

Area Tobacco Spokesmen To Discuss Untied Leaf Experiment

Market Representatives To Meet With Horace Godfrey On Monday

Greenville tobacco warehousemen and other market representatives in the Eastern Belt have scheduled an appointment Monday with Horace D. Godfrey, Commodity Stabilization Service administrator, to discuss the proposed experiment of price supports for untied tobacco.

W. Arthur Tripp, president of the Greenville Warehousemen's Association, said he and representatives from Goldsboro, Washington, Wallace and Kinston, would ask Godfrey for help in their request that, if the five-day experiment is to be tried, it be done uniformly and applied to each belt according to normal auction seasons.

Tripp said local warehousemen requested the Monday appointment as a follow-up to last Monday's endorsement of an East Carolina Warehousemen's Association statement asking that the proposed five-day experiment be tried in all belts, not just the South Carolina-Border Belt.

In the Federal Register, March 31, assistant Secretary of Agriculture Charles S. Murphy signed a notice that proposed "to make price support available on lugs, including primings and non-descript grades . . . of flue-cured tobacco marketed in untied form in the South Carolina-Border Belt."

The East Carolina Association answered Murphy's request for response with a statement asking that, if the experiment were to be tried on the South Carolina-Border Belt, it also be tried on all belts.

Tripp said the Greenville Warehousemen agreed with East Carolina Association's request which said in part: "If an experiment is to be made by giving to farmers north of the Georgia-Florida Belt the opportunity to sell and have their tobacco untied, then that opportunity should not be unreasonably discriminatory between belts.

"To confine the experiment to the South Carolina-Border Belt is to discriminate unfairly between that belt, Eastern Carolina Belt, Middle Belt, Middle lina Belt, Middle Belt and Old Belt. Such unfair discrimination would require farmers living in the Eastern Carolina-Border Belt (or to the eGeorgia-Florida Belt, a much longer distance), if they wish to take advantage of the opportunity to sell untied (tobacco)."

The East Carolina Association added its "urgent request that if the experiment is to be tried uniformly and without discrimination in all belts as well as the South Carolina-Border Belt."

Tripp cited the section of the statement that raised eyebrows among Greenville Warehousemen and prompted the request for Monday's appointment with Godfrey in Washington: ". . . That is, the undersigned request and urge that, if the experiment is to be tried at the same time and for the same number of days in the same manner in the East Carolina Belt, the Middle Belt and the Old Belt as well as the South Carolina-Border Belt."

Tripp said the inclusion of the phrase "at the same time" rendered the request ineffective since it would be impractical for all belts to open markets at the same time. The Eastern Belt normally begins sales in late August after the South Carolina-Border Belt has begun about the last of July. In contrast, the Old Belt opens its season normally during the second week of September.

Untied tobacco has been supported on the Georgia-Florida Belt since 1949 since that method of marketing tobacco was practiced by farmers in that area at that time

Break In Steel Industry Ranks; Inland Steel Not Going Along

Cochran Reports Project Outlays

A total of $51,178 in advances has been received from the federal government so far for redevelopment work and of this amount $44,710 has been spent through March 31. Executive Director W. I. Cochran told the commission at its regular monthly meeting that $28,308.48 or 63 percent of the expenditures have been local. The commission adopted as a part of its minutes a balance sheet as of March 31. Under assets the balance sheet listed $6,848.24 in the bank. Project cost to date was listed as $46,328.71 giving total assets of $53,176.95. Under liabilities and capital held, $261.60; N.C. income tax withheld, $47.72; pension fund deducted $11.72 for a total of $381.04. Advances payable to HFFA lists $51,178 and accrued interest on the loan is $1,617.91 for a total of $52,795.91. This added to the $381.04 totals $53,176.95. The balance sheet was made a part of the commission's minutes. Cochran told the commission that he was checking with the state attorney general to determine if the Redevelopment Commission needed a certificate of public convenience and necessity prior to exercising the right of eminent domain. The commission adopted a resolution allowing the commission to make application to the State Utilities Commission if it is determined the certificate is needed. The Women's Club will be told they must ask the City Council to be included in the Shore Drive area. Cochran told the commission he had received inquiries from the Women's Club concerning inclusion of their building at Greene and Third Sts. Only the council can amend the project area boundaries. The boundary runs along Second St. at Greene. Commissioners also made plans to meet with the Greenville Utilities Commission to discuss plans for utilities improvements in the Shore Drive area. The utilities expenditures will count as a portion of the city's project cost share.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration got a major break in its opposition to the steel price increase today with an announcement that one major producer will not join the price parade. At almost the same minute it moved to shift its own business to companies which hold the line.

President Kennedy himself underscored the importance which the administration attaches to the break in the ranks of the steel-makers.

Told by newsmen at the White House that Inland Steel Co. of Chicago had announced it would not go along, Kennedy responded, "Good, good; very good."

That set the tone for comments from others high in administration councils, who already had been summoned to a high-level conference—the second in two days—on steps to take against the price move which Kennedy has called irresponsible.

Almost simultaneously Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara was announcing at a Pentagon news conference that the armed services have ordered defense contractors and their suppliers to shift steel buying to those companies which have not raised prices. The Pentagon is also hunting for substitutes for steel.

Whether the new White House session on steel strategy was immediately related to the word from Inland was not disclosed.

But such a break in the ranks is something for which the administration has been angling ever since U.S. Steel, the giant of the industry, started the move late Tuesday with announcement of a boost of $6 a ton.

Most of the big steelmakers had gone along by the time of the news conference Wednesday at which Kennedy denounced the action. But the President made it clear he hoped there would be holdouts and that the increase would not stick.

And at a news conference in New York Thursday at which he defended his company's action as a necessary move in the country's interest, U.S. Steel's Chairman Roger M. Blough conceded "I don't know how long we can maintain our position." If Inland and Armco Steel, neither of which had taken a position at the time, did not join in.

"It would make it very difficult for us," Blough said under questioning.

Armco, another of the Big Ten of the industry, still had not taken a stand today.

McNamara, in a brief statement at a news conference today, said that if the steel price increase fans out across the economy the impact on defense costs could come to a billion dollars a year. Administration officials disputed or shrugged off the 55-minute defense of the price rise made by U.S. Steel's chairman, Roger M. Blough, in a televised news conference Thursday in New York. There was no comment from President Kennedy.

Blough said the increases were necessary "to the welfare, the strength and the vitality of the nation." They would, he said, partially correct a profit squeeze that handicaps American steel in meeting stiffening world competition.

Blough said he was surprised at the angry reaction of Kennedy on Wednesday, since no assurances were asked by the White House and none were given that prices would not be raised after last week's steel labor settlement.

Kennedy, who gave his blessings to the union contract agreement and called it non-inflationary, blasted the price hike as an unjustifiable and irresponsible profit grab at the expense of the national interest.

Ever since, the scurrying of Justice Department agents and lawyers has been conspicuous. Thursday night it began to make a pattern, as Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy gave out a few crumbs of information.

First, he announced he had ordered a grand jury investigation in New York of the firecracker chain of virtually identical price increases set off by U.S. Steel.

That was all the attorney general told, and he told it because Blough under news conference questioning, had disclosed that price records of U.S. Steel had been subpoenaed Thursday morning. Blough said he was not subpoenaed personally.

Later the Bethlehem, Jones & Laughlin and Armco Steel corporations confirmed they had received subpoenas, and that the president of still another company, not identified, has been subpoenaed to appear a week from today.

Next, newsmen learned that the attorney general had discussed—with a group of visiting foreign college professors—the possibility of forcing U.S. Steel to divest some segments of its vast empire of ore fields, blast furnaces, mills and fabricating plants.

Witnesses said Kennedy told the professors the department was checking two questions, one being whether the steel companies got together and raised prices. He was quoted as saying, "If they did that, they would be in violation of the law and they would be subject to criminal penalties."

Really Clean That Ceramic Tile Floor

Add a little ammonia to the soap or detergent suds, and your ceramic tile floor will come out gleaming white. Regular washing several times a week will prevent most stubborn spots, but a stiff scrubbing brush may be used if needed.

Let the tile dry thoroughly—preferably with window open—before replacing the rug, hamper, scale, or other furnishings usually found in a bathroom.

Chase Germs With Suds, Sun, Fresh Air

The elaborate measures of old-fashioned fumigation are no longer required after an illness in the family, nor is a disinfectant really needed. Medical authorities advise relying on plenty of hot suds, sunshine, and fresh air to eliminate germs from places exposed to infection disease.

Gardening Today News And Notes From Grifton

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Gardening is getting in full swing. There are many things that the gardener can be doing now. The following will help in doing some of the chores:

Divide Mums
You should divide your chrysanthemums every spring. The best plants come from the young shoots taken the outer perimeter of the clump. Separate carefully in order to get all the roots you can. Do not use the thick center. When plants reach up to six inches pinch off top three inches. This will make new shoots develop from buds lower on stem. When these new stems reach 3 or 4 inches, they should be pinched also. Plants should be pinched back at least four times during spring and summer. Stop pinching back about the middle of July.

Azaleas
Check on azaleas for signs of winter damage. Split bark separating from stem is sign of winter damage. Cut back to good live stems. Cut out all diseased and overcrowded wood at this time.

Grass
Grass growing under the shade of trees don't need to be cut as much as on sunny areas. Grass in the shady place is tenderer, so be sure mower is sharp. Dull blades will pull up grass.

New Plantings
Do not plant shrubs too close to building. If you have overhanging that keeps out rain, you should plant out where water will fall on plants. In most cases plants should be centered about 4 or 5 feet from building. The back of plant should be at least 2 or 3 feet from building.

Yellow Leaves on Azaleas
This can mean several things: lack of iron, bad drainage, plant too deep, or nematodes or too much fertilizer. In most cases, it is the result of bad planting. Before you go in for any extensive treatment of soil, lift and replant the azaleas. However, if the condition is prevalent throughout the bed, a soil test can give the answer.

Root Better in Alkaline Soil

Recent tests at Illinois Agricultural Experiment have shown that cuttings from evergreen trees and shrubs root better in an alkaline soil. It also has been shown that cuttings exposed to daylight for only 8 hours did better than those exposed longer. A pH of 7 produced the best results. It seems that the best combination is a pH 7 and 8 hours exposure to daylight.

Spraying
For best spraying results, cover all parts of the plant. Spray from top down, then spray from bottom up and all way around the plant. You should stop spraying when material starts to run off. Half way spraying gives only half way control—or no control at all. A bug missed is trouble left over for another day.

Pool Water
If you have a swimming pool do not use water for lawn or plants. The chlorinating chemicals used in pools will stunt plant growth. Provide for drainage when the water will not hurt your lawn or growing things.

Creeping Mint
Try some between flagstones on your walk. It stands heavy traffic and if you even brush the mint, the fragrance is delightful. It grows slowly, but once established it spreads and stays.

Hints
Pass along garden hints to other gardeners in the area through this column. That is what it is written for.

Belvoir H.D. Has Meeting

Mrs. Peter Brown was hostess to the Belvoir Home Demonstration Club Tuesday afternoon at her home on the Belvoir road.

The meeting was opened with group singing, accompanied by Mrs. E. R. Lewis at the piano. Mrs. Clarence Barnhill gave an inspirational talk on the meaning of Easter and the Cross. Fourteen members answered roll call with the addition of one new member, Mrs. E. C. Lewis.

She stressed consideration of several things that influence furniture placement, such as convenience to the family, ease of cleaning, use of good traffic lanes, as well as being attractive to look at.

At the end of the talk the club members took turns making different arrangements using a small model room and miniature furniture. The health and safety leader, Mrs. D. M. Hollowell, urged the women to take advantage of the Jaycee sale of auto seat belts. She also asked each member to see that her whole family takes tetanus shots.

Mrs. E. R. Lewis announced a summer music workshop will be held at Woman's College in Greensboro. Mrs. McAlvin Turner led the group in a game. After adjournment light refreshments were served by the hostess and her sister, Mrs. Wiley Clark.

Mrs. Milton Hart received the high score prize and Mrs. Edward Hart, second high. The guest prize went to Mrs. Wilbur Murphy. Others playing were: Mesdames G. L. Tucker, S. M. Nelson, Roger Johnson, Julius Chaucey, Ben G. Tucker, John Glenn, Walter Murphy, Joe Goolsby and Inez Sumrell.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spurrier of Mount Airy, Md., spent the weekend here with their daughter, Mrs. W. E. Rasberry and Dr. Rasberry at their home in Forest Acres. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Mollie Molesworthy, who has been a guest in the Rasberry home for sometime.

Book Club Meets At Art Center

Mrs. Ed Harris was hostess at the Greenville Art Center to the Semi Cent Book Club, Tuesday. She introduced her guests: Mrs. Milton Howard, Mrs. George Respass and Mrs. Troy Dodson.

The business meeting was presided over by the President, Mrs. Charles Hudson. Mrs. Frank Dall was elected secretary for the coming year. Mrs. Hudson reported on the newly formed Book Club Council. The club voted to send donations to the Art Center and Greenville Summer Kindergarten.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Bernard Jackson, Director of the Art Center, who stated that the Center was "a prized possession in the community." She told of the formation of the East Carolina Arts Society and the history of the center itself. It is supported by membership dues and gifts and in 1961 the City of Greenville gave $4,000. She invited the group to tour the building.

The refreshment table in the back hall was decorated with the Easter motif. Spiced punch and party accompaniments were served.

So Nice To Come Home To!

Great Britain's Prime Minister, Harold Macmillan, recently remarked after a long plane flight: "You get off a plane after 14 hours wanting only a shave and a bath." And when Mrs. Alford Wolf of Pennsylvania landed from a 40-hour balloon flight that set a women's endurance record, what she wanted most was a hot bath.

It Hurts, But The Truth May Help

C & D Director "Skipper" Bowles handed this six-county area of Eastern Carolina some bitter pills to swallow Wednesday night in addressing a meeting of the newly formed Coastal Plain Planning and Development Commission.

But as with the pills doctors hand out, it's not how the pills taste, but the good they do that really counts.

Perhaps the words of Skipper Bowles will shock some of the communities into a new awareness of the situation to be faced.

Eastern Carolinians, for example, don't like to be told they are lagging behind the rest of the state in spite of the progress they have made in recent years.

The people of the six-county area will not particularly relish being reminded that they represent the most underdeveloped section of North Carolina, even if the statement is true.

It is not a very pleasant thing to be reminded that in the six-county area job opportunities have shown a slight decrease rather than an increase during the past decade; or that 33,000 non-white citizens and 14,000 white citizens left the area between 1950 and 1960 while the state as a whole showed a gain in population.

But for the six county area of the state, the people must either recognize these problems and overcome them, or pretend that these facts do not exist. To make the latter choice would be folly indeed.

Progress toward economic development has been made in recent years in the six counties of Pitt, Beaufort, Edgecombe, Martin, Nash and Wilson which make up the Coastal Plain Planning and Development Commission. The point is, however, that the overall progress in the six counties has not been sufficient to keep pace with the state as a whole or with the needs of the immediate area. More must be done and on a broader scale in the area in the future if the gap of progress between this and other areas of the state is to be closed. Considerably more must be done if the area is to realize its potential for development.

As what may be the most underdeveloped area of the state the six-county territory has a greater potential for development than any other section of the state. Even so it may take greater effort here for development programs moving at a good pace.

Collectively and individually the communities which make up this six-county area need to face up to the economic problems they have. It is not enough to cite a few development successes and assert that they are sufficient to meet the needs of the area. It is not enough to passively declare that the problems will solve themselves in time. They will not. But through sound planning and determined effort the communities individually and the area collectively can successfully meet and overcome the economic problems which now beset it.

Bowles' comments may not have been as flattering to the six-county area as some citizens would have liked; but they served to bring into sharp focus the fact that greater effort needs to be put forth if needed economic development is to be realized.

U.S. Is Bound To Get Unfavorable Reaction

The United States, in considering what is rapidly becoming a last-minute decision on whether or not to postpone its proposed nuclear tests in the Pacific, cannot overlook the probability that the tests will cause unfavorable reaction in a number of nations of the neutral bloc.

Pressure is mounting on the United States and Great Britain to forego further tests even though the Soviets do not agree to a policed moratorium. It will continue to grow until the deadline, and certainly the Soviet propagandists will seek to make the most of the situation if the U.S. begins its tests.

At the same time the United States and its Western Allies cannot ignore the need for such testing if superiority in nuclear weapons is not to be forfeited to the Soviet Union.

President Kennedy made it quite clear in announcing the tests some weeks ago that the West still has superiority. He also made it clear that further Soviet tests, in the absence of testing by the West, might shift the balance of superiority in this important field.

The West, therefore, has no alternative but to go through with its planned tests unless the Soviet Union agrees to a moratorium with adequate inspection to assure that neither side cheats on the agreement not to make further tests.

Clumsy Public Relations Job

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—Steel's bigwigs did a clumsy public relations job the way they announced boosts in steel prices.

It was their timing: Of all the days in the week they picked the worst ones for the announcements.

This might make no difference if American business didn't spend a lot of money trying to improve their image.

In this case they must have sent their public relations men home.

At his news conference Wednesday President Kennedy didn't credit them with concern for public relations at all. He said they showed "utter contempt for the interests of 185 million Americans."

What they did was choose the night before and the morning of Kennedy's conference to say steel prices were going up, a move bound to kick up living costs by setting off price boosts in other fields.

Kennedy never holds a news conference often than once a week. After Wednesday's, the next one at the earliest would have been next Wednesday.

Many of his conferences have been televised live. This means millions can watch him in action and other millions, on television reruns, can see him in their homes later.

Thus these televised meetings with the press give him a chance to get across to the maximum number of people, newspaper readers, television watchers, and millions of both.

By making their announcements Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, the steelmen gave Kennedy at his meeting with newsmen an almost immediate chance to denounce the price boost.

This is what he did in the public mood he has shown in an ancient becoming President. In the course of it he heaped scorn and ridicule on the steelmen as a bunch of greedy merchants.

The steelmen could never have had any doubt this is what Kennedy would do. He had worked hard to get a noninflationary contract settlement between the steel industry and the steel union.

The contract, coming only five days before the sudden and unexpected price boost, gave the steelworkers some benefits but no pay raise. Kennedy said it left him hopeful there would be no price increase.

If the steelman had waited until after the news conference, Kennedy would have had three choices in deciding how to respond to what they did.

He could have waited until next week's conference, before cutting loose as he did Wednesday; he could have issued statements, which would not be the same as being seen by millions.

He could have waited until the next week's conference, before cutting loose as he did Wednesday; he could have issued statements, which would not be the same as being seen by millions.

The Happy Minstrel Man

Greenville's Minstrel Man is in action again, and you can tell he's happy. I'm certain in my own mind that if Ell Bloom hadn't settled on law-yring and retailing he would have wound up in show business. For sure, he hasn't let himself get very far from that field; and his musical interests during University days were a prominent part of his life even then.

In years past he has produced and directed 18 minstrels, and has been regularly booking bands . . . you get the picture; he knows and enjoys the entertainment field.

But about his being in the minstrel business again . . . a small story is involved: Last year some fortunate guests were guests of their wives at a dinner-dance given by Greenville's Women of the Moose. As "something extra" for the boys, the ladies put on a minstrel of maybe forty minutes' duration. The cast, the entertainment, was all by WOTM . . . directed by Bloom, who happens to be one of their few honorary members.

There was singing, dancing and dialogue between Mr. Interlocutor and end men; and Marie Wallace put together a chorus line and devised a routine that made the select audience sit up and take notice. (The writer can say he has seen nothing like it since his last visit to the Golden Gate Theater in San Francisco too many years ago.)

It all ended much too soon, as good things often do; and in the partying that followed, enthused males were saying over and over again "Why don't you do it over and make a full-scale production?"

To make a good long story shorter, that started the ball rolling.

Later this month the ladies are sponsoring a whopping big Dixieland Minstrel. Ell Bloom is producing and directing.

How's it going? "The producer-director is fired up about early rehearsals and preparations. His enthusiasm is infectious; and when Bloom says "This is going to be the biggest and best of them all," you are just hearing him get warmed to his subject.

"Schlienz," he said (pointing a cigar), "there's just so much talent around I don't see how I'm going to get it all. You've gotta see the scenery they're putting together, to believe it. There's going to be 140 people . . . by actual count . . . in the cast, and maybe more by the time we get it all ironed out.

"We're going to have a professional orchestra . . . and Marie Wallace's dancers . . . and six end men."

There was also some talk about a mixed chorus and some barbershop quartets, but my mind was diverted by prospects of how one would get six end men in a palanx of minstrelmen.

A line has but two ends, a string, a rope, a stick, a length of wire, a road, a river . . . you name it . . . you still find only two ends.

Where does one put six end men unless the production is so big they've got to work in relays?

U.S. Distillers Seek Even Break

By ELMER ROESSNER
American distilling companies are waging a quiet battle with the Internal Revenue Service for an even break with Canadian, Scotch and Irish whisky distillers.

They are asking two equalizing rules: 1. Permission to brag about aging in re-used barrels. 2. The right to put whiskey into bond at higher than 110 proof.

Under present regulations, American distillers may not state the age of whiskey on labels or in advertising if it has been stored in re-used barrels, and if it is stored in re-used barrels, it must be labeled as having been "stored in re-used cooperage."

On the other hand, foreign whiskies, traditionally stored in such barrels, can be imported into the United States without such legends.

STRANGE CONSEQUENCE
Foreign distillers frequently buy up used American barrels for their aging. Thus, a barrel

Value Of The Dollar

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

On December 31, 1952, the gold reserve of the United States was $23,200,000,000; the gold reserve of all other countries outside of the Soviet Union was $13,000,000,000. The gold reserve of the United States made the American dollar the most acceptable currency in the world. Most Western currencies were pegged to the dollar and the United States was regarded as the leading nation on Earth.

Since the introduction of the Marshall Plan and a series of give-aways, the United States found itself at the end of 1961 with a gold reserve of only $16,900,000,000 and the gold holdings of the other Western countries were $23,600,000,000. The American dollar is no longer as favored as it was formerly, and the nation's economic and political leadership is being violently challenged all over the world.

In addition, Soviet Russia has been pouring gold into the London, Amsterdam and Zurich markets and this gives the impression that Soviet Russia has considerable gold.

Foreign holdings of dollars may be exchanged for gold; American holdings of dollars may not be exchanged for gold. This, of course, encourages speculators to hoard American dollars abroad, particularly in Switzerland. The banks act as agents but will not disclose who their principals are. There are lawyers in Switzerland who have numerous American clients. The main business of these lawyers is to handle American deposits in that country.

The United States does not own enough gold to take care of its obligations. It owns not quite $17,000,000,000 of gold, but $11,500,000,000 of that amount must be used to support the American dollar without regard to other obligations.

What is sound money? It is money that is accepted readily in return for goods, services, labor, or earnings. The acceptability can be measured absolutely by the yardstick of value. In a word, if in a store $1 will buy one dozen oranges one day but only half a dozen the next day, and the price of a plentiful supply of oranges, it can only mean that the dollar is worth half as much.

If for a century a postage stamp in general circulation for first class mail costs two cents, and is then raised to four cents, and again to five cents, for a reduced service, then either the currency is worth less, the management inadequate or the labor costs have risen to meet the reduced value of money.

Many psychological as well as economic and political factors enter into foreign exchange. For instance, the Common Market not only permits but encourages cartels; American companies are forbidden to join cartels within the United States but their subsidiaries in foreign countries may join cartels in those countries. This can justify the depositing of American capital abroad and the export of jobs.

It hardly makes sense giving an early warning, particularly when the country shows every evidence of prosperity. Nevertheless, this is the time to talk up and this is the time for the President and Congress to take urgent and immediate steps to protect the value of the American economy and particularly the American dollar.

In the Depression of 1929, we waited too long. That Depression started in 1921 and became world-wide. The few prophets who gave warning in 1923 and early in 1929, were laughed at. When the stock market finally cracked and the banks were caught over-extended, particularly in mortgages, it was really too late to do much and the Depression, which ended its acute phase in 1932, ran on chronically until 1938 when the economy was rescued by war.

The socio-economic effects of that Depression are still taking their toll in national consciousness and morality. On the economic side, our government accepted the confusions of Keynesian economic under which we now still live because it is all that those under 50 were taught. The cost to this country is in efficiency, in know-how and in the marketability of American goods. Private en-

More Land For A State Park

By LYNN NISBET

PARKS — Governor Sanford told newsmen the other day he hopes to confer with officials of Duke Power Company in the near future about land for a State park on the shores of Lake Norman. The power company has offered the State a tract of 1300 acres on the Iredell side of the lake about halfway between Mooresville and Statesville. The State park folks could not accept the grant, because 1300 acres is insufficient to supply the need. At least 3000 acres will be required, and the State would like to have 4000 or more. Whether Duke can provide that acreage is doubtful, and the State had no money with which to buy land for parks.

Practically all the land in the existing State parks was donated. The State has constructed the buildings and otherwise equipped the parks to serve the public. There have been numerous offers on part of landowners to sell the State park sites.

Last instance was the effort of the owners of Chimney Rock to get the State to take over that property. A few years ago similar effort was made to sell the Lake Tahoma site near Marion. Also there have been offers of gift land which the State could not accept, as in the Lake Norman case, because for some reason it was not suited for park purposes.

There is recognized real need for State park facilities in the central Piedmont. Morrow Mountain on one edge and Hanging Rock on another cannot begin to serve the needs of the concentrated population in the Mecklenburg-Catawba-Iredell sector. Lake Norman is ideally located for that purpose.

MEXICO—One of the most interesting things about Mexico discovered on a recent trip is the number, size and utilization of public parks. Whether the federal or state governments have park systems comparable to that in North Carolina we did not learn. But every village has a central plaza which is the heart of community life, and cities of any size have several. Standard equipment consists of a bandstand, a curio and refreshment stand, seats for spectators and playground areas.

A considerable part of the area of Mexico City is taken up with plazas for public gatherings, parks and playgrounds. The number of people using the park facilities was impressive. Everyone seemed to be crowded from early morning until bedtime. There are lots of trees and an almost unbelievable display of brilliantly colored flowers. But there were no marked off areas with signs warning to keep off the grass. The entire space was used by children playing, old folks sitting and talking, families picnicking, and everybody having a good time. It appeared to be more appropriate use of parks than reserved flower beds and keep off the grass signs.

At Victoria Ciudad, the capital city of the State of Tamaulipas, Hidalgo Plaza was right near the hotel where we spent the night. Up early in the morning we found the plaza already well filled with men and boys, some of them just loafing, some hawking currios and some wearing apparel, shining shoes, etc. They were all at ease and at home because the plaza belonged to them.

One of the surprising features was the cleanliness of the grounds and of the people congregated there. The small town plazas and the big city parks as well as the streets and yards, were free from trash to a degree that would make citizens of Raleigh ashamed of themselves.

NON-INTERFERENCE — Governor Sanford has adopted a policy of declining all invitations to appear before congressional committees to express his opinion on the merits on pending legislation. His theory is that the chief executive of a State should not inject himself into congressional business which is of general nature. It is a different story when the proposed legislation directly affects the interest of North Carolina and its people in a special way. Even then his intervention is more often with administration agencies in Washington than with congressional committees.

The Governor told newsmen at his latest conference with them that he had fully endorsed that part of the highway program proposed by Jim MacLamroc of Greensboro which called for a major east-west road across the state, connecting the ports with the trunk highways leading into the middle west. He denied that he had endorsed other phases of the MacLamroc plan which calls for a system of highways radiating out from Greensboro in all directions and which has been termed by critics as "the wheel."

The east-west road is important enough and Governor would accept it as toll turnpike if it cannot be obtained otherwise. He said he has asked some people to study the best method of approach to get an adequate road as quickly as possible.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
BALANCE

To what extent shall I conform and to what extent shall I refuse to conform?

Here is a question which plagues practically everyone of us at some time in our lives. Young people going out into social life for the first time encounter this choice. Boys and girls encounter it when they go to college. Young business men encounter it. The politician encounters it. The minister—wanting to be all things to all men and yet to be a champion of Christian righteousness has to confront this problem.

The chronic nonconformist is a nuisance to himself and to the world. We meet such a person once in a while. He fits no place. On the other hand, the smiling, good natured extrovert who takes on the coloring, enters into the mood, and accepts the moral standards of any group in which he happens to be is a corrupter of the most dangerous variety.

Here, as everywhere, we must have a balance. A certain conformity is required in life. We would make ourselves ridiculous in the eyes of the world, we would load our lives with unhappiness if we absolutely refused to conform to anything unless it met our fancy one hundred per cent. But the disposition to conform—too much lies at the basis of most of the world's sinning. Most of the time people do not sin because they are evil but because they are weak. They go along with the crowd.

We keep repeating in this column that one of life's most important factors is balance.

Other Editors Saying School Drop Out Problem

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Concerning the state's continuing student drop-out problem, Gov. Sanford has put forth two suggestions he says might help in attacking this issue. First, we could enrich the curriculum to make it broad enough to attract those students who drop out for lack of interest. No doubt, many students who leave their schools do so because of sheer boredom.

Not all students find instruction interesting. At the same time all instruction definitely isn't interesting. Therefore, it would seem reasonable to assume that the number of drop-outs would decrease if the curriculum was made more attractive.

But that is only one step, and would not eliminate the entire trouble. There is another step recommended by Gov. Sanford. This would be the appropriation of state funds for enforcement of attendance at the local level. It seems strange that in a state as well off as North Carolina, with a government as solvent as ours, we cannot afford to enforce our regulations and statutes.

Certainly on a matter like this the General Assembly should be able to find the funds to finance such a worthwhile endeavor. If counties don't step up enforcement of school attendance laws it might come to the point where state funds would be used for special truancy officers at the local level.

Habitual and consistent drop-out practices in North Carolina, when added up, amount almost to the equivalent of the schools standing idle during the summer months. This means that, when the school vacation months are added to the drop-out rate, we have an appalling picture of wasted resources and facilities, both material and human.

In an age when most teenagers have more opportunity to obtain an education than did their grandparents — or even their parents — it seems a shame that virtually one hundred per cent of them do not take advantage of it. It has been proved true with each passing year that the more education one has the better chances he has for escaping a life of poverty. Too late, many delinquent students are finding this out.

On the other end is the tremendous investment the citizens of this state have put into public education. We have the physical plants and the teachers. This investment, because it is so expensive, should be made to work for the good of the citizenry every moment possible. That would include enforcement of attendance laws at the local level.

It would not be out of place to mention the waste that is caused in this public investment when we allow our schools to stand empty each summer for a period of three months. No other field of endeavor has such a system, not even in government where time off is a tradition. Putting this investment off until the 12-month use would help pay us dividends on our children.

Under present regulations, American distillers may not state the age of whiskey on labels or in advertising if it has been stored in re-used barrels, and if it is stored in re-used barrels, it must be labeled as having been "stored in re-used cooperage."

On the other hand, foreign whiskies, traditionally stored in such barrels, can be imported into the United States without such legends.

once used by an American distiller for aging Old Bonded Popskull cannot be used for aging new whiskey without the sales-retarding legend, but a Canadian distiller can use that same barrel for aging Old Canadian Popskull without the legend. It seems apparent that if whiskey stored in re-used barrels is not as good as other whiskies, the Internal Revenue Service is giving foreign distillers quite a break.

Schenley, Waterfill and Frazer, and Willett Distilling recently asked the IRS to equalize regulations on storage between foreign and American distillers. A few days ago American Distilling and Federal Liquors joined in the appeal for public hearings.

BONDING AT 125 DEGREES
The second complaint arises from the fact that American distillers must now put raw whiskey in government bonded warehouses for aging at 110 proof, or about 55 percent alcohol. Foreign distillers put their whiskey to age at 125 or more proof. Both domestic and foreign whiskies are reduced to lower proof by the addition of water at bottling.

These differences give foreign distillers a great advantage. At higher proof, fewer barrels are needed for a given amount of whiskey.

At a public hearing, Distilled Spirits Institute urged that the limit in the United States be raised to 125 proof. Schenley and Pucker Industries asked that there be no limit. The American companies said that the only reason advanced against storage at higher proof was that the taste would be changed. But, they said, the consumer and not the IRS is the guardian of taste.

The IRS indicated a willingness to agree to 125 proof storage, but not higher, because foreign distillers did not store whisky at higher proof.

The Light of the Cross ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 19:29-38; Titus.

On what is now called Palm Sunday, Christ, on His way to Jerusalem, stopped at the foot of the Mount of Olives and sent two of His disciples to a nearby village to bring Him a colt which He said they would find there.—Luke 19:29-30.

As the two disciples were untying the colt, its owners appeared and demanded to know what they were doing. Christ had foreseen this and had instructed them. They replied, simply, "The Lord has need of it."—Luke 19:31-34.

"And they brought it to Jesus; and they threw their garments over the colt, and set Jesus thereon. And as He went, they spread their garments in the way" so that not even the feet of His beast should touch the ground.—Luke 19:35-36.

On this colt Christ rode over the Mount of Olives, with the multitude rejoicing and saying, "Blessed is the King that cometh in the name of the Lord: peace in heaven, and glory in the highest."—Luke 19:37-38. GOLDEN TEXT: Galatians 2:20.

Living in the Light of the Cross

THE GREAT CHANGE WROUGHT IN MEN BY REDEMPTION THROUGH CHRIST

Scripture—Luke 19:29-38; Titus.

By N. SPEER JONES
IN PAUL'S LETTER to Titus we find an ideal basis for a discussion of the meaning of Palm Sunday, for a lesson appropriately entitled "Living in the Light of the Cross."
In all three of the other versions of Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem, when He fulfilled the prophecy of Zechariah 9:9, we find a key word used by the multitude following Him—Hosanna. (See Matthew 21:9; Mark 11:9, and John 12:13). The literal translation of this word is "save now."
Although His followers were deeply disillusioned when the cross was substituted for the throne—for despite what He said, they expected Him at last to reveal Himself in full power as temporal and spiritual ruler—they realized after His resurrection that Christ had indeed "saved (them) now."

Christ on the cross "gave Himself for us, that He might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto Himself a people for His own possession, zealous of good works" (Titus 2:14). The word "redeem," derived from "ransom," indicates liberation purchased with a price—our liberation from sin, purchased with the price of Christ's own blood.
In this act, "bringing salvation to all men," appeared "the grace of God" (Titus 2:11). From this grace comes the ability to "live soberly and righteously and godly in this present world" (Titus 2:12).
"Soberly" indicates a life of self-control and self-government—living rightly within oneself. "Righteously" indicates the outward manifestation of this, or living rightly with regard to other men. "Godly" is its relationship to God—man living rightly with regard to His Maker.

These are the basic doctrinal truths of which Paul reminds Titus in his letter, written from his Roman prison shortly before his death. Titus, you may remember, was the young follower, probably of Gentile parentage and a native of Antioch, who carried Paul's first letter to Corinth.
When this letter was written he was in charge of the church in Crete, that large island southeast of Greece which once boasted the greatest civilization of the Mediterranean world. In Homer's time it held a hundred cities. This was the home of the Minotaur and the labyrinth of Greek mythology, and the site of the first famed space launching—Daedalus and Icarus' attempted flight on waxen wings.

Perhaps it is true that when such luminous civilizations fall, they fall to corresponding depths. Paul reminds Timothy that even one of their own number calls them "always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons" (Titus 1:12-13). The writer quoted by Paul was Epimenides, contemporary of Solon, born 659 B.C. The Cretan trait of lying apparently was so pronounced that it became a verb in Greek—kreitso, to speak like a Cretan or to lie.
To work among such people, Titus certainly needed the instructions and reassurances—including the light of the cross—that Paul could remind him of in his letter.

CARTER A. VAUGHAN'S Exciting Novel of Revolutionary Romance SCOUNDRELS' BRIGADE

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
Waiting for her in a highly favored London tavern, young Hugh Spencer thanked his stars for attracting the attention of beautiful Sara Dean. During the two weeks he had been enabled to be in her company every evening he had fallen in love, and he was impatient for the return of her mother from Bath to ask Sara's hand in marriage. He could not go to Bath to seek Lady Dean for she was in the Prince of Wales' entourage.

When Sara joined Hugh in the tavern she told him of her nervousness about carrying a large sum of currency she had been given by her lawyer and asked Hugh to be its safekeeper until she returned home. Obliging gallantly, Hugh placed the bills in his wallet. Their conversation had turned to his experiences as a lieutenant in the King's Dragoons in the colonies when a royal bailiff appeared in the tavern, centered his attention on Hugh and announced: "In the name of King George III, I place you under arrest!"

While the bailiff and his deputies searched Hugh and found the currency she had brought him, Sara slipped away. The bailiff charged Hugh with possessing counterfeit notes and dragged him off to Newgate prison. Days later, when Hugh's case was heard by Sir Harry Gresham-Aston, the latter had the prisoner taken to the address given by Hugh as Sara's home. A new nameplate was on the door and the housekeeper denied recognizing Hugh. Likewise, persons at the tavern where Hugh was arrested claimed not to remember seeing Sara with him.

CHAPTER 5
Hugh Spencer failed to appreciate the benefits of solitary confinement until he was given a cellmate. Benji Flaherty, as he called himself, cheerfully confessed that he had spent most of his thirty-five years either making or passing counterfeit money, and although Hugh suspected for a time that Sir Harry had moved an informer into his cell, he finally changed his mind. Benji, who talked incessantly about himself and his vocation, rarely bothered to listen to anyone else.

"This is the sixth time they've given me board and bed at Newgate," he boasted, "but I've never had a brand burned on my hands or back, and they've yet to find enough evidence against me to crop my ears."

Hugh, grieving because he had allowed himself to fall in love with a girl who had deceived him, was so worried about his own fate that he found it difficult to concentrate on Benji's lurid descriptions of his past. "Them that make the paper money are the ones who worry the crown," he said frequently. "The printers and engravers and the ones who know special ways to make notes, they cause the real trouble. But the coin men like me, we're little fish. They pull us into the net now and again, but they set us free again fast enough. Times aren't like they were ten years ago, when the copper lads nearly ruined England."

"What happened to him?" "Oh, he swung from a rope on Tyburn. He couldn't destroy his molds soon enough the day the bailiffs came to arrest him. I had two in my cellar, a George II penny mold and a Duke of Marlborough farthing mold, but I was lucky. I heard those oafs who wear the crown's uniform crashing about upstairs, overturning furniture, and searching in the drawers, so I had time to burn the molds. They found a few coins in my purse, but a magistrate won't send a man to Tyburn for that."

"Copper lads?" Hugh asked absently. "I learned my trade from one of the best of them," Benji said.

"You don't think they'll hang me, then?" Hugh found it impossible to dwell on anything other than his own predicament. "They can't even crop your ears or sentence you to a beating," Benji said scornfully. "All they can prove against you is that you were carrying a few hundred pounds in counterfeit paper. The law is helpless unless the bailiffs are bright enough to find your manufacturing equipment, and I've yet to see a bright bailiff."

Hugh, knowing nothing about the techniques of counterfeiters, was bewildered. Benji blinked at his cellmate in surprise. "I've thought you've been fooling me all this time, but you don't know how to make counterfeit money, do you?" "Until my arrest six weeks ago, I was accepted as a member of the gentry."

Benji felt sorry for him. "They won't turn you free, not these days when politicians win votes by persecuting artists who know more about making money than the royal printer and the governor of the King's mint. So you'll need a trade after you've served your term. Would you like to learn the secret of coining?"

Hugh didn't want to hurt the man's feelings. "I'll be very grateful for your help," he said gravely. "Roswell's system is the best. Cut two little blocks of cedarwood, press a genuine coin between them to get the general outlines, and scoop out little hollows in each. Then cover the coin with chalk and press your blocks again. The chalk will leave a print, front and back, and you can carve an exact reproduction of any coin that's minted." Hugh shook his head in wonder. "If you decide to make silver your specialty, start clipping every coin that passes through your hands. Spanish pieces of eight and Portuguese moldores are the softest, and they use a good quality of silver." Benji paused and grinned amiably. "The rest is simple."

Stone Pitches Three-Hit Shutout For New Colts

By MIKE RATHET Associated Press Sports Writer Dean Stone, 32, a left-hander who hurled a three-hit shutout for his first victory in the majors since 1957, is the newest hero on a rapidly growing list for the Houston Colts' all-conquering cast of castoffs.

was made by Los Angeles southpaw Pete Richert, who tied three major league strikeout records in the Dodgers 11-7 walloping of Cincinnati. Coming on in relief, Richert struck out Vada Pinson to end a four-run rally in the second inning. He struck out four—one reached base when catcher John Roseboro let a third strike get past him—in the third inning, then fanned the first man he faced in the fourth before pitcher Joey Jay grounded out.

San Francisco walloped Milwaukee 8-4 in the only other game scheduled. In the American League, Los Angeles' Ken McBride shut out Chicago 1-0 with a four-hitter and Minnesota defeated Kansas City 9-5. Detroit and Washington were rained out and the other clubs were not scheduled.

Finsterwald Is Leading In GGO

By KEN ALYTA GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) —

That fat 77 Dow Finsterwald shot in finishing third in the Masters tournament playoff with Arnold Palmer and Gary Player last Monday apparently had no lasting ill effects.

Finsterwald, 32, playing from Tequesta, Fla., carried a two-stroke lead into today's second round of the $35,000 Greater Greensboro open golf tournament after a super 64 opening round Thursday.

"Finst," as his fellow pros on tour call him, shaved six shots off par, playing the 36-35 course in 32:33. His score was one stroke over the tournament record set 21 years ago by Byron Nelson.

his short game. The 68 shooters included Mike Souchak, the defending champion, who played the last five holes five under par with a chip-in eagle from 45 feet and three birdie putts of 14 to 15 feet.

At 70 was Samuel Jackson Snead, already $23,000 richer for having played in previous Greensboro tournaments, and pursuing his eighth success here.

Finsterwald, playing during the day's worst weather—it was chilly and raining hard throughout the morning—holed out a full 4 iron from 170 yards on the first hole for an eagle two.

He holed out a full 4 iron from 170 yards on the first hole for an eagle.

His round was bogey-free as he added four birds to the eagle. He saved pars with putts of 12, 7 and 5 feet. He missed only two greens and needed only 23 putts, seven fewer than Palmer, who ran home a 12-footer on No. 9 for his longest successful putt.

Boros, husky former U.S. Open king, had birds on putts of 25 and 15 feet and salvaged pars twice on the four occasions he missed the green.

Contract Might Present A Problem To McGuire

COLUMBIA (AP)—Frank McGuire, coach of the professional Philadelphia Warriors, is admittedly interested in the head coaching vacancy at the University of South Carolina—and the university is interested in him.

But McGuire's contract with the Warriors might be a problem if he is offered the South Carolina job, and is inclined to accept it.

The former basketball coach at North Carolina conferred Thursday with South Carolina Athletic Director Marvin Bass. He is scheduled to discuss the coaching vacancy today with University President Robert Sumwalt and perhaps with members of the university's athletic committee.

"I would have to get clarification of my position with the Warriors before making any plans," McGuire told newsmen. He explained that he still has two years to go on a three-year contract with the Warriors.

In Philadelphia, Eddie Gottlieb, owner of the Warriors, when asked about McGuire's status, said: "I don't intend to make any comment until I talk to McGuire."

Gottlieb said he did not know when this would be.

The status of his contract, to McGuire at least, is clouded by

"I am interested in South Carolina," McGuire said after meeting with Bass in a Columbia motel. "It is a challenge—a great challenge—but I think I could handle it."

The South Carolina coaching vacancy popped up last week when Bob Stevens announced his resignation to become basketball coach at the University of Oklahoma.

"I'm happy Frank is here," Bass told newsmen. "I hope we can show him something he will be interested in."

The South Carolina athletic director and the Warrior coach have been personal friends since Bass was assistant football coach at North Carolina and McGuire was head basketball coach there.

Derby Fans To Watch Results

Associated Press Sports Writer Horsemensmen with interest in the $125,000-added Kentucky Derby, May 5 will be watching results from Tanforan and Laurel Race courses on Saturday when several 3-year-olds get important tests.

Neil S. McCarthy's Royal Attack, who captured the Santa Anita Derby, returns to action in the $15,000-added Westlake Handicap at Tanforan, San Bruno, Calif. Ada L. Rice's Daddy R., winner of the Governor's Gold Cup at Bowie, heads the line-up for the $25,000-added Chesapeake Stakes at Laurel, Md.

Royal Attack packing 113 pounds, meets older horses in the 1-16 mile Westlake. Trainer Buddy Hirsch was unable to spot a 3-year-old event for his colt, and will give Royal Attack his final prep for the $35,000 California Derby April 21. Eddie Burns will ride.

A dozen may start in the Westlake, with Revel, Mrs. Helen Kenaston's sprint ace, packing top weight of 121. Wonder Y. Ranch's Sea Orbit and Malcolm Shelton's Double Lea, each with 120, are others likely to start.

Sammy Boulmetis pilots Daddy R. in the Chesapeake, also at 1-16 miles. Previous Chesapeake winners include Whiskey, Cavalcade, War Admiral and Citation, all of whom went on to win the Derby.

George D. Widener's Endymion, Marion R. Frankel's Sidluck, Rokeby Stable's Crackpot, Bruce Campbell's Dedimoud are other Derby eligibles in the Chesapeake.

Snow Delays Twins' Opener

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A 6-inch snowfall blanketed Minnesota's Metropolitan Stadium Thursday, forcing postponement of the Twins' home opener against Los Angeles as inclement weather continued to disrupt the first week of the 1962 baseball season.

The Twins, forced to call off their Friday curtain-raiser before the home folks, were hopeful of setting the game in Saturday, but club officials were not overly optimistic.

Elsewhere, rain forced postponement of the Detroit and Washington game, held down crowds at Kansas City and Chicago and threatened to mar other home openers Friday at Detroit, New York, Baltimore and Cleveland.

The Tigers and Senators were rained out for the second day and Detroit faced the prospect of sitting it out once more when the weather man forecast snow flurries for their home opener with the New York Yankees.

The Athletics and White Sox, meanwhile, got their games in Thursday but the people filling both parks could have been easily seated in a small indoor arena.

Only 854, smallest crowd ever, braves stiff winds and 45-degree temperature at Kansas City, and the drizzly weather at Chicago held attendance to 1,087.

Pierce Hurls First NL Game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Left-hander Billy Pierce, who pitched 189 winners in 14 American League seasons, makes his first National League start tonight for the San Francisco Giants.

Billy isn't worried about making the change in leagues as he comments, "The distance to the plate is the same in each."

Three starting San Francisco pitchers got the credit as the Giants won all three games in the opening series with the Milwaukee Braves—the finale 8-4 Thursday Pierce gets acquainted with the Nationals by opposing the defending champion Cincinnati Reds.

"I've faced a few of their batters in Florida during previous springs," he points out. "And I watched the World Series on television."

"Sometimes you can see things better on television than you can from the dugout, but that doesn't hold true all the way."

Early in the spring, Pierce had nothing but trouble as opposing batters whacked him freely. But in his final two outings against the Cleveland Indians he showed enough to win a starting assignment.

"Everything went wrong at first," he admits. "Then things got better and I got stronger."

Molina Fights Muskegon Sat.

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—Undeclared lightweight boxer Luis Molina, who won notice and rankings with two victories in a week this year, figures he'll know Saturday night whether he's ready to challenge for the 135-pound title.

Home grown and home developed, the 23-year-old ex-Marine fights veteran left-hander Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., at the San Jose Civic Auditorium in a nationally televised (ABC) 10-rounder.

"If I beat Lane, I'm going to Las Vegas and challenge the winner of the Joe Brown-Carlos Ortiz title fight," Molina declares.

He got his first chance before a video audience on short notice, Feb. 24, outpointing Texan Manuel Gonzales at Las Vegas as a substitute bout when the Brown-Ortiz match was postponed.

On Tuesday of the same week in San Jose, Molina had knocked out veteran Len Mathews in the first round. The victories were Nos. 18 and 19 for the little slugger who turned pro in 1951.

Ring Magazine lists Kenny No. 10 among lightweight challengers. The National Boxing Association has Molina ranked No. 4 among the junior-welterweights although he can make the 135-pound lightweight limit.

Last Year's Sluggers Are Having Rough Time Now

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer What's this? The American League pitchers' haven't

The same sluggers who smashed a record of 1,534 homers during the 1961 campaign have been the victims of four shutouts in nine games this season—the latest Ken McBride's four-hit job that gave the Los Angeles Angels a 1-0 triumph over the Chicago White Sox Thursday.

McBride, 26, a right-hander, hooked up in a pitchers' duel with White Sox rookie Joel Horlen and kept the Chicagoans away from the plate until Leon Wagner hit a 0-1 pitch for a home run leading off the ninth inning.

McBride, 12-15 last year, had to survive a rocky first inning in which a potential White Sox run was thrown out at the plate.

Luis Aparicio opened with a walk, then stole second. When Nellie Fox banged a hit to center, the fleet White Sox shortstop tried to come around and score. Lee Thomas' peg on the fly to catcher Bob Rodgers nailed Aparicio.

Minnesota belted Kansas City 9-5 in the only other game played. Detroit and Washington were rained out for the second straight day and the other clubs were not scheduled.

The Tigers will try to get a game in today, opening at home against the New York Yankees.

but the Twins already have been snowed out of today's scheduled curtain-raiser at home against the Angels. Other home openers have Boston at Baltimore and Washington at Cleveland.

In the National League Thursday, Houston's Colts won their third straight, and second in a row by shutout when former AL pitcher Dean Stone three-hit Chicago. Los Angeles thumped Cincinnati 11-7 and San Francisco defeated Milwaukee 8-4.

While McBride was keeping the White Sox scoreless, Horlen, 24, was equally as effective against the Angels. The right-hander ended up with a five-hitter and the tough loss.

Rookie Joe Bonkowski, 21, right-hander, pitched 5-1-3 innings of strong relief and won it for the Twins by singling and scoring the go-ahead run in the fifth on Bob Allison's single. He gave up only one run after Dick House's home er had chased Minnesota starter Don Lee. Norm Bass took the loss for the A's.

Toronto Is Now Two Games Up On Chicago

By JOE MOOSHIL

Associated Press Sports Writer

TORONTO (AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs find themselves in the delightful position of being two games up on the Chicago Black Hawks today in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup championship and could put an early end to the hockey series if they play with the same authority in Chicago as they did on their home ice.

Aiming to win their first cup in 11 years, the Leafs put on another tremendous exhibition in turning back Chicago's bid 3-2

Thursday night. It was a satisfying triumph because the Hawks played much better hockey than they did in the opener Tuesday when they fell 4-1.

The two victories by Toronto were not totally unexpected because the Hawks have won only one game at Maple Leaf Gardens since Jan. 2, 1960. That was last March 17 by a 3-1 count.

The Hawks cannot be counted out as yet. These are the same Hawks who lost two games to Montreal in the semifinal series and then came back to win four straight.

Billy Harris put the Leafs in front Thursday on a goal at 2:35 while Murray Balfour was serving a penalty. For a time it appeared as if that was to be the end of the scoring. Midway in the third period, however, Stan Mikita tied with the first of his two goals.

Wasting no more than one minute, Toronto came back with Frank Mahovlich making it 2-1 and some seven minutes later George Armstrong clinched the decision with Toronto's third goal.

Sox And Indian Trade Failed

BALTIMORE (AP)—Boston Red Sox trade talks with Cleveland have broken down, says Manager Mike Higgins.

"We were trying to put some kind of a deal together," Higgins admitted Thursday night. "I made the Indians an offer I thought they were interested in and they turned it down."

Molina Fights Muskegon Sat.

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—Undeclared lightweight boxer Luis Molina, who won notice and rankings with two victories in a week this year, figures he'll know Saturday night whether he's ready to challenge for the 135-pound title.

Home grown and home developed, the 23-year-old ex-Marine fights veteran left-hander Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., at the San Jose Civic Auditorium in a nationally televised (ABC) 10-rounder.

"If I beat Lane, I'm going to Las Vegas and challenge the winner of the Joe Brown-Carlos Ortiz title fight," Molina declares.

He got his first chance before a video audience on short notice, Feb. 24, outpointing Texan Manuel Gonzales at Las Vegas as a substitute bout when the Brown-Ortiz match was postponed.

On Tuesday of the same week in San Jose, Molina had knocked out veteran Len Mathews in the first round. The victories were Nos. 18 and 19 for the little slugger who turned pro in 1951.

Ring Magazine lists Kenny No. 10 among lightweight challengers. The National Boxing Association has Molina ranked No. 4 among the junior-welterweights although he can make the 135-pound lightweight limit.

New Berlin Parley Expected To Focus On Free Access Issue

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — The new round of U.S.-Soviet talks on the possibility of a Berlin settlement is expected to concentrate at the outset on the problem of guaranteed access for Western powers between West Germany and Berlin.

The first session will be held here Monday by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

The United States set forth its ideas on the requirements of an access agreement in an informal working paper submitted to Allied governments earlier this week in preparation for the talks.

The U.S. proposal, circulated for allied reaction and comment, is understood to have stressed the need for guarantees by the Soviet Union of unhindered access to West Berlin by surface and air routes. The possibility was raised that this could be arranged under an international authority that has operational control of the supply line.

Informants said this position on the critical access issue was substantially the same as that taken by Rusk in talks at Geneva last month with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

So far as could be learned from official sources, the United States still considers totally unacceptable a Soviet counterproposal for East German control of the supply lines under limited supervision of an international authority.

Presumably, what Rusk wants to explore further is whether the Soviet Union acceptance of the concept of an international authority provides an opening to bring closer the conflicting U.S. and Soviet positions closer together.

The Soviet proposal was hinged on a number of conditions aimed at obtaining the withdrawal of Western forces from West Berlin and winning recognition for the East German Communist regime.

The Western powers, by contrast, remain firmly committed to the maintenance of their protective forces in isolated West Berlin and to some kind of guarantee against Communist interference with the flow of traffic between West Berlin and West Germany.

Pres. Kennedy To See Atlantic Fleet In Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy sees the Atlantic Fleet in action today and Saturday. From sea and shore he watches the Navy and Marine Corps' ships, planes, missiles and men—in combat exercises.

Kennedy flies to Norfolk, Va., this afternoon for a secret briefing on the fleet's attack and defensive capabilities, then boards ship for an on-the-spot view of fleet operations.

The President was scheduled to take off from Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland and land 40 minutes later at the Oceana Naval Air Station near Norfolk. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson precedes him to Oceana, and a host of government officials, members of Congress and diplomats join them later at Norfolk.

The President will board the submarine Thomas A. Edison at Hampton Roads. He'll spend about an hour on the nuclear-powered craft, but probably won't have time for a cruise.

Tonight he'll be aboard the command ship Northampton.

If weather permits, and the President wants it, the Navy is ready to stage night maneuvers with the cruisers Newport News, Boston and Long Beach, a destroyer squadron and planes from the carriers Enterprise and Forrestal. The Enterprise and Long Beach operate on nuclear power.

After reviewing a fleet of 48 ships Saturday morning, Kennedy will watch an antissubmarine warfare demonstration and firings of the Terrier, Bullpup and Sidewinder missiles. The A3J Vigilante supersonic bomber and F4H Phantom II interceptor-bomber will display their firepower off the Enterprise and Forrestal.

The chief executive will pay his respects to the fleet in a broadcast from the Enterprise, then go ashore at Onslow Beach in Camp Lejeune to watch the Marines hurl troops by helicopter and landing boat into a beach assault. Later, at Bogue Field, N.C., he will see Marine aircraft support troops and artillery in mock action on the ground.

The Shah of Iran, who with Empress Farah completed a state visit to Washington today, will join Kennedy at Onslow Beach to watch the Marine exercises.

Kennedy is due back in Washington late Saturday.

General Lucius D. Clay, who is resigning as President Kennedy's special representative in West Berlin, said after a meeting with Rusk Thursday that he thinks a Berlin settlement may be possible. The chances have been improved by the lessening of tensions since the Rusk-Gromyko talks in Geneva.

Administration officials continue to warn, however, that the Soviets, or the East Germans with Soviet support, can precipitate a new crisis at any moment by renewing harassment of traffic, particularly in the air corridor.

Reports circulated in West Germany that Kennedy had sent a personal message to Chancellor Konrad Adenauer on the problem of Berlin access and that Adenauer was planning to come to Washington to consult with the President. Officials here denied there was any presidential message to Adenauer and said they had no knowledge of any plans by the chancellor to come to Washington.

Steel Exports Aided By Action

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)—A senior official of the Iron and Steel Corp. said Thursday night price hikes by American steel companies will help South Africa's steel exports.

He said the nation's steel prices will not be increased and expanding production will provide increased export stocks.

South Africa is seeking to increase its foreign outlets for steel.

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels continued to give ground as the stock market resumed its slide to new 1962 lows in moderately active trading this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down .70 at 250.40 with industrials off .80, rails off .60 and utilities off .40.

U. S. Steel, down about 2 points, was the worst of its group as the company faced a grand jury investigation of monopoly charges arising out of the steel price boost.

Most other steels were moderately lower but Inland and Armco moved to the upside following news that Inland would not raise steel prices. Armco's decision on the price question was still awaited.

Big Three motors posted small gains and the decline was an irregular one with a number of blue chips throughout various sections of the list staging moderate recoveries. For most key stocks, however, losses ran from fractions to a point or more.

Inland Steel advanced more than a point while Armco was unchanged to fractionally higher. While fractional losses were posted for Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Jones & Laughlin and Youngstown Sheet, Lukens recovered a fraction.

General Motors, Ford and Chrysler made fractional gains while American Motors traded about unchanged.

Du Pont erased a loss of a point or so and traded about unchanged. American Cyanamid and Air Reduction were moderate gainers. Union Carbide was about unchanged. Polaroid recouped about 3 points and IBM about 2. The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 1.01 at 684.66. Prices on the American Stock Exchanged moved unevenly in slow trading. Corporate bonds were mixed. U. S. government bonds were unchanged to slightly higher.
