Tumbling U.S. Mooncraft Fails Heed Radio Signals

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A mooncraft with an injured brain tumbled through space today toward an almost useless collision with the moon after scientists abandoned futile efforts to awaken it from its coma.

who can do that." In Pasadena, Calif., a spokesman for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which made the spacecraft, said there's a longshot chance it may not impact.

Calculations indicate it will skim by the moon's leading edge at a height of 900 miles, then hook in for a landing on the backside.

Atlas had pushed the vehicle to an altitude of about 100 miles and separated, that the second-stage Agena had pushed the craft into parking orbit and cut off, that the Agena had fired a second time to launch Ranger 4 on the second leg of its journey, that the vehicle was on the proper flight path away from the earth at 24,500 miles an hour.

minutes later. "We don't really know how major the failure is." He said it could be in the craft's transmitting system only. However, he added, "There is an indication that the spacecraft has not locked onto (turned its solar battery panels toward) the sun. The spacecraft is slowly tumbling."

supposed to provide the timetable for a central computer and sequencer which were to issue steering commands to Ranger 4. Through the evening, commands were sent to the errant rocket from ground stations in an effort to shock it into action.

Four scientific experiments dissolved with Ranger 4's failure. Its job as it neared the moon was to take photographs of the bright side, measure radioactivity emanating from the surface, and measure the moon's radar reflection properties.

The failure was the eighth straight by which a lunar probe by the United States has failed to achieve its goal.

Re-Zoning Slated In Winterville

WINTERVILLE—As the result of a public hearing held here last night on a proposed trailer ordinance, Mayor Walter Dail said the zoning commission may "do some rezoning" so that a trailer park can be established.

The Town Board plans to meet with the zoning commission in the next few days, probably in the next 60 days, Mayor Dail said. He pointed out that some land owners have indicated an interest in establishing trailer parks on their land.

To date, Winterville has no zoning ordinance and consequently no control over trailers. Mayor Dail said the trailers are parked in front and back yards of homes, which has brought complaints from neighboring home owners that their property has decreased in value.

"Ten years from now this won't be anything but a trailer town if we don't do something about it," Mayor Dail said. "We are trying to look into the future. There is no ordinance here at all. Anyone can park a trailer anywhere they want to and we can't do anything about it," he said.

He quickly pointed out that those registering complaints have nothing against inhabitants of the trailers. "Some of them are the nicest people in town," Dail noted. But the home owners feel the nearness of trailers does decrease the value of their homes and property.

Some 50 persons turned out for the hearing, the largest gathering attracted to a Town Board session in 13 years, Mayor Dail said. He described the meetings as "very orderly" and said both those in favor of the proposed ordinance and those opposed to it voiced opinions. "We wanted to get the pros and cons so we could find out everything. We did learn some useful things," the mayor said.

However, no action was taken on the ordinance as written. The proposed ordinance would restrict trailers and trailer parks to the industrial area of Winterville, thus prohibiting them from residential or business areas.

Mayor Dail pointed out that aldermen wanted to reach the most satisfactory solution to the problem for everyone.

There are approximately 30 trailers in the town now, located in various areas.

To Tell Little Of Nuclear Testing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Few details of the scheduled U.S. nuclear tests in the Pacific will be made public, U.S. officials have indicated.

Atomic Energy Commission and White House officials said Monday that news reporters and photographers will be barred from the test sites and there are no plans to provide any official photographs.

The only immediate information to be made public will be furnished in official announcements, probably from the AEC.

Two Forest Fires Listed In County In Recent Days

Ben Forrest, Assistant Fire Warden for Pitt County, reported two forest fires have occurred over the past two days.

According to the firefighter, nine acres were burned near Grifton Sunday while about seven acres were burned at Ayden yesterday.

Forrest said the Ayden fire, part of which was inside the Ayden city limits, was apparently started by children.

He explained that a knife, matches and some popcorn were found at the site where the fire apparently started. The Grifton fire, Forrest explained, was caused by the spreading of a camp fire.

Forrest said the present state in Pitt are what the forest service calls "blow-up conditions" where there is a great dan-

Weekend Toll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Traffic accidents in North Carolina claimed at least 22 lives over the long Easter weekend—one more than the number predicted by the North Carolina State Motor Club.

The number killed this year was six less than the 1961 Easter weekend toll. The weekend count started at 6 p.m. Friday and ended midnight Monday.

Four persons were killed in a Sunday morning crash near Graham in Alamance County. Three were killed when a car overturned near Marshall and another triple death mishap occurred Saturday near Benson, when a car hit the rear of a farm trailer.

Monday, Richard Earl Snelling, 43, of Durham was killed when a car ran off U.S. 70 five miles east of Hillsboro and a Durham youth, Bobby Garrett, 19, was killed when a car overturned.

Another Soviet Satellite Orbits World Today

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union put another scientific satellite into orbit around the earth today as America's Ranger 4 sped through space toward the moon.

It was the first time the two powers had launched space vehicles so close to one another in time.

The Russians said their newest Sputnik, Cosmos III, carried scientific instruments to continue the Soviet program of outer space exploration and a multichannel radio telemetric system to relay information back to earth.

The announcement by the Soviet news agency, Tass, gave no indication that there was a man aboard. Presumably the satellite was unmanned.

"The radio telemetric information received from the satellite shows that the instruments are functioning normally," Tass said.

Cosmos III was the third Soviet satellite to be launched since March 16 after a long period of Soviet inactivity in space. Cosmos I was launched on March 16 and Cosmos II on April 6.

Announced aims of the new Soviet program of space research include investigation of radiation belts and meteorites around the earth and the dangers they may hold for space travelers.

Tass said first estimates showed Cosmos III was close to its planned course and orbiting the globe every 93.8 minutes. It said the orbit's inclination to the plane of the equator was 48 degrees 59 minutes, its farthest distance from the earth 448 miles and its closest 142 miles.

Today's session of the Supreme Soviet, the Soviet Union's parliament, recessed early so the delegates could hear the announcement of the new sputnik.

News of the American moon shot was withheld in Moscow until after the dramatic break in Soviet radio programs to announce the launching of the Russian satellite. Forty minutes later, Tass told the American shot in a 50-word dispatch from New York.

According to Hazel Manning, who mans the lookout tower on U.S. 264 by-pass, conditions are so bad that she can't go down for lunch" and will have to man the lookout post overnight.

Forrest emphasized the fact that to help prevent fires, burning of trash and ditch banks should not be carried out until a general rain. He also noted that a permit is required before trash can be burned under even normal conditions.

Although the local Forest Service office is still issuing burning permits, Forrest said, issuing of these permits may be stopped at any time.

Officials urged residents of the county to exercise extreme caution during this dry period in an effort to prevent woods fires.

Tetanus Clinics Tomorrow

Clinics will be established at the following points on Wednesday for the countywide tetanus immunization project, from 10 a. m. until 4 p. m.

In Greenville—Pitt Courthouse, Fleming Street School, Agnes Fullilove School, South Greenville School, Third Street School, Elm Street Recreation Center and Farmers Warehouse.

In Farmville—Farmville Armory; Bethel Rotary Building; Dr. Bruce Beasley's office, Fountain; Ayden Clinic; Winterville Community Building; at the old George Saleby building on Queen Street in Grifton; Gardner-Brunson Store in Chicod; Grimesland Town Hall; Simpson School; Sallie Branch School; Falkland Community Building; Davenport's Store in Pactivus; Conleton's Store in Stokes.

Registered nurses will be present at all clinics.

The first such tetanus day held in Pitt County was on April 4, and attracted some 8,000 persons for tetanus toxoid immunization and tetanus booster shots.

Wednesday's program will complete the toxoid immunization and will again offer booster shots for those who are up-to-date enough on the immunization.

The Pitt County Medical and Dental Society is sponsoring this project, which has endorsement of the state society and other organizations. Physicians who make up the society are giving their own time on a "gratis" basis to assist at the clinics.

The only fee is 50 cents for materials. Immunization will be provided regardless of ability to pay, however.

Dr. Tom Patterson of Farmville has been in charge of the effort for the medical society, while Dr. Earl Trevathan of Greenville was in charge of publicity. Dr. Charles Adams of Greenville is the society president.

Rocket Facility Plans Revealed

RALEIGH (AP)—Atlantic Research Corp. announced today it will establish a rocket research and development facility near Corolla on the North Carolina Outer Banks.

The announcement came at a news conference held by Conservation and Development Director Hargrove Bowles and Phillip K. Rely Jr., a company official. The firm has been awarded an Air Force contract to develop what it calls the "gel-sol" propellant, a booster fuel with the consistency of toothpaste which could produce millions of pounds of rocket thrust.

Bowles, who welcomed the firm in the absence of Gov. Sanford, said, "It is most gratifying and I might say exciting to those of us concerned with industrial development to see North Carolina move further—and so substantially—into the space and missile program.

The company already has moved into several lodges and cottages on the plant site, about 40 miles north of Nags Head. More construction is planned.

Really, manager of the Development, said the firm already has made five or six tests of an aluminum solid propellant similar to that used in the Polaris missile.

He said this propellant would be used in the third or fourth stage of huge rockets.

Here Tomorrow

The Red Cross bloodmobile will be stationed at Wright Auditorium on the East Carolina College campus Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

This is to be a concentrated visit at the college. No quotas are being assigned to Greenville civic organizations which ordinarily support the bloodmobile, therefore, but those who wish to replace blood are urged to do so.

The quota is 125 pints of blood per day.

President Expected Signal U.S. Nuclear Testing In Few Days

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first explosions in a new series of U.S. nuclear tests probably will involve research devices intended to yield data on electromagnetic and other effects bearing on defense against missiles.

Later in the two- to three-month series in the Pacific will come proof tests of full nuclear weapons—including all those in the U.S. intercontinental ballistic mis-

Decree Nullifies Peronist Votes In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—President Jose Maria Guido today decreed the annulment of all elections since December, 1961, and ordered federal control in all provinces throughout Argentina.

The decrees wiped out Peronist election victories in the March 18 elections in which they won 45 provinces and with the aid of other groups won four other governorships.

Guido's executive order came minutes after army generals took over control of three Argentine provinces from civilian officials. Guido's action was an apparent prelude to his already announced plans to call a general election before July to choose his successor.

The army took over command in Entre Rios, Santa Fe and Cordoba provinces.

Five other provinces—including Buenos Aires—Argentina's largest, already are being ruled by federal interventors appointed by deposed President Arturo Frondizi. In the March 18 elections followers of former dictator Juan Peron, with Communist support, won governorships in five of the five provinces.

There were no reports of resistance to the army takeover. Guido abandoned attempts to pass a Senate-approved bill keeping him in office until 1964 after the navy in a token show of force ordered a marine unit into the capital.

Navy chiefs were reported standing by their vow to use all available means to force Guido to bar the Peronists once more from political life.

The navy has been pressing for a federal takeover in all of Argentina's 22 provinces, a move that would replace all elected officials with federal appointees and dissolve the provincial legislatures.

Informants predicted Guido would sign a decree declaring null and void all elections held since Dec. 17. This would throw out all ballots cast last month for gubernatorial and legislative posts in the provinces and for half the membership in the federal Chamber of Deputies. The Peronists won nine governorships and 43 seats in the chamber.

Military wrath over the Peronist triumphs in last month's balloting led to the overthrow of President Arturo Frondizi March 28.

Guido took office the following day with the military's blessing and at once began pressing Congress to pass a measure letting him serve out Frondizi's term.

N. C. Offers Air Force New Area

LANGLEY AIR FORCE BASE, Va. (AP)—In an effort to aid the Air Force to find an urgently needed East coast bombing range, North Carolina has offered a tract near Wallace, N.C.

The North Carolina State Wildlife Resources Commission has asked the Air Force to survey the Angola Swamp area east of Wallace. The tract includes 16,000 acres of state-owned land.

The Air Force says there has been a pressing need for a practice range for tactical jet fighters stationed in North and South Carolina. Crews are now sent to Nellis AFB, Nev., for bombing training. The Angola Swamp is bounded on the west by U.S. 117, on the south by N.C. 53, on the north by N.C. R41 and on the east by N.C. 50.

BER Asks Investigation Of Area Airport Service

An answer filed by the Bureau of Economic Regulation with the CAB calls for an investigation of area airports to serve Kingston, Rocky Mount, Goldsboro, Wilson and Greenville.

The text of the answer was received by Counsel W. W. Speight today. The bureau filed the answer last week partially supporting Greenville's petitions currently pending before the CAB.

The bureau called for an investigation to determine whether air service needs of the five Eastern North Carolina cities "should be met through one or more area airline service airports."

However, the bureau said service should be awarded to Rocky Mount, Goldsboro and Kingston as the CAB ruling recently provided, but without expenditures of money for airport construction until the new investigation is completed.

For this reason the bureau recommended that "if an area airport investigation is instituted, it be done on an expedited basis."

"Neither the air carrier involved nor the affected cities should be unduly hampered or delayed in air service development, including airport construction, if following an investigation, the current service authorization is not changed," the answer read.

The bureau had this to say about Greenville's petition asking a stay of additional service to Rocky Mount and Kingston and new service to Goldsboro.

"The bureau believes that the awards made in the Piedmont case are fully justified on the record and should not be disturbed."

But, the answer went on, the bureau believes two new matters merit consideration by the CAB:—An investigation to determine the advisability of establishing regional airline airport facilities to serve the geographic area in which the cities are located.

"The CAB might wish to attach conditions to its awards or defer final awards only in those instances where substantial additional funds will be required by the cities for the building of new airports or the enlargement of existing facilities, or where air carriers serving these cities will need larger or improved airports to accommodate their existing equipment."

The last applied particularly to Rocky Mount and Kingston, the bureau said.

In the case of Goldsboro the city expects to use Seymour-Johnson facilities and thus additional capital investment would not be necessary now.

"However, service demands based on defense requirements can be unstable since they may increase or decrease depending on defense activity or needs.

"Moreover, defense considerations may adversely affect ability to continue civilian service at the base, or the civilian population of Goldsboro may, at some future time, decide they wish to dispense with Seymour-Johnson facilities and seek federal funds for civilian airport construction. If there is the possibility of an area airport, this contingency merits the Board's consideration."

The bureau said that generally it believed the CAB should at least give consideration to the use of area airports where they could be used by a number of cities within a radius of 50 miles.

Negroes Advised To Avoid N.Y.

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—A New York state senator is advising Southern Negroes who plan to come North that "subtle vicious and degrading" racial discrimination exists in New York City.

At least one bus load of Negroes is said to be ready to head for New York City this week from New Orleans. Free trips to Northern cities have been offered by a segregationist group in the Louisiana city. The Negroes are given the addresses of various agencies, including welfare departments, that might help them in the North.

State Sen. Henry A. Wise, a Watertown Republican and chairman of the Senate's Public Relief and Welfare Committee, announced today he had urged a Louisiana legislator to try to dissuade the Negroes. Wise said in a telegram to Louisiana State Sen. Charles Delchman of New Orleans:

"Racial discrimination in New York City... is more subtle, vicious and degrading than many knowledgeable persons are aware."

Wise, a frequent critic of New York State's welfare policies, told Delchman that the "issue of equal rights has been exploited for years in New York to the harem of the public and all welfare groups."

His telegram added: "Skilled jobs such as bricklayers, plumbers and electricians generally are closed to Negroes... unemployment is high."

Wise's committee last year recommended major changes in the state's welfare law, but few of the proposals were adopted. He was long been a supporter of a one-year residency requirement for welfare recipients.

State law now provides that new residents in the state who apply for public relief must show that they had reasonable assurance of employment or financial support when they came to New York.

Couple Mary In Virginia

ARLINGTON, Va.—On Sunday afternoon, April 8, at three o'clock in Christ Methodist Church, Arlington, Va., Miss Barbara Anne Kennerly became the bride of Ensign Gilbert Broadwell Perry, Jr. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Beverly Felty.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Ruth Marcy, organist. The traditional wedding marches were used. Mrs. Paul J. Hartman sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly."

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Donna Sheehan, Miss Dianne Charuhus, Mrs. Patricia Swennes of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Irene Cripps of Arlington, Va.

Junior bridesmaids were Jeanette Kennerly, sister of the bride, and Paula Hopkins.

Mrs. Karen Brahlin of Arlington, Va., was matron of honor. Following the matron of honor was the little flower girl, Lisa Hopkins.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, Mr. Edwin Byrd Kennerly. Her bridal gown, was a creation of white silk organza over taffeta, with inserts of chantilly lace in the bouffant skirt and around the sabrina neckline. The Elizabethan sleeves fastened with tiny silk organza covered buttons, ended in a point over the wrist. Her finger tip veil of bridal illusion fell from a pearl crown. She carried a bouquet of orchids and stephanotis.

They were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Paul DeLozier of Newport News, Va.

The bride's mother was attired in romance blue silk organza over taffeta with matching accessories and wore a corsage of blue orchids.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Gilbert Broadwell Perry of Watsonville, California, was dressed in a beige and gold metallic jersey sheath with matching accessories and wore a corsage of green orchids.

The bride and groom left the church under the traditional crossed sabres.

Mrs. Perry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Byrd Kennerly and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Guthrie Rush of Greenville. She was graduated from Washington-Lee High School in Arlington, Va., and Temple Business College in Washington, D.C. She was employed by Congressman Harlan Haven of Calif.

The bridegroom was graduated from Watsonville Calif. High School and the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. Following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Kennerly entertained at a reception at their home.

Effectiveness Rests With Many

The six-county Coastal Plain Planning and Development Commission has completed its first step of organization with the election of its top officers, but now it faces the equally important task of making the organization an effective instrument for development at the grass roots level in communities throughout the six-county area.

Although the Commission has elected most capable persons for its officers with Sen. Robert Lee Humber of Greenville as chairman, Sherwood L. Roberson of Robersonville as vice chairman and Mrs. McDonald Gautier, Jr. of Washington as secretary, the effectiveness of the organization in the long run will depend upon the cooperation and support it receives from individual communities throughout the six-county area.

The Commission's table of organization calls for eight major committees to deal directly with area problems in various fields ranging from agriculture and industry to finance and educational and cultural development. The calibre of people who make up these committees and the support they receive from throughout the area will have an important bearing on what the commission as a whole will be able to accomplish.

The six counties of Pitt, Nash, Wilson, Edgecombe, Martin, and Beaufort have many common problems when they look at the overall picture of their development potential. Traditionally they have been closely tied together and the progress—or lack of it—in any one of the counties has an effect upon all of the others. By joining forces to cope with common problems, the progress of each of the counties can be accelerated through the efforts of such a Commission that has support at the grass roots level in each county.

Previous efforts to effect such an area development organization died primarily because there was lack of understanding of what the Commission was trying to do and lack of support for the Commission's work at the county and community level. It is the responsibility of each county in this new alignment to see that this new organization is not similarly handicapped.

The Coastal Plain Planning and Development Commission is off to a good start so far as its initial organization is concerned. But its effectiveness will be determined not by the contribution of a relatively few people. What it will be able to accomplish will be determined by the effort put forth by the great number of capable people in each of the six counties who recognize the importance of the area approach as well as the local approach to total development problems and potential.

Second Primary Cost Considered

By LYNN NISBET
SECOND PRIMARY — With the lists for new entries closed and the nominating primary approaching there is talk about agreements among candidates to avoid a second primary by ceding the nomination to the candidate receiving the highest number of votes on May 26, whether or not that be a majority of the total. Arguments in support of this idea are that elimination of a run-off will save the State a lot of money and perhaps contribute to party harmony — which will be sorely needed in November.

Arguments against the plan are mainly that it denies the people full opportunity to make a choice among candidates, and tends to regard the desired office as the personal property of the candidates to trade as they please. There is real question whether a candidate for whom maybe 49 percent of the voters wanted has a legal or moral right to arbitrarily cast all those votes for his opponent by retiring from the race.

There are some who think the run-off should be automatic and mandatory. Under present law the second high man must make formal request for run-off within a specified time, or the nomination automatically goes to the high man. And what a great many people do not understand is that if the number two man calls for a run-off the top man has a right to step down and let him have the office. In that event he is assuming the right to trade off the voting privileges of all who supported him.

There have been numerous instances where the second man went out in the run-off; several instances where the high man got the nomination with less than a majority of all the votes, and a few cases where the second man was allowed to take over because the top fellow did not want to go through another primary.

It will tend to protect the rest of the island by affording passage for water between the ocean and the sound. What the final decision will be is not known, but is common knowledge that once the army engineers make up their minds to do something they are pretty hard to change.

JUDGE — Attorneys for the defendants in the now famous highway signs case, in which six men and three corporations have been indicted, took a sly dig at the administration the other day. The defendants have been clamoring for trial of the cases since the first indictments were entered nearly three months ago. Judge Raymond Mallard regularly assigned to this district for the first six months of 1962, also has urged the solicitor to get along with the trials. Judge Mallard's tenure here ends on June 30. Suggestion has been made for a special term just to try these cases, and for special terms often appointed special judges are assigned. Governor Sikes and administration associates have taken an unusual interest in these cases. So there was a bit of humor in the request by defense attorneys that when and if the cases are tried the court be presided over by an elected judge, not one serving by appointment of the Governor.

MADE IN N. C. — The Department of Conservation and Development is sponsoring a statewide observance of "Made in North Carolina" products during the week of June 10 to 18. If the idea is followed through in detail, many people may be surprised at how nearly self-contained North Carolina can be. Very few things used by North Carolinians for food, clothing or shelter cannot be produced in the state — or a fairly adequate substitute for them.

An illustration of what can be done along this line is found in the story "Made in Union County" dinner staged at Monroe some years ago. The chairs and tables in the dining room were made in Monroe; the tablecloths had been woven from Union county cotton in local mills; all the meat was grown in the county, and the bread was baked in a local bakery from wheat and corn grown and ground in the county. About half the crockery ware was Union county made. About all that came from outside was the silverware and such little stuff as salt and pepper.

Risks On The Homefront

S-Sgt. Leo Smith, the Marine recruiter, was in the office yesterday. Being a Korea veteran the sergeant knows what it is to be shot at. But a short while after he returned home the marine recruiter found things weren't so safe on the home front.

Sgt. Smith began recruiting duties in the Raleigh office and soon he was given a handful of coupons sent in by girls interested in Women Marines.

The sergeant dutifully started out calling at the homes to see how interested the girls were in a military career.

Things went along pretty well until he stopped at one particular house. There, he was met by the girl's father — an irate father at that. "Git off my property," the father roared and grabbed for the shot gun. The man cut loose with a blast of the gun in the direction of the government-owned pick-up truck Sgt. Smith was driving.

The sergeant, who had ducked when he saw the gun, jumped in the truck and took off, as the bearer of the gun had suggested. Later he found the blast had put holes in the side of his truck.

He reported the incident to his superiors and prepared to forget it. But a few days later the father showed up and asked to speak to Sgt. Smith. "Did you leave your gun in the car?" the marine asked warily.

The man replied that he did and that he wanted to apologize.

"My daughter has gotten married," he announced proudly. That suited the sergeant.

up with even the time honored custom of Easter egg rolling. It seems to do this properly a large quantities of wooden eggs are required. This has been used in New York for years and 1962 was not to be expected to be any different.

Alas, when the sponsors of the egg roll went to the manufacturers, they found they had stopped making the wooden ones.

During the year they had switched to plastics and other light materials. These, it was found, just didn't work for egg rolling. They just slid over the grass.

So a frantic search was instituted for wooden eggs. Eventually a New York shop was found with a last remaining cache. The eggs were purchased and the New York egg rolling contest went off Saturday on schedule.

Your columnist is the kind of baseball fan who comes to life at World Series time. Maybe that is why I'm a fan of sorts of the New York Mets manager Casey Stengel. I remember him when he was king — as manager of the New York Yankees. There Stengel's teams had a way of winning the pennant every year. And after they had won the pennant, they more often than not went on to win the World Series.

Now, leading the new team in New York Casey finds himself with nine losses and no wins. Of course we know that Stengel has been with losing teams before his fabulous Yankee stint. But that doesn't soften the humiliation of setting a new record for losses at the start of a season.

Your columnist is one fan who hopes that after Casey finally hangs up his uniform for good he will be remembered solely for his Yankee days.

Public Forum

TO THE EDITOR:

On the night of March 29, 1962, a meeting relating to Neighborhood Conservation was held in the Greenville City Court Room. During the question and answer period I asked Mr. Cochran, Executive Director of the Redevelopment Commission the question, "How much money had the Redevelopment Commission spent in Greenville to date?" Mr. Cochran's answer was to this effect, "My office is always open."

Here is what Mr. Alvin Taylor, Daily Reflector City Editor, writes in the September 8, 1961 issue of the Daily Reflector. "Cochran explained that records of the Redevelopment Commission office are open to McGowan and the Public, a point which has been made many times." On September 11, 1961 I received and have a letter from the then Chairman of Greenville Redevelopment Commission. The Chairman wrote, "You are welcome to personally inspect the Public Records of this Commission at any time between the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Monday through Friday of each week. The records maintained by this Commission are periodically audited and Mr. John C. Proctor is retained by this Commission to do the book-keeping work for the Commission. We wish to assure you that we are perfectly willing to permit you or any other interested citizen to examine and check these records at any time during the hours herein above specified."

Upon the receipt of this letter, I went to the office of Mr. Cochran, Executive Director of the Redevelopment Commission. I was told that the records were not open to the public. I was told that the records were not open to the public. I was told that the records were not open to the public.

On September 11, 1961, I received a personal invitation to inspect the records but was told in March 1962 to submit a written request. I would like to know what the Redevelopment Commission means by the expression "The door is open to inspect the records." Inspect Financial records or minutes? To date I have not yet seen any records that would require auditing by Mr. John Proctor or any other certified public accountant. Who has? Sidney H. Skinner

World Losing Its 'Marbles'

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The awesome explosions expected soon in the Pacific from American nuclear tests will be a fiery monument to man's scientific genius and his political adroitness.

He has learned how to shatter a continent, transplant a kidney, remove a cancer, orbit the earth, and now he is aiming for the moon. But he still hasn't learned how to get along with himself.

The American nuclear blasts, like the Russian blasts last year, will occur because the United States and Russia don't agree on an effective test ban treaty. For the same reason, the Russians say they will then have some more tests.

This can go on indefinitely, with both sides building even more frightening power, since there is no reason to think they can reach an agreement any time soon than they have in the past.

If Red China gets nuclear power and starts testing, and the French do some more testing, the world ought to look like the Fourth of July every few months or every few weeks.

This may seem to historians of the future — if not in 1,000 years, then perhaps in 10,000 years — foolproof evidence of the retarded condition of contemporary man.

The more awful the weapons of East and West become the less anxious they seem to test them on each other since tit-for-tat could leave them both dead by the millions.

Perhaps right there is the happiest thought of all in what some fear is steady progress to disaster unless the testing stops and there are arms controls — that in time East and West will scare each other into such sweet reasonableness that problems which now look insurmountable will appear pathetically simple.

But East-West failure to agree on testing is only another chapter in the history of the world's general inability to get along since the last war which was the greatest testimonial to man's preference for brawn over brains.

Some examples come readily to mind: the Korean war, the Israeli-Arab war, the Congo war, the Indochina war, the Viet Nam war, the Laotian war, the Indian attack on Goa, the Hungarian revolution, the Algerian war, the Latin-American revolutions, the Berlin blockade, the Russian missile threats, the Cuban revolution and the Cuban invasion.

But while East and West disagree they also keep busy with disagreements within themselves. The Russians can't agree with the Chinese, the Albanians and the Yugoslavs (the latter can't agree with the Chinese and Albanians) on the proper road to communism; French President Charles de Gaulle often disagrees with his allies; the West Germans can't stand their East German Communist cousins; the left and right in Latin America see nothing reasonable in reason; and if things look moderately quiet now among the new African nations that's probably a temporary illusion.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
SIGNIFICANCE OF THE INSIGNIFICANT

God commissioned Moses to the greatest task ever laid upon a single human being in history. How can I assume such responsibilities? cried Moses in despair. And the Lord's answer was what the Lord's answer usually is to any of our questions, namely: another question. "What hast thou in thy hand?" asked God. And Moses replied "A rod."

With that rod Moses went forth to a work so mighty that it touches your life and mine every hour of every day we live.

The rod in the hand of Moses the shepherd became a divine instrument by which this man led forth a captive people and changed the course of history.

He did his work as a shepherd well. He was faithful to his shepherd's rod. But God had something greater in store for him. God had a higher use for that plain piece of wood. It would lay water out of the rock, it would point an enslaved people to freedom and glory.

The lesson is so plain and simple that we are indeed worthy of rebuke if we do not see it. Do faithfully what you are now entrusted to do, and God will give you greater and more significant tasks in the years ahead. Moses could not have known the significance his life would have for humanity as he led his sheep from one tiny grazing plot to another. But God was watching the man. He had higher work for the shepherd who used his rod well.

Very Important Data Omitted

By ELMER ROESSNER
The economic bible of the United States is "Economic Indicators," prepared monthly for the Joint Economic Committee by the Council of Economic Advisors.

It omits the most important single economic statistic. It does not report the number of babies born in the previous month. The Bureau of the Census, however, reports constantly on the total population.

Population, it says, is increasing at a rate of around 7,000 a day. Think of that: 291 potential new customers every hour!

MORE BUSINESS ODDITIES
And here are more interesting and possibly significant business developments:

Australia is trying to sell more wool to Red China. Of 83 million Americans wearing glasses, 33 million are overdue for a check-up of the Better Vision Institute finds.

If you see a sold box car whizzing by, it may be because you are intoxicated. But if you aren't, don't worry. Pullman Standard has made such a car to celebrate its 100th anniversary. A Michigan insurance company is offering double indemnity to policy holders killed or injured while wearing safety belts.

MORE DOWN-UNDER MEAT
Between March 5 and 19, four ships left Australia with almost 10 million tons of beef, mutton and lamb for the United States.

The bill in Congress allowing manufacturers to set retail prices would "serve the greedy, not the needy," says Ross J. Wilhelm, Michigan University economist. The automatic computer will have more impact on the American society than the industrial revolution of the 18th and 19th century, says Dr. Robert T. Gregory, Texas University mathematician.

Surfeit For Any Critic

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

I have often wondered how a music critic can possibly enjoy his job. Night after night, he goes to concerts and to the opera and he must say much the same thing because after all Beethoven's Fifth is still Beethoven's Fifth no matter who stands on the podium and wields a stick. And the same is true about the opera. So little appears that is strictly new that the critic does not often have a Schoenberg or a Scriabin to slaughter.

So he might devote himself to poisoning the tea of a conductor. It might be lots of fun, saying that Stokowski is a poseur or that Bernstein dances better than he conducts. I once heard a critic hiss Munch and there might have been a good fight until it was discovered that he was a musicologist and then all was forgiven, for after all it is quite possible for musicologists to hate music, just as distillers do not drink whiskey and a salami manufacturer prefers cheese.

The subject of Bernstein intrigues me. I saw him conduct when he was figuratively in his knee-pants, learning how to wield a stick from Koussevitzky and living much in the shadow of Aaron Copland. I have watched him grow in stature and in personality over the years. Up in Tanglewood, I often missed the music altogether while I watched his antics as a conductor.

In recent years, I have watched Leonard Bernstein on television more than in the concert hall and I have reached the conclusion that as a musical propagandist, as one who can bring out in others a love for music, he is unequalled. He is a master teacher. He will one day, I hope, lead an orchestra of brilliant children as an offer of hope to those who seek an opportunity to perform.

The other night, I witnessed a musical spectacle that made me want to be another Otto Kahn, which means that I would then be able to pick up the bill for something truly great. Bernstein each year gives three very young men a chance to be his assistants, as a Supreme Court Justice appoints clerks who afterwards become distinguished lawyers.

Bernstein's three assistants were permitted to conduct and the soloists, piano, bass-fiddle, flute, clarinet, xylophone and glockenspiel were young people from age 13 upwards and truly remarkable, they all were. Gary Karr played the double-bass as though that mostrosity were intended to sing. What an opportunity for young people!

What a chance to prove themselves and they did prove themselves worthy of Bernstein's understanding that genius has nothing to do with age, place, or race.

Perhaps the music critics will find a flaw in all this. They will say that the Philharmonic could be used for more useful purposes. What could they be? What could a leader do that is more purposeful than to bring new life into his particular field of endeavor?

Leonard Bernstein announced that one of his young people, John Canarina, will conduct the Jacksonville Orchestra next year. It was like Koussevitzky looking down on a third generation of his handiwork.

I walked into the home of friends, unostentatious people who live quietly, without fuss. Against a wall stood four paintings, of some quality. It was the mother of the household who had found an artistic expression just as her son plays the piano. Their life is full because time is not being wasted in futilities. Another friend says that he can laugh at the world because he has found himself in gardening, in beautifying the environs of his home.

Such people are not driven by the futility of their own existence. "You do not know what life is," says the young woman who suddenly discovered that she can attract to herself strange men with strange habits. "Live!" she almost shrieks and it sounds so funny, because there are so many ways to live. I was thinking of the twins who played in Bernstein's concert, beautiful Ruth and Naomi Segal. They will never have to rush from one madhouse to another. (Continued on page five)

Opinions In Brief

Steel industry profits dropped 14 percent last year; the return on sales was the lowest since the 1952 strike year. Total profits were about $700 million, compared with more than $1 billion in the 1955-57 period.

SUPERSTORES MAY DOMINATE AMERICAN RETAILING
The spread of low margin, high volume "superstores" may have deep influence on American retailing, according to the current Dun's Review. The superstores are actually the old general store, inflated to meet the demands of an inflating population, the magazine says.

Department stores, it says, are being forced to imitate discounters, while they are forced to copy department stores.

Counterfeiting Case For Jury

RALEIGH (AP) — A federal grand jury is considering indictment charging conspiracy against five men arrested in a secret Service crackdown on an alleged counterfeiting ring.

William Earl Baysden, Jacksonville businessman, is one of the five.

U. S. District Attorney Robert Cowen announced Monday the bill had been sent to the grand jury. However, court recessed for the day before the jury reported.

Cowen displayed some of the more than $100,000 in bogus $20 bills seized by Secret Service agents Sunday.

Named with Baysden in the indictment were Clennie Humphrey and Norwood Whaley, both of Highlands; Edward D. Sparrow of Kinston; and Edward E. Thorpe of Richmond, Va.

Vernon D. Spicer, head of the Charlotte office of the Secret Service, said Humphrey and Whaley are employees of Baysden's furniture store in Jacksonville. Sparrow was described as a painter.

Spicer led agents in 1958 who found $76,680 in counterfeit $20 bills in a deep freeze in the store. Baysden was convicted on charges resulting from the incident, but the U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals reversed his conviction because of an improper search warrant.

Report About 40 Million In Communist Party

WASHINGTON (AP)—A government intelligence report says there are approximately 40 million Communist party members in the world with 36 million located in nations belonging to the Sino-Soviet bloc.

The largest single party membership is in Red China, with an estimated 17 million. More than 9 million are in the Soviet Communist party.

The report, prepared by a government agency for Congress, said the biggest Communist parties outside the Sino-Soviet bloc were in Indonesia, with an estimated 1.75 million members, and Italy, with 1.2 million to 1.5 million. Figures for the U. S. Communist party were not given. The Federal Bureau of Investigation has estimated the U. S. party's membership at 10,000.

Cuba's party membership was estimated at 27,000 but the report said the number of persons in Cuba now calling themselves Communists may exceed 100,000.

Efforts In S. Viet Nam Beginning To Show

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — For five months the United States has been beefing up South Viet Nam's military muscles. The results are beginning to show.

Since last December, when Washington decided to back the little republic to the hilt in its struggle against Communist guerrillas, U. S. arms, advice and support have reached nearly every level at which the fight is being waged.

U. S. naval advisors accompany the armed junks protecting Viet Nam's coast. U. S. Air Force pilots are in the cockpits of Vietnamese fighters.

U. S. Army advisors are in jungles, forests and marshes, working with Vietnamese commanders down to the company level.

More than 80 U. S. Army and Marine helicopters are carrying out almost daily troop-carrying missions, landing Vietnamese soldiers practically atop their targets.

Somewhere in the South China Sea, elements of the U. S. 7th

Fleet are patrolling, ready to strike if outside Communist powers should ever decide on open intervention here.

About 6,000 Americans are believed to be in Viet Nam.

U. S. officials say this is not an American war but since December South Viet Nam has been able to seize the initiative largely because of American backing.

Though classified technically as military secret, certain general facts about disposition of the U. S. groups have been disclosed.

Army: U. S. Army personnel comprise the main group, probably numbering 3,000-4,000. More than half are stationed in Saigon, performing administrative and clerical duties, acting as teachers and advisors, helping maintain and repair equipment, manning radio networks and flying and servicing one company of troop-carrying helicopters.

There are about 20 H21 helicopters and 200 men in each of the Army's three helicopter companies. The U. S. Army also flies and maintains two companies—21 planes and 300 men — of light, troop-carrying planes at the coastal town of Nha Trang.

Several hundred U. S. Army "special forces" troops are scattered over the countryside, teaching Vietnamese soldiers, rangers and civic action cadres the subtle arts of guerrilla warfare.

U. S. Army advisors are assigned to the headquarters of each corps, division and battalion. Some have begun working at the company level.

South Viet Nam's two secondary military forces, the coast guard and the self-defense corps, also have been assigned U. S. Army advisors.

Air Force: South Viet Nam has no jet aircraft and no bombers heavier than the World War II vintage, two-engine B26s. Its fleet of about 80 T28 fighter trainers carry the brunt of the air war against the Viet Cong, along with a number of A19 fighter bombers.

About 500 U. S. Air Force personnel are believed to be in Viet Nam. A squadron of specially modified U. S. Air Force C123 transport planes is being used in spraying experiments aimed at killing foliage along roads.

U. S. Air Force activities are kept under tight wraps, presumably because American pilots often serve in combat roles while instructing Vietnamese pilots. Americans are often at the controls in air strikes over Viet Cong strongholds.

U. S. Navy advisors, several hundred altogether, are assisting in Vietnamese coastal defenses all the way from Phuc Quoc Island near the Cambodian frontier in the west to the 17th Parallel in the North.

land waterways.

Viet Nam's largest naval vessel is a landing ship. Most of its force consists of light patrol boats, river gun boats and armed junks. The primary role of U. S. advisors is training Vietnamese sailors in navigation, naval operation and maintenance.

Plasma-Eater Can Offer Clues To Cheaper Power

By JOHN BARBOUR

Associated Press Science Writer WASHINGTON (AP)—Science now has a plasma eater—a device that looks like an open ventricle and consumes superhot gases.

The behavior of these gases can lead clues to scientists who probe ways of creating and controlling the power processes of the sun and the hydrogen bomb to produce cheap power on earth.

The plasma eater—which measures the amount and flow of superhot, electrified gases, or plasmas—was described today by Roger V. Neidigh and I. Alexess of Oak Ridge National Laboratory in a paper presented to the American Physical Society's spring meeting.

Matter is either liquid as water, solid as ice, gaseous as steam, or finally superhot and electrified as plasma.

Plasma has been called the fourth state of matter. Science is just beginning to understand some of the strange habits of matter in its plasma form.

For instance, the hydrogen gases of a star are in plasma form. In this superhot state, stripped of their electrons, the hydrogen atoms are reduced to positive-charged and negative-charged particles.

In this form they can be guided or contained by magnetic fields, and if rammed together hard enough can be joined into new atoms of helium. This process is called fusion, and it is the process that produces the tremendous blast of the hydrogen bomb, and the continuing release of power of the sun and other stars.

The plasma eater is a laboratory device that can measure artificially produced plasmas.

In plasma devices, the plasmas are contained by bottles or pipes of magnetism.

Following the lines of magnetic force, the charged particles in the plasma follow spiral lines through these magnetic containers.

But scientists have difficulty in knowing just how fast the plasma is flowing.

The Oak Ridge scientists devised a stack of metal plates, spaced so that they resemble an open venetian blind. By electrifying alternate plates they can pull the positively charged particles to one station, the negatively charged particles to another.

By measuring the electrical flow in the plates, the scientists can tell how much plasma is being eaten by the device each second, and consequently how much plasma is flowing through the magnetic container.

Chicken Thief Is Twice Accused

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Police accused Melvin Blount, 34, of twice being a chicken plucking Easter Monday yegg.

Detective Anthony Melfi said Blount was spotted inside a chicken store with a large shopping bag in his hands shortly after midnight.

Patrolman Walter Papagosa said as he grabbed the intruder, the man dropped the shopping bag, which contained a couple of cut up fryers, and fled.

Two hours later, patrolmen De Hurd White, William Doughten and Donald Smith went into the store. Blount was there again, Melfi said. The policemen arrested him and charged him with burglary, larceny, receiving stolen goods and resisting arrest.

CARTER A. VAUGHAN'S Exciting Novel of Revolutionary Romance SCOUNDRELS' BRIGADE

CHAPTER 14
Hugh Spencer, who had fought on Long Island and in New York as a scout for the Blue Ridge regiment of Continentals, had been granted a commission as a lieutenant a few days before the retreat from Manhattan in September 1776. He was a veteran now, and had grown accustomed to the easy informality of the Americans, which was so different from the rigid discipline he had known in the British Army.

His one uniform of threadbare blue and buff was soiled and torn, but he was grateful he had enough clothes to withstand the chilly winds that swept across New Jersey in mid-October. And, like all of his comrades, he had learned that the quartermaster was unreliable and that men who wanted to eat had to forage for their food.

One night, after a slow march across fields that were turning brown, Hugh and several other officers were gathered around a campfire, where Colonel Abner Baxter, the regimental commander, joined them.

Baxter, the leader of the trio who had stopped Hugh in the hills the preceding Christmas, halted and sniffed, then peered at the fire. The officers grinned at each other, then at him, and Hugh had to curb a desire to jump to attention, as the British always did when a superior joined them, to come to summon the colonel to "I thought I smelled chicken," Baxter said. "Did you steal those birds?"

His son, Lieutenant Ned Baxter, still clad in the buckskins he had worn when Hugh had first seen him in the Blue Ridge hills looked up reproachfully. "You know us better than that, Pa. We try to set an example for our men."

The colonel's smile was reproving. "I know you well enough to ask the question."

A company commander who was turning the roasting chickens on a spit glanced up from his labor. "You forgot that we got paid yesterday, Colonel, after the Continental Congress printed a new batch of money. Spencer and Ned were riding with the vanguard this morning, and they found a farmer who was willing to accept some of those paper dollars for the chickens."

"There aren't many damn fools like that left in the country, Pa," Ned added, "but it's the truth."

The conversation was interrupted when a mounted courier whose white armband identified him as a member of the commander-in-chief's staff rode up to the fire. The officers thought he had come to summon the colonel to a meeting, and no one was more surprised than Hugh to hear the man ask, "Is Lieutenant Spencer here?"

Hugh stood, but said nothing. "You're wanted at headquarters right away," the courier told him.

Puzzled, Hugh turned away from the fire. "Save me one of those chickens, Ned."

The colonel followed him a few feet. "You may not be eating one of them tonight, lad, but we'll remember that the Blue Ridge regiment owes you a roasted chicken." He gripped Hugh's hand. "I gambled on you when you joined us, and I won. So again I'm glad to see you. We'll meet again, I know."

Before the startled Hugh could question him, he returned to the fire. Hugh, more disturbed than he was willing to admit to himself, hurried to the place where Toby was tethered, quickly saddled the stallion, and mounted. "Lead the way," he said to the courier.

After a ride of a quarter of an hour they approached a white frame farmhouse. Lights were burning in virtually every room of the three-story building, sentries were stationed at the front door, and another pair circled the house constantly, so it was obvious that this was Washington's headquarters for the night.

Hugh led his horse with one of the guards, and, following the messenger inside, started down a corridor toward a flight of stairs. He passed a room in which an officer was copying a document, and recognized the commander-in-chief's aide, Captain Alexander Hamilton. Hugh knew him slightly and was tempted to see if Hamilton knew why he had been summoned, but he resisted the urge and followed the courier to the second floor.

The man halted outside the closed door of a bedroom. "This is where I leave you, Lieutenant," he said, and hurried away. Hugh tapped at the door, and when a man with a deep voice told him to enter, he faced a captain in blue and buff, a serious, dark-haired officer in his early twenties.

The captain returned Hugh's salute and extended his hand. "Ben Tallmadge of Connecticut," Spencer. You can sit on the chair over there or on the bed." His smile faded and his eyes became solemn. "Maybe you've heard about my department?"

"No, sir."

"Good. The less that's said about it, the better I can operate. The general has made me the chief of his intelligence section." Tallmadge paused for a moment. "You first came to my attention when we were defending Harlem Heights, Lieutenant, and I've learned a great deal about you since then."

Hugh's face felt stiff, and he wondered whether he would be deprived of his commission because of his conviction by an English court.

"Is it true," Tallmadge asked calmly, "that you were a counterfeiter?"

"No!" Hugh replied vehemently. "I was the innocent pawn of some criminals who used me to save their own skins."

"I'm sorry to hear it," Captain Tallmadge murmured.

"Too incensed to listen, Hugh told his whole story, openly admitting for the first time that he had allowed himself to be fooled by the girl who had called herself Sara Dean.

When he was finished, Tallmadge sighed wistfully. "Assuming that you've told me the truth, and I have no reason to believe otherwise, you know nothing about counterfeiting, I gather?"

"I'm no expert, but before I was deported and sold as a bond servant, I had the idea of finding the people who were responsible for my situation. So I made it my business to learn all I could from my cellmate, who had been a counterfeiter for years, and as we were deported together, I learned still more from him on board the brig that brought us to Philadelphia."

"That sounds interesting," Tallmadge said, brightening. "Where is this counterfeiter?"

"He was sold as a bondsman to a Philadelphia printer."

Tallmadge stood. "I believe I've made the right choice. Come with me."

He led the way down to the ground floor and left Hugh waiting in the corridor while he conferred with Captain Hamilton. Then he disappeared into an inner office, and Hamilton, after a brief smile at Hugh, returned to the document he was copying. After what seemed like a long wait, the inner door opened, and Hamilton jumped to his feet. "Don't stand there, Spencer," he

Soviet-Made Fallout Said More Plentiful This Year

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the world's leading authorities on fallout said today radioactive debris from the Soviet Union's atomic test series last fall is expected to be about twice as plentiful this spring and summer as the fallout was following the Soviet tests in the autumn of 1958.

Dr. Willard F. Libby, former member of the Atomic Energy Commission and still a member of AEC's Advisory Committee, told a reporter, "Even though Russia's 1961 series was a 'cleaner' series, relatively speaking, in comparison with the (fall) 1958 series, the fallout still will be twice as big as it was in 1958."

Libby's views were not in conflict with those of the AEC which has said radiation to humans from all nuclear tests since 1945—including the Soviet Union's 1961 bursts—will remain within acceptable health limits.

His figures, however, were the first given by anyone related to the AEC making a direct comparison between the fallout from the 1961 Soviet tests and that from the tests of autumn 1958.

Libby said the 1961 Soviet tests produced 25 megatons of fission yield out of a total explosive yield of about 120 megatons—figures which the AEC gave out last December. The fission component of a weapon is the only part involved in producing fallout. By these figures the fission yield was only about one-fifth the total yield.

Libby said the 1958 Soviet series was divided about 50-50 on fission and fusion yield. He has estimated that the fission yield from the 1958 series was between 12½ to 15 megatons. Thus, the total explosive yield was between 25 and 30 megatons.

When the Russians were holding their 1961 series, various scientists estimated that the fission (fallout producing) yield would be much higher than the AEC eventually estimated after analyzing the Soviet tests.

These scientists were making their estimates on the basis of a presumption that the fission-to-fusion yield would be about 50-50. The AEC found after analyzing the data from the tests that the Russians had made gains in lowering the fission yield of some of their larger weapons, although they actually increased the total explosive yield.

Libby estimated that the peak of the fallout from the 1961 Soviet tests would be reached relatively soon. He indicated this might come in late May or early June, then taper off in the next month or so.

Europeans Of Oran Court Disaster Rather Than Accept Moslem Rule

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ORAN, Algeria (AP)—Europeans of Algeria's once thriving second city have decided to bury their riches under the debris of disaster rather than surrender them to the Moslem majority in an independent Algeria.

No one has given any reason because there is no reason in the tense mass psychosis gripping Oran's 200,000 Europeans. You ask European men and women strolling under the palm trees why they are willing to court disaster rather than seek peace.

They answer with cold hateful stares: "Disaster and Arab rule are the same to us."

Each day seems to bring doom closer.

Most of the Europeans admit that Algeria's independence is inevitable and that Moslem rule will come sooner or later.

But they continue to support the desperate, bloody resistance of a halt. The city's biggest hotel, the Secret Army Organization, the terrorist organization's new commander, ex-Gen. Paul Gardy, has vowed to fight until the end.

Oran is a city outside French law and order. It is a city bracing for final combat against the authority of France.

In the so-called European Oran, there are four islands still held by French troops and riot police: the old and new city hall, the once thriving Hotel Martinez, and the cable and telegraph office.

Elsewhere the law is the secret army with its slogans, posters and terrorist attacks.

French army patrols seldom penetrate the heart of Oran. The Oran civil airport does not function. The secret army has banned all departures. Planes from France land at the military base. A military bus takes suitcases to the gate of the base, guarded by half a dozen armored cars. From there, each passenger is on his own.

Some are met by friends or families. Others hitch a ride to the city through Moslem areas surrounded by barbed wire and guarded by steel-helmeted French troops. Once in the heart of Oran, there is no sign of troops or guns. Police in white caps stroll, their holsters empty. Their arms were taken away either by the authorities or secret army commandos.

"Here we are at home," the Europeans say. But behind their grins are hidden worries. Eighty per cent of business has come to enter the European quarters, where all persons with Arab features are immediately shot down. "We are going down," the Europeans admit grimly, "but the Arabs are worse off." Only a fraction of the 40,000-man Moslem working force is employed. No Moslem dares to say.

Southern Demos Rap JFK Literacy Test Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Southern Democrats attacked the Kennedy administration's literacy test bill as unconstitutional today as the Senate braced itself for a platoon-style filibuster.

Sen. Lister Hill, D-Ala., directing three teams ready for rotation in a talk marathon, said in a statement the bill attempts to give the federal government authority denied it by the Supreme Court as recently as 1959.

Hill cited a decision in which the court upheld North Carolina's literacy test for voters with the statement that this involved "the exercise by the state of a lawful power vested in it."

Twenty-one states have tests of this nature, which supporters of the administration measure contend have been used to prevent Negroes from voting.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana has given notice he will move to attach the bill to a minor measure now pending before the Senate. The bill would substitute for state literacy tests a provision under which completion of a sixth-grade education would qualify voters to cast ballots in federal elections.

Mansfield's move is certain to touch off a filibuster which may run 10 days before he and Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois seek to invoke the Senate's cloture rule to limit debate.

To cut off the talk, the two leaders will have to have the backing of two-thirds of those voting on the cloture proposal.

As matters now stand, Senate strategists doubt that Mansfield and Dirksen can muster the necessary support. If they fail, the literacy bill will remain in the Senate Judiciary Committee, a graveyard for many civil rights proposals. The Senate then would turn to other business. Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., backed Hill's contention that the administration measure is unconstitutional.

"The congress does not have power to enact this legislation, for many reasons," Stennis told the Senate Monday. "The language of the Constitution itself plainly prohibits congressional action in this field of voter qualifications."

"The question of what qualifications an elector shall have is one strictly reserved to the several states and does not fall within the purview of the federal government and the Congress."

Hill said the literacy measure would "open the way for judicial legislation, which is abhorrent to our American system and even now is the cause of bitter disagreement among our people."

Following appointment as a medical missionary in 1947, he led in the establishment of the Baptist Hospital, Asuncion, Paraguay, the first Southern Baptist mission hospital in Latin America. He now assists in the development of medical projects overseas and gives guidance in the purchasing of equipment and supplies for medical installations for the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board.

ened by stroke. We watched the surgeon open up the artery, clean out the stoppage and then patch the artery with a piece of dacron.

Third operation showed the attachment of an electric battery, powered by transistors, to the heart of a Minneapolis man. His heart had stopped beating on several previous occasions, and the battery, giving out tiny, regular pulses, was designed to prevent heart failure. The wires were connected to the heart, and then attached to the tiny battery, implanted just below the skin of the abdomen—a spot easily reached in three to five years when new batteries will be needed.

Finally, surgeons stitched up a congenital hole in the heart of a 10-year-old San Francisco boy—a hole which would have been fatal if left unrepaired.

Dr. Henry Swan, a heart specialist, discussed each operation as it proceeded with the working surgeon, and in many instances translated the terminology into laymen's terms.

At the end of the program, we saw all the patients, convalescing or completely recovered. The little boy was shown—playing football.

Although the first few minutes were a little hard to take, the program was handled so well and the operations were so fascinating that the holy was a hopeful—and you should pardon the pun—heartening experience.

Loaned Dime To Jack Kennedy

BOSTON (AP)—Newell Garden, an electronics company employee, says he knew President John F. Kennedy when he didn't have a dime.

Garden relates how he met Kennedy at LaGuardia Airport, New York, when Kennedy was in the Senate.

"How are you, Senator?" Garden asked. "I need a dime to call my home in Hyannisport," Kennedy replied. Garden accommodated.

Kennedy reversed the charge to Hyannisport.

Find Bodies Of Two 6-Year-Old Girls In Box

SAN FERNANDO, Calif. (AP)—The bodies of two 6-year-old girls were found Monday night in an unused refrigerator. Authorities said they were investigating the possibility of a double sex slaying.

Police Chief Winford E. Slaughter said medical examinations showed one of the youngsters had been raped and the other had been struck in the jaw.

The victims were Stephanie Hanna and Paula Cram, the latter a foster child who had been living in the Hanna home about a month.

Richard Hanna, Stephanie's father, told police he prepared dinner for the girls because his wife was attending a meeting. Afterward, the youngsters were given permission to go outside to play.

When it started getting dark, Hanna went to look for them. Neighbors joined the search and after nearly five hours, the bodies were found in the refrigerator—stored in a garage three doors from the Hanna residence.

Plan Special Train Take Louisiana Negroes North

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—An official of the pro-segregation Citizens Council says unnamed donors have agreed to underwrite the cost of a special train to move Negroes northward.

The claim from George Singelmann came after an official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People asked Negroes to ignore the segregationist offer of free-one-way tickets out of the South.

Singelmann, a director of the Citizens Council of Greater New Orleans, said in an interview Monday night that donors whom he declined to name have underwritten a special train to cost $20,000. The train would handle about 1,000 passengers.

Clarence Laws, regional secretary of the NAACP, said it would be a "traumatic mistake for Negroes to assume that they can go to New York or any other northern city on a one-way ticket furnished by segregationists and obtain the same success which apparently has come to the Louis Boyd family of New Orleans."

The Boyd family—parents and eight children—were given bus transportation and incidental expenses to New York last week. They were put up in a hotel suite and showered with attention, groceries and cash.

Boyd, a dock worker who had been unemployed in New Orleans for six months, took a $100-a-week job Monday as a handyman and freight handler at Jersey City, N.J.

Laws said "some people who are destitute might seize upon" the Citizens Council scheme, which he described as a "cruel hoax."

Singelmann said he felt sure that the Louisiana Legislature would appropriate $100,000 at the May session to make additional runs by the train possible.

Two busloads of Negroes were to leave for Washington Wednesday, but Singelmann said he was occupied in Baton Rouge on the train project, and did not have time to make final arrangements for the trip. He said two buses would head for Washington and one for New York later in the week.

Singelmann said many applications have been filed, and the only problem now is to arrange transportation on convenient dates.

No questions are asked, Singelmann said, as long as the applicant is a Negro and is dissatisfied with his lot in this area. Most applications, he said, are for New York.

President Sticking To Paperwork And Yacht

By MARTHA COLE

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy sails into the sixth full day of his Easter vacation today and follows the same tack—paperwork and a cruise on his yacht.

The President, suntanned and smiling, appeared relaxed and enjoying the respite from official Washington, during his outing Monday on the Honey Fitz.

He also is getting ready for a heavy schedule after his return to Washington Friday.

First on the list is a meeting with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, for which he is preparing at the ocean front estate where he and his family are staying. Macmillan will arrive in Washington Friday.

Kennedy has had daily briefings on domestic and world events during his sojourn in the Florida sunshine and has read documents sent from Washington.

Even aboard the Honey Fitz, there's a telephone contact with the duties of his office.

Kennedy also has spent time each day visiting with his father, Joseph P. Kennedy, who is convalescing from a stroke.

Kennedy has six out-of-town engagements scheduled for May and June.

His travel plans call for visits May 4 to New Orleans, La., and Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.; May 12 to Milwaukee, Wis., for a Democratic fund raising event; May 19 to New York for an early birthday celebration combined with fund raising at Madison Square Garden; and May 20 at the Garden again for a rally for medical care for the aged.

On June 6, Kennedy is to be on hand for graduation exercises at the U.S. Military Academy. Then from June 29 to July 1, he and Mrs. Kennedy are scheduled to visit Mexico.

Police Studying 4 Death Cases

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP)—Authorities worked today to try to piece together a story of violence which left a 37-year-old mother and her three children dead.

The four bodies were found Monday when the husband and father, Wallace D. Cox, a railroad engineer, returned from a run and found his wife, Janice, sitting dead in a chair with a bullet wound in her head and a .32 caliber automatic at her feet.

A daughter, Teresa, 8, was found lying on a couch in the living room with a bullet wound in the head.

Upstairs, Cox found his daughter, Elizabeth, 5, on a bed with a plastic bag tied over her head. His 10-year-old son was on the floor. He had been hit on the head several times. A stocking was tightly knotted around his neck. A hammer was near the body.

Sheriff Harley Wormstaff said the house was covered with blood and there was evidence that a fierce struggle had occurred between the boy and his mother.

The hysterical father is in Jane Case Hospital here suffering from shock.

He said his wife had been depressed for about six months and had had some mental treatments.

Eisenhower Says He Felt Misgivings Over U-2 Plan

NEW YORK (AP)—President Dwight D. Eisenhower expressed fear at the time he approved the U2 spy plane program in 1955 that one of the planes might fall into Soviet hands, an article in Look magazine says.

That was five years before the U2 piloted by Francis Gary Powers crashed in the Soviet Union, heightening the crisis in relations between the two nations.

An article in the current issue of the magazine quotes friends of Eisenhower as saying he told advisers when he approved the program:

"If one of these planes is shot down, this is going to be on my head. I'm going to catch hell. The world would be in a mess."

The article quoted the advisers as replying that the Soviets wouldn't disclose it because they wouldn't run the risk of being humiliated by the revelation that their skies had been invaded repeatedly.

"The President was not convinced," the magazine article said. "They would protest, he felt, because that would be the only way to stop the flights."

The article said the President in 1958 expressed continued misgivings about the project in a conversation with his press secretary, James C. Hagerty.

It said he told Hagerty that he often had asked the Central Intelligence Agency: "What happens if you're caught? And the CIA always replied, 'It hasn't happened yet.'"

The Look article, "The Secret History of the U2," also said that Allen W. Dulles, then CIA director, inspected records of the routine preflight psychological examination Powers took just before his last flight.

"If he (Dulles) had been the agent on the scene, he decided, he would not have sent Powers over the Soviet Union that day," the article said.

It added that Dulles "did not reveal the specific reasons for his reservations about Powers."

Annual Meet Of PTA Convenes

CHARLOTTE (AP)—About 1,000 delegates of the North Carolina Congress of Parents and Teachers opened the organization's 42nd annual convention here today.

The top of business during the three-day meeting will be consideration of a proposal calling for $90 million to be spent during the next biennium for schools.

The proposed program calls for $45 million a year to be added—starting 1963—to the $250 million being spent annually by the state on its education program.

The additional funds would be used to hire more personnel to reduce teaching loads to 25 pupils per class in the elementary grades; to add five days annually to teachers' work year, making it 190 days; to put principals and top administrators on a 12-month schedule; to increase funds for supplies; to expand educational TV and to maintain the state's position of 42nd among states in teachers' pay.

The keynote address will be given tonight by Mrs. Aaron Margulis of Santa Fe, N.M., vice president of the PTA's National Congress from Region 8.

The PTA's proposals for additional school spending will be handed to the 1963 General Assembly. The package has already been adopted by the United Forces for Education, the state's primary education lobby.

Reception For Pitt Candidates

Candidates in Pitt County's May 26 Democratic Primary will have an opportunity Thursday to chat informally and meet their women counterparts.

All the candidates, numbering nearly 60, have been invited to an informal reception in the Buccaneer Room of East Carolina College's cafeteria. The 8 p.m. affair has been planned and is sponsored by the Democratic Women of Pitt County, an organization that was chartered early this year.

In addition to Pitt candidates, Rep. Herbert C. Bonner, first district congressman who has been nominated without opposition, has also been invited.

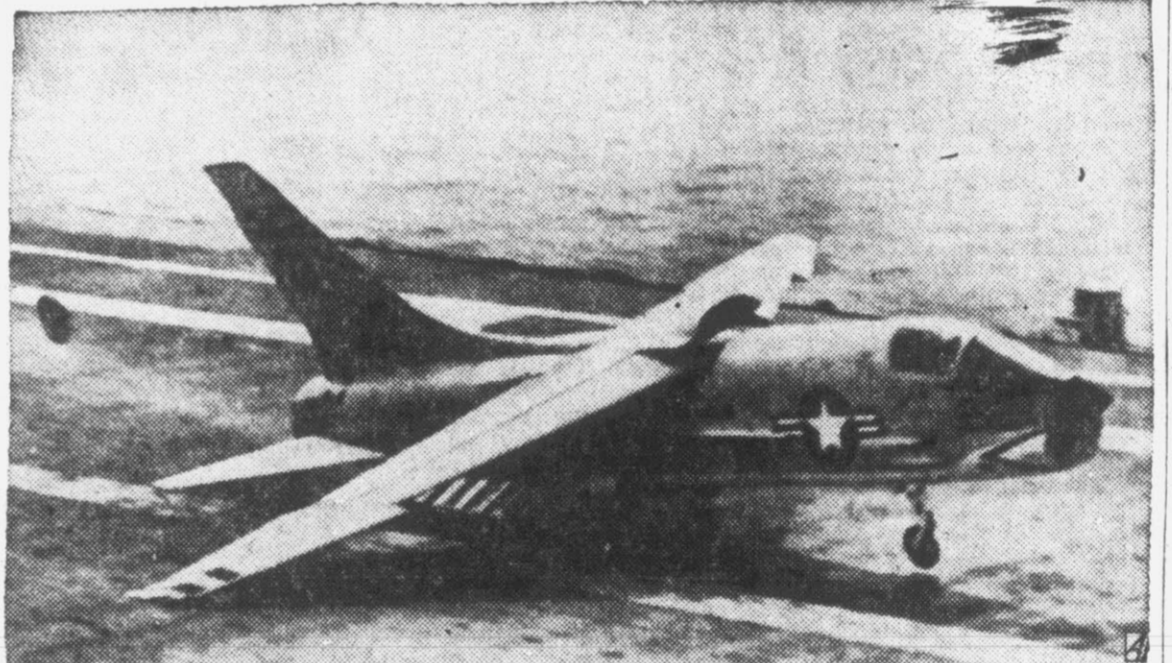

Miss Janice Hardison, president of the Democratic Women, said her organization planned the affair as a means of strengthening Democratic unity in the county. Another purpose of the reception is to provide the candidates the opportunity to acquaint themselves with the women Democrats.

The reception has been planned by the women's Hospitality Committee, headed by Dr. Kathleen Stokes, faculty advisor for ECC's Young Democrats Club. Members of Dr. Stokes' committee include Mrs. Joe Miller, Mrs. William Francis Tyson of Stokes, Mrs. Brooks Beddingfield and Mrs. John Lautares.

EC Pirates Defeat Florida State 19-2

Prophecy And Fulfillment; Mets Win One

Prepare For Tourney

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT WE HOPE . . . These two Greenville golfers, Patsy Ward and Jane Sutherland, practice putting for the Women's Invitational Tournament at the Country Club May 10. About 170 women golfers from 19 eastern towns are entered in the event. It is the second annual invitational held in Greenville. (Reflector Photo by George Bryant)

CHAPEL HILL — Everybody (just about) hit, and hit big, for East Carolina as the Pirates unloaded 18 hits off four Florida State pitchers in winning 19-2 Monday.

In the first four innings alone, ECC walloped eight extra base blows—three doubles, three triples, and two home runs. And the Pirates scored 14 runs—one in the first, five in the third, and eight in the fourth. For good measure, they added one in the seventh and four in the ninth.

Lots of people did the damage. Carlton Barnes, for one. The shortstop had a double, triple, and a slicing inside-the-park homerun. Barnes also got two singles and a walk—while scoring four runs and batting in four—for a perfect day.

While Merrill Bynum collected four hits and Spencer Gaylord, Lacy West, and Charlie Johnson had two each, ECC right handed pitcher Earl Boykin was a star in his own right.

The big chunker toiled eight innings, giving up six hits, one earned run, no walks, and three strikeouts. The Seminoles, touring North Carolina and playing the Tar Heels in the second game of Monday's doubleheader, scored their only earned run in the seventh on a combination of two singles and a ground out.

Two of Bynum's four hits were tripled and one of Johnson's two was a booming 390-foot homer over the left centerfield fence.

The victory was ECC's sixth in ten games and left Florida State with a 10-9 mark. ECC was to have played UNC here Tuesday.

Pace Setters In ACC Race

GREENSBORO (AP) — Lefty Tommy Lyon of Clemson, unbeaten in four decisions, Bob Conner of N. C. State and Dick Densmore of Duke are setting the pace among Atlantic Coast Conference pitchers, with the title race tightening for the stretch run.

Lyon, 4-0, tops the conference in won-lost rakings. Conner, though with only a 2-3 record, boasts the best earned run average at 1.83.

Densmore, with a 5-1 record, leads in strikeouts with 48.

Four other ACC moundsmen among those with at least two decisions are yet to be beaten this season. These include John Boughan of N. C. State at 3-0 and Bill Burnette of Clemson, Bob Turner of Duke and Pat McDonald of Wake Forest, all at 2-0.

Burnette ranks a close second to Conner in ERA, according to ACC Service Bureau compilations through games of last Saturday. His Mark is 1.98. George Epps of South Carolina, though only 1-3, is third in ERA at 2.31 and Boughan is fourth with 2.47.

Lyon is second in strikeouts with 32 and Conner third with 31. In the batting race, meantime, Johnny Jones of Clemson is No. 1 at .436, with Wayne Edwards of N. C. State second at .429 and Tom Brown of Maryland third at .400.

Tom Brown also led in stolen bases with seven.

Sophomore Buddy Nixon of Clemson leads in home runs with five and runs batted in with 21. Brook Fader of Duke has the most doubles, six, and a half dozen are tied for the lead in triples with two each.

Nichols Leaps To 4th In PGA Money

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Bobby Nichols took a flying leap from 18th to fourth place in the PGA money rankings by winning the $50,000 Houston Golf Classic.

He owes it all to a beautiful 240-yard shot from the rough he made Monday with a four wood. "It was my best shot of the tournament," said the 26-year-old former Southwest Conference champ from Texas A&M.

It set him up with an eight-foot putt for an eagle on the 19th hole of a scheduled 18-hole playoff to win the Classic's $9,000 first prize.

Nichols defeated Dan Sikes, a 30-year-old unknown from Jacksonville, Fla., and Jack Nicklaus, the 1961 National Amateur champion. Sikes and Nichols tied at 71 on the 18-hole playoff with Nicklaus five strokes behind.

Then came the 19th-hole — the par 5, 558-yard No. 1 on Memorial Park municipal course that Nichols hadn't even been able to birdie in five rounds.

Nichols got into trouble with his tee shot, but it was long trouble. He drove about 318 yards and to the right of the fairway.

He asked his caddy for the No. 4 wood and belted the ball smack onto the green to put the pressure on Sikes.

Sikes, a law grad from the University of Florida, calmly made a birdie.

Nicklaus and Sikes, officially given a second-place tie, won $3,800 each, making it the biggest pay day of the year for all three.

Nichols, a pro since 1959, increased his winnings for the year to $17,874.67 in official money. He had not won a tournament until he finished first at St. Petersburg earlier this year. He picked up enough unofficial money Monday from endorsements to make his eagle worth $14,750.

Nicklaus, in the money in all 13 tournaments he has entered, moved from 10th to seventh place in the money standings with $14,673.96. Sikes made the most spectacular jump—from 54th to 26th with $7,096.86. His best finish before the Classic was an eighth place at Pensacola.

North-South Survivors Test Each Other Today

By KEN ALYTA

PINEHURST, N. C. (AP)—Having grappled with the formidable No. 2 course of the Pinehurst Country Club with scant success in the medal round, the survivors—tested each other in man-to-man combat today in the North and South Amateur Tournament.

Fifty-nine men in the field of 114 scored 78 or better to qualify for the 64 places on today's 32-match card. Eight others tied at 79 for the last five positions and faced a sudden death playoff this morning before the opening match.

Winston-Salem And Caps Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Raleigh and Winston-Salem gained victories Monday night, to remain atop the Carolina League with identical records of six wins and one defeat.

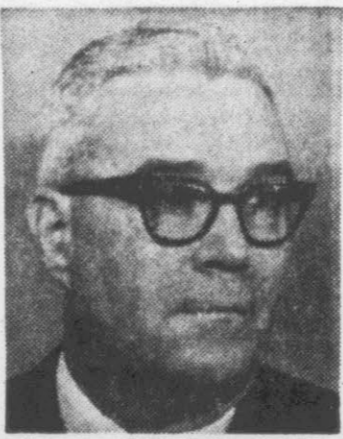

The Caps beat Wilson, 4-1, with Jackie Jenkins pitching a three-hitter for the decision. The Strapping righthander became the first Raleigh hurler of the season to go the route.

Winston-Salem won over Kingston, 7-2, with Jerry Stephenson fanning 15 of the Kingston eagles. He gave up six hits.

In other games of the night, Burlington defeated Rocky Mount, 9-3, and Greensboro blanked Durham, 2-0.

Mel Stottlemyre, on the mound for Greensboro, got his second straight shutout of the young season. Durham got eight hits, but left 10 men stranded on base as Stottlemyre pitched himself out of every jam.

The Burlington victory was the second of the season for hurler Dick Beres, who gave up seven hits, walked two, and struck out seven.

Yank Manager Is Not Worried About Maris

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—If New York Yankee manager Ralph Houk is worried about Roger Maris' anemic .132 batting average, he's putting up a brave front.

"Rog has been hitting the ball all right," said Houk today before the Yanks scheduled game with the Chicago White Sox. "The only trouble is that everything he hits goes directly at the fielders."

"I'm not worrying about him. He'll hurt someone before long. Maybe seeing the White Sox is just what he needs. He did a lot of hitting against them last year."

Maris has collected just five hits in 38 times at bat, with one home run and three runs batted in.

He hasn't pushed the panic button, but he's a little discouraged about the way the ball has been bouncing.

"They say the breaks all even up," said the man who clubbed 61 homers last year, "but so far they've been all bad for me."

He has been tense at the plate? "Definitely not," he answered. "I feel more comfortable at the plate than I did last year. I'm hitting the ball good, but they're just not dropping in. I can't understand it."

Maris is a notoriously slow starter. At the same stage last year (after nine games), he was hitting .148 with nary a home run.

Yank pitcher Bud Daley, who has played with Maris on four different clubs, said he remembered one season when Roger had only two hits in the first month of the season.

Fourth Win In Row For White

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Rex White of Spartanburg, S. C. captured his fourth straight victory at Bowman Gray Stadium Monday when he was declared the winner of a 200-lap late model stock car race out short because of rain.

White, driving a 1962 Chevrolet, took the lead when Junior Johnson of Ronda blew a tire on his 1961 Pontiac on the 99th lap. Rain started on the 85th lap and the race was stopped on the 107th lap.

"That was back in 1956 at Indianapolis," said Daley. "Yet he finished with a .293 average and 17 homers."

Last year, Maris didn't hit his first home run until the 11th game. Looking at it that way, he's still two-up on his '61 pace.

Dear Jack:

Twelve hundred farmers, business, and professional men received the first issue of our Pitt County Soil and Water Conservation District Newsletter. We are grateful to you for making it possible for us to take the timely messages of our evergrowing Soil and Water Conservation District Program to our people. There just isn't a better way than our District Newsletter to keep our interested cooperators and friends informed, and to help our farmers apply conservation practices on the land. This gives us an opportunity to give them the facts in regard to our program that means so much to the welfare of our farmers directly, and to our business and professional men indirectly.

Again, may we express our sincere appreciation to you and your bank for rendering this vital service in our Conservation Program.

Sincerely yours,

World's Fair Again Calls For Showing Female Form

By BOB THOMAS
SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—What is there about world's fairs that seems to call for exposure of the female form?

It beats me. All I know is that the undraped babe is as much a part of a world's fair as science exhibits and cotton candy. What do folks remember about the Chicago Fair of 1893? Little Egypt and her hoochy-koochy. Who was the star of the 1933 Century of Progress? Sally Rand and her fans.

The Century 21 Exposition was no going to be caught napping. Operators on the glittering show street have come up with new and ingenious ways to present girls in the near-altogether. The customers are lining up for tickets.

As yet, no star like Egypt or Sally has appeared. But then, the fair has just opened. Nudity on show street ranges from the ridiculous to the faintly sublime. Best of the shows is Barry Ashton's revue at Gracie Hansen's Paradise. This is a 600-seat theater-restaurant fronted by a Sophie Tucker-type hostess whose previous experience was producing PTA shows.

Ashton presents his usual blend of beautiful babes, stunning costumes and well-drilled dances. A special nod toward the fair's outer-space theme is offered by the "Planet Eve" ballet. Two astronauts land on the planet Venus to be greeted by inhabitants

Jaycee Chapter Forms In Prison

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va. (AP)—A step to simulate a civic consciousness behind the walls of West Virginia Penitentiary will be taken here Sunday.

A national officer of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will present a Jaycee charter to 37 inmates at a dinner in the prison library. This is believed to be the first jaycee chapter ever organized in a prison.

The inmates held an organizational meeting last week and elected James Thomas Cantrell, serving a life term for murder as their president.

"We thought it would be very good for the inmate population," said Warden Otto C. Boles.

Columnist Is Getting Better

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Columnist Louella Parsons is making steady progress toward recovery from shingles and pneumonia, her doctors say.

As a precautionary measure Miss Parsons, 81, will have to stay in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital a few more days. She was scheduled to return home last weekend.

The new liner France has a special reinforced hull for possible conversion to nuclear propulsion.

clothed merely in rhinestone G-strings. Stirring stuff.

A variation of the familiar theme is offered by "Backstage, USA." This is a gimmick devised by longtime Hollywood dance producer Leroy Prinz, in which showgirls are presented both on stage and off in their native habitat. The off-stage area provides reason for the cuties to be seen changing costumes, taking showers and doing other things that might provide interest for backstage peepers.

Then there are the "Girls of the Galaxy," which reduces the sideshow attraction to the lowest denominator. These are a series of lame tableaux in which a couple of semi-nudes stand in total embarrassment while a more energetic dancer does a routine to an electric organ accompaniment.

The Japanese village offers a pearl-diving tank with authentic divers. As any student of pearls knows, the Japanese women collect their oysters in only the scantiest of trunks.

All these have met the approval of the special theater supervisory board, appointed by the mayor of Seattle to safeguard morals. At least two attractions managed to escape the censorial scrutiny and still present spicy shows. One is the "Paris Spectacular," a French import composed of famous historical figures and puppets, all of them waxed. The feature attraction in front of the show is the much-publicized queen of the Nile.

Another nude show is offered by a Hollywood import, "Les Poupees de Paris." These are highly talented but scantily clad three-footers—perhaps the only puppet show advertised "for adults only."

Those are the bare facts about the Century 21 Exposition.

Mildew Menaces Turk Tobacco Export Plans

IZMIR, Turkey (AP)—Mildew, caused by drenching winter and spring rains, threatens to wipe out Turkey's vital tobacco reserves for export.

Trade and commerce officials in this port say the disease is so widespread there may be great trouble in meeting domestic demands.

A late spring combined with continued, rainy cool weather, has made urgent the need to take preventive measures to halt the spread of the blight.

Radio and press are cooperating with the Ministry of Agriculture to warn farmers of the danger of mildew and to instruct them in prevention.

Principally, this consists of early cutting and storing of the leaves inside dry sheds and also involves the use of heat in the sheds to prevent mildew spread.

Even if these measures are wholly successful, agriculture experts predict a severe tobacco crop shortage this year. This will be a heavy blow to Turkey which counts tobacco as its most important export product.

The traditionally fine Turkish leaf is shipped to markets all over the world, including the United States.

Turkey, moreover, is one of the few countries where foreign cigarettes cannot be obtained—even illegally through a black market arrangement.

Therefore, domestic consumption of some five major brands of Turkish cigarettes is an important element in the local economy.

News of the blight has set off active buying, particularly among American producers.

The American Tobacco Co. of the Orient, a major tobacco buying concern, purchased up to six tons of last year's crop in one transaction and arranged for swift shipment abroad to be completed by May 15.

The American company paid 15 cents more per kilogram (2.2 pounds) than last year. Other foreign buyers are also bidding higher for available Turkish tobacco exports.

The major importers of Turkish tobacco are the United States, West Germany, France, Italy and Czechoslovakia.

Other buyers include Uruguay, Japan, Libya, Sweden, Norway, Hungary, Poland and Russia.

Moose To Install New Officers Next Monday

Members of Greenville Lodge 885, Loyal Order of Moose, were reminded last night that installation of officers for the 1962-63 term would be conducted next Monday night.

The installation is open to the public. Women of the Moose will act as escorts for the incoming officers, and the Deputy Supreme Governor of North Carolina, Harvey Sprinkle, will serve as the installing officer.

Lodge Governor Charles McAndrew, presiding for the last time, expressed his appreciation for "the dedicated and loyal support displayed by my fellow officers, committeemen and the members during my year in office. It has been a most pleasant association.

"I pledge," he said, "I will continue to serve in an active capacity in whatsoever field I am called upon to help."

(the Child City) and said "all the things we have been told about Mooseheart . . . they are all true."

"Seeing it, and the children," he noted, "made me realize how important we are to those children." Fuller also brought greetings from Director General Paul Schmidt and other national officers, some of whom will be visiting Greenville in June.

Coming Events

James Harris, serving as Special Events Chairman in the Pitt County Cancer Crusade, announced a "Tacky Party" and dance would be held next Saturday night in the Moose auditorium to benefit the cancer drive; and a Cancer Crusade roadblock project is scheduled for next Sunday.

Twenty-eight candidates for membership assumed their preliminary obligations at the meeting. They will be part of the large class being formed for the formal enrollment ceremony planned for June 24.

Attention was called to the Dixieland Minstrel being sponsored by Women of the Moose on Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week.

Defense Mission Reaches London

LONDON (AP)—A 10-man U.S. defense mission arrived today to hold talks with British officials. Assistant Secretary of Defense John Rubel told newsmen they would discuss "technical matters of mutual interest," would inspect installations in Scotland and would leave late Thursday.

Instructor Billy Reynolds (turning front wheel) and Shell dealers check out a car at one of Shell's 123 training centers.

Shell instructor Billy Reynolds offers 10 clues that may help you spot trouble before it starts

Billy Reynolds

OVER 12,000 Shell dealers go to Shell training centers every year. There, they learn how to spot trouble quickly.

Here are 10 trouble signals that Billy Reynolds, one of Shell's chief instructors, always stresses. If you notice any of them in your car, tell your Shell dealer. His advice might head off a big repair bill later on.

1. Mushy brakes. When your car is standing still, push the brake pedal down with a firm, steady pressure. If it feels soft and sinks to the floor, you've got trouble that should be fixed right away.

2. Wandering wheels. If your front tires show more wear on one side of the tread than the other, your wheel alignment is probably at fault. Out-of-line wheels can increase tire wear up to 50 percent.

3. Jiggly front end. Shove down hard on either bumper with your foot. If the car bobs up and down for a long time before coming to a rest, ask your Shell dealer to check your shock absorbers.

4. Decrepit tail pipe. If your muffler or tail pipe is rusted through in spots, it's a good idea to replace it.

5. "Bloated" radiator hoses. Inspect all of the rubber hoses that interconnect your cooling system. If they're cracked or swollen, they can fail at any time and cause your engine to overheat.

6. Marred windshield. If your windshield is scarred or streaked, it's probably due to faulty windshield wipers. Have your Shell dealer check and replace them if necessary.

7. Strange noises. Listen for any odd noises from your car. They can be warnings of trouble on the way.

8. Under-the-hood clues. You can learn a lot by looking at your engine. Watch for oil, fuel and water leaks. Also, loose wires and worn insulation.

9. Sluggish battery. If your engine turns over more slowly than usual when you start up, a weak battery is probably the trouble. But it could be something else. Better check it.

10. Oil-streaked sidewalls. Check the sides of your tires you seldom see—the sides facing in. Look for signs of leaking fluid on the tire walls. Could be a leaking brake cylinder, or faulty oil seals on the rear wheels. Both can be serious.

Any trained Shell dealer knows many trouble signals besides these. Take advantage of his training. And one last tip: when you've got your car in top condition, keep it filled with today's Super Shell—for top performance all year long.

One Atlantic Beach Cottage Is Destroyed By Monday's Fire

ATLANTIC BEACH — Fire destroyed one cottage, damaged a second and threatened several others here Monday before firemen finally brought the blaze under control.

Destroyed was a beach house owned by Cmdr. and Mrs. Henry P. Streeter, current residents in California where Cmdr. Streeter is stationed with the Navy. M. L. Starkey of Greenville, a relative of Mrs. Streeter, the former Cora Boyd Redditt of Greenville, was telephoned to inspect the damage.

Another cottage beside the Streeter house suffered fire and smoke damage to one wall and the roof. Owner of the second cottage was identified as Mrs. Sarah Hargroves of Tarboro.

The fire began about 3 a.m. Monday, apparently near a cot in the basement of the Streeter house one block west of the Atlantic Beach Hotel and across the street from waterfront cottages. Atlantic Beach firemen quickly extinguished the flames and returned about 7:30 a.m. when they again drenched the burned area.

About 12:30 p.m. the fire blazed again, this time completely destroying the frame building. Volunteer fire units from Beaufort, Morehead City and Newport were called in to help prevent the flames spreading in the strong winds.

No official estimate of the damage was available today, but it was believed the loss was covered by insurance.

The fire was thought to have been originally started by prowlers in the Streeter house. Atlantic Beach Police Chief Bill Moore said the garage door to the basement was unlocked when police arrived.

Hold 8 Youths For Gun Death Of Teen-Ager

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Eight young Negroes were held without bond today in the shooting death of a white teen-ager as peace and quiet returned to racially-disturbed Augusta, an east Georgia city of 75,000.

The eight were rounded up Monday, three days after Mayor Millard Beckum posted a $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the Thursday night slaying of Lesley Lee Luttes, 16.

Six of the Negroes were charged with murder, two others with being accessories. One of the group is only 14 and three are under 16, with the ages of the others ranging from 17 to 21.

Luttes was killed while driving through a Negro housing project with two other white boys on the fourth day of rock-throwing and unrest.

The racial incidents grew out of Negro picketing protesting employment practices at a curb market owned by a white man.

Negro leaders and the owner of the market reached agreement over the weekend. He agreed to hire a Negro woman cashier while other members of her race said they would stop the picketing and the boycotts.

Albany, in south Georgia, also was quiet pending trial of 12 Negroes who took part in the first lie-down demonstration protesting the fatal shooting of a Negro by a policeman. Albany officers said it was in self defense.

The group was among 29 Negroes arrested Saturday after police ordered them to break up a prayer meeting in front of City Hall. When they refused to move, officers picked them up off the sidewalk and carried them to jail. Seventeen juveniles were sent to a detention home in Camilla.

Algerian Rebel Army Assumes Red Tinge

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
LE KEF, Tunisia (AP) — The tough Algerian rebel army in exile, held by an iron discipline and indoctrinated by political commissars, is emerging as the most powerful force of an independent Algeria.

Western diplomats are alarmed by its close resemblance to armies of the Communist nations of Eastern Europe and Asia.

It is a revolutionary army in which officers do not wear the insignia of their rank and are addressed by soldiers as brothers.

About 30,000 men of the Algerian army camp in Tunisia and 12,000 in Morocco. They will be the main force behind the rebel provisional government after a self-determination referendum that is expected to give Algeria independence.

Virtually all the heavy equipment of the rebel forces comes from Soviet or Red Chinese factories. Most officers have been trained in the Arab military academies of the Middle East and behind the iron curtain.

Giant slogans in training camps along the Tunisian frontier remind the soldiers that "independence is only one stage of the revolution."

As in the Soviet and Communist satellite armies, each unit commander is assisted by a political commissar. As one rebel officer put it, the job of the commissars is to make sure that the soldiers understand the revolution.

The immediate post-independence task of the rebel army now in Tunisia and Morocco will be to install the government-in-exile in power. Later the army's role will be to carry out the revolution, the nature of which few soldiers appear to understand.

Some rebel leaders, like tough, uncompromising Vice Premier Mohammed Ben Bella, want the army to produce the leaders of a vast labor militia in an independent Algeria.

Military experts agree that as a fighting force, the rebel army is one of the best in the Arab world.

Many rebel officers started the war in Algeria and came to Tunisia after months of guerrilla fighting. Most of the soldiers, however, were recruited from among Algeria refugees camping in Tunisia.

Although comparatively few of the soldiers fought inside Algeria, most have seen combat during many harassing attacks against French frontier defenses.

Theoretically, the rebel army general staff located near the Tunisian border town of Ghardimaou controls the rebel zones inside Algeria. It has at its disposal a powerful radio network and it boasts that within 24 hours its instructions can reach even the smallest guerrilla units in Algerian mountains.

The rebels have 30 operational battalions in Tunisia or in pockets of Algerian territory near the border. In addition there are a dozen heavy weapons companies and in recent months Soviet, Czech and Chinese cannon have been added.

During a parade this week, the rebels showed 20 Soviet-built canon, 10 anti-aircraft guns, 20 Chi-nese anti-aircraft heavy machine-guns and eight Czech mortars, would be helped and equipped by "If the French had settled the West instead of the East," Algerian war two years ago, the Western diplomat said bitterly.

Ferry Service To Outer Banks Being Accelerated

Increased ferry service to Hatteras and Ocracoke Islands and a bridge closing a break in the Hatteras Highway facilitate travel along North Carolina's Outer Banks as the prime salt water fishing season begins.

Accelerated summer schedules for the free State automobile ferries operating across Oregon and Hatteras Inlets are effective April 20 through Sept. 7.

A temporary bridge spanning the new inlet cut through Hatteras Island by the March 7 storm is being rushed to completion by the State Highway Commission, which announced last week that use of the bridge was expected to begin during the Easter holidays.

With the bridge open, the free emergency ferries making seven round trips daily between the Hatteras Island villages of Buxton and Avon will be discontinued, and tolls will be resumed on the ferry "Sea Level" between the village of Ocracoke and Atlantic on the mainland.

The "Sea Level" makes one round trip daily, leaving Atlantic at 8 a.m. and Ocracoke at 2 p.m.

In summer schedules, the Oregon Inlet ferries linking the Hatteras Head area with Hatteras Island depart every half hour between 5 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. from the north and south shores of the inlet, and hourly between 9 p.m. and midnight.

The Hatteras Inlet ferries between Hatteras and Ocracoke Islands depart hourly from Hatteras between 5 a.m. and 6 p.m., and hourly from the north shore of Ocracoke between 6 a.m. and 7 p.m. All of these ferries are toll free as in the past.

Channel bass are hitting in surf and inlets along the Banks, and bluefishing is expected to be underway before the end of April. Ocean fishing piers have reopened, and boats are operating from all fishing centers except the one at Oregon Inlet, which is being rebuilt in the Cape Hatteras National Seashore for use later in the spring.

Director John Huston Puts His Hope In Freud

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Long, lean John Huston was in town this week with some comments on tardy actors, his past hits and flops and future hopes.

The latter are wrapped up in "Freud," the reason for his return to these shores. Huston left his Irish castle to direct the film in Vienna and Munich, came here to show the finished product to the Universal boss.

"I think it's very good," he remarked with Hustonian understatement.

Good or bad, it's his baby. He directed and produced, and ended up writing it (with Wolfgang Reinhardt). He originally commissioned Jean Paul Sartre to compose the script.

"Sartre's finished product ran 1,100 pages," said Huston (average film script length: 150 pages). "Sartre said he had no interest in rewriting; he had done his writing on it. So we had to start anew."

One of Huston's missions while here is to get a print of his classic crime film, "The Maltese Falcon," to keep with others at his home in Ireland. That raised the question of which of all his babies he would like to own copies of.

"The Falcon" and "Asphalt Jungle," he replied. "I've got prints of 'Treasure of the Sierra Madre' and 'African Queen.' Also 'Moby Dick' — I like that one though some didn't.

"There were some good parts of 'Key Largo,' though Bogie was miscast as a good guy; Claire Trevor was great, and so was Eddie Robinson.

"I thought 'Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison' was underrated. It was a damn good job, and Bob Mitchum was wonderful in it. He is one of our great actors, but gets little credit."

"Something went wrong," he admitted. "I think perhaps it was that too much affection was lavished on Marilyn (Monroe)."

Optimists Vote Fees For Center

Greenville's Optimist Club Monday voted a $46,250 appropriation as its share of preliminary architectural fees for the proposed Greenville Civic Center.

Based on the $1.85-a-member formula devised by the civic center project's steering committee, the Optimists joined other Greenville organizations who had previously voted funds to pay for preliminary drawings of the building planned for a site formerly included in Green Spring Park.

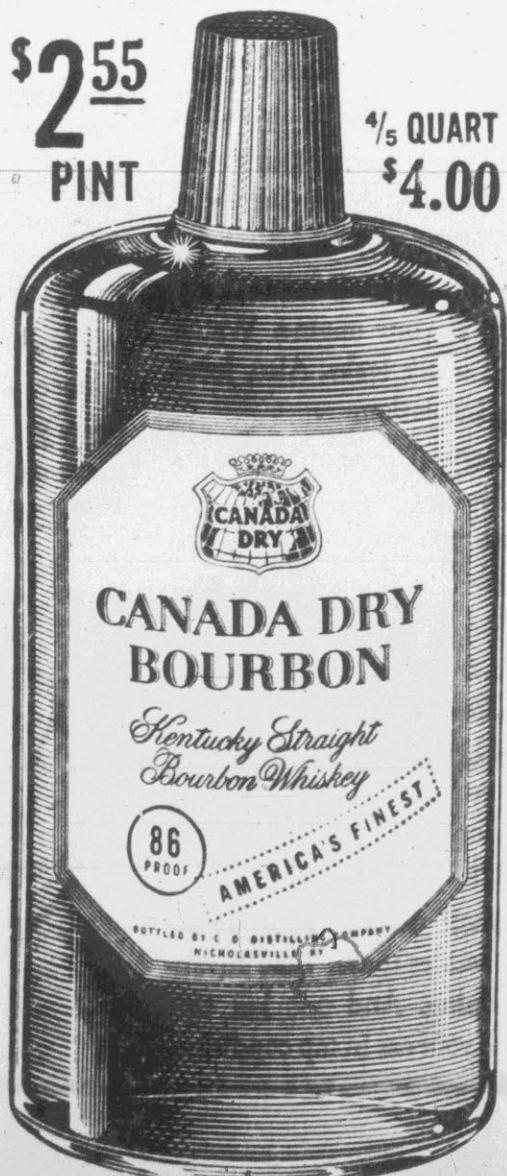

Leading the movement is a steering committee of two members from each of eight local organizations. Walter R. Whitehurst and Dee W. Vinson are the Optimist delegates on the committee that has been divided into Finance and Building subcommittees.

Corey Stokes, Ayden automobile dealer, presented the club's weekly program. Using an opaque projector, Stokes described the history of the Chevrolet auto which went on the market in 1912. Illustrations he used included photographs of each year's model of the car since it went into production.

Poet Will Give Reading Tonight

A young American poet will appear tonight at East Carolina College in an informal lecture and a reading of his works. X. J. Kennedy, faculty member of the University of Michigan and author of "Nude Descending a Staircase," will speak at 7 p.m. in the Austin auditorium. The public is invited to attend.

Mr. Kennedy, a New Jersey native, is the second poet to visit East Carolina College during 1961-62 under the sponsorship of the N. C. Poetry Circuit. Organized last November by Howard Webber of the University of North Carolina Press, the Circuit has the purpose of bringing young poets and young audiences together. George Garrett, author of "Abraham's Bosom" and other works, read selections from his poetry in December.

Mr. Kennedy's "Nude Descending a Staircase" won an Avery Hopwood Award at the

Still A Bit Of Mystery In Daniel Boone's Death

By NANCY JONES

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—One hundred and forty years after Daniel Boone's death the pioneer is still roaming and there still is a bit of mystery about it.

Gov. Bert Combs, claiming Boone is more famous than George Washington, wants to re-bury the pioneer's remains in a national shrine.

Almost everyone—including historians—agrees that Boone now is buried beside his wife, Rebecca, in this city. But a small group of Missourians say Boone still rests in their state.

There also is a group from Missouri that says Boone is buried here. And they're beating the drums to get him back.

Boone originally was buried near Marthasville, Mo., in 1820. Twenty-five years later, after some bickering between Kentucky and Missouri, remains were removed from the Marthasville cemetery and brought to Frankfort.

However, one old story says the wrong body was dug up from the Marthasville cemetery. A man claiming to be a great-

Grace Postpones Return To Films

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Grace Kelly's return to the screen will be delayed until next year, says producer Alfred Hitchcock.

Miss Kelly, who retired from films to marry Prince Rainier of Monaco, was to have appeared in Hitchcock's production of "Marnie" in Hollywood starting Aug. 1.

Hitchcock, now filming "The Birds," said Monday there would not be enough time after completion of that picture to allow adequate preparation for the princess' return.

A representative of the princess said her schedule in Monaco ruled out the possibility of her coming to Hollywood next fall.

U.S. Steel Will Give Quarterly Report Today

By HOWARD F. JONES
(Henderson Dispatch Staff Writer)
Written for The Associated Press

HENDERSON, N. C. (AP)—James Satterwhite can claim the distinction of having the most unusual—if not the largest—collection of pets in Henderson.

The amiable 56-year-old school janitor is presently taming a giant flock of sea gulls which in past weeks has numbered more than 200 birds.

Satterwhite, who is kept busy feeding the birds daily ("they eat five gallons of cafeteria scraps a day and would probably eat more if I could find it"), began growing fond of the gulls one day in late February when he saw several of them soaring high above the North Henderson Elementary School.

NEW YORK (AP)—United States Steel Corp., loser in a head-on clash with President Kennedy over an attempted price boost, tells today how its profits fared in the January-March quarter.

Roger M. Blough, chairman, already has described the showing as "far from satisfactory," without offering dollars and cents figures.

The No. 1 steelmaking concern planned to report first-quarter results immediately after the close of the New York Stock Exchange where steel shares have been taking a beating for some days.

U.S. Steel common stock skidded in heavy selling Monday to $61.75 a share, the lowest closing price in about four years. The price dipped $2.12 for the session after touching a bottom of $60.50. The stock was the most active issue on the big board, with turnover of 97,000 shares.

However, some Wall Street analysts predicted fairly good earnings of $1 a share or more on the strength of indications of the best industrywide production for the recent quarter in two years.

A regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share has been paid on common stock since the start of 1957. It was maintained in the strike-affected July-September period of 1959 despite a loss of $30,135,136 in that quarter.

The stock market sell-off, which hit other steel issues too, has been attributed to the abortive price boost, declining orders, and uncertainties over the future role of the administration in the steel industry and big business in general.

Another possible factor has been the rumor in Wall Street—completely unconfirmed—of a future cut in the quarterly dividend to 50 cents a share.

Blough was forced by administration pressure to back down a week ago Friday after increasing steel prices an average of $6 a ton three days earlier.

He argued that the increase was needed to finance modernization of steel plant and equipment to meet stiffening competition from overseas steelmakers and from rival materials produced domestically.

Even before the donnybrook on steel prices, several mutual funds lightened their U.S. Steel holdings. Other steel stocks also were sold on balance.

With steel output on the upswing in the October-December quarter, U.S. Steel cleared $47.4 million, or 76 cents a share.

This compared with earnings of $32 million in the January-March quarter of 1961 at the depths of the recent recession and $112.6 million in the boom first quarters of 1960 when the industry was still filling pent-up demand as the result of a 116-day strike in late 1959.

grandson, John Jones, expressed doubts prior to his death in 1919.

Before reburial here, a plaster cast was made of the skull and authorities said it compared favorably with the only oil painting ever made of Boone.

The body arrived here by steamboat in late July 1845 and was laid in the front hall of the capitol until the reburial Sept. 13.

Four white horses drew the hearse decorated with evergreen, wild flowers and lilies. An estimated 17,000 persons attended the reburial, including the governor and a man who said he walked barefoot from Covington, nearly 80 miles.

In 1935, a year after Kentucky celebrated the bicentennial of Boone's birth, Missouri's lieutenant governor presented himself and demanded—unsuccessfully—return of Boone's bones. The Daniel Boone Committee of the St. Charles, Mo., Chamber of Commerce announced in 1955 that Boone was still buried in Missouri.

Reburial plans have been made here from time to time.

Now Gov. Combs says the quarter-acre grave site overlooking the city and the Kentucky River isn't public enough.

Taylor is making a picture at Revue Studios. The film won't be finished until about June 1.

Miss Ekberg, who has been living in Rome, flew to Los Angeles Sunday. She said she plans to remain here until after the wedding. Then she and Taylor will return to Italy to sell her house there.

"Hollywood is Rod's home and that's where I'm going to stay," said the shapely actress.

Henderson Man Taming Flock Of More Than 200 'Visiting' Sea Gulls

He tossed a few scraps of bread on the ground and waited as the birds descended, snatched up the bits of food and flew off.

Since then the birds have been coming in increasing number.

Hundreds of them glide over the school shortly after noon and as Satterwhite calls with a cry all shrill voices and swoop down to fight over the waiting food.

"The children get a lot of enjoyment from watching James feed his birds," says Principal Charles Mason, "but usually the gulls shy away while the children are on the playground."

The origin of the birds is something of a mystery for the residents of this Piedmont town approximately 150 miles from the sea.

Cave Explorers Are Saved After Being Lost 3 Days

TRENTON, Ga. (AP)—A three-day ordeal without food and water ended happily for three collegiate explorers who carved a narrow perch between themselves and eternity inside a muddy cave.

The three—two Eagle Explorer Scouts and a novice—were plucked safe, sound and soggy from a mud bank in the Lookout Mountain cave late Monday—the end of an all-out search begun 36 hours earlier. Fraternity brothers found them in a spot experts had overlooked.

"They're safe!" shrieked their parents when word that the lads were found reached the cave's mouth. More than 150 rescue workers who had toiled in the search bowed their heads in prayer as the famished boys gulped their first hot meal since Friday night.

The three are James Mason, 21; Bill Bartee, 20, both of Atlanta, and Martin Huddleston, 19, of Ormond Beach, Fla. They had told friends they planned to explore the cave over the Easter weekend. They were reported missing when they did not return home as planned Saturday midnight.

Mason and Bartee, who grew up together, are experienced cave explorers. It was Huddleston's first trip underground. "I guess it will be my last," he said with a grin.

Mason and Huddleston are students at Emory University in Atlanta. Bartee attends Presbyterian College in Clinton, S.C.

"We went into the cave about 9 p.m. Friday," said Mason. He said they secured a rope at the top of the mud bank to explore two deep holes about a mile inside the cave—which he and Bartee had inspected many times before.

"We knew there was water down there, but we didn't know how much," he said. "I went down first and hit water about chest deep. The others came on down and found the water soon was over their heads."

"We swam about 40 feet and it was getting cold and we started cramping pretty good and we swam on back. We decided it was about time to leave and we started to climb up this sheer cliff by holding onto the rope. But by that time it was pretty slimy. The more we tried to crawl up the rope, the harder it got."

Mississippians Plant Dogwood

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—There's a "Dogwood Festival" in this north-Mississippi town's future.

More than 2,000 dogwood trees were planted recently in a civic drive to make Oxford the "Dogwood Capital of the World."

A professor at the University of Mississippi, Dr. Samuel S. Talbert, got it all started after seeing the glory of Washington's cherry blossoms.

But why the college education? "So she can make change," said Truss.

Traitor Benedict Arnold was made brigadier general in the British Army and burned New London, Conn., in 1781.

"Many folks thought the birds were driven inland by a storm which tore up the coast early in March, but the birds were here before then," says Satterwhite.

A number of the sea-faring fowl are found at Kerr Reservoir, a mammoth man-made lake seven miles north of here, but Henderson residents can not recall ever seeing more than a dozen of the birds at one time anywhere in this area.

"Some of the young boys in the neighborhood started shooting at the birds with air rifles not long ago, but I asked them not to shoot at my gulls and they haven't bothered them since," Satterwhite says.

No one knows exactly where the birds roost, but dozens of persons have seen them at dawn in fields edging the city.

Emperor's Son Dies Of Illness

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie's younger son, Prince Shale Selassie, 31, has died of a liver ailment complicated by pneumonia and gastrointestinal hemorrhages.

Except for one medical bulletin two weeks ago, there has been no official announcement of the prince's illness. When he failed to attend the funeral of his mother, Empress Menen, last February it was learned he was ill. The prince leaves his wife, Princess Mahtesente, and one child.

Irate Mothers To Block Street

BOSTON (AP)—Irate mothers of a South Boston housing project planned to block a street today in protest of the killing of a 6-year-old girl by a rubbish truck.

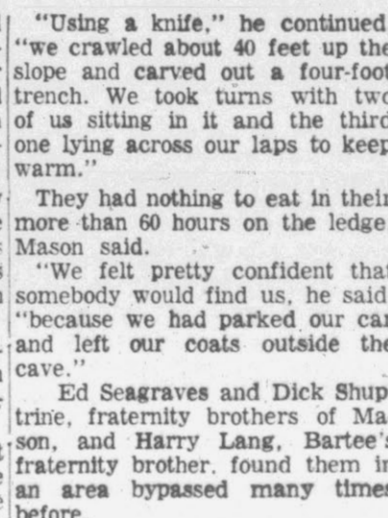

The women—250 strong—said they would parade back and forth across Mt. Vernon Street with baby carriages so trucks could not pass.

Laura Ann Ewing was killed by the city-owned truck Monday as she crossed the street on her way to a store.

"The police can haul us off to jail if they want to," said Joanne Ross, 33, "but the members of the legislature will have to serve as baby sitters."

Fifty city trucks and 100 private trucks use the street each day.

Eight Scaled A 20-Foot Wall

HULL, England (AP)—Eight prisoners scaled a 20-foot wall at Hull jail Monday night and made a break for freedom as hundreds of Easter holiday motorists watched.

Nearly 200 cars pulled up on the road near the east coast as the men dropped one by one from the wall. They all were rounded up within an hour after a chase by prison guards through a cemetery and a lumber yard. Then the homegoing holiday traffic got moving again.

Tonic For The Economy In Consumer Spending

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Free spending by consumers in recent days has given the whole economy a spring tonic.

The money has gone for new clothes and autos. More new houses have started to rise. Many older homes are being refurbished. Recreation and travel have garnered more dollars, helped by the arrival of good weather as well as better consumer psychology.

As a result a number of businessmen who formerly were withholding decision on whether they should spend more are now widening their plans for this year's outlays.

Also boosting spirits in the business sector is the flood of earnings reports, the majority decidedly on the cheerful side. And the annual stockholder meetings are being regaled with high hopes by company executives. Even those who view the political weather with alarm are inclined to see good times immediately ahead for their own particular companies.

It doesn't spell a boom, at least none is in sight yet, but it should push back the time schedule of any recession.

On the heels of a record set by retail sales in March comes the report of record store sales in the preholiday spending spurt.

Many reasons are given for this. The late Easter coincided with warm weather in most sections of the nation. And consumers seem to have decided that all the gloomy talk in January and February wasn't too convincing.

Also the consumer, as a general rule, is well-heeled. The Commerce Department says the average family income increased by $180 last year. And personal income totals have climbed to new highs this year.

Savings have climbed too. Longer work weeks and some increased wage scales, plus higher employment totals, have sent personal incomes to new heights. Also helping has been a larger outlay of dividends by corporations, the total well above a year ago. Dividend payments, especially increased ones, often set the pace for much spring consumer spending.

The result of all this recent spending spurt will show up on the industrial front later. But already it has been foreshadowed by a rise in factory output, with an accompanying gain in factory employment and in longer work weeks and increased take home pay.

The industrial output index quickly erased its January bobble and has climbed to a new high. Adding in all the other activities, the President's Council of Economic Advisers has estimated the total output of goods and services in the first three months of the year hit a new peak annual rate of $54.9 billion, up $6.8 billion from the final three months of 1961.

The funds are earmarked for the East Carolina School of Business and are to be used for publication of business brochures and bulletins acquainting high school students with the program of business training offered at the college. The first of these, a picture bulletin of activities in the School of Business is now being printed. Pictured with Mr. Reeves, who is a member of the N. C. Trio Face Trial For Escape Help

WELDON, N.C. (AP) — Mrs. Rosie Davis and two sons are in jail-waiting trial on charges of helping a third son get out.

The three were bound over for trial in Halifax County Superior Court after a brief preliminary hearing Monday night. They were held in jail when they failed to post bonds of $5,000 each.

Meanwhile, the search continued for Jack Harvey Davis, 29-year-old fugitive who has been branded an outlaw. He fled the Weldon jail Friday night.

Police Chief Floyd Whitman, whose life has been threatened by Davis, said it is his opinion the escaped prisoner is still in the area.

Whitman was the only witness at the Monday night hearing before Magistrate S. B. Pierce for Mrs. Davis and her sons, Charlie and Samuel. The chief said Jack Davis escaped after sawing through bars with a hacksaw.

Mrs. Davis and Charlie pleaded innocent, but Samuel pleaded guilty, the chief reported.

Jack Harvey Davis has spent nine years in prison. He has a record of five previous escapes.

After his getaway Friday night, he was branded an outlaw by court order. This means any citizen may shoot him if he fails to heed a warning to give himself up.

Africans Stage Racial Outburst

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (AP) — A crowd of Africans shouted antiwhite slogans and hurled bricks at white motorists near here Monday, injuring several drivers and a 14-year-old boy passenger.

The outburst five miles west of Ndola followed a series of weekend clashes between members of rival African political parties in which six persons were killed.

The Mayan calendar was considered more exact than the older calendars of Babylon, Assyria, Egypt and Greece.

Gromyko Claims Espionage Goal

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko charged today that Western disarmament proposals at Geneva were designed for spying and X-raying the entire territory of the Soviet Union.

Along with a peace treaty with East Germany, he said, there should be an agreement abolishing the occupation regime in West Berlin and its replacement by forces of neutral states or the United Nations for a definite period.

Premier Khrushchev went through the motions of submitting the resignations of himself and his government to the newly elected Parliament, and was chosen unanimously to resume his office.

The Supreme Soviet also unanimously re-elected Leonid Brezhnev chairman of the Presidium, or president of the U.S.S.R.

Surprisingly, the body also re-elected 81-year-old Klementi Voroshilov a member of the Presidium. Voroshilov was denounced at the last party congress as a member of the Molotov-Malenkov anti-party clique.

Reporting on disarmament, Gromyko said "the government of the United States is urging control of control's sake, or to be more exact, for the sake of intelligence."

On the other hand, he declared, the Soviet Union has submitted a plan for complete disarmament by which "the entire war machine is to be smashed and abolished in three consecutive stages."

Western delegations, he added, were throwing up obstacles to real disarmament and trying to get it to meet "to the roar of nuclear explosions."

The Soviet delegates have threatened to walk out of the conference if the United States goes ahead with its intention of starting a series of nuclear tests in the Pacific.

On Berlin and Germany, Gromyko said his exchanges with U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk in Geneva were useful and revealed "the existence of a desire to find ways to narrow the gap between the positions of the sides

Nehru Appeals Against Start Nuclear Testing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Indian Prime Minister Nehru today appealed to the United States and the Soviet Union not to resume nuclear testing, at least until the 17-nation disarmament conference in Geneva ends.

In a statement to Parliament, Nehru said if the United States resumes atmospheric tests, the Soviet Union will do the same and there will be no end.

Nehru warned that such tests at this stage would not only lessen chances of agreement at Geneva, but would also increase the possibility of actual war.

In London, thousands of ban-the-bomb marchers massed in front of the U.S. Embassy Monday night and held a 10-minute silent prayer.

The group gathered in prayer after a mass rally in Hyde Park climaxing their annual Easter peace march to London from Britain's nuclear weapons arsenal at Aldermaston, 50 miles southwest of the capital.

Canon John Collins of St. Paul's Cathedral, leader of the British campaign for nuclear disarmament, handed an embassy staff member a letter appealing to President Kennedy to abandon his test plan and give "a ray of hope to the world."

Collins then drove to the Soviet Embassy and handed in a letter addressed to Premier Khrushchev urging him to withdraw his threat to stage more tests if the Americans do.

In a third letter handed in at Admiralty House, Collins urged Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to try to dissuade Kennedy from resuming tests.

Authorities in Tokyo, fearing another fallout scare, ordered daily radiation checks on fish brought back by Japanese boats from the U.S. test area about 2,000 miles southeast of Japan.

Temperatures Hit 87 Degrees

Temperatures remained high here yesterday, as the thermometer reached 87 degrees, recorded at the Greenville Utilities Plant.

Today was expected to be fair and a little cooler with highs in the 70s. Wednesday will remain fair but will be warmer, the weatherman said.

Monday's low temperature was 60 degrees. For today, the low occurred at 4 a.m., when the reading was 54 degrees, James Dixon of the utilities plant reported.

DEMAND TEST BAN

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—An international ban on nuclear tests was demanded in a resolution adopted by the 20th Hebrew Authors' Congress which ended Monday night.

New Rash Of Forest Fires Being Controlled

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Fires whipped through tinder-dry forests of North Carolina and coastal South Carolina Monday but most were reported under control today.

Foresters and paper company workers using tractors pulling gang plows contained a blaze near Dixon in Onslow County, 18 miles south of Jacksonville, N.C., after it had burned over about 1,000 acres of valuable timberland.

A spokesman for the International Paper Co., which had about 500 acres burned, said there was no immediate estimate of losses.

Another Onslow County fire, near Tar Landing, was also controlled before it reached several dwellings.

In the Sand Hills of North Carolina, firefighters set backfires before a wind-whipped blaze reached the little town of Laurel Hill, just west of Laurinburg, N.C.

The Scotland County Sheriff's office estimated about 1,000 acres of pine and mixed hardwood was burned and that the fire burned to within two miles of Laurel Hill before hitting the backfires.

Myrtle Beach Air Force Base personnel helped civilians battle a fire that broke out near Surfside, S.C. on U.S. 17. Earlier, a fire burned several hundred acres and destroyed a tobacco barn before it was put out in extreme northern Horry County east of Loris.

Firemen continued to work on a stubborn burn on Crowder Mountain in Gaston County. The Gaston County Rural Police reported volunteers returned to the mountain this morning before flames could reach a 150-foot radio transmitter used by Gastonia radio station WGNL.

A fire which destroyed hundreds of acres including valuable furniture hardwood on Druggers Mountain in Wilkes County, N.C., was controlled Monday, as was one which burned more than 1,000 acres in northern Richmond County.

The Wilkes County fire started in a forest owned by the American Furniture Co. Firemen, aided by Forest Services planes, used bulldozers to cut firebreaks to check the flames and protect the settlement of Darby.

Cost Of Living Edged Upwards

WASHINGTON (AP)—Living costs, as measured by the government, rose two-tenths of one per cent in March to a record level.

The Labor Department reported today its consumers price index rose to 105.0 per cent of the 1957-59 average. This was 1.1 per cent above the level of March 1961.

The rise was attributed mainly to price advances for clothing, fresh fruits and vegetables, drugs, used cars and house furnishings.

On the other hand, egg prices declined sharply and there was a drop in gasoline prices due to price wars and introduction of lower octane grades.

The living cost increase will mean pay rises for approximately 67,000 workers whose wages are adjusted periodically to the government index.

The Labor Department reported that the after tax earnings and buying power of factory production workers both rose in March as average weekly work hours increased.

The factory worker heading a family of four averaged $85 weekly in March on an after tax basis. This was about 60 cents higher than in February and just below the record level of last fall.

Arnold Chase, chief of the Labor Department's living cost division, said a further living cost increase is expected in April. Costs of fresh fruits, vegetables and services are still rising.

Clothing costs increased by seven-tenths of one per cent, mainly because of higher prices for spring lines of women's and girls' clothing. Average prices of mens and boys clothing remained unchanged.
