Peron's Future Not Yet Settled

MADRID (AP)—Associates of Gen. Juan D. Peron said today that as a result of the ouster of President Arturo Frondizi, the ex-dictator might fly to Uruguay or Chile "to be closer to the scene of our operations."

There was no immediate announcement from Guido, however, that he would take the post. And Hector Gomez Machado, who heads Frondizi's Intransigent Radical party in the Chamber of Deputies, said he would not.

Green, White Color Motif Used At Tea Club Members

In compliment to Miss Nelson Blount, whose marriage to Dr. Sellers Crisp will take place in April, Mrs. S. T. White, Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, Mrs. J. Knott Proctor Jr. and Mrs. Helen Hawes entertained at tea at the home of the latter on East Fifth St. Upon arrival Miss Blount was presented a cymbidium orchid to grace her yellow chiffon cocktail dress. White chrysanthemum bouquets were given the mothers of the bride- and bridegroom-lect.

As the guests arrived they were welcomed by Mrs. S. T. White and presented to the receiving line by Mrs. Helen Hawes.

The receiving line was formed in the music room and here Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, the honoree, her mother and Mrs. J. Knott Proctor Jr. stood near the focal point of interest, an arrangement in an antique Venetian glass epergne of large white chrysanthemums, white iris, pink carnations, sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Miss Helen Hawes showed guests into the dining room. The table, overlaid with an alienon lace cloth, had an arrangement of white iris, daffodils, hyacinths, snapdragons and gypsophelia in a silver tureen. Mrs. S. M. Crisp, mother of the groom, poured tea, assisted by Mrs. J. B. Kittrell Jr. and Mrs. W. H. Collier III. The green and white motif was further carried out in the candles and refreshment trays.

From the dining room the guests overflowed into the drawing room and den where they enjoyed the spring flower arrangements and conversation.

Goodbyes were said to Mrs. F. J. Forbes.

Guests from Goldsboro, Bethel, Washington, D. C. and Henderson were among the 150 guests attending.

A film entitled "Fallout" was the program on Tuesday evening when the Semi-Centi Book Club met with Mrs. R. C. Abee on Madison Circle.

Fallout is the innumerable pieces of rocks and ground that are broken into minute particles as a result of a nuclear explosion and sent hurtling through the air. The particles pick up radiation during the explosion. Fallout may appear from one-half hour to several hours after the time of the nuclear explosion depending upon the distance from the explosion site.

Regular fallout shelters built according to specifications that may be obtained from civil defense headquarters are the best protection against fallout. However, other buildings will provide some protection, bottom floors or basements of large buildings offering the best.

Symptoms of overexposure to fallout are burns, nausea and stomach cramps and loss of hair.

During the business meeting the following officers were elected for the coming year: president, Mrs. C. T. Hudson; vice-president, Mrs. W. C. Taylor Jr.; secretary, Mrs. W. E. Hudson; treasurer, Mrs. J. L. Corey, and librarian, Mrs. Richard Balzer.

At the conclusion of the business, the members were served German chocolate cake and coffee.

Mrs. James Coker To Speak At 27th Fine Arts Festival

The twenty-seventh annual Community Fine Arts Festival will get underway with a luncheon in South Dining Hall at East Carolina College at 12:45 on April 28.

The featured speaker for this occasion will be Mrs. James Coker of Hartsville, S. C. Mrs. Coker is the author of five books, all published in the 1950's, numerous newspaper articles and poems in various magazines and anthologies. "She is much in demand as a speaker at functions such as this and it is an honor to have her come to Greenville," stated Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, chairman of the luncheon who made the arrangements to secure Mrs. Coker.

Creative writing awards will be presented at the luncheon also and there will be special music.

Book clubs wishing to sit together are asked to contact Mrs. Wally Howard, tel. 2-3052, for tickets. Other groups or individuals may contact Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts, telephone 2-2845.

This year will mark the eighth year for the Sidewalk Art Show which has become an integral part of the Arts Festival. This will be held on May 3rd at the Greenville Art Center on Evans Street. Mrs. Joe Miller is serving as overall chairman of this event. Watch this paper for further announcements concerning details of the Fine Arts Festival.

Mrs. Hines Gives Program

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. T. M. Davis entertained the Ladies of the Round Table at her home on Oak Street.

Camellias gave the living room a touch of spring. The hostess served a salad course with coffee. Mrs. M. P. Bailey was a guest.

The president, Mrs. Robert Fountain, conducted the business session. Mrs. Davis, program chairman, read the list of new topics to be studied next year. Program leader for the afternoon was Mrs. A. A. Hines. She gave a talk about "Our Senior Citizens," and discussed their changes, problems and progress. This is one of the biggest problems taking place today.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

The calendar says so, and the daffodils and camellias second the motion—spring is here again. The warm weather will bring the gardeners out in force. Long neglected muscles will go through the yearly toughening up process. What faces the members of Adam's profession?

Weeds

Get rid of nature's vagabonds before they get settled down on your lawn or in your garden. Troublesome chickweed can be taken care of by using 3 ounces of 24D to each gallon of water. Put some detergent in the mixture. Spray on a calm day and keep away from ornamentals. For wild onions use a walking stick applicator. 24D full strength usually knocks these pests for a loop. Use the same on dandelions.

Insects and Diseases

Check over your junipers for bagworm cases. Pick them off and burn them. Spray camellias as soon as flowers fall with Volck. This should control scales. Use Volck according to directions. Pick off the cedar apples on cedar trees. If you don't, the warm spring rain will cause them to shoot out spores that in turn will infect your apple trees. Start your rose spray schedule on time. Soak ground around plants as you go about this chore.

Lawn

Feed your lawn with a good meal of 8-8-8 fertilizer. Look over lawn for stones and twigs. Clean up good before mowing. Give lawn mower the once over to see if it is in good shape. Edge walk and shrub borders. Start off the season with a neat home area.

Trees and Shrubs

Look over all plants for evidence of winter's heavy hand. Prune out all broken branches. Cut out all branches that rub against each other. When pruning flowering shrubs, remove at least 1-3 of all old wood. Cut these clean back to ground. Nandinas given this treatment will stay low and compact.

Conclusions

Good licks gotten in early while the weather is ideal for work make life easier during summer's hot days. So get started early in your gardening. Heading off trouble before it arrives is a step in good gardening. Preventive sprays and weekly or even daily inspection of plants and foliage make for better plants.

Card of Thanks

To the many friends and neighbors who were so loyal in their efforts to help during their illness and death of Coon W. Williams, by their deeds and expressions of sympathy, we say thanks so much. Truly the greatest way of life is through such love and friendship, and we shall forever be grateful.

Increasingly Important Role Ahead

In the years of economic development which lie ahead of North Carolina, the industrial educational centers spotted around the state are destined to play an increasingly important role.

It was five years ago, at the behest of then-governor Luther Hodges, that the state legislature authorized establishment of nine such training centers to be operated by the state. Two years later another nine training centers were authorized and last year the General Assembly added two more bringing the total number to 20.

The Pitt County center, one of the last two to be designated, is one of five which is not yet in operation, but as is the case with the Pitt project, the other five are nearing the operational stage.

Primary purpose of the centers, of course, is to provide more skilled workers and technicians in the state and to upgrade training of people who already are employed in North Carolina. Experts say that during the next four years North Carolina will need some 40,000 additional technicians and skilled workers to fill positions in industry and commerce of the state. A large share of the responsibility for providing these people to fill job needs will fall upon the industrial schools.

Projected over a longer period of time, the industrial training centers will serve to provide a supply of skilled workers to meet the increasing demands of industry. The fact that there is in North Carolina a program to assure a supply of skilled workers and technicians to fill the needs of industry will in turn make North Carolina a more attractive state for industries seeking new localities.

By developing the human resources, these schools will help both the individual citizen to increase his earning capacity and the state as a whole to higher economic levels. Over the years the industrial training centers will become tremendous assets to the state and to the individual communities in which they are located.

Season Of Potential Tourist Attraction

By the calendar and by the temperature, spring has come to Eastern Carolina much to the delight of most residents who have waited impatiently for warmer, sunnier days.

Already the warmer weather and brighter skies have started the trickle of people to resort areas just for an early peak. Tennis courts, abandoned for months, have suddenly become crowded on week-ends. Golf courses, which the die-hards have had fairly much to themselves since last fall, are attracting numbers of their "seasonal" visitors. There has been a noticeable increase in the number of boats on the highways even though the number is still small compared with what it will be a month from now.

Spring is a beautiful season in this section of the state and a season which could be made a major tourist attraction for out-of-state visitors if proper effort were put forth. Eastern Carolina, unfortunately, has traditionally thought of its tourist possibilities primarily in terms of summer. Somehow this section has missed the fact that balmy days of early spring are in beautiful contrast to this time of year in areas farther north where green sprigs and good outdoor weather are still many weeks away. We've overlooked the fact that many people who wouldn't consider going to more southern states in the height of the winter season would jump at the chance to enjoy a few balmy days of early spring in North Carolina.

After all, if these spring days are so attractive to us after our relatively mild winters, why shouldn't they be even more appealing to residents of more northern areas?

Spring which brings new life and new growth to Eastern Carolina also brings new tourist possibilities which wait to be capitalized upon for greater economic development of a broad section of the state.

Court Business In 3 Domains

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — The fog Carl Sandburg said crept over little cat feet had the same slow pace, and some of the haze, the Supreme Court sometimes shows as it moves toward an explosive decision.

The big decisions when they come — and one came this week — are attacked by the court's critics as what they call "oversteering" or "overstepping its authority" by sticking its nose in where it has no business.

But the court long ago claim-forgone as very much its business the three principal domains of American life: social, political and economic.

Therefore, the only question of the court in the social domain — if only because it is the most vivid in recent memory — was its contrary actions on segregation. Here it really puffed out.

In 1896 the court ruled a state could segregate Negroes — that it was constitutional to do so — provided that in their segregated places they were given treatment equal to that given white people.

For the next 50 years succeeding courts skidded all around the problem of deciding whether segregation by itself was or wasn't constitutional.

Instead, it crept up on that major decision by a number of decisions ruling on segregation in various forms and places — but only because the treatment given Negroes wasn't equal to that given whites.

In 1954 it took the plunge, said the court of 1896 was wrong, declared the principle of segregation wrong, and ordered the country's public schools desegregated.

The court has stepped into the American economic field a number of times and in different ways.

It was Marshall, starting in 1893, who asserted as chief justice the authority of the court to move in many directions which established the right of the court to pass on the constitutionality of acts of Congress and state legislatures, and on the decisions of state courts.

people, judged by their numbers in relation to city population, have far more representation than they are entitled to.

Yet, looking back, the court took the step of interfering in the political questions of a state. After that it was only a matter of how much deeper the court would interfere. A number of cases could be cited.

One is enough. After pussy-footing and backtracking, the court ruled in 1927 and 1932 that a Negro in Texas had been deprived of the equal protection of the 14th Amendment when he was kept from voting because of his color.

The most sensational action of the court in the social domain — if only because it is the most vivid in recent memory — was its contrary actions on segregation. Here it really puffed out.

In 1896 the court ruled a state could segregate Negroes — that it was constitutional to do so — provided that in their segregated places they were given treatment equal to that given white people.

For the next 50 years succeeding courts skidded all around the problem of deciding whether segregation by itself was or wasn't constitutional.

Instead, it crept up on that major decision by a number of decisions ruling on segregation in various forms and places — but only because the treatment given Negroes wasn't equal to that given whites.

In 1954 it took the plunge, said the court of 1896 was wrong, declared the principle of segregation wrong, and ordered the country's public schools desegregated.

The court has stepped into the American economic field a number of times and in different ways.

It was Marshall, starting in 1893, who asserted as chief justice the authority of the court to move in many directions which established the right of the court to pass on the constitutionality of acts of Congress and state legislatures, and on the decisions of state courts.

As angry as the decisions of the Supreme Court under Marshall were, they were not as far-reaching as those of the court today.

'Distressed' By It All

humor from our city on the banks of the Contentnea Creek, popularly known as Griffon, via the Contentnea Creek Chronicle.

Though this growing town has been thriving with news of late, there was one story which missed the news pages, and we intend to bring this story to you now.

It was one morning this week and offices were being opened up in Griffon. As usual, the American flag was raised upon its post in front of the Griffon Post Office.

It was just a little later that Fire Chief Wilbur Murphy, whose business it is to investigate fires and otherwise render help to the distressed, noticed that the flag was upside down — and upside down, the flag is a distress signal.

Well, Chief Murphy dashed to the Post Office and offered his assistance, telling those inside he had noticed the distress signal.

Whereupon the inhabitants of the Post Office, who were not in distress, became slightly distressed and immediately had the flag lowered and raised right side up. Thus ended the note of distress.

In other points around Pitt County, we were pleased to notice that this area was omitted from the list of 25 most dangerous intersections in the state. That's one list it's an honor not to be on.

We heard the other day that one of the history professors at East Carolina College announced he would hold his mid-term examination on the Tuesday following the weekend of April 6-8. This naturally almost caused pandemonium among his horrified students who annually migrate en masse to Wilmington, Wrightsville, Beach, Carolina Beach and other points thereabout for the Azalea Festival, which is on the above date.

By the time the students were through moaning and groaning, we don't know whether the professor still thought class was class or class was azalea.

You might conclude with the thought that in the spring, thoughts of many college students turn to azaleas; in the form of a festival, of course. In olden times, festivals were connected more or less with periodic religious or other feasts. We don't know where the feasting comes in on this one, but it has certainly become a notable event in the North Carolina calendar year.

Even so, Dick couldn't surpass Rep. Otto Passman of Louisiana back in 1960 when he went on a world tour at the tune of $6,718. Sen. Allen Ellender last year completed his seventh global tour at our expense. He wants $2,700 from Congress to print 5,000 copies of his diary he kept on his last trip. In it he tells about what he had for breakfast in Moscow, the sunset on Mount Ararat and seasickness troubles, things like that.

Compared to some of these high-living boys, our own Tar Heel congressmen have been pretty skippy. Rep. Jonas spent $1,700 on a trip through seven countries for the Appropriations Committee. Rep. Horace Kornegay spent $1,133 traveling to Germany and England for the Committee on Veterans Affairs. And Rep. Hugh Alexander got by in the Middle East, Europe and Asia on $3,000 from the Appropriations Subcommittee on Foreign Affairs.

It's a great temptation — this business of spending other people's money with little regard to thrift. Some of these trips might be necessary. Most are joy rides and the expense sheets turned in to Congress are exorbitant. A closer watch on such matters is part of a voter's responsibility.

Incidentally, Lankford was accompanied by an Army colonel who managed to spend only $22 a day, including everything. In London Rep. Lankford managed to get rid of $235 a day for three days. When there his hotel bill was $66 a night and his meals $27 each. We should all be congressmen.

Change In Their Outlook

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, Kings Features Syndicate, Inc.

When the United Mine Workers adopt a high tariff policy, the changes that are taking place in the thinking of the businessmen and bankers and their various associations hold different opinions on this subject, depending upon how much capital and how many jobs they have exported, the working man must protect himself from unemployment and government impoverishment.

This is part of an editorial which recently appeared in the United Mine Workers Journal. The show-down battle over foreign trade policy has just begun in the 87th Congress. The immediate concern of the coal industry, the UMW and allied industries and labor organizations is to convince the powerful House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee that American coal must be protected from the ravages of imported residual (waste) oil.

In another place, the same publication says: "If the Trade Expansion Act of 1962 (H.R. 9900) is enacted by the Congress it will make the Chief Executive a virtual dictator over the economic welfare of American business and industry and the jobs of millions of American workers."

Under the proposed legislation the Congress would give up, once and for all, its constitutional authority to regulate foreign commerce and place in the hands of the President of the United States absolute control over the import-export policy of the nation. It would permit the Chief Executive to open the flood gates to a deluge and cheap-labor produced foreign goods.

This will be the principal issue in the 1962 Congressional campaign and it will surprise the politicians of both political parties — that labor rather than management has caused pandemonium among his horrified students who annually migrate en masse to Wilmington, Wrightsville, Beach, Carolina Beach and other points thereabout for the Azalea Festival, which is on the above date.

Other Editors Saying High-Priced Junkets

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

In switching from the safari, made thus far by the Kennedy family and their aides, one finds even more interesting reading in the exploits of our congressmen who take it upon themselves to travel overseas to look after our interests there. These junkets run deep into the taxpayers pockets as we shall see. Let's take the case of Maryland Congressman, Rep. Richard Lankford. His trip is one of the most interesting on record.

Rep. Lankford must have set some sort of spending record with his $95 per day, not counting his plane and train tickets. His trip was a 36-day jaunt around the world last fall. He said he went to see how "our military assistance program ties in with our defense effort." He's a member of the House Armed Services Committee.

Well, Dick managed to get through 14 foreign stops, with his hotel bills averaging $28 a night. His meals were $30 a day average, meaning $10 for breakfast. What can you spend $10 for at breakfast? He also spent $36 daily for a "vacue" thing called "miscellaneous" which totaled for the trip something like $1,380 worth of miscellaneous.

His office insists his expenses certainly were not "excessive." In fact he spent a thousand dollars of his own money. Add that thousand to what he spent of our money and it's easy to see that Dick did some tall living while "inspecting" our military position overseas. Incidentally, Lankford was accompanied by an Army colonel who managed to spend only $22 a day, including everything. In London Rep. Lankford managed to get rid of $235 a day for three days. When there his hotel bill was $66 a night and his meals $27 each. We should all be congressmen.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
HABIT

We speak of habit formation as if it were something bad or unworthy.

The truth of the matter is that habit formation lies at the basis of all our living. If every time we performed an act we had to start from scratch, we would never develop any skills whatsoever. Throughout the whole of our lives we would be like infants doing everything gropingly and awkwardly. As a matter of fact, we would be even lower than infants in our achievement for the infant is growing. But were it not for the established processes of habit formation we would not grow at all.

By a merciful provision of nature — or God as most of us would say — every act we perform stores up a memory somewhere in our brain. The next time we confront the necessity of performing that act we are helped just a bit — by the fact that we have performed it once before. So we go through life with habit formation building up skills. We listen to a great pianist, and we know that behind his brilliant achievement lie endless hours and almost slavish years of work and practice.

We can create good habits precisely as we create bad habits. The process is identical in both cases. Our lives radiate vitality and purpose when we establish the habit of automatically choosing the right and rejecting the inadequate, the insufficient, or the unworthy.

al credit is the accelerating rate of increase in the number of nonbusiness bankruptcies being filed."

Last year 146,643 bankruptcies were filed of which 90 per cent, or about 130,000, were personal bankruptcies. This is an increase of 33 per cent over 1960 and 100 per cent over 1957.

Instalment payments figured in a vast number of the personal bankruptcy. That leaves this question for Senator Bennett, Mr. Elmer and the rest of the A. B. A.: "Would there have been so many bankruptcies if instalment buyers and other borrowers really knew in advance how much they had to pay in interest?"

Regardless of the answer, it would appear that the bankers are not putting their cleanest face forward by churning up opposition to the Truth in Lending bill when bankruptcies are soaring. This bungling of public relations is strange in view of the fact that, of all lenders, banks do the best job of clearly stating interest charges — far better than many high-pressure instalment houses.

NEW COLOR MAGIC—Here's the P-100, an automatic machine which delivers a finished color print from a color negative in three minutes. The machine's built-in brain computes color balance and exposure. The operator needs no darkroom or technical skill.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures
A REMARKABLE development in automatic, simplified, quick color printing from color negatives is announced by the Pavelle Corp., of Rockefeller Center, New York City. It permits amateur photographers to make slightly enlarged color prints at home without a darkroom with pushbutton ease. The process takes three minutes and requires no technical skill. I watched a demonstration of the process at the firm's White Plains, N. Y., research lab just prior to its recent public unveiling at the photo trade show in Chicago. I brought my own color negatives and made my own color prints with a few moments' instruction.

The complete process, except for washing and drying, takes place in a plastic machine which resembles a slide projector. The machine's full name is the P-100 Automatic Daylight Color Printer-Processor. It has a front (processing) and rear (light source) compartment and a set of dials (computation) along the side. The color negative fits in a negative holder in the rear compartment. The processing tray slides into the front compartment. There are two sections for only two chemical solutions: a color developer and a bleach-fix. A roll of special color printing material is also in the front compartment.

The P-100 is plugged into an electrical outlet to start the machine working. Its brain is a miniature analog computer which analyzes a color negative and determines its color balance and exposure in a matter of seconds. This is done by turning three dials, one at a time, until a pointer on each dial is brought to a center point. Two of the dials select the proper color filter combinations and a third dial electronically gauges the proper exposure.

The selected exposure is timed while pressing a knob which turns on the enlarger lamp in the rear compartment—a standard photo-flood. This exposes a fixed focus enlargement on the special print material in the front compartment. Pressing another knob, in front, slices off the exposed print and starts it on its automatic route through the two processing solutions. At the end of three minutes the completed color print emerges through a groove in the front. It must be thoroughly washed (up to eight minutes), then dried.

After seeing the print, photographers can deliberately change the color balance or make color corrections to suit their own taste or creative urge by shifting the pointers on the color filter knobs. The P-100 handles roll film color or negatives from 35mm to 2 1/4" x 2 1/4". Color prints range from wallet size (2 1/2" x 3 1/2") to 3 1/2" x 5" square. One roll of print material produces 42 wallet size prints or 30 square ones. The color coupler emulsion is coated on a waterproof acetate base. The print material is spooled with a paper leader to provide daylight loading in the machine—like loading film in a camera. The Pavelle process is a simplification and speeding up of present color chemistry. Standard color processing today may require 40 minutes at 75 degrees using five chemical solutions and four water washes. Pavelle scientists in England developed a new non-diffusing color couplers and high speed sensitizers so that the process requires only two solutions and a single wash with the processing cycle down to three minutes.

At present only handmade prototype exist, but with favorable trade acceptance, it is hoped the machines will be available for the public for the Christmas season. Price: between $150 and $200 each. As for color quality, the prints I made with the Pavelle process were not as good as standard Kodachrome prints made with the same negatives. They were a bit yellowish, a little less sharp and less color brilliant. I was told the prints needed more washing and the machine required more critical lens adjustment to correct these faults.

Pinewood Derby Event Staged For Cub Scouts

More than 100 Cub Scouts, their parents and leaders gathered Tuesday for Pack 9's annual Pinewood Derby. In the competition, including five dens, two cubs tied for fastest-car honors. Russ Smith of Den 1 and Scott Gilbert of Den 3 shared honors in the speed competition and Scott Gilbert was judged the top craftsman.

Winners for the five dens were: Speed—Russ Smith, Den 1; Leonard Jones, Den 2; Scott Gilbert, Den 3; Randy Warren, Den 4; Richard Tucker, Den 5. Craftsmanship—Mike Cox, Den 1; Peter Simpson, Den 2; Scott Gilbert, Den 3; Drew Rumbley, Den 4; Don Gilbert, Den 5. Cubmaster Bob Gilbert presided at the event, an annual affair for Cub Pack 9, sponsored by Immanuel Baptist Church. Speed judges were Floyd Warren and Robert Van Veld. Judging craftsmanships were Alex White, Sam Sewall and Jimmy Warren.

Syria Calm In Wake Of Coup; Borders Sealed

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Syria remained calm today after the bloodless coup that toppled the right-wing civilian government. The new military rulers shortened the curfew they ordered by one hour.

The frontiers were still sealed, isolating this Mediterranean republic in the heart of the Middle East. Otherwise daily life went on normally with streets ordered cleared only from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m.

Damascus Radio continued to tell the five million Syrians—long accustomed to upheavals—to prepare for a swing back toward the left from the anti-nationalization policies of deposed President Nazem El Koudsi's regime.

The cornerstone of Wednesday's revolt was proclaimed as building constructive Arab socialism at home, promoting Arab unity, and positive neutrality and nonalignment in foreign affairs. The army made clear that the coup was a continuation—no a reversal—of its Sept. 28 revolution that broke the alliance with President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic.

Neighboring Turkey and Jordan took the word of the Syrian military that its takeover was purely an internal affair. A spokesman for the Turkish foreign ministry predicted quick diplomatic recognition of the new military regime.

Diplomatic sources in Cairo claimed the Syrian switch enhanced President Nasser's prestige because of the junta's endorsement of Arab socialism, the term Nasser uses for his program.

Israeli officials adopted a detached attitude and said they did not expect any change in Syrian-Israeli relations that have become increasingly bitter with recent border clashes.

Sources in Beirut said there was evidence that the Syrian military not only did not like the civilian government's swing to the right but were also suspicious of the way it played Arab politics.

Some Beirut newspapers speculated that the Syrian officers particularly opposed moves toward formation of a joint Syrian-Lebanese command. They were reports in Lebanon that ousted Premier Marouf Daouh and other civilian leaders, including ex-Premier Mamoun Kuzbari, may be brought to trial. Kuzbari has been speaker of Parliament since election of the now-dissolved legislature last December.

The ruling army command said it had accepted the resignations of President Koudsi and Premier Daouh's cabinet, but did not make any reference to their fate. There was a hint, however, that some may be under arrest.

Loaded School Bus Overtaken

GREENSBORO (AP)—A school bus overturned Wednesday when its driver swerved to avoid striking three small children in the street. Twenty-eight children on the bus were hurt, but only one was hospitalized.

Carol Leigh Cooper, 12, was admitted to a hospital for treatment of a broken collarbone, cuts and bruises. The other students were released after treatment of minor injuries.

Gilbert Cameron, 16, the driver of the bus, said he started to turn at an intersection and saw three children in front of him in the street into which he was turning. He said he swerved to avoid hitting them, and the bus turned over on one side. Between 50 and 60 children were aboard the bus.

S.C. Assembly Winds Up Business With Unusual Note Of Bitterness

COLUMBIA (AP)—A few House members sang "Auld Lang Syne," some senators shook hands with each other, and the South Carolina General Assembly ended state wide legislative business Wednesday on the bitterest note in memory.

The final day brought into the open a breach between two of the most influential men in the General Assembly—State Sen. James P. (Spot) Mozingo of Darlington and House Speaker Solomon Blatt of Barnwell.

Mozingo, taking the Senate Floor in answer to what he obviously considered a personal rebuff, attacked Blatt's personal, professional and political integrity.

Choking with rage, the normally jovial Mzingo said of Blatt: "Under cover he has stifled everything that was good for education in South Carolina." With a sarcastic reference to Blatt's "integrity," he inferred that he and Sen. John Long of Union were short-changed by Blatt two years ago when all three appeared at a parole hearing in behalf of Sam Epes, member of a wealthy Virginia papermaking firm serving life for slaying his wife. Epes won a parole.

"Blatt cried at the Epes hearing," Mzingo said. "He told the Parole Board he had not received any money—that he was appearing in the interest of justice."

"Then he liked to have torn Travis Epes' coat off until he got $10,000, and then he ran and left me and John holding the bag." Mzingo said he got a $7,500 check; but refused to cash it, and Long received a "small sum and a bushel of oysters," for his services (He told newsmen later Long received $5,000).

Across the corridor, an angry House came to the support of Blatt, who has served as speaker longer than any other man in South Carolina history. A resolution supporting Blatt passed the House 82-0.

Blatt, overcome with emotion, his voice trembling, rose to thank his colleagues.

"I am not concerned about the attack across the hall and will not dignify it with an answer," he said. "For the enemies I have made I beg forgiveness. I have always been taught to do what is right."

Mozingo's blast was touched off by House refusal to go along with Senate changes in a bill providing additional expenses to cover the 1962 General Assembly session.

The Darlington senator was one of the three senators named to work out a compromise with the House. He told Senate colleagues compromise attempts had failed, recommended that the Senate withdraw its changes—and then launched into Blatt.

The Senate had added $1,200 to pay for a secretary for the Senate Education Committee, which Mzingo heads. The Senate also added a stipulation that would have allowed legislators to receive $10 a day per diem allowance, up to a maximum of 40 days, if they certified they were entitled to it.

The Senate is credited with 27 statewide days this session and members therefore get a total of $270 per diem. The House has been in statewide session 35 times and each member gets a total of $330 expense allowance.

Both Houses meet at least once each week in local session. Few lawmakers attend these meetings, but some do.

The Senate amendment would have allowed those few to get $10 per day allowance for local sessions they certified they attended.

Sen. Mzingo claimed Blatt's influence killed the $1,200 appropriation for the Senate Education Committee. At the same time, he said the bill contains an unspecified amount to pay for a secretary in Barnwell for Blatt.

Cobb Seeks NC Senate Seat

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP)—State Republican Chairman William E. Cobb announced his candidacy today for the State Senate from Burke County. He then criticized North Carolina's Democratic administration.

"If elected," Cobb said in a statement, "I will seek repeal of the food tax, which can be done without injury to educational appropriations."

The state's 3 per cent sales tax was extended to foods by the 1961 General Assembly at the request of Gov. Terry Sanford to finance his stepped-up education programs.

Cobb was elected state senator from Burke County in 1957. The county has not had a senator since because of a rotation system with Alexander and Caldwell counties.

The GOP chief said he would "continue to demand proper legislative reapportionment and work toward a complete modernization of our state Constitution."

He said the state also needs improvement in the enforcement of school attendance, its welfare programs and employment. He advocated a state civil service program and a 40-hour week for state employees.

Cobb added, "North Carolina needs closer supervision of its fiscal affairs. I would advocate a comptroller appointed by the General Assembly, rather than by the governor."

Mrs. W. L. Bryant Dies After Illness

BETHEL—Mrs. Lula Brown Bryant, 68, died early Thursday morning in Edgecombe General Hospital in Tarboro after several years of declining health and critical illness for one week.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Mrs. Bryant was born in Edgecombe County, the daughter of the late Lewis and Mary Alfred Brown. She spent her entire life in Edgecombe County and the Bethel community. She was married to Wiley L. Bryant, who survives with two daughters, Mrs. Mahlon Edmondson of Route 1, Tarboro, and Mrs. R. E. Spooner of Panama City, Fla.; three sons, Harold of Battleboro, Virgil of Lakeland, Fla., and Coy of the U.S. Army in Fairbanks, Alaska; six brothers, Jesse Brown of Pine-Point, Walter Brown of Raleigh, Linwood Brown of New Bern, Bobby and Thurman Brown of Tarboro and Tom Brown of Greenville; two sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Whitehurst of Speed and Mrs. Ellis Whitely of Bethel; and eight grandchildren.

A ROCKET FOR ROLLISON

CHAPTER 28
Richard Rollison went into the kitchen in Kate Lawson's flat, found a pepper shaker and slipped it into his pocket. He then went quietly down the stairs.

He could hear men talking down in the hall, and could imagine the way Ebbutt's men and the police were arguing that it was impossible for anyone to have got into the premises without their knowing; and so it was. Rollison reached the front door of the flat below, which was immediately beneath Kate's. The door looked exactly the same. He pressed a bell and the ringing sounded very loud. There was no response; he had not really expected any. He wished that he had thought of this at a time when he could have come here without the awareness that the police were on the alert, but the police could not get a search warrant for this flat without much stronger grounds.

He rang again, and there was no reply. He took out his picklock, and began to use it cautiously. Soon the lock clicked back. He pushed gently and the door yielded. It made little sound. He dropped his right hand to his pocket and went inside. The room was furnished with old-fashioned, Victorian furniture. It had a dilapidated look about it, too—an uninvited look. He closed the door without fastening it.

The layout appeared to be exactly the same as Kate's flat, with the kitchen on the left, the bathroom beyond it, the narrow bedroom on the right. He stepped towards this, and as he did so, he heard a movement behind the closed door of the bedroom. He stepped swiftly alongside the door, close to the wall. There was another sound, and no doubt at all that someone was moving. He thought that the movements were furtive, but could not be sure.

He pressed close against the wall, and the sounds seemed to be much louder. A floorboard creaked. He watched the handle of the door, and after what seemed a long time, it began to turn. It moved so slowly that there was no doubt at all of the furtiveness of whoever was there. He held his breath as the door creaked as it opened wider. Would anyone, frightened, behave quite like this? Then he saw the muzzle of a gun, and he was in no doubt. He flung the shaker, and pepper billowed out when it struck the door. A gasp was followed by a choking cry. Rollison moved on the instant. He kicked the door wide open, saw a man reeling back, the gun waving in his hand. How right he had been! Then he saw the man trying desperately to recover his balance, and trying to point the gun at him.

The man fired. Rollison flung himself downwards, knew that the bullet could only have missed him by inches, and clutched the man's legs with his outstretched hands. The man crashed. He heard a shout from upstairs, and a moment later footsteps thudded on the stairs. He grappled with the man, struggling to grip his right hand, knowing that the gun hadn't dropped. He felt the cold steel. He had to make him drop that wrist. He clutched the sinewy wrist and tried to twist it—but the man's strength was nearly as great as his.

He felt the other try to bring up a knee and drive it into his stomach, wriggled to one side, and caught the blow on the thigh. Then two men rushed in, and from that moment there was no need for alarm. When he looked down at the captive, a few minutes later, Rollison recognized the man whom he had attacked downstairs, whom Kennedy had left unconscious, and whom Bennett had called Carby.

"I know," said Superintendent Grice of Scotland Yard; "you were able to do what we couldn't. No one's going to charge you with breaking and entering. If you keep this pace up, you'll be stretched out on a morgue slab before we have a chance to charge you with anything. Are you all right?"

"The after effects of good honest fright, Bill, that's all. The bullet was a lot closer than I like." "It was a lot closer than I like, too," Grice said grimly. "Well, let's see what we can find. I've a nasty feeling that we're going to find that you were right again." He went on, smothering a grin. "I shall still call it guesswork."

"I don't care what you call it," Rollison rejoiced. "I've just been realizing how lucky I was that the men who came here last night didn't leave the guard in side the doorway. If they had—He broke off. "Well, it happened. Shall we try the kitchen first?" "Why?" "Because the kitchen floor was covered with linoleum, which is easier to push up than boards with a bedstead on it," Rollison said. They went into the kitchen of the downstairs flat, and needed only a glance to see exactly what had happened. There was a large hole, chipped out of the plaster of the ceiling, and showing the joists and boards beyond.

Grice pulled up a kitchen chair, stood on it, and pushed against the bores; they went up easily. Light shone down from Kate Lawson's kitchen. It was a comparatively simple matter for anyone to climb up and down here. "Not much doubt what happened," commented Grice. "They used the kitchen to get in and out when they couldn't use the front door. Now we moved a table in the kitchen so that it wasn't possible to get in there. Carby had to find somewhere to hide. He hid under Miss Lawson's bed, and got out and downstairs when she was asleep. We can't give the men in the big room tulle marks, but the man only had a few feet to cover without being seen; it could be done all right."

Grice paused before going on. "He had a telephone down here and could be in constant touch with Thompson, and be briefed about Kennedy. The actual method by which he drugged them doesn't matter for the moment; but it wouldn't have been difficult for him to have slipped a pill into some milk, made sure they would drop off to sleep, and then turned on the gas. That way it would stop us looking for the murderer—a suicide pact would seem the obvious answer. It was practicable all right, Rollison." "Yes," Rollison said. "And it means that they want both Kennedy and Kate dead. So, what or whom do Kennedy or Kate know?"

"Thompson," suggested Grice. "Could be," agreed Rollison, and looked across at Carby, who was standing between two men, handcuffed to one of them. He had refused to say a word. "You couldn't stretch another half inch and let me have a session with Carby, could you?" he asked wistfully.

"I wish I could," said Grice with feeling. It was obvious that Carby simply would not talk, and as obvious that it would not be possible to find any pressure that would break him, as Bennett had been broken.

"Wanted for murder" is a message Grice has for Rollison. The story continues here tomorrow.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—At the annual Southern Baptist convention in San Francisco this June, an increase to $19,792,500 of the denomination's general program budget will be proposed, an executive committee decided.

Rumors Fly As Eddie Fisher Enters Hospital

NEW YORK (AP)—Eddie Fisher is in a hospital here. The New York Daily News says the singer, "crushed by the apparent collapse of his marriage with Liz Taylor, has suffered a nervous breakdown and is a patient behind locked doors in a private hospital."

Fisher's personal manager, Milton Blackstone, says, "There's nothing mentally wrong with him." Blackstone said Fisher entered a hospital for rest and relaxation and is scheduled to leave Friday. "He has a lot of work to do and some recordings to make," Blackstone added.

Blackstone said later that Louis Nizer, counsel for Fisher and Elizabeth Taylor, had issued this statement: "Mr. Fisher is simply resting for a few days at a general hospital at the suggestion of his physician, Dr. Max Jacobson. All rumors of a more serious illness are unfounded." "I have advised Miss Taylor in Rome of Eddie going to a hospital for a brief rest and she is comforted by the fact that the published statements of his condition are untrue."

The copyright story in the Daily News said, "The prospect of divorce proved too much for the young singer." The Daily News said Fisher is in Gracie Square Hospital. The hospital, which has a general division and a psychiatric division, said it has no patient registered as Eddie Fisher. Fisher, 33, who arrived in New York from Rome on March 21, seemed normal last Sunday night when he appeared on television here. CBS-TV "What's My Line?"

Receive Awards
Clym W. Barber and Wilfred W. Allen of Jenkins Motor Co. Inc., and John R. Taylor of F. and D. Motor Co. of Bethel will be presented the Ford Motor Company's 300-500 Club award at a banquet in Norfolk, Va. Saturday.

The banquet will honor high-ranking Ford dealership car and truck salesmen of 1961 in the Richmond Ford sales district. C. W. Ramsay, Richmond district sales manager, said 300-500 Club membership awards are presented for excellent retail sales performance. The Ford 300-500 Club was founded in 1950 to recognize the performance of outstanding Ford salesmen throughout the country.

Ramsay added that the average 300-500 Club member sold nearly $400,000 worth of automotive merchandise in qualifying for the national honors.

Attend Convention
J. D. Wilson Jr., representative of Volunteer State Life Insurance Company and Mrs. Wilson attended Volunteer's convention at the Diplomat Hotel in Hollywood, Fla. The meeting began March 21 and continued through Saturday.

Working with people and helping them "get what is rightfully theirs" gives Icen E. Wilson Jr., manager of the Greenville Social Security District office much satisfaction.

Wilson, a native of Wellington, W. Va., graduated from high school at Philippi, the county seat, then in 1940 entered Alderson-Broadus College in Philippi. Here he remained until entering the Army in December 1942.

While serving in the military, Wilson was connected with an S2 (security and-patrolling) section and stationed in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

While in the European theater, he was awarded the Bronze Star and Purple Heart. When asked about the medals, Wilson commented simply, "We got in a fight and I happened to be the leader of the patrol. A lot of people deserved them a heck of a lot more than I did."

Wilson, with the 405 Regiment of the 102 Infantry Div. was discharged as a sergeant in December of 1945. He then returned to Alderson-Broadus College but transferred to West Virginia University at Morgantown in the spring of 1947. He graduated here from the School of Agriculture in 1950, and after teaching in the veterans training program for a short time accepted a job with the Farmers Home Administration in October 1950.

In May 1954, after working in the Clarksburg office of FHA, Wilson transferred to Social Security and in January 1955, was made a field representative in the Clarksburg office. In October of the same year Wilson was transferred to the Washington, D. C. District office where he became Claim Supervisor.

Less than two years later, in September 1957, Wilson returned to West Virginia as assistant manager of the Charleston office. He remained at that post until being named manager of the district office here February 26.

As manager of the office here, which covers an eight-county area, Wilson's main duty is to "see that people in the counties we are assigned are informed of social security and that they receive prompt and courteous service in the handling of their inquiries and claims for benefits."

Wilson explained the Social Security program as "an insurance system. People pay for it . . . each person has the right to request information and get this service," he emphasized.

"Working with people" is

Philippines Get More Corpsmen

MANILA (AP) — A third contingent of 42 U.S. Peace Corps volunteers has arrived for service in the Philippines, bringing the total in the islands to 223.

Another group is expected this summer to swell the total to 300. The new arrivals will be assigned as teachers' aides in schools in Leyte and Samar Islands in the central Philippines. They will first undergo a five-week training and orientation program at the University of the Philippines.

what he likes best about his job. "In this business, you get to talk with the president of a large corporation, then turn around and talk with the person that has cleaned his office for years. You never cease to learn something from each one!"

"Helping them get what is rightfully theirs" gives a good feeling.

"We in the office are always interested in talking with people about working with the federal government, and will help arrange for exams for those who want careers in federal service. We need top-notch individuals in government work and the public expects this and should have it."

"We in the office have an obligation, too, to make proper referrals. If we can't help them we try to find out who can and send the person to the proper place."

"We deal close with individuals . . . but the meat of the whole thing is giving service."

"We are a part of the broad Health, Education and Welfare Department and must be interested in what the broad program is doing . . ."

"If the proposed increase in residual oil quotas goes through it will be equivalent to four million tons of coal a year. That's another four million tons that won't be produced and sold to pay wages to American coal miners or royalties to our Welfare Fund or to bring income into depressed coal mining communities."

Here again is a difficult situation. The United States seeks to build up the economy of Latin American countries in the hope of keeping them on our side of the fence. Thus, we pay more for Brazilian and Colombian coffee than we should. Thus we give Hong Kong and Italy advantages over our clothing industry. As long as the United States is the principal consume 's goods market in the world, nations which have commodities to sell will bargain politically for their share of this market.

Thus domestic economics comes into conflict with international political policy and compromising decisions do not help because involved in this question are jobs for our workers.

If the Kennedy Administration can find a formula for preventing unemployment, this problem could solve itself. But unemployment is intolerable. It is a tough nut to crack and thus far no wise man has come forth with a solution.

Beaufort County Sports Vets On Phant Baseball Club

Fans Welcome Stasavich

WASHINGTON, N. C. — East Carolina's new head football coach, Clarence Stasavich, was honored by Beaufort County last night with a supper get-together in the high school cafeteria here.

About 100 persons attended the supper honoring the new coach, Ashley B. Futrell, editor of the Washington Daily News, presided over the program with Mayor Thomas Stewart of Washington and Sam Moore, chairman of the county commissioners, giving the welcome speeches.

Both speakers told Stasavich that Beaufort County was more than happy with his appointment and that East Carolina meant a great deal to their area.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina College, introduced the new coach to the group.

Stasavich discussed the football program at the college and football in general. He also brought up the single wing version of the game which he was famous for during his 15 years of coaching at Lenoir Rhyne.

Others attending the meeting from East Carolina were Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, director of athletics, assistant coaches Odell Welborn, Ray Pennington and Sal Gero, Dean Robert L. Holt, and Cecil Heath, director of Sports publicity.

Four Pirate football players, all from Washington, were also on hand. They were Ted Day, Jerry Paul, Skipper Duke and Cecil Cherry.

By GEORGE BRYANT
Reflector Sports Editor

Coach Bud Phillips' Rose High School baseball Phantoms played their first game of the season Tuesday afternoon at Tarboro with a host of veteran players on hand to help the club in the 1962 campaign.

The team lost only two boys from last year's squad and has six freshmen that are real promising, according to Coach Phillips. The two boys the team lost were pitcher and outfielder Larry Roberts and second baseman Leon Williamson.

Among those who returned to the squad are two boys who were named to the All-Conference team last year. They are Billy James and Rommie Brock. James played third base and in the outfield most of last year, but has been switched to second base this year to fill the vacancy left by Williamson. Brock was the number one catcher last year and is filling that post again this season.

McArthur Back

The Phantoms also have the services of senior Alan McArthur again this season. McArthur ran track last spring but lettered in baseball during his freshman and sophomore years. He is holding down the first base spot this season.

Other infield veterans on the team are Kroehle Andresen who is again taking over the duties at shortstop and Billy Williamson who lettered on the team last year as a freshman.

In the outfield Coach Phillips has Ed Smoot, a senior, who plays leftfield most of the time, Ken Joyner, a junior, in centerfield and Elbert Felton who was out most of last year with a knee injury, is holding down the rightfield spot for the Phants this season.

Pitching Staff

The pitching staff is made up of seniors Burney Morris and Spencer Harrington and sophomore Rodney Knowles. Also on hand as a pitcher when he is needed is Danny Hardee, a junior. As a freshman, Knowles played first base, but he is being converted this season in the opening game with Tarboro which was not concluded due to a tie and darkness, Knowles allowed one hit, struck out five and walked none.

Youngsters on the squad this year for the first time are sophomore Dale Gidley in the outfield, and freshman Wade Summerlin at third, Tommy Smith at shortstop, Malcolm Beamon at shortstop and pitcher, Mitchell Jones on second, Sonny Taylor at first and Melvin Hudson catching.

Boys Look Promising

Coach Phillips said that he has 19 boys on the squad after cutting some that turned out for early practice session. "All of these boys look promising," the coach noted.

In commenting on the first game of the season which will be continued on April 27 to break the tie, Phillips said, "I thought the boys did well considering it was our first game. The pitching was a little erratic at times and of course there were some mistakes we hope to correct. We hit the ball well, but it just did not land in the right places."

Of course, Phillips noted, some roughness is expected at first, "especially with no more practice than we have had." For the boys that did not play basketball, practice began on Feb. 28, but the weather has hindered them a lot. The seven boys that were on the basketball team reported for practice on March 19, but the weather was bad most of the week and they were unable to get much work done.

Last year the Phantoms finished third in the conference and Roanoke Rapids won it. Elizabeth City came in second. This puts the three top teams in the northern division which means there will be some tough competition for those four.

Rose High will play its first game tomorrow afternoon with Elizabeth City in Guy Smith Stadium after school.

NCS Red And White Game Set For Saturday

RALEIGH — Coach Earle Edwards concludes off-season football practice for North Carolina State's Wolfpack with the annual Red and White football game this Saturday at 2:00 p.m. in Riddick Stadium.

"We have had some good practice sessions, despite the weather," said Edwards, "and we had a good chance to watch some of our new personnel, who will have to do a lot of playing for us next fall," he added.

Members of last year's freshman team, up-coming sophomores in the Fall, will be used extensively in the Red and White game and it will give Edwards and Wolfpack fans a good look at some of the newcomers under game conditions.

Edwards will wait until scrimmages later in the week before breaking his squad down into the two opposing teams for this annual attraction, sponsored by the North Carolina State Monogram Club.

Steve Parker, tackle from Durham, and guards Bennett Williams of Ahoskie and Don Hamilton of Charlotte, along with the linebacking of Lou DeAngelis, Reading, Pa., drew praise from Edwards for the spring showing.

Injuries, participation in spring sports and other reasons will keep some lettermen out of the Red and White game.

Last year the Reds came from 13-0 deficit to win 15-13, with the winning score coming on a 93-yard drive.

Many Of Golfdom's Elite On Hand For Azelea Open

WILMINGTON, N. C.—The 14th annual $20,000 Azelea Open golf tournament, opened a four-day run today at the Cape Fear Country Club here with Defending Champion Jerry Barber heading a field of 130 professionals and 10 amateurs.

The field is headed with many of the elite of golfdom's touring troupe. In addition to Barber, five other former Azelea Open champions are entered. They are Bill Maxwell (1955) who holds the tournament record of 270 for 72 holes; Mike Souchak (1956) who is the leading money winner in the Azelea tournament with a total of $6,753.33; Howie Johnson (1959), Art Wall (1959), and Tom Neiporke (1960).

Leading the challenge to Barber's title are Billy Casper of Apple Valley, Calif., fresh from victory in the Doral Open at Miami; Gary Player, last year's leading money winner, Jay Hebert, Gene Littler, Bob Rosburg, Doug Ford, and Tommy Bolt, all among the top 15 of 1961's professionals.

Other top entries include Dave Ragan, Dave Hill, Mason Rudolph, Dow Finsterwald, Stan Leonard, Dave Marr, Marty Furgol, Jack Fleck, Lionel Hebert, Jim Ferree, Charlie Sifford, and Fred Hawkins.

Young Phil Rodgers, one of the hottest on the winter tour, also heads a group of youngsters who promise to make a ding-dong raceout of the Azelea Open. Others are Tommy Jacobs, bidding for a Masters' invitation; Frank Boynton, Paul Bowleson, who finished second at Doral Open; Bob Shave, and Buddy Sullivan.

Among the veteran campaigners are such as Australian Jim Ferrier, Dave Douglas, Skee Riegel, Chandler Harper, Leo Blaggett, Bob Gajda, Jerry Magee, and Bob Goez.

The amateur field includes three former winners, Raleigh Powell and Bobby Harrell, both of Wilmington, and John Hughes of Greensboro, and Ed Justa of Rocky Mount who was low amateur in the St. Petersburg Open recently.

The six other places in the amateur division were filled Tuesday in a qualifying round. J. B. (Bunny) Hines, president of the sponsoring Wilmington Athletic Association, says this is the largest and best field the Azelea Open has had in the past six or seven years.

One Of Strongest Fields In Years

By KEN ALYTA

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP)—The first 13 years apparently, are the hardest. The Azelea Open golf tournament, bigger and better than ever, opened its 14th staging today with its biggest purse ever—$20,000, and one of the strongest fields it has boasted in years.

In recent years the Azelea has been bypassed by many of the top flight circuit stars. Some said they had to head for the Augusta Masters to sharpen their games for the classic the following week. Others just weren't interested in displaying their skills in a tournament with a purse that ranged between $10,000 and $12,500, last year's jackpot, over the 54-hole route.

Sponsors went to work before the final putt had dropped last spring and made plans to make the event more attractive to more of the top players. Wilmington with a population of about 44,000, is one of the smallest cities or the PGA national tour. The 72-hole format was restored and the jackpot pushed up to $20,000.

As a result, the quality of the field is about the best in the tournament's history.

Gary Player, sharpening his game for his Masters defense next week, is in the field numbering about 120 pros and a few choice amateurs.

The three men who have won more Azelea money over the years than any of their rivals are back to add to their bankrolls. Mike Souchak, with $6,753 earned here, leads the pack. Jerry Barber is second at $6,640 and Dow Finsterwald third at $6,120, although he never has won the tournament.

Barber's victory in a playoff with Chandler Harper here last spring was his second. Souchak won in 1956.

Ken Still of Tacoma, Wash., and Lionel Hebert fired four-under-par 68s Wednesday to tie for top pro money in the pro-amateur warmup. Each won $230.

Downes' Camp Has Big Hopes

BOSTON (AP)—A million dollar gate is envisioned by the Terry Downes camp after—and if—the battling Briton successfully defends his share of the middleweight title against former champion Paul Pender on April 7.

"Terry hasn't made a great deal of money from fighting yet," his manager, Sam Burns, said Wednesday night.

"But if we get past this one—the third one with Pender—and are successful in arranging a fight with Gene Fulmer, I'm looking for the first million dollar gate in a long time in the middleweight ranks. The last one I can recall is Randy Turpin and Sugar Ray Robinson 11 years ago."

Burns, said that the 25-year-old Downes pocketed only $17,000 in the first Pender fight, which he lost on a seventh round TKO in Boston. The $20,000 that Terry made in the second bout has been tied up in escrow to insure that Downes would give Pender a rubber shot.

Pender, a former fireman from suburban Brookline, retired in the ninth round of the second fight, in London last July, saying a virus attack several days before the bout finally caught up with him.

Pender, 31, who owns one of the best left jabs in the business, ranks a solid 2-1 favorite in Boston betting circles against the scrappy though unpolished Downes. However, the odds are even in London.

Downes is recognized as champion in Europe, Massachusetts and New York.

Students Yield To New Coach

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Colorado's football fantasy, tragicomic production with a cast of hundreds, came to a happy ending today.

The University of Colorado student body yielded to the friendly grin of the young new head coach, William E. (Bud) Davis; Squad members admitted they were unfair about threatening a revolt, and finally, Dal Ward returned as a peacemaking hero after three years of academic obscurity.

"I thought he was kidding when he called," the 56-year-old Ward said in reference to Davis' summons to be the Buffalo defensive coach.

End Ken Blair, the 1962 football captain who threatened rebellion when Davis was appointed head coach Tuesday, said it was all a mistake.

Blair and most of the other team members had supported end coach Bob Ghilotti as the candidate to succeed Everett (Sonny) Grandelius, who was fired March 17 for violating NCAA and Big Eight recruiting rules.

Ward was fired by Colorado's regents three years ago after compiling a record of 63 victories, 41 losses and six ties in 10 seasons. He has been a professor of physical education since then.

Conference Split

This year the Northeastern Conference of which Rose High is a member, split the schedule for the first time into a northern and southern league. There are four teams in each division and each team will play the other members of its division four times.

May 17, 18 and 19 have been set aside for a playoff between the winners of each division in a two out of three series for the conference championship here at Guy Smith Stadium.

Coach Phillips said that the new system was set up because the coaches felt it would be fairer than playing only one game with each team as in the past. This old method the coach explained, gave the home team advantages. He also mentioned that with one league game a week a team could get by with one good pitcher, but with two league games a week several pitchers in win.

The question of travel also entered into the picture. Jacksonville, Roanoke Rapids and Elizabeth City are always faced with distances of about 100 miles for each game and this would cut that down some.

Greenville is in the northern division with Tarboro, Roanoke Rapids and Elizabeth City. The southern division is made up of Kinston, Washington, New Bern and Jacksonville.

Palmer, who won more than $80,000 during the 1960 tour, has played in nine tournaments, won two and placed high in the money two other times for $15,400.

Gene Littler was second with $15,361 and Phil Rodgers third with $15,215.

Horace Rawlins, a 19-year-old assistant pro at Newport, R. I. Golf Club, won the first U.S. Open golf title in 1895. He's still the youngest golfer ever to win the tournament.

Faculty To Play Varsity Friday

GRIFTON—It will be the Youngsters vs. the Oldsters Friday night at the high school gym here when the varsity teams play the faculty in two exhibition basketball games.

The varsity teams have the advantage of months of practice, but the play was close last year. The men's team will be composed primarily of faculty members, but PTA ladies will help round out the women's faculty team.

A special feature of last year's game, the faculty cheering section, will be in evidence again to boost the morale of the faculty teams and cheer them on to victory.

Proceeds will go to help balance the PTA budget. Game time will be 7:30 p.m. for the first game of the double-header.

Pirate Golfers Defeat Elon

East Carolina's golf team coached by Ray Penning won their first meet of the season Tuesday afternoon at the country club when they defeated Elon 14-13.

The low medalist for Elon was Bobby West with a 74 on the 18 holes. Billy Brogden and Rick Sauve both shot 78 for East Carolina.

Elon now has record in the Carolinas Conference of one and one. The next match for the Pirates will be at home on April 3 with Atlantic Christian of Wilson.

The story was first reported to the Daily Reflector that East Carolina lost the match and it appeared that way in Wednesday's edition.

Cepeda May Be Homer King In '62

By MIKE RATHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Who might hit 62 in '62. When that question pops up around baseball circles, the player named as most likely to hit that homer target is Orlando Cepeda, who started spring training late but is getting the home run range early.

The National League home run king, 28, gave his backers added support Wednesday when he belted a three-run job that snapped a 5-5 tie and carried the San Francisco Giants to an 11-6 triumph over the Los Angeles Angels at Phoenix.

It was No. 4 of the exhibition season for the right-handed swinging Cepeda and his third in three consecutive games.

Cepeda is one of the players figured as a threat to Roger Maris' 61-homer mark. The young first baseman-outfielder hit 46 homers and 142 RBI last season while building a .311 batting average.

With an expanded 10-team league, an enlarged 162-game schedule, Cepeda could wind up No. 1 in the homer derby. And quite possibly with 62 in '62.

In other noteworthy developments Wednesday, Houston's Ken Johnson became the first pitcher this spring to hurl a nine-inning shutout as he blanked Boston 6-0 on five hits at Scottsdale, and Washington's unpredictable Jimmy Piersall tried an experiment that partially succeeded in a 15-7 loss to Baltimore at Pompano Beach.

The New York Yankees defeated St. Louis 4-1 at Fort Lauderdale, Philadelphia outslugged Milwaukee 12-11 at Clearwater, Cincinnati beat Detroit 4-2 in 10 innings at Lakeland, the New York Mets edged Los Angeles' Dodgers 4-3 at St. Petersburg, Cleveland whipped the Chicago Cubs 9-6 at Mesa and Minnesota nipped Pittsburgh 7-6 at Orlando.

The Colts won their 11th in the last 13 games with Johnson throttling the Red Sox and Merritt Ranew leading the attack with two doubles and a single.

Piersall, a righty-swinger, batted lefty against knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm, stroked one hit and struck out in another appearance while home runs by Earl Robinson and Gus Triandos were powering the Orioles to their victory.

Held hitless for six innings by the Cards' Bob Gibson, the Yanks jumped on Ray Sadecki for consecutive homers by rookie Joe Pepitone and Clete Boyer for a pair of runs in the seventh. Pepitone's blast was a three-run homer, but the Phils needed an unearned run in the ninth on Roy McMillan's error to beat the Braves.

An error, singles by Frank Robinson and Gordon Coleman and a passed ball gave the Reds two runs in the 10th to wrap it up against the Tigers. Rod Kell struck a two-run single and Felix Mantilla contributed a run-producing hit as the Mets came up with three runs in the ninth after two were out to overhaul the Dodgers.

Rookie Al Lupow, up from Salt Lake City, slammed a pair of two-run homers that led the Indians to their win over the Cubs. The Twins rallied after Bill Mazeroski's three-run homer given the Pirates a 6-3 lead and finally won it when rookie Rich Rollins drove in the deciding run in the ninth with his third hit of the day.

Robert Neyland, Former Tennessee Coach, Dies

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Praise poured in from leading figures of the sports world today for Gen. Robert Neyland, dead at 70 after his formula for flawless football gave him years of fabulous success as Tennessee coach.

The big, gruff man, who produced some of America's top teams and gave the game some of its best coaches, died Wednesday at Ochsner Foundation Hospital of a kidney and liver ailment. Hospital officials said Neyland, who entered the hospital Jan. 14, lapsed into a coma Tuesday night.

The general was a non-conformist and never abandoned his precision single wing when other coaches adopted the more spectacular T-formation after World War II.

In his 27 years as Tennessee coach, the Volunteers won 171 games, lost only 27 and tied 12. His 1951 team finished first in The Associated Press poll and was crowned national champion. He stepped down in 1953 because of the liver ailment.

"I believe Gen. Neyland was the greatest coach of them all," said one of his brightest stars and most apt pupils, Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech.

George Halas, one of the founders of the National Football League said, "It is quite a shock to hear of the death of one of the stalwarts of football. He was a great tactician. He developed one of the great systems and contributed so much to the sport."

"I don't know anyone who contributed more to football, as a player, coach and member of the (NCAA) rules committee," said former Columbia coach Lou Little.

An outstanding engineer, Neyland spent a year on an assignment in the Panama Canal Zone, but retired from the Army in 1936 to give his full energy to football.

The Army recalled him to active duty in 1941 and he spent the next five years in service, rising to brigadier general. He won the Distinguished Service Medal for his work as commandant of the Port of Calcutta handling billions of dollars in supplies for the China-Burma-India theater of operations in World War II.

Other than Dodd, other Neyland-trained coaches include Murray Warmath of Minnesota, Bowden Wyatt of Tennessee, Ray Graves of Florida, Bill Barnes of UCLA, Clay Stapleton of Iowa State and Phil Dickens of Indiana.

Neyland is survived by his widow and two sons.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in Knoxville. He will be buried in the U.S. National Cemetery, not far from the field where his teams won some of their memorable games.

New Mexico Gets New Cage Boss

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—The University of New Mexico has a new head basketball coach today—Bob King, 38-year-old, assistant coach at State University of Iowa. He accepted New Mexico's offer of the $10,000 a year job Wednesday.

King said he was excited about the challenge posed by New Mexico's move to the Western Athletic Conference which launches its first season next year.

Before going to the Iowa job three years ago King compiled a 205-75 record as a high school coach in Iowa and Illinois.

USC Just Can't Seem To Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

South Carolina's George Epps must be wondering what a guy has to do to win a baseball game. The Gamecocks have played three games this season, and have lost all three. Epps was tagged with two of the losses, both shutouts. The latest was Wednesday's 2-0 loss to The Citadel.

In the two games he's pitched—one a seven inning contest—Epps has allowed just six hits. But the Gamecocks were shut out in both, getting a total of only five hits themselves.

The Gamecocks backed the 5-11, 175-pound righthander with just three hits Wednesday against the pitching of The Citadel's Joe Wal-kendach. Walkendach struck out nine and walked three. Epps fanned seven and walked two.

Three other Atlantic Coast Conference teams were beaten Wednesday. Marland dropped a 10-9 verdict to Lafayette; North Carolina fell to Yale, 9-6; and Duke lost to Rollins, 7-6.

Duke takes on Amherst at Winter Park, Fla., today, and Virginia opens its season by entertaining Yale.

Lafayette came from behind for three runs in the seventh, and added another in the eighth, to edge the Terps. Six of Maryland's runs were driven in by third baseman Frank Martz, who hit a homer and a bases-loaded single.

Duke, playing in the Rollins Baseball Week tourney, lost when the host team pushed across runs in the ninth on Jim Emerson's single. Amherst beat Princeton 8-7 in the other game.

North Carolina collapsed in the eighth inning and allowed Yale five runs, more than enough to win the game. Three pitchers gave up four walks in the inning, hit one batter, and allowed two hits. The Tar Heels also committed two costly errors.

Larry Neal's homer for the Tar Heels had tied the score at 4-4 in the seventh. North Carolina got two runs back in the bottom of the eighth, but the rally fell short. Bobby Cox was the losing pitcher.

Paret Remains Unconscious

NEW YORK (AP)—Former welterweight boxing champion Benny Paret of Cuba entered his fifth day of unconsciousness today with his wife optimistic but his doctors saying he still had only a slight chance to survive.

A medical bulletin Wednesday night from Roosevelt Hospital, where Paret 24, was rushed for emergency brain surgery after his 12th round knockout loss to Emile Griffith Saturday night, said the fighter "is maintaining the slight improvement which he showed yesterday. His condition remains critical."

A spokesman said his coma had lessened but remained deep.

"He's not going to get better fast," the spokesman said. "He may get worse. There's no way of telling how long he'll be in a coma. He could come out of it in a few minutes or a year from now. And he might not come out of it at all."

Paret's personal physician, Dr. Manuel Acosta, talked to hospital authorities and said he was convinced there was only a slight chance Paret would recover. Two neurologists said that, at best, the fighter's chances were less than 5 in 100.

While the reports were not encouraging, Paret's wife, Lucy, said "I feel a lot better than I felt about his condition before."

Mrs. Paret, expecting the couple's second child in September, has been with her husband almost constantly since Sunday after a hurried trip here from Miami.

The tragedy continued to be the basis of action both here and abroad.

In Vatican City, the Vatican Radio called professional boxing objectively immoral because physical injury was in its "very nature, aims and methods."

Leaders of the New York State Legislature ordered an investigation of boxing, its safety procedures and its possible criminal elements. The investigation will determine whether the state should outlaw boxing altogether or regulate it more strictly.

In Boston, Terry Downes and Paul Pender agreed to take brain tests prior to their April 7 fight.

Paret's brother, Antonio, 26, arrived Wednesday night from Santa Clara, Cuba. Antonio said their mother, Maxima Crespo, had her travel papers in order and expected to come to New York from Havana today or Friday.

Charles R. Schmitter has been Michigan State's fencing coach since 1939, the Spartan's only fulltime coach in that sport.

WCC Trustees Receive Report

CULLOWEE, N. C. (AP)—The executive committee of the board of trustees of Western Carolina College has received a preliminary report from the State Bureau of Investigation on alleged misuse of college property and improper financial transactions.

After receiving the report Wednesday, the committee issued a statement which said the preliminary report indicated the investigation is incomplete.

The committee said that "as soon as the completed report has been furnished it will promptly receive the necessary attention."

Odds About Even In Friday Bout

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The betting was about 6-5 and take your pick today on the heavyweight match between old-folks Archie Moore and Argentina's Alejandro Lavorante in the Sports Arena Friday night.

Moore, whose dwindling portion of the world light heavyweight title is not involved, kept secret his exact weight.

But it was apparent he has trimmed down and his advisor, Jack Kearns, said Moore will step into the ring at around 191 pounds.

The 25-year-old Lavorante, a ranking contender for the heavyweight crown, will weigh about 210, manager Pinkie George predicted.

There will be no television nor radio broadcast of the 10-round bout.

A total of 23,154 spectators were on hand in Fenway Park, Boston, last Oct. 1 to watch Roger Maris of the New York Yankees hit his 61st home run of the season.

Sarnoff Suggests Science Alliance

NEW YORK (AP)—An alliance of the free world's scientists similar in nature to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization has been proposed by the board chairman of the Radio Corporation of America.

David Sarnoff told the golden anniversary banquet of the Institute of Radio Engineers Wednesday night:

"We can no longer afford the luxury of American science or British, French, Italian or German science if the individual parts are smaller than the sum."

Sarnoff would admit to the proposed Free World Community of Science countries which permit free scientific inquiry unhampered by political ideology.

Court Told It Isn't Fair To Bop A Hare, Anywhere

By PHIL CORNER
 RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—It isn't fair to bop the hare. So to speak, said Richard Meek.

In fact, it isn't even sport, he told the court.

He left the justices to decide the proper form of rabbiticide.

But he had an idea most unfunny. He was for a shotgun blast to make the rabbit breathe his last.

Before this rhyming gets too gory, we think it's time to tell the story.

Attorneys for both sides of the celebrated Iredell County sticks-and-stones rabbit hunt appeared before the State Supreme Court Wednesday to argue their cases.

The justices tossed a barrage of questions at Richard Meek of Charlotte, who sought a court order outlawing the "bunny bopping," which has become an annual affair of the town of Har-mony's American Legion, post. Representing the legion were Arthur Beckham and C. B. Winberry of Statesville.

The legionnaires make an afternoon out of it each fall and the deceased rabbits make up the menu at a subsequent barbecue.

Last year, after weeks of public outcry against the sticks and stones hunt, the legion bowed and made it a shotgun affair.

Meek told the court the sticks and stones hunt constituted a public nuisance, not because the rabbits got hurt, but because it taught children to use brute force.

This raised the eyebrows of Associate Justice Carlisle Higgins, himself an ardent hunter. "How can you kill without using brute force and what difference does it make whether you use a stick or a shotgun?" Higgins wanted to know.

"Use of a shotgun is sporting," Meek informed him.

Justice William B. Rodman asked about coon hunts and fox hunts in which dogs are released to chase down and chew up their quarry. And Justice R. Hunt Parker inquired as to Meek's opinion of people who kill chickens by wringing their necks.

Meek replied he would be opposed to a chicken wringing party with children watching.

Beckham argued that there was no evidence the hunts constituted a public nuisance.

The appeal was from a decision of Superior Court Judge Walter Crissman, who dismissed a plea to forbid the legion post from staging a more rabbit hunt.

The Supreme Court now has the case under advisement.

Hard Times As Red China Congress Meets

An AP News Analysis
 By JOHN RODERICK
 TOKYO (AP)—Red China's long-delayed National People's Congress—its rubber-stamp parliament—finally opened this week in Peiping against a backdrop of hunger and hard times at home and quarreling in the world Communist camp.

All the leaders of Chinese communism—with one exception—were present for the inaugural session in the Great Hall of the People, which flanks the Square of Heavenly Peace.

The exception was Marshal Peng Teh-huai, who dropped from sight in September 1959, soon after being relieved as minister of defense. A vice premier and member of the powerful Politburo of the Communist party, he is reported being disciplined for opposing Chairman Mao Tse-tung's ambitious communes program and the "great leap forward" in industry and agriculture.

Time has proved the marshal right. As the Congress began hearing reports from officials, the communes were a recognized failure, and the great leap has been slowed to a standstill.

Mao, the architect of Chinese communism, appeared healthy and in good spirits, belying reports that he is ill.

A radio photograph from Peiping showed him, dressed in his customary gray tunic, smilingly shaking hands with deputies. The photograph revealed little outward change in Mao over the past few years. He is less bulky, and his round face has become more angular with age, but his hair is only slightly touched with gray.

Since the last Congress in March 1960, natural calamities and generally poor planning have brought about disastrously inadequate harvests.

In the past 12 months Mao has given agriculture emergency first aid by decentralizing control of the vast commune system which had herded some 500 million peasants into 26,000 military-style centralized farm camps.

In effect, he has turned back history and handed control of the land to smaller, more workable groups similar to the precommunist producer cooperatives.

At the same time he has reverted to a controlled type of capitalism on the farm, permitting the peasant to grow much of his own food and livestock on privately owned plots of land. The farmer now is allowed to sell what he grows, and the handicrafts he makes at home, in capitalist-style country fairs.

During the current period of readjustment, which will last a long time, the Red economists admit industry's goals have been sharply pared. Yet projects have been quietly shelved. Factories have been ordered to turn out more fertilizers, farm machines, and consumer goods for the farmer.

A staggering exodus, in which millions have participated, has been carried out from the cities to the countryside in an attempt to halt the threat of agricultural disaster.

Along with these domestic difficulties, an historic dispute now divides Peiping and Moscow.

It enters around Soviet Premier Khrushchev's opposition to the continued employment of hard Stalinist policies, both at home and on the international front. The Red Chinese regard Stalin's policy of unyielding antagonism to the West and his belief that war with imperialism is inevitable as the only correct one.

The split came into the open with Khrushchev's denunciation of Albanian Stalinism last October and Premier Chou En-lai's criticism of Khrushchev for washing the dirty Communist linen in public. The Red Chinese leadership still seems determined to do the washing in private. For the first time foreign diplomats and foreign newsmen in Peiping have been barred from the Congress sessions.

Unkind Words For Presenting Oscars

By BOB THOMAS
 AP Movie-Television Writer
 HOLLYWOOD (AP)—That Piddly pixie, Richard Haydn, has some unkind words for Oscar.

This is the season for it. In 10 days Hollywood will be performing its annual orgy of award-giving. Meanwhile, it is open season on Oscar.

George C. Scott fired a blunderbuss at the golden nude, asking that his nomination be withdrawn because the academy race has become too commercial.

"I applaud George C. Scott," says Haydn, whose weapons are more subtle.

The English-born comedian, director and actor said he was once a member of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

"I quit the year they nominated Cornel Wilde for an award," he said.

"That was the end."

Haydn believes the academy can never reward artistic merit properly under its present setup.

"Too many academy voters have a commercial interest in how they vote," he observed.

"So they vote for their self-interest. It's impossible for them to think in something besides commercial terms. It's like asking a blind man to describe the spectrum."

What can be done to make the academy less commercial?

"I don't know," Haydn admitted. "But it seems to me the academy made more sense back in its early days when it was a small affair, a banquet for the insiders."

"Also, there should be some representation by foreign film industries—England, France, Italy, etc. The movie industry is no longer limited to Hollywood."

Haydn is now up in the air after 13 months of being at sea. His present film is "Five Weeks in a Balloon." His previous one: "Mutiny on the Bounty."

Water Pressure Told The Story

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Employees of the St. Louis County Water Co. didn't need TV to know that Col. John Glenn was in orbit.

At 8 a.m. on the day of his flight the company's water pressure graphs began to show a drop in water usage in the county. By 8:47 a.m. the drop was so great some water pressure pumps were cut off.

An hour later, when Glenn was in orbit, water usage returned to normal.

Israel Rejects Eichmann Plea

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel's Supreme Court today rejected motions by Adolf Eichmann's attorney to hear new witnesses in the Nazi official's behalf and refused to frame its verdict on his appeal against the death sentence.

The high court handed down its ruling on the defense motions only 30 minutes after Eichmann's West German counsel, Dr. Robert Servatius, completed his final plea to save the condemned Gestapo officer from the gallows.

Chief Justice Izhak Olshan announced: "It is decided to reject the defense motions to hear new evidence at this time. The court will now retire to weigh its verdict on the appeal. Notice of our judgment and the date on which we will announce it will be provided in advance to all parties."

The court is expected to take about a month to write the verdict. If it rejects Eichmann's appeal, he has one more possible escape, an appeal for clemency to Israeli President Izhak Ben-Zvi.

The future legal steps are likely to consume many weeks, and the final outcome of the Eichmann case may not be written before June or July.

Servatius in his final argument urged the Supreme Court to accept Eichmann as a man "caught in the whirlpool of political events" and lift the death sentence given him as a chief accomplice in the Nazi murder of six million Jews.

Carroll Says Too Little Outlay On Maintenance

RALEIGH (AP)—Local units are spending 1.19 per cent of the total valuation of school property for maintenance and Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles Carroll says it isn't enough.

Dr. Carroll released a report Wednesday showing that $9 million was spent last year for upkeep of school plants valued at $756 million.

He said, "You can't maintain your physical plant and equipment with this amount of money." He suggested that the figure be at least 3 per cent of the total value.

Dr. Carroll noted that most of the maintenance funds come from fines, forfeitures, poll and dog tax—in county budgets. He added, "In many instances, this source of revenue is not adequate."

Brunswick, Pamlico and Scotland counties were the only three spending at least 3 per cent for maintenance. Avery, the state's poorest county in per capita income, spent only $548 for the upkeep of school property worth more than $1.8 million.

Dr. J. L. Pierce, director of the School Planning Division, said the maintenance figure should vary according to the age of school buildings. He said a county with a large number of new schools would not require as much money for upkeep as one with old buildings.

Deserter To Get Psychiatric Test

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—George John Gessner, 25, an Army deserter accused of giving nuclear secrets to the Soviets, will be under psychiatric observation for at least the next 60 days.

U.S. Dist. Judge Arthur J. Stanley Jr. ordered him to the federal prison system's medical center at Springfield, Mo., Wednesday.

Gessner is charged with violating the Atomic Energy Act by giving restricted information to a Soviet agent. He could be sentenced to death.

Psychiatric examination was requested by Gessner's court-appointed attorney, Ernest J. Rice of Topeka, Kan. Rice said Gessner told of receiving a head injury Feb. 13, 1959, in Brevard County in Florida, and said his father was admitted to a mental institution in Texas 10 months ago.

Army authorities said young Gessner scored in the brilliant to near-genius range on his aptitude tests.

He is the son of John George Gessner of Kingsville, Tex., and Mrs. Hazel Blanch Raymond of Melbourne, Fla.

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Medical men investigate how often humans swallow, the return of some alcoholics to safe social drinking, and injuries from dancing the Twist.

SWALLOWERS

Eating a 10-minute lunch, the average person apparently swallows 48 times, and he swallows 7 to 8 times during a full night's sleep.

Sitting and reading, 15 volunteers also averaged 34 swallows per hour, and 31 while lying down awake, reports Dr. Clement S. Lear of the Harvard School of Dental Medicine.

The reduced amount of swallowing during sleep, with little or no salivation, may affect the activity of mouth bacteria, Dr. Lear says. Swallowing involves strong muscular actions, and this may be significant in the development of treatment of malocclusion, the failure of teeth to meet properly.

ALCOHOLICS & SOCIAL DRINKING

A dictum among experts on alcoholism is that the confirmed alcoholic can never return to social drinking. Most times, one drink or a few drinks lead to destructive binges.

But this may not always be so, says Dr. D. R. Davies, a British psychiatrist from London. He tells of seven men, out of 93 persons given limited psychiatric treatment, who were able to resume social drinking, and have been able to drink moderately for 7 to 11 years since then. Of the seven men, ranging in age from 26 to 47, four changed from jobs that frequently brought them into situations involving drink.

But Dr. Davies still cautions that the majority of alcoholics cannot return to normal or social drinking, and advises that all patients being treated for alcoholism should be told to seek total abstinence. He gave his report in the quarterly Journal of Alcohol Studies, publication of the Rutgers Center of Alcohol Studies. The center recently moved to Rutgers from Yale University.

TWIST INJURIES

A physician accustomed to treating injuries suffered by football and basketball players in contact sports is puzzled over the knee injuries among teen-agers doing the Twist, the acrobatic new dance craze.

Dr. Bernie P. Davis of Buffalo, N.Y., says he thinks the Twist has an hypnotic influence on the performers, "so they are unaware of the hazards to themselves. Under normal conditions, when excessive strain is put on knee ligaments, they react with pain, and the person stops whatever is causing the pain. But in the Twist, teen-agers seem to be hypnotized by music and rhythm and don't realize the strain they are putting on their knees."

Working On An Artificial Heart

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A University of Florida engineering-doctor research team is working on an artificial heart it hopes may some day replace human hearts that have stopped functioning properly.

The team Dr. Kenneth Cruze, fellow in thoracic surgery, and Dr. Marvin F. Eisenberg, an assistant professor of electrical engineering, successfully tested one model in a mock circulatory system.

A second model, almost completed, will be tested on animals.

The heart is a cylindrical valveless aluminum pump with plastic tubing and is powered electrically.

Helpfulness Can Cost His Life

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—Lyman Eastwood, 77, may pay with his life for trying to be helpful.

Fred Carlson, 16, was draining gasoline from a power mower Wednesday in the basement of his home two doors away. He was too close to a water heater and the bucket of gasoline caught fire.

Eastwood saw the flames and hurried over. He tried to push the blazing bucket out the door with a snow shovel but the bucket turned over and he was engulfed in flames.

His condition was reported critical.

Carroll Says Too Little Outlay On Maintenance

RALEIGH (AP)—Local units are spending 1.19 per cent of the total valuation of school property for maintenance and Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles Carroll says it isn't enough.

Dr. Carroll released a report Wednesday showing that $9 million was spent last year for upkeep of school plants valued at $756 million.

He said, "You can't maintain your physical plant and equipment with this amount of money." He suggested that the figure be at least 3 per cent of the total value.

Dr. Carroll noted that most of the maintenance funds come from fines, forfeitures, poll and dog tax—in county budgets. He added, "In many instances, this source of revenue is not adequate."

Brunswick, Pamlico and Scotland counties were the only three spending at least 3 per cent for maintenance. Avery, the state's poorest county in per capita income, spent only $548 for the upkeep of school property worth more than $1.8 million.

Dr. J. L. Pierce, director of the School Planning Division, said the maintenance figure should vary according to the age of school buildings. He said a county with a large number of new schools would not require as much money for upkeep as one with old buildings.

Deserter To Get Psychiatric Test

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—George John Gessner, 25, an Army deserter accused of giving nuclear secrets to the Soviets, will be under psychiatric observation for at least the next 60 days.

U.S. Dist. Judge Arthur J. Stanley Jr. ordered him to the federal prison system's medical center at Springfield, Mo., Wednesday.

Gessner is charged with violating the Atomic Energy Act by giving restricted information to a Soviet agent. He could be sentenced to death.

Psychiatric examination was requested by Gessner's court-appointed attorney, Ernest J. Rice of Topeka, Kan. Rice said Gessner told of receiving a head injury Feb. 13, 1959, in Brevard County in Florida, and said his father was admitted to a mental institution in Texas 10 months ago.

Army authorities said young Gessner scored in the brilliant to near-genius range on his aptitude tests.

He is the son of John George Gessner of Kingsville, Tex., and Mrs. Hazel Blanch Raymond of Melbourne, Fla.

Working On An Artificial Heart

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A University of Florida engineering-doctor research team is working on an artificial heart it hopes may some day replace human hearts that have stopped functioning properly.

The team Dr. Kenneth Cruze, fellow in thoracic surgery, and Dr. Marvin F. Eisenberg, an assistant professor of electrical engineering, successfully tested one model in a mock circulatory system.

A second model, almost completed, will be tested on animals.

The heart is a cylindrical valveless aluminum pump with plastic tubing and is powered electrically.

Helpfulness Can Cost His Life

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—Lyman Eastwood, 77, may pay with his life for trying to be helpful.

Fred Carlson, 16, was draining gasoline from a power mower Wednesday in the basement of his home two doors away. He was too close to a water heater and the bucket of gasoline caught fire.

Eastwood saw the flames and hurried over. He tried to push the blazing bucket out the door with a snow shovel but the bucket turned over and he was engulfed in flames.

His condition was reported critical.

Israel Rejects Eichmann Plea

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel's Supreme Court today rejected motions by Adolf Eichmann's attorney to hear new witnesses in the Nazi official's behalf and refused to frame its verdict on his appeal against the death sentence.

The high court handed down its ruling on the defense motions only 30 minutes after Eichmann's West German counsel, Dr. Robert Servatius, completed his final plea to save the condemned Gestapo officer from the gallows.

Chief Justice Izhak Olshan announced: "It is decided to reject the defense motions to hear new evidence at this time. The court will now retire to weigh its verdict on the appeal. Notice of our judgment and the date on which we will announce it will be provided in advance to all parties."

The court is expected to take about a month to write the verdict. If it rejects Eichmann's appeal, he has one more possible escape, an appeal for clemency to Israeli President Izhak Ben-Zvi.

The future legal steps are likely to consume many weeks, and the final outcome of the Eichmann case may not be written before June or July.

Servatius in his final argument urged the Supreme Court to accept Eichmann as a man "caught in the whirlpool of political events" and lift the death sentence given him as a chief accomplice in the Nazi murder of six million Jews.

A Business-Like Approach To Farming

HOME WORK — All of a tobacco farmer's work isn't done in the fields. Here Alton T. Johnson, Pitt County tobacco farmer, works on his business books in his farm home.

By HENRY HOWARD
Greenville Reflector Staff Writer

An open mind, an ambition for an open mind, an ambition for bettermen, a generous supply of hard work and a weather eye for the weather keep Alton T. Johnson, 35-year-old tobacco farmer, in business.

And business it is for Johnson. Now in the early stages of producing his fourth flue-cured crop, he recalls a "mighty bad" crop year in Martin County in 1947 drove him away from his father's farm. A decade of business training and accountant work set the state in 1958 for his business-like farming operation in northern Pitt County.

Johnson, a Martin County native, operates a 200-acre farm about two miles north of Stokes. Fifty-five of his farm acres are cropland and he owns an eight-acre tobacco allotment. Through a rental arrangement, he adds slightly more than four additional acres to his tobacco crop.

With his business training as a basis, Johnson watches his production costs closely. He constantly keeps track of profit margins as he produces his cash crops, including peanuts and cotton.

But with Johnson, as with most eastern North Carolina farmers, tobacco is the money crop. From early January when plant beds are prepared until the last basket is auctioned in the fall market season Johnson must baby his crop.

To Johnson, proper care of his prime income-producer includes use of the latest scientific and technological developments. Under way now on his farm is a planned three-year rotation system to enhance the physical condition. "There'll be better production," he says of the plan's expected result.

He is careful to select his crop's variety and the content and amount of fertilizer through use of soil tests, made available through N.C. State College in Raleigh. He frequently seeks advice from Pitt County's tobacco specialist, assistant county agent S. J. Weeks.

Johnson's planned tobacco crops have been fruitful, too. Last year's 12-acre yield average 2,400 pounds an acre, well above the county's average. His gross per-acre income was about 1,500. Deduction of the estimated $800-an-acre production cost Johnson realized a nice profit. And the 1961 showing was performance the year before.

In producing tobacco on a qualitative and quantitative basis, Johnson says he cannot "be satisfied with the way things are." His philosophy: "You have to be willing to accept and use new methods . . . and you must always feel that what you are doing can be done better." Following his philosophy, Johnson says he is shooting for a 3,000-pound-an-acre yield.

In addition to a business-like approach to farming and use of scientific means, however, there are two traditional but still vital factors. "The land you have and what the weather does; they're awfully important," Johnson says.

He explains that performing certain operations in his tobacco production depend upon the weather. "If there's a lot of rain you do it one way. If there's a dry spell, you have to try something else."

The other key factor—the land itself—must be mastered with time, Johnson believes. "You just have to learn how your land will react when treated in a particular way. You have to find out which techniques will produce the most desired result under particular weather conditions."

Johnson paints a complex picture of tobacco production for the layman. Why did he return to the farm?

He grew up on his father's farm and, thus, owned a wide general and specific knowledge of agriculture. And his years as an accountant, following graduation from East Carolina College, left a gap somehow.

"I've never been any more satisfied in my whole life than I am right now," Johnson says.

He moved into his present home, comfortably furnished and cozy, when he and his wife obtained the farm through inheritance four years ago.

Johnson is married to the former Lessie Corey of Stokes and they have two sons, 11-year-old Al and Steven, 1, and a six-year-old daughter, Lisa.

Hopes Build Too High On Basis Of Predictions

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Washington has finally admitted officially what many others have questioned from the start. While the economy is strong and improving, it isn't as robust as called for in the administration's time table.

The first three months of 1962 are a disappointment—but only if measured by the official predictions. Commerce Secretary Hodges admits the shortfall.

The trouble once again is in building hopes too high on the basis of predictions. The signs are missing to back any fears, felt by a few disappointed ones, that a downturn is inevitable.

The administration is waiting till next month to scan the March reports before deciding how far the economy fell short of the goal. But already the President has asked Congress to vote funds for public works in areas of chronic unemployment.

Other pump priming plans might be in the works if the spring pickup in business also falls short of expectations.

moving in that direction and would reach an annual rate of $53.5 billion in the total value of all goods and services in the first three months of 1962. Hodges now says it might be around $55 billion. Some Wall Street observers think it may be closer to $50 billion.

Govm't-Paid Travel For Military Families Slated To Be Resumed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government-paid travel of military families to Europe will resume by early May, key Pentagon officials predicted today.

Scares Burglars Out Of Shoes

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Sherman Meenach has an anti-burglar system that scares would-be thieves right out of their shoes. After several burglaries at his tavern, Meenach installed a microphone in the cafe with the speaker in his apartment upstairs. He says he has foiled several burglaries because he could hear the thieves. The latest burglar, who took off when Meenach appeared on the scene with pistol in hand, left a size 11 loafer in front of the tavern door and the other one in an alley outside.

Such travel by wives and children of Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine officers and men was suspended nearly six months ago at a time when the Berlin crisis military buildup was in full swing. The Defense Department said then that the requirements for moving 40,000 regular Army reinforcements to Europe made necessary the suspension of dependent travel. This troop movement is long past, but the Kennedy administration has kept the dependent travel suspension in force as one way of cutting down the still bothersome drain of gold and dollars. All the services have urged that the restriction be lifted, arguing that it is creating a morale problem and inhibiting re-enlistments. No decision has been announced but there are strong hints one is imminent.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara hinted as much in a letter to Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., in which the Pentagon chief said the suspension policy "now is generating very serious personnel problems for the armed forces." At the same time, McNamara indicated other steps may be taken to control the size of the military dependent population overseas. Meanwhile, Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr. said in a speech prepared for a Bethany College convocation in West Virginia that "one of our great needs at the present time is the early mention of dependent travel to overseas areas so that our soldiers can benefit" from the influence of family life. Before the cutoff, an average of 9,147 military dependents went to Europe each month at government expense.

for getting them out should something occur." He did not elaborate. The suspension covers travel to Belgium, Denmark, France, West Germany, Greece, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Turkey and Britain. It does not apply to West Berlin.

Two Crushed To Death By Rubble

CHICAGO (AP)—A mother and her 5-year-old daughter were killed Wednesday by falling debris as a gust of wind blew down a ruined building as they were walking by it. Susan Johnson was crushed to death in the rubble. Her mother, Helen Johnson, 22, died in a hospital. Another mother and her son, walking with them, were treated at a hospital and released. The one-story brick building shell stood at 953 E. 63rd St. on the South Side. A fire in January burned out several small shops. The Canary Islands got their name from canis, the Latin word for dog. Early explorers found a ferocious breed there.

Wofford College Has Indirect Claim To Producing Actress

By CARL MAY
Spartanburg Journal Staff Writer

SPARTANBURG, S. C. (AP)—Wofford College is noted for outstanding men who have studied beneath its twin towers.

Although the Methodist liberal arts college has turned out many preachers, lawyers, jurists, physicians, teachers and others in the professions, it can lay claim indirectly to turning out a movie star.

Judge Julien C. Hyer of the 14th District Court, Dallas, Tex., graduated from Wofford in 1913. He is a native of Aiken.

Judge Hyer has a daughter who has achieved success as a top actress in Hollywood. She is beautiful Martha Hyer.

Judge Hyer received his law degree from Georgetown University and holds an honorary L.L.D. from Baylor University.

Only a handful of girls have ever graduated from Wofford (a boys school) so Martha sought her education elsewhere.

She applied herself diligently and has starred in several top-notch movies.

In spite of success with all the luxuries that money can buy, Martha gives credit for her spectacular climb up the thorny patch of Hollywood stardom to her mother and father.

Relates Martha, "Most of my success I owe to my parents, who told me I could do whatever I wanted after I graduated from college. They're both active in the Highland Park Methodist Church in Dallas, and they gave me stability; that makes my life wonderful."

While a senior at Wofford, Judge Hyer was a reporter. "I served Mr. Charles O. Hearon, editor, as Wofford reporter when I was a senior," he said in a recent letter.

"I went to work for him on graduation (for $32 a month) as general reporter around town on the Morning Herald. The afternoon (Journal) reporter—my opposite number, Charlton Shelton, got hurt and I had to work both shifts for a time (same salary). Great experience!"

During World War I he was an officer in the 36th Division. He was colonel in the Judge Advocate General Corps in World War II.

Between the two wars, he worked in the U. S. Supreme Court library and practiced law at Waco and Fort Worth. He also served in the State Senate and worked for the Veterans Administration in Dallas. He was civil district attorney of Dallas County from 1950 to 1956.

He writes a daily column of verse "The Shepherd" for the Dallas News and other newspapers. A collection of his verses was published in 1955.

Writes Judge Hyer: "My daughter Martha (one of three) was born in Texas. She visited her grandmother in Orangeburg once or twice. I have a few near relatives left there now and rarely go back."

As with many people who have achieved prominence, the most important turning point in Martha's life came out of adversity. Returning from a high school dance with three friends, the car in which she was riding skidded on a wet curve and crashed into a telephone pole. Martha plunged forward into the rear of the front seat, seriously injuring her knee.

She was on crutches for a full year. Out of circulation, Martha turned to study and determined to make something of herself. It is quite apparent that she has succeeded.

Her greatest relaxation is painting. She dabbles in oils frequently, leaning toward still life, and landscapes as subject matter. She would like to devote more time to painting than her busy schedule permits.

Following graduation from Fort Worth Arlington Heights High School, she enrolled at exclusive Fairfax Hall Junior College, Waynesboro, Va., two years later.

Martha transferred to Northwestern University where she majored in speech and drama. She graduated with a degree in 1949. Immediately following graduation, Martha trained for the coast and joined the Pasadena, Calif., Community Playhouse group.

A talent scout for RKO studios spotted Martha in a playhouse project she was auditioned, screen tested and signed to a long term contract.

Miss Hyer won wide praise for her portrayal of a neurotic playgirl opposite Lawrence Harvey in Hal Wallis' production of "A Girl Named Tamika" for Paramount release.

She was also nominated for an academy award prize as best supporting actress opposite Frank Sinatra in the MGM "Some Came Running."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Billy Gray, who portrays the young son Bud in the "Father Knows Best" television series, has pleaded innocent to a charge of drunken driving.

A jury trial was set Wednesday for April 23. Judge Robert Dulin set April 12 for the preliminary hearing on another charge, possessing marijuana. Police said they found a plastic bag containing what appeared to be marijuana seeds in the actor's car. They said Gray, 24, admitted having a few beers but denied any connection with the narcotic.

Uncle Sam Not Keeping Track Of His Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP)—Don't ask Uncle Sam what happens to the trading stamps he gets with his purchases. He doesn't rightly know.

The reason for his ignorance, officials explained today, is that it would probably cost him more to find out than the stamps are worth.

"If we called for reports to Washington accounting for the stamps, we'd have to enlarge the bureaucracy," they say. "A lot of valuable paper and high-powered stenographers would go to waste on trivia."

Not that the government lacks a firm policy. When a federal employee buys something for the government and gets stamps, he's supposed to turn them into his office. Then the office is supposed to redeem them for things it needs, like a new desk-lamp for the boss, or turn them over to federal hospitals. But no costly bookkeeping, the instructions say; no reports with 14 carbon copies.

In case they've escaped your notice, trading stamps are little coupons handed to shoppers at a host of retail stores across the country. You get one stamp with each 10 cents worth of merchandise; then you stick them in books, usually 1,200 or 1,500 to a book. When you've stuck in enough you can get premiums.

Though it is the world's biggest buyer, the government does not collect as many stamps as you might think. For example, none came with the new aircraft carrier Enterprise. What a stamp-licking job that would have been! The ship cost $440 million, which would have meant 4.4 billion stamps.

But federal employees driving cars on official business may stop at gas stations which give stamps. And there is a certain amount of other buying at retail—strawberries or perishable vegetables in season, for example. Nobody here knows just how much of the total buying is done at stores that handle stamps.

Government policy on the stamps was firm up in May 1960, as the result of a bit of a furor. Rumors had spread that the government had big hoards of stamps it did not know what to do with.

Clergymen wrote in asking for them, so they could get new organs for their churches. One housewife pledged to lick all the government's stamps, if she could keep half of them.

So the General Services and the General Accounting Office federal watchdog, put their heads together. They decided the government couldn't legally give stamps away. The result was a directive to agencies: Redeem them at the lowest organizational level, with a minimum of accounting. Or hand them over to government hospitals. And you needn't report to Washington.

Sanford Closes Speaking Tour

JACKSONVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Gov. Sanford has ended a two-day speaking tour of eastern North Carolina schools, bringing his message of the importance of education directly to the students.

Sanford made appearances at 11 schools Wednesday after a day-long visit to 11 others, plus an orphanage, Tuesday.

The governor noticed Marine Corps Maj. Gen. J. P. Berkeley, commander of the Camp Lejeune base, in the audience of 4,000 persons at the Jacksonville High school athletic field.

"I know the general would agree with me," Sanford said, "that our truest defense is not in a man who can carry a rifle, but in trained and skilled manpower." Gen. Berkeley nodded affirmatively.

Sanford said, "The most important objective and function of government in America today is the function of providing education of high quality."

Sanford's day-long tour Wednesday included spots at Jones, Jones Central High School and Trenton Elementary School in Trenton; Richlands High, Jacksonville and Georgetown highs at Jacksonville; Camp Lejeune High; Swansboro High; Havelock High; a North Carolina Education Association banquet in Morehead City; King High at Morehead City; and Beaufort High in Beaufort.

Careers Day

Health Careers Day, sponsored by the Pitt County Medical Auxiliary, will be held Friday at 2 p.m. at the East Carolina College Library auditorium.

Talks and tours in areas of medicine, dentistry, dietetics, veterinary and other technical fields will be held, with the purpose of informing high school students as to opportunities and training requirements in the various health careers.

Some 120 students from Pitt schools are expected to attend.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to rally early this afternoon in the week's most active trading. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .70 at 260.20 with industrials up 1.10, rails up .40 and utilities up .20. Gains of most key stocks were fractional, some going to about a point.

Steeles continued to pace the rally at the start but tended to moderate their gains as the session continued. Tobacco resumed their recovery. Oils, nonferrous metals, rails and aerospace issues were on the upside. Motors and rubbers were mixed. U.S. Steel was up a full point at the start but halved this in later dealings. Fractional gains were shown by other steels. Lorillard and American Tobacco rebounded about a point each while Liggett & Myers and Reynolds rose fractionally. Schenley lost more than a point. Carter Products rebounded about 2 points. Chrysler dipped a fraction and American Motors eased while General Motors held firm and Ford rose a fraction. A 2-point rise by Du Pont firmed the averages. The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.78 at 714.03. Prices were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange. Corporate and U.S. government bonds were steady.

Stockpiling List Secrecy Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Except for two items listed as "undisclosed materials," the cost, value and quantity of each of 76 materials in the nation's $7.7-billion strategic stockpile were a matter of public record today. Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., removed the secret labels from 62 war-essential materials Wednesday at a hearing of his Armed Services subcommittee on stockpiling, which is investigating the costly hoard by request of President Kennedy. A dozen materials were declassified last week. Wednesday's testimony revealed the government owns more than 100 million pounds of most stockpiled products. A three-year supply is now considered enough to tide the country over a major war. Figures supplied by the Office of Emergency Planning showed an excess of about $55 million worth of bauxite, $79 million of quartz crystals, $48 million of platinum, $21 million of silicon carbide, $25.6 million of aluminum oxide and $16.4 million of cadmium. There also is $25.7 million worth of unneeded castor oil, $1.4 million of excess opium, and $5.2 million of unneeded duck feathers and down used for military mattresses.

Funeral Saturday For Sam Tilghman

Mr. Sam Tilghman, 50, died at Norfolk General Hospital in Norfolk, Va., Wednesday night at seven o'clock following three months of illness. Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Saturday afternoon at two o'clock and burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. Mr. Tilghman, son of the late John W. and Mary Perkins Tilghman, was a native of Beaufort County and lived in Greenville for a number of years prior to going to Norfolk 30 years ago. He was a member of Sweet Gum Grove Free Will Baptist Church and was a retired groceryman. Surviving are a brother, Harvey Tilghman of Norfolk, Va.; a sister, Mrs. S. B. Everette of Ocean Park, Virginia, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Att'y General Wants Wiretaps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy asked Congress today to let state and federal lawmen use evidence obtained by wiretapping to fight major crime and racketeering. "The need for legislation is urgent," Kennedy said in testimony prepared for the Senate Judiciary Committee. "The existing situation with respect to wiretapping is chaotic. Law enforcement has not kept pace with scientific advancement," Kennedy said, "and individual privacy has not been protected." Kennedy urged passage of a bill he said would: "1. Enable the federal government to prosecute more effectively certain major crimes. "2. Enable the Department of Justice to more effectively prevent and punish persons who illegally violate the telephone users' right to privacy. "3. Clarify the authority of state police officials to wiretap." Kennedy said wiretapping has been authorized in some national security and kidnapping cases, but the resulting evidence cannot be used in court. "It is an anomalous situation to receive information of a heinous crime and yet not be able to use that information in court," he said.

As He Rode In 40-Year Career

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Funeral arrangements for Charles Schmidt, who died after almost 40 years as South Charleston fire chief, were carried out in accordance with a request he made years ago. The casket bearing Schmidt's body was taken to the cemetery not in a hearse but aboard a fire engine.

Funeral Friday For Andrew Murphrey

FARMVILLE — Andrew Linwood Murphrey, 47, died unexpectedly last night at his store, Route 1, Farmville. Funeral services will be held Friday at 3 p.m. from the Farmville Christian Church with the Rev. Jack Daniel officiating. Burial will follow in the Forest Hills Cemetery. The body will be taken from the Farmville Funeral Home to the church one hour prior to the service. Mr. Murphrey was a merchant at the time of his death. He was a veteran of World War II and a member of the Loyal Order of Moose.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Evelyn Civils Murphrey of the home; two sons, Andy and Everette of the home; one step-son, Hooker Thomas, student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; his father, L. L. Murphrey Sr., Route 1, Farmville; one sister, Mrs. Wilson P. Tugwell, Newport News, Va.; four brothers, L. L. Murphrey Jr. and David M., Route 1, Farmville, Oliver of Farmville and Charles of Baltimore, Md.

Explosion Kills One In Plant

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — At least one person was killed and several others were injured here today when an explosion rocked the Pamona Terra Cotta Co. The center of the main building was shattered by the blast which occurred at 10:45 a.m. Five persons were on top of the building when the explosion occurred. In addition to the damage to the main building, the top of a boiler room was blown 200 yards and several railroad cars in the yard were blasted from the tracks. Debris from the explosion was hurled 400 yards away and windows of shops more than 100 yards from the point of the explosion were shattered.

Soldiers' Blood For Hemophiliac

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Herbie Petry, 16, Melbourne, Ky., can thank four busloads of Ft. Gordon soldiers for 163 pints of blood. The lad, a victim of hemophilia—a disease of the blood which prevents it from clotting—needed 49 pints to replace blood given him. Herbie's mother, Mabel Blevins, wrote to her nephew, Spec. 4 William H. Petry, at Ft. Gordon about the problem. Petry took the problem to his first sergeant, Norman R. Crum. They asked for volunteers in the company and 163 responded. They donated 114 pints more than Herbie's debt, but the extra blood will go to his credit.

BELOIR — Chicod High School's land-judging team took top honors in county-wide competition here Wednesday and advanced into the state contest April 7. Competing with teams from Winterville, Grifton, Belvoir-Falkland and Stokes-Pactolus High Schools, the Chicod team—composed of four sophomores and a senior—received the highest rating based upon its ability to judge thickness, texture, consistence and structure of top soil and subsoil and its aptitude in prescribing conservation treatments needed by land it judged. State competition is scheduled for Biscoe in Montgomery County for Saturday, April 7. State-wide winner will advance to national land-judging finals in Oklahoma during May. By winning the Pitt County competition, the Chicod team was awarded a $25 cash prize and a trophy. Winterville's team, which placed second, received a $15 cash award and third-place Grifton received $10. Members of Chicod's champion team included Berkey Dennis, Wayne Dixon, Van Stanley, Ronald Evans and James Gardner. Charles Johnson, Chicod Vocational-Agriculture teacher, is the team's advisor. The same team will travel to Biscoe for state competition. Two of the team's members, Dixon and Evans, tied for top individual honors in Wednesday's competition, conducted at Belvoir-Falkland High School here. The Pitt County Agriculture Teachers Association expressed its appreciation for the contest's sponsorship by the Soil Conservation Service, State Bank & Trust Co. and Hugh Winslow of Greenville.
