... and please call me Maria."

Miss America Always Has Unwavering Smile

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

She was all grace, charm and poise as she quietly but adroitly, like a veteran, moved away from a crowd of eager, young autograph-seekers and stepped daintily into the sparkling new convertible.

Photographers quickly encircled her temporary mobile throne as her perpetual smile continued to shine. She slipped deftly from her stylish heels and climbed onto the back seat to take her position for the parade, seated atop the tucked-away convertible top.

She carefully wrapped her stocking feet in a green blanket and wanted to know: "This will do fine, won't it?" Of course it would. Then, with her characteristic smile unwavering, she chatted with a reporter.

Yes, it was a wonderful year—the most wonderful imaginable. Those 200,000 miles, including trips through all 50 states and Europe, seemed long at times but unceasingly exciting.

She clung pensively to her feeling for her home town at the foot of the Blue Ridge Parkway. "The welcome-home reception in Asheville, I'll never forget it." It was obvious the experience was nothing short of indelible.

An 11-year-old boy crowded close to the ear. "Are you Mrs. America?" he eagerly asked. In the same clear, pleasant voice, she replied simply: "No..." and a by-stander interjected: "No, sonny, she's MISS America." He half-muzzled an 11-year-old's embarrassed: "Oh."

At 20, her eyes sparkled as she remembered aloud her short road to America's beauty throne. The "Miss Asheville," "Miss North Carolina" and "Miss America" pageants of 1961 had been the three beauty-talent contests of her life.

How did she win the national beauty title?

In typical feminine manner, she began to relate the steps to the crown: "Well, of course, I was entered in the pageant in Asheville first. Then..." The reporter interrupted: "Oh, no. I mean: how do you account for your winning?"

"Oh," she said prettily. "Oh, I was the most surprised person in the auditorium that night."

Next, she remembered, at the reporter's request, her native town. "It was just a small, mountain town. Named for my great grandfather." She hails originally from Fletcher, nestled in the mountains about 15 miles south of Asheville.

With her year of royalty drawing nearer to its end, she is planning to invest her $10,000 scholarship in dance training. "Probably New York," she said, "but I'm not really certain yet."

A photographer took aim and she tilted her head slightly just before the flash. The smile was bright as ever as she answered another question: "Oh, I don't really know how many. They have parades just about everywhere we go."

Then another query's reply: "I'm not really certain where we'll go after the parade. The Jaycees plan these things, you know. I think there's a tea next."

Just then an entranced little girl moved alongside and pleaded: "May I touch your hand? Please?"

The queen, leaning comfortably backward on her arm, did not answer as she turned her head obligingly toward another poised photographer. But, as she turned, she slid her hand gently and momentarily to a point within easy reach of the elated little miss.

The reporter wanted to know: "Are you called 'Miss America' all the time when you're..."

She quickly interrupted. "I'm still very much Maria Beale Fletcher. And please call me Maria."

Local Legion Post Backs Greenville Civic Center

American Legion Post 39 Tuesday night threw its support behind the local drive to erect a $100,000-plus Greenville Civic Center through combined efforts of local organizations.

The Legionnaires appropriated $185 as its share of architectural fees for the proposed building's plans and voted to disband its own building committee which has been investigating sites and buildings for a local American Legion Post home.

Action followed a presentation of plans for the center, estimated to cost between $100,000 and $125,000, by Kiwanis Club President Ed Rawl who is also chairman of the project's steering committee. Billy Laughinghouse, also a Kiwanian and secretary for the committee, appeared with Rawl.

Rawl said the planned center would measure 184 by 120 feet and would accommodate assemblies of some 1,500 people or dinner meetings for 750, according to tentative plans. He explained partitions would be provided to divide the main auditorium into three smaller (40x60) areas for simultaneous club dinner meetings.

Plans call for permanent offices for each participating club or organization. Included currently are the American Legion, the Kiwanians, the Rotary, Civitan, Optimist, Exchange and Lions Clubs and the local Jaycees.

Sam Whitehurst and W. C. Eagles, who is chairman of the steering committee's building subcommittee, are the Legion representatives in the project's organizing effort.

In other action Tuesday, the Legionnaires voted to send three Pitt County high school boys to Boys State, the annual Legion event in Chapel Hill in early June. The Forty & Eight plans to send a fourth local delegate.

Presentation of 40-year membership certificates to 37 Legionnaires was another highlight of Tuesday meeting. Post Commander Ernest L. Avery displayed his commission from Gov. Sanford as an admiral of USS North Carolina, the retired battleship docked at Wilmington. The admiral rank was extended Avery after the Post donated $100 as a portion of a statewide American Legion campaign to erase a $35,000 deficit in securing the World War II battleship.

Legionnaire Elvy K. Forrest announced the post will again sponsor its American Legion junior baseball team for the 1962 season and said detailed plans will be announced soon. The post re-activated its baseball program two years ago after it had been inoperative for several years.

It was announced that the post's nominating committee will submit its list of nominees for 1962-63 officers at the May meeting. At that meeting, nominations from the membership may also be entered in the election.

President Says No Ill Will Left

Plans No Punitive Action Against Big Steel Following Epic Battle

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said today his administration has no ill will toward the steel industry as a result of the epic battle over a price increase, and intends to take no punitive action.

In a far more conciliatory, friendlier mood than at this time last week, Kennedy said the government is not unmindful of needs of the steel industry for investment capital to modernize plants and equipment—a major reason the industry gave for its short-lived price hike.

The administration, Kennedy told a news conference, believes in free enterprise and initiative, in cooperation of industry and labor.

He stated a determination to hold the government's role to the minimum necessary to protect the public interest.

There can be "no room on either side for hostility or vindictiveness," he said.

In a formal statement at the outset of his session with newsmen, Kennedy said his administration harbors no ill will against any individual, corporation, industry or segment of the American economy.

Kennedy said he recognizes steel's need to be able to compete with foreign firms, to be able to grow in order to use idle capacity. But he also said it is necessary to prevent an inflationary spiral, to foster free collective bargaining and price increases, with the least possible governmental interference.

It was in that connection that he spoke of the limits on the government's role.

The chief executive wound up with a prediction that in the period of just ahead industrial profits will be "the highest in history."

Kennedy's statement followed a meeting Tuesday night with Roger M. Blough, chairman of the U.S. Steel Corp., which the White House described as "cordial and useful."

Blough slipped in and out, just as he had done exactly a week before when he told Kennedy of the price increase. This time Blough and the President apparently were bent on establishing more amicable relations.

At the news conference last week Kennedy denounced the price increase as unjustified and irresponsible. He turned a massive power attack against it, and U.S. Steel and the companies which followed its lead backed down on the price boost.

Reporters would not leave the steel episode alone after the reading of the statement. One asked whether the President would move as forcefully against a union if it didn't go along with his voluntary program for wage-price restraint.

Kennedy said the country has a free economy and prices are to be set in a free market. But the government would like both labor and industry to remain very conscious of the public interest in their decisions, he said.

MEET TONIGHT The Pitt County Development Commission is scheduled to meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the Board of Directors Room of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. at the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets in Greenville.

Rap Greenville GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Kinston, Rocky Mount and Kinston today accused Greenville of trying to deprive them "for an indefinite period" of air service granted in a Piedmont area decision.

The cities filed a joint statement with the Civil Aeronautics Board asking that motions and petitions filed by Greenville be denied.

Greenville has asked that the CAB stay awards of service to the three other cities, or condition them on their cooperation in the establishment of an area airport in eastern North Carolina.

"It is apparent from a review of the pleadings' evidence and briefs filed by the former joint parties—Wilson-Greenville—that these cities throughout these long proceedings have been seeking service for only their own communities. Having failed in this effort, Greenville alone, under the pretense of area needs as opposed to civic pride, seeks to delay vital air service to her sister communities," the petition said.

The petition was signed by Lindsey C. Warren Jr., Goldsboro; F. E. Wallace Jr., Kinston; and Thomas F. Roseman, Rocky Mount, attorneys for each city.

Wilson was not a party to Greenville's petition protesting the CAB decision.

Polly Linda Bunting Wins 'Miss Greenville Crown'

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor

Polly Linda Bunting of Williamston, a girl who thinks the twist is just a fad, last night was crowned Miss Greenville as another Tar Heel beauty, Miss America, looked on.

The words of master of ceremonies Jimmy Capps proved prophetic for the ECC sophomore. Capps read as Polly took the long walk in evening gown competition. "When there are crowds around, you're all I see. The moon and stars above have no effect on me. There's no one else on earth. You're all I see."

As the pageant ended and the winner was crowned, Polly was all the audience saw. She was officially judged the fairest of them all.

The new Miss Greenville, who was crowned by Laverne Blackley, outgoing title holder, is experienced as a beauty contestant. She was Miss Martin County of 1961. She was also first runner up Demolay sweetheart in 1960, first runner up Dairy Princess in 1959 and a Rotary princess.

She was sponsored in the Jaycee produced pageant by Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority.

For the talent portion of the program Polly did a pulsating dance and sang "Hernando's Hideaway." The number involved a shadow dance behind a large screen. Red striped tights showed her off to best advantage.

Polly wore an evening gown of Pois De Sols with Alencon lace. There was lace on the bodice coming up from the waist. Alencon lace appliques were placed on the skirt and repeated in a semi-circle on the back. The gown was accented by a bustle effect.

For her swim suit appearance she wore a white suit.

As for that twist fad, Polly, and each of the five finalists were asked individually by Capps if they thought the new dance craze was here to stay.

"I think the twist is just a fad among the teen-agers," Polly replied.

The second question of a serious nature was: The world is faced with many complicated problems. As a student and young person, what do you feel is your major responsibility now to yourself, your family, your community and your nation?

Polly replied, "I feel I should get an education and back my country in any decision which it might make."

The Wright Auditorium audience saw Linda Faye Evans, sponsored by Alpha Xi Delta Sorority, named first runner-up, which carried a $250 scholarship. Dornling P. Jenkins, sponsored by Delta Zeta Sorority, was named second runner-up.

Judith Gale Murphy, sponsored by Ragsdale Hall and Patricia Ann Huggins, sponsored by Jarvis Hall were the other two semi-finalists from among the ten contestants.

Miss America, Maria Beale Fletcher, told the audience that her trip to Europe has been the highlight of her reign this year. She told of riding along the famous wall which now separates East and West Berlin. She said the real tragedy of the wall is the brick in windows of buildings alongside it.

"All along it are wreathes where men and children had jumped and missed the nets," she said.

"I was thinking how wonderful it is to be a citizen of the United States and not live in a Communist country where they have to build a wall to keep their people in the workers' paradise."

She described her year as a "million dollar education."

Laverne Blackley, retiring Miss Greenville, told the audience "Representing Greenville during the past year has been a wonderful experience."

"The young lady chosen here tonight, I am sure, will be as proud to represent Greenville as I have been and her reign will

Pitt physicians will begin the second of two efforts to affect county-wide tetanus immunization next Wednesday, April 25.

They are hoping to have an even bigger crowd than at their April 4 clinics which was termed highly successful by Dr. Charles P. Adams, president of the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society. At that time, close to 8,000 persons went to 20 clinics in Greenville and Pitt County for tetanus immunization.

Clinics will be held at the same points next Wednesday, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. to complete toxoid tetanus immunization and also to give booster shots.

Polly displayed a true winner's smile when it was announced by Capps that she was the new Miss Greenville. She took the walk down the promenade as the audience cheered and then returned to the gold throne with red back drop which had been placed in the middle of the stage. She was crowned by Laverne Blackley and presented a trophy of red roses was also placed in her arms.

As winner of the pageant Polly received a $500 scholarship from the Jaycees, plus the right to represent Greenville in the state pageant. She also received gifts from local merchants.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

V. U. Bunting of Williamston. Polly's hobbies are swimming, skiing, dancing, cooking and sewing. She plans to teach in grammar school upon graduation from college.

Guests were welcomed by Jaycee president Leon Moore, who also paid tribute to Curtis Hendrix and Milton Foley, co-chairmen of this year's pageant.

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

O. E. Dowd, principal of the Greenville high school for 19 years, announced today he will resign effective June 30 to accept a position as dean of students and assistant professor of education at The Methodist College in Fayetteville.

His resignation was announced to the Greenville Board of Education at a 12:30 luncheon meeting today.

Superintendent of City Schools J. H. Rose stated, "I am very sorry to lose the services of Mr. Dowd. He has been here 19 years and has been an asset to the schools and the town." Rose described him as "a loyal worker."

Dowd, who has been in the educational field since 1932, has been active in professional organizations, his church and civic affairs.

In his letter of resignation, he said, "My work here has been most pleasant and an experience I shall long cherish. Both the faculty and students have been a joy to work with. No one could ask for a better school and community in which to live."

Dowd's wife, Elizabeth, who has been a teacher in the primary department of Elmhurst School, has also accepted employment in Fayetteville as a member of the city school system. The Dowds plan to move about the first of July and will make their home on the campus of The Methodist College.

A native of Sanford, Dowd graduated from high school in Dunn and then attended Duke University in Durham, where he received his A. B. degree in business administration and the M. A. degree in education.

He held teaching positions at Pikeville High School, in Wayne County, and at Mount Olive High School in Mount Olive. Second Round Of Tetanus Shots Set April 25

The public is urged to take advantage of the tetanus immunization, which costs a minimum fee of 50 cents. However, those who cannot pay the materials fee will be given their tetanus shots anyway.

Tetanus, commonly called lockjaw, is caused generally by any dirty wound, but 40 per cent of the reported cases have resulted from minor blisters, cuts, thorns and splinters. Dr. Adams pointed out that immunization causes little reaction for most people while reaction from the tetanus antitoxin which must be given at time of injury to those not immunized, often causes serious reaction.

Protection against tetanus when proper immunization has been given is almost 100 per cent effective. Immunization lasts four years and possibly as long as 10 years in some people.

The survival rate of those who have suffered from tetanus is about 40 per cent.

Physicians are particularly hopeful that those persons who are scheduled to complete their tetanus toxoid immunization will get it next Wednesday.

Immunization will be given in Greenville at the Pitt Court House, Fleming Street School, Agnes Fulllove School, South Greenville

School, Third Street School, Elm Street Recreation Center and Farmer's Warehouse.

Clinics will be established at the following points in Pitt County: Farmville Armory; B. E. Beasley Building; Dr. Bruce Beasley's office; Fountain Ayden Clinic; Winterville George S. Sabeby building, Queen Street, in Grifton; Gardner-Brunson Store in Chocod; Grimesland Town Hall; Simpson School; Sallie Branch School; Falkland Community Building; Davenport's Store in Pactus; Congleton's Store in Stokes.

Well-Dressed Skier Will Want To Wear Costume Each Day

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Christian Dior of New York today offered 40 good reasons why style-conscious women—and women-conscious men—will take to the snowy hills next fall.

That many ski costumes, created in Paris by designer Marc Bohan, were modeled by Jean Limbed lasses who proved, among other things, that Parisian snow pants be as sexy as a Bardot bikini.

Designer Bohan nixed the usual figure-hiding sweater over a sweater over a sweater costume that has been wearing and weighing down and constricting the movements of the snow skier for years.

Made from various French stretch fabrics and insulated, these Dior clothes are warm, though they don't often look it, and they're lighter than a snow flake.

Skinny pants, skinnier than skin, Eskimo parkas with French accents, and clothing for beside the roaring fire were exhibited as ideal ski-lodge luggage.

"A well-dressed skier will want to wear a new costume each day," one of the showroom personnel said hopefully.

A black vinyl costume, a streamlined version of a motor-cycle racing suit, shimmered and weaved all the way from the hooded head to the glistening toes of one curvy model.

Some parkas were flat topped with visors; others were fitted-helmet style; but almost all seemed to turn the unblinking ladies into astronauts.

Most jackets and coats were bloused or belted low at the

Some were in fake fur, but others, in flower-splashed or paisley jersey, were strictly springtime. Other times the models wore brilliant-hued doublets over turtle-necked, long-sleeved shirts and tights like pages out of medieval history.

And on still other occasions the lanky ladies slithered from one side of the crowded showroom to another in velveteens and corduroys and iridescent fabrics that hitherto have never seen a ski slope.

Women over size 12 are advised to wear darker, less conspicuous colors, the showroom spokesmen pointed out. But distaffers as slim as exclamation marks are encouraged to wear those vivid pants that appear to be painted on.

It is explained that this tight fit is, eased a little, just below the knees, to allow for plenty of agile skiing action. For what woman would want to fall on her Dior?

Anniversary Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Nobles were honored Sunday afternoon at their home by their children and grandchildren at an open house, in celebration of their Golden Wedding Anniversary which was April 14.

The home was decorated with arrangements of gladiolas, roses, and mixed flowers in yellow and tallman. As the guests arrived they were greeted by Mrs. Floyd Nobles and presented to the honored couple.

Floyd Nobles directed guests to the refreshment table where Mrs. Randal Hardee served the cake. Mrs. Lindsay Moseley, Mrs. Verral Wingate, and Mrs. D. A. Wingate presided at the punch bowl. The dining table was decorated with an arrangement of flowers in shades of yellow and burning golden candles to complement the yellow cloth.

The guests were directed to the gift room where Mrs. Barbara Forrest and Miss Kathy Hardee presided. A host of friends came by during the afternoon.

Dickens Given Reception

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickens, of 104 Vance St., were honored Sunday at an informal reception given by their children in celebration of their Silver Wedding Anniversary.

The reception was held at the home of Mrs. Lela Powell, of 902 Fairfax Ave. Guests were greeted at the door by Miss Pat Dickens and were shown into the living room which was decorated throughout with spring flowers.

After the arrival of guests, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Parson of Goldsboro rendered a special song to the honored couple. Mr. and Mrs. Dickens were then reunited in marriage by their pastor, Rev. W. E. Thompson. During the ceremony, the couple presented each other with a silver wedding band.

After the ceremony, guests were invited into the dining room where they served themselves from the appointed table, which was overlaid with a white linen and lace tablecloth. In the center of the table was featured an arrangement of yellow and white glads and snapdragons in a silver bowl flanked by burning white tapers. At one end of the table was a cut glass punch bowl containing lime punch, and at the other end of the table was a two-tiered wedding cake, which was cut by the honored couple. Goodbyes were said by Cpl. and Mrs. David Wiseman, Miss Liddle Braxton, and Cpl. Owen Clark.

Use Easter Eggs To Advantage

HOME-COLORED HARD-YOLKED eggs can be used for both good taste and budget considerations in this luncheon or supper dish where they are teamed with convenient canned shrimp.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

WHAT ABOUT those home-colored Easter eggs? Should you use them?

If you, dyed them with the regular Easter egg coloring available today, they are perfectly safe to eat. Such food coloring is certified by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and its label must say so.

But don't keep the eggs standing around. Eat them soon!

For a new and good way to serve hard-cooked home-colored Easter eggs, we tried the following recipe. It was enjoyed at our house and we think it will be at yours.

Serve this egg-and-shrimp partnership for lunch or supper. It needs nothing more than a crisp salad to accompany it. If you've done some Easter baking with yeast and have homemade bread or rolls in the house, of course they'll make a perfect accompaniment. If not, you might like to run up a batch of hot drop biscuits and serve these along with melba toast for any weight-watchers.

We can't tell you why these eggs are called teased — unless it's because their flavor is made piquant with canned shrimp, and their sauce with sour cream. But anyway you look at it, it's an amusing name.

TEASED EGGS
1 can (4½ ounces) shrimp

- 6 large eggs (hard-cooked)
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon white pepper
- 1 teaspoon finely grated onion (pulp and juice)
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup milk
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon white pepper

- ¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
- 1½ teaspoons drained bottled horseradish
- 1 cup commercial sour cream

Drain and rinse shrimp with cold water; drain again. Shell eggs and halve lengthwise. Remove yolks; mash with ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, onion and shrimp, reserving 12 whole shrimp for a garnish.

In a 1-quart saucepan, over low heat, melt the butter; stir in the flour. Add the milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and the monosodium glutamate; cook and stir constantly until thickened and bubbly. Remove from heat. Stir in the horseradish and sour cream.

Mix ¼ cup of the sauce with the yolk mixture; stuff back into egg cavities. Place stuffed egg halves into a shallow dish into which they just fit. Spoon sauce over the eggs. Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven until sauce begins to bubble—about 10 minutes. Garnish with reserved shrimp. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Fountain Home Demonstration Club Entertained
Mrs. R. A. Bell and Mrs. C. E. Case, Jr., were hostesses to the Fountain Home Demonstration Club at its regular meeting Thurs-day afternoon. The group met at the community building.

The meeting was opened by the club president, Mrs. J. W. Gay, and a brief devotional was given by Mrs. Beasley Bell.

The principal feature on the program was a film secured from the American Cancer Society. As shown and narrated this was quite enlightening and gave to all a warning that cancer check-ups were not to be neglected.

Mrs. R. A. Bell introduced Dr. C. E. Fitzgerald of Farmville, principal speaker on the program. He gave a brief summary of cancer problems and dangers from the physicians viewpoint, and he answered the several questions arising.

Another guest in connection with the program was Mrs. Don Callo-way, executive secretary of the County Unit of the American Cancer Society, who added her word of warning concerning the cancer menace.

The meeting continued with Mrs. Sue B. May, home economics agent, presenting a demonstration on "The Five Points of Furniture Ar-rangement", which aroused con-siderable interest and discussion.

During the business session it was decided by regular voting pro-cedure that the club adopt as a project the collection of discarded eyeglasses and scrap jewelry to be forwarded to New Eyes for the Needy of Short Hills, N. J.

Plans were made to observe National Home Demonstration week — the first week in May.

Mrs. J. A. Moore reported on the March Council meeting, giving a glowing account.

Mrs. R. A. Bell gave a safety report. Mrs. Carlton Gardner explained plans in connection with the music program. Mrs. J. C. Parker presented the North Caro-lina Home Demonstration Educa-tional Program for the year. Other guests were Mrs. Fitz-gerald, Mrs. J. H. Smith of our community, and Mrs. R. E. Grimes of Robersonville.

Burma Topic Of BPW Program

At the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club meeting Thursday night, Mrs. J. A. Withey spoke on Burma, where she and her family re-cently spent several months. She gave a description of the country, climate, language and people, and discussed the religious be-liefs and customs and celebra-tions. She said that they had a festival about once each month, the most impressive being the feast of lights and the water festival. Mrs. Withey concluded by showing slides. Later the club members were given the privilege of viewing a display of souvenirs which she had brought from Burma. The program was pre-sented by the International Re-lations Committee, Dr. Bessie McNeil chairman.

Few Can Escape Decision Effects

Few state legislatures within the next two years will escape dealing with the problem of apportionment of representation in their bodies because of the recent court decision.

Already several states have begun to feel directly the impact of the court decision on legislative apportionment. At least one is under a court order to reapportion its representation or have the job done by the court prior to the next election. In at least one other consideration is being given to calling a special legislative session to handle the matter.

North Carolina, while its legislature reapportioned membership in the House of Representatives last year, may expect to face the problem again in 1963, at least so far as the Senate is concerned, and possibly in both the House and the Senate. While North Carolina has not neglected the matter of reapportioning legislative representation to the extent some other states have, there is still widespread misgiving in some sections of the state over the manner in which the representation is now apportioned. It was evident, last year and for several prior sessions of the legislature that while some wanted representation reapportionment without changing the method of allotting representation or the total number of members of the legislature, there were others who felt changes in the structure of the legislature should be made.

In the period between now and next February when the legislature again convenes, careful consideration should be given to the matter of reapportionment in North Carolina, particularly as it applies to the Senate. At the same time another evaluation should be made of legislative representation as a whole, considering the Senate and the House collectively, as well as separately.

The time between now and when the legislature convenes could prove valuable in updating previous studies that have been made on the matter in order that the legislature will have in its hands when it meets all the information it needs to reach decisions on the matters.

As has been the case in the past several sessions of the General Assembly, reapportionment will be also an issue in the 1963 session.

Valued Manual For Reference

By LYNN NISBET

BIRTHDAY — The old man had a birthday last Friday. The number was entirely too high for bragging about youth, and not quite high enough to justify pride in old age. Also it fell this year on Friday the 13th. For these reasons not much had been said about the occasion. So there was considerable surprise when early in the morning telegrams began arriving wishing many happy returns, and all through the day came phone calls, personal visits and mail greetings. The mystery of how these folks found out about the events was not cleared up until late in the afternoon. And for that story we need to go back a bit.

Some time ago my niece, Jane, heard me say that I desperately wanted a copy of the 1929 edition of the North Carolina Manual to complete the file from 1925 to date. Other editions seemed plentiful but 1929 was apparently very rare. Jane thought it would be a nice birthday present, and she set out to find the book. In the course of her search she visited or called nearly every State office around Raleigh, many law offices and the homes of some politically-minded folks. She found a copy and it was presented with some pride and accepted with very deep appreciation. The long existing gap in the reference book shelf has been filled. And a lot of people found out that "Uncle Lynn" was having a birthday on Friday, 13th. Hence the avalanche of greetings.

Many thanks to Jane for the book, to the dozens of people who aided her in her search for it, and to everyone who sent a cheering message. Let me know when your birthday is next year and I'll send you a card.

MANUAL—The North Carolina Manual is one of the most valuable publications sponsored by the State of North Carolina. Each edition contains "in succinct form information about the State, its government and institutions, which otherwise would require much investigation in many different sources." In this one volume will be found a list of all the Governors from beginning of State history, with biographic sketches of the Governor and other State officers now in office. Also biographies of incumbent U. S. Senators and Representatives, elected and appointed high level State officials and members of the General Assembly. Names of members of all important boards and commissions, including institutional trustees and examining-licensing boards, and a full roster of all county officials. And texts of all county constitutions of the United States and North Carolina; platforms and plans of organization of the political parties, elections returns and many other items of information about the state.

The 1874 resolution goes on to set out how the Manual should be distributed, and provides that except for the first edition there should be no repetition of names except those actually in office.

HOW LONG? — It has not been discovered how many editions of the Manual were produced under terms of the 1874 resolution. Apparently there were several gaps. A prefatory note in the 1929 volume says that similar manuals were issued by the Secretary of State in 1903, 1905 and 1907, and by the North Carolina Historical Commission in 1909 and every two years thereafter through 1927. The Historical Commission continued publication through 1933. The 1935, 1937 and 1939 editions were published by the Legislative Reference Library. In 1941 responsibility for the publication went back to the Secretary of State where it has remained.

The 1935, 1937 and 1939 editions were published by the Legislative Reference Library. In 1941 responsibility for the publication went back to the Secretary of State where it has remained.

The impact of the Great Depression upon North Carolina is indicated by the file of Manuals. The 1874 edition contains a list of county officers and other information in a book of 390 pages. Manuals produced after the turn of the century ran 350 to more than 400 pages through 1929. Then for 1931 through 1939 a great deal of information was omitted and the little books ran 200 pages or less. With the 1941 edition it went back to full size.

CURRENT—Except for listing the Governors and Lieutenant Governors the manuals for some years have dealt only with current information and incumbent officials. One exception was 1913. That edition listed all members of the Congress and the General Assembly from beginning of state history to that date. (Incidentally, this office has a standing offer of ten bucks for a copy of 1913.) There is considerable sentiment for an appropriation to provide continuing that composite story up to now.

There is no comfort for the West in this. There is not even a small sign the Communists are weakened or endangered.

In Premier Chou En-lai's report of calamities there is no whine for pity. It seems clear the Chinese Communists will press the people's noses to the grindstone even harder.

If the West or Russia expect to soften Red China's attitude toward either of them, they guess wrong. The Red Chinese are still defiant, still belligerent, still unbending.

Chou in a report to the highly secret session of the National People's Congress admitted that Red China has suffered both natural calamities and a messed-up economy for the past three years.

The China mainland underwent severe food shortages in recent years and had to import wheat but Chou indicated this means the Chinese must work even harder.

The people's communes, set up under Chou, Mao Tse-tung and other Red Chinese leaders, have been severely criticized in the West on several grounds—that they demoralized Chinese family life, had reduced the Chinese to a harsher peasantry than they ever had had, and that Mao and his friends had far overextended themselves.

There are indications in Chou's report that the leadership thinks it may have made some mistakes in handling the communes. But the report shows no thought of abandoning them, just improving them.

A resolution approved by the congress suggests that there will be some changes in the communes but the emphasis will be on even greater effort to produce food to meet China's needs.

Some concessions may be made to give the masses some of the necessities of living.

The resolution, involving a 10-point program, spoke of rational arrangement of produc-

Shouldn't Hesitate To Probe The Relationship

Congress should not hesitate to investigate fully the relationship between Texas financier Billie Sol Estes, under indictment on fraud charges, and officials of the federal government.

Already two officials have left the Department of Agriculture in recent days because of their links with Estes. It has also been made public that a member of Congress also has had recent ties with Estes in that the financier purchased on two occasions stock in a coal mine owned by the congressman and his relatives.

If any wrongdoing on the part of officials has taken place, congressional investigators should not hesitate to make known their findings and let the chips fall where they may.

It would be a mistake for any faction to attempt to make a political football of the incident, but it would be an even greater mistake for officials to shrug off the matter without ascertaining to what extent any officials—elective or appointed—have been involved with Estes in the dealings for which he has been indicted.

No Comfort For The West Here

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Red Chinese leadership has openly acknowledged what was generally known: that it jumped too far too fast and fell on its face.

Yet, almost immediately afterward, this same resolution calls for getting a lot of people out of the cities and back to the farms to turn out food.

There was no sign of even a little change in Red China's foreign policy. Its venom, outlined in Chou's report, was still aimed at the West, particularly against American "imperialism."

This has been the unvarying Red Chinese theme, repeated through the years, and with increasing pain to the Russians whose Premier Khrushchev tried his new line of "peaceful coexistence."

Anyone who remembers the iron will and discipline of the Red Chinese leaders—between the time Chiang Kai-shek drove them into isolation in China's northwest corner in the 1920s and the time they returned in 1949 to drive him to Formosa—could not realistically have expected any softening just because they ran into some setbacks while trying too hard.

The National People's Congress admitted that Red China has suffered both natural calamities and a messed-up economy for the past three years.

QUIET HOURS

There is no record of any of our Lord's activities on Wednesday of Holy Week. No doubt he spent it in seclusion. Perhaps he was in the home of one of the disciples, or in the home of Mary, the mother of Mark, or perhaps he wandered alone over some quiet countryside facing the doom which he knew to be approaching and preparing his soul to meet the ordeal.

This day should impress us with the necessity for times of quiet, retirement, and reflection in our everyday life. Our generation loves action. We have accomplished more than any generation in history, but we are also in danger of losing certain important values. For it cannot be denied that in hours of quiet and in places of seclusion God often speaks to men certain important messages which He does not utter amid the clamor of everyday living.

In other words, we need our daily period of quiet and prayer. We need times when we close the door of our hearts and minds to the world and reach up to see if we can more perfectly apprehend the presence of God and come more perfectly to understand His holy purpose.

Jesus himself had to have a quiet day, a period of solemn reflection, before he could confront the cross. Perhaps we fall often in life because we try too hard—because too infrequently we listen for God's word of guidance and reflect upon His truth.

Good Idea Gone Wrong

In Madison Avenue terms, men with "good ideas" come only at a premium price. Agreed. Good-idea men are indeed premium items to have around.

But, just like everybody else in the same situation would say, what is so premium about good-idea men is that we have one of them. Yessir, right in our own midst. Right in our newsroom.

To illustrate the existence of our good-idea man, there's a tale to tell:

Our newsroom, in at least one respect, is strikingly similar to any other newsroom you'd find galloping alongside the March of News. Any newsroom that gallops any at all has at least one city directory. We got ours.

And our newsroom, in at least one more respect, resembles the other members of the Clan. That is, the city directory — so helpful in helping identify people tangled into the tramping March of News—can never be found when it is needed.

Naturally, the reason for its consistent absence in time of need is bred and maintained by the people in its habitat. Though there's still ample space on the shelf for city directories, the current volume is never there.

It may be found under masses of old newspapers, in the photo darkroom, behind the microfilm reader, even beneath the clutter on a cluttered desk occasionally. Wherever it's hiding, there's always a 10-minute search involved in re-discovering the city directory.

Repetition has nearly developed the search into a kind of ceremonial: everybody in the newsroom slows to a trot and combs through the premises in a systematic fashion until somebody hollers: "Okay. Here it is."

The search always is conducted on the basis of this profound axiom uttered one day by one of our more philosophical members: "The city directory will be found somewhere beneath the point of its last previous usage." Strangely, this system works.

But the elaborate, systematic and fruitful method of searching is now wasted. And all because of our good-idea man. We prided ourselves in the efficient manner we displayed in fulfilling Arnold Toynbee's prophecy that we would respond properly to the challenge.

Our good-idea man rendered our response null and void, and useless, too. He was just too logical, this good-idea man.

He cleaned the two-year-old cobwebs from the slot at the end of the Old-City-Directory shelf. Into that fateful slot he slid the current city directory. There it sat, in its proper place.

But it found its rightful home before its retirement and now, nobody can find it.

Other Editors Saying To Cure More, Give More

(Washington Daily News)

The American Cancer Society has added to its slogan, "fight cancer with a checkup and a check," a new and meaningful phrase — "to cure more, give more."

It has every reason to do so. Twenty-five years ago there were only 160,000 people alive cured of cancer. Today, there are at least 1,100,000 alive and cured of cancer. And the figure is going up each year.

Twenty-five years ago, it was stated that one out of seven were being cured of cancer. Today, it is one out of three.

And tomorrow, if every one had an annual health checkup, it could be one out of two.

Today, some 87,000 Americans die needlessly of cancer each year. They are lost because they did not receive early diagnosis and prompt treatment.

The American Cancer Society says that the possibility of preventing deaths from cancer are greater than for any other chronic disease and that more can be done against cancer than against any other disease.

That is why the Society developed the theme — "to cure more, give more." The public must learn what it can do to protect itself against cancer.

This requires a big and costly educational effort. Statistics show that about 40 per cent of the population of the country do not know cancer's seven danger signals — signals that may mean the difference between life and death.

Also the Society wants to step up its research program. Already a drug has been found effective against one very rare type of cancer. The Society has great hope that in the next few years much can be achieved in the field of immunology — prevention of cancer through vaccination. Until research supplies the answer, we cannot hope to save more than one out of two of those who develop cancer.

As President Kennedy's Conference on Heart Disease and Cancer said, "this is no time to sit still on research." A good way to advance research is to heed the Society's 1962 theme — "to cure more, give more."

TO THE EDITOR:

I am asking for any assistance you might be able to give me in locating a long lost relative. Her maiden name was Myrtle Moore. She and her only sister, my mother, was Pearl Moore. After their separation, they never saw each other again. My mother died in 1935, when I was six years old.

It is quite possible that Myrtle Moore has died. She probably married and has living children. If so, I would like to know this, who they are and where they are living.

It may be that some person in the vicinity of Greenville will either know Myrtle Moore or remember something that would bring her whereabouts to my attention, or even if she is dead, she might have children who could contact me.

I was very young, but it seems my mother mentioned something about being a little girl and living in Bethel, and that is near Greenville. My mother received a postcard from her sister a short time before her death, and it was postmarked "Morehead City, North Carolina." If my aunt is living she is approximately in her early sixties.

I have tried the Census Bureau, but I did not have sufficient information for them to search their records.

Thanking you for any help you can give me in this matter, I am

Shelter Business On The Rocks

By ELMER ROESSNER

The fall-out shelter business, once hailed as a potential billion-dollar-a-year industry, has become a puling, sickly thing.

Many small companies organized to ride the wave of demand for shelters, are quietly folding. Some are going broke. A California company sold out its shelter units for a few cents on the dollar the other day.

Many of the larger industrial corporations, which set up subsidiaries to produce shelters and equipment for them, are gently liquidating the subsidiaries or trying to find something else for them to make.

Some companies, when new, had bursts of sales when the Administration was warning the families of the nation to protect themselves against possible fall-out. Then came the quick fading of sales and, with it, suspension of activities.

CANNED WATER AS MIXER

Some of the shelters companies are carrying on. A few are making steady sales, especially those who incorporate shelters into new buildings. Some of those making accessories are surviving. Canned water, devised to provide uncontaminated water in shelters, is finding a steady market as a drink mixer, especially in areas where tap water is heavily chlorinated or otherwise unpleasant to the taste.

Why so many businessmen got into the shelter business is no mystery. Washington started a flap of press-agentry; it looked as if the Administration would pound away until it got a large part of America underground. But the propaganda became diluted.

As families became skeptical, the government itself seemed to be confirming their doubts.

The government kept putting up post offices and other Federal buildings without extensive anti-blast and anti-fall-out systems. Some are reported to have them, but if they have, few people know about it.

WHERE ARE THE SHELTERS?

Large blocks of apartments were started with government funds, but as far as sidewalk superintendents could see, there were no enormous shelters built into the foundations. And in getting government guarantee of a mortgage, there are many prerequisites — but not one of them requires a family shelter with self-sustaining ventilation systems.

There is a large bloc of employed, but the government has taken no steps to put them to work digging shelters for schools, universities, museums, apartment houses or critical industries. "I can figure this out for myself," is the natural reaction of a father wondering whether he should build a family shelter.

It has been reported that there is an extensive shelter system for the White House but, since Jacqueline Kennedy has not taken the nation on a television tour of it, the public has no knowledge of it.

There are rumors that there is a vast shelter for the Congress, and that in some isolated area there is another Pentagon,

Nobody Really Happy

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

I recently wrote an article denying that there was any plan in the Department of Justice to remove the Director of the FBI, J. Edgar Hoover. The reason for that article was to nip in the bud rumors spread by both the Left Wing and the Ultra-Right Wing that such a plan was in the making. Both sides have been taking advantage of the Attorney General's speeches. In my own account, I quoted from a press clipping, which surprisingly left out pertinent sentences, the omission of which may have helped start the rumors.

The position of the Attorney General, Robert Kennedy, is this: "The Communist Party has no political power in the United States and has no political following. The Communist Party has been rejected by the American people due to the work of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Congressional committees and the press. So, from a political standpoint the Communist Party is not a threat."

However, there is a second paragraph which is very much more important:

"The Communist Party in the United States does represent a danger to the extent that it is dominated, controlled and financed by the Soviet Union. I have pointed out that it is possible for the 6,000 to 10,000 members of the Communist Party to aggravate a specific situation and, of course, I recognize that a minority sometimes, operating through a front organization, can wield influence and power out of proportion to its numerical strength. However, I have said that this is a matter for the FBI; that the FBI has done a superb job, and is continuing to operate effectively in this field. So, I believe that the way to deal with this problem is through the FBI and I also believe that congressional committees and the press can be of great assistance."

Surely, this is a correct position and it does give full credit to the magnificent services of the FBI under the directorship of J. Edgar Hoover and to the Congressional Committees on which the Attorney General cut his legal eye-teeth.

I am glad that I made inquiry as to the Attorney General's position because those who down-grade the services of J. Edgar Hoover are not helping the United States in its present crisis. Furthermore, those, on Left or Right, who for political reason or personal pique, are stirring up a whispering campaign about quarrels between Bobby Kennedy and J. Edgar Hoover, simply do not know what they are talking about.

It must be remembered that the FBI is a department in the Attorney General's office. It is not an independent agency. Hoover, who developed the FBI and has been its chief for 38 years, could have gone to Congress and requested another form of organization. He has served under Presidents Coolidge, Hoover, Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower and Kennedy, a rare record for a public official. Since he has headed the FBI, that agency has been untainted by scandal, although it has often been attacked by Communist and fellow-travelers. Why the Ultra-Right Wingers now seek to give the impression that a quarrel exists between Hoover and Kennedy is difficult to understand.

If the second year of President Kennedy's first term, he is beginning to discover that popularity takes its toll. Now the NAACP, the Negro defense organization, complains that he is "dragging his feet." Precisely how much more he can do to satisfy Negro aspirations in a short time, it is impossible to say. So "Newsweek" publishes a story that the Liberals have become "cool" to the Kennedy Administration. The A. D. A. apparently expected to take over Joseph Rauh, the A. D. A. leader, is quoted to say, "Compare to the 'high hopes' we had, he's a bitter disappointment." (Continued on page five)

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

GARDEN ELEVATION

HOUSE OF THE FUTURE... This is one version of how houses may look 20 or 25 years from now. Note the landing deck for a heli-jet, the use of solar heat and an air wall separating the living room from an interior garden. It looks like a dream house now, but could be an average home in the future. While detailed plans for this "House of the Future" are not yet available, further information about it can be obtained from the architect, Herman H. York, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica 32, N. Y.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

You can do completely without a crystal ball in predicting that there will be quite a few changes in home design and construction in the next 20 or 25 years. But what kind of changes? We asked the noted architect, Herman H. York, to give us some idea of what the home of the future might be like. He started by explaining that there are a number of probable influencing factors which would affect the design of houses along about 1982. "Some of these factors," said York, "will be the high cost of land, the high cost of utilities, the desirability of privacy, less use of the automobile and more of the helicopter, the development of solar heat, a wider acceptance of open planning, more use of the "air wall" and continued recognition of the home as a status symbol."

The high cost of land and utilities would be taken care of by the use of a cluster housing plan in which the dwelling unit would be part of a group of houses with a common walk and by the use of shorter street frontages. Large rear yard gardens and sun decks overlooking the garden would solve the privacy problem. There would be an aircraft landing area on the roof, readily accessible to the rooms below.

Solar heat collection devices would be incorporated into the architectural design. The floor plan layout would open the main rooms on the main floor level and upstairs to the garden and sun deck area. Air walls would be used between the living rooms and gardens. And luxury would be apparent at the front entry by long vistas from the front foyer through the house to the rear garden area.

York said some of the conveniences used today would still be popular 20 or 25 years from now. But there would be changes in water supply and sewage disposal systems. And costs of the house would be kept reasonable because the parts would be put together in far fewer pieces, reducing the labor required at the site.

Plans Near Complete For Travel-Study Tour

East Carolina College's Third Annual Grand Tour of Europe, sponsored by the Extension of the college, is now in the final planning stages. The deadline for joining the group of student-tourists is May 1. Mrs. Myrtle B. Clark, director of the trip has announced.

Beginning June 9 and extending through July 17, the tour will combine travel with study and will take those participating to points of varied interest in nine European countries. According to plans, the party will meet June 9 in New York City for a short briefing session and will then travel by jet plane to London. After a four-day stay in England, the group will then visit Belgium, Holland, Germany, Austria, Luxembourg, Italy, Switzerland, and France. The return trip on the new luxury liner, the SS France, is scheduled for July 12-17 from Le Havre to New York. Those enrolled as students on the tour will, on completion of requirements, receive nine quarter hours of graduate or undergraduate credit, according to the type of work done. Those who do not wish college credit may also go on the tour.

Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Myrtle B. Clark, 409 Holly St., Greenville, N. C., or from Dr. Ralph Brimley, Director of Extension, East Carolina College, Greenville, N. C. A brochure giving details of the itinerary and other information is available.

European Unity Talks Falter Over Demand Britain Join Parley

PARIS (AP)—Efforts by the six Common Market nations to extend West European economic unity into the political sphere have broken down over Belgian-Dutch demands that Britain join in the talks.

The snag arose Tuesday as foreign ministers of the European Economic Community discussed setting up a political authority to coordinate foreign policy and defense activities of West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. The French, who acted as conference spokesmen, said Joseph Luns of the Netherlands threw up the roadblock after all six ministers had agreed that any plans for political association should be submitted to London for comment.

Britain, which is negotiating to join the economic union, suggested last week that the time had come for her to join in the political talks also. The West Germans cold-shouldered the proposal. France reportedly feels the same way.

French informants said the French, West German, Italian and Luxembourg ministers agreed that a political accord should be signed if Britain, after examining it, raised no objections. Spaak and Luns balked and demanded that the British be brought into the negotiations as an active participant.

Spaak reportedly told the ministers that as long as Britain remains outside the Common Market, he will not sign a treaty on political association even if it conforms to Belgian views.

The six ministers adjourned the conference without issuing a communiqué or fixing a date for their next meeting. They agreed, however, to continue talks at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministerial conference in Athens May 3 or at one of their periodic sessions in Brussels on Common Market affairs.

The Belgian-Dutch move indicated that the two lowland nations, which have strong trade links with Britain, refuse to be submerged in a continental bloc dominated by President Charles de Gaulle's government or by a French-West German combine.

Belgium and the Netherlands have been urging a West European federal system with surrender of some sovereignty to a supranational body. De Gaulle wants a looser confederation and is supported by West Germany and Italy.

The French contend any decisions of a political association should be based on unanimous agreement, thus giving each member a veto. The Belgians and the Dutch say some matters "at least should be decided by majority vote."

Western Electric Claims Profits Not Unreasonable

WASHINGTON (AP)—Western Electric Co. officials have acknowledged they paid the government $3 million to rent factory space, then got the money back with a $290,000 profit through the firm's Nike missile contract.

This testimony came out Tuesday at a Senate investigations hearing that sometimes cracked with sharp words.

The company said its profits on the Nike system were about $169 million, equalling 13 per cent of invested capital and were reasonable.

"If that is reasonable, I'm mistaken. It seems pretty high to me," commented subcommittee chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

The subcommittee is investigating what McClellan calls pyramiding of profits by Nike missile contractors.

Witnesses have testified that Western and its chief subcontractor, Douglas Aircraft Co., added profits or fees for themselves onto profits paid other firms hired by Douglas to do much of the actual work. Company representatives have contended they were entitled to do this and did work to earn the money.

"We earned these profits ourselves," G. Raymond Smith, a Western Electric vice president, said Tuesday. "Not one penny of them is a profit taken for the work of others."

As they and McClellan reconstructed it, the contract with the Army allows Western to recover all of its costs on any Nike contract plus a profit, so the rent was added to the bill and a profit paid on it.

"Wouldn't it have been cheaper for the government to furnish it (the two buildings) than to rent it to you and pay you a profit on it?" McClellan asked.

"Yes, sir, it would," Spicer replied. He explained that it is difficult for the Army to allow any company free use of a plant lest competing firms complain. The subcommittee staff said the plants are located in Burlington and Winston-Salem, N.C.

McClellan said Army people would hear more about it from him. Spicer expressed willingness to try to negotiate some different agreement.

CHAPTER 9
It was difficult for Hugh Spencer to remain enthusiastic over the possibility of America's becoming an independent nation, for little news of the outside world reached the plantation, and Hugh worked long hours at the stables, supervising a staff of three indentured servants and twenty African slaves.

Fleming respected ability, and when he saw that his stables were being operated with military precision, he gave Hugh a comparatively free hand.

Fleming's daughter complicated his life, however, and Dr. Campbell said she had become increasingly imperious and callous each year since her mother had died.

At twenty, Jordy Fleming had a lithe figure, long blue-black hair, and violet eyes. Not allowing himself to forget that she was a Fleming, Hugh treated her with courteous, impersonal respect whenever she spoke to him, but he made it a rule to avoid her, and usually retired to his small office beside the hayloft on the upper story of the main stable in midmorning, at the hour she normally appeared for her ride.

It did not occur to Hugh that Jordy, spoiled by the admiration of many men, would be piqued by his indifference, and he was surprised one morning in April, when she appeared unexpectedly in his office. He had been writing on a long sheet of paper, but when he saw her he dropped his quill, pushed back his chair, and bowed.

Jordy leaned against one side of the doorframe and tapped her riding breeches with the tip of her crop. "I didn't know you were a scholar," she said, a hint of amusement in her eyes.

Instinct warned Hugh that Jordy was baiting him. "I've been making a list of some items I need from the general store in Bedford, Miss Jordy." He glanced down at the paper and smiled faintly. "I wouldn't say I've been engaging in a scholarly pursuit."

"You're a strange man," she continued to study him. "There have been all sorts of rumors about you. And just last week, when Grace Timberly rode over from Winchester to visit me, she said she thought you were the most handsome man she had ever seen."

Certain now that she was badgering him, he inclined his head slightly. "Does that mean you share her opinion?"

"No man in my position can think very highly of himself," Hugh replied, speaking more curtly than he had intended. Jordy laughed huskily. "I suspected you had a temper."

He refused to allow a personal discussion to develop. "You're riding Mimi again today, Miss Jordy? Shall I see if the boys have saddled her for you?"

"My ride can wait," she replied flatly. "You haven't yet admitted that you have a temper."

"Bond servants must learn to control their emotions."

"Yet they have feelings." She took a step into the room and deliberately struck a provocative pose. "I've been informed that you wore the king's uniform. Were you really a king's officer, or did you invent a romantic story to make yourself more attractive to the girls?"

Hugh smiled wryly. "Indentured servants have no personal lives, so I have no reason to attract young ladies."

"I find you extremely attractive," Jordy said boldly.

Startled, he reached for her involuntarily, but let his arms fall to his sides again.

"Are you afraid of me, Spencer?" she asked tauntingly.

"Not of you, Miss Jordy."

"Spoken like a true officer."

"Permit me to remind you—and myself—that I'm your father's stable overseer."

"I'm glad you've made it unnecessary for me to remind you of your place. It's good you have not forgotten my name is Fleming."

He wished there were some way to blot out the knowledge that she was his master's daughter.

"You're obliged to obey my orders," Jordy said, and took another step toward him.

"I'll obey any reasonable order," Hugh replied, losing his temper.

Jordy, enjoying herself, looked up into Hugh's face, her violet eyes soft. "Suppose I order you to kiss me."

"I hope that you won't."

"Why, Spencer? Would you consider it less than reasonable for a man and woman who are attracted to each other, to demonstrate their feelings?"

"If I were a free man," Hugh said in a low voice, "our situation would be different. As it is, I'm shackled."

"Not by me. I've given you an order. Are you going to obey it, or must I report you for insubordination?"

He knew she was torturing him, and, casting aside all caution, he swept her into his arms. Jordy pressed against him, and Hugh bent his head and kissed her forehead, and forgot that only a board floor separated them from her father's indentured servants and slaves.

"Has anyone seen my daughter? I was told she was walking down this way. Answer me, one of you!"

Hugh and Jordy sprang apart at the sound of Fleming's voice below, and for an instant they stared at each other wildly. Then the girl, displaying a surprising presence of mind, called out, "I'm here, Papa." Picking up her riding crop, she started toward the ladder that led to the stable below. "Follow me," she murmured.

A few moments later Hugh, still breathing hard, was facing an irate and suspicious Fleming. "What was my daughter doing in that loft?" he demanded.

"Miss Jordy was in my office,

Predict 21 Will Be Victims Of Easter Traffic

CHARLOTTE—The N. C. State Motor Club predicts that at least 21 persons will die in traffic accidents on North Carolina streets and highways during the Easter weekend extending from 6 p.m. Friday through midnight Monday.

The state's "Bloody Easter" traffic toll last year added up to 21 deaths and 566 injured in 721 accidents. However, the first big holiday period of 1962—New Year's—ended on an encouraging traffic safety note with only six deaths being recorded in the state, drawing words of praise from Gov. Sanford.

He declared that "North Carolina motorists could set a new high in highway safety and a new low for traffic deaths in 1962 if we drive as carefully all year long as we did over the New Year's weekend."

The state's highway deaths for the first three months of this year are running slightly ahead of the pace set in 1961, when the traffic toll reached 1,254, exceeded only in 1941, when 1,289 persons were killed.

Of the 743 driver violations reported last Easter weekend, the leading causes of accidents were speeding, 123; failure to yield right of way, 117; driving on the wrong side of the road, 102; following too closely, 67; and driving under the influence of alcohol, 47.

Thomas B. Watkins, president of the N. C. State Motor Club and the National Automobile Association, joined Gov. Sanford in urging drivers to observe the spirit of Easter by heeding the rules of the road and exercising extra caution and courtesy when behind the wheel.

Language Dept. Plans Workshop

Problems in teaching modern languages will be discussed at a Foreign Languages Workshop at East Carolina College April 23 in the Graham Building, Director James L. Fleming of the college department of Foreign Languages, sponsor of the event, has announced.

Invited to attend are teachers of foreign languages in public schools of North Carolina.

"Because of the emphasis now being placed on foreign languages in the nation's schools and the development of new techniques of instruction," Mr. Fleming stated, "it is expected that a large number of teachers will be present to discuss the problems in their field."

Two sessions opening at 9 a.m. and conducted by East Carolina faculty members have been planned for teachers of French and Spanish. Mr. Fleming and Mrs. Margaret A. Perry will direct the meeting of French teachers; and Dr. Fred C. Martin and Julia Escalona, that for Spanish teachers.

Dr. Martin, director of the East Carolina Foreign Languages Laboratory, will discuss "Laboratory Techniques and Practice" at a meeting at 10 a.m. Those in attendance will have the opportunity not only of observing but also of using the modern electronic equipment in the East Carolina College Language Laboratory.

"Foreign Language in the Public Schools of North Carolina" will be the subject of the closing session beginning at 11 a.m. Mrs. Forra Ladu, State Supervisor of Foreign Languages in public schools of North Carolina will be principal speaker.

Robbers Led By First Grader

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Police arrested a first-grader Monday and said he told of leading nine friends in a half dozen robberies.

School Principal Finis Tatum called police after hearing that several youngsters were passing out greenbacks.

Patrolmen rounded up the 7-year-old, two boys of 9, a pair of 10-year-olds, one of 14 and another 15.

All are Negroes.

The youngest told of stealing $144 from a supermarket till, $35 and $75 at gas stations and handfuls of money in three other stores.

Detectives said the youngsters went on a spree at the state fair and gave most of what was left to playmates. They sent the boys to a juvenile home.

Three Birchites Testing California Political Views

By RALPH DIGHTON
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Watch California's June 5 primary for a test of public sentiment about the controversial John Birch Society.

Three members of the right-wing anti-Communist group are asking Republican voters to nominate them for Congress.

Two are incumbents who face men with no political experience. Because of this they are favored to win renomination, and victory for them would not necessarily mean a vote of approval for the Birch Society.

The third race is in a newly created district where there is no incumbent. The Birch Society man, who has never held public office, faces the former mayor of one of the suburban cities in the district. If the Birch man wins, observers say, much will be due to the considerable Birch Society strength in the district.

The man insiders are watching most closely is Rep. John H. Rousset, Republican from the 25th District, the one former Vice President Richard M. Nixon served when he was in Congress. Rousset, 32, was a personal friend and political protégé of Nixon—until Rousset announced he was a member of the Birch Society. Then Nixon, who is running for governor of California, said: "There is no place on the Republican ticket for a candidate who seeks or accepts the support of the John Birch Society."

The other pro-Birch incumbent is Edgar Hiestand, a veteran of 60 who rolled into office with the Eisenhower tide in 1952. Hiestand has said he is a member of the society, but has not made it an issue the way Rousset has.

He has not, for instance, deliberately baited known Birch foes as Rousset did last November when he publicly invited Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown to attend a society meeting.

Republican party leaders have been hesitant to endorse the three Birch men. All three come from districts in which Democrats outnumber Republicans almost two to one, and party leaders figure the "Bircher" label might make the tough job of winning in Democratic strongholds even tougher.

Political observers say Rousset has succeeded in making anti-Communism a strong issue in his district.

In a typical speech he said:

"The State Department is full of Fabian Socialists who are going in the same direction as communism. We must wake up because if we don't we won't have a country in six years."

Rousset's district, in the industrial, middle-class San Gabriel Valley, was whittled sharply last year by a Democratic legislature.

When Rousset defeated Rep. George Kasem in his first bid for office in 1960, the vote was 182,546 to 158,289. Today the total registration for the revamped district is 140,642, of which 87,887 are Democrats, 48,108 Republicans.

In the redistricting Rousset lost wealthy San Marino and Arcadia, where there are many Birch Society supporters.

His opponent for the Republican nomination is politically inexperienced Thomas F. Noonan, a realtor who is strongly opposed to the Birch Society.

A similar situation exists in the district represented by California's other pro-Birch congressman, Edgar Hiestand.

Hiestand's 27th District, part of the booming San Fernando Valley, also was whittled in the recent revamping. The total of registered voters (156,928, with 94,626 Democrats and 57,100 Republicans) is less than his own vote in 1960, when he defeated Mrs. Rudd Brown 179,376 to 126,591.

Like Rousset, Hiestand has only one opponent for the Republican nomination. He is Dr. Marshall Mercer, a physician who says he entered the race primarily to give people a chance to vote against the Birch Society.

The third race in which the Birch Society is an issue is in the 29th District, made up in part of the wealthy San Marino and Arcadia areas which Rousset lost in the revamping. In it Democrats registered 109,047 and Republicans only 87,542.

Here Bill Richardson, who like Rousset has a public relations background, is campaigning for his first time as a Birch Society member. His principal opponent for the Republican nomination is Merrill Fitzjohn, who got a taste of politics as mayor of Temple City, and who opposes the Birch Society.

Air Force Captain Found Guilty Betraying Secrets

WIESBADEN, Germany (AP)—A court-martial today sentenced U.S. Air Force Capt. Joseph P. Kauffman to 20 years at hard labor and dismissal from the service for having betrayed U.S. defense secrets to the East German intelligence service.

The 43-year-old veteran of World War II and the Korean War turned pale and saluted the eight-officer court after hearing the sentence.

The sentence also included forfeiture of all pay and allowances. Life imprisonment is the maximum sentence on the charge.

The sentence will be automatically reviewed by higher Air Force authorities.

Kauffman conferred briefly with his civilian attorney, George Latimer of Salt Lake City, Utah. Then Air Force policemen took him to the Air Force stockade in Wiesbaden.

The court deliberated four hours Tuesday night before finding Kauffman guilty of giving East German intelligence agents information about U.S. bases in Greenland and personal information on other American officers.

The court interrupted its deliberations once to return to the courtroom for a rereading of testimony of the key prosecution witness, Guenther Maennel, 30, an East German intelligence officer who defected to the West in June 1961, and says he is now working for the United States.

It was mostly on Maennel's testimony that the prosecution built the case against Kauffman.

The prosecution said Kauffman was being transferred from Sondrestrom Air Base, Greenland, to Castle Air Base, Calif., when he came to Germany on vacation in 1960 and traveled to Berlin. He entered East Berlin Sept. 29, 1960, and was picked up by East German secret agents.

Maennel said he was one of these agents, and that they and a Soviet intelligence officer interrogated the American at a secret villa in East Berlin. Kauffman gave them data on the U.S. radar warning system in Greenland and on the tactical and personnel strength of U.S. Air Force units there. This information was turned over to a colonel in the Soviet intelligence service.

During the trial Kauffman denied giving any information to East German agents and claimed he was arrested by them while en route to West Berlin and not in East Berlin itself.

Kauffman is a native of Rutland, Vt.

Anniversary For Church Women

"Did God create us to be slaves to security and prosperity?" posed Dickie Atkinson, Junius H. Rose High School student First Presbyterian Church at their fiftieth anniversary observance, April 16.

"Any man's career can be a christian vocation," declared Sarah Basnight, also a Rose High School student appearing on the program.

Using the 1962 theme for the church women, "Tomorrow Begins Today," Mrs. Harriet Roseveare introduced the program. Birthday donations this year will go to the Vocational Guidance Program of the Presbyterian Church. The two student speakers recently attended the vocational guidance clinic at Flora McDonald College at Red Springs, North Carolina.

Mrs. Jean Brown, president of the local group, presided. Refreshments were served from a table decorated with the gold and white motif.

Bad And Good On Friday, 13th

BETHEL—Friday 13th proved bad luck for Marvin Levine. He had his brakes adjusted Thursday and about 9 a.m. Friday morning, on the Tarboro highway just outside Bethel, he found the brake drums had been adjusted too tightly. The drums were so hot by that time they set the tires on fire.

But lady fortune soon turned her wheel, and Marvin Levine was back on the lucky list again. Driving immediately behind Levine when his automobile tires caught on fire was a tanker gasoline truck. The driver stopped and used the dry chemical extinguisher from the truck to put out the fire.

OAS Bloodletting Is Stirring Moslem Anger

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

TUNIS (AP)—One month has elapsed since the signing of the Algerian cease-fire, but the grim, bloody resistance of the European settlers in Algeria's major cities casts a long shadow over the country's future.

At their Tunis headquarters, the Moslem nationalist rebels are becoming increasingly impatient with the raging terrorism of the European right-wing Secret Army Organization. Tuesday 49 persons—43 of them Moslems—were killed and 21 injured.

The Secret Army Organization is known as the OAS.

Except for an occasional isolated retaliatory attack, the rebel guerrillas and terrorists have observed the cease-fire in obedience to orders from their government-in-exile in Tunis. The rebel command agreed to cooperate with France in setting up provisional institutions and in preparing the country for a self-determination referendum.

But European terrorists have been killing Moslems in Algeria's big cities in a desperate effort to provoke mass Moslem reaction and thus compromise the peace agreement.

In the face of daily bloodshed and France's inability to stop it, the rebels have been growing bitter and angry.

"This situation has lasted too long," warned the rebel government in a statement on Sunday. "The sincerity of the French authorities to put into life the Evian agreements will be put to the test."

The nationalists point out that terrorism and economic chaos are limited mainly to Algeria's three major cities—Algiers, Oran and Bone, all with sizeable European populations.

France has succeeded in forming and installing a provisional executive, charged with preparing Algeria for self-determination. Yet the executive is holed up 30 miles from Algiers, in the barricaded administrative stronghold of Rocher Noir. It has little direct influence on Algeria's big modern economic centers, where the defiant European population continues to support the secret army terrorists.

In Tunis, where the rebel government maps plans to take over Algeria after independence, the resistance of the Europeans is looked at as a last desperate upheaval. But the nationalists do not minimize the damage the European resistance can do to Algeria's future cooperation with France and to the country's economic situation.

Jet Test Pilots Can Not Apply For Space Role

WASHINGTON (AP)—Jet test pilots who would like to be astronauts in the Gemini space docking project can start applying now. Five to 10 of them will be selected by fall.

The Gemini project is another step in the process of sending a three-man Apollo spacecraft to the moon and back, possibly by 1966.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the new astronauts will support the seven-man project Mercury team in Mercury space capsule operations and will join the seven in piloting the two-man Gemini spacecraft.

NASA said Robert R. Gilruth of the Manned Spacecraft Center at Houston will receive applications until June 1.

The first unmanned orbital flight of a two-place Gemini capsule is planned for next year. In it the docking maneuver will get its first space test.

Docking involves rendezvous in orbit with another space vehicle sent up separately. The idea is that a separately orbited engine could provide the extra thrust needed to get an Apollo capsule to the moon.

The space agency said Apollo flight crews will be selected from the seven current astronauts, the five to 10 to be chosen by fall and a third group of astronauts that probably will be selected in the late stages of the Apollo mooncraft development program.

Candidates for the Gemini project must be experienced jet test pilots, younger than 35 and no taller than 6 feet.

They must hold a college degree in the physical or biological sciences or in engineering. Also, they must have attained experimental flight test status either through the military services, the aero-space industry or NASA, or be graduates of a military test pilot school.

McCormack Has Backing Of YDC

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—The Young Democratic Club of Harvard University and Radcliffe College Tuesday night endorsed Atty. Gen. Edward J. McCormack Jr. over Harvard alumnus Edward M. Kennedy in their fight for the Democratic nomination for U.S. senator.

Kennedy, youngest brother of the President, was graduated from Harvard and the University of Virginia Law School.

Also in the Democratic senatorial fight is William E. Higham of Boston.

The Harvard-Radcliffe group claims a membership of 260.

To Give Dance Program At Fine Arts Festivals

Two East Carolina College students, both wives of faculty members, presented a lecture-demonstration on the modern dance Monday at the college and will follow up with programs on the modern dance at the Greenville and the Jacksonville Fine Arts Festivals April 28 and 29.

Mrs. Betty Rose Griffith and Mrs. Jo Saunders appeared in the Dance Room of the Memorial Gymnasium at the college Monday before the Dramatic Arts Workshop, class taught by Dr. Lucile Charles of the college Department of English. They discussed and demonstrated for the prospective students of the theater the importance of stage movement through the medium of the modern dance and gave an insight into basic dance techniques.

The four parts of the program included a series of dance techniques; dance studies involving accent, suspension, diminishing meter, and improvisations; a theme with variations; and dance studies on emotions.

Both students study the dance at the college under Lorraine A. Graff of the Department of Health and Physical Education, sponsor of the Modern Dance Club of the college.

Mrs. Saunders, wife of Frank Saunders of the Department of Mathematics, is a graduate of Coker College, Hartsville, S. C., and is a candidate for the master's degree at East Carolina.

Mrs. Griffith, wife of Dr. Albert Griffith of the Psychology Department, attended the University of Alabama, and at present is completing her degree in physical education at East Carolina College.

Husband Asks Church For Identical Censure

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The husband of a segregationist excommunicated by the Roman Catholic Church asked today for the same censure.

The request to Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel from Bernard Joseph Galliot came 14 hours after his dark-haired wife failed in a dramatic plea for grace from the 85-year-old prelate.

"If she is truly excommunicated from the Catholic Church," Galliot wrote to the archbishop in a letter he disclosed shortly after midnight, "then I too should be excommunicated. We, being two people joined together by God, have done no intentional wrong to our church."

Mrs. Galliot, 41, mother of two children in Catholic schools, was excommunicated Monday along with two other segregationists for opposing the German-born archbishop's decision to desegregate parochial schools here this fall.

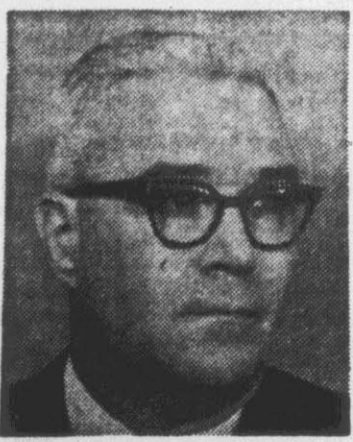

Mrs. Galliot, who contends that God demands segregation, rushed up to the archbishop on the grounds of his residence Tuesday while he was joining a pilgrimage group in prayer.

"I beg your mercy, your excellency," she pleaded as she knelt before the archbishop. "Admit before God and yourself that you did not want to integrate."

An unidentified woman standing by the archbishop interrupted Mrs. Galliot, but she insisted: "Don't listen to Satan, listen to God. Look at me, your excellency. I am on my knees before you. Listen to God."

As she rose from her knees, Mrs. Galliot said, "May God have mercy on you. I'm not backing down."

The archbishop remained silent

Blough, JFK Talk, Clear Atmosphere

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Roger M. Blough, chairman of the U.S. Steel Corp., slipped into the White House for another talk with President Kennedy—a meeting described as an effort to clear the smoke from their monumental price war.

His visit late Tuesday came exactly one week after his last trip to the executive mansion when he brought down Kennedy's wrath by telling him U.S. Steel was raising its prices $6 a ton. Before the week was out U.S. Steel and the companies that followed its lead, had surrendered to an awesome administration attack and called off the price increases.

At his news conference today Kennedy will have a chance to go into the situation. Last week he used the meeting with businessmen as a stage to denounce the increases as irresponsible.

Tuesday's White House meeting apparently was carried off in a more friendly atmosphere. There was no word on what Blough and Kennedy said to each other but assistant press secretary Andrew T. Hatcher called the meeting "cordial and useful."

Blough arrived at the White House some time after AFL-CIO President George Meany left. Hatcher said the visits were not related.

White House aides believed Blough's visit was set up last Friday—when Big Steel rescinded the price increase—in a New York meeting between Blough and Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg.

Some officials interpreted the 45-minute get-together as an indication Kennedy hoped to maintain "responsible and cordial" relations with business leaders.

The White House says it has received about 700 telegrams on Kennedy's bout with the steel industry and that they are running about 5 to 2 in support of his actions since the price increases were canceled.

Kennedy may turn an address before the U.S. Chamber of Commerce April 30 into a forum for a major restatement of his administration's attitude toward business in the wake of the steel price turmoil.

The speech is assigned such importance that the White House began work on it Saturday, almost before the price rollback was completed.

It is likely Kennedy will tell the chamber that tax measures—such as liberalized depreciation allowances, the proposed tax credit for buying new equipment—will offer a better way of promoting industrial modernization without resort to potentially inflationary price increases.

The steel caldron was still boiling. Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., announced Tuesday that the Senate hearings into the steel industry's pricing practices will begin in about six weeks.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., suggested that the President set up a commission to look into the steel industry's price policies and needs. He said Kennedy showed "considerable interest" in the idea.

Two Republican congressmen angrily denounced Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara for what they called violating the laws in awarding a steel contract to Lukens Steel Co.

Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin and Gerald R. Ford Jr. of Michigan called for investigation. Ford argued that contract was awarded to penalize U.S. Steel for raising prices and to reward Lukens for not raising them.

The contract, worth $5 million to $6 million, was awarded at the peak of the administration's offensive against big steel's price increase.

Red Propaganda Aims At West's Economic Moves

An AP News Analysis

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Moscow is mounting two heavy propaganda offensives.

One is against the European Economic Community, or Common Market. The other attacks the Kennedy administration's Alliance for Progress program in Latin America.

The Moscow broadsides may herald much more direct Communist efforts to harass and impede the European integration movement and to sow confusion in the Latin American effort to produce stability through economic aid.

Both movements represent dismaying threats to Communist expansion plans.

Moscow probably considers the Common Market by far the greater menace, but heaviest Soviet propaganda guns are zeroed now on the Latin American alliance. That may be because more concrete action against the Common Market is being considered in the Kremlin.

The European development already constitutes a serious setback for communism. In cooperation with the United States, the Common Market can face Moscow with a vast aggregate of economic power and skill eclipsing that of the Red bloc. The implications of this can be of greater importance even than such trouble spots as West Berlin or Viet Nam.

One major source of Moscow worry is a stepped-up effort to bring into being some of the political goals of the 1957 Rome treaty which gave birth to the Common Market concept. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is reported determined to beef up a drive toward closer integration by supporting measures leading to greater political unity. There are reports now that a compromise is in the making between Adenauer's views and those of French President Charles de Gaulle, who has been shying away from any idea of surrendering national sovereignty.

Present Common Market members are West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. Britain, long aloof and skeptical, is represented as willing to accept the Rome treaty's implications. Other nations are clamoring to get aboard.

All this may eventually spur the Kremlin to action to avert what it must regard as a real threat to communism from West European political union. Moscow may turn to desperation tactics which could involve dumping such commodities as oil and gold, to a barrage of barter deals or perhaps even to more violent measures.

The Alliance for Progress is another source of Kremlin worry. Any prospect of economic improvement in Latin America tends to cut ground from under the Communists.

Soviet newspaper blasts calling the U.S. effort in Latin America an "alliance for plunder" are broadcast to the hemisphere in a torrent of Spanish-language transmissions.

The alliance, say the broad-casts, is a plot to protect a "new colonial policy" and "the sharks of Wall Street."

"The people of Latin America," said a typical broadcast in the Spanish language, "are every day more convinced that the United States does not show real interest in the welfare of their people and that the North American loans only seek profits and the political and economic subjection of the Latin American countries. Imperialism cannot exist without exploitation of underdeveloped countries."

Phants Rally To 8-6 Victory

A CLOSE ONE . . . Greenville first baseman Alan McArthur (5) reaches for ball, but Elizabeth City runner is called safe. McArthur later moved to the pitcher's mound as the Phantoms won the contest 8-6. (Reflector Photo by George Bryant)

The Greenville High School Phantoms came from behind yesterday to defeat the Elizabeth City Yellow Jackets by a score of 8-6 for their fourth win of the season.

Coach Bud Phillips watched his team fall behind 6-4 in the top of the sixth inning but then he was in for a couple of big surprises. He brought in Alan McArthur to pitch in the sixth and McArthur accounted for one surprise with Rommie Brock accounting for the other.

McArthur Pitches

McArthur came in from first to take over the mound after two outs in the top of the sixth frame. Pitching his first game of his high school career, McArthur walked the first man he faced. He then forced the next man to hit the ball to the mound for an easy out. In the top of the seventh frame, McArthur struck out all three batters to retire the side.

Brock was the big man for the Phantoms in the bottom of the seventh as he accounted for three of Greenville's runs. With two men on base, Brock connected for a home-run into deep centerfield.

Greenville Opens Scoring

Greenville opened the scoring in the bottom of the first frame as they picked up one run on two hits. The first hitter for the Phantoms, Spencer Harrington, led off with a single to center. With one out, McArthur came to the plate to send a triple to left-center field scoring Harrington. Elizabeth City pitcher Ronnie Dall then settled down to retire the side. In the top of the second inning, the Yellow Jackets rallied to score one run on one hit.

In the bottom of the second inning, Greenville picked up three more runs on two hits, a walk, and an error. With one away, Ken Joyner was safe at first on an infield hit. However, the next batter Dale Gidley forced Joyner out at second.

Billy Williamson followed with a walk bringing with Harrington following for his second hit of the day and scoring Gidley. Billy James connected for a single to score Williams and Harrington and put the Phantoms ahead 4-1. McArthur then struck out to retire the side.

Jackets Make Last Attempt

In the top of the sixth, Elizabeth City made a last attempt to overtake the Phantoms. The Yellow Jackets tallied five runs on three hits, four walks, and two errors. This rally put the Yellow Jackets out ahead by a score of 6-4.

However, Greenville proved to be tough with the odds against them as they surged back to win the game in the bottom of the seventh. Williamson struck out to start the inning for the Phantoms. Harrington followed with his third hit of the game to bring James to the plate. James received a base on balls to put runners on first and second.

Alan McArthur picked up his third hit of the afternoon as he singled into centerfield scoring Harrington. Brock followed McArthur with a tremendous homerun deep into centerfield to score three runs for the Phantoms to win the game.

The winning pitcher was Alan McArthur who gave up no hits, no runs, one walk, and struck out three. Ronnie Dall was the losing pitcher, giving up eight hits, eight runs, four walks, and struck out eight.

Virginia Was Only ACC Team Scheduled Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Virginia Tech, looking for its third victory of the season over Atlantic Coast Conference baseball teams, was host to Virginia today in the only game involving an ACC team.

The Southern Conference Technicians beat North Carolina 4-3 in their first encounter with an ACC team and followed with a 7-2 win over Wake Forest.

North Carolina beat N. C. State 5-5 in ACC conference games Tuesday. Navy beat Maryland 3-1 in a non-conference game.

Right-hander Jack Rees pitched the shutout for the Tar Heels, giving North Carolina its first conference victory against two losses.

Rees, who struck out seven and gave up seven hits, got the backing he needed when the Tar Heels scored an unearned run in the sixth for what proved to be the winning score.

State pitcher Bob Comer allowed only five hits and struck out nine.
State is now 4-4 over-all and North Carolina is 5-5. Both teams have 1-2 conference records.

Wake Forest, with the help of relief pitcher Pat McDowell, came from behind to take over first place in the conference race.

Trailing 5-4 in the fourth inning, the Deacons scored twice in the sixth and twice in the seventh.

McDowell gave up two hits in five innings after Ed Mandy surrendered five hits. The Deacons rapped Duke pitchers J. D. Browne and Dick Densmore for nine hits.

The victory gave Wake Forest a 3-0 record in the ACC, allowing the Deacons to pull ahead of South Carolina for the conference lead. Wake is 7-3 over-all and Duke is 2-5 in the conference and 8-6 for the season.

Navy took advantage of Maryland errors to hand the Terps their eighth straight loss.

The Middies took a 1-0 lead in the sixth on two Maryland errors. The Terps tied it up in the top of the eighth but Navy came back in the bottom half of the inning to score two more runs. Maryland is 0-4 in the conference and 1-8 over-all.

Thursday, Florida State is at Clemson, and Wake Forest is at Furman.

Youthful Colts In Fourth Place

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
The eager Houston Colts have drawn first blood in the battle of the have-nots in the National League.

Carolina Loop Opened Tues.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Raleigh, Durham, Winston-Salem and Wilson were the winners as the Class B Carolina League made its 1962 debut in chilly weather Tuesday night.

The biggest crowd, 3,091, turned out at Kinston and watched the Wilson Tobs spoil Kinston's return to pro baseball by shaving across a run in the ninth to score a 7-6 victory.

The teams play again tonight at Wilson.

Raleigh's Caps edged Rocky Mount 7-6 at Raleigh before a paid attendance of 479. The Caps, trailing by 6-2, scored three runs in the fifth and two in the sixth to win.

Winston-Salem jumped off to a four-run lead in the first inning and went on to defeat Greensboro 7-3 at Greensboro. The paid attendance was 534.

In the other opener, Durham scored a 7-3 victory over Burlington at Burlington behind the three-hit pitching of diminutive Jack Lane. The attendance was 881.

After one week of play, the youthful Colts are scurrying along in fourth place, only two games off the pace, and the New York Mets still are looking for their first victory.

The two new clubs of the National League met for the first time Tuesday afternoon at the Polo Grounds with the Colts grabbing a 5-2 decision on Don Buddin's three-run homer in the 11th inning.

The older Mets with a veteran lineup of faded names were supposed to be the long ball hitters.

The Colts were reported to be a fiery band of line-drive single hitters. But the Colts turned to power for all their runs on Norm Larker's two-run homer and Buddin's winning blow. Gus Bell's homer that tied the score with two out in the ninth was the only explosion by the Mets, who have lost all five starts.

Pittsburgh rebounded from a five-run spurt by Chicago in the first inning and handed the Cubs their seventh straight defeat 10-6. It was the sixth victory for the unbeaten Pirates.

Los Angeles bombarded San Francisco's pitchers for eight runs in the early innings and held on for an 8-7 decision with Frank Howard and rookie Tim Lincecum hitting home runs.

A scheduled night game between St. Louis and Philadelphia was postponed because of cold weather. Cincinnati and Milwaukee were not scheduled.

In the American League, rookie Joel Horlen of Chicago blanked Minnesota 8-0 with six hits and Detroit smothered Washington 9-2 in day games. In night games, the New York Yankees bounced Baltimore 8-3. Dick Donovan pitched his second straight shutout over Boston as Cleveland won 5-0 and Kansas City beat Los Angeles 5-3 to spoil the Angels' home opener.

Bobby Shantz and Jay Hook were hooked up in a fine scoreless duel at the Polo Grounds until Shantz suffered a catch in his left shoulder while making an off-balance throw in the sixth.

The Colts finally broke through for two runs on Larker's homer in the sixth but the Mets got even with an unearned run in the eighth and Bell's homer in the ninth. The winning blow by Buddin, former Boston Red Sox, was hit off loser Herb Moford who took over in the ninth after Hook left for a pinch hitter. Jim Golden was the winner in relief.

Chicago tied a major league record by using five pitchers in the eighth inning of its game with Pittsburgh but couldn't stop the Pirates from rallying for six runs in the last two innings. Harvey Haddix, last of four Pirate pitchers, was the sixth lefty to beat the Cubs this season. Barney Schultz, third of seven pitchers thrown into action by the Cubs' corps of coaching brains, was the loser.

The Dodgers recovered from Monday night's 19-8 disaster in San Francisco and knocked out Mike McCormick, who was making his first start. In addition to the homers by Howard and Harkness, Tommy Davis continued his batting spurge with a bases-loaded double and Maury Wills drove in the other run with a center field triple. Don Drysdale won his second with relief help from Larry Sherry in the seventh.

Celebrating Old Freedom Festival

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—At Jewish dinner tables around the world tonight, the head of the house will hold up some pieces of flat, unleavened bread wrapped in a napkin and say:

"Lo! This is the bread of affliction which our fathers ate in the land of Egypt. Let all who are hungry come and eat. Let all who are in want come and celebrate the Passover with us."

This begins the world's oldest festival of freedom, commemorating the deliverance of the Israelites from slavery in Egypt.

At the seder tonight—the ritual meal of song, prayer, symbolism and story—families will relive in memory the stirring drama of the escape from the tyranny of the Pharaoh.

It was mankind's first great struggle for liberty, and the week-long celebration of it is often called "the season of our freedom."

Comments came from many Jewish leaders.

"The struggle is as crucial today as at any time in the 3,500 years since the children of Israel fled ancient Egypt under the leadership of Moses," said Rabbi Julius Mark, president of the Synagogue Council of America.

As head of the organization representing all three branches of Judaism—Orthodox, Conservative and Reform—Dr. Mark said in a Passover statement: "Freedom can never be permanently won but must be fought for and achieved in every generation."

Once again in the modern era, he said, "divisive forces in our society" are challenging the principles of democracy.

"To the modern pharaohs who persist in keeping their Jewish communities in political, social and religious bondage, we echo the challenge of Moses, 'Let my people go,'" Dr. Mark said.

Dr. Samuel Belkin, president of Yeshiva University, said, "We are confronted with the striking parallel of some 2 1/2 million of our brethren enslaved by a newer form of tyranny."

Rabbi Dr. Albert G. Minda, of Minneapolis, president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, said freedom is "not only a priceless possession inherited from the past, but one to be achieved by each generation of men."

The general chairman of the combined campaign for American Reform Judaism, Jack Davis, said the season was a time for renewed Jewish commitment to God—to "do all in their power to oppose the setting of brother against brother, and nation against nation."

The National Jewish Welfare Board said it has distributed supplies for Passover meals to 100,000 Jewish service men around the world, and arranged for special services for them and their families.

The Jewish Braille Institute of America said that free copies of the Hagadah (the Passover narrative) in Braille or on recordings have been provided to more than 1,000 Jewish blind persons.

For the first time, a new passage will be added to the seder ritual in many Jewish homes. Published by the Seder Ritual Committee, made up of representative Jewish leaders, it commemorates in "reverence and love" the six million Jewish victims of nazism. It also includes a song of hope for "justice and brotherhood" among men.

Taxpayer XYZ Again Sends Sum

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—For the tenth straight year, the Internal Revenue Service office here has received a return from an anonymous taxpayer who signs himself "XYZ."

IRS officials disclosed Tuesday they had received this year cash totaling $641 in an envelope with a Richmond postmark. An accompanying note stated simply: "Apply to my income tax. XYZ."

Pink Snow For Italian City

CUENEO, Italy (AP)—It snowed pink in this little north Italian city Tuesday.

Italian meteorologists speculated that the rusty snow flakes contained minute particles of Sahara sand, borne northward from Africa on warm air currents that mixed with a cold front descending from Scandinavia.

SAN FRANCISCO: Easter sunrise service at base of Mt. Davidson's 100-foot cross that is landmark for ships at sea.

Easter Sunday is a joyous day: it commemorates the resurrection of Jesus, it signifies the triumph of life over death.

Easter is the time of Spring. Even the English name of Easter is derived from the Anglo-Saxon goddess, Eostre, who represented light, or spring. A festival in her honor was held every April.

Many Easter customs are quaint, others are full of meaning. Some date back to ancient days. The idea of the Easter egg originated in Persia. The eggs are a symbol of new life. The white lilies that decorate the church altar on Easter Sunday are symbols of light and purity. The wearing of new finery means the casting off of the old.

Another Easter Sunday observance is the sunrise service. That too has its origin in the past. An old belief was that the sun rising on Easter morning danced in the heavens.

Easter observances, both solemn and joyous, vary in many parts of the world. Some of them are pictured here.

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A tricky virus, rats on the bottle and why things stick together are subjects for Science at Work.

ONE MAN'S COLD
The same virus that causes a type of severe cold in humans has been found to cause tumors in hamsters. The culprit is an adenovirus, first isolated by researchers tracking down the epidemics of colds that beset soldiers early in barracks life.

New U.S. soldiers are given a vaccine to protect them from the colds and the virus. The virus is only known to cause cold-type symptoms in humans. There is no evidence it causes cancer.
But in rats, one type of adenovirus (adenovirus 12) has caused cancer in hamsters when injected into the lungs, say Drs. John J. Trentin and Yoshio Yabe of Baylor University. The lung cancers are highly malignant, sometimes spread to the liver and can be transplanted into other animals.

BROTHER RAT?
Male rats drink more alcoholic beverages than female rats, once they have been introduced to drinking.

So reports Margaret L. Clay, University of Michigan psychologist. In seeking clues to alcoholism, she made drinkers out of laboratory rats; animals normally teetotalers.

Young rats, both to parents of flexible behavior, tended to drink more than rats born to parents with a more rigid behavior, Miss Clay said. Behavior was determined by tests.

The rats did more drinking when faced with distressing problems. But rats failed to become problem drinkers. In the first place they wouldn't drink enough to become stuporous. And second, they wouldn't go too far out of their way for a drink if it was difficult to get.

STICKY SUBJECT
What makes glues stick? What makes one thing stick to another? It's a matter of bringing two substances together, writes Norman A. De Bruyne in the magazine Scientific American.

What is close enough together? A fraction of a millionth of an inch, says De Bruyne, research director of the English instrument firm, Technic Ltd.

Some subjects that are plastic enough—for instance soft aluminum—can be joined directly together without glue. But for most materials the surfaces are too rough for molecules to get close enough except here and there on the surface.

A glue or an adhesive—generally a liquid—adapts itself to the even rough surfaces and gets close enough to form the electrical bond.

Depressing Character Study On TV Last Night

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "That's Where the Town's Going" on CBS Tuesday night was really a character study—three unhappy, lonely and lost people thrown together in a musty Victorian manse to work out their problems.

The hour special, an original script by Ted Miesel, was slow-moving, depressing, yet somehow fascinating. It was a slight story about two middle-aged spinster sisters, remnants of the first family of a small town, existing unhappily in the old house with a dying aunt. "The Silly Sills," town-folk called the two—bossy, domineering Ruby and vague, day-dreaming Wilma.

The plot picked them up on a day when an old beau of Wilma's returned, rich and successful, to ask her once again to marry him. An ambitious boy from the wrong side of the tracks, he still smarted from her laughing refusal of his proposal 15 years before. His return was more to prove himself than for love. In the end, it was Ruby—at first so fearful her younger sister would leave her—who ruthlessly went off to be married. Wilma, distraught, returned to her dream world.

The performances were excellent: Kim Stanley as Wilma, Patricia Neal as Ruby and Jason Robards Jr. as self-centered and supersensitive Hobart. It was an interesting, offbeat hour.

NBC's musical variety, "Rainbow of Stars," was a glorified tour of—and an hour-long plug for—New York's Rockefeller Center. Robert Goulet strolled among the gardens and fountains singing. Carol Lawrence danced down 50th Street and on the tables in one of the restaurants. The Music Hall Rockettes, all too briefly, did some of their famous precision high-kicking.

Gosh, it must be pretty exciting to work in a place where that sort of thing goes on all the time. (Eds note: she has for 20 years. The AP Building is at 50 Rockefeller Plaza.)

A recent note in this column, reporting that audience rating services found only a small drop in the size of the "Tonight" show audience after the departure of Jack Paar, brought a flurry of mail from devoted followers of the retired NBC giant-killer. All were to the effect that "I definitely have given up late television watching since Jack and his regulars left, since they were almost like family."

Now that Bob Newhart has won a prestigious Peabody Award for his NBC show, perhaps his sponsor (currently debating whether to renew Newhart for another season or fill the half hour with something less sophisticated) will give the comedian a new lease on television life.

Recommended tonight: Perry Como Show, 9-10 (EST)—Easter show with Burr Tillstrom, Kukla and Ollie and singer Jane Morgan; Steel Hour, CBS, 10-11—"The Go-Between," drama about an American girl in Tokyo with Barbara Cook and John Lupton.

His First Ticket Is 'Bitter Pill'

PREEPFORT, N.Y. (AP)— Paul Davison goes to court April 23 to answer a traffic summons—an act he figures will be "just about the bitterest pill I've ever had to swallow."

The ticket that Davison was handed Tuesday for allegedly running a traffic light was his first in 40 years as a taxi driver. He is 76 years old.

The number of new animals discovered each year is about 50 mammals, 100 fish, 15 birds and 5,000 insects.

She Dreamed Of Piano, Then—

SODUS, Mich. (AP) — Brenda Harrison, 10, had wanted for a long time to have a piano, so she could study music.

Her dream came true Tuesday. There was a piano in an abandoned school house in the village, St. Paul's Evangelical Church, across the road had purchased the building and volunteer workers were tearing it down. A worker told Brenda she could have the piano if she could get some one to move it away.

It wasn't much of a piano—just an old upright—but it was a piano. Brenda skipped home from school at noon and excitedly told her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Harrison, the happy news.

After school, she just had to see her piano again before she could think of things like supper. She went back to the abandoned school. The wreckers had gone.

The piano—standing askew on a six-inch-high platform with a cast-iron missing—was a wondrous sight. Brenda, apparently trying to figure out how to have her precious gift moved to her home, tested its weight.

The piano tumbled off the platform and pinned her beneath it. The crash was heard by Brenda's brother, Gene, 12, and a neighbor boy, Jimmy Long, 10, playing in another part of the old school.

They tried to lift the piano off Brenda, but couldn't budge it. They called two other children to help. The four—straining mightily—got the piano off Brenda. They laid her on the grass of the school playground and ran for help.

Brenda died of head injuries in a hospital within an hour—without ever getting to touch the keys of her piano.

Few N.C. Coastal Battles As Brief As That At Fort Macon

Of the several engagements fought in the State during Burnside's invasion of the North Carolina coast, few were so brief or so bloodless as that fought at Fort Macon, North Carolina, April 25, 1862.

At the very start of the Civil War, in April, 1861, Fort Macon, a Federal fort guarding Beaufort Harbor, was seized by a group of secessionists under the command of Captain Josiah S. Pender. After organizing and re-fortifying the fort, Pender turned it over to the Confederate States of America, in whose hands it remained until April, 1862.

Following the Federal victory at New Bern on March 14, 1862, Burnside turned his attention to Fort Macon, guardian of strategic Beaufort Harbor. Here, on April 25, Colonel Moses J. White surrendered his garrison of approximately 450 men to Federal forces under General John G. Parke. The fort was forced to capitulate when guns on the land side of the fort, supported by those of four naval vessels standing offshore, heavily bombarded it.

Though not so significant as the battle for New Bern, that at Fort Macon was interesting in that it boasted two "firsts." It was the first instance in the Civil War in which land and naval forces joined to move against a fortress, and it was the first example of mathematical calculation being employed to increase the accuracy of cannon and mortar fire.

With the fall of Macon, the Union secured control of the entire northeastern section of the State from Beaufort northward, including all Pamlico and Albemarle Sound waterways.

Plans to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the capture of Fort Macon are being made by the Carteret County Centennial Committee headed by F. C. Salisbury, Chairman. The Committee plans an Easter sunrise service April 22, which will be similar to that which attracted thousands to the fort last year. A pageant depicting the surrender of the fortress will highlight the day's activities on April 25.

Rockefeller To Give Views On GOP Principles

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate House committee drafting a proposed statement of Republican principles gets the views of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York today on major domestic and foreign policies.

Rockefeller, touching bases with all available Republicans, is expected to get a favorable reception from the policy makers for his latest theme that Republicans are wasting time looking for liberal or conservative solutions to the nation's problems.

He has been bearing down on the note in what is regarded as an effort to quiet conservative opposition not only to his re-election as governor of New York but his expected bid for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination.

Rockefeller has been tagged as a liberal in the minds of many of his party members. He told a Republican women's conference Tuesday, "People who go around wearing an arm band looking for a liberal solution or a conservative solution are merely blinding themselves to the realities of the situation. It is like the man who says 'Don't confuse me with the facts; my mind is made up.'"

Despite this disclaimer of any label, Rockefeller's cure for some of the country's ills remains too liberal for some Republicans.

A case in point is his espousal of a program for medical care for the elderly financed by Social Security taxes. Except for an option for beneficiaries to choose cash, this parallels President Kennedy's plan, which a majority of GOP members of Congress oppose.

On the other hand, Rockefeller found substantial support among congressional Republicans for his earlier contention in Detroit that the Kennedy administration had not attacked basic economic problems with sufficient vigor or understanding.

The Senate-House Republican group currently is working on the military-foreign affairs section of its proposed statement. Rockefeller is the first GOP state executive to appear before it.

No Calling Card By Their Skunk

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—There's no doubting Mrs. Rachel Kline's story, for she's president of the Seventh Day Adventist Church. She says it happened this way:

Her brother-in-law had been gathering dried leaves to use as mulch. He came hurrying into the house — where she was visiting — to explain that he had found two young skunks under the leaves and one had its head caught in a small olive or pickle jar. Unwilling to take a chance, he quickly retreated.

Later that evening, says Mrs. Kline, they were watching television when they heard a peculiar noise at the front door. They opened the door, thinking it was the family cat. But there was the skunk, its head still in the bottle, knocking it against the door.

Taking the skunk by the bottle — but gently — Mrs. Kline's brother-in-law placed the bottle between the door and the door jamb. The startled skunk backed up, its head came out of the bottle, and it departed the scene.

Either out of fright or gratitude, it failed to leave a calling card.

Once Hopeful Singer Now Deaf, Crippled

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Each morning during Holy Week, you can find Juanita Ricketts seated before the altar in the chapel at Goodwill Industries here.

She sits because she can't kneel. Arthritis has so stiffened her right leg that she can't walk without a cane.

Mrs. Ricketts, a buxom, middle-aged Negro, works at the Goodwill plant as a gasket inspector. At chapel each day, she watches the worshippers pray and sing.

She hears neither word nor note.

Once music was her life. A promising coloratura soprano, she made many appearances here and in nearby cities. When a Kansas City company staged the opera, "La Traviata," Mrs. Ricketts won the lead.

Then, six years ago, she was in a hospital for treatment of arthritis. Suddenly, inexplicably, she went totally deaf.

"I tried all the specialists and they told me the same thing—I would never hear again," Mrs. Ricketts recalled.

"I thought I would go out of my mind. Finally, I decided there was no need to carry on like that. I turned to God."

Flinging her worn Bible, Mrs. Ricketts says she found comfort in the Book of Job.

"And Job arose and rent his mantle and shaved his head, and fell down upon the ground and worshipped. And said, 'Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither; the Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord.'"

Her pastor at Second Baptist church, the Rev. E. E. Chapelle, says, "Out of suffering there can come a more beautiful attitude toward a more helpful and hopeful life. Easter gives us a ray of hope in the midst of our defeats and our disappointments."

Says Mrs. Ricketts: "I have faith that God will take care of me."

Man Flying Kite Is 'Suuspicious'

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A Tucson policeman radioed for help after he spotted a man running down the street near the University of Arizona one night.

Moments later, the call was canceled. The man hadn't been a burglar after all. He was just flying a kite.

About 45 million Americans now living will eventually have cancer.

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels and other industrials were higher in a continued stock market rally early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.40 at 254.10 with industrials up 2.50, rails up .40 and utilities up .60.

Gains of fractions to a point or so among key stocks were prevalent through most of the list.

A generally higher tone prevailed among motors, rubbers, mail order-retails, aerospace issues, electronics, utilities, nonferrous metals, chemicals, rails, airlines, drugs and building materials.

Wall Street seemed reassured by the conference between President Kennedy and board chairman Roger M. Blough of U.S. Steel following last week's steel price crisis.

Early gains ran to a point or better among the steels as they won back some of the ground lost in their recent clobbering. These gains were shaded as traders took profits.

While motors remained higher, Ford erased an early gain. Chrysler was up about a point following its report of a first quarter profit against a 1961 first quarter loss.

Polaroid was up 3 points. IBM also regained about 3. Beckman Instruments and Zenith were up about 2 apiece.

Gains of a point or more were made by American Telephone, U.S. Gypsum, Du Pont, Radio Corp., and Johns-Manville. Air Reduction added more than 2.

Although Reynolds Tobacco sank another point, recoveries were made by other tobacco stocks.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 3.35 to 691.78. Prices were mostly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds leaned to the upside.

Stokes Talks To Ayden Rotary

AYDEN—Corey Stokes traced "The Chevrolet Story" from 1911, when the first car was made, until the present time, during the local Rotary Club meeting last week.

The first car of this type was made by W. C. Durant and Louie Chevrolet. The company's emblem was copied from a piece of wall paper in France and has remained the emblem since that time. Slides were presented of every model of the car up to the present time with a commentary by Stokes.

Gwynn Merritt, president of the club, presided. It was pointed out that the Ayden club is mentioned in the March edition of "The Rotarian" for becoming a 200 per cent club in the Rotary Foundation. Merritt read a letter of appreciation from Artie McGlohon, president of the Ayden High School Student Council, for the club's assistance in chartering a bus to the state basketball tournament.

Opening Bids

Contractors' bids on the James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium were scheduled to be opened and read at 2:30 p.m. today in Flanagan Building.

Today's bidding included the entire stadium project after officials postponed a separate bid date for installation of pilings until today.

College officials and stadium architect reviewed specifications for the stadium and were expected to revise the plans after too-high bids were rejected March 6.

Total bids on the planned 16,000-seat concrete-and-steel facility at the first opening ran to nearly $390,000, well above the estimated cost of $262,000.

Champion Bull In Bank's Lobby

There was a "bunch of bull" in the lobby of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company's main office here today—970 pounds of it to be more nearly correct.

Bank officials, in order to promote development of the livestock industry in Pitt County, have placed a 16-month-old Black Angus bull, Reserve Champion of the annual Pitt Pat Stock Show and Sale, in the lobby.

Dr. J. W. Pou, manager of Wachovia's Agriculture department, said by placing the animal in the building, "we hope it will interest people in raising more and better livestock."

The bull will be on exhibit in the bank's lobby during banking hours through Saturday. When the bank closes for the day, the exhibit will move to a pen in the bank's parking lot.

To add a touch of color to the exhibit, the bank's tellers will be clad in red "cowboy" hats with red bandanas tied around their necks.

Three Total Wrecks During Span Of 4 Hours

GRIFTON—Local police are still shaking their heads about Sunday night's activities.

Involved are three totally wrecked automobiles, two of which were stolen, a wrecked wrecker which also was stolen, and three separate instances in a four hour span.

About 10 p.m. Sunday night Officer Ed Hudson spotted an automobile being driven in a suspicious manner. He approached the car and signaled for it to stop. However, after he left his police car to investigate the driver's license, the unidentified driver drove off hurriedly.

Hudson got back into his car and gave chase from a point just on the Lenoir County side of Grifton to near the Kinston DuPont Plant, and back around the Grifton Pine Manufacturing Plant near Catalina. The driver stopped for a stop sign, then pulled out onto N.C. 11 into the path of an oncoming car.

As Hudson approached the fugitive's car, the driver, who had been thrown out of the totally demolished car, ran and outdistanced the police officer. The other automobile, also demolished, was identified as belonging to J. H. Penuel of Grifton. His son, who was driving, was saved from injury by his seat belt, Police Chief Luther Lewis said.

Bloodhounds, called to the scene, failed to trace the fleeing driver. However, it was learned the car was stolen from its parking place in front of the New Bern Police Department during the afternoon. Its owner—a policeman.

Police are still investigating this accident.

Later, about 2 a.m., Hudson spotted Booker T. Payton, Negro, of Grifton, driving an automobile. Since police had a warrant charging Payton with assault on a female with a deadly weapon, Hudson followed Payton until he approached the home of Lonnie Holland of Grifton. Payton allegedly was driving Holland's car.

When Hudson turned on his red light, Payton reportedly drove hurriedly off. Hudson gave chase, at speeds up to 90 miles per hour, down Highway 118 to the junction of N. C. 43. At this point, the automobile reportedly driven by Payton hit a light pole, jumped a ditch, crossed Highway 43, jumped another ditch, hit another light pole and turned over.

The car, a total loss. The driver, arrested and charged with assault on a female with a deadly weapon, larceny of an automobile, careless and reckless driving, no operator's license, speeding 90 miles per hour and failure to heed a siren, Payton is presently in Pitt County jail under $1,200 bond. His case is scheduled to be tried Thursday in Grifton Recorder's Court.

When Hudson called the Grifton Auto Co. for a wrecker, the wrecker had disappeared, apparently stolen. It was found sometime Monday at Pritchettville, where it had been put in reverse, a piece of iron placed on the accelerator, and rolled into the Neuse River with just about 18 inches of cab showing.

Investigation is continuing on that case.

Police are still shaking their heads.
