Break-In Loot Examined Here

More Charges Confront Trio As Loot Studied

Three persons, picked up by city police Monday night on possession of burglary tools and other charges, are facing further charges in connection with break-ins in Pitt and Edgecombe counties.

Johnnie Mack Howard, 21 of 1800 East Fayette St., Baltimore, Md.; Wiley Herbert Swann, 22 of 1715 E. Mullikin St., Baltimore and Joseph Edward Champion, 16, of Rt. 1, Jarrett, Va. have been charged with breaking, entering and larceny by Edgecombe County authorities, the Edgecombe Sheriff's Department reported today. All three are Negro.

Pitt Deputy Duke Andrews said Howard and Champion will be charged with breaking, entering and larceny in connection with a break-in at the J. P. Davenport Store in Pictolus, March 19.

A quantity of merchandise identified as coming from Edgecombe County was recovered in Pitt County. Deputy Andrews said, however, none of the items taken from Davenport's store was retrieved.

An estimated $700 in merchandise was taken from Davenport's.

Andrews said further investigation in the case is underway. Greenville Police, Pitt and Edgecombe County Sheriff's Departments and the SBI have been cooperating in the investigation.

The trio was arrested by Monday night police officers. Two were called to investigate activity at an auto sales lot.

In addition to the possession of burglary tools charge the three face charges of auto larceny and interstate transportation of the vehicle. They will be turned over to the FBI on this charge.

Favor Expanding Of Peace Corps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has passed legislation that would authorize twice as much money and three times as many overseas volunteers for the Peace Corps.

The bill, sent to the Senate Tuesday by a 316-70 vote, would authorize a Peace Corps budget of $63.75 million for the year beginning July 1. Last year Congress voted $30 million to finance the training and assignment of 2,400 corpsmen to foreign posts.

Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, said only 698 volunteers have been sent overseas so far.

Revolt In Syria Is Quietly Ended

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The high command announced today that, with the revolt ended in northern Syria, one of its aims now is to bring about comprehensive Arab unity. This may mean some sort of renewed link with President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic.

A ban on travel between cities was relaxed. "The crisis has ended," said a high command statement broadcast by Radio Damascus. "Everybody is leaving it to the high command to take the necessary measures to put the country on the right path for the future and to bring about comprehensive Arab unity on a true basis."

That could mean a renewal of ties with the United Arab Republic, though certainly not in the light union that was broken by a Syrian army revolt last Sept. 28. Some form of federation may be in the offing.

The military leaders in Damascus sent assurances to the troops who staged a 48-hour uprising in Aleppo, a northern Syrian commercial city in which admiration for Nasser is strong. They said the rebels' demand for a link with the U.A.R. will be realized.

However, the two strongest men of the ruling military junta are anti-Nasser. They are Maj. Gen. Abdel Kerim Zahreddin, the army's commander in chief; and Col. Muwaffak Assassa. Both backed the Sept. 28 uprising and, six months later, the bloodless coup which ousted President Nazem el Koudsi's right-wing government.

The half-million people of Aleppo were kept under curfew except

Two Boy Scouts Credited With Putting Out Fire

Two Boy Scouts were credited by firemen with extinguishing a blaze in a Fleming Street dwelling last night and helping a man from the home.

Fire units were called to the 1504 A Fleming St. home when Box 71, at the intersection of Bancroft and Battle Sts. was turned in about 5:55 p.m.

When firemen arrived, they found the fire out and were told that two Scouts had done the job.

The Scouts, both Negro, were identified as Willie Atkinson of Troop 191 and Arthur Grice of Troop 131.

Officers said the fire started when a jug of gas, being used to clean a closet, overturned. The vapors from the gasoline were ignited by flames from a gas hot water heater nearby. Only minor damage resulted.

Ex-General Walker Says He Is Scapegoat; Flays Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edwin A. Walker, former Army major general, told investigating senators today he "was a scapegoat of an unwritten policy of collaboration and collusion with the international communist conspiracy."

The Army veteran lashed out at all officials, from the President down, in an appearance before a special Senate investigation into charges that anticommunist activities of military leaders have been muzzled.

"With this nation's survival at stake, our armed forces are paralyzed by our national policy of 'no win' and retreat from victory," Walker said.

"I, myself, am a victim of this 'no win' policy. I was charged with nothing. I have been found guilty of nothing. I have been punished for nothing."

Walker was relieved of command of the 24th Army Division in Germany last year and admonished after his troop indoctrination program came into controversy.

The Army found he had made derogatory statements about prominent Americans, including former President Harry S. Truman and Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Walker subsequently resigned from the Army and refused retirement pay. He is now living in Texas and is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of that state.

The caucus room was filled with spectators as Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the special armed services committee, banged his gavel for order.

Walker blamed his removal from command and admonition upon President Kennedy, saying: "The Chief Executive was both prosecutor and judge. The press reported without contradiction that the President directed Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to start the investigation, and that the President also reviewed and approved the Army's findings." Earlier he had listed the President, McNamara, Secretary of the Army Elvis Stahr Jr., and Army military heads in Europe as responsible for these actions.

Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, head of U.S. Army forces in Europe, directed Lt. Gen. Frederic J. Brown as an acting inspector general to investigate and report on the Walker case.

"General Brown's report, reportedly pursuant to its approval by the President, became the basis for my 'oral admonition' by General Clarke June 12, 1961," Walker said.

Walker protested any censorship of "citizens or soldiers' defense or offense against enemy propaganda," and said "the Walker case" showed what was happening.

"It is evident that the real control apparatus will not tolerate militant anti-Communist leadership by a division commander," he said.

Walker read slowly from a 32-page prepared statement which disputed most charges against him and lashed out at his critics. "The result of what happened to me is that there is today no effective program of psychological warfare training in the United States' armed services," Walker said.

"The traditional civilian control of the military has been perverted and extended into a commissar-like training in the United States' armed services."

"Finally, our will to resist communism is fast being sapped." Much of Walker's statement was devoted to a defense of his actions as a division commander in Germany and replies to testimony by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and others.

McNamara told the Senate group that there was evidence that Walker had tried to influence the votes in congressional elections of troops under his command.

Lashing back at his critics, Walker said: "However, Wilson's Airport Study Committee recommended that Wilson not join in the construction of an airport at Sharpburg, the site which Rocky Mount has under option. The committee pointed out that the site is 16 miles from the center of Wilson by the shortest route and only 6.4 miles from the center of Rocky Mount."

Wilson Accepts CAB Decision

Wilson has accepted a recent CAB decision denying air service to Wilson-Greenville but Pitt County will go ahead with plans to file a petition requesting reconsideration.

Council W. W. Speight said this morning plans are continuing to file such a petition with the CAB in line with action taken by the Pitt-Greenville Airport Commission last week.

Speight received a letter from Jack Maynard, city manager of Wilson informing him that the Wilson board of commissioners had accepted a report of its Airport Committee.

This committee, headed by L. H. Gibbons, recommended that Wilson accept the decision of the CAB. "This would mean that Wilson would not join in any effort to secure a re-hearing of this matter," the report read.

The Wilson commissioners' resolution also authorized the city manager to enter negotiations with Rocky Mount concerning a joint airport.

However, Wilson's Airport Study Committee recommended that Wilson not join in the construction of an airport at Sharpburg, the site which Rocky Mount has under option. The committee pointed out that the site is 16 miles from the center of Wilson by the shortest route and only 6.4 miles from the center of Rocky Mount.

The committee recommended that Wilson join with Rocky Mount in attempting to find a new site for a joint airport approximately equidistant between the two cities.

Maynard in his letter to Speight expressed Wilson's regrets at the CAB findings "and while we are not one hundred percent sold on the decision, it is our opinion that we would be just bumping our heads against a stone wall to try to turn the decision."

"We certainly appreciate working with Greenville on their endeavor to obtain air service, and if at any time in the future any project of area significance comes up on which we can be helpful, we will be most happy to again work with you and your group," Maynard's letter concluded.

New Orleans Ordered To Desegregate Its Schools

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge J. Skelly Wright has thrown out an integration slowdown law and ordered desegregation of the first six grades of all New Orleans public schools next fall.

The sweeping order Tuesday brought from a Louisiana legislative leader promises of drastic action next month. Members of the Orleans Parish Board said they would appeal.

Token desegregation is now in effect in six scattered elementary schools in the city. Wright's ruling came a week after Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel ordered desegregation of all Catholic parochial and private schools next fall and in the midst of a furor over excommunication threats against some leading Catholic segregationists.

In addition to speeding up desegregation, Wright's order declared the application of Louisiana's pupil placement law in New Orleans unconstitutional. He did not rule on its application in the rest of the state. Every Louisiana city operates a segregated school system.

This knocked out one of the last rear-guard actions by the Louisiana Legislature. State Sen. E. W. Gravolet said legislators may have an answer and promised drastic action, but he didn't say what that would be.

Theodore H. Shepard Jr., president of the Orleans Parish School Board, said he "almost definitely" will call a special meeting Friday to authorize an appeal.

Louis G. Riecke, a board member, said, "I'm afraid it might cause chaos in the system if we have to desegregate all those grades in September."

Louis Ritterer, another member, suggested the board might study abandonment of the dual school system. Wright, 49, a native New Orleansian and a federal judge for 11 years, issued the original order desegregating the city's public schools. When the order was implemented on Nov. 14, 1960, white parents withdrew their children almost en masse from the two elementary schools which accepted Negro first graders.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis took control of the city's schools in an attempt to head off desegregation, but the action was nullified by a panel of federal judges.

Last fall the number of integrated schools in the city increased to six with only 12 Negro children attending previously all-white classes.

More than 18 months ago, Wright ordered public schools in East Baton Rouge Parish and Trade schools in six cities to desegregate. He set no deadline.

Mrs. B. J. Gallot Jr., a Catholic segregation leader who said she has been threatened with excommunication by Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel, said her request for an audience with the prelate had been granted.

Mrs. Gallot, head of the segregationist Save Our Nation, Inc., protested the decision and led a handful of demonstrators in picketing the archbishop's residence.

Pitt County's Cancer Crusade Launched At Meet Last Night

The 1962 Cancer Crusade in Pitt County was launched last night at a gathering of area chairmen, workers, officers of the sponsoring Greenville Moose Lodge, and members of the board of the Pitt unit of the American Cancer Society.

Featured speaker of the evening, J. S. Nagelschmidt of Chapel Hill, likened the mobilizing of community forces against cancer as a war against "an implacable foe that heeds no rules and is no respecter of persons." Stressing that this was no local war, the speaker emphasized it is being fought by hundreds of thousands all over the country, wherever there is cancer.

Surveying his Pitt audience, Nagelschmidt remarked that "this is the largest and most enthusiastic kick-off for a Crusade I have seen in four years of work in this field."

A native of New York, the speaker is a columnist and feature writer for the Chapel Hill Weekly, and is serving as Divisional 2nd Vice President and Co-Chairman of the Cancer Crusade in North Carolina.

Money alone, he said, "is not our primary goal. I count it as of primary importance that every family be given the pamphlet which describes the danger signals of cancer so that a potential victim can be warned in time to save their life."

However, said Nagelschmidt, "there is no limit on the amount of money needed, for this war will go on until won."

The prospects of victory in the cancer fight was described as still inconclusive, but the

Sanity Hearing Re-Scheduled

WASHINGTON, N. C. — A sanity hearing for Roy Douglas Freeman, charged with robbery of a Greenville bank last October, has been rescheduled for Friday at 9:30 a.m. in Federal Court here.

Originally scheduled today, the hearing was delayed until Friday's session before Judge John Larkins, presiding during a week's term of Eastern District Federal Court.

Freeman, 18-year-old Greenville Negro, has been subjected to mental examinations at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington, D. C., where he has been confined, since Judge Larkins signed an order in December committing the defendant to the hospital.

Judge Larkins signed the order after a New Bern hearing of the charges when Freeman asked for a court-appointed attorney who told the court he felt the youth should be examined.

Freeman is charged with the Oct. 25 robbery of $3,765 from Washovia Bank & Trust Co.'s West End branch. Conviction of the charge carries a maximum penalty of 25 years in prison or a $10,000 fine or both.

In reporting the robbery, news media called the thief a "bicycle beatnik bandit" after bank employees said a small, goateed Negro with sideburns and brightly-colored clothing had escaped from the scene on a bicycle.

Freeman was arrested, clean-shaven, near Williamston during the afternoon following the robbery.

Spring Begins To Stir Garden From Its Sleep

By CELESTINE SIBLEY
Women's News Service

There was frost on the ground and a puddle up by the gravel road was black with ice. The old garden looked sad and bedraggled in the chill and merciless sunlight.

As I walked down the hill toward it I wondered if there is any aspect of death and decay any sadder than that of a row of last year's bean vines. Mottled with mildew, the lifeless old vines lay there, no longer needing but still secured by strings to poles that last summer threatened to be inadequate to support their surging, climbing, rambunctious greenness.

The winter rains have washed the dirt away from their roots and they are suspended in their nakedness and defenselessness. A last year's garden, I thought bleakly, is like a last year's bird's nest, bereft of any remnant of the life which was so captivating a short time ago.

The nail keg under the poplar tree, which had been my vantage point and resting place from lettuce-planting time till the frost claimed the last chrysanthemum last year, had swelled and split in the winter rains and would no longer hold me. So lacking a place to sit I stood there looking at the funny little garden and wondering if the work and the love that go into one are really worth-while. Seeing the bean vines and the sere corn stalks I couldn't even remember the taste of their harvest. Maybe the home garden is, like the home-cobbler's shop or weaving room, an obsolete function preserved out of nostalgia by the hobbyist.

The spade and the little sack of fertilizer I brought with me made a bright and childish looking spot of color on the brown earth. I felt a little silly about them, now that I was here. Whatever urge toward making the earth to bloom and fructify I had risen with suddenly seemed an empty impertinence.

I think I might have picked up my gardening gear and gone away but spring comes to our world in such odd little bits and pieces—a show of jonquils and snow, a burst of forsythia and then a brutal winter wind.

While I paused uncertainly another harbinger of spring dared the chill morning air to show himself. The rusty old lizard who had bedeviled me all last summer by coming out on the pole I put down as a boundary to my garden. All summer I yelled "Shoo!" and "Scat!" and slapped my arms and stamped my feet at him but to no avail. He would regard me with drowsy serenity and stay there doing his push-ups in the sun.

"You old fool," I began, resuming my feud with him. "Don't you see there's frost on that pole?"

But even as I spoke I saw the frost had melted. While I had stood there, my feet cold and numb in my hardening sneakers, thinking of death and futility, the sun had melted the frost and something, some earthy instinct, had stirred that ugly reptilian little body from its winter refuge.

To show me that he was warm and limber he did one of his push-ups and I laughed aloud as I picked up my spade. Only then did I notice under the dead foliage of the mint bed tiny rosettes of green showing above the ground.

Greene Central Chapter's Week Of Planned Activities

The Future Homemakers of America is an organization consisting of high school girls interested in becoming better and more successful individuals of future homemaking. Throughout the year, the club organizes different projects to be carried out for beneficent purposes.

During the week of April 1-7, which was National F.H.A. Week, girls all over the United States participated in different things in observance of this week.

The girls of the Greene Central Chapter in Snow Hill made plans to do something worthwhile each day in order to inform everyone of F.H.A. Week. On April 2nd, which was Monday, all the lunch napkins in the cafeteria were stamped with the F.H.A. emblem. This way both the students and teachers were able to appreciate this week.

On Tuesday, several girls placed fresh garden flowers on the desks of faculty members. A radio program over Station WFAO in Farmville was given Wednesday morning at 10:05 by girls from this F.H.A. chapter.

On Thursday, "sunshine baskets," which are fruit baskets, were delivered to the homes of the sick and shut-ins, compliments of this F.H.A. club. Friday, all the F.H.A. girls wore clothes

"Shop In Confidence—Wear With Pride"

Kids Never Out Of Style

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—A year usually lapses before grown-up styles influence children's wear. But the tables are turned. Recently toddlers have been leading the way.

Take the military influence, which youngsters have been doing this year, right along with the adult fashion intellectuals.

Kids have never really needed a Norman Norell to tell them that navy is very good, and especially when crisply tailored and trimmed with brass buttons and touches of red.

Mothers have been slipping this classic coat style on and off well-scrubbed youngsters for several generations. The only real difference in it this year is the extreme brevity, a European influence which gives the little wearers a leggy look.

Take capes, which women have been taking in especially large doses for the past few seasons. The wee ones have always enjoyed wearing them. Remember Little Red Riding Hood?

Take the feminine look which Paris and Seventh Avenue have been making the most of by means of ruffles and ribbons and laces and embroideries and pastel confection. These are things that little girl fashions have always been made of.

To be true at times little girl apparel has borrowed A-lines, T-lines, sacks and chemises from big girl couture. But there has never been a season when there was not also an abundance of puffed sleeves and pinafores, smocked and embroidered yokes, appliques, lace and ribbons and ruffles galore.

Both the big boys and the little boys are applauding the equal distribution of fashion femininity this season, for it is appealing on any sized girl.

LEGGY LOOK . . . Spring favorites are American wool flannel, double breasted brother and sister coats worn extremely short this year as they are worn in Europe. They're trimmed with brass buttons and Navy insignia. (Editor's Note: Coats by Mode Kiddie)

Two Benefits In C&D Emphasis

Special emphasis on attracting food processing industries to North Carolina is a step by the Department of Conservation and Development which can simultaneously boost industrial employment and agriculture of the state.

North Carolina has long been aware of the great agricultural economy it possesses. While it has forged forward in diversifying its agriculture and making it more profitable, there has been an awareness that farming in North Carolina still has considerable undeveloped potential.

Where food processing plants have moved into the state in recent years, there has been a marked improvement in the opportunities offered farmers as well as those people who are interested in industrial employment. Food processing plants have provided the two-pronged economic boost by providing additional employment and at the same time boosting farm income by opening new or expanded markets for farm commodities.

North Carolina, with its climate, its soil and its experience in agriculture has the potential to become one of the major areas for producing food items. For the most part until recent years, the state's agriculture has been based largely upon production of tobacco, cotton, and corn, with food items playing a very minor role in the overall farming picture.

The step by the Commerce and Industry division of the C & D to emphasize efforts to locate more food processing plants in the state fits into the agri-business pattern which has been recognized as offering great opportunities for North Carolina. Most of what North Carolina now produces in the way of food products find their way to other states for processing. This applies not only to products of the soil, but to the vast fishery business which is carried on in the coastal region of the state.

By attracting more food processing plants, North Carolina will enhance its industrial situation and will open new markets for its agriculture. By putting forth greater efforts to attract such processing plants, the Department of Conservation and Development is taking a step which will be enthusiastically supported by local economic development groups throughout the state.

Reassuring Decision By Seven Astronauts

Although it may be somewhat intangible, we nevertheless find considerable reassurance in the fact that the nation's seven astronauts have declined the offer of new $24,000 homes in Houston, Tex.

Had the astronauts chosen to accept the offer—as they first indicated they would—they would have been able to cite many precedents for their decision. It is not uncommon in our American way of life for heroes of various kinds to be honored by admirers with rather lavish gifts of many kinds.

Perhaps it is because the astronauts have become sort of a national focus of hero worship that we were impressed by their decision to decline the offer of the new homes in Houston. Certainly their decision will enhance their position of respect in the eyes of most citizens.

It adds further emphasis to their dedication to their assigned task—not for personal gain, but for service to their nation and to mankind.

More Justices May Be Named

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy could make three or more appointments of the Supreme Court — even before his first term ends in 1965 — if vacancy averages continue.

Four of the justices — Earl Warren, Hugo L. Black, Felix Frankfurter, William O. Douglas — because of age or length of service — have exceeded the average age or length of service of Supreme Court justices.

But, because of the composition of the court, if all four of those men were to retire before 1965, Kennedy at most could add to the liberal view on the court by no more than one appointment.

Warren, Black and Douglas vote consistently on the liberal side. Frankfurter, compared with them, has been pretty much a conservative since he went on the court in 1939.

The opportunity which came to Kennedy last week to name Byron R. White to the court to succeed Justice Charles E. Whittaker was unusual, as the averages go.

Whittaker had served only five years. The average time on the court for all 93 justices from the beginning has been 16 years.

The nine-man court which Whittaker just left has been pretty much split between liberals and conservatives, with some little shifting around on individual cases they decided.

While not much is publicly known about White, even though he had been deputy attorney general a year, it's unlikely he will run with the conservatives for an obvious reason.

Kennedy's programs, while neither as suddenly new or startling as those of President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his early New Deal days, are more or less liberal.

It might be nice to think a president — at least one as active as Kennedy — is simply interested in picking the man most scholarly in the law without concern for his views.

That doesn't fit. At this time in American history, it's a certainty Kennedy wouldn't pick for the court a Southern judge or lawyer who is also a segregationist.

If it is granted that he wouldn't do that, then it must be conceded a justice's viewpoint means something to the President. Then the only question left is how much a justice's viewpoint means to him.

TO THE EDITOR— Citizens of Greenville and especially East Carolina College personnel and students should be very thankful for what our city police have done recently. I am referring to the change that was made on 8th and 9th streets near the college campus making them one-way streets. Many of us have griped about the one-way streets in our fair city, but this is one time we should be really thankful. Our police department showed real good judgment in making 8th street a one-way street for traffic coming from the campus and 9th street going to the campus.

Since both sides of the

The President hasn't discussed that publicly. But he has spoken highly of White's qualifications and said he was recommended by the American Bar Association for the appointment.

Warren, Black, Douglas and Justice William Brennan Jr. make up what has been called the liberal bloc on the court.

On the conservative side were Frankfurter, and Justices Tom C. Clark, John M. Harlan, Potter Stewart and, generally Whittaker.

Thus, if White's thinking is along liberal lines, he has tipped the balance toward the liberal side.

This would be undone if Warren, Black or Douglas quit — or if all three were to step down before 1965—and Kennedy replaced them with one or more conservatives.

If Frankfurter quit and Kennedy replaced him with a liberal — and there was no other change — the balance of the court would be liberal.

But if Frankfurter quit and was replaced by a conservative — while the rest of the present court remained unchanged — there would still be some nip and tuck decisions.

There is, however, no sign that Warren, Black, Douglas or Frankfurter has it in mind to get out.

The average age at which all 93 justices in American history left the bench through retirement or death has been 67½ years. Warren is 71, Black, 76, Frankfurter, 79.

Black has already served 24½ years. Frankfurter, 23 and Douglas 23—all well above the average of 16 years for all of the justices of the past.

Neither Warren, Black nor Frankfurter — all in the 70s—would be setting any record if they stayed another 10 years or so. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes was the oldest justice who ever served. He stayed till he was 91.

streets are lined with parked cars, while classes are in session, there was barely enough room for one car to go through let alone one coming from the opposite direction. It meant the driver of one of the cars would have to stop in the middle of the block near a driveway to let the other car pass. Making them one-way streets will eliminate this precarious maneuver and enable the drivers to proceed along at a safe and steady pace. So "hats off" to our ever-alert and helpful police of Greenville for negotiating this long overdue action which has been approved by the City Traffic Commission.

Interest In Science, Too

"I was just lookin' through that window in the door," the man said; then asked pointedly: "What in the world was goin' on in there? Aren't those men the County Commissioners?"

I assured him those distinguished-looking gentlemen toward whom he nodded as he spoke were indeed the County Commissioners and asked him what had attracted his attention through the glass panel in the door.

"Well," he said, "I was on my way to pay my taxes down here when I just happened to glance through that window-glass. I saw everybody kinda huddled around that big table and they was all a-lookin' at one of the men eatin' something."

From this the inquisitor said he deduced that something

"mightily important was a-goin' on in there and I sez to myself I better find out what."

It occurred to me then that he had seen the finale of Monday's meeting. All official business completed, Bob Little and Bob Martin struck up a discussion about whether a dampened square of paper-backed foil from a cigarette pack, folded properly, would burn the palm.

Both commissioners remembered recent experiences that heated both their palms. Bob Little said he knew how to prepare the little incendiary parcel. Bob Martin said he doubted it.

The experiment yielded little fruit, or heat either from that matter, so Bob Little finally conceded he'd forgotten how for the time being.

But, as coincidence would have it, the passerby in the hall peered through the window just as Bob was carefully moistening each side of the paper square with his tongue. (He had said that was the proper way).

The scene he saw was this: Four of the commissioners, the county auditor, the county attorney and the newspaperman sat huddled around the table intently watching Bob Little conducting his experiment.

The observer halted from his tax-paying expedition long enough to make with a degree of finality, this observation aloud:

"It's heartening to see how our officials go about lickin' our problems."

Other Editors Saying Strength Our Population Problems For Today

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

One phenomenon of the post-war period has been the sharp emphasis in population shifts in the United States. Not many years this country was mostly rural in makeup. True, we had some large cities, but they were not great metropolitan centers as those existing in Europe. Then sociologists noted a great migration in America — from country to city.

This held up until the post-war period when more people began getting out of the congested cities and into the country and suburbs. Thus, we noted the spectacle of Suburbia mushrooming all over the landscape. This trend brought problems — plenty of them — both economic and social.

It brought other problems, too. Chicago is experiencing such a problem now. It has to do with racial migrations. It has been estimated that by 1990 — just 28 years — half the population of Chicago will be Negroes. Where will these come from? Actually, they won't represent an increase, but rather another shift in population makeup. For example, the population of Chicago will show little increase, with the influx of migrants barely matching the movement to the suburb.

Population of the suburbs will double, according to the surveys, and the number of Negro suburbanites will quadruple. All of this will tend to cause a period of severe social and economic pressures as slums spread through the suburbs of the Chicago area, schools fill, and a swollen labor force searches for employment.

Slums will spread through many of the older suburbs as they interchange non-white for white residents and suffer-population losses. Other suburbs, some of them also old, will be bursting with new residents. In the next year or two the suburban area will be more populated than Chicago itself. The suburban increase will be predominantly white, while the increase in Chicago will be predominantly Negro.

The question naturally arises: so what? Nothing, except the case for Chicago is a pattern that is repeating itself, more or less intensely, in just about every metropolitan area in the nation. How will it affect the South? Well, certainly some of the larger cities, such as Atlanta, Birmingham, New Orleans, Charlotte, will all have their population shifts and their attendant problems.

New jobs, new schools and more housing will all be needed to take care of the influx. Crowding will loom as a great danger, slums will continue to haunt us, and school conditions certainly won't get any better for a while. What's it all about? One might well call it continuing growing pains of a robust nation, one that still has plenty of restless people, moving around, unsettled, curious. It also means those problems aforementioned, and the need for serious effort toward their solution.

LIFE'S DEEPEST SECRET

The word "compassion" is a common word in the Christian gospel. It was said of Jesus frequently that "he was moved with compassion," or that he "had compassion on the multitude."

This word comes from two Latin words which mean "to suffer with." The compassionate person is the person who has the capacity to suffer with his fellow-men. His heart is stabbed as he looks upon their misery. He experiences in his own life the pain they are experiencing in theirs. He has compassion — on the sorrowful, on the suffering, on the sinful and broken.

If we want to get through life as stark individuals we can do so. We can make it a policy always to look out for number one — and for no one else. We can toss our heads and say that inasmuch as we did not cause the trouble which certain people experience it is not up to us to take any steps to alleviate that suffering. "It's none of my business. They got themselves into it — let them get themselves out of it. I refuse to get mixed up."

This is understandable, but it is understandable only because we all have a selfish streak in us a mile wide. Of course we don't want to be bothered with other people's troubles and for the simple reason that the inner workings of our souls are clogged up with a lot of selfishness and plain evil.

But the secret of life is compassion. Learn it.

Basis Of The Quarrel

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The other day, I got into a noisy argument with a man over the question of separation of church and state, he trying to convince me that my views were wrong; I doing the same to him.

After a while, I discovered that our fanaticism was different and that therefore we really used different vocabularies in the same language. To him, it seemed important that no tax money should be used to subsidize a religious sect; to me, it seemed important that in the struggle against Marxism, we use whatever means is available to us to preserve our civilization.

To be at all sensible, before we argued about the smaller issue of whether some sectarian schools might be subsidized by tax money, we should have asked ourselves what our civilization is.

Were we only mud and clay, we never could. In the short period of 300 years, have conquered a continent and fashioned it into the most powerful nation on Earth. We had a splendid start. We inherited from the Western Europeans, principally the British and the German immigrants to this country, the Greco-Judaic-Christian cultures overlaid by the great legal development in human rights called common law.

To this amalgam must be added the curious fact that most of the immigrants to this nation during the first century of its existence before the Revolution were religious sectarians who left their homelands not to find fortunes but to worship God according to their faith and conscience. The few exceptions to this rule include the involuntary immigrants such as the felons who were exiled and the maids who were imported to be wives. Thus religion played an extraordinary role in the forming of the American mind. The large number of religious sects, more than 250, is indicative not of confusion but rather of earnestness.

Statistically, throughout American history, the majority of the people were Protestants, although from the very beginning in some places there were also Catholics and Jews. The atheist was regarded as outside the pale of our civilization until very recent times. The deist, that is the person who believed in God but would not be sectarian, appeared about the time of the Revolution in such personalities as Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin.

The First Amendment to the Constitution says that no church establishment should be permitted. To understand the word "establishment," it is necessary to go back to the 18th Century for a definition. Establishment then meant a government-subsidized and controlled church. From the 16th Century, the Roman Catholic Church was dominant throughout Western Europe and tolerated no deviation. After the clerical religious revolutions of the 16th Century, national churches were established, as, for instance, the Anglican Church, the Lutheran Church, the Presbyterian Church, etc. These were state-supported churches.

In the history of religion, most of these churches are regarded as schismatic not heretical, which means that they broke away from the authority of Rome but did not alter their dogma fundamentally. Pope John XXIII is laboring to bring the schismatic churches back into Christian unity. The heretical churches are those which developed violent changes in dogma. During certain periods of American history these matters of dogmatic differentiation seemed to be very important and therefore all sorts of new sects developed.

The first half of the 20th Century developed a tendency toward secularism and agnosticism. Many religious concepts did not seem to fit the age. The struggle between science and faith discouraged intellectuals from religious participation and through them went down to the

Quote Can Deduct Lobbying Expenses

By ELMER ROESSNER
The Administration's tax bill, which bestows tax breaks on industries that invest in new equipment, sprinkles other benefits on companies maintaining lobbies.

As one analyst said of the bill, some of the provisions "will save you awesome amounts of money."

At present, lobbying expenses in any way shape or form are not deductible. They have to come out of profits. But under the new tax bill, certain lobbying expenses are deductible.

Prentice-Hall, in an analysis of the bill, reports that if an executive goes to Washington to present his side of any pending legislation to a committee or his own Congressman, his travel, hotel, consultative, secretarial and similar expenses are deductible.

BROAD EXEMPTION
The law not only allows complete deductions for expenses incurred before Congressional committees on matters affecting one's business, but also covers the cost of appearances before or sending communications to individual members of Congress, any legislative body or any legislator of a state or political subdivision.

"You can also get the deduction for expenses incurred in communicating information to an organization to which you belong, which is carrying the ball for you in Washington, the state capital or city hall," says the tax service.

Under the present laws, dues paid to an association are not deductible to the extent to which they are used for lobbying purposes. But under the proposed law, dues attributable to these activities are deductible.

On the other hand, the new bill prohibits the deduction of the cost of participating in a political campaign — which few people, even Republicans — respect to legislative matters, elections or referendums, Prentice-Hall reports.

That means that any victim of restrictive legislation cannot deduct the costs of protesting it to the public. He may deduct the cost of going to Washington and buying his Congressman a ginger beer, but if he takes a newspaper ad asking people to write to the Congressmen to save his business, jobs and the town itself, it has to come out of his profits. His right to petition will have been infringed.

STICKY WICKET FOR MANUFACTURERS
For example, the Internal Revenue Service recently ruled that, under the law, croquet balls and mallets made for kiddies, even though not of regulation size, were subject to the manufacturers excise tax.

Under the new tax bill, a manufacturer of miniature croquet sets could go to Washington to ask Congressmen to change the law and deduct all his expenses. But if he took an ad in a newspaper saying, "Write your Congressman to take this tax burden off toddlers!" the costs would have to come out of his profits.

Newspaper publishers, I hope, are looking into this curious distinction which penalizes public petitions against legislation, but gives tax breaks to companies that send executives lobbying to Washington.

BUYERS HELD TO BUYING—BETS ARE IT WON'T WORK
Buyers are going to be buyers under a plan being tried out by a New York department store chain.

Department store buyers have usually been the top sellers. The buyer was in charge of a department and the department could sell and badgered everybody in it until she was proved right. (You can tell buyers because they always wear hats and cluck around a department like a mother hen.)

But the Gertz stores, according to trade reports, are putting buyers in offices and separating them from selling. Old-time department store people are keeping Gertz won't be able to bet the buyers off the floor.

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Peronist leader Andres Framini today demanded "absolute and unconditional" recognition of the Peronists' sweeping victories in the March 18 elections.

In his first public statement since Argentina's military command ousted President Arturo Frondizi and replaced him with Senate President Jose Maria Guido, Framini said the Peronists were "willing to participate in the national reconstruction, but not to give legitimacy through our support to an unjust, illegal and anti-national regime."

Framini, a trade union leader whose victory in the race for governor of Buenos Aires Province was swept away by government decree, said that if the Peronist victories are recognized, the Peronists offer as a contribution to national peace their "irrevocable decision to forget the harm and persecutions suffered in the recent crisis."

He also called for the liberation of all political prisoners, amnesty for all exiled Argentines—presumably including ex-dictator Juan

Peron, a new economic program to replace Frondizi's austerity and a review of all obligations considered harmful to Argentine sovereignty.

He did not elaborate on the last point but nationalist circles contend agreements with the United States and U.S. business are unfavorable to the expansion of local industry.

In a recent interview Framini denied that the Peronists oppose U.S. investments in Argentina in principle, but said they oppose investments that take a disproportionate profit out of the country.

The Peronist resurgence in the National Assembly and provincial elections March 18—they drew more than 2.5 million votes, or 35 per cent of the total—touched off the crisis that brought down Frondizi.

The military ousted Peron in 1955 and barred his party from organized political activity. The military chiefs blamed Frondizi for allowing the Peronists to run for office again, and, before deposing him, forced him to nullify the Peronist victories.

Framini's statement apparently was in answer to an overture by

Interior Minister Rodolfo Martinez who said Monday he would seek a political truce and general support of the new government by conferring "with all men of all sectors affected by the Argentine crisis."

Guido moved to win lagging diplomatic recognition for his regime. He appointed a newspaper publisher and ex-navy captain, Francisco Manrique, special roving ambassador to explain the Argentine situation to the governments of Venezuela and the United States.

President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela has announced his opposition to the new military-dominated Argentine regime and suggested all hemispheric nations withhold recognition.

Frondizi supporters here are known to be trying to convince the United States to hold back or recognition in an effort to force the return of their leader, whom the United States supported strongly.

Religion became "interesting." Churches became more active.

A New JOHN CREASEY Thriller A ROCKET FOR ROLLISON

CHAPTER 33
Sir Mortimer Bailey knocked sharply on the front door of James Wedlake's home. The Hon. Richard Rollison opened the door, and the old man stammered: "R-R-Rollison!"

"Do come in," invited Rollison, and stood aside, opening the door wider. He glanced at Jolly to make sure that his man knew that he had been seen, while Bailey stood gaping on the porch. "Mr. Holmes-Thompson will be glad of company."

Then he heard the explosion. It wasn't very loud, but it was unmistakable. It came from behind him, from the room where he had left the others. The door slammed. He sprang away from Bailey and raced to it.

He heard a different sound, a kind of roaring, and as he reached the door, heard Jolly running across the drive. The roaring continued.

He turned the handle of the door and pushed it with all his strength, but it had jammed and he could not shift it until Jolly came to his aid. They tried together, but still the door didn't move.

"Watch Bailey!" Rollison cried and turned and rushed out of the house and towards the window of this room. Even before he reached the corner, he realized what had happened, and saw the flickering flames and the glow of fire.

He raced towards the window, the red glow shining on his face. The fire had already taken a firm hold of the desk, and the papers on it were burning furiously. The woman was trying desperately to open the door and seemed to be gasping for breath; at this rate she would be burnt alive.

The window was long and narrow, started with glass broken by the blast. Rollison raised his right leg and kicked out a part of the frame and some of the long slivers of glass, and climbed through.

The heat was overpowering, and made him catch his breath. As he rushed through the flames he saw Holmes-Thompson lying on the floor, face downwards; the man looked as if he had been knocked out by a piece of flying debris.

Rollison reached Wedlake's wife and dragged her towards the window. Near the blazing desk—in a corner which was all burning now—he opened his coat and smothered the woman's head and face, then dragged her with one arm while covering his own face and head with the other.

He heard voices, and saw Jolly and Bailey just outside the window. He dragged the woman forward so that Jolly could lean forward and support her, and together they lifted her through the window.

Rollison turned round. The flames were licking at Holmes' feet. "Please, don't—" Jolly began.

desperately. "Use this," Bailey gasped. The old man had pulled a fire extinguisher from his car, and was thrusting it into Rollison's hands. Rollison struck the release pin and sprayed the foam on the flames near the man on the floor.

Yard by yard they receded, and soon Rollison was able to grip Holmes' shoulders and drag him, feet on the ground, towards the window. His shoes and the ends of his trousers were smouldering.

Then, in the distance, Rollison heard the ringing of a fire alarm. "Sir Mortimer dialled 999, sir," Jolly said. "We shall soon have help."

The help arrived in less than three minutes, and by that time the woman was gradually recovering consciousness on the grass near her husband.

Holmes was motionless, and Rollison could detect no beat at his pulse. Sir Mortimer Bailey looked like a gaunt scarecrow, with his face blackened and his hair singed. Rollison had no idea what he looked like, except that his face must be singed and blackened, too.

His only immediate problem was what to do with James Wedlake, and he did not take long to decide. Fast on the heels of the fire engine and an ambulance there came a divisional police patrol car, with a detective sergeant in charge.

The only sensible thing was to tell him to get in touch with Grace of Scotland Yard, and to turn Wedlake over to him. Wedlake was also conscious, and still bound hand and foot. The sergeant recognized Rollison and obviously wanted to ask a lot of questions, but forebore.

None of the papers remained, and the whole of the big room was wrecked. Rollison sent Jolly out to reconnoiter and to tell him as soon as Superintendent Grice arrived, and it was no surprise when Grice appeared with Jolly. Jolly was bruised about the cheeks, and looked as if he needed a bath, but there was obviously nothing seriously the matter with him.

"Well, Rolly," Grice said, heavily. "They tell me you've been a hero again. You saved Mrs. Wedlake's life."

"Damn it, I couldn't let her roast," said Rollison off-handedly, and before Grice could speak again, went on: "How about Holmes-Thompson, Bill?"

"Dead," Grice said. "Pity." "For everybody except him. I fancy," said Grice. "Wedlake was conscious," he went on, "and talkative."

"Something had to make someone talk," said Rollison. "Do you know how the fire started?"

"Yes. There was another man there, who hid from you," Grice answered. "The man named Bell. He had instructions from Wed-lake to make sure of one thing above everything else—burning all those papers. He had a small fire bomb ready for any emergency, and used it. He was one of Wedlake's mechanics years ago, and absolutely faithful."

"Caught?" "Picked up at Swiss Cottage, suffering from burns."

"No." "Hm," said Rollison, and frowned. "How much more do we know?"

"We know that Wedlake and Holmes alias Thompson were involved, but we don't yet know just why," Grice said. "Wedlake's given a garbled story about a small Italian manufacturer paying him for the secret of the Rocket, but—" he broke off.

"That doesn't add up," Rollison said. "You can't add either?"

"This is no time for smart talk," declared Rollison, firmly. "Of course it doesn't add up. If this was simply a matter of the secret being sold out to a continental competitor, it would have been easy. Wedlake could have framed somebody else, or even sold the secret through a third party—through Bennett, for instance—and made sure that he couldn't be named. If that's his story, we aren't at the end of this case yet, Bill."

"That's his story," Rollison said. "Talked to Bailey?"

"The old man says that after the meeting at your flat he was so disturbed in case Wedlake was involved that he came to talk to him. Apparently after they left you there was a bitter quarrel between Wedlake and the other two financiers, which nearly ended in blows."

"I can believe it," Rollison said, reflectively.

"Almost from the beginning there was cold-blooded murder. What made it worthwhile?" Grice wants to know. Continue the story tomorrow.

Wild Goose Hit Wire, Is Cooked

CHARLOTTE HARBOR, Fla. (AP)—A wild goose cooked his own goose, and the lights went out. Deputy Sheriff John Shannon said a wild goose flew into a high tension line stretched across the Peace River. In an instant, the goose was well done. And electrical power throughout the Charlotte Harbor area was out for nearly an hour until a crew could repair the damage.

Prompt Help For Russian Seaman

PANAMA (AP)—U.S. authorities gave prompt assistance Tuesday to a Russian seaman stricken with appendicitis aboard a Soviet freighter bound for Havana with a cargo of lumber. A Canal Zone launch with a doctor aboard met the vessel Dekabrist when it arrived at the Pacific entrance of the canal. The seaman, G. Apenok, was taken to a hospital for an operation. The vessel had radioed ahead describing the case and U.S. officials gave medical instructions on how to care for the patient until the ship reached land.

Advisory Group Asked To Study CAB Decision

NEW BERN (AP)—The Governor's Advisory Committee on Aviation has been asked to study the decision of the Civil Aeronautics Board authorizing National Air Lines to stop service to New Bern, Fayetteville and Wilmington.

The State Board of Conservation and Development made the request Tuesday. Mayors of New Bern and Morehead City asked for help in trying to upset the CAB order, effective June 18.

The discontinuance of National Air Lines service is tied to expansion of Piedmont Air Lines service in the Eastern part of the state.

The C&D Board, which ended its spring meeting, agreed to hold its summer session at Boone in July.

Other actions by the board: 1. The State Department of Administration was asked to clear the way for taking of bids on leases to mine phosphate deposits from state-owned bottoms of the Pamlico and Pungo rivers. Several mining firms have expressed interest in the phosphate deposits, which geologists believe are extensive.

2. Approval was given to the plan of the Commercial Fisheries Committee to delay a decision on dredging for oyster shells in Albemarle Sound. The matter will be given further consideration at a meeting of the committee in Morehead City before the full board meets in July.

3. Bennett Advertising Co. was authorized to produce a $50,000 motion picture on North Carolina, to be used primarily on television.

Ratified After 92-Year Delay

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—It took 92 years but the California Legislature finally joined 32 other states Tuesday night in ratifying the 15th Amendment to the Constitution.

That's the one that forbids depriving anyone the right to vote on the basis of race or previous condition of servitude.

Thirty-one of the 37 states in the Union when the amendment was submitted to the state legislatures in 1869 ratified the amendment immediately. Oregon joined them in 1959.

A newspaper editorial called attention to California's oversight and Sen. Albert S. Rodda introduced a resolution ratifying the amendment.

Protection For Rice Harvest In South Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Vietnamese troops and U.S. Army helicopters have successfully held off Communist raiders while farmers harvested their rice crop in a remote section of central Viet Nam.

The commander of the U.S. forces in South Viet Nam, Gen. Paul D. Harkins, said only that because of the security operation, farmers were able to bring in the crop without interference from the Reds who try to replenish their food supply with raids on the fertile valleys of Quang Ngai Province 350 miles northeast of Saigon.

Elsewhere in war-torn South Viet Nam, large operations were reported continuing in the central Vietnamese province of Binh Dinh and in the province of Kien Phong adjoining the Cambodian frontier west of Saigon.

SPEAKER CALLED PITT TURNOUT LARGEST he has seen, in four years of work for North Carolina's division of the American Cancer Society. The Greenville Moose Lodge was host to the gathering. (Photos by S. L. Rowland)

Cancer Crusade

triumph over polio was cited as a source of hope and the speaker said "we are near a breakthrough on leukemia."
Returning to his theme of many people united in an army against a powerful enemy, chairmen and workers were urged to each fulfill their specific missions... leaving no half-measures to mar their demonstrated willingness to serve.
The Reverend Richard Ottaway presided in absence of Dr. Howard Gradis, president of the Pitt unit of ACS. Rev. Ottaway introduced the leadership of the local ACS organization and Mrs. Bert Tyson, Field Consultant for Eastern North Carolina, who introduced the speaker of the evening.

Extent of the role Pitt's Cancer units is playing, was subsequently indicated by Herbert Wilkerson, chairman of the Service Committee, who said fifteen applications for assistance had been received in the past five months. "It's especially grim," he said, "when, in encountering these cases, so many of them have progressed so far."

Mrs. Tyson, looking back to the success of 1961's Pitt Crusade, said "since last April the local unit has been able to do much more than ever before in the county."
Crusade Chairman Jack White was the concluding speaker. He told the gathering that headquarters for the April Crusade would be at the Moose Lodge building under the direction of Edwin M. Baldrée.

Attention was called to prepared kits of materials to be used by area chairmen and their workers, who were asked to pick them up on leaving.

As did Nagelschmidt, White urged distribution of informational material to every household in the county.

Walter R. Rooks is serving as the Crusade Chairman's county coordinator and Marty Sullivan will head this year's Special Gifts division in Greenville.

Eighty persons, representing virtually all Pitt County communities, attended last night's meeting. Dinner was served by Greenville Women of the Moose.

Bethel Board In Busy Session Last Evening

BETHEL — During a busy session of the Town Board, Bethel commissioners last night received a report on completion of a new drainage ditch, considered asking for bids on a base radio station for the Police Department and considered purchase of land for a new city dump.

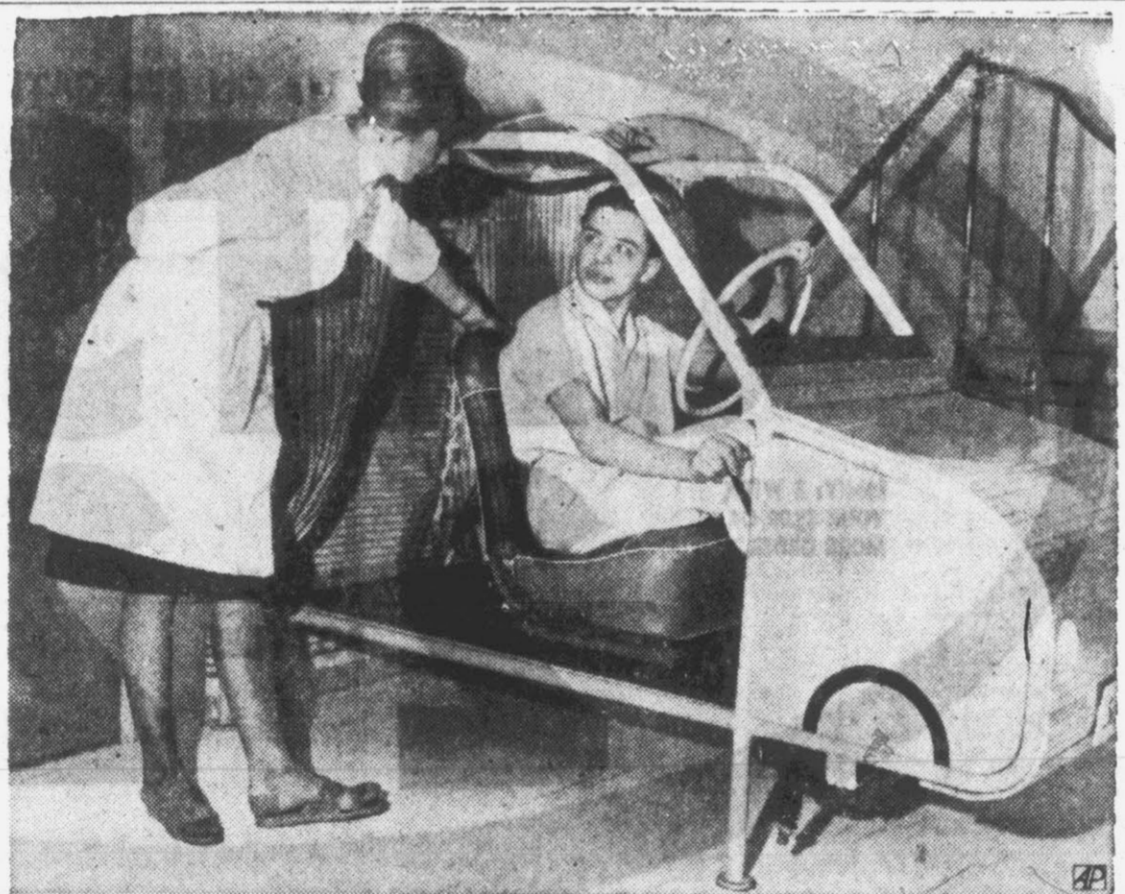

Mayor Joe Butterworth said the drainage ditch, which was completed on Saturday in the northern area of town, "will eventually mean a whole lot to the town." He noted the ditch had been needed for some time.

Commissioners previously had discussed the possibility of a base radio station for the Police Department which now has only a car radio in operation. The board decided that they will ask for bids on a base station soon. The station will be located with an antenna on the town hall, so that Bethel will be able to communicate with the Sheriff's Department and the Greenville Police Department. Communications may also be possible with the highway patrol station in Williamston and the police department in Farmville.

In other business, the board members discussed putting up street signs and decided to send a delegation to Raleigh soon to confer with the prison department on obtaining them. Street signs are something the town has been "trying to get done for years," Butterworth noted.

Since the present city dump is nearing its capacity, commissioners are considering purchase of land which could be used as a new city dump. Primary consideration probably will be given sites located off the main highways, Mayor Butterworth said.
Cherry Lane extension, which runs through the Floyd Thomas property, was accepted as a new street last night. It is, as the name implies, an extension of Cherry Lane. The town will maintain the street.

hart announced receipts of the award at the local plant Tuesday.
This year's award also signifies another year's extension of the Greenville plant's 16-year record of "operation without a disabling injury. The latest award, made for the period ending Dec. 31, 1961, stretches the plant's record for its 5,296,889 man hours of operation since July 12, 1945.

Anniversary For Naval Reservists

NAVAL RESERVE ANNIVERSARY
Mayor King, Cmdr. Everett, Col. Axtell, Sen. Humber, Rose.

A portable airfield to handle jet aircraft which can be put down in 72 hours has been developed.

Col. George C. Axtell, assistant chief of staff of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing, Cherry Point told the Naval Reserve Unit Composite Co. 6-26 this last night.

The unit was observing its 13th anniversary last night. It was organized in 1949.

Col. Axtell reminded the group that it took two to three months to prepare an operational airfield during World War II or the Korean Conflict.

Col. Axtell is a World War II ace and holder of the Navy Cross. He is president of the Toastmasters Club at Cherry Point.

Cmdr. Mullen, commanding officer of the Naval Reserve Training Center in Raleigh, brought greetings from the Sixth Naval District.

Guests included Pitt Civil Defense Director J. H. Rose, Sen. Robert Lee Humber, and Mayor Charles King.

Cmdr. Grover C. Everette is commanding officer of the local unit.

Missing Strategist Is Japan's Big Mystery

TOKYO (AP)—One of Japan's most intriguing mysteries is a year old. It concerns what has happened to Masanobu Tsuji, member of Parliament and World War II military strategist.

Tsuji, then 59, left Tokyo a year ago today for what ostensibly was a 40-day tour of Southeast Asia. A month later his wife received a package from Bangkok, Thailand, containing his business suit, other clothing and personal effects.

There have been nothing but rumors since. One unconfirmed report said Tsuji reached Vientiane, Laos, April 14, and left for Communist-held northern Laos five days later en route to Red China.

The Tokyo Times recently published a report, which could not be confirmed, that Tsuji is teaching guerrilla warfare at a Communist military academy in Kirin, northeastern China.

It has also been rumored that Tsuji is under arrest in Red China. The Japanese Red Cross has approached Peiping officials in an attempt to confirm this, but a Red Cross official said "there has been absolutely no information."

"I've had no word at all," says Tsuji's wife, "and can't hazard a guess."

Though only a lieutenant colonel during World War II, Tsuji was credited with planning the imperial army's conquest of Malaya and Singapore, and the unsuccessful defense of Guadalcanal.

He was accused by a former imperial army general of also planning the massacre of more than 300 Chinese in Singapore in February 1942. The allies termed him a war criminal.

When Japan surrendered, Tsuji disappeared. It later was learned he disguised himself as a Buddhist monk and wandered for years through Southeast Asia and China, returning to Japan after the charges against him were dropped.

Holding rightist views, he won election to the upper house of Parliament and made the headlines by saying, "If God were to grant a fair trial to war criminals, President (Harry) Truman would be the No. 1 war criminal for killing 300,000 civilians at Hiroshima and Nagasaki" by ordering those cities atom bombed.

His political career was turbulent. The Liberal Democratic party expelled him and he served in Parliament as an independent, often arguing fiercely with Nobusuke Kishi, then prime minister.

Housewives Save Stung Youngster

UNION CITY, Calif. (AP)—Two housewives are credited with saving Robin Scott Wilkerson, 5, from possible death from bee stings.

The youngster was attacked Tuesday when he lifted the cover from a hive in a neighbor's yard. Barbara Van Derveen and Valerie Shipp ran to the screaming boy and sprayed him with a garden hose.

The boy's father, John, rushed him to a private physician. Robin was treated for 150 stings.

Temporarily Has Utilities Duties

AYDEN — D. C. Moore is handling all phases of the Ayden Utilities Department until a replacement for the electrical supervisor arrives later this month, it was reported yesterday.

Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said Charles Wright of Fremont will assume duties vacated by Bobby McRoy on April 13. McRoy already has joined the Greenville Utilities Commission.

Constitution Changes Confront S.C. Voters

COLUMBIA AP) — South Carolina voters will rule on two important changes in the state constitution when they ballot in the general election Nov. 6.

Legislation authorizing both referendums had tough sledding in the General Assembly, but were approved just before adjournment of statewide legislative business.

One constitutional question is whether the State Board of Education should be expanded, and the method of selecting its members changed.

The other referendum is on a proposal to cut the residency requirements for voting in South Carolina practically in half. The requirements would be reduced from two years to one year in the state, from a year to six months in the county, and from four months to three months in the precinct.

The State Board of Education now is composed of a member from each of six districts in the state and one member representing the state-at-large. The governor appoints members for four-year terms. He and serves as an ex officio member of the board along with the state superintendent of education.

If the voters approve, the board would be expanded to 15 members. A member would be appointed from each of the 15 judicial circuits. The legislative delegations from counties within each circuit would take turns appointing their member.

Although the General Assembly authorized the vote on expanding the board, a companion measure failed to get legislative sanction. It would let the people decide if the state superintendent of education should be appointed, rather than elected.

Despite arguments that the state superintendent should be "taken out of politics," legislators balked. Several voiced the opinion that they state superintendent is "more responsive to the will of the people" if he has to seek reelection every four years.

Arguments favoring reducing the residency requirements for voting hinged in part on South Carolina's industrial expansion, which is bringing executives and key company personnel into the state.

The legislators were told that many otherwise qualified people felt they were being unfairly franchised by having to wait two years before being able to vote.

Gary Merrill Dubious About Marital Outlook

By BOB THOMAS
 HOLLYWOOD AP) — Gary Merrill showed up for our chat with his shoes on.

Good thing, too, since the Beverly Hills Hotel is inclined to conservatism. Gary has become known as the barefoot boy with chick; said chick being his ofttime date, Rita Hayworth. They are said to frequent local bistros nude from the ankles down.

Merrill didn't deny it. "I'm against shoes," he declared. "Some restaurants object to feet, so then I wear sandals. So what's the difference. If you have a strip of leather under your sole?"

"Most of the places don't mind, though. I get away with it, same as I got away with wearing walking shorts in New York 15 years ago. Of course some of the bus drivers yelled 'whoops!' They still yell 'whoops!' but it doesn't matter."

I hesitantly asked the state of the barefoot romance, which had been reported in the gossip columns as finished.

"All I can report is that Rita and I played golf yesterday against Jack Warden and Dick Widmark," he said. "Beat 'em too. Not only that, they had to ride the electric cart."

Whether the romance is on or off, their professional teaming is contracted for. They start rehearsals in August for a new play, "Step On a Crack," scheduled for a Nov. 7 Broadway opening.

"Rita is lazy, like me," Gary commented. "But she can work real hard if she finds something that interests her. She's interested."

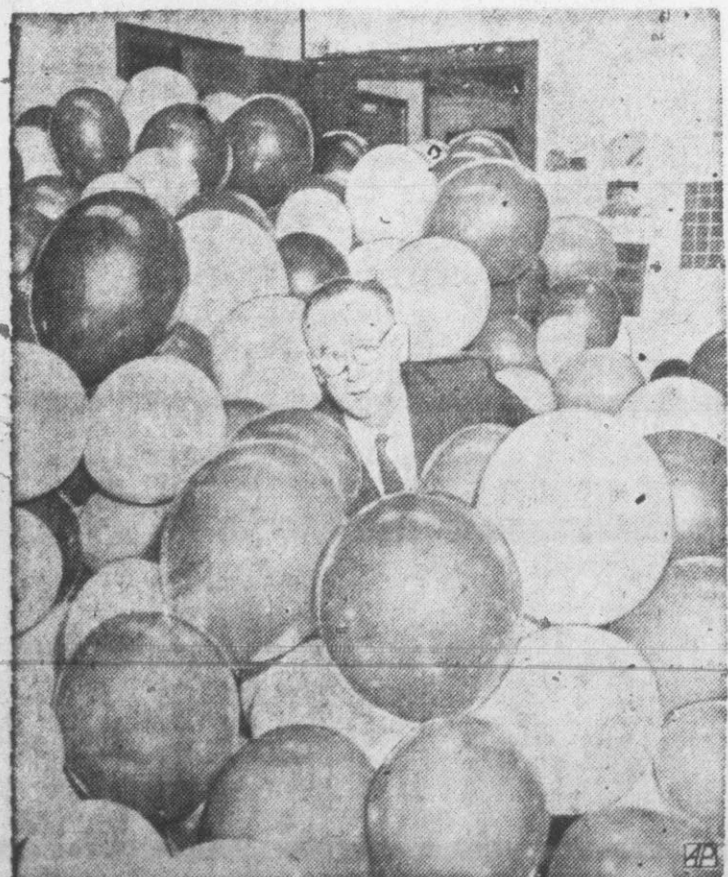

I asked him if he thought he and Rita would get married.

"Don't think so," he said thoughtfully. "I think we're all kind of losers. Rita's been married five times, Bette's been married four times, I've been married twice. The record isn't so hot. Besides, I'm still paying on my first marriage."

Marriage No. 2 was to Bette Davis.

Merrill is leaving this week for Hong Kong to make a movie called "The Journey."

Hardee Hurls One-Hitter As Rose High Wins 3-0

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Junior righthander Denny Hardee spun a neat one-hitter at Roanoke Rapids diamonds here Tuesday as his Rose High mates supplied bat-power for a 3-0 Greenville victory.

Hardee, the only Rose hurler to go the distance this season, yielded a single to rightfield to the second batter he faced, then settled down to stifle the Yellow Jackets the rest of the way. He walked only one and struck out five in pacing the Phantoms to their second win.

The Phantoms' bats were quiet until fifth frame when Billy James opened with a booming triple to rightfield. After Alan McArthur rolled out to the pitcher, Ronnie Brock slammed a double that scored James before Khrogie Andresen lined another two-bagger, chasing Brock across the plate.

Elbert Felton scored Greenville's third run in the sixth on a single by Spencer Harrington. Felton opened the inning with a single and was sacrificed to second by Hardee's punt.

After Joe Searcy collected his single off Hardee with one out in the first, the red-head retired the next two Yellow Jac-kets to end the inning. Searcy advanced as far as second base. In the second inning, as in the fourth, fifth and sixth, Hardee faced only three batters.

Roanoke Rapids' hurler, Charles Birdsong, who saw the Phantoms bang out eight hits, worked Hardee for his only walk in the third, but Birdsong advanced no farther than first base. An error allowed Maxie Clippard to reach first to open the Jackets' seventh, but Hardee retired the next three men to end the game.

Leading Coach Bud Phillips' charges at the plate were Andresen and Brock, each with a single and double. James with a single and triple, and Felton and Harrington with singles.

Robersonville Tops Williamston Nine

WILLIAMSTON — Robersonville's ace pitcher Jimmy Rogers kept his high school mound record perfect Tuesday afternoon as his teammates pushed across an extra-inning run to top the Williamston club 3-2.

For Rogers it was his 20th high school win against no losses in four years of play. Robersonville's eighth-inning victory run came when Wayne Britton led off with a single and went to second as Joe Bullock grounded out. Britton stole third, and came home on a wild pitch by Williamston pitcher Jimmy Bryant.

The Green Wave couldn't muster a scoring punch in the last half of the eighth and the game was in the bag for the Rams.

Although he fought a losing battle, Williamston pitcher Bryant held the Rams hitless for the first five innings of play and gave up only three hits during the game. The Robersonville club blended its three hits with four Williamston errors to score its three runs.

At the top of the sixth inning Williamston clung to a 1-0 lead by virtue of a score in the fourth inning by Nelson Kerley. In the bottom of the sixth Kerley scored again after he was safe at first on an error, went to third on a teammate's single and then scored on a wild throw by the Robersonville second baseman.

It was in the top of the seventh that Robersonville got into the ball game with runs scored by Billy Cratt and Harry Everett. Both had walked. Charles Forbes singled Cratt home from second and Jimmy Rogers hit a sacrifice fly to centerfield to score Everett.

It was the second time in less than a week that Robersonville had topped Williamston on the diamond. Friday afternoon the Rams came away on the long end of a 5-3 score.

Yesterday's victory gave the Rams a 2-0 record for the season, going into their first conference game next Friday afternoon against Oak City there. For Williamston yesterday's game gave them a 0-2 record this season.

Robersonville Tops Williamston Nine

WILLIAMSTON — Robersonville's ace pitcher Jimmy Rogers kept his high school mound record perfect Tuesday afternoon as his teammates pushed across an extra-inning run to top the Williamston club 3-2.

For Rogers it was his 20th high school win against no losses in four years of play. Robersonville's eighth-inning victory run came when Wayne Britton led off with a single and went to second as Joe Bullock grounded out. Britton stole third, and came home on a wild pitch by Williamston pitcher Jimmy Bryant.

The Green Wave couldn't muster a scoring punch in the last half of the eighth and the game was in the bag for the Rams.

Although he fought a losing battle, Williamston pitcher Bryant held the Rams hitless for the first five innings of play and gave up only three hits during the game. The Robersonville club blended its three hits with four Williamston errors to score its three runs.

At the top of the sixth inning Williamston clung to a 1-0 lead by virtue of a score in the fourth inning by Nelson Kerley. In the bottom of the sixth Kerley scored again after he was safe at first on an error, went

Arnold Palmer Bids For Third Masters Golf Title

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, who is not scared of the devil himself, goes after his third Masters golf title in five years Thursday with a couple of serious concerns — Augusta National's formidable greens and Jackie Nicklaus.

The greens are going to fool a lot of people," the tournament favorite from Latrobe, Pa., said today. "They've changed the texture on some of the greens and, well, I don't think they'll be any faster, they're going to be harder to read."

The Bermuda greens on the last nine holes of the golf course were sowed with a different type grass intended to give them a smoother putting surface. The first nine greens were left unchanged.

"My putting is the only thing bothering me," said Palmer, an 8-1 pre-tournament choice against a lineup of some 100 of the world's best amateur and professional golfers. "My only consolation is that I know the other fellows will be having trouble on the greens, too."

The long-hitting Pennsylvania professional, winner of this championship in 1958 and 1960 and loser last year only because he blew to a double-bogey six on the final hole, said he felt he had whipped himself into a good physical and psychological state for the tournament.

"For a while I had a lot of business details which were distracting and hurting my game," he said.

Asked who he thought might give him the toughest run for it, Palmer was quick with the answer.

"Well, Nicklaus has to be reckoned with. I've been playing with him in practice. He has been hitting the ball a ton. If he can put these greens, he can be awfully tough."

The defending champion, Gary

Player of South Africa, has lost favor with almost everyone apparently—except himself. He has been dropped from one of the favorite's roles because of his unimpressive showing on the winter tour.

"I'm glad they aren't taking me seriously," said the little stylist from Johannesburg. "Personally, I feel wonderful and I am very confident. I have bought a new putter and I believe my putting stroke is definitely coming back."

Besides Palmer and Nicklaus, the most highly regarded contenders are Ben Hogan, whose improved putting has projected him into a threatening role at the age of 49; Doug Sanders, Georgian with the so-called telephone booth swing, and Bill Casper Jr., former National Open champion who is giving the boys putting lessons in practice.

Almost completely overlooked are the reigning U.S. Open champion, Gene Littler, and the 46-year-old, 137-pound, PGA king,

Felipe Alou May Give Giants Most Feared Batting Lineup In League

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Felipe Alou, flashy San Francisco outfielder who with brother Matty learned to play baseball in the streets of the Dominican Republic, is threatening to give the Giants the most feared 1-2-3 hitting attack in the National League.

Ordinarily a line-drive hitter, the right-handed swinger has become a homer hammerer this spring, and added another long-ball threat to a team already well stocked in that department, with Orlando Cepeda and Willie Mays. Alou tagged No. 8—his fifth in the last three games—Tuesday, a two-run shot that carried the Giants to an 8-3 victory over Cleveland at Lucson. It also gave Alou, now 26, a batting record unmatched by the more heralded sluggers on the club.

Alou, a .289 hitter with 18 homers and 52 runs batted in during the 1961 campaign, now is No. 1 in home runs along the exhibition trail, has accounted for 24 RBI, a .462 batting average, and 63 total bases for an astounding 1.000 slugging percentage.

While Alou was continuing his outstanding spring performance, Billy O'Dell, 29, displayed top pitching form and became the first member of the Giants' pitching staff to go nine by fashioning a five-hitter against the Indians. A southpaw acquired from Baltimore after the 1959 season, O'Dell was 7-5 last year. Pegged as a big winner since he came to the club, O'Dell has been plagued by tough luck but seems ready to step in and strengthen the Giants' off-and-on mound corps.

Other route-going performances were turned in by Roger Craig of the New York Mets and Moe Drabowsky of Cincinnati. Craig spaced nine hits in a 5-4 victory over Chicago's White Sox at Sarasota, but Drabowsky was beaten 5-0 by Minnesota at Orlando despite hurling a seven-hitter.

Elsewhere, Pittsburgh knocked off the New York Yankees 4-1 at Fort Lauderdale, St. Louis edged Detroit 7-6 at St. Petersburg, the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped Boston 2-1 at Scottsdale, Milwaukee belted Chicago's Cubs 9-6 at Mesa, Washington defeated Baltimore

6-4 at Miami, the Los Angeles Angels outlasted Houston 10-9 at Albuquerque and Philadelphia beat Kansas City 2-1 at Clearwater.

Bobby Gene Smith stroked a triple and two singles, driving in the winning run for the Mets in the seventh as they snapped the White Sox' six-game winning streak. Camilo Pascual and rookie Joe Bonikowski combined to hurl a six-hitter that beat the Reds and Drabowsky. A two-run homer by Don Mincher in the first gave the Twins the runs they needed.

Whitey Ford and Mickey Mantle were bedded with the flu as the Yankees bowed to the Pirates when catcher Don Leppert singled across two unearned runs in the seventh to snap a 1-1 tie. Cardinal shortstop Julio G66ay knocked in the tying and winning runs on an infield single with two out in the ninth against the Tigers.

Daryl Spencer hit a homer in the fifth and Ron Fairly doubled home the winner for the Dodgers in the eighth when the Red Sox' Lu Clinton misjudged the fly ball. Eddie Mathews broke out of his slump for his first extra base hits, slugging two homers and a double for five RBI in the Braves' triumph over the Cubs.

Willie Tasby cleared the bases with a pinch-hit double in the eighth as the Senators beat the Orioles with Pete Burnside, Claude Osteen and rookie Jim Hannan combining for a six-hitter. Lee Thomas' single in a five-run eighth-inning rally produced the winner for the Angels after the Colts had taken the lead with five in the top of the inning.

Chris Short and rookie Paul Brown limited the A's to five hits while John Callison provided the Phils' runs with a two-run homer in the eighth.

Yankees Again See Everything In Their Favor

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Yankees, who else?

One of the greatest power-hitting teams of all time, the New York Yankees have virtually everything going for them. They have a strong pitching staff, the best infield, the best catching and the most powerful one-two punch in baseball.

If that's not enough — and it should be — the Yankees have fortified their bench and have added some of the finest looking young prospects seen this spring. All this plus high morale and the cool, calm and efficient leadership of Manager Ralph Houk add up to a one-sided pennant race with the finish coming sooner than last year.

Detroit's Tigers again figure to provide the most stubborn opposition mainly because of an excellent outfield headed by Al Kaline and Rocky Colavito. American League batting king Norm Cash, the front-line pitching headed by Frank Lary, Jim Bunning and Don Mossi, and the improvement of infielders Steve Boros and Jake Wood.

No other club figures to be close. Chicago's White Sox improved their balance by exchanging old players for younger ones but they sacrificed a good percentage of their power and don't appear to have improved their pitching unless Herb Score stages a spectacular comeback and rookies Joel Horlen and Gary Peters come through.

Cleveland's Indians picked up pitching strength by the acquisition of Dick Donovan and Pedro Ramos and the promotion of Sam McDowell, their $70,000 bonus darling. They should be a more closely united group under their new manager, Mel McGaha, but they still lack power.

The Baltimore Orioles have been the hardest hit of last year's contenders. Their once superb pitching staff is depleted by an injury to Jack Fisher, illness of Milt Pappas and the call to the Army of Steve Barber, ace of the staff. The addition of John Powell, prize rookie, the development of Jim Gentile into a feared batter, and the presence of Brooks Robinson, a star of first magnitude, make the Orioles an offensive threat for the first time.

The remaining five clubs all appear to have improved somewhat but not sufficiently to crack into the first division.

Ring Magazine Drops Archie As Division Champ

NEW YORK (AP)—Ring Magazine withdrew today its recognition of Archie Moore as light heavyweight champion and installed the welterweight title by reinstating the old gladiator into the sixth position among the heavyweight contenders.

Ring, in releasing its latest monthly ratings, declared the light heavy title vacant but named Harold Johnson, the NBA champion from Philadelphia, as the No. 1 contender.

The boxing magazine said it took the action against Moore because all of the world's major boxing bodies, with the exception of the California commission, had followed the lead of the National Boxing Association and New York Athletic Commission in stripping Moore of the title for failure to defend it in proper time.

Emmie Griffith of New York won the welterweight title by stopping Benny "Kid" Pareit in their tragic championship fight on March 24, was named Ring's "fighter of the month."

Musical Production Nets Near $1,100 For Stadium

Funds for the construction of the James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium at East Carolina College were increased by approximately $1,100 when proceeds of a performance March 31 of "Guys and Dolls," sponsored by the Student Government Association, were contributed to the project.

Cash on hand in the fund, April 2, according to the Business Office of the college, amounted to $158,978.25. Unpaid pledges of an additional $121,401.20 brought the total for providing the new facility on the campus to $280,379.45.

A drive to collect funds for the stadium began in the fall of 1961, with a steering committee of Greenville businessmen headed by Chairman W. M. Scales, Jr., in charge. The drive brought an immediate response from people of Greenville, students, faculty members, and other friends of the college.

Bids recently received for construction of the stadium exceeded the first estimated cost of $250,000. Since then, the fund has continued to increase. It has been announced that bids will be opened on April 10 for the pilings necessary for the foundations of the structure.

"Guys and Dolls," East Carolina's annual spring musical, was presented in six performances March 26-31. Box office receipts for the final performance were earmarked for the stadium fund.

The musical, produced by Donald H. Hayes of the Department of Music with a student cast, received an enthusiastic response from audiences from a wide area in the state and was well attended during its six-night run.

The $1,100 raised by the performance of "Guys and Dolls" is one of a number of contributions made by student groups interested in the construction of an adequate stadium at the college.

Not Trying To Be Do-Gooders

By BEN BROWN
CHARLOTTE (AP) — "We're not trying to be do-gooders," said Carol Stevens.

"We're not here to freedom ride or anything," said Harold Sudmeier.

"I didn't expect anything, I'm here with a very open mind and enjoying it very much," said Ronna Schwartz.

They are among 10 white students from Presbyterian-sponsored University of Dubuque in Iowa. Who have exchanged places with 10 Negro students from Johnson C. Smith in Charlotte for one week.

The five girls and five boys, dressed in typical college garb, agreed that they "found Johnson C. Smith little different from their own campus."

Dr. John Knox Coit, a professor of philosophy at Dubuque, accompanied the students. "We have no specific objectives in this program," he said. "We might promote an awareness of social problems."

Dr. Coit said the Faculty-Student Committee and academic dean at Dubuque helped select the students. There were no volunteers for the trip as such. A spokesman at Johnson C. Smith said the students that left here for the Iowa campus were chosen in much the same way.

The white students are living in the dorms at J. C. Smith and eating in the college cafeteria. The students tried to exchange dormitory rooms where possible in the college swap.

The Johnson C. Smith students who went to Dubuque were Lydia Aiken and Barbara Ferguson, both of Wilmington, N. C.; Mary Roberts of Athens, Ga.; Queen Rosenborough of Ridgeway, S. C.; Outlaw of Wilson, Alfred Robertson of Suffolk, Va.; Kenneth Washington of Columbus, Ga.; and Thomas Wright of Richmond, Va.

Astronauts Not Accepting Homes

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's seven astronauts have had their minds made up for them: they are not going to accept $24,000 homes plus furnishings offered by the great heart of Texas.

Under gentle tutelage from higher-ups Tuesday it might be misunderstood if they accepted the spanking new houses from the Houston Home Builders Association.

None of the spacemen was present when the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced at a news conference that the astronauts were regretfully declining the offer.

But Lt. Col. John A. (Shorty) Powers, the "voice of the astronauts," was there, as was C. Leo DeOrsey, business adviser for the spacemen.

It was DeOrsey who had decided it was perfectly ethical for the spacemen to accept the houses in Houston, which is soon to be the home of a new $90-million manned space flight center.

Then the White House, the Pentagon and NASA began to have qualms, especially after the situation was highly publicized.

So DeOrsey got in touch with NASA and received the word, which was, in effect, thumbs down. He communicated with Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., the nation's first man in orbit, who passed word to the other six astronauts.

As a matter of fact the spacemen don't seem to have been very active either in accepting the offer in the first place or in rejecting it in the second. They left it in the hands of their lawyer, DeOrsey.

If anybody is to blame, "I'm the guy," he said. He insisted that acceptance was perfectly okay and that if he had it to do all over again, he would make the same recommendation.

But in view of NASA's attitude, he said, "the boys" wouldn't have to be very bright to realize that acceptance would get them in bad with their bosses.

Reporters quizzed him about the astronauts' $500,000 contract with Life magazine and just how much they are investing in a new motel in Cocoa Beach, Fla., an apartment development in Washington and a motel in the Bahama islands.

"I don't think it's any of your business," said DeOrsey.

Powers said he hoped the public would realize that astronauts have some rights to privacy.

The NASA statement said the astronauts believe the free house offer was made in good faith, but "they now feel, however, that the motives of the people who made the offer and their acceptance might be misunderstood."

The Houston builders said they were sorry the offer was turned down and indicated they were disturbed that the situation had caused embarrassment.

New President For Recreation League In Ayden

AYDEN — Elwood Nobles, president of the Ayden Recreation League, submitted his resignation this week, due to acceptance of employment in another town.

He has been succeeded by Harry Cleaton as president. Cleaton, secretary-treasurer of the organization for several terms, has served as manager of the American Legion Little League team.

Announcement of Nobles' resignation was made at a joint meeting of the Winterville and Ayden recreation leagues, which have set up schedules for the Winterville and Ayden Little League teams.

The league has adopted its schedule for this spring, beginning April 28 and continuing until July 12. Details will be announced later. The local teams will participate in the state playoffs this year, it was noted.

Chivalry From Flying Knight

CASPER, Wyo. (AP) — Who says chivalry is dead?

Mrs. D. L. Epperson's car bogged down in a deep snow drift near the Epperson ranch north of Casper. She tried to shovel her way out of the hard, crusted snow alone—when down dropped Ronnie Bloxham of Lusk to take over the shovel.

He was flying over the area, spotted the woman, so landed his light airplane on a bare stretch of ground near the stalled car.

Amphibians are distinguished from fishes in that the former generally possess paired limbs with toes rather than fins.

Give Report On Rotary Session

AYDEN — Lee Nance and Corey Stokes presented a report on the recent district Rotary conference held in Fayetteville at last week's meeting of the Ayden Rotary Club. Jimmy Farmer was in charge of the evening's program.

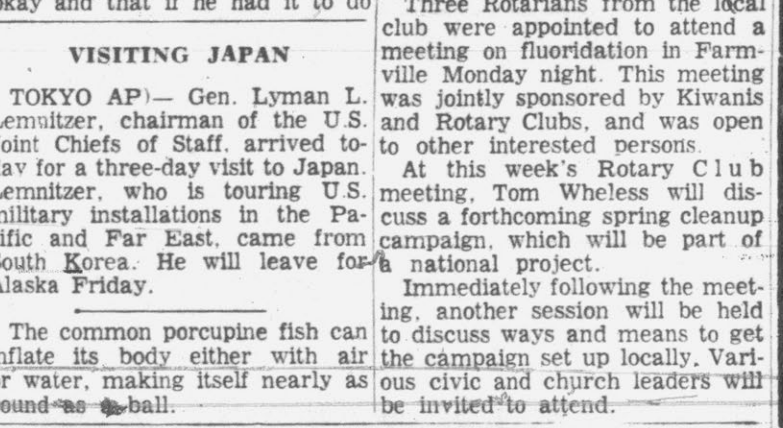

Gwynn Merritt, president, was in charge of the meeting.

Three Rotarians from the local club were appointed to attend a meeting on fluoridation in Farmville Monday night. This meeting was jointly sponsored by Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs, and was open to other interested persons.

At this week's Rotary Club meeting, Tom Wheelless will discuss a forthcoming spring cleanup campaign, which will be part of a national project.

Immediately following the meeting, another session will be held to discuss ways and means to get the campaign set up locally. Various civic and church leaders will be invited to attend.

Burned-Out Reno Hotel Combed For Bodies; Many Are Missing

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Fallen floors and inner walls and charred gambling equipment formed a blackened mass for searchers to probe today after a 10-hour hotel fire in the downtown casino district. The death toll couldn't be determined until wrecking crews topple dangerously weakened walls later in the day.

Authorities said an unidentified middle-aged woman had perished in the blaze which destroyed the historic and newly remodeled New Golden Hotel.

But three hotel entertainers and more than a score of guests were unaccounted for at a late hour Tuesday night.

"It doesn't take much smoke to kill, and there's a hell of a lot of it in that building," a fire chief said, fearing some of the guests had been trapped in the four-story building. Seventeen persons were injured.

Firemen sprayed the ruins during the night.

But as soon as the fire was out, business resumed its usual hectic pace at gambling palaces just across an alley from the hotel. Some neighboring buildings were damaged in the area on Center Street, just off Virginia Street and separated from the largest casinos by Douglas Alley.

The fire broke out Tuesday morning, apparently from an exploding basement boiler or acetylene tank. A Forest Service plane bombed the building with a fire-retardant solution after five hours but the hotel continued to burn.

A front wall collapsed into the street, and the rear wall also fell. Upper floors crashed to street level. The casino became a heap of collapsed gaming tables and slot machines.

Patrons at nearby Harold's Club fled the smoke as owner Harold Smith Jr. fiddled to prevent panic.

Most guests raced down fire escapes or were led down ladders by firemen. A big cement bucket on a crane felled the hotel's false front, creating an escape route for others.

But members of the hotel's show, "Playmates of 1962," said a Hollywood chorus girl, Carol Maye, 20, apparently did not escape from a fourth-floor window where she stood screaming.

Police theorized that most of the guests unaccounted for had left town without leaving word. For awhile 70 guests were unreported, but by late Tuesday night 31 had been located or had called in.

New Golden officials could come no closer to a damage estimate than "millions." The hotel was remodeled for $250,000 six years ago and in 1960 began staging Las Vegas-style bare-bosom chorus girl productions.

The hotel was sedate and elegant from its start in 1906 until gambling with a flare became big in Reno after World War II. From then on stage shows and gaming were featured.

People Of Storm-Lashed Town Making Comeback

By DORMAN CORDELL

SEA ISLE CITY, N.J. (AP)—"We like it down here," says Dan Salerno, hard at work rebuilding the foundation of his storm-tossed summer home.

Salerno's home now sits 100 yards from its foundation. It was carried away by tides. But Salerno is wasting no time getting things right again.

He typifies the spirit here in the wake of last month's coastal storm that devastated much of this resort town and other areas along the New Jersey Atlantic Coast.

In two days the tides and winds caused damage estimated at $2.7 million to private property in Sea Isle City, destroying more than a tenth of all that was taxable.

The town, with 1,400 permanent residents, has made a valiant recovery from the worst blow in its history, but signs of the havoc are still seen everywhere.

Of 2,040 houses, 285 were destroyed or swept away, and about 45 more will have to be demolished. The storm left three feet of sand on Landis Avenue, the main street, and six or eight feet of debris on top of that.

Now, one month later, there is still some sand in the streets, but most of it has been cleared away by the State Highway Department. What remains is expected to be cleared by April 13.

Big trucks gather debris on the beachfront, carrying it to one side of town, where it is being burned. A column of smoke can be seen for miles.

All utilities are operating again, although water still is being boiled as a precautionary measure. The State Health Department is expected to approve the water supply in the next few days, city officials said Tuesday.

Other homeowners, like Salerno, are repairing and rebuilding where it is possible.

"We've already wrecked 20 houses, that were beyond repair,

Pension Voted Shine Veteran

NEW YORK (AP) — Back in 1927, young Vincent Tronole began dropping in at the offices of the American Cyanamid Co. at 535 Fifth Ave. to shine the shoes of employees.

As the years passed, Tronole built up an extensive clientele ranging from president of the corporation to office boy, all of whom called him "Jimmy." He was never on the company payroll, but to many in the firm he seemed a member of the official family.

When the company moved its offices to 30 Rockefeller Plaza, Tronole moved with it. Daily he made his rounds through the extensive offices caring for his customers, shining an average of more than 50 pairs of shoes a day, five days a week.

Some months ago, Tronole was told the company was moving its offices to Wayne, N. J. Now 65, he decided the journey between his home in West New York, N. J., and the company's new headquarters would be too arduous.

On the other hand, the prospect of building up a new clientele at his age discouraged him.

Last week, Cyanamid Vice President Robert Fiske took up Tronole's problem with the board of directors. The board voted Tronole a pension as of May 1 "sufficient to assure his ease" for the rest of his life.

George R. Martin, chairman of Cyanamid's executive committee, himself due to retire at 65 next June—handed Tronole his notice of retirement Tuesday.

To show his appreciation, Tronole shined Martin's shoes, as he had many times before. This time, however, it was free.

with the owners' permission," Mayor Vincent Lamanna said. "We'll probably ask the public health authorities to condemn the others that need to be wrecked. We hope to have the beach cleared up by Memorial Day."

Memorial Day, the beginning of the summer resort season, is the goal in the minds of almost everybody. The mayor predicts the biggest season ever, although summer housing will be short.

"Many people will be coming here this season out of curiosity if for no other reason," he said.

All rebuilding on the beachfront has been suspended by the city since the storm. The city hasn't been notified yet by the state authorities where the new line of permanent dunes for protection will be built. It may swallow up many of the lots that were close to the sea.

New French Assembly Expected To Follow

An AP News Analysis
By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP)—French political leaders are looking beyond the referendum next Sunday on the Algerian cease-fire. Their eyes are focused on elections for a new National Assembly which are expected to follow.

President Charles de Gaulle apparently has not made up his mind yet to dissolve the Assembly. He has been talking to representatives from different political factions. But most politicians seem to take for granted that he will issue the orders soon after the referendum, which is expected to approve his Algerian peace agreement overwhelmingly.

Premier Michel Debre's government has been making announcements, or leaking dribbles of information, that make campaign ammunition. Debre has been making speeches reviewing the accomplishments of his administration.

The government has announced that the military draft term is being cut. Increased allocations for the aged are expected to be approved soon. Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing has hinted that the income tax load of two million small taxpayers will be lightened soon.

The deputies' full five-year term would come to an end late in 1963, but the end of the Algerian war seems to present the ideal psychological moment for De Gaulle to call elections. The popularity of De Gaulle and his followers should be at a record high. He obviously will want a favorable Assembly and a cooperative government as he re-orientates the nation's course at the end of almost 23 years of uninterrupted fighting in various parts of the world.

The attitude of the political parties on the referendum has been at least partially conditioned by the prospect of election. De Gaulle has announced that he will consider a "yes" vote to be not only approval of the cease-fire with the Algerian rebels, but also approval for his past actions in other fields and a mandate for his unannounced plans for the future.

Agreement with this has come from the Union of the New Republic—UNR—which won 38 per cent of the Assembly seats in 1958 on a platform of all-out support for De Gaulle. Jacques Chaban-Delmas, one of the UNR founders, in a recent radio address reaffirmed the party's complete solidarity with De Gaulle and all of his plans.

The Popular Republican Movement—MRP—which has participated in the government and backed De Gaulle on most of his projects, is keeping a discreet silence about future backing for the president, but it is recommending a "yes" vote in the referendum.

The Communists and the Socialists also are urging their backers to approve the Algerian accords. But they have specifically said that this cannot be taken as an approval of De Gaulle's methods of personal power. The Independent Republicans are letting each deputy and senator make his own recommendations to his constituents.

No political parties have come out with a "no" recommendation. However, a relatively small number of right-wing deputies and senators are asking independently for a negative vote. Pierre Poujade, whose political party crumbled in the 1958 elections, is against the peace accords. So are the deputies linked under the National Assembly. The Union of the Republic does not exist as an organized party, however. Most of its members were elected on the UNR ticket and many of them are from Algeria.

Composers Will Attend ECC Music Festival

A contemporary music festival will bring to East Carolina College April 6-8 a number of North Carolina composers with national reputations. While at the college, they will participate in several days of meetings and concerts.

Vincent Persichetti, one of this country's most distinguished composers, will be guest composer and lecturer at the festival. A faculty member of the Juilliard School of Music, he is noted also as pianist, and author.

Among composers who will attend the festival here will be John Barnes Chance, currently a Ford Foundation composer in Greensboro; M. T. Cousins of Brevard, whose anthem "Glorious Everlasting" has been a best seller and was performed on the Ed Sullivan Show; and Dr. Benjamin Dunford of Concord. Carl Alexius, faculty member at Woman's College, Greensboro, will be represented by a piano sonata.

Other visitors will include Dr. Roger McDuffie, faculty member of Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C.

Several events of the festival will be open to the public, and those who are interested are invited to attend free of charge.

These attractions include a chamber music program Saturday, April 7, at 2 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium; a band and choral concert, also on Saturday, at 8:30 p.m. in the Wright auditorium; and a lecture-recital by Vincent Persichetti Sunday, April 8, at 1:30 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium.

Reluctant Soviet Official Fired

MOSCOW (AP)—The Executive Committee of the Moscow Regional Council dismissed one of its officials who refused to leave Moscow to work in a supervisory organization set up in the countryside to boost farm production, the newspaper Sovetskaya Russia reported Tuesday.

The newspaper identified the official as I. T. Podlipala and hinted he might be expelled from the Communist party.

Seeing Red And Looking Red

GLOUCESTER, N.J. (AP)—The situation here is rather red, Freeholder Michael J. Conroy complains.

"Residents not only are seeing red, but looking red," he says.

It comes, Conroy contends, from mounds of red iron ore imported from Peru and stored along the Philadelphia waterfront. Winds blow the dust across the Delaware River.

The dust is filtering into homes and soiling clothing, Conroy says. The Board of Freeholders asked Mayor H. J. Tate of Philadelphia to remedy the situation.

HOME GYM -- FOR FIVE MINUTES A DAY

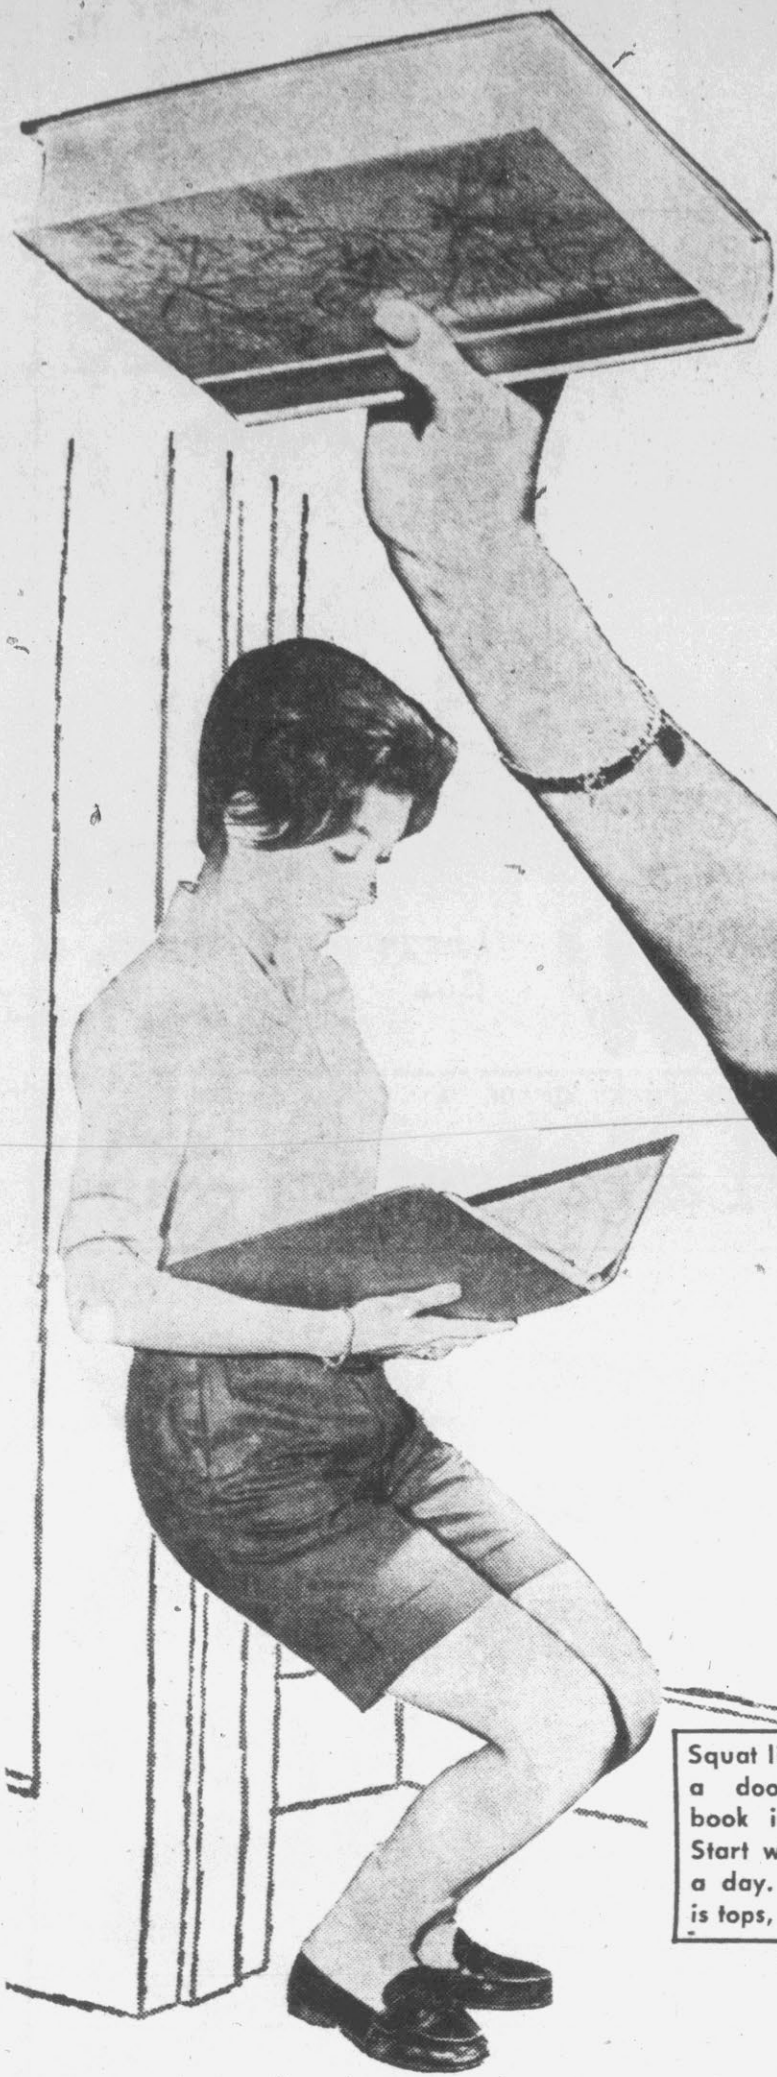

Man or woman, you, like pretty Wayne State University co-ed Aviva Thatch, can turn your home into a "gym" for a simple five-minute-a-day program that will keep you in trim for a long time to come.

The program was designed by an exercise expert, Miss Nancy Butler, of the school's physical education department, in Detroit, Mich.

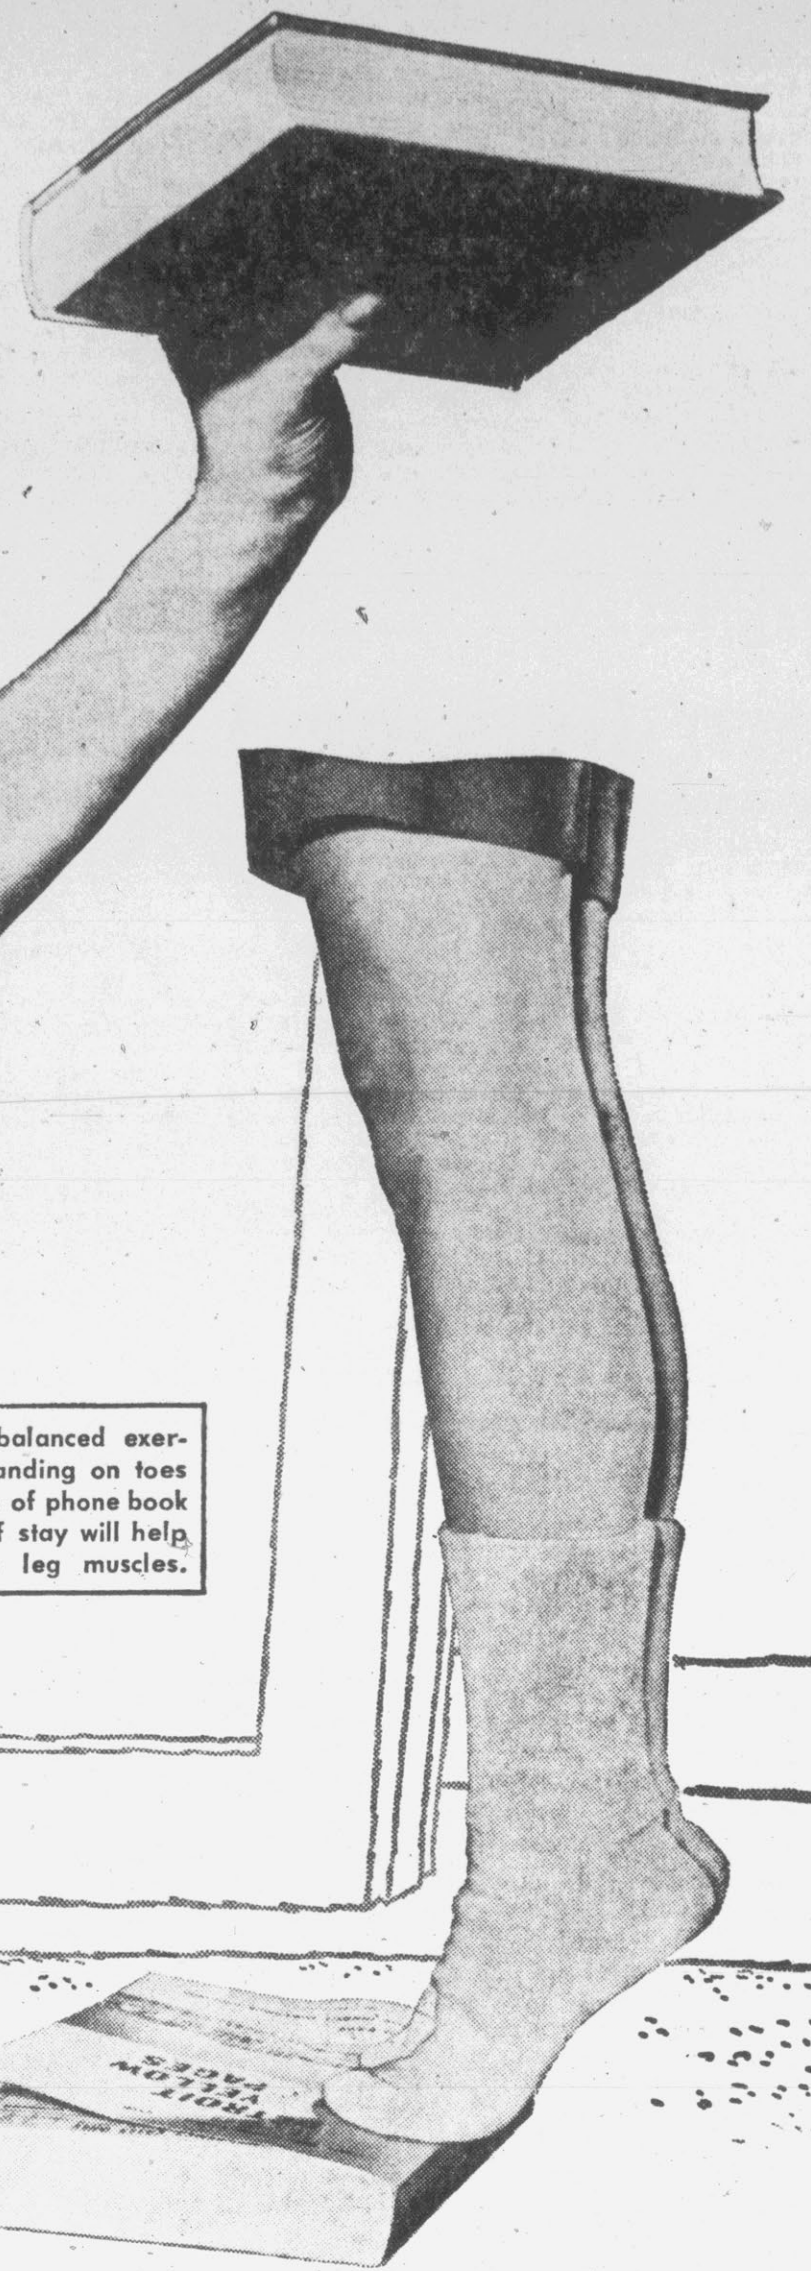

Instead of dumbbells, medicine balls, rowing equipment and stationary bicycles, here are all the props you need: several books, a couch you can get your feet under, a chair to hold on to and a door jamb.

The exercises shown here are intended to keep the weight off all of the wrong places, as well as firm up all of the muscles. One other exercise to give your body flexibility: touch your toes ten times. But, all this must be done every day, says Miss Butler.

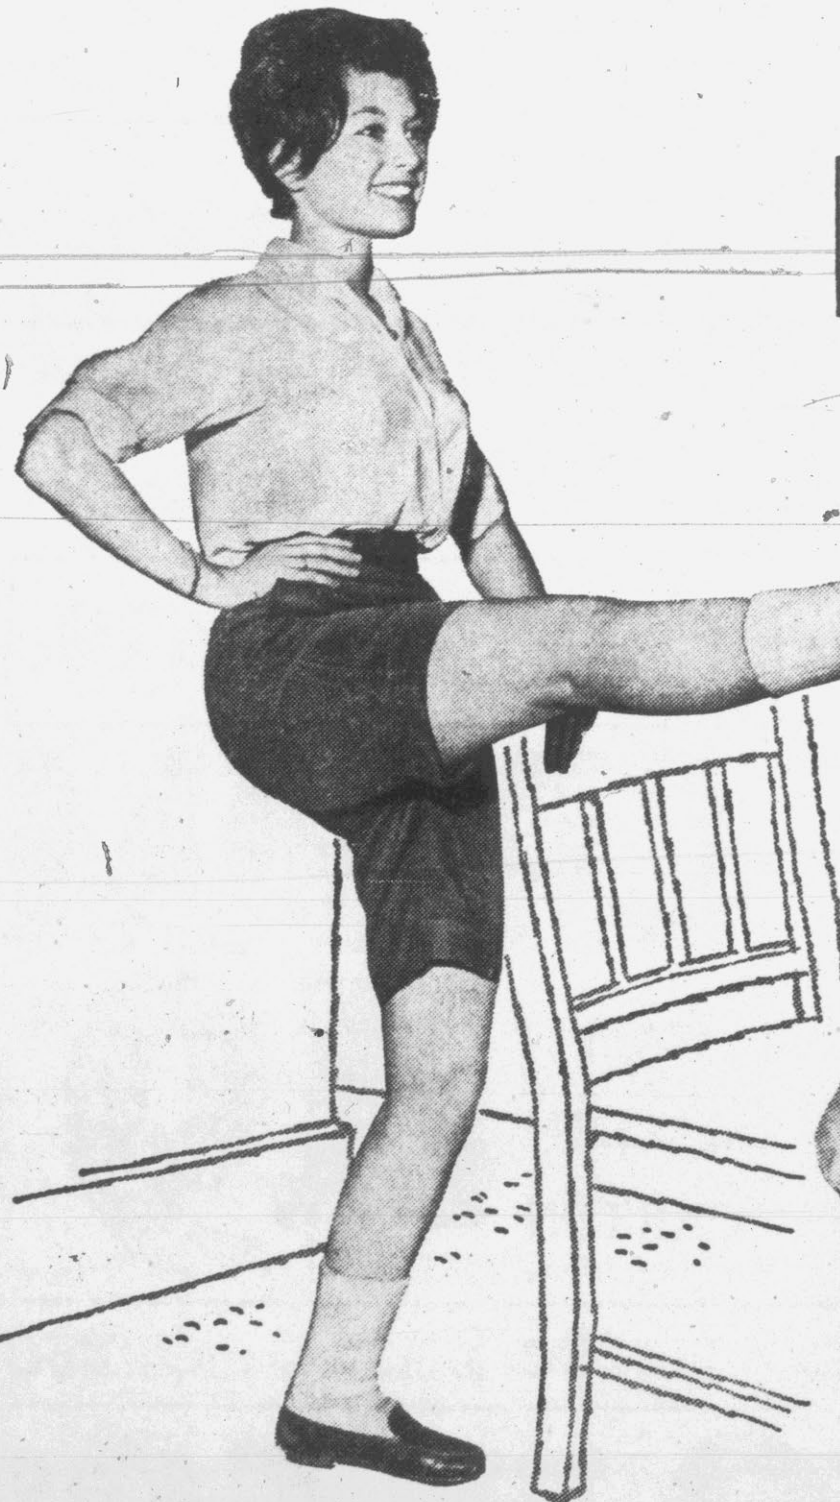

These exercises are designed for the person who is under 45 years of age and hasn't exercised at all, up to now. The exercise can make you hungry but don't increase your intake of food, Miss Butler warns, if you want to stay trim.

Squat like this against a doorjamb with a book in your hand. Start with 15 seconds a day. Three minutes is tops, even for a man.

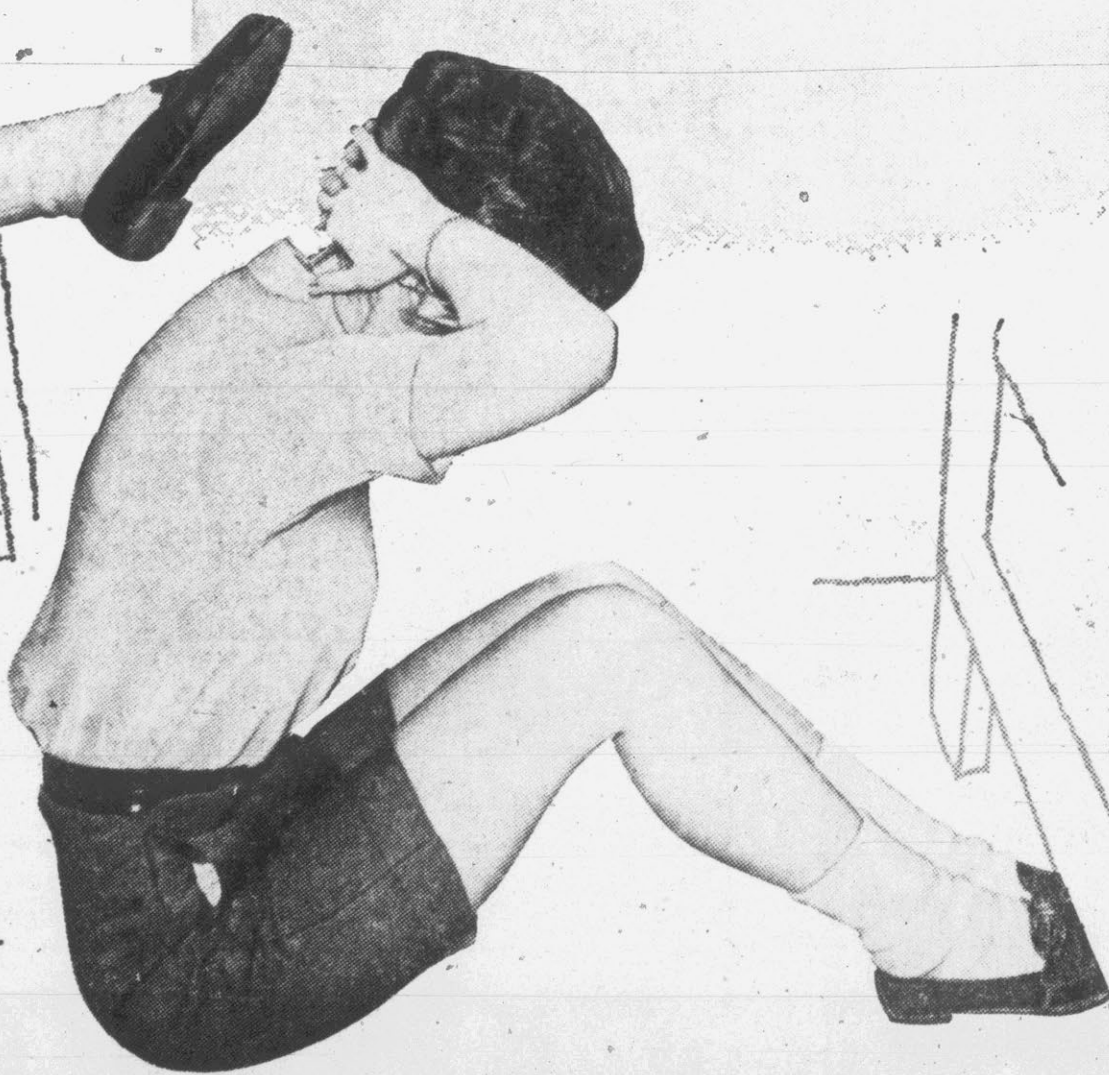

A well-balanced exercise. Standing on toes on edge of phone book for brief stay will help firm up leg muscles.

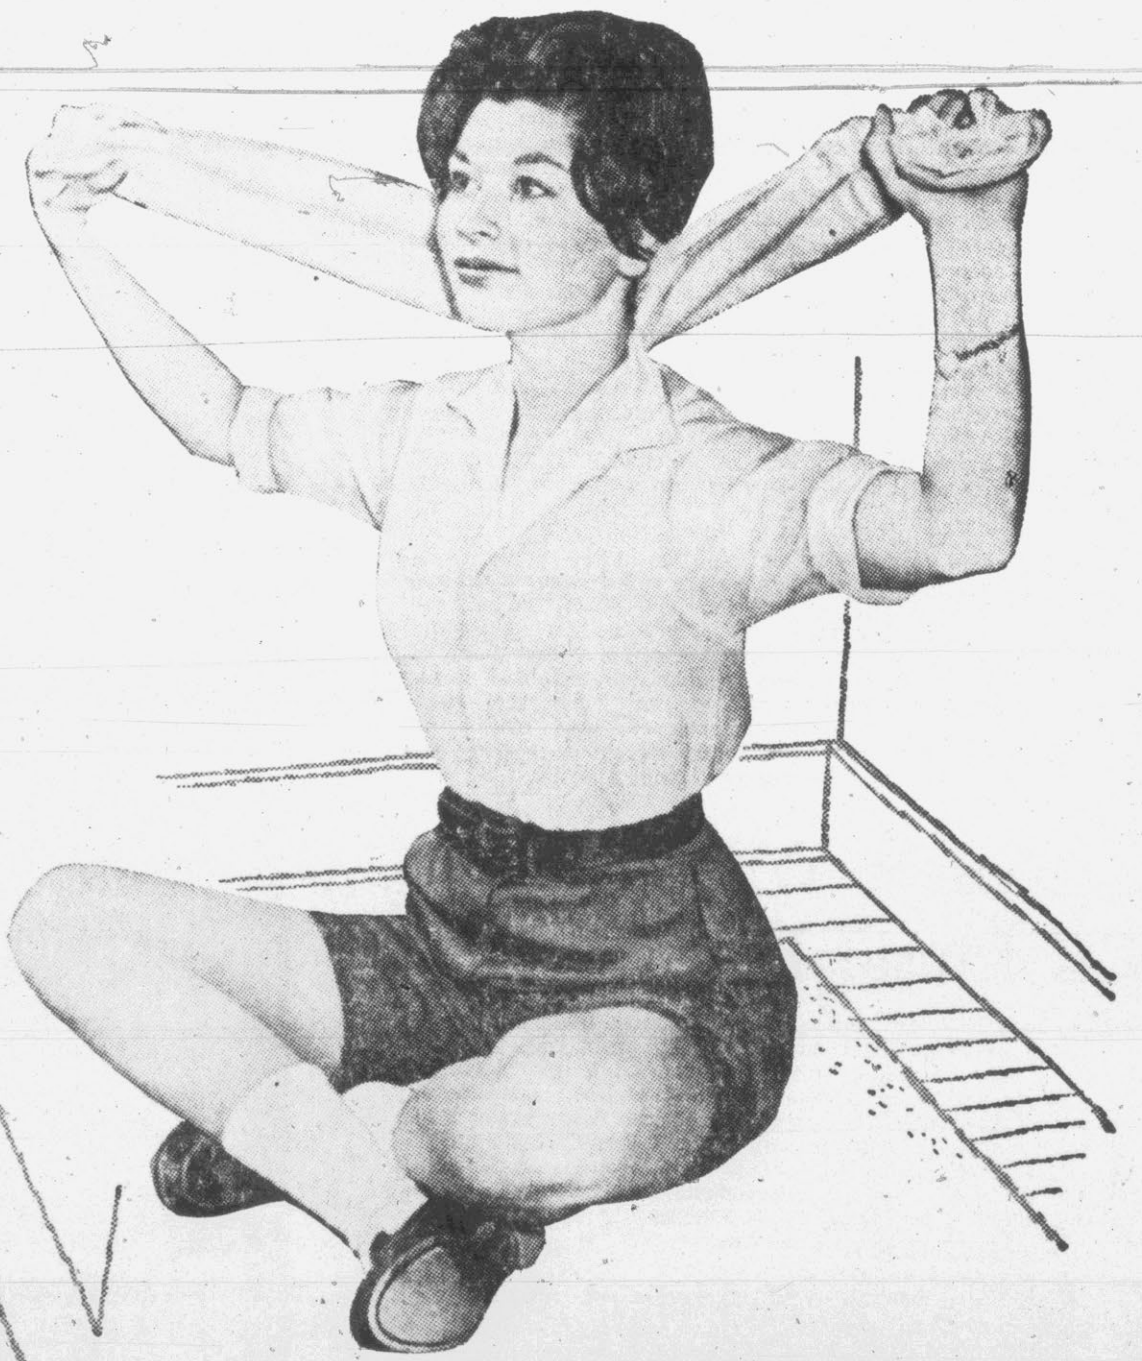

Swing each leg 10 times (higher in back than in front to keep trim all around). Do no more than 25 a day. Too much is bad.

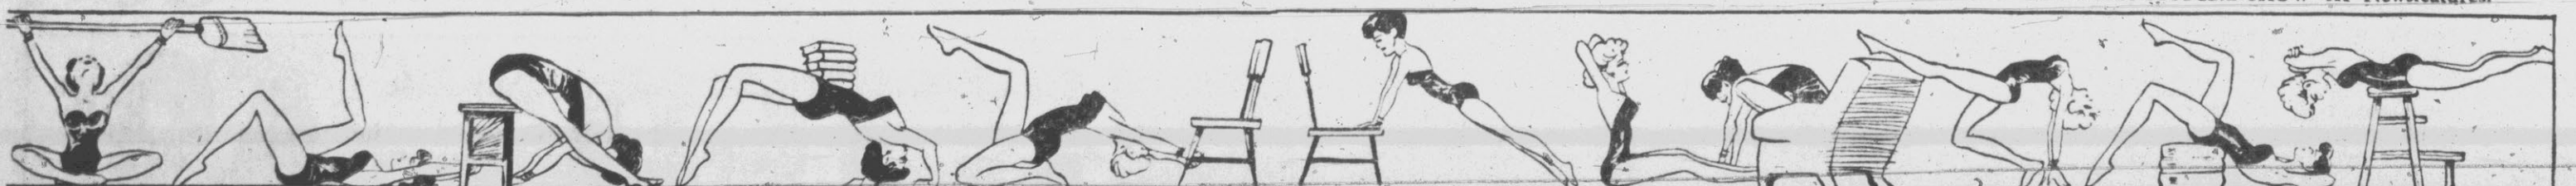

Make 10 small circles with the books at arms' length. Don't hold the books directly in front, but out to the side as co-ed Aviva Thatch is doing.

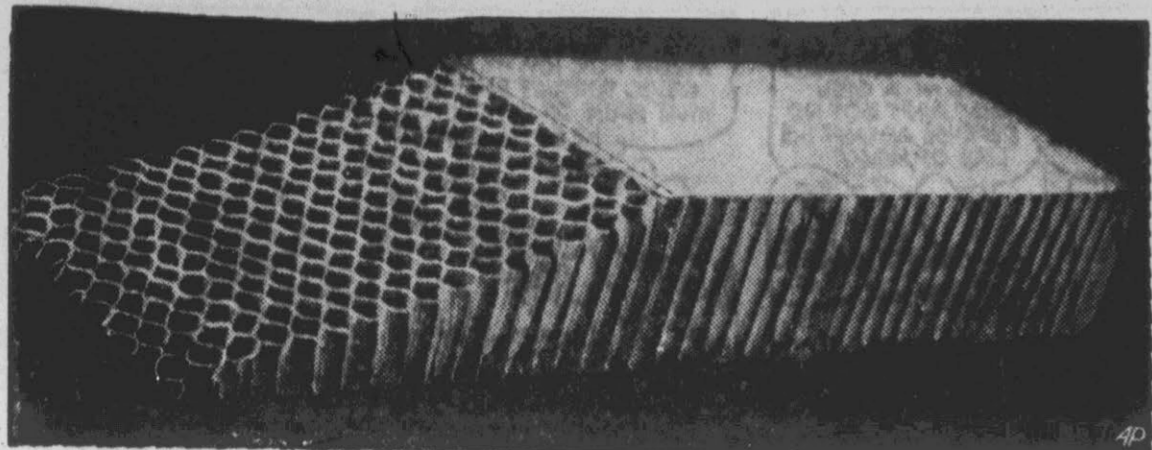

With feet under couch and hands behind head, try five sit-ups to start with. Do no more than 25. Too much knots muscles.

Simple exercise is this to keep your neck and shoulder muscles firm, and help posture. A bath towel does the trick.

Five Escapees Of San Quentin Are Recaptured

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—“With a little bit of luck,” and “If we hadn’t been trapped,” were some musings of five San Quentin convicts on their way from 29 hours of freedom to 29 days in solitary.

The quintet fled up a ladder, over the prison wall and down a rope early Monday, planning, they said, to steal a car and drive far away.

They were back in custody today because a dog named Duke barked and his mistress had sharp eyes.

“Duke deserves all the credit,” said Dorothy Worley, a Santa Venetia housewife. Duke spotted the five fugitives when, cold and hungry, they stopped to sleep early Tuesday on a hillside behind her home, less than 10 miles from San Quentin.

Mrs. Worley spotted three of the escapees. A quick call to the sheriff, a speedy response, and the five meekly surrendered.

James Dubois, 29, insisted he would have fought guards if he hadn’t been trapped.

John L. Rucker, 31, said he was convinced that “with a little bit of luck, we’d have made it.” Then he admitted that if Mrs. Worley hadn’t spotted them, “it would have been someone else.”

Kenneth E. Adams, 32, said he could have made it. The other escapees were J. F. Spatola, 31, and G. C. Roark, 27.

They face escape charges which could add one-year-to-life sentences to their present terms for crimes ranging from drunken driving to robbery.

Firemen Die In Chemical Blast

NORWICH, Conn. (AP)—“My God, this thing is going to blow!” Philip Marcelline screamed.

Moments later, a truckload of chemicals exploded outside a storage plant, killing four firemen.

The firemen had been called to put out what started as a small fire on the truck. After the blast, the fire spread to the Van Tassel Storage Co. Additional explosions in the warehouse demolished the building.

One body was found 150 feet away. Three others were thrown over the top of the building by the force of the blast.

Windows were shattered a mile away. Tracks of the Central Vermont Railroad were destroyed.

Authorities said the initial fire on the truck probably started when a highly inflammable chemical, methyl ethyl ketone, used as an industrial solvent, spilled.

Marcelline was one of four men unloading the chemicals from the truck.

Killed were Capt. William J. Sheridan, 47, Carl Burke, 34, Leonard M. Coughlan, 45, and Edward Romano, 37.

Four other persons were injured, including two firemen.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG AP Newfeatures

Any time you talk to an architect about houses of the future, he inevitably mentions the use of new, better and cheaper building materials. Some of these materials, he explains, have not even been invented yet. Others are in existence, but haven’t been developed to the point where they can be used in the construction of homes.

One building material that has come out of the development stage is aluminum-faced plastic honeycomb. A lightweight cellulose construction which resembles the well-known product of the bee, honeycomb is said to have the highest known strength to weight ratio. Honeycomb core has been used for years in aircraft and missile structures, curtain walls, truck bodies, shipping containers and dozens of other products. Essentially a form of paper, one type gets its plastic tag from the fact that it is impregnated with plastic for extra strength and moisture resistance.

In 1954, a home was built using honeycomb panels as a structural material. But the panels could be produced then only in four-foot widths, which meant that a 40-foot wall was composed of 10 separate panels. This was a construction liability, since so many joining operations were necessary.

A technique has now been developed to produce single panels of aluminum-faced plastic honeycomb up to 40 feet. Actually, they can be made even longer, but 40 feet has been set as the present maximum for purposes of easy transportation. Each panel consists of a three-inch thickness of honeycomb, with an aluminum facing on each side. The aluminum will be colored at the factory as requested. These panels will be for exterior use. The interior panels will have the same plastic honeycomb core, but the facing will be gypsum board.

There seems no doubt that, as the architects say, we are in for many new types of building materials in the years ahead. ALL the scientists, it appears, aren’t preoccupied with research and development in the missile and rocket field.

MYF District Rally To Be Held Here On Friday

Some 350 to 400 young people are expected to arrive here Friday afternoon to attend a Methodist Youth Fellowship District Rally at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Young people from the New Bern district of the Methodist Youth Fellowship will open the annual rally at 5 p.m., and will hear an inspirational message by Dr. Edgar B. Fisher, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. Election and installation of officers will take place later in the meeting.

Richard Taft, vice president of the New Bern District M.Y.F., will preside over the rally. The theme will be “Lift Up Your Eyes and See.”

Following the inspirational message, a panel discussion on “Race Relations” will be conducted by Jimmy Eatman of Greenville, David Bethel of Jacksonville, Kay Taylor and Edna Harvey, both of Kingston. The Rev. Ralph Fleming of New Bern will serve as moderator.

Winston Dixon, president of the New Bern district, will preside over the business session at about 8 p.m., during which nomination and election of officers for 1962-63 will take place. Installation of officers will take place about 8:30 and will be performed by Dr. A. J. Hobbs, of New Bern, district superintendent.

During the rally, J. A. Conrad Glass, youth director for the conference, will discuss youth assemblies for the summer. Miss Linda Ferris and Lane Ferris will present special music for the occasion. Supper will be served at 6:30.

THE FAMILY ON A BUDGET will welcome this 990-square-foot three-bedroom home—large enough to provide elbow room for comfortable living but small enough to hold costs down. The dining area is incorporated into the living to afford a 23-foot unobstructed space, dispelling the small house cramped feeling. A full basement lends itself to a multitude of uses, in effect doubling the livable area of the home. Methodist Student Center's Director Planning To Retire

Miss Mamie Chandler, director of the local Methodist Student Center for 19 years, was honored at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Student Center on Monday.

MISS MAMIE CHANDLER

ous aspects of Miss Chandler's work here, the board recognized "that she has given a large portion of her life to students of East Carolina College, to the church and the community." The resolution noted the "hours and hours" that she has spent in personal individual conferences and in counseling, and her "ceaseless concern for the program of the center." They noted, also, her success with dramatic activity as an area of religious education and of character building.

She has worked in the community beyond the Methodist Church by reaching Bible classes and lecturing for various organizations. She has attended state and national meetings, taking students with her, and participating in many of these activities. She is a former president of the Conference Deaconess Board. Some 15 members of the Board of Directors of the Methodist Student Center attended the luncheon meeting on Monday, with Mrs. H. A. Davis of Raleigh as chairman. Miss Chandler was presented with a check as a gift from the board.

Rare Execution Held In Britain

BEDFORD, England (AP) — James Hanratty, 25, a red-haired Irishman, was hanged in Bedford jail today for the slaying last August of physicist John Gregsten. Hanratty was convicted on the testimony of Gregsten's girlfriend, Valeria Storie, 22, who said that Hanratty shot Gregsten in the head, then raped her, shot her five times and left her for dead beside a lonely road known as Dead Man's Hill. Miss Storie has been paralyzed from the waist down since the shooting and testified from a wheelchair. Hanratty was sentenced to death Feb. 17 after the longest murder trial in British history, 21 days. Home Secretary Richard A. Butler refused to recommend clemency although a London newspaper discovered after the trial that Hanratty had been diagnosed a mental defective in 1952. Hanratty's attorney, Emmanuel Kleinman, telephoned a last-minute appeal to Butler shortly after midnight, saying he had new information. Butler refused to reconsider. About 200 persons kept vigil outside the red brick jail as Hanratty

Profits In Missiles Rapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., says that the three companies made profits of about $29.5 million, or 20 per cent of the cost, of launcher-loaders for the country's Nike missile bases.

McClellan is chairman of a Senate Investigating subcommittee looking into the cost of equipping Nike bases. Parts for the anti-missile are made at Western Electric and Douglas Aircraft plants in North Carolina. The stage for the inquiry was set Tuesday with testimony from a staff investigator for the subcommittee, Robert E. Dunne. He testified that three firms each took more than $9 million profit on launcher-loaders that cost the producing company about $66 million to build. McClellan then commented:

"I'm not saying for the moment that was unreasonable — I'm not saying anything was wrong here."

McClellan said the crux of the issue was whether the government might not save money by eliminating the middleman. In an opening statement, McClellan said no one is being accused of wrongdoing. He said the subcommittee's job is to see that "excessive profits and costs do not occur."

Dunne testified the launching and loading equipment was produced by Consolidated Western Steel Co. of Los Angeles, A U. S. Steel Corp. subsidiary, over an eight-year period from 1952 to 1960.

He said the consolidated firm received a $9,285,000 profit on the equipment which cost it about $46 million to produce.

Consolidated was, at the bottom of the three tiers of contractors and subcontractors, Dunne said. At the top was Western Electric Co., which holds the major contract on the Nike-Ajax and Nike-Hercules missiles, and in between was Douglas Aircraft Co., a major subcontractor.

For the launcher-loader work, Dunne testified that Douglas collected a profit of $10,354,659 and Western Electric received $9,840,400.

During a recess Walter G. Herr, contract manager for West-

Nobody Asked Dan's Opinion

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — One of the problems before the City Council's streets and sewers committee concerned street paving projects. One of those projects concerned the street where Daniel Dancer lives. Dancer attended the meeting Tuesday. He sat at the head of the committee table. Nobody asked his opinion. Then, the mother of Daniel Dancer, 4, found him and that ended his basic training in city government. He went through the trap. A crowd of students carried anti-hanging posters. The crowd drifted away after a police inspector said, "it's all over now."

ern Electric, challenged Dunne's figures, but the committee investigator insisted they were right. "They're not right," Herr said. "If you're going to use them, get them right." In his testimony Dunne noted that the profits of each of the two "upper tier" contractors, as he called them — Western Electric and Douglas — were greater than the profit received by Consolidated Western for the actual production work. McClellan said it appeared "Douglas was the middle man, so to speak." He said "the very crux" of the issue is why the government couldn't have saved money by letting the contracts directly.

Sens. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb. and Karl Mundt, R-S. D., suggested Douglas and Western Electric probably were entitled to profits because of design work they had done for the launcher-loaders. McClellan said the two top contractors had been paid separately for the design and development work. Dunne said the Douglas firm contended it should be paid on the production work too, much as a songwriter receives royalties each time his song is used. Curtis asked if the system wasn't about the same as a contractor presenting his bill for constructing a house and including in it all the costs and profits paid the firms which had installed heating, wiring and other equipment. "The pig difference, senator, is competition," Dunne replied. He said competition tends to hold down prices in private enterprise but on missile contracts "there is no competition."

Judge Continues Trespass Cases

EDENTON, N. C. (AP) — Trespass cases here against 18 teenage Negroes and an NAACP youth supervisor have been continued by Judge Henry L. Stevens of Warsaw. Judge Stevens granted the continuances Tuesday, pending a decision by the U. S. Supreme Court in similar sit-in demonstration cases which were appealed from the North Carolina Supreme Court. Counsel for the defendants agreed his clients would abide by the U. S. Supreme Court's decision and plead guilty if the state court is upheld. Among the cases are those against Golden Frinks, Edenton NAACP youth supervisor, who is charged with unlawful picketing, resisting arrest and assaulting an officer.

Didn't Want It, But Re-Elected

ASHLAND, Mo. (AP) — Lehmon Wren, who didn't want it, was reelected mayor of Ashland Tuesday when 55 voters wrote his name on their ballots. "I'm tired of listening to belly-aches of other people — I wouldn't run again if they paid me," Wren said before the election. Everyone else apparently felt the same way because nobody filed. Nobody else got a vote. Ashland, a town of 465 residents, doesn't pay its mayor.

DRIVER WALKED AWAY — A car driven by Manuel Esteves of San Jose, Calif., flips over after being involved in a six car pile-up on first turn of the quarter-mile track at the San Jose Speedway. Lower photo shows the car landing upside down in a cloud of dust. There were no serious injuries. Esteves walked away with minor cuts and abrasions. (AP Wirephoto)

HOW CONVICTS ESCAPED — A convict demonstrates how five other convicts broke out of San Quentin prison in San Quentin, Calif. It was the first break of this type in at least 19 years. Prison officials said the men, some of them considered dangerous and possibly armed, broke into a store room, stole the ladder and scaled this section of the prison wall which is unmanned between midnight and 8 A.M. Robersonville Board Seeks Clarify Recent Decisions

ROBERSONVILLE—Robersonville commissioners held an open discussion meeting last night for the purpose of clearing up any questions citizens might have over the commissioners' recent decisions concerning the Robersonville Police Department.

Public interest was first aroused when the commissioners voted on Feb. 16 to request Police Chief William T. Smith to resign his position by June 1, 1962. The commissioners voted that Smith term would expire on that date if he failed to resign.

Mayor Sherwood L. Roberson stated at that time the commissioners felt that in the interest of better government and especially efficiency that Chief Smith should be asked to resign.

On March 6, at the regular board meeting, the commissioners voided this decision made on Feb. 16 by voting to rehire Police Chief Smith as of June 1, 1962.

Commissioner of sanitation and town treasurer, Vance L. Roberson resigned at a special meeting on March 13. Roberson stated today that "I resigned because the commissioners couldn't get together on major issues, such as that over Police Chief Smith."

Adding to the arousal of public interest have been recent rumors that narcotics were being peddled in the community and that bootlegging was abounding here.

The open meeting last night served as a question-answer session for those who desired a fuller explanation of the commissioners' actions and the actions of Police Chief William T. Smith.

According to Robersonville Town Clerk Ralph Mobley, among those who attended last night's open meeting were two SBI Agents, C. W. Ray and Jack Richardson, and Dr. Walter Ward, who is on the staff of the Robersonville Township Hospital.

Police Chief William T. Smith stated today that at last night's meeting both Dr. Ward and the SBI Agents substantiated the fact that there is no record of any drug addicts or addiction in Robersonville.

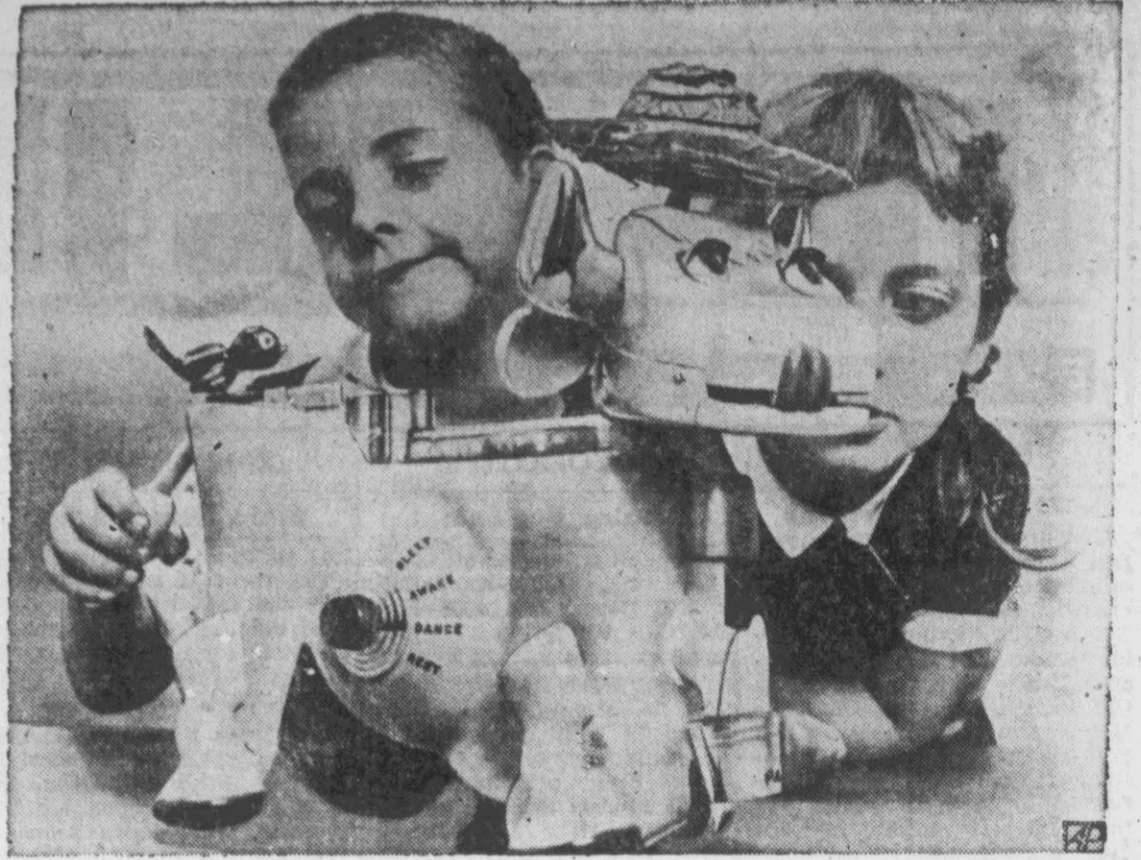

Chief Smith stated that investigations by local, county and state officials indicated that there is no foundation for the rumors about narcotics. "In fact," Chief Smith, "I requested an investigation in the fall of last year because of one report I had heard."

"This report turned out to have been based on an alcoholic case, the person who was thought to have been a drug addict has since been confined to a State Hospital for alcoholism. This was the first rumor I had heard on narcotics and I believe the other rumors to have been based at first on this case."

Concerning the bootlegging situation, Chief Smith stated, "There has been 100 per cent cooperation between the Police Department here and the Martin County ABC Officers. The county officers have been invited for years to come at any time and to make search and seizure with or without a Robersonville Police officer. All persons who have been known to deal in illicit liquor have been tried and convicted in Martin County Court."

Smith added, "At this time the local police and County ABC officers are receiving the least number of complaints on this problem than have been reported in 10 years."

Only three of the commissioners were present at last night's meeting, one having to attend a funeral in Charleston, S. C. Also present were Mayor Sherwood L. Roberson and Police Chief William T. Smith and a number of local citizens.

Air Force, Navy Said Vying For Role In Tests

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force and Navy reportedly are jostling for a greater share of the limited number of nuclear weapons tests to be conducted in the Pacific later this month.

The final decision on the specific makeup of the tests is up to President Kennedy, acting on the recommendation of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and scientific experts from the Pentagon, the Atomic Energy Commission and the White House.

There has been no official word on the number of tests planned, but it is understood there will be about three dozen tests. Some will come at altitudes of several hundred miles.

Sources said there is virtually no chance that any missiles which may be fired by combat crews in the upcoming tests will pass over populated areas of the United States. In all likelihood, they will be fired from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California—out over the Pacific.

Some of the tests will involve actual weapons systems. These probably will include missiles with their warheads, fired from land, submarine and aircraft platforms.

A major part of the test series will involve proof tests of research and development devices, as distinguished from complete weapons. Scientists will study how blast, heat and radiation act on submarine hulls, underground missile launching pads, and the like.

Some shots will be aimed at exploring effects on radar and communications which are vital in missile offense and defense.

All the services have developed a range of nuclear weapons systems since the last series of U.S. atmospheric tests in 1958. Service experts say they are confident the warheads will work, but they are anxious to try them out mated with missiles and other vehicles.

The Army is believed to have tested some of its smaller nuclear weapons in recent underground tests in Nevada.

Air Force and Navy nuclear weapons do not lend themselves to this kind of testing for the best evaluations, but need workouts in the atmosphere, officials said.

Army Maj. Gen. Robert H. Booth, head of the Defense Atomic Support Agency, told Congress recently the Joint Chiefs want to check out entire weapons systems, with combat crews firing them from operational bases.

There was speculation that this meant some test flights of nuclear armed missiles might pass over populated areas.

The thinking was that a full range shot of an intercontinental missile from California would carry a warhead a couple of thousand miles beyond the planned nuclear test area around Christmas Island in the Pacific south of Hawaii.

But, as one expert put it, "You don't have to hit the ball over the center field fence for it to be a home run."

He and others said the important performance phases to be checked are launch, leaving the atmosphere and re-entry, and that these can be handled at less than full range.

Four Persons Injured In Five Traffic Mishaps Here Tuesday

Four persons were injured in five traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

First of the injuries occurred about noon when two vehicles collided at West End Circle. Injured was Harold S. Boney, 29, of Blythewood, S. C., the driver of one of the cars. He received a cut on his forehead.

Driver of the other vehicle was identified as Thomas E. Dickerson, 72, of Route 2, Greenville. Damage to his car was set at $300.

Damage to the Boney car was estimated to be about $400. No charges were placed.

Hubert Isaac Williams, 2, of 1103 Dickinson Ave. was the second person injured. He received bruises of the head when struck by a car driven by Fred Kemp-ton Blackburn, 47, of Route 1, Greenville.

The mishap occurred about 12:58 p.m. at the intersection of Dickinson and Columbia Aves.

No charges were placed in the mishap and no damage resulted.

A bicyclist, George Acklin, 122 North Greene St., was the fourth person injured in the city during the day.

Acklin's bicycle was struck by a car driven by Charles Leonard Lambert, 24, of Route 3, Greenville, at the intersection of First and Cotanche Sts., police reported.

Acklin suffered abrasions to his face from the 5:45 p.m. collision, which caused an estimated $10 damage to the bicycle.

No charges were made.

The fourth traffic injury of the day occurred about 8:40 p.m. at the intersection of 12th and Clark Sts.

Officers said Johnny Reddick, 78-year-old Negro of 405 Clark St., suffered a fractured hip when struck by a car driven by William Earl Taylor, 26-year-old Negro of 207 Factory St.

Officers said no charges were placed in the mishap.

In addition to the injury-producing collisions, investigators reported a fifth collision during the day.

Police said a car driven by Gary Eugene Idol, 22, of Charlotte collided with a truck operated by George Horne, 51-year-old Negro of 701 Wyatt St., about 12:15 p.m. at the intersection of 10th and Greene Sts.

A charge of passing at an intersection was lodged against Idol. Damage to his vehicle was set at $150.

Investigators set damage to the Horne truck at $10.

Unofficial Polls Lean To Relaxing Of Racial Bars

ATLANTA (AP) — Unofficial polls at half a dozen colleges in the South indicate that most of the students taking part in the balloting favor removal or relaxing of racial barriers.

Only one school, Vanderbilt University, reported defeat of an integration proposal. Several others reported there had been no polling of student bodies on the subject.

At Vanderbilt, the vote was on a recommendation to the Board of Trustees that qualified Negro undergraduates be admitted. The students, voting in February, defeated the proposal 862-661.

A week before the poll was taken, the Student Senate at Vanderbilt voted 14-13 against the proposal. The university has an enrollment of about 3,600.

Students at Furman University, a Baptist college in Greenville, S.C., and Baptist church leaders differed on the subject.

Furman students voted last December 512-424 in favor of continuing the admission of all qualified applicants regardless of race or color. A day earlier a straw vote among faculty members showed 68-12 in favor. In November, the Baptist State Convention voted overwhelmingly against a similar resolution.

At Davidson College, a Presbyterian-affiliated school in Davidson, N.C., students voted 298-264 in favor of the subject.

At Rice University, a poll in January showed a vote of 879-476 in favor of a resolution saying "no restrictions based solely on race should be exercised in the admission policy or in the use of facilities." Rich has an enrollment of 2,000. Included in the total vote were the graduate school, which voted 116-29 against the resolution and the faculty, which voted 85-9 for it.

At Baylor University, the Baptist Student Union voted Dec. 19 unanimously in favor of desegregating the school.

A spokesman at the University of Miami (Fla.) said a student poll four or five years ago showed most of those voting favored an integrated school. The Board of Trustees approved a policy of integration and Negroes were admitted last summer. Fewer than 50 Negroes now attend and school officials think the number will continue to be limited because of the high tuition.

When the University of Georgia faced a federal court order last year to admit Negroes and some segregationists were urging that the institution be closed, nearly 3,000 students signed a petition asking the Legislature to keep the school open.

Georgia Tech in Atlanta reported no students polls on the integration question. The school admitted three Negroes last fall. Emory University has had straw polls on the subject in past years but none this year. In a poll last year, a spokesman said, the vote was about evenly divided.

A spokesman for Agnes Scott College for Women in Decatur, Ga., said there had been no poll on the question of admitting Negroes but that students voted 362-125 in favor of desegregating downtown lunch counters.

Patrol Reports Two Accidents

Two traffic mishaps were reported by the Highway Patrol in Pitt County last night, one involving a 12-year-old Negro of Route 2, Greenville was charged with walking on the wrong side of the road by Patrolman W. L. Whitehead following investigation of a 6:30 p.m. mishap.

Trooper Whitehead said the youth was walking pushing his bicycle with back to oncoming traffic when he was struck by a passing truck.

Driver of the vehicle was identified as 37-year-old Negro, James Edward Ash of 102 Mack St. Ash was charged with having improper lights on the vehicle.

Lyons was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for injuries to his left arm and released.

The collision occurred about three miles south of Greenville on N.C. 43 near the Lyons home.

William Earl Taylor, 26, 1207 Factory St. was identified as the driver of a vehicle which overturned on U.S. 264 west of Greenville about 10:20 p.m.

Investigating Patrolman W. L. Whitehead said the vehicle driven by Taylor went out of control on a curve about four miles East of Greenville then overturned, landing on its side on the highway.

Taylor, who was charged with careless and reckless driving, was not injured.

Trooper Whitehead said the vehicle was heavily damaged.

Burton Assures Wife Of Love

LONDON (AP)—Actor Richard Burton cabled his wife today assuring her that he still loves her despite his headlined kisses with Elizabeth Taylor.

Friends said the cable was in Welsh to keep the message from prying eyes.

It said: "Love to all. Everything fine."

He followed up the cable with a telephone call. The result was that Burton's blonde wife, Sybil, 32, was much happier today, friends said.

Actor-playwright Emyln Williams, long-time friend of the Burtons and godfather to one of their two children, said he was convinced that everything was fine between Burton and his wife.

Williams emphatically denied reports in two London papers that Mrs. Burton was planning to fly to Rome to join her husband, who has been reported kissing Liz on and off the set of the movie "Cleopatra."

An attorney in New York announced Monday that Miss Taylor and singer Eddie Fisher, her fourth husband, had agreed to part and would seek a divorce.

Food Emergency Near In Hawaii Due To Strike

HONOLULU (AP) — Gov. William F. Quinn declared Hawaii a state of food emergency Tuesday night and called on President Kennedy to authorize military transportation for relief.

Quinn also pleaded with both sides of the West Coast shipping strike to agree to unloading of eight strike-bound ships in Honolulu harbor.

The Matson freighters are laden with more than 30,000 tons of food and other items for strike-strapped business on all the islands.

In his fourth appeal to President Kennedy since the strike began March 16, Quinn said there is two weeks or less supply of 20 staple foods.

Quinn said the state of emergency was declared because many businesses have nearly exhausted their food supplies.

The drive started as a result of last month's report by the Royal College of Physicians that there is a direct connection between cigarette smoking and lung cancer.

Police Capture Narcotics Load

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A truck load of narcotics apparently en route from Los Angeles to Chicago was intercepted early today by an alert policeman in suburban Bethany. Police and sheriff's officers estimated the value at $2 million.

Officers found about 300 bundles of marijuana, a large quantity of heroin and "several other kinds of narcotics" behind false side panels and a false bottom on the bed of the grey and white pickup truck.

Arrested were two Los Angeles men, identified as Ezekiel Brown, 38, and Edward Charles Matthews, 34.

Patrolman Jerry Legg said he sighted the truck west of Bethany shortly after midnight. He said he recognized it from a radio alert put out about three weeks ago by the Oklahoma Highway Patrol on information supplied by the U.S. Customs office at Laredo, Tex.

"They were supposed to be taking the narcotics to Chicago," said James Sykes of the Bethany force, who intercepted the truck.

They left Los Angeles about a month ago, but they must have been hiding out somewhere to let things die down.
