislike irrespective of American interests. There are the Anglophiles and Francophiles and those who love or hate Spain, and the Old China Hands who would destroy Mao Tse-tung's regime and those who would use food to rescue all peoples from the consequences of their surplus wheat and butter and whatever comes to hand and there are those who would let all Communists starve to prove that Marxism is a failure. Need we strengthen our enemies so that they might bite the hand that feeds them?

Public opinion in a free country is inevitably mixed because each individual sees things as his knowledge and experience permit and he always can back his opinion by a vote. Besides, we believe that out of debate will come the truth.

Thus, an American President, in his first term, is a prisoner of the complex of differing views. He might succeed as Roosevelt did to direct the force of public opinion into the channels that he chose, but Roosevelt, the politician, was at the beginning of a phase of history in which we still find ourselves, and he was extraordinarily popular, although as some of us believe then, as more believe now, undeservedly. It was his personal popularity which made it possible for him, in his second term, to make vast alterations in our economic and social system and in his third term to involve this country in what eventually became World War II. If World War I was an historical error, World War II and our partnership with Soviet Russia, particularly our willingness to sacrifice the British and Dutch Empires to Soviet Russia, proved to be a magnificent tragedy. Teheran and Yalta will go down in American history as headstones of defeat.

However, it is not easy to stay within the margins of our responsibilities without bringing on a war, if not on us, then one with our allies and our new friends, the former foes. Nor is it easy to resign ourselves from these responsibilities without giving Soviet Russia a free hand to conquer much of the world. Two ideas, conflicting ideas, offer themselves as remedies:

One is that we use friendship, propaganda, educational exchanges, good-will and all the virtues of our civilization and the advantages of our wealth to aid nations to rise in their standards of life and to find it in their hearts to love us.

The other is to continue the arms race with Soviet Russia until the overwhelming cost of missiles, rockets, satellites and similar exhibitionistic instruments

Mountains See Tourism Grow

By BUD WILSON

LINVILLE, N. C. — Tourism and vacation visits increase yearly in North Carolina and nowhere in the State has larger growth of this industry been noted than in the mountains.

Not only do Tar Heels like to retreat to the cool mountains, but the area has been drawing more and more people from Florida, Ohio and Georgia. Many have established summer homes.

To help meet the increased demand for tourist facilities, several established attractions have begun expansion programs.

Grandfather Mountain for example, opens its new visitor facility on April 1. The new structure presented something of a challenge to its architect, Charles Hartman of Greensboro, because it had to be designed to withstand the severe winds and rime ice of winter.

The new building features a meeting room for civic or fraternal sessions and can seat 200 people. Atop the building are the new U.S. Weather Bureau instruments, also specially designed to withstand high winds. In past winters since the Weather Station was established nine years ago, instruments have been destroyed each winter and new ones are expected to save that loss.

One other sidelight of the new building atop the highest mountain in the Blue Ridge is the hinged flag pole. As with the Western Bureau instruments, Grandfather Mountain has had to replace its flag pole after each winter. Now when winds in excess of 125 miles an hour are anticipated, the new pole is merely lowered and saved.

Elsewhere in the mountains, Tweetsie Railroad between Boone and Blowing Rock has announced a $800,000 expansion program which will begin immediately.

An amusement park and a chair lift are among the major items planned for Tweetsie.

Ghost Mountain at Maggie Valley will soon open for its second year after a very successful launching last spring.

Many new motels and several new restaurants have opened in the mountains of North Carolina during the past year, indicating that the tourist business is indeed continuing to increase.

The opening of the new link of the popular Blue Ridge Parkway at Waterrock Knob adds still more interest in that, the most popular of scenic routes in America.

PROMOTING TRAVEL

Most industries take market surveys, and the tourist industry is no exception. It has become evident in the past two years that the Carolina Mountains have become a prime target of Floridians who seek escape from the heat.

Spot checks indicate North Carolina residents continue to travel the most in their own mountains, followed by South Carolinians and Virginians. But Florida continues to send more tourists than would normally be imagined.

Ohio, Michigan, Georgia and Maryland, as well as Washington, D. C., continue to be important sources of tourists, too, at least as far as the Tar Heel mountains are concerned.

Thus many people engaged in the travel industry in the mountains are taking part in the Cincinnati Travel Show and are beginning to look with considerable interest to the South to see what can be done to attract still more visitors.

For dollars expended, probably the greatest return in promotion of the Carolina mountains would be derived from investment in whatever can be done to "sell" Florida, Alabama, Georgia, Ohio, Maryland and other states within comfortable driving range that the mountains of western North Carolina are the ideal summer spot for those who enjoy clear, crisp air, cool nights, and scenery that cannot be surpassed.

At his next news conference a reporter, noting it was Valentine Day, asked Kennedy about having a "heart-to-heart" talk with Thurmond who had called his foreign policy defeatist.

Kennedy, instead of giving Thurmond what-for, grinned and suggested a meeting with the senator should first be arranged at a "lower level." Not long afterward Thurmond excitement about censorship melted away.

This week the President and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who bumped heads in the 1960 presidential race, tangled again. Nixon started the tangling.

In his new book Nixon said he got angry at Kennedy in 1960 for calling for action against Fidel Castro after being briefed by the Eisenhower administration.

Scripture—Deuteronomy 6:4-5; Leviticus 19:18; Matthew 19:16-22; 22:35-40; Luke 10:25-37.

On Tuesday of Holy Week the Pharisees, seeking to entrap Christ, got one of their lawyers to question Him. "Teacher," he said, "which is the great commandment in the law?"—Matthew 22:35-38

Christ answered that "the whole law... and the prophets" stemmed from two great similar commandments—to love God with all one's heart, soul and mind, and to love one's neighbor as oneself.—Matthew 22:37-40.

On another occasion just before His death, Christ was approached by a rich young man who said he had kept all the commandments, and asked what else he might do to gain eternal life.—Matthew 19:16-20.

Christ told him to give up his wealth, which he idolized, and follow Him instead. The young man, unable to part with his riches, departed sorrowfully.—Matthew 19:21-22. GOLDEN TEXT: Luke 10:27.

The Greatest Commandment

THE GREAT BASIC PRINCIPLE OF LOVE FOR GOD AND MAN, AND CHRIST'S REINFORCEMENT OF THIS PRINCIPLE

Scripture—Deuteronomy 6:4-5; Leviticus 19:18; Matthew 19:16-22; 22:35-40; Luke 10:25-37.

By N. SPEER JONES
OUR SUBJECT for the first quarter has been "Jesus and the Ten Commandments." In this lesson, the last in the quarter, we conclude with what has been called the Eleventh Commandment.

Christ Himself (in Matthew 22:35-40). This was done, moreover, during Christ's last public teaching; it occurred on Tuesday of Holy Week, and the rest of His communication before His arrest was with only His own disciples.

Although it may be called the Eleventh, it is far from an addendum; it is rather the one from which all the other Ten Commandments proceed. If one truly obeys this commandment, the others will follow naturally. The heart and the soul are mentioned separately in this commandment. The heart would designate the center of man's emotions, especially of love. The soul would designate the center of man's personality.

In a typical way, Christ turned a petty query into a vehicle for one of His greatest messages. A Pharisee lawyer asked Him to give preference for one of the 600 or so precepts of the Jewish code, hoping He would take sides in their petty legalistic arguments and be entangled. Christ thus not only avoided the trap, but turned it to His own advantage.

In the enlargement of this idea as expressed in Leviticus

G. Campbell Morgan (as quoted in "Peloubet's Select Notes," pp. 105-106) maintains that love of God cannot be

GOLDEN TEXT

"You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself."—Luke 10:27.

19:18, we find once more the image of man as a reflection of his Maker. The chapter begins with the injunction for man to be holy, for God is holy.

achieved through love of nature. He may bring respect, reverence or fear, but not love. Love of God is based on knowledge of God, he reasons; love comes of "approbation and inclination toward" as we know the underlying good. Thus he recommends not the study of nature but the study of God through Christ.

It is only on this basis that we can hope to follow God's injunction to love our fellow men. We cannot hope to achieve it on the mere basis of natural affinity, or common interests or personalities; on this basis there are far too many of our neighbors who not only fail to attract us, but positively repel us. Our only hope is a deep appreciation of the fact that we are all children of the same God, and that the seed of holiness is therefore in us all.

The story of the rich young man told by Christ to give away his wealth (Matthew 19:16-22) is not to be taken to mean that all wealthy persons should do likewise. It was necessary in the case of this particular rich man because he had made his wealth his god. The important point, for rich and poor alike, is the necessity of God's preeminence in our lives.

GRIFTON — The Grifton Methodist Church will break ground for a new parsonage this Sunday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock. The ceremony will be led by the New Bern District Superintendent, Dr. A. J. Hobbs. The site will be a lot located on the corner of Brooks and Dawson streets across the road from the church property. This lot was acquired through the gift of Mrs. Rachel Taylor, a member of the church. Following the groundbreaking exercises a congregational dinner will be served in the church's fellowship hall. After the meal there will be a presentation of the plans made to date with explanation of each feature included and opportunity for congregational discussion and action.

No Ringing For Liberty Bell

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A group of business, civic and political leaders gathered in the rotunda of the State Capitol Thursday to ring the state's replica of the Liberty Bell in honor of Patriot's Day. But they got neither a ding nor a dong. To their embarrassment, they found that the bell's clapper was securely tied down. Capitol officials said the clapper had to be fixed to the side of the bell to keep visiting school children from disrupting the capitol staff with unannounced bong.

Two Viewpoints On Street-Skier

DETROIT (AP)—Gar Andrew Sarosik, a student at Wayne State University, decided it was skiing weather. So he hooked a rope to a car and went skiing on a city street. At 3:30 a.m. Police weren't amused. They gave him a ticket. Traffic Referee Ernest E. Ostrow was amused. He suspended sentence.

Embezzling Is Charged Three

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP)—Three attractive women, formerly employed by the Peoples National Bank in Conway, were free on $10,000 bond each today after being charged by the FBI with embezzling more than $50,000. The FBI said the investigation was continuing. It identified the three women and the amounts they are accused of embezzling as: Mrs. Edna Raye Dusenbury, 35, $29,212; Mrs. Elise B. Onley, 41, $20,134; and Mrs. Sarah G. Manship, 33, $777. Mrs. Manship, brunette, also is charged with making false entries in the bank's records to conceal a portion of the amount the three are charged with embezzling. She told Commissioner William B. Tyson Jr., who handled the arraignment here Thursday, that she already had made restitution of the money she is accused of taking. Mrs. Onley trembled uncontrollably and fought back tears throughout the arraignment. The three women had worked at the bank for periods ranging from 8 to 17 years. The charges claim Mrs. Manship began taking money Jan. 8 of this year. However, the other two are charged with beginning to take the money in 1959—Mrs. Onley March 14, 1959, and Mrs. Dusenbury April 17, 1959. Tyson said the three will be tried here during the April 23 term of U.S. Eastern District Court.

Pitt Cage Schedule Length Brought Up

Problems Discussed At Meet

By GEORGE BRYANT Reflector Sports Editor

Several members of the Pitt County Athletic Commission brought up the possibility of lengthening the basketball schedule at their meeting last night.

The question was brought up by Walter Latham, principal of Bethel, Latham said, "The 20-game limit is a disservice to the schools that do not play football."

Prior to the 1961-62 season the schools were allowed to play 26 games which is the state regulation. Last year the Pitt County group voted to shorten the schedule to 20 games to cooperate with efforts of the State Board of Education to put some emphasis on the sports program.

Blaine Moyer, Winterville basketball coach, reminded the group that their action to shorten the schedule was taken because it was felt that if the local body had control of the program then there would be no interference from the state. "We as a group would be able to control the program locally. I don't feel it has hurt us," he said.

Latham told the group that he felt they should go back to the number of games other Class A schools are playing. "He also mentioned that the idea originally was to cut out some of the Tuesday night games so that it would allow the students more time to spend on their school work."

However, Latham said that at Bethel when they did not have a Tuesday night game many of the boys would travel to State or Duke to see a college game. Thus, having Tuesday night off did not make them study any more than they did before.

Ed Warren, principal of Belvoir-Falkland, told the group that he checked on the academic averages of the basketball players that were voted to the All-County team this year. "Out of 22 students, the overall average was 87 percent," Warren noted. He added, "It is my leaders that play ball and I think that is the case at other schools."

Arthur Alford, assistant superintendent of Pitt County Schools, reminded the group that the general feeling across the state is that scholarship is not associated with athletics. "While this might not be the case here, we have to give attention to all programs and what other people think," he added.

"I can't see that our program is hurt by the shorter schedule and I feel we have something that is sound and good," Alford said. He also mentioned that if it had not been for athletics he probably would not have gone to college as he went on an athletic scholarship. "I am not against athletics. As a matter of fact I majored in physical education," Alford noted.

Superintendent of Pitt County Schools, D. H. Conley, told the group that the county was trying to "stick with the desires and recommendations of the State Board of Education. I am not opposed to athletics. We need it," Conley added.

The superintendent also noted that the county has to keep a "balance." He told the group that if they were interested in lengthening the schedule for next year that they were welcome to bring the matter before the County Board. "We (County Board) will be glad to hear it. However, I am in favor of stepping up academics."

In addition to discussing the length of the schedule, officers for next year were elected. Ed Warren is the new chairman. Fenner Boyd of Grimesland, vice - chairman, George James of Belvoir-Falkland was elected secretary and Ikey Baldrice of Grifton is the new treasurer.

The question of making up a schedule for next year that would give the schools a home game and an away game in that order also came up. This past season many of the schools played at home for three weeks and then away for a month.

Chairman Warren asked each principal to make up a schedule and submit it to the officers and then they would have something to go on when it was reworked. The general feeling was that this is a problem which has been talked about before and one which is hard to overcome. However, the new officers said they were willing to try to straighten it out if possible.

Kelly Wallace of Chitwood, the outgoing chairman, expressed thanks to all who had made the basketball season a success. "The tournament ran smooth with some of the best sportsmanship ever," Wallace said.

"Our success this year was due to the cooperative efforts of the group, not of individual efforts. We are especially proud of Ayden who is now in the semifinals of the State Tournament this week," Wallace added.

Poised Ohio State Plays Deacs In NCAA Semi's

By DON WEISS

Associated Press Sports Writer LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —

Poised, powerful Ohio State plays Wake Forest and cool, crafty Cincinnati meets UCLA tonight in the climax of their drive toward a second straight showdown for the National Collegiate (NCAA) basketball championship.

The Buckeyes, No. 1 in the nation, and the second-ranked Bearcats are all but odds-on to win the semifinals with ease and set up another all-Ohio championship.

If they make it to Saturday's final, it'll be the first time the same two schools have played for the championship two years in a row. Last year, Cincinnati won its first NCAA title — snapping Ohio State's 32-game winning streak and dethroning the 1960 champs, 70-65 in overtime.

Wake Forest, which has drawn All America Jerry Lucas and Ohio State in the opener, rallied behind All-American Len Chappell and 5-9 Billy Packer to win its last 12 games and the eastern regional eliminations after winning but nine of its first 17. Included in that slow start was an 84-62 loss to the mighty Buckeyes at Winston-Salem in December.

John Wooden's UCLA Bruins also got the Ohio State shock treatment in December, losing to the Bucks in the Los Angeles Classic 105-84. But the Bruins — like Wake Forest in its recovery in the Atlantic Coast Conference —bounced back and won 14 of their last 16 games in nailing the Big Five title and the Far West regional.

The Bruins have team speed and balance, an 18-9 record, and a band of sharpshooters led by 6-2 Johnny Green, with a 19.4 average.

Most concede, however, that it will take Wake Forest and UCLA at their absolute best to stay close to the powerful Ohio teams. Even the coaches — Ed Jucker of Cincinnati and Fred Taylor of Ohio State — admit their teams might be better than a year ago, when their battle drew praise as one of the great games in basketball history.

"You might say we were shell-shocked," says Wake Forest Coach Bones McKinney when that first Ohio State game is mentioned. But he insists his Deacons have forgotten about it. "We went through the veterans' hospital," he said with a laugh, "and it has been eliminated."

"We're better in some ways," said Taylor. "For one thing, we have more depth. For another, Lucas has continued to improve — particularly on defense. This team certainly has worked harder, is more relaxed and there is much more enthusiasm in our workouts."

They're somewhat different, not quite as consistent, but potentially better on a given night," said Jucker. "Our sophomores (Ron Johnson and George Wilson) have worked their way into the team and have come along nicely."

Along with Lucas, starters John Havlicek — who'll likely be assigned to guard the 6-8, 240-pound Chappell — and Mel Nowell are back from last season for the Buckeyes. Doug McDonald and John Reasbeck are the other regulars for Taylor, who won 23 to 24 regular season games and then swept past Western Kentucky and Kentucky in the Midwest regional.

Since six hours after tickets went on sale more than a month ago the NCAA has been assured of a sell-out crowd of 17,805 at spacious Freedom Hall. Tournament Chairman Bernie Shively of the University of Kentucky estimated 100,000 tickets would have been sold had the arena been large enough. As it was, more than 35,000 tickets requests were returned unfiled.

It's doubtful the response was pegged to any assumption other than that Ohio State and Cincinnati would be slugging it out for the NCAA crown.

NIT Finals Set Saturday

By JIM HACKLEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP)—St. John's of New York and Dayton, two polished college basketball teams thoroughly tested in the pressure of tournament competition, climax stirring campaigns Saturday afternoon in the championship final of the 25th National Invitation Tourney at Madison Square Garden.

The seasoned contenders enter the showdown with sharply contrasting records in past NITs. St. John's has won three titles under its current coach, Joe Lapchick, while Dayton has had five second-place finishes under Tom Blackburn.

Both the Redmen and the Flyers from Ohio bounced into the title game with overpowering second half comebacks Thursday night. St. John's trimmed Duquesne in a bruising match, 75-65, after Dayton had rocked Loyola of Chicago 98-82.

Bill Chmielewski, held to a field goal in 11 tries as the swift Loyola Ramblers raced to a 44-41 lead at intermission, combined with sophomore Gordy Hatton to spearhead Dayton's explosive 57-point second half. The 235-pound pivot finished with 27 points and 19 rebounds while Hatton, the tourney's classiest all-around performer so far, netted 33 points and contributed nine assists.

St. John's, down by nine points at the half, rallied behind the sweeping, soft hooks and accurate foot shooting of Leroy Ellis, then gradually broke away from Duquesne on the scoring of Kevin Loughery, Willia Hall and sub P. O'Sullivan. Ellis had 29 points, Loughery added 18 and Hall, Willie Somerset paced the spirited Dukes with 22 points.

A short but bitter brawl spiced the St. John's-Duquesne game. Donnie Burks of the Redmen and Mike Rice of the Dukes triggered it when they tangled with about three minutes to play, and before order was restored most of the players and several spectators became embroiled.

The championship game will be nationally televised (NBC) at 4 p.m. EST, following the consolation game for third between Loyola and Duquesne.

Sports Jargon In Dictionary

By JIM BECKER

NEW YORK (AP) — No more complaints please about the jargon we use over here in the sports department. We've gone respectable, or at least as respectable as Webster's Third New International dictionary can make us.

For years we've been accused of bewildering Little League mothers and newspaper managing editors with a language all our own. But those tortured words and phrases have made the new dictionary in force.

Four-bagger? It's right there: "A home run." Haymaker? "A powerful blow with a fist often resulting in a knockout." Red dog? "To rush the passer in football." Lay-up? "A jumping one-hand shot in basketball made of the backboard from close under the basket."

There's "pigskin" and "horsehide," and even "bum," both tennis and ski.

There's southpaw. "A left-handed baseball pitcher." Also, "A boxer who leads with the right hand and foot forward, while guarding with the left hand."

Foot in the bucket: "Batting with the foot nearest the pitcher drawn back from the plate." Steal: "To gain a base by running without the aid of a hit or an error."

Also "grizzer" and "cager" but mercifully, not "hinclad." They had to draw the line somewhere.

However, the man who wrote the dictionary definition for "curve" either never saw Tommy Bridges or Johnny Sain at their best, or didn't believe it.

He defines it this way: "A baseball pitch in which the ball swerves or appears to swerve from its normal course of flight because of a spin put on it in delivery."

The "screwball" man apparently saw Carl Hubbell work. Here's his definition: "A baseball pitch having reverse spin and a break in the opposite direction to a curve."

Even the spitball is legal in the dictionary. "A baseball pitch delivered after the ball has been moistened with saliva or sweat."

Ayden And Warrenton Clash In Semifinals

Coach Stuart Tripp and the State Tornados take on Warrenton tonight in the semifinals of the State Class A Tournament in the Durham High School gym tonight.

The local team will be seeking a berth in the finals when they play the Yellow Jackets at 7:30 tonight. Ayden moved into the semifinals when they defeated Tryon Wednesday in the opening game of the four day tournament.

Regardless of the outcome of the contest tonight, the Tornados will play tomorrow night. If they win tonight they will compete in the second game Saturday night for the championship. If they lose tonight they will play at 7:30 in a consolation game.

Both Warrenton and Ayden are in the Eastern division of the state and tonight's game will be a tough one for both. Ayden's fine defense has won them 22 games in a row this season. Their only loss so far was in their opening game. They were in their opening game back in December with Winterville.

Wednesday night the Tornados had a large turnout of fans who made the trip to watch them compete in the tournament. Tonight's crowd is expected to be just as big if not larger.

The team is the only Ayden club that has been able to advance to the semifinals of a State basketball tournament. Four years ago the Tornados went to the tournament, but were knocked out in the first round. This year they are hoping to go all the way.

At the present time Ayden is just two games away from the championship.

DURHAM (AP)—Valley Springs and Colfax turned in first-round victories Thursday night and collide tonight in the semifinals of the state Class A high school basketball tournament.

Ayden and Warrenton, first-round winners Wednesday night, meet in the other semifinal game. Colfax eliminated Leland 81-54 and Valley Springs dumped Southern Pines 57-55 in Thursday nights two final first round games.

Jerry Nesbitt's last second field goal lifted Valley Springs to victory. Southern Pines had led 52-47 with only a minute and 30 seconds to play, but Nesbitt sparked a rally with two baskets that put the Panthers ahead 55-54 with 15 seconds to play.

Love Wins PGA Championship

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — The new head golf professional at the Charlotte, N.C. Country Club was scheduled to conduct a clinic for more than 100 of his lady members today.

They were certain to listen to his remarks with more than passing interest.

Davis Love returned to the Charlotte job, his first head professional position, Thursday night as Carolinas PGA champion.

The 26-year-old native of San Antonio, Tex., slipped to a one-over par 73 final round Thursday, but his 214 total for 54 holes led the field by four strokes.

Love won $465, and, of equal importance, the victory qualified him for the National PGA tournament in July at Newton Square, Pa., in his first year of eligibility for the pros' championship.

Lawrence Cook, crosshand swinger from Wilmington, N.C., matched Love's final 73 for a 218 runner-up finish to win $375.

Purman Hayes of Gastonia, N.C., who started with 76-72 the first two days, finished with 71 to jump from 10th place to third and win $315.

Love had started the final round with a three-shot edge over runners-up Charles Farlow of Greensboro, N.C., and Mac Main, touring player from Danville, Va. Farlow faltered to 76 for 220 and a fourth place tie with south-paw Thorne Wood of Asheboro, N.C., who shot 75. Each won $267.50 of the $3,000 jackpot. Far Country Club was scheduled to conduct a clinic for more than 100 of his lady members today.

Duke Tops Dartmouth In Opener; Play Yale Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Duke Blue Devils, defending Atlantic Coast Conference baseball champions, were to meet Yale today after turning back another Northern invader — Dartmouth — in their opener Thursday.

Duke's Dick Densmore turned in a four-hit performance as the Blue Devils shut out Dartmouth 2-0. Wake Forest defeated another touring Northern team, Kent State (Ohio) 12-5, Thursday.

The Blue Devils scored their two runs on seven hits. Densmore a 6-1, 200-pound junior, walked only one Dartmouth batter, and struck out 10.

Wake Forest's Pat McDowell gave up seven hits and five runs in the first two innings. Then the 6-2, 190-pounder settled down and teamed with reliever Pete Bowie to hold Kent State to just three more hits. Bowie came on in the seventh.

Wake Forest scored three runs in the first, added four in the fourth, one in the fifth and four more in the eighth. The Deacons got 11 hits off three Kent State pitchers.

Georgia Southern relief pitcher Clyde Miller got credit for both victories over South Carolina, extending his winning streak to 13 games.

Miller came on in the sixth inning of the first game to stifle a threat by the Gamecocks. The Georgians scored the only run of the game in the sixth on two singles and a stolen base.

In the seven-inning second game Georgia Southern broke a 2-2 tie with three runs in the fifth inning on a double, single and an error.

CHAPTER 23
Alone with Bennett in Superintendent Rollison took his time about speaking. He felt sure that the self-imposed silence was now almost more than Bennett could bear.

Rollison asked softly: "Can you remember what it was like to feel Kate Lawson's neck beneath your fingers, Bennett? Do you remember how she struggled, what it was like when she seemed to stop breathing?"

Bennett was gritting his teeth and clenching his fists.

"Because you ought to remember," Rollison said. "That was what happened to your sister. Only no one saved her."

Bennett backed a pace. Rollison heard the other man's harsh breathing, and felt sure that he would soon begin to talk.

"Exactly what happened?" Rollison went on. "She must have—"

"You bloody liar," Bennett screamed at him, and leaped at him bodily.

Rollison had judged the moment when the other man would spring, and he did not need to move. He shot his right fist into Bennett's stomach. As the man gasped and lurched forward, head lowered, he clipped him sharply beneath the chin, then rammed his fists to the man's heart—all blows which would hurt, but none likely to put him out.

Bennett tried to cover up, but could not, and he banged against the wall. Rollison struck him twice again, sharp hurtful blows to the stomach; then he backed away.

"The truth is the truth. They killed June like that," he said harshly.

Bennett was gasping for breath. "Exactly as you tried to kill Kate Lawson," Rollison went on. "Like some proof?"

He moved to Grice's desk, and picked up some photographs, selected one which had been taken of Bennett's sister for the pathological department's use. He turned it round and handed it to Bennett, whose gaze dropped. Sweat was standing out on his forehead.

"No!" he gasped.

"They did. They poisoned the dog, presumably because the dog would have tried to save her. Then they strangled her. How many do they deserve your loyalty?"

"It—it must have been someone else."

"Stop fooling yourself," Rollison said. He did not glance towards the door but heard footsteps in the passage, and was afraid that Grice was coming back. He wanted a few more minutes alone with this man.

"Are you in this to ruin Mallings?" he demanded.

"Ye—yes," Bennett muttered "Partly."

"What made it worth trying to kill anyone?"

Bennett didn't answer.

"Listen, Bennett," Rollison said reasonably. "No matter how much you hate the Mallings people, they aren't worth hanging for. Why did they drive you to attack Kate Lawson? Who is this Thompson?"

Bennett answered in a way which made Rollison believe he was telling the truth—and was perhaps the biggest single disappointment Rollison had known.

"I simply don't know," Bennett muttered. "It's just a name he calls himself. I don't—"

he closed his eyes, and for a moment he looked as if he would faint. Rollison took a brandy flask out of his hip pocket and handed it to Bennett, who took a drink eagerly and was gasping when he lowered the flask.

"It's the truth," he muttered. "I don't know who Thompson is. I do know that his name is real name, His Christian name may be, though—Lancelot."

"Can you describe him?"

"Yes," Bennett answered, "but—but it won't be much good. He always wore a beard, and I always thought it was false. He kept a scarf on, and—well, he never seemed real, if you know what I mean. He did it so that we shouldn't recognize him. He—"

he was a man of middle age, I'd recognize his figure and his walk, but his face—" he broke off.

"He had—"

he had two other men with him," Bennett answered. "They lived at Park View, too, a man named Bell and another named Carby." He shivered.

"No, I couldn't even guess, unless it was that swine Wedlake himself," Bennett answered. "I wouldn't trust him as far as I could see him, but—well, what use was there in accusing a director?"

"I don't mind telling you that I could have cut Wedlake's throat. I think if I'd seen him the week or so after he'd slung me out, I would have done him an injury. The hell of it was, I was in debt even when I was at Mallings. I daresay I'd been a fool to over-spend."

"It was getting a fair salary—but not as good as you might think. Mallings are the meanest so-and-so's in the business. They say that they have to screw everyone else down in order to offer the public the cheapest possible product, but the truth is they're bloody mean and bloody-minded."

"As soon as they've got all the information they want from Holmes, they'll kill him," Bennett predicts. Continue the story here tomorrow.

Some Newsmen Fear They Are Losing Viet Nam War

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE
SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—One of the battles being fought in Viet Nam involves the problem of finding out what is going on, and reporting it to the people of the United States.

Many correspondents here feel they are losing.

One put it this way: "The Vietnamese government is against us, they figure we're all spies or Communist propagandists. The U.S. side won't tell us much beyond the broad outlines of policy, and we can't even be sure of that. After prying for weeks to get a story from unofficial sources, we may end up being blocked by the censors."

Underlying the efforts of correspondents is the belief, among some at least, that Viet Nam could become the cradle of a more widespread war.

The United States has sent nearly 5,000 servicemen to the country, along with major transfusions of equipment for the Vietnamese forces.

Communist China, North Viet Nam and the Soviet Union are watching closely from the wings. Internally, both the government and the Communist Viet Cong have stepped up operations.

Viet Nam's seeming inhospitality to the Western press stems from frequent press criticism of President Ngo Dinh Diem's administration. In a speech this month the nation's powerful first lady, Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, condemned certain elements in the West who she said seem more interested in undermining the Diem administration than in winning the war.

Mrs. Nhu told this correspondent her attack had been directed at the U.S. press.

"You all act as if you were just spectators here," she said. "Don't you realize you are with us and we need your support?"

The president rarely receives any of the permanent correspondents here.

The U.S. government is anxious to avoid alienating the Vietnamese government, and its official press sources coordinate closely with official Vietnamese sources. For various reasons, the United States also is seeking to avoid press emphasis of the role America is playing here.

Compounding the problem, there is factional strife on both Vietnamese and U.S. sides between government agencies sharing responsibility for dealing with the foreign press.

The war here is where you find it, and unless a correspondent accompanies a military unit or runs into a Viet Cong ambush, he is not likely to find it at all. Getting permission from officials in Saigon to accompany military operations in the countryside is sometimes difficult.

As a rule Vietnamese sources regard as taboo questions of related police activity. Stories based on reports from nongovernment sources in these categories are likely to be stopped or delayed by the censors.

U.S. officials are reluctant to show newsmen military operations in which American servicemen are performing combat roles. Bien Hoa Airport, center of U.S. and Vietnamese military air activity, is off limits to the public and to correspondents.

Travel in Viet Nam is primitive, and reports from the provinces may take as much as a week to reach Saigon. Official accounts of battles often have contained inaccuracies.

Recently the speed and accuracy of official reporting have improved, but correspondents still must rely on private military sources for the bulk of their news. Sources of any type are extremely difficult to reach at night or on weekends.

Correspondents have trouble when they write stories the government regards as overcritical or as possible propaganda material for the Communists. Cables may be delayed or stopped. The writers are likely to be called before the director general of information for official reprimands. Official cooperation may be cut off from them. In extreme cases they may be ordered out of the country.
