U.S. Combat Units Poised For Thailand Landing

WASHINGTON (AP) — American forces throughout the United States and the Pacific area were under alert today as permission was awaited to land U.S. combat Marines in Thailand, which borders Communist-embattled Laos.

Gen. Paul D. Harkins, commanding officer of U.S. military advisory forces in South Vietnam, flew to Thailand to confer with officials at Bangkok.

Kennedy met with his top military and diplomatic advisers Sunday for 70 minutes, his third conference on the Laotian situation in three days.

Ball noted that under the 1954 Southeast Asia Treaty Organization pact the United States has certain defense obligations in the area.

The Seato countries held military exercises in Thailand last month and afterward by agreement with the government at Bangkok a U.S. Army battle group remained in the country.

The Marine landing forces could be deployed in similar manner and both the Marines and soldiers would then be ready for quick movement into Laos if ordered.

Military informants indicated that the 7th Fleet task force sent into the Gulf of Siam off the Thai coast presumably included the carrier Valley Forge, which serves as a floating base for a reinforced Marine battalion of about 2,000 men.

Pathet Lao advance and re-established the cease-fire. Meanwhile the Royal Laotian troops have shown themselves so far unable to stem the Red drive and there was no apparent hope here that they would yet be able to do so.

Red China Bases Could Be Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Serious deterioration of the situation in Laos could revive an old argument over whether to strike at supply bases inside Communist China.

Reliable informants said today some U.S. military leaders in the Pacific suggested recently that thought be given to hitting at bases in south China's Yunnan Province, believed to be a source of supply for pro-Communist forces across the border in Laos.

The idea reportedly was advanced as one of a range of measures that conceivably could be taken if the United States should decide to commit itself completely in the struggle to keep the Communists from overrunning Southeast Asia.

It was understood U.S. civilian leaders were not very receptive to the suggestion. Military officials who spoke of hitting at bases inside Red China reportedly voiced a belief it would not bring on direct Chinese military intervention in Southeast Asia and thus a possible major war with the United States.

The dispute over whether the Communists should be allowed a "privileged sanctuary" in China dates back to the Korean conflict when President Harry S. Truman fired Gen. Douglas MacArthur from command in the Far East.

MacArthur was sacked mainly because he persistently advocated publicly that he be allowed to bomb Red bases in Manchuria. He did so in the face of U.S. policy to keep the war inside Korea, even though masses of Communist Chinese troops had poured into North Korea to fight U.S. and U.N. forces.

In more recent times, some military men privately have indicated a feeling that the United States ought to consider military action against North Viet Nam, from which the Communist guerrilla war against the pro-Western government of South Viet Nam is being directed, supplied and reinforced.

It was not clear at what point U.S. military officers now proposing consideration of direct action against Red Chinese bases in Yunnan would want to take such action—in event the pro-Communists were about to engulf all of Laos, if pro-Western Thailand were seriously endangered, or if Chinese soldiers actually entered the Laotian struggle.

Here's How To Enjoy Art In Your Home

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Culture has hit home. Homemakers are art-conscious, going to museums and galleries, and there is a mad scramble to collect good pictures for the home. Auctions are jammed with potential buyers, and prices have skyrocketed. "It's a commendable trend, but in their haste to acquire art many people who can't afford good are will settle for any 'original,' just to fill up wall space," says Jay Dorf, well-known interior designer and art collector. "It's better to buy prints of good art than to settle for second or third-rate originals," he advises new art collectors. "A beginner collector should play it by ear, building toward a goal. Time and knowledge will help her do it." Pictures reflect the personality and taste of people who live with them, he points out, "tell whether they are conservative or flamboyant by the pictures they display." Once you've acquired art, give it proper balance on a wall, he advises. "A good oil painting should carry its own area, not be crowded or overwhelmed by other paintings," he advises. "You can put wall sconces on a wall shelf on the wall, but the painting shouldn't compete with other art." An overpowering picture should never be used with line drawings, he says. Sixty pictures hang on the walls in Dorf's 18th Century living room, including 22 etchings in Rembrandt's own hand, drawings by Del Sarto, Carriers, Boucher and others. Pictures on two walls that adjoin include 22 etchings, sketches and water color washes in brown tones. The height they cover is 40 inches from frame to frame, and was planned to start six inches above a grand piano. "I size up pictures by drawing a chalk line on the floor the same height and width as that planned for the wall. I place pictures within it exactly as they would hang on the wall, giving important ones the most prominent spot at eye level. Pictures hung above or below eye level aren't seen as well." Dorf puts the heaviest pictures on the outside "to make a border for the most delicate ones." One can extend pictures to within six inches of a door frame or corner of a room he advises. "If you want to keep the illusion of height in a room, keep pictures low," he says, "and hang them so they won't tip." He uses small screw eyes on a picture about one-half to one inch below the top of the frame. Wire goes from each screw-eye and attaches by a loop to a common nail on the wall. He takes his art in a straight line top and bottom because he feels cue shouldn't be distracted by fanciful patterns of pictures. Dorf's wall art presents no cleaning problem. "We vacuum it occasionally and use a window cleaning fluid and use a window cleaning fluid on it about once a year," he says.

Bethel Women's Society Meeting

The May Fellowship Meeting of the Bethel Woman's Society of Christian Service was called to order by the president Miss Camille Stator.

After the hymn "A Charge To Keep" was sung by the group, Miss Stator gave a message on "The Factors That Confront Us as Christians today, this being the second year in our Quadrennial Emphasis on Our Missions Today."

What is the mission of the church today, and what is our mission, asked Miss Stator? We, as women, need to understand God's purpose in His church for this world, and to realize that we have to work toward new churches in these new and changing times. This is not an easy task with the revolutionary forces loose in the world and church today, but it is a great and challenging time to be alive.

The pertinent factors that face us today are: (1) Rapid social change: Change is inevitable and it is coming with great speed. We must be ready and able to meet the changes and accept them. (2) population explosion: The population explosion is almost as dangerous as the atom bomb, said Miss Stator. The world is growing faster than the facilities can accommodate it. Food, clothing and housing are short, and present one of the greatest obstacles to peace and prosperity. As Christians, we should be able and willing to help solve this disturbing condition. (3), there has been a decided change in missions. The word missions no longer pertains to foreign countries, and neither are we the only country who sends missionaries into the field. We have many missions right here in our own country as do the countries across the sea, and all contribute time and money to these demands.

With International tensions, Communism, the Cold War and Militarism before us at all times, the church, as well as civilization itself, is finding itself in turmoil of confusion and frustration.

Indifference and apathy are most common in America today, continued Miss Stator. Sharing the gospel of Christ is the church's ONE mission, and in order to successfully accomplish this mission, we must increase our giving, overcome resistance to change, stimulate our spiritual life and maintain a sense of values.

Miss Stator told of several missionaries who she had heard recently, and cited the adverse conditions under which they had served. She quoted one missionary as saying "Unless you fall in love with Him, you need not go out into the mission field."

Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst presided over the pledge service, and Mrs. Walter Clayton Whitehurst installed the 1962-63 officers.

After the presentation of Memberships and Special gifts of recognition, everyone was invited to the fellowship hall for a reception honoring Mrs. Jean Cullifer Hemingway, Mrs. Barbara Carson, Mrs. Betsy Carson and Mary Ann Peel, who are new members.

Mrs. F. E. Price, Sr. is in Charlotte with her grandchildren while her son, F. E. Price Jr.; and Mrs. Price, are touring Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Riddick spent the weekend at Black Creek with Mrs. Riddick's mother, Mrs. Lena Bass.

In Battle For Matrimony? Look To Your Color Guard

By JUNE WILSON
Women's News Service
A thoughtful signor named Giacomo Carlini has come out with the reassuring news that a woman can rule her man, simply by the colors she wears.
Do you adore red? And wear it every possible chance? It may do wonders for your skin, but Signor Carlini, a foremost expert on color, says that though red is an exciting color to wear, it leads to arguments with that man in your life. It is even dangerous to his health if he has a weak heart!

Orange is a difficult color for many women, but it might be worth it if Stanley is a timid lad. Orange leads to enthusiasm and when you wear it, even Stanley may become quite bold indeed!

Pink you like? Pink is feminine, but wait. It can ruin a man's liver, is generally bad for digestion. If you operate on the principle that the way to a man's heart is by way of his stomach, don't wear your pink at mealtime.

Then there's yellow. This is the color of joy and gladness and it pepes a man up. But alas! It also reduces his romantic concentration which requires soothing quiet. No, yellow is out.
The favorite color of many men for all women is blue. Blue, relaxes them, causes a flood of new ideas you may not be prepared for.

A man thinks more clearly when you wear blue. Never try to romance an accountant in blue. It is sad enough that he only digs black and white without adding the injury of a blue dress!

Purple is only to be worn by exceedingly strong women and Signor Carlini pleads that no woman hold a man responsible when she dares to wear it.

Greco calms the guy down, but may put him to sleep. If your Mr. Big has insomnia, be a darling and give him green sheets

Home Rule Is Nearer Realization

Home rule by boards of county commissioners in North Carolina has made greater strides in the past decade than at any other time in the history of the state, but many county governing boards are still too closely tied to the apron strings of the General Assembly.

The trend toward greater autonomy by county commissioners in directing the affairs of their respective counties will be able in a few more years to govern themselves fairly well without running to the General Assembly every two years for decisions about purely local matters. For the county governments and for the General Assembly it will be an important day when County Commissioners have authority to direct the affairs of the county without awaiting approval by the General Assembly.

A recent survey by the Institute of Government shows that in 45 of the 100 counties of the state now the Boards of Commissioners have authority to set salaries for both elective and appointive officials of the counties. Although the other 55 counties still have to look to the General Assembly for final word on county salaries, there has been a marked improvement since 1950 when only seven of the 100 counties had such authority. In addition to the 45 counties which have full salary-setting powers, another 15 counties have authority to set the salaries of appointive officials even though the matter of salaries for elective officials remains for final determination by the legislature.

A similar change has taken place with respect to authority for setting fees for various county offices. In 1953 only 13 counties had authority for their boards of commissioners to set fees without going to the legislature. Now in 50 counties the Commissioners have authority to set clerk of court fees, in 55 counties they can set register fees and in 41 counties they can set sheriff fees.

Obviously North Carolina still has considerable progress to make in this field of "home rule" by counties before Boards of Commissioners can be looked upon as autonomous bodies. It is obvious, also, that the legislature has been reluctant to give up its power to determine purely local issues in many counties.

In such matters as salaries, fees and the like, the county board of commissioners should not have to look to the General Assembly every two years in order to make changes. The commissioners, after all, are elected by the people of each county to carry out the governmental functions of the county government. They have authority to levy taxes, appropriate funds for the various county operations. Certainly they should be trusted with authority to set salaries and fees of offices without first getting approval of the county's members in the legislature.

We trust that 1963 will be the year in which the county governments of the state are given full powers of home rule so far as county government affairs are concerned. It would, in our opinion, make for better county government throughout the state and at the same time take a considerable burden off the legislature which every two years finds itself faced with hundreds of purely local bills on matters that should be decided by the respective boards of county commissioners.

An 11th Hour Setback Could Be More Severe

With worsening conditions in Laos there has arisen the question of whether the United States will commit its own troops into the battle to salvage what remains of the Southeast Asian country.

President Kennedy has ordered an alert of the Seventh Fleet in the Pacific as well as other American forces have begun to move within striking distance of the military action in Laos in which the United States already is involved to the extent of material and military advisers.

There is no question about the Kennedy administration's being committed to the idea of trying to save Laos from communist domination. The big question is whether the administration will risk another Korea in Laos in an effort to stop the communist from overrunning Southeast Asia.

One way or the other that answer apparently must come within the next several days. Loss of Laos to the communist could be a severe blow to the free world for it would increase the threat of the loss of Southeast Asia. An unsuccessful effort to defend the country, even by committing U.S. or other troops at the 11th hour, may be an even more severe blow to the prestige of the United States and the free world in Asia.

Declared 'War' On The Formula

By RALPH ROBEY

Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, has declared open warfare upon the Kennedy Administration's formula for the determination of wages. That formula, it will be recalled, is that wage increases should be related to the national growth of productivity. This did not mean that every company should lift wages by the same amount, but it was offered as a general guide.

We objected to this as a basis of wage determination because of the disagreement among students as to the best method for measuring productivity, the difficulty of selecting the period to be covered, and the impossibility of accurate forecasts which would be essential in multi-year contracts. Reuther's refusal to accept this Administration suggestion of an entirely different character.

According to Reuther, wages must be increased by more than the rate of output per man-hour. His reasoning is that the lack of more rapid growth of the economic system as a whole is due to inadequate purchasing power, and the best method for correcting this is through wage advances in excess of the national rise of productivity. This is not true, no matter how one measures productivity. It is not true even for basic wages, and when one includes the fringe benefits the Reuther statement becomes fantastic.

But Reuther does not limit himself to regular wages. He maintains that time-and-a-half for overtime is no longer adequate. It should be lifted to double time. His purpose here is to force employers to hire unemployed workers, and presumably if double time did not have this result he would favor lifting the penalty wage until a company would have no alternative to increasing its labor force, regardless of what this might do to the financial position of the producer.

And if there is a labor dispute in one plant, Reuther says he will not permit the company to increase output at another location. This is a situation which concerns only multi-plant producers, but it means that Reuther proposes to exercise even more control over the legitimate rights of management.

What is new in all of this? Certainly it is not that lack of purchasing power is the real reason our nation does not have a larger growth rate. Reuther has been preaching that doctrine for years. He always has refused to recognize that profits are the motivating force in a system of individual enterprise. He believes that business makes too much in profits—that prices should be lowered and wages increased year after year. Since Reuther is not stupid, he knows—he must know—that such a course of action is not possible.

The suggestion of overtime is new. The law requires extra payment beyond 40 hours, but the purpose is, presumably, protection of the worker. It never was designed to force management needlessly to add to its labor force. And it must not be so used. In many instances it is prudent for management to use overtime, and in some cases, as a result of labor contracts, it would be foolish not to follow this practice. Many workers, it also should be noted, prefer overtime, and count upon this as part of their weekly wage.

The purpose to prohibit management from increasing output at one location when there is a dispute at another plant is an issue that has been argued over for years. Any real attempt to enforce this would be of no help to workers as a group. But most important of all is that we should have such suggestion.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

FACTORS OF CHOICE
By what are you dominated as you make daily decisions in every aspect of your lives? Are you dominated by fear? Are you dominated by a desire to follow the best policy? Are you dominated by jealousy?

Well, most people are probably dominated by sincere and honest motives for most people are sincere and honest. But the question is not always between right and wrong—the question is often between pleasant and unpleasant, difficult and easy. We make most of our decisions on the basis of fancy. We fancy this and do not fancy that. If we were to go back and examine our decisions at the end of each day we would find that many were made without much reflection, more even were made with the desire to avoid responsibility and work. We were led by our fancy or our indolence. We did what we wanted to do—or what we thought we wanted to do.

The truly happy people are those who have themselves well in hand. They accept the fact that there is considerable frustration in every life, that we cannot all be successful—at least not all the time—and that a decision made on the basis of sacrifice and righteousness is better than a decision which brings us a million dollars.

Watch out for the allurements of fancy. We can be a fanciful lot if we let ourselves go. We can be too indolent for words if comfort comes to have a big place in our lives.

The Young Will Adjust

Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Herbert C. Holdridge, Brigadier General, U. S. Army (Retired), who signs himself "Administrator" of the "Constitutional Provisional Government of the United States," sends out a lot of press material. Let me quote a paragraph from General Holdridge as a basis for discussion:

"Again the crimes against our people are plotted in the Vatican with the collaboration of Big Money, implemented through Outlaw Kennedy who rose to power by fraud. Kennedy, your (not our) Commander-in-Chief, involves us in blunder after blunder: the Cuban invasion; of Berlin; of Laos and Viet Nam; of the illegal mobilization of reservists for an undeclared, illegal war; of waging economic war against U. S. Steel and other industries; of atomic testing resumption; of involvement in the Common Market of foreign nations polling their bankruptcies to wage economic war against us; of the recommended betrayal of our military forces to the United Nations under control of enemies of our Constitution. . . . Having no intelligence, he must, naturally, blunder. He and his mentally-retarded, "Trigger-Happy" Irish, Roman Catholic "Mafia set the tune, and you generals and admirals dance the 'Twist', blindly without concern for your oath of allegiance to defend the Constitution. In the process you commit one overt act of treason after the other."

If such a paragraph were written by a Communist, as it well might be, it would be regarded as subversive. General Holdridge is entitled to his opinion. He is a citizen and is entitled to speak up in opposition to any official. He dislikes President Kennedy, principally because he is a Roman Catholic and has a rich father. General Holdridge is anti-Roman Catholic, which is his privilege. He believes:

"The 'prime movers' in these acts of violence, now as then, are the Pope and his hierarchy in Rome, and the International Big Money monopolists of Wall Street."

However, we are at war with Soviet Russia. Our civilization as well as our nation is imperiled by this war. There are Republicans as well as Democrats who are critical of President Kennedy, but when it comes to the safety of the country, most Americans stand shoulder to shoulder against the enemy, General Holdridge says:

"You advance the conspiracy to create the 'enemy' Communism, knowing full well that a potential 'enemy' was necessary to justify wars and war spending to keep the economy alive, and that had not Communism existed, another 'enemy' must necessarily be created for the purpose."

This is not good talk. This gives the impression that Communism is not an enemy; that even Soviet Russia is not an enemy; that the enemy of the American people is the American government.

This has no foundation in fact. It has no meaning in American life. And yet, General Holdridge is not to be ignored, for he has a following, as there is discontent in the land, particularly among older people, who cannot adjust themselves to changes.

Mez Robb made a point in her quarrel with a hotel man in Arizona that some people cannot cope with the 20th Century. Surely that does not mean that the 20th Century is good or bad, better or worse, than the 12th or the 18th. It is here and it is making its own peculiar history.

There are those in this country who find the middle of the 20th Century a middle and they cannot adjust their minds and habits to the results of a deep depression and three wars. They cannot grasp the consequences of the Marxist (Continued on page seven)

Other Editors Saying Two Concepts Of Voting

(Washington Daily News)

Whenever there are candidates or issues to be voted upon, it is common tendency to try to get as many registered voters as possible to cast ballots.

It appears to be a healthy thing to get out a heavy vote. The heavier the vote, the greater expression of democracy we have. Under a system of government where the majority rules, a heavy vote indicates a better expression of opinion from the people.

Yes, a heavy vote looks good for a community. And we all desire to see a lot of people go to the polls. Creating enthusiasm to such an extent that we will have a heavy vote is the first concept of voting.

But there is another concept which is most important, but this concept is seldom given the stress which we give to the size of the vote. This concept is intelligence. Voters ought not only to vote but they also ought to vote intelligently. Merely casting a ballot for the sake of voting leaves much to be desired.

A few days ago we heard a man say, "There are several candidates in this race; I am voting against this man and against that man." He never said which one he was voting for. We have long contended that people feel more strongly against a candidate than they might feel for a candidate.

If we look at the proposition carefully, there is no way really to vote against a candidate. The "against" votes are not counted that way. Voters vote "for" candidates, not "against" other candidates.

In the particular case above, the voter admitted that he did not know the other candidates in the race. But he knew two men in the running, and he likes neither. So he is going to vote against these two, but in so doing, he must vote for some candidate with whom he is not acquainted.

in America we generally take it for granted that the candidates themselves must make themselves known to the voters. There is also a challenge to the voters to find out all they can about all the candidates, and on the basis of knowledge and information make up their minds. It is difficult for all candidates to get to know all voters.

If all voters would find out what they can about the candidates in the various races, we in America would witness much more intelligent voting. In recent years the picture has improved radically. News papers, radio and television stations, quicker travel, and better education have all combined to make it much easier for a candidate to become known. And then the old time political bosses who a few years ago held the vote of a precinct or county in their "vest pockets" have about faded away. Today's voter is better equipped to gain knowledge and vote intelligently than ever before. But sadly enough a lot of people never get interested in finding out all possible about the candidates.

So if we can have a heavy vote and an intelligent vote, we will pay real tribute and honor to this democratic way of life we live under and love. We owe it to ourselves and to each other to select the best possible candidates to govern us in the days ahead.

JFK Influenced By Gold Problem

By ELMER ROESSNER

The biggest problem facing the Administration, and the one that may be causing those furrows in John F. Kennedy's brow, is the drain on the United States' gold supply.

Analysis indicates it is influencing his actions in labor-management relations, his stand on tax amendments, his position on tariffs and world trade and his attitude on many foreign problems.

The U. S. held $24 billion in gold in 1948-49. Holdings declined slightly during the Truman Administration and much more during the Eisenhower Administration. Truman left office and $23.3 billion in gold. Eisenhower left $17.8 billion. Under Kennedy, as of May 3, the gold holdings were $16.5 billion, compared with $17.4 billion a year earlier.

NEARING DANGER POINT
When America held a major share of the free world's gold, many economists said it would benefit the nation if other countries had a little more. But now our supply is approaching the danger point.

Of the $16.5 billion in Fort Knox and other depositories, about $12 billion is the reserve against currency in circulation. And foreign governments and private individuals have claims in excess of the remaining $4.5 billion. They are not claiming it, of course. The American dollar, battered though it may be on the home front, is still as good as gold abroad. But a sharp recession could push the country into a critical state in relation to other nations.

The way to get gold back from foreign countries is to sell them more of our products.

That's why Mr. Kennedy is seeking to lower tariffs between the United States and the Common Market, Japan and other friendly nations. If tariffs are lowered, we will buy more of their goods, but unless that is done, we cannot increase our sales to them.

If our imports exceed our exports, we stand to lose more gold. But if exports exceed imports, we'll gain. That's the gamble we have to take.

WHY DOWNWARD PRESSURE ON LABOR PRICES

For the same reason, Mr. Kennedy is using extra-legal pressures to hold down prices of basic materials and labor rates.

If wage rates rise, prices will rise. And if the desire for profits is not curbed, prices will rise anyhow—at least in the opinion of the White House brains trust.

So if the U. S. is to get back some of its gold by selling products in foreign countries, it has to keep its prices down and, hence, its wages down. If either or both wages and prices balloon, we will sell less abroad and that will mean more gold will flow out of the country to make up the difference between our purchases and our sales.

President Kennedy's tax proposals are streaked through with fears arising from the gold situation. The proposal to require American-owned corporations abroad to pay taxes sooner is an effort to force them

Facts Apply Today

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — I have spent the day reading a remarkable book—"THE PICTORIAL HISTORY OF WALL STREET"—368 pages size 12" x 9". This history shows clearly that the fundamental facts underlying investing during the past decades apply equally today. (This is an anniversary of the New York Stock Exchange founded just 170 years ago.) Let me describe ten facts.

(1) Safety and income come from careful selection and supervision of your investments. Profits come usually from "gambling"; although your total investment will rise and decline in "value" along with the Dow-Jones Averages. But big profits come from buying into new ideas, new discoveries, and scientific developments. To make big money, read scientific journals rather than ordinary financial news.

(2) Newton's Law of Equal and Opposite Reaction can be depended upon when the AREAS involved are properly considered. This was first noticeable when African slaves and gold were the only "commodities" traded on Wall Street 200 years ago. I believe that we will continue to have periods of Decline and Depression during the next few years. Congress can legislate only to temporarily postpone declines; but cannot change the AREAS involved.

(3) A study of Wall Street history during the past 170 years shows that dips in the stock market have always come unexpectedly, without warning. This was true when slaves, gold, or stocks were selling abnormally high—as at present. Such "bear markets" have always followed great wars, from Napoleon's Wars through World War I. No such bear market has yet occurred following World War II. The D-J Industrial Average was under 100 in 1942 and has since climbed fairly steadily upward, standing around 670 today.

(4) Special groups of stocks have acted differently during the past 150 years. The demand for slaves and land declined from 1860-65 while the demand for gold and railroad stocks was very active. Then, being over-popularized—as the electronics and space stocks are today—they had a terrible slump with most of the companies going into receivership. Most of the stocks in the same group suffer more or less together; but different groups can act very differently.

(5) Bonds—other than government—were almost nonexistent until 75 years ago when corporation bonds began to be issued. A study of quotations shows that the bond market is usually going down when the stock market is going up. Careful investors will hold both stocks and bonds in a proportion varying according to conditions. For instance, good corporation bonds can now be bought to yield 4½ percent while the stocks of the same corporations will yield today 3 percent or less. Hence, the switching of stocks into bonds has now begun on Wall Street and it will continue until the stock yield equals the bond yield.

(6) Naturally, everyone who knows Wall Street will advise diversification of all kinds. Don't put all your money in stocks or bonds. Real estate can be bought in the Central West fact. It has no meaning in American life. And yet, General Holdridge is not to be ignored, for he has a following, as there is discontent in the land, particularly among older people, who cannot adjust themselves to changes.

Mez Robb made a point in her quarrel with a hotel man in Arizona that some people cannot cope with the 20th Century. Surely that does not mean that the 20th Century is good or bad, better or worse, than the 12th or the 18th. It is here and it is making its own peculiar history.

Peronists Only Recall No One Else Helped Them

EDITORS NOTE: Juan D. Peron came to power when Argentina's economy was flourishing. When he was deposed after nearly 10 years of dictatorial rule, the economy was on the edge of chaos. Yet today, seven years after Peron was sent into exile he still retains a strong hold on the labor movement. What is the source of this Peron hold on the working man? The following article attempts to throw light on what makes a Peronist tick.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—A half dozen of us sat in a grubby fly-infested churrascueria—steak house—in the heart of the industrial area where Peronism was born.

"You want to know why we are Peronists," said a hard-bitten old militant. "Once we would have followed anyone who would promise us he would make things better for us. Today we can follow nobody except Peron. We have been indoctrinated and we see clearly. We have heard the words of the politicians and we do not believe them."

The Peronists remember that in 1945, Peron's power as minister of labor had risen so high that it frightened the Argentine military. The generals arrested him and incarcerated him on Martin Garcia—the same exile island chosen last month for deposed President Arturo Frondizi.

"They remember it was their enormous clamor which brought Peron out of exile to the presidency."

"When I think back, before Peron, I cry inside of me," said the old militant. "I remember the misery."

"I was seven years old when I went to work herding horses. We lived in a one-room shack of tin, all of us—mother, father, children—in one room. At 14 I went to school. It was the law then that we had to wear white smocks. But I did not even have shoes. My father could not pay for white smocks for his children. . . . I went to school only two years. My father died. I had to work. I went to work in the meat packing house and gradually became a butcher."

He worked, he said, sometimes for a peso an hour, sometimes for

Youths Had Key To Meter Coins

PASSAIC, N.J. (AP)—A month-long spending spree triggered by an oddly shaped key has ended for three teen-agers.

Police gave this account: A boy, 13, found the key on a downtown street and inserted it in a parking meter. It worked.

He shared his fortune with two friends, duplicate keys were ordered and the way was open to a seemingly endless supply of nickels.

When their pockets stopped jingling, they used their keys concentrating on a couple of downtown blocks.

The month of merriment came to a halt, however, when another youngster, wise to their activities, notified the policeman on the beat.

A detective collared the three Saturday. Police withheld the names but said the boys admitted looting the meters.

Sharks Attack Victims Of Capsized Cruiser

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The bodies of six men, all but one mangled by sharks, were recovered from the wind-whipped ocean near here Sunday. Three others still were missing.

The Coast Guard called it the worst sea tragedy in Southern California since 1952 when eight persons disappeared.

Searchers also recovered a bait tank and other debris from the 25-foot cabin cruiser on which the nine embarked on a fishing expedition early Saturday.

The craft, known as both the Happy Jack and the Cindy, apparently became swamped in choppy seas and sank Saturday, the Coast Guard reported. Winds were gusting up to 30 miles per hour.

Sharks still thrashed about the bodies when they were discovered by the fishing boat Mardic.

"There were so many sharks the men had to lower steel stretchers in the water to fish out the bodies," said Deputy Coroner Eugene Miller.

"The sharks kept after the bodies and several even jumped into the stretchers at the victims as they were being pulled aboard," Miller added.

The boat was on its first sea voyage under its owner, Chester McMann, 45, of Norwalk.

Miller said autopsies indicated all six men apparently drowned. Shark bites could have been an equal cause of death of five of the men, he said.

The Coast Guard posted small craft warnings Saturday advising of rough seas, winds of 20 miles per hour and gusts to 30 mph with an excessive surface chop due to steady blowing.

"A boat that size would bounce around like a cork" in such a choppy sea, an official said.

McMann's body was among those recovered.

Others recovered were:

Charles Chudy, 52, of Westminster; Harvey L. Johnston, 30, Los Angeles; Robert Herman Schmidt, 25, formerly of Stillwater, Okla., employed by a Los Angeles car loading firm; William F. Huffman, 29, Los Angeles, and John Treadway, 39, Bell Gardens.

Still missing were:

E. R. Huffman, brother of one of those found dead; Richard Cain, 28, of Bell Gardens and Robert Gibson, 21, of Norwalk. McMann's son-in-law.

Pop Music Influences West German Youths

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—"Elvis Presley—my God," was painted one day on the portal of Bamberg Cathedral. Police picked up four teen-agers and said they were the culprits.

When rock 'n' roller Bill Haley sang in a Berlin concert hall, infuriated teen-agers nearly wrecked the place.

In Hamburg, two girls leaped to their deaths from the 15th floor of a house. In their farewell letter, they said they were "called by the dead Jimmy"—a reference to James Dean, the late movie actor idolized in a German pop tune as the "first to make youth meaningful."

These incidents are cited by a German Protestant pastor as extreme examples of what influence popular music can have on West German teen-agers, now buying almost half the 40 million pop records annually sold in West Germany.

Pastor Guenter Hegele, 33, feels that no finger-raising, moralizing lectures are needed to alert young people to pop's potential harm. He says youth just must be made to think about what they listen to so they can differentiate between good and bad pop.

"It's about the same with the movies," he says. "A bad movie cannot do me much harm if I am aware why it is bad."

He likes quite a few pop tunes himself. An occasional disc jockey at Radio Munich, he recently made his debut on the national television network, which earned him the billing of "Schulzenpfarrer" or "pop tune pastor."

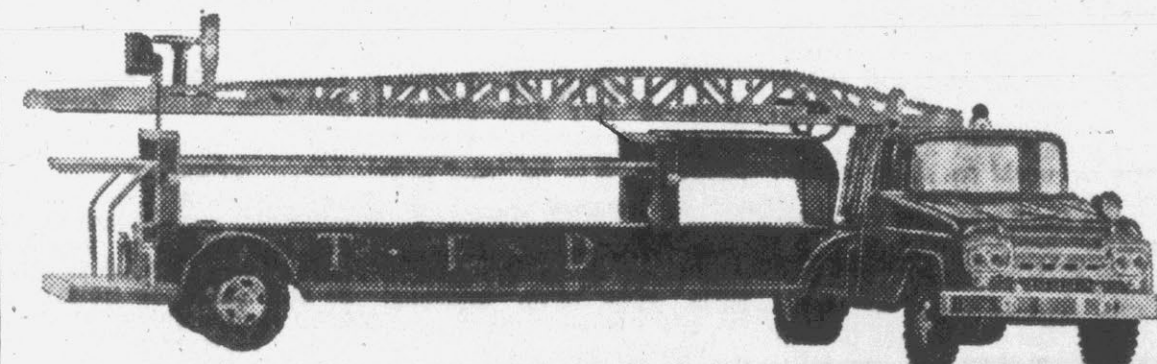

"Rhythm," Hegele says, "is an elementary power in life. But the danger is that the precious strength of juvenile enthusiasm is spent on an unsuitable object. Man has only a certain quantum of enthusiasm over the whipping rhythm of some pop tunes, it will be lacking elsewhere: in school, on the job, in love and marriage."

CHAPTER 31

The last act of Hugh Spencer's wild adventure was about to begin.

Several figures were clustered in the shadows of a warehouse, and Hugh put a hand on his hip as a precautionary measure, but relaxed when he recognized the members of his band. "Keep a sharp lookout for a boat at one of these commercial wharves," he said when he joined them. "If we can find one, I'd prefer to steal a civilian craft."

He took the lead, with Benji Flaherty and August Dale close behind him. The Simpsons, carrying short lengths of lead pipe, brought up the rear. It soon became obvious that boat owners were taking no chances on a night when Tories were celebrating and all of the wharves were deserted.

At last Hugh saw the naval board-ward ahead, and called out softly over his shoulder. "We'll have to act boldly, August, you'll walk with me. And remember, all of you, try to avoid a fight." He linked arms with the old man who tilted his hat rakishly over one eye.

Two royal marines armed with muskets and bayonets were standing sentry duty at the wharves where the boats that carried them from their ships were tied. When the marines saw the gold braid on Hugh's uniform they stood at attention and presented arms in unison.

"Stand at ease," he told them. "Aye aye, sir."

"What boat can you give me?" He tried to make out the sizes and shapes of the crafts in the dark.

"You can take your choice, Lieutenant," one of the marines told him with a broad smile. "Most officers are staying ashore tonight."

"Splendid," Hugh didn't turn as he called arrogantly, "Flaherty."

Benji stiffened. "Sir?"

"Find a suitable boat."

"Aye aye, sir," Benji saluted smartly, and walked toward the nearest dock.

One of the marines went to a small shed and returned with a sheet of paper, pinned to board, and a dripping quill. "Your signature, if you please, sir."

"Of course," Hugh took the board, was pleased to see that only a few officers had signed their names, and as he scribbled illegibly on the paper, he reflected that with any luck the Phoenix would be lightly guarded.

"I've found a boat for you Lieutenant," Benji called.

"Go aboard," Hugh told the others.

The marines looked at Hugh, then at August. "If you please, sir," one of them said, "we need this gentleman's permit to visit the fleet."

"I'm taking a friend to my quarters to share a bottle of port that I've been saving," Hugh spoke crisply, but his heart sank. A procedural technicality could ruin his entire scheme.

August met the emergency calmly. "I have the permit," he said. Paper crackled after he reached into the inner pocket of his coat and the marines presented arms again.

The band climbed into a small gig, Benji unlimed the line that held her fast, and the Simpsons began to row. Hugh, sitting in the stern with August, looked at the old man curiously. He had been prepared for a brawl, but August had solved the problem. "What in the devil did you give the marine? You had no permit."

"You're wrong, my dear lad. It was a universal permit, a two-pound note."

Hugh stared at him.

"Oh, never fear, it was genuine."

Hugh sighed and shook his head silently.

A brisk wind was blowing from the west, but the current was not strong, and the Simpsons soon reached midstream. They steered a devious course to avoid the ships riding at anchor, but they were powerful oarsmen, and the boat slid past towering ships of the line, sleek frigates, and swift sloops.

The night was dark, and only a few lights burned on the quarter-decks of some of the larger vessels, which was encouraging, but Hugh did not allow himself to dwell on the risks that he and his comrades were taking.

It was enough to remember that the United States, which possessed the most powerful nation in Christendom. Privateers and Yankee brigs managed to elude the enemy every day, and even though half of Lord Howe's fleet was at sea, the Americans were breaking the blockade. David was defying Goliath on both land and sea, and a determined band of rogues was intent on destroying a counterfeiting operation that had official British sanction.

"There she is," Benji called at last. "Of to starboard."

The gig changed direction, slid toward her goal, and finally hovered beneath the ship, which looked enormous from the water line. The portholes and windows were too high to reach, the line in the gig was insufficiently long to enable even the most agile member of the band to board the Phoenix and the Simpsons were dismayed.

Benji shared their bewilderment. "How do we get up there?"

Hugh examined the ship carefully and saw no lights burning anywhere, but he knew that a forty-four gun frigate would not be left unguarded. "We've got to take a chance," he said, "the greatest of all." Cupping his hands, he called loudly, "Ahoy."

After an almost interminable wait a man appeared on the main deck high above, carrying a lantern. "Ahoy," he replied.

"Bo's'n of the watch here."

"Gunnery officer here," Hugh called. "Lower a ladder for me."

"Well, Lieutenant Perkins, we wasn't expecting you tonight, sir."

The bluff was succeeding, so Hugh became even bolder. "I am here, as you can see, so lower a ladder, damn you."

"Aye aye, sir. But it will take a bit of time. I'm all alone, sir, but if you wish, I can call the officer of the watch—"

"No, don't disturb him. But hurry," Hugh watched the lantern bob down the deck. "If he suspects anything, he'll return with reinforcements, so be ready to shove off quickly. But if he allows us to come on board, I want one of you to silence him. You'll have to act quickly and quietly."

"I don't like them bo's'ns," Dave said. "We had a cousin who was one, and he bullied us something awful when we was youngsters."

"All right, Dave, I accept the offer. Follow close behind me, and don't be afraid to use that lead pipe."

Dave laughed savagely. The lantern reappeared, moved slowly down the deck, and a ladder was lowered. "I'll have to ask you to tie up your boat, Mr. Perkins," the bo's'n called. "But I won't have the work crew on hand until afternoon, sir."

"Very well," Hugh replied, and gave final instructions to his subordinates in a low voice. "Dick, you'll follow your brother. Benji, you'll bring up the rear. Don't use firearms unless it's essential to destroy the counterfeiting equipment. August, slip that line through the ladder and wait for us. If all goes well, we'll return soon."

Matsu Islands Shelled By Reds

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The Chinese Communists shelled the Matsu Islands Sunday for the first time in almost 19 months, the Nationalist Defense Ministry reported.

The ministry said the Communists fired 22 rounds at the little islands at the northern end of the Formosa Strait.

It did not disclose whether the defenders replied to the attack, but the Nationalist policy has been to ignore minor shellings.

The ministry said the Communists also carried out one of their routine attacks on the Quemoy Islands, hitting them with 41 shells.

Brinson Speaks To Bethel Club

BETHEL—A comparison of the education systems of Russia and the United States was the topic of Roland Brinson's talk at the Bethel Rotary Club recently.

Brinson said that in the United States "We are living with a need for responsible citizenship." He said citizens here have been described as having more knowledge than wisdom, more wealth than character, and more power than love for the human race.

The greatest need is for science and technology, Brinson said. He was presented by Dave Speir, President Linwood Briley presided.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, where gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

Hot Primary Campaigns End In 3 States Tomorrow

By The Associated Press

Primary elections will be held in Maryland, Pennsylvania and Nebraska Tuesday, ending campaigns that ranged from dull to blistering.

The hottest scrap has been in Maryland where the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination was enlivened by a tape recording alleging a $5,000 campaign contribution in return for some city judgeships.

Overtones of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's administration are present in the Pennsylvania and Nebraska elections.

In Nebraska, Fred Seaton, former Republican senator and secretary of the Interior in the Eisenhower cabinet, appears sure to win the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

In Pennsylvania, Eisenhower's home state, Congressman William Scranton is running for the GOP gubernatorial nomination with Eisenhower's approval.

In all, voters will be choosing nominees for governorships in all three states, Senate seats in Maryland and Pennsylvania, and 38 House seats.

Oregon voters decide Friday on candidates for governor, senator and four House seats.

Seven Democrats seek the Maryland gubernatorial nomination but the race has narrowed down to three men—Gov. J. Millard Tawes, paving contractor George Mahoney of Baltimore and David Hume, Texas-born lawyer and son-in-law of financier Cyrus Eaton of Cleveland.

Mahoney has bid for governor or senator in every primary since 1950 and has lost every time, sometimes by razor thin margins. In the 1950 primary he polled the most popular votes, but former Gov. Preston J. Lane won the nomination on the basis of county unit votes, similar to electoral college votes.

Fuel was added to an already warm campaign when Baltimore political leader Jack Pollack played for newsmen a tape recording he allegedly made of a 1958 meeting with Tawes, whom he supported. According to the tape, he gave Tawes $5,000 for election expenses in return for a promise that Tawes would name

Action, Not Words, Mean More To Midwest Business

EDITOR'S NOTE: What do businessmen in the Midwest think of President Kennedy's attitude toward business? To find out if any war losses may be sounding, Sam Dawson, AP business news analyst, interviewed top executives in the Chicago area.

In this, first of a series of three self-contained articles, their feelings about the new climate are presented.

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

CHICAGO (AP)—Action, not talk, speaks loud to Chicago businessmen.

Most of the top executives interviewed in a survey of Midwestern thinking on government-business relations say they believe President Kennedy is sincere in his assurances he isn't antibusiness. But with few exceptions they qualify that at once by citing deeds and trends that bring them up short.

"It's one thing to say the administration is not antibusiness," says Robert E. Brooker, who took over as president of Montgomery Ward last fall. "But that isn't very convincing if at the same time various federal agencies or departments are taking actions that harass business."

"Many restrictive rules keep popping up. The trouble is largely at a lower level than the presidency. Officials who are antibusiness and antibusiness may make the rules and regulations."

Any trend toward more federal regulation must be halted, in the view of John E. Swearingen, president of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana). He thinks government is applying pointless regulatory brakes to business in many important ways.

"Business baiting has become too popular a sport," he contends. As to government intervention in price policies—as in the recent case of a price boost attempt by steel companies, Swearingen holds that prices for oil products "must eventually be increased; it wages, materials and the other things we buy continue to increase—although I recognize that price increases have not been a popular subject in recent weeks."

Another oil man, who asked not to be identified by name or company, was more emphatic: "Even before President Kennedy moved against the steel firms, there was every sign of enmity to big business as such among a small but powerful group in Washington bent on deciding what's best for business."

"These men were using all the forces of government they could to move against big business on several fronts, such as antitrust suits, or blocking merger."

He added: "Business should be left alone to work out its own problems."

Robert W. Galvin, president of Motorola, electronics and electric appliance firm in Franklin Park, Ill., thinks President Kennedy isn't antibusiness himself but is moving toward a new era in which a group of officials often accused of being antibusiness will decide what's right and best for the country.

"Private business, with its many cross currents of interest, can best set the course of the economy," Galvin contends.

Joseph L. Block, chairman of Inland Steel Co., which bucked the steel price hike, disagrees with some of the methods the administration is using in policing business and labor. But, unlike many of the others, he thinks the government has the right to set forth the national interest and advise both sides in strong terms as to what it thinks would be bad for the public in general. He adds that neither side is required under present laws, nor should be compelled, to accept the government's ideas.

Most of those interviewed said their talks with other executives in the Midwestern area showed an almost unanimous opposition to the methods the President used in fighting the steel price rise—even among those who thought the hike itself would have been unwise.

The executives said they found the fear of a growing antibusiness trend spreading among their conferees, although only a few of these would say they thought the President insincere in his subsequent proffer of an olive branch.

Tuesday: What business thinks the administration should do now.

MRS. B. C. HORRELL of Wilson will be the guest speaker in a revival at Meadowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church beginning tonight at 7:45 and running through May 20. The pastor, Rev. T. H. Bradshaw, extends an invitation to the public.

Desperate War Waged A Few Miles From Twist

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The twist is big in downtown Saigon.

At nightfall sidewalk cafes and bars are busy. Traffic swarms the streets. The shops and market places bustle with activity.

A few miles away the hot, dirty war against the Communist Viet Cong goes on.

People get shot at and killed. They die in raids on villages, in jungle ambushes and in planes and helicopters carrying out combat operations.

Americans are in the field in South Viet Nam in the role of advisers. Some have been killed.

Pointing up the importance placed on this struggle by the United States was an impressive parade of visitors to South Viet Nam last week: Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, accompanied by Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff; also Adm. Harry D. Felt, commander in chief of U.S. forces in the Pacific.

The visitors met with high Vietnamese, including President Ngo

Dinh Diem, and with top American officials assigned here.

It was conceded there are shortcomings and there still is a long way to go. Special concern was expressed about the shortage or lack of communications linking the remote strategic hamlets with each other and with larger centers.

While McNamara and his party were here talking, being briefed, flying over trouble zones and walking the dirt parapets of strategic villages, the fight against the Communist guerrillas went on.

In the Mekong delta area south of Saigon, Vietnamese troops were flown into a large combat operation by American Marine helicopter pilots. The landing ran into stiff opposition. One American was injured by shattered glass.

There was other sporadic action over a wide area. There were rumors of extensive operations, but there were no details or even confirmation from either American or Vietnamese authorities.

And in Saigon the sidewalk cafes were busy and they danced the twist in the cabarets.

terly, this $24.00 would today amount to around sixteen billion dollars. So don't forget the great power of compound interest even if the bonds yield you only 4% percent.

(7) Seek the professional opinion of investment advisers who have been in business over fifty years and have made money for their clients. Tell your adviser that you want to diversify according to the basic fundamentals—but that you are willing to do some "gambling" by buying now into companies which may have a big future.

(8) Keep in good health—do not worry. Unless your health is good your judgment cannot be good. You do not need capital or a college diploma to "gamble" successfully; but you do need good health, a good wife, plenty of sleep, and to say your prayers.

(9) The best "gamble" of all is a bunch of good children. Have enough of them and some are sure to turn out to be "whizzes"—very smart. Keep out of debt. I have never borrowed or loaned one dollar in my life or bought on margin.

(10) Profits must come from forecasting the future. Your bankers will call it "gambling". But every forward-looking man has been a "gambler"—from Columbus of those scientists who, like M. I. T.'s Provost Charles H. Townes, are now working on condensed light rays and masers and lasers! Forget the moon; but capitalize on four big things: (1) The heat of the sun; (2) The coming scarcity of fresh water; (3) the cellulose of wood and cotton, to give us cellophane, plastics, and fibers; and (4) science. Stick to these four fundamentals, although you can diversify your holdings over many companies.

We are living in the new age, the age of "television," fuel cells, ion engines, harnessing gravity, and good bacteria. Don't spend too much time on present educational courses based only upon memory. Rather, learn to forecast the future by reading scientific magazines. In a previous weekly column I discussed stocks in good honest drug companies. Just now they may be selling for all they are worth. But these drug companies are great "gamblers"; if you own their stocks they will do the "gambling" for you!

In closing let me say the U. S. Navy is supporting a project at Santa Fe Springs, California to make bacteria batteries! The chemists are raising bacteria for new uses using same to improve quality of seeds. Interest in good bacteria and other microorganisms is now so high that the American Type Culture Collection, the national repository for "germs" in Washington, D. C., is planning to build new facilities to house its expanding activities. Read more scientific news!

Revolution, of Keynesian economics, of the development of atomic energy and of the new concepts in chemistry, physics, in medicine and psychiatry.

The youngsters know much about these developments because they are being taught very differently than we were taught. Their world is wider and deeper than ours was. Imagine what it did to a child of 10 or 11 to have gone through the experience of watching John Glenn orbit the Earth. To such a child, the Earth has become very small. Before his eyes, he saw the lights of Perth, Australia, light up in a tribute to the smallness of the world.

When that child reaches manhood, he will think differently than we do. He will look upon Pakistan as just around the corner and he will probably serve a period of conscription at the North Pole or on the Khyber Pass.

Evening Of One-Act Plays To Be Staged At College May 17

Theater enthusiasts are invited to attend an evening of one-act plays which will be staged at East Carolina College Thursday, May 17. Two plays—"The Valiant" by Holworthy Hall and Robert Middlemass, and "A Sunny Morning" by Serafin and Joaquin A. Quintero—are expected to draw a large audience when the curtain rises at 7:30 p.m. in Austin Auditorium.

Dr. Ralph H. Rives of the college English Department is co-ordinator of the performances.

Directed by Minnie Gaster of Rt. 1, Elon College, "The Valiant" depicts a prison scene just before James Dyke's execution. Miss Gaster starred in the title role of Auntie Mame in the East Carolina Playhouse production of the popular comedy during the winter quarter.

Playing the leading role in "The Valiant" as James Dyke, a condemned prisoner, is C. Thomas Jackson of Washington, N. C. A freshman student at the college, Jackson also shared honors in "Auntie Mame" when he played the role of Patrick Dennis, the nephew of Auntie Mame. Other members of the cast are Ed Smith of Fountain, as the warden; Casandra Drake of Washington, N. C., as a young girl; Clyde Putnam, Jr., of Tarboro, the jailer; and William W. Modlin of Washington, as the priest.

Two aged Spanish lovers, played by Carmen A. V. Raynor of Greenville, as Donna Laura, and Dr. Rives, as Don Pedro, are seen meeting in a park in Madrid on "A Sunny Morning." Carole Barham of Seaboard, as director of "A Sunny Morning," appeared as Liat in the spring musical "South Pacific," which was rated as a smash hit at the college in 1961. In 1960, she was a member of the cast in "The Lady's Not For Burning."

Miss Raynor, the leading Spanish lady in "A Sunny Morning," a native of Puerto Rico. She is majoring in Spanish at the college and is frequently called upon to give speeches about her native country. She will be making her first appearance on the stage when she appears as Donna Laura. Loretta Foster of Peconic, N.Y., and Gilbert Crippen of Waco, Texas, will appear as the two servants.

'My Fair Lady' Role For Audrey

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Audrey Hepburn is going to play the Cockney waif who became a lady in the movie version of "My Fair Lady."

Jack L. Warner, head of Warner Bros., announced the casting Sunday.

Miss Hepburn will play the role created on Broadway by British singer Julie Andrews.

The male lead, Professor Higgins, has not yet been cast. Prominently mentioned are Rex Harrison, who created the role, Cary Grant, Richard Burton and Michael Evans, who's playing the role now on Broadway.

Motorcyclists Attend Service

LONDON (AP)—Dozens of teenagers took their motorcycles to church Sunday. A row of the shiny new vehicles stood in front of the altar at St. Mary of Eton, in the east end suburb of Hackney, for a service of thanksgiving and dedication.

The Anglican vicar, the Rev. William F. Shergold, 38, is himself a motorcyclist. One of the machines before the altar was his. The teen-agers, wearing black leather jackets and black boots and carrying crash helmets, knelt while the vicar prayed that they would "so ride that other people may be safe on the road."

Gaskins Named Music Winner

Jake Gaskins of Greenville was named a first place winner in composition awards at the junior convention of the N. C. Federation of Music Clubs.

Gaskins is 17 years old. Some 142 registered delegates, with at least 100 others, attended the junior convention held in New Bern recently.

Dr. Bing's Long Service Cited

Dr. Kenneth L. Bing, Director of the Department of Industrial Arts at East Carolina College is the recipient of a citation presented to him by the North Carolina Industrial Arts Association in recognition of 38 years of service as an educator.

Dr. Bing has been Director of the East Carolina Industrial Arts Department since 1949. Under his leadership the department has grown from an instructional organization of 2 faculty members and 22 majors to one of 8 faculty members and 155 majors. A large number of majors in other fields also take work in industrial arts at the college.

The physical plant and equipment have had a similar expansion. Beginning with a 2-room set up, the department now occupies most of the first floor of the Flanagan Classroom Building. Next fall, when a new wing to the building, now under construction, is completed, the department will have additional facilities.

In 1949, when Dr. Bing became Director of the East Carolina Industrial Arts Department, a major in the field was first offered by the college. Expansion of the instructional program was elected with the purpose of training teachers of industrial arts for positions in the public schools of the state. The first students majoring in the subject were graduated at the college in the 1950-1951 term.

Major Issues Due For Church Assembly Today

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Big issues will be rolled to the fore today for the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. (South).

These include a proposal to withdraw from the National Council of Churches, and another to decline to join other church bodies in exploratory talks looking towards union.

Dr. Edward D. Grant of Baton Rouge, La., new moderator of the General Assembly, is a vice president of the national council. The Southern Presbyterians have belonged to the council since its founding in 1950.

Nearly 500 ministers and laymen are attending the General Assembly as commissioners (delegates) for the Southern Presbyterian Church. The assembly began last Thursday, and ends Tuesday.

The emphasis was on worship Sunday. The First Presbyterian Church moved its services to a downtown movie theater for the visitors to hear the sermon by Dr. Julian Lake, pastor, and to join in communion.

At an evening session, the Presbyterians were told of the need for pushing a $12 million campaign for capital improvement funds. The Rev. James E. Fogartie, minister of Myers Park Presbyterian Church in Charlotte, said the total is a minimum needed to keep programs moving forward.

The standing committee on interchurch relations voted 16-13 to recommend withdrawal from the National Council of Churches. It acted on overtures, or requests for action, from groups of churches in Mississippi and South Carolina.

After the vote, plans were made to bring a minority report to the General Assembly, recommending continued council membership.

The Presbytery of Central Mississippi, and those of Enoree and Harmony in South Carolina, contended that the national council does not represent the Presbyterian point of view.

Several overtures were presented to the Interchurch Relations Committee, calling for new talks for union with the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. (Northern). The two branches were divided at the time of the Civil War.

The committee said it did not favor new talks at this time.

Walkout Protest Follows In Wake Of Ousting Minister

NEW YORK (AP)—The ouster of the Rev. Dr. Stuart Hamilton Merriam as minister of the Broadway Presbyterian Church led Sunday to a protest by 275 persons who walked out of morning worship.

The supporters of Dr. Merriam filed to the downstairs auditorium, where a prayer service was held. The 125 persons who remained in the church proper heard an indictment of Dr. Merriam's ministry by the Rev. Graydon E. McClellan, chief administrative officer of the Presbytery of New York.

The Rev. Mr. McClellan gave an explanation of why the presbytery ousted Dr. Merriam from his pulpit at a closed meeting last Monday night. The presbytery—governing body for 62 Presbyterian churches in Manhattan, the Bronx and Staten Island—also removed the elders of the Broadway church and put a committee of the presbytery in charge.

Among highlights of the complaint against Dr. Merriam—as stated by the administrator—were that he had been too "rigid" in his approach to theological matters; and that he was not competent to minister to a church in the university and professional community in which the Broadway church is located.

The Rev. Mr. McClellan also said that "Dr. Merriam appears to have a compulsive desire for publicity." He said the elders were removed for not being "aware of the seriousness of Dr. Merriam's leadership deficiencies."

The Rev. Edward White, minister of the Good Shepherd-Faith Presbyterian Church and head of the special committee named by the presbytery to govern the Broadway church, made the comment to newsmen after the walkout:

"It appears to me that Dr. Merriam has led some of his people to worship him instead of Jesus Christ. In the church we think of this as idolatry."

Dr. Merriam, who was in the church when his followers walked out, joined them in the service downstairs. Most of those who walked out were elderly persons or college students.

Dr. Merriam, 38, a bachelor, said after leaving the church: "What has happened is that nonconformity has become a sin throughout American life. This is what I'm fighting."

He said members of the Broadway church were outraged by "the usurping of the legal rights of a called minister and a duly elected session by a presbytery which has formed itself into a seeming hierarchy."

Large Solid Fuel Rocket Tested

REDLANDS, Calif. (AP)—The largest solid fuel rocket engine ever built by the United States is considered a success by officials.

It contains many features to be used in future moon rockets.

The engine—called an applied research motor—burned out its capacity of 160,000 pounds of solid propellant in 130 seconds with a mighty roar of flames in a test Saturday.

Lockheed Populston Co., builder of the engine, said it was capable of producing 400,000 pounds of thrust.

National Golf Tourney Playoff Set For Today

By MIKE COCHRAN FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Faltering Arnold Palmer and youthful Johnny Pott set out today to square a little matter of $7,000 and the championship of the $40,000 National Invitation Golf Tournament.

Palmer, in one of his rare golfing lapses, necessitated an 18-hole playoff when he bogied two of the last three holes Sunday and missed a 12-foot birdie putt on No. 18 that would have given him his sixth current title.

East Carolina Tops Elon 6-3

By CHARLES VAUGHAN Reflector Sports Writer The East Carolina Pirates defeated the Elon Christians Saturday night 6-3 to win their final game of the season. Earl Boykin was the winning pitcher and Jerry Tillman was credited with the loss.

The Pirates opened the scoring in the bottom half of the sixth as they put together a walk and a hit to go ahead 1-0. Charlie Johnson, also playing his final game in a Pirate uniform, walked to bring Junior Green to the plate. The stocky third baseman connected to slam a line drive triple over the Elon leftfielder's head. Johnson came in to score the Bucs' first run of the night.

Elon rallied in the top of the eighth to score three runs on two walks and three hits. Boykin walked the first two Elon batters, Jim Leviner and Phil Cheek, to put runners on first and second. Mike Little followed with an infield single to load the bases. Boykin retired the next two batters on a strikeout and an infield fly. Elon pinchhitters Crook and Allen hit back to back singles to score three runs before Boykin retired Leroy Myers on a strikeout.

Spencer Gaylord hit homer inside park as EC defeated Elon Saturday night.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Onrushing Virginia, which won three league games last week, has become a surprising challenger to Wake Forest's designs on the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball championship. Their games Wednesday may tell the story. Wake Forest's Deacons, leading on a 9-4 conference record, are at North Carolina State. The Virginia Cavaliers, 7-4 are at Maryland. If Wake Forest wins and Virginia loses, Wake will take the championship. If Wake Forest loses and Virginia wins, the Cavaliers will have a shot at the title.

Cleveland's Donovan Is Leading Pitchers At 6-0

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

A year ago about this time Cleveland right-hander Dick Donovan had a pitching percentage of zero (0-5 for Washington). Cleveland second baseman Jerry Kindall was batting zero (0 for 5 in 7 games for the Chicago Cubs) and the Cleveland team had a zero winning percentage against New York (0-2).

Today, Donovan leads all pitchers in the American League with a 6-0 record, Kindall is batting .277 but .364 in seven games against the Yankees and the Indians have beaten the world champions five of seven.

These statistics more than anything else explain why the Indians are in first place, a half game in front of the Yankees who they whipped in both ends of a Sunday doubleheader 6-4 and 8-5.

With only a little more than a month of the season gone, the Indians, under freshman manager Mel McGaha, already have beaten the Yankees more times than they did all last year under manager Jimmy Dykes. In 1961 when the Indians finished fifth, 30½ games behind the Yankees, they won only 4 of 18 from New York.

Minnesota, vying with Cleveland for the No. 1 surprise in the American League, clung to third place, only 1½ games off the pace, crushing Kansas City 10-3, Chicago's fourth-place White Sox outslugged Los Angeles 15-6, Baltimore nipped Washington 3-2 and Detroit edged Boston 6-5.

San Francisco widened its National League lead to four games walloping Houston 7-2 as the Los Angeles Dodgers regained second place from St. Louis with a 4-3 decision over the Cardinals. Cincinnati came from behind to defeat Pittsburgh 6-4 and the Chicago Cubs downed Philadelphia twice 8-7 and 8-5.

The Indians pounded Whitey Ford and four more New York pitchers for two dozen hits, including four home runs. Catcher Johnny Romano had a three-run homer in the first inning of the first game contributing largely to Ford's second defeat of the season. Kindall also had a three-run homer. His game in the fourth inning of the second game, off rookie Jim Bouton.

Cleveland added one more run in the fifth and three in the sixth to go ahead 7-5. Rookie outfielder Ty Cline's single tied the score and Chuck Essegian followed with a two-run single off loser Roland Sheldon.

Donovan's sixth straight victory came in the opener by way of a five-hitter. Barry Latman, in relief, was credited with the second game triumph.

Veteran Vic Power and rookies Bernie Allen and Joe Bonkowski teamed up to bring Minnesota their 11th victory in the last 15 starts. Power drove in five runs with a grand slam homer and a single. Allen boosted his average 29 points to .260 with four hits, including two doubles and his fifth home run. The right-handed Bonkowski, in his first major league start, went the distance for his third victory in four decisions.

Dick Brown and Dick McAlliff got all Detroit hits (4) and drove in all the team's runs (6) in the Tigers' one-run victory over Boston. Brown had two home runs and a single and drove in three runs. McAuliffe also batted in three runs, with a triple after loser Galen Cisco had filled the bases with walks.

A disputed ninth inning home run by Earl Robinson snapped a 2-2 tie and brought victory to Baltimore over Washington. The ball hugged the left field foul line and was ruled fair by third base umpire John Flaherty over the objections of the Washington team.

Jimmy Piersall, who had hit a two-run homer for Washington earlier, had to be restrained. He tried to climb the fence in left field to see if the ball had fallen behind a triangular section of Baltimore's Memorial Stadium fence, which lies in foul territory.

Only Two Possible Results In Southern

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This is the final week of the Southern Conference baseball season, and the championship race can have but one of two results—a second straight tie for West Virginia or a tie between the Mountaineers and Richmond.

The first alternative is likely, the second possible.

West Virginia goes into the week with an 8-1 league record and two remaining conference games—a doubleheader at home Saturday against Virginia Tech, which rapidly is acquiring a spoiler's reputation.

But Richmond's Spiders, 1961 runners-up to West Virginia, are 7-3 and just one game is left—at home Wednesday against Virginia Military Institute. For the Spiders to tie the Mountaineers, Richmond must win its game while West Virginia loses its twin bill.

A six-hitter by sophomore left-hander Frank Griffith, his third shutout of the season, gave Richmond a 3-0 victory Saturday over last-place William and Mary.

VMI's Keydets scored 7-3 and 3-1 triumphs over George Washington and set up a battle this week for the second through fifth places—should Richmond lose.

The double victory pulled VMI (7-5) into fourth place ahead of idle Furman (4-3) and just behind Virginia Tech (6-4). All three teams play two conference games this week. GW dropped to 4-6 in the circuit.

A pair of non-league engagements saw West Virginia bow to Pitt 4-3 and Davidson nip Georgia Southern 6-5.

All conference teams are idle today in preparation for the stretch run that begins Tuesday. Here's the week's schedule:

Tuesday—VMI at William and Mary, The Citadel at South Carolina, Clemson at Furman, West Virginia at Penn State.

Wednesday—VMI at Richmond, Thursday—West Virginia at Bethany.

Greenville Wins 2 Games From Enfield

ENFIELD—Greenville's Eastern County League baseball team captured both games of a doubleheader here yesterday defeating Enfield 6-1 in the first game and 1-0 in the second contest.

The victories leave Greenville with five wins and two losses for the season. Depending on the outcome of other games Sunday life local club could be in first place.

Pitching the first game for Greenville was Wayne Cosby who allowed three hits, struck out six and walked six. The losing pitcher was Bill Haskins who allowed six hits, struck out three and walked two.

Greenville took an early lead in the contest when they picked up three runs in the first frame. The runs were scored off a walk and three singles with Tom Boyd, Beasley Jones and Haywood Outland crossing the plate for the runs.

The other three runs of the contest were picked up in the fifth inning off two singles, two errors and a walk. Jones, Brownie Tripp and Boyd made the runs.

Cosby, the winning pitcher for the first game, drove in four of the runs with two hits and Jones drove in the other two runs.

Enfield's only run was in the second inning when Pearl Bryant walked and scored three more walks and a single before the side was retired.

In the second contest Billy Dunn was on the mound for the winners. He allowed two hits, struck out 10 and walked one. Charles Hux was credited with the loss as he allowed three hits, struck out six and walked three.

Sophomores Win ACC Tennis

RALEIGH (AP)—Three North Carolina sophomores—George Sokol, Blitsy Harrison and Ted Joehn—are the 1962 tennis champions in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Sokol, top-seeded blond from Bryn Mawr, Pa., defeated third-ranked Bobby Burns of Clemson, 6-1, 6-4, Saturday to win the singles crown.

Unseeded Harrison and Joehn rallied to upset Virginia's Dave Dickinson and Bruce Farrell in the doubles finals, 1-6, 6-2, 7-5.

North Carolina, winner of the regular season championship pulled up 27 points to win the John F. Kenfield Memorial Trophy as the top team in the tournament. Clemson was second with 17, Duke, Virginia and Maryland tied for third with 11 each, North Carolina State had six.

Stuck Pedal And Traffic Aid Win

By DEL BOOTH
DARLINGTON, S. C. (AP)—A stuck accelerator and some heavy last lap traffic helped driver Nelson Stacy of Daytona Beach, Fla., to a second consecutive victory at Darlington Raceway.

Stacy pocketed $7,900 of the $45,520 purse by slipping past Marvin Panch on the next to last lap of Saturday's Rebel 300 stock car race. Then fending off challenges in heavy traffic to the finish for a one second victory at 117.864 miles an hour.

Both men were in Fords, as was third place finisher Fred Lorenzen of Elmhurst, Ill., whose car blew a tire and wrecked out on the final lap.

Stacy's winning finish duplicated his victory last September in the Southern 500 here, when he also edged out Panch, three laps from the finish.

A one-lap penalty for passing the pace car during a caution flag probably cost Lorenzen his second Rebel 300 victory.

But Panch got $4,890 and Lorenzen $3,390 of the purse for their efforts.

Glen (Fireball) Roberts of Daytona Beach went out of the race first. Coming into the third lap his car and that of Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Va., tangled. Dick Petty of Randleman, N.C., went with them. Roberts was effectively out, but Weatherly and Petty were able to continue after long pit stops that knocked them out of contention.

Stacy just missed the pile-up on the fourth turn, and because of a stuck accelerator. Starting third, he would have been up with the leaders, but had dropped back to try to get his accelerator free and make it stop sacking in the wide open position.

"That saved me," he said after the race.

Johnny Allen of Atlanta finished fourth.

Time Is Short For The Bears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Lenoir Rhyne has one week and a bare mathematical chance to win the Carolinas Conference baseball championship from first-place Pfeiffer.

The Bears, 12-3, can take the title by winning their one remaining game, at High Point today, only if the Falcons, 14-3, lose one of their three remaining games, or Lenoir Rhyne can lose today's game and win the title, provided Pfeiffer doesn't win any more. But that isn't likely.

As far as the other teams are concerned, they're out of it. Catawba is in third place with a 10-7 record. Then follows East Carolina, Newberry, Elon, High Point, Appalachian, Western Carolina, Atlantic Christian and Guilford.

In other games today, Newberry will be at Elon for a doubleheader or another Carolina visits Appalachian. The rest of the week's schedule:

Tuesday—Elon at Pfeiffer, Atlantic Christian at Guilford, Wednesday—Elon at Appalachian, Thursday—Pfeiffer at Guilford, Atlantic Christian at Campbell.

The third remaining Pfeiffer game has not yet been set.

NCHSAA Raises Enrollment

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—The North Carolina High School Athletic Association has increased enrollment requirements for the four classifications of schools.

Ervin Captures New Bern Golf

NEW BERN, N. C. (AP)—A head-to-head duel between the two leaders left them right where they started in the second annual New Bern Golf and Country Club Amateur Invitation tournament Sunday.

Horace Ervin of Kinston protected his two-stroke lead to edge Archie (Bubba) Clark Jr., of Fayetteville as they shot identical closing 71s, one over par. That left Ervin, a former Carolinas champion, on top with a 137 total and Clark second at 139.

They had the two best final rounds in the field of 181. Ervin fired a first round 66 to take the lead. Clark opened with 68.

George Williams of Clinton was third with 143, one shot ahead of Bill Harvey of Greensboro, the defending champion, and Jim Kinder of Camp Lejeune.

Sukarno Again Escapes Effort Of Assassin; Gunman Seized

SINGAPORE (AP)—Indonesian President Sukarno reportedly escaped another attempt on his life today when an assassin tried to run him down at an outdoor prayer meeting in Jakarta.

Jakarta Radio said Sukarno escaped unharm, but that five other persons, including two government officials, were injured slightly. The broadcast said police had seized the gunman who reportedly was acting on orders of the Darul Islam group of Moslem fanatics.

Because today is an Indonesian national holiday, communications were irregular between Jakarta and the outside world. It was believed news reports of the shooting were being held up by censorship.

J. Muzhar, information officer of the Indonesian consulate in Singapore, said he had reports of the assassination attempt, but that he had not received any official word from Jakarta.

It was the fifth assassination attempt against Sukarno, 61, during his long, turbulent career. The last try was made Jan. 7 while Sukarno was touring the South Celebes to drum up support for invasion of Dutch-held West New Guinea.

Jakarta Radio said today's attempt was made in the capital's Ikada Square during a prayer meeting starting sacrifice day commemorations, a Moslem holiday.

The broadcast said the state security organization had been tipped off that Karto Suwirjo, head of a Darul Islam group, had ordered nine of his men to kill Sukarno.

As a result, security forces took "certain measures," the broadcast went on.

"A person suddenly attacked and fired shots at President Sukarno," it said. "With God's protection, the president was not harmed by the attack."

"The attacker was arrested immediately and investigation is now underway."

The Indonesian Embassy in Tokyo said the injured were Zainul Arifin, speaker of Indonesia's House of Representatives; K. H. Idham Chalid, deputy speaker of the Consultative Congress; Assistant Police Inspector I. Dajat and Police Brigadier Sudikmo, Sukarno's bodyguards, and Mohammed Nur, a palace official.

The gunman was not identified. The embassy said that "after the abortive incident, the situation was calm, and the prayer service was carried out as it ought to be."

The Darul Islam sect launched a rebellion against the government in 1951, two years after the 3,000 East Indian islands and their 90 million people were granted sovereignty by The Netherlands.

The group has fought the government ever since in an attempt to set up a Moslem state. Government military action has reduced the sect to scattered bandit groups that carry on terrorism in rural areas.

Fear And Uncertainty In Laotian Retreat

Farmers Asked Place Orders For Farm Labor

Pitt tobacco farmers desiring out-of-state labor for harvesting this year's tobacco crop have been invited to a meeting Tuesday scheduled by Kendrick Taylor, farm placement interviewer for the Greenville branch office of the N. C. Employment Security Commission.

Taylor, in announcing Tuesday's meeting, urged farmers who desire the farm labor to attend the discussion meeting to place orders. "We will have to close out our orders this month so that we'll have time to get the workers," Taylor said.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the second-floor auditorium of the Pitt County Agriculture Building, 709 Johnston St., Greenville.

Taylor said this year's laborers, as in past years, will come from Mississippi, Alabama and possibly Florida. Orders already placed for the upcoming harvest season, he noted, exceed last year's total of about 200. "We already have orders for between 200 and 300," Taylor said.

The out-of-state laborers, he said, are not classified as migrant workers since they return to their homes as soon as tobacco harvest is completed. The workers come north for that specific purpose, he noted.

As representative of the ESC, Taylor serves as agent in securing the farm labor ordered by Pitt farmers. Handling of the temporary employment is a service of the Employment Security Commission.

EDITOR'S NOTE — AP Correspondent Tony Escoda flew by helicopter from Chiengrai, in northern Thailand, to the Mekong River border with Laos and took a motorized homemade launch across the river to the Laotian town of Houei Sai, which had been reported captured by Communist forces Friday. Here is his report:

By TONY ESCODA

HOUEI SAI, Laos (AP)—Houei Sai was a ghost town today following a mass evacuation into Thailand by government troops and civilians late last week.

The Royal Laotian flag still flew over the town's fort and a dozen government troops aimlessly patrolled the deserted streets.

Mayor Phouey Chatanga, back on an inspection tour of his town, said he believed the nearest main body of pro-Communist forces was about 30 miles away. No one could tell, however, how close advance Red guerrilla elements might be.

The town itself apparently had never been occupied by the Reds. Eyewitnesses reported only that there had been some shooting and some "explosions" before the government forces pulled out. Several homes were damaged, but it could not be determined immediately whether the cause had been Red shells.

It was believed that the evacuation had been prompted chiefly by fear of a Communist offensive against the river town, coming soon after the Reds' capture of Nam Tha, some 80 miles north.

Many of the 2,000 Laotian troops who fled into Thailand were reported to have been remnants of the garrisons at Nam Tha and Muong Sing, which had been overrun by the Communists earlier.

The evacuation into Thailand was started by government troops last Wednesday and ran through Friday in what an eyewitness described as "two days of hell."

The witness, Dr. Carl Wiedermann of the Tom Dooley Foundation Hospital in Houei Sai, said the movement across the river was totally disorganized. He said troops crammed themselves into little boats—normally used by the market vendors trading between Houei Sai and the Thai border town of Xieng Khoang—in efforts to reach the Thai side.

He said he knew of at least one boat with 40 soldiers aboard that capsized. He said, however, he had seen no bodies of drowned persons. The Mekong at that point is about half a mile wide with a fairly swift current at midstream.

Wiedermann, a German, said many of the government soldiers who had streamed down from the north were exhausted. He said some of them told of "many bodies" left along the way. Apparently no move was being made by the military to set up new defenses against the pro-Communist in Houei Sai, and no one here knew how long the royal government's flag would continue to fly over the fort.

County Agricultural Agent
Sweet potato transplanting should get underway this week and continue until up in June. Growers should follow some precautions now and at planting time to insure good quality sweet potatoes at harvest time.

Fields infested with nematodes should already have been treated or if time permits before transplanting they should be treated two weeks ahead of transplanting.

To control wire worms, elongate flea beetle, and white grubs, broadcast soil treatments using 6 pounds Chlor-dane, or 2-3 pounds heptachlor or aldrin, or 1-2 pounds Dieldrin per acre. These materials may be used as dusts, granular, or emulsions for spray treatment.

Immediately after application the materials must be mixed into the top six inches of soil using the field disc. These materials should be used several days before transplanting to allow time for killing the insects before plants are set.

The fertilization program for sweet potatoes has changed in the past few years. The best practice is to follow recommendations of the soil testing division. In the absence of a soil test report a good practice would be to use 350 pounds of 6-12-6 (or 400 pounds 4-12-12) at planting.

ASCS Note Book

By ELISE HANNAH Performance Clerk

(Several weeks ago, "ASCS Note Book" explained in outline form methods used in measurement of allotted crops. Following is an explanation of use of instruments in calculating exact acreage after field work is completed.)

Several years ago ASCS began to use an instrument called a planimeter. This planimeter is made to be used on photographs having a scale of 330 ft.—1 inch. The planimeter is an ingenious and most accurate device which must be handled with extreme care.

The planimeter is checked each morning and after lunch period each day to assure its accuracy. A planimeter consists of a pivot arm, a tracer arm and a test scale.

To determine the acreage in a field, the tracer arm is placed in the center of the field with the pivot arm at a right angle. Then the tracer point on the tracer arm is pulled to the top right hand corner of the field.

There is a dial on the tracer arm very similar to a speedometer which records the acreage. Now, with the tracer point set in the corner of the field, a four-digit reading is taken from the dial.

After the reading is recorded, the boundary line very accurately, moving clockwise until the point of beginning is reached. Extreme care is taken to stop exactly on this point.

Here, the second reading is taken and recorded without moving the tracer point. The difference between the first and second reading is the check area of the field expressed in acres and tenths.

With the tracer point still in the upper corner of the field, it is again pulled along the boundary line clockwise completing two turns around the field before stopping at the point of beginning.

A third reading is taken from the dial and recorded. The difference between the first (starting) reading and the last reading will represent the triple area expressed in acres and tenths of an acre.

When dividing this difference by three, the result must come within three or four one-hundredths of the check area of the field. If it does not, then both the check area and the triple area must be voided and the measurement repeated.

The girls who operate these planimeters are well trained in the county office. Extreme care is taken to see that the dial on the planimeter is read correctly and that each girl understands the device she will be working with. After a day, or more if needed, of practicing to read the planimeter, a test is given on which the operator must make a grade of 80 per cent or better.

Greeks Cheer At Royal Wedding

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Princess Sophie of Greece and Prince Juan Carlos of Spain were married today in two religious ceremonies as tens of thousands of Greeks cheered.

The dashing prince, groomed by Generalissimo Francisco Franco to occupy the long vacant Spanish throne, first married the daughter of Greece's rulers in his own faith at the Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. Denis.

They rode together through the streets to the royal palace, smiling and waving to the cheering throngs. Then they separated and were driven to the Greek Orthodox Cathedral for the Orthodox ceremony required by Greek law and Sophie's faith.

Pope John XXIII gave special approval of the Roman-Orthodox union after the princess pledged to bring up her children in her husband's faith.

Church bells rang, artillery guns roared out a salute and a gathering of 120 royal guests looked on with excitement as the prince, 24, and the princess, 23, took their vows.

It was the most brilliant wedding Athens had seen since Sophie's parents—King Paul and Queen Frederika—were married in 1938.

Princess Sophie arrived at the church right on time. She was escorted by eight bridesmaids, their eight escorts and four witnesses for the ceremony—all princesses or descendants of royal houses.

The cathedral, decorated and perfumed by thousands of red and yellow roses and carnations, was packed with royalty that included Queen Juliana of The Netherlands, King Olaf of Norway, Queen Ingrid of Denmark, Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco and younger prince and princesses by the dozen.

Juan Carlos arrived at the church first with his mother, the countess of Barcelona.

The youthful prince's father, the Spanish pretender Don Juan Bourbon, rode with Sophie's mother, Queen Frederika.

Tobacco Tips

As we complete the transplanting of the tobacco crop it is not too early to begin planning the plant bed program for the 1963 crop. A well-planned program based on sound, proven practices will greatly reduce the risk involved in producing a good supply of healthy tobacco plants.

If you are not satisfied with your present plant bed site, now is the time to choose one that is more suitable for good plant production. When selecting a plant bed site there are several factors that should be considered.

It is best to select a deep, fertile loamy soil that warms up quickly. The bed should be located near a convenient water supply, such as a home water supply, pond, or stream, so that it can be watered easily during dry periods.

Cold and drying winds can cause serious damage to stands and earliness of plants; therefore, it is a good idea for all beds to have some type of windbreak on the north, northwest and northeast sides.

Plant beds that had good windbreaks this year generally produced a good supply of fairly early plants.

Once the plant bed site is selected, the soil should be managed properly through the summer months for best results. Whether an old or new plant bed site is used, good physical condition and high organic matter in the soil seems to be very helpful in getting a good stand and promoting growth.

A summer cover crop of soybeans or cowpeas will not only help maintain good physical condition of the soil but will help keep weeds from growing and producing seed on the plant bed site.

The cover crop should be disked in early in the fall so it will be decayed before time to treat the soil for weed and nematode control.

Plant production is a very important part of growing a tobacco crop. Let's begin now to carry out these proven practices in producing our plants for the 1963 crop.

Horseback Ride Ends Adventure

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP)—Barbara Andlovec's adventure of being lost overnight in Big Basin State Park ended happily Sunday in a horseback ride with a sheriff.

Barbara disappeared Saturday afternoon while hiking in the park with her mother and older brothers and sisters.

Nostalgic Kick Reeling In Entertainment Arena

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Art Carney, walking out of the usual black background into the spotlight for his hosting chores on Sunday night's NBC "Fas and Fables," described the program as a "patchwork." "Jumble" would have been more apt.

It was another in what is fast becoming a tiresome series of clips from ancient movies showing early automobiles, Rudolph Valentino, the Charleston, sautages on the march and Woodrow Wilson throwing out the first baseball of the season.

For no particular reason NBC also added some tasteless film showing Elvis Presley in action, Marilyn Monroe, Whistler's mother and then saluted some states in song. In spite of the talents of Carney and comedienne Alice Ghostley, it was really adismal effort. NBC is either going to have to find some new old film or get off its nostalgic kick.

CBS showed "Acres and Pains," a half-hour comedy made as a sample for a series that doesn't seem to have a niche in next season's schedule. "This a pity. The lines were bright and amusing and the principals, Walter Matthau and Anne Jackson, dryly funny as a city couple moving to the country.

"Yes Montand on Broadway," repeated by NBC Friday night after an airing earlier in the season on ABC, was one of the brightest, most engaging variety hours of the season. Montand is a continental-type charmer. The music was delightful and the dancing was fine. Montand had help from Polly Bergen and Bob Van, but it was his show all the way.

The summer season already is pretty well along. Tonight, for example, there are two repeats on ABC, four repeats on CBS and three on NBC. "The Price Is Right" and "Pete and Gladys" are the only series with fresh shows on NBC and CBS.

Jack Benny and his daughter, Joan, will appear on "Password" the night of May 29, one of three night-time versions of the game coming from Hollywood. Peter Falk, who had made something of a specialty of soft-spoken, very sinister villains, will play the hero in one of the Dick Powell shows early next season. Powell, who usually plays the white-hat, will be the heavy.

Recommended tonight: Bing Crosby Show, ABC, 10-11 (EPT)—Bob Hope, Edie Adams and Gary Crosby co-star in a musical-comedy special.

Instruction in Turkey's Robert College is given in English, although fewer than 10 per cent of the student body come from English-speaking countries.

U.S. Lagging In Growth Goals

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—The United States is lagging behind the economic growth hoped for by President Kennedy, says U.S. Budget Director David E. Bell.

Bell, addressing the 65th annual meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs Saturday, said he doubted the nation could reach full employment by the end of this year or the beginning of next.

The budget director added that it would be a bad mistake to balance the federal budget every year.

In years of low employment and recession, budget deficits are necessary to help "turn the economy upward again," he said.

More Radios For South Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agency for International Development plans a five-fold increase in the number of radio receivers to be provided South Viet Nam. The stepped up program will provide about 250,000 in the next 12 months.

An official said the program originally called for 50,000, with 20,000 to be paid for by the South Viet Nam government and 30,000 by the agency. The additional 200,000 will be paid for by U.S. aid funds.

The radios will be given or sold to civilians to provide closer ties between villagers and the central government in Saigon.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—A nervous stock market fell sharply today under a heavy wave of selling and then steadied. The ticker tape ran 29 minutes late.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 2.50 at 233.60 with industrials off 3.00, rails off 1.00 and utilities off 1.40.

After a brief stay on the upside at the opening, the market tumbled into its seventh consecutive session of decline.

As trading swelled, the tape's lag increased. It didn't run so late since May 27, 1953, when it trailed transactions by 34 minutes.

Brokers said the market may be engaged in a selling climax, which, on heavy volume would technically signal a turnaround.

The market's nervousness, which has been evident since the government-steel industry battle over a price increase, was heightened by the ticklish situation in Laos, brokers said.

Losses of key stocks ranged from fractions to about $2. There were heavier losses among higher priced issues.

As the list steadied some losses were shaved and a few erased. Discouraging business news included a sharp reduction in producers' estimate of 1962 steel production.

In the first two hours of trading 2.1 million shares changed hands, compared with 1.44 million in the like period Friday.

AT&T lost about 2 points in the generally lower utilities group. Xerox lost about 4 points and Polaroid around 3 but they had fallen deeper earlier in the session.

U.S. Steel erased a decline of nearly a point and added about half a point.

Motors were off with General Motors about a point. IBM gained a point after having been off more than 7 points.

Du Pont recovered and was unchanged after an earlier 5-point loss.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which last week fell 30.57 in the steepest weekly decline in at least 30 years, was off 7.38 to 633.25 at noon.

Prices sagged on the American Stock Exchange in heavy trading.

Corporate bond prices were irregular. Government bonds showed small declines.

Mother And Son To Get Diploma Friday

DOVER, Tenn. (AP) — She's Margie to most of her high school classmates and teachers. But to one senior who will get his diploma with her next Friday, she's mom.

It was an especially joyful Mothers Day for Margie Page as she walked beside her son Cecil Swayd in the school's baccalaureate procession.

"I was determined I would start and finish with my son," she said. It was an ambition born of necessity. Her husband, S. S. Page, was disabled in 1951, and bread-winning chores fell to Margie, 38, mother of two and a grandmother.

She had completed the eighth grade as a young girl. When Cecil entered high school, she decided she might as well join him, despite the fact most of Cecil's teachers were of her own generation.

At first she operated a restaurant in the morning and attended classes in the afternoon. Later she gave up the restaurant and now does clerical work in the county highway department office at Dover.

"She has received no special consideration," says Principal Van Riggins, "except that we have permitted her to employ a private teacher to make up for the time she misses by attending classes part time. Both she and Cecil are above-average students."

Classmates treat her like one of the gang, Margie says, and teachers do the same. She recalls with amusement a reprimand she received for chewing gum in teacher Jack Whaley's class.

"Margie," Whaley later confided to her, "I've been itching to do that."

Cecil says it seemed perfectly natural to attend classes with his mother.

"I didn't think anything about it until somebody mentioned it to me," he says. "You would expect a lot of kidding but there wasn't any."

Margie danced with her son at the senior prom, which she attended in the dual role of chaperone and pupil.

Margie's husband and married daughter will be in the audience when she and her son again walk side by side down the aisle. Her two grandchildren will be there, too.

Plan No Delay

WASHINGTON (AP)—No consideration is being given to delaying release in August of 145,000 Reserves and National Guardsmen because of the new crisis in Laos, Defense Department sources said today.

The sources also said that no consideration is being given to calling to active duty any more Guardsmen or Reserves.

President Kennedy announced a month ago that Reserves and Guardsmen called into uniform during the Berlin crisis last fall would be sent home in August unless there is a serious deteriorating in the international situation in the meantime.

Court Confirms Contempt Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court affirmed today conviction of Maurice A. Hutcheson, president of the Carpenters Brotherhood, on a charge of contempt of Congress for refusal to answer questions asked by the Senate rackets investigating committee.

Justice Harlan announced the court's judgment. The tribunal's vote was 4-2.

Hutcheson was sentenced in U.S. District Court here to six months' imprisonment and fined $500. He appeared before the committee in June 1958 but refused to answer 18 questions. He said they concerned personal matters and might aid in prosecution of an Indiana case against him.

In the Indiana case, Hutcheson and two other union officials were charged with conspiracy to bribe a state official to get highway information that led to a quick $78,000 profit. He later was convicted at Indianapolis on highway land scandal charges. An appeal is pending.

Hutcheson did not invoke the Fifth Amendment guarantee against self-incrimination in refusing to answer the 18 questions. In his appeal to the Supreme Court he contended he had been denied due process of law as guaranteed by the Constitution.

Prank Ended In Marine's Death

WASHINGTON (AP)—A prank involving a papier mache likeness of Smokey the Bear has ended in death for a Marine.

The victim and a fellow Marine kidnaped the 5-foot-6, 75-pound figure Friday night from "Storybook Land," a children's amusement park near Woodbridge, Va., 25 miles south of the Capital.

They hid it at the Washington Marine barracks until early Sunday morning, when they tried to perch it atop a flagpole on the front lawn of a home for veterans.

With a final tug on the rope the bear and the 20-foot flagpole fell to the ground, pinning Cpl. Edward C. Kallenbach, 23, of Erie, Pa. Kallenbach died of a brain hemorrhage, apparently caused when a metal spade in the bear's right hand punctured his skull.

His fellow prankster, Cpl. Timothy M. Parsons, 21, of Pittsburgh, was felled by the flagpole but was not injured. He is being held "under administrative restriction" at the Marine barracks pending investigation, a Marine spokesman said.
