High Court Adds Byron R. White

WASHINGTON (AP) — With President Kennedy watching in a packed Supreme Court chamber, Byron R. White was sworn in today as an associate justice.

It is the first time in history that a former law clerk of the tribunal has ascended to the court's bench. White served as a law clerk in 1946-47 under the late Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson.

Among those watching the husky 44-year-old former deputy attorney general take the public oath were his wife, and two children — Charles, 8 and Nancy 4,—and his brother Clayton White.

Also present were Mrs. White's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stearns, and Atty. Gen. and Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy.

Before the public ceremony in the marbled chamber, White had taken in a private conference room the constitutional oath to "well and faithfully discharge" his duties as a justice.

This oath was administered in the presence only of the other justices of the court.

The 10 o'clock ceremony in the court was a few minutes late getting under way. The President took his seat in the benches reserved for distinguished guests at 10:05 a.m. A minute later the eight justices filed in. White was the last to enter.

Chief Justice Earl Warren and the new Justice White both spoke in firm, loud tones in their parts of the brief induction ceremony which made White the 93rd man to serve on the court.

White succeeds Justice Charles Evans Whittaker who retired April 1 because of poor health.

Kennedy selected White when Whittaker announced he was retiring on doctor's orders. White had led the National Citizens Committee Movement for Kennedy in the 1960 campaign and was appointed deputy attorney general at the start of the Kennedy administration. He practiced law before taking the government post.

White's appointment was endorsed by the American Bar Association and confirmed quickly by the Senate.

As a law clerk, White dre salary of $5,116 a year. He was paid $21,000 as deputy attorney general and his pay now goes to $35,000-a-year in a lifetime job.

White is in for a busy two weeks but probably won't experience his heaviest work as a justice until next fall. The court has scheduled arguments in about 18 cases for the next two weeks. After Whittaker's retirement was announced the court put off deciding 12 major argued cases and called for reargruments in the new term that begins in October.

White is the 93rd man to sit on the Supreme Court. He is the first Coloradoan to serve on the high bench.

Assault On Monopolistic Corporations Rolls Along

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill to strengthen the government's power to break up monopolistic corporations was on its way to the Senate today while Senate subpoenas were being sped to the dozen largest steel companies.

The massive assault mounted by President Kennedy against steel's $6-a-ton increase was still rolling, though the price boost was rescinded Friday.

The battle's aftermath found the stock market at a 1962 low, Kennedy's prestige at a new high, and the prospects for his whole legislative program considered suddenly brighter.

Pressing ahead with its announced antimonopoly investigation, the Senate Antitrust subcommittee headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., wrote subpoenas for the 12 top companies to bring in figures on production by mid-May.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., prepared to introduce three bills today to sharpen the teeth of the antitrust laws.

Gore said the need for better protection of the public was proved by "this whole episode in which the steel companies made almost uniform pri increases and then rescinded them."

His bills would not have been given an outside chance of passage a week ago. Now they must be regarded seriously, especially since Democratic legislators can be expected to capitalize on the so-called monopoly issue in this campaign year.

The Gore measures would:

1. Give the president power under the Taft-Hartley law to obtain an 80-day injunction against a general price increase in a basic commodity. The procedure would be parallel to the cooling-off period provided for "national emergency" strikes.

2. Create a national consumers advisory board. It would not have binding power but, in a fact-finders' role, could muster public opinion against increases it deemed unjustified.

3. Broaden the antimerger laws, so that the same legal yardstick could be used to break up "existing large concentrations" as is now used to prevent certain proposed industrial mergers.

No companies were named, but the bills were plainly pointed at U.S. Steel, the nation's biggest producer and the one whose announcement last Tuesday of a boost touched off—as in the past—a parade of virtually identical increases by other firms.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy had put the finger on U.S. Steel last week. In discussing the questions being explored by the Justice Department, he said one was whether "one company, namely U.S. Steel, so dominates the industry that it controls prices and should be broken up."

As the Sherman and Clayton antitrust laws now stand, the legal requirements for dismembering an existing corporation are much difficult than those for preventing a merger which might tend to create a monopoly.

Gore's proposals, as he explained them, would make the latter requirements applicable in cases where the government seeks to force a split-up of a corporation which already has acquired monopolistic power.

The President's closest advisers said he wants no reprisals and hopes to preserve the good will and cooperation of business generally. Still, the administration was following through with the measures it set in motion to quash the steel price boost.

The Justice Department was pressing ahead with the federal grand jury investigation in New York which Atty. Gen. Kennedy ordered last Wednesday.

A multimillion-dollar order for high-grade steel that normally would have been divided between Lukens Steel Co. of Coatesville, Pa., and U.S. Steel apparently will go wholly to Lukens. U.S. Steel was crossed off after its price rise, and the Pentagon has made no move to change the decision.

The investigation ordered by the House Antimonopoly subcommittee headed by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., also was scheduled to open on May 2. But it appeared that Celler would let the Kefauver subcommittee do most of the ball-carrying.

In dispatching subpoenas to the top 12 steel firms, the Kefauver subcommittee did not identify the companies by name. But the dozen biggest producers would take in some which did not raise prices, including Inland Steel Co. of Chicago. Inland broke the industry front Friday by announcing that it would not follow U.S. Steel's lead. Kaiser Steel also said it would hold off. Then Bethlehem, the No. 2 producer, rescinded its measure, leaving U.S. Steel no choice but to surrender, three days after it started the whole dramatic episode. All the other companies that had announced increases fell back like a row of dominoes.

Police And Secret Army In Continuing Algerian Fight

ALGIERS (AP)—Police and the Secret Army Organization (OAS) battled today in Oran, where underground terrorists in a campaign of growing boldness tried to seize a police camp and its armored cars.

First reports said a policeman was killed and 10 other persons were wounded.

In Algiers, secret army commandos fired on Moslems in the Bab el Oued quarter, killing one and wounding two.

It was in an Algiers suburb that a Moslem mob lynched two Europeans Sunday in the first act of retaliation against the secret army since the March 19 cease-fire ending the long Algerian nationalist rebellion.

The Algerian Nationalist regime from its base in Tunis warned the French Sunday to take stronger measures against the secret army, which is trying to wreck the cease-fire and keep Algeria French.

It perhaps was significant that, since the warning the first action came in Oran, second largest city in Algiers and a secret army stronghold in western Algeria.

The fighting started when a secret army unit tried to take over the police installation at Gambetta, a suburb, and capture the armored cars stationed there, authorities said Police put up stiff resistance, scattering the secret army agents.

The firing raged from street to street as the casualties mounted.

The lynching of the two Europeans by Moslems occurred in the industrial suburb of Maison Carrer, nine miles southeast of Algiers.

Enraged youths stopped a car carrying three Europeans, dragged them out, beat them with rocks and sticks, and set the car afire. The third European, critically injured, was rescued.

Elsewhere in Algeria white terrorists killed four Moslems and wounded 28.

Secret Army terrorists driving through Moslem suburbs have shot down Moslem civilians nearly every day since the cease-fire. At least 250 Moslems have perished in Algiers alone. The terrorists are trying to provoke the Moslems into reprisals on a civil war scale that will block Algeria's advance toward independence.

Will Add To Charges In Sign Procurement Case

RALEIGH, (AP) — District Solicitor Lester V. Chalmers told Judge Raymond Mallard today he plans to drop one charge but will seek to bring others in connection with the state highway sign procurement case.

Chalmers told Judge Mallard he will proose (not prosecute) an indictment returned in February chargine Raleigh businessman Kidd Brewer, former Highway Engineer Robert A. Burch and Burch's son, Bobby, with conspiracy to defraud the state.

He told the judge he plans to present additional bills of indictment to the Wake County grand jury in connection with the case.

Chalmers said the new bills of indictment would include additional charges and additional defendants.

Chalmers and Charles T. Hagan of Greensboro retained by the state to assist Chalmers in the case, closeted themselves in a Raleigh hotel room, where they have set up an office.

Chalmers declined to reveal to a reported any details of the new indictments. He said they would be sent to the grand jury "when they are ready."

Chalmers had requested that Judge Mallard postpone trial of the conspiracy charge which had been scheduled for a term of court beginning today.

Former Atty. Gen. Malcolm Seawell, representing Brewer, vigorously protested any further delay in the trial.

Seawell also reaffirmed his motion for a bill of particulars on the conspiracy indictment.

Judge Mallard set Wednesday as the date for a hearing on both the motion to continue and the motion for a bill of particulars. However, should Chalmers drop the charge, there would be no need for the hearing.

Five Scheduled For Induction

The local office of the Selective Service reported today it has received orders to send 11 men for armed forces physicals on May 10.

On May 18, the local board has orders to send 11 more men for armed forces physicals and five men for induction, Mrs. Josie Evans, assistant clerk, said.

Captains Of 2 Japanese Boats Arrested On Poaching Charges

KODIAK, Alaska (AP) — The captains of two Japanese fishing boats have been arrested on charges of poaching in the latest flareup in years of dissension over fishing by the Japanese in waters claimed by Alaska.

Alaska officials, headed by Capt. E. L. Mayfield of the state police, boarded the 65-foot herring catcher Ohtori Maru No. 5 Saturday night at the mouth of Uganik Bay in Shelikof Strait.

They arrested Captain Higashima Tadao on charges of fishing commercially without a license and having registered his gear or boat.

The Ohtori Maru was escorted to Kodiak by the State Fish and Game Department vessel Teal and held under $25,000 bond.

The Ohtori Maru is one of five catcher boats which Alaska officials say have been taking herring in Shelikof Strait for about two weeks. They are accompanied by a 5,000-ton mother ship, the Banshu Maru, with 123 persons aboard.

Officers also arrested the captain of the Banshu Maru, Mongo M. Hanasaki, but did not seize his ship. Hanasaki was charged with fishing commercially without having notified the state.

Superior Court Judge Edward W. Davis flew here from Anchorage Sunday to arraign Tadao and Hanasaki. He released them to their vessels on their promise to return for a hearing.

In Tokyo, a spokesman for the Taiyo Fisheries Co., which owns the vessels, said, "We have ordered the fleet to operate at least five miles off the coast of the United States, two miles outside the accepted territorial water boundary. We are confident no violation is involved."

Alleged poaching by Japanese fishermen has been a hot issue in Alaska for at least 25 years. In 1938, the Alaskan delegate in Congress, Anthony Dimond, even suggested that the United States bomb Japanese fishing boats in Alaska waters.

Shelikof Strait, varying in width from 30 to 21 miles, lies between Kodiak Island and the Alaska Peninsula.

Gov. William A. Egan of Alaska said the strait "traditionally has been an inland body of water." He said it was regulated by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service before Alaska became a state.

No Decision In Sanity Hearing

WILSON — A decision in the sanity hearing of Roy Douglas Freeman, 19-year-old Greenville Negro charged with bank robbery, had not been disclosed by noon today in federal court here.

Judge John D. Larkins had set today, first session of this week's Eastern District court term, to rule on Freeman's mental competence to stand trial. The sanity hearing was opened in Washington, N. C., about 10 days ago.

Freeman, facing charges of robbing the West End Branch of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. in Greenville last October, was committed by Judge Larkins' order in December to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington, D.C., for 90 days of mental examination.

At the sanity hearing, psychiatrists stated conflicting opinions on the youth's mental competence and Judge Larkins said he would review their reports and rule in the hearing today.

District Attornely Robert Cowan of Williamston said he expected the decision during this afternoon.

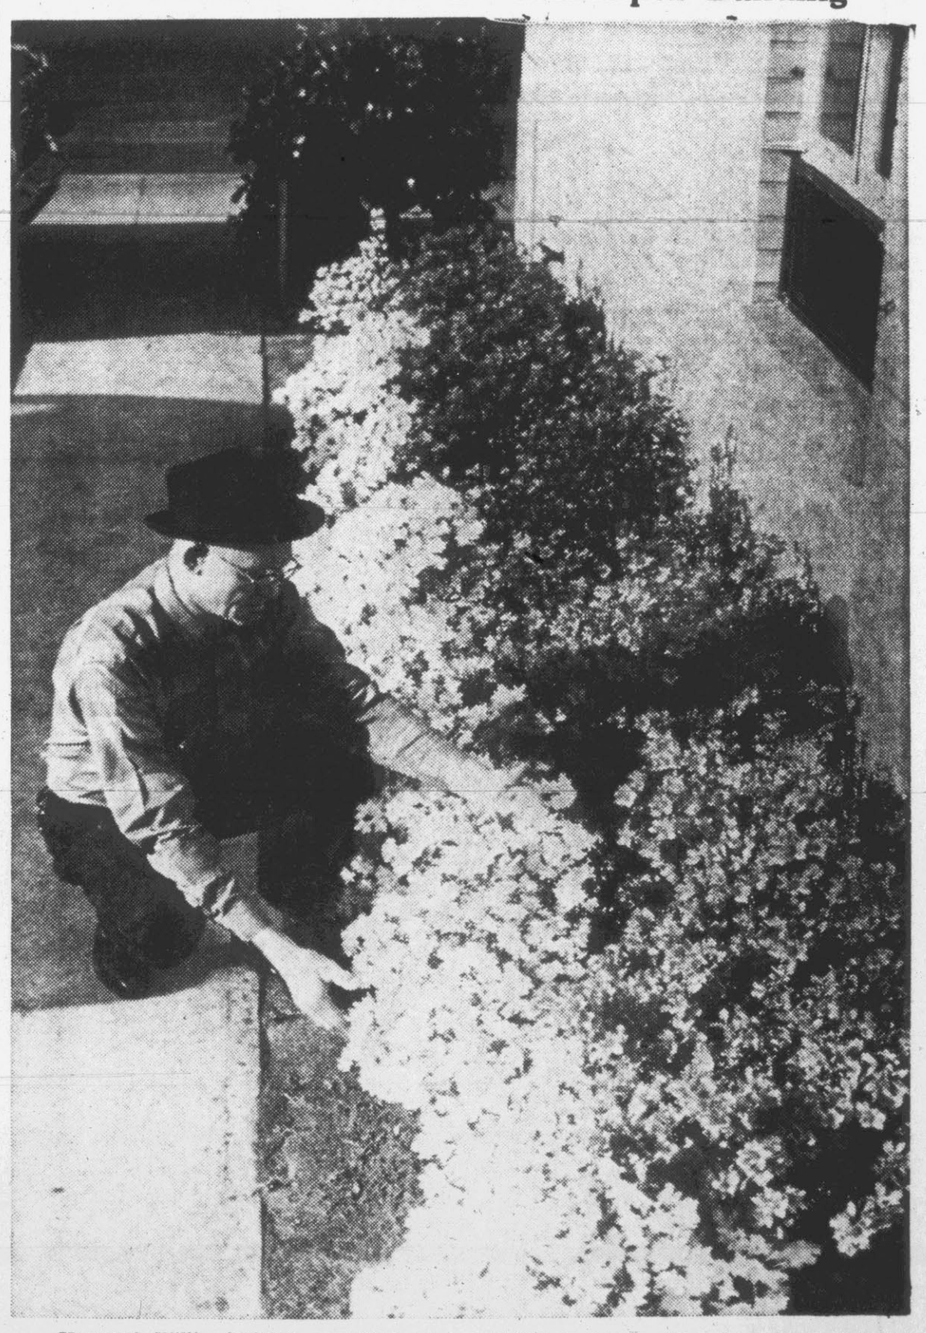
Azaleas Add Touch To Municipal Building



Haywood Willis, building custodian at City Hall, has been "pretty lucky with flowers."

Almost everything he plants lives. The major attraction of his green thumb at the present time are the brilliant pink and white azaleas planted between the fire station and the city building, which have brought considerable attention.

Willis, noting that "land is scarce" around City Hall, planted a row of pink fronted by a row of white azaleas on the strip of land between the buildings, which measures about three feet in width and 60 feet in length. They have been at their peak in recent days.

On Washington Street he planted another type of azalea with a lavender-pink hue.

His knowledge of plants and flowers goes back to his childhood; he was raised in the country, he says.

He plans now to replace a few of the bushes which have died.

A member of the U.S. Navy during World War II, Willis came to Greenville in 1937. He has worked with the city since 1938, except during war service

All, 'Except The Political Factors'

Supporters of highway U.S. 13 have pointed out repeatedly in the past few years that the potential of the route will be greatly enhanced by the flow of traffic through the elaborate bridge-tunnel system across the Chesapeake Bay at Norfolk.

They have also pointed out that further development of U.S. 13 through North Carolina would provide a tremendous asset for the eastern section of the state so far as north-south travel is concerned.

It should be of considerable concern to the communities through which U.S. 13 passes that at least one leader in the movement to develop the route has asserted in a news article that ". . . all factors now appear in the favor of U.S. 13 except the political factors."

It is no secret that in North Carolina political factors have often played a major role in the location and development of certain highway links. Even so, it would be shocking to think that whatever favorable factors were involved in development of a particular route would mean nothing in the final outcome unless political factors were also favorable to that route. It would be even more shocking to know that political factors would determine whether a particular route, good as it might be, would be developed.

Highways should be developed to serve the best public interest and not particular political interests.

The development of U.S. 13 appears to have in its favor all the other factors which might go into consideration of a major highway route. If that is the case, whatever political factors may be involved should not be allowed to override all other considerations. The communities located along the existing route of U.S. 13 have begun to put forth efforts to bring about development of the route. They may or may not have overlooked the political factors which it now seems are involved in the future development of the highway.

If, as the statement of the supporter of the route indicated, development of U.S. 13 may be determined on the basis of politics rather than on the other merits involved, the communities located on 13 should give their attention to these political factors. The state administration should likewise see that the proposals for developing U.S. 13 are weighed on their merits, not on political factors which are now involved or may later become involved.

Cancer Society Can't Join UF

By LYNN NISBET

CANCER CRUSADE — April is the month for the annual crusade conducted by the American Cancer Society to raise funds to fight cancer. Response of the public has been generous through the years, despite insistence in some quarters that the cancer crusade be integrated into the United Fund, and the belief on part of some that they have contributed adequately to this cause when they donated to the overall united fund.

The American Cancer Society is one of five independent health agencies conducting solicitation campaign in North Carolina. Others are the Heart Association, the National Foundation, the Society for Crippled Children and Adults, and the Tuberculosis Association. Because a large part of the money raised in these independent campaigns goes into research and education, rather than into direct service to patients, they cannot be fitted into the United Fund scheme. Other UF sponsored activities are largely, if not entirely, service agencies. Such as the Salvation Army, Travelers Aid, YMCA, YWCA, Boy and Girl Scouts, and others providing food and care for the needy.

RESEARCH — The five independent agencies listed last year contributed $666,910 for education and research in North Carolina, mostly at the medical school at Chapel Hill, Duke and Bowman Gray. That represented about one-third of the approximate two million dollars raised in the state. The United Fund through its United Medical Research Foundation contributed $56,665 about one-half of one percent of the total amount raised. The Cancer Society alone put up $297,930 for research in North Carolina — more than twice the $136,305 collected in the state.

NOT LOCAL — The cancer research program cannot be carried out on local basis. Not even on statewide level. It must be broad in scope and general application. That is another reason why the crusade cannot be fitted into a United Fund campaign. The main purpose of the United Fund is to exercise some control over the collection and disbursement of moneys contributed for its objectives. Such supervision can be exercised over that part of the cancer money which is used for direct service to patients. The purchase of medicines, the payment of medical and hospital bills, attendant nurses and similar services must be on local basis. A relatively small part of the cancer funds are devoted to these specific service items. A rough breakdown shows cancer crusade funds distributed 30 percent for nationally coordinated research and education programs; 10 percent for national education service statistics, field services, administration of research and coordination of cancer control efforts; 60 percent of state and county units — and of that 60 percent almost half is for public and professional education. About 40 percent of the 60 percent goes for services to patients and the remainder for administration. This small amount contrasts with 50 percent or more of the total collections used for administration and fund raising by some local units.

The principal reason that education and research cannot be carried out on local level is that the research must be conducted where facilities are available. North Carolina is no special beneficiary of the American Cancer Society because it gets back in grants for research nearly three times as much as the state contributes. That is because of the location here of three fine medical schools, UN C. and Duke and Bowman-Gray.

The acme of silliness would be to make the Chapel Hill or Orange county United Fund responsible for supervising the research program at UNC m l ical school, or the Durham units to control the Duke program, or Forsyth county and Winston-Salem to limit the Bowman-Gray program to the amount collected through the local United Fund, and over which the local board would have control.

The desire of United Fund officials to channel all public giving through one central agency is understandable — and commendable. There should be distinction between the education-research phases and the direct service features of the total program.

PERSONAL — Your reporter confesses a keen personal interest in this matter. There are many types of cancer, each requiring a different method of treatment and control. Improved practices in surgery and discovery of how certain types respond to newly discovered drugs have brought a large measure of control and cure. There are some types for which no effective restraining agent has been found. That is why research must go on and on at ever accelerated rate. There is firm faith that the war against cancer can be and will be won. But victory depends upon a broad strategy campaign, with finances available where and when needed, not upon a multitude of little local organizations some of which seem as much interested in proving jobs for employees as in the total war.

More Than Temporary Repairs Are Required

It is becoming increasingly apparent that if North Carolina's historical Outer Banks are to be preserved more than just temporary repairs will have to be made following storms.

High winds and water late last week knocked out several spans of a temporary bridge being constructed across a new inlet near Buxton, left by the Ash Wednesday storm. In spite of the fact that the federal government has agreed to close the new inlet at some future date, we seriously question whether filling the inlet with sand will be sufficient.

In recent years the Outer Banks all along the Tar Heel coast have taken a terrific battering. The narrow strip of sand islands which separate the ocean and sounds are being eaten away at both sides. Inundation of large portions of the islands appears to become more frequent, with less severe storms required to produce the effect in each passing year.

Damage to the banks themselves, not to mention property that has been constructed upon them, has run into staggering millions. Public facilities such as highways are requiring increasing attention to keep the inroads of water and sand pushed back.

In lieu of some long-range program to stabilize the banks, these make-shift repair programs after each storm are of utmost importance. Over the long run, however, considerably more than repair work must be done. There must be a more comprehensive program for preventing far-reaching damage to the Outer Banks during severe weather along the coast. Otherwise North Carolina will find that each passing year there will be less and less of the string of islands to salvage from the sea and sounds.

Long View Of Transportation

By RALPH ROBEY

President Kennedy finally has sent his message on transportation to the Congress.

No mention is made of the recent report on railroad by the special commission which was discussed in this space a few weeks ago. That is logical. That analysis considered only the problems of the railroads. This message looks at the entire transportation industry, and its basic purpose is to develop an over-all policy for every element involved in this part of our economic life. It is the first time that this has been attempted by the Chief Executive.

In laying the foundation for the recommendations the President says: "A chaotic patchwork of inconsistent and often obsolete legislation and regulation has evolved from a history of specific actions addressed at specific times. This patchwork does not fully reflect either the dramatic changes in technology of the past half-century or the parallel changes in the structure of competition." Those may appear to be harsh words, but actually they are mild in view of the present situation of our transportation industry.

Scores of recommendations are made by the President. They fall under four main heads: intercity transportation; urban transportation; international transportation; and labor relations and research. By far the longest of these is that on intercity transportation. This is as it should be because here we have railroads, trucks, airlines, buses, and the inland waterways. The present complexity of the competition and regulation of these various systems is almost beyond comprehension. Some of them are recipients of government subsidies and some are not, and the methods by which they are taxed are about as varied as human ingenuity can devise. To bring order out of this chaos will take the wisdom of Solomon and the patience of Job, but it has to be attempted.

The second longest section of the message is devoted to recommendations on urban transportation. This involves the whole gamut of public systems, and in addition the problem of private cars, taxis, and so forth. Some cities have done a reasonable job in meeting their difficulties, but others have made practically no progress. And by and large all of them want federal financial assistance for their programs. The President wants "a long-range program of federal aid to our urban regions for the revitalization and needed expansion of public mass transportation."

In the international field the main transportation problems, as seen by the President, are whether our ships and aircraft are adequate to meet "probable military emergencies" and why, even with federal building subsidies, our merchant marine does not grow more rapidly and be better able to compete with foreign ships. No specific recommendations are made in the field, but the Secretary of Commerce, and various other government officials, are directed to make surveys with a view of finding out what should be done.

On labor relations and research the message has little to say. The main burden of the comments is that labor must not be hurt; that collective bargaining must be used to "promote efficiency" and that we must have a "vigirous, continuous and coordinated program of research."

Obviously this is a really long-range program. Its strength lies in the fact that it is an

FIG TREE AND TEMPLE

The Lord's activities within the city of Jerusalem during the week we have come to call Holy Week began with two acts of great significance on Monday.

First of all, Jesus cursed the unfruitful fig tree. It was green and apparently in healthy condition. But it bore no fruit. This was symbolic of the church of that day which was pretentious in its ritual but sadly lacking in its ability to change men's lives and lead them into a saving relationship with God.

Our Lord's second activity on Monday was the cleansing of the temple. Religion had become big business in Jerusalem. Inasmuch as pilgrims came from all Judaea and Galilee to worship in the temple and offer sacrifice, stores and commercial booths of all sorts were erected in the vicinity of the temple. In fact, as one approached the temple little could be heard but the lowering of animals and the cries of hawkers who had something to sell.

This aroused our Lord's anger to fever pitch. The temple was to be a house of prayer for all nations. They had made it not only a noisy place of commerce but, because of certain sly practices which had crept in, it had indeed become as Jesus said "a den of thieves."

The activities of this day teach that God is pleased only with fruitful lives on the part of individuals and a clean, consecrated, and committed church as the symbol of His presence in the world.

Economics As A Whole

Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

In a police state, it is possible to decide that the country requires so many engineers, so many doctors, so many miners and the state recruits the individual and forces him to accept the career allotted to him. A free society is defined by freedom of choice. In a free society, a person selects the pattern of his own life and assumes responsibility for that, come what may.

In such a state as West Virginia, the coal miners are trapped by the accident of the elimination of their product. Bituminous coal cannot compete with other producers of heat and light. Despite the high cost of production, the price of bituminous coal has not advanced during the past 10 years. The average value of bituminous coal at the mine in 1957 was $5.08 a ton; in 1960, $4.73. As the value of the dollar has decreased, the price of coal has actually decreased during this period. Nevertheless, American bituminous coal has been sold in West Germany, England, France and Belgium, in coal producing countries, at from $2 to $5 less a ton than native coal because of superior quality and the mechanization of American mining processes.

John L. Lewis, one of the truly great statesmen in labor, always supported mechanization in the hope of increasing the output per miner and therefore increasing his wages; he did not, however, count on quotas, tariffs, government licenses and other devices used in Europe against American products. It is reported, for instance, that recently the British steel mills petitioned their government to import American coking coal as it was $2 to $3 a ton cheaper than British coal and of a better quality, but the British government turned down the petition and refused to grant import licenses. While American exports suffer in European markets because of quotas, etc, the United States permits residual oil to come in from Venezuela to compete with American products.

What is residual oil?

The name is clear. It is a waste product, left over from the processing of crude oil. Generally it is thrown away or sold at whatever price it can get. It is being dumped into this country at less than coal can be produced at the mine. Its economic and social effect is to throw American miners out of work. It would be like selling the sudsy, dirty water that is thrown down a drain after the dishes have been washed. I suppose someone will some day find use for that, too.

Why is residual oil imported into the United States despite the demonstrable fact that it has brought ruination to such a state as West Virginia? It is done for political not economic reasons; that is, the objective is to make Venezuela prosperous, just as we pay exorbitant prices for coffee to benefit Brazil and Colombia.

This type of oil cannot be used by most folks. It requires special equipment which only large users can afford.

What is the solution for such a problem?

Of course, politically, Venezuelans seem to be more important than West Virginians, which is one reason that President Eisenhower was unpopular in that state. So, the idea is to retrain the miners and to move them from their homes to where jobs can be found for retrainees. Young people in the mining towns move to the big industrial cities and, in time, the mining towns can become ghost towns like the silver and gold towns of the West. How many Americans want to be forcibly retrained? How many of them want to leave their homes and churches and graveyards because Venezuela wants to export residual oil?

There is some very bad thinking in the political approach to economic problems. The sociology of it is all wrong. From the standpoint of the Kennedy Administration, it would seem to me that the economics of this country cannot be dealt with piece-meal but as a whole, as a matter that requires a national rather than an international approach. The export of jobs has imperilled the automobile and some smaller industries; the import of steel products has imperilled the steel industry; the import of residual oil has ruined the bituminous coal industry.

The fundamental dangers to our country are the export of jobs and the softening of money. In many respects these items are as serious as our war with Soviet Russia. They can end as destructively and as disastrously.

TO THE EDITOR:

With Easter so near I feel it is time to call attention to the thoughtless cruelty that has grown around us in the last few years. The custom of selling baby chickens as toys for children. Baby Chicks and rabbits are associated with Easter because of that lovely mythical story of the rabbit that befriended the nestful of baby chicks after the mother hen disappeared.

Thus, commercial interests began to sell these live tiny members of the animal kingdom as pets for children at Easter Season. True they are irresistible creatures but these innocent victims of trade have died by the thousands each year through the ignorance of parents who labor under the delusion that children enjoy them as pets. The Easter season, set aside for rejoicing and thoughts of kindness and compassion, becomes one of needless suffering and death because thoughtless parents and tradesmen who sell these helpless animals. Children can scarcely understand the suffering they could be causing unless a wise and informed parent makes it clear to the child. The fault lies first with the adults who buy and thus encourages stores to enter this field at the Easter season.

Dealers should realize that a tremendous amount of adverse advertising accrues from Easter pet sales for animal lovers are legion in this country and besides myself, I know of many who have not dealt with dealers who do so. This thoughtless cruelty can be stopped if no one will buy these pets.

Harriet Beecher Stowe has so aptly written, "We should remember in our dealings with animals that they are a sacred trust to us from our Heavenly Father. They are dumb and cannot speak for themselves".

REVENUE SERVICE BARS "SPANISH CHAMPAGNE"

While sparkling wines produced in the United States may be labeled champagne, sparkling wines from Spain may no longer be labeled "Spanish champagne," the Internal Revenue Service has decided. (Rev. Proc. 62-12.)

This is no bureaucratic quirk. The law provides that terms such as "champagne" may be used when the product conforms to the requirements of the laws in the place produced. In the past, "Spanish champagne" has been approved under the belief that the laws of Spain authorized that name on wines soldin Spain. Now the IRS has discovered that "Spanish champagne" is not sold in Spain, and decided it can't be sold here either.

Heavy rains and floods and "deteriorating political conditions" have disrupted production and marketing of peanuts in the Republic of the Congo; more than two million growers have been forced to relocate. The U. S. Foreign Agricultural Service says that even if normalcy is restored, years will pass before peanut production will reach that of the days of Belgian rule.

PROFESSIONALS MAY KNOW INCORPORATE IN 14 STATES

Professionals have long been barred from incorporating in most states. But 14 states acted last year to permit licensed doctors, lawyers, accountants, dentists, engineers and others to incorporate, or form associations similar to corporations.

Commerce Clearing House reports that Alabama, Connecticut, Georgia, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Texas now permit professional associations of persons licensed by the state to incorporate. Florida, Oklahoma and Wisconsin permit professional corporations. Minnesota and South Dakota permit medical corporations and Arkansas permits medical and dental corporations.

Professional corporations usually result in tax benefits. The corporation can provide annuity and other benefits not taxable until the beneficiary receives them. A bill providing similar treatment of professionals under Federal tax laws is still alive in Congress, but not getting much action.

An American export salesman says round-the-world selling is getting less and less interesting. "Foreign businessmen have largely adopted Western dress and more and more of them speak English," he said. "I am glad to get back to the United States, where costumes vary and you can hear foreign languages."

BOSSES STARTING AT 7 A.M., HOLDING MEETINGS AT 9 P. M.

Another salesman, this one operating in big American cities, reports the trend to earlier and later hours in American business is strong. The bigger the boss, the earlier he'll see you, he found. Even Washington officials think little of scheduling a breakfast conference at 7 a. m. or an important meeting at 9 p.m.

The right to arrive at the office at 10 a.m. is no longer a status symbol, he discovered.

How To Make A Million

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — When a young person has a really useful idea and takes it to a larger concern to make and promote, he is often discouraged when it is turned down. This is because the head of the company asks only two questions: (1) Is it a new idea? (2) Will it sell? Unless it passes both tests, the big company will not bother with it. However, there is always an opportunity for a young person with selling ability and persistence to start his own business.

THE GERBER PRODUCTS COMPANY

When I was a young man, my wife cooked certain foods which she gave to our baby daughter during the weaning period. Only within the last forty years has anyone manufactured "baby foods" to save the housewife work. A young man named Gerber, when graduating from Babson Institute, told me that his family was interested in this idea. Soon he went to Fremont, Michigan and developed the sales of the business.

The big food companies began to compete with him. He, however, with persistence and enthusiasm, kept ahead of them. Today "Gerber Baby Foods" are known all over the U. S. and in many European countries. The big food concerns had had generations to manufacture baby foods, but it took Daniel F. Gerber to make a million from this idea.

A FISH CHOWDER IDEA

Being a Gloucester boy, I always like a chowder every Friday made from haddock. Today, this haddock must be caught, iced, and brought into Gloucester. There it is filleted. These fillets contain only 40 per cent of the food value; the head, skin, and bones make up the other 60 per cent. These fillets are frozen or canned to sell for making fish chowder. Someday some young person will capitalize on the idea of grinding up the entire fish and making "condensed" fish, just as Mr. Borden made the first condensed milk. Instead of having only 40 per cent of the nutrient it will have the entire 100 per cent. When I speak to my Gloucester friends about this they reply: "We are too busy with frozen and canned fish; let some young person make this into a million-dollar business."

Every reader of this column should have a little stock in one of the drug companies which are working on two wonder chemicals — D. N. A. and R. N. A. Many chemists believe they will lengthen the normal life span many years and perhaps sometime create life itself. The drug companies are also working on a pill which will improve the intellect, the judgment, or the memory of a person. I am certain that our present methods of education will be revolutionized by these new drugs. Here is another opportunity for a young person to make a million.

SELLING WOOD FOR FOOD

At present, only termites and a few other animals can digest the cellulose of the millions of square miles of trees now in our forests. The Hercules Powder Company is dissolving this cellulose into a liquid that humans can digest. This will be the basic of a great new industry. Wise is the young person who becomes an expert on cellulose.

I once asked Thomas A. Edison what he would like to do if he had all the time he needed. He replied: "Make a cold light. My incandescent light consumes too much electircity as heat. I hate to think of the firefly being able to do something that man cannot do!" He was also much interested in birds. He said: "Birds are the only natural resource (other than gravity) that has not been harnessed. The land, water, sun, forests. . .all are the foundation of great industries." He believed that someday birds will be trained to forecast the weather and do other wonderful things. No large companies will bother this, but it offers great opportunities for young people.

AUTOMATION AND ELECTRONICS?

I have not discussed these two subjects because they are so publicized in magazines and on the stock exchange. I am interested only in new ideas which will develop into "b i g money" for those with courage and ability. I like to call them our "sleeping giants."

It would be unfair for me to close without referring (again) to a book entitled "IDEAS" by

West German And U.S. Berlin Differences Ease

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States and West German differences narrowed today the area of negotiation open to Secretary of State Dean Rusk in starting a new round of Berlin settlement talks with the Soviet Union.

U.S. officials here and in Bonn were reported striving to win full approval from West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to four major negotiating proposals circulated to allied governments by Rusk last week.

Adenauer continued to oppose strenuously any offer of a concession to the Russians, which in his view would move toward recognition of the Communist East German government.

Washington officials declined comment on a story published today by the Washington Post that the United States had proposed its allies that Western troop strength in West Berlin be reduced if this would contribute to getting a settlement with the Soviet Union on Berlin.

The Berlin garrison totals some 12,500 troops of which over half are American. The Post story, by Flora Lewis under a Bonn dateline, said the reported offer would bring this down to about 3,000 each from the three occupying powers.

Such a reduction would call withdrawal of a little more than 50 per cent of U.S. forces now in Berlin, withdrawal of a few hundred British troops and an increase in the French garrison.

The talks opening here today between Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin were scheduled for midafternoon. Rusk's previous round of discussions with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Geneva ended three weeks ago.

The Rusk-Gromyko talks failed to break the long East-West deadlock over Berlin, but were followed by a sharp decline in East-West tensions. The Soviets stopped harassing Western aircraft in the corridors between Berlin and West Germany and joined in a new agreement to improve relations between the U.S. and Soviet military missions in West and East Germany.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, back here last week to resign his position as President Kennedy's personal representative in West Berlin, said the easing of tensions had improved the possibility of an East-West agreement.

Clay returned to the German city Sunday to wrap up his affairs. He reassured West Berliners that the United States has never been more strongly pledged to their defense. He reemphasized that if another emergency developed he would return immediately to Berlin.

Undersecretary of State George Ball said in an interview Sunday that Rusk in his talks with Soviet leaders, is probing the possibilities for some kind of live-and-let-live understanding between Washington and Moscow over Berlin.

Questioned on a television program—ABC "Issues and Answers"—Ball deplored reports of U.S.-West German differences and said:

1. Any proposals which Rusk makes to Dobrynin in their new round of talks "will have the support of the West German government—there is no doubt of that."

2. Issues up for U.S.-Soviet consultation "are not matters on which there is any disagreement among us."

3. The United States has "no thought of recognizing the East German government."

American Influence In Britain Worries Some

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Many things American are seeping into Britain —dollars, hot dogs and hamburgers, bowling, supermarkets, juke boxes and slot machines, chrome-jawed automobiles, gadgetry, the installment plan.

American investors control or own outright nearly 500 important firms. American business has invested $2.8 billion in this compact little isle no bigger than Illinois. Every year an additional $420 million comes in.

The government Board of Trade estimates the investment may be 15-17 per cent of total British capital investment. It is slightly less than British investment in the United States, but most British interest is in securities, not management control.

All this is alarming to some Britons, among them the writer of a new book called "The American Invasion." He is Francis Williams, a former editor who knows the United States well.

Quoting one authority as saying five per cent of the goods produced by British workers comes from American-owned plants, Williams asks: "Must we become Americans to save Western civilization? Need alliance involve occupation?"

Reviewing the book, the Sunday Times commented: "The whole subject of American influence in Britain tends to raise prejudices; many people critize something as 'typically American' when they are merely offended by an inevitable consequence of the mass production of modern society. They forget that modernization is bound to have an American accent."

But to some British people, the book seems frightening.

Williams, 61, author and television commentator, former editor of the Daily Herald and the Labor weekly Forward, was controller of news and censorship in the Ministry of Information for four years in World War II and for two years after the war was Prime Minister Clement Attlee's public relations adviser.

Discussing his book in an interview, Williams said: "The American investment is mainly in consumer industries and the frightening thing is the way that the U.S. consumer industries, as a necessary part of their growth, have created a particular kind of U.S. consumer.

"I do not think he could be transplanted here without changing the whole British character and attitude—sometimes in ways that could only bring trouble."

He said he is appalled when he visits the United States by the spread of the installment plan—"even sensible professional people have their entire salaries budgeted not months but years ahead and cheerfully leave themselves only a handful of small change in hard cash."

'Obedient' Dog Has Run Away

LONDON (AP)—Sybil Zablosky paid 50 pounds—$140—to give her Alsatian dog Kim three months of obedience training. He graduated with honors.

Mrs. Zablosky reported Sunday that her educated dog was lost. She said he ran away while she was taking him home from the obedience school and ignored her shouts to return.

Poet Robert Frost Voices His Opinions

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Frost arched his bushy white brows, tossed his white-maned head, and proclaimed:

"There's more poetry outside of verse than in, more religion outside of church than in and more love outside of marriage than in."

The salty-tongued 88-year-old poet made the remark Sunday while reading chapter and verse on a whole variety of topics before a group gathered to do him honor.

Frost was honored by a Manhattan branch of the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Association as "America's leading poet, one who speaks with a clear strong voice of strength and compassion."

At the gathering afterward, Frost spoke with a clear strong voice of strength and compassion.

On charges that America is becoming soft: "There is nothing so gentle as strength."

On why he left Harvard: "I didn't want to be a good writer 'considering you're a freshman,' 'considering you're a sophomore,' 'considering you're a junior' I wanted to be a good writer, sink or swim."

"On leadership: "You have to find a person that is a little high-handed, a little outrageous and one who will take the hint from the people."

Frost, who read some of his poetry at President Kennedy's inauguration, was full of praise for the President as a man who has "some poetry in him."

Referring to his own definition of leadership, the poet said Kennedy has a little of the required "outrageous ingredient" in him.

Asked how he felt about Kennedy's handling of the proposed rise in steel prices, Frost grew exuberant.

"Didn't he do a good one—didn't he show the Irish all right? Somebody's got to get angry. He got mad. He behaved as I like to see a man. It was some natural anger, not posed for the camera. It was real indignation that the whole country sympathized with."

Frost, who celebrated his 88th birthday last month, said he did not intend to celebrate another birthday until he reaches 90.

He explained that he likes round numbers—80, 90, 100, adding: "What sense is there in 88?"

CHAPTER 7

Twenty-three convicts who were being sent off to spend terms of seven years or longer as indentured servants in the New World were crowded into the forward hold of the little brig Lilian Rose.

Benjy Flaherty, who had received a sentence more severe than he had anticipated, was delighted that he and Hugh Spencer would make the voyage together, and spoke enthusiastically of the bright future that awaited them. But Hugh could not share his optimism, and spared the counterfeiter's feelings by refraining from explaining that, while Benjy had always led a precarious life on the ounter fringe of respectable society, he himself had been stripped of his privileges and ruined.

When he had been stationed in the colonies as an officer, he had been a frequent guest of the leading families of New York, but he was returning as a penniless criminal outcast. He had seen indentured servants in the homes of some of the wealthy merchants, and had been shocked by the callous brutality and indifference that supposedly civilized people had displayed toward them.

Bonded servants were no better than African slaves in the opinion of their masters, and although they theoretically earned their freedom in time, Hugh was convinced he would spend the rest of his days in bondage.

Even if he were granted a credit of fifty pounds per year in return for his services, he would be forced to work for more than forty years before he could pay off the exorbitant price of more than two thousand pounds that the crown was asking from prospective bondholders.

His ever-present feeling of frustration contributed to his gloom too, and the knowledge that he was being forced to endure hardship because of the criminal activities of others continued to infuriate him.

It was difficult for him to believe that the lovely girl who had called herself Sara Dean would have wanted him to suffer so ignominiously, but he could find no excuse for her shameless trickery, and his last hope of finding her died when he was rowed out to the Lilian Rose, which rode at anchor in the Thames.

After the first few days at sea, however, Hugh's outlook began to improve. He was young and healthy and the salt air sharpened his appetite. The crown bailiffs who were in charge of the prisoners had learned through experience that they obtained a higher price for indentured servants who looked strong, so the felons were given ample quantities of bread and beef, salted fish and pickled pork.

They were allowed to spend part of each day in the open on a portion of the aft deck, so they could acquire sun tans, and Hugh, more cheerful in spite of his bleak predicament, began to take a greater interest in Benjy's conversation.

"I've always wanted to go to America," the counterfeiter said eagerly. "After my indenture ends, I'll be rich."

He could look forward to a short period of servitude, as the small price of one hundred and seventy-five pounds had been set on his head by the court, but his assumption that he would earn a fortune was puzzling.

"Don't believe the stories you've heard about the colonies," Hugh told him, amused. "You won't catch beaver in the streets of Boston and New York, and you won't find diamonds and rubies in farmers' fields."

Benjy chuckled and looked out at the rolling sea. "There's gold and silver in America, and I'll be satisfied to stuff my pockets with either. I'm not interested in beaver pelts, and I don't plan to waste my time looking for gems."

"You won't find gold and silver, I'm afraid," Hugh said. "I hate to discourage you, Benjy, but I've traveled through all of the colonies except Georgia and the Carolinas, and I've seen no more silver and gold there than you'd find in London."

The little man ran a hand through his sparse hair and laughed slyly. "Your trouble, Hugh, is that you didn't know where to search. You were raised as a gentleman, you see, so you didn't bother to get down on your hands and knees. But the wealth is there, waiting to be taken, all the same." Several other prisoners were standing a few feet away at the rail, so he lowered his voice. "I've seen samples of the ore, so to speak."

Hugh thought he had lost his reason.

"'Don't stare at me that way. I'm talking about money. Every last one of the colonies prints its own currency, and I've never seen more miserable, clumsy, slipshod work in my life."

"I think I'm beginning to understand," Hugh said slowly.

"Amateur counterfeiters make so much in America they can retire after a few years, I'm told. And professional men, like me, who really know what we're doing, can live in luxury for the rest of our lives. The easiest bills to copy," he added, "are the Rhode Island on-pound notes and the Connecticut ten shilling notes. The New Jersey and New York money is a bit more complicated, and the paper is a better grade, but there aren't any real problems copying their currency. As to coins, I can't wait to make some molds. They're all very crude and inferior."

In the days that followed he talked frequently about the techniques he intended to employ, and Hugh, with nothing else to occupy his mind, listened and learned. Amateurs, Benjy told him scornfully, made the mistake of trying to pass coins they had just manufactured without aging them, and therefore risked being caught. He never made such a stupid error himself, he declared.

Some of his colleagues liked to boil their coins in concentrated coffee, but only a few who possessed a special sense of timing could manage the trick successfully. All too frequently, he said, the outer silver shell fell away after several minutes of immersion in boiling liquid.

He preferred to fry his coins lightly in bacon grease and then let them dry in the open air for a day or two. When a little dirt was then rubbed on them to remove the last traces of grease, they looked as though they had been passed from hand to hand and wallet to wallet for years.

Counterfeiting was forgotten when, after five weeks at sea, the Lilian Rose reached Philadelphia. Hugh knew the city but had no chance to see it, for the prisoners were marched off under a strong guard to a barracks near the markets behind High Street Hill. More than two hundred and fifty convicts who had been sent from England were gathered there, the majority of them criminals with long records.

The sale of crown prisoners was always an important event in the colonies, and citizens who were willing to risk taking convicted felons into their homes or businesses paid much less than those who dealt with private traders.

Owners of plantations, textile mills, and large farms came from all of the thirteen colonies to Philadelphia for the widely advertised semiannual sale, which was held on the last three days of August.

In the meantime the prisoners were fed large quantities of potatoes, rice, and inexpensive cuts of meat, were forced to exercise daily, and were examined regularly by physicians who had come to the New World from London in order to help obtain the highest possible price for the convicts.

Alcoholism Also Hits Communists

NEW YORK (AP)—Communist nations are having problems with alcoholism—what they have denounced in the past as a purely capitalist disease—the National Council on Alcoholism was told.

R. Brinkley Smithers, council president, said Friday that, during the past year or two, indications of the growing problem of alcoholism have come from behind the iron curtain.

As an example, Smithers said, a European conference on alcoholism is scheduled for Warsaw, Poland, in June and it will take up such questions as "the problem of alcoholism in Poland," and "alcoholism problems in transport and industry."

Pirates Split Doubleheader With Appalachian

Outland Pitches ECL Team To Second Win

Haywood Outland hurled a no-hitter for Greenville's Eastern County League baseball team yesterday defeating Leggett for the second time this season 10-0.

The contest was scheduled as a doubleheader, but due to rain and cold weather only one game was played.

The Greenville club picked up one run in the first, four in the second and third and one in the fourth inning.

The winning pitcher, Outland, allowed no hits, walked two and struck out seven during the contest. Losing pitcher, Micky Tew, allowed nine hits, walked three and struck out three. All 10 of the Greenville runs were earned

Tom Boyd led Greenville at the plate for the second time this year with two hits in three trips. He also connected for his second homer of the season with the bases loaded, picking up four of the winning runs.

Brownie Tripp also aided the Greenville scoring when he tripled in the second frame driving in Boyd, Winfield Tingle and J. C. Hamill for three runs. Tripp scored on a single by Beasley Jones.

The run in the first frame was made by Tingle when he walked and went the rest of the way on a fielder's choice and a single by B. Tripp and Earl Tripp respectively.

The fourth inning run for Greenville was picked up when Jones walked, Ron Shoup hit a double and Hamill was hit by the pitcher.

The next game for Greenville will be a doubleheader at Hobgood on April 22.

HURLS ONE-HITTER . . . East Carolina's Tommy Norman was winning pitcher for Bucs in first half of doubleheader with Appalachian.

GRANITE FALLS — The East Carolina baseball Pirates split a doubleheader here Saturday with conference foe Appalachian with the Bucs winning the first game 11-1 and the Apps coming out on top in the second contest 11-5.

The games were played here because of the high winds which were blowing in Boone, Appalachian's home town.

Tom Norman was the winning pitcher for East Carolina throwing a one-hitter, striking out five and walking two.

The Bucs picked up three runs in the first inning, one in the second, fourth, fifth, sixth and four runs in the seventh.

Centerfielder Bobby Joyce connected for two homeruns in the contest, one a solo and the other accounting for three of the Pirate runs. Lacy West and Charlie Johnson also were a big help to East Carolina in the homer department with one each.

In the second contest the Pirates had a tough time when Appalachian put seven runners across the plate to take the lead in the fifth frame.

East Carolina held the lead 4-3 when the bottom of the fifth began, but the margin was short lived. Appalachian picked up the seven runs off four hits and three errors.

Nathan Greene hurled the first four and a half innings of this contest before Coach Jim Mallory relieved him with Pete Barnes. However, Barnes was taken out in the sixth and Robert Lumpkin finished the game.

The Pirate pitching staff allowed 11 hits, walked four and struck out three during the second game. The winning pitcher for Appalachian was Bill Church who gave up nine hits, struck out six and walked none.

The big hitter for East Carolina was shortstop Carlton Barnes with five hits in seven trips, bringing in three runs during the two games.

East Carolina was scheduled to play Catawba today and Pfeiffer tomorrow before returning to Greenville. However, their next home game is not until April 25 when they host High Point.

Casper Rallies To Edge Souchak By One In GGO

By KEN ALYTA

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — "The Lord has been good to me this year," sighed bulky Bill Casper. He had just picked up $5,300 first money by one shot over sagging Mike Souchak in the Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament Sunday.

In a finish reminiscent of Casper's come from behind charge on the closing holes three weeks ago at Miami, Fla., the Apple Valley, Calif., professional squeezed through by a stroke after being three down with six holes to play.

He shot a final-round 68, three under par, for a 275 total. Souchak, out in the tournament's best nine, 31, took 38 coming back for 69 and 276. He won $3,400.

Capser played the last four holes in even fours, against muscular Mike's 5-5-5-4.

"It's a crazy game," summed up Casper, who now has won $22,600 on tour this year and finished in the top five, winning twice, in five of the 10 tournaments he was entered. Both he and Souchak are in the Houston (Tex.) Classic beginning Thursday.

Redoubtable Sam Snead closed with 69 for third place at 278, winning $2,200. He has won over $25,000 here since taking the inaugural Greensboro tournament in 1938. In all, he has won seven times and been second or third on eight occasions.

Billy Maxwell was alone in fourth at 282 to win $1,900.

Masters champion Arnold Palmer, hampered by rallying from a second day 76, tacked a 69 onto his third-round 68 for 284 and a fifth-place tie with Mason Rudolph to win $1,600 and boost his top earnings for the year to $37,000, about $14,000 ahead of runnerup Casper.

The 7,000-yard Tedgefield Country Club course was swept by a cold wind that at times reached guests of 30 miles an hour. The temperature never got out of the mid-40s. Only seven of the 68 last-day players broke par, with Casper's 68 the best score of the day. He and Souchak were the only men to break par 71 every day.

But Sunday Casper was three down with six to go to a seasoned campaigner, Souchak. And Mike's eye-popping first nine gave no sign that a collapse was imminent.

Going out Souchak had the thousands in the crowd of 12,000 following him in an uproar on almost every hole. He had four birdies and an eagle, the product of fine putting, good drives and crisp iron play. His first bad hole was the eighth, when he missed the green, chipped poorly and had to sink a five-foot put to escape with a bogey five.

But on the last four holes all sorts of difficulties beset Mike.

"Two miserable second putts" meant three-put greens. He put a ball in a creek to double bogey these short 16th and on the final hole his seven-foot putt, stroked well, halted tantalizingly one turn from dropping for a tie.

Casper, calling his play the best of the tournament, reported four missed greens and 29 putts. He bogeyed the 16th hole, being forced to can a six-footer to escape Souchak's double bogey fate, and he parred in the last two holes to nail it down.

George Toms of Durham, N.C., eagled No. 18 to score 77 and win amateur honors with a 298 total. Bill Harvey of Greensboro won a two-hole playoff with Bobby Loy of Virginia Beach, Va., to take second honors. Loy, leader through three rounds, bogeyed the last five holes to come home in 80.

It happened 100 YEARS ago

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862 . . . the same year that

IN NORTH CAROLINA arrangements were made to transfer the Confederacy's naval ordnance center from Norfolk to Charlotte because of inland safety and good railroad to Wilmington. North Carolinians saluted this new commerce with glasses of beer.

For even then, beer was North Carolina's traditional beverage of moderation. Beer still provides enjoyment for North Carolinians, and a good living for many of them — not only the employees of the Brewing Industry itself, but also for North Carolina farmers and other suppliers of the materials brewers use.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

Slumbering Giants Now Awake

OUT AT THE PLATE——Umpire John Pryor starts to change hand signal from call of 'Out' to call for assistance as Chicago Cubs catcher Moe Thacker writhes on ground and St. Louis Cardinals Doug Clemons lies face down in the dirt. Both players were knocked out after a rough collision at the plate. Neither required hospitalization but both had to leave game. (AP Wirephoto)

Associated Press Sports Writer

Cincinnati's Frank Robinson and Milwaukee's Henry Aaron, a pair of slumbering Giants, awoke with a roar Sunday and as a result the Reds and Braves were breathing a little easier today.

The Braves won their first game of the year, beating the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3, and the Reds snapped a five-game losing streak, inflicting the first defeat upon the San Francisco Giants, 4-3. Bob Purkey, only Cincinnati pitcher to win so far, registered his second triumph.

In the only other National League game, Pittsburgh defeated New York 7-2. Rain forced the postponement of the second game of the scheduled Pirates-Mets doubleheader.

Rain also wiped out the scheduled doubleheader between Houston and the Phillies in Philadelphia. Cold weather was responsible for calling off the single contest scheduled between St. Louis and the Cubs in Chicago.

Los Angeles' Angels took over first place in the American League, defeating Minnesota 6-3. Chicago's White Sox whipped Kansas City 8-3 and Baltimore split a doubleheader with Boston. The Orioles won the first game 5-1 and the Red Sox took the second 5-4.

Through the first six games, opposing pitchers had held Robinson, the National League's Most Valuable Player last year, to four hits in 24 times at bat and no runs batted in. The Reds lost five of the first six. Robby drove in his first run and scored another in the Reds' one-run triumph over the Giants.

Furthermore, he saved Bob Purkey's triumph with two brilliant fielding plays. Robinson left two Giants stranded in the fourth inning with a two-out, backhand, somersaulting catch of Jimmy Davenport's fly to the right center field fence. In the sixth, he raced to the right field foul line to snare another extra-base bid by Davenport.

Aaron's plight was even worse than that of Robinson. Henry had been held to one hit in 18 tries after five games. The Braves lost all five. He smashed three hits, one home run, Sunday and drove in two runs to lead the Braves' 10-hit attack against loser Sandy Koufax and Pete Richert.

Bob Hendley, a southpaw, went the route for Milwaukee, yielding five hits and striking out eight. Richert, who fanned the first six batters he faced in a relief role for the Dodgers last week, added five more strikeouts in his two-inning relief stint.

A five-run third, climaxed by Smoky Burgess' three-run homer, gave Pittsburgh's Bob Friend his second victory. The veteran right-hander gave up six Met hits, two of them home runs by Felix Mantilla and Jim Marshall. Roger Craig, for the second time, failed to go beyond the third inning and absorbed his second loss.

The Mets, who have lost all four games, had a 2-0 lead in the last half of the third when the rains came. Young Bob Miller held the Pirates to two singles in his three-inning stint.

Virginia Opens With Clemson

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The University of Virginia makes its belated debut into 1962 Atlantic Coast Conference baseball action in a big way today — with a double-header against second-ranked Clemson.

The entry was delayed by rain, which caused the postponement of three games against Clemson, including a double-header, and one against South Carolina.

Coach James West's Cavaliers have lost all four of their early non-conference games.

Meanwhile, Clamson has won two and lost one of its conference games, and is 5-3 overall.

In the only other game involving an ACC team today, last-ranked Maryland entertains non-conference Georgetown.

South Carolina and Wake Forest are leading the ACC with 2-0 records. Duke (2-2) is behind Clemson in third place, followed by N. C. State (1-1), Virginia, North Carolina (0-2) and Maryland (0-3).

Here is the rest of this week's schedule:

Tuesday — N. C. State at North Carolina, Maryland at Navy, Duke at Wake Forest.

Wednesday — Virginia at Virginia Tech.

Thursday — Florida State at Clemson, Wake Forest at Furman.

Friday — Maryland at North Carolina, Virginia at N. C. State, Florida State at Duke, Wake Forest at Clemson.

Saturday — Virginia at North Carolina, Wake Forest at South Carolina, Mayland at N. C. State, Florida State at Duke, Clemson at Georgia Tech.

Schwall Free Of Sophomore Jinx

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sophomore jinx? Boston's Don Schwall isn't having any, thank you, though the figures show otherwise.

"Nonsense," the 1961 American League Rookie of the Year shrugged after his second straight loss Sunday, 5-1 to the Orioles in the first game of a doubleheader at Baltimore. The Red Sox won the second 5-4.

"I don't believe in any jinx," the tall right-hander said. "I know that sometimes you get more breaks than others. Over a full season, they usually even up for everyone."

He hasn't had much help so far this season. Schwall, who had a 15-7 record with the sixth-place Red Sox last season, was beaten 4-0 in the opener this year. Army Pvt. Steve Barber handcuffed Boston Sunday.

Los Angeles' surprising Angels gained sole control of the top spot at the end of the first week's play, taking the Twins 6-3 at Minnesota. Chicago blasted the A's 8-3 at Kansas City. New York at Detroit was postponed by cold weather, and the Washington at Cleveland doubleheader was postponed because of snow.

In the National League, Milwaukee won its first game of the year, beating the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3. Cincinnati snapped a five-game losing string and handed San Francisco its first loss, 4-3. Pittsburgh defeated New York 7-2. Rain forced postponement of the second game of the scheduled Pirate-Mets doubleheader, and also washed out the Houston at Philadelphia doubleheader. St. Louis at Chicago was called off because of cold weather.

Only rampaging rookie Rich Rollins bothered Los Angeles' Eli Grba. Rollins, who is hitting .533, accounted for all the Twins runs with a three-run homer, his third, in the ninth. Bulky Steve Bilko crashed two homers and Leon Wagner one for the Angels as they took a half-game lead atop the standings. Grba allowed nine hits, but was supported by four double plays.

Schwall allowed only three hits and struck out eight in seven innings, but was plagued with lack of control, walking seven. Jack Brandt drove in three Oriole runs.

Two on a double in the first. That was all the margin Barber, on a weekend pass from Ft. Bragg, N.C., needed. He spaced eight hits as the Red Sox left 12 on base.

A bad-hop single by Carl Yastrzemski, driving in two runs in a four-run fourth inning, was the key to Boston's nightcap victory. Yaz also cut down the tying run with a perfect throw to the plate as Brandt tried to score from first on a bases-loaded double by Charlie Lau in the seventh.

Calen Cisco got the victory, but needed help from Dick Radatz. Billy Hoeft was the loser.

Spray-hitting Jim Landis turned slugger in his first start of the season for the White Sox and led them past Kansas City. Landis lashed two homers and drove in four runs, all that pitcher Juan Pizzaro needed. Pizzaro went the distance, spreading six hits, for his second win.

Fires Record In Bowling Tourney

DES MOINES, Iowa. (AP) — Ray Bluth of St. Louis fired a record 1051 total for four games, including a 300 opening score, Sunday night in his first match of the American Bowling Congress Masters Tournament finals.

Bluth, the 1959 champion, came back with a 279 score in his second game, then added 227 and 245 to defeat Pie Treybig, Houston, who rolled 777.

Bluth's 300 game, his sixth in sanctioned competition and first in a tournament, was the first in a Masters final. Al (Bud) Horn of Los Angeles rolled the first perfect game in a Masters last year. His came in qualifying play.

The previous four-game record for a singles tournament was 1026 by Ed Kawolics, Chicago, in 1946 in the Petersen Classic. Bob Nickel, Toledo, held the old four-game record of 1039 for match competition. He shot it Oct. 28, 1956.

Colonials To Host Citadel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Washington's baseball team was to entertain The Citadel today at the start of a week offering the Colonials a chance to establish themselves as a Southern Conference championship contender.

The Colonials, 4-1 over-all, 1-0 in the conference, and owners of a four-game winning streak, have three league games this week and with a sweep can do no worse than tie for the conference lead.

After this afternoon's tussle with The Citadel (0-2 in the league and 3-4 against all comers), GW moves to Virginia Tech (0-1, 3-2) on Friday and to Davidson (0-2, 2-10) on Saturday.

Last week's rain-abbreviated action saw Furman (2-0, 6-3) clumb to the top of the standings, followed by GW Richmond (1-0) and West Virginia's defending Champions (1-0). VMI (2-1) is fifth and dangerous.

William and mary knocked off VMI's erstwhile leaders, 7-5, in 10 innings Saturday.

Richmond made its conference debut last week in a 9-5 win at The Citadel, but West Virginia looked more stunning in a 6-1 win over The Citadel at Morgantown Saturday.

Non - conference games last week found Virginia Tech downing Wake Forest 7-2; George Washington routing Georgetown 9-3; and Furman defeating Newberry 5-2. West Virginia, however, bowed to Salem 3-1.

A conference doubleheader sending Davidson to Virginia Tech Saturday was postponed because of cold weather.

GW's game with The Citadel was one of three on today's card. William and Mary was at Virginia Tech in another conference test, and West Virginia played host to non-conference Bethany College.

Molina Learned Some Things He Didn't Know

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Just how much knowledge lightweight Luis Molina absorbed in his bruising lesson from clever veteran Kenny Lane could determine how far the younger San Jose slugger goes in boxing.

"His left-handed style bothered me," the 23-year-old ex-Marine admitted readily after Lane scored a unanimous 10-round decision victory Saturday night at Civic Auditorium with a nationwide television audience.

"I learned some things I didn't know before," he said.

Lane, 30, who controlled the fight, quickly agreed to a rematch for an outdoor show in June.

Molina had run up 19 straight victories without defeat, 15 of them knockouts, since turning pro in 1959. Lane fought him as a matador maneuvering a bull. He kept away from the power while stabbing telling combinations.

Kenny circled away from the big punches, ducking or dancing back in a classic boxing exhibition. The Muskegon, Mich., southpaw who won his 70th pro fight against 11 losses and 12 draws, weighed 138½ to 137¼ for the stockier hometown favorite.

"I wasn't in trouble at any time," Lane said, despite a slash over his left eye that bled from the eighth round.

"He is the type of puncher you can see a long way."

Lane opened a cut under the San Jose fighter's left eye in the fifth round and by the seventh Luis was bruised under both eyes.

Referee Jack Downey and judge Elmer Costa each scored 7-2 for Lane, giving Molina only the second and eighth rounds. Judge Fred Bottaro had it 5-3, and The Associated Press 6-2.

Although the partisan crowd of 2,403 that paid a gross of $13,626 cheered for Molina throughout, there was no booing the decision.

Promoter Abe Aquistapace, who figures to stage the rematch, said each fighter received about $7,000.

East-West Grid Game Set Aug. 2

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — The all-star football game played between East and West teams during the Coaches' Clinic here will be played the night of Aug. 2, a Thursday, instead of the following night as previously planned.

The change, approved last week by directors of the games, was explained as desirable to avoid conflict with the televised college all-star game, and to speed up clinic events during the rest of the week.

John Mathis of Jonesville was named as West basketball coach to replace George Powell of Charlotte Mayers Park, who is leaving the coaching profession. Mathis asked more time to choose his squad. East Coach Don Packard said he has all but one of his 10 players picked. Squads will be announced later.

Billy Moran, infielder for the Los Angeles Angels, studies industrial management at Georgia Tech during the off season.

Frank Minkl, is only 5-feet-7 and 165 pounds. He's a Notre Dame halfback from Vandergrift, Pa.

Tennessee Cage Coach Resigns

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — John Sines has resigned as University of Tennessee basketball coach.

Sines, who had held the position for the past three years, handed in his resignation Sunday.

Sines said he has accepted a position with a mutual investment firm.

"I've been coaching since I graduated from Purdue in 1938," Sines said, "and I have no more security now than I had when I started. When this business opportunity outside coaching came along, it was too good for me to turn down."

Lakers Could Win It Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Cautious Los Angeles casts a wary eye on history and the Boston Celtics tonight when the Lakers can wrap up the National Basketball Association playoff crown.

In an effort to save its trembling dynasty, Boston hints it will send defensive genius Bill Russell to play the great Elgin Baylor whose record 61 points Saturday night led Los Angeles to the championship threshold.

The Lakers outscored Boston 33-22 in the final period and pulled ahead 3-2 in the best-of-seven series with a 126-121 triumph.

"We had this same situation a year ago in the semifinals against St. Louis," Los Angeles coach Fred Schaus warned. "We led the series 3-2 going home, then dropped the next two and were eliminated."

Baylor's 61 points bettered the previous playoff final mark of 5 set by Bob Pettit against Boston four years ago.

For the tired Celtics, there is no tomorrow in their quest for an unprecedented fourth straight crown.

Plan Shakespearean Play In May Fine Arts Festival

Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice" will be presented at East Carolina College May 9, 10, and 11 as a special attraction of the 1962 Greenville Fine Arts Festival.

Produced by the East Carolina Playhouse under the direction of Dr. J. A. Withey, the comedy will have a cast of twenty-five students and faculty members, and a technical and production staff of approximately twenty people.

Performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Flanagan Sylvan Theatre on the West Campus and will be open to the public. Large audiences from Greenville and neighboring towns are expected to attend.

Mrs. Lois Garren of Greenville and Larry Griffin of Burlington will appear in the leading roles of Portia and Shylock.

Others having important parts in the Shakespearean drama are Cleveland J. Bradner of the faculty, Antonio, the Merchant; John Barrett of Greenville, Bassanio; Burke Stancil of Greenville, Gratiano; Barbara Lounsbury of Greenville and Wilmington, Jessica; Susanne Truesdale of Alexandria, Va., Nerissa; George A. Cook of the faculty, Launcelot Gobbo; and Lawrence Behr of Greenville, Lorenzo.

"The Merchant of Venice" is the fifth outdoor Shakespearean production to be staged at the college by the East Carolina Playhouse is recent years — "Macbeth" in 1956, "As You Like It" in 1957, "Romeo and Juliet" in 1959, and "Midsummer Night's Dream" in 1960.

Mrs. Garren, graduate student at the college, has appeared in major outdoor dramas, including "The Lost Colony" and "The Common Glory," and has acted with the Carolina Playmakers and in NBC productions. At East Carolina she played Juliet in the 1959 "Romeo and Juliet" and more recently had important roles in Terence Rattigan's "Separate Tables," Christopher Fry's "The Lady's Not for Burning," and Jean Anouilh's translation of "Antigone."

Griffin, graduate student in the Department of Music, as Shylock will have his first major role in a Playhouse production.

Assisting Dr. Withey in directing the play is Barbara Lounsbury of Greenville and Wilmington. William E. Rackley of Rt. 6, Goldsboro, is technical director; and William J. Weidenbacker of Scotch Plains, N. J., stage manager. Mrs. Betty Griffith of Greenville is choreographer for the production.

Brando Says Taxes Are Unfair; His 'Too Low'

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Marlon Brando has a timely tip for today: Taxes are unfair.

The thought may have occurred to you as you mailed a deadline check to Uncle Sam.

But Brando's viewpoint is different: He doesn't think he is taxed enough.

His comments just came out in the conversation on "The Ugly American" set.

"The whole tax setup is unfair," he mused. "It favors the rich guy. Anybody who is well enough off to set up a corporation doesn't have to pay the same taxes that the little guy does."

"Look at me," he said. "I don't know how I would be considered—rich, well-to-do or what. I've made a lot of money. The point is that I can keep what I make. That dough I made on 'Mutiny on the Bounty'—I just folded it into a paper airplane and sailed it to the oil fields. It was as simple as that."

"The principle, I suppose, is that the wealthy put their money back into industry and thus add to the general economy," he said. "All I know is that the little guy—the people I work with and friends of mine who aren't well off—can't save a dime."

Meanwhile, back at the studio, Brando is happily working in "The Ugly American," wearing a mustache and clothes made by President Kennedy's tailor. He plays the American ambassador to a Southeast Asian nation.

He says he is happy "because it's such a pleasure to be working in a picture which has a shooting schedule, a finished script and which you know you will be free of in nine weeks."

You may recall that his last film, "Bounty," was not so appointed. In fact, there have been reports that he will be asked to go back for yet some more retakes. Brando's comment on that cannot appear in family newspapers.

His future plans: "As soon as the picture is over, I am going down to the plastics institute and I am going to have them make a mold of my rear. Then I will have this mold built into a rocking chair and I am going to sit and rock for 10 years."

New Cigarettes 'Like A Bomb'

VIENNA (AP)— "It's like fireworks or the explosion of a plastic bomb."

A complaining Hungarian thus described a new brand of cigarettes in the Communist-ruled country, in a letter to the provincial newspaper Bekes Megyei Nepusjag.

"If you smoke it, ashes drop in all directions like lava after the eruption of a volcano," he wrote. Some cigarettes produce sparks like a magic candle.

"A few cigarettes of the brand deserve the name 'sleeper.' They go out so often. Sometimes it does not pay to re-light them."

Need New Dye To Color Oranges

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — The Florida citrus industry is looking for a new dye to color green and pale oranges.

"We're getting reports from markets that color-added oranges look tired and weak, and don't have the fresh appearance that naturally colored fruit have," William G. Strickland, general manager of the Florida Fresh Citrus Shippers Association, said Thursday.

About half of the 11 million boxes of oranges shipped from Florida last season were artificially colored.

Simple And Effective Technique In TV Story

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Producers of NBC's "Project 20" programs have developed a simple, dramatic and marvelously impressive technique for the re-telling of a great and familiar story.

In Sunday night's "He Is Risen," the story of the Crucifixion, the narration was appropriately in the soaring prose style of the King James version of the Bible. The visual portion consisted of color film of great religious paintings by artists of the Middle Ages and Renaissance.

The cameras, sometimes in closeups of faces, sometimes traveling slowly over a broad canvas sometimes showing the whole, moved the story inexorably from the return of Lazarus from the grave to the triumph of the Resurrection.

Seen through the eyes of the masters—Rembrandt, Titian, El Greco, Van Dyck, Rubens, to mention only a few—the Easter story had impact and power beyond mere dramatization by actors. Not the least fascinating aspect of the program was the varied ways in which the painters depicted Jesus—so many different faces—and yet all with the same sweet, spiritual quality.

To inject one critical note about a thoroughly praiseworthy undertaking: it did seem graceless of "Project 20" not to include even small credit lines identifying the old masters or a nod to Matthew, Mark Luke and John amid all the billboarding of producer, director, narrator and a long list of museums housing the unidentified art works.

"Action in New Orleans," was that rare television commodity, an original comedy, and it turned up on NBC's "Show of the Week" Sunday night.

This was a promising and jaunty little tale of a master con man, the "Alabama Wonder," and his attempts to swindle a lonesome and rich Ohio widow out of $70,000.

The action began entertainly enough, with Bob Cummings playing the confidence man setting up an elaborate plot to relieve the widow (Audrey Meadows) of her fortune by means of a phony stock deal.

But about half way through, the plot began to run out of gas. It was almost as if the author was trying to figure out some way—any way—to wind things up. Thus things got pretty confused in a noisy scene in a stockbroker's office with everybody shouting and running around.

Bob Cummings played the con man too briskly and with too much finger-snapping to be convincing and Audrey Meadows was much too hard-headed and sharp-tongued to be a gullible widow. But Frank McHugh was a delight as the Wonder's assistant, a role he has been playing in movies since the talkies were launched.

On Committee Of State Board

Dr. Douglas Jones, Director of the Department of Education at East Carolina College, has been appointed a member of a committee of the State Board of Education which will have as its purpose an examination of the curriculum area of the language arts.

Dr. I. E. Ready, Director of the Department of Curriculum, Study, and Research of the State Board, in requesting that Dr. Jones serve on the committee, explained the proposed examination as follows:

"The entire content, method, scope, and sequence of English language arts instruction in North Carolina public schools including but not limited to reading, will be the general field of study. . .

"The committee will be advisory in nature. Its recommendations will go to the State Board of Education."

Pitt County Tobacco Agent

A supply of healthy, vigorous tobacco plants will always be an important factor in securing a good stand at transplanting time. There are several pratices that the grower needs to follow to make reasonably sure the plants will stay healthy after they are transplanted in the field.

The tilth of the soil has a strong influence on qualities that make for a desirable cigarette tobacco. Just before the plants are to be set, go over the field with enough implements to get a well prepared soil.

It is not desirable to have a high concentration of fertilizer in immediate contact with the roots of the newly planted seedlings. Less fertilizer injury to the newly transplanted plants is usually observed when the fertilizer is applied in two bands about seven inches apart and at least two inches below the root crown. If hand placement equipment is not available, apply the fertilizer deep—six to ten inches in the row.

For best results, plants should be set when the soil is warm enough to provide good plant growth and when the chance of adequate rainfall is good. Plants pulled from a moist bed keep more of their roots than plants pulled from a dry bed; so, if the bed is dry when the time comes to pull plants, watering the bed would be very beneficial.

Water the bed again after pulling the plants—to settle the soil and wash dirt off of the plants left in the bed. Place plants root down in containers, and keep plants in shade and fresh until time for setting.

When transplanting the plants in the field, always make sure that the plants are placed firmly in the soil and that no air pockets are left around the roots. Loosely set plants do not grow off as well as those more firmly planted. Growers who are equipped to irrigate often get beneficial results from a light application of water at transplanting time.

Tobacco reaches a crucial stage at transplanting time. If a good stand is established, the chances for a good crop are excellent.

Over Half Of Pitt Farms Participate

Fifty-seven per cent of Pitt County farms participated in the Agricultural Conservation Program during 1961, according to the annual ACP report filed Friday by the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office.

The report said a total of 1,561 Pitt farms shared in the ACP funds, totaling $123,627 during 1961 for Pitt County. In filing the report, the ASC County Committee, administrating body for ACP, said the 1,561 figure represented the largest participation ever in Pitt.

Acres included in the program totaled 28,635. In addition, ACP funds were used in 85 pond projects. Of these, seven were livestock ponds while 78 were irrigation projects.

The committee noted that the number of farms has increased each year since ACP was created by Congress in 1933.

Livingston Roberts, manager of the Pitt ASCS office, said in announcing the report: "We are striving to an even higher per cent of farms participating in 1962."

He attributed the increase in participation to the "commendable work of the county committee, community committeemen, vendors and other agricultural agencies."

A breakdown of the report follows:

Rockefeller, Romney In Detroit Dinner Meeting

DETROIT, Mich. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York flew into Detroit Sunday night and played dinner host to George Romney.

Rockefeller was here to deliver an address today before the Economic Club of Detroit, but used the occasion to strengthen what had been only a casual acquaintance with the former American Motors Corp. president, who is now the Republican Party's most likely candidate for governor of Michigan.

The New York governor, Romney and two GOP national committeemen — John B. Martin of Michigan and George Hilman of New York — conferred for two hours over dinner in Rockefeller's hotel suite. Rockefeller is a potential candidate for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination.

Newsmen were excluded from the session, and Rockefeller had no comment on the meeting. Romney said later they discussed "mutual state problems."

"When Mr. Rockefeller ran for governor the key problem in New York was jobs," Romney said. "That is one of the key problems in Michigan today, so I was interested to hear what has been done in New York to change the economic climate."

BRANTLEY SPEIGHT presided over the regular April meeting of the Pitt County Soil and Water District Supervisors.

First on the agenda was a discussion of the shortage of technical personnel to render the services requested by our farmers It was pointed out that Pitt County farmers are above the average in using the soil and water conservation program.

Soil Stewardship Week, the week of May 27 through June 3, was discussed. The Supervisors are seeking the cooperation of all churches in the county. They want each minister to preach a sermon on soil stewardship.

Plans were made to contact the ministerial association and as many ministers as possible, and request cooperation. Booklets explaining the observance of Soil Week, will be given ministers desiring them.

An insert entitled "The Earth Is The Lord's" will be supplied for placing in the church programs on the Sunday of the Soil Stewardship sermon, if requested. Plans were made for at least one TV presentation during the week.

Those attending were District Supervisors Speight, Arch Flanagan, Hugh C. Winslow, Mrs. Clyde H. Wilson, clerk to the board, Roy Beck, work unit conservationist, Sam Winchester, county agriculture agent, Jesse C. Joyner, F. H. A. supervisor, and Connor Eagles, soil conservationist.

MEDIS TEEL said "My wife and I caught three bream weighing over three-quarters of a pound each, and a two-pound bass, yesterday after work". So he had proof that "they are biting", and he smacked his lips showing the good eating around his house.

Teel showed his pride in his pond, dug in the spring of 1958, in cooperation with the State Highway Commission. He wanted water for irrigating his tobacco; the highway department wanted the kind of soil he had. So a one-acre pond was dug. He and a soil conservationist planned it.

Teel stocked his pond in September with 500 fingerlings furnished by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service through the Soil Conservation District. In June, some 100 bass.

Teel set up a pond fertilization schedule. Beginning in March he uses 200 lbs. of 8-8-2 fertilizer each two weeks, until 1,200 lbs. have been applied. Some ponds require more fertilizer. In 1961 an acidity test showed the need for 300 lbs. of ground limestone, which he applied.

How often does he fish in his pond?

"It will average four times per week from March to October. My wife and I fish it that many times," he replied. "We permit our friends and our tenants to fish when they like, and many are the pleasant, restful moments passed on the banks watching for the bite," he continued.

Absolutely no swimming is allowed, he stated.

"We like to get in the boat and row out to the middle, or to the other side. It's so much fun and has been all these years, and has been worth so much when I used it for irrigating my tobacco. We no longer worry about the dry spells that so often come," said Teel.

"What would you take for your pond?" he was asked.

Medis looked startled that anyone would even ask such a question. "Why it's just not for sale," he said.

SOIL CONSERVATION Service Civil Engineer Joseph H. Williams, is working in Greenville this week preparing the preliminary report and design for Cannon-Baldwin Swamp Canal.

The Commission of Pitt County Drainage District 8, have paid the salary of Willie T. Phillips, district technician, for two months required to complete the preliminary field survey.

Phillips has been trained, equipped, and supervised by the Soil Conservation Service.

1961 Activities Reviewed In ASCS Annual Report

By JEAN DEAL
ASCS Office Clerk

Each year the Pitt ASCS County Office in Greenville prepares and distributes to interested persons an annual report which reflects the operation, progress and achievement of that office. The annual report for 1961 has just been completed, and the following facts will give a "birds-eye" view of information set forth in the 1961 annual.

The Administration of ASCS farm programs on the county level is the responsibility of the County Committee. The office manager is selected by the County Committee and is in charge of the day-to-day operations of the county office. He employs the personnel, consisting of assistant office manager, performance supervisor, 10 regular clerks, several temporary clerks for the heavy work season, and tobacco recorders at the warehouses in the fall. The office also employs a number of men for measuring land during the regular season.

Funds for the operation of this office are appropriated by Congress and allocated to the counties from the state level. This operating plan must be approved by the State Committee. The overall 1961 budget for the Pitt County office was $114,054.

The AC Program is a national program through which the government shares with the farmer the cost of soil and water conservation practices. In 1961 Pitt County shared in approximately $129,000 which was distributed to 1561 participating farms.

The 1961 cotton allotment for Pitt County was 8,974 acres. An additional 752.6 acres was received for adjustments, 20 acres for New Growers, and 10 acres for corrections — making a total of 9,004 acres of cotton.

Pitt County is the largest tobacco producing county in the state with an allotment of 25,180.65 acres on 2685 farms. On these farms a total of 49,232,326 lbs. was harvested with an average of 1967 lbs. per farm in 1961.

We have 852 farms with peanut allotments, amounting to 6,640.4 acres. Many farmers in Pitt County produce peanuts under the one-acre provision, whereby a farmer may plant one acre of peanuts if he does not share in peanuts on any other farm within the county or state.

Wheat was planted on 652 farms in Pitt County including allotted and non-allotted farms. Most producers perferred to plant wheat under the 15.0 acre provision which is not applicable for 1962. Now only farms with an allotment or a marketing quota exemption are allowed to plant wheat for harvest.

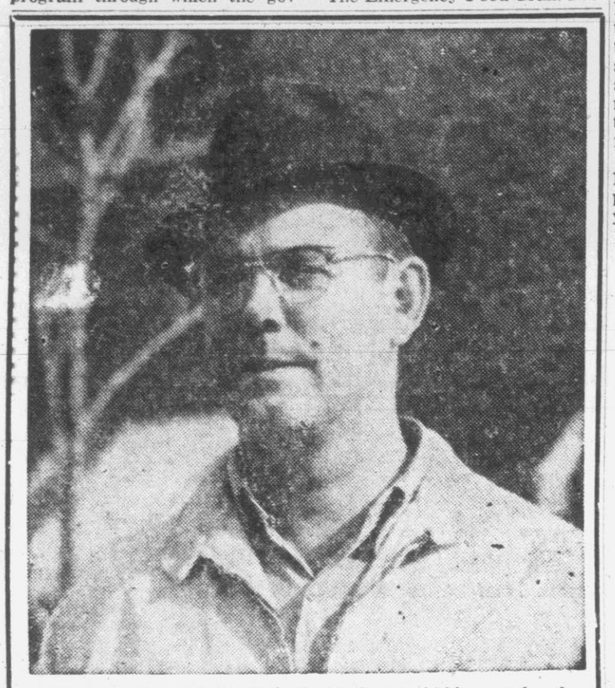
The Emergency Feed Grain Program was passed by Congress in March, 1961, and was designed to deplete the all-time high surplus of feed grains. This program provides for the voluntary reduction of corn and grain sorghum acreage from the 1959-60 base on individual farms. Pitt County farmers diverted 22,360 acres out of 85,849 base acres, for which they received a total payment of $720,787.

Price support guarantees farmers a minimum price for the commodities they produce. In order to obtain price support on some commodities, farmers must provide adequate and acceptable storage either on the farm or in an approved commercial warehouse. Loans up to 95 per cent of t' cost of storage facilities are available to farmers interested in providing their own storage on the farm. These loans are repayable in annual installments and bear interest at the rate ot four per cent per annum.

Performance is one of the most important functions of the Pitt County office. Acreage determinations are made by the use of aerial photographs. During the past year approximately 72 reporters measured 90,132 acres of allotted and diverted acres in about four weeks.

In conclusion I would like to quote these words from our 1961 annual report: "We can sincerely say that without the cooperation of our associate agencies in the department, the various news agencies, our fellow employees, and the county at large, we would not have been able to offer to the farmer the services which are rightfully his.

"To each and every farmer in Pitt County we would like to express our heartfelt thanks for your interest and cooperation. It is for you that we are endeavoring to administer the farm programs; we hope you have been pleased with the administration of your programs in 1961. In closing our report, we would like to dedicate our efforts anew to our task for 1962."



J. D. Hunt of Rt. 2, Oxford, N. C. got 2,504 pounds of high-quality tobacco per acre using Agrico fertilizer.

How I Raised My Best Tobacco Crop With Agrico

"FOR THE past few years I've used Agrico fertilizer and have had some excellent tobacco crops," says J. D. Hunt of Rt. 2, Oxford (Granville Co.), N. C. "Last year my tobacco topped all my previous efforts. I used 1,500 pounds of Agrico for Tobacco 3-9-9 per acre along the row. After some heavy rains early in the season, my Agrico-fertilized tobacco came back fast and made the highest quality and yield I have ever had.

"My crop averaged 2,504 pounds of leaf per acre and sold for an average of 71.64 per hundred, a total of $1,793.87 per acre. It was the best tobacco crop I have ever raised."

Sampler Offers Aid In Grading

ATLANTA — A pneumatic device for drawing peanut samples from truckloads of farmers' stock peanuts has been found to provide inspectors and graders much more accurate information on quality that hand samples, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture market researchers.

The pneumatic sampler uses air to draw the sample from the load of peanuts. The sampling probe consists of a three-inch tube mounted in the center of a four-inch tube.

Air is forced downward between the inner and outer tubes and is drawn back up the inner tube. This picks up peanuts and foreign material, allowing the probe to feed downward to the oad of peanuts.

IN REVERSE

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Charles R. Nohava, 13, took out a war surplus parachute he had bought to let it fill up in the breeze. A gust of 30 to 35 miles per hour caught it and lifted him 20 feet to the roof of his house, then dragged him into electric power lines where he hung suspended before dropping to the ground. He was treated for electric shock in the Naval Hospital at Portsmouth.

In the soil it becomes a potent gas which kills rootknot and other harmful nematodes. Economical, too, one treatment lasts an entire season.

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels continued weak and the rest of the stock market edged irregularly lower in moderate trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .10 at 251.60 with industrials down .50, rails down .30 and utilities up .8.

Rescinding of the surprise $6-a-ton price increase for steel last week left the profit outlook dim for the steelmakers and they took sharp losses running to more than 2 points for some.

The crisis between the administration and the steel industry left the conviction that the inflationary spiral has been halted and that price gains in other industries may be hard to come by.

U.S. Steel, Republic, Jones & Laughlin, Inland and Lukens were all down 2 points or more while Bethlehem lost more than a point.

An early gain exceeding a point by Du Pont was erased and the stock showed a net loss of a point.

IBM canceled a 3-point rise and took a net loss exceeding 2. Other 2-point loers included Youngstown Sheet, Litton Industries, Texas Gulf Producing and Korvette.

Beckman Instruments fell about 4. Polaroid recovered more than a point and Xerox was up more than 2.

Ford was up a point and Chrysler a fraction while General Motors traded about unchanged.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 3.03 at 684.87.

Prices were irregular in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mostly higher. U.S. government bonds rose in quiet dealings.

A 47-year-old man is in Duke Hospital this morning after he was assaulted with a flat steel instrument during the weekend.

Deputy Duke Andrews identified the man as Hoppie Reese, Negro of Rt. 3, Washington. Reese lives between Pactolus and the county line, Andrews reported.

Being held in jail on an assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill charge is Reese's step son, Jesse Lee Jordan, 34-year-old Negro. He is being held without bond pending the outcome of Reese's condition.

Andrews said Reese suffered head and face injuries. He was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Rescue Squad and later transferred to Duke.

Members of the family told officers Reese had been drinking and threatened to kill those in the house. He went to another room and got a shotgun, officers were told. Jordan then allegedly knocked Reese to the floor and struck him on the head and face.

Deputies W. M. Forrest and M. B. Oakley investigated assisted by State Trooper H. R. Winslow.

Three Injured In Saturday Night Wreck

Near-30 Await Union Election

Approximately 30 plant workers at the Greenville branch of Carolina Telephone & Telegraph Co. will be eligible to vote in the upcoming union election called by the National Labor Relations Board.

The NLRB ordered the election after receiving a petition from the Communications Workers of America labor union, an AFL-CIO affiliate.

Carolina Telephone's main office in Tarboro received the NLRB decision and directive April 12. The action followed the petition and a hearing held before NLRB's regional director in Tarboro March 14.

Only Plant Department employes will be eligible voters in the election which is company-wide.

While a definite date for the vote has not yet been set, it is expected to come within the next 30 days. An official of the labor relations board will conduct the balloting.

Of the near-30 Greenville plant employes involved, some are stationed in Farmville, Ayden and Snow Hill.

At the March 14 hearing, company representatives contended that all eligible employes in all departments should have an opportunity to vote. The board, however, ruled that the election would be limited to eligible employes within the Plant Department.

ROUNDTABLES

Roundtables for cubbers and scouters are scheduled for Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in Greenville at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Pitt District officials have urged cubbers and scouters to attend the sessions.

Both Hamill and Mrs. Norville, as well as Oscar Lee Norville, a pasenger in the Norville vehicle, were treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for injuries received in the mishap.

The Hamill car, a 1955 model, was listed as a total loss and value placed at $500 while damage to the Norville auto was estimated to be about $1,500.

Driver Charged In Friday Mishap

Noah Junior Clark, 30-year-old Negro of Route 1, Tarboro, has been charged with failure to decrease speed to avoid a collision following investigation of a Friday collision at the intersection of Greene St. and Mumford Road.

Police said an estimated $500 damage resulted to the Clark car when it collided with the rear of an auto driven by James Roy Hudson Jr., 2703 Jefferson Dr.

An estimated $200 damage was done to the Hudson vehicle, police estimated.

MEN - WOMEN

from ages 18 to 52. Prepare now for U.S. Civil Service job openings in this area during the next 12 months.

Government positions pay as high as $446.00 a month to start. They provide much greater security than private employment and excellent opportunity for advancement. Many positions require little or no specialized education or experience.

But to get one of these jobs, you must pass a test. The competition is keen and in some cases only one out of five pass.

Lincoln Service helps thousands prepare for these tests every year. It is one of the largest and oldest privately owned schools of its kind and is not connected with the Government.

For FREE information on Government jobs, including list of positions and salaries, fill out coupon and mail at once—TODAY. You will also get full details on how you can qualify yourself to pass these tests.
