Scores Of Americans In Protest Against Testing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Scores of Americans are protesting United States' resumption of nuclear testing in the atmosphere with small demonstrations across the country. There has been no violence. The United States resumed the atmospheric tests last Wednesday amid continuing disarmament talks in Geneva. The Soviet Union had broken a moratorium on testing last Sept. 1. Norman Thomas, seven times Socialist candidate for President, joined 26 pickets in New York's Times Square Friday night after the U.S. touched off two more blasts—one in the air over the Pacific and the other underground in Nevada. Thomas said the resumption of nuclear testing was "in effect creating a moral war" and said his appearance was "to show I am in sympathy with these people." The pickets represented the Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy. The Denver Committee for Non-Violent Action scheduled for today the first of a series of Saturday demonstrations it says will continue until the tests are over. A spokesman said there would be peaceful parading at the Civic Center. A demonstration in Cedar Rapids Iowa, was scheduled by the Iowa City Students Peace Union, Grinnell (Iowa) College Students for Peace and other organizations. In Washington, the Women's Strike for Peace planned a local demonstration. At Miami, Fla., 10 Cuban refugees bearing clubs showed up Friday only minutes after 20 students had demonstrated for two hours before the Dade County courthouse. Police sent the refugees home, and there was no violence. Eight other students had counter-picketed the Students for Peace. Approximately 45 women and children paraded for three hours in the Capital Square at Madison, Wis. They carried umbrellas and signs protesting fallout. In Los Angeles, 30 members of Women's Fight for Peace attempted to picket the Federal Building, but were forced to set up lines across the street because of the great number of pickets and counter-pickets already there. Object of the early arrivals was the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities, which held a hearing in the Federal Building. At Berkeley, Calif., two demonstrators—one a U.S. Navy man in uniform—were arrested for lying across the front steps of the Atomic Energy Commission building. They were among 14 demonstrators protesting the nuclear tests. The sailor, Gunner's Mate 2C Michael A. Kirby, was described as a conscientious objector from Seattle, Wash., whose four year enlistment expires June 15. He was taken to the Navy brig at Treasure Island. Earlier in the week, various groups had demonstrated peacefully in Chicago, Baltimore, San Francisco, Lawrence, Kan., and Columbus, Ohio.

Terrorists Hit, Run In Paris

PARIS (AP)—Hit-and-run raiders machine gunned and bombed a police station and blew up a newspaper office near Paris early today. The attacks were the first of their kind in several weeks in France. Officials feared they may signal a new Secret Army Organization terror campaign in France. Both the police station and newspaper office were heavily damaged in the nearly simultaneous raids in the town of Estampes, 25 miles west of Paris. One woman was injured slightly, and several police officers narrowly missed death. The terrorists hit the police station as the guard was being changed. Machine gunners in a car sprayed the front of the building, shattering windows on the second floor. Seconds later a grenade exploded against a bottom floor window, damaging the station's interior. Police who rushed to the windows were driven back by another burst of machine gun fire as the terrorist car sped off in the direction of Paris. Almost at the same moment, a plastic bomb exploded in a doorway of the "Marseillaise de Seine Oise" newspaper. The front of the building, recently repaired following another terrorist attack, was heavily damaged. Windows in buildings for several hundred yards around were shattered. The secret army terrorist campaign to keep Algeria French has continued unabated in the North African territory, despite the loss of the outlawed organization's key leaders. But terrorist attacks in France had dwindled under police crackdowns. In Tunis, sharp differences in the Algerian rebel hierarchy have come to light. The first indications of trouble came last Wednesday when the rebels' official press agency published a communique reporting an apparently minor military incident between the French and rebels near the Tunisian-Algerian frontier. Shortly afterward, the high command of the rebel army put out a much stronger communique denouncing the French army for "daily provocations." A similar incident occurred Friday. The rebel press agency, operated by the Ministry of Information, released a commentary on terrorist activity in Algiers, saying the situation "is getting worse." Shortly afterward, the army published a sharper statement on the same subject and notified journalists that it had opened its own press office. Some observers believed that the army was dissatisfied with the cease-fire accords negotiated by rebel political leaders. In Algeria, terrorist attacks killed 13 Moslems and two Europeans and wounded nine Moslems and seven Europeans Friday.

Kennedy, Macmillan In First Talks On Cold War

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan conferred at the White House today on wide-ranging cold war issues including nuclear testing, and Western efforts to work out a Berlin settlement with Russia. Diplomats said the weekend little summit meeting between the two men may produce a new Western call for an enforceable test ban treaty with Russia plus a promise to halt U.S. testing in the Pacific the moment Russia signs such a pact. Kennedy was expected to tell Macmillan that Secretary of State Dean Rusk is making slow but steady progress in his probing with Russia of the possibilities of an East-West Berlin agreement. Rusk considers the prospects for success completely uncertain but slightly hopeful. Rusk met for 90 minutes Friday with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin. They agreed to say nothing afterward about the details of their discussion. The State Department would say only "they discussed Germany and Berlin," and covered a wide range of subjects related to those topics. The tone of the talk was described by U.S. officials variously as correct, businesslike, friendly and relaxed. Aides said that Rusk did not make any new proposals on terms for a Berlin settlement. Macmillan arrived here in late afternoon from New York. Kennedy, who had just flown in from Florida where he had vacationed for 10 days, met the prime minister at Andrews Air Force Base for a ceremony with full military honors, including a 19-gun salute. Macmillan said he and Kennedy are holding their fifth meeting at a time when there is "much cause for anxiety" in the world but also much need for patience and firmness combined. Friday night Kennedy and Macmillan topped the guest list at a banquet of White House correspondents and photographers. The two men arranged to meet through Saturday evening—from a mid-morning talk at the White House through a dinner at the British embassy Saturday night. The conference will end late Sunday afternoon and Macmillan will fly to Canada. Diplomats expect the two leaders to issue a statement stressing U.S. willingness to halt nuclear tests in the Pacific any time the Soviet government will sign a reliable nuclear test ban treaty. The United States fired off a second nuclear device at dawn Friday over Christmas Island. The first atmospheric blast in the series was set off Wednesday. The welcome Kennedy gave Macmillan under a brilliant afternoon sun was unusually elaborate and ceremonious for a prime minister arriving for informal talks. Units of all branches of the armed forces in dress uniform formed an honor guard and the U.S. Air Force Band played God Save the Queen and the Star Spangled Banner. Kennedy acclaimed Macmillan as "a distinguished captain in the field in defense of the West" and said he had come to Washington "at a most significant time." Kennedy also said their talks would cover the problems of "those countries scattered around the world whose security and integrity and freedom the United States and Britain are committed to maintain." They were, in fact, expected to cover the progress of the struggle against the spread of communism.

Proposal Doesn't Please Gen. Clay

BERLIN (AP)—Lucius D. Clay, President Kennedy's special representative in Berlin, says he is not happy over a U.S. proposal to include East German Communists on an international authority to control Berlin's lifelines. Clay said, however, that the idea of East German's presence on such a control authority could not be ruled out because of the possible alternatives, including resorting to force. The retired U.S. Army general, who was instrumental in breaking the Russians' 1948-49 blockade of Berlin, was sent here again after the Communists began building their wall through Berlin last August. Clay reportedly often advocated a tougher line toward the East Germans and their Soviet allies than officials in Washington would permit. Clay, now winding up his duties here, gave substance to these reports while speaking in a televised forum with German editors Friday night. He said on some issues he went directly to Kennedy and the President always backed him up. "There were instances, however, where I did not consider the proposals I had to make of sufficient importance to go directly to the President and of course these proposals then had to be measured against the recommendations and views of others," he said. "In such instances there was usually a compromise answer, one a lot stronger than might have been the case, but quite frequently not as strong as I would like to have seen done," he said. Clay did not cite any examples of these exchanges with Washington. Clay said the West would reject anything that is a loss in the current U.S.-Soviet negotiations

Guardsmen And Reservists Head Home In August

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some 110,000 reservists and National Guardsmen will head home and civilian life between August 1 and 11, ending hitches of cold war active duty that began last October. The Army announced this demobilization schedule Friday for the more than 400 units it called up because of the Berlin crisis. Many of the men will go back to service as part-time soldiers, attending weekly or monthly reserve drills. All were called to active duty for up to one year. President Kennedy announced April 11 that guardsmen and reservists called up by the Army, Air Force and Navy would be released during August, barring a major new international crisis. The Navy has announced it will release 8,000 reservists and their 40 ships and 18 air squadrons on Aug. 1. The Air Force has not yet set release dates for the 27,000 men it mustered. The Army said it plans to release reservists within two days after their units get home from active duty stations. Reserve drills will resume "immediately," the Army said. But it added that the activated reservists won't have to put in the usual 15-day tour at summer training camps this year. These North Carolina units are to begin departure on the dates indicated: On Aug. 1, 123 Signal Detachment RQ, Wilmington; 824 Transportation Co., heavy boat, Morehead City. On Aug. 5, 325 Chemical Co., Depot CZ, High Point; 801 Signal Depot, HHC, Charlotte; 991 Transportation Co., heavy truck, Salisbury; 312 Adjutant General Postal Unit, TYF, Charlotte. On Aug. 7, 814 Transportation Battalion, aircraft maintenance and supply HHD, Albemarle. On Aug. 9, 310 Medical Detachment, dental; Durham; 861 Quartermaster Co., aerial repair, Fayetteville; 730 Signal Co., radio relay VHF, Winston-Salem; 227 Transportation Co., medium truck, Albemarle.

Trustees Of Wake Forest Vote Desegregate College

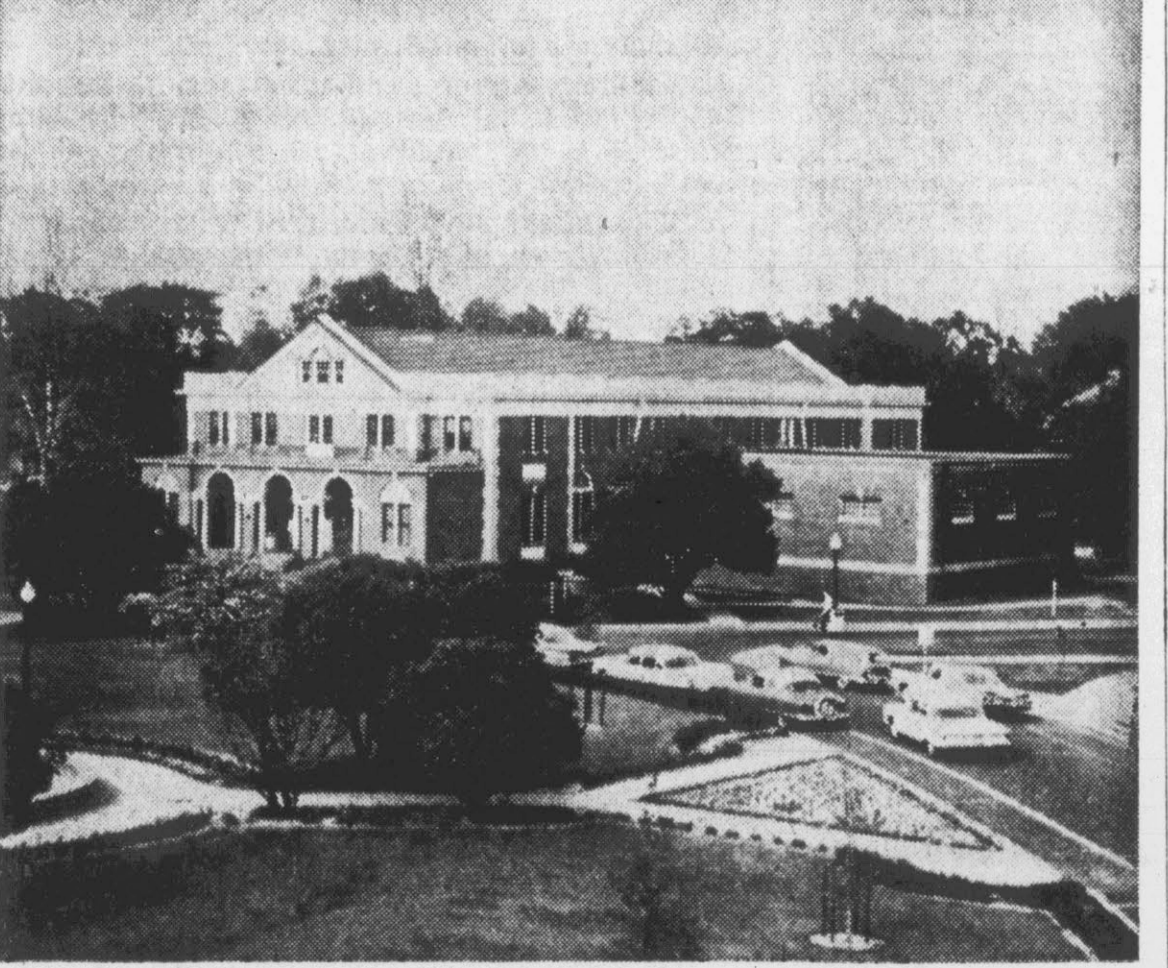

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Trustees of Baptist-supported Wake Forest College have completed the job of desegregating all schools within the 128-year-old college. After almost 1 1/2 hours of debate behind closed doors Friday, the trustees voted 17-9—with four other trustees abstaining—to accept a recommendation of their Race Relations Committee and admit Negro students as undergraduates. The new policy takes effect immediately. Negroes have been allowed to enter as graduate students and to enroll in night and summer school classes since last year. Five of the 35 trustees were absent. The trustees also voted 16-4 to take no action against Wake Forest's Communications director, Russell Brantley, who has been under attack since the publication recently of his first novel, "The Education of Jonathan Beam." The book dealt with attempts of a State Baptist convention to control teachers at a fictitious college, identified by many readers as filled with "vulgarity, foul language, a picture of drunkenness and other misconduct at Wake Forest College." The book and its 37-year-old author were considered near the end of the meeting, when many of the trustees had left. One trustee said the action "represents the view of the board of trustees that it has no business controlling thought or trying to tell a man how to write a book." Brantley sat in on the discussion, then, as communications director of the college, had the job

Dedicating ECC Music Hall On May 6

WHICHARD MUSIC HALL dedication planned. Music Hall at East Carolina College will be dedicated to David Julian Whichard of Greenville, publisher of the "Greenville Daily Reflector," in ceremonies conducted in the Band and Orchestra Rehearsal Room of the building Sunday, May 6, at 3:30 p.m. Active in newspaper affairs in North Carolina for many years, Whichard began his career as a delivery boy and later worked at various jobs on the Greenville paper, which was founded by his father and his uncle. After service in France in World War I, he purchased "The Daily Reflector" from his father and assumed active management of the newspaper as editor and publisher on July 1, 1919. Now associated with him on the newspaper are his sons, David Jordan Whichard II, editor, and John S. Whichard, business manager. He has held offices in newspaper organizations in the state including the presidency of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association and the N. C. Association of Afternoon Dailies. He has also participated in civic affairs in Greenville and Pitt County and in the activities of the American Legion. Whichard Music Hall was (Continued on Page 6)

Elizabeth Taylor 'Warned' By Italian Official

ROME (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor had an official warning today that she is going too far—even though Italians have "always been very understanding of the sometimes strange conduct of actors and actresses." The glamorous movie star's cavorting with actor Richard Burton has shocked Egidio Ariosto, who once had supervision over Italian films. Chastising the 30-year-old star for both her "amorous and non-amorous conduct," Ariosto declared, "I have the impression this time Miss Taylor is exceeding the limits and, in fact, risks destroying herself." Ariosto's present job is under-secretary of the interior, which is in charge of Italy's national police and safeguards the nation's safety and morals, among other things. Burton, 36-year-old Welshman, has his blonde wife, Sybil, and 4-year-old daughter Katy with him now in Rome, but he still has more roles to play with Miss Taylor as Marc Antony in the film "Cleopatra."

Start Training Air Commandos

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Air Force Chief of Staff Curtis E. LeMay says the Air Force has started training air commandos to battle Communist guerrillas. He told a news conference Friday that two new Air Force units are training at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., to develop techniques for use in wars like the fight in South Viet Nam. The units are the 1st Air Commando Group and the 1st Combat Applications Group. LeMay said a Special Air Warfare Center has been set up at Eglin under the command of Brig. Gen. Gilbert L. Pritchard. The air commandos will be trained to instruct other airmen in special techniques of anti-guerrilla warfare. The combat applications group will develop more effective weapons for use against guerrilla forces. Earlier reports from Washington indicated that the counter-insurgency force was being tailored to the needs of battling Communist infiltrators in South Viet Nam and that the weapons included a plan—code-named "Jungle Jim"—to rain cinder-bombing concussion bombs on hidden guerrillas. The Air Force later denied it had such a plan.

Press Award To 'Green Lights'

"The Green Lights" of Junius H. Rose High School has been presented a first place award at the annual convention of the Southern Interscholastic Press Association at Washington and Lee University, it was announced today. "The Green Lights" and the "Proconian" of Chapel Hill High School were the only first place winners in the division for schools of enrollment from 601 to 900. The local high school newspaper has been a consistent high ranking winner in the past several years in the annual scholastic press competition. Principal O. E. Dowd commented today. During the convention, the 12th annual North Carolina Scholastic Press Award of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel went to the "Hickory Twig" of Hickory High School.

Muslim Cultist Slain In Anti-Police Rioting

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A black-suited Muslim cultist was slain and four others felled by police bullets in a riot early today. Several policemen were also hurt. The gunplay and beatings took place at the antiwhite Muslim headquarters. Police said it took 75 officers to quell the riot. Investigators gave this account: The brawl started shortly after a patrolman stopped to question a man who was selling clothing out of his car. Two men jumped him, but he managed to fire a shot and hit one of his assailants. Two officers on foot patrol in the area ran to the scene just as cultists began streaming out of the two-story Muslim headquarters nearby. The cultists joined in the fighting and officers Stanley V. Kenic and Richard T. Anderson were knocked down and kicked. Officer Frank Tomlinson was wounded in the back. Four of the cult members were wounded and one, identified as Robert T. Stokes, was shot fatally. Cruising patrol cars heard the shots and put in a riot call. Police cars from three divisions converged on the scene. The first two cultists shot were dragged by their Muslim brothers to a second-story room. The officers were stretched out on the sidewalk when ambulances arrived. The Muslim organization is a secret society that professes anti-white, anti-integration and anti-Christian beliefs. It operates as a quasi-religious sect under the leadership of a "muhammad." Members usually wear black suits and ties. Officer Tomlinson's condition was listed as critical at Central Receiving Hospital. Officers Anderson and Kenic each was under treatment for head injuries. Identification of the other wounded was incomplete. Police rounded up 19 persons took them in for questioning. The scene of the violence, Muhammad's Mosque No. 1, functions as the Los Angeles headquarters for the black supremacy group. Police have estimated the cult has 3,500 members in Southern California.

Candidates File At Last Minute For Board Seats

GRIFTON—Shortly before the 1 p.m. filing deadline for the May election, incumbent W. M. January and James Conrad Hart filed to retain their commissioner seats on the Town Board, it was learned today. A third candidate, R. E. Dixon Jr., also filed for the upcoming election, late this morning. There had been some speculation here about the election, since until this morning only two candidates had filed for the three open posts. The two were Ben Tucker and Jerry Green. Tucker is a former board member while Green is a newcomer to local politics. The election will be held May 7. Commissioner E. H. Owens did not file for re-election, and consequently will retire from the board at this election.

'East Carolinian' And Staff Members To Get Press Honors

HICKORY—The "East Carolinian" of East Carolina College is being cited for outstanding photographic coverage and is receiving honorable mention for the best overall newspaper at the Carolina Collegiate Press Association banquet tonight. The number of staffers of the college paper are receiving individual awards, judged by newspaper men from over the state in the contest held earlier this year. The banquet is being held at Lenoir Rhyne College. Skip Wamsley of the "East Carolinian" is receiving both first and second place recognition in photography. Larry Bliz-zard of East Carolina College will receive the second place award in the original drawing division. Second place in editorial writing is going to Jean Peace, and honorable mention to Patsy Elliott, editor of the "East Carolinian." Miss Peace took another prize, honorable mention in the feature writing division. Another East Carolina College student, Marcelle Vogel won honorable mention in the news writing division. The "East Carolinian" as a paper was honored for "best photography." Tim Parker, director of the Associated Press bureau in Charlotte, will make the featured address, with Bill Hoffman of the "Hickory Daily Record" serving as toastmaster. Contest judges were Maj. Mallette of the "Winston-Salem Journal"; Bill East of the "Winston-Salem Sentinel"; Richard L. Young Jr., formerly of the "Charlotte News"; Woodrow Price of the "Raleigh News and Observer"; and Walter Spearman of the University of North Carolina School of Journalism. The purpose of the Carolina Collegiate Press Association is to promote good journalism among the member schools. The awards banquet is a part of the C.C.P.A.'s spring conference, which included in addition to the awards banquet an afternoon board of directors meeting.

First Church of Christ, Scientist
How divine guidance aids man in his efforts to make spiritual progress will be brought out Sunday at Christian Science church services.
The Lesson-Sermon entitled "Probation After Death" will include these words of the Psalmist: "As for God, his way is perfect; the word of the Lord is tried; he is a buckler to all those that trust in him. . . . It is God that girdeth me with strength, and maketh my way perfect." (Psalm 18)
This citation from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will also be read (p. 324).
"The way is straight and narrow, which leads to the understanding that God is the only Life. It is a warfare with the flesh in which we must conquer sin, sickness, and death, either here or hereafter—certainly before we can reach the goal of Spirit, or life in God."

Jarvis Memorial Announcements

How Important is an Inch

Not long ago Genevieve was thirty-seven inches tall. Soon she'll be thirty-eight. Just how important is that next inch?

It's all-important! Without that inch her growth will cease.

Folks sometimes underestimate the importance of a Sunday in Church or Sunday School. What difference, they think, can just one Sunday make?

But every day of worship or religious instruction adds its inch to our spiritual growth. And whenever

All About Town With Anne Mattox

The four times a couple shouldn't argue, according to Dr. Paul Popenoe, are "when a husband comes home from work, before retiring for the night, before breakfast and never."

Dr. Popenoe, internationally famous for his work in family relations and marriage counseling, gave a series of four lectures this week at East Carolina College.

Dr. Popenoe is founder and President Emeritus of the American Institute of Family Relations, Los Angeles, California, where he and his wife of 42 years make their home.

He is the father of four sons all of whom are married. Mrs. Popenoe is traveling with her husband on his six week lecture tour. The lectures are set up by Mental Health Associations, church groups, universities and colleges.

Educated at Occidental College in Los Angeles and Stanford University, he received his degree in social psychology. Having organized the Institute of Family Relations 32 years ago, he has a staff of 70 counselors. The Institute is consulted by 10,000 to 15,000 persons each year.

In an interview with Dr. Popenoe Thursday afternoon, I asked him how he became interested in being a marriage counselor. It was the "outgrowth of my interest in the production of good children," he replied.

Here are some of the questions which I asked Dr. Popenoe and his answers to them:

What type training is required to enter the field of family relations and marriage counseling? "Not any specific training, we get counselors from many fields, psychology, education in general, Home Economics and more and more clergymen are entering the field since they are much concerned with these problems, as they have to counsel in their work."

What are the most common family problems that you encounter? "When a marriage gets into trouble people think everything is wrong. People just haven't grown up emotionally; they are trying to make a child's game out of the most serious adult enterprise. Marriage is an adult enterprise."

To a couple contemplating marriage, or a newly married couple what advice would you give? "Lengthy engagements produce the most successful marriages. A person ought to know another for two years before they become engaged and then a year after engagement, before marriage. We think people ought to understand marriage before going into it. One of the greatest problems we encounter in counseling is teaching people to cooperate. It is very important to choose a mate wisely, one that shares your views and outlook, attitude and interests in life."

At what stage are the family problems when you are consulted by couples? "Unfortunately after they have been in trouble and married five to ten years. They come for help when they are in disagreement on certain problems, have differences of opinion and it is our job to get them straightened out. A lot of times family problems arise from social life or husbands working late and coming home fatigued. There are a half dozen areas in which conflict is likely to occur. One is social and recreational life, two is handling of finances, three is management of children, four is in-law problems, five is sexual partnership and six is the wife's need for some outlet outside the home."

Based on your experience what types of couples are most likely to have a happy and successful marriage? What are the least likely? "One, is the more education a couple has the more likely the marriage is to succeed; two, participating in their religion; three, people of moderate wealth; four, people who don't marry too early in life; five, childless marriages have a high rate of breakup and six, people who are determined to succeed. Real determination to succeed can overcome a lot of difficulties because they get help when their marriage is in trouble, they study the subject and meet the problem and make adjustments. The least likely would be just the opposite."

Are there any danger signs for a couple planning marriage? "Yes, if they have any real differences in religion they must solve them before marriage because it isn't easy to do after marriage. If relatives and friends are opposed to a marriage, then the couple ought to stop, look and listen. If a person has been married and divorced he ought to analyze the failure of their first marriage before they go into another marriage. The chance of a divorced person's success in a second marriage is reduced by 50 percent. It would pay people to study ways of dealing with conflicts that arise, prevent quarrels and handle them intelligently when they do arise. Keep in good health and avoid fatigue which leads to quarreling. A little planning on the part of married couples can solve a lot of problems that could be solved without coming to the Institute of Family Relations."

In the south girls are taught to cooperate with their husbands but in the north they compete with them, and statistics show that the lowest divorce rate is in the South Atlantic states which include North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, Dr. Popenoe concluded.

New Members, Officers For ECC Angel Flight

East Carolina College's Angel Flight, co-educational auxiliary group to the Arnold Air Society, Air Force ROTC, has initiated four new members and installed officers for the 1962-1963 school term. The new members have just completed a five-week pledge period.

The campus organization, one of 41 in the nation, has among its purposes maintaining high morale in Detachment 600 of the AF ROTC at East Carolina and furthering recognition of the college. Members serve as official hostesses for military events on the campus and also function as a drill unit.

Initiated as new members were Barbara Hooper of Greenville, Katherine Powell of Raleigh, Margie Harrington of Kannapolis, and Gloria Uzzell of Goldsboro.

Sally Burdette of Fayetteville has been elected Commander of the college Angel Flight. Miss Burdette, a sophomore student, is majoring in English. She is the daughter of Mrs. Mamie J. Burdette of 120 Bremer Street, Fayetteville. Her staff includes Margie Harrington, Kannapolis, as Executive Officer; Barbara Hooper, Greenville, as Comptroller; Katherine Powell, Raleigh, as Information Services Officer; and Gloria Uzzell, Goldsboro, as Historian.

'Tacky Party' And Dance Set Tonight

It's for fun, and to benefit the Pitt County Cancer Crusade; it's the annual Tacky Party dance, sponsored tonight by Greenville Women of the Moose in the Moose Auditorium.

Prizes for the "tackiest" are a customary feature of the party, but as Senior Regent Rachel Hobgood points out, "guests are free to come in casuals."

The tacky party affair has earned over the years a reputation as one of the popular entertainments, and coincidentally, has been associated with community drives of the local Moose.

Class Held In Winterville

Mrs. Ada Briley demonstrated the use of many of the attachments in sewing with Singer sewing machines when the adults met in the Winterville Home Economics Cottage Thursday afternoon. She stressed the fact that the machine attachments are great time savers as well as a way to give clothing and household linens, curtains, etc., a professional look.

Cherry cobbler and coffee were served by Ann Cox and Rose Robinson, H. E. II students. Those present were: Mrs. Luna Mae Braxton, Mrs. Lucille Cox, Mrs. Jennie Hall, Mrs. Kathy Gray, Mrs. John Kerr, Mrs. Mary Runkle, Mrs. J. L. Collins, and Mrs. Inez Worthington.

Rose High News

By SHERBY EVERETT

"To a teacher who is depended upon at all times for sound advice and encouragement; a friend of the students and faculty who works conscientiously and unselfishly without losing her patience or sense of humor; a woman who is quiet and unassuming, refreshing in her delight in the true, the pure, and the fair; a worker whose understanding and unflinching endeavors in our behalf have endeared her to Rose High School; to Miss Laura M. Bell, we dedicate the 1962 Tau Class." This dedication appears in the new year and gold annual that Janice Laughter and Ross Clark, co-editors, presented to Miss Bell in assembly Friday.

"To the staff and sponsors all I can say is that it is a great honor," responded Miss Bell. After explaining that the annual's theme is "The Whirl of a Teenager," Janice and Ross presented annuals to Mrs. Nellie R. White, editorial adviser, J. H. Rose, O. E. Dowd, George S. McCorie, and the members of the Tau staff.

The staff members are as follows: Photographers: Joe Waldrop, David McCorie, and Theresa Wilson. Class editors: Ann Hunt, Gigi Guice, Judy Thigpen, Theresa Wilson. Activity editors: Lora Presser, Tracie Hooper, Shirley Harrell. Feature editors: Linda Davenport, Peggy Stubbs, Nancy Allen. Sports editors: Johnny Reynolds, Dennis Eagan, Elbert Felton. Typists: Janet Whitchard, Kay Garris.

Only the seniors received annuals today, but the underclassmen will get theirs next week. McCorie Attends Convention

George S. McCorie, counselor, attended the national convention of the American Personnel and Guidance association in Chicago, April 16-19.

The purpose of the meeting was to determine the role of the guidance counselor in his particular school. He and Dr. Frank Fuller, who represented East Carolina college at the convention, attended discussions on that topic and college admissions. Dr. C. Gilbert Wrenn, professor of education.

Bethel HD Book Club

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. F. C. James and Mrs. R. B. Edmondson were hostesses to the Home Demonstration Book Club in the home of Mrs. James. Of focal interest in the living room where the meeting was held, was arrangement of tulips.

Visitors for the occasion were Mrs. C. W. Barbee and Mrs. D. C. Carson.

Mrs. Z. T. Harris, the president, presided at a short business session at which time book reports were given and books distributed.

Mrs. R. B. Edmondson was introduced as speaker for the afternoon. She chose as her topic, "Light, Life, Love and Truth in Christ." In a very interesting manner, she told how Peter after having denied knowing Christ, realized when he finds that Christ has risen from the tomb, he knows that He is the true and living God.

She said the greatest truth of life, love, honor, faith, purity and sacrifice cannot be described, they must be experienced.

The pages of history have been made bright by the lives of those who have been transformed — men and women through the years have been touched just as the disciples were in days of old.

Mrs. Edmondson stated, "Jesus is the very heart, the center and the source of all faith and ones love and devotion to Him and service to others. Her remarks were closed with prayer.

Mrs. R. R. James, recreational secretary, lead the group in a Biblical Quiz. This was followed by the serving of refreshments.

Book Exchange Club

The April meeting of the Book Exchange Club was held Tuesday night in the home of Mrs. S. D. Dewar with Mrs. Farley Hammond, co-hostess.

The president, Mrs. Dennis Hardy, called the meeting to order. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Further discussion of the club's scholarship project was held. A nominating committee for the coming year's officers was appointed as follows: Mrs. L. G. Manning, Mrs. Herbert Brown, Mrs. R. R. Whitehurst.

Mrs. Dewar then introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Batten, an East Carolina College professor and author. He spoke about some of the current phases of the space science program, beginning with a definition of space. He explained that the exploration of space was a cooperative project among all nations. Many interesting facts were given about the Mercury astronauts whom he helped train.

Dr. Batten touched upon the science of astrophysics, the cost and purpose of sending a man to the moon, and the possibility of life on other planets. He concluded by showing a correlation between science and religion.

After an exchange of books, the hostesses served a dessert course to thirteen members and five guests.

Couple Marries In Home Rites

In a home wedding Miss Judith Elizabeth Adams and Mr. Bobby Glenn Garris were married Friday, April 20, at 5 o'clock in the evening. Mrs. Garris is the daughter of Mrs. Clara M. Adams and Mr. Garris is the son of Mrs. Mary Arnold Garris.

The Rev. Wilbur A. Ballenger of Greenville was the officiating minister at the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a beige silk suit, matching flower hat and accessories. For her flowers, she chose a green orchid.

The couple was unattended as they entered together to a setting of seven branch candelabras on either side of a mantel holding an arrangement of white flowers.

The concert featured two guest conductors. Senior Marvin Buck conducted "Block M March" by Bilke and Miss Marcel Vessel directed the band in playing "Burst of Flame March" by Bowles.

Tommy Brown soloed in a trombone solo with band accompaniment entitled "Papaaya" by Morrissey. Other selections included "Klaxon March" by Fillmore, "Toccata" arranged to Slocum, "Military Symphony in F" by Gossic, and "Theme for Tomorrow" by Feller.

The band also played "Second Suite in F for Military Band" by Holst, "Beaugine for Flutes" by Holst, "Beaugine for Flutes" Band" by Osser.

Club Welcomes New Members

The Greenville Newcomers Club met Thursday morning at the Cinderella Restaurant for cards and coffee.

Mrs. Max Eggleston, president, presided over a short business meeting during which Mrs. H. B. Wood was elected vice president to fill the vacancy left by Mrs. A. E. Cox who has recently moved from Greenville.

The membership chairman, Mrs. K. R. Bradbury, introduced two new members to the group: Mrs. D. R. Roscoe, formerly of Camden, S. C., and now making her home on W. 4th St., and Mrs. Hinton Best, who makes her home on E. 3rd St.

Mrs. N. F. Merritt reminded the group of the bridge tournament being held that evening at the Art Center and urged all who could to attend.

Nine tables of bridge were in play and after four progressions prizes for scoring were awarded to Mrs. R. C. Oldenburg, Mrs. N. F. Merritt and Mrs. N. M. Shumate. The door prize was drawn by Mrs. W. F. Haynes Jr.

Girls Grow On Him

NEW YORK—(WNS)—Eddie Carmel, the 25-year-old giant whose twist recordings "A Happy Giant" and "A Good Monster" will be released soon, reported that he is now 8 feet 9 1/2 inches tall and his doctor expects him to grow another foot or so.

"Every time I see a girl I like I seem to grow and grow," said Eddie. "When I'm not particularly interested in a girl, my height remains the same. It's a strange phenomenon."

Instead of soaking aluminum utensils in used dishwasher, fill each one with clean suds and wait until food has loosened enough to wash off.

Club Welcomes New Members

The Greenville Newcomers Club met Thursday morning at the Cinderella Restaurant for cards and coffee.

Mrs. Max Eggleston, president, presided over a short business meeting during which Mrs. H. B. Wood was elected vice president to fill the vacancy left by Mrs. A. E. Cox who has recently moved from Greenville.

The membership chairman, Mrs. K. R. Bradbury, introduced two new members to the group: Mrs. D. R. Roscoe, formerly of Camden, S. C., and now making her home on W. 4th St., and Mrs. Hinton Best, who makes her home on E. 3rd St.

Mrs. N. F. Merritt reminded the group of the bridge tournament being held that evening at the Art Center and urged all who could to attend.

Nine tables of bridge were in play and after four progressions prizes for scoring were awarded to Mrs. R. C. Oldenburg, Mrs. N. F. Merritt and Mrs. N. M. Shumate. The door prize was drawn by Mrs. W. F. Haynes Jr.

Woman's Department Rules

In order to be of the greatest service possible of brides-to-be the Reflector's Woman's Department asks that the following rules be followed in submitting engagements and weddings for publication.

Photographs should be 5 x 7 inches in size and black and white glossy print.

Engagement photographs for Saturday's edition of The Daily Reflector should be in the Woman's Department by Thursday noon. Wedding write-ups should be submitted two days in advance of the wedding date. Material which does not give exact date of wedding will not be accepted.

Weddings, like other news, have a time value, therefore the amount of space devoted to weddings turned in late will be determined by their diminishing news value.

Club write-ups and other Women News will not be accepted more than a week after the event occurs.

Don Juan No More, Sticks By His Nelly

PARIS—(WNS)—"The man who demands that his bride give up her career after the wedding ceremony should be willing to do the same thing for her," said French movie star Frank Villard.

The handsome, moustached Don Juan, who has made screen-love to Simone Signoret, Michele Morgan, Pascale Petit and Martine Carol, has practiced what he preaches.

"I retired from the Don Juan role the day I fell in love with Nelly," he reported.

Nelly, a top Paris mannequin and cover girl, met Villard at fashionable Eden Roc on the French Riviera and retired to a honeymoon home 50 miles outside of Paris when they married after a whirlwind courtship.

"At first I went to Paris to work every day, leaving Nelly lonely at home," Villard confided. "Then I saw how unfair it was, and how dangerous to our marriage."

Now the Villards spend weeks

A Realistic Level Is A Necessity

The increase of some $145,000 in the cost of operating the 1961 General Assembly is sure to bring protests from some citizens across the state with quick assertions that such an increase is a wanton waste of public funds.

Particularly may this reaction be expected since a large part of the increase in legislative cost was due to the increase in subsistence pay—from $8 to $12 per day—the legislators voted themselves in the closing days of the session.

The increase in subsistence pay, while it represented a 50 per cent hike, still left the legislators' allowance for lodging and meals while in Raleigh at a modest level. Even with the $12 per day allowance, most legislators probably found themselves shelling out of their own pockets while in Raleigh to pay their personal expenses for representing the folks back home.

As the remuneration for state legislators has moved upward in the past decade, there has been criticism with each increase in pay or allowances. Had these increases not been made, however, more and more Tar Heels would automatically be eliminated from serving in the legislature simply because of the economic barrier placed in their way.

The more a legislator has to take out of his own pocket—over and above state pay and allowance—to finance his stay in Raleigh while the General Assembly is in session, the fewer the number of people who can afford to seek the post of representative or senator. Certainly it would be a mistake for this state to have a situation where only wealthy people could afford to serve in the state legislature. The pay and allowances for service in the legislature should not be abnormally high, but at the same time they should be maintained at a realistic level.

Those who serve in the legislature have the responsibility to carefully watch expenditures for the operation of that body as they do for other

Data From The Banking Report

By LYNN NISBET

BANKING — The composite statement of condition of all North Carolina banks on March 26 compiled from individual reports by the State Banking Commission and released this week has some interesting information beyond the bare figures presented.

Aggregated resources of all banks, National and State, in North Carolina amounted to $3,320,096,591.37, an increase of about $187 million or five percent over the comparable date last year. State banks accounted for two-thirds of the total resources.

The trend toward a few central banks with many branches is noted. Last year there were 145 State chartered banks with 387 branches. This year the number of home banks had been reduced to 140 and the number of branches increased to 406—a net gain of 14 banking institutions. Similar trend is noted in the National banks. Last year there were 34 banks with 127 branches; this year there are 31 banks and 143 branches for a gain of 13 units.

The State banks have almost $100 million more in loans and discounts this year and $25 million less in cash, which indicates that the money is at work rather than lying idle in the vaults.

The approximate five percent increase in total bank resources and the larger percentage of these resources being put to work indicates a healthy development in the overall economy.

The trend toward consolidation of home banks and establishment of branches has been going on for some time. Predictions are heard that if it continues the time may come when there will be only five or six banks of consequence in the state with most business done at branch offices.

BRANCHES — The average customer doesn't know the difference in doing business at the home office or at a branch. For instance, Raleigh has banking facilities said to be equal to any city in the southeast—and yet it does not have a single home office bank. Business done at Raleigh branches of the Branch Bank & Trust Company in Winston-Salem, First-Citizens Bank & Trust Company of Smithfield, Mechanics & Farmers of Durham, North Carolina National Bank of Greensboro, the Scottish Bank of Lumberton and Wachovia Bank & Trust Company of Winston-Salem compares favorably, and in some instances exceeds, the volume of business done at the home banks.

TEXTILES AND TRUCKS — Jeff Wilson, editor of "Tarheel Wheels," the magazine of the Motor Carriers Association, has delved into history to find that motor trucks have played a tremendous part in the development of the textile industry in this state. It is hard for the average citizen who is so accustomed to both the service and the nuisance of big trucks to realize that the business has developed with one generation.

It was in 1919 that Charlie Frederickson hauled his first load of textile products from Charlotte to Statesville in a new truck. That started a new era in the movement of textiles and opened up many new avenues of business.

For one thing it enabled textile plants to locate without regard to adjacent rail transportation. For another it put the Carolina textile plants in convenient reach of northern and midwestern markets without shifting cargoes or rerouting.

DIVERSITY — Of course trucks haul many commodities and materials other than textiles. But analysis of the situation discloses that a larger percentage of the textile plants depend entirely upon motor trucks than any other business, and that the volume of textile business accounts for the fact that there are more long haul motor truck companies domiciled in North Carolina than in any other state.

branches of the state government. They likewise have the responsibility to see that the policies and expenditures in connection with the sessions of the General Assembly continue in the best interest of the citizens of North Carolina.

While the subsistence pay allowance increase voted by the legislators last session increased the cost to the taxpayers, the step was taken in the best interest of all the citizens of North Carolina.

Anxiously Awaiting Stadium's Completion

Letting of contracts for the new James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium at East Carolina College registers another mark of progress for the college, for Greenville and for this section of North Carolina.

The new stadium will provide an important new facility for the college and for Greenville which will likewise afford another focal point for large gatherings in Eastern North Carolina. With its more than 14,000 seats—counting the stands in the present college stadium—it will be used not only for sports events, but according to college officials will be available for many kinds of activities.

The new stadium will stand as a tribute to the man for whom it is named and as a tribute to the people of Greenville who have provided the funds with which to build this new facility for East Carolina College. It will permanently attest to the close relationship which exists between the college and the people of this community and to the firm support for the college which exists among the citizens of Greenville.

Now that contracts for the new stadium have been let, we anxiously await the day when the new facility will be completed and put to use.

Some Satisfaction In Our Hitting The Moon

The United States has at last succeeded in hitting the moon with a space shot, but the success after seven failures was in itself a failure.

It had been planned that scientific equipment in the payload would send back valuable information on conditions on the moon which have not been available to scientists. The information obviously would provide American researchers with a lead over their Soviet counterparts in planning for a manned flight to the moon. That information, however, will have to wait another successful moon shot—in which equipment properly functions—can be made by the United States.

In the meantime we can only gain some satisfaction from the fact that the latest shot proves that the latest shot proves that the United States can hit the moon, even though it was almost three years behind the Soviets in doing so.

This fact alone, while it is not indicative of the relative position of the two nations in the overall space race, suggests that the United States still needs to push its space program development.

Two Germanies Are Actuality

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON AP — A delicate question may be able to explain better than the diplomats how to slice a sandwich without cutting the bread in half.

The United States and Russia, as they have for years, look a little muscle-bound as they wrestle with this optical illusion. The illusion is that Germany is not divided.

So while Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko split haggling hairs over the city of Berlin, it's that haunting presence of the two Germanies that is in the background.

The American government recognizes — that is, admits they're in full charge and therefore legitimate — the governments of all the Russian satellites in Europe except Communist East Germany.

They're not, of course, in full charge at all, because Russia is their boss, as they'd soon find out, and some of them have, if they tried any tricks, Hungary, for instance, and some East Germans in revolt.

American recognition of these satellite regimes is no skin off the West Germans' backs. But such recognition given to Communist East Germany would be for two obvious reasons:

1. The West Germans don't want to accept the fact that World War II left Europe cut in half.
2. As long as they can pretend it isn't, they can hope what they consider only a temporary division will melt away and the two Germanies may some day be reunited.

American recognition would make the division of Germany painfully official, destroy West Germany's hope of ultimate unification, and damage, perhaps mortally, American relations with its West German ally.

Yet, the Russians last year showed how real the division is by erecting a symbol to demonstrate it. They built a wall between East and West Berlin.

But the Russians want recognition for East Germany. This in its fashion would be the greatest and most permanent symbol of the division.

It would give the East German Communist government a prestige it doesn't have, and can't truly have, as long as the West pretends to treat it as an apparition.

The United States, for the reasons explained above, is so adamant in its refusal to give recognition that the Russians may well settle for something which, while it looks much less symbolically may be just as good.

This would be some agreement by the United States that the East Germans do have some control over the access routes to Berlin, which lies 10 miles inside East Germany.

This seems, judging from what Rusk said at his news conference Thursday, to be what the United States may agree to, if only to try to get the whole Russian-inspired ruckus over the question calmed down.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

MOOD OF HOPE

In the next to the last chapter of the Book of Revelation the writer, John, declares that he saw, "a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away and there was no more sea. And I John saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God."

God's disclosure of Himself ends with the assurance that the greatest of earthly glories is far surpassed by heavenly glories. Furthermore, these heavenly glories are destined to descend at last upon this imperfect order of ours and transform it. The first heaven and the first earth pass away, and the first heaven and the first earth were passed away and there was no more sea. And I John saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, comes down from God out of heaven prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. God dwells with men and men with God. Here is the climax — the summation of all earthly existence.

In these days of nuclear testing and threatened bombing, let us try to look beyond that ultimate — that joining together of earth and heaven — which the Bible declares will surely come. And let us always remember that the prevailing and justified mood of a Christian is hope.

The Almost-Buying Game

NEW YORK (AP) — There are undoubtedly certain advantages in buying a house and living in it.

But there are even more advantages in almost buying a house and never living in it.

I have been almost buying a house since I first came to Manhattan 25 years ago with my entire worldly wealth — $37,000 — sewed to my underwear to foil pickpockets.

As a matter of fact, if I were the bragging kind which I am — I could lay clear and positive claim to the title of being the world's champion almost-buyer of homes.

In the last quarter century I have almost bought more than 1,000 different homes.

Almost buying a house is a fine exercise in brinkmanship, and it takes a cool head and a steady hand to avoid making a down payment over a 25-year period. But it can be done.

There are two ways to almost buy a house.

1. On rainy or snowy weekends you spread out the Sunday paper real estate sections on the floor and study the pictures and read the ads until you find what seems like the ideal home.

Then you mentally buy it and for an hour or more you enjoy the thrill of ownership. But then you suddenly find the house has only 12 bathrooms or is situated in a town with an impossible name like Weepauket, and you decide against buying it after all.

2. On sunny weekends you gather up your wife and daughter and actually go out to the suburbs and inspect one of the dear little homes which some friends has said would be perfect for your family.

There is a real peril here for the almost-buyer of houses. In the fun of mentally owning a really nice dwelling, a man is in danger of absent-mindedly putting down some ready cash, and finding himself stuck.

But if he keeps his wits about him the almost-buyer can always find something wrong with any home. He can point out the attic is too near the basement, or the back door is too far from the nearest saloon, or imagine how the driveway would look under 12 feet of snow.

In the end the almost-buyer shakes his head regretfully and says, "It's nice, real nice. But just not quite what I wanted."

I know exactly what I want. I want a house exactly like the one I was raised in in Kansas City, Mo. I want a big rambling old-fashioned white house with a front porch and a nice shady lawn and a backyard large enough to pitch horseshoes in and hold a family picnic.

But I don't want this house at the end of a deity-forsaken railroad 90 miles away in the suburbs. I want it right in the center of Times Square.

Of course, the price has to be right, too. I have in mind about $5,000 — which is what my father paid for the house I was raised in.

If anybody puts a house like that on the market, I'll rob a banker if necessary to get up the put-down money.

Until then I'm going to go right on being the world's most dedicated almost-buyer. It's a great hobby.

Other Editors Saying Questionable Action

(Henderson Dispatch)

Speculation in political circles has it that runners-up in the coming primary on May 26 may in some instances decline to ask for a second primary to decide the winner of the nomination. One reason suggested for such a decision is that it would save the State the expense of another election, and another that it would make for party harmony, in that a knock-down, drag-out fight could be avoided and thus make for harmony in the November election.

All of that is probably true, but at the same time it deprives voters of the right and opportunity for a final choice in selecting their officials. Opinion has been offered that a minority candidate is morally obligated to provide a second try at the polls. There is no law to compel him to do so, and if he becomes fed up with the oddities and vicissitudes of the ways of politics in the first campaign there is nothing to force him to accept more of it if he chooses not to go along.

Political history in North Carolina can produce instances where the runner-up beat out the high man in a second election. In at least one campaign, a Democrat won nomination for Governor some years ago when there were five contestants and the high man had only about one-third of the vote polled. But the second man declined to call for a run-off largely because, according to reports at the time, he was unable to obtain necessary financial backing.

In the upcoming primary there are no Democratic contests at statewide level. But there are plenty of them in the several counties, including Vance, and in many contests the high man may not receive a majority. That means that he is not first choice of as many as half of those who cast a ballot, and that if he were not challenged for another showdown could win as a minority contender for office.

We would not be critical of any candidate who for personal reasons found it inadvisable to go to the mat in a run-off. But to back off because of some understanding between candidates is not playing fair with voters, either those who supported him or others who did not.

Second primaries almost never attract as many voters to the polls as does the first election. Several decades ago, an incumbent State official had a runaway lead over the second high man, but lacked a majority. The runner-up demanded another election, despite the preponderance of logic against him. The incumbent official's friends considered he was as good as in and thousands of them did not bother to go to the polls, so that his total in the second primary was only a fraction of that at the outset, while the challenger held his strength, though getting only very close to his first vote. He won because the incumbent's supporters deserted him in the showdown.

Where more than two candidates are seeking the same office and neither has a majority, the proper thing is to have another try. Nobody's hand will be forced, but the public may be entitled to a final voice in determining the ultimate winner.

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are more look-aheads in business, based on analyses of current developments:

A rush of foreign corporation liquidations: Between now and the signing of the new tax bill, there will be a wave of liquidation of many American-owned foreign corporations.

At present, there is no U. S. tax on these corporations' profits until distributed. Consequently, many have amassed untaxed reserves. Under the new law, liquidations, sales and exchanges after the date of enactment are subject to ordinary income taxes. But if liquidated before the bill is signed, distributions are subject only to capital gains taxes. Note: This phase of the bill may be changed before passage to give corporations more time to liquidate or distribute profits at capital gains rates.

MORE TV INVESTIGATIONS — New television charges: Department of Justice anti-trust action against CBS will be only the first action in this field. Other networks are reported to have used similar tactics to require affiliated stations to carry certain programs.

Aluminum price boosts: Aluminum producers have been hoping steel prices would rise. That would have given aluminum companies a margin in which to raise their prices where aluminum is competitive with steel. Since the steel rise was interdicted, aluminum makers must now risk increases without that shelter. Alcoa is preparing to boost prices and others will follow.

More consumer credit: Installment buying, which slowed down earlier this year, is beginning to rise again and push the total consumer credit outstanding close to $60 billion by Christmas. The rise in consumer credit shows public confidence in the economy (a good sign) but threatens to dry up credit reserves (a bad sign).

Foreign cars fight back: American compacts are cutting heavily into sales of foreign cars in the U. S. market. While some foreign manufacturers are all but abandoning the U. S. market, others are trying to gain with heavier promotion and new models. The first new model, Volkswagen in years was displayed at the New York Auto Show. Decisions to advertise foreign cars more heavily have been speeded by Ford's decision not to introduce its Volkswagen-size Cardinal.

Frozen juice push: Expect new drives to sell frozen orange juice. Stocks were never higher for this time of the year and new crops are ripening.

Nondurable goods rise: The rise in the sale of autos is being more than matched by the rise in demand for nondurables. Prospects for the rest of the year are heartening. A. W. Zelnick, the economist, speaking of production, says, "A steady rain, although not very dramatic, but which will bring the to-

Hardly Russian Tinged

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1962, King Features Company, Syndicate, Inc.
A. G. Lundgren of California writes me:
"Dear Uncle Sam:
"What has happened to our United States of America? The atmosphere has become so Russian. If it is not from within, kindly find out from where it comes before it is too late."
"They are taking the candy away from us kids and giving it away."

I wonder what is meant by a "Russian" atmosphere? Mr. Lundgren obviously has never been to any part of Russia, because had he been to that country, he would have seen dozens of atmospheres, from the stolid nomads of Kazakhstan to the Crimea where the sun is as strong as the wine.

If it is politics, Mr. Lundgren is thinking about, he could not have written such a letter as this in Soviet Russia because it would have been a Leftist Abolitionist letter influenced by Abolitionism and evidence of the plottings of Molotov with Mao Tse-tung. Such a letter would be taken seriously and would undoubtedly be published in "Pravda" as evidence of the intellectual degeneracy of the elders, with a warning against American imperialism.

The objections to high taxes are numerous, particularly the current effort to curb inflation by depriving the people of their earnings while government expenditures expand, an evidence of desperation among the Keynesian economists who cannot rescue themselves from their postulates to which they adhere fanatically despite all evidence of their incorrectness.

However, that has nothing to do with what my correspondent calls a Russian atmosphere. The truth of the matter is that there is an extraordinary freedom of discussion in Congress at the present time, particularly as Democrats in the Congress express themselves in the strong language in criticism of some of the Administration's policy.

Such a debate could not take place in any Communist country. Molotov, Kaganovich, Malenkov, and many lesser persons can witness that differences of opinion on vital questions are still not tolerated.

However, here in the United States anyone can say anything, thank the Lord. The stupid and moronic have just as much right to speak as the wise and expert. And the wise and expert may disagree with each other. Nixon fights with Brown in California and nobody worries about that too much and in New York, Wagner and Rockefeller are battling ferociously over nothing very significant and the people look on and wonder how anyone can have the time for such sport.

We used to have a Boss here in New York by the name of Carmine De Saplo, a pleasant person who played the game carefully and slowly until he reached a pinnacle. Then sitting on the peak, he sought status and went about lecturing on government and policies, even in universities where what the professors usually teach has little relationship to the essential fact that politics is the art of controlling men.

Other ambitious men decided that the day had come for De Saplo to retire. This coincided with a very serious error, namely, that De Saplo supported Senator Symington for the Democratic nomination for President rather than John F. Kennedy. The rule in politics is that the loser loses all. So De Saplo was pushed out by a Reform Movement. Some of his erstwhile supporters betrayed him which is par for the course in politics and that is the end of that.

None of this has to do with virtue or ability but it has much to do with the techniques of freedom. A young lady told me that her parents voted for Kennedy in 1960, because they are opposed to Barry Goldwater. In this wonderful game of politics, good sense plays no part, but liberty, freedom of action, freedom of choice, play an enormous role.

And that essentially is the difference between the United States and Soviet Russia. It is always possible here to throw the rascals out, but if the people prefer a guy Harding to a sick Wilson, or if they are brainwashed by television and slogans, it is their fault if they sold their heritage for a mess of potage.

Drysdale Rid Of Pitching Jinx

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Drysdale, tiger turned tamer, has junked a jinx and stands ready to assume the ace-of-the-staff post reserved for him by the patient Los Angeles Dodgers.

An angry young man who publicly stated his distaste for pitching in the Los Angeles Coliseum, Drysdale has found a haven in the new Dodger Stadium, where Friday night he posted his third victory in four starts by beating Pittsburgh 7-2.

The 23-year-old right-hander proved before a winner against the Pirates in Los Angeles, scattered 11 hits in posting his first victory over the National League leaders since July 3, 1960. He had made eight starts against the Pirates and had failed to complete a game.

Drysdale has been touted as a 20-game winner for the Dodgers since he joined the club when it was in Brooklyn in 1956. His best years were in 1957 when he was 17-9 and in 1959 when he was 17-13.

He was 13-10 last year with a 3.69 earned run average while Dodger Stadium was going up, and his record figures to rise now that he feels at ease in the more spacious ball park. He has won both his starts at home.

At San Francisco, the Giants edged the Chicago Cubs 5-4. Milwaukee nipped Houston 2-1 behind Bob Shaw's four-hitter. St. Louis blasted Cincinnati 14-3 and Philadelphia handed the New York Mets their 11th setback in 12 games, 11-9.

In the American League, Cleveland defeated Minnesota 7-2. Detroit walloped the Los Angeles Angels 13-4. The New York Yankees outlasted Washington 10-8. The Chicago White Sox defeated

Shaw's shutout bid was spoiled by Jim Pendleton's home run in the fourth, but otherwise the former American Leaguer was in complete control, winning his second in three starts. The Braves wrapped it up in the sixth, getting an unearned run off Colts' starter Bobby Shantz (1-1) when Mack Jones reached base on Joey Amalfitano's error and scored on Hank Aaron's triple to snap a 1-1 tie.

Backed by eight- and five-run innings, the Cardinals' Curt Simmons (3-0) had easy going as he limited the Reds to eight hits. Simmons was tagged for homers by Wally Post and Frank Robinson, but three runs batted in by Ken Boyer and two driven in by Curt Flood more than offset that.

Flood has hit safely in all 13 St. Louis games and his batting at a .429 clip.

John Callison's 4-for-5 effort and a three RBI performance by Tony Gonzalez led the Phils' 15-hit attack that built an 11-1 edge the Mets were unable to overcome. Don Demeter slammed a two-run triple in a five-run sixth inning explosion iced it for Cal McLish (2-0). Roger Craig (0-3) took the loss.

umpires, Detroit's unruly fans and sports writers Friday night. The fans and sports writers received a verbal barrage. Umpire Ed Hurley had his toes stepped on during a shoving match in the sixth inning after a hit-batsman incident ignited a wild scene.

Rigney and two of his players were ejected by Hurley and plate umpire Ed Runge.

It started when a ball thrown by pitcher Joe Nuxhall hit batting champion Norm Cash in the back while the Detroit Tigers were adding to their lead in a 13-4 victory.

Runge warned Nuxhall and fined him $50. The pitcher angrily threw the ball into the stands. Hurley ejected him. Rigney argued vehemently. Hurley ejected him. A fan stepped on the field and had to be restrained from tussling with Nuxhall. Chuck Tanner threw a towel from the Angel dugout. Runge ejected him.

In the outfield, Lee Thomas and Leon Wagner ran for cover. They were pelted from the stands by assorted missiles, mostly empty beer cans. When they returned to their positions they wore batting helmets for protection. It was similar to the bombardment of New York Yankee home run king Roger Maris two weeks ago.

In the clubhouse after the game, Rigney fumed.

"Those fans are terrible," he yelled. "Why can't the police do something about it? It's awful. It's dangerous."

"Were Thomas or Wagner hit with anything?" a sports writer asked.

"What do you mean by that?" bellowed the angered Angel manager. "What do you mean? What does it matter if they were hit or not? Somebody can get killed out there. It should be stopped."

In another room, Runge gave his side of the rhubarb that set off the wild display. He said: "In my opinion, Nuxhall threw at Cash. I went out and fined him $50 in accordance with league rules. I turned my back and he threw the ball into the stands."

"Hurley saw it and threw him out. Rigney came out and deliberately—I said deliberately—stepped on Hurley's feet. And Hurley pushed him away and threw him out. I threw Tanner out because he threw a towel from the dugout."

Batting — Gino Cimoli, Athletics, led 18-hit attack that subdued Baltimore 14-5 with two triples, two doubles and a single.

Pitching — Bob Shaw, Braves, went the distance for second victory in three starts, hurling four-hitter in 2-1 victory over Houston.

TARBORO — The Greenville Phantoms gained their sixth and seventh wins of the season yesterday as they defeated Tarboro 14-8 and 5-4.

Greenville's 5-4 victory was the continuation of Tarboro-Greenville contest which was called because of darkness at the first of the year. After eight innings of play and the score tied at 4 all, the umpire called the game off because of darkness. Yesterday the game was picked up in the top of the ninth where it had previously been stopped.

Greenville Wins
Kenneth Joyner, Greenville's first batter, struck out to bring Tommy Smith to the plate. Smith replied by sending a double to centerfield. Billy James followed with a single, scoring Smith to put the Phantoms ahead 5-4. Tarboro was unable to score as Greenville pitcher Rodney Knowles struck out two batters while the third grounded out to the shortstop. Knowles was credited with the victory.

In the second inning of the first game, the Phantoms opened up with three runs on two hits, and three walks. Ronnie Brock and Kroghie Andersen led Greenville off with two straight walks putting men on first and second. Dale Gidley took his turn at the plate and also was given a base on balls. Billy Williamson followed with a single scoring Brock and Andersen. Later in the inning, Ken Joyner singled to score Gidley and put the Phantoms ahead 3-0.

Scores Eight
In the bottom of the third frame, Greenville tallied eight runs on four hits and six walks. Tarboro was unable to keep pace with the Phantoms during the remainder of the ball game as Greenville went on to victory.

Dennie Hardee was the winning pitcher as he struck out four and walked seven. Tarboro scored eight runs on five hits and four errors.

Andresen Paces Phants
Kroghie Andersen led the Phantoms with three hits, a walk and scoring two runs. Billy Williamson and Kenneth Joyner tallied two hits apiece in four trips to the plate.

Greenville travels to Roanoke Rapids on Tuesday to meet the Yellow Jackets.

Week Of Bowling For School-Age Crowd

WARMING UP—Linda Pugh (left) and Judy Harrell put in some preliminary practice for the second week of the Bowl Down Cancer competition at Hillcrest Lanes. Also in last night's bowling party, Misses Willie Williams, Judy French, Louise Moss, Judy Presser, Edna Paramore, Janelle Gurkins, Jerri Gardner and Jackie Wingate.

As an added feature in the current Bowl Down Cancer program at Hillcrest Lanes manager Gail Elliott has announced a week of bowling designed for the school-age set.

The prize for the homeroom with the highest percentage of participating bowlers will be free bowling for the entire summer.

Entrants may bowl any weekday afternoon between April 29 and May 5 from 2:00 p.m. until 5:00.

"In this week of bowling," says Elliott, "the scores rolled by each homeroom do not count. The deciding factor will be the homeroom with the highest percentage of bowlers. However, in the event of a tie, the homerooms will roll against each other and the room with the highest score will win free bowling through the summer months."

Bowlers entering the event are advised to notify the counter-man so that he may record names and homeroom numbers.

This second week of Bowl Down Cancer is being sponsored by the local lanes and the Pitt County unit of the American Cancer Society. The week of nationwide competition concludes today.

Fernandez' Nose Will Be Tested
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Florentine Fernandez, with a reputation for a nationally-televised (ABC) fight scheduled for ten rounds that will be a critical test for both.

The winner is expected to get a shot at Denny Meyer in New York on May 26. Meyer recently beat Sugar Ray Robinson.

Fernandez, who has not fought since January when Dick Tiger bashed in his nose, wanted Tiger again but had to meet Giambra first.

IT'S JUST DOLLARS-AND-CENTS SENSE that people value what they pay for more than what they get free. Just human nature...but it helps make the daily newspaper a superior advertising medium. People pay for newspapers because they want to read the big national and international news, the important hometown news, and the vital shopping news they find in the advertising columns. To get all this, last year they paid $1.7 billion for their daily and Sunday newspapers.* Advertising media like mail throwaways, radio, TV, billboards come free—and often unwanted.

When you place your advertising in the daily newspaper, you know it will reach a guaranteed, paying audience. That helps make the daily newspaper the safest, surest advertising investment.

Executive Club Officers Staying

The Executives Club of Greenville re-elected its officers for another year at a meeting at East Carolina College Tuesday.

Robert L. Humber of Greenville was re-elected president. Other officers include vice presidents Dr. W. E. Roseveare and Dr. S. H. Aycock.

Board members re-elected were I. Bissette of Grifton, Mrs. W. Jesse Moye of Farmville, Dr. Elmer Browning and David J. Whichard of Greenville and Walter L. Stroud of Ayden.

The club voted to collaborate with a committee of ECC faculty members in seeking speakers who would be of interest to the club and to the college during the next year. Plans include addresses by the speakers to the club at its evening meetings and supplementary addresses to college groups on the preceding or following day.

Members of the ECC committee include Dr. Francis R. Adams Jr., Dr. John Howell, Dr. George Pasti and Dr. Robert Williams. The group will be assisted by a student committee, currently headed by Student Body President Thomas Mallison.

ACADEMIC WARFARE—Dr. Andrew Best, Greenville physician and president of the N. C. Charges Not Prossed In Local Morals Case

Judge Joseph W. Parker in Pitt County Superior Court Thursday and Friday heard the following 16 cases:

Stonewall Jackson Simpkins of Greenville saw incest charges against him not prossed after a conference among Solicitor Robert D. Rouse, Judge Parker and welfare officials. Rouse and the judge agreed evidence was insufficient for conviction and public airing of the case would involve harm to a minor who was described as a victim of circumstances.

Judge Parker handed Bobby Clark two 18-month prison terms after Clark pleaded guilty to dual forgery charges. The first term was ordered served concurrently with the term Clark is now serving. The second 18 months, Judge Parker ordered, will begin at the expiration of Clark's present sentence.

Melvin L. Moore pleaded guilty to a second offense of drunken driving and was given a six-month sentence, suspended upon payment of court costs and a $200 fine. Moore had been charged with a third offense drunken driving.

Ed Stanley Dail pleaded guilty to in absentia drunken driving and no operator's license and was fined $100 and taxed with costs as conditions for suspending a 90-day road sentence.

Hearing of drunken driving charges against Roy Jay White was continued for White when one of the defendant's witnesses could not be located during the week.

Judge Parker directed a not guilty verdict in a case against William Wallace Moore charging resisting arrest. Moore pleaded innocent to the charges.

The jury convicted Lamar Albert Scott of drunken driving charges and Judge Parker suspended a 90-day sentencing upon payment of a $100 fine and court costs. However, Judge Parker ruled the fine had already been paid in Greenville Municipal Court and ordered that no further fine be assessed against Scott.

William Phillip Worthington pleaded no contest to improper muffler charges and was taxed with court costs. Costs were also assessed against Jesse L. Manning who pleaded guilty to failure to yield right of way.

In another court-directed verdict, Judge Parker ruled Ralph Calvin Morgan not guilty of careless and reckless driving charges after the jury had heard the case. Morgan had pleaded not guilty.

Edgar Earl Harris pleaded guilty to a motor vehicle violation charge—failure to determine if an intended move could be safely made—and was taxed with court costs. Another motor vehicle violation charge, lodged against Kay Miller Jones, was not prosecuted.

Three drunken driving cases were continued for defendants Jesse James Hooks Jr., Roscoe Aboustner Burkett and Henry Cox.

In a civil action Wednesday, the court granted a divorce to Bessie K. Smith from Robert C. Smith on the grounds of two-year separation. The divorce case was permitted since the court was convened in a mixed term.

Rural Carriers' Service Commended At Meeting

Greenville Postmaster J. Knott Proctor last night commended members of the Tar River District of Rural Letter Carriers "for the finest and most useful service ever rendered by any group of public servants."

Making the welcome address at the semi-annual meeting, which was held at a local restaurant, Proctor made observations on work achievements.

Some 35 rural carriers attended the session, presided over by Elbert Edwards of Chocowinity. Norman F. Little of Greenville is secretary.

The group, during the meeting, raised objections to the administration's pay bill. The bill would cut pay of substitute rural carriers and in many cases would also cut regular carriers pay, while many government workers would get percentage raises, a spokesman said.

The letter carriers endorsed a bill to raise the auto mileage from 10 to 12 cents per mile. Mileage was five cents per mile when cars were priced from $700 to $800, with all other expenses on the same level. Now the price of automobiles, repairs and other items are up more than four times but the equipment allowances only doubled during the same period, resulting in losses that cut into carriers' salaries, a spokesman said.

The Tar River district comprises Pitt, Greene, Beaufort and Hyde Counties. The next meeting will be held Oct. 26 in Belhaven.

named in honor of Whichard in recognition of his many services to East Carolina College. In addition to the support which he has given the college through the columns of his newspaper, he has shown his generosity and interest in education for young people by providing for a number of years scholarships for day students enrolled at the college.

At the May 6 program, Dr. Robert Lee Humber, State Senator from Pitt County, will make the address of dedication. President Leo W. Jenkins of the college will present Mr. Whichard to guests at the ceremony. D. D. Gross, director of Religious Activities at East Carolina, will make the prayer of dedication.

Unveiling of a portrait of Whichard painted by Mrs. Georgia Hearne of Greenville will be included on the afternoon's program. Presented to the college by members of Whichard's family, the portrait will be unveiled by Kathryn Oliver Whichard and David Jordan Whichard III, grandchildren of Whichard. J. Herbert Waldrop of Greenville, chairman of the East Carolina Board of Trustees, will accept the portrait for the college.

The Brass Ensemble and the Woodwind Quintet of the Department of Music, student organizations, will appear in a program of music at the dedication ceremony.

A reception honoring Whichard will follow the program. President and Mrs. Jenkins will entertain at a buffet supper Sunday night at their home on East Fifth Street. Guests will include fifty or more friends and relatives of Mr. Whichard.

Formerly the college library, Whichard Music Hall was converted to its present use when the Joyner Memorial Library was completed in 1954. As the Department of Music grew in number of students and in multiplicity of activities, a new wing was added in 1955 and an annex was completed in 1959.

Grover C. Lancaster Funeral On Sunday

VANCEBORO—Mr. Grover C. Lancaster, 77, prominent Vanceboro farmer, died at St. Luke's Hospital in New Bern Friday night at 7:30 after four weeks of illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Vanceboro Christian Church Sunday afternoon at three o'clock by his pastor, the Rev. Preston Parsons, assisted by the Rev. Says U.S. Power Means Security

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—U.S. Ambassador Samuel Berger said Friday the United States has "through our armed forces and our defense alliances, brought a large measure of security to a great part of the free world."

"These are tremendous achievements for which we have every reason to be proud," he said.

New Miss Greenville Is Very Excited

PRETTY AS A PICTURE . . . Miss Greenville looks fetching among colorful azaleas. (Reflector Photos by Stuart Savage).

--And, Polly Is Familiar With Winning Titles

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

With sparkling eyes and a big bright smile she said, "I just don't know how to explain it. . . there's so much I could say."

With this, Miss Greenville, Polly Bunting, tried to describe how it feels to be the city's new beauty queen.

"I feel like I am representing Greenville, but I feel I am representing East Carolina College too. There's just so much I could say. It's just a wonderful feeling."

Polly, a native of Williamston, won over a field of nine other contestants in the Miss Greenville contest here April 17 for the title.

This was not her first beauty victory however. Last year she was chosen Miss Martin County and represented the neighboring political division in the Miss North Carolina pageant.

"It was a tremendous honor to be Miss Martin County," she explained, but "this is almost a new experience." Being Miss Greenville is a greater honor, she feels, because of the difference in population.

"I've got a wonderful feeling all over. . . everyone has been so nice. I hope they don't resent the fact that I am representing Greenville and am not from Greenville."

Miss Greenville's first "beauty contest" was the "Little Sweetie Pie" contest she entered at the early age of three. She remembers that she was rushed a bit while primping before going on stage and she "went on" with one sock on and one sock off.

Later, in fact much later, when she entered the Dairy Princess contest in Martin County, she was first runner up. Then last year, she won the county beauty title.

In addition to her beauty contests, Polly has served as Ruritan Princess for Christmas Parades and has modeled for stores in both Williamston and Greenville.

One of her most memorable experiences was being a hostess at the North Carolina Trade Fair in Charlotte last year.

The Queen is a sophomore grammar education major at East Carolina and lists skiing, swimming, dancing, cooking and sewing, among her hobbies.

In high school Miss Greenville's activities included being a majorette, playing flute in the concert band, playing basketball, a member of the newspaper staff and being assistant business manager of the yearbook. She was president of the Future Teachers of America and a member of the Future Homemakers of America.

For three summers, Polly served as camp counselor for the Roanoke Christian Service Camp.

At East Carolina, Polly was treasurer of her freshman class, is a member of the Young Democrats Club, was president of her Pledge class for Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority and is now membership chairman for the sorority.

She emphasized the fact that she, as Miss Greenville, is also representing her sorority. "Without them I couldn't have done it!" Her sisters were polishing shoes, sewing on buttons and helping in every way possible.

When she returned to the sorority house following the pageant, there was a big sign strung across the entrance saying "Welcome Miss Greenville," and the sisters were all "spread up along the stairs when I walked through the door."

"Greenville is a wonderful place" she says. "The people are so friendly. . . they accept the college students for what they are and not what they would like for them to be. They cooperate and help in every way possible."

Following her college days Polly hopes to teach the sixth grade, get married and "be a mamma."

As for her talent at the local Pageant, Miss Greenville says she chose dancing and singing because, "I like to dance. When I dance I feel it, and when I'm singing I feel the motions of what I'm singing. I enjoy it!"

She'll probably do a song and dance number for the state pageant, possibly the same thing as for the local contest, "but with a lot of work."

Being Miss Greenville gives Polly an opportunity to meet people and makes her "feel as though I am a part of Greenville and not just a college student."

There are a great many things to be gained from being the city's beauty representative.

"There's. . . Polly. . . just so much." "It's an education in itself. The many different experiences will improve my knowledge. . . my personality will improve. You learn to get along with people better and accept things as they are."

"Putting what it means into words. . . I just can't do it. . . it's so exciting."

And then too, there are the gifts. They are many and varied, but the one which means the most to Miss Greenville is the $500 scholarship received as winner. "It surely helps."

Polly, a member of the Macedonia Christian Church near Williamston, has three older brothers. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. V. U. Bunting of Route 2, Williamston. She is 19.

DREAMS OF THE FUTURE . . . Polly, with her crown, happily contemplates the upcoming Miss North Carolina competition.

Only Pitiful Few Came Back

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

When the 44th Regiment was formed at Camp Mangum near Raleigh on March 28, 1862, three of the 10 companies (D, C & I) were composed almost entirely of Pitt County men. George Badger Singletary of Pitt County was its Colonel. William L. Cherry was Captain of Co. "C," L. R. Anderson of Co. "D," and Downing H. Smith of Company "I."

Home For Awhile
The 44th was ordered to Tarboro on May 19, 1862 and then proceeded to Greenville. But the boys weren't home for any layoff or furlough. They were assigned to outpost and picket duty. It was during the performance of one of these duties that cost the life of Col. George Badger Singletary. He was killed on June 5, 1862 in a skirmish on Tranter's Creek.

On To Virginia
The 44th Regiment was sent to Virginia and assigned to General James Johnston Pettigrew's Brigade. This was the beginning of a long road of blood that would find many of the 44th left behind in graves on Virginia soil. Here the bright battle banner would be torn to shreds by grape and canister. Its ranks would be filled time and time again — until there would be no more replacements. Only a pitiful few would ever see the Tar again.

Chancellorsville
Here at this place on May 2 and 3, 1863, one of the costliest battles from the Southern point of view was fought. The South won a great victory and lost the man that many say was one of the greatest soldiers of all time. Here Stonewall Jackson was wounded by his own men. It is said that a Pitt County man was in the group that fired on Jackson. The great soldier later died. At his burial in the state capitol at Richmond, Co. "D" of the 44th was honor guard.

South Anna Bridge
On the 26th of June, the 44th was surrounded at South Anna Bridge. Suffering heavy losses, the men of the 44th cut their way out of the ring of Yankees.

The 44th missed the battle of Gettysburg, being detailed to other duties in the state of Virginia. During the retreat from Gettysburg, Gen. Pettigrew, commander of the Brigade of which the 44th was part, died of wounds. Colonel William Kirkland of the 21st N. C. was promoted to Brigadier General and the 44th became part of his Brigade.

Bristoe Station
On October 14, 1863, the 44th charged through an open field in the face of Federal Artillery. Great gaps were torn in its rank, but the men from the Tar and their companions kept on going.

Three times couriers rode up with orders to fall back. Three times the orders were ignored. The troops pushed on through the terrific infantry and artillery fire. It was only on the peremptory orders of Lt. General A. P. Hill that the 44th fell back. After they had almost won the day, losses were heavy in wounded and killed.

The Wilderness
On May 4, 1864, the 44th broke camp at Orange Court House and moved up to Verdiersville. The troops camped here the night of the 4th. On the morning of the 5th, they broke camp and marched off down the Orange Plank Road. At two o'clock, the 44th became heavily engaged with Federals. In the center of what was said to be one of the most violent affairs of the Civil War, the 44th stood firm. On this day and on the 6th, the regiment lost heavily in both officers and enlisted men. Hardly had the smoke of the wilderness died away, than the 44th was on its way toward another blood bath.

Spottsylvania Court House
On May 12, 1864, the regiment was assigned a position directly in front of the Spottsylvania Court House. Time after time, the bluecoats threw themselves against the 44th. They were thrown back, wearing themselves out against the gray line. The men of the 44th jumped over the earthworks and engaged the Yankees hand to hand. Despite the furious fighting, the 44th had slight losses.

Gaines Mills
Grant hung on to Lee's flank, forcing fight after fight. The 44th took its part in all of these affairs. On June 3-6, 1864, they had a hard fight with the Yankees at Gaines Mills. After almost daily fighting, the 44th reached Petersburg on June 24. Here it went into the trenches and took up the dull routine of trench duty. It was at Gaines Mills that Lt. Henry King of Company "D" was saved by a copy of the New Testament he carried in his upper left hand pocket. The little book caught the force of a minnie ball that could have ended his life.

Reams Station
The 44th bore its part with "conspicuous good conduct" during an engagement with the Federals at Reams Station on August 25, 1864. Located 10 miles from Petersburg, on the Waldon R. R. Line, Reams Station was a key to holding this vital railroad. The Federals lost between 600 and 700 men, killed and wounded, 2,150 prisoners and 3,000 stand of small arms. The Confederate loss was small—losses in the 44th were "trifling."

Squirrel Level
In a skirmish at this place on October 8, 1864, Thomas King of Co. "D" was mortally wounded. He died October 24. This was King's first wound although he had many narrow escapes. His death meant one more gap in the thinning line from Pitt County. He had enlisted as a private, then became a Lieutenant. At times he commanded the company.

Burgess Mills
The fight at Burgess Mills was but another step down the road to defeat. The 44th, its ranks depleted, fought on. But there was another sound to the wind. The southern army was living on its past. Jackson and Stuart were dead. Glory had been tried and been found wanting.

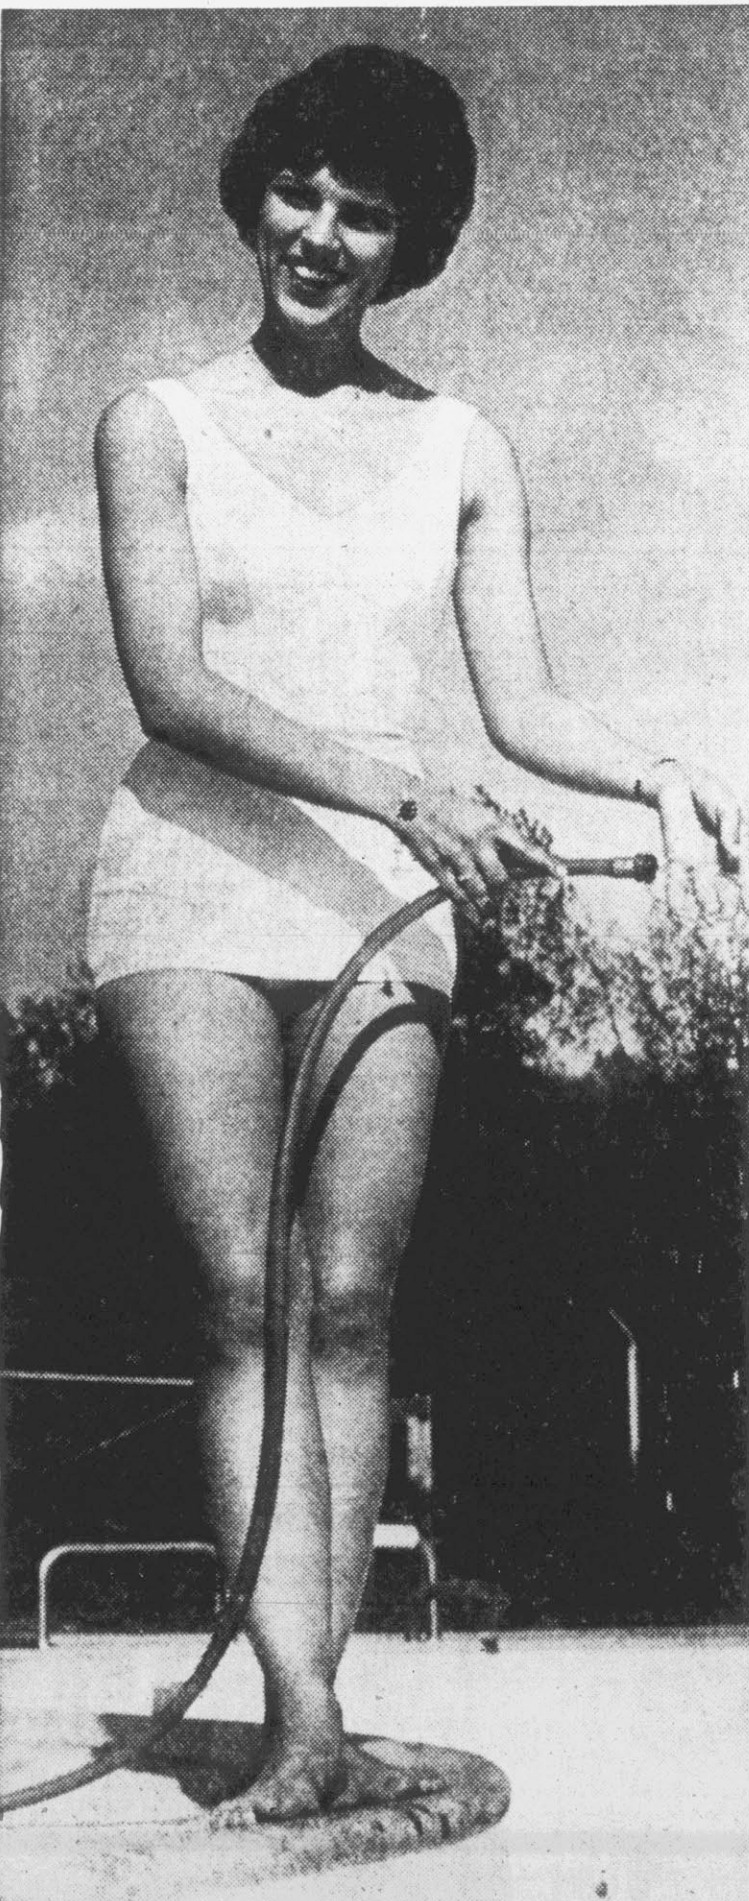

The Battle Flag
On April 2, 1865, the 44th commenced its retreat with other Confederate forces toward Amelia Court House. In the hot engagements, that took place along the way, the Confederates fought hard. There was no panic—the men of the 44th contested every step. The battle flag of the 44th had been riddled by shots. It had been retired and on January 1, 1865, a new flag had been given the company.

On the night of April 1, 1865, three months to the day, Color Sergeant George Barbee of Company "G" wrapped the new flag around a stone and "dropped it in the Appomattox River."

April 9, 1865
It was ended—the war that cost so much in money, and much more in human lives and suffering. For the last time the 44th fell into formation. And as they stood there in the warm April sunshine, little bits of yesterday came back.

They remembered what was once a proud and mighty army—the army of Northern Virginia. They remembered "Stonewall" Jackson at Chancellorsville; they remembered "Jeb" Stuart at Yellow Tavern; and they would never forget Color Sergeant George Barbee and the flag he dropped into the Appomattox River. And farther back, they remembered the drill field when they could muster over 1,400 officers and men. But in the line that day were only 80 men. And from Pitt (Continued on Page 8)

New Mission For Battleship Begins Sunday

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—The battleship North Carolina, her fighting days done and her guns forever silenced, will be formally launched on her newest mission in elaborate ceremonies here Sunday.

Top government and Navy figures will take part in the program, dedicating the one-powerful fighting ship as a memorial to the state and nation's war dead.

The great ship was rescued from the scrap heap last year and brought to Wilmington where she lies permanently anchored in a slip beside the Cape Fear River across from downtown Wilmington. More than 112,000 persons have visited the ship since her arrival last October.

A throng of more than 2,000 persons is expected to assemble on the after deck for the dedication. They will include the notables, admirals of the North Carolina Navy, special guests and newsmen.

Other thousands will gather on shore beside the ship. Hugh Morton, chairman of the Battleship Commission, said loudspeaker system will be set up so that they will be able to see and hear as well as those on the ship.

Commerce Secretary and Former North Carolina Gov. Luther H. Hodges will lead off the speakers, telling of the inception of the drive to save the North Carolina from the scrap heap and bring her to her namesake state.

Hodges also will introduce the principal speaker, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke. He retired last year after three terms as chief of naval operations and who won fame and the nickname, 31-Knot Burke, as commander of a scrap-iron destroyer squadron in World War II. Adm. Burke will tell of the North Carolina's role in World War II.

Gov. Terry Sanford, who will follow, will tell of plans for future development of the battleship memorial. He will be followed by Admiral Claude V. Ricketts, vice chief of naval operations.

The military services will stage a colorful show to wind up the dedication.

Could Prove A Costly Victory For Governor

CAPITAL SCENE
BY NOEL VANCEY
RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Terry Sanford had his way recently when the Advisory Budget Commission elected D. S. Coltrane as its chairman. Some of the news reports on the election described it as a victory for the governor.

But, it could prove to be a costly victory, particularly when the 1963 General Assembly comes to town next February. The governor already was confronted with enough problems in the upcoming Legislature without adding new ones.

The Budget Commission split 3 to 2 in naming Coltrane, who is serving as the governor's personal watchdog, working for efficiency and economy in government, as its chairman. The election came after the commission had mulled over the governor's recommendations for several months.

Woodard and Wicker based their opposition on the ancient principle of separation of the three agencies of government—executive, legislative and judicial. Woodard contended that Coltrane should not serve as chairman of the budget group while also serving as one of the governor's right-hand men.

Woodard contended that the Budget Commission is the Legislature's arm in the state's budget-making process, and that Coltrane was too closely tied up with the executive branch. He emphasized there was nothing personal involved in his opposition.

In commenting on his recommendation of Coltrane for the post several weeks ago, the governor said he did not want to make a big issue of it. But he expressed the opinion that a man qualified to serve as a member of the commission is qualified to serve as its chairman.

No one, not even Woodard, has questioned Coltrane's qualifications for the chairmanship. I served as the state's assistant budget director for many years and was later director of the important State Department of Administration.

Even so, the controversy could have important consequences in the 1963 General Assembly. Woodard is opposed for reelection to the General Assembly and stands a good chance of being speaker. He is one of two candidates. Wicker also is a candidate for reelection.

No one knows better than the governor the importance of the House speaker on a legislative program. He has the job of naming House committees and can exert a big influence in the way the lines up the committees and their chairmen.

In the past, there has been some sentiment in the Legislature for creation of a state fiscal watchdog, similar to the post of U. S. comptroller general, who would be responsible to the General Assembly. The row over the chairmanship of the Budget Commission could bring a revival of this movement.

Applications Open For ECC Nursery, Kindergarten Entry

Applications for admission to the Nursery and Kindergarten at East Carolina College are now being received.

Dr. Robert L. Holt, Dean of the College, said that applications will be received in his office on the first floor of the Administration Building at anytime between now and 4:30 P.M., May 4.

The following regulations govern admission to the Nursery School, which will contain two age groups of children.

Group "A" will consist of ten children (preferably five boys and five girls) who have passed their third, but not their fourth birthday, by October 15.

Group "B" will consist of twelve children (preferably six boys and six girls) who have passed their fourth, but not their fifth birthday, by October 15.

Children admitted to Nursery School in September will be permitted to continue their work until school closes in June. Thus, a child who becomes four or five during the school year will be permitted to complete the year.

Tuition per quarter for Group "A" is $32.00. Tuition for group "B" is $40.00. Group "A" will meet from 9:00 a.m. until 11:30 a.m., and Group "B" will meet from 9:00 a.m. until 12:45 p.m. Lunch will be served for Group "B."

The following regulations will govern admission to the Kindergarten:

The children must have reached their fifth birthday and not passed their sixth birthday on October 15 of the year in which they plan to attend.

Enrollment in Kindergarten is limited to twenty pupils, ten boys and ten girls.

Applications for Admission to Kindergarten will not be accepted by the College after May 4 of the year in which the child is eligible. Applications will therefore be accepted for children under five years of age only on condition that they will reach their fifth birthday on or before October 15 of the year of eligibility.

Children admitted to Kindergarten in September will be permitted to continue their work until school closes in June. Thus, a child who becomes six during

Kennedy Humor Features Banquet Given By Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy took his price battle with Big Steel, poured it into a different mold, added some humor and stole the show at a newsmen's banquet Friday night.

The black-tie dinner, given by White House correspondents and news photographers in honor of Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Great Britain, was light on speeches, heavy on songs and laughter.

Kennedy was amused by Sellers' imitation of Macmillan and roared with laughter at comic Elliott Reid's takeoff on the press conference in which Kennedy tongue-lashed the steel companies for raising prices.

Near the end of the show, Kennedy turned the tables with his own parody of his denunciation of the steel price rise. He hooked it to the hike in the price of tickets for the banquet.

He said, "The sudden and arbitrary action to raise the prices by $2.50 over last year is wholly unjustified (and) not in the public interest. The American people will find it difficult to accept this decision. If not rescinded, it will have a serious effect on the economy of our city."

Commenting the talent of Reid and Sellers, the President said, "I've arranged for them to appear next week on the U.S. Steel Hour. Actually, I didn't do it. Bobby did it."

Earlier, Kennedy was given a silver reproduction of the inkstand used at the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

The prime minister received a silver cigar box modeled after a colonial tobacco box.

Before leaving, Kennedy remarked that "after being in the hands of over 1,400 members of the press for over four hours, we haven't gotten off so badly."

Attend Quarterly Meet This Week

Five members of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office staff attended the quarterly ASCS staff conference in New Bern Wednesday and Thursday.

Among the Pitt delegation were office manager Livingston Roberts and his assistant, Stacy Evans. Clerks attending the meeting were Hael Baker, production adjustment; Jean Deal, counter; and Elise Hainnah, performance.

DISTRICT MEETING
The Pitt Scout District Committee meeting for April is scheduled for Monday at 7:45 p.m. at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in Greenville. Chairman M. E. Cavendish has urged all committeemen to attend.

Mrs. Jacqueline Bourvler Kennedy was born in Southampton, New York.

First Presbyterian Announcements

"Christ's Presence and Our Peace" is the title of the message that the Rev. Richard R. Gammon will bring at the First Presbyterian Church Sunday morning, John 20:19-29 is the background scripture.

Following the morning worship service, a time of fellowship will be held downstairs in the Fellowship Hall. This will be a short period of informal visiting and getting to know the newer members better. Light refreshments will be served.

The Senior High Fellowship will be host to the UGYM at 6 o'clock Sunday evening for their annual Spring Banquet and installation of new officers. Mr. Gammon will be the inspirational speaker prior to the installation service. Members of the Pioneer Fellowship will also attend the banquet.

THE FIRST TIME IN 300 YEARS I'VE TOLD MY SECRET...

...NOW WILL YOU MARRY ME?

NO, SAMARIS

POOR THINGS MAD!

SAMARIS YEARNS FOR THE PHANTOM...

HE CAN'T GO ON REFUSING AND REFUSING ME...

SAMARIS REMEMBERS THE ANCIENT SPELL... THE WITCH'S CURSE...

...LIVE IN YOUTH AND BEAUTY FOREVER, SAMARIS... ONLY IF YOU NEVER FALL IN LOVE...

SHE'S BEEN DEAD AND GONE 300 YEARS... HER WARNING MEANS NOTHING.

NOTHING...NOTHING! AFTER 300 YEARS, I AM STILL YOUNG...

...STILL BEAUTIFUL...

...AND IN LOVE! I LOVE YOU... YOU HEAR... I LOVE YOU!

GRANDPA... YOU CAN'T STOP NOW!

THAT'S ALL FOR TONIGHT. OFF TO BED... THE REST TOMORROW NIGHT.

OH-NO!

CONT'D

BIG BEN BOLT

by JOHN CULLEN MURPHY

I SAY TO MY FRIEND WITH THE EMPLOYMENT AGENCY, THIS CAT, ASH, CAN DRIVE A CAR. WHAT'S COOKING IN THE CHAUFFEUR RACKET?*

PLENTY, YOUR FRIEND TELLS THIS CAT, ASH. SO—TAKE A LOOK AT ME—I'M BEAUTIFUL!

YOU GOT A JOB, ASH?

COMPLETE WITH SNAZZY UNIFORM. AND MAN, DO I MEET THE BEST PEOPLE—I MEAN THE BEST!

D-E-R-A-I-N! HEY, THAT SPELLS DERAIN, DON'T IT?

WHAT ELSE?

DERAIN—THEY THE FANCY FLORISTS?

THE VERY ONES, SPIDER. AND WHAT A LAYOUT. EVEN THE FLOORWALKERS WEAR DIAMOND STICKPINS.

TELL ME, ASH—THEY KNOW ABOUT... ABOUT YOU?

AFTER THEY HEARD I WAS A PERSONAL FRIEND OF BEN BOLT, YOU THINK THEY'D ASK IF I GOT A RECORD? NOT THEM—BEN'S NAME WAS ALL THEY HAD TO HEAR!

BLONDIE
by CHIC YOUNG

WHAT A LOVELY SPRING DAY

NOW I CAN GET OUTDOORS AGAIN AFTER BEING COOPED UP ALL WINTER

I'M GOING AROUND THE NEIGHBORHOOD AND RENEW OLD FRIENDSHIPS AND MAKE NEW ONES

HOW NICE

HELLO, DAGWOOD

COME IN

I JUST DROPPED OVER FOR A FRIENDLY VISIT

IT WAS SO NICE OF HIM TO CALL

WHAT A DELIGHTFUL NEIGHBOR

SUCH LOVELY PEOPLE

YOU FOLKS JUST MOVED INTO OUR NEIGHBORHOOD—I WANT TO WELCOME YOU

HOW THOUGHTFUL

COME IN AND GET ACQUAINTED

YOU JUST CAN'T HELP LIKING PEOPLE LIKE THAT

WE'RE GOING TO LIKE LIVING HERE

EVERYBODY'S SO KIND

HELLO, DAGWOOD

HELLO, MILT—HOW ARE YOU, OLD BOY?

GEE, IT'S GOOD TO SEE YOU AGAIN

COME AGAIN, DAGWOOD

IT WAS SO GOOD TO SEE YOU

BLONDIE AND I ALWAYS SAY, HOW LUCKY WE ARE TO LIVE IN SUCH A FRIENDLY NEIGHBORHOOD

HELLO, MRS. GRIBBLEY

HORACE... HERE'S DAGWOOD BUMSTEAD

LET ME AT HIM

YOU BORROWED MY HEDGE CLIPPERS LAST FALL AND YOU NEVER RETURNED THEM

TEAR HIM TO PIECES, HORACE

BLONDIE—DON'T ASK ANY QUESTIONS—JUST LOCK THE DOOR IN BACK OF ME

THERE'S ONE GUY LIKE THAT IN EVERY NEIGHBORHOOD

CARTER A. VAUGHAN'S Exciting Novel of Revolutionary Romance SCOUNDRELS' BRIGADE

CHAPTER 18
"There have been only a few forged Continental dollars around since you made your big haul just before Christmas," Major Tallmadge told Hugh Spencer.

"That's because Congress finally took our advice and changed the design of its money," Hugh replied. "I'm beginning to understand how the counterfeiters work, and I expect to see a whole crop of false notes as soon as the engravers have an opportunity to copy the new money."

"You have no idea who might be making the dollars?"
"None. Every clue I get vanishes into the air. Benly Flanery and Dick Simpson are clever men, so clever that I'm afraid we have them on our side. But they're every bit as confused as I am."

Tallmadge sighed, and his chair squeaked as he rocked back and forth. "I'm not asking you to perform impossible tasks, but we've got to put a stop to the flow of forged money. We can't win victories in the field without the support of the people."

General Washington can't build an army overnight, and I need time to create my sources of information, too," Hugh said. "There's one good sign that I can report to you, Major. I've been corresponding with the provost generals and attorney generals of every state, and they've started to co-operate with me. Maybe I'll have some better news to give you in the next few weeks, Major."

Tallmadge looked at him questioningly.
"I'm taking my men up to Providence in the next day or two. The roads are clear again, and I think I may catch a few fish up there."

"Do you have reason to believe the dollars are being forged in Providence?"
"No, sir. But there's a steady stream of Rhode Island pounds coming out of the state that have been stirring up mischief, so I'm hoping I can put at least one clever professional out of business. I've been corresponding with the Rhode Island authorities since early in January, and they're giving me their full support, so there's reason to believe we may make a significant arrest. I'm not forgetting that there was a considerable quantity of forged Rhode Island money in that haul we made before Christmas."

Thaddeus Green, the provost general of Rhode Island, stood with Hugh before a large state map that was tacked to a wall. "I had this prepared for you, Captain Spencer," he said.
Hugh was studying the map carefully. "You say that each one of these pins represents a letter or some other complaint that you've received, Mr. Green?"

"Correct, Captain. I had no time to spare for a personal investigation, so I used the easiest system. It's logical to assume that most of the counterfeit money will appear somewhere near its source."

Pins filled the southwestern corner of the map, obliterating the name of a town near the Connecticut border. "That's Westerly," the provost general said. "Folks there have been fooled by so much bad money they shy away from all Rhode Island paper. One week they've been taken in by false two-pound notes, the next by four-pound notes."

"We almost had a rebellion on our hands in February, and a company of militia that was going off to join General Washington had to go to Westerly instead. We restored order after a few days, but you won't find anybody in the town who'll take paper as payment for a debt. They insist on being paid in silver, and they test it first."

"Do the people there have any ideas that might be helpful to us?"
"They've got their suspicions. Captain, but the sheriff has no proof, and he doesn't want to get folks stirred up. Feelings run high in wartime, and it would be a black mark against the state's good name if somebody who is innocent got killed."

"The trial seemed to lead in only one direction, and the following day Hugh and his three companions arrived in the sleepy town of Westerly on the Pawcatuck River."

After an exchange of greetings with the sheriff, Jed Lane, Hugh said, "Provost General Green told me in Providence yesterday that you might know who has been making the counterfeit Rhode Island money that's been showing up all over the country."

"I might, but I might not," Lane's smile was tight-lipped, and he rubbed the side of his face wearily. "I've raised Black Ox farm four times, but I haven't found one scrap of evidence to convict that fellow, Dale."

"Who?"
"August Dale, he calls himself. Benly, who was standing near the door, started to speak, but changed his mind."

"I don't want to act ornery, Captain," the sheriff continued, "but I'm scared of what might happen if I go out to the Black Ox again. Nearly everybody in town has been taken in, one time or another, by forged money, and there's been so much feeling against Dale that he hasn't dared come into town since the riots. People here are quiet, but they might take it into their heads to lynch Dale if they got to believing that he's the rogue who cheated them."

"Can you tell me anything about this man?" Hugh persisted.
"There's not much to tell, and that's a fact. He came here nearly three years ago from Boston and bought the Black Ox farm."

"Hugh halted in astonishment when he saw the green-eyed girl he had loved and had been unable to forget, even after she had betrayed him..."

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

With the College and VOA here and DuPont nearby, a surprising number of people in this community hold advanced degrees.

Perhaps these people should be warned that a type of fraud, especially designed to victimize them, is being promoted in Europe. We refer to the International Institute of Arts and Letters. According to Publisher's Weekly, this outfit sends out scurrilous bait in the form of an invitation to become a "Fellow" for life at the flat rate of $60.

The invitations originate in Switzerland, but the catch is that the Swiss government reports that the Society has "no status in the cultural life of our country."

Hodges On Hodges
A book which should elicit some interest locally, especially among the politicians, is Governor Hodges' forthcoming autobiography. It will be called "Businessman in the State House" and will be issued by the University of North Carolina Press. If Luther tells all, which seems extremely doubtful, this work might be a sensation.

Local Work
Another venture of the Chapel Hill Press will be a new anthology of North Carolina writing edited by the tireless Dick Walser. This will be of particular interest locally because it will contain an excerpt from the work of Ovid Pierce and a reprint of an interview with Paul Green which the ECC Rebel carried in 1960.

Juveniles
Readers of children's books will be interested in the announcement by Macmillan that it is issuing a new series in which important contemporary writers retell some of the great juvenile classics which were originally published in foreign

Eight St. Christian Announcements
"The Narrow Gate" will be the topic of the sermon by the Rev. Wilbur A. Ballenger, Rev. Ballenger will be preaching in the absence of Rev. W. J. Hadden Jr., who is preaching at evangelistic meetings nightly this week at Lexington, Ky. A trio composed of Miss Martha Henderson, Miss Anna White, and Miss Pat Carter will sing "The Great Cathedral" by Bahn.

C. Y. F. (high school) and Chi Rho (intermediates) will resume meeting at the usual times Sunday night: C. Y. F. at 6:00 p.m. and Chi Rho at 5:00 p.m.

The Christian Women's Fellowship Executive Board will meet April 30 at the home of Mrs. Helen Semons at 8:00 p.m. Mrs. Ruth Harris will be co-hostess.

May Fellowship Day will be observed by the United Church Women of Greenville on Friday, May 4. There will be a covered dish luncheon at 12:15 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church. The Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church women will be the hostesses.

The Official Church Board will meet in the Ladies' Parlor at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 1.
