ASTRONAUT SAFE AFTER THREE ORBITS

Shirt Manufacturing Plant For Greenville Is Disclosed Today

Find Carpenter Floating On Raft Beside Aurora 7

By GEORGE BRYANT Reflector Staff Writer Prepsirt Inc., announced today that it will operate a 52,000 square foot shirt manufacturing plant just north of the Greenville city limits which will eventually employ about 500 persons.

ville and at the proper time we will coordinate with them for people to take the aptitude test."

Dr. C. Sylvester Green, executive director of the development commission, said that the commission "has great pride in the culmination of several months of most cordial cooperation with Samson Inc., in their plans for this new plant in Greenville."

"We have every reason to believe that their coming to Greenville will prove a tremendous asset to the economic life not only of Greenville, but all of Pitt County.

They have a good reputation in the cities where they have operated since they opened their first plant in Kinston in 1936. Greenville is fortunate to have been chosen for the site of this new operation," Green added.

The new plant will be provided with the services of the Greenville Utilities Commission and other city benefits under an agreement made several years ago to extend facilities to certain industrial sites within a reasonable distance of the city limits. Prepsirt will be located approximately 1,000 ft. from the city limits.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter successfully orbited the earth three times today and then—after a harrowing 35 minutes when it was not known whether he had survived the re-entry—he was sighted sitting in a life raft in the Atlantic Ocean.

The Virgin Islands Coast Guard said Carpenter had no apparent problems.

"He waved as the plane passed over," the Coast Guard said. Carpenter performed his triple circuit of the globe in a masterful display of cool courage.

SCOTT CARPENTER ... mission completed

A Navy P2V Neptune bomber flashed the word that Carpenter apparently was all right after spotting him in the raft some 135 miles northeast of Puerto Rico.

Rapid fuel consumption in his Aurora 7 spaceship caused great concern during his second orbit.

Floating nearby was the Aurora 7 spacecraft which had carried him three times around the globe in 4 hours and 56 minutes at 17,532 miles an hour.

"We see no reason why he shouldn't continue into the third orbit. But we emphasize that he limit his automatic fuel consumption."

The capsule overshot its intended landing area by 200 miles and Carpenter apparently decided to leave it and wait out recovery in the one-man inflatable life raft which he carried aboard the capsule.

The latter was an order sent from the control center at Cape Canaveral to the tracking station at Point Arguello, Calif., for relay to Carpenter when he passed overhead.

The Neptune reported it was circling the raft and said that Carpenter was "sitting upward." There was no immediate report on his condition, but the plane said he appeared to be okay.

If a decision had been made to bring him down after two orbits, his reverse rockets would have been fired over Point Arguello and he would have descended gradually over the United States to a landing in the Atlantic 500 miles south of Bermuda.

When the Navy plane first reported sighting the 37-year-old Navy lieutenant commander in the sea, an obviously relieved and happy Lt. Col. John A. Powers, Mercury spokesman, reported to newsmen:

Officials detected fast consumption of the fuel shortly after the second orbit began and told Carpenter to begin using his manual control system at that time to conserve the valuable hydrogen peroxide which is used to control the attitude of the craft.

"A Navy P2V Neptune has reported sighting the spacecraft floating in the landing area. Along side it was a life raft, and sitting in it was a gentleman named Carpenter."

Apparently he did not hear the original order, which came from the Canary Island tracking station, and it had to be repeated by two posts in Australia, Muchea and Woomea. As he crossed the Pacific toward the west coast of the United States, Mercury officials made checks with Carpenter on the status of his fuel.

An Air Force air rescue sevice plane reached the area at 1:40 p.m. (EST) and prepared to drop two para-medics into the water to assist Carpenter if necessary.

Should Carpenter use up all his fuel, he would have no way of controlling the attitude. This would be particularly dangerous during re-entry if atmospheric pressures and stresses caused the capsule to start tumbling. There might be danger that the heat shield would not be in a forward position to protect the craft from the 3,000-degree re-entry heat, and it would burn up, killing the astronaut.

Meanwhile, two twin jet helicopters were dispatched from the aircraft carrier Intrepid, which was stationed in the intended drop zone 200 miles away.

He reported there was enough to complete a three-orbit mission and the order was given to proceed. As he passed over Point Arguello, Carpenter told astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. who is stationed there that he again noted "snowflakes." He first reported seeing them in small numbers on the first orbit at about the same relative time—during sunrise.

There are more of those white particles," Carpenter told Shepard. "They appear to be traveling exactly my speed. There's one drifting off and it appears to be going even faster."

He said he did not see them in the great numbers that John H. Glenn Jr., America's first man in orbit, saw his famous fireflies. Carpenter said his snowflakes were in a sort of rambling pattern.

Carpenter said he also had been getting a little warm, and drank some water over Canton Island in the Pacific. He said it tasted very good.

Carpenter had ended his first orbit at 9:19 a.m., flashing over Cape Canaveral 99 miles high.

Papers Signed For New Industry, Groundbreaking Also Held Today

A new industry for Greenville and Pitt County got off the ground today as the first shovel of dirt was turned by Samuel Fuchs, a man with 50 years experience in shirt manufacturing.

man behind the company with which Prepsirt Inc., the new Greenville firm, is affiliated. Construction of the 52,000 square foot building is scheduled to begin on the Fleming property Monday.

Today's groundbreaking ceremony climaxed several months of work by many local citizens, the Greenville Committee of One Hundred, the Pitt County Development Commission and the Chamber of Commerce.

W. W. Speight, Greenville attorney and chairman of the Committee of One Hundred termed the groundbreaking as "the second important launching of the day. That of Greenville and Pitt County." The first launching was that of the nation when Astronaut Scott Carpenter took off for his three orbits of the earth.

Fuchs, a backbone of Samsons Inc., of Kinston, is the John Oliver of the State Department of Conservation and Development delivered a message from Governor Terry Sanford.

The Governor's message said, "On behalf of all the citizens of North Carolina, I congratulate the City of Greenville, Pitt County, and Samson Inc., on the establishment of this new industry. The ground which is being turned at this ceremony today means not only a new plant but also new opportunities for the company and for the citizens of this community."

Opens Door To China Refugees

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has cleared the way for the admission to the United States of thousands of refugees from Communist China. Their exodus from Hong Kong is expected to start within two weeks.

The attorney general by the (Immigration) legislation, the same legislation which has permitted us to bring in Hungarian refugees (in 1956-57) and Cuban refugees," Kennedy said.

Kennedy invoked emergency powers Wednesday to lower the normal immigration barrier to Chinese. The move, said U.S. officials, should help ease pressures in the British crown colony and also might encourage other countries to take similar action.

The first group to be admitted according to present plans, will be relatives of Chinese already in the United States.

British authorities have turned back more than 50,000 hungry refugees since May 1. From 4,000 to 5,000 crossed over early today and were detained.

Another estimated 8,000 to 10,000 have slipped by the British, further crowding conditions in the colony, and the British say they cannot absorb any more.

There was no sign today that Communist border guards were attempting to stem the flow, although frontier residents reported Wednesday that Chinese guards had fired warning shots after shouting orders to waiting Chinese to return to their homes.

W. L. Harden, an assistant U.S. immigration commissioner, is on his way to Hong Kong to supervise handling of the refugees in cooperation with American consular officers in the city.

Kennedy told a news conference that "there are several thousand refugees in Hong Kong and surrounding areas who have been cleared by our consular people for admission to the United States."

The normal quota for Chinese immigration is 105 a year. Thus, some of those who have been cleared have, in effect, been standing in line for years.

"We are attempting to expedite their admission to the United States under the power given to

Planning-Zoning Body Is Told Revise Ordinances

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor

Planning-zoning commissioners were told yesterday it is time for Greenville to revise its zoning ordinance and it should obtain outside assistance with this and zoning one mile beyond the city limits.

now allows. The League representative said his organization would assist the city in revising its zoning ordinances and the one-mile zoning. He estimated the cost to the city at $1,500 to $2,000.

Asked by Chairman Frank Little if it were his strong recommendation that the zoning ordinance be revised, Wilson said, "Yes sir, there is no question that they are going to need to be revised."

Leigh Wilson of the League of Municipalities told the planning group that his organization, the Board of Conservation and Development and private firms offer this service.

However, he pointed out the C and D offers a similar service and, working through the C and D or a private firm the city would be eligible for a federal grant on a portion of the cost.

He also told the commission that "it must zone all the area one mile beyond the city limits if it zones any part of it."

Wilson had been asked to meet with the commission to discuss zoning ordinance revisions and zoning one mile beyond the city limits as state law

"I would strongly suggest that you talk to the C and D about this before you make a decision," Wilson stated.

Asked by Commissioner Kenneth Hite if he felt the city should obtain outside assistance with the two projects, Wilson replied, "Yes sir."

Wilson worked with the city in drawing up the zoning ordinance under which Greenville now operates. Charges for his services are designed to only cover expenses.

Election Party

The Daily Reflector will again remain at the newspaper office election night to tabulate and post unofficial returns from Saturday's voting in the Democratic Primary.

Early returns will be posted on the Reflector's election board, a feature added to the newspaper's traditional "election parties" two years ago.

Poll holders in the county's 23 precincts have been requested to telephone the office, collect if long-distance, at PLaza 2-6166 as soon as vote-counting is complete.

The Governor's message said, "On behalf of all the citizens of North Carolina, I congratulate the City of Greenville, Pitt County, and Samson Inc., on the establishment of this new industry. The ground which is being turned at this ceremony today means not only a new plant but also new opportunities for the company and for the citizens of this community."

Continuing, Judge Parker said, "We would probably be wasting time this afternoon and tomorrow if the case went to jury."

Judge Dismisses Charges Against Sledge After Testimony

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

Frederick D. Sledge walked from Pitt County Superior Court a legally free man Wednesday after Judge Joseph W. Parker allowed a defense motion to dismiss charges of rape resulting from an incident last February.

hesitant, however, in granting dismissal of a third jury alternative, assault on a female which carries a maximum penalty upon conviction of two years' imprisonment.

Defense attorney Louis W. Gaylord moved for dismissal shortly before 3 p.m. Wednesday after evidence by the defense had substantially contradicted a story of the alleged attack by Sledge told from the witness stand Tuesday afternoon by the alleged victim, a 15-year-old Negro girl.

The case for the defense was strengthened considerably when a 17-year-old Eppes High School senior, Melvin Bryant, testified that he and the girl had engaged in sexual relations shortly before the incident involving Sledge. The girl had denied this under cross-examination.

In reply to Judge Parker's reluctance, Gaylord asserted Sledge "has already suffered severely enough. . . . He has lost his job, and, at this moment, his family is destroyed."

Sledge, 55-year-old former supervisor of Pitt County Negro schools, took the stand in his own behalf just before noon Wednesday and spent nearly an Gaylord, in moving for dismissal, told Judge Parker the evidence, "as a practical rather than a technical matter," was insufficient to go to the jury. "My motion for non-suit is on a common sense basis," he said.

Asked by the judge for an opinion, Solicitor Robert D. Rouse Jr. said his confidence in the testimony of the young girl, the State's prime witness, was "shaken" by consistency of the testimony of Bryant with that of Dr. Andrew A. Best who told the court his microscopic examination of the girl revealed visible evidence of recent intersexual relations.

"It is beyond the realm of reason," he said, "that he (Sledge) forced the girl to do anything. On the other hand, I don't believe everything the defendant said either, but that is immaterial."

Continuing, Rouse said, "Even though there is that aspect in this case now . . . this case required a complete public airing to establish publicly the evidence." The solicitor said, in his opinion, the case should not go to the jury.

Mrs. Mitchell Gives Workshop

Ending this year's program, Mrs. Fanny Gilbert was hostess to the Elmhurst Garden Club Monday night at her home on South Overlook Drive. Spring flower arrangements were used throughout the house.
 Assisted by Mrs. Ray Spears, the hostess served a dessert course with punch and party mints.
 Mrs. Carl Kinlaw, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Sam Mitchell who is active in garden club circles of Greenville. Mrs. Mitchell explained to the group that proper materials are of basic importance in making corsages. Three points to keep in mind when planning the corsage are: (1) the flowers available at that time, (2) the occasion it is to be worn, and (3) the type of costume it is to be used with.
 Mrs. Mitchell demonstrated step by step the art of making different types of corsages. Members, using materials they brought, made corsages of roses, lilies, and pansies, which they later wore. A "Thank You" was extended to Mrs. Mitchell for a beneficial and enjoyable demonstration.
 During the business meeting the president, Mrs. Howard Wilson, named new committee chairmen who will serve for the coming year. Mrs. Carl Kinlaw was appointed "Litterbug Chairman" for the club. It is hoped that with the help of other garden clubs and various civic organizations much can be done to control litter on Greenville streets. Mrs. James Grulke will represent the Elmhurst club on the Greenville Council of Garden Clubs during the coming year.
 The club's annual picnic for the families of members will be held June 4. New members and their families will be guests of the club.
 Mrs. Hilda Alderman was welcomed into the club as a new member.

Mrs. Wade's report contained information from the league officers and committee chairmen concerning their year's work. She reviewed the League's accomplishments in the following activities: Laughinghouse Bed Fund, the Coffee Shop, hospital activities, lending chest, layettes, emergency charity, and civil defense.

In addition, the Service League has volunteered help with the Bloodmobile, United Fund, TB Seal Sale, and Tetanus Clinic. Many members helped with the heart, polio and cancer drives. Two Boy Scout Camperships and one Girl Scout Campership have been given for the coming summer.

Of much interest was the report on Memorial Chapel in Pitt Memorial Hospital. This treasured dream of the Service League became a reality in November, 1961. The chapel is dedicated to the "Glory of God" and the pioneering doctors of Pitt County. It expresses love of service to our fellowman by the many who have given so generously.

In conclusion, Mrs. Wade expressed appreciation to League members and Advisory Council for their loyalty and cooperation. She offered "heartfelt thanks for making this one of the happiest experiences of my life."

Luncheon
Mrs. E. E. Rawl Jr., program chairman of the League, was luncheon chairman. Following drawings for prizes, several skits were presented depicting summer plans of League members. Each skit was introduced by clever poetry written by Mrs. W. R. Guice and read by Mrs. Rawl.

The new provisional members climaxed the program by singing "Getting To Know You."

Terrycloth Supreme

The just-launched look, feel, and fragrance of terrycloth endears it to everybody's heart. It's no wonder designers just can't let this machine-washable fabric alone for all types of fashions.

The hostesses greeted guests and invited them into the dining room for refreshments. Yellow and white, the college colors, were used in the dining room. A May Pole with ribbon streamers ending with a daisy nosegay centered the table. Crystal epergues with yellow and white candles and yellow daisies complimented the May Pole.

Mrs. Welborne, president of the Pitt County Alumnae Association poured punch. Mrs. J. Knott Proctor Jr. and Mrs. J. B. Kittrell Jr., assisted in serving cookies, nuts and fruits.

In an informal hour the hostesses gave helpful hints to the girls about what they may expect at Woman's College.

Guests were Miss Barbara Yorke and mother, Miss Anita Pickett, Miss Sally Donat and grandmother, Miss Marie Foster and mother, Miss Janice Laughter and mother, Miss Linda Evans, Miss Barbara Minges and mother, Miss Ann Buchanan and mother, Miss Martha Henderson and mother. Safeguards Pledged To Beaufort

It is not difficult to understand the concern of some Beaufort County citizens on the effect of river bottom mining operations on the Pamlico River, but it is difficult for us to understand their continued opposition to the matter when they have received assurance that such operations would be stopped immediately should they seriously interfere with fishing or recreation along the river.

The prospect of developing a phosphate mining and manufacturing industry offers Beaufort County one of the greatest economic opportunities any county in this section of the state has ever had. In order to develop the mineral deposits of the county, major firms want access to mine parts of the bottom of Pamlico and Pungo Rivers as well as highland property. The Department of Conservation and Development has asked for bids from the companies on June 4 for mining rights on the river bottoms, and this is what is bringing the protests from some Beaufort citizens.

Certainly the Department of Conservation and Development has taken steps to prevent damage to fishing and recreation in the rivers by phosphate mining operations. The C and D also has stipulated that under state leases the companies would have to pay higher royalties for the mineral if it is shipped outside North Carolina for manufacture. This is almost certain to assure manufacturing facilities located in Beaufort County.

Several years ago the state declined to lease phosphate mining rights on the river bottoms in question, and plans for development of this important natural resource were shelved until recently. If mining rights on the river bottoms continue to be withheld, the entire undertaking may be abandoned by the major companies that are now interested.

Certainly the fishing and recreation qualities of the rivers should be preserved and we are confident the state will see that they are. Just as certainly, it would be a major step forward for Beaufort County and for this section of North Carolina if a major phosphate industry were developed in that county.

It is our hope that the people of Beaufort County and officials in Raleigh will not allow unfounded fears of damage to the river or shortsighted assertions by some individuals to block the development of this rich natural resource our neighboring county possesses.

It is evident, we believe, that every safeguard will be taken to protect the best interest of the people of Beaufort County in connection with development of the phosphate industry. It would not be in the best interest of the people of that county or those in this section of the state to close the door to the potential offered by the proposed phosphate industry.

Experimental Basis Is The Logical Approach

In authorizing sales of untied tobacco on an experimental basis on all markets this year, the Department of Agriculture followed the only practical approach to the problem confronting it.

Obviously there are many people, including many farmers, that have misgivings about the sale of untied tobacco on the markets of North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. Traditionally tobacco sold on auction markets in these states has been tied.

By providing a five-day experimental period for the sale of untied leaf on each belt this year, the USDA is putting the proposal for expansion of untied leaf sales to the acid test. The five-day sales period at the opening of each belt will provide farmers, warehousemen and purchasers an opportunity to determine whether it is practical to handle untied tobacco on markets of the three states. At the same time the limited period of sales of untied tobacco should be short enough not to throw the entire sales season out of kilter should unexpected problems arise in handling the untied leaf.

Quite probably the sale of untied leaf on the Carolinas and Virginia markets will affect the price paid farmers for their tobacco the first five days of the season because of the differential in price supports for tied and untied leaf. This will be another factor of the new experiment which farmers will watch closely.

The five-day sales period for untied tobacco on the new markets should be regarded only as an experiment this year, and it should be carefully evaluated by every segment of the tobacco industry before any conclusions are reached concerning the permanency of a program for selling untied tobacco on the markets of North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

An Event With Great Potential

By PAUL KELLY
Division of Commerce and Industry, Department of Commerce and Development
Guest Columnist

"Made in North Carolina Week" is to be observed throughout the State during the period June 10-16.

This event has tremendous potentials for the economic life of North Carolina. Its significance will be in direct proportion to the extent of its observance, and it is hoped that every community in the State is planning appropriate ceremonies and events.

In effect, the event will be a State-wide exposition and display of the products made in North Carolina. However, the week cannot attain its potentials without the cooperation and active participation of all of those who are interested in the progress of the State.

The occasion has a several-fold objective, including (a) familiarizing the public with the industrial products of the State, thereby expanding the demand for both consumer and producer products; (b) demonstrating to manufacturers the interest of the people in their operations; (c) focusing attention on not only what it made in the State but also on other products not manufactured here and for which there might be opportunities.

It should be kept in mind that this week is not intended to suggest that a trade wall be erected around North Carolina to the exclusion of other states but to demonstrate the wide variety and high quality of our products and to create new and logical outlets for her products. In the highly complex order of the day, there is no intention to seek self-sufficiency.

There are numerous means by which the week may be observed. Many of the civic clubs are planning to serve meals made up of North Carolina products and to focus their programs on this subject. Numerous retail establishments are scheduling displays and special sales of North Carolina products. Exhibits of local products in all parts of the State are scheduled. There will be special advertisements of home manufactured products and some special newspaper sections on the subject. Television and radio stations are scheduling special programs.

The above ideas are intended to be only a few suggestions of means of observing the week. There are almost unlimited additional ways of dramatizing the importance of industry to the State. Among the organizations which have endorsed and are supporting the program are the North Carolina Merchants Association, the North Carolina Association of Quality Restaurants, and the North Carolina Chain Store Council. Chambers of Commerce are giving active support.

Space does not permit a full description of products manufactured in North Carolina. To summarize the variety, however, it can be said that these range from aluminum to zippers.

More than half a million North Carolinians are employed in the State's 7,500 manufacturing plants. In 1960, the total personal income of North Carolinians was $7.18 billion. Total income of Tar Heels from all salaries and wages in 1960 was $4.72 billion, and of this amount $1.77 billion was in wages and salaries disbursed by manufacturers.

The growth of industry in the State was an important factor in North Carolina's rise from 44th to 42nd place in per capita income in 1961. While the aggressive industrial development campaign in the State is continuing, Governor Sanford has recently announced increasing emphasis on the establishment of food processing industries.

Food industries have particular significance in North Carolina in view of the dependence of a large segment of its population on agriculture. Not only do food industries bring new employment opportunities and other usual advantages, they create a dependable and steady demand for agricultural and fishery products.

Because of the almost endless possibilities of "Made in North Carolina Week" as a contribution to the economy of the State in the form of increased development in food and other fields, it deserves the wholehearted support of public-spirited and civic-minded groups and individuals.

Painted Into A Corner

By PATRICIA MOORE Big Business Is Bigger

We were at Rose High School the other day, working on graduation, and observing the booming activity: students typing their last week in a typing lab—and they were frenzied, the band banging away in its room (one number was a little off key, it sounded like); students ambled along, looking at corridors they would be leaving, except for a visit now and then.

And sadly, a name got marked off the graduation list.

We were thinking—not accidentally—about this time of the year, which brings forth the exodus of students from high schools into the more adult world of college, military service, business training, work and marriage.

Elementary schools have graduations, too, to signify the pomp and circumstance of students passing from the little world to the bigger world of high school.

We have figured, privately, that already at least $75,000 in scholarships has been assigned to Greenville high school graduating seniors—no figure to be scoffed at. Of course, that figure includes one outstanding appointment, as well as the numerous scholarships to East Carolina College and the larger scholarships granted to schools here and there.

Graduation has gotten to be a big business.

It's big business, too, that a little over 86 percent of the graduating seniors at Rose High will go on toward more training, including colleges, business colleges, military service and other training, including nursing. That leaves something like 18 graduates who will go to work or marry.

Since we have been around to study the record, Rose High has always led the state in sending its graduates on for more academic or skilled training.

It's an academically oriented school, and academics are what get people into college these days.

That's one reason why, sometimes, we feel a little sorry for the mothers who worry that their smart sons and daughters weren't elected an officer of the Who-dunt Club, as well as making the honor roll all the time. We know of some mothers who are sad their daughters got the office but not the college of their choice... because of a not quite high enough academic standing.

Education is getting to be bigger business every year, in lots of ways.

Red China Calm Over Refugees

BY JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—Communist East Germany and Communist China both have refugee problems. The former acted. The latter hasn't. The failure of the Red Chinese to act is a puzzle.

One thing is obviously certain although it may not be the reason why so far the government of Communist China has taken no visible drastic steps to halt the refugee flight: It can better afford to lose manpower than the Communists of East Germany. East Germany has only about 17.5 million people. In Red China there are about 670 million.

One of the worst advertisements for communism in East Germany—just across a frontier from amazingly prosperous West Germany—was that about 200,000 East Germans were fleeing westward yearly. As the Berlin crisis increased last summer the flow of East German refugees was about 30,000 in July, or almost double the previous monthly rate. In August, before the wall went up, the rate was doubling the July figure. About 2,000 a day were getting out.

Since the Red Chinese took over the mainland of China in 1949 about 115,000 Chinese refugees a year poured into the British colony of Hong Kong.

In recent months—a reflection of belt-tightening times in Red China—the number of refugees shot up. The British, unable to accommodate this river of people, have been sending them back.

Only last April the Red Chinese leadership openly admitted that its "great leap forward" had landed in the mud.

Strength For Today

BY EARL L. DOUGLASS
OUR LIFE, OUR GOD
The Bible declares that God "will be our guide even unto death" (Psalm 48:14).
Our feeling of inadequacy is at times indescribable. Even in moments of strength and self-sufficiency we are haunted with the realization that we have very little control over our destiny. Things can happen to us which would quickly sweep us, and all we hold precious, from the face of the earth. There are important crossroads at many places along life's pathway. Once we take the wrong turning it is hard to get back again to the right pathway.
Accordingly we continually need a guide—a Being whose knowledge of events is perfect, whose vision extends beyond all horizons, whose knowledge is

Other Editors Saying U.S. Policy In Europe Opinions In Brief

(Rocky Mount Telegram)
President Kennedy has adopted a stiffer attitude toward the American allies in Europe. He has made it clear to French President Charles de Gaulle, and other European leaders, that as long as the U. S. carries the ultimate burden of Western Europe's defense it will participate fully in the great decisions affecting war and peace in Europe.

Europeans might see this policy as one of gross interference in the affairs of nations by another nation. But in this case there is a slight difference: the U. S. has by its presence and power in Europe detained the tide of communism so that today Western Europe remains free by choice. Because of this it would seem the U. S. has some right to determine what decisions will be made in Europe.

Relations between the allies have been strained for some time. Kennedy has pointedly told De Gaulle that Europe cannot have a blank check to draw on U. S. defensive power when disaster threatens but bypass this country in the earlier stage of policy decisions.

De Gaulle's policy line indicates he wants a decreasing U. S. role in European affairs through Europe would rely on American nuclear power for its ultimate protection. This is probably what prompted Kennedy's statements toward De Gaulle on the U. S. position in Europe.

Kennedy has challenged De Gaulle's decision to make France an independent nuclear power, saying it would lead to a dangerous situation in the world and would weaken the NATO position. Kennedy wants to solve allied disagreements. But at the same time it is wise that he made it known the U. S. is not thinking of getting out of Europe, now or in the foreseeable future.

The fact of the matter is that the U. S. cannot distinguish Europe's defenses from our own. We cannot diminish our contributions to Western Europe or abdicate the responsibilities of power. Europe should realize this. A look at the economic strength of Europe today should be reason enough for wanting the U. S. to stick around. It was through American financial aid immediately after World War II that Europe was able to get back on its feet.

But that's not sufficient reason. The threat of aggression has always been present. Clearly the U. S. power or threat of power in Europe has discouraged further Communist aggressions there. Withdrawal of the U. S. would invite new invasions.

There are reasons to believe the allies can resolve their differences. They always have in the past, especially during the war years when so many nations working together faced innumerable obstacles. Kennedy is to be commended for clearly stating the American case which calls for American decisions where American commitments are made.

Quote Staying Alert To Credit Fraud

BY ELMER ROESSNER
How manufacturers can watch out for credit frauds is told by Franklin Robin, associate manager, Credit Clearing House, in "The Apparel Outlook," a Dun & Bradstreet publication.

While the number of credit frauds is small, they can be "devastatingly damaging" to the victim, Robin pointed out.

His advice to suppliers' credit personnel:
"First, carefully examine every unsolicited order. How did it originate? Were old catalogue numbers used? (Catalogues are sometimes passed around.) Does the order make sense for your line of business? If you are selling children's games and toys and the order says 'all sizes and colors,' you have good reason to be suspicious."

WATCH FOR SLIPS
"Watch for the slightest variation between the name as it appears on your order and as it appears on your reference book."

"Question the slightest discrepancy between the address as it appears on your order and the address as it appears on the credit report of the business.

"Question any sudden increase in size or type of order from old, established accounts. A change in ownership might have occurred."

"Question any large order that immediately follows a small first order paid promptly."

Robin's warning was based on an examination of eight recent, large fraudulent cases of "overbuys," which means that swindlers set up or bought businesses with the intention of ordering all the goods manufacturers would ship them, and then disappear with the loot.

Of the eight cases, two principals had been convicted of previous crimes. In three cases the principals had failed recently. In one case, the swindler had boldly assumed the name of a reputable man in the same town. In another, the swindler imitated an established trademark.

HOW SWINDLER WORKS
The fraud usually describes himself as a wholesaler or retailer of general merchandise, giving credibility to his orders for a variety of lines. But he often conceals other important facts.

One gave his address as a vacant lot and picked up shipments at the post office. Three others operated from small storage places, with no visible merchandise and no office staff.

In all of the eight cases, suppliers received unsolicited orders through the mail. The signature of the buyer, when given, was often blurred. In some cases postcards were used but in most others impressive stationery was used, sometimes with high serial numbers on order blanks, to indicate a large volume of business.

Some gave references which turned out to be names and addresses of confederates. Sometime a reference was a supplier who had been paid promptly for a small order.

And of the eight, how many do you guess went to jail for their swindles? The answer ap-

Antis Dream World

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Received in the mail a mimeographed letter with a mimeographed signature, Sylvia Kraus, the address being "The Carriage Antique Shop," 131 East 70 Street, New York.

The letter says that the Communists have an unpublicized conspiracy for world conquest. Having read considerably in Communist literature, I find that their desire for world conquest is fully publicized; it is, in fact, to them a matter of inevitability.

Miss or Mrs. Kraus, in whichever condition she finds herself, has, however, discovered a new one. Her knowledge is that they are underhandedly using arsenic on their enemies. This makes no sense to me because they are plentifully supplied with caviare, having the best of these fish eggs. If they feed them enough caviare, their opponents will fill their arteries with lipids, particularly cholesterol, and will sooner or later die of a coronary thrombosis, a stroke or some other fatality.

Miss Kraus has further pertinent data. She writes:
"On April 28, 1957, Senator Joseph McCarthy entered the hospital for treatments of an old knee injury, however, five days later he died, supposedly of 'hepatitis,' on November 28, 1957 Senator Styles Bridges died in his sleep, cause of death? Mr. Sam Rayburn had a simple backache, the next thing, he was declared with a cancer, seven weeks later, we buried him."

Joe McCarthy entered no hospital for old knee injuries. He suffered from a herniated diaphragm and subsequently from liver ailments. His illness lasted a long time. Senator Bridges, for several years, had suffered from heart ailments. The widows of these fine men know what happened. As Mr. Sam was a bachelor, there is no kindly widow to tell Miss Kraus that she is not a physician and that her diagnosis suffers from big ears which are receptacles for unpleasant rumors.

Miss Kraus further says:
"At the very threat of our liberty, Communists are using our FBI for their indoctrination center, plus the overwhelming of party members in the Central Intelligence Agency, therefore, I propose that we begin, with the impeachment of J. Edgar Hoover."

Apparently Miss Kraus has superior facilities than the FBI at checking facts. Constantly one meets all sorts of persons who feed their self-importance by rolling their eyes, pulling in their stomachs and saying: "I can't tell you where I got the information, but I have the facts. I know what is going on." Occasionally such persons quote a private eye or a former FBI operative or one of those hungry, excited men on both sides of the fence, who, for a contribution, prepare elongated data, even mentioning names. Unfortunately, just as they do not check their data, no one else can check it, because often it does not exist.

Miss Kraus ends her mimeographed letter:
"I desperately seek your assistance in exposing the Communists' unpublicized merciless onslaught, before it is too late."

Oh! Dear! I fear that we shall all die of arsenic poisoning if we do not assist in this exposure. I am not a psychiatrist and cannot discuss seriously the psychotic effects of fear. That the fear is real, I know from observation and conversations. Just as on the Left, there is a fear of such things as blacklists; so on the Right, there is a fear that in our concentration upon the factual imperialism of Soviet Russia and Red China, we shall lose interest in the activities of the Communists in the United States.

Often Rightists use the arguments of the Leftists to prove their point. In a word, just as in Italy, the Fascists became Communists and found themselves quite comfortable in their altered position, so in this country many of those who for years have been shouting that Russia should be punished for her misdeeds, now say that we must concentrate on the home-grown Communies and they are angry at J. Edgar Hoover because he does not lend himself to their emphasis on the lesser evil.

TURKS CLAIM NEW WAY TO REFINE SUGAR

The Turkish Information Office boasts that Prof. Emir Gurbaran has developed a new method of refining sugar.

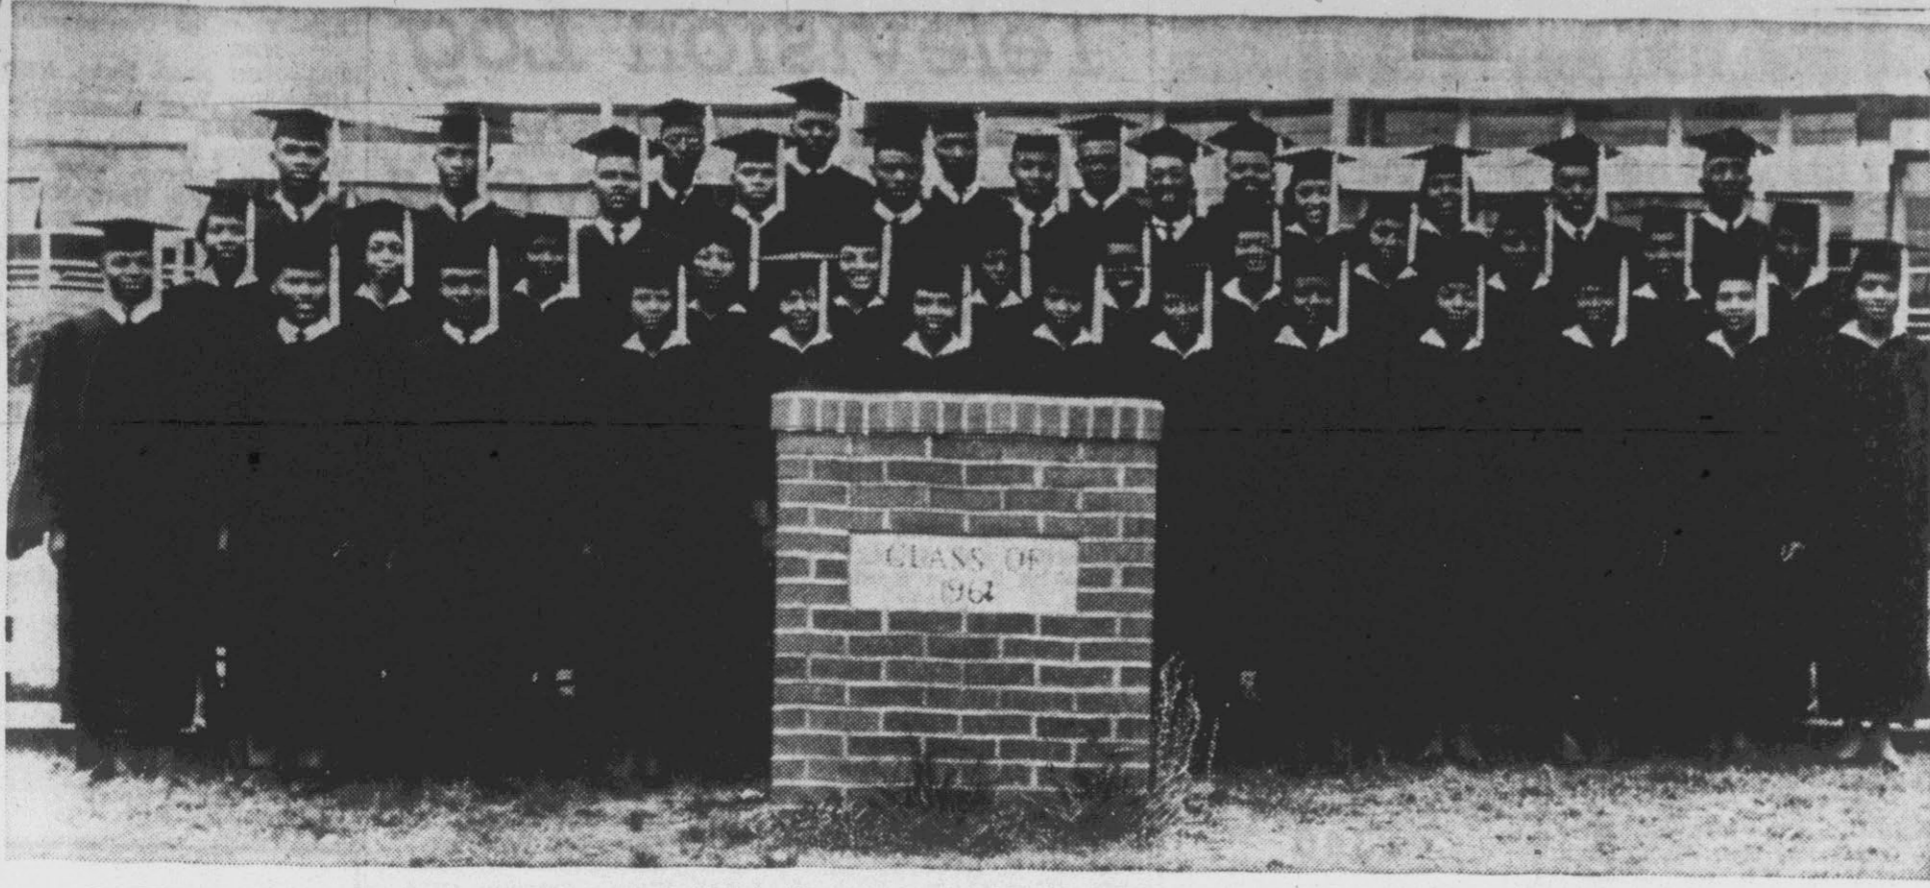

His system reduces the amount of water needed from 42 tons to 1 ton per ton of sugar, and reduces machinery costs four-fifths. The new technique can eliminate 17 of Turkey's 19 sugar refineries, the Turks say.

Prof. Gurbaran, now engaged in atomic research in the United States, received a $30,000 U. S. grant to develop his refining method. His method will be leased to other governments at $200,000 each, of which the professor will get $80,000.

Two Men Free On Bond In New Bern Bank Case

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Two men now are free on bond in the alleged embezzlement of $87,000 from the Bank of New Bern.

Thomas J. Jenkins special agent in charge of the Charlotte FBI office, announced Wednesday the arrest of Theophilus Wilson Parker, president of New Bern Trust and Equipment Co.

Jenkins said Parker was charged with aiding and abetting in embezzlement and misappropriation of monies and funds from the bank and with making false entries in the books and records by making and uttering worthless checks for about $42,000. He waived preliminary hearing and was released under $1,000 bond for appearance before a federal grand jury in November.

Edmund Earl Hughes Jr., vice president and cashier of the bank, is free under $25,000 bond on charges of embezzling $87,000 and of honoring checks from Parker he knew to be worthless.

Life Sentence Is Given Salan

PARIS (AP) — A special tribunal's sentence of life imprisonment for ex-Gen. Raoul Salan was interpreted by many Frenchmen today as a victory for the terrorist Secret Army.

The mixed judicial-military-civilian court Wednesday night found the head of the Secret Army guilty of treason but spared his life because of extenuating circumstances. It did not explain the extenuating circumstances.

The same court earlier had given a death sentence to Salan's chief deputy in the Secret Army, Ex-Gen. Edmond Jouhaud. Many Frenchmen felt President Charles de Gaulle's only choice now was to commute Jouhaud's sentence to life imprisonment.

"The Secret Army won," said a white-collar employe on his way to work, expressing a widely held opinion.

The courtroom, packed with sympathizers of Salan and the Secret Army, broke into pandemonium at the announcement by court president Charles Borneat that the tribunal had found circumstances to extenuate Salan's leading role in the abortive general's revolt in Algiers in April 1961 and his leadership of the Secret Army terrorists.

THE DARK RIDER

A Racing Novel of Suspense by GERALDINE THAYER

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
Angry with Britt Fabian because he had neglected her to monopolize another girl's dances, Julie Pendleton left the pre-Kentucky Derby on a moonlit road, she passed the "spite fence" separating the private race course on her father's Thoroughbred horse-breeding farm from Britt's father's home acres.

Julie was grasped from her thoughts of Britt by a sight that was like a dream. There, racing round the track was Boundbrook, the old Pendleton Derby winner long retired to pasture. The moonlight faded, horse and rider disappeared over a knoll, and Julie, who had got out of her car, turned back to it, unable to believe her own eyes.

Going to the country club, wanting to talk to Britt to reassure herself, she heard that he had gone. Shaken still more by this, Julie drove away again impulsively. Puzzled by her behavior, Casey Jeffries, a neighboring guest, followed her to the Pendleton stables, where they found Boundbrook's stall empty. Searching, they came upon the horse, winded and lathered as after a hard run.

CHAPTER 4
"Please come in for a cup of coffee," Julie said to Casey Jeffries. "I owe you that much, at least."
He showed no aversion to the idea. They investigated the refrigerator and raided it of a ham, which Casey turned into sandwiches while the coffee perked and Julie ran upstairs to change.

She wore a bright yellow shirt and faded Levi's when she returned. Casey, pouring the coffee, stared at her.
"It's amazing," he said, without a touch of flattery in his voice, "but I swear you look better in jeans than in an evening gown."
"Thank you," she said simply. "I'm pretty much of a tomboy, I guess."
He held the chair for her, then sat down himself. "Oh no—I'll never believe that after seeing you dance tonight, the way you looked—so lovely. You know, searching for a ghost horse is a fine way to work up an appetite." Talking to Casey was so easy, even if she hardly knew him. He was more freckled than she had thought and his hair was more brown than auburn. His eyes were a fine, pale blue and she liked the lines of his jaw and mouth.

She studied him openly over the rim of the coffee cup and he grinned back at her, not feeling any resentment at her scrutiny. "Who are you, Casey Jeffries?" she asked.

"I'm an — engineer." There seemed to be just the slightest hesitation before he spoke the key word. "Amherst, two years ago. I'm still finding my way."
"You do have a certain interest in horses, though."
"Well, yes—my uncle—you know how he is. Look here, maybe we'd better take another walk around the stable—see if Boundbrook is still there."

The idea of his being missing again frightened Julie and they finished their coffee hurriedly and went right out. Boundbrook was in his stall, well cooled off now and none the worse for his experience. They stopped to look at Templar and Casey admired his sleekness.
"There'll be a lot riding on him," Julie said. "It would do a great deal of good to win."
"I'm betting on him," Casey said and added ruefully, "so is everybody else, the way the odds are going down. Well, I'd better be getting home. Everything seems satisfactory now."

She offered him her hand. "Casey, thank you very much."
"You have no idea what a pleasure it's been," he said. "First time I ever went horsehunting with a girl in an evening gown. Call me if you see any more horses in the moonlight."
They walked slowly along the stalls. Casey stopped to admire a very large stallion, blue in color, that moved restlessly in his stall, probably annoyed by all the activity at this unseemly hour.

"That's Big Blue," Julie said. "He's been in a tantrum for days. He's got a wide mean streak in him. One of the stableboys made the mistake of getting into the stall with him and got his ribs crushed. Big Blue's what is known as a squeezer. If he gets anyone up against a wall or in the stall, he just moves over and pushes. Sometimes I think he's crazy, but he's too good a jumper to get rid of." She bent down and picked up a two-foot piece of wood, shaped at one end like the tip of a fence picket. She tossed the bit of wood into the stall so that it landed against the wall beside the big blue horse. She made no comment about it and they went on to where Casey's car was parked. For just one moment, while he held both her hands, Julie thought he was going to kiss her but he just nodded and she watched him drive away.

About half an hour after Casey left, Julie heard the gentle excitement of the horses in the stable and went quickly into the study to get her father's gun from his desk drawer. Then she traced out into the night.

As she ran into the barn, the horses in the first of the stalls were moving about restlessly, but most of the racket came from farther down.

It was Big Blue who was making most of the noise, kicking at the stall door and at the walls and raising his head to shake it impatiently. His front legs were slashing at something that seemed to irritate him. Julie peered into the darkness of the stall. There was something. It looked like a huddled form on the floor.

She opened the stall door and went in quickly. She passed her hand over the moist flank of Big Blue, set her back against the wall and sidestepped to Big Blue's head. He calmed down a bit when she spoke softly to him and she was able to bend and prod the nondescript bundle on the floor.

M. Monroe Returns To Job After Fund Raising

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Marilyn Monroe is back at work after singing "Happy Birthday" to President Kennedy, and everyone is happy now.
Last week it was a different matter. Twentieth Century-Fox grumbled that "Something's Got to Give" was eight days behind schedule in its first three weeks because of Marilyn's absence. The studio thought she should stay here and work.
She didn't. She left Fox by helicopter Friday noon for Los Angeles International Airport, flew to New York and performed at the party fund-raising celebration in Madison Square Garden.
"I told the studio six weeks ago that I was going," she explained. "I consider it an honor to appear before the President of the United States."
Besides, she said, she is a Democrat.
Marilyn reported back to work on time—for her—Monday morning.
The noted blonde was in fine form when I visited her. Her spirits were still high from the Garden appearance, her first public performance since she entertained troops in Korea. "I liked it," she said.
About the rest of her form: dandy. Fifteen pounds have melted away, leaving a trim but still curvy figure. How did she do it? "It helps to have a bad gall bladder," said Marilyn, who had rests removed last June. "The rest is low cholesterol; avoid animal fats. Who needs them? Eskimos, maybe. Not us."

Marilyn's new figure comes in handy for "Something's Got to Give." She wears a bikini in the nude. She'll appear in the bikini, not otherwise; movies haven't gone that far yet.
Marilyn commented on a variety of matters, including her birthday June 1. She admitted unabashedly that she'll be 36.
"I like celebrating birthdays. I enjoy knowing that I'm alive. And you can underline 'alive.'"

Emmy Awards Show TV Has Much That Is Good

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Radio-Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—There are still some bugs in the machinery of the Emmy awards, but this annual balloting within the television industry to reward its best efforts of the year is a fine idea in many ways.
First and most important, the total emphasis is on quality television, currently under so much criticism for its output.
It was noteworthy that on Tuesday night, the little gold statues most often went to programs that rarely, if ever, find their way onto any list of television's 10 or 20 most popular shows.
Take, for example, the play—NBC's "Victoria Regina"—chosen as program of the year. It was seen, unfortunately, by only a small percentage of the vast potential audience because two other special programs were competing for attention at the same time.
"The Defenders" was voted the outstanding drama series. While it is a very popular CBS show, it is invariably watched by smaller numbers than routinely dial in "Wagon Train" or "Bonanza"—both Westerns which have been standing at the head of all popularity lists this season.
Given their own choices, children would probably turn to cartoon shows like "Popeye" or old movie shorts like "The Little Rascals." But it was Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra who won in the children's programming category for their young people's concerts.
Of course, certain impossible situations are set up. How could one decide between "The Defenders" series, whose crew must turn out an complete hour-long program once a week or so, and the one-shot "Victoria Regina" that took much longer in preparation, or between a situation comedy like "Hazel" and "The Bob Newhart Show," humor of quite another kind?

The annual Emmy show answers specifically those critics who insist all television is a wasteland of mediocrity, violence and brutality, formula Westerns and private eyes and hard-sell commercials.
There has been much fine—even superb—television during the past year. There has been even more claptrap. But the good stuff was there for the discerning viewer if he just took the time to hunt for it and arrange his schedule to watch it.
Recommended tonight: "CBS Reports," 10-11 (Eastern Daylight Time)—"Breaking the Trade Barrier," a look at the tariff situation.

More Than 1,000 Witnesses Quizzed In Estes Probe

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators disclosed today their agents have questioned more than 1,000 persons in the widening Billie Sol Estes case.

And, said the informant, many more will be questioned before the Senate Investigations subcommittee is ready to start its hearings into whether Washington influence helped Estes build his rickety business empire.

The report came after President Kennedy related at a news conference Wednesday that the FBI has moved into the investigation of the mysterious death of Henry Marshall, a Texas farm official, shot to death a year ago while checking into Estes' dealings under the government cotton program.

The FBI declined to comment on the unusual circumstance of its entry into what normally would be a local police case.

Last June, when Marshall was found dead, shot five times, his death was written off as suicide. But under the pressure of the Estes investigation, his body was exhumed Tuesday for an autopsy in Franklin, Tex. Later the county medical examiner told county grand jurors his preliminary finding was murder.

The examiner, Dr. J. A. Jachimczyk, was expected to make his final report today.

The FBI also had no comment on the case of Howard Pratt, 31, Chicago office manager of Mercantile Solvents Corp., found dead in his car Wednesday of carbon monoxide poisoning. The company's financial relations with Estes, who bought great quantities of liquid fertilizer for the chemical firm, are under investigation.

The Senate subcommittee, headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said it had no evidence of any link between Estes and Pratt, but would look into the death because of a cryptic note found in Pratt's car which said in part "the burden of guilt is on my shoulders."

Investigators said they doubted Pratt had any connection with Estes.

A House subcommittee headed by Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., plans to start hearings Monday on the Estes case, with political controversy already swirling about its ears.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Senate Republican leader, accused the subcommittee's staff of leaking to the press what he called politically inspired "petty hinting and subtle innuendo" about two brothers of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

His statements were prompted by a New York Herald Tribune story published Wednesday which quoted an expert on the House subcommittee's staff in connection with reports that the names of Edgar Eisenhower and the late Arthur Eisenhower might figure in the hearings on matters completely unrelated to Estes.

"If there is something to be investigated, by all means let them do so without further delay and stop the petty hinting and subtle innuendo by staff people," Dirksen said. He called the lead a "punitive and retaliatory" reaction to scandals which have linked the names of some Kennedy administration officials with Estes.

In Tacoma, Wash., Edgar Eisenhower, a lawyer, declared "the whole purpose of this is to take the heat off this administration, to take the heat off this Billie Sol Estes investigation. They are trying to shift attention."

"I don't know anything about the Estes problem except what I have read in the papers. If they are trying to connect me with that situation, it is a great distortion. I never heard of the man until I saw his name in the paper."

The former president's brother said Fountain invited him to come to Washington a long time ago.

"I told him on the telephone I wouldn't go," Eisenhower said. "Didn't have any interest in any grain storage and didn't see why I should pay my way back there to tell him so. I told him I didn't have at any time, and haven't now, a nickel's worth of interest in wheat storage or grain storage."

"I want you to know," he declared, "that politics have hit a new low."

The House group, the subcommittee on intergovernmental relations, has jurisdiction over surplus grain storage and cotton allotments. It will look into Estes' profitable operations under both programs.

The House subcommittee's counsel James R. Naughton said no decision has been reached on whether it will investigate the Eisenhowers.

Meanwhile Rep. H. Carl Anderson, R-Minn., became the second congressman to volunteer publicly to testify before McClellan's subcommittee after his name had been linked with Estes'.

Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough, D-Tex., previously had announced he was offering to testify. He acknowledged accepting about $7,500 from Estes in campaign contributions and to help finance the senator's radio broadcasts to constituents.

Anderson has said he sold Estes $4,000 worth of stock in a Washington state coal mine owned partly by the congressman. Anderson said the FBI has checked his records and "I am sure they will find that everything is in proper order."

McClellan has stated that any Congress member whose name is mentioned in the hearings will have a chance to become a witness.

Estes is awaiting trial on federal fraud charges and a Texas indictment accusing him of theft.

Another chapter of his from boom to bust story unfolded Wednesday in El Paso, Tex. The financier faced his creditors but would reveal nothing.

Pleading the Fifth Amendment's provisions against possible self-incrimination, Estes declined to answer when asked about his business interests and assets. He also declined to give his occupation or the location of his offices.

But he told District Judge R. E. Thomas at the federal receivership hearing he would file a detailed statement of his worth and operations by June 15.

In a report to the court, receiver Harry Moore said a preliminary and unverified tabulation indicated Estes' assets were $20,793,154 and his liabilities $38,378,935.

Estes has declared he is bankrupt.

Shorts Become A Social Issue

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP)—The nakedness of a knee was fraught with social significance at Highland Park Junior College today.

Bermuda shorts have become a touchstone of undergraduate dignity. Wednesday, 400 of the college's 1,000 day students wore the shorts in defiance of a new school rule.

The location of the college across the street from Highland Park High School lies at the base of the social drama in the Detroit suburb.

"We are told we are setting an example for students at the high school," said college freshman Jake Femineo, 19.

The bare-legged demonstrators one fellow wore kilts—painted a grim picture of their daily academic grind including no penny-ante poker, no smoking indoors, no dancing the Charleston in stocking feet.

The students rebelled at the anti-Bermuda regulation and used bare legs as "a symbol of student protest," said Terry Roach, 19 (the one in kilts).

The word was out today that students in shorts will be barred from class. "If we back out now," said Roach, "it will look as if we haven't the courage of our convictions."

Roberts Wins Pole Position In World 600

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—With two spanking new track records to shoot at, eight more starting positions were at stake today as qualifying continued for Sunday's $110,000 World 600 stock car race here.

Glen (Fireball) Roberts of Daytona Beach, Fla., nailed down the coveted inside pole position Wednesday by posting record marks of 140.625 miles per hour for one lap and 140.150 for four laps in a 1962 Pontiac.

The new records erased old marks for closed 1/2-mile tracks here last year by young Dave Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., of 139.032 for one lap and 138.577 for four laps.

Pearson, also driving a 1962 Pontiac, grabbed the front row spot beside Roberts by posting a four-lap average of 138.674. Pearson, who won the World 600 last year, predicted that Roberts' 140 mile per hour mark may stand for a while.

"They'll be falling back quite a while from Fireball's mark," he said. "Fireball was really moving, wasn't he?"

Banjo Matthews of Asheville, who is Roberts' chief mechanic, won the inside spot on the second row beside Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Va. Matthews qualified in a 1962 Pontiac at 137.790. Weatherly, also driving a 1962 Pontiac, turned in 136.873.

On row three will be Bobby Johns (136.812) and Johnny Allen (136.708), while Jimmy Pardue (136.570) and Tommy Irwin (136.496) will share the fourth row. Pontiacs thus captured seven of the first eight positions.

At stake today will be positions 9 through 17. Eight more starting spots will be decided Friday and the remainder of the 50-car field on Saturday.

Failing to qualify Wednesday were Larry Frank, 135.627; Marvin Panch, 134.873; Ned Jarrett, 134.839; and Roscoe Thompson, 134.772. Some, or all, of these drivers are expected to try again today.

Also expected to try today were Fred Lorenzen and Nelson Stacy, top Ford drivers for the Holman-Moody team of Charlotte. Two new 1962 convertible Fords prepared by Holman and Moody were ruled ineligible by NASCAR officials Wednesday. NASCAR said new-type roofs being manufactured to convert Ford "Sunliners" into hardtops are ineligible.

Holman and Moody said two spanking new 1962 Fords would be ready for Lorenzen and Stacy by 10 a.m. today.

Optimists Win First Game Of New Season

NORTH STATE

The Optimist won their first contest of the season yesterday as they took an early lead over Texaco and managed to hang on for a 6-4 win. Al Wainright was the winning pitcher while Scott Hardy was credited with the loss.

In the bottom of the second frame, the Optimists rallied to tally four runs on four walks, a single, and two errors. Tony Whitehurst led the inning off with a base-on-balls. With one out, Jerry Jones and Ken Bradbury drew successive walks to load the bases. Jim Ward followed with an infield grounder to the second baseman who made a wild throw to home plate. Whitehurst came in to score on the play and Ward reached first safely to keep the bases loaded. Joie Goodman followed with a walk to force Jones in to score and give the Optimists a 2-0 advantage.

With two outs, Wayne Heath was safe at first on an error which allowed Bradbury to cross the plate. Bruce Jackson stepped into the batters box and connected for a single to score Ward. The Texaco team then settled down to retire the side.

Optimist pitcher Wainright hurled a near-perfect game as he allowed one hit, no walks, and threw no wild pitches for the first five innings of play. Texaco catcher Jeff Hardee collected a hit off of Wainright in the first frame and from then on to the top of the sixth, Wainright retired the next fifteen batters straight.

In the bottom of the fifth, Optimists returned to bat to collect two runs off of three walks and two hits. With two outs, Tony Whitehurst and Billy Clark walked to bring Jerry Jones to the plate. Jones rapped a double to score both Whitehurst and Clark adding two more runs to the Optimist total. The Optimists went on to load the bases on another walk and a hit, however, Texaco settled down to retire the side.

Texaco fought hard to get back in the game in the sixth when they rallied to collect four runs off two walks, two hits, and two errors. Randy Warren led the frame off with a walk and was followed by Jeff Hardee who also received a base-on-balls. Bobby Hardy followed with a long triple to score Warren and Hardee.

Bo Hardy then came in to score when Scott Hardy followed by reaching first safely on an error. Scott Hardy later came in to score on a single by Leon Peaden. However, the Optimists retired the side and claimed their first victory.

Today, at Elm Street Park, the Kiwanians meet Coca-Cola while at Guy Smith Park Pepsi-Cola meets the Elks. No games were played in the Tar Heel League Wednesday.

Set Targets For Boxing Inquiry

NEW YORK (AP)—A joint legislative committee investigating boxing in New York next will look into such matters as criminal influences and the manipulation of odds.

The committee, its investigation spurred by the ring death of former welterweight champion Benny (Kid) Faren, closed three days of public hearings Wednesday.

No definite date for further hearings was set, but Assemblyman Hayward Plumadore, heading the probe, said further hearings definitely will be held. The committee is seeking to determine if boxing should be banned in the state.

Chicago Virtual Sure Site For Heavies' Bout

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—If you've been wondering, or even worrying, where the Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston heavyweight title fight will be held, you can relax now. Ninety-nine per cent sure says Tom Bolan, president of Championship Sports Inc., appointed promoters by the champion himself, Floyd Patterson.

"Unless something comes up, Chicago is the place," said Patterson at a press conference on Wednesday evening. Patterson has the right to be skeptical since the night before he thought it was all set for Detroit.

"But at the last minute I discovered that the people in Detroit were figuring on having local promoters to help stage the fight."

"I immediately said that was impossible because Championship Sports Inc., will be the sole promoters," said Patterson.

The only hitch that has to be overcome in Chicago, according to both Patterson and Bolan, is to get a reasonable rental for either Soldier Field of Comiskey Park.

"If they should ask us for a rental of $200,000 or $300,000 for either of those fields then it's something else again," said the champion.

Patterson is partial to Chicago. It's the city where he won the then vacant heavyweight crown by knocking out Archie Moore in 1956 and it's the site of boxing's richest gate—the $2,658,660 pulled in by Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney for the famous long count battle in 1927.

"The fight is a cinch to gross about a million and a half in Chicago," said Tom Bolan. "We ought to do at least four or five million more with closed circuit television and the rest of the ancillary rights."

'Hard Luck' Donovan Of '61 Now 8-Game Winner

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Remember the hard-luck Dick Donovan of just a year ago, with that disheartening string of five successive one-run losses? His luck is a little better this season and so's his record—8-0.

The big right-hander became the first eight-game winner in the majors Wednesday night when the Cleveland Indians cut loose with another eleventh-hour home run attack and overpowered the Chicago White Sox 5-4. Pinch hitting rookie Al Luplow and Chuck Essegian connected back-to-back in the ninth inning as the Tribe won for the third time in a week with ninth-inning homers.

By winning the squeaker, Cleveland remained a half game behind the top-place Yankees, who buried Kansas City 13-7 with a nine-run eighth inning triggered and capped by rookie Joe Pepton's home run blasts. Boston beat Minnesota 6-1 and dropping the Twins to third, one game back. Washington whipped Los Angeles 7-2, while Detroit and the Orioles were rained out at Baltimore.

In the National League, Philadelphia handed San Francisco's first-place Giants their third straight loss, 10-7. Los Angeles tripped New York 3-1; Pittsburgh beat St. Louis 6-3; Houston shut out Cincinnati 2-0 and Milwaukee beat Chicago 4-2.

Donovan was tagged for 10 hits, one a two-run homer by Al Smith in the first, but singled in one run himself as the Indians stayed close to the White Sox all the way.

Dom Zanni, who had pitched pitched strongly in relief of Juan Pizarro, was the victim of Cleveland's uprising in the ninth. Luplow led off with his score-tying homer into Comiskey Park's lower right field deck and Essegian promptly zeroed in on the left field sector with his 11th of the season.

Pepton and fellow rookie Phil Lutz, both fill-ins for the injury-hobbled Yankees, produced handsomely in the explosive rout of the A's. Held to four hits by Dan Pfister and trailing 7-4 going into the last of the eighth, Pepton kicked off the rally with a homer and climaxed it with another two aboard, becoming the 15th major leaguer to homer twice in one inning. Lutz took over at third after Clete Boyer was hit on the wrist by a pitch in the third, homered in the seventh with one on for his first hit in the majors, and sent the Yanks ahead with a two-run single in the big ninth.

Tex Clevenger, called up from the minors Tuesday was the winner with one inning of relief and Diego Segui took the loss. Jimenez whacked a homer for the A's.

The Red Sox put a halt to their eight-game skid behind the seventh hit pitching of Earl Wilson and Dick Radatz. Gary Geiger had a homer and double in Boston's 10-hit offensive against Don Lee and two Minnesota relievers. Ed Bresnold also homered. Rich Rollins' homer accounted for the Twins' lone run.

Pete Burnside pitched a nine-inning last-place Senators, who broke away from the Angels in the first three innings with seven runs—four of them unearned. Ted Bowsfield was the losing pitcher.

Palmer Tackling Tough Oakmont

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP)—"She's a monster," Arnold Palmer said after coming to friendly grips with his next major golf antagonist—the Oakmont Country Club.

This piece of real estate nestled in the western Pennsylvania hills is the site of the 62nd National Open championship June 14-16. Palmer drove the 42 miles from his home in Latrobe, Pa., to play the course for the first time in four years.

"She's going to be awfully tough," golf's leading money winner and prime tournament favorite said after a scrambling 18 Wednesday. "I'm having to revise my estimates. Originally, I said 275 would win the open here. Now I believe it'll be nearer 290."

Palmer toured the 6,916-yard, par 71 layout with his professional father, Milfred (Pap) Palmer and two Latrobe neighbors, Harry Saxman and Ken Bowman.

"I didn't keep a score but I must have shot an 80," he said afterward. "I'll play it again later this week more seriously. I should get a better idea then."

He complained to Frank Hannegan, a member of the U.S. Golf Association staff and one of the spectators, about the hour-glass cut of the fairways on some holes—particularly the 10th, 11th and 12th and the first and second on the outgoing nine.

The fairways offer a large target to the short hitters but taper to as little as 50 yards in the area where the game's longer drivers, such as Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Sam Snead might hit the ball.

"I don't see the reason for continually penalizing the long hitter," Palmer said. "Normally, it's the long hitter who is wild and the short hitter who is accurate. But some of these holes make it impractical, if not impossible, for the hitter to attack."

Police Hold All 3 Suspects In Murder Of Two Detectives

NEW YORK (AP)—Police have their hands on all three ex-con-victs accused of the holdup-murders of two city detectives in Brooklyn.

The one who hid out the longest—Jerome Rosenberg—surrendered Wednesday night to the New York Daily News in its Manhattan headquarters.

Notified by the News, Assistant Chief Inspector Raymond V. Martin picked up Rosenberg in the editorial department and had him taken under heavy guard to a Brooklyn police station.

Police booked Rosenberg on a homicide charge shortly before dawn, after he had been questioned through the night and early morning and viewed by witnesses of last Friday's holdup. Detectives said he said he is innocent.

Rosenberg's surrender—described in a copyright story in the News—came five days and a few hours after the murders, and on Rosenberg's 25th birthday. Police revealed last Monday that they knew the identities of the three bandits and that a nationwide search was under way.

REV. JAMES B. HEMBY JR. . . . will deliver the baccalaureate sermon to graduating members of Ayden High School's senior class on Sunday night. A native of Ayden, he is now director of admissions, placement and instruction in the Department of Religion and Philosophy at Atlantic Christian College.

Later that day, the alleged triggerman accused of staging the $4,000 holdup of a tobacco company with Rosenberg, was caught in a motel in a Chicago suburb. The next day, the man accused of driving a car which was to have been used in a getaway—surrendered in Norwich, Conn.

The Daily News said Rosenberg, "desperate on the fifth day after the murders," contacted his father, Louis, 56.

When the father turned to the News for advice, he was told: "Have him turn himself in. It's the only way."

The News informed police that the contact had been made, and that Rosenberg wanted to talk with representatives of the paper and state his case before facing police.

Such a discussion was authorized by police, the News said, and it quoted father and son as claiming young Rosenberg was innocent.

The other two men accused of the slayings have claimed innocence.

The pair, arraigned on homicide charges and held without bail Wednesday are Anthony (Baldy) Portelli, 26, accused of firing the shots that killed the two detectives, and Anthony Dellermia, 34, identified by police as the driver of the getaway car who panicked and left the robbers in the lurch when he heard gunfire in the tobacco company plant.

Slain detective John P. Finnegan, 29, was buried Wednesday after a funeral mass at a Roman Catholic Church in Brooklyn. There was a turnout of about 1,500 off-duty detectives, along with a 90-man police honor guard and 125 uniformed men—a tribute similar to that given the day before to Finnegan's partner, Luke J. Fallon, 56.

557,674 persons were served food and drink from 173 Salvation Army Mobile Canteens last year, at fires, earthquakes, floods and other disasters across the country.

Viet Nam Reds Suffer Heavily In Operations

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Vietnamese forces supported by fighter-bombers and U.S. Army helicopters have killed 72 Communist guerrillas and captured 34 others in an operation 70 miles south of Saigon, the government reported today.

The Mekong River delta operation, one of the bloodiest in recent weeks, began Wednesday and was reported continuing today.

Air strikes by South Vietnamese fighter-bombers inflicted the heaviest casualties among the Viet Cong guerrillas. The government also claimed its troops seized about a ton of arms and ammunition.

Government losses were given as seven killed and 10 wounded. Communist fire also wounded four American Army officers in one of the 14 helicopters ferrying Vietnamese troops into the fighting.

The helicopter pilot, Capt. Robert F. Cornell, 39, was shot in the heel and a U.S. spokesman said he will be unable to walk for some time. His next of kin is listed as his wife, Shirley Clairborne Cornell.

Salvation Army officers receive training for their spiritual and social ministry in Schools for Officers' Training. This two-year training is supplemented by field work and in service training for five years.

The three others were cut by flying metal and plexiglass but returned to duty after treatment. They are Lt. Col. Frank B. Clay, 41, of Washington, D.C., son of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, until recently President Kennedy's personal representative in Berlin; Lt. Col. Howard C. Blazard, 42, of Saint Johns, Ariz., and CWO Bennie B. Potts, 36, of Tacoma, Wash.

The younger Clay is senior field adviser to South Viet Nam's 7th Division, the unit engaged in the action.

JAMES EVERETTE MILLER, assistant state superintendent of public instruction will present the principal address at the Ayden High School commencement exercises on Wednesday evening. A native of Herford County, he received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from Wake Forest College. He is a former teacher and principal in the Washington, N. C. schools.

Colonel Again In Who's Who

FT. CHAFFEE, Ark.—A former Greenville man, Col. Daniel Murray House, commander of the 39th Regiment, 100th Division, now stationed at Fort Chaffee, Ark., was recently honored by being recognized for the second time in "Who's Who in America."

This is attributed to his extensive interests and accomplishments in both civic and philanthropic areas as well as in his association in private enterprises with Dr. Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

COL. D. M. HOUSE

Colonel House is credited with founding the Armed Forces Radio Service in the early stages of World War II. This organization is still an important distribution media in radio and television in behalf of all U. S. troops throughout the world.

Colonel House was reared in Greenville the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. R. House. He received his degree from North Carolina State College where he graduated with highest honors. He is the brother of Mrs. Kemp House Baldwin, 318 E. 10th St., Greenville.

Colonel House was called to active duty last fall with Kentucky's 100th Reserve Training Division. He expects to return to civilian life and his home in Jeffersonville, Indiana, about the first of August.

Closing Set For 'My Fair Lady'

NEW YORK (AP)—The musical "My Fair Lady" ends its record-breaking Broadway run July 7. The definite closing date was set Wednesday by producer Herman Levin. Since opening March 15, 1956, the show will have played 2,621 performances, been seen by 3½-million people and grossed almost 20 million dollars.

"My Fair Lady" broke the previous White Way musical run mark of 2,212 set by "Oklahoma" last July. Subsequently it became international tuneshow champion by besting the London record of 2,238 performances set by "Chin-Chow."

Largest chamber of commerce in the southern hemisphere is in Buenos Aires. Melbourne and Johannesburg follow.

Col. Glenn Chosen As 'Father Of The Year'

NEW YORK (AP)—A man acclaimed for doing a good job above the earth today was honored for doing a good job on it. Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. was named the nation's "Father of the Year."

Although Glenn, as the first American to orbit this planet, has been as far away from his family as any man ever has been, he was rated tops as a family man by the National Father's Day Committee.

It also praised his courageous performance in his orbital flight last Feb. 20, and "his modesty in insisting that the honors heaped upon him belong to the space program itself and not to him personally."

The committee cited Glenn's "rare gifts of intellect, charm and daring" and called him "America's newest hero in its quest for peace and universal freedom."

He and his wife, Anna Margaret, have two children, John David, 14, and Carolyn Ann, 13.

In ceremonies at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, the committee also presented awards in various categories to nine other persons, including:

Actor Robert Morse, "Stage Father of the Year"; entertainer Arthur Godfrey, "Radio Father of the Year"; actors E. G. Marshall and Robert Reed, "TV Father and Son of the Year"; attorney Louis

Nizer, "Literary Father of the Year."

Actress Olivia de Havilland, "Woman of the Year"; boxing champion Gene Fullmer, "Sports Father of the Year"; conductor and composer Meredith Willson, winner of "Humanitarian Award"; entertainer Don Mahoney, "Blind father of the Year," and printer Jack Markowitz, "Worker Father of the Year."

Probed Ocean 15,744 Ft. Deep

ONAGAWA, Japan (AP)—The French navy's bathyscaphe "Archimede" descended to a depth of 15,744 feet Tuesday in the Pacific Ocean off Japan's Honshu Island, a record plunge in those virtually unexplored depths.

The dive was the first in a series by a French-Japanese exploration team in the Japan Deep, or trench, where depths of more than 34,000 feet have been recorded in soundings.

Man's deepest descent was made Jan. 23, 1960, by the U.S. Navy's bathyscaphe "Trieste," which dived 35,000 feet in the Marianas Trench of the Pacific.

The Declaration of Independence was sealed in a helium-filled enclosure after 1924.

Electronic 'Gun' Does The Trick

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Shooting an astronaut into orbit calls for precise aim. And an electronic gun barrel here helps turn the trick.

This is a pencil-thin beam of radio waves which indicate the position and speed of the Atlas booster right after blast-off, and feed guidance commands to the rocket.

The system makes instantaneous, last-second corrections early in powered flight, until the missile passes out of the electronic gun barrel in the atmosphere over the Atlantic Missile Range.

The whole flight path is carefully planned and programmed into a guidance computer aboard the Atlas before blast-off.

Then the radio sightings, functioning like the barrel of a rifle, set in on hairline course.

The radio-command guidance system, developed by General Electric, consists of a tracking radar, radio transponders or two-way radios, a velocity measuring system on the ground, and a computer.

Transponders in the Atlas send signals back to the tracking radar and the computer figures out instantly whether the booster's course and speed are correct, and if not, figures out the corrections which are flashed as steering commands to the booster.

No further aiming can be done after the booster passes out of the "gun barrel." The guidance system aboard the Atlas cuts off the engines when the rocket has reached proper velocity to go into orbit. Soon afterward, the Atlas is cut loose from the space capsule, and the astronaut starts zooming around the world.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—When Malcolm Scott Carpenter was selected in 1959 as one of the seven Mercury astronauts, he was thankful to be rescued from what he considered a grueling assignment—a two-year tour of duty on an aircraft carrier.

On the carrier, he would face long periods away from his family and the disappointing prospect of a nonflying job. The Mercury orders arrived just two days before the ship was to depart San Diego.

When the carrier commander asked him what he was going to do, Carpenter replied: "Ride the nose cone of an Atlas three times around the earth."

"I remember being a little amazed at my own words," Carpenter said recently. "I knew little about the program then. By now, I know a good deal more, but the whole idea fills me with awe."

Carpenter, 37, a Navy lieutenant commander, was thrust suddenly into the pilot role for the second U.S. manned orbit flight last March 15 when it was disclosed that the chosen astronaut, Air Force Maj. Donald K. Slayton, had minor heart trouble. Carpenter had been backup pilot for Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr.'s orbital flight on Feb. 20.

The handsome, crew-cut Carpenter has been a vital member of the astronaut team. His specialty is navigation and communications and he has worked extensively with engineers and technicians to develop a foolproof communications system for the Mercury capsule.

Carpenter is an exemplary citizen now, but it took him a little time to find himself. He said recently that in his youth he was a drifter and "sort of a no-good" in his home town of Boulder, Colo., where he was born May 1, 1925.

"I didn't study hard and I had to quit high school football because I couldn't devote myself to learning the plays," he said. "I stole things from stores and I was just drifting through, sort of a no-good."

After high school graduation in 1943, he enlisted in the Navy and got a start on his flying career in the Navy V-5 flight training program.

After World War II, he entered the University of Colorado but had trouble adjusting and twice was flunked out of school.

He became a laborer in Boulder. But not long afterward, when he was 20, he had an auto accident, which changed his whole life. He was unconscious for four days, and during a two-week convalescence in the hospital he decided to return to college.

He came within three credit hours of earning a degree in aeronautical engineering from Colorado in 1949 but encountered difficulty with a course in heat transfer. Before he could pick up the credits, he courted and married his wife, Rene, also a Colorado student, and rejoined the Navy.

After graduation from the Navy test pilot school in 1954, Carpenter began the dangerous job of working the kinks out of some of the nation's newest, fastest fighting planes.

Rene, a pretty blonde, recalls some anxious moments when he was a test pilot at Patuxent River, Md. She said she was nervous every time he didn't show up at 6 o'clock sharp for dinner.

But she says they have discussed the dangers of his job and have learned to live with them. They spend little time worrying—even about the hazards of space flight.

Carpenter and Rene, who also is from Boulder, are very close and write lengthy letters to one another when separated. He writes in detail about his Project Mercury work and once penned 17 pages.

Soon after he had gone to Washington for one of his first briefings as an astronaut, Rene wrote him: "I think you were born for this and God knows I'd rather have you in space than at sea."

With four children, they have the largest family of any of the astronauts. The youngsters are Mark Scott, 12, Robyn Jay, 10, Kristine Elaine, 6, and Candace Noxon, 5. A fifth child, a 6-month-old son, died in 1951.

Green-eyed Rene, fulfilling a long-time desire, came to nearby Cocoa Beach with the children to be close when Carpenter is rocketed toward space. This is the first astronaut family to be in the Cape area at launch time.

"There's nothing at all like it," Rene says, "to stand on the beach and see it going up—and the prayerful attitude of the crowd."

She said her husband wanted the sons, Scott and Jay, to witness the launching first-hand. Although daughters are not as space conscious, he wanted them to be nearby also.

Carpenter is devoted to the children and spends as much of his free time as possible with them at their home at Langley Air Force Base, Va. His hobbies are skin-diving, archery and water skiing.

He is an Episcopalian who has "an abiding faith which sustains me at all times."

End ADV to be held for use on launch of Carpenter rocket

Ten Quiet Years Ending For N.C. Representative

By GEOFFREY GOULD
WASHINGTON (AP)—After 10 years of quietly going about his business as a congressman, Rep. L. H. Fountain of North Carolina is about to have an enormous amount of hullabaloo and fanfare thrust upon him.

Summer Study Grant Awarded Local Teacher

Mrs. Dorothy W. Johnson, fourth grade teacher at Third Street School, is among 32 persons throughout the United States to receive a grant for summer study in science at Birmingham-Southern College by the National Science Foundation.

Mrs. Johnson will attend an eight-week session at the college, located in Birmingham, Ala., beginning June 23. The purpose of the Science Institute is to develop in the elementary science teacher a familiarity with the basic tenets of the several disciplines of science.

Teachers will undergo a program of formal classwork supplemented by field and laboratory work. A seminar in the philosophy of science and evening lectures of a cultural nature will also be a part of the program.

Mrs. Johnson received her A. B. and M. A. degrees from East Carolina College.

Fountain, a Democrat from Tarboro, N. C., heads an obscure House subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations. Because of its jurisdiction over government surplus grain storage and cotton allotments, the sensational Estes case has fallen into its lap, much to the glee of the subcommittee's Republican members.

Fountain announced Tuesday the subcommittee will open public hearings Monday on the tangled affairs of the Texas cotton, grain storage and fertilizer operator, now under indictment for fraud and theft.

Republicans in congress, scenting campaign fodder because of Estes' connections in the Democratic administration, have pushed hard to get the Fountain committee's probe started.

Because of this, and because it will be the first public airing of the Estes case on Capitol Hill, the blinding limelight of national publicity will be focused right on the Fountain subcommittee when it opens its doors Monday morning.

He has pledged a fair and impartial hearing to "get all the facts laid on the table." Fountain, 49, is a trim, self-effacing man with a wavy thatch of mahogany-colored hair. He has been opposed seriously only once since he came to congress in 1952. That time he got 94 per cent of the vote.

Fountain's subcommittee for several years has conducted investigations of government grain storage practices, but they have caused few headlines.

A close associate described Fountain as "a clean-cut Christian gentleman" and one of the "most conscientious public servants I have ever known."

Religion plays a major part in Fountain's life. He says he has not missed a Sunday Bible class since he was 3 1/2, back in Leggett, N. C., seven miles outside Tarboro, where he was born.

He was born across a dusty country road from a Presbyterian church, and has served it ever since.

He now is an elder and a trustee of the National Presbyterian Church in Washington.

Fountain went to high school in Tarboro, worked his way through the University of North Carolina Law School, then joined his older brother in law practice. At 23 he became a reading clerk of the North Carolina Senate.

After four years of World War II service in the judge advocate general's office, rising from private to major, he immediately was elected to the State Senate. He came to congress in 1952.

He is married to the former Christine Dail of Mount Olive, N. C., and they have one daughter, Nancy.

Area Students To Get Degrees At ACC Sunday

WILSON — The following students are among those receiving baccalaureate degrees in the arts and sciences at the 60th commencement at Atlantic Christian College on Sunday:

Richard Horace Clayton III of Williamston, Joseph R. Conleton of Stokes; Cora Linda Corbett of Farmville; and James Herbert Ward Jr., of Williamston.

Commencement speaker will be Dr. Hubert C. Noble of New York City, general director of the Commission on Higher Education of the National Council of Churches. Prof. Glenn C. Routh of Brite College of the Bible, Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, Texas, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon. A highlight of commencement this year will be ground-breaking ceremonies for the college's new $150,000 music classroom building, one of the first major steps in a $3.5 million program of development.

Polaris Firings By Nuclear Sub

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has made his no-compromise stand on medical care for the aged more emphatic than ever. He insists on weaving it into the Social Security system. He says the public wants it that way.

Firing another broadside at the American Medical Association Wednesday, Kennedy repeated his prediction that Congress will adopt his plan this year if it reaches the House and Senate floors. And he contended that despite AMA opposition, "more and more doctors are supporting it."

Kennedy heatedly attacked the AMA and Republican critics of his medical care program at his news conference—a conference dominated by his strong views on the big legislative controversy of 1962. The questioning elicited these comments and charges:

Kennedy said he does not plan to follow up his current proposal for payment of hospital, nursing home and outpatient bills with a plan to cover doctors' bills. He accused critics of talking through both sides of the mouth. They criticized it one day, he said, for "going too far in limiting the relationship between doctors and their patients, and on another day attacked it for not including doctors."

AMA spokesmen have denounced the plan as "a cruel hoax." Kennedy said the association used the same words in unsuccessfully opposing Social Security in the 1930s. The AMA may not support this bill, he said, "but I think the American people will, and I think more and more doctors are supporting it."

Would he accept a compromise that omitted Social Security financing?

No, he replied. Social Security is the heart of the bill.

"That isn't a compromise. That would be just giving up on the bill and we don't plan to do that." The 25-minute conference, shortest in his experience as President, covered these other points:

Chinese refugees—He announced the United States would admit several thousand refugees from hungry Communist China. The Justice Department said Wednesday night the flow would begin from Hong Kong in about two weeks.

Estes—In view of the possibility a federal official investigating Billie Sol Estes was murdered, Kennedy was asked if Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman could justify saying the affair had been ballooned out of proportion. Let's not judge the case, Kennedy said, until the FBI and Texas authorities have completed their inquiry. Kennedy said grain is being shifted from Estes' storage bins into normal channels of trade in a way that will not cost the taxpayers—and with more than usual speed "because of all the circumstances."

Economy—In the long haul, he said, the stock market will keep in line with the economy, "and I think the prospects for the economy for this year are good."

West Germany — Misunderstandings with the government of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer have been straightened out. West Germany's latest proposals for negotiating the Berlin problem will be analyzed, Kennedy said, but talks with the Soviets will continue.

Space—His administration, Kennedy said, strongly supports a joint U.S.-Soviet project to study weather patterns by satellites and hopes this will lead to other cooperative efforts in space.

Cigarettes — Not having enough information, Kennedy said, he'd rather put off comment until next week on claims that certain types of cancer and heart disease are connected with cigarette smoking.

Government Pay—Kennedy declared tersely his pay raise proposals for government employees are not inflationary but fit within the guidelines he has set forth gradually for wage increases based on productivity.

Federal Job Retraining Program Gets Underway In The Southland

By BOB HORTON
KNOXVILLE (AP)—"I began working in the coal mines when I was 15," says 32-year-old Roy Jenkins. "And all the time I was in the mines I was losing experience I could have been getting somewhere else."
Now Jenkins, jobless and lacking in background for a trade or craft, is trying to make up for that lost experience.
Along with 110 other unemployed or underemployed men from Campbell and Claiborne counties, Jenkins is participating in a 16-week program to get training in another line of work.
It's the Fulton Area Vocational Training Program, started Feb. 19, the first retraining project in the South to begin under the new Federal Area Redevelopment program.

During the retraining, each man draws $24 weekly subsistence pay—the same amount the State Employment Office hands out to qualified jobless individuals.
Buses run five days a week from the two counties to Knoxville, bringing the men to classes which last from 3 until 9:30 p.m. The program includes training in automobile mechanics, wood-working, machines, welding and radio-television.

Just Year Old
The Area Redevelopment Act was signed into law last May. Besides retraining subsistence payments, it provides designated redevelopment areas with industrial and commercial projects, grants, technical assistance and occupational training.
The Labor Department determines what skills are in short supply, where, and in what numbers. Then, workers who have passed aptitude tests are trained as machine tool operators, aircraft riveters, cooks, stenographers, auto mechanics, nurses aides, welders, tractor operators, etc.

The government has committed more than $4 million for the retraining of 6,120 workers in 22 states. The Area Redevelopment Administration says the program has not been going long enough to determine what proportion of the retrained workers will get jobs. However, a spokesman said it is believed vacancies exist for virtually all of them.
"Distressed" Since '53
Campbell and Claiborne counties were certified by the federal government as distressed areas in 1953 as a result of economic conditions caused largely by the decline of jobs in coal mining.
Only about a half dozen of the trainees in this particular program, however, are former mine workers.
Some of Jenkins' fellow students, for example, are just out of high school, some former truck drivers, construction employees and factory workers.
"But a good many of them are the sons of miners who have found other work or who now are retired on pension," says Paul Miller, head of the Claiborne Employment Security Office. "Indirectly, the decline of mining in the two counties had something to do with their unemployment."
"It's largely a result of mechanization," Miller says. "Where 3,300 men were employed by mines in the early 1950's, there's now only about 800. We're still producing coal, but by machinery. Where one man used to produce five to six tons a day, it's now 25 tons a day."
Surprisingly, the number of mines has not decreased—but doubled. The State Labor Division of Mine Inspection says Claiborne has 20 mines now, compared with 11 in 1949. Campbell has 92, compared with 46 in 1949.
But deep mines which hired hundreds of men are losing ground to strip mines, which produce treble the amount of coal with one mechanical shovel and a fraction as many workers.
Work Was Seasonal
Jenkins, now learning welding,

BOWLING ON THE GREEN — The famous Table Mountain, overlooking Cape Town, serves as a backdrop for white-outfitted men and women who indulge in Sunday afternoon bowling on the green at a country club outside the South African city.

describes the employment problems of the miner.

The mines run good from December through winter, but when it's early spring nobody needs any coal. The mines just shut down.
For him and many of the men he worked with, the layoff meant heading north to look for a job, at a factory in Baltimore, construction in Cincinnati.
"Working in the mines you have to save up money to live on when they shut down. That's the only way we made it while I was looking for work," he explains.
Practically all who leave in the off-season, however, return to coal work in the winter. "It's still home," Jenkins says.
"It's about as hard a work as I've ever done. I've worked for $4 to $15 a day, whatever I could get. My dad was a miner—he's retired now on a pension—and my wife's dad was a miner, too. There's just not much else to do."
Jenkins, father of four, hopes his training in welding will lead to a more secure occupation.
"I don't know what welders make, but I know when business is good a friend of mine gets up to $100 a week. I don't intend to go back to the mines. After I finish this training I am going to get some experience. Of course, it's nice to make some good money, but I want it regular, too."

Reds Appeal To End Flight

HONG KONG (AP)—Blaring Communist loudspeakers today appealed to Chinese fleeing Red China to stay home and help grow needed food. But Red border guards reportedly made no attempt to stop the flow of refugees to Hong Kong.

About 5,000 succeeded in getting across the frontier into this British crown colony before dawn. Sources in the border area said all but about 500 were rounded up by British police and army patrols. They were rushed to a detention camp for return to Red China.

Reports from the sealed-off border area said the Communist loudspeaker broadcasts to throngs massing along the Hong Kong line were given as patriotic advice rather than orders. Border sources said they had nothing to substantiate earlier Hong Kong press reports that Red guards had commanded the waiting mobs to turn back and fired warning shots when their orders went unheeded.

The Hong Kong government expressed appreciation for the interest and concern shown by the United States for Hong Kong's problem.
A government spokesman voiced the appreciation after reports that President Kennedy had cleared the way for between 5,000 and 6,000 refugees to be admitted to the United States.

Offers Bid For Camp Polk Land

RALEIGH (AP)—A Raleigh residential building firm has submitted a bid of $152,469 for 56.7 acres of Camp Polk prison land near Raleigh.

The price, disclosed Wednesday by Raleigh real estate man Bruce Poole Sr., is about $300 per acre below the appraised value. Poole has been seeking a buyer for the land which the State Prison Commission has declared surplus.

State Treasurer Edwin Gill, a member of the Council of State which must approve all sales of state land, said he does not consider it good policy to sell at less than appraised value.

Work On Deep Well Is Planned

MONDAY — Work on a new deep well for Friday may get underway next Monday, it was learned yesterday.

Contractor R. L. Malette of Smithfield, Va., told town officials this week he may start work on Monday. Already, work is underway on extending the water and sanitary sewer line for the town.

In February, 50 property owners in the DuPone Street area signed a petition clearing the way for a well site on property owned by Joe Quinerly. Quinerly was willing to sell the property, but the project was hindered because the area was zoned for residential use only.

There won't be a tank on the site, only a well and possibly a small building, Mayor Wiley Gaskins has stated.

In a project related to extending water and sewer lines and providing a new well, water meter installation is now underway. Workmen haven't completed installation on Charles Street, Gordon Street or McRae Street. Utilities Superintendent Luther Lewis said yesterday. Also, some installation remains to be done in Forest Acres. Lewis pointed out that water meters already installed would be checked and if they are not in working order they will be replaced.

Several Traffic Accidents Here

Traffic mishaps were investigated by Greenville Police yesterday included two involving two vehicles in which three persons were injured, and one involving a pedestrian.

Traffic officers said heaviest damage resulted in a collision at the intersection of First and Harding Sts., about 8:55 p.m. where two persons suffered bruises to the head.

Drivers of the vehicles involved were identified as Mrs. Doris Langley of College Trailer Park and Garland West Fisher, Jr., 19 of 413 West Fourth St.

Injured were Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Sandra Beal Fisher, 18.

Both were treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for the injuries and released. Garland Fisher was charged with failure to yield the right of way in the mishap.

Damage was set at $600 to the Ford car and an estimated $400 to the Fisher vehicle.

Officers said an estimated $200 damage was done to a car driven by Rose Lee Bradley, Negro, of Greenville, after the vehicle struck sign poles and a utility pole at the intersection of Third and Cotanche Sts. at 6:07 p.m.

Police said the Bradley auto collided with the poles while attempting to prevent a collision with a car driven by Doris Smith James of Route 3, Bethel.

Mrs. James was charged by investigators with failure to yield the right of way. No damage was done to her auto.

Mrs. Bradley was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for a laceration to her left knee.

Officers said the mishap occurred about 8:20 a.m. on Cross St. near the intersection of Broad St.

Contracts Awarded For New Pitt ABC Building

Construction contracts were awarded Wednesday by the Pitt County ABC Board for its new administrative office building and retail store scheduled for occupancy within 90 to 120 days.

Total cost, including architects fees, was placed at $47,215.

In special session, the board opened four heating and air conditioning bids, accepting the low proposal of $6,637 by Mashburn Plumbing and Heating Co. of Farmville and awarded general construction, electrical, plumbing and heating and air conditioning contracts.

As expected, the board made general construction, electrical and plumbing work awards to low bidders in a previous bidding session.

Contracts went to: General construction—Chapin Construction Co. of Greenville, $31,849.

Electrical—Watson Electric Co. of Greenville and Wilson, $4,113.

Plumbing—City Plumbing Co. of Greenville, $2,244.

Heating and air conditioning—Mashburn Plumbing and Heating Co. of Farmville, $6,337.

The project's architectural firm, Dudley & Shoe of Greenville, was authorized by the board to award the contracts. The firm's fee was set at $2,672.

Total cost of the project barely exceeded early estimates of $45,000. Commenting on the project, board chairman J. W. Joyner of Farmville said today: "We are pleased with it. I think we're going to have a nice set-up there. We could have built a little-bit cheaper building, but we felt we should build something that would be a credit to the county."

Joyner said ground-breaking ceremonies are scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Monday, June 4, next regular-meeting date for the board.

Time limit on construction, as provided by contract, is 180 calendar days. Joyner said the board expects to occupy the building sooner but that amount
