Youth Re-Committed To Mental Institution's Care

WILSON — Roy Douglas Freeman, 19-year-old Greenville Negro charged with the October robbery of a Greenville branch bank, was ordered re-committed to a mental institution here today.

Judge John D. Larkins, after reviewing five months of proceedings involving Freeman, ruled the slightly-built Negro—labeled by the press a "bicycle beatnik bandit"—mentally incompetent to stand trial on charges of taking about $3,700 from the West End Branch of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. last Oct. 25.

Freeman was committed to the custody of the Attorney General's office for placement, probably in a government mental institution. For 90 days following a New Bern hearing, Freeman was examined by psychiatrists at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington, D. C.

Judge Larkins conducted a sanity hearing for the youth in Washington, N. C., April 6. When psychiatrists' testimonies were filed, Judge Larkins said he would file a decision in the hearing during this week's term of Eastern District Federal Court in Wilson.

As he had during the New Bern and Washington hearings, Freeman sat quietly through the proceedings this morning. He was expected to be moved to a government institution within the next several days.

Freeman's commitment is for an indefinite period. Federal law provides for his confinement and treatment until he is found to be competent to stand trial or until the charges are otherwise disposed of.

N.C. Peach Growers Study Damage Due Frost

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Peach growers were inspecting orchards today to determine how much damage resulted from a light pre-dawn frost that covered much of the growing area in the North Carolina Sandhills.

Mrs. Aumen said the damage apparently was the most severe in the lower areas of the orchards. She said her husband used no smudge pots or other methods to counter the frost because their orchards sprawl over such a wide area.

Peaches are about out of their protective shuck and Aumen said Monday that the multi-million dollar crop is at its most critical stage for possible weather damage.

The outlook tonight and Wednesday is for partly cloudy and warmer weather with a chance of light rains. Low temperatures tonight are expected to be between 40 and 45 degrees.

Other early morning lows were Asheville 30 degrees, Charlotte 33, Greensboro 30, and Wilmington 35. Frost was reported by weather stations at Asheville, Greensboro and Raleigh but not at Wilmington and Charlotte.

A high pressure system covering the eastern United States continued to influence the weather today.

Temperatures in North Carolina dipped generally into the 30s early today with a 29 degree reading at Raleigh the lowest reported by

Mrs. Spruill Spain Is New DAR Regent

FARMVILLE—The faith, courage and pioneering spirit of Commander Wm. R. Anderson and his crew of 116 officers and men, who in August, 1958, took the Nautilus on a trackless voyage to cross under the Arctic Pole, was portrayed in the Navy's official film, "Arctic North Passage," shown as a program feature at the April meeting of the Major Benjamin May chapter, DAR, held Saturday.

Mrs. Wm. C. Murray, program director, made announcements and interesting personal observations regarding the historic voyage of the Nautilus, stating that her son-in-law, Commander Frank M. Adams, who was second in command of the submarine at that time, could not accept her invitation to be present at this meeting but had sent the Navy film. E. P. Bass was presented as the projectionist. Commander Adams, with his wife, the former Miss Novella Horton Capps, and five children, is stationed at present in Washington, D. C., where he is acting as assistant to Admiral Hyman G. Rickover.

The Nautilus was viewed, not only as a fighting ship but in the light of an explorer and home for the men as it went 2900 miles submerged, 2114 of which was underneath the polar ice and over a bottom about which facts were unknown and uncharted. The thrilling film depicted also the tie-up at Brooklyn and the heroes' welcoming parade in New York.

The Legion of Merit was awarded Commander Anderson and in addition, the entire crew was awarded the Presidential Unit Citation, the first one ever given in peacetime. A new page was added to history in this achievement and the voyage proved America's increased capacity to repel aggression.

Serving jointly with Mrs. Murray as hostesses at this meeting were her sister, Mrs. M. H. Rountree, and Mrs. R. E. Mayo.

The regent, Miss Elizabeth Lang, presided and led in the opening ritual of the American's Creed, Salute to the Flag and the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner." Mrs. M. V. Jones was accompanist.

The chaplain, Mrs. G. Alex Rouse, read St. John 20:1 and used it as a theme of a meditation based on the empty tomb as a symbol of Christendom's hope of eternal life.

Mrs. H. M. Williamson, national defense chairman, read an article relating to UNICEF. Mrs. H. D. Moyer, honor roll chairman, read the state citation awarded the chapter for having attained to the honor roll again the past year. The regent appointed Mrs. J. B. and Mrs. C. S. Eagles as a committee to send seasonal cheer to the chapter's scholarship student at Crossnore. The customary collection for the American Indians fund was taken.

Mrs. Troy W. Rouse, of the nominating committee, presented the name of Mrs. Spruill Spain of Greenville for the regency. Mrs. Spain received a unanimous vote to the office. This action completed the slate

Many Men In Girl Scouts And Many More Are Needed

By CELESTINE SIBLEY
Women's News Service

Parent participation in the activities of youth is expanding. I know. I've heard about car pools and Little League baseball and den mothers and pack papas or whatever they call them. For some years now fathers have been showing up at PTA meetings and the way things are going it looks like we're on a never-ending spiral. Have you heard about the gentlemen who are Girl Scouts?

It is happening all over the country. In my own town, 25 men are serving on the Girl Scout Council board of directors and another 75 serve as troop committeemen.

It's not name-on-the-letterhead work, but real service. Bankers, insurance executives, airline officials are participating. Paul Andrew Springer, of the Atlanta Safety Council — who "looks remarkably like Gary Cooper" in the opinion of his friends—even took a senior training course in New York one summer. He was one of two men and 81 women taking the course and he showed he had the spunk for the assignment by accepting as a going-away present an old Girl Scout camp uniform—the baggy bloomer type of the 1920's.

The Rev. Philo McKinnon of the Jonesboro, Ga., Presbyterian Church, an infantry officer in World War II, has an unusual job in Scouting for a man. He is chairman of the troop organizing committee. He got this job as a sideline to his ministerial duties when he found his church sponsored a "lone troop." A lone troop is one in a rural area administered by national headquarters in New York.

The Rev. Mr. McKinnon found 16 "lone troops" involving 200 girls, in his county and he succeeded in getting all of these admitted to the Greater Atlanta Girl Scout Council. For his services Mr. McKinnon was first elected a member at large to the board of directors. This gentleman is a genuine card-carrying Girl Scout—a thing that always amazes little girls when he produces his membership card. So far he hasn't gone on any camping trips with the girls but he recounts with pleasure his experience as the sole male delegate to a regional committee meeting at the Army base where he received his war-time training.

The commanding general sent out the camp band to serenade Mr. McKinnon and the 100 ladies who were on the committee.

"A courtesy," he pointed out delightedly, "I didn't receive as a second lieutenant."

There are thousands of other male Girl Scouts and if a man should want to be the leader of a troop—well his local council awaits him with open arms, so to speak.

An Evaluation Of Progress Is Due

North Carolina's public schools are nearing the end of their first full year under the new quality education program. Before the school year ends, there should be a careful evaluation of the progress which has been made toward providing better education opportunities for the youngsters of the state.

Citizens of the state do not expect that the quality of education in public schools of the state has reached its full development. Such a program cannot be carried out in one year or even a few years. It would be helpful, nevertheless, if a thorough evaluation of the current school year were available to state and school officials as well as the public before another school year begins.

Has the quality of classroom instruction improved during this school year?

Has the curriculum been altered to better meet the needs of the students in public schools throughout the state?

Have students indicated any improvement in the manner in which they have applied themselves to their studies during the school year?

Has there been an increase of interest on the part of individual parents in the programs of the schools and the progress of students?

These and many other questions might be answered by teachers, school officials, school boards, PTA groups and other organizations affiliated with public education in North Carolina. The consensus of the replies to these questions should give some indication of the progress North Carolina has made in public education during this school year. The answers should likewise point up weak points in the improvement program that might give additional attention in the school year which begins next fall.

It will take North Carolina a number of years, even at the present rate, to bring the level of quality in its public schools up to the point the people of the state desire. By annual evaluation of the school program, however, the people of the state will at least be aware of progress which is being made. By such evaluations they will be made more aware of the needs which have not been met by the public schools.

It is important to North Carolinians who this year have put many additional millions of dollars into the public school program of their state to know what effect this money is having on the quality of education. It should be important to teachers and school officials also to evaluate the effect of this additional support upon the level of instruction being given the youngsters of the state.

Repercussions Beyond The Immediate Future

It is generally accepted that President Kennedy and his administration enjoy higher prestige now than was the case early last week before the administration's victory in the steel price dispute.

The big question now is what effect this additional prestige will have upon the President's program now before Congress. Will the added prestige be sufficient to push reluctant members of Congress to give the President support for such controversial measures as the farm program, tax reforms, foreign trade legislation, medical care and other administration proposals?

When Congress reconvenes April 30 following its lengthy Easter holiday, its members will have had an opportunity to take their own sampling of public opinion on their home grounds. They doubtless will not return to Congress wondering whether their constituents think more or less of the administration because of the recent events. They will have a firm opinion, and that opinion likely will be reflected in their votes legislative matters in the next few months.

Reaction to the steel crisis and its solution by the President will have repercussions far beyond any future action so far as that particular industry is concerned. It will carry over into administration action in a broad field of other matters, and into Congressional decisions as well.

Steel Men Did Not 'Compete'

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government specialists will now X-ray the corporate intestines of the steel industry which got indigestion from the way it chewed on a good, old-fashioned work like competition.

A federal grand jury, the Department of Justice and Congress will explore the industry's innards to determine whether it has a malignancy or needs an operation.

All within a week — in an almost inept performance which President Kennedy called greedy and ruthless — most of Big Steel raised prices and then unraised them.

One of the reasons given for the increase last Tuesday by Leslie B. Worthington, president of the U. S. Steel Corp. which set up price boosts, was that his company needed money to keep its steel mills efficient because that's the only way "to keep these facilities fully competitive."

The other companies in the industry, once U. S. Steel stuck its neck out with a price increase, could have given it murderous competition by not increasing their prices and underselling the giant.

Most of them did just the opposite. They raised by exactly the same amount as U. S. Steel. How did it happen? If it was all agreed on, the industry can be prosecuted by the government for conspiracy.

Or is U. S. Steel so dominant that the other companies must follow suit? Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy says that if U. S. Steel controls prices, it may have to be broken up.

These are just two of the questions the various branches of government will examine in the months ahead.

Then one of the smaller companies, Inland Steel, whose board chairman, Joseph L. Block, is close to President Kennedy, refused to go along with the rest and said it would not raise prices.

It said that while prices might not be high enough, the national interest came first.

Then U. S. Steel and the others which had boosted prices because of competitive conditions — although they could hardly have been hurt by Inland's competition — suddenly put their prices back where they were.

Worthington gave this explanation: "The decision to unraise was made in the light of competitive development and all other current circumstances, including the removal of a serious obstacle to proper relations between government and business."

So all within four days U. S. Steel said it had to raise prices because of competition and had to unraise prices because of competition.

But the true ineptness of the industry's performance was revealed in the last half of Worthington's statement about "other circumstances" and "relations with government."

It can be fairly asked: If these were major factors in steel's decision to unraise prices, why didn't they think of them before they did any raising at all?

The raising was done within five days after the Steelworkers' Union — following an appeal by Kennedy to both sides for a non-inflationary settlement — had signed a contract which gave some benefits but no pay increase.

The industry gave no hint or indication that, once it got the workers to agree to no raise, it intended to fatten its own pockets by raising prices. This alone would have been enough to ruin its labor relations for years.

But it was enough also to ruin its relations with the government and the public since the industry gave Kennedy no hint of a move which was bound to affect all prices and raise American living costs.

From a practical public relations standpoint — in its relations all around — the least it should have done was to wait a decent interval of some months before trying to put over a price increase.

It's unbelievable that the U. S. Steel board of directors, meeting within five days of the contract signing, suddenly became convinced a price rise, despite all its implications, was necessary.

That kind of flash decision would have been, for a giant industry, completely irresponsible, as Kennedy says it was anyway.

Strength For Today

CONTRIVERSY

Tuesday of Holy Week was a day of violent controversy between Jesus and his opponents. They challenged his authority, and they might, for it seemed highly improbable that a freelance teacher from the little village of Nazareth could be the God's Anointed and the promised Messiah.

In parable after parable Jesus demonstrated to his opponents that instead of being friends and helpers of the Most High they were, indeed, opposing the divine work by their selfishness and sin. The scribes and Pharisees, tried to get Jesus involved either with the Pharisees or with the Jewish church on the matter of giving tribute to Caesar, but Jesus brushed this all aside with words that have been ringing down through the centuries to guide us in the choice we make between secular and sacred matters. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's," said Jesus, "and unto God the things that are God's."

The controversy that day must have been furious. Crowds followed him. The learned theologians no doubt gesticulated, shrieked at him, cited authorities, challenged him to show his credentials that he was God's chosen. Jesus fought back every inch of the way. He was gentle himself as he confronted weakness, sin, and pain; but he was the most stalwart fighter of all history when he confronted error, injustice, hypocrisy, jealousy, and evil.

Additions To The Twist

Teenage dancing never ceases to fascinate your columnist who has only recently gathered up courage enough to try "The Twist."

The trouble is the Twist, as I finally learned it, is about as old fashioned as "The Big Apple" (who remembers that?)

Readers should know that the Twist started out as a fairly simple sort of thing done mostly by teenagers. As the name indicates, the performers simply stood in one spot and commenced a gyrating motion of the hips. This was done to a Chubby Checker record or a reasonable facsimile thereof.

Well this went along pretty well for a time. The teenagers were twisting all over the place as adults looked down their noses and wondered, as has been the custom since Man stood upright, what the younger generation was coming to.

But then a strange thing happened. Some where some brave adult one day tried the Twist. Hey, he told his fellow adults, this is fun! So adults began joining in all over the place and soon the Twist was sweeping the country.

The teenagers, of course, wouldn't take this intrusion lying down, so they began working out their own variations of the Twist.

Well, Sunday afternoon, your columnist witnessed the evolution of the Twist to date among the teenagers.

A sudden rainstorm at Atlantic Beach forced us in the pavilion. There the Twist records were predominant on the juke box.

But the twisting as the teenage dancers performed it wasn't as it originally began. The couples no longer stand in one spot. There are foot movements and arm motions in the dance these days, just as there was in the jitter bug and later in the boogie. The dance still keeps the twisting of the hips, however.

There was one girl in a beige outfit who defied description. Anyway, to get back where we started, it's a sure thing that, for better or worse, the Twist has come a long way since it was born.

It makes you wonder what this younger generation is coming to.

Three cheers for a certain rental agent and the PTA Committee on obscene literature! The "Spirit of '76" still lives! Despite opposition and pressure, these gallant folk have refused to "throw in the sponge."

TO THE EDITOR:

On October 5, 1961, Mr. Charles Howard, Chairman of the Public Housing Authority requested the approval of the Greenville City Council for the Greenville City Council for the Public Housing Agreement. I understood that at the time of his request for the approval of the agreement that Mr. Howard informed the Council that a site for a Public Housing Project would be selected. After the site was selected, streets would be laid out, public utilities installed and the area converted into a well planned Housing Project.

This site development would not be done. Land already developed would be taken for this project. For the area bounded by Chestnut Street, Boyd Avenue, Farmville Blvd., and Line Avenue has most of its streets paved all utilities installed and a playground. This is an established neighborhood occupied mainly by home owners. This is not a blighted area.

In the October 6, 1961 issue of the Daily Reflector the following was printed: "Urban renewal, public housing and neighborhood conservation all got a shot in the arm last night as councilmen took action to expedite these three projects." Approval of the Public Housing Agreement allows the Public Housing Authority to obtain a federal loan for carrying out a survey of housing needs locally. . . The agreement approved last night will only be binding on the City if it actually approves construction of public housing units. The next step is for the Authority to survey housing needs and make recommendations to the Council." Approval of the Public Housing Agreement allows the Public Housing Authority to obtain a federal loan for carrying out a survey of housing needs locally.

The Public Housing Administration in Washington says on October 1, 1961 loan contract for financial assistance was executed with the Housing Authority of the City of Greenville, N. C. Four days before the Greenville City Council approves the Public Housing Agreement Washington executes loan contract, August 1, 1961. Yet Mr. Howard says on October 5, 1961 a survey of housing needs to be made to determine Greenville's needs.

The residents and property owners of the area bounded by Chestnut Street, Boyd Avenue, Farmville Blvd. and Line Avenue and the adjoining areas do not wish any public housing units. The City Court room full of these citizens on April 5, 1962 voiced their objections to the City Council over the proposed plan of the Housing Authority to locate a housing project in their neighborhood.

A Logical If Inept Steel Move

By ELMER ROESSNER

Let's stop kicking Roger True, he was inept in announcing that U. S. Steel was increasing the price of steel $6 a ton. True, in dashing from Pittsburgh to Washington to break the news to President Kennedy, he was a bit awkward. True, he sorely needed a press agent.

But it was not true that President David J. McDonald of the United Steelworkers was left waiting as a bride at the church by Blough.

There is an idea abroad in the land that the steel companies hoodwinked McDonald into accepting only fringe benefits in the new contract between the steel companies and the union; that McDonald agreed to this minor gain solely because he believed that steel would not increase its price and that a small gain for labor and no gain for the steel companies would be good for the country. NO DECEIVED BRIDE If McDonald accepted the fringe benefits — about 10 cents an hour — in belief that there would be no rise in steel prices, he would have been naive indeed, unless, of course, that was stated in the agreement. There is no evidence yet that it was.

McDonald must have known that since the last price increase in steel in 1958, there have been four increases in steel wages, comparable increases in salaries, and sharp rises in costs of materials and boosts in taxes. He knew, of course, that there were increases in steel production through automation but neither he nor anybody else knows whether the economies through automation offset the higher costs.

When he signed the marriage contract, bride McDonald surely must have realized that the steel companies would have to make adjustments in prices to meet the last four pay raises, if not the new fringes. WHAT COMES NATURALLY Blough, instead of being a reluctant bridegroom, did what was completely logical. After having settled pay demands, he set about adjusting prices to meet the demands, pay dividends, and do all the other things a company must do.

He didn't trap McDonald; he appears to have tried to level with President Kennedy. He seems to have done about what he should have done as an employee of his bosses, the stockholders.

His public relations, of course, were lousy. Instead of spending a million a year for television shows to soothe the public, U. S. Steel might well have spent a hundredth of that amount for a whiskey-drinking flack who knew his business.

Blough rushed to Washington to tell President Kennedy about the price hike. That made about as much sense as telling teacher you were about to slip a tack on her chair. The results were about the same: Kennedy hit the ceiling about as quickly as any teacher whose skin was punctured.

System Is One Of Risk

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The capitalist system more correctly might be called a "profit and loss system," or a "risk system." It differs from feudalism or socialism in this fundamental respect, that under the capitalist system an individual may accumulate earnings, no matter how earned, to be disposed of by himself for such purposes, private or public, as he chooses. It is on the basis of this definition that the Internal Revenue Service taxes thieves, gamblers, prostitutes and other immoral persons and sources of income, without regard to the method by which the funds were accumulated. Al Capone's crime, for which he was punished, was not murder or vice, but failure to pay income taxes.

In a word, a person may do as he pleases with his earnings and accumulations of capital provided he pays his taxes. The prudent person employs his accumulations of wealth, whether inherited or earned, to increase his estate, to provide for his family, to leave a legacy after his death. He may do this in many ways, such as purchasing insurance, keeping money in savings banks, purchasing real estate, bonds, shares of enterprises, etc.

There can be no purpose in any of this economic activity unless the accumulation increases. Some persons choose conservative methods for this purpose; others are more speculative. That is each individual's free choice, but in every instance, his objective is to increase his accumulation of wealth.

If they purchase shares in a company, the investors have two hopes: One, that the value of the shares will increase through good management; two, that the company will issue dividends, which, in effect, are a share of the profits earned by this economic activity. Of course, sometimes the investment is lost through poor management, the elimination of the industry from the market, non-competitive conditions, etc. But the purpose of the investment is not to lose but to gain, and a gain can only be made through a profit.

That depends upon the reason the investor has in making the investment. For instance, if one invests in what are called "blue chips," he is satisfied with a smaller dividend; his object being a return on a secure investment. Sometimes the security disappears as with the railroads. The more speculative person, the risk-taker, goes into enterprises with the objective of benefiting in rises in value of the shares on the market. But few companies rise in value unless profits are earned.

The easiest way to produce a depression is to put a ceiling on profits, because in such an eventuality those who possess accumulations of wealth either send it out of the country, purchase shares in foreign companies, convert their money into foreign currency, put their money into savings banks or in a shoe-box under the bed.

President Kennedy, in his quarrel with the steel companies, might have used other grounds for attack, but when he attacked the concept of profits, his anger led him astray. Surely, he believes in profits; if he does not, what is our economic system to be? The flight of capital has already done damage to the American economic system; an attack on profits can be disastrous.

I quote from the Annual Bulletin, Review, 1961, of Samuel Montagu & Co., Ltd., of London, the leading dealers in gold in the world: "Any rational observer will accept that the last thing that one wants to see or experience is a crisis of confidence in what is, after all, the principal reserve currency of the Western World. It is because of this that the present efforts at international cooperation have got off to such a good start. It must be said that the steps which have so far been taken towards redressing the unfavorable Balance of Payments position of the U. S. A. have not been impressive."

International movements of capital are such a large scale these days that political considerations in Europe could well start

Aerial Command Post Stands By For JFK In Case Of War

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP)—At an airfield a few minutes' helicopter ride from the White House, a big silver plane stands ready for flight at any hour.

Its crew is never far. It is guarded by Air Force policemen and G-2s.

This is no ordinary Air Force plane, although it looks about the same as tankers used to refuel members of the Strategic Air Command.

It is a new airborne command post specially fitted as a refuge for President Kennedy and the command in event of a surprise nuclear attack. There are three such planes, one always standing by.

If war should come, the nation's defense and counterattack would be directed from one of these four jet, swept wing gliders cruising more than 40,000 feet above the earth.

Aerial command posts intended specifically for the President have been in operation for about two months. Their existence has been kept under wraps.

Together with an underground sanctuary in Maryland and the Navy command ship Northampton in the Atlantic, the planes provide alternate emergency headquarters from which the President and defense chiefs could prosecute a war in safety, even though their government and military centers are destroyed.

Packed with elaborate communications equipment, they can instantly contact U.S. forces around the world. With air refueling and enough supplies they can stay aloft for days.

These command planes, converted KC135 turboprop tankers, form another element—a growing system designed to assure uninterrupted control of U.S. ground, air and sea forces under all circumstances.

The presidential planes are much like the command aircraft which the Strategic Air Command has been flying for 14 months, only less spartan.

Sources said the presidential command post planes evolved from SAC's system and incorporated many of its features.

Since February 1961, SAC has maintained a command plane aloft at all times. Three aircraft have been assigned to this mission.

SAC announced Thursday it will increase its airborne command and control capability this year by adding more specially modified KC135s and, for the first time, B47 jet bombers adapted to this task.

REV. RALPH LIGHTSEY, director of public relations at Mount Olive College, is serving as visiting evangelist for revival services at Piney Grove Original Free Will Baptist Church, Special music by local and visiting groups will be offered each evening. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. each evening, and a baptismal service has been planned for Easter Sunday evening.

Air Force Has Reducing Diet

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The Air Force has come up with a crash reducing diet in the war against weight.

The chief weapon is a little pep pill that brings big appetites down.

A doctor claims it's a sure fire way of losing 30 pounds in 60 days.

And, for dietary standards, he had these happy words—you don't feel hungry while losing it.

You consume the pill and 350 calories a day, explains Maj. Paul W. Musgrave.

The food prescribed gives enough proteins, vitamins, minerals and bulk to maintain health. The pill—actually a 15 milligram capsule of dextroamphetamine—suppresses hunger.

Dr. Musgrave of the Air Force School of Aero Space Medicine outlined the program Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Aerospace Medical Association. He said it was tried on volunteers at the school.

Here's what you eat:

For breakfast—One egg and six ounces of skim milk.

For lunch—A tossed salad (100 grams) with vinegar, salt and pepper if you need some kind of dressing.

For dinner—Three ounces of lean meat and another tossed salad.

If you want it, you get one high ball with water or soda before dinner, but no beer. And you can drink all the tea or coffee you want—without cream or sugar, of course.

Persons with a history of psychiatric disorders shouldn't try it, the doctor said, but it's safe for anybody else—if it's done under a physician's direction.

New Microscope For Pitt Hospital

Pitt will be the first county to receive a fluorescent microscope and attachments, composing a fluorescent antibody streptococcal technique, for use at the local hospital, it was announced today by Dr. John Futrell, health director.

Dr. Futrell stated that the new piece of equipment will be installed soon at Pitt Memorial Hospital. It was given to the local health department by the N. C. State Board of Health through appropriated funds and costs—between two and three thousand dollars. The health department plans to loan it to the hospital, where their own procedures, as well as those of the hospital, will be carried out.

The new technique will allow cultures to be taken and their results ready in one hour, rather than several days as in the past, Dr. Futrell said.

One of the important functions of the technique here will be to prevent indiscriminate use of antibiotics.

Through the fluorescent antibody streptococcal technique, doctors will be able to identify the type of streptococcal that causes rheumatic fever, Bright's disease, scarlet fever, strep sore throat and St. Vitus' Dance. It can be used for other diagnoses also, but will be used here primarily for streptococcal diagnoses.

Dr. Futrell said the technique detects non-visible organisms that would be lost to routine culture methods such as are being used here now and will get positive identification even with a small number of bacterial present.

A technician is being sent from Pitt County to Raleigh to learn to operate the fluorescent microscope and its attachments.

Dr. Futrell noted that Pitt County doctors have exhibited a high enthusiasm in this area and have sent a large number of specimens to Raleigh, which is partially the reason this county is receiving the new piece of equipment.

Music Award To Kinston Student

Marie Louise Sutton of Kinston, senior music student at East Carolina College, has been named as recipient of the Dux Award presented by the Pi Chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, national fraternity of women musicians, Director E. Beach of the college Department of Music has announced.

The award is presented to a student with an outstanding record in scholarship, leadership and musicianship at the college.

A graduate of the Greenville High School, Kinston, Miss Sutton has studied as a music major at East Carolina for the past four years.

She is serving this school year as president of the campus chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota and secretary-treasurer of the College Choir. She is also a member of the Chapel Choir and prior to the Revolutionary War, the College Singers.

Power, SAC, chief, said in a New York speech earlier this week that the command post planes always carry a staff and a general "qualified" to assume command of our forces in case the main command post at SAC headquarters (Omaha, Neb.) as well as the various alternate headquarters throughout the country should be put out of commission.

SAC command planes also keep constant contact with the joint war room and Air Force command post in the Pentagon.

Kindergarten Is Opened To Boys

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—The mother of 6-year-old Kimberly Pape has won her battle with school officials. The kindergarten youngster can wear his cowboy boots to school.

Kimberly's teacher felt cowboy boots were not suitable for school. Miriam Pape thought she was qualified to select what her son wore.

George E. Theobald, assistant superintendent of Cleveland elementary schools, backed the teacher and principal of the school but said Monday night he would allow Kimberly to wear boots in school.

Mrs. Pape, who hails from Texas, commented: "It wasn't just the boots, but the principle. I believe that it is my right and responsibility to choose my child's clothing. I will not turn this right over to the schools."

CARTER A. VAUGHAN'S Exciting Novel of Revolutionary Romance SCOUNDRELS' BRIGADE

CHAPTER 8

A Philadelphia printer named Richardson agreed to buy Benjy's bond after receiving earnest assurances that Benjy was familiar with the printing trade.

Hugh Spencer forgot his own mortification and smiled when he heard his friend say, "Mr. Richardson, I know more about inks and presses and paper than any man in the colonies."

Benjy's new master allowed him to say good-by to his former cellmate before taking him away, and Hugh shook hands with the only person on earth who cared whether he lived or died. "Take care of yourself, Benjy—and be careful not to break any laws."

The little counterfeiter grinned. "I'll manage, never you fear. And someday we'll meet again, Hugh. I'm sure we will."

Hugh felt completely alone in the world when Benjy's shackles were removed and he followed Richardson out of the building.

Few of the buyers stopped to interrogate Hugh during the afternoon, and it was almost dusk when a thick-chested man in his forties came into the building, accompanied by one of the principal bailiffs. "Is that the fellow?"

"Yes, Mr. Fleming."

Hugh paid no attention to the man, who inspected him carefully.

"He looks like a healthy specimen," Fleming spoke in a high, nasal drawl.

"There's none healthier in the lot."

"Then he must be a weakling."

"Test him yourself, Mr. Fleming."

"I will. You! Take off your shirt!"

Hugh wanted to punch the arrogant buyer, but controlled his temper and slowly, reluctantly, peeled off his shirt.

Fleming felt his muscles, poked a finger into his back, and pinched the flesh around his waist, treating him as though he were an animal. "You're right. He seems strong enough," Fleming paused and peered suspiciously at Hugh, his heavy eyelids narrowing. "I haven't seen better all day. Why hasn't someone bought him earlier?"

"His price is high, Mr. Fleming. The crown wants two thousand, three hundred and seven-teen pounds for him."

"He isn't selling cheap, I'll grant you. But anyone who takes him will have his services for the rest of his life. How old are you?" he demanded of Hugh.

"Twenty-seven."

"Call me 'sir' when you speak to me!"

Hugh swallowed hard. "Twenty-seven, sir."

"That's a bit better," Fleming turned back to the bailiff. "Your list says he knows something about horses."

"I'd hate you to be dissatisfied, Mr. Fleming. You're too good a customer. So I suggest you talk to him."

"You! Tell me about yourself."

"I know horses, sir," Hugh said curtly. "I was in the Dragoons."

"You were a groom, I suppose?"

"No, sir," Hugh stared at the far wall.

"He was an officer, Mr. Fleming," said the bailiff.

"Then he's worth every penny of the two thousand pounds! This fellow should be able to take charge of my stables after I've broken him to my ways. You! Look at me when I speak to you. I'm going to buy you. Do you know what that means?"

Hugh made a supreme effort to speak calmly. "I believe I understand the principles of indenture, sir."

Fleming laughed loudly. "In the first place, you'll forget that you were once a gentleman. You're my property, and I can do with you as I please. If you disobey me, you'll carry the stripes on your back for the rest of your days."

Osbert Fleming's plantation in southwestern Virginia was the largest property in Bedford County. The great house stood high on a bluff overlooking the James River and, like Fleming himself, dominated the area.

The tobacco fields stretched out toward the Blue Ridge Mountains, which rose in the west, and the servants' quarters, a collection of one-story frame houses and huts, were clustered in a hollow near three quarters of a mile upstream from Fleming's imposing red brick mansion.

The African slaves, virtually all of them field hands, lived in the huts, and Fleming, the most prosperous planter in the county, was believed to own more than three hundred of them.

The fifty indentured servants, who theoretically enjoyed a somewhat higher status, slept in the unpainted frame buildings, but they enjoyed few luxuries and privileges.

Hugh's rise in the hierarchy of the plantation was rapid, somewhat to his surprise, and a few months after his arrival he was made an overseer and placed in charge of the stables. He realized that his knowledge of horses was partly responsible for his promotion, but he knew, too, that luck had played a part in his progress.

Fleming, congratulating himself on the acquisition of a chief groom who meekly submitted to higher authority, still didn't understand why Hugh had not created a scene on the day they had first arrived at the estate.

Hugh had been forced to walk behind Fleming's horse from Philadelphia, still wearing his shackles, and consequently had finally reached the plantation. Fleming, following his usual custom, had then beaten his new servant with a whip "to teach him his proper place," and had been pleased when Hugh had accepted the assault without a murmur.

Only the plantation's physician, an elderly Scotsman who had been working out his indenture for more than twenty-five years, had known that Hugh had been too weary to fight, protest, or curse.

"You're lucky, lad," Dr. Campbell had murmured as he had applied salve to the welts on Hugh's back. "If your bones hadn't been so weary, you'd have no bones unbroken now. I saw your eyes, which Fleming didn't, and your luck was with you again. I know what's in your mind, but don't do it. If you raise your hand against him after you've recovered your strength, he'll beat you as he's beaten others, so you'll never stand straight again. Wait—and your time will come."

Hugh didn't understand the physician's cryptic reference to the future until he was made an overseer, and as the two houses were crowded, Dr. Campbell offered to share his room with the newcomer. There are forces at work in this land that are going to bring changes for the better, violent changes. Have you heard of Patrick Henry, lad?

They were sitting alone at dusk on the small porch of the house overlooking the James River, and Hugh noted that the physician glanced around cautiously before he mentioned Henry's name. "I'm afraid I must plead ignorance. Does he live in Bedford village?"

"No, he's a lawyer in the eastern part of the colony, and he's a patriot if ever one lived!"

"There was a time," Hugh replied bitterly, "when I was a supporter of the crown too. But

A Good Citizen of North Carolina

Ever think about the part your Telephone Company plays in the life of North Carolina and the Nation? Here are some things it does:

- Pays good wages to its employees—money that is spent in the employee's home town
- Pays large amounts in taxes that go to support government, education and public institutions
- Provides the best possible telephone service at the lowest possible cost.

Accepting the responsibilities of citizenship, we believe, is an important part of good telephone service.

Study Of Steel Industry Problems Draws Support

The Farm Scene

By S. C. WINCHESTER

Cotton planting time is almost here and many cotton farmers are anxious to get their seedlings in the ground real early — so they will have time to replant.

It's a sad case but it's true: Also, too many cotton producers have failed to recognize the close correlation of early planting and seed rot, or weakened plants that are highly susceptible to Rhizoctonia, Pythium and other fungi that cause excessive damping-off or drying.

When all cotton farmers begin to plant cotton by the thermometer, rather than by the calendar, good stands of cotton and resulting higher average yields will occur.

Howard Garriss, Extension Plant Pathologist at N. C. State College, has the following to say about planting too early:

"Planting cotton too early before soils have warmed up is highly conducive to poor germination and to weakened seedlings. These factors are generally intensified because of the following conditions and circumstances: Seed decay, seedlings rot, or seedlings are all phases of seedling diseases.

"When disease attacks the seed or young germinating seedlings and prevents a seedling from emerging above ground, it is known as pre-emergence damping-off. If roots or stems are attacked after the seedling has emerged from the ground resulting in death or retardation, the disease is known as post-emergence damping-off.

"A number of fungi existing in the soil cause seedling diseases. Under North Carolina conditions, the fungi that cause these troubles are mainly species of Pythium, Rhizoctonia and Fusarium. Some fields may have a high population of one fungus and little of another — others may have high populations of a combination of damaging fungi. One fungus may behave entirely different from another in the manner of damaging seedlings; i.e., Pythium sp. typically attacks the lower parts of the seedling causing root and crown rots. On the other hand Rhizoctonia sp. typically attacks the seedlings at or near the soil line causing 'more shin'. It is well to keep these facts in mind with regard to placement of chemicals in the soil to control these organisms."

Garriss has had quite a few years of work and observation on the subject and it's about time that producers and all those seedsmen, fertilizer dealers, etc.) who influence the growers, to start paying attention to Garriss and other pathologists and give some serious thought to the matter and act accordingly.

Many producers say they must plant early to get ahead of the boll weevil. This may have been true in the past, but now since control programs have been developed that will really take care of the insects, this is not necessarily true. A farmer now can wait until the soil is 60-65 degrees at plow depth to plant cotton and be reasonably sure of a good stand, provided other good practices such as high quality seed, good seedbed, proper placement of fertilizer, and depth of planting are followed.

A complete program must be followed to insure the success of any individual practice. At the moment the cotton picture in North Carolina looks brighter than in a long time. Instead of a "has been" cotton is definitely proving itself to be a "can-do."

Approximately 7,000 acres of cotton will be planted in Pitt County and many growers are setting their production sights on two bales per acre.

Red China Admits Economic Defeat

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Red China's regime has admitted a dismal defeat of its efforts to take the nation on a "big leap forward" in a big hurry. But it shows little sign of penitence or of knocking under to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's views of how a Communist state should develop.

The results of the National People's Congress session which concluded in Peking Monday also demonstrate little inclination to bow to Khrushchev's views of the world Communist strategy.

The report of Premier Chou En-lai and the final resolutions of the secret sessions disclosed a sort of "do-it-yourself" program representing a possibly desperate attempt to cure the mainland's vast economic troubles.

At the same time, Khrushchev was reminded sharply of Mao Tse-tung's view that Communist forces should never let up in efforts to "isolate U.S. imperialism and its followers" and to "strengthen the unity and might of the socialist camp."

The session brought an admission that Mao's own pet program, the people's agricultural communes, needs some revising. The communes, a device for reducing Chinese farmers virtually to the condition of slave laborers, have been a gaudy flop up to now.

But the Chinese have not given Khrushchev and Co. the satisfaction of admitting the idea of the communes was wrong, as the Kremlin has insisted all along. The final resolution defiantly announced that the Chinese party sticks to what it calls the three Red banners: "the general line, the great leap forward and the people's communes."

Insufficient economic help has been forthcoming from big brother in Moscow, and the Red Chinese now have devised a 10-point program calling for more belittling and austerity.

This in itself is a defeat for the Chinese party. It is now forced to turn away from feverish attempts to build heavy industry rapidly. The agricultural situation is so bad that Peking must now force back into farming those people who were brought to the cities to work in industries. It must also sacrifice some of its concentration on heavy industry to producing the necessities of life for the Chinese people.

The people's communes will remain, apparently, in a revised form. The "great leap forward" will be slowed down because it must be—because Khrushchev has decreed that there is something ideologically wrong with the idea.

In international affairs, the party's program seems to indicate that Mao Tse-tung still regards Khrushchev as an upstart who is frittering away communism's chances for rapid expansion.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal that President Kennedy establish a commission to study the steel industry's economic troubles drew Democratic support and some Republican skepticism today.

Kennedy was scheduled to get at a White House conference a suggestion by acting Senate Democratic Leader Hubert H. Humphrey that the President create a nonpartisan commission to examine steel pricing policies, capital needs and other factors.

Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., vice chairman of the Senate-House Economic Committee, applauded this as offering a way to get basic information he said Congress may not have the time nor facilities to dig up.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., said in a separate interview he thought it would be very useful to set up such a commission. He said it could supplement the work of his own Senate Antitrust subcommittee in sifting cost information in an effort to arrive at a fair price for steel.

But Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., expressed skepticism as to whether such a commission set up by a Democratic president whose pressures led to a rollback of steel price increases could be counted on for nonpolitical findings.

"The way things are going, can anything in this situation be nonpartisan?" he asked.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said the results would depend on who the President appointed as members of the commission. He said he hoped any inquiry by such a group wouldn't be punitive.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, told a conference of Republican women Monday night she could applaud the results obtained by Kennedy in rolling back the steel price rise but could not condone his tactics.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., speaking before the same group, won applause with an attack on the methods Kennedy used.

"When we have a president who takes it upon himself to set prices in this country," he said, "then I suggest every man, woman and child knows what we are up against. Our opposition is committed to change our way of life."

Later, at a news conference in New York, Goldwater called Kennedy's action a "threat to the free enterprise system."

Goldwater said he would like to know the reasons for the steel price increases but that it was "nobody's business whether the prices go up, or down but theirs (U.S. Steel)."

In the Senate Monday, Humphrey said the inquiry he was proposing "should not be conducted in a partisan spirit or as a vendetta."

"It should be fair and comprehensive," the Minnesotan said. "It should be removed from all possible party or partisan considerations." He suggested appointment of representatives of management and labor, economists, financiers and the public.

He called for a report within a year on the condition of steel plants, the need for modernization and automation, requirements of expanded investment, productivity increases per worker per hour and financing needs to keep American steel competitive in world markets.

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., said Congress ought to act to provide a "realistic depreciation allowance" for steel and other industries so they could modernize their plants to meet foreign competition.

Kefauver said his subcommittee will turn over to the committee general for compilation information it gets under subpoenas issued to 12 leading steel companies on their costs of production.

Kefauver noted reports that steel companies might increase prices selectively next July. He said wage increases go into effect. He said the information the subcommittee is seeking could be used to check on any such increase.

A federal grand jury in New York continued its antitrust investigation of the steel industry.

Excommunicated Trio Vow To Continue Fight Order By Prelate

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Three Roman Catholics, excommunicated for opposing their archbishop's order to desegregate parochial schools, vowed today to continue their battle for separation of the races.

Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel invoked the severe spiritual penalty Monday.

The directive from the 85-year-old prelate, who eight years ago called segregation "morally wrong," expelled Leander H. Perez Sr., longtime political czar of two small parishes adjoining New Orleans; Jackson G. Ricau, an executive of pro-segregation Citizens Council; and Mrs. B. J. Gallot Jr., Bible-quoting segregationist who once picketed the archbishop's residence.

The excommunication cuts off the three segregationists from the sacraments of the church.

Perez, a fiery 71-year-old attorney and Louisiana's leading spokesman on segregation, blasted the action as "simply a move to frighten or terrorize the parents of parochial school children" and said it would not work.

Ricau, a onetime real estate dealer who now is executive secretary of the South Louisiana Citizens Council, said he considered it "an incredible injustice."

"I intend to continue the fight for racial segregation as I have done in the past, serving God and begging his help and protection," Mrs. Gallot, 41, mother of two children in Catholic schools, commented. "It is in the writings of the church and in the Bible we must obey God rather than man. The church has definitely made a serious mistake in excommunicating me because of accusations which are false."

The excommunication order said the three had disregarded the archbishop's earlier warning against any action which would "provoke our devoted people to disobedience or rebellion against the church."

The German-born archbishop, ordinary of New Orleans for more than 25 years, reserved to himself any appeal. Msgr. Egidio Vagnozzi, apostolic delegate to the United States, earlier had indicated he would not pass such appeals on to the Vatican or the Pope.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Gallot, who heads the small segregationist Save Our Nation, Inc., said she intended to communicate with Pope John XXIII by either letter or telegram.

Perez, long at odds with the archbishop on the segregation question, said he had an "unswerving responsibility to protect our children against the immoral curse of forced racial integration."

"I am a lifelong Catholic and will continue to be so, regardless of Communist infiltration and the influence of the National Council of Christians and Jews upon our church leaders."

There have been a number of cases of excommunication in the United States, one of them in Louisiana.

In 1955 Bishop Jules B. Jeanmard of Lafayette, La., excommunicated some parishioners who beat up a catechism teacher during an integration dispute. The bishop said anyone else who dares to interfere with the ministry of the priest also would be excommunicated automatically.

The Rev. Leonard J. Feeney S.J., of Boston was excommunicated several years ago for teaching there was no salvation outside the Catholic Church, and back in 1887 a New York priest, The Rev. Edward McGlynn, was excommunicated for defying his archbishop on certain parochial matters.

Church Penalty Applied Only If Persuasion Fails

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Staff Writer

The word excommunication has an ominous ring.

To some, it may conjure up pictures of purple-robed ecclesiastics pointing accusing fingers at a cowering miscreant and banishing him to eternal perdition—a sort of verbal stoning of a public sinner, in cinemascope.

Because the word is back in the news, in connection with the New Orleans dispute over integration of Catholic schools, it's worth examining in some detail.

The Catholic Church, like any other organization, has certain rules for its members. Should a member deliberately and openly violate a rule, he forfeits some of the benefits of membership—provided he is fully aware of both the rule and the penalty.

That, broadly, is what excommunication is.

It is the most severe form of church censure, used only as a last resort after persuasion has failed.

Acts which carry the penalty are defined in Catholic canon law. They range from forcing a person to become a priest or nun to selling indulgences and marrying before a non-Catholic minister. Key provisions, however, are that the offender knows that what he is about to do would result in excommunication but does it deliberately anyway.

In New Orleans one of the segregationist leaders disclosed that a confidential letter she received from the archbishop said:

"We deem it our duty to admonish you that any further attempt by you through word or deed to hinder our orders or provoke our devoted people to disobedience or rebellion against the church will subject you to excommunication."

The archbishop had refused to reveal the contents of the letter, which serves to point out that, as one authority put it, excommunication is medicinal rather than punitive. Its aim is to protect the church and correct the offender; punishment is only a secondary purpose.

Nor is it intended to sever a person from God, only from the church. A person under the usual form of excommunication doesn't even lose membership in the church. He may attend all its services but may not take an active part in some of them, and may not receive any of the sacraments except penance (confession).

A more severe form of excommunication is rarely invoked and it is only for particularly grave crimes such as laying violent hands on the Pope. It usually requires that the person be named publicly. Thereafter he may not even enter the church.

There have been a number of cases of excommunication in the United States, one of them in Louisiana.

In 1955 Bishop Jules B. Jeanmard of Lafayette, La., excommunicated some parishioners who beat up a catechism teacher during an integration dispute. The bishop said anyone else who dares to interfere with the ministry of the priest also would be excommunicated automatically.

John Glenn Day Bill To Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — House passage without a dissenting vote sent to the Senate Monday a resolution designating February 20 of each year as John Glenn Day.

The resolution would urge the President to issue an annual proclamation inviting the public to observe the day made famous this year by Lt. Col. John H. Glenn's space flight.

Icen Wilson Is Rotary Speaker

Icen Wilson, district manager of the Greenville Social Security office, spoke to the Greenville Rotarians last night on the Social Security program.

Wilson outlined the objectives of the Old Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance Program, and pointed out that these programs are commonly termed Social Security because they provide protection in advance. They provide protection, he said, against loss of income in retirement, when a worker dies, or when extended and severe disability occurs. He emphasized that the program is financed by contributions from workers, their employers and the self-employed.

The speaker also emphasized that Social Security payments are intended to provide a base on which one may build more security through personal thrift such as private insurance plans, savings, investments in stocks and bonds, or buying one's own home. The basic principle of the program, he said, is that benefits received by recipients are earned through work. Social Security benefits, he added, are far from the whole answer to economic security, but they help to provide a greater dignity, freedom and comfort to individuals.

Wilson said people often fail to appreciate that Social Security benefits play an important part in maintaining economic growth and stability by giving purchasing power to those who would otherwise be greatly in need. In Pitt County, he said, some 5,000 people are receiving monthly Social Security benefits amounting to some $250,000 a month.

The Greenville Social Security office serves, in addition to Pitt County, the counties of Bertie, Beaufort, Chowan, Hyde, Martin, Tyrrell and Washington.

Wilson was introduced at the meeting by George Coffman, chairman of the Rotary Club program committee.

New Process To Preserve Blood Supplies Found

By FRANK CAREY
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Navy-sponsored research has produced a new and promising process for preserving blood indefinitely by freezing, it was reported today.

It appears to offer the best yet towards approaching the military ideal of having a blood preparation preservable for weeks or months, yet capable of being battle ready almost immediately. Developers of the technique said.

The development — still under research appraisal — was reported to the annual meeting of the federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology by scientists of the Linde Co., Tonawanda, N.Y.

Dr. A. P. Rinfret, the research director who presented the report and amplified it at a news conference, said either whole blood or red blood cells could be preserved indefinitely by the process in which liquid nitrogen at 320 degrees below zero is employed as the freezing agent and a new type of preservative is used.

Key to the new process is the finding that albumin, a protein obtained from human blood serum, can be used to protect the red cells so that they may be frozen and thawed with little damage. Dr. Rinfret said a plastic material, polyvinyl-pyrrolidone, could also be used as the preservative.

He said the new technique offers certain advantages from a military standpoint over the only other freeze-preservation technique so far developed, which employs glycerol as the preservative. Rinfret pointed out the glycerol must be carefully and slowly added before the blood preparation is frozen and then thoroughly removed before the thawed-out blood can be transfused.

Also, he said, the new technique can be used both for preserving whole blood and for just the red cell component. The glycerol method is used only for preserving red blood cells.

"The military," he said, "wants a whole blood preparation that can be preserved indefinitely and, on thawing, can be immediately transfused."

Senators Vote Hire More Help

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators have approved a bill to give each of them an extra $3,000 a year to hire clerks.

They also wrote into the measure — a supplemental appropriation that now goes to a Senate-House conference — a provision designed to put the brakes on government employment elsewhere.

Eisenhower Suggests New Figure As GOP Candidate

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower suggests the Republican party might want to choose a comparatively new comer to national prominence as its 1964 presidential candidate.

Writing in the Saturday Evening Post, Eisenhower says: "Maybe our candidate should be someone well-known—maybe not. We should let our minds roam the field."

"We have many able young men in Congress, a number of personable and competent Republican members."

"There are men in private life—in business, education and the professions—who should not be counted out. We cannot overlook the possibility that one of these men may emerge and become a person of national stature during the next two years."

The former president devoted most of the article, "Ike Takes a Look At the GOP," to criticizing Republican pessimism and urging the GOP to build at the local level.

Discussing elections this fall, Eisenhower touched on Michigan, California, Pennsylvania and New York.

"The first three of these now have Democratic governors," he said. "And if we can capture those and hold New York where it is now, in the Republican column, we will have made a significant gain."

He said people frequently ask him what he thinks of former Vice President Richard M. Nixon's chances of winning the California gubernatorial race.

"I think they are good," Eisenhower added.

"In Michigan," he continued, "I am told that George Romney, who resigned recently as president of American Motors to make the race for the governorship, is attracting a great deal of attention."

"In my home state of Pennsylvania I believe that Congressman William W. Scranton, an able and appealing man, can win the governorship in the fall election."

"And in New York I see no reason why Gov. (Nelson A.) Rockefeller should not duplicate the performance of 1958, when he won his state by a tidy margin of 573,000."

Eisenhower declared he felt the party should be looking forward, not backward, and said he belonged to the past.

"This statement does not mean that I want to be forgotten," he explained. "I like to be consulted on important party and governmental matters, and I want to give what help I can."

"But the time has come when I should not be a focal point of Republican activity and planning."

Reflecting On SPORTS

By George Bryant

Want To Play Golf?

For those who can answer yes to the question, there is no better place to live than Pitt County. There are four golf courses in the county now. In addition to the Greenville Golf and Country Club course, there are courses at Ayden, Grifton and Farmville.

Golf is a sport for both the young and old and it is one of the few that all age groups can appreciate. If you can walk at all and swing your arms you can attempt to play golf. Unlike other sports, folks with heart trouble, and other ailments can manage to play a round of golf occasionally. For those who can't walk, most courses provide electric carts to carry the players around. Of course, many who should walk also like to ride, but that is up to the individual.

Golf Clinic

For people who would like to learn something about the sport, a clinic is held here in Greenville each spring. The clinic runs for three or four weeks, depending on the classes, and one day is set aside for the ladies and another for the youngsters under age 16.

This clinic is run by Simon Moye at the Greenville Golf Range and he is aided in the instruction by Harold Thomas, golf pro at the clinic on April 27. However, this depends a lot on the weather. This cold snap we are having right now and the wet weather this spring are interfering with the starting date some.

Friday mornings are set aside for the ladies and Saturday mornings for the youngsters. The men are sort of left out of this clinic business because of the necessity to work and earn a living. However, they can take private lessons in the area at times which suit them.

For those interested in the Friday and Saturday clinics, all they have to do is sign up with Simon at the golf range or in the pro-shop at the country club. The fee is nominal and must be charged to cover the cost of balls and other expenses. We feel like the people in the area are fortunate in having such an opportunity. It is something that is not available in most communities.

Of course, if you plan to attend the clinic with the intention of being able to shoot in the seventies the first time on the course you are sadly mistaken. Like anything else, golf takes a lot of practice. A woman can't learn to cook with three lessons and a quarterback can't learn all of the plays in three practices.

However, the clinic teaches you the basic fundamentals of the game such as the rules and the etiquette which goes along with the sport. This much will keep you from being lost when you take to the course for your first round of golf.

Facilities Good

All those taking the course are given pamphlets on golf and the instructors try to touch on all phases of the sport. Putting greens are available along with sand traps which seem to plague all golfers. To attend the clinic one needs no equipment. Clubs, balls and tees are furnished. Golf shoes are not needed unless you prefer to wear them. Taking all this into consideration, the instruction is free, a sort of civic gesture, and the small fee is to cover part of the cost of equipment.

In the seven years that Simon has been conducting the lessons he estimates that he has started about 400 youngsters and about the same number of ladies playing golf.

Olivo Hurls Pittsburgh To 6-5 Win Over Chicago

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's been a long, uphill climb for Diomedes Olivo, who started out in the Dominican Republic and found the end of the rainbow in Chicago.

That's where the Pittsburgh rookie pitcher came up with the first victory of his major league career—at the age of 42—by hurling strong relief ball while the unbeaten Pirates were defeating Chicago's winless Cubs 6-5 Monday.

Coming on in relief in the fourth inning with the Pirates trailing 4-1, Olivo went 4 1-3 innings, checking the Cubs on four hits and a lone run while Pittsburgh rallied to win it and hand the lanky left-hander his pot of gold.

Olivo began his climb from Guayabin, reaching the first plateau eight years ago when he won his first berth in organized baseball with Havana of the International League. He had a trial with the Pirates in 1960 but had no record.

Back with Columbus of the International League last year, Olivo won 11, lost 7 and compiled a 2.01 earned run average that got him another shot with the parent club. Now, when most pitchers are looking forward to a rocking chair, he's just getting started.

The victory gave the Pirates a 5-0 record. St. Louis remained undefeated, belting Philadelphia 12-6 for victory No. 4. In other games, San Francisco clobbered Los Angeles 19-8 and Cincinnati edged Milwaukee 2-1.

Houston and New York were postponed due to cold weather. There were no games scheduled in the American League.

The Pirates moved ahead of the Cubs in the fifth with four runs—three on Roberto Clemente's homer—before the Chicagoans tied it with their only run off Olivo on Moe Thacker's double. Eddie White's single and a sacrifice fly by Ken Hubbs. Pittsburgh then won it in the seventh when Dick Stuart walked, advanced to second on a ground out and scored on Don Hoak's single off reliever Bob Anderson.

The Phils and Cards each scored six times in the first inning before a solo homer by Gene Oliver off Don Ferrarese in the third put St. Louis ahead to stay behind the relief pitching of Ernie Broglio. Broglio, who took over in that wild first, limited the Phils to five hits the rest of the way. Oliver was 3-for-5 with two RBI while Bill White and rookie Doug Clemens each drove in three runs.

Felipe Alou's solo homer and a two-run shot by Jim Davenport, both off Dodgers starter Stan Williams in the second inning, gave the Giants an edge they never relinquished. Willie Mays also homered for San Francisco, hitting No. 4 with two on in the sixth. The Giants wound up with 12 hits and made the most of 10 walks and three Dodger errors plus a steal of home by Orlando Cepeda. Billy O'Dell was the winner, going the distance although allowing 15 hits.

Joey Jay, a 21-game winner who had lost his first two starts, went the distance to gain the victory for the Reds by holding the Braves to eight hits. Frank Robinson accounted for both Cincinnati runs with a bases-loaded double in the sixth that handed the loss to former American Leaguer Bob Shaw.

State And UNC To Meet Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina State visited North Carolina and Duke was at Wake Forest today for Atlantic Coast Conference baseball games. Maryland was at Navy in a non-conference game.

Virginia split a doubleheader Monday with third-place Clemson. Clemson won the first game 11-2 and Virginia took the nightcap 7-5.

In a non-conference game, Maryland lost its seventh straight to non-conference Georgetown, 5-3.

Virginia's righthanded Bill Spencer gave up three runs in the first innings of the nightcap and then held the Tigers to one hit until the ninth.

Larry Tate paced Virginia in the second game with two hits and three RBIs, including two runs knocked across in the fifth when the Cavaliers scored five runs.

Virginia is now 1-1 in the conference and 1-5 over-all. Clemson is 3-2 in conference play and 6-4 over-all.

Maryland scored the first of two runs in the fifth when Georgetown committed three straight errors with one out. The Terps scored their second run on a double steal, but were unable to get a man on base after that.

Maryland is 0-3 in the conference and 1-7 over-all.

Uelses Enters Kansas Relays

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — The class of competition for the 37th Kansas Relays Friday and Saturday has been given a king-size boost with the entry of John Uelses, first pole vaulter to clear the magic 16-foot barrier.

Meet director Bill Easton announced Monday that Uelses, recently mustered out of the Marine Corps and now living in Washington, D.C., will compete in the open class.

SALISBURY — The Catawba College Indians used the clutch relief pitching of southpaw Jerry Maye to stave off a determined East Carolina drive for a 6-5 victory here Monday afternoon.

Catawba Head Coach Harvey Stratton called Maye in from the bullpen in the eighth inning after ECC loaded the bases with no one out. Catawba was leading by three runs at the time.

The crafty lefthander forced Carlton Barnes to knock into a double play with Lacy West scoring, and then forced Junior Green to fly out to end the inning.

Merrill Bynum, who had a perfect day at the plate for ECC with four hits, touched Maye for his only hit, a homer in the last frame. East Carolina scored one run in the first, two in the fifth, one in the eighth and one in the ninth on Bynum's homer.

The Pirates scored in the first when Spencer Gaylord led off with a double and scored on Bynum's first hit of the day after two were out. In the fifth frame, Carlton Barnes and Junior Green hit back to back singles and both advanced on a passed ball. Bynum slammed a double and scored both runners.

The ECC run in the eighth came after Lacy West and Art Henretta each singled and Gaylord walked to load the sacks.

Coach Stratton then waved Maye to the mound and he forced Barnes to knock into the double play, but West scored from third on the play.

Bynum's homer and fourth hit of the day came with one out in the last frame. Maye then got Tom Kidd to ground out and Charlie Johnson to pop out to the first baseman, to end the game. Catawba scored two in the second on doubles by Carlton Beland, and Ed Knipple and a single by Andy Peretin. The Indians tallied in the third on a single by Larrell Ferbis, an error and a fielder's choice.

In the fourth, Peretin led off with a double for Catawba. Martin Smith followed with a triple and Smith crossed the plate on a fielder's choice.

The Indians wrapped up the scoring in the seventh with a double by Bill McDevitt and a double by pitcher Jim Wagoner.

Wagoner started on the mound for the Indians and gave up 10 hits. Lacy West of ECC surrendered nine hits and Maye gave up one.

Bynum was the big sticker for the Pirates with four hits, followed by Barnes and Green with two each. Smith and Peretin each had two for the Indians.

Hebert Better Watch Out

HOUSTON (AP) — Jay Hebert better watch out Thursday when he starts defending the Houston Golf Classic title he won last year in a 19-hole playoff.

If he's not careful he may go the way other defending champions here went, with nothing to show for his time. If he is lucky he may win enough to pay his hotel bill.

A defending champion never has won the Classic the next time he hit town.

Cary Middlecoff is the only champion to even come close to winning the next year. He finished second in 1954 and picked up $3,200 after winning in 1953.

The past 12 Classic winners collected a total of $51,400 first place money.

But when these 12 guys tried to defend the title they collected a total of only $4,196.

Most of the 110 golfers who will compete over the 7,100-yard par 71 Memorial Park course arrived today and plan to compete in Wednesday's pro-am.

Mental Rather Than The Physical Strain In FB

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—It's the mental rather than the physical strain which gets you in professional football these days, says the New York Giants' Kyle Rote.

Can Explain Curve Balls

NEW YORK (AP)—Jay Hook, who was scheduled to labor for the New York Mets against the Houston Colts today, can explain what a pitcher throws it.

Hook, 6-1 and 26 years old, pitched for the Cincinnati Reds from 1957 until he was grabbed by the Mets in the draft last winter.

But he sadly admitted, that doesn't mean you can put the theory to good use.

Hook, who shows an unimpressive 3.22 earned run average, has a degree from Northwestern University and is a member in good standing of the American Rocket Society.

Hook, 6-1 and 26 years old, pitched for the Cincinnati Reds from 1957 until he was grabbed by the Mets in the draft last winter.

But get him to talk about the curve and the theory behind it and his eyes light up.

"It's really quite simple," he explained. "The baseball is spinning clockwise. Because of the direction of the spin, there is more pressure on the left side of the ball.

"The air is moving faster than the ball on the right side and there is less pressure there. Thus the ball will break to the right."

Tourney May Be Held In Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The Houston Post said today that the U.S. Open Golf Tournament may be held here in 1965.

It quoted Jackie Burke as saying Houston is among several sites being considered.

Burke is part owner of the Champions Golf Club here.

This year's Open will be in Pittsburgh.

ning and it looks as if the youngsters are hard at work, preparing for the opening on May 16.

All of the boys seemed to be having the time of their lives.

By watching them a few minutes we got the feeling that they knew they were there for a purpose and that there was a lot of work involved.

However, the expressions on their faces and the way they played showed the amount of fun they were having.

Of course, it was also easy to detect that it was one of the first practice sessions as the boys were having some trouble getting organized.

For example, the second baseman was not in the right spot and the right-fielder was in too close.

This seemed to bother the coach more than the players, but he, too, was smiling as he corrected the errors and went on to prepare the team for the tough competition ahead.

tees. You have to think all the Rote, 34, who set all-time records for the Giants as a pass-receiver, gave this as one of the reasons for his retirement as an active player.

He announced Monday that he would quit the field after 11 years to become an offensive backfield coach under head coach Allie Sherman.

"It's not that football has become a drudgery or has stopped being fun for me," the 6-foot, 200-pound Texan said. "I still like to play, but the wear and tear has begun to show."

The former SMU star said the pro game is far different from the one which he broke into in 1951. The most significant change is in the defenses.

"The exchange of film is partly responsible for this," he said, "but it's the line backers who have really put a new complexion on the game. You've got three big, tough men in there—ready to move up to plug a hole or fade back to grab a pass."

"The defense now has as many plays as the offense—and as many automatics, that is, plays that can be called on the spur of the moment. They're constantly changing signals on the field."

Rote, who caught 301 passes for 4,809 yards and 52 touchdowns (all Giant records), succeeds Don Heinrich as offensive backfield coach. He will continue as a sports broadcaster for a New York radio station.

2 Turned Over On Fix Charges

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Two Missouri men have been turned over North Carolina authorities for arraignment at Raleigh, N. C., on charges of fixing collegiate basketball games.

Circuit Judge Noah Weinstein denied writs of habeas corpus Monday for David Goldberg, 46, and Steve Lekometros, 38, both of suburban Clayton.

The two men were expected to obtain release after the presiding judge of Wake County, N. C., reduced bond from $170,000 to $35,000 each.

Indictments returned at Raleigh against Goldberg, Lekometros and other gamblers in New York, Pittsburgh and Biloxi, Miss., cited 10 allegedly fixed basketball games involving North Carolina State College.

Lou Wolfson's promising 2-year-old Omarbrad, a winner at Hialeah, this winter, is named for Gen. Omar Bradley.

Floyd Patterson To Defend Title

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson will defend the world heavyweight boxing title against Sonny Liston in September. The fight probably will be held in a New York ball park although the Cotton Bowl in Dallas is a possibility.

You can't get too definite about these things in the boxing business. The promoter says one thing, the fighter's lawyer says another. There are wheels within wheels and angles to angles.

Everything was to have been settled Monday according to contract signed March 16. Patterson was to have designated the date and place on or before April 16.

The Boxing Writers' Association sent out word that an important announcement would be made at luncheon.

Tom Bolan, president of Championship Sports, Inc., the promoting group, was the first speaker. "The fight will be held Sept. 26 at Yankee Stadium or Sept. 26 at the Polo Grounds," Bolan began. "Two possibilities may prevent the fight from being held New York. However, I have every reason to think it will be held in New York."

"No. 1. The New York State Athletic Commission must approve Liston will file an application tomorrow (Tuesday). Gen. Krulwich (Chairman Melvin Krulwich) has assured me of a quick decision. No, he gave no assurance whether he would decide one way or another.

"If they do not give Liston a license, we are prepared to move quickly to some other site where he is licensed."

Liston's attorney, Morton Wilkin, said in Philadelphia, "All we know is that we've been invited to New York and we're going."

He said he didn't anticipate any difficulty in Sonny's obtaining a

New York license and that it made no difference to the Liston camp where the fight was held.

"All Liston wants to do is fight," he said.

(Commission officials said no decision would be made until the next meeting for which no date has been set).

Folley Confident He'll Beat Cleroux

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Arizonan Zora Folley, shocked into changing his style from boxer to better, expressed confidence today he'll beat Canadian heavyweight champion Robert Cleroux.

The two battle Wednesday over a route of 10 rounds or less at the San Francisco Civic Auditorium.

"I think I can beat him," is about all the quiet-spoken 29-year-old veteran from Chandler says, but workouts have been more impressive than for any of his three previous fights here.

Promoter Bennie Ford hopes to match the winner against Archie Moore and both the Folley and Cleroux camps have shown interest in such a bout.

In his three previous appearances here, Folley showed a fine left jab and impressed fans with his foot work but not his punch. Even so, he knocked out Howard King and drew and decisioned Eddie Machen, the current No. 2 ranked heavy, in two fights that failed to excite the audience.

Then last May 11, Folley lost prestige and ranking when Argentine Alejandro Lavorante knocked him out in the seventh round at Los Angeles.

"That was a shock and woke us all up," Manager Bill Swift acknowledged. "We knew we had to make changes.

"His style now is considerably different. He's more aggressive and has added punches."

Cleroux, from Montreal, says he'll be happy if Folley sticks to the aggressive style because "I don't like to chase an opponent."

Folley holds the No. 3 challenger's spot with Cleroux at No. 4 and both hoping for a title shot.

McGuire confers with USC Again

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—Frank McGuire, who's among a number of coaches being considered for the basketball coaching job at the University of South Carolina, was to confer again today with university officials.

The vacancy was created by the resignation of Bob Stevens, who took the coaching job at the University of Oklahoma.

McGuire, now coach of the Philadelphia Warriors of the National Basketball Association, made a two-day visit here last week.

McGuire, former university of North Carolina coach, currently has two years left on his $25,000-a-year job with the Warriors.

The Warriors may move to San Francisco and McGuire is not anxious to move.

For reason No. 2 he yielded the microphone to Julius November, a man of many syllables who is Patterson's attorney. He told the members that Patterson was making an appearance before some boys' club and please don't mention it because he doesn't like publicity about that.

"A Texas group made an offer of $1 million for the fight over the weekend," he said.

November did not identify the "Texas group" more than to say they were from Dallas or Houston. He did say he understood the Cotton Bowl was available. The "Texas group" was given until noon Thursday to put the cash in the bank and make suitable arrangements.

It appeared that Dallas had faded as a possible site when Field Sovell said he couldn't find anyone who was inclined to put up a million dollars.

Sovell, athletic committee chairman of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, said he would continue trying to raise what he called "a very high guarantee even for a heavyweight championship fight."

The contracts, already signed, call for Patterson to get 55 per cent of the ancillary (closed circuit television, movies, radio etc.) and 45 per cent of the live gate. Liston gets 12 1/2 per cent of each and a $200,000 guarantee.

The day of decision has passed, but until Thursday it still remains either or, on the other hand, maybe, whereas, and could be. The lawyers still are doing their roadwork.

Rusk Moderately Pleased By First Talk

By ENDRE MARTON
 WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk was reported today to be moderately satisfied after the first of his talks on Berlin with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin—a talk that was conducted in English without interpreters.

It was also understood that Rusk—after a short cooling-off period—has decided to brief the Allies on his conversation with Dobrynin Monday.

This policy of consulting with the Allies on any Berlin move was almost wrecked over the weekend by the news leak from Bonn about U.S. proposals for a new round of Berlin discussions.

Officials here said the leak had jeopardized seriously the Rusk-Dobrynin talks and shaken U.S. confidence in the West Germans.

Both Rusk and Dobrynin described Monday's session as fruitful and businesslike, and officials believe the talks will be resumed shortly, probably later this month.

One purpose of the meeting is to set procedures for future talks—including where and when they will be held.

Bonn, officials said, has been told in unmistakable terms that Washington seriously questions the value of inter-Allied consultations if such things can happen.

While informants confirm that the points mentioned in the Bonn stories are basically correct, they also say they represent only a fraction of the issues Rusk could bring up in his talks with Dobrynin.

In brief, the four U.S. proposals are: internalization of the Berlin access route; a nonaggression pact between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations and the Communist Warsaw Pact nations; a U.S.-Soviet agreement to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons; and establishment of joint East-West German committees.

Although the Bonn leak was considered a breach of trust, the main irritant is what Washington officials describe as lack of confidence in the West German capital.

U.S. officials feel that Chancellor

Konrad Adenauer should trust the Kennedy administration and accept the assurances that the United States will not abandon the city.

The trouble is, one State Department specialist said, that Bonn is accustomed to the almost daily declarations of affection it received from Washington during the Eisenhower administration.

The West German leaders, the official said, should by now realize the Kennedy administration operates in a different way.

However, West German press chief Felix von Eckardt said Monday in Bonn that "everything has been straightened out."

He said Adenauer's administration has no objection to the four points and has the fullest confidence in the American negotiating position.

Adenauer, on vacation in Cadenabbia, Italy, declined to comment on reports he was disturbed about certain aspects of the proposals.

ESSAY CONTEST FINALISTS—Five rural high school students will compete in Raleigh Wednesday, April 25, in the two-state finals of the 1962 Cooperative Essay Contest. First place winner will receive $350 in cash and a one-year college tuition scholarship. The contestants are Linda Arlene Evans (upper left) of Chicod High in Pitt County; Hoyle S. Broome, Jr. (upper right) of Clement High in Sampson County; George Butler (lower left) of Garner High in Wake County; and Brenda Templeton (lower right) of Union Grove High in Iredell County. Not shown is the South Carolina finalist, Jerry Dyar of Belton. The contest is sponsored annually by the Farmers Cooperative Exchange and the N. C. Cotton Growers Association.

Optimists Hear Carl L. Kinlaw

Greenville Optimists Monday hosted four members of the Wilson Optimist Club and heard a brief address by Carl L. Kinlaw of Greenville, an area vice president of the North Carolina Association of Life Underwriters. Kinlaw told Optimists the Pitt County Association of Life Underwriters is sponsoring Life Insurance Week in the county this week and distributed corresponding literature. He urged his audience to study the structure of life insurance in order to use it efficiently.

An important element in the life insurance business, Kinlaw said, is the health of the public. He noted that persons who are overweight are 25 per cent more liable to earlier death.

He asked his Optimist audience to review a leaflet he distributed that noted the growing socialistic trend in U.S. government.

Members of the Wilson club attending the local Optimists' weekly dinner meeting were Albert Thomas, Dan Williams, Sammie Roberson and L. A. Hamm.

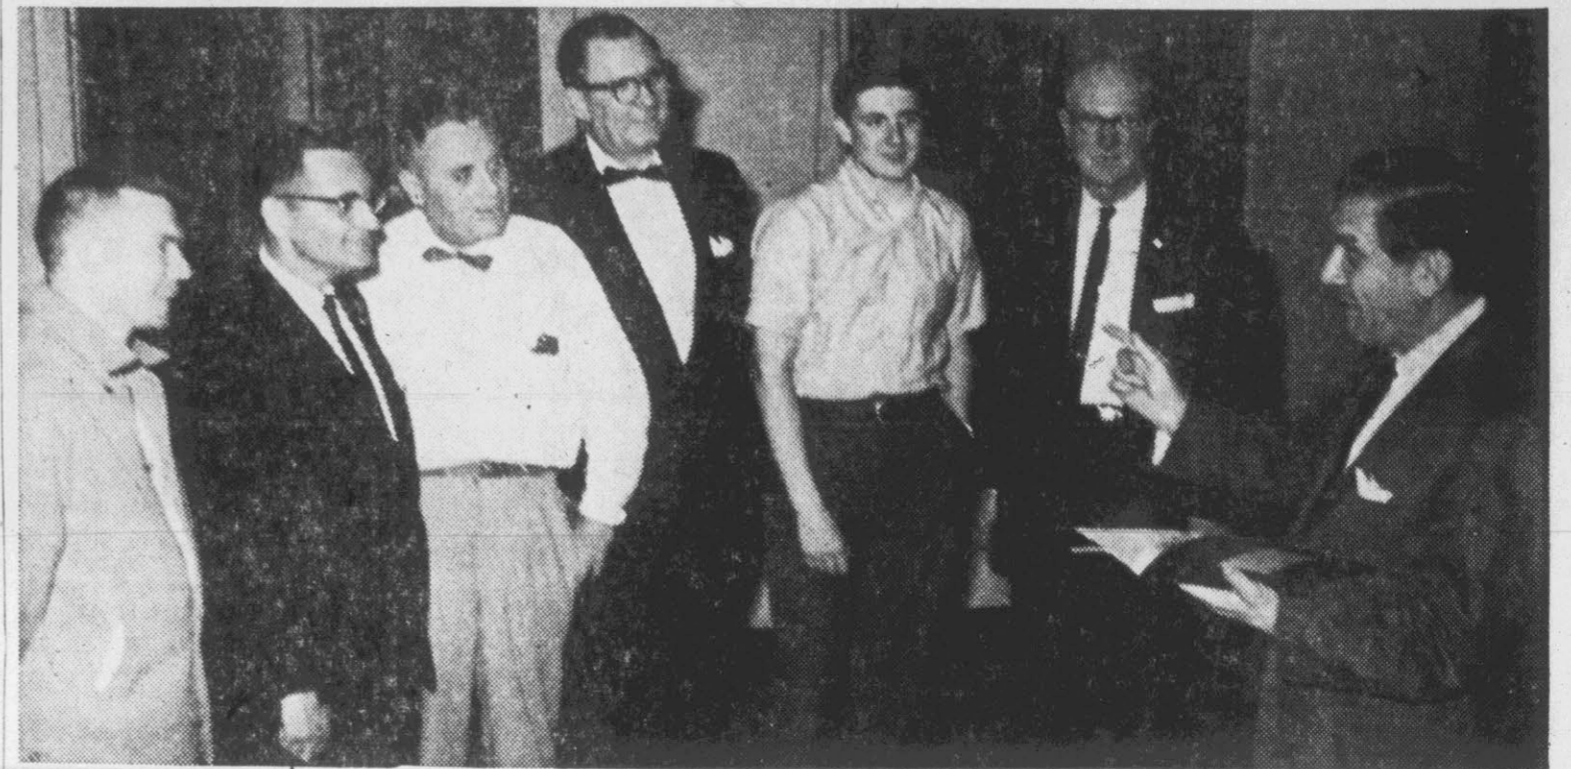

Officials said Rusk and Dobrynin had agreed tentatively to hold the fourth round of exploratory talks in Washington. Rusk is reported to feel that a fresh start with a new participant on the Soviet side and in a different locale might create a more favorable atmosphere to break the deadlock over Berlin.

The first round was between Rusk and Andrei A. Gromyko, the Soviet foreign minister, in New York last fall. It was followed by conferences in Moscow between Gromyko and U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson. A third round took place in Geneva last month, also between Rusk and Gromyko.

Rusk was reported to be relatively satisfied after the first one-hour conference. He was particularly pleased because Dobrynin speaks fluent English.

Rusk told his aides he had discussed with the Soviet ambassador his Geneva talks with Gromyko, to set a firm footing for future talks.

U.S. officials said privately that the Bonn leak, revealing the Berlin settlement proposals Washington wants to discuss, had annoyed the Kennedy administration—including the President himself.

White House Lawn Sees A Cool Concert

WASHINGTON (AP)—The wind blew a cool 20 miles an hour. The musicians blew a cool "Hail to the Chief."

President Kennedy, his wife at his side, strode out on the White House lawn to give a warm reception to two young musical organizations and 900 youngsters who came to hear them.

It was the third in a series of lawn concerts by youth for youth which Mrs. Kennedy has been sponsoring.

The groups who performed Monday in finger-numbing 48-degree weather with a spanking breeze that sent sheet music sailing from the music stands were the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra and the Breckenridge (Texas) Boys Choir.

"I loved it," said Mrs. Kennedy, who sat in a front-row seat during the hour-long concert. "It was marvelous."

Kennedy climbed up on the band shell and stood without a topcoat beside the bass fiddle section while the orchestra played the national anthem. He then welcomed them all "to this house which belongs to all of us."

"One of our greatest assets in this country is our talented boys and girls who devote their early lives to music, the appreciation of music and understanding of it. This is a great and, I think, vital force in American life."

Smiling, he said "I never heard the Star-Spangled Banner played with more enthusiasm and precision."

The concert ranged from Bach's fugue in G minor by the orchestra to an Irish folk tune, "Will You Come to the Bow'r," sung by the choir.

After it was over, Mrs. Kennedy congratulated the 40 boys in the Texas choir, who were shivering in their blazer jackets. She told the orchestra conductor, Marvin Rabin, that his 104 teen-age musicians had done wonderfully despite the weather.

The President had to go back to work and couldn't stay for the concert but he promised "I will keep the door of my office open all afternoon." And he did.

Look To Oversea Steel Markets

NEW YORK (AP)—If the nation's steel makers hope to expand sales and production, they must find new markets—and some of the best ones may be overseas.

According to Steelways, publication of the American Iron and Steel Institute, between 1950 and 1960 the Japanese increased steel production 357 per cent; West Germany, 143 per cent; Czechoslovakia, 127 per cent; Brazil, 176 per cent, and the United States 3 per cent.

The magazines said steel consumption in other countries also is growing by larger per cents than in the already highly developed U. S. economy. It asserted that major sales and growth prospects for American steel makers, therefore, are in international markets.

Fisherman's 'Luck' Confirmed

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—There is such a thing as fisherman's luck.

Nine-year-old Larry Simons was fishing on Memorial Causeway drawbridge. A 14 or 15-year-old boy fishing nearby struck up a conversation, then started helping Larry out, baiting his hook and helping him with his casting and so on. He had leaned his rod and reel against the railing and was helping Larry, when suddenly the rig went sailing into the bay.

Sadly, the boy left the bridge. About 10 minutes later, Larry hooked something and pulled it in. It was the older boy's rod and reel and on the end of the line was a 15-inch trout.

Now the Simons family is looking for the boy to give him back his rig.

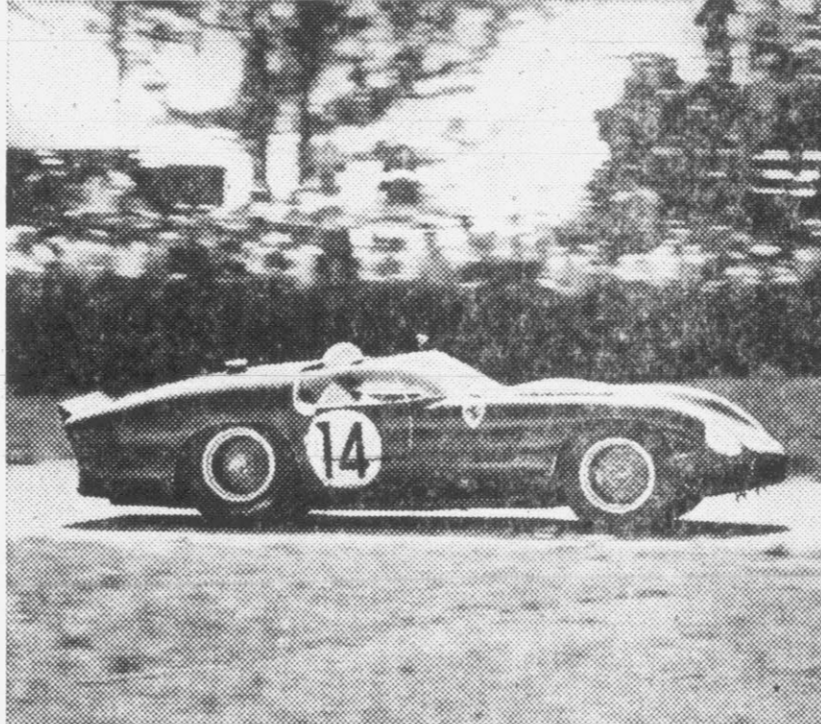

Two Tapped Into 'Golden Fleece'

Two Greenville students at the University of North Carolina were tapped Monday into the Order of the Golden Fleece, highest honorary order at the University.

Robert Hodges Bilbro, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Tyson Bilbro of 1004 E. Third St., and Grover W. Everett Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett of 2002 E. Fourth St., were among 18 students taken into the order.

It was the 59th annual tapping ceremony for the Order of the Golden Fleece. J. McNeil Smith, Greensboro attorney, addressed a dinner for student and alumni members of the order after the tapping ceremony.

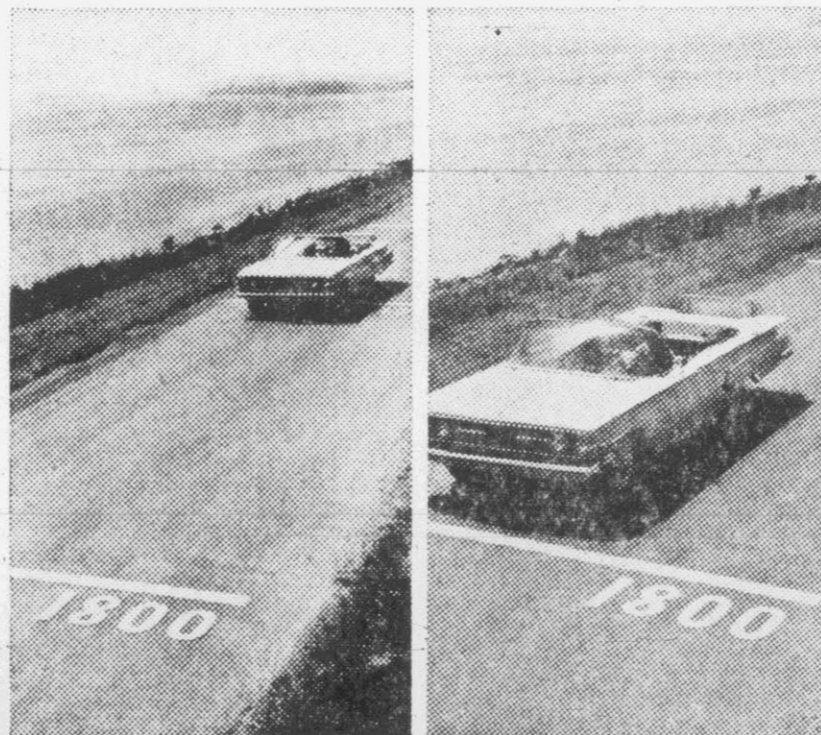

How Super Shell's 9 ingredients work

World champion driver uses Super Shell. One reason: its power ingredients. World champion Phil Hill (above, in Ferrari) needs power. Super Shell's basic power ingredient is "cat-cracked" gasoline—made by cracking heavy petroleum molecules into lighter, livelier ones. Note: TCP* additive helps your car deliver top performance by neutralizing certain power-robbing engine deposits. And another Super Shell ingredient helps keep carburetors clean inside.

Super Shell's anti-knock ingredients work for a quiet engine at all speeds. Shell scientists use a stethoscope (above) to double-check Super Shell's ability to fight knock and help engines run quietly. One of Super Shell's knock-fighting ingredients is so effective that a single teaspoonful per gallon can boost anti-knock rating five points. Another ingredient in today's Super Shell is noted for controlling knock in hot engines at high speeds better than anything else yet available.

Tests prove that Platformate, Super Shell's extra-mileage ingredient, can make a real difference. Here's how test is run. Small amount of fuel without Platformate is fed into test car. The car runs until fuel is gone (left). Test is repeated, using Super Shell with Platformate. Same amount of fuel. Identical conditions. In repeated tests, Super Shell with Platformate took car an average of 40 feet farther (right). Works out to about 2½ extra miles in every 100 miles of driving.

Super Shell ingredients for quick starts and fast warm-ups get workout in "40 below" lab. Super Shell contains Butane for quick-starts. And Pentane mix for fast warm-ups. Both are checked for top performance—in tests in this lab, and in cold-weather tests outside. Note: When the weather calls for it, Super Shell also contains an anti-icing ingredient. It helps to prevent ice from sticking to vital carburetor parts—and causing your car to stall.

Farm Prospect 'Good' Says Bank Spokesman

S. W. Dail, assistant manager of the Time Payment Department of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company here, was elected assistant vice president of the bank today.

His election was announced by R. W. Howard, senior vice president, following the bank's quarterly directors meeting this morning. He also reported that the bank's business volume for the first three months of 1962 exceeded any previous first quarter.

The directors declared a quarterly dividend of 15 cents per share payable May 15 to owners of record May 1.

Howard said that the directors reviewed progress of the bank and reports of record first-quarter highs in deposits, resources, capital funds and total business volume and heard a forecast of another good year for Eastern North Carolina farmers.

Gross farm income this year should run slightly ahead of 1961's record figures, Howard said. He predicted increased income from field crops and said the outlook is good for area farmers to continue expansion of livestock production.

According to all indications, the domestic use of flue-cured tobacco will increase 3 per cent this year, he said. The total supply on hand is below last year's level, and the 1962 crop will be supported at the same parity level as in 1961. With prices remaining stable, the small acreage allowed farmers this year should make possible an increase in income over last year's leaf crop.

Increased acreage of cotton, soybeans and sweet potatoes and increased yields per acre of peanuts, he said, should also add to total farm income in this area.

He noted the continuing heavy demand for pork and beef and predicted another good year for livestock producers. Livestock production in Eastern North Carolina still falls far short of meeting the needs of area meat processing firms, thereby providing opportunity and a ready market, he said.

Since the beginning of the year, he said, there have been significant increases in savings deposits at the bank continuing a trend that began about a year ago. "These personal savings represent a substantial investment backlog and indicate the strength of the Carolina economy and the thrifty habits of Carolinians."

Deposits at the end of the quarter totaled $626 million, up approximately 8 1/2 per cent over the same period last year, resources were $747 million, and capital accounts exceeded $59 million.

The gains in deposits reflect increased economic activity in this area and provide additional loan funds needed to stimulate further area growth and development, Howard said. As a result of the first quarter increases, Wachovia has had more funds available and more loans outstanding and at work in the area than in any previous first quarter, he said.

Loans at the end of the quarter totaled $398 million, a gain of $19 million over the same period last year.

Dail, who joined Wachovia in 1951, has represented the Time Payment Department in this area for several years. He was named assistant manager of the department here last year. A native of Winterville, where he continues to reside, he is a member of the Greenville Elks Lodge and the Kwanon Club and Christian Church of Winterville.

Among the staff changes announced for the Raleigh-Wachovia office was William A. Bowen of the correspondent banking department, who was advanced from assistant vice president to vice president.

Bowen is a Greenville native and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bowen of Greenville.

Employees Will Attend Session

The directors also instructed association secretary, Mrs. Cora Powell, to attend the annual convention of the North Carolina Merchants Association in Charlotte May 20-22.

President Morris Brody, who presided at the meeting, appointed a three-man committee, including B. D. Johnston, K. M. Watkins and Gilford Worsley to meet with a representative of the Distributive Education Service to formulate plans for promoting sales classes for Greenville.

A new member of the association was announced. President Brody listed the newcomer as MorMac Service.

Two Children's Hearing Fixed

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The 5 1/2-month-old baby babbles and coos, then chuckles at the sound of his own voice. His 2-year-old sister turns at the sound of her mother's step-and smiles.

The two actions, though seemingly simple and ordinary, cause a leap of joy in the mother's heart.

The children were born with hearing defects. Under old practices, no tests, no treatment would have begun until they were at least two years old and perhaps even later.

But Ricky, 5 1/2 months old, and his sister, Kathy, 2, have been fitted with hearing aids and are on their way to normal lives.

Clifford I. Whipple, director of Louisville's Hearing and Speech Center, said the practice of giving hearing tests — and later, treatment — to children younger than two is rather new. It also is being done in Los Angeles, he said.

The children's mother asked that the family name not be used. Had treatment been delayed, Whipple said, speech difficulties, a deficient vocabulary and emotional problems may have developed. The head start also prevents deterioration of hearing nerves, he added.

Farm monthly wage rates were 600s year. The 1961 average was up $3 last year from the prev- $203 monthly, with house.

Pride Wants To Be Hospitalized

VERONA, Italy (AP)—Adriano D'Amore, 24, was drafted into the Italian army three days after Graziella Filippini, 21, accepted his proposal of marriage.

Every free moment during his 17 months of service, Adriano wrote to his fiancée. In 519 days as a soldier, he sent Graziella 615 letters, each at least nine pages long, and 1,500 postcards.

The girl answered almost every letter. Five months ago they were married.

When a mild ailment put Adriano into the hospital a few days ago, his wife asked to be hospitalized, too.

"I want to be near my husband," she told the doctors. "I have a slight cut on my hand that would prevent me from writing him every day."

Heart Transplant Hopes Raised

Combine Forces To Raid Big Still

Pitt and Beaufort County ABC enforcers and Federal Alcohol and Tobacco Tax unit agents combined forces yesterday to destroy a 500-gallon submarine type still near the Pitt-Beaufort county line in the Ward's Bridge section of Pactolus Township.

Officers said in addition to the 500 gallon submarine type unit, two 55-gallon doublers, a 200-gallon pre heater, 22 55-gallon mash barrels and a 200 gallon cooler and coil condenser were destroyed at the site.

Investigators, noting the unit was fired by oil, said it was not in operation but added that the mash had been run out.

Thirty-nine gallons of non-tax-paid whiskey were located in a wooded area across the road from the still site. That, too, was destroyed.

A total of 32 sticks of dynamite were used in the destruction of the outfit.

Taking part in the raid were Pitt officers J. M. Ward and Walter Taylor; Beaufort County enforcers Harry Stokes and Lester Hawkins and federal agents Jim Saunders and Don Alphin.

Debbie Reynolds Likes Set Of 'Flatter Wigs'

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Did you notice," asked my date at the Academy Awards, "how many of the stars were wearing wigs?" She referred not to the rugs atop the thinning domes of the male stars, but to the profuse and orderly hairdos on the ladies.

"Wigs on women?" I said in masculine ignorance.

"Certainly. It's the latest thing."

This was news to me and since I decided to investigate, I dropped by the set of "My Six Loves" to interrogate Debbie Reynolds. She was wearing a luxuriant sweep of blonde hair.

"That's the same style you wore to the Oscars—yes?"

"It is," she admitted.

"Is it—uh, yours?"

"Of course not. It's a wig."

"Lots of the girls wear them nowadays," Debbie continued. "Not just actresses, but other women, too. It's so convenient."

"Take the Oscar night. I got through work at Paramount at 6 and I had to be in Santa Monica and ready to go on the show at 7. If I had to get my hair fixed, I just couldn't have made it—impossible. But with a wig, I'm ready to go in minutes."

What's more, she has a set of them.

"I've got a reddish-brown wig I wore in 'Rat Race.' I've got another one which is my own shade of hair. Then there is this light blonde one I've got on."

"I've also got a black wig that I now wear only on Halloween. I bought it originally so I could go places incognito."

Debbie said she wouldn't wear a wig when she had time to get her own hair set. But for a busy girl like her, an ersatz head of hair is a boon.

"Especially when I go on trip," she remarked. "Before I go, I send the wig over to S. (Guillaro, the noted hair stylist) for him to set. I take it along and when I arrive in a town, I can just put it on and I'm ready to go anywhere."

I checked with Max Factor's, which started the whole trend and calls them flatter-wigs. They sell for $200 up and are made of human hair imported from the Balkans and Italy. Colors? You name it, they've got it.

Zulus call the Drakensberg mountain range in South Africa the "Quathlamba," which means "heaped up and jagged like a bundle of spearheads."

Counts Thirteen Reasons To Bet On Her Success

SOAP LAKE, Wash. (AP)—These are the 13 reasons you can bet on Beth Scheib to succeed as a farmer: A widow's courage and one dozen little Scheibs aged 2 months to 14 years.

Every Scheib helps—even baby Larry, whose yells for dinner punctuate the need for making the Scheib acres provide a living.

Pretty Beth (her age you can't have, but she was married at 17) was widowed last August when a plane crash killed Lawrence Scheib and two neighbors.

"The bankers, Farm Home Administration advisers and everyone else told me to sell out and move to town," Beth says.

"What could I do in town with 12 children? For the price of a year's payment on the farm I couldn't even rent a house."

"I'm trying it my own way."

Her own way is driving the tractor, plowing the fields, harvesting the alfalfa. When the older children are in school she pays a baby sitter 50 cents an hour to watch the smaller tykes.

"I couldn't hire a man for 50 cents an hour and I couldn't pay more," says realistic Mrs. Scheib. Steve is 11 and the man of the family. "You kids," he says sternly, "keep away from the tractor!" Linda, 14, and Kathy, 13, are the big girls who help with the housework. Jerry is 10, Clifford 9 and Jim is 8; strong farmhands all. They feed the livestock and help with the irrigation. Doing what they can to help are Peggy, 7; Barbara 5; Don, 4; Wally, 2.

The Scheib farm is 10 acres but 65 more are cultivated for Mrs. Leonard McNamara, a neighbor widowed by the same crash that left 12 Scheibs fatherless.

"We raise our own beef for the locker," Mrs. Scheib says. "We plan to build up our herd of cattle. We used to have a truck garden but I think we'll skip the garden patch and stick to real farming. This is our trial year."

It takes about $200 a month in hard cash to feed the tribe of Scheibs.

Another Kim, A Method Actress On TV Tonight

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Rudyard Kipling appropriated the name first, for a little boy in his famous story, but currently there are three Kims in show business, all of star caliber and all female.

Sometimes it's confusing. There is Kim Hunter, who usually plays suffering, emotionally distraught ladies, a string of unhappy women that started with Stella in "A Streetcar Named Desire." There is Kim Novak, the screen actress with a passion for mauve that extends even to her hair rinse.

There is Kim Stanley, the blonde, serious-minded method actress who will star in tonight's main television event, a Tad Mosel original drama, "There's Where the Town's Going," on CBS.

Miss Stanley feels that her studies at the Actor's Studio and guidance from Lee Strasberg have helped her immeasurably, but refuses to be drawn into discussions of the controversial "method."

"All I know is that it works for me," she says.

At a time when many performers are mourning the disappearance of road companies, stock companies and a diminution of acting opportunities in Hollywood, Miss Stanley believes that young talent has a better chance than ever before.

"There are now more good acting schools for young performers than ever," she says. "And there are more chances to act in off-Broadway shows."

Walter Cronkite's admirers—a legion which includes this reporter—may have been a little disappointed Monday night when his first early evening news show on CBS turned out to be pretty much like all other 15-minute news shows.

The real news of the day was, of course, the same as that reported by NBC's Huntley-Brinkley and ABC's Ron Cochran. His one special gimmick was a telephone interview with one of the excommunicated Southerners, with cameras on both ends of the line.

Cronkite possesses sound news judgment, has had broad experience as a responsible reporter and has an attractive television manner. But no one can be very novel or startling in a short program whose function is merely to skim the heaviest cream off the top of the news.

Recommended tonight: "Rainbow of Stars," NBC, 9-10 (EST)—musical special with Robert Goulet, Nancy Walker, Carol Lawrence, Radio City Music Hall Rockettes and Corps de Ballet. "That's Where the Town's Going," CBS, 10-11—Jason Robards Jr., Kim Stanley, Patricia Neal in an original script by Tad Mosel. "Close-Up," ABC, 10:30-11—"Back to Bhowani," a review of imperialism in India.

Report Rise In U.S. TV Sets

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Census Bureau said Monday 90 per cent of all households had at least one television set in January 1962. This was a gain of 2 per cent over results of a similar survey conducted in May 1960.

In the latest survey, 13 in every 100 households had two or more television receivers, up from 11 in 100 in 1960.

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels made a cautious recovery as the stock market moved steadily higher early this afternoon. Trading was moderately active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .80 at 352.00 with industrials up 1.10, rails up .60 and utilities up .30. Movements of fractions to a point among key stocks were generally on the upside although quite a number of stocks in various groups showed no change.

The steels were making a technical snapback reinforced by published reports that the Kennedy administration is easing pressure on the steel industry following last week's crisis which resulted in rescinding of the 86-a-ton price increase.

Rails moved up nicely. Rubbers, farm implements, utilities and building materials also were higher but motors, chemicals and nonferrous metals were mixed and tobacco mainly lower.

Lukens rebounded a couple of points and U.S. Steel around a point. Bethlehem and Jones & Laughlin showed fractional gains but Republic was down slightly and Youngstown Sheet more than a point.

Gains of about a point by Union Carbide, Kennecott, Dow Chemical, Illinois Central and U.S. Gypsum helped breed conference. Ford advanced well over a point. Polaroid rounded ahead 5 points.

Losses of around a point were taken by Du Pont, Liggett & Myers and Merck.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.96 at 686.04. Prices moved irregularly higher in quiet trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds edged higher.

Hospital Policy For Centenarian

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt. (AP) — Insurance history was made today when a woman 41 days shy of her 102nd birthday was issued a hospitalization policy by the Vermont Accident Insurance.

Ellen Elizabeth Perry, a spry lass with a sparkling sense of humor who chopped her own firewood at the age of 98, is anticipating, with glee, her 102nd birthday May 28, "so we can have a nice party. I like parties."

Mrs. Perry is believed to be the oldest holder of a hospitalization policy in North America, says I. J. Davis, agent for the insurance company. Davis said "we had no grounds to refuse her. She apparently has no medical history and we consider her an excellent risk."

Mrs. Perry verified the health factor. "I never had a sick day in my life," she beamed.

The policy, for which Mrs. Perry pays $100.00 annually, includes $20 a day in hospitalization benefits, $100 for emergency surgery and $300 for regular surgery.

Mrs. Perry has outlived her brother, her six sisters and her husband, Frederick, who died at 95. One sister lived to be 101.

She was born in North Ely, Quebec, in 1860. Her parents, Charles and Margaret Smith, were natives of Ireland and American citizens. They returned to the United States about 1880.

Mrs. Perry's most vivid memories are of her childhood when she had to walk two miles through dense forest to school.

"The forest was full of wolves and bears," she said.

Surviving are her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Nathan Wetherington of Greenville; two sons, K. Brantley and Robert Lee Brantley of Greenville; four grandchildren; four brothers, Clyde, R.C., Lee and Thomas Waters of Greenville; five sisters, Mrs. Neta Dixon and Mrs. Martha Carawan of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Glenn Brantley, Mrs. George Williams, and Mrs. Mayhew Jarvis of Greenville; and a half brother, Matthew Waters of Bath.

REGISTRATION DAY
Registration for the Protestant Kindergarten will be held at the kindergarten, located at Eighth St. Christian Church, Wednesday, April 18, from 3:30 until 5 p.m.

Reservist Faces Court Martial

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (AP) — An Army reservist facing a court-martial because he criticized his commander-in-chief, President Kennedy, is confident he will be exonerated.

"I can see nothing wrong with a man expressing an honest opinion to a senator," Pfc. Larry D. Chidester, 24, of Salt Lake City, said Monday.

"I've always felt a man has a right to voice his opinion on his country. That is what this country runs on."

Chidester, an automotive mechanic with the 15th Ordnance Co., has been charged by the Army with violating the uniform code of military justice by soliciting and encouraging men in his unit to sign a letter critical of the President. The court-martial tentatively is set for April 23.

The letter, signed by 75 members of the 100-man company, was sent to Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah.

Bennett issued a statement in Washington defending what he called the rights of Guardsmen to gripe and write letters to members of Congress.

In one portion of the letter, Chidester asked if Kennedy "liked expenditures of great proportions which he allocates freely or does he think the jobs left open by our callup will re-elect him on the basis of low unemployment."

Bennett said the strong language of the letter should be viewed in the light of circumstances. He said it was written before the August release date for the Guardsmen had been announced.

Rites Set For Mrs. Kinion Brantley
Mrs. Annie Mae Brantley, 56, wife of Kinion Brantley, died Monday afternoon at 5:05 at Pitt Memorial Hospital after several months of illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock by the Rev. W. D. Boyd, Church of God Minister of Winterville. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mrs. Brantley, a native of Beaufort County, moved to Grimesland with her family in 1926, then moved to Greenville from Bethel in 1936. She was employed at the Greenville Packing Company and was a member of the Greenville Church of God.

Surviving are her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Nathan Wetherington of Greenville; two sons, K. Brantley and Robert Lee Brantley of Greenville; four grandchildren; four brothers, Clyde, R.C., Lee and Thomas Waters of Greenville; five sisters, Mrs. Neta Dixon and Mrs. Martha Carawan of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Glenn Brantley, Mrs. George Williams, and Mrs. Mayhew Jarvis of Greenville; and a half brother, Matthew Waters of Bath.

Funeral Wednesday For Robert D. Suber
Robert (Bobby) Dail Suber, four-year-old son of Mrs. Curtis H. (Anne Dail) Nichols, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital Tuesday morning at 6:15 after six months of illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 by the Rev. Henry Melvin, Free Will Baptist minister of New Bern, assisted by the Rev. Charles L. Sapp, pastor of the Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will be in the Winterville Cemetery.

Bobby spent most of his life in Greenville, residing at 213 Glenwood Avenue, but for the past eight months had lived with his family in New Bern.

Surviving are his mother and stepfather; his grandparents, Mrs. Titus Dail of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Suber of Mississippi, and his step-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nichols of near Greenville.

Five Former Governors Want To Sit In That Top Spot Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five former governors, all Democrats, have got that old spring feeling. They want to be governors again.

Four of them, all from the South and border states, probably would have tried earlier candidacies if their state laws had permitted successive terms.

Two of these are the former boy orator Frank G. Clement of Tennessee, who keynoted the 1956 Democratic National Convention, and James E. Folsom, who is seeking a third term in Alabama.

Others are former Governors Marvin Griffin of Georgia and Raymond Gary of Oklahoma.

The non-Southerner trying for another top state job is Ralph B. Hersth, a South Dakota farmer. He was defeated by a scant 4,435 votes in 1960, after a two-year gubernatorial term, by the present Republican governor, Archie Gubbrud. They are expected to oppose each other again in November.

A sixth former governor, Christopher Del Sesto, a Rhode Island Republican, is considering running again. When elected in 1958, he was the first Republican to win his state's governorship in 20 years. He was defeated by Democratic Gov. John A. Notte Jr. in 1960. Notte has hinted he will run again but has not officially announced.

Former Gov. Clement was 36 when he delivered an old-fashioned stemwinder in keynoting the Democratic convention in Chicago in 1956 which nominated the ticket of Adlai E. Stevenson and Estes Kefauver.

It is no secret that Clement has missed greatly being in the political arena. He says his record in office is the chief campaign issue. His main opponents to date in the Aug. 2 primary are Memphis City Commissioner William W. Farris, Chattanooga Mayor P. R. Oglialti and Carl Fry, Donelson farm leader.

Clement has been practicing law in Nashville since leaving office. He served as governor in 1953-59, which embraced a two-year and a four-year term. He was not eligible to seek another term in 1958.

Folsom, an insurance man, gained national headlines and the nickname "Kissing Jim" by his antics in previous campaigns. He was elected in 1946 and again in 1954 and now seeks to become the first governor in Alabama history to serve three terms. He has seven opponents in the May 1 primary. If no one gets a majority, a run-off will be held May 29.

In Georgia, Griffin, 54, a skillful story teller who capitalizes on the rural vote, seeks the Democratic nomination in a Sept. 12 primary four years after leaving office. He will face Lt. Gov. Garland T. Byrd with no other major candidate in sight.

Griffin, who since leaving office has been publishing his late father's weekly newspaper in Bainbridge, claims the present state government, among other things, has failed to develop rural resources. He shrugs off charges of political corruption in his administration, blaming political opposition by the present governor, S. Ernest Vandiver.

Gary, who was governor in 1955-59, is trying to become the first Oklahoma governor ever to serve two terms. He has 11 opponents in a May 1 primary, with a run-off set for May 22 if needed.

Gary lives on a farm near Madill, Okla. He is principal owner of an oil company. He is a former state senator, school teacher and superintendent of county schools.

If the June 5 primary in South Dakota turns out as now indicated it will be two farmers, Democrat Hersth and Republican Gubbrud, fighting it out again in November, as in 1960. When he took office in 1959, Hersth was the first Democratic governor since 1904 and the third in the state's history.

Red China Says Navy 'Intruding'
TOKYO (AP) — Communist China charged today that the U.S. destroyer De Haven is carrying out reconnaissance activities off the China coast and deliberately provoking the Chinese people.

It said the destroyer movement is part of an attempt to intensify tension in the Formosa Strait and warned that "he who plays with fire gets burned."

The Communist China news agency, in a Peiping dispatch, said the De Haven sailed into Chinese territorial waters east of Tsingtao on April 14 and intruded into Chinese waters again Monday.

President Rob Jones has urged all members, as well as the general public, to attend the meeting, as the decision on a site for a firehouse will be made at that time. It is hoped that newly purchased fire fighting equipment will be on hand.

The association is continuing to take subscriptions for service. Though the goal of $6,000 has not been reached yet, funds are nearing that amount.

Sunday School Institute Set
The North Carolina Sunday School Convention-Institute of the Original Free Will Baptist Church will convene at the Free Will Baptist Children's Home Thursday, April 19.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m.

Two hundred Sunday Schools throughout North Carolina are expected to attend this 22nd annual session of the convention. The Rev. Raymond Sasser of Tarboro will preside. The afternoon has been planned with workshops for the individual Sunday School classes.

Faculty Shaken By Report Card From Student Body

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The faculty of Trinity College, more used to grading than being graded, is studying today a surprise report card presented by the student body.

Naming names and mincing no words, the 78-page document drew angry reactions from professors who flunked.

"It is inconceivable that the administration should permit publication of such a report," snorted the head of one department described as having a generally poor curriculum.

Another, the Fine Arts Department, was written off as being chiefly concerned with "education of the student for polite conversation."

In general, professors were criticized for being too easy-going. One was "not strict enough"; another "ineffectual."

The study, drawn up under the sponsorship of the college Senate, didn't limit itself to academic matters.

The typical Trinity undergraduate, it said, "does not have any concept of what education involves, nor does he give any indication of wanting to find out."

The honor system of chapel attendance at the Episcopalians-founded school is openly flouted and most men leave Trinity "with less religious reverence than was theirs upon entrance," the report continued.

A more serious charge of immoral activities among the students was also leveled.

The 40 authors of the report even touched on architecture, expressing apprehension over whether new additions would spoil "the architectural harmony which gives Trinity its traditional character."

The college is noted for its English Gothic chapel, furnished with hand-carved pews.

Despite all, the student critics concluded that Trinity, a private men's college with an enrollment of 950, is still "one of the finest schools in the nation, and this report is an attempt to improve further this institution."

Tractor Repair Shop In Bell Arthur Lost To Fire

BELL ARTHUR — Fire destroyed a tractor shop and its contents here Monday just days before the newly-organized Bell Arthur Volunteer Fire Department was scheduled to place a fire truck in operation.

Firemen from Farmville and Winterville arrived on the scene by 7:30 and were on the scene by 7:40. By then, they said, flames had engulfed the building. Shortly thereafter, Winterville firemen arrived.

Nearly 30 firemen from the two departments extinguished the blaze with water they hauled aboard their tankers. Ten minutes after their arrival Farmville's crew had exhausted their water supply and returned to Farmville for more.

Owner of the building, firemen reported, was Mack G. Smith of Greenville.

The fire struck the heart of this community after a recent drive to raise funds for purchase of equipment for the new rural fire department. It was reported today that the new organization had already placed its order for a truck.
