Group Protests Site For Public Housing

City councilmen told a group of citizens protesting the public housing locations last night that they should first take their complaints to the Public Housing Authority.

More than 100 citizens were on hand in the city hall court room to protest the locations announced by the Housing Authority.

The area under consideration for a Negro public housing site is approximately 30 acres adjacent to the south side of South Greenville Negro Elementary School.

The white site under consideration is eight to ten acres generally bounded by Chestnut St. and Skinner St. between Chestnut and Spruce on the east.

Sidney Skinner as a spokesman for the group, told the council, "Most people in west end don't want to see their property destroyed and I don't know any better way to destroy it but to put public housing out there."

"The members of the Housing Authority live in the environment of Elm St.," Skinner said. "If they want public housing, let's put it over there. We have tennis courts and the college and lots of open space. Let's put it over there for them."

Dr. M. W. Aldridge told the group that "at this point I'm in complete agreement with you" concerning the proposed locations for the public housing.

However, he said, "We can't take action until it is brought to us. The first step is to go see the Housing Authority. If they fail you, we come to your assistance."

City Attorney R. B. Lee explained to the group that the Public Housing Authority was created by the council and members were appointed. The group applied to the secretary of state for incorporation papers and the Authority is now a separate corporation.

"All the council will ever have to do is perhaps re-zone the property or approve the sites," Attorney Lee noted that site approval by the City Council is not in the statutes "but the federal government will probably require that."

"I think your pressure now, if you want to bring pressure, is to go before the Housing Authority," he advised.

Mayor Charles M. King told the group, "You all came up here tonight so we would know what you're looking for. The proper thing to do is appeal to the Housing Authority. I knew people wanted to change the areas I've been around (with the Housing Authority) looking at other areas."

"I understand what you all's feelings. I understand what you all want. I'll ask them if we could get it on the edge of town where there is vacant land. I just don't know."

Billy Goodson told the council, "The paper has stated people are having strokes over this, people are dying. I hope the City Council will see fit in time to vote to destroy this Urban Renewal and Public Housing."

Goodson apparently referred to letters to the editor which the Daily Reflector has received and printed on the Urban Renewal and Public Housing subject.

Others in the audience maintained that placing public housing in the proposed areas would lower the value of their properties. There were complaints from some that the ballots in last year's referendum were "misunderstood." Both urban renewal and public housing were approved on the basis of the vote.

Charles Cobb asked City Attorney Lee if there was no way to establish a binding referendum on the issues. Lee replied that this could not be legally done.

At one point in the meeting an unidentified man said, "We don't want public housing period in any of Greenville." This brought applause from the group.

Skinner referred to the certificate of public convenience for which the Housing Authority has to apply to the State Utilities Commission.

Councilman James Lee, who reminded that he opposes public housing, said he felt that Mr. William I. Cochran had to ask for the certificate before he could present the matter to the council.

City Can't Act On Complaint

Councilmen Advise PTA Group Let Court Decide Pornography Issue

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor

City councilmen told representatives of the PTA City Council that the municipal government could take no action on their complaints concerning the type literature sold on local newsstands.

The group was told they could buy samples of such literature, swear out warrants and then let the courts decide whether or not the publications are pornographic.

The council heard first from W. F. Young, co-owner and manager of Greenville Newsstand, who spoke before the PTA group had their say.

"I had hoped I wouldn't have to go into personalities tonight but there has been such a smear of character by the opposite side I think we ought to go into it."

Young pointed out he had been a Greenville resident for 26 years and "I have tried to be a good citizen."

He said he had been a steward in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and taught Sunday School for 15 years. He operated Young's Department Store on Dickinson Ave. and gave it up for health reasons.

Senate Strongly Supports Extending Aid To The UN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has given lopsided approval to President Kennedy's plea for authority to extend $100 million in aid to the financially troubled United Nations.

Through a long legislative day Thursday a coalition of Democrats and Republicans beat back efforts to limit the President's authority.

What emerged for consideration by the House was a compromise measure much to the administration's liking. Passed 70 to 22, it would permit Kennedy to either lend the United Nations the money on his own terms or buy U.N. bonds bearing 2 per cent interest, repayable over 25 years.

Attached is the condition that all U.S. loans above $25 million must be matched by bond purchases by other U.N. member-nations. This isn't likely to the Kennedy's hands.

Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., floor manager for the bill, said other nations already have agreed to buy more than $52-million worth.

A ringing declaration by Senate Republican leader Everett M.

Dirksen of Illinois that "I have not lost my faith in John Fitzgerald Kennedy" highlighted the legislative struggle and pointed out the partisan support for the measure.

Dirksen had sponsored the compromise jointly with the Senate Democratic leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana.

While the proposal may be in for rougher going in the House, Senate Democratic and Republican leaders were confident the big margin piled up for it in the Senate would help turn the tide on the other side of the Capitol.

Kennedy originally asked the straight-out authority to buy half of the $200-million bond issue the United Nations is floating to meet costs of peace-keeping operations in the Congo and the Middle East.

The compromise was worked out by the White House in negotiations with Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., who originally insisted on a $100-million loan that would be repayable in 3 years and carry the going government borrowing rate of a little over 3 per cent.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, offered the short-term loan proposal as a substitute Thursday night, and it was thumpingly rejected, 72 to 20.

The bill drew the support of 22 Republicans and 48 Democrats.

It was Dirksen, in a fighting, emotional speech, who made the final stand against the Hickenlooper substitute.

He said he had found some things hard to take in the debate. For one thing, he said a Republican senator had called the compromise "specious." Dirksen roared: "That's an affront to the senator from Illinois."

In Wednesday's debate, Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Nebr., had called the Mansfield-Dirksen proposal a "specious compromise."

"Who would raise questions here about $100 million?" Dirksen demanded. "Why, we spend more than that on lipstick in this country in a year."

Dirksen said he was quite willing to agree that many things done by and in the United Nations had displeased him.

"But," the Republican leader continued, "I do not want to see this effort that began 17 years ago falter. I am not going to charge my conscience with a course of action that would go contrary to the foundation of the United Nations."

Generals Say GIs Given Training On Red Tactics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Army generals testified today that all U.S. soldiers and officers now undergo special training and indoctrination on Communist tactics.

The aim, the generals said, is to avoid a situation like that during the Korean War when some American prisoners collaborated with their Communist captors.

Gen. Barksdale Hamlett, vice chief of staff, said "the soldiers are not being trained to become prisoners of war, but rather what their behavior should be if they unfortunately become prisoners."

Maj. Gen. Alva R. Fitch, assistant chief of staff for intelligence, said special training was provided for all Army personnel stationed overseas where Communist infiltration and espionage is likely.

The testimony of the generals was prepared for delivery to a special Senate Armed Services subcommittee investigating complaints that anti-Communist activities of military officers were censored or impeded.

Their report was a low-key sequel to two days of emotion-charged testimony by former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker who said he was "framed in a den of iniquity" for his anticommunism activities as a division commander in Germany.

Walker named Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Walt Whitman Rostow, a close adviser to President Kennedy, as two top figures in the den but did not accuse them directly of doing any framing.

Walker, now running for the Democratic nomination for govern-nor of Texas, quit the Army after being removed from his command and admonished on the ground that he had tried to influence soldier votes in the 1960 election and had labeled as pinks or Communists such Americans as former President Harry S. Truman and Eleanor Roosevelt.

Throughout his two days on the committee stand, Walker played variations on one central theme: That there is a "sell-out" plot in high places to push a soft-Communist policy, and that those who oppose it are pilloried.

Pressed near the end of his testimony Thursday to name influential figures in the secret control apparatus he said directs such a policy, Walker named Rusk and Rostow, who is now head of the policy planning council in the State Department.

"In my newsstand I handle all types of books because I have to," he declared. "The literature the PTA objects to, I admit, is sexy, but what book or literature can you pick up now that is not sexy, except the news magazines, and some of them are."

He said it was best to let young people over 18 decide what they want to read. "If a boy or girl over 18 cannot judge what he wants to read, we'd better go to our libraries and our colleges and see what they have" (Continued on page 16)

Army To Drop 824 Small Units

By FRED HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army is planning to disband about 824 small units all around the nation in paring its Reserve-Guard strength by 58,000 men, informed sources said today.

These are units—some as small as two-man detachments—which the Army feels it no longer needs.

They represent about 10 per cent of the 8,800 lesser outfits maintained by the Guard and Reserve.

The Army is getting ready to start an exhaustive study aimed at spreading the cutback evenly over the nation.

One Dispute In Berlin Settled

BERLIN (AP)—One dispute between the United States and Russia has been settled. As a result, the U.S. liaison mission in East Germany and the Soviet mission at U.S. headquarters in West Germany may once again move about without restriction.

The agreement Thursday between U.S. Gen. Bruce C. Clarke and Soviet Marshal Ivan S. Konev eased the atmosphere somewhat but brought no significant change—or even hope of immediate change—in the general tension hanging over West Berlin.

Clarke, the U.S. Army commander in Europe, and Konev, the Soviet commander in East Germany, met in Potsdam, East Germany, to settle the dispute that developed after East German police shot up a U.S. mission car.

The two commanders agreed their missions at each others' headquarters would resume normal activity today. There was no public mention of the shooting incident.

Konev said after the shooting on March 20 that he was sorry about it, but Clarke termed this insufficient because the Russian did not guarantee the safety of the U.S. mission members.

The American commander ordered a military escort to shadow all movements of the Soviet mission in Frankfurt, West Germany. The Russians retaliated by banning any movement of the U.S. mission out of Potsdam without a special permit.

Gen. Clarke, who is retiring from the Army April 30, requested the meeting with Konev and said he wanted to prevent any further worsening of U.S.-Soviet relations. It was the first time the two commanders had met.

The study, which may be finished in a month, will consider population distribution and whether specific communities have facilities such as armories to support Reserve or Guard groups.

The Army also is counting on attrition from existing units to contribute to the planned drop.

Sources stressed that virtually none of the manpower reduction would come out of eight Guard and Reserve infantry divisions which have been tagged for elimination.

A new Army reorganization plan, announced Wednesday, contemplates regrouping men of the four Guard and four Reserve divisions into eight flexible brigades of perhaps 4,000 men each, plus supporting units.

The plan also calls for creating a ready force of six prime Guard divisions—four infantry and two armored—which would be enlarged from their present strength of about 8,000 men to perhaps 11,000 each. With the brigades, these divisions would back up the 16 regular Army divisions.

The Kennedy administration has proposed reducing over-all Guard-Reserve paid drill strength from 700,000 to 642,000.

Sources said about 1,400 lesser units might have been lopped off as unneeded if the Guard-Reserve organization had remained the same.

Sanity Hearing For Young Bandit Being Held Today

By HENRY HOWARD, Reflector Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, N.C.—A hearing to determine whether Roy Douglas Freeman, charged with a Greenville bank robbery in October, is mentally competent to stand trial got underway shortly before noon here today before Federal Judge John D. Larkins.

Freeman, clad in a dull brown cardigan sweater and dungarees, sat beside his court-appointed attorney, Leroy Scott of Washington. While the first four witnesses took turns on the stand, Freeman propped his head with his left hand while the right one dangled loosely over the back of the chair.

Freeman, confined in a small barred cell in the U.S. Marshal's office before the hearing, chatted at times with reporters. He asked for a stick of gum and wondered aloud: "Why don't the newspapers say something good about me sometime?"

He was brought here Wednesday by a deputy marshal. He had been confined in Raleigh since last Friday when he was brought from St. Elizabeth's for Dr. Lowenbach's examination. In Washington, he had awaited today's hearing in Beaufort County Jail.

Originally scheduled for 9:30 this morning, Freeman's hearing was delayed while Judge Larkins heard four other cases.

Twenty Persons Slain In Algiers

ALGIERS (AP)—A new wave of terrorism struck Oran and Algiers today. Twenty persons died in attacks that police blamed on the Secret Army Organization (OAS) of European settlers campaigning to block independence for Algeria.

Fourteen persons—11 Moslems and 3 Europeans—were slain in Algiers, the capital. Five others, four of them Moslems, were wounded.

Six Moslems perished under two attacks staged in Oran, in the west. Five of them were shot to death in a car, then the car was set on fire.

A European man and two women were stoned by Moslems in a suburb of Oran. All three, including a woman seven months pregnant, were taken to a hospital by security forces who rescued them. At Ain Tenouchent, southwest of Oran, four men believed to be secret army agents held up a branch of the Bank of Algeria and took $400,000.

In three other holdups in Oran, gunmen escaped with $3,000 in cash, a truckload of military stores including 2,000 land mines, and a new car. No arrests were reported in any of the cases.

robbed the bank.

Go-Ahead For New Carver Library

Architects designing a new Carver Memorial Library building were authorized by the City Council to take bids for the structure.

Action was taken at Councilman Ralph Brimley's recommendation. Dr. Brimley was appointed by Mayor Charles M. King last month to work with the Carver Library board to get the project moving.

Funds for the new building, which will replace a dwelling unit now used for the library, were voted in a municipal bond issue.

A site, at Fleming St. and Boyd Ave., has already been acquired. Dr. Brimley said he had met twice with the library board in the past month. He reported some people "were not too happy with the site."

However, he said he had visited many sites with the Carver board and the group had decided it should "go ahead even though there are some disadvantages as to size and location." Dr. Brimley presented a plan prepared by architects Dudley and Shoe, showing a "U" shaped building with book stacks in each wing. There were also adult and children's reading areas, offices, work room, storage rooms and rest rooms.

There was also an area designated for future expansion. "We recommend that the City Council move ahead and try to build as soon as possible," he said. "Also the future addition will be needed as soon as possible."

The first unit is expected to cost $45,000. "I'm sorry to report to the City Council we only have $35,980 in bond issue funds."

He recommended that bids be taken to determine how much over the bond funds the cost will be and "see how much will have to be put in the budget to complete Unit 1."

Dr. Brimley said the previous plan would have allowed space for only 5,000 books. The new plan will provide stacks for 10,000 volumes and this could be stretched to 12,000 with additional book cases.

"I recommend with the approval of the Carver board that the building should be built to high standards. It should be something Greenville will be proud of."

Dr. Brimley made the motion to allow architects to proceed and to take bids as soon as possible. It passed unanimously with four councilmen voting in favor. Councilman Ford McGowan was not present.

Councilmen adopted a new policy concerning property owners share of curb and gutter and paving costs.

In the future the property owners will pay $1.25 per foot for curb and gutter and $1.25 per foot for paving with the city to pay the remaining costs.

Mayor King said the increase was due to rising costs. He said he has found the city was paying 42 percent of the street improvement cost. Under the new formula the property owners on each side of the street will pay one-third and the city will pay a third. Councilman James Lee mentioned that he had looked at sites for the East Greenville subdivision with Fire Chief George Gardner.

Mayor King said, "I'm wondering if we could bring that up at a workshop meeting. After we have the workshop meeting, we'll go on then with it."

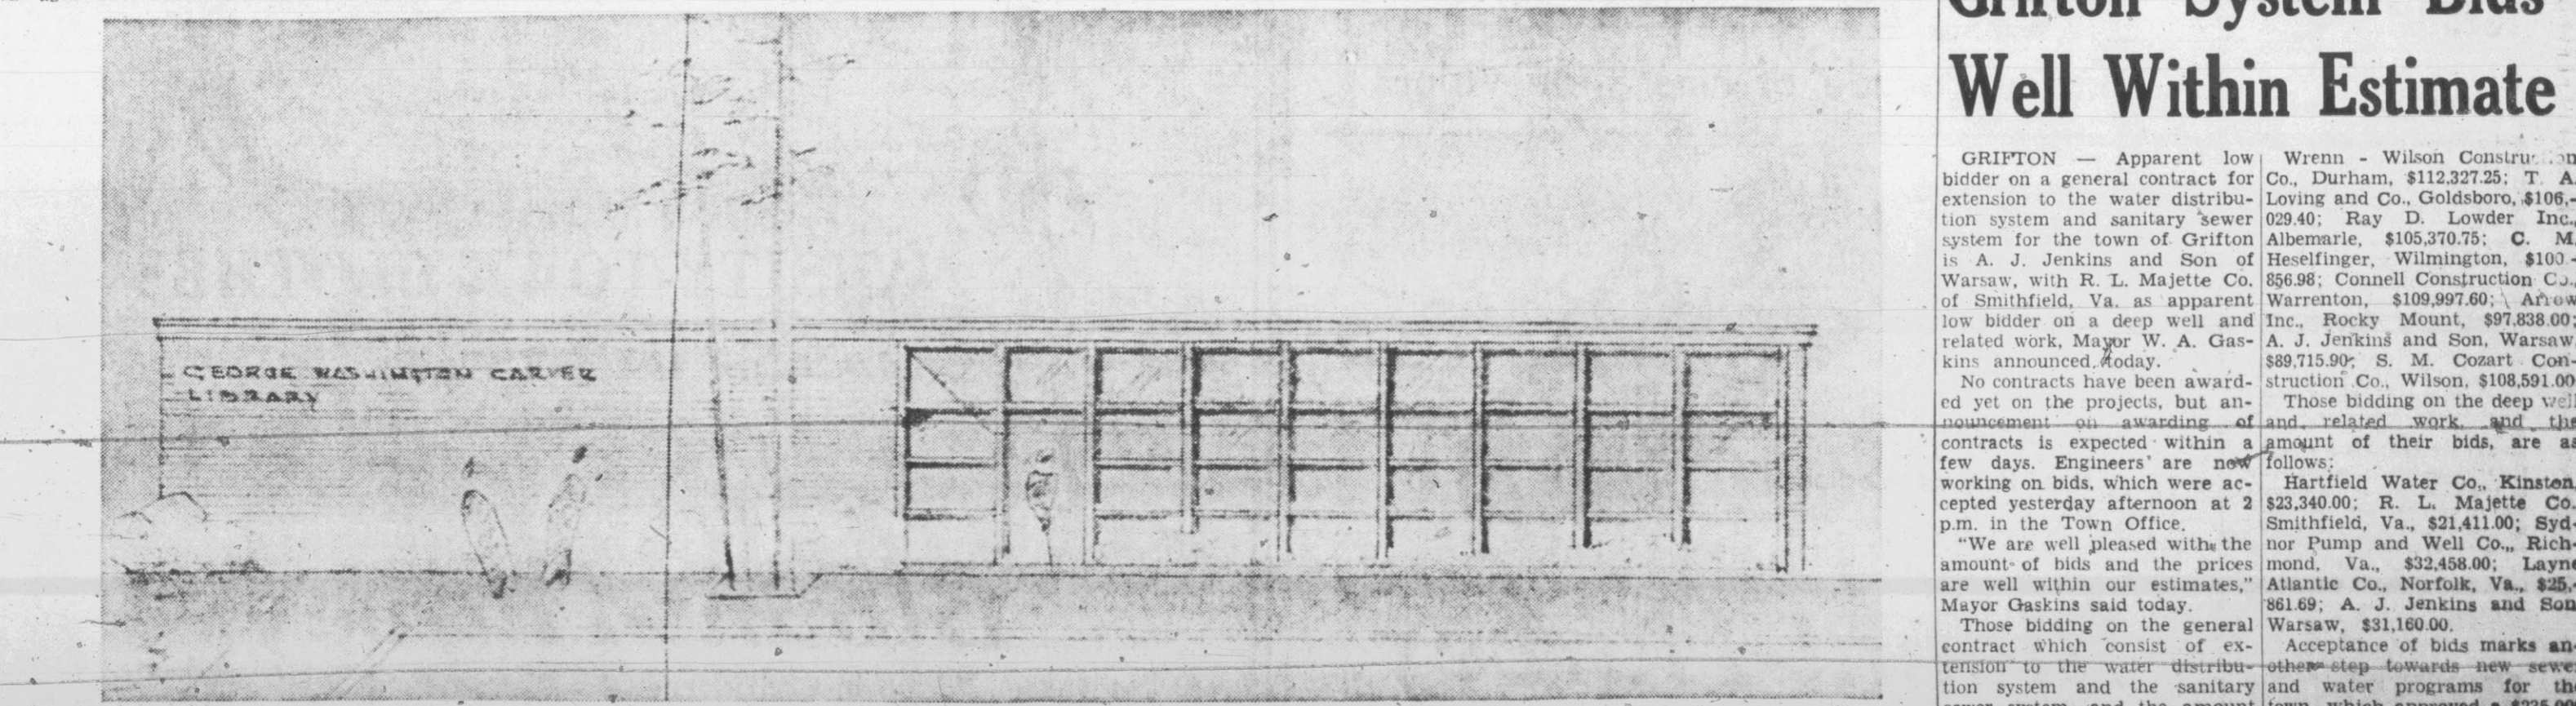

No further discussion was held.

In other action last night the council: —annexed Forest Hills Addition No. 1.

—referred a curb and gutter problem involving an annexation of Stratford Addition to the city attorney with plans for calling a special meeting.

—authorized the city clerk to advertise sale of 1961 unpaid taxes on real estate.

—found that legally no action could be taken on a privilege license for oil distributors.

Girl Scout Council Holds Delegate Assembly In Kinston

Mrs. Richard A. Neely of New Bern presided yesterday at the delegate assembly meeting of the Girl Scout Council of Coastal Carolina held in Kinston, which was attended by approximately 200 Girl Scout adults from the 20-county area serviced by the council.

At this time action was taken by the delegates in voting a By-Law change effective in September 1962 relative to the council coverage plan of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. The Girl Scout Council of Coastal Carolina has been requested by the national group to accept into its jurisdiction seven additional counties in eastern North Carolina. The extension of this jurisdiction is being planned for Jan. 1, 1963. These seven counties include Wilson, Nash, Edgecombe, Halifax, Northampton, Bertie and Hertford. The Girl Scout Council of Coastal Carolina had received a request from Wilson County to join in September rather than wait until January. The By-Law change voted would enable this county to become a part of the council in September.

Other action taken by the delegates included adoption of its 1963 plan of work and the ratification of two presidential appointments to the Board of Directors. The appointment of Mrs. J. P. Belcher of Kinston and Dr. Rowena Sibury Hall of Wilmington.

Mrs. Neely, in an address to the group, presented the new program of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. to become effective in September 1963. Discussion groups followed led by Mrs. Charles Turner of New Bern, Mrs. Dayton Robinson of Cherry Point and Mrs. J. P. Belcher of Kinston. The discussion groups were designed to give the group an opportunity to discuss the implications of the program change.

Mrs. Frank Farfour of Goldsboro, chairman of the Art Judging Committee, whose members were Mrs. Hugh Porter of Morehead City, Mrs. Tran Gordley of Greenville, Mrs. Jeanne Simpson of Jacksonville and Mrs. John C. Hood of Kinston, selected the eight entries of art work by Girl Scouts to be sent to the National Senior Roundup as entries representing the council.

Following National Senior Roundup the art exhibit will be sent on exhibit throughout the United States. Entries selected were: "Oil Tanks," a pastel by Debbie Rose of Beaufort; "Greenfield Lake," a charcoal drawing by Wilma Wittrock of Wilmington; "Waves," an oil painting by Gail Kehoe of Jacksonville; "Colonial New Bern," a charcoal drawing by Helen Langdon of Cherry Point; "Tobacco Barn," a pencil drawing by Robin Bohrer of Kinston; "The Field," a watercolor by Norma Heathe of Whiteville; "Lake Waccamaw," a watercolor by Cathy Neilson of Lake Waccamaw, and "Snow on the Beach," a photograph by Peggy O'Neal of New Bern.

Frank Strawn Club Speaker

Mrs. Frank H. Longino entertained the Pickwick Book Club with a luncheon at her home on Forest Hills Drive Tuesday. Luncheon guests, Miss Barbara Taylor, Miss Nelson Blount, Mrs. Barney Barrett, Mrs. Frank Strawn and Mrs. Paul Reinartz, were introduced by Mrs. Longino.

Arrangements of spring flowers decorated the home. The luncheon table was centered with a floral arrangement with matching arrangements on auxiliary tables. Members and guests were served a three course luncheon.

Mrs. Longino introduced Frank Strawn, speaker for the afternoon. In introducing his interesting talk on "An Adequate Insurance Program," Mr. Strawn stated that insurance is one of the largest industries in the United States and should hit the trillion dollar mark by 1970. It had its beginning some 200 years ago when a plan for caring for aging ministers was introduced.

There are two sources of income, said Mr. Strawn. One is men working and the second is money working. A good insurance program will assure income for a family after the husband is unable to work. Any life insurance is good, whether it be term or life, as it does provide an income for a family. However, a recent survey pointed out that the average amount of insurance carried throughout the United States is $12,000. This could hardly be considered adequate coverage based on the high cost of living and the cost of educating children.

Following a question and answer period, Mr. Strawn concluded by saying that every family should have its insurance program evaluated at least each two years to be sure that it will cover all expenses for the family in the event their income ceases.

A short business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Sam T. White II at which time several announcements were made. At the conclusion of the business, books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. Clement Hosts Chicora Club Members

The Chicora Book Club met Tuesday, April 3, at the home of Mrs. J. Edwin Clement. The guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Jerry Sutherland, Mrs. Paul Reinartz and Miss Nelson Blount.

After a dessert plate and coffee were served, Mrs. William Taft Jr. introduced the speaker, Dr. James W. Batten, who is an Associate Professor of Education at East Carolina College.

He spoke on "The Space Race Between Russia and the United States." Dr. Batten said we are ahead in some areas, Russia in others. The ability to lift heavy loads into space will put Russia ahead in reaching other planets. He pointed out that the United States may make some advances in medicine by experimenting with cosmic rays.

According to Dr. Batten, Russia and the United States both are powerful and are capable of destroying one another in warfare. He believes our hope of peace is sharing the knowledge we have and ending the space race in a peaceful co-existence.

Dr. Batten also discussed his book, "Our Neighbors in Space," and his work with the astronauts.

During the business meeting the following slate of officers for the coming year was presented: President, Mrs. Roger Mann; vice president, Mrs. Jim Lanier Jr.; secretary, Mrs. Mitchell Saied; treasurer, Mrs. Louis Clark; program chairman, Mrs. George Coffman; librarian, Mrs. Dwight Garrett.

The slate will be voted on at the next meeting. The books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

New Bern District Woman's Society Meets

The annual meeting of the New Bern District Woman's Society of Christian Service met at First Methodist Church in Morehead City on Wednesday, April 4. There were approximately 200 in attendance.

Mrs. John P. Wooten of Kinston, district president, presided over the meeting. She welcomed the group and expressed her thanks for the confidence of the women in her election as president.

Mrs. W. B. Rouse, district secretary of spiritual life, gave a devotional, using as her theme "The Church In The World." She pointed out many things that are accomplished by church attendance. She stated that Christians are no longer strangers, that good fellowship with each other brings us closer together. She stressed that prayer is a vital part of each Christian's life. She stated that our country needs more religion and prayer. She closed by saying that John Wesley said, "The Church Is My Parish." She asked each member of the Woman's Society of Christian Service to make the church her parish.

Mrs. W. B. Chalk, president of the host church, also the Rev. Barney Davidson, pastor of the host church, welcomed the group.

Mrs. Darden Eure, member of the host church, introduced the district officers, also recognized the visitors, Dr. A. J. Hobbs, superintendent of New Bern district, Rev. T. Marvin Vick Jr., pastor of Queens Street Church in Kinston, and Mrs. Edgar B. Fisher of Greenville.

Mrs. J. H. Ipock, district secretary of promotion, introduced the leaders from each sub-district. Each leader showed a map of her sub-district and gave a short report of her work. The maps were then compiled. The New Bern district has five sub-districts with 88 societies and a membership of 3,873.

During the memorial service Mrs. Rouse read the scripture and asked each one to catch the joy of peace that comes through our Lord. Mrs. Austin Williams of the host church sang "No Form of Human Framing." The Rev. T. Marvin Vick Jr., president of the North Carolina board of missions, gave the address. Rev. Vick told the group that today we are like people on a ship that is sinking, who are too busy listening to stories about the ships past to take notice. He cited the following factors that confront us: rapid social change, new pattern of family life, population explosions, international tensions, and changing trends in missions. He stated that the factors are frightening and that Christians are trying to find the answers with open minds and a desire to move forward.

He challenged the group as Christian women to accept their personal responsibility for the needs of the world. "How heavy is your cross?" he asked, citing an American tourist who was surprised to find that the cross used in the German Passion Play was not just a "prop." "Be ashamed to carry a cross less heavy than the cross that Jesus bore."

Mrs. J. H. Whitaker, president of the Ayden society, invited the group to meet in Ayden Methodist Church in the spring of 1963.

Bridge Tournament

S. S. France Stars Washable Plastic

The first travelers stepping off the fabulous new ocean liner, S. S. France, were enthralled by the beauty and comfort of the largest passenger ship ever built.

One voyager lyricized: "From bow to stern, walls, fabrics, showers, and flooring are an ode to plastics!" Evidently the French Line intends to keep its floating palace as suds-and-water clean on its 1,000th sailing as on its maiden voyage.

Women Hold Meeting

The Greenville Credit Women's Breakfast Club held their regular monthly meeting Tuesday at the Cinderella Restaurant.

Birthday wishes were extended to Dorothy Copeland, Peggy Sawyer, and Vivian Clark.

The president announced the State Convention will be held at the Hotel Charlotte May 20-22.

Martha Mills, program chairman, introduced Polly Dall, who taught the first lesson in the International Credit Women's Manual, "United Toward New Horizons." This manual presents subjects that will be of benefit to each individual member as well as the firm they represent.

The first lesson being on "Telephone Collecting," Mrs. Dall pointed out that using the telephone in collecting slow paying accounts, could be more flexible and faster than mail, telegrams or collectors. The entire purpose of call is geared to one objective... to obtain a promise to pay... but failing in this, knowledge is gained as to debtor's attitude, and collection techniques set accordingly. Failure of other collection techniques can be surveyed and checked. The telephone can be used in emergencies, or to meet special situations. The speaker stated that the collector should have a pleasant, friendly voice—no speech defects. The manner should be tactful and understanding.

Mrs. Dall called upon Mrs. Sara Jenkins, Mrs. Lillian Earl Hawkins, Mrs. Peggy Sawyer, Miss Clara Seago, and Mrs. Martha Mills, who added to the program by giving personal experiences in collections.

Meat Study Concluded

Two second year home economics classes at Rose High School concluded their study of meats by visiting the meat market of a local grocery store Tuesday.

The students and their teacher, Mrs. Mary Alice Hendrix, were shown wholesale cuts of meat and how the retail cuts are taken from them. Mr. Carl Cahoon, manager of the meat department, told how to tell quality meat by government grading and appearance, how to buy for different budgets, and how to care for meat in the home before cooking it.

Public Affairs Dept. Meets

The Public Affairs Department of the Greenville Woman's Club met Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. C. T. Fleming Jr. Mrs. James Bond, chairman, presided over the business meeting.

Members were urged to take their tetanus shots. The Art Festival scheduled for May 3 was emphasized. The club was reminded of the bridge tournament April 26, to help sponsor the Art Festival.

Programs and hostesses for next year were discussed. Plans were made to purchase clothes for Easter for the child at Oswell Training School the Department is sponsoring.

Mrs. Marshall Sullivan was welcomed as a visitor after the hostess served a sweet course.

Recipe Scout Finds Great Pie

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

"This makes a wonderful tasting pie if you leave out the cinnamon. Increase the filling, too, because there isn't enough of it, and add a little more cornstarch—it's too runny."

That's a note my sister Phyllis left for me with a recipe for Sour Cream Raisin Pie from one of our oldest and best known cook books. Phyllis feels that if she scouts around and finds a delightful flavor combination, it's up to me to patch up the recipe. Sisters are so helpful!

So here's our own version of this famous old-fashioned pie, and we hope that it's as successful at your house as it is at ours.

The raisins in the filling seem to take on unusually delicious flavor when they're combined with the sugar, egg yolks and sour cream. We've always made this pie with dark raisins, but the golden variety might add their own delicate charm.

A meringue goes over the pie's filling, and when you prepare it, bear in mind these tips.

Have the egg whites at room temperature; this way they beat up to best volume.

Beat the egg whites only until frothy before adding the sugar. Frothy means slight beating—just until the whites show large transparent air bubbles. Overbeating the whites before the sugar is added may make the mer-ingue syrupy and leaky.

To tell when the egg whites are beaten enough after the sugar is added, slowly pull the beater out of the meringue; the whites should stand in straight stiff peaks that do not topple over at the tips.

OUR SOUR CREAM RAISIN PIE

1 cup sugar
1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 large eggs (separated)
1 1/2 cups commercial sour cream
1/2 cup raisins (soaked in boiling water and drained)
1 baked 8-inch flaky pie shell

In a heavy saucepan stir together 2/3 cup of the sugar, the cornstarch and salt. Beat egg yolks slightly; stir into sugar mixture with the sour cream. Cook and stir constantly over very low heat until thickened. Stir in raisins; cool. Pour into baked pie shell. Beat egg whites until frothy; slowly beat in the remaining 1/3 cup sugar, a tablespoon at a time; continue to beat, increasing speed, until straight stiff peaks form. Spread meringue over filling so it touches sides of pie shell; use back of spoon to swirl meringue. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven for 12 to 15 minutes—until meringue tips are lightly browned. Cool at room temperature and serve as soon as possible.

SOUR CREAM RAISIN PIE tastes as good as it looks. Try it during the Easter holidays, for company or just the family.

Gardening Today Mrs. Stroud Gives Program Woman's Missionary Society

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Chemicals have helped the gardener in many ways. Wil-Pruf is an important aid in transplanting and in winter protection. Wood killers help in cultivation and help eliminate competition. Snake-stop makes the garden a safer place for after strolls and working areas where those "summer boys" usually hide out. Now another step has been taken. A product named Phosfon has come on the scene.

ing effects on salvia, holly, eucalyptus, marigolds, petunias and red maple.

In time the material may be used to keep hedges in line and keep trimming at a minimum.

Phosfon has been used successfully on Easter Lilies. What effect it would have on day lilies or other like plants isn't told, but it should work on those.

3 Formulations

Phosfon comes in three formulations: (1) The kind used by commercial growers on potted mums is a 10% dry powder. (2) New liquid Phosfon is a 10% liquid for use by commercial growers on Easter Lilies and potted mums. (3) For home garden use a 1% powder is available in 1 1/2 ounce aluminum foil packages.

Conclusions

This is a new material and should be used only according to directions. Use only on plants that have responded to Phosfon. If you want to experiment use on leggy annuals or perennials. Keep notes of how plants respond to use of Phosfon.

Fresh dill handy? Mince it and add to fish chowder, chicken broth, cooked buttered snap beans or green peas.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Memorial Baptist Church met Monday at 8 p.m. The meeting was called to order by the singing of a hymn, "O Zion Haste Thou Mission Is High Fulfilling," with Miss Grace Smith, president, presiding.

A report was made on the Executive Board meeting. Several items were brought before the members for discussion and to be voted on. It was decided that the Society would invite a missionary to come and speak to the W.M.S. at a future date, and investigate the possibilities of securing new dishes for the church kitchen.

Mary Lee Ernest Circle was in charge of the program for the evening and was presented by Mrs. L. A. Stroud.

Mrs. Stroud gave a program on "The Six Religions of the World." She told something of interest about each one.

A summary was given concerning the population of each religion. The population of the world is two billion, nine hundred million and one out of every seven is of the Moslem faith. Eight hundred and seventy million are classified as Christians. Nine percent are English-speaking, 91 are of other languages. Of the English-speaking 90 percent are Christians, of the other languages 10 percent are Christians. The English-speaking have 96 percent full time workers, of the other languages they have four percent full time workers.

The nine percent use out of every dollar given for the Lord's work 96 cents. The 91 percent get four cents.

It requires 6,500 Southern Baptists to support one foreign missionary and 5,000 to support one home missionary.

Before the meeting adjourned, Mrs. Ruth Garner gave a report on the progress of the W.M.S. for the first six months of the W.M.S. year. She stated the local Society was graded as an approved society.

Bouquets of spring flowers decorated the home throughout. In the dining room the table was covered with a lace cloth and held a pretty arrangement of red camellias and azalea flowerettes with candles in crystal holders. A fried chicken supper was served prior to the games.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cobb were club high scorers. Mrs. H. P. Quinerly and Mrs. George C. Sugg were remembered with gifts as guests for the evening. Others playing were Mrs. Thurman Williams, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hodges, Mrs. W. I. Bissette, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Quinerly.

Grifton Garden Club Meets

Mrs. M. B. Hodges and Mrs. Johnie Smith were co-hostess to the Grifton Garden Club when it met on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hodges for the April session.

Bouquets of spring flowers decorated the home for the occasion, with emphasis on the dining room table where an evergreen was arranged with camellias and crab apple blooms in shades of pink.

Stress On Peace Instead Of Strife

Successful negotiation of a non-inflationary two year contract in the steel industry is an achievement of great significance for that industry and for the nation as a whole.

It removes the threat of a possible strike similar to that three years ago which closed down this basic industry for 119 days and had serious repercussions throughout the American economy. If the experience of the past is an indication of the future, the steel settlement will set a pattern for a number of other industries.

The keynote appears to be labor-management peace rather than strife. It offers assurance of maximum steady production and the best chance of maximum employment. The settlement reflects a greater concern for the value of job security and continued employment rather than the past emphasis of higher wages that would in turn push prices upward in an inflationary spiral.

Perhaps the greatest long-range significance to the nation is that the settlement confirms speculation that the long period of rather steep inflation has come to an end in the nation's economy. Labor and management, at the behest of the Kennedy administration, have come to agreement on terms that apparently mark an end to the wage-price spiral. Although inflation may continue at a slow rate, the leveling off of the cost of living that has taken place during the past year now shows signs of having some permanence in the economy.

Such a situation will stabilize the value of the dollar from year to year. It will strengthen the position of the United States in the world market and it will place this nation in a better position to compete with industries of other nations in international trade, which is of increasing importance. This in turn would strengthen our domestic economy.

For the individual it would mean that dollars would have greater stability in terms of purchasing power. Money saved for future purchases would not be deflated by the time the purchase was made. It would also mean that there would be less chance that dollars borrowed today could be repaid with "cheaper" dollars in the future.

After some two decades of inflation at a rapid rate, it cannot be expected that the American people or the American economy overnight will make a full adjustment to a period of much slower inflation. In the long run, however, the prospects of a leveling off of the inflationary trend offers greatest prospects for a sound and continuing prosperity for the nation and its people.

Much-Needed Facility For A Growing City

The proposed post office building in the eastern section of Greenville will provide a much-needed facility for this city which has seen its volume of mail multiply many times while facilities for handling mail have not been enlarged.

It was a little more than 47 years ago when the present post office in Greenville, located at the corner of Evans and Third Streets, was put into service. Some years later the building was expanded, but for the past 20 years there has been no expansion in the amount of space used by the local post office.

Some indication of the increase in volume of mail being handled by the local post office today compared with two decades ago is given by the fact that postal receipts here have risen from about $68,000 annually to almost $300,000 annually.

In the present post office building there is approximately 5,600 square feet of floor space which is devoted to the handling of mail. According to information from the Post Office Department the proposed new substation building would be approximately the same size. Thus the total amount of post office space in Greenville would be doubled when the new substation is completed and put into service.

While the Post Office Department is engaged in a nation-wide program of improving its facilities, it is encouraging to note that here in Greenville more adequate facilities will be provided for post office operations.

Walker Didn't Show Up Well

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP) — The right-wing former Army major general, Edwin A. Walker, repeatedly stumbled and mispronounced and his hands trembled as he read from a 31-page prepared statement.

The statement by this extreme anti-Communist — who quit the Army after being admonished for dabbling in politics and what he said about prominent Americans — was more than just a defense and an explanation.

If all he said before the Senate Armed Services subcommittee Wednesday could be boiled down into one sentence this was it: I'm right. By the same token anyone who disagreed with his conduct was wrong if not worse.

He seemed to see malignant and sinister forces at work in high places. He was critical of the Kennedy, Eisenhower and Truman administrations, and particularly of President Kennedy; of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara; of the press; of the State Department; and of others.

He was even critical of a book which, under questioning, he had to admit he hadn't read. He presented the picture of a man who feels enormously discriminated against. If not persecuted.

After investigating him last year — while he was in command of the 24th Division in Germany — the Army slapped him for:

- 1. Labeling as pink or Communist former President Truman, other leading Democrats, and segments of the American press and television-radio industries.
- 2. Trying to influence his troops, contrary to Army regulations, in voting for members of Congress by recommending the use of voting materials not obtained through military sources.

At the end of the probe Walker said the Army investigators had given him "a fair opportunity to present my side of the case." That wasn't what he said Wednesday.

Bitterly complaining because Secretary McNamara had released the report of the investigation, Walker said: "The secretary's presentation was so worded as to give the impression that I had had a fair and just trial." He said the way the investigation was conducted had been "highly irregular and unjust."

In 1959, shortly before he died, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles so much admired a book — "What We Must Know About Communism" by Harry and Bonita Overstreet — that he recommended it to President Eisenhower and bought several copies for other friends.

But in his statement Wednesday Walker condemned a number of books — including the Overstreets — because, he said, they "implicitly encourage accommodation with the enemy — competitive coexistence, which is fundamentally the Communist line."

Sen. Stuart Symington, who said he and his wife had read the book specifically, asked Walker to say specifically what was wrong with it. Walker admitted he had never read it.

Late in the day Walker singled out Adam Yarmolinsky, a McNamara aide, as a particular enemy of his and said his connections with Communism have been close and that his actions aided Communism. Yarmolinsky denied this, said his record had been anti-Communist.

Here are some examples from Walker's statement of how he saw evil forces working against him:

- He said his assignment to Germany was an "entrapment" and that his case was not "merely unusual but unique."
- He said: "The forces back of it must be extraordinary. These forces cannot be fully identified. He said McNamara tried to create a 'false impression' of what he had done. He said the Army treated him 'unjustly' and there were "unscrupulous forces" back of his case.

In short, all that happened to him, according to him, "happened because he was such an anti-Communist."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS UNDYING Mercy is a blessing which comes into the life of the world directly from the heart of God Himself.

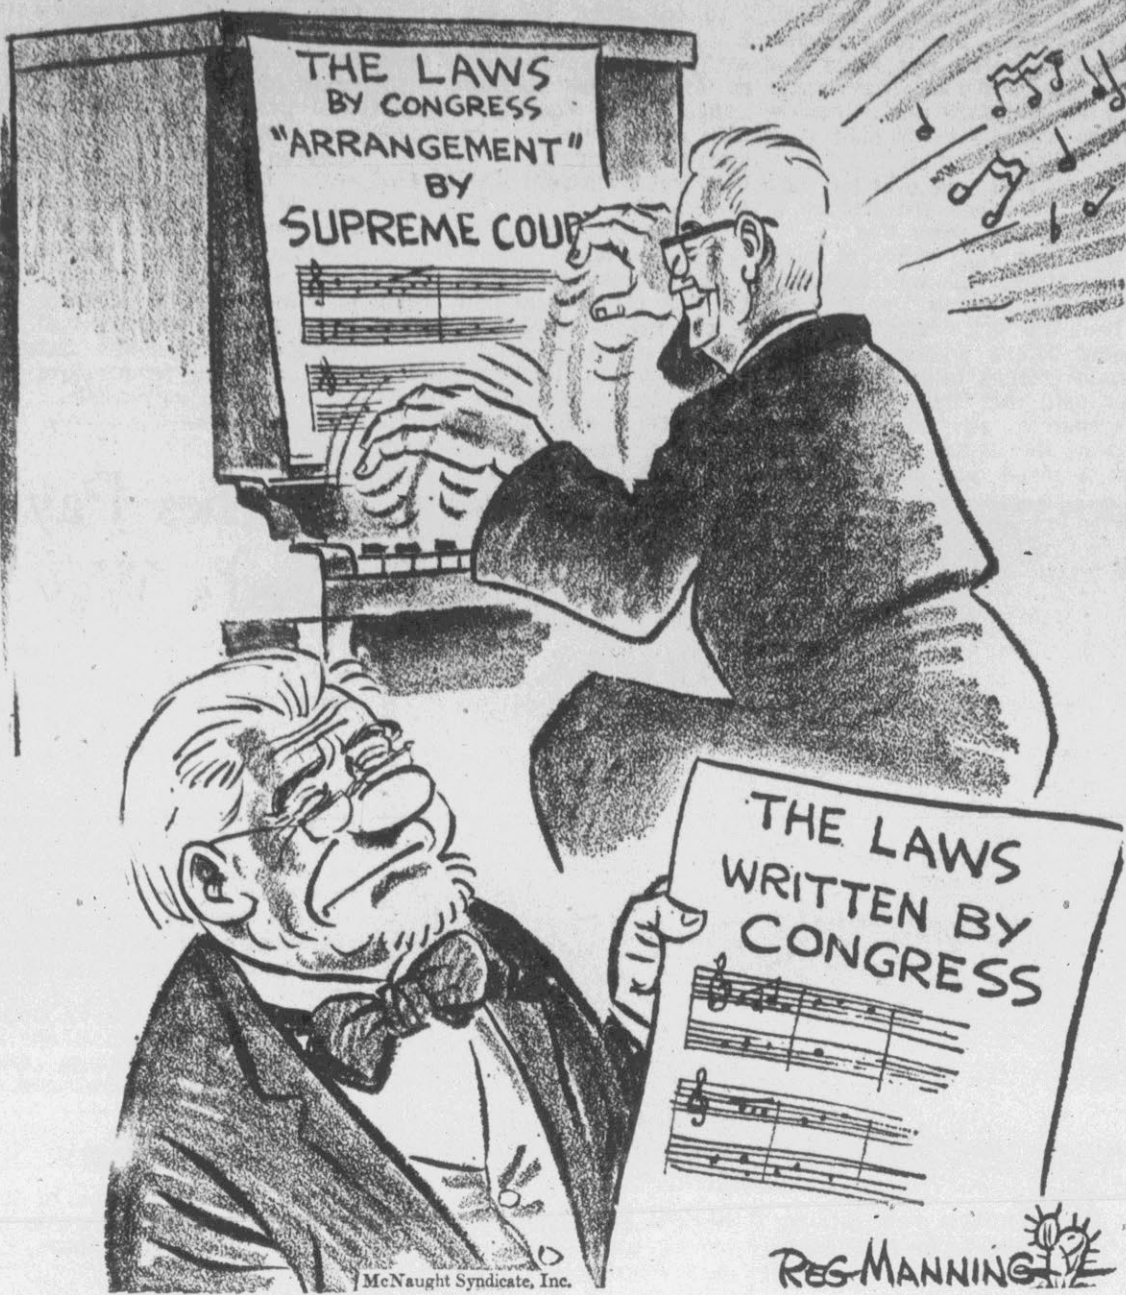

The natural tendency to man is to be vengeful. If someone injures us, our first impulse is to injure him in return. We will get even. People can't do this to me and get away with it. But God's way is entirely different. We humans, defiant little creatures who disobey the will of God, would really be getting our deserts if we experienced divine retaliation. God does at times follow evil acts with retaliation, but it would appear that He does this because such a course of action appears to be the only way we can be corrected and made better. God is not interested in getting even with us, or in punishing us for our sins. The essence of God's life is mercy. We deserve harsh treatment at His hands, but instead we receive loving treatment. Though waves and storms go over my head, though strength, and health, and friends be gone, though joys be withered all and dead, though every comfort be withdrawn, On this my steadfast soul relies— Father, Thy mercy never dies!

—J. A. Rothe

Getting Harder and Harder—

FOR A COMPOSER TO RECOGNIZE HIS MUSIC.

By PATRICIA MOORE

Greenville's Head Start

We noted with great interest an article appearing in our yesterday's edition of "The Daily Reflector" on the probability that kindergartens eventually will be included in the public school system.

The article, written by the Associated Press, said that most educators are convinced that kindergartens will in the future become a part of the public school system.

Greenville is with the times. This town's P.T.A. Council inaugurated a summer kindergarten program for children without previous kindergarten experience last year during a four-week period. A similar program will again be conducted this summer, under sponsorship of the City Council P. T. A. and with aid of civic funds, as it was last year.

It is obvious that educators and parents feel there is advantage in children's having this experience.

Kindergarten grades seem to adjust better to first-grade work, and are able to begin their class work more readily than those who have never been to a similar kind of organized class before. Some of the benefits are social adjustment, the child's learning to remain away from home and mother without crying, and learning to understand and follow directions.

The kindergarten graduate has mastered these accomplishments and is easier for the ABC's, reading about Jack and Jill and writing when he enters the first grade.

Difficulty arises when some children are ready for first grade and others are not. The difficulty is, of course, harder on the teacher, but the AP notes that the kindergarten graduate tends to remain ahead of the child without this experience for about three years. Then the students tend to be on an even level.

The program conducted here, incidentally, is approved by the State Department of Public Instruction. Superintendent J. H. Rose noted that the local plan was copied from Greensboro's kindergarten program. Trained teachers of lower elementary grades are used, but they do not advance first grade work; they teach kindergarten in kindergarten, Rose said.

Other Editors Saying Musing On The Future

(The Wilson Times) East Carolina College is on a much larger scale, from every viewpoint, than the average citizen realizes.

Everyone knows about East Carolina college in this section. A few know the size of the college or of its growth. The buildings are modern, and in the same architectural period. The grounds are beautiful.

Inside the buildings there is every evidence of the educational opportunities and culture the college provides.

As we walked along, enjoying every minute of the fragrance of a spring day, we could not but wonder what is in store for the colleges, not supported by tax funds. How long will they be able to compete and offer the opportunities to equal or match the state-supported institutions?

Today approximately 46 percent of our college students are in institutions whose support comes from tuition fees and income from endowments. We recognize the objective of the state-supported colleges, to provide an education at the least possible cost, so all may have the advantages.

But we could not help but compare our own Atlantic Christian college, that we are so interested in and never miss an opportunity to promote. How can colleges such as ACC obtain funds for needed expansion programs, with taxes and costs as they are?

It takes around four and a half million dollars a year to operate East Carolina college. It is growing by leaps and bounds, and if all is as right as what meets the eye, the student body is as fortunate as can be found.

Our concern is for both the state-supported colleges and the privately supported; as we will call them for lack of better description.

We have no fear for the tax supported. We do for those dependent on tuition and endowment income. For even Harvard, whose economists are running the government, is complaining because inflation is eating up the buying power of its endowment income.

We would like to look into the crystal ball and see what the future holds. With the turning toward government for everything, from the cradle to the grave, we wonder how long our private colleges and universities will be able to compete.

It will be a sad day when they have to curtail their progress and opportunities, because of lack of funds. For these institutions have much to offer.

These were some of the thoughts that passed through my mind while enjoying a day at East Carolina College.

Competition In Insurance Rates

By ELMER ROESSNER

A bit of competition has lowered air travel insurance rates to $3.75 for $150,000 at Chicago airports. But travelers at most other airports in the country are paying $5 for $150,000, which General Elwood R. (Pete) Quesada, former Federal Aviation Administrator, recently characterized as a kyp.

The Chicago competition was between Tele-Trip Insurance Co., a subsidiary of Mutual of Omaha, and Airport Sales Corp., a subsidiary of Continental Casualty Co.

Airport Sales was given an exclusive contract to sell insurance at O'Hare International Airport. Its usual charge is $5 per $150,000. Tele-Trip protested and offered to sell $150,000 policies for $3.75. The city persuaded Airport Sales to give up its exclusivity and to allow Tele-Trip to compete.

SPREADS TO OTHER FIELD Airport Sales then publically called attention to the fact that Tele-Trip was charging $5 at Chicago's other major field, Midway. Tele-Trip promptly lowered the price there, too. At both fields, Tele-Trip is also offering an additional $75,000 in insurance for $2.50.

Meanwhile, around the country the $5 rate prevails at most airports.

General Quesada declared that of every dollar received in premiums, only 30 cents is paid out in claims. In many cases the local airport receives 30 cents and the remaining 20 cents goes to insurance companies for maintenance, sales, overhead and profit.

He said that when he was FAA chief, he discovered that the Federal government was getting half the money paid for insurance at the Washington National airport. Insurance counters were rented by the government for around $150 a square foot, while ticket counters were rented for only $3 a foot.

Apparently kindergartens are beginning to multiply in the state and this "is evidence of sharpening interest in the education of the 5-year-old," the AP article said. It continued, "As more and more parents send children to kindergarten, pressure is certain to build up to give the public schools the job."

Of course, the article was speaking more directly about kindergartens conducted during the same time periods that regular school is conducted.

However, since kindergartens are beginning to meet the public's educational eye, it is nice to know that Greenville has a head start.

Opinions In Brief

Quietly Accept Seizure

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It is becoming increasingly customary for officials of new revolutionary governments to seize American property as has recently been done in Cuba and in Brazil; as had earlier been done in Red China and Soviet Russia. As a matter of practice, the United States in recent years has done nothing about such expropriations. During earlier administrations, the United States pursued what came to be known as "Dollar Diplomacy," by which was meant that the United States not only protected American life but also American property.

Since the Franklin Roosevelt Administration, American policy on this subject had to change because when Roosevelt recognized Soviet Russia, he ignored the fact that Russia had expropriated American property in Russia without compensation of any kind. It used to be true, particularly in countries where the United States exercised extraterritorial jurisdiction, that any company could register at a consulate as an American company. In 1924 Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes held that:

"The question, however, as to the extent to which this government should afford such a corporation assistance in a foreign country is one which may properly be governed in large measure by the nature and extent of the American interests involved."

Since the Franklin Roosevelt Administration it has become policy to protect neither American life nor American property anywhere, even in countries with a low level of civilization, with the result that expropriations have become increasingly usual. The assumption is that American corporations are owned by rich tycoons and to hell with them. The fact is that American corporations are usually owned by thousands of small stockholders, often widows, orphans, trust funds left for children's education, educational institutions and the like.

When an expropriation takes place, these stockholders have been robbed as though their pockets had been picked. Benjamin Javits, President of the United Shareowners of America, makes the point that American industry is owned by 16,000,000 shareowners. When the Brazilian government, for instance, expropriates American property in Brazil, the property of a duly franchised American company, it actually steals the possessions of the shareowners of that property. It is after such an event that our government entertains President Joao Goulart of Brazil!

Are we to finance the Brazilian government in its depredations as we gave Stalin $11,000,000,000 to become our principal enemy?

The real difficulty is that whereas we speak of ours as a capitalist country, we do not quite mean what we say. Capitalism is the investment of our surplus above the necessities of life in the economy of a country at the risk of the investor, who hopes to profit, but may lose.

When, however, the government encourages companies to take a share of the investments abroad, it assumes a specific responsibility, at any rate, to protect that investment from expropriation, which simply means "taking away" without any regard to the rights of the shareowners in their own property or the economy of the United States. At that point, we need to do something about it.

In the old days, when we were a proud nation, and were putting considerable money into Latin American enterprises, we did do something about it. We sent the Marines and maintained the Monroe Doctrine. But it was impractical to do that when the Russian Bolsheviks seized American property. We were not ready to go to war with Soviet Russia. We did send an army to Siberia, to prevent Japan from seizing the Trans-Siberian Railroad from Leningrad to the Bering Sea, an act which prevented the partitioning of Russia among the Allies, early enough to contain the Bolsheviks in a small and perhaps unconquerable area. This failed and has since been discussed with numerous and singular distortions by so-called experts.

Hodges Says Must Please Foreign Visitors

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges told a travel meeting here today that efforts to lure foreign visitors to this country "will only succeed if visitors like what they find here."

The former North Carolina governor told representatives from nine states and the District of Columbia that "We meet here today... to discuss ways to assure a considerate, cordial reception for the hundreds of people who will answer our Visit U.S.A. invitation."

Hodges said that last year 1.6 million Americans traveled overseas while only 600,000 foreign visitors came to the United States. "This smaller inflow gave us an unfavorable tourist dollar balance of $1.1 billion," he said. "There is strong economic motivation to all this activity," Hodges told the group. "Each European visitor spends an average of $500 after he gets here. Consider that a mere doubling of European visitor traffic to the United States over the next four years — and that is conservative — would pump $250 million annually into our financial bloodstream."

"Each state and each city represented here today can reasonably expect to share in this new income," Hodges added. Govs. Bert Combs of Kentucky, Farri Bryant of Florida, Albert S. Harrison of Virginia and Terry Sanford of North Carolina were in attendance.

The rivalry overseas for tourists is keen, Hodges explained, and it comes from Iron Curtain countries as well. "Now let me mention the part of this new American venture that pleases and excites me most."

"It is the opportunity we are creating for people in other lands to meet and know us, to see us in our homes and fields and factories, to see our way of life, to learn that we share with them many common problems and aspirations."

"Yes, this is a program to earn dollars," Hodges said, "but — most important of all — it will be building international friendships as most people meet and understand one another."

Earlier, Volt Gilmore of Southern Pines, director of the United States Travel Service, said "International travel is a big business and rapidly getting bigger" and it is time "for the United States to get with it."

Other speakers at the morning session were Rep. Robert W. Hemphill, D-S.C.; Ben Butterfield, director of promotion for the Travel Service; C. P. Austin, director of visitor services for the Travel Service and Judy Little, a port receptionist of the Immigration and Naturalization Service at Los Angeles.

Although the U.S. Travel Service is only nine months old, Gilmore said, it has "begun a half-million dollar campaign in hard-hitting ads which will unfold before Europeans and people in Latin America and in the Pacific."

Gilmore continued, "To fortify the U.S. Travel Service promotion activities... we are now shipping abroad for mass distribution posters, folders, fact sheets, films, slides and exhibits... and agents and carriers want to help us sell the U.S. to travelers because, like other businessmen, they like a hot new product to promote."

President Kennedy and Secretary Hodges, Gilmore pointed out, have assured persons in other countries "that we do not mean to shut off or even cut down American travel abroad." He said two-way travel "historically and inevitably generates more and more travel. Moreover, it is a fact that trade follows travel."

Gilmore stressed "that the United States Travel Service is the child of private enterprise and of state and local governments."

Butterfield, who has spent 12 years in sales promotion including the last five with a major airline, told of selling the visit U.S.A. program. "Ultimately, the U.S. Travel Service will utilize every effective communications medium abroad — from newspapers to movie films," Butterfield said because "the majority of the free-world population wants to see the U.S.A."

The meeting in Charlotte was the fifth in a series of regional travel meetings. Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina welcomed the visitors to the one-day affair. States represented were Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Needles And Medicine In Glenn Survival Kit

By VERN HAUGLAND
WASHINGTON (AP) — If Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. had been hurt on his space flight, he could have given himself a pain-killing injection right through his flying suit.

Biomedical experts of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported this today during a detailed symposium on the Marine Lieutenant colonel's three-orbit flight of last Feb. 20.

They disclosed that Glenn carried in his survival kit four newly developed "automatic self-injectors" stored in a small package. The injectors contained medications for pain, shock and motion sickness, and a stimulant.

One end of each injector was fitted with a red safety cap, and the other end contained the medication and needle.

Upon removal of a safety pin, the injector becomes armed.

The astronaut would have pressed the needle end of the injector into his two-ply aluminum-impregnated pressure suit. The needle would have gone through the fabric and into the astronaut's skin, releasing the medication.

In tests of the technique "the resulting hole in the suit caused an insignificant suit leak," the NASA scientists reported.

Glenn did not use any of the injectors before, during or after the flight, however.

The 13 papers presented at the symposium also reported that: About 19,300 people were deployed in Project Mercury at the time of the Glenn mission. About 15,600 were associated with the widespread recovery program, 2,600 were involved at the launching complex, and 1,100 were manning the tracking network.

A study of all the reports on the mission shows that all of the various systems in the Mercury spacecraft functioned "at least as good as designed, and in some cases better."

Harmful effects of minor malfunctions were neutralized by duplicating systems, corrective action of the astronaut and by ample margins in system design.

At launch the spacecraft weighed 4,265 pounds, at insertion into orbit 2,987, at firing of the braking rockets 2,970, at water-landing 2,493, and on recovery 2,422.

During reentry into the earth's atmosphere, when the capsule was taking its "most severe beating," the temperature of the air cap surrounding the front end reached a peak of 9,500 degrees, almost the same as the temperature on the surface of the sun.

Temperatures within the cabin and in the suit remained "at acceptable levels during all phases of the mission." The cabin air temperature fluctuated between 90 and 104 degrees as the spacecraft passed from darkness into sunlight.

Cubans Arrest 7 Skindivers

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban authorities reported today seven North American citizens described as "apparently" frogmen — have been arrested on the northern coast of Oriente Province.

A communique appearing in Havana newspapers said the men were picked up at 5 a.m. Thursday and were "detained."

"Apparently they were frogmen," the communique said. "Authorities are investigating to determine what their presence in our territory is due to."

There was speculation in Miami that the men were missing treasure hunters who sailed from Pompano Beach, Fla.

The Coast Guard at Miami issued an alert Thursday night for vessels to report any sighting of the motorboat Pisces, overdue at Jamaica on a treasure hunting cruise of seven skin divers.

Coast Guard search and rescue headquarters said that skipper Gordon S. Patton and his mates normally would cruise between eastern Cuba (Oriente Province) and the Dominican Republic on a voyage in their 45-foot boat to Jamaica.

The Coast Guard explained that the route, called the Windward Passage, would allow small craft to island-hop among the Bahamas. The route is shorter than the alternate passage around western Cuba.

Patton and his group had planned to do skin diving in exploring the Caribbean Sea floor for old shipwrecks.

With Patton on the Pisces when it left Florida Saturday were Fred Dixon Jr., Washington, D.C., and five other men whose names were not learned immediately.

Concerts To Present Work Of 7 North Carolina Composers

Works by seven of North Carolina's most outstanding composers will be presented in two concerts Saturday as highlights of a Contemporary Music Festival at East Carolina College this weekend April 6-8.

The noted pianist, teacher, and author Vincent Persichetti of the Juilliard School of Music will be composer-consultant at events of the three-day festival. Sponsors of the festival are the East Carolina Department of Music and the Carolina Composers Group.

Dr. Martin Mallman, composer in residence at East Carolina, has announced programs for the concerts, which will be open to the public.

Members of the Carolina Composers Group in a chamber music program Saturday, at 2 p.m., in the McGinnis auditorium will play works by three of the state's composers. John Barnes Chance, Ford Foundation composer in Greensboro, will be represented on the program by his Credo for Trumpet and Piano performed by Mr. Chance at the piano and Gayle Eaker of Greensboro, trumpeter.

Members of the woodwind ensemble are David Miller of Greenville, flute; Joyce Mitchell of Greensboro, oboe; Martha Jones of Morganton, clarinet; Sandra Porter of Elizabeth City, horn; and William Allgood of High Point, bassoon.

Concluding the chamber music program will be Sonata for Piano by Carl Alexius, faculty member of the Woman's College UNC, Greensboro. Robert Darnell, also of Woman's College, will appear in this work as pianist.

With Mr. Persichetti as guest conductor of his Symphony for Band, a concert Saturday at 8:30 p.m., in the Wright auditorium will include also works by four N. C. composers. Performing ensembles will be the East Carolina Symphonic Band, conducted by Herbert L. Carter, and the East Carolina College Choir, with Gordon Johnson as director.

First performance of Overture for Band by East Carolina's composer in residence Dr. Martin Mallman will open the program. The work is dedicated to Mr. Carter and the Symphonic Band at the college here. Dr. Mallman's "Hosanna" will be performed by the College Choir, with Terry Coley of Belmont as piano accompanist.

Two compositions by Dr. Benjamin Dunford of Concord to be presented Saturday night are Suite Miniature for Band and Te Deum Laudamus, sung by the East Carolina College Choir with brass and percussion accompaniment.

"Awaken Us" by Gordon Johnson will be sung by the East Carolina College Choir with the composer as director.

Closing selection of the Saturday night program will be the stirring composition Sinal by M. Thomas Cousins of Brevard. The work is a motet for symphonic band and a chorus of mixed voices.

Other events of the festival include a public lecture-recital by Vincent Persichetti Sunday, April 8, at 1:30 p.m. in McGinnis auditorium and announcement of the Saturday night concert of awards to student composers.

Postal Receipts Up For Quarter

Greenville Post Office completed the end of the third postal quarter with a 6.3 per cent increase in receipts, it was reported yesterday through Knott Proctor, postmaster.

Receipts for the quarter, which ended March 30, were $67,119.44, compared to $63,136.03 for the same period last year.

Total mail volume for the 10th accounting period, the last in the third quarter, also showed an increase over the same time last year, even though outgoing mail for the period, compared to the corresponding period for last year, decreased slightly.

For the tenth accounting period this year, total mail volume was 1,351,400 compared to 1,279,500 for the same time last year. This represented an increase of 5.6 per cent. Outgoing mail for the period this year totaled 445,900, a slight decrease over the 448,300 pieces outgoing last year at the same time.

Incoming mail for the period just ended was 905,500 — an increase over the 831,200 pieces incoming for the corresponding period last year.

Generally speaking, increases have been notable since the first of this calendar year, compared to last year and last fall and winter, postal officials noted.

The first seven presidents of the African republic of Liberia were all born in the United States.

Sokolsky . . .

As it became increasingly impractical to deal with Soviet Russia, efforts to protect American property and even American life in Communist countries ceased altogether. A diplomatic note is not an effort. It is a waste of paper, ink and personnel. The proof that I am correct in this interpretation is that country after country has engaged in expropriation, the worst being Red China and Cuba, with Brazil the most recent.

While there is a flight of capital from the United States and an export of jobs to Western Europe and Japan, Americans show wisdom in keeping their money out of those countries which have a history of expropriation.

Can Do Little To TV Oscar Show

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor won't be able to make it, but most of the other invited guests are expected to attend the 33rd Academy Awards Monday night.

Miss Taylor has been reported making a movie or something in Europe and hence will be unable to hand out the best-actor award, as is customary for the previous year's best-actress winner. Her place will be taken by another former winner, Joan Crawford ("Mildred Pierce," 1945).

Burt Lancaster, who won last year for "Elmer Gantry," will be on hand to present the best-actress Oscar. Most of the nominees are expected to be in the audience at the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium.

Well, almost. Jackie Gleason, nominated for best supporting actor in "The Hustler," won't fly and declined to make the journey from the East by rail. Running mate George C. Scott, same category, same picture, pulls a no-show for a different reason. He is the chap who tried to withdraw from the race on the charge it was too commercial.

Civilians Prepare Elect New Slate Of Officers

A report from the club's Nominations Committee highlighted Thursday's meeting of the Greenville Civitan Club. Kenneth Guiggins listed these eight nominees for the club's 1962-63 officers:

Jim Rodgers and Bill Taylor for president; Joe Dudley and Gene Skinner for vice president; Norman Hopkins and Bernard Jackson for secretary; and Louis Jones and Warren Whitehurst for treasurer.

Nominated for candidacy to the Club's Board of Directors were Nick Dorroll, C. T. Fleming, Leon Singleton, Gilbert Hopkins, Leonard Waters, Norman Little, Richard (Bud) Phillips, Gene Gurganus and Melvin Moore.

The four top vote-getters from this group will serve as members of the new board of directors along with the president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and immediate past president.

The date for election of the new officers was announced as April 19 with terms of office to begin July 1. The former date is also the sixth anniversary of the founding of the local club, and Vice-President Bill Taylor urged attendance by all members.

Announcement was made by Jim Rodgers, presiding in the absence of club President Herbert Wilkerson, of the purchase by the club of five copies of the book "The Fabulous Octogenarian," written by James G. Leonard. This book is a biography of Courtney W. Shropshire, physician and founder of the first Civitan Club in 1917. The Sheppard Memorial Library, ECC Library and Rose High School Library will each be presented a copy of the book while two copies will be retained for club use.

Amos Evans, Jim Farmer and Icen Wilson were recognized as new members of the club. The meeting was concluded with the showing of a color film by Program Chairman George Douglas which depicted the Civitan program being carried out at "Wildacres" in Western N. C.

Cardinals Vote For Canonization

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Thirty Roman Catholic cardinals gave favorable votes to Pope John XIII in a secret consistory Thursday to canonize the 16th century Peruvian, Blessed Martin de Porres.

The Pope had called the consistory especially to hear the vote of the cardinals, among them Juan Cardinal Landazuri Ricketts, archbishop of Lima, Peru.

After the Pope received the favorable vote, a second consistory was held, this one public, for a reading of the virtues and miracles the church attributes to the Peruvian monk who was born of a Negro slave woman and a Spanish nobleman, Don Juan de Porres. The final ceremony is scheduled for May 6.

Blessed Martin died Nov. 3, 1639 in a barren cell of a Dominican monastery in Lima after 45 years of religious activity.

A New JOHN GREASEY Thriller A ROCKET FOR ROLLISON

CHAPTER 35
On the edge of the scene of disaster and desolation the tall, drooping figure of Sir Mortimer Bailey stood. The upright figure of Colonel Bilston was like a statue. Carmichael and Moshead were standing together, talking in undertones, and pale-faced.

"Somehow, it seemed wrong that James Wedlake should be missing. As Rollison and Grice of Scotland Yard studied the directors of Malling Motors, a Rolls Royce drew near the scene, a chauffeur jumped down and opened the door to Simon Assen, who stepped out, stared at the scene, and stood quite still, gaping.

"Grice sought out a Watford superintendent. "Hallo, Bill. Very glad to meet you, Mr. Rollison." The Watford man, big, gruff-voiced and tired-looking, looked as if he meant what he said. "It's a shocking mess, but apart from holding up development, it shouldn't make much difference to output. The firemen have got it under control, they tell me."

"Any idea how it started?" Rollison asked. "Well, I've just had a talk with the Chief Fire Officer, very sound chap," said the Watford policeman. "He says that it's almost certainly arson. Two or three things point to that, including the wreckage of a car which was blown against the side of the shed, and hardly damaged by fire."

"So there was an explosion," Rollison commented. "Oh, yes—two or three night duty men heard it. Only two men were slightly injured, as far as we can tell. It's going to be a big job finding out who would want to wreck a plant like this, isn't it?"

"Can't say I fancy it," Grice agreed, and looked curiously at Rollison. "Rolly, what's on your mind?" "Bill," said Rollison, and winked at the Watford man. "I have a hunch. If it's wrong I'm going to have the biggest rocket I've ever been given—and you may present it to me."

He saw the glint of excitement in the Watford man's eyes as he went on. "Could we collect Bailey, Assen, Bilston, Morhead, and Carmichael together, do you think? Say you want a word with them about the Fire Officer's report?"

"Yes," said the Watford man promptly. "I'll fix it, but—what do you suspect, Mr. Rollison?" "Allow me my moment of triumph or of ridicule," pleaded Rollison, and when the other man went hurrying he looked at Grice, and said: "Any ideas, Bill?" "I could tell there was something on your mind from the moment you stepped into the car. Why don't you stop acting like a prima donna before the curtain rises, and tell me what it's all about?"

"Just think," urged Rollison. "Why should Wedlake want to ruin his own company? Why should anyone want to destroy every prototype of the Rocket?" "If he's being paid by a competitor—"

"Ah, yes," said Rollison. "Someone with more money than a small Italian manufacturer, you mean? It could be, but—ponder the facts, Bill. Think of the coincidence—the papers which Holmes-Thompson were destroyed by fire, the whole of the experimental shed was destroyed by fire. It was always a puzzle that fire should be used as a weapon, wasn't it? Could anything have been clumsier, unless—"

"Unless what?" "Unless it was being used to draw our attention to the fact of its existence," Rollison said, simply, and then saw the group of directors and financiers moving off. He took Grice's arm and led him towards them.

They met in the board room in the main building, some two hundred yards from the scene of the fire. Rollison studied each man in turn. Simon Assen looked viciously angry. Arthur Morhead tightened his lips and cold. Sir Mortimer Bailey wobbled, Colonel Bilston rather like an officer without his men. Carmichael was sleek and polished.

"Superintendent, what is it you wish to tell us?" asked Bilston, stiffly, and glared at the Watford detective as if the whole of this catastrophe were his fault alone. "It's essential that you should know at once, gentlemen," the superintendent said, "and at the request of Superintendent Grice of New Scotland Yard I am making it known. There is no doubt that the fire was arson, and that the research and development section of Malling Motors was deliberately destroyed."

Bilston drew in his breath. Assen said, raspingly: "What's the hell are you talking about?" "Really, Mr. Rollison—" began Bailey, while Colonel Bilston moved to a chair and sat down, as if all the strength had been drained from his body. "You think you have," repeated Rollison, gently. "You think you have helped to develop the first popular remote control and automatic collision-proof car, and the first drive-itself-without-danger automobile—the dream car of every Progressive manufacturer for a quarter of a century. But gentlemen, there was no Rocket! There was no repellent treatment for metal."

Rollison exposes a gigantic hoax. Don't miss the end of the story here tomorrow.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 16:1-2; II Timothy.

The apostle Paul, imprisoned in Rome and chained to a Roman soldier day and night, senses that his death is at hand. In his last written words, he sends instructions to his "spiritual son, Timothy.—II Timothy.

To rekindle Timothy's zeal, Paul reminds him that the gift of God is in him and that since he was a babe he has known "the sacred writings" which lead to salvation through faith.—II Timothy 1:6, 3:14-15.

Timothy is to lay hold of this and, above all else, to "preach the word." He is also to pass on what he has learned from Paul to "faithful men" who will be able to teach others also.—II Timothy 4:1-5; 2:2.

Timothy is to avoid men who are "lovers of self." They are "lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God, holding the form of religion" but denying its power.—II Timothy 3:2-5. GOLDEN TEXT: II Peter 3:18.

Toward a Mature Faith

PAUL'S FINAL INSTRUCTION TO TIMOTHY, EMPHASIZING THE NEED FOR UNSWERING DEVOTION TO THE WORD OF GOD

Scripture—Acts 16:1-2; II Timothy.

By N. SPEER JONES

THE LETTER we study today was cited by the great Reformation leader John Calvin as "more profitable to me than any other book of Scripture."

The inspiration Calvin found in II Timothy stems in part from the fact that Paul wrote it under sentence of imminent death, suspecting perhaps that these might be his last written words.

Imprisoned in Rome, he apparently had been chained day and night to a Roman soldier for two years. This letter certainly qualifies as one of "faith, counsel and courage."

Furthermore, in this letter we find what is generally considered the Bible's most inspiring statement of its own pre-eminence—in chapter 3, verses 14-17. In fact, Paul's major point, on the threshold of death, chapter 2, Paul asks Timothy to transmit to faithful men those things which he, Timothy, heard Paul preach, so that these men in turn can pass it on in tact to other faithful men, etc.

Many Christians who believe strongly in an individualized approach to their religion, support an organized church because they appreciate the moral righteousness of every other individual's having exposure, first-hand, to the basic core of Christianity, unadulterated by individual variations.

They realize that when a truth is passed down merely by word of mouth from generation to generation, it changes radically over the years, in the way that legends grow up around historical events and personages. The best protection against such alteration is through organized religion—a church with its body of doctrine, based on the Scriptures and taught conscientiously in a theological school.

It is interesting to note, in this connection, that in Paul's time, oral teaching was deemed infinitely more important than written teaching, not only because of the paucity of literacy, but because of the prevalent belief that the second coming of Christ was imminent and therefore written records would have only short-term value.

To return once more to Calvin, we see that he has also been impressed by Paul's dark warnings of the future and his listing of contributing characteristics. The first of these is self-love, and Calvin said, "Self love may be regarded as a source from which flow all the vices that follow afterward."

This letter is also important as containing the first evidence of a Christian theological school—that is, a school which not only provides for teaching the unenlightened, but for preserving and nourishing a specific body of doctrine. In verse 2 of

was the absolute necessity of preaching the Word; no matter what else Timothy did, he was to proclaim God's message of salvation (II Timothy 4:1-2).

The core of God's message is, of course, the Scriptures. As Paul says, "All scripture is inspired of God." (II Timothy 3:16), or breathed by God.

In the light of such revelations, it is difficult to understand the sophistry of even certain religious leaders who slight or even discount the Scriptures as convention; some have even advocated the writing of a new Bible.

Community Service And Betterment Are His Goals

W. W. SPEIGHT . . . Pitt County Attorney.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Public service and community betterment are prime functions in the life of Pitt County attorney William W. Speight.

Speight, born in Parmele, has been the county's legal counsel for over 10 years, and has during that time participated in many activities for the betterment of Pitt.

The lawyer, following graduation from Spring Hope High School, entered the University of North Carolina.

He had become interested in law while in high school, partly because of the many hours spent around the courthouse viewing trials and party because of his proficiency at debating. He was now in law school.

Troubles came in the early '30s, however, and Speight was forced to leave school for financial reasons. But this did not stop him.

"Nothing pays off like persistence," Speight says. He went looking for work and found it. During the next six years he hauled tobacco, sold magazines, inspected lumber, clerked in a store and labored in a cottonseed oil mill—all with one goal in mind; to finish law school. This he did, and graduated from the University law school in 1939.

For the next year he worked in the Institute of Government's criminal research department at Chapel Hill, then until 1942 was a member of State Attorney General's office staff in Raleigh.

From 1942 until 1946 Speight served in the U. S. Navy as a lieutenant commander on the staff of the Commander of U. S. Naval Forces in Europe, then for six months after the war's end was president

Eisenhower Puts Faith In GOP

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower came off the golf course at Eldorado Country Club Thursday to attend a luncheon of 250 Republicans in one of his rare public appearances.

Eisenhower was accorded a standing ovation as he said:

"If we are for sound finance rather than skyrocketing debt, we must make certain that good Republicans are returned to the halls of Congress.

"I say that the principles of the Republican Party represent the greatest good for our country. Let's get more people in the Republican Party. We don't have to be snooty. Let's have everyone who believes in good government within our party."

of the Navy General Court Martial for the European Theater of Operations.

It was during his military career that Speight was married to the former Joyce Bunday of Kent, England.

Speight explained that the two met in an air raid shelter and he recorded her address by the light of fires set by German bombs. They were married in Erith, Kent, east of London, in 1945.

After his release from active service, Speight returned to Greenville and entered private practice with a local law firm. Speight's duties as county attorney are to give legal advice to the board of County Commissioners, the county board of Education and all the county officials.

His duties also include representing Pitt Memorial Hospital and other departments, drawing contracts for the various Pitt agencies, representing the commissioners and the county in any law suits instituted against them, and selling all confiscated articles, including guns and cars taken by the court.

Bond issues also fall under his hand, for it is his duty to handle the issuing of bonds for the county and all of the school districts. In short, anything that deals with legal questions on county government is Speight's business. It is his job to assist in keeping the county out of trouble.

"I feel proud," he said, noting the fact that there have been "no successful law suits concluded against the county and no tax suits or appeals . . . even though a complete reevaluation was completed" in the county in the 1950's.

Although not spelled out in his list of duties, research plays a large part in his official capacity and takes much of his time. "No one can know it all," Speight commented. "Many things have to be checked and learned."

One of the things that has given Speight much pleasure and satisfaction is the fact that he has been able to devote time to projects for community and area betterment, such as the new bypass and bridge over the Tar River, the area air service project and the Committee of 100.

Speight, attorney for the Airport Commission, is also president of the Committee of 100, a public service corporation with the economic development of Pitt its primary purpose in being.

"A progressive county like Pitt has got to keep going forward . . . needs to keep on trying something else" if one thing fails, Speight emphasized. "Like seeing what makes the county government tick and taking part in it!"

The lawyer also helped to organize the Sentinel Life Insurance Company which recently merged with a Charlotte firm and is a director of the surviving firm. Speight, in addition, is general counsel and a director of a local savings and loan association.

Speight, appeal judge for the Selective Service Board and chairman of the United Service Organizations (USO) for Greenville and Pitt, has served for the past three years as Pitt County chairman of the John Motley Morehead Scholarship Committee. He is past

Must Build Nest For Zoo's Birds

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—When in spring a flamingo's fancy gently turns to thoughts of love nests, he does absolutely nothing about it. At least not if he's in a zoo.

K. C. Lint, curator of birds at San Diego Zoo, has to set up housekeeping for his flamingos every year. "In captivity," he says, "they have forgotten how to build nests, so I must do it for them."

At his flamingo lagoon, Lint is building clay mounds 15 feet high on which the birds will hatch their offspring. Soon, he says, the flamingos will go into their courtship dances and pair off.

"Since I have been building their nests, dating back to 1956, at least one chick has been hatched annually," Lint says.

Stafford Has Been Yanks' Most Effective Pitcher

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Strong, stingy and successful—that's Bill Stafford, an instant sensation for the New York Yankees last year who has been the world champions' most effective pitcher during the exhibition baseball season.

Making his last pre-season start, the right-hander, 23, became the first member of the Yankees' staff to go the distance as he spaced 11 hits—all singles—in a 2-1 victory over Philadelphia at Fort Lauderdale Thursday.

Stafford now has worked 41 innings—most on the club—posted an incredible 1.69 earned run average and, almost as amazing in the day of the home run, has not been touched for a circuit shut during the entire exhibition grind.

Stafford fashioned a 14-9 record during the 1961 campaign, his first full season in the majors, and compiled the second lowest ERA in the league at 2.88.

Tired at the end against the Phils, Stafford was touched for the lone run in the ninth on singles by Ruben Amaro, Frank Torre and Taylor before getting rookie Ted Savage to ground out and end it.

The triumph gave the world champs a 17-8 record, leaving them in a tie with St. Louis for the best exhibition mark. The Cardinals nipped Detroit 6-5 at Lakeland, handing the Tigers their eighth consecutive loss.

In other games, Minnesota defeated Baltimore 6-2 at Miami.

San Francisco belted Milwaukee 8-2 at Phoenix, the Chicago White Sox shut out Cincinnati 5-0 at Savannah, the Los Angeles Dodgers clipped Cleveland 4-2 at Tucson, Houston defeated Los Angeles' Angels 3-2 at San Antonio and Kansas City edged the New York Mets 6-5 at St. Petersburg.

The Yankees scored their runs as Joe Pepitone and Tom Tresh came across while the Phils were completing double plays. The Cards went ahead on Stan Musial's first spring homer, fell behind when Norm Cash hit one for the Tigers, then won it when Julio Goetz drove in two runs in a three-run eighth inning uprising.

Home runs by rookies Bernie Allen and Dick Rollins and another by Zolo Versailles gave the Twins' Don Lee the runs he needed as he went the distance to beat the Orioles with an eight-hitter. Rookie Gaylord Perry blanked the Braves for eight innings while the Giants built a commanding lead with a 13-hit attack, including a two-run homer by Willie McCovey.

A grand slam homer by Al Smith and Charley Smith's solo shot won it for the White Sox. Juan Pizarro checked the Reds on five hits in seven innings before Herb Score completed the job in hitless fashion. The Dodgers tallied three in the eighth against the Indians' newly acquired Pedro Ramos with John Roseboro knocking in the winner on a foul fly out.

Roman Mejias accounted for the Colts' first run with a run-producing single, then scored the deciding run in the ninth on Jim Pindleton's double. Norm Siebern hit a homer and a triple in an 11-hit attack as the A's built an insurmountable edge behind Art Ditmar's seven shutout innings and held on to whip the Mets.

Sam Jones Saved Boston's Celtics

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP)—Sam Jones has saved the Boston Celtics against Philadelphia "in the toughest series we ever played."

Jones fired the winning basket over giant Wilt Chamberlain with two seconds left for the 109-107 victory Thursday night.

So drained of energy and emotion were the defending National Basketball Association champions after the final Eastern Division playoff game, they couldn't talk about the title series with Los Angeles opening here Saturday afternoon.

With time running out in the best-of-seven Boston-Philadelphia set, the entire competition suddenly boiled down to Jones vs Chamberlain.

"We were supposed to kill the clock," said Jones later. "Bob Cousy had told me we had time. But I lost sight of the clock. When I saw Bill Russell make the pick, I figured I had to make my move."

Chamberlain looked like a mountain coming out after me. As I let the jumper go I thought the ball was going to hit the rim. Guess I gave it some body English."

Jones, Boston's top scorer with 28 points, turned to Coach Red Auerbach as the latter sat slowly shaking his head in almost disbelief.

"Hey, you guys sure got big mouths on the bench. All I could hear was 'shoot, shoot.'"

When Auerbach could catch his breath, he said:

"This was the toughest seven game series we've ever played. It was harder physically and took a lot out of us. We almost blew this game."

Russell, 6-10 center whose spectacular blocks of shots and passes in the fourth quarter helped Boston's comeback, agreed.

"Toughest series I've ever had to play in," said Russell. "Sam Jones got the shot of the night. Cousy played a great game. He got those big baskets when we needed them."

Though Russell held Chamberlain to 22 points and had the rebounding edge 22-21, Wilt was outstanding defensively and as a team player while rookie Tom Meschery took scoring honors with 32 points.

Downes Is Underdog To Pender In Title Fight

BOSTON (AP)—Terry Downes, 8-5 favorite in Boston, 5-2 in the mandatory eight count in championship fights, has ordered a rubber meeting in a series that has run out of rematch clauses.

The bout will be televised nationally (ABC-TV, 10 p.m. EST) with the Boston area blacked out.

"I've never entertained the thought of losing," Pender said. "I make no prediction other than victory."

"I'll knock him out in eight rounds," countered Downes. The tragic death of Kid Paret from head injuries suffered in his title fight knockout defeat by Emile Griffith, charges of "Boston decisions" and the Downes-Pender medical histories bring the officials and doctors into a sharp focus seldom equalled in boxing annals.

The Massachusetts Boxing Commission, which normally waives the mandatory eight count in championship fights, has ordered a rubber meeting in a series that has run out of rematch clauses.

Commissioners Tom Rawson and Ed Urbee have said Paret's death will serve to remind them that competent refereeing is a must in any fight but not make the man they designate tend to over-protectiveness. The referee and two judges will be named at fight time.

Urbee calls it "a ticklish situation."

Both principals have taken extensive brain and heart examinations under commission orders.

Both fighters are susceptible to cuts, especially Downes who lost to Pender in their first meeting on seventh round TKO when Paul split Downes' nose for 14 stitches and later plastic surgery.

EC Alumni To Hear Stasavich

East Carolina's new head football coach, Clarence Stasavich, is scheduled to speak at a meeting of the Richmond Alumni of East Carolina Monday night.

Stasavich moved to East Carolina the first of the year from Lenoir Rhyne where his teams won 120 games, lost 36 and tied seven during his 15 years of coaching the Bears. His teams also won seven consecutive North State and Carolina Conference football titles.

Since coming to East Carolina the new coach has been in demand as a speaker on many occasions. The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at the Clover Room in Richmond.

East Carolina's opening game next year will be away with the University of Richmond, a Southern Conference school.

Eddie Arcaro and James McLaughlin won the Belmont Stakes six times each. Arcaro last won the race with Nashua in 1955.

Seven ACC Contests Set For This Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Atlantic Coast Conference baseball wars begin in earnest today, with seven league games scheduled for the weekend.

Today's schedule had Maryland at South Carolina, N.C. State at Duke, and Virginia at Clemson. All of the six would be playing their first conference game.

Wake Forest, which opened the ACC season Tuesday by defeating North Carolina 13-8, and the vanquished Tar Heels were idle today.

Saturday North Carolina is at N.C. State, Virginia at South Carolina, Maryland at Clemson and Wake Forest at Duke.

North Carolina and Duke, both losers their last time out, rebounded Thursday against non-conference opposition.

Righthander Bob Wacker gave up two runs in the first inning to Delaware, but settled down to hold the visitors scoreless until they put across another run in the ninth, and North Carolina won 10-3.

The Tar Heels rapped eight hits off two Delaware pitchers, three by third baseman Larry Neal.

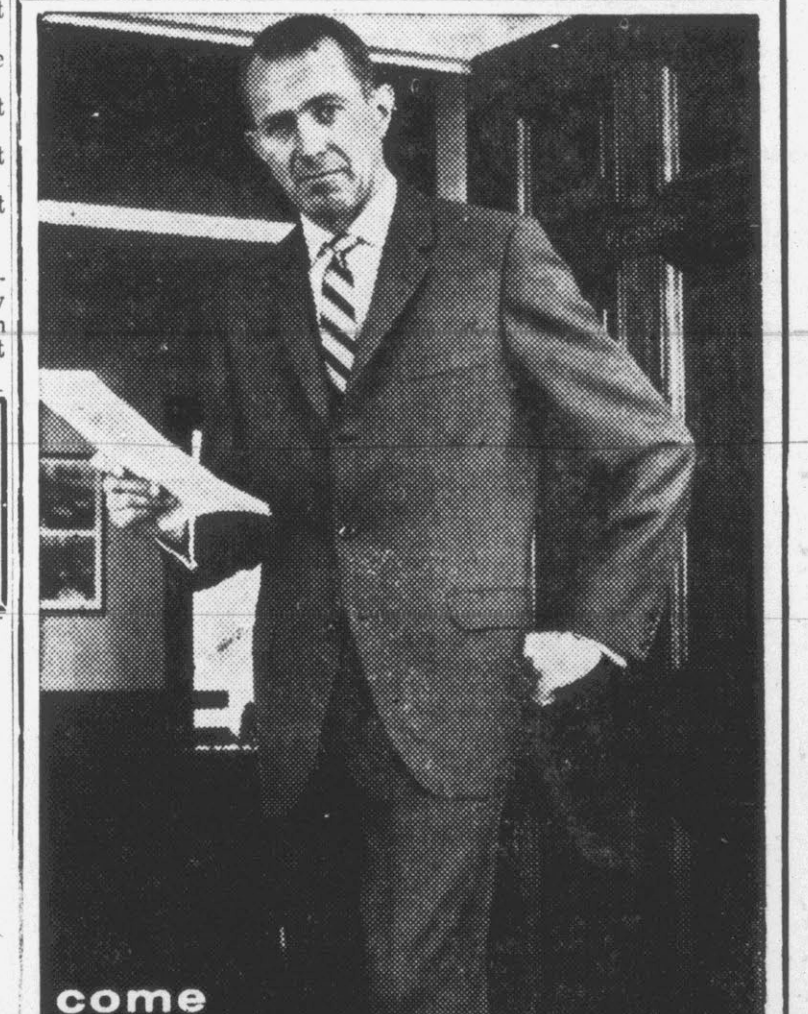

Wacker gave up only five singles, but walks, a wild pitch and an error contributed to Delaware's scoring.

North Carolina now is 3-4 for the season.

Duke made its record 6-3 by clubbing Colby 10-2 on 13 hits and four Colby errors. Bob Turner allowed Colby five singles, three by first baseman Charlie Carey. Turner struck out nine and walked two.

For the Blue Devils, Dave Uible had three hits and Brooks Fader and Bobby Rankin had two each and batted in three runs apiece. Fader's hits included an inside-the-park home run in the first inning.

Maybe Masters Can Cure Player Of Homesickness

By MERCER BAILEY
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Maybe the Masters is the magic medicine that can cure Gary Player of a double-dose of homesickness. The little South African got off to a tremendous start Thursday in defense of his crown. Returning to the putting style that brought him victory over this taxing, 6,300-yard Augusta National Course last year, he shot a brilliant 5-under-par 67 and grabbed a two-stroke lead.

But Player is eager to spend more time in Johannesburg with his wife and two children "and another one on the way." Despite his status as defending champion, Player was almost overlooked in pre-tournament talk when the favorites were mentioned. After all, his putting had been awfully sour—and no Masters winner thus far has been able to repeat the next year. In second place behind Player after a rain-plagued first round was brawny Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., the 1952 U.S. Open champion. He had a 69. Arnold Palmer, the Pennsylvania now of Miami, and the most feared man in golf today, matched Player's 33 on the back nine and closed with a 70, good for a four-way tie for third spot. Player and Palmer both landed the 18th, to the delight of a tremendous gallery.

Batting Crown Hasn't Hurt Cash's Hitting

By JERRY GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—The American League batting crown—his first flirtation with fame—hasn't changed Norm Cash. The Detroit Tigers' first baseman, who hit .361 in 1961, is still a batting case wit.

was thrown out at second. Cash was one of the most questioned and most photographed players in Florida this spring. "Can you bat .361 again?" "My hat still fits," said Cash in his Texas drawl. "I can't say I'll hit .361 again. But I feel certain I can be a .300 hitter."

He treats baseball as a game—a serious game, but still a game. Life is full of fun, especially in the exhibition games when the pressure of the pennant race is off.

Cash's salary was more than doubled for winning the batting title. He'll receive $29,000 this season. Batting has become natural for Cash. Fielding remains a chore.

Stop-Watch May Be Doomed

WYNNE, Ark. (AP)—The electronic age may be on the verge of saying goodbye to the venerable stop watch at track meets.

A radio station owner and his chief engineer have come up with a timing device triggered electronically by the starter's gun and stopped by an electric eye at the finish line.

Its developers—Bud Raley and Art Rogers—plan to show it off to representatives of the NCAA and the National Federation of the State High School Athletic Associations at the Memphis Relays Saturday.

Hyman Still In Bad Condition

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Doctors at Presbyterian Hospital said today there was no change in Lew Hyman's condition. He remained in a coma and in critical condition.

Forest Fire Is Under Control

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP)—A forest-swampland fire was under complete control today and fire fighters sought to eliminate its last traces.

Raley and Rogers have been working with the timing eye since 1960. Raley says the device measures time in 100th of a second instead of a 10th by the stop watch and can register times of first, second, third and fourth place finishers.

The fire, which started Tuesday, burned 4,000 acres of swampland in the Croatan National Forest. It burned from Camp Bryan, a cluster of fishing and hunting camps at the north end of Great Lake, to an unpaved access road at the south end.

The whole timing piece fits into an Army foot locker.

The area is near the Jones-Craven County line. A fireline, manned by about 175 Camp Lejeune and Cherry Point Marines, was formed to a length of about two miles along the access road. This brought the fire under control at about 7:45 p.m. Thursday night.

Forest personnel hoped for rain, promised by the weatherman, to help extinguish the fire.

Cause of the fire, ironically, was controlled burning of trash and brush, an operation designed to lessen the risk of forest fires.

Winds whipped up the fire and took it out of hand.

The Marine contingent was called in early Thursday when the fire threatened valuable timberland on the Croatan preserve.

The State Forestry Division loaned its fire-fighting airplane to the U.S. Forest Service. It was used Thursday to cool off "hot spots" and was placed on a stand-by basis today. The plane, a converted World War II torpedo bomber, dropped liquid chemicals on the fire.

Races Featured For 3-Year-Olds

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

With the Kentucky Derby only four weeks distant, races for 3-year-olds will be featured Saturday at three of the nation's major race courses. The $50,000-added Gotham Stakes at Aqueduct is the main event for the colts with derby ambitions.

Bay Shore Stakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Turner's Sir Ribot is the probable favorite for the California Derby Trial, a mile and 70 yards. He won a race by nine lengths recently after running third behind Royal Atack and Admiral's Voyage in the $152,100 Santa Anita Derby. Eleven may start.

Eight may go in the one-mile Gotham, with Verne Winchell's Donut King, George D. Widener's Jaipur and Robert Lehman's Prego heading the field. Jaipur isn't in the Derby, but he'll be ready for the other triple crown events, the Preakness and Belmont. The Gotham is his first 1962 start.

Nine or ten starters are expected in the Arkansas Derby, 1 1/4 miles, with Alfredo Stable's Eldolon probable favorite. Eldolon—paid $61.30 March 7 at Gulfstream Park in upsetting several Florida Derby candidates in the Hutcheson Stakes. Eldolon isn't eligible for the Kentucky Derby. Two of his potential rivals are, however. They are J. C. Pollard's Treasury Note and August Muckler's Areopolis.

At least five sophomores eligible for the gallop at Louisville May 5 will be seen in the $15,000 California Derby Trial at Tanforan. Several others are due for action in the $25,000 Arkansas Derby at Oaklawn Park.

The Donut King-Jaipur meeting, along with Prego and others at Aqueduct, is a natural. Jaipur loomed as the East's top candidate for 2-year-old honors until Donut King nosed him out Oct. 14 in the $206,000 Champagne Stakes at Aqueduct.

Prego was awarded Hialeah's $136,200 Flamingo last month when he finished second and Townsend Martin's Sunrise County, home first, was disqualified.

Prego carries 126 pounds in the Gotham, with 122 for Jaipur and Donut King, 118 for Sunrise County and James W. Rodgers' Duc d'Or, winner of a division of the Stakes at Aqueduct.

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP)—The first 20 starting positions for Sunday's $17,950 Virginia 500 stock car race were to be decided today in qualifying trials at Martinsville Speedway.

Paret's body was flown to Miami Thursday for burial after some 20,000 had viewed it at a Bronx funeral home. Paret died Tuesday after being in a coma for 10 days.

Heading the list of drivers for the trials starting at 1 p.m. were Freddy Lorenzen of Elmhurst, Ill., who holds the qualifying record, and current grand national point leader Joe Weatherly of Norfolk.

Griffith Named Boxer Of Month

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—The National Boxing Association has named Emile Griffith, conqueror of the late Benny (Kid) Paret, its boxer-of-the-month.

Investigation Opens Today

NEW YORK (AP)—A seven-member New York State legislative committee opens an investigation into boxing today. A member said the committee faces "a serious question of whether the sport of boxing should be continued in this state."

The New Yorker was honored by the NBA Thursday for regaining the world welterweight title in a 12th round knockout of Paret March 24. Paret, who suffered brain injuries, died Tuesday.

The investigation was triggered by the death of former welterweight champion Benny (Kid) Paret from a beating in the Madison Square Garden ring March 24.

The NBA in its monthly ratings moved aging Archie Moore of San Diego from 10th to fourth among heavyweights because of his decisive victory over Alejandro Lavarante of Argentina.

Lorenzen pushed his Ford around the half-mile asphalt oval last year in 25.45 seconds, an average of 70.72 miles per hour, to establish the record some 30 drivers seek to eclipse today.

WANTS SMOKY HEAVY
PORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—"None of our boys are overweight," said Pirate Manager Danny Murtaugh. "We don't want Smoky Burgess ever to report this. When he's heavy he hits heavy. Once he reported light and he hit light."

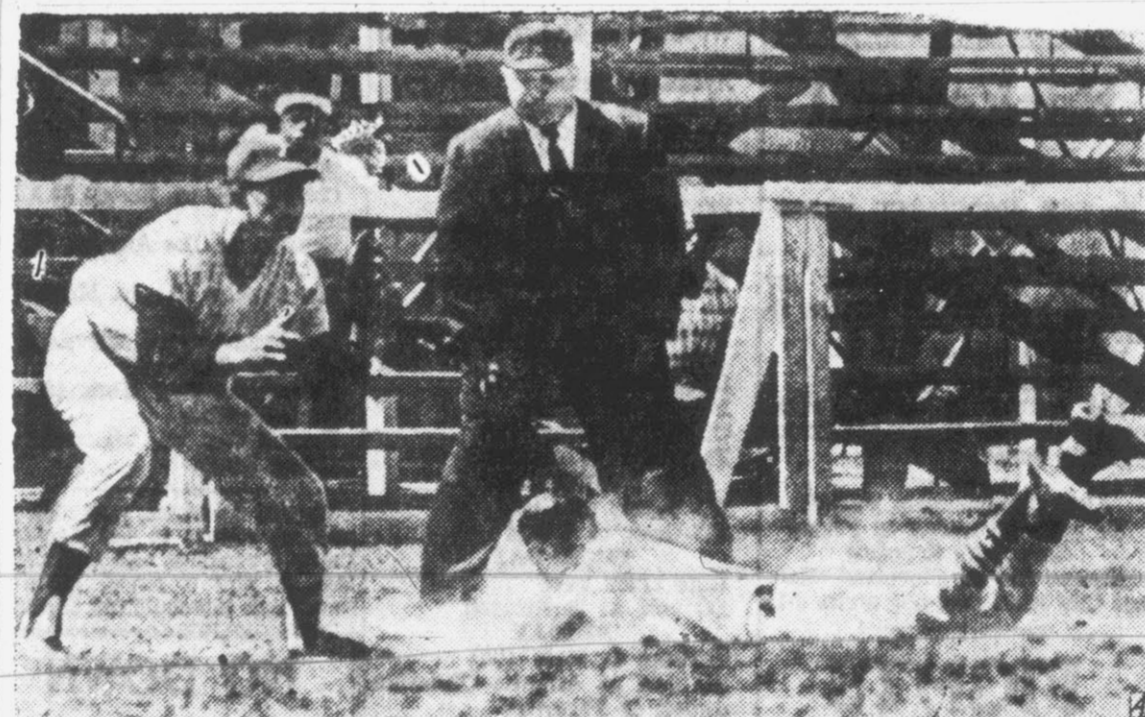

Drivers finishing out of the first 20 today will qualify for the race in competition over 20 laps. The field is limited to 40 late model stock cars.

In 1961, Eddie Arcaro's mounts won the most money during the New York racing season—$1,303,844. Johnny Rotz won the most New York races, taking 157 at Aqueduct, Belmont and Saratoga.

Sunday's feature begins at 1 p.m. and most of the blue-ribbon drivers of the National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing will be in the field. Top money is $3,750.

A sentimental favorite will be Herb Thomas of Sanford, N.C., a two-time grand national circuit champion and the only three-time winner of the Darlington 500. Thomas, who had a serious wreck in 1957 when he lost a serious wreck in a 100-mile event at Shelby, N.C., will be essaying a comeback here in a new 1962 Chevrolet.

Other entries include Jack Smith Current No. 2 man in the grand national standings, and such formidable veterans as Lee Petty, Richard Petty, Buck and Buddy Baker, Junior Johnson, Rex White and Ned Jarrett.

DIVING IN FOR A TRIPLE—Julio Gotay of the St. Louis Cardinals completes his trip to third base in this fashion after tripling in the third inning against Philadelphia Phillies at Clearwater, Fla. Phil's third baseman Don Demeter waits for the ball. The umpire is Bill Jackowski. The Cards won, 7-3. (AP Wirephoto)

Hogan Readily Admits He Is An Average Putter

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—It is one of the incredible ironies of sports that Ben Hogan, who overcame adversity, staggering odds and a near fatal automobile crash to attain the pinnacle of golf, should pale at the sight of a 5-foot putt.

would never walk again. But he shaped like a funnel. All you'd have to do would be to hit the green. The ball would dribble into the hole."

They said.

Yet he does—and unashamedly he admits it. "I've never been a good putter—never in my whole career," Ben said today in assessing the demise of his once all-conquering golf game. "People have said I was a good putter because I won tournaments, but I've always been just average on the greens—sometimes worse."

Hogan showed them. He won not one more National Open championship, but three more. He won the British Open, and two Masters.

But the lowly putt—which weekend dubs and little old ladies face up to without a quiver—sometimes makes his blood run cold. "If I had my way," Hogan once said, "I would have all the greens

Hogan's putting miseries rose up to haunt him again Thursday in the first round of the 28th Masters Tournament. Still the game's greatest golfer, perhaps, from tee to green, Hogan skied to a score of 78 because of his jittery, unsure putting.

On one hole, he took four shots from the edge of the green. He three-putted three others.

Ambassador To Russia Prepares For His Return

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, whose return to Moscow in a few days will put him in a position to conduct new talks on Berlin, confers today with President Kennedy.

The White House meeting was on the schedule for midmorning. Thompson plans to leave here Sunday and spend a day and a half in New York on personal business before flying back to the Soviet capital by the middle of next week.

Kennedy was expected to emphasize to Thompson, who may then have opportunity to present the view to Premier Khrushchev, that the United States is deeply interested in finding a solution to the Berlin problem that respects basic Western interests.

The heart of the matter as the Kennedy administration leaders see it is that the Soviet government must accept the presence of the Western powers in West Berlin and their rights of unhindered access to the city. If Russia is willing to do business on that basis, some officials feel that a settlement could be worked out.

Thompson came to Washington early last week with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other officials who had attended the opening of the Geneva disarmament conference in March. Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko used the occasion for a series of meetings in Geneva on the East-West dispute over Berlin.

Their only known agreement was that the U.S.-Soviet talks, probing the possibility of a Berlin agreement, should be continued.

The talks actually began last September when Rusk and Gromyko met at the United Nations. They were continued during the winter in discussions held by Thompson and Gromyko in Moscow.

U.S. officials said that the many long hours invested in the U.S.-Soviet meetings have so far failed to produce any change whatever in the Soviet position or any indication of Soviet willingness to make concessions.

Khrushchev still is threatening to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany in line with his claim that such a move would give the German Communist regime authority over the Berlin supply line. The implication is that Khrushchev believes the maneuver would force the Western powers to recognize the East German Communist government.

However, Khrushchev has been threatening an East German peace treaty since 1958. Possibly the most important element in his present position is his failure to set a deadline. Gromyko is understood to have made clear to Rusk at Geneva that there is in fact no deadline although Russia will not wait indefinitely.

Another potentially hopeful element in the situation is that the Soviets have recently refrained from incidents in the Berlin air corridor that could endanger the safety of Allied planes flying between West Berlin and West Germany. State Department officials say this easing of the corridor tension is not the result of any deal whatever between Rusk and Gromyko.

Arrest, Worries Brought Death

LOS ANGELES AP) — Harry Kravitz, caught in a small-stakes card game at a lodge hall, kept asking police:

"Does this mean I will have a police record? I have never been arrested in my life."

Two vice officers said they walked in on two card games at the hall Thursday, confiscated one pot of $10.95 and one of $2.25, and arrested 14 men on suspicion of gambling.

Police said Kravitz, 67, had been under a doctor's care for a heart condition and seemed very nervous as he posted a $21 bond at Central Jail.

This modified 1924 coupé is the car that a Shell research team drove to a Mileage Marathon record. They used the same Shell fuel that could be bought at Shell stations.

Shell's Dave Berry and Fred Schuette reveal how they set what must be a world mileage record—and how you can get more miles per gallon. Not by using their admittedly outlandish techniques. But by a quiet marriage of careful driving and Super Shell gasoline.

SOME years ago, a friendly argument developed at a gathering of Shell scientists. The gist of it: who could get the most miles from a gallon of gasoline.

They decided to find out. And Shell's Mileage Marathon was born.

Like all the contestants in the Marathon, Dave Berry and Fred Schuette did it as a test of ingenuity—not as a publicity stunt. They used their own car. Their own time. Their own money.

The things they did are positively not recommended for informal marathons on public roads. But they do offer some clues as to what can make a little gasoline go a long way.

Record-breaking car cost $35

Berry and Schuette's car was a highly modified 1924 coupé. It was rescued from a junkyard for $35. Here are the few, but rigid, Marathon requirements it had to meet:

- It had to have four rubber-tired wheels.
- It had to weigh at least 2000 pounds.
- It had to have at least 100 cubic inches piston displacement.
- It had to use the same gasoline you could buy at a Shell station. No doctoring allowed.

To cut friction, tires were inflated to 50 pounds pressure. The champs got a mileage bonus from the big, wooden-spoked wheels they used. Each revolution moved them forward 9½ feet.

NOTE: they used a standard carburetor from an old one-cylinder engine.

Since they used an "engine-on, engine-off" driving technique, Berry and Schuette had to keep the car properly warmed up. They muffled the radiator to retain heat—and removed the cooling fan to conserve energy.

Liberties you would never take

The winners took a few liberties with the lubricants used. A very light oil was used in the engine crankcase, transmission and differential units.

Wheel bearings were oiled instead of greased and the grease seals were thrown away.

NOTE: No Shell dealer would ever approve of such liberties being taken with your car. His expert advice on all lube problems—and his fine Shell lubricants—can help your car perform properly.

Berry and Schuette set their record in two trips around a 11.94-mile course.

They accelerated to 20 miles an hour, cut the ignition and rolled. When speed dropped to 5 miles an hour, they restarted the engine and repeated the cycle.

The point: more knowledge for Shell

Since "on-and-off" driving is illegal on public roads, and since Marathon modifications are dangerous for normal use, you may wonder if the Marathon has any point. It does.

It helps Shell scientists learn a bit more about the care and feeding of cars.

This knowledge is passed on to you in the form of better and better petroleum products.

EXAMPLE: Today's Super Shell. One of its 9 ingredients is Platformate, a special mileage booster. This ingredient alone can release 8 percent more energy per gallon than the finest 100-octane aviation gasoline.

The lesson is obvious. To get extra mileage, put extra energy into your fuel tank by using Super Shell. (For a complete rundown on Super Shell's 9 ingredients for top performance, see box at right.)

To help boost mileage even more, follow these driving tips from Berry and Schuette.

Seven tips that can save gasoline

1. Don't race your engine when standing still. It's a needless waste of gasoline.
2. Avoid jackrabbit starts. Fast getaways cause your engine to turn at a higher speed and use more power than necessary. Result: wasted gasoline. If you have an automatic transmission, a full throttle start keeps you in the low gear range too long. This wastes fuel too.
3. Drive at moderate speeds. Shell scientists have shown, in actual road tests, that cars use 25 percent more gasoline at 65 mph than 45 mph.
4. Keep tires up to their proper pressure. Soft tires soak up power like a blotter soaks up ink.
5. Pace yourself to traffic. Don't be the fastest or the slowest. It traps you into wasteful spurts and slowdowns.
6. Drive as smoothly as possible. Needless acceleration and braking uses fuel inefficiently. A steady foot on the throttle will result in more miles per gallon.
7. Ask your Shell dealer about these checks. Spark timing should be set correctly. Fuel filters and air cleaner should be cleaned regularly. Brakes should be properly adjusted. And your cooling system thermostat must be in working order to maintain proper engine temperature.

Motorists who follow these rules, and use Super Shell, can expect good mileage. Chances are, you can improve your mileage. Now that you know how, why not give it a try?

Super Shell has 9 ingredients for mileage, power, quiet running —top performance.

- #1 is Platformate for extra mileage.
- #2 is TCP*—for power, mileage, longer plug life.
- #3 is Pentane mix—for fast warm-ups.
- #4 is anti-knock mix—for knock resistance.
- #5 is Alkylate to help control "high-speed knock."
- #6 is Butane—for quick starts.
- #7 is "cat-cracked" gasoline—for power.
- #8 is an "anti-icer" added in cold weather.
- #9 is gum preventive—to help keep carburetors clean inside.

*Trademark for Shell's unique gasoline additive. Gasoline containing TCP is covered by U.S. Patent 289212.

JFK Transportation Help Likely To Hit Slow Detour

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's plans to streamline transportation on land, sea and air are likely to run into a slow detour.

The big roadblock is time. The proposals, submitted Thursday in a 10,000-word message to Congress, contained far-reaching suggestions requiring preliminary action by five House committees before they can come to a vote in the House.

Rep. Oren Harris, D-Ark., chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, said there was a possibility his committee may act this year on the proposal dealing with rate reductions.

"But by no stretch of the imagination could you get it all this year," he added.

In general, Harris said, he thought the President's plan was "a forthright, bold approach to the problems that are recognized to exist."

Rep. John B. Bennett of Michigan, top Republican on H.R. committee, said he saw no prospect for action of any kind this year.

Democratic leaders were considering incorporating at least some of these into a bill extending Korean wartime excise taxes, which lacking congressional action would expire on July 1.

The Ways and Means Committee's timetable called for quick action on this bill next month, so the House may consider it early in June.

Kennedy's recommendation for 1 of the 10 per cent tax on surface transportation tickets, and reducing the rate to 5 per cent on airline tickets, was expected to be well received. There was considerable pressure for similar reductions when the Korean taxes were extended last year.

Air lines, however, will probably raise a cry of discrimination if they are faced with a continuing 5 per cent tax and also with extension of the gasoline tax to jet fuels, now tax-free.

Kennedy in his message said such taxes were really user charges and would raise only half the revenue needed to cover the annual cost of the federal airways system.

Ray King, chairman of the Meekeburg Democratic party, said, "We're expecting 1,000 people at our rally."

Gov. Terry Sanford will introduce Freeman. Several other state officials will attend.

Freeman, 43, served three terms as governor of Minnesota before moving into President Kennedy's cabinet. He spoke in Asheville last September in connection with the 50th anniversary of national forests.

Freeman's wife, the former Jane C. Shields, is a native of Winston-Salem.

changes, as they affect air lines, be made effective Jan. 1.

His recommendation for extending the period transportation companies and other public utilities could carry forward losses to charge them against profitable years is new legislation. But Ways and Means Committee sources said such a provision could be attached to the Korean tax extension bill if necessary.

But, he pointed out, Congress hopes to adjourn late in July or early August and it has many other major matters to consider.

Kennedy's transportation tax proposals could be the first facet of his complex program to be acted on in the House.

Snowslides Kill 3 Workmen On Tunnel Project

COURMAYEUR, Italy (AP)—Snow slides killed at least three workmen on the Mt. Blanc tunnel project early today as miners on another Alpine tunnel 12 miles away celebrated their conquest of nature.

The avalanche rolled down the side of Mt. Blanc near Courmayeur and buried several workers' bunkhouses as the men inside slept.

Rescuers found three bodies and pulled three injured workers out of the snow.

It was not known immediately if other workmen were buried, and a search continued.

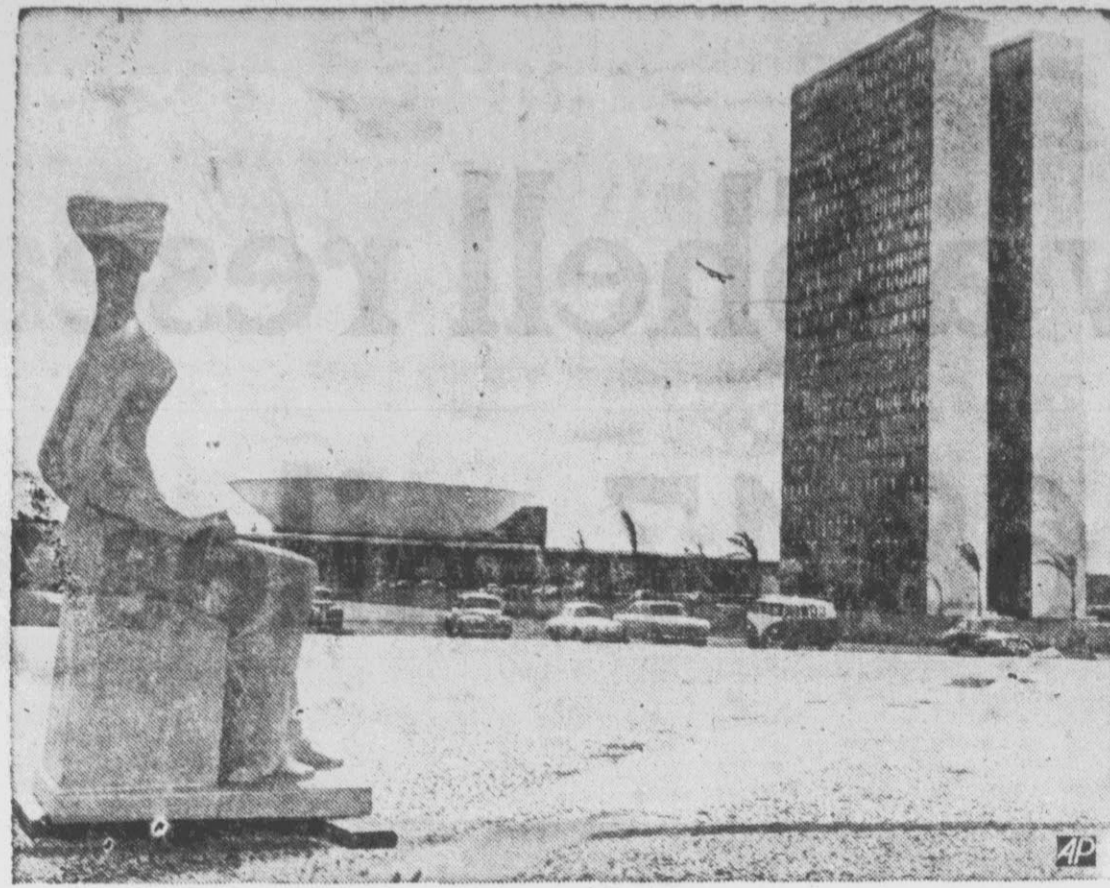

Less than a mile of digging remains on the 7.2-mile Mt. Blanc tunnel, which will link Courmayeur and Chamonix, France. It is expected to be open to motor traffic late next year.

Hours before the slides on Mt. Blanc, Italian and Swiss workers—safely below ground as a blizzard raged above—blasted away the last rock barrier of the new 3.7-mile highway tunnel connecting Saint Rhemy, Italy, with Bourc St. Pierre, Switzerland.

Millions of European television viewers watched as Marcello Pirotton, Italian foreman, pushed a button. Half a ton of dynamite blasted the thin remaining rock wall, and the way was open to the Italian side.

When the dust had settled, the Italians and Swiss met at the opening. The Italians broke out bottles of chianti and all began celebrating the last major step toward completing the first highway tunnel through the Alps.

The $28-million tunnel runs under 3,000-foot Grand St. Bernard Pass, part of the Mt. Blanc chain. It will be ready for traffic next year and give motorists an easy route through the Alps in winter, when the Alpine passes are snowbound.

Students Paying For African's Education

By MARVIN MILLER
Of The Lancaster New Era

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—Tom Dugba, 23, is a first year student at Millersville State College whose tuition and living expenses are being paid by junior high school pupils of suburban Manheim Township.

It comes to $1,200 a year. In return all they are asking of Dugba is that he share the culture of his homeland, Sierra Leone in Africa, with the classes of the junior high school.

Dugba does this by speaking to various classes about native customs and ways of life.

"I really don't understand why these children do this for me, but I am very grateful," Dugba says.

His presence in America is not related to the foreign exchange student program. It is free enterprise from the start, the idea coming from the junior high school pupils as a school-wide project. His name was obtained from the African-American Institute, which recommended him to the children.

It has turned into quite a project. Pupils being pupils didn't realize how much money $1,200 can be. They have set about raising it by sponsoring dances and selling items. Their latest enterprise venture is a student-formed company to sell finger rings.

The rings will be made in the school metal shop. Their sale price will be from between $1 to $1.50. Committees have been formed for distribution of the rings, which can be ordered complete with the engraved initials of the purchaser.

Formato silethnickel silver ring came about because the "Tom Dugba Fund" is running out of money. The children are committed to completion of his education, another three years at nearby Millersville.

Money to set up the student corporation came from the student council, which advanced a $50 loan to buy supplies and begin mass production of the rings. Dugba is studying industrial arts at Millersville because he feels it is in this line of endeavor that he can be of the most benefit to his native country when he returns as an instructor.

Draw Suspended Sentence For Fraud By Mail

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Alfred F. Malluck and his son, Alfred L. Malluck, were free today on a definite suspended sentence for using the mails to defraud coin collectors of some $13,000.

Federal Judge Wilson Warlick convicted the pair Thursday and suspended judgment on the elder Malluck on condition he pay the court $5,000 by Oct. 1. The money would be used to repay persons who claimed they sent the Mallucks money for coins, but received no merchandise.

Judge Warlick said if Malluck pays the $5,000 by Oct. 1, he will be given another six months to pay other claims. District Attorney William Medford produced witnesses from 15 states who said they had been bilked.

The pair operated Lennard Coins of Charlotte, Lazenby Coins of Statesville, Piedmont Coin and Supply Co. and Tryon Supply Outlet, the latter two with headquarters here.

The President proposed the tax bound.

Glenn Says Tube-Fed Food System Not Necessary In Future Flights

By FRANK CAREY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. came out strong today for ham sandwiches for future orbiting spacemen.

He said his own experience indicated there's no need of restricted foods like applesauce.

Glenn made his sandwich suggestions as the National Aeronautics and Space Administration presented detailed reports on his triple orbit of the earth to an international gathering of more than 1,000 scientists. A few from Communist-bloc countries attended.

The space agency said examination of the records of the Marine lieutenant colonel's flight showed that it was "an unqualified success, a major milestone in the program for the manned exploration of space."

This was the first detailed scientific report on the mission, the man, and his capsule. But, except for details and amplification, it presented little that had not previously been disclosed by the space agency—and nothing new of a major nature.

If anyone had doubts about Glenn's health they now have the word of the space agency's top medical people that:

Before, during and after his orbital jaunt, everything was normal, including his heart—at least so far as all available tests could show.

The only detectable injury he suffered was a couple of skinned knuckles when he "blew" the escape hatch of his space capsule on the deck of the destroyer Noa that had retrieved the spacecraft from the sea.

Glenn himself reported that "probably the most solid jolt of the whole trip" was when his capsule swung against the starboard side of the Noa when it was being hoisted aboard by a lifboat rigging.

Glenn lost five ounces during flight and in the four hours after landing. But his doctors reported that this was only slightly more than he lost in a simulated three-orbit flight on a whirling test device called a centrifuge.

Physicians attributed much of the weight loss to a temporary "mild dehydration" Glenn experienced as a result of being overheated during his re-entry and while waiting to be picked up.

Glenn reiterated that the weightlessness of orbital flight was a "pleasant" experience—and he related that he even tried to see if he could bring on any adverse effects from the weightless state by moving his head through various motions.

His doctors said that even under this voluntary stress, Glenn showed no signs of nausea, dizziness, impairment of equilibrium, or other evidence of physical disorientation.

The closest Glenn came to feeling disoriented was when his slow-down rockets fired as he headed over the West Coast enroute to his impact at sea. He said this firing "produced the sensation that I was accelerating back toward Hawaii"—but he recognized it as only an illusion.

His highest pulse rate—134 beats a minute—was experienced when the first of his two parachutes opened. But the doctors said that Glenn's quickened pulse rates at various times were all "within acceptable physiological limits."

Dr. William K. Douglas, until recently the chief flight surgeon for all the astronauts, summed up the whole medical picture by reporting:

"The preflight and postflight medical evaluations have revealed no adverse effect of 4½ hours of space flight per se."

Douglas did say it's possible that Glenn's flight was too short to produce detectable effects "or such effects have not yet become evident." But he also said it's also possible that "space flight has, indeed, no ill effect."

Here are some other observations from Glenn himself about the flight in general:

—He had no difficulty in eating applesauce sucked from a tube

No Indications Syria And Egypt To Renew Marriage

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
CAIRO (AP) — Whatever the outcome of the upheaval in Syria, there is no sign of a revival of the previous Syrian-Egyptian marriage.

Sources in a position to know said today that President Gamal Abdel Nasser flatly opposes any tight merger such as the one that ended in bitterness and mutual distrust last September.

While the Egyptian president evidently would like to see Egypt and Syria back in the same political family, he is working now for some looser relationship in which each nation will retain its identity.

That also seems to be the idea

Michigan's Upper Half Is Seeking Legal Gambling

ST. IGNACE, Mich (AP) — Away back in 1837 Michigan acquired the Upper Peninsula as a sort of consolation prize for losing some land on the south to Ohio.

Now some residents of the area that Michigan acquired with statehood say it will secede from Michigan if it doesn't get legalized gambling.

The area is economically distressed, and some residents have said quite loudly that they would like their state financed by legalized gambling.

But lawmakers from both sides of the Straits of Mackinac—the dividing line between the two peninsulas — label most secession talk as a joke and a publicity stunt.

Michigan's Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, says it can't be done. But a group of Upper Peninsula businessmen who began the movement to achieve independence for of the military group currently in power in Damascus. Damascus Radio announced Thursday the formation of a new ruling military command and said it already was working toward unity with "other liberated" Arab powers.

But the official statement said this unity must be on "a sound and genuine foundation and with conditions designed to insure Syria's dignity and avoid errors of the past."

Official and unofficial quarters in Cairo are still not sure where Syria is going. Air Force Gen. Mowafak Assassa is viewed as the emerging strongman, and he is already being criticized in the government-controlled Cairo press.

Although there still is a tendency to wait and see which way he will jump, there already are hints he is leading a "sinister conspiracy" to sabotage the agreement this week that ended the revolt in Aleppo of officers demanding reunion with Nasser's United Arab Republic. Syria's military government promised to hold a plebiscite on the question of future ties with the U.A.R.

Although opposed to union with Syria, Nasser definitely wants a plebiscite held to demonstrate just how much strength he retains in Syria. Until such a vote, he is reported unwilling to discuss political ties. He also wants the plebiscite delayed until the atmosphere calms down so the Syrians can genuinely express themselves.

Behind this is the determination not to get burned a second time. Cairo circles view the recent events in Syria as promise of eventual success for Nasser, and he consequently is unwilling to jeopardize his changes through hasty action.

While unwilling to discuss political ties with the Syrians, Nasser will insist on being consulted on the wording of any plebiscite motion.

"It's like a marriage contract," said one source. "We must be consulted if anyone expects us eventually to sign the document. We do not wish the wording doctored in such a way that we would have no choice but unpleasant alternatives."

Cohen Case In Hands Of Jury

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The murder and conspiracy case against ex-gambling operator Mickey Cohen and four others was in the hands of a Superior Court jury today.

The case went to the panel of 11 women and 1 man Thursday but there was time for only two hours of deliberation before the jurors were locked up for the night.

Cohen and the others — Sam Frank LoCigno, Joseph De Carlo, George Perry and Roger Leonard — are accused of conspiring to kill Jack (The Enforcer) Whalen and of carrying out the conspiracy Dec. 2, 1959.

That was when Whalen, a strong-arm gambling debt collector, was shot to death at a restaurant in suburban Sherman Oaks.

LoCigno admits shooting Whalen but maintains he did it in self defense.

City Unable . . .

Young said he had been accused of selling the disputed literature to individuals under 18 and he described this as a falsehood. He noted he has signs prohibiting those under 18 from reading the books. His newsstand is arranged so the books the PTA objects to are in the back.

"If I were pushing them I would put them in front," he said.

"If these books have gotten around town, either they were given to those boys or they were swiped," he declared.

"I feel I have done the best I can to operate my business," he continued. "If anybody here thinks they could operate it differently I'm perfectly willing to hear their suggestions."

Young at one point held up a book which he said, "I wouldn't advise you to read."

Yet it was "passed and censored by the U. S. Supreme Court." He held up a book of art which he said was published by a museum of art. "If you want nude pictures you can go to the library to get them."

Mrs. W. F. Young told the council, "My husband has more of the milk of human kindness in his heart than the man who wrote that article, referring to a letter to the editor which ran in the Daily Reflector this week. She drew applause.

Reginald Spell, junior at ECC, told the audience, "You parents have shirked your responsibility." Spell said, "College students should be exposed to all types of literature. Let him decide what he should read."

He suggested that the PTA check the outside reading lists at the college.

The council meeting was playing to a standing room only audience last night in the courtroom with a portion of the crowd present for the obscene literature discussion and a portion for a public housing protest.

Mrs. Amos Evans, speaking for the PTA City Council, said, "We're not here to smear any person. I have the letter written to the newspaper and we have not smeared anyone."

She stated that the PTA City Council had voted to undertake a campaign to "rid the city of this obscene literature." John Grier was named chairman and letters were sent to 18 local organizations who responded in favor of the campaign.

"Since there is a state law against this obscene literature and since we have done all we can do, we're here tonight to ask the City Council to take any steps it considers proper to rid the town of this literature."

"I have nothing against anyone. No one on our committee does. Our objective is to rid the city of this obscene literature."

Mrs. Evans drew applause at this point.

John Grier told the council, "We're not here to slander anyone. We're here to get this stuff off the newsstands. It's pure filth."

"We, the PTA group, are only coming before the council to ask that they take action necessary to try to correct this. We only request that they take what action they see fit to eliminate this stuff from the newsstands."

He read the names of local organizations which he said support the move. Included were various civic and fraternal groups.

Councilman Ralph Brimley asked if a survey had been made to determine how many children bring such magazines to school and how many are in the homes. Grier replied that he knew of no such survey.

Dr. Brimley pointed out he had spent 34 years in school teaching.

"In many places they handle the problem by an educational campaign at home and an educational campaign at school. If such literature is found in the schools it is taken up and thrown into the furnace. They conduct drives to eliminate it from the homes."

Dr. Brimley suggested that if the literature comes under federal, state and local codes, "all you have to do is buy it, get a warrant and let the courts decide."

"You all haven't presented a concrete situation," he told the PTA representatives. "I, for one, am not smart enough to decide where they fit in."

He added, however, "I will say if I had young children I would not want my children to see it."

At one time the group supporting the PTA was asked to stand and approximately 50 in the audience did so.

Councilman James Lee told Grier, "John, you're asking us to do something without taking it to court. We can't do that. The council can't rule as to what is obscene."

Chief of Police Guy Langston told the council, "It is impossible for the police department to say what is obscene and what is not obscene."

"We have in one or two instances taken one or two magazines off the newsstands." He recalled that the operators had been cooperative in such cases. Mayor Charles King said, "I'm not here to criticize anybody's morals. Everybody knows mine are low enough. I told these people it's mighty hard to enforce a law like this but they still wanted to bring it up to the council."

"This is something all citizens can do but as far as ruling on pictures or literature . . . we couldn't go down there and close up Mr. Young. The court would really have to do it."

Attorney J. W. H. Roberts suggested a three-man committee with the chief of police, a PTA representative and a newsstand representative decide what items should be eliminated.

Young said he was not agreeable to this and Chief Langston indicated he would not want to serve on such a committee.

Burton Termed 'Decoy' In Story

ROME (AP) — A Rome newspaper has rearranged the casting in the Eddie Fisher-Elizabeth Taylor bust up.

Actor Richard Burton, Miss Taylor's co-star in the movie "Cleopatra," and her constant companion of late, is just a "useful idiot" — a decoy — in the affair, the newspaper, Telera said.

Liz is really in love with her director, Joseph Mankiewicz, and he is "crazy about" her, the paper claimed.

Not so, said Mankiewicz, an old hand at recasting. The director, 52, stuck his tongue in his cheek and commented, "The real truth is that I am in love with Burton and Miss Taylor is the cover-up for us."

Morse Protests Party In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cherry blossom party was thrown in a nook of the Senate and Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., says it flowered into "a drinking bout."

He wants the Senate to put its foot down.

The American people, he said Thursday night, have a right to resent a policy that, in effect, turns the Senate into a saloon.

Three cases of hard liquor were carted into a room provided at a senator's request for the party Wednesday night on occasion of Washington's cherry blossom festival, Morse said.

The drinking that took place was of such a nature it has caused considerable comment and also embarrassment to him, Morse said. He mentioned no names.

Morse Protests Party In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cherry blossom party was thrown in a nook of the Senate and Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., says it flowered into "a drinking bout."
