U.S. Nuclear Countdown Starts In Mid-Pacific

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. nuclear count-down is under way. The first explosion of the new test series could thunder out in the remote Pacific at any hour.

President Kennedy gave his final approval Tuesday for the series of test shots in the atmosphere. The Atomic Energy Commission announced the tests would begin "as soon as operationally feasible."

This meant, said an AEC spokesman, the first shot will be triggered any time in the next few days, as soon as the weather, the weapons and the elaborate experimental facilities are "go."

2nd Success For Saturn's Booster

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The great Saturn booster was launched successfully for the second time today and was deliberately blown up after the trial to dump 95 tons of cloud-forming water into the upper atmosphere.

With a tremendous roar and spurt of flame, the world's mightiest known rocket rode 1.3 million pounds of thrust to an altitude of 65 miles. There a signal from the ground detonated dynamite charges which ripped the vehicle apart, spilling the water into the near-vacuum of space in a bonus experiment.

Greenville Man Ordered Make $5,000 Restitution In Case

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer A 56-year-old Greenville man was ordered to make a $5,000 restitution as a condition for suspending a pair of three-to-five-year prison terms imposed Tuesday in Pitt County Superior Court after he pleaded guilty to embezzlement and forgery charges.

Other conditions of suspension included three-year probationary periods for each defendant. Willie Watson changed his plea to guilty at the close of state's evidence and Judge Parker suspended judgement upon Watson's payment of court costs. Watson was charged with assault.

A 30-day sentence was suspended for Lewis Donald Vickers, charged with speeding, when he pleaded guilty. He was fined $10 and taxed with court costs. Actions against Brooks Carlines, charged with assault on a female, and Bobby Ray Lewis, facing a motor vehicle violation charge, were not prosecuted by the state.

Three Separate Drownings On Tuesday Afternoon; 2 In Ponds

By STUART SAVAGE and GEORGE BRYANT Three separate water accidents in and near Pitt County snuffed out the lives of three persons yesterday afternoon, two of them teen-aged school children.

The Greenville Rescue Squad, which had just returned from the Marlboro death scene, was called to aid the Edgecombe County Rescue unit search for the body of the victim.

Officers called off the search at nightfall with no success, but resumed the hunt today.

Pitt Countian Riding Bicycle Dies In Accident

(See Photo Page 9) A 25-year-old Pitt County man became the sixth traffic fatality in the county this year when the bicycle he was riding collided with an automobile on N.C. 30 at Tripps Cross Roads about seven miles east of here late Tuesday afternoon.

Big Turnout

Local doctors reported at noon today that large crowds were turning out for the second tetanus immunization clinics in the city which are provided by the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society.

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States fired its first shot of the new nuclear test series in the atmosphere over the Central Pacific early today, Pacific Time, government informants reported.

Pitt Coroner E. W. Harvey said the youngsters were catching tadpoles when Patricia Harris, 12, slipped on the muddy bank of the pond and fell into the water. The Suggs girl, Harvey said, attempted to pull her from the pond and she too slipped into the waters.

Ranger 4 Hitting Moon Thursday

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — As the sun rises Thursday on the desolation of the lunar landscape, U.S. spacecraft Ranger 4 is expected to plunge from the black sky onto the surface of the moon.

Scientists say it will strike the unseen back side of the moon at 8:50 a.m. EST, exactly 63913 hours after it blasted off from Cape Canaveral—carrying elaborate television equipment and the hopes of United States lunar experts for a close-up look at the moon.

Tokyo Students Stage Protest

TOKYO (AP)—Denouncing the U.S. decision to resume nuclear tests, 100 left-wing students tried to storm the American Embassy today, but 200 police stopped them 50 yards short of the gate.

Odom, Wagoner Speak Vows

WASHINGTON—The Easter Sunday wedding of Miss Hilda Wagoner and Lennox Murray Odom Jr. took place in the First Baptist Church at four o'clock with the Rev. James B. Annis of the Riverview Baptist Church officiating at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James Alvin Wagoner Sr. and Mrs. J. C. Stanley and the late L. M. Odom of Washington.

Wedding music was played prior to and during the ceremony by Miss Gladys Alligood, church organist, and Mrs. Ray Lilley was soloist. Her vocal selections were "O Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer" as a benediction.

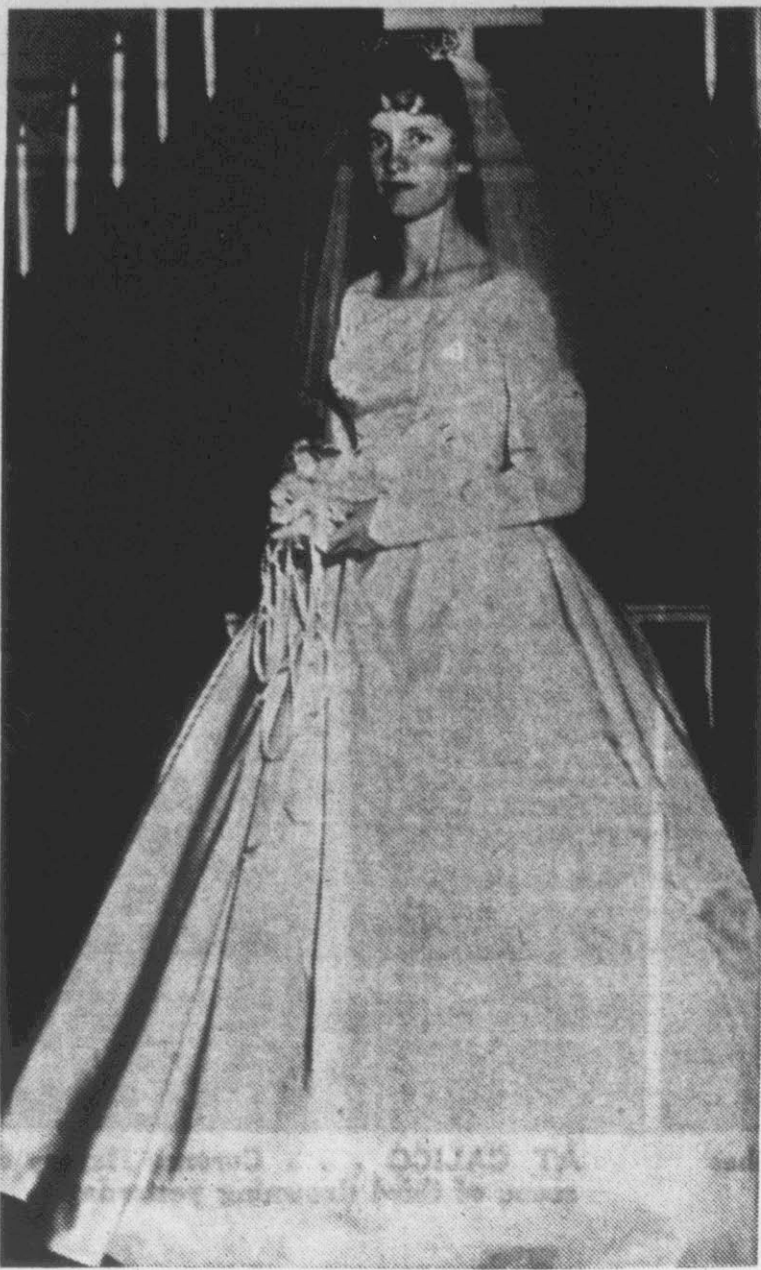

The church was decorated with emerald greens, palms and plumosa with a tall palm in center background with a large white cross in its branches. A basket of white gladioli was used on either side, flanked by double seven branched candelabra holding lighted white tapers. The prayer bench was also used, and double aisle tracking. Family pews were marked by white satin bows.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a formal gown of white taffeta and illusion, fashioned with a long fitted bodice with rounded portrait neckline embellished in hand-sewn pearls and traditional long pointed sleeves. The voluminous skirt was styled with a side drape and cascaded into a sweep train. Her two tiered veil of silk illusion was attached to a pearl crown, and she carried a prayer book holding a white hybrid orchid with valley lilies and white satin ribbons.

Miss Laura Helen McDonald of Grimesland was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Mary Jo Mills of Greenville, and the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Curtis Wagoner of Grimesland. The attendants were dressed alike in day length dresses of orchid silk organza featuring a cummerbund with self material roses at back. Their matching headress was a large rose of organza with a short circular veil. They wore matching slippers and carried cascade bouquets of purple asters with purple and yellow satin ribbons.

The bridegroom had as his best man his stepfather, J. C. Stanley. Ushers were Curtis Wagoner of Grimesland and Eugene Wagoner of Newport News.

Mrs. Wagoner wore a blue lace dress with matching blue accessories and a cymbidium orchid corsage. Mrs. Stanley wore a pink lace dress with pink accessories and also a cymbidium orchid corsage.

After the wedding the wedding party received in the vestibule of the church. They then left for a wedding trip. The bride traveled in a light blue spring suit, marked by white and black patent accessories, and wore the orchid from her prayer book.

The bride is a member of the Senior Class at Grimesland High School and will graduate in May.

Mr. Odom is a 1958 graduate of the Washington High School and is now with the National Guard Reserve Unit stationed at Fort Gordon, Ga.

Do Battle With Hat On For Fun, Mental Health

By JUNE WILSON
Women's News Service

If there is a single frontier left in the hard-hatting, feverish industry of fashion, it is the frontier of hat-making.

Milady is told that her bodice will be high or low, flat or full. Her skirts will be slim, full, eased and so many inches from the floor with the belt placed thus. Even colors, for a season, are "in" and others "out."

But with hats it's different. Millinery designs have their day as fashion too, as with the Jackie pillbox, but a woman always finds a variety of styles when it comes to the adornment of her head.

It's a bit amazing that some of the best, most imaginative hat designers are men, for men—across the board, down the line, categorically and regardless—dislike change and resist it with manifold stubbornness.

The only reason they are not still strutting around in curled-up wigs and satin knee breeches is that early colonists, riding horseback through dense forests lost their toppers to overhanging branches and found satin pants ludicrous dress for plowing up stumps.

Women are different. They welcome change, go out of the way to find it and when it comes to their hats, it is something out of the ordinary they look to buy.

Buy a hat today. If you imagine you can't afford it, you're wrong. You get many things for the money you pay for only a hat.

You have, all over again, the fun of a small girl "playing lady." Do this with the management's merchandise while you're deciding on a chapeau. Take time to decide and never hurry!

It's traditional for a woman to go through all the stages of womanly indecision. Begin with, "Well, I'm not sure. . . ." advance to a timid, "y-e-s. . . ." Then change your mind entirely and ask for a whole new armload of styles. Finally, pounce resolutely upon a lone, one-of-a-kind hat another woman is trying on at the moment.

You get all this and the hat, which is a thing of beauty and does things for you that you thought would never work again!

You put up with fashions moguls dictating your shape, your comfort, the square inches of knee you show and arm you bare. The final profit in buying a hat is one of mental health: this is the one avenue where you fight back, for the hat you wear is strictly a matter of your taste and as personal and private as your fingerprint.

Tidy Look's In

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The sloppy look is out and the tidy look is in.

Store counters are crowded with girls snapping up bright white gloves and feminine Sunday hats that will see them through church and dates. The most popular hat styles are bretons, cloches and pill boxes.

The neat teen-ager may not win any best-dressed awards but she'll be appealing in a dress, probably sleeveless or suit. The shift, so stylish on young figures, is priced for budget pocketbooks whether it's a woolknit, nylon, linen, cotton or rayon.

No, you don't need to be a well-heeled magician to achieve this tidy look. Much can be accomplished with soap. Toss your white sneakers into the washing machine.

The effectiveness of a chic suit will be spoiled if you wear it with a soiled blouse, collar or gilet. Purchase a wash 'n' wear blouse. Dunk it after you wear it. Don't be tempted to wear it just once more before you launder it.

The same holds true of those white gloves.

And keep your underclothes laundered. A girdle and bra will last longer if they are washed after each wearing, otherwise body oils will weaken the elastic.

If you've been wearing a hairdo that resembles wilted spinach, give your locks a break and get a good haircut.

Tweeze straggly hairs around the brow. Never disturb the natural arch of your brow, however.

Favorite shoe styles are patent leather moccasins in colors from vivid scarlet to buttercup yellow and royal blue. Gold loafers in smooth grained, crushed and brushed leather go to parties as well as picnics.

Boot shoes that rise half-way to the ankles are worn with tapered pants and leotards. And the "bowler," a flat style that takes its inspiration from bowling alley shoes, has the long, laced look.

Nylon stockings, a neat handbag, a real handkerchief and a circlet of pearls are other accessories to the tidy look.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN
This week's column is devoted to questions from members of the Dig 'n' Delve Garden Club. These questions may be one of your garden problems. If not and you have some of your own, this column will attempt to answer them.

Fescue and Dogwood
Mrs. J. R. Hooper asks the following question concerning fescue and dogwood:

Q. Our lawn is of rye grass. What is the best procedure to get a good stand of fescue?

A. Cut rye grass down to about 1" in height. Rake area with hardtooth rake. Rake in to a depth of at least 1/2 of an inch. Sow fescue at a rate of 3 lbs. per thousand square feet. Cross sow the seed 1/2 this way, then 1/2 the other. Do not fertilize until fescue has taken hold (fertilizing now will make rye more voracious), then use about 20 pounds of 8-8-8 per thousand square feet. Set mower to 3" and leave it there. Cutting closer causes fescue to die out.

Q. Please tell us the steps to follow in transplanting dogwood trees successfully this spring?

A. Move only small plants at this time of year—in bloom or right after cut back tops—remove about 40% of wood, cut back to a leaf. Mulch with pine straw and keep watered well. Larger trees should be root pruned now and left where they are until next November.

Roses and Gardenias
Another member wants to know about pruning climbing roses and gardenias.

Q. How much should you cut climbing roses back and when?

A. Cut back after flowering and leave about 6 inches of lateral branches.

Q. What are some of the reasons gardenias die?

A. Gardenias are subject to attacks by many pests and diseases. Root knot nematode, canker, blight could cause plant to die. Winter injury after repeated attacks by white flies or mites could also kill plant.

Three Questions
Mrs. Herbert Paschal has three questions; two can be answered simply but the other would require much more space than that allowed.

Q. What type of grass is best for lawns in this area?

A. Carolina Lawns, a publication put out by N. C. State College, suggests the following: Sun—A. Bermuda, Centipede, Zoysia on drier soil.

B. Carpet and Tall Fescue on more moist soils.

Shade—A. Zoysia and Centipede in light shade.

Fescue has done well in both shade and sun in areas checked in and around Greenville.

Q. What is the best procedure in landscaping one's yard?

A. This question could best be answered after seeing yard in question. But these answers may help:

1. Keep plantings simple and easy to take care of.

2. Use shade trees to advance.

3. Keep grass area uncluttered.

Q. What are best sources for flowering shrub selections?

A. Your local nurseryman, seed stores, and many good plants are found at other stores.

Azaleas and Camellias
Mrs. Bill Jenkins has the following questions on azaleas and camellias:

Q. What is the best way to fertilize shrubs, particularly azaleas and camellias, with roots near surface and prevent burning to roots? Should they be watered after fertilizing even though no fertilizer was scattered on leaves? Is 8-8-8 best for azaleas and camellias?

A. Spread fertilizer in narrow band around azaleas at drip of branches. Do not put fertilizer near main branch. Treat small camellias the same way. Larger plants should have holes punched by crowbar at drip of branches. Fill these holes half full of fertilizer.

For example, a plant 2 1/2" high with a two-foot spread needs 1/2 pound of food. An 8-foot plant takes about 9 pounds of food. Feed twice during the year.

Feed about six weeks before growth starts in spring and the other about middle of June.

Fertilizer can be watered in. No plant food should be allowed to get on foliage.

8-8-8 is a good fertilizer for azaleas and camellias.

Q. Can spindly camellias be cut back to make them branchier or will new growth come from leaf buds on old wood?

A. Cut out old twiggy growth—head back gently. Camellias can be cut back severely after flowering.

Heading back gently seems to be the best approach.

In answer to will new growth come from leaf buds on old wood: In some instances, camellias pruned back hard on old wood have had the leaf buds take over, and in other cases, the entire branch died.

The rest of the questions put forth by members of the Dig 'n' Delve Club will be answered next week.

Address all questions to John G. Duncan, 120 N. Woodlawn Ave., Greenville, N. C. For personal replies send stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Far Below The National Average

Tar Heels should be encouraged by the increase in per capita income in the state for the year of 1961, but they should likewise be gravely concerned about the state's relative standing with respect to per capita income.

The increase of $66 in per capita income in North Carolina during 1961 indicates an improvement, a move in the right direction. So does the fact that North Carolina ranked 42 among the 50 states in per capita income rather than 44 as it did the previous year.

In spite of this small improvement, however, the per capita income in North Carolina remains far below the average for the nation, and below that of the people in 41 other states. We may take pride in the improvement shown in 1961, but the $1,604 per capita income for the state that year shows that North Carolina still has a long way to go in its effort to achieve a higher economic level.

North Carolinians always have taken great pride in their state and its progress in many fields. It is inconceivable that the people of the state will be content in the future to remain in so low a position among the 50 states in per capita income. It takes time to raise the general economic level of a state the size of North Carolina with its diverse economic interests. This diversity, while it is in some ways a handicap to efforts to raise the economic level and per capita income, also offers a broad potential for the economic growth North Carolina hopes for and is working for.

Although the state has made great strides in attracting industry, in diversifying its agriculture and in developing its potential in other business fields, it is apparent that we are just beginning to scratch the surface. The effort which has been put forth in recent years represents only a token of what will be required in future years if North Carolina is to gain for itself and its people a per capita income and economic level that makes it average or above, rather than far below average, among the 50 states.

North Carolina should not be content with only token improvement from year to year in this important field. The rate of improvement must be accelerated if the state is to achieve in the reasonable future the goals it has set for itself.

The Competent Voter Is Important To All

Opposition to the administration's effort to fix by Congressional act literacy qualifications for voters should come from more than just the Southern states.

The legislation is of tremendous import to all of the states . . . not just to Southern states who are accused of opposing the measure on civil rights grounds. The constitutionality of the proposal is highly questionable in that it would put into the hands of the federal government jurisdiction which is specifically reserved to the individual states.

From a practical standpoint, the literacy requirements which specify that a voter must be able to read and write are considerably more logical than a law which would require that he has completed a certain number of years of formal education. If a voter's qualification is questioned on the grounds of literacy, it may be much easier for him to prove that he is able to read or write than it would be for him to furnish proof that he had successfully completed six or more grades of formal schooling.

The question, after all, is not how much formal schooling an individual might have had, but whether or not he is literate and competent to participate in election of officials.

We have gained the distinct impression that many of those who have given their support to the administration proposal have done so because of the "civil rights" label given to the proposal rather than on the basis of the merits of the proposed legislation.

If members of Congress from every state give as much consideration to the proposal itself as they do to the label attached to it, we are confident they will reject this unworthy piece of legislation.

One Exception Among Leaders

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The elderly and the aged — with one exception, President Kennedy — are leading the world.

Kennedy at 44 is the only major world leader under 68. The rest range up from there to West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, 86.

No wonder, then, Kennedy seems so full of bounce while the others, as the years slide by, appear more and more withdrawn.

Most of them may be gone by the time Kennedy finishes a second term, provided he seeks and wins re-election. If they are, the world will be in for some rearranging which in a way makes these days, disturbed as they are, look tranquil by comparison.

Here are some of the other leaders and their ages and the problems their passing can bring: Soviet Premier Khrushchev, 68; British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, 68; French President Charles de Gaulle, 71; India's Prime Minister Nehru, 72; Red China's leader, Mao Tze-tung, 68; Nationalist China's President Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa, 74; Yugoslavia's President Tito, almost 70; and Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco, 69.

Under Khrushchev the Soviet Union has made gigantic industrial, scientific, and military progress. He has been a hobgoblin for the United States. He is no less dedicated than Joseph Stalin to world domination by communism.

But he scrapped the crudities of the dictator and Stalin's barbarisms; he rattles missiles, but he also preaches "peaceful coexistence." And he has always stopped a good bit short of precipitating war.

His passing could mean a shuddering experience inside and outside the Soviet Union, particularly if his successor wants a return to Stalin's tactics, at home and abroad.

De Gaulle has been a one-man show and a one-man boss in France for four years. The people, confronted with civil war and political chaos when he took over, gave him a blank check to save them all.

He has so far, resentment against him is building up. There is no reason to think judging from previous French history, that chaos and civil war won't explode when he disappears. No successor is in sight.

Of all the leaders outside the United States the passing of Macmillan in Britain and Mao Tze-tung in Red China may cause the least commotion.

Britain, with its long democratic tradition, may not have much trouble replacing Macmillan with some one very much like him.

The iron will and rigid discipline of Mao Tze-tung and the men around him, developed to brilliant degree in 20 years of preparation, is what made the Communist takeover of China possible.

His right-hand men will still be there when he goes. There has never been any talk of rivalry among his possible heirs. The transition from him to one of them may be easy and perhaps is already arranged for.

Adenauer consistently steered West Germany into partnership with the West and away from the Communist world. His successor, whoever he is, may be less enchanted with the West, prefer a neutral position, or even a new relationship with Moscow. Here lies the chance that Adenauer's going may shake the Western alliance to its roots.

The United States has put a lot of effort and money into supporting a and protecting Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa. He has kept alive the myth he is still the legitimate boss of mainland China.

One guess is as good as another about Yugoslavia when Tito goes. He split with the Soviet Union, but while accepting Western help, poses as a neutral.

As for Franco, he has been a dictator for a quarter of a century. Spain had a fierce revolution in the 1930s. It may have a worse one again.

Nehru has led India down a road of democratic socialism. But that's no assurance that his successors, in a country as wretchedly poor as India, will do the same.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SOURCE OF MUCH POWER

Are you filled with self confidence or are you filled with a haunting sense of insecurity and frustration? Confidence means a state of mind characterized by one's reliance on himself. It is a feeling of assurance and self trust. This sort of thing can, of course, go to an extent where it becomes a tremendous liability. The person all swelled up with a sense of his own importance is ridiculous in the eyes of his fellows and a terrible liability so far as his own future prospects are concerned.

But normal self confidence, belief that one is able to do in his life what needs to be done — this is wholesome, normal and something which we should all possess. Let us always take the position that no matter what we have to confront, we will be able to handle it. Part of this confidence, should arise from the realization that we have plenty of power within us if we will only use it. Most of all do we need to realize that when we have done our best there is a good God who presides over the universe and who will reach down and guide us and give us the lift we need.

Let us not grow discouraged amid the trials, sorrows, perplexities, and problems of life. God did not create us for failure but for achievement.

Self confidence in the best sense of the term is justified in every normal life.

And No Fringe Benefits, Either!

One Extreme To Another

The story is that one of America's largest production corporations lost a valuable source of product design selection with the death of an executive.

For years, the story has it, this executive — not unlike a political dictator in this respect — studied product designs very carefully until he, all by himself, screened from various designs submitted by the design department a final and absolute choice.

On this executive's iron-clad decision hung the likes and dislikes of the consumer public. Perhaps the public was just as happy, since it was denied a glimpse of alternatives. There was no choice for customers unless they should turn to another brand.

This procedure of ruling the product design department with the quite undemocratic iron hand was adjudged to be valid by the qualified judges. Its validity was proven by consistent ascent of the critical line on the sales progress chart.

But, the death of this iron-clad executive was mentioned. Yes indeed. And what then was the policy of the corporation in selecting its product design? Who did the qualified judges pick to succeed the Design Dictator?

Nobody. They did the thing that is so unmistakably American. They zoomed to the opposite extreme.

Now (and this is a true story so far as I know) each plant operated by the corporation has frequent occasions to act as host to an elaborate little display with accompanying ballot boxes. Usually to be found in a corner of the plant lunchroom, the display includes six or so alternative designs of a particular product to go on the market soon.

A supply of fiber washers is situated beside the ballot boxes that are arrayed beneath the different designs. Each alternative has its own box.

Corporation employees inspect the various designs and ascertain their choices. Each employee then speaks his opinion with a washer.

When the balloting is completed, the washers are counted to determine which design will be marketed.

There's the drastic switch. From one extreme to the other. And, chances are, sales progress charts are about the same as before.

As we know it in America, that's business.

Other Editors Saying Rise On Arms Of Books Opinions In Brief

(Charlotte (N. C.) Observer)

The National Education Association has a favorite term for slum area children who do not, as a rule, perform as well in school as those from areas of higher income and better cultural background. NEA's definition: Disadvantaged children. We have no quarrel with that description. The area in which a child is reared and the influences brought to bear upon his young life are strong factors in his education.

But we were heartened by an article in the April 14 issue of Saturday Evening Post. It's entitled "Reading: A Way Upward." And it documents the fact that school officials in St. Louis are showing that education, especially the ability to understand and appreciate good books, provides a road out of poverty for the disadvantaged.

This presupposes that more job opportunities will be provided. The article has to do with the amazing progress of children who live in the midst of St. Louis' urban blight. All except 5 percent of the students in the district are Negro, most of them being of southern origin.

Credit for the great increases in reading speed and comprehension, with concurrent improvement in other studies, must go largely to Samuel Shepard Jr., director of the 23 elementary schools in the district. He uses three principles — hard work, high morale and good leadership — in rescuing these children from the economic dungeons to which ignorance consigns the disadvantaged in later life.

Shepard and his assistants operate on the principle that they must face reality. They don't look for "gimmicks" or shortcuts to learning. They outline for the children and their parents the future stakes and inspire them to work. The district director is conscious that there is an indisputable relationship between what a man knows and how much he earns. So he demands a first-rate performance from his students. It is a hard-headed, unsentimental approach to a thorny educational problem.

One of Shepard's keys is the Parent's Pledge of Cooperation. Mothers and fathers are asked to sign this promise to carry out a simple, practical list of tasks in helping their children to learn. They must have a place to study. They must be encouraged to make fullest possible use of libraries. And they must have dictionaries and other learning aids in the home.

Shepard's prescription for the disadvantaged is one that is sometimes overlooked in a society that spends much time deploring slums, poverty and ignorance but believes money to be the only antidote. He prescribes hard work on the part of students and parents. He furnishes the inspiration and the incentive. And he stays behind them until results are obtained. Maybe more schools in "disadvantaged" areas need to get on that road.

GOP Is In Need Of Issue

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Up to that press conference on steel prices, it could be said that the principal opposition to President Kennedy came from Democrats on special issues. On the whole, the Republicans took to the President and tended to avoid opposing him and his program.

One reason for this attitude was that, except for Senator Barry Goldwater, the Republicans lacked effective leadership, neither Dwight D. Eisenhower, Richard Nixon nor Nelson Rockefeller offering anything that stirs men's hearts. Also, the nature of the Cold War requires sincere national unity and Senator Everett Dirksen provides every evidence of that.

President Kennedy was achieving a unity perhaps not known since the era of goodwill of the Monroe Administration. The public was weary of the trickiness of the Roosevelt Administration, the blatancy of the Truman Administration, the emptiness of the Eisenhower Administration. The Kennedys presented a picture of imagination, charm, enthusiasm, which captured the sympathy of the largest part of the country, although many Republicans had their fingers crossed.

This is, after all, a two party system even if one of the parties has been left headless. The President's furious response to steel's price rise won him an immediate victory, but it gave the Republican Party what it lacked, an issue. The issue is the rights of private property. After all, the U. S. Steel Corporation is not owned by one man or even controlled by one person. It is owned by about 300,000 persons and institutions, some of them very wealthy, others possessing few shekels. The President's anger with the ineptness of management was perhaps justified, although it would have been better had the President used a rapier instead of a sledge-hammer. The Republican will say that the President opposes the profit and loss system. What is his substitute?

An elderly reader from West Springfield, Pennsylvania, writes me, in obvious distress: "We boast about the 'Land of the Free.' What freedom have we left? I suppose we will wear meters on our noses and pay for the air we breathe before long."

The writer of this letter says that he and his wife are in the 80's, which does not make them old fogies any more than the young men about the President are children, and each has only one vote on Election Day when an opinion may be expressed in a manner that counts. President Kennedy must take reparative steps to win back that popular unity which so strengthened his position in his European negotiations. A foreign official, wise in such matters, asked me smilingly what I would think of it all if I were in the Kremlin waiting for my chance as a cat watches a mouse? The simile was apt. The Russians play for time — time when the United States seems to be soft or disturbed.

It is sound politics for the United States to keep its distress behind closed doors, as when a husband and wife quarrel. In public, it is always, seemingly, in private, it may lead to reconciliation and even heightened affection. The Republicans went along with Kennedy because, in the circumstance, there was nowhere else to go. Now, the Republicans have elsewhere to go, namely, to the support of private enterprise as an ideal of life.

My guess would be that such excitements as may be caused by European negotiations will not go far. It is impossible to produce steel efficiently except by the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars. At a time like the present, it is as ridiculous to disrupt the steel industry as it was for U. S. Steel to ignore the President's efforts to arrest inflation by such methods as his economic advisers recommended.

The Republicans face the problem of mobilizing public opinion in support of a program and a leadership. This party cannot find public support on the issues of the 1930's or even the 1950's. A new generation of voters view many problems from altogether a different (Continued on Page 5)

How Much Tax Does She Pay?

By ELMER ROESSNER

Tax experts all over the country are scratching their heads, largely hairless, over the question of how much taxes Princess Grace of Monaco will pay on her income for playing the title role in the movie version of "Marnie."

This much is certain: Alfred Hitchcock says she will earn about $1 million in her return to the movies. Princess Grace has announced that she will give the proceeds to charity.

To the questions, "What will she actually net?" and "Will charities get a cool million?" depend on enough variables to give a Philadelphia lawyer ulcers.

WHAT IS STATUS?

Here are some of the factors that enter into the calculations: 1. Is Princess Grace a citizen and zero of Monaco or the United States? Since there is no report of her renunciation of American citizenship, it is assumed that she has dual citizenship. 2. How much of the movie will be made in the U. S. and how much out of the country? 3. Is she to work on a salary or other arrangement? 4. Is she an employee of a charitable corporation?

Depending on the answers, her taxes might run from dollars nothing to almost all of her reported million-dollar take.

HOW IT WORKS OUT
Prentice-Hall experts offer calculations on both ends of that scale:

Suppose Princess Grace is still an American citizen, working for a straight salary of $1 million for the movie and intends to give all that is left to charity.

She can deduct expenses, say $50,000, and she can deduct $600 for each of her two children but only if she can show they are American citizens and that she has been providing more than half their support — an unlikely assumption. She could deduct another $600 for Prince Rainier, but only if his income is less than that, an unlikely premise.

That would leave about $950,000. She would be allowed a tax-free charity deduction of up to 30 per cent, or $285,000. Since Grace is assumed to have a large wad of American securities, she could be paying the top rate, 87 per cent, on the taxable remainder, or $604,650, leaving $86,450 more for charity.

The break would be:
Grace for expenses $50,000
Income taxes 578,550
Charities 371,450

ON THE OTHER HAND
But suppose Her Highness, flanked by tax experts, made this deal: She would sign a contract to work at the direction of an American charity for $1 a week and expenses. Could the charity then make a contract with Hitchcock to lease her services for 50 weeks for $1 million?

Perhaps that sort of arrangement was once granted Eleanor Roosevelt, but later rulings would permit it only if she were a regular employee of the charity. However, under the special circumstances involved, a way might be found to permit it. Then the table would look like this:
Grace for expenses $50,000
Grace's salary, less 87 percent 650
Income taxes 43,50
Charity 949,950.00
There are many in-between situations. Grace's pay may run over more than one tax year. Part of the picture may be made outside of the United States, with proportionate exemption of Grace's pay. Payments may be spread over the income-producing years of the picture, sharply cutting the tax liability. Payments may be made in stock options, cutting taxes to capital gains rates.
Grace might be working as an employee of a tax-free Monagasque corporation, but in that case it might be regarded as a holding company, which would wipe out the tax advantage.
In short, Grace can probably determine how much or little will be paid in taxes. Tax laws were written for girls like Grace

Special Events Scheduled For Mental Health Week

Special tours and events have been planned at most of the state's mental hospitals, schools and clinics during Mental Health Week, it was announced this week by the Rev. J. E. C. Harris of Rocky Mount, chairman of the N. C. Mental Health Association committee for the observance.

"It is hoped that many citizens will avail themselves of this opportunity to see what a clinic, school or hospital is like and to let the patients, students and employes know of their interest and concern," the Rev. Mr. Harris said.

"North Carolinians should be proud of our schools, clinics, and hospitals and should try to show their appreciation for the tremendous job they are doing by visiting them," Harris stated.

Special tours and events are planned for the public during Mental Health Week, April 29-May 5, and the month of May. On Thursday, May 3, from 1 until 4 p.m., Broughton Hospital in Morganton will sponsor a tour and will serve refreshments.

Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro has invited the public to a meeting on Tuesday, May 2, at 8 p.m. in the hospital chapel on "Youth and Its Problems." This discussion will be aimed at teachers and organized groups interested in youth work and education. On Thursday, May 3, from 10 a.m. until 12 noon, an exhibition on "The State Hospital at Work" and a program on mental health will be held.

The O'Berry School in Goldsboro will sponsor their annual May Day Program and Open House on Friday, May 4. The public is invited.

Tours and open houses will also be held at Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh, open to the public. The first tour will be held Sunday, April 29, from 1 p.m. on. The Volunteer Service Guild is in charge of open house plans.

On Wednesday, May 2, at 1 p.m. another tour will be sponsored, followed by refreshments in the chapel gardens, and a fashion show given by the patients.

Caswell School in Kinston is planning an all-day open house on Thursday, May 10. There will be guided tours of the campus and living units, arts and crafts sale and a program by the students.

Umstead Hospital and Murdoch School at Butner have not announced formal plans but will be open for visitors. Large groups are advised to contact the superintendents in planning tours.

Local mental health clinics will announce their own plans, it was reported.

U.S.-Made Fallout Is Slated For The Tropics

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The early fallout from the forthcoming U.S. nuclear tests in the Pacific is expected to be limited mainly to a belt some 2,000 to 3,500 miles wide in tropical latitudes.

All indications point to it being relatively small in quantity at any one place. Virtually none of this early fallout is expected to reach the United States.

Weather Bureau fallout specialists said that prevailing wind patterns in the equatorial regions are such that the tropospheric fallout from the tests would very likely be limited essentially to areas around the earth which lie between 15 degrees north or south of a line passing through either of the two main test sites.

These sites are Christmas Island near the equator, and Johnston Island, some 1,200 miles north-west of Christmas Island.

Tropospheric fallout is that part of the fallout which remains in the troposphere—the layer of atmosphere from the earth's surface up to 55,000 feet, over the tropics. Its ceiling is lower over polar areas—35,000 feet.

This kind of fallout is to be distinguished from stratospheric fallout—the fallout that rises higher, going into the stratosphere (above 55,000 feet in the tropics).

Tropospheric fallout sifts to earth relatively quickly after a nuclear blast. Half of it falls in about 20 to 30 days.

Stratospheric fallout takes anywhere from six months to several years to begin to come down, depending on where the burst is fired. From the Russian shots in polar latitudes, it comes down quickly.

From weapons of the big megaton class, practically all of the radioactive debris is carried up into the stratosphere because of the great force of the explosion.

Smaller weapons, of the kiloton class, would deposit virtually all their debris in the troposphere—except in the cases where they were hurled by rockets high into the stratosphere and exploded.

Presumably many of the American tests, whether involving kiloton or megaton weapons, would be of this high-lofted variety.

If Suspicious, Call The Police

AYDEN — Police Chief W. D. Brooks urged the public this week to call the police department if "anything unusual or suspicious" is seen and the department will dispatch a patrol car at once.

He pointed out that such things have happened here recently, but that people haven't called police to investigate.

He noted that the department is for the use of the public. "That's what we're here for," he said. The number of the department is PLACED 6-4991.

Alcohol Doesn't Help The Cows

ELK RIVER, Minn. (AP)—A shot or two of alcohol doesn't help cows in their jobs any more than it helps you in yours.

Neither do tranquilizers for that matter, according to scientists at the Nutrena Mills research farm here.

Some livestock experts have claimed that alcohol speeded development of a cow's stomach organisms and that tranquilizers boosted milk production.

This will take more time to appear than many Republicans believe. It will indeed be difficult for politicians who since the organization of their party have been favorably disposed to political equality for Negroes. They cannot deny this heritage to prove their opposition to President Kennedy.

Safety Steps In Nuclear Tests

Frat Initiates Ayden Student

RALEIGH — Richard Stroud of Ayden was initiated last week into N. C. State College's chapter of Eta Kappa Nu, electrical engineering honorary scholastic fraternity.

Stroud, a junior at N. C. State, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clay Stroud of Ayden. Membership in Eta Kappa Nu is the highest scholastic fraternity honor for electrical engineering students.

Splashed Along To New Pool

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Floodwaters from the Clarence River swirled in the streets of Maclean when the town's new 22,000 Australian pounds ($50,000) swimming pool opened for its first session.

But 100 adults and children splashed through the floodwaters

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists who will conduct the U.S. nuclear tests in the Pacific will be searching for new ways to safeguard atomic weapons from accidental firing or sabotage.

Pentagon officials said today

Sixteen Dogs Picked Up In Day

AYDEN — Sixteen dogs were picked up here on Tuesday morning in an effort to enforce a city ordinance which specifies that all dogs are to be controlled and tied, Police Chief W. D. Brooks said.

Yesterday's dog collection brought to 30 the total picked up here in the past nine days with the cooperation of Willie Bell, humane officer with the Pitt County Health Department.

Residents missing their pets may contact the Pitt dog pound, and had their first swim in the new pool.

Maclean is a town of 1,800 people, 460 miles north of Sydney.

Improved safety mechanisms form one major goal in the new round of atmospheric tests ordered by President Kennedy.

Since the United States began developing atomic weapons in World War II, safety has been a prime consideration.

The Defense Atomic Support Agency claims it has a perfect record in 17 years of storing, transporting, flying, overhauling, inspecting and working with nuclear weapons in other ways.

There have been crashes of planes carrying nuclear weapons. Although the fuselages sometimes were heavily damaged or burned the weapons did not explode and there was only what the agency called "insignificant contamination."

While they are proud of this safety record, U.S. atomic weaponeers are anxious to develop even more assured precautions.

Safety mechanisms built into U.S. nuclear weapons are intended to prevent explosions through accident, human error, sabotage or what the Atomic Support Agency called "the possibility of a neurotic or psychotic among our own people."

Nuclear weapons have many detonators. To fire, all the detonators must function simultaneously. If only one detonator goes, the weapon will not explode.

Sources said it is considered virtually impossible for all the detonators to be tripped at once in a crash of a bomber, for example.

In storage an atomic weapon is inert. It is isolated from the battery needed to provide the electric power to trigger the explosion.

To prevent firing through error or sabotage, nuclear weapons are fitted with various control devices.

Some switches are placed in hard-to-reach places, so that person literally must tear a bomb apart to get at them.

Another safety measure involves locked and sealed controls mounted in series, but in different locations. Thus, one important switch could be activated only by two separate and independent actions sometimes requiring a key, sometimes the breaking of a seal.

Then there is what is termed the "two man rule," meaning that two or more persons must be present when anyone has access to the warhead.

Khrushchev Interviews Publisher, Gives No Ground

Nikita Advancing Doublethink Era

An AP News Analysis
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Nikita Khrushchev is trying to give the calendar a mighty shove toward 1984, the year of the double-think.

The result, one of these days, may be the appearance of a Khrushchev Constitution representing his claim to Communist immortality.

Before that can happen there must be a great deal of explaining and propagandizing, and this evokes the Orwellian specter.

Everyone remembers how, in Orwell's novel "1984," black becomes white when the leaders so decree. Soviet publications, including Pravda and the theoretical journal Kommunist, now are applying Khrushchev's variation of double-think.

The propaganda revolves about Khrushchev's new body of theory. The main theme is that Soviet society has reached a new plateau in its movement toward the misty, far-off goal of communism. This stage is called "the all-people state."

This, contends Khrushchev, is not really a state at all, because the power to rule already is in the hands of all the people. Everybody is equal. However, the Communist party, as the representative of all the people, "retains its leading role." That is, the party is more equal than anybody else.

To begin at the beginning, the Khrushchev theory goes like this: Soviet society has gone through two stages, has just entered a third, and is preparing for a fourth and final stage, which will be communism. Then everybody will live happily ever after.

First, says Khrushchev, a dictatorship of the proletariat eliminated the "exploiting class." Then, in the mid-1930s, the second stage was completed with the "building of socialism," signalized by the 1936 Stalin constitution.

The third stage arrived at the end of the 1950s under Khrushchev, he says. This was the introduction of the all-people state. The fourth stage? It won't come until all "the imperialist camp" is wiped off the earth.

All this isn't too easy to explain to the people. Khrushchev must point out that while all citizens are equal and power stems from all of them, the Communist party occupies a special place since "the most advanced forces of society" are concentrated in it.

Khrushchev's theorists seem to find it difficult to explain how and why classes still remain in this classless society of the U.S.S.R. "While classes exist," says Kommunist, "while different social groups exist, the working class (by which Kommunist means the Communist party) remains the shock force of the building of communism, the main contemporary stratum."

Marxist theory, often stretched by Khrushchev to suit his needs, contends that under communism the state will wither away. Is it withering now?

It is, in a way, says Khrushchev, but in another way it isn't. The withering away process has started with the all-people state, but so long as capitalist states exist the Soviet state must grow stronger.

The people have all the power, says Khrushchev. But coercion still is necessary. Why?

Well, people still violate laws. If persuasion doesn't work, there must, as Kommunist pointed out, be "decisive and, if necessary, severe action."

The people have all the power. Who has control? The party, of course. Why?

Well, it seems labor productivity still can't satisfy all the people's needs. Besides, there are "remnants of the past," meaning that age-old urge of people to have private property.

How about individual rights? Khrushchev promises "development of democratic rights and freedoms of the individual." Does this mean a lack of democratic rights and individual freedoms up to now?

No, say the theorists. The only ones who were suppressed were those who disagreed. There was no suppression of "humanist Communists."

When will there be communism?

By present Khrushchev estimates the Russians won't even come close for 20 years. Maybe it will get started around 1984.

NEW YORK (AP) — Premier Khrushchev has told an American publisher he agrees with President Kennedy on crucial issues must precede a new summit meeting between the two leaders.

But the Soviet premier gave no ground on major East-West issues in an interview in the Kremlin last Friday with Gardner Cowles, president and editor of Look magazine and president of the Des Moines Register and Tribune Co.

Khrushchev told Cowles he now agrees with Kennedy that they should meet again only if such a meeting could produce positive results.

"We should first reach some agreement on the questions on which our common decision is required now to avoid a conflict and war," he said.

The Soviet leader expressed hope that a major war could be avoided, but he repeated his previously stated support for defensive wars against an aggressor and wars by subject peoples to liberate themselves.

During wide-ranging discussion that lasted nearly three hours, Khrushchev told Cowles that he thought an agreement on Berlin and Germany should precede any disarmament agreement, but that he realized the arms issue was "the question of questions."

The 68-year-old Soviet leader made clear he had not budged in his refusal to tolerate any form of nuclear inspection, which he looks on as merely a cover-up for espionage.

Khrushchev expressed belief some glimmers of hope for a Berlin and German settlement have appeared in the current negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union. He reiterated the Kremlin condition for such agreement—withdrawal of Western troops from West Berlin.

Khrushchev placed no time limit on the current talks and indicated he is prepared to pursue the present effort to reach an interim solution without applying any sudden new pressures on West Berlin.

Cowles asked whether Khrushchev thought it would be useful "if a summit meeting were held in the near future or if you, for example, invited President Kennedy to the Soviet Union to discuss matters with him?"

Khrushchev replied he had always believed such contacts were useful. "The conversations I had with your president in Vienna left a favorable impression on me," he continued.

"True, we differed with him in our appraisal of the situation and did not reach agreement on questions which require their solution. But at any rate, as a result of that meeting we now, apparently, understand one another better, and have a clearer picture of the questions it is necessary to settle."

Khrushchev said it would not matter where a second meeting with Kennedy were held.

"The main thing now is—and I agree with the President of the United States in this respect—that our meeting should not prove sterile," he continued.

"When we met in Vienna it was, so to speak, a probing of sorts, of our respective positions, a first acquaintance. We differed, and differed rather sharply, on the questions awaiting their solution."

Khrushchev said if a second meeting with Kennedy ended up the same way, it would prove a sore disappointment.

Khrushchev said he would invite Kennedy to visit the Soviet Union once some kind of breakthrough in negotiations to end or to ease the cold war had been achieved.

Turning to domestic problems, Khrushchev told Cowles the Soviet government had decided to invest heavily in more powerful tractors, farm equipment, fertilizer plants and other modernization to boost lagging agricultural output.

The Soviet leader hinted that part of the funds allocated to agricultural investment would come from the Soviet moon shot program. Several times during the interview he stressed the cost of the massive effort to win the prestige race to the moon, indicating the Soviet Union is under considerable economic strain to satisfy commitments at home and abroad, Cowles said.

Cowles reported that Khrushchev believed Communist China was in economic difficulties because its leaders allowed their "subjective desires" to outweigh "the objective possibilities." He expressed belief these setbacks were only problems of growth.

"Khrushchev is like a Western diplomat," Cowles said. "He could easily be prime minister of Britain or president of the United States."

Cowles released the Soviet government's translation of the text of the interview Tuesday night along with a copy of his own account of the interview being published by Look magazine. He said he "decided to release the interview to other media because of the immediate pertinence of some of his comments."

Alaskan Owns Part Of Road

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A Fairbanks man is happy as a lark over one of those errors which sometimes crop up in government red tape.

Harry E. Underwood owns a quarter mile of the 1,500-mile Alaska Highway.

"I think I'll put up a toll station and charge people for traveling through my property," Underwood, an operating engineer, quipped.

"We might even sue the government for putting pavement on our potato patch," his wife laughed.

In 1957, Underwood applied for a 0.71 acre lot near Harding Lake described as Lot 6, U. S. Survey 3204. In 1959 he was issued a patent by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management on Lot 6, Section 35, Township 5 south, range 4 east of the Fairbanks meridian. That's a 4.05 acre tract of the highway.

Keith Corrigan, federal land officer manager here, could not explain the error. "As far as we are concerned, he owns the highway," Corrigan said. His office can not correct the mistake.

"Once a patent is issued, only Washington can change it," he said.

The mistake came to light when a Fairbanks bank negotiated a mortgage for Underwood.

Underwood said the government can keep the summer cabin he built on the lake property he thought he owned. He'll keep the stretch of highway.

Traffic Signals Synchronized

AYDEN—Automobile drivers will take note that lights on Lee Street from First to Sixth Streets have been synchronized. Auto drivers will be able to travel the entire distance at a rate of about 25 miles per hour, without stopping.

Police Chief W. D. Brooks noted that at night the lights will blink caution on the main street and will blink red on secondary streets entering main thoroughfares.

Near 400 Pitt Scouters Are Camporee Bound

PREPARING FOR CAMPOREE . . . Dr. Herbert Hadley of Greenville, Pitt District health and safety chairman, conducts medical exams for local scouters to attend the Wilson camporee Friday, Saturday and Sunday. (Photo by Sam White II)

Nearly 400 Pitt District scouters and adult leaders will be among the 4,000 expected to attend the annual East Carolina Council Camporee in Wilson this weekend.

Included in the Pitt group are scout troops from Greenville, Bethel, Gritton, Farmville, Fountain, Belvoir-Falkland, Pactolus, Grimesland, Red Oak, Black Jack, Bell Arthur and Gardnersville.

Proceedings will get underway at 11 a.m. Friday with registration at Area Headquarters.

During the afternoon, scouts will be busy putting up tents and getting the 60-acre campsite properly laid out.

Highlight of Friday night's activity will be the Mystery Event, beginning at 9 p.m.

The Tattoo will wind up a busy day around 10 p.m.

The camporee will be formally opened by Congressman L. H. Fountain at 7:30 a.m. A group from the Wilson Elks Lodge will present a flag to the camporee that has flown over the Capitol in Washington, D. C.

From here on out, the camporee will take the traditional scouting flavor, with everyone engaged in a variety of scouting activities.

Headquarters' staff will carry out inspection of patrol campsite areas during the day. Many items will be judged, including: camp layout, food storage, cooking, personal cleanliness and garbage disposal.

The weekend's program will reach a climax Saturday night when the scouts march the half mile from the campsite to Fleming Stadium, home of the Wilson Tobs, where a full evening of entertainment has been arranged.

The camp will close down Sunday morning after religious services have been held, and the site has passed inspection by the judges from area headquarters.

Rep. Fountain's office was instrumental in getting T.V. star, Andy Griffith, to stop over in Wilson for a couple of hours Saturday. Andy is expected to arrive in Wilson around noon and stay approximately two hours before leaving for a vacation at his home in Manteo.

Languages Workshop Is Scheduled For April 28

East Carolina College's Department of Foreign Languages will present a workshop with new ideas and techniques in instruction and with problems involved in teaching foreign languages Saturday, April 28, in the Graham building on the campus.

Prof. James L. Fleming, director of the Foreign Languages Department at the college, has announced that teachers and others who are interested are invited to attend.

The program will open at 9 a.m. with two concurrent sessions, one for French teachers conducted by Mr. Fleming and Mrs. Marguerite A. Perry and one for Spanish teachers conducted by Dr. Fred C. Martin and Julia Escalona. These discussion leaders are all members of the college faculty.

Dr. Martin, director of the East Carolina Foreign Languages Laboratory, will discuss "Laboratory Techniques and Practice" at a meeting at 10 a.m. Those in attendance will have the opportunity not only of observing but also of using the modern electronic equipment in the East Carolina College Language Laboratory.

"Foreign Language in the Public Schools of North Carolina" will be the subject of the closing session beginning at 11 a.m.

Mrs. Tora Ladu, State Supervisor of Foreign Languages in public schools of North Carolina will be principal speaker.

Authorize New, Shorter Route Between Cities

RALEIGH (AP) — The Utilities Commission has authorized Carolina Coach Co. and the Greyhound Corp. to operate a new, shorter route between Charlotte and Raleigh.

Both companies had sought the route in rival applications and in hearings before the commission. The new route would be by way of Asheboro over U.S. 64 and N.C. 49.

The commission said in its order Tuesday that "passengers will be more conveniently served over the proposed route than over the present circuitous routes."

Two commissioners, R. Brookes Peters and Sam Worthington, dissented from the order giving Carolina Coach a share of the route.

The order specifies that Greyhound could not serve intermediate points between Asheboro and Charlotte and Carolina Coach would not be allowed to serve intermediate points between Apex and Charlotte.

Apparent Low Bidder Named For Pilot Plant

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Office of Saline Water has announced that J. A. Jones Construction Co. of Charlotte, N.C., is the apparent low bidder to construct a pilot plant test facility at Wrightsville Beach, N.C., for converting sea water to fresh.

An office spokesman said Tuesday the Charlotte company bid $333,700 for the 15,000 gallon-a-day pilot plant which will be separate from the 250,000-gallon-per-day saline water conversion demonstration plant also planned at Wrightsville Beach.

The award of a contract for the test facility may be announced within a week or 10 days and bids for construction of the demonstration plant will be opened here July 17.

The Interior Department also announced award of a $165,000 contract to Struthers Scientific and International Corp., New York City, for developing a new freezing process for saline water conversion.

SOME PROTECTION
ELLCOTT CITY, Md. (AP)—John Clark, a Howard County attorney, spread a blanket over the hood of his new, small car to protect it from the cold.

The next day he remembered that the motor is in the rear.

4-H Clubs Plan Show On Friday

4-H'ers from throughout Pitt County will gather at Agnes Fullilove School Auditorium on Friday night for their annual talent show, it was announced today.

The program, which begins at 7:30 p.m., will feature pantomimes, stunts, solos, group singing, piano selections, and other talent by members of 4-H clubs in Pitt County. The event is sponsored by the 4-H County Council.

Cash awards will be presented to first and second place winners. Those winning first, second and third places will have an opportunity to enter the district talent show to be held later.

The public is invited to attend the talent show. No admission will be charged.

Advisors for 4-H clubs are Mrs. Lily Harper Hall, assistant home economics agent, and Bill Sanderson, assistant farm agent.

Parking Meters In Spring Colors

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — This city will paint 1,500 parking meters various spring colors to indicate the maximum time motorists may get for their money.

Meters permitting maximum parking time of 12 minutes per coin will be painted green; those good for 30 minutes red and for one hour yellow.

Coast Guard Will Make Public Its Findings In Yacht Bluebell Mystery

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Coast Guard said it would make public today its findings on the yacht Bluebell mystery, an ocean tragedy with only a little girl as a survivor.

The announcement by Seventh District Coast Guard headquarters at Miami came a day after an insurance company asked a federal court to rule on the death of one passenger.

Will Manage N.C. Trade Fair

RALEIGH (AP)—The job of managing and promoting the 1963 North Carolina Trade Fair in Charlotte has been given to Bennette Advertising Inc. of High Point.

Director Hargrove Bowles Jr. of the Department of Conservation and Development announced Tuesday the contract was negotiated by the C&D Board's Commerce and Industry Committee.

The Bennett Agency will be paid $25,000 to direct the trade fair, and North Carolina's participation in the Levant Trade Fair in Bari, Italy, next Sept. 9-24.

In addition, the agency will receive 25 per cent of all profits of the North Carolina Trade Fair in excess of $40,000. The 1963 fair will be held April 27-May 4.

She was Mary Dene Harvey, 34, wife of Bluebell skipper Julian A. Harvey. He killed himself a few hours after learning Terry Jo Duperrault, 11, was rescued semi-conscious from a life raft.

Harvey's tale of dismaying and fire last Nov. 12 in a Bahamas tragedy, told Coast Guard interrogators she saw no fire or broken masts on the 60-foot ketch. She said she did see her mother and brother lying on blood-spattered decks and was slapped by Harvey, who she said was carrying the ship's rifle and later abandoned her on the sinking craft.

Harvey, 44, a former Air Force officer with a history of involvement in auto, plane and boating accidents, skipped the yacht Bluebell on a Duperrault family vacation charter cruise with his wife as helper, Dr. Arthur Duperrault, 49, Green Bay optician, his wife, Jane, 38, their son, Brian, 14, and daughters, Renee, 7, and Terry Jo had saved for a long time for the trip out of Fort Lauderdale.

The Bluebell went down the night of Nov. 12. The next day Harvey was found in a dinghy with the body of Renee and was brought by a merchant vessel to Nassau where he rested a few days and returned to Miami.

Harvey was in a Coast Guard inquiry office when word came that Terry Jo was alive and was being brought to Miami after clinging more than three days to a five-foot life raft. He left the hearing room. Next morning, Harvey's body was found in his lodgings with razor slashes in throat and wrists. A note said he could not stand the strain any longer.

Terry Jo regained her strength quickly and went to live in LaPere, a Green Bay suburb, with an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Scheer.

The Travelers Insurance Co. asked U.S. District Court at Miami Tuesday to rule whether, how and when Mary Dene Harvey died.

Claimants representing both Harvey and his wife have filed suits to obtain payment of a $20,000 policy on Mrs. Harvey's life.

CARTER A. VAUGHAN'S Exciting Novel of Revolutionary Romance SCOUNDRELS' BRIGADE

CHAPTER 15

"Colonel Baxter has recommended you highly and Captain Tallmadge wants you," General Washington told Hugh Spencer. "Well and good. But I have a question or two. Suppose the crown granted you a complete pardon for the crime you say you didn't commit. Would you return to England?"

"No, sir," Hugh replied. "I've joined the continental army, and I don't intend to leave it until we've become completely independent."

Washington's aristocratic charm became apparent on the rare occasions when he smiled. "And after the war?"

"I plan to settle down somewhere, sir. I know only two vocations, soldiering and farming, so I've thought of claiming some of that land that the members of Congress keep promising us west of the mountains."

The commander-in-chief smiled broadly and nodded to Ben Tallmadge, who was standing near a hearth. "If he'll accept the assignment, you may have him, Captain."

"Thank you, sir."

"Do you want me to take this post, General?" Hugh asked.

"I think you could do the United States a great service, Mr. Spencer, but I have a conscience too, and I can't order you to give up military life in the field for work that may be unpleasant and hazardous."

"It's enough for me, that you want me to take the assignment, sir. I'll accept it."

Washington stood and shook hands, terminating the interview. "I'll keep in touch with your activities through Tallmadge. Call on me if you need my help at any time. You might stop at Hamilton's desk on your way out and ask him to prepare an order promoting you to captain," he added casually. "You'll find the additional rank useful, and if our money ever has any value, I imagine you can find ways to spend the higher pay."

A short time later Hugh was closeted with Tallmadge again in the room on the second floor. "I suggest," the intelligence chief said, "that you try to find the counterfeiter you know and persuade him to enlist. I'll get some blank forms from Captain Hamilton so you can appoint your own sergeants and corporals. Build up a force of whatever size you may need. I don't care what caliber of men you recruit. All that matters is the results."

"I'll do my best," Hugh assured him. "But I don't know if you're serious when you suggest that I enlist rogues."

"I know no other way to catch counterfeiters, Captain Spencer."

Hugh flushed when he heard himself being called by his new rank; then he laughed. "Whether we succeed or fail, I'm sure the brigade of scoundrels will be the most unusual unit in the world's most unorthodox army."

"We're the kind, you and me, who are lucky," Ben sat near a window that looked out on a small sign reading, J. RICHARDSON AND B. FLAHERTY, PRINTERS.

"In your case it was skill that improved your situation, not luck," Hugh unbuckled his sword belt and rested his blade on a small table near his friend's desk.

"I'd still be a bondsman if it wasn't for Mr. Richardson being a patriot and America becoming independent. It's true that there aren't many printers who know more about their trade than I do, and that's why Mr. Richardson offered me a quarter interest in the business when he gave me my freedom. I brought in plenty of work, so it's been fair to both of us. But what if I hadn't been deported to America? I might still be sitting in a cell at Newgate. That's what I mean by luck."

Hugh worded a question carefully. "Have you found much time to practice your former profession?"

"I gave it up," Ben said flatly. "I'm afraid to go to work, when you think about it. He gestured toward the presses and boxes of lead type at the rear of the shop. "I have all the equipment I need here, even engraving tools and copper bleach. But we have a contract to print all of the broadsides and pamphlets for the Pennsylvania Committee of Public Safety, and we do some jobs for other states, too, mostly Delaware and New Jersey. So I can't print their official papers and copy their money at the same time. It wouldn't be right, and besides, they could trace the notes to me too quick. Anyway," he added gloomily, "money hereabouts isn't worth much lately, so it isn't worth the effort to make counterfeit bills."

Hugh concealed a smile. It was clear that Ben's standards of right and wrong were unchanged; what had prompted him to give up his criminal career was the small margin of profit he enjoyed, besides, they could trace the notes to me too quick. Anyway," he added gloomily, "money hereabouts isn't worth much lately, so it isn't worth the effort to make counterfeit bills."

Phone Co. Plans Poll In Griffon

Griffon Carolina Telephone next week will poll Griffon subscribers concerning extended area (toll free) telephone service to Kingston.

J. E. Cutler, local manager for the company, said that each Griffon subscriber will receive a letter describing the proposed plan together with a ballot card. The ballot should be returned to the company within ten days.

Extended area service to Kingston has been requested by a number of Griffon subscribers. As a result the company prepared a proposal for providing this service. This proposal has been approved by the Griffon Town Council.

If the plan is approved, the company would make upward adjustments in local service rates paid by Griffon subscribers. This is necessary to compensate the company for the cost of the additional facilities required and the revenue losses incurred by eliminating the toll calls.

A schedule of the rate adjustments will be included in the letter to be sent to subscribers here.

School Menu

School lunchroom menus for the remainder of the week, as announced by the supervisor of city school cafeterias, are as follows:

Wednesday (today)—hot dog with chili and onions, buttered potatoes, cole slaw, apple sauce, milk.

Thursday—ham biscuit, macaroni and cheese, string beans, pineapple salad, Jello with whipped topping, milk.

Friday—one-half tuna fish salad sandwich, one-half peanut butter and raisin sandwich; potato sticks, congealed fruit salad, apple cobbler with cheese strips, milk.

Of the 16 men who have served as president of the African republic of Liberia, nine were born in the United States.

British Flag Flies Over N.C. Plant Once Each Year

SIXTH TRAFFIC FATALITY . . . Highway Patrolman H. R. Winslow investigates accident on N.C. 30 at Tripps Cross Roads where auto and bicycle collided killing Kenneth Milton Ross, Jr., who was riding the bicycle. The accident was the first bicycle fatality of the year in Pitt County. (Reflector Photo by George Bryant)

By BILL NOBLITT
Shelby Daily Star

Written for The Associated Press
SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Once a year, the British flag whips in the breeze high above the sprawling multi-million dollar Fiber Industries plant near here.

The occasion is a meeting of the board of Directors of the mighty Celanese Corp. of America and Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd., of England. Members of the board come from both countries. But even when the flag is not being flown, it is easy enough for a visitor to the plant to discover the British influence as he moves through the building and hears the wide range of accents coming from various offices.

Fiber Industries, a subsidiary of the Celanese-ICI group, began operation in 1959. At time, a large number of Britishers were sent here to oversee inauguration of the process for manufacturing Fortrel—a polyester fibre marketed by Celanese.

But rather than forming a "British Colony" in this Piedmont area less than 12 miles from Kings Mountain, famous "turning point of the Revolution," the Englishmen have become a part of the community.

Dr. Eric Hill, a graduate of Liverpool University in his native city, is a chemist at the plant. He has been here since the plant first opened, and makes his home in Shelby.

"We're a part of this company and a part of this community," Hill said. "We're very pleased to come here and we are here to do a job."

Hill said many persons have the idea the British staff is here to set up the operation then move. He declared that naturally the men, one or another of them, might be called upon to move, but no more so than in any other large industrial firm.

Many of the families are looking forward to a long stay in the Tar Heel state. "That's one of the most impressive things I've seen about this section of the country," Hill said. "The people have a great persuasion that you should stay here and like the country—and they're particularly interested that you should like them."

Hill, his wife Jean, of Rugby, England, and sons David, 3, and Peter, 1, have settled into the routine of everyday life in this country.

Hill plays golf somewhat regularly at the local country club. "It isn't so strenuous as it is in England, though, since there are plenty of caddies," he says.

The Hills encountered some difficulty with language problems at first, but nothing like the problem encountered by the maid who went to work for them shortly after their arrival.

The maid was in the kitchen with Mrs. Hill, Hill recalled. "Mrs. Hill" said the maid, "you're one of the most intelligent women I've ever met—you all have only been here two weeks, and you already know how to speak real good English."

Enthusiasm for the local hospitality is shared with Hill by a colleague, Dr. John Clark.

Clark, who comes from London, is a graduate of Manchester University with a degree in textile chemistry. He lives across town from Hill, but the two meet daily at their jobs.

"We had heard that people here were more outgoing, extremely friendly, but we never realized just how true this is," Clark said. "This is absolutely the friendliest town we have ever lived in."

The Clarks were the first English family connected with Fortrel to move into Shelby. "And our neighbors are just delightful—we've made many friends and are active in church," Clark said.

"We love the Southern accent—our sons are both Rebs. There's no question about it—they're getting their education," Clark laughed. The neighborhood in which the Clarks lives is run with children about the same age as their own 5-year-old son and 2-year-old Stephen.

Jordan Denies Partisan Role

Sen. B. Everette Jordan has made it plain that he is supporting neither side in the Eastern North Carolina air service controversy.

The senator said this is a telegram to The Daily Reflector. Sen. Jordan described as erroneous statements that he had become involved in the controversy.

"It has come to my attention that newspaper reports have indicated that I have become involved in the controversy between Greenville, Wilson and Rocky Mount in their petitions to the Civil Aeronautics Board regarding airport facilities for these communities," Sen. Jordan stated.

"These reports are completely erroneous. I have not contacted the CAB in any way whatever about the matter and I have informed the appropriate officials in both Wilson and Rocky Mount that the published reports were in error and that I am making no recommendations whatever to the CAB regarding air service in this area.

"During the time I have been in the Senate I have felt very strongly that the location of air facilities for these communities is a matter which should be left strictly to the communities themselves."

Saturday Sen. Sam Ervin's office also said he was not taking sides on the issue. The denials by the state's two senators came after a published report that they were supporting Wilson, Rocky Mount and Kinston in the matter.

Greenville has asked the CAB for a stay of new service to the neighboring cities and for an investigation to determine if an area airport would best serve the cities involved.

Begin Afternoon Closings Today

GRIFTON—The Town Office of Grifton will close on Wednesday afternoons at 1 o'clock beginning today, it was announced by Mrs. Nannie Smith, town clerk.

The Wednesday afternoon closing will continue through the summer.

Hospitalized After Shooting

AYDEN—Ayden police reported yesterday that John David Allen, Negro, of Ayden, had been confined to Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville following a shooting here Sunday.

The extent of Allen's injuries was unknown. Police Chief W. D. Brooks said investigation is pending Allen's release from the hospital.

During the troubles that led to the War of 1812, Henry Clay of Kentucky called for the capture of Canada from the British.

Jail Escapee Captured Sitting In Stolen Car

AMHERST, Va. (AP) — Malcolm Thomas Cash, who broke out of the Amherst County jail Tuesday night with another prisoner, was recaptured by police early today.

State Police and Amherst County officers threw a blockade around the town after Cash and Viar forced their way out of the county jail.

Cash recently was sentenced to 20 years in prison on charges of breaking and entering felonious assault. He was awaiting trial here on charges of auto theft.

Viar had been sentenced Tuesday to two years in the State Penitentiary for breaking and entering. Previously, he had drawn 19 years and was awaiting trial on three other counts.

A source here said that Viar overpowered Jailer Van Miller as Miller was putting another prisoner in his cell. While Miller lay stunned, Viar took his keys and freed Cash from another cell.

Viar has sentences against him totaling up to 19 years for a series of break-ins across the state.

Police theorize Cash may try to return to Lynchburg to contact his ex-girl friend Barbara Layne.

Mrs. Layne, free on bond while awaiting grand jury action on a stolen car charge, denied at a hearing Tuesday that she drove the car Cash used in a two week crime spree through North Carolina.

The spree commenced during the Christmas holiday season after she and Cash fled from the home of Mrs. Luke Sprouse, Mrs. Layne's aunt. It was the severe beating Cash gave Mrs. Sprouse early in the morning of Dec. 21 that led to his conviction on a felonious assault charge.

Mrs. Layne was feared abducted at first, but she and Cash were apprehended in Shelby, N.C. and charged with fornication. In her defense, Mrs. Layne said she went with Cash only to prevent him from killing her aunt the night Cash broke into Mrs. Sprouse's Lynchburg home.

Pack House Is Lost To Flames

AYDEN—A packhouse located on Route 2, Ayden and owned by Levi Worthington burned Monday afternoon and was described as a total loss by local police.

Cause of the blaze was undetermined. The Ayden Volunteer Fire Department responded to the alarm. They also answered the call to a forest fire on the Hart farm Monday afternoon, but were unable to take equipment to the scene.

The state forestry department extinguished the blaze.

TO SEE DEGAULLE

AREA AIRPORT CHARTED—Willard T. Kyzer (left), manager of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, and Pitt-Greenville Airport Commission attorneys W. W. Speight and W. H. Watson view area airport map prepared by East Carolina College geography student Neal G. Lineback (second from right) of Winston-Salem. Requested by the Airport Commission, the map compares population, bank debits and commerce within the 25-mile-radius area of the proposed East Carolina Area Airport with similar areas around Raleigh-Durham, Greensboro-High Point and Charlotte. The graphic presentation, prepared by Lineback under the supervision of Dr. R. E. Cramer of ECC's geography department, demonstrates the following information: Population of the four areas—1,660,000 (East Carolina, 18 per cent; Raleigh-Durham, 20; Greensboro, 32; Charlotte, 30); Bank debits—$1,489,000,000 (East Carolina, 7 per cent; Raleigh-Durham, 23; Greensboro, 32; Charlotte, 38); Wholesale sales—$3,659,000,000 (East Carolina, 12 per cent; Raleigh-Durham, 13; Greensboro, 21; Charlotte, 54); Retail sales—$1,466,000,000 (East Carolina, 17 per cent; Raleigh-Durham, 19; Greensboro, 33; Charlotte, 31). The presentation is to be used by the commission in seeking to establish an area airport to serve an area bounded by Rocky Mount, Wilson, Goldsboro, Kinston, Greenville and Tarboro. Will Try Baysden Again Plenty Of Opportunity In 1958 Counterfeit Case For Women Engineers

RALEIGH (AP) — Dist. Atty. Robert Cowen said today another attempt would be made to try William Earl Baysden of Jacksonville in connection with a 1958 counterfeit case.

Baysden was first convicted on charges resulting from a Secret Service crackdown when agents found about $800,000 in bogus $20 bills in a deep freeze in his furniture store.

However, the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals overturned the conviction on the grounds of an improper search warrant.

Cowen said, "This time we're going to go at it from a different angle. We're going to try them for conspiracy."

A federal grand jury returned two bills of indictment Tuesday against Baysden and several others in connection with the counterfeit case.

One bill charged conspiracy in connection with a raid Sunday when more than $100,000 in bogus bills was found. It named Baysden and four others. The other bill charged Baysden, Edward D. Sparrow of Kinston and Dewey Jacobs of Rockingham with conspiracy in the 1958 case.

Baysden was transferred Tuesday from the Onslow County jail at Jacksonville to jail in New Bern. The case may be called at the term of federal court opening May 23 in New Bern. He is held in $75,000 bail in the Sunday arrest, and an additional $50,000 in the 1958 case.

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — During World War II, "Rosie the Riveter" came out of kitchen and chorus line to the trumpet of national peril.

She pulled on a pair of trousers, punched a clock, went to work. But no one asked her to think very much. That was 20 years ago.

Today, says Prof. James C. Cook, head of mechanical engineering at Clemson College, every inventory of mental equipment shows the country hard put to meet its technological needs with men alone. While Russia graduates more than 80,000 engineers yearly, one-third of them women, the United States graduates about 31,000, of whom less than 1 per cent are women.

The image of the woman engineer is not widespread in America largely because of social custom, says Cook. Education has concurred too rigidly that girls think, act and feel differently. The girl interested in chemistry, for instance, has been re-routed into a more practical lady-like direction by parents and other influences.

At Clemson, too, the image is only formative. In mechanical engineering, under Cook, the first coeds in the college's history are in the first throes of the long, punishing four-year tour. Not everyone makes it. Only about one in every five Clemson freshmen in engineering finishes with a degree.

There are four coeds in Clemson's current slipstick-and-lipstick set. Tough, studious and scrupulous, they are about as bookwormish and withdrawn as a high-wire act. Linda Jane Chandler, Habersham, Ga., sophomore, and Judy Bryant, freshman whose hometown is Clemson, are in mechanical engineering. Diane Ellen Vaughn, Baltimore, sophomore, is in chemical engineering; and Lydia L. Threatt, Gadsden, S.C., freshman, is in civil engineering.

Flames Roared 10 Stories High

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Flames shot 10 stories high today from a petroleum storage tank that exploded as escaping fumes floated across a highway.

Four persons suffered severe burns as the blaze erupted shortly before midnight. A woman living nearby suffered a heart attack.

A passing car apparently touched off the blast at a Sinclair Refining Co. tank farm on the Houston ship channel. The flames were visible in downtown Houston, 20 miles distant.

Houston Fire Chief C. M. Bullock had conflicting reports on whether the 85,000-gallon tank contained gasoline or diesel fuel. It was three-fourths full.

A Sinclair worker said the tank would be allowed to burn out because it might explode if we try to put it out and it cools too quickly.

About 150 firemen from Houston and nearby communities fought the blaze. Police asked residents of a nearby subdivision to leave so rooftops could be soaked.

Injured were James E. Shepard, 43, of Houston, a worker at the tank farm; James Duke, 25, and Judy Taylor, 21, both of Pasadena, a Houston suburb, and Allen Buchneck, 21, of Genoa, Tex.

The woman who suffered a heart attack was Mrs. Ledith Miller, 45, of Houston. Three firemen were overcome by smoke.

Active Hunt For Outlaw Dropped

WELDON, N.C. (AP) — Police Chief Floyd Whitman said today officers have given up active efforts in the search for a fugitive outlaw, but still are running down clues.

Police here have been searching for Jack Harvey Davis, 29, since he escaped from the Weldon jail Friday night. He had been taken into custody for parole violations and for questioning in two liquor store break-ins. His mother and two brothers were charged with helping him escape.

Davis, who is believed armed, has threatened the life of Whitman and vowed he wouldn't be taken without killing someone.

Dr. Tom Dooley's War On Disease In Far-off Places Being Carried On

By JUNIUS GRIFFIN

NEW YORK (AP)—A legend in his lifetime, the famed "jungle doctor" Thomas A. Dooley fought against disease in remote areas of the world.

His battle is being continued by two organizations—Medico, Inc., and the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation.

Known by millions as "Dr. Tom," Dooley died of cancer at Memorial Hospital in New York, Jan. 18, 1961, one day after his 34th birthday.

His tradition lives.

His ambition and goal in life was to bring badly needed medical treatment to afflicted peoples in impoverished lands—but on an individual basis, not as a representative of the U.S. government.

Dr. Dooley started his personal fight against diseases in 1956, in central Laos.

His assistants at the time were Dennis Shepard of Salem, Ore.; Norman Baker of Berlin, N.H., and Peter Kessey of Port Arthur, Tex.

Two years later, he was back in the states organizing Medico, (Medical International Cooperation Organization). His work had become so well known that the organization had, as its honorary patron, Dr. Albert Schweitzer.

Dooley was the heartbeat of Medico. He wrote two books, "Deliver Us From Evil" and "The Edge of Tomorrow," both of which described conditions in Southeast Asia. He made many personal appearances, appealing to the American public to support his fight.

The success of his personal campaign is now evident in the growth and effectiveness of Medico.

The organization has projects and teams in Kenya, Cambodia, Viet Nam, Gabon, Afghanistan, Malaya, Haiti, Jordan and Nigeria.

Just as "Dr. Tom's" personal popularity accounted for the rapid growth of Medico, it also contributed to its lack of administrative soundness after his death.

His brother, Dr. Malcolm Dooley, once described Medico as "an upside-down organization," adding: "It got along on what Tom called 'begging, bumming, borrowing and, from time to time, stealing just a little bit.'"

The problem of keeping the organization intact after Dooley's death was met head on by his professional associates, including Dr. Peter D. Comanduras, who cofounded Medico with Dooley.

The ideal solution to this problem, thought some of Dooley's followers, was to merge Medico with CARE, (Cooperative for American Relief Everywhere) one of America's most respected voluntary agencies concerned with international assistance.

The merger was announced last January and made in February.

This merger gave Medico a logistic and administrative arm that relieved its physicians and other medical personnel of a tiresome burden, and in turn gave CARE another service to offer internationally.

The Medico-CARE marriage, a proven success, was not without its critics.

Criticism of Medico did not come from outside sources, but rather from those persons close to Dr. Dooley within Medico who thought his founding principles should be followed to the letter.

His brother, Malcolm, said foremost of these principles was that "Medico must be an organization which is not a government outfit or church outfit, which is not proselytizing for God or proselytizing for state."

"A government must ask for Medico's aid and help support its program, and a patient must pay something, for unlimited giving away of things can rob a man, and perhaps a nation, of self-respect," he said.

Vowing to carry out this conviction, many of Dr. Dooley's followers—including Malcolm who was executive director of Medico—founded the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation, Inc., in September 1961.

The foundation was formally announced Sept. 5 in San Francisco by Dooley's mother, Agnes W. Dooley.

Its president is Eugene Burdick, coauthor of "The Ugly American" who, with William J. Lederer, another coauthor; Agnes W. Dooley; Dr. Carl Wiedermann, and Dr. Verne E. Chaney, serve on its board of directors.

Unlike Medico, the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation carries his name, and the mention of the name Tom Dooley is magic throughout the Far East.

Although a mere six months old, the foundation is now operating one of Tom Dooley's former hospitals at Ban Houei Sai, Laos, and had been invited by the royal government to expand its medical assistance and health services over the entire province of Nam Tha, near Red China.

With headquarters in San Francisco, the foundation is geared toward a grassroots type of aid program for Asia. Its support is being derived from persons who volunteer their time after working at full time jobs.

In New York, the foundation's head is Teresa E. Gallagher, a secretary for an insurance firm. Her assistant is Edna Fannon, an administrative aid.

They spend many hours each week speaking to women's clubs, youth groups, and civic organizations.

Miss Gallagher said, "Perhaps we take up where Medico leaves off, but there is certainly room for both organizations without duplication of effort."

Through the efforts of these two organizations, both inspired by the memory of Dr. Dooley, thousands of underprivileged peoples are receiving modern medical treatment.

Ballerina Was Wired For Role

LONDON (AP) — Svetlana Beriosova was wired for sound recently to become the Royal Ballet's first ballerina to speak while performing.

The occasion was the premier here of Stravinsky's "Persphone" with choreography by England's Frederick Ashton.

Miss Beriosova wore a microphone and a tiny transistor radio sewn into her dress. Because of this, it was necessary for the Covent Garden Opera House to obtain a government license for operation of a mobile "broadcasting station."

Miss Beriosova spoke her lines in French.

She had some anxious moments on the third night's performance.

When her partner lifted her in an energetic dance, one of the wires became disconnected and the radio didn't work.

Resourcefully, she spoke her next lines as loudly as she could from the footlights. At the first opportunity she went into the wings to be connected again.

The ballet got mixed reviews from London critics.

Missile Success Streaks Broken

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Failure to stay on course has snapped the success streaks of two military missiles, Minuteman and Pershing.

Both were destroyed in flight by the range safety officer Tuesday, the Pershing when it failed to pitch over on a southeast heading and the Minuteman when it deviated from its intended trajectory.

Prior to the failures, Pershing had racked up 13 straight successful test firings and the Minuteman seven.

Hospital Visit By Liz Taylor

ROME (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor, the troubled Cleopatra, was treated Tuesday night at a Rome hospital after an Easter seaside idyll with Richard Burton that reportedly ended in a violent quarrel.

Attendees at Salvatore Mundi Hospital said the 30-year-old film queen had come there for treatment and had returned home several hours later. They said her condition was not serious but wouldn't say what was wrong.

A secretary at Miss Taylor's villa said she went to the hospital for a personal matter. He said she did not have food poisoning, for which she had been treated at the same hospital two months ago.

The secretary also denied a report by an Italian news agency that Miss Taylor had stopped to see a doctor in Orbetello after she left Burton at Porto Santo Stefano and drove back to Rome alone Monday night.

The secretary said Miss Taylor was perfectly well today.

Rome newspapers reported that Miss Taylor stormed out of Porto Santo Stefano and raced back to Rome after a violent quarrel with Burton, her leading man in "Cleopatra" and her constant companion since the announcement that she would divorce singer Eddie Fisher.

Burton returned to Rome alone Tuesday.

Believe Quake Was Recorded

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP)—Uppsala University's seismograph showed indication of a disturbance shortly before 6 a.m. today, and a sharp earthquake shook the Grenoble area of southeast France about the same time.

After investigation, Dr. Severin Duda of the Uppsala Seismological Institution said the disturbance recorded by his instruments was probably an earthquake. There had been speculation earlier that it was the first blast in the new U.S. series of nuclear tests in the Pacific.

From Proms To Dancing Medea

NANCY KOVACK
In College, She Did the Fox Trot

By EUGENE LEVIN
ROME (AP) — Nancy Kovack says she was afraid to dance anything more complicated than a fox trot as a college coed. But now, in her first starring role in a movie, she is proving to be a prize pupil learning to dance the way a Roman choreographer thinks the ancient Greeks danced.

"Back at the University of Michigan," Nancy says, "I never accepted a date for a dance or a prom unless I was asked by a close friend who knew I would dance nothing but the slow ones."

Things have changed. The 25-year-old brunette actress has her first starring role in "Jason and the Golden Fleece," being filmed in Rome and she is determined to make a success of it.

One day the film's British director, Don Chaffey, asked her if she could dance.

"I replied that I can do anything he wants—and swallowed hard," Nancy relates, "and he shipped me off to ballet school."

There Grant Muradoff, a Rome choreographer, devised a dance for Nancy to perform in her role as Medea, the princess who helped Jason and his argonauts get the golden fleece.

Nancy does the dance on a lavish set designed as a replica of a temple of Hecate, the Greek goddess of sorcery and witchcraft.

She and a dozen other girls, wearing flimsy gowns, do some rhythmic steps that have the flavor of a slow-motion Oriental dance.

The exotic effect of the dance is heightened by a gold tinted spray covering Nancy's body and by shiny bits of tinsel around her big brown eyes. It takes her three hours to put on all the makeup.

One day when the dance scene was being filmed at a Rome studio, Muradoff took time off to describe Nancy as "a very fine student" and to explain his dance.

"Of course we do not know how the ancient Greeks danced," he said. "We can look at their pictures of dancers on vases and get some ideas. But the best we can do is try to recreate a mood.

"If this were a scene in a more spiritual temple, I would emphasize the purer movements of arm and head. But this is a dance in a temple of Hecate, a sorceress. The mood is evil. That's why there are so many hip and leg movements.

"But it is not hootchie-kootchie," Nancy put in. "When I get back to Hollywood I'm going to take more lessons."

Besides the movie dancing, Nancy also has done some ballroom dancing in Rome. The U. S. Marine guard at the American embassy here picked her as queen of their annual ball.

However, she was almost booted off her throne before the ball was held.

After the invitation was sent her, a local English-language daily interviewed her and quoted her as saying: "I love Italian men. They have a very strong idea of what they want. American men are not determined."

The Marines read the interview and considered withdrawing their invitation. Then they decided to let it stand—they wanted to show Nancy that she might be wrong.

Dogs Gone, But Not Satisfied

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—An elderly man complained to the Wayne County dog warden recently that dogs roaming loose near his home were bothering him.

The obliging warden personally knocked on doors in the neighborhood asking residents to cooperate in keeping their pets from bothering the complainant.

The neighbors heeded his plea. A few days later the elderly gentleman called the warden again. "Now I'm besieged with rabbits because all those dogs are tied up," he unhappily reported.

Koufax Fans 18 Chicago Players As Dodgers Win

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer One of these days Sandy Koufax will strike out 20 batters in a nine-inning game and people may recognize that the Los Angeles Dodgers southpaw is the greatest strikeout pitcher of modern times.

For the second time in his comparatively brief major league career, Koufax equalled the major league strikeout mark when he fanned 18 Chicago players Tuesday as the Dodgers routed the Cubs 10-2.

That gave the 26-year-old Brooklyn native a career total of 992 strikeouts in 980 innings, an average of better than one strikeout per inning.

of baseball averaged a strikeout an inning. Not even Walter Johnson, the all-time whiff king of the majors, or such other strikeout artists as Bobby Feller, Rube Waddell, Lefty Grove and Christy Mathewson did it.

Pittsburgh won its 11th game in 12 starts, defeating San Francisco 7-3, the same score by which Cincinnati downed the New York Mets, Milwaukee defeated Philadelphia 2-1 and Houston shamed St. Louis 4-3.

In the American League Cleveland edged the Los Angeles Angels 3-2. Chicago's White Sox defeated the New York Yankees 3-1, Detroit blanked Kansas City 1-0, Baltimore nipped Minnesota 5-4 and Boston defeated Washington 4-1.

Tommy Davis and Duke Snider drove in seven runs between them as the Dodgers clubbed loser Don Cardwell and three relief pitchers for 12 hits. Davis drove in four runs with a home run and single. Snider batted in three with a home run and triple.

Koufax, fanning eight of the first nine batters he faced, finished with a flourish, striking out the side in the ninth for his third victory in four decisions.

Sandy's 18 strikeouts matched the record set by Cleveland's Bob Feller against Detroit on Oct. 2, 1936 and later equaled by Koufax against San Francisco on Aug. 31, 1959. This is a National League daytime strikeout record since Koufax' 1959 effort was achieved at night. Feller accomplished his feat in an afternoon game.

It marked the 32nd time in his career that Koufax fanned 10 or more in a game. Feller and Waddell share the record, each having struck out 10 or more 54 times.

The league-leading Pirates put five of their seven hits together for a five-run fourth inning against loser Jim Marichal as Al McBean registered his second triumph. He needed ninth-inning help from Elroy Face, Catcher Don Leppert homered for the Bucs.

The Reds scored four runs in the first against New York starter Craig Anderson and went on to inflict the 10th defeat on the Mets, who have won only one game. Cincinnati rookie Sam Ellis allowed only one hit but was replaced by Moe Drabowsky in the sixth after walking his 10th and 11th batters. Wally Post hit two doubles and a home run, Vada Pinson also homered and Eddie Kasko had three hits for the Reds.

Warren Spahn scattered nine Philadelphia hits and doubled home the Braves' first run. Eddie Mathews' fifth home run accounted for what proved to be the winning run. Three straight hits after two out in the ninth ruined Spahn's bid for his 56th lifetime shutout but he tossed out the final Philly batter himself to preserve his second victory of the season and 31th of his major league career.

Southpaw Hal Woodeshick pitched a six-hitter for Houston against St. Louis and ex-Cardinal outfielder Don Taussig homered in the sixth, off loser Larry Jackson, for the clincher.

League Stars By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Pitching—Sandy Koufax, Dodgers, equalled modern major league strikeout record held by himself and Bob Feller, fanning 18 Chicago batters in 10-2 victory over Cubs.

Batting — Ty Cline, Indians, rookie scored first run after doubling, drove in second run with another double and knocked in game-winner with seventh-inning triple in 3-2 victory over Los Angeles Angels.

CHAPEL HILL—East Carolina College, choked at the plate for eight innings, got its wind in the ninth and the tenth and almost won a baseball game from North Carolina Tuesday.

But not quite. UNC first baseman Len Delloilo lined a single past shortstop Carlton Barnes with two outs and the bases loaded in the bottom of the tenth—and the Tar Heels triumphed, 2-1.

North Carolina left-hander Dave Murr, mixing slow curves with fast balls, surrendered only a single to Tommy Kidd in the second and walks to Buddy Wyatt and Bobby Joyce in the eighth before weakening in the ninth.

In fact Murr retired 14 straight Pirates during one stretch from the third frame to the eighth.

But Carlton Barnes led off the ninth with a walk and was forced at second on Junior Green's grounder. Merrill Bynum rolled out. Then Kidd got the second hit off Murr, moving Green to third.

With two strikes against him and two outs Charlie Johnson drilled a single to center, scoring Green with the tying run. Wyatt then walked, but Joyce forced him at second.

Against Tar Heel pitcher Jack Rees in the tenth the Pirates' Lacy West — ECC starting chunker and loser—grounded out, Spencer Gaylord singled, and was caught stealing second. Then Barnes singled, but Green grounded out to end the inning.

In the UNC tenth, Knuckleballer West got Cronin Byrd to hit into a double play after Rees had doubled and Paul Swing had been intentionally walked. But Delloilo scored Swing on his hit and that was it.

Gamecocks Only ACC Team Playing Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

South Carolina, which slipped from third place into a tie for fourth in the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball race Tuesday, met Furman of the Southern Conference today in the only game involving an ACC team.

The Gamecocks lost to Clemson 5-4 Tuesday and fell back to the Virginia for fourth place. Each has a 2-2 conference record.

In other games Tuesday, North Carolina beat East Carolina 2-1, North Carolina State bowed to Florida State 12-3, and Wake Forest thrashed Georgia Southern 8-1.

South Carolina scored four runs in the first inning Tuesday, but went scoreless the rest of the game as the Tigers piled up runs with the aid of Dave Ellis' tricky base running.

Ellisor led off the ninth with a single, stole second and scored the deciding run on a throwing error after two men were retired. In the seventh he stole second and scored on a throwing error.

North Carolina beat East Carolina in the tenth when Len Delloilo drove the ball past the shortstop to score Paul Swing. The bases were loaded with two outs when Delloilo got his hit.

Pirate Golfers Top AC And Guilford WILSON — Coach Ray Pennington's East Carolina golf team defeated Atlantic Christian 9½ - 8½ and Guilford 10-8 in a triangular match here yesterday.

The two victories for the Pirate golfers boosted their record to eight wins with no losses and one tie.

The low medalist of the match was Sid Denny of Atlantic Christian with a 74. East Carolina's Billy Brodgen and Mike Romanig both shot 76 and Chappy Bradner of East Carolina had a 78.

The next golf match for the Pirates will be at home with St. Andrews on May 4.

Cline Hits Three Extra Base Hits; Indians Win

By MIKE RATHET Associated Press Sports Writer Ty Cline, Cleveland's 22-year-old rookie center fielder, has shaken his slump and lifted the pressure imposed by a can't miss label and a tendency in the teepee to spell that last name C-o-b-b.

Using Chavez Ravine as the site for his war dance, Cline crashed three extra-base hits in a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Angels Tuesday night that kept the Indians in first place in the American League with their sixth consecutive victory.

The much-publicized speed merchant scored the Indians' first run after doubling, drove in the second with another two-base blow, then rapped a triple in the seventh inning to knock in pitcher Ron Taylor with the winning run.

It was quite a one-man show for the left-handed-swinging Cline, trying to live up to a host of press clippings after only two seasons in organized ball. His credentials include a .311 batting average at Mobile in 1960 and a .290 mark at Salt Lake City last season.

Cline now has five hits—all for extra bases—in his last 11 trips to the plate after falling to hit in his first dozen appearances.

Baltimore stretched its winning streak to four with a 5-4 victory over Minnesota. Detroit blanked Kansas City 1-0 behind Don Mossi's four-hitter, the Chicago White Sox whipped the New York Yankees 3-1 and Boston bopped Washington 4-1.

In the National League, Sandy Koufax equalled the modern major league record by striking out 18 as the Los Angeles Dodgers walloped the Chicago Cubs 10-2. Pittsburgh defeated San Francisco 7-3. Milwaukee edged Philadelphia 2-1. Cincinnati throttled New York's Mets 7-3 and Houston edged St. Louis 4-3.

Taylor (1-1), pitching for the first time since he lost his debut after hurling 11 shutout innings, gave up only three hits before yielding to reliever Frank Funk in the seventh. Leon Wagner accounted for the Angels' runs with a two-run homer in the sixth. Boog Powell's bases-loaded single with two outs in the ninth drove in two runs and capped a four-run rally that gave the Orioles and Milt Pappas (2-0) their win over the Twins after Jack Kralick had checked Baltimore on one run and four hits for eight innings. Joe Bonkowski (1-1), working in relief of Kralick, took the loss. It was Pappas' first route-going performance since a March 12 appendectomy. He allowed eight hits.

Mossi (2-1) beat rookie Dan Pfister, making his first major league start for the A's, in a stirring pitchers' duel. Going into the eighth Pfister had the Tigers blanked on one hit, but Jake Wood's double and a single by Rocky Colavito brought in the only run of the game. Pfister (0-1) wound up with a three-hitter.

Floyd Robinson's two-run homer in the eighth inning off Ralph Terry (3-1) got the job done for the White Sox after Joe Cunningham's single had driven in the tying run against the Yankees. The victory went to John Buzhardt (2-1), who gave up a homer to John Blanchard in the second and needed relief help from Frank Baumann and Turk Lown to wrap it up.

Pete Runnels, who hit only three homers last year, hit a pair with the bases empty to support Galen Cisco's four-hit pitching for the Red Sox. Runnels' shot in the eighth inning-off Joe McClain (0-2) snapped a 1-1 tie and gave Cisco (2-0) the run he needed to send the Senators to their seventh consecutive defeat.

Koufax Is First To Do It Twice

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Sandy Koufax gets mad at himself when he throws a bad pitch. Because of this, the Los Angeles southpaw Tuesday became the first pitcher to twice strike out 18 batters in the major leagues.

Koufax pitched the greatest baseball in his career through the first three innings of the game which the Dodgers won from the Chicago Cubs 10-2.

Yet, he needed two ninth inning breaks to equal the modern record of 18 strikeouts which he previously shared with Bob Feller, the Cleveland fireballer who established the mark in 1938.

First, Billy Williams led off the Cub ninth with a home run and this so infuriated Koufax that "I really started pumping. It was a bad pitch, a curve which hung high and inside."

Koufax pumped so hard that he made Bob Will and Elder White strikeout victims to run his total to 17. Then came another break.

Moe Thacker hit a pop fly for what should have been the game-ending out but first baseman Tim Harkness lost the ball in the wind and sun and it dropped for a single, Chicago's fifth hit. Koufax then fanned pinch batter Moe Morhardt to end the game.

"I had no idea of any records," said Koufax, whose 269 strikeouts last season set another modern National League record. "I was surprised to see the whole team pour out on the field to shake my hand."

Koufax struck out nine of the first 10 men he faced, getting the side out on strikes in both the first and third innings. He threw 144 pitches.

Koufax, 26, fanned 18 San Francisco Giants, on Aug. 31, 1959.

3 CL Games Won By One

CAROLINA LEAGUE
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A one-run margin decided three of the four games in the Carolina League Tuesday night.

In the other contest, Winston-Salem took over sole possession of first place by defeating Kingston 3-1 in the four-hit pitching of a trio of moundsmen. Bud Rowland, Red Sox veteran, got credit for the victory.

Raleigh, which had been tied Winston-Salem for first place, dropped a 6-5 decision at Wilson in a 10-inning battle. Jim Hock's line single to center scored Tom Fries with the winning run. Wilson had tied the score at 5-all in the eighth on Frank Pittaro's two-run single.

Outfielder Ken Ellwein banged a three-run homer in the ninth to enable Burlington to come behind Mount 10-9. It was the second round tripper of the game for Ellwein, who belted a solo blast in the first inning.

A seventh inning home run by third baseman Rusty Staub with the bases empty was the winning run as Durham edged Greensboro 4-3. Greensboro outfielder Walt Cammarata hit a two-run homer in the eighth.

Tonight's games: Winston-Salem at Wilson, Kingston at Greensboro, Burlington at Raleigh and Durham at Rocky Mount.

Parents Want Moss To Quit

LONDON (AP)—The parents of badly injured racing driver Stirling Moss said today they want him to quit the sport that has made his name a legend.

"You can't go on seeing your son have accidents without wanting him to give up," said Alfred Moss, the driver's father, who has been with him constantly since Monday's crackup at the Goodwood track.

"Stirling knows that I have felt like this for a long time."

Her son is unconscious in a South London hospital which specializes in brain surgery.

Moss suffered serious head injuries in a 100 miles per hour smash at an Easter Monday race meeting watched by 100,000 fans.

Early morning bulletin on his condition said he had maintained his "slight improvement" of Tuesday throughout the night.

Podoloff To Retire Next Year

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Maurice Podoloff, the roly-poly czar of professional basketball, is going to retire at the end of next season because, he said today, "there are a great many things I want to do."

The clear-smoking Podoloff, born 71 years ago in Russia, has been the president and the bellwether of the NBA and its predecessor, the Basketball Association of America, since 1946.

"I have had over a quarter of a century as an administrator in professional sports," he said. "Now I'll have the opportunity to realize some of my unfulfilled desires."

Podoloff made the announcement of his pending retirement Tuesday at the opening session of the two-day board of governors meeting of the NBA. No one was surprised. There had been talk of Podoloff quitting for a long time.

There was no talk of a successor. "But," sighed one of the owners at the meet, "he'll be hard to replace."

Podoloff, who packs 170 pounds on his 5-2 frame, probably was responsible more than anyone else in developing professional basketball into an organized spectator sport.

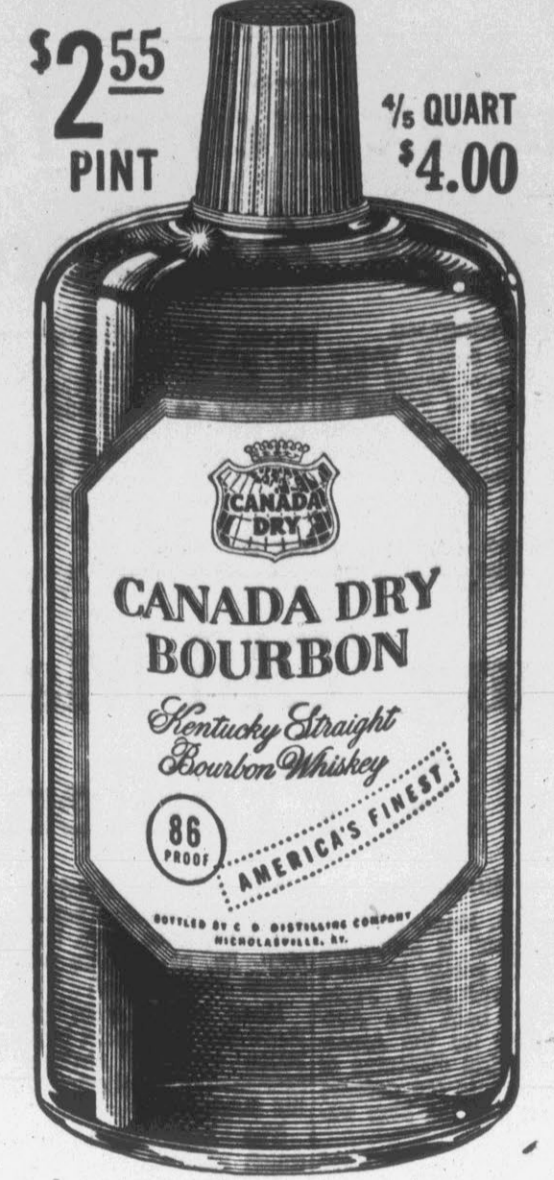

"I don't want to take credit for the improvements and accomplishments that have made the NBA a big league outfit," he said. "The best way to say it is that some good things have happened during my regime."

Among the factors that made the NBA a going concern were the merger with the old National Basketball League, pulling the games out of high school gymnasiums and armories, standardizing officiating, hiring permanent referees, the six-foot and 24-second rules, the bonus foul, the 12-foot lanes and the television game of the week.

Podoloff flatly refused to have any dealing with players ever, remotely connected with the gambling scandals.

Taylor Says Family First

WOOFRUDD, S. C. (AP) — "My family means more to me than baseball," says the Chicago Cubs' suspended catcher, Sammy Taylor.

After returning to his home here Tuesday, Taylor said he will quit baseball if he is not traded. Earlier Cub Vice President John Holland said in Chicago that Taylor was suspended for failing to show up for Tuesday's game with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Taylor said he was not making enough money to keep up two homes, in Chicago, and in Woodruff, where his wife prefers to live with their 4-year-old daughter.

He declined to talk further about his family problems. Taylor said if he does not remain in organized baseball, he would like to get a job in youth work, perhaps teaching baseball and other sports to youngsters.

Taylor said he has no preference regarding the teams he wants to be traded to. He said he knows of no deal in the making.

Stengel Fined For Violation

NEW YORK (AP)—The Casey Stengel-beer advertising incident was on ice today.

The New York Mets manager was $500 poorer, had been given a verbal slap on the wrist and taken out for pinch hitter Kathy Kersh.

The whole incident came to light Tuesday when it was learned that Stengel had been fined and reprimanded for posing in a baseball uniform for advertisements of the beer company sponsoring radio and television broadcasts of the Mets.

The ads show Stengel in a Mets uniform in position to bunt although company representative Kathy Kersh is standing behind him. Case already holding the baseball.

Commissioner Ford Frick said the ads were a violation of baseball rules, which prohibit men in uniform from posing for alcoholic beverage ads.

"But everything's been taken care of now," said the commissioner.

"In future ads the bat will be in the girl's hand, and Casey will be out of the picture."

Rampart, owned by Mrs. H. K. Haggerty, was the only mare ever to win the Gulfstream Park Handicap. She won in 1948, beating Armed and Incline.

Robinson Hurls Sox To Victory

NEW YORK (AP)—The woods are full of Robinsons these days. Jackie in the Hall of Fame, Brooks and Earl with Baltimore, Frank with Cincinnati. But Floyd of the Chicago White Sox is the Robinson of the moment after beating the New York Yankees Tuesday with a two-run homer.

It wasn't always like this. When Floyd came out of high school at San Diego in 1954 he signed a minor league contract with the Padres for only $500. Major league scouts took one look and said, "Too small." Floyd didn't get to the majors until the tail end of the 1960 season. He didn't become a regular until last May.

"Last time I was here half of the stories called me Earl," he recalled today. Nobody is getting him mixed up this year.

Searching for a No. 4 hitter during spring training, Manager Al Lopez settled on Robinson. The search was over. Floyd hit around .400 in the exhibition games and picked up speed when the season started.

"At first I didn't feel I should be hitting fourth," he said. "A clean-up hitter should be a little larger. I'm only 5-8 1/2."

"It affected me quite a bit the first week or so (you'd never know it from the box scores, for he was hitting .500). Then I decided I just was not a home run hitter. After all, we're not a power club. I just keep to my own style." (Like hitting a ball into the right field bleachers at Yankee Stadium).

Floyd's "own style" has been sensational. He is hitting .469 with 23 hits in 49 at bats. He leads the American League with 21 runs batted in.

Hunsaker To Be Released Today

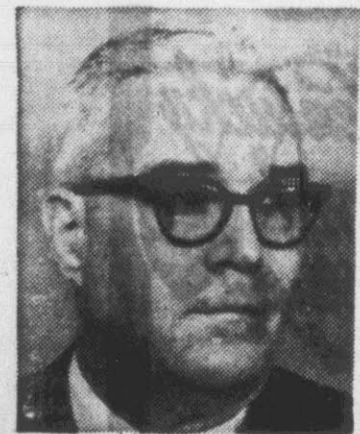

BLUEFIELD, W.Va. (AP) — Heavyweight boxer Tunney Hunsaker, apparently the winner in his fight for life, was to be released from a Bluefield hospital today.

Left with a brain injury after a fight April 6 in Beckley, Hunsaker underwent two operations before he started to recover.

He was knocked out in the 10th round by Joe Shelton of Cleveland.

As for boxing, "I guess it's all over for me," Hunsaker said Tuesday night as he prepared to leave. "I'd be stupid to go back now."

The 32-year-old former police chief at Fayetteville has recovered the use of his limbs. He started walking, with help, Sunday, and Tuesday night was able to sign his name.

Blough Says No Money Left After Dividends For Improving Plants

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger M. Blough says U.S. Steel Corp. will "have to do everything we can" —short of an early increase in prices—to bolster earnings.

"The economic situation that we had before we attempted to change our prices remains with us," he said in appraising future prospects of the nation's third largest industrial corporation.

Blough, U.S. Steel chairman, referred to the surprise $6 a ton boost announced April 10 and then withdrawn 72 hours later in the face of an angry response by President Kennedy.

He met with newsmen Tuesday after "Big Steel" disclosed January-March profits were $55.8 million. He said the figure left nothing for plant improvement after keeping abreast of dividend obligations to stockholders and debt repayment requirements.

In defending the abortive price boost, Blough had said it was needed to gather funds for upgrading and expanding plants to stay competitive with rival materials at home and steelmakers abroad.

The industrialist, answering the questions with customary caution, mentioned no specific steps for overcoming the corporation's cost price squeeze, speaking only of an intense effort to hold down costs.

He indicated the government could help out by liberalizing regulations on depreciation, a factor in profits.

He ruled out repetition of the price move two weeks ago when asked whether there would be prior consultation with the White House in any such project.

"First, let me say that I have no contemplation on the part of United States Steel at the moment with respect to any major change in the level of our prices," he replied.

Queried about the possibility of increases on selected steel products, as distinguished from an across-the-board hike, Blough said: "I didn't intend to convey any impression whatsoever with respect to that. I would say that is a matter which would have to be taken up in the future."

Accompanying the earnings report was declaration of a 75 cents a share dividend on common stock, the same payment directors have voted each quarter since the start of 1957.

This action put an end to speculation in Wall Street that a cut to 50 cents a share might be forth coming.

Blough declined any forecast on what directors may decide in the future on the dividend rate.

He turned aside several questions seeking expressions on the events of April 10-13 when the Kennedy administration mounted a mighty offensive to force U.S. Steel and companies that followed its lead to back down on the price rise.

In some cases, he said, he had spoken out before.

But he did credit the decision of Inland Steel Co. and some other firms against going along with having more influence than government actions in bringing about the retreat.

He said he opposed an administrative suggestion for a special commission to survey the steel industry. Any such study, he said, should not be limited to just the steel business.

Blough said nearly $46.9 million of first quarter profits were allocated for common stock and preferred dividends and the remainder for retiring bonded indebtedness.

He said all sorts of undesirable consequences would flow from continued inability to set aside any earnings for reinvestment in the $4.3-billion corporation.

Ultimately, he said, inability to compete might lead to a reduction of jobs in steel and in the machinery business which makes equipment for the industry.

"It will also have a bearing, I think, eventually, on our balance of payments and everything else," he added.

"Over a period of time a profitless business is the worst kind of employer that an employe ever had," he remarked.

The earnings compared with $32 million in the first quarter of 1961 at the depths of the recent business recession and $112.6 million in the boom period of January-March 1960.

The showing a year ago was the poorest for any quarter not affected by a strike in the last 10 years.

In the quarter just ended, production came to 7,964,811 tons, the best since the January-March period of 1960 when steel plants were operating full blast after a 116-day strike.

World's Fair Is Giving Seattle Cultural Boom

By BOB THOMAS

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The World's Fair is giving Seattle a great cultural leap forward. All that other American cities need to follow suit is some imagination and several million dollars.

You had only to witness the Century 21 Exposition's opening night gala to sense Seattle's transition from a cultural backwoods to a potential Athens of the West.

It was quite a show, the cream of Seattle society, plus some skimmilk visitors, gathered in the massive new marble and cherry-wood opera house to hear a concert that would do justice to any musical capital in the world.

First Milton Katims conducted the accomplished Seattle Symphony through a Beethoven symphony. Then bushy-haired Van Cliburn ripped through a Rachmaninoff concerto in his histrionic style.

The glittering audience rose to cheer Igor Stravinsky as the crickety neo-eclecticist walked gingerly to the podium. He conducted his Firebird Suite with vigor.

This was a dazzling start to what shapes up as the most culture-minded world's fair in history. The performing arts committee has combed the world for attractions such as England's Old

Vic Company, India's Uday Shankar dancers, the Philippines Bayanihan dancers, the Ukrainian State Dance Company, Foo-Hsing Chinese Theater, Le Comedie Cadanienne, Royal Dramatic Theater of Sweden, and D'Oyly Carte Opera of England, etc.

For the less long-haired there will be Victor Borge, Roy Rogers, Lawrence Welk, Count Basie, Benny Goodman, Ella Fitzgerald, Arthur Godfrey and even Yogi Berra and Huckleberry Hound.

What makes the Seattle fair impressive from a cultural view is the construction of magnificent new buildings to house the arts in future years. The opera house—actually an old civic auditorium that was gutted and rebuilt—may be the handsomest in the United States. Soprano Mary Costa tells me she considers the acoustics the best she has ever heard.

Built especially for the fair were a jewel-box playhouse that seats 800 and a spacious art museum. The 5,500-seat arena for ice shows and other spectacles was given a new front. The stadium, formerly for high school football, is adaptable for rodeo, water-skiing shows, etc.

The magnificent new Washington State Coliseum, almost four acres under a single, sweeping roof, can be converted to sports events and conventions for 18,000 persons.

Dick Powell One Of Few To Help Comedy On TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There are times when it seems that television land is inhabited exclusively by cowboys, crime fighters, and comedians.

That, in itself, wouldn't be so bad, but the comedians seem to be night club graduates who have taken their old routines in Danny Thomas style, into what television fondly believes a home like yours and mine—except our homes don't have those walls to wall laugh tracks.

Therefore, it is nice to report that Dick Powell, just about the last of the urbane comedy actors, is still adding a deft touch to amusing shows that fall a bit south of Noel Coward, but far north of "Pete and Gladys."

Tuesday night was a happy, example—a slight tale about a corporation lawyer retained to protect a poor working girl who had been plagiarized.

The girl, however, was a stripper of high principles whose choreography had been snatched by a rival. It was a funny idea and Powell and his aides made the most of it.

The anthology series, which has included serious as well as comedy shows, has been renewed for another NBC season. It should be — it's one of television's best.

hours.

CBS is planning a complicated realignment of its daytime schedules starting on June 18. Most interesting will be the start of a Monday-through-Friday afternoon version of "To Tell the Truth," the amusing guessing game which will continue in its Tuesday evening spot.

In the process of making room for the panel show between 3:30 and 3:55 p.m., two audience participation programs bite the dust — "Video Village" and "Video Village Jr.," a children's version of the game on Saturdays.

Also disappearing will be "The Clear Horizon," a recent addition to the ranks of soap operas that didn't catch on despite its Cape Canaveral setting.

Two vintage dramatic series will be expanded. "Brighter Day" will move into the morning line-up (11:30-11:55) and "The Secret Storm" will start 15 minutes earlier (4:43-5 p.m.).

Halla Stoddard, well known Broadway actress, has returned to her role of Pauline Fuller in "The Secret Storm" after a year's absence. Miss Stoddard, who suffered greatly during seven years as Pauline, took a leave of absence to launch a theatrical production company.

She had identified with the role so long, the departure was handled by sending the character to Mexico — and out of the story. Pauline returned Tuesday — with an adopted Mexican boy — and goodness knows what tribulations she will face in the future.

Local Group Will Attend Session

Friday, May 4, will see an influx of several hundred delegates from 16 congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses into Oxford, N. C. May 4-6 for their semi-annual circuit convention to be held at the National Guard Armory. Fifteen delegates from the Greenville, N. C. Congregation South unit will attend. Sessions begin at 6:45 p.m. Friday and continue until 6 p.m. Sunday.

The climax of the three-day assembly in Oxford is a Bible discourse Sunday at 3 p.m. entitled "Who Will Rule the World?" by H. L. Brissett, district supervisor.

The public is welcome to all sessions.

Young Speeders Are Confined

ROWLEY, Mass. (AP) — Rowley's new police chief, Robert G. Hardy, has what he feels is a sure-fire system of dealing with teen-age speeders.

He takes away their driving licenses and insists they stay home evenings for 15 days.

"It hits them where they don't like it," the chief says.

Newspapers Not 'Fading Away' Says ANPA Chief

NEW YORK (AP)—The president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association attacked as irresponsible today those critics who would "have the public believe newspapers (are) fading away."

Mr. Ferree, ANPA president, told more than 1,200 publishers at the ANPA convention that "a new slendancy has crept into some of the professional criticism leveled at newspapers — something quite the opposite of constructive criticism."

In a prepared address, Ferree argued that such critics chop at the roots of the newspaper tree, "never recognizing that they, with all free citizens, live and work in the shade of that very tree."

Ferree, executive vice president and general business manager of Scripps-Howard Newspapers, warned that if newspapers—as a fully independent medium of news and opinion—faded, "criticism would wither, not for lack of a target but for lack of its chief protector."

He declared that newspapers were prepared to use imaginatively all opportunities of the space age, and announced the creation of a scientific advisory committee of the ANPA.

The committee will assess ways of adapting the latest scientific findings and equipment to newspaper technology, he said.

It will consist of Athelstan F. Spilhaus, dean of the University of Minnesota's Institute of Technology, committee chairman; Trevor Gardner, chairman and president of the Hycon Manufacturing Co., Monrovia, Calif.; and Dr. John Pierce, executive director of research - communications principles division, Bell Telephone Laboratories, Murray Hill, N.J.

Ferree said newspapers had changed to protect the public's right to know and to respond to its needs in the space age.

Ferree said a recent survey showed that newspapers go into nine of 10 suburban and city homes, and are read thoroughly by seven of 10 readers. More than one-third of advertising was spent on newspapers last year, and circulations have reached record highs.

Newspapers that merged or suspended publication, he said, did so because of "specific local conditions—they will not indicate a weakness in all newspapers."

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Possible hazards in hair sprays, polio vaccine and tooth banks are topics of medical reports:

Hair Spray Hazards?

A medical study raises suspicions that hair sprays may cause lung diseases in some women, and men who work as hair-dressers.

There is no proof this happens, and thousands of women have used the sprays without any apparent harmful effects, says a team of doctors.

But they tell of 15 women and men who possibly suffered lung damage from breathing in particles of resins used in hair sprays. They found evidence of lung damage either in X rays, in examinations of bits of tissue, and in autopsies of three women.

It is known, they say, that people can breathe in the resin particles, but they didn't find the particles in the lungs. Animals exposed to the hair sprays haven't shown lung damage.

Nonetheless, Dr. Martin Bergman of St. Louis, Mo., and six associates say they think the study raises a strong assumption that breathing in too much of the hair spray material can cause trouble in susceptible persons.

Polio Vaccine

The new live-virus polio vaccine now is becoming available, but a committee of the American Academy of Pediatrics sees no emergency or urgency to give it to persons who have already had the full series of killed-virus of Salk vaccine shots and boosters.

Most paralytic polio occurs now among persons who didn't get Salk vaccine, it says. The specialists urge more effort to use the Sabin or live-virus vaccine in persons who as yet have had no vaccination. The Sabin vaccine offers several advantages, and "its use on a community wide basis whenever an epidemic of polio strikes an area."

Extra Teeth

One day you may be able to call on a tooth bank to replace missing teeth.

As an initial step, teeth have been preserved and grown outside the body in research by Dr. Robert Gerstner at the New York University Dental Center. Teeth in early stages of growth can be treated with an anti-freeze, glycerol, and then freeze-stored for years. They grow normally again after quick thawing.

Tooth buds from experiment animals have been grown in nutrient flasks up to the time when they are ready for formation of hard enamel. Dr. Gerstner now hopes to find enzymes which will start the formation of the enamel.

Scholarship To Study Abroad Is Announced

Margaret Ann Parker of Pendleton, sophomore at East Carolina College, has been announced as the 1962 recipient of a $650 Scholarship for Summer Study Abroad offered by the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Parker of Pendleton.

A major in French, with an English minor, Miss Parker plans to study in France. At East Carolina she has been included on the Dean's List of Superior Students each quarter since she enrolled at the college.

V. Karen McLawhorn, senior art major from Vanceboro, was named alternate. Her study project is planned for Norway.

The winner of the AAUW award is selected on the basis of qualifications indicating outstanding ability to benefit from foreign study, the scholastic record of the applicant figuring as a dominant fact in the selection.

Miss Parker is the fourth winner of the award and the second to study in a French university.

Final Meet For PTA Thursday

The Parent Teachers Association of the Junior High School will hold their last meeting of the year Thursday at eight o'clock in the school auditorium.

Guest speakers for the meeting will be O. E. Dowd, principal of Rose High School; Junius Rose, superintendent of Greenville City Schools; Mrs. Ellen Carroll, director of instruction; George McRorie, counselor at Rose High. The topic of discussion will be "How to Guide Your Child Into The Correct High School Program."

Mrs. Vivian Beach will give a short musical program.

Politicos Wound Up Off Course

WESTERNPORT, Md. (AP)—Politicians campaigning in Westernport, Md., for the state's primary election accidentally wound up in Keyser, W. Va., the other day, instead of in Westernport.

It turned out the driver of the campaign bus failed to make the right turn in the highway because he was busy listening to Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein, one of the candidates aboard.

Bess Myerson Plans To Wed

NEW YORK (AP)—Television personality Bess Myerson and Arnold M. Grant, a New York lawyer, obtained a marriage license Tuesday.

No details of the time or place of the wedding, the second for each, were given on the application. Miss Myerson, who was Miss America in 1945, is 37 and Grant is 34.

Legislative Goals Will Be Aired At PTA Convention

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Delegates to the North Carolina PTA convention got a look today at legislative goals for which the organization will press during the coming year.

The goals include, among others, the tentative $90 million 1963-1965 legislative program already endorsed by the United Forces for Education.

The convention opened Tuesday with Mrs. H. S. Godwin of Greensboro, the president, presiding. Mrs. Godwin told the 400 delegates at Tuesday night's first general session that school questions, and others affecting the welfare of children, likely will again be hotly contested in the 1963 Legislature.

The convention this year has as its theme "Community Concerns — PTA Responsibility." The three-day program includes discussions on such things as finance and legislation safety and health of children, recreation and physical fitness, qualification and the manner of selection of school board members, and school curriculum.

A top speaker this morning was Dr. Ellen Winston, state superintendent of welfare. With her on a symposium on the legislative needs of children, were Dr. Roy Norton, state health officer, and Everett Miller, assistant superintendent of public instruction.

Group meetings were to occupy the afternoon session. These were to discuss such topics as public schools, safety, physical fitness and recreation.

Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of schools, is to speak tonight. New officers will be elected Thursday.

Mrs. Godwin told the group the state now is entering the biennial period for statewide discussions of public questions, to be climaxed by elections, and later by the deliberations and enactment of the 1963 General Assembly.

"School question," she added, "and perhaps others affecting the care and well-being of our children may again be among the most hotly contested issues." She admonished that during this period of discussions the PTA should be biased only in favor of the best care and schooling, justly apportioned, that the state can afford for its children. The tax load should be fairly distributed, she added.

The convention's keynote speaker, Mrs. Aron Margulis of Santa Fe, N. M., spoke Tuesday night. She urged parents and teachers to conserve their time and resources to work only for PTA programs that will provide the most for children.

Leisure-Time Drive Is Boon To One Industry

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—The drive

for shorter work weeks and longer vacations and earlier retirement with larger pensions may worry the corporate cost accountants. But it spells good times for the large and growing number of persons and industries offering personal services, recreation and travel facilities, and allied leisure-time pursuits.

With more people having more time on their hands and more money in their pockets, the personal services and the recreation industries can't see how they can do anything but prosper.

The trend has been strongly that way in the last decade. And this is one factor in President Kennedy's campaign to increase the nation's public recreational facilities.

The new push is coming from this year's drive of labor to emphasize the fringe benefits as much or more than the hourly wage scale.

The steel industry, with its new labor contract providing fringe benefits without immediate pay raises is an example—quite aside from the squeeze this puts on steel profits at current prices.

Part of the drive is built on fear of automation taking away more jobs. Shorter work weeks, longer vacations, earlier retirement, all are advance as ways of creating more jobs, or at least as many as there were before the machines began doing more and more of what men and women once did.

Part of the drive is because competition for existing jobs is increasing with the prospect of much larger labor forces in the years just ahead.

In 1947, the Department of Commerce says, the consumer spent 31 cents of each dollar for services. In the first three months of 1962 he spent 42 cents. Total consumer spending, meantime, had risen at a pace closely tied to the increase in nation's total output of goods and services. That is, since the Korean War, consumer spending has ranged from 64 per cent to 66 per cent of this gross national product.

Until now the big gains have been in spending for interest payments, hospital and health insurance, medical care, and household repairs.

But in the future there may be more spending on the varied forms of recreation, from sports to travel.

This is because the nation seems set on a course toward more leisure time. The cost accountants may say we can't afford it. But from the signs this year and last, we're going to try it anyway. And those who help people kill time, or to improve their minds or bodies, expect to prosper.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

When a heating or cooling system is installed in a new house, it is designed to answer the requirements of that particular house. The idea is to provide enough heat or cool air to take care of the comfort of a family living in a house that size.

If the equipment is inadequate, the amount of heat or air circulated through the house will be insufficient to meet the family's needs. If it is too large, maintenance costs will be excessive.

Proceeding, then, on the assumption that a heating or cooling system works properly when a house is built, what happens when the owner decides to expand? He finds, on many occasions, that the addition of more living space — whether it be a bedroom, a finished attic or a porch — creates a problem. Either the present system can not handle the extra load or he must provide additional heat or cooling.

One solution to the need for more heat is a space heater, which can use gas, oil, kerosene or electricity. This usually is the less expensive heating equipment to install, but not always the most economical to operate. Incidentally, a space heater should include provisions for safety controls or venting. It's wise to check your local building code before installing it.

Electric resistance baseboard units provide more uniform heating than space heaters. Where electric rates are low, the cost of operating is low. Where the rates are high, the operating expense is high.

One type of separate heating system uses a small hot water boiler. A tiny pump is used to convey heated water from the boiler through finger-sized tubing to baseboard heating panels in the new room.

Still another way to handle the situation is by expanding the existing central heating system. This should not be done without the advice of a reliable heating contractor, who can determine whether the heating plant is large enough for expansion purposes. It is said that a hydronics system often can be expanded without extensive alterations to the system or to the house itself.

For solving cooling problems, window-type air conditioners are very effective in a single room. If your present cooling system uses ducts to extend cooling throughout the house from a central cooling source, it may be possible to install a new duct from the main unit to the new room. An extension of the existing equipment is also possible where there is a chilled water unit coming from a central water chiller to convectors.

DIED IN PANIC

ODEMISH, Turkey (AP)—Fears that the roof was about to cave in under a heavy rain set off a panic in a small movie house Tuesday. Four persons — three women and a child — were killed and more than 100 injured in the ensuing stampede.

Gives Okay To Cape Fear Dam

RALEIGH (AP) — The Raleigh News and Observer said today the chief of Army Engineers has given his approval to construction of a $25 million dam on the Cape Fear River in Chatham county.

The approval report has been sent to interested federal and state agencies, the paper said.

The dam, to be built in the New Hope section is the key item in a flood control program which has won approval of the Engineers' Rivers and Harbors Board.

According to the news story, the recommendation is now ready for consideration by the Department of the Interior, Public Health Service, Soil Conservation Service and the North Carolina Water Resources Department.

From there it will go to congressional committees and finally be acted on by the Congress.

The Soil Conservation Service has won the backing of Rep. Harold Cooley for its plan to control the Cape Fear by 232 small dams.

Rep. Alton Lennon favors the big New Hope dam proposal.

Visitors To UN Set New Record

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Tourists visiting the United Nations set a new daily record Tuesday — 8,273, compared with 7,292 total set May 12, 1961.

The figure brought to more than 250,000 the number of persons who have toured U.N. headquarters since the first of the year.

Experts Ready Study Of Rice

MANILA (AP) — A modest community of international scientists is being collected here to keep the rice bowls of Asia full. "Ninety-three percent of the world's rice is consumed in the Orient," says Robert F. Chandler, director of the new International Rice Research Institute. "Right now the amount of rice being produced is roughly sufficient to meet consumption needs. "But populations in this part of the world are growing a lot faster than rice production. If it keeps up this way, there won't be enough rice to go around." Chandler's job is to blaze a trail to more rice. With funds from the Rockefeller and Ford Foundations, he is setting up the institute at Los Banos, 40 miles from Manila. It should be operating by July.

Experts will experiment with new strains of rice, fight plant diseases and study techniques of cultivation. They also will instruct Asian trainees in research methods.

There will be 20 to 30 senior scientists. So far two each from India, Formosa, Ceylon and the Philippines and three from the United States have been selected. Chandler, a soil scientist who formerly was president of the University of New Hampshire, says a 200-acre farm where the ories can be put to practical tests will be adjacent to the institute buildings. Attention there also will be given to developing rice farming machinery and small tools.

Despite decreases in many of the larger cities, U. S. urban population increased in all 50 states during the past decade.

Wife-Swapping Club Uncovered

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Police say that a friendship club for lonely couples turned out to be a wife-swapping sex club.

"I've been a vice officer for 11 years and never saw anything like this before," said detective Leonard Alter.

Taken into custody were Harvey L. Braswell, 65, and his wife Sarah Ethel, 60, of suburban Rialto, and Steve F. Ference, 42, and his wife Helen, 38, of nearby Riverside. The four were charged with conspiring to commit acts injurious to the public morals and outrageous to public decency.

Braswell offered to plead guilty at his arraignment Tuesday but the judge informed him it was not the proper time to enter a plea. A preliminary hearing was set for May 7 in Municipal Court. The couples were released under bond.

Detective Alter described the Braswells as the ringleaders. He said the two couples were arrested Monday night at the home of a young couple who had moved here from the East.

The new arrivals, police said, answered one of a number of newspaper advertisements offering to find new friends for lonely couples. After answering the ad, they were told about a friendship club consisting of 18 couples.

Members met at the easterners' home several weeks ago. Another rendezvous was planned for Tuesday night. Police were staked out when the Braswells and Ferences arrived.

Alter said investigators learned that since 1959, letters responding to the newspaper ads had come from Colton Highland, Indio, Pomona, San Pedro, Los Angeles, Adelanto and Blythe, Calif., and from Borger and Amarillo, Texas.

Police seized about 50 letters at Braswell's home and said they would turn them over to postal authorities for investigation.

The district attorney's complaint alleges that the participants offered to meet to arrange parties and then swap mates for the purpose of engaging in immoral acts. Braswell was further accused of placing an advertisement in a newspaper for the purpose of carrying out the alleged conspiracy. Braswell identified himself as a retired Redwood City, Calif., contractor and also claimed to be an ordained minister.

Many Uses For Hearse Trade-Ins

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP) — J. B. Norfleet gives away hearses and he gets requests from all over the country. Folks use them for Sunday School buses.

"I have given away hearses and ambulances to churches all over the Eastern seaboard, from Florida to up North and as far west as Ohio and Tennessee," Norfleet said.

Norfleet, a dealer, gets the hearses and ambulances in trade on new ones. Fixed up with seats in the back they seat about 15 persons. He has given away from 50 to 65 so far and expects to give away 15 to 20 this year. They go mostly to small rural churches.

Cases Heard In Police Court

The following cases were disposed of by Judge Charles H. Whedbee on April 23 in Municipal Recorder's Court.

Clifford H. Carraway, Rt. 1, Greenville, violated court order and probation, 90 days in jail and on roads; James S. Harrington, 1402 Washington St., fail to stop for a stop sign, paid costs; William C. Naval Team To Stop At College

Representatives from the Raleigh Office of Naval Officer Programs and the Naval Air Reserve Training Unit, Norfolk, Virginia, will visit East Carolina College at Greenville, North Carolina for the purpose of explaining the Navy's commissioned officer programs to interested individuals. The team will be located in the College Union, May 1-2, 1962.

Openings are available for assignment in Aviation, General Line, and several specialty categories. Most of the programs are open for application only to college seniors; however, undergraduates who have completed 60 semester hours of accredited college work may apply for appointment as a Naval Aviator Cadet.

Any student who meets the required standards and is within 9 months of graduation may take the qualification test and make application with the visiting Navy Procurement Team. Those who take the qualification tests or who make application and subsequently change their mind are not obligated in any way.

All students are urged and welcome to stop by and talk with the team about their plans for military service.

College Women Must Apply By May 15

"The Atlanta headquarters for Marine Corps recruiting announced today that less than one month remains for college women, both seniors and recent graduates, to apply for a commission this summer as a Woman Marine Officer." May 15, continued Staff Sergeant Leo Smith, local Marine recruiter, is the deadline, and there remains but seven vacancies in the quota for the Dixie States.

Women Marine Candidates train at historic Marine Corps Schools on the Potomac at Quantico, Va. Following initial training Women Marine Officers are assigned in several specialized fields, including administration, finance, aerology, machine accounting and communications.

For further information on becoming a Woman Marine Officer, contact your local Marine recruiter at the Pitt County House in Greenville, or write Woman Marine Officer, 50 Seventh Street, NE, Atlanta 23, Ga.

Family Hit By Tons Of Water

BOLZANO, Italy (AP) — The four members of the Dietelmann family, on vacation from their home in Germany, were sunning themselves on rocks below a dam near this north Italian town, unaware that water behind the flood gates was rising toward a level that automatically opened the barrier.

Moments later tons of water crashed down on them, drowning Hildegard Dietelmann, 28, and daughter Ingeborg, 3. The husband, Reinhard, 29, a school teacher from Stuttgart, managed to save himself and daughter Ursula, 5.

Big Dump Truck Stopped Short

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A seven-ton dump truck tumbled down an embankment Tuesday and stopped just short of the Hollywood Hills home of actress Janis Paige, narrowly missing a bedroom where Miss Paige was dressing.

Columbus Bryant, 32, told police he had left the truck parked on a drive above Miss Paige's home. He said he had no idea how it broke loose.

NEW HAIRDO.—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy wore this new hairdo at a White House state dinner for the Shah and Empress of Iran. The hair style is called "Brioche."

Boone Helped On Pioneer Road

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky's first interstate highway—historic Wilderness Road—was under construction prior to the Revolutionary War. One of its engineers was Daniel Boone, who cut part of the road from Cumberland Gap to Boonesboro, Ky., in 1775.

Historians say the road began in West Virginia and wound through the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Parts of the road extended into Tennessee and North Carolina.

In Kentucky, the road forked with one path going to Boonesboro and the other leading to Harrodsburg and Louisville. Much of the road in Central Kentucky at one time had been a buffalo path leading to feeding grounds along the Ohio River.

Students and faculty at Michigan State University have contributed 1,500 books to the University of Nigeria.

NEW YORK (AP) — Steel headed a sharp stock market decline early this afternoon. Trading was moderate. Aluminums retreated. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 1.50 at 253.40 with industrials off 2.40, rails off .60 and utilities off .60.

Losses of key stocks went from fractions to 2 or 3 points.

Steels more than wiped out their recovery of the previous session when they were anticipating U.S. Steel's action in declaring the regular 75-cent dividend.

Security analysts reported some disappointment that Big Steel had earnings of only 91 cents a share

Disagrees With Mayor's View

WINTERVILLE — George W. Harris Jr. of Winterville today took issue with statements concerning the trailer situation in town.

Harris said this morning that trailers are parked in side and back yards of local homes, and not in front and back yards of homes, as Mayor Walter Dail had stated.

He also pointed out that he had counted 14 trailers in the town limits and one outside the town limits, taking issue with a statement that there were approximately 30 trailers in the Winterville area.

A public hearing was held on Monday night to obtain public opinion and bring out issues involved in setting up an ordinance regulating the parking of trailers and establishment of trailer parks in the town. At the present time, there is no law governing location of trailers. Consequently, the town has no authority as to where they are located.

Harris identified himself as a candidate for magistrate and said he might be "thinking about running for another office." He said he let trailers park on some of his land.

All Residents Of Apartment Safely Flee Fire

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The Colonial Apartments in downtown Wilmington took fire in predawn darkness today, and all residents of the 27 apartments were evacuated safely.

Two women were overcome by smoke and hospitalized. They were Miss Emma Jones, 64, and Miss Letha Calhoun, 62.

Fire Chief David E. Millnor said he believed the three-story brick building would be virtually a total loss. One of the owners, Horace Pearsall Jr., said the building was valued on the tax books at $60,000. However, tax valuation is lower than actual value, and the building was estimated to be worth about $200,000.

The fire started in the furance room in the basement.

The YMCA next door was evacuated.

The apartments are at Third and Markets streets, near the Y and the City Hall.

Kindergarten Visits Patients

The tots of the Rev. K. T. Hall's kindergarten took Easter eggs to Pitt Memorial Hospital Negro patients on Friday, it was reported.

Two programs were rendered by the group at the hospital. In other activities, the youngsters visited South Greenville School.

Rev. Hall stated that it was hoped the visit to the hospital would instill understanding for others in the young people.

Mrs. Rosa Jones, parent of one of the students, accompanied the group.

Firemen Respond To 2 Summons

GRIFTON — The Grifton Volunteer Fire Department answered two calls this week, one to a home on Pitt Street and the other, a grass fire in a vacant lot on Gordon Street.

Chief Wilbur Murphy said the house, reportedly occupied by Mary Croom, was not burned to the ground but was a total loss for habitation. The fire apparently began from a heater.

Mrs. Oscar Stokes Died Last Night

Mrs. Lucy Hardee Stokes, 61, wife of Oscar L. Stokes, died at about 11 o'clock Tuesday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. L. Grubbs on Church Street in Greenville. She had suffered a heart attack seven weeks ago. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Mrs. Stokes was a lifelong resident of the Ayden Community and had lived near Helen's Crossroads for ten years. She was a member of Timothy Christian Church at Gardner's Crossroads.

Surviving are her husband; five daughters, Mrs. Warren G. Jarman of Jacksonville, Mrs. Willie Ray Cannon of Winterville, Mrs. D. L. Grubbs, and Mrs. Milton Wainwright of Greenville, and Miss Margie Nancy Stokes of the home; four sons, Jamie Gray Stokes of Greenville, Jimmy Lee Stokes of Ayden, Richard C. Stokes of the home, and William O. Stokes of Jacksonville; 19 grandchildren; and three sisters, Mrs. Eva Hardee of Ayden, Mrs. Possie Mills of Black Jack and Mrs. David Briley of Grimesland.

Grimesland — James Howard Vance of Rt. 2 died Tuesday. Funeral services will be held Friday at 4 p.m. at Spring Branch Baptist Church, located near Calico. The Rev. J. T. Taylor of Greenville will officiate and burial will follow in the Church Cemetery.

Mr. Vance was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Vance. He was a member of Spring Branch Baptist Church, where he served on the Usher Board and a member of the eighth grade at Pitt County Training School, Grimesland.

Surviving in addition to his parents are five sisters, Mrs. Lucille Wilson of the home, Mrs. Bertha Mae Johnson and Mrs. Mary Homer, of Geneva, N.Y.; Mrs. Catherine Homer of Columbus, S. C. and Mrs. Sylvia Homer of New York, N.Y.; a brother Wallace Homer of the home.

Grimesland — Miss Mary Lee Clark of Vero Beach, Fla. became the bride of Gamaliel Gooding of Grifton in an afternoon ceremony Thursday at the bride's home.

Miss Clark is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. EdStimon Clark. Mr. Gooding is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Charlie Gooding. Mr. and Mrs. Gooding will make their home in Vero Beach, Fla.

REFLECTOR NEWSPRINT scheduled for delivery here today ended up about eight miles short of its goal when the truck delivering the cargo overturned on U.S. 264 about 6:45 a.m. today. Patrolman D. L. Minshew of Farmville, who investigated the crash, said driver of the vehicle reported he lost control of the big van when the load shifted as he was rounding a sharp curve between Ballards and Langs Cross Roads. The truck load of paper was scheduled to be the first load of newsprint to be delivered here by truck. Driver of the truck, who was not identified, received bruises in the crash which caused an estimated $4,000 damage to the vehicle. (Reflector Staff Photo).
