Long Procession Climaxes Academic Year

PART OF 1,011 . . . students to receive degrees from East Carolina College here yesterday are shown filing into their seats as the graduation exercises got underway in College Stadium.

East Carolina College Degrees Go To 1,011 Graduates Here Sunday

East Carolina College conferred degrees Sunday afternoon on 1011 graduates of the 1961-1962 academic year.

U. S. Commissioner of Education Sterling M. McMurrin, making the address to graduates, stressed the values of education in a time of crisis both to the individual and to society.

Events of the afternoon, preceded by a quarter-hour program of music by the East Carolina Symphonic Band, began with an academic procession of graduates, college officials, members of the Board of Trustees, and special guests.

Music for the occasion by the Symphonic Band and the College Choir presented compositions by two North Carolina composers.

Dean Robert L. Holt of the college presented candidates to President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina, who conferred degrees. Graduates included 210 masters of arts, masters of art in education, 58 bachelors of arts, 132 bachelors of music, and 610 bachelors of science.

More than 93% of those receiving degrees are from 75 North Carolina counties. Others are from 16 additional states and five foreign countries.

Kenneth L. Trogon of Cumberland, president of the Senior class, led graduates in a traditional ceremony during which tassels on mortar boards were moved from the right to the left side to indicate the status of graduates.

Director of Religious Activities D. D. Gross of East Carolina spoke the invocation and the benediction at the ceremony.

In the circumstances in which we now live and the nation stands, Dr. McMurrin stated, all of us must realize that the education of youth is a sacred trust.

At present in this country, he explained, we do not have enough highly trained manpower to fill the needs of a highly complex society.

Great changes which are ob-servable in the nation, he stated, include rapid urbanization, growth of industry and technology, developments in economy, and increasing demands placed on the country in world leadership.

These changes, he said, makes the world a place which belongs to those who are educated and the course of events will be determined by them.

We must as in the past consider education in terms of its values to the individual, he told his audience, and added that we must also realize that through the educated the welfare of society will be advanced.

Our colleges and universities must be concerned with the education of the individual in order to contribute to the broader life of society, he declared.

It is conceivable that our kind of society could fail, he continued, and that other types of society could succeed.

Under the moral and spiritual predicament in which we now find ourselves, he stated, the educated have as one of their great tasks contributing to the cultural renaissance in our nation by increasing its intellectual, moral, and spiritual strength.

Our task now, he said, is the preservation and guarantee of human freedom. Cultivation of the total intellectual, moral and spiritual development of our people is needed to guarantee the survival of the nation in the long days ahead, he maintained.

We must never move, he continued, in the direction of regimentation in trying to meet the problems which face us, for if we do so move, there is no promise that we will be able to free ourselves of regimentation in the future.

We must, he told graduates, reject the Marxian idea that we are the slaves of history. We must believe that men can direct their own lives and the life of society. This is the task before us, he declared, and those of you who are graduating today are a chief resource of the nation in accomplishing it.

International Space Base Is Proposed By U.S.

GENEVA (AP) — The United States today proposed establishment of an international launching site for space research near the equator.

The proposal was made by U.S. Delegate Homer Newell, director of space sciences of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, at the first meeting of a subcommittee of a new United Nations committee on the peaceful uses of outer space.

Newell told the 23-nation committee there was a need for a rocket range somewhere near the equator to supplement similar ranges already operating. This could be a good starting point for international cooperation in space research, he said.

Memorial Rites Held For Tyson

A memorial service, paying tribute to the late Ruel W. Tyson, Sheriff of Pitt County, was held at the opening session of the Pitt County Superior Court here this morning.

Judge J. William Copeland, of Murfreesboro, presiding over the Civil Court Calendar, called for the memorial program.

In addition to Judge Copeland and the Rev. Percy Upchurch, pastor of the Memorial Baptist Church, and Pitt County Sen. Robert Lee Humber took part in the service, praising Tyson for his devotion to duty and his service to the people of Pitt County.

Attending the services were members of the Sheriff's Department, county employees, other lawmen and friends.

Andrews Named To Fill Unexpired Sheriff's Term

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer A. M. (Duke) Andrews, victorious by a landslide in Saturday's Democratic Primary, was appointed today to fill the remaining seven months of the late Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson's unexpired four-year term.

Andrews was administered the oath of office about 11:45 a.m. today by Superior Court Judge J. William Copeland of Murfreesboro, presiding during a one-week civil term of court in Pitt.

The new sheriff was sworn in shortly after he had been appointed to succeed Sheriff Tyson whose death early Saturday morning marred election day.

The County Commissioners, just minutes after convening in special session about 10 a.m., unanimously appointed Andrews to the job he won Saturday. His appointment came on a motion by District One Commissioner J. Vance Perkins, seconded by Bruce Strickland of Bell Arthur, District Three commissioner.

Andrews' nomination Saturday assured his election as sheriff in November. Sheriff Tyson's term would have expired in December.

Immediately following Andrews' swearing-in, Judge Copeland administered the oath of office to the new sheriff's seven deputies. Andrews kept Sheriff Tyson's force intact.

Deputies taking the oath included Lloyd Manning, Ralph Tyson, Gerald Davis, William Forrest, Brooks Oakley, G. W. Riley and Miss Sarah Jones.

The new sheriff is a 13-year veteran deputy, having served as chief deputy for the past few years. He acted as administrative head of the Sheriff's Department during Sheriff Tyson's illness. In Saturday's primary, Andrews defeated W. Randolph Harris of Winterville by a whopping 4,400-vote margin, 6,238 to 1,819, by unofficial count for the nomination.

The Commissioners voted unanimously to pay Andrews an annual salary of $6,780, the same as Sheriff Tyson's. The salary, $565 monthly, was made retroactive to May 1.

A compromise resulted after District Two Commissioner Robert L. Martin of Bethel had offered a motion to pay Andrews the $6,780 salary effective April 1. Martin said he proposed his motion "because the man (Andrews) has been virtually carrying the duties of the office for two years . . . he has 13 years' experience . . . and has acted "over and above the call of duty on many occasions."

Perkins, who moved to appoint Andrews, said he felt the salary should be lower because in an earlier appointment to a county elective office this year, the Commissioners voted to pay Mrs. Elvira Allred $5,040 in annual salary after the death of Registrar of Deeds Mrs. Blair Cox Wheeler whose salary was $6,150.

Martin, in defense of his motion, pointed out that Mrs. Allred was appointed for the bulk of a four-year term while Andrews would serve only seven months of his predecessor's elected tenure. At that point, he amended his motion to make Andrews' higher salary effective May 1 instead of April 1 and his proposal was seconded by Strickland.

As chief deputy, Andrews was paid an annual salary of $4,500.

Run-Off Primary For Pitt's House Seat Appears Strong Probability

A strong probability of a run-off primary for Pitt's House seat and overwhelming party nominations for Sheriff Duke Andrews and District Five County Commissioner B. Alton Gardner emerged from Saturday's election that attracted nearly 8,000 Pitt Democrats.

Incumbent School Board members William Stokes of Stokes and E. W. Fleming of Grifton appeared decisively renominated with respective vote totals of 3,924 and 3,439. Challenger Roland G. Brinson of Simpson received 2,443.

Incumbent Rep. Frank M. Wooten of Greenville led the ticket by a 550-vote margin, according to unofficial count, over W. A. (Red) Forbes of Winterville who out-pointed Grifton's Robert D. Wheeler by only seven votes.

Forbes, who appeared in second position by the unofficial totals, said today he was not prepared yet to say whether a second primary would be called. The second-place finisher, based upon Tuesday's 11 a.m. official vote-count, will have until noon next Monday to decide.

Thus more than casual attention was focused on tomorrow's meeting of Board of Elections Chairman D. Spruill Spain and the poll holders in the county's 25 precincts.

The unofficial totals gave Wooten 2,989 votes after carrying 15 precincts and dividing one with Forbes. Wheeler carried only three precincts, Grifton Ayden and Grimesland 1, for his apparent third-place finish with 2,439 votes. Forbes carried seven precincts and split Belvoir, 59-59, with Wooten for his unofficial total of 2,446.

Winterville gave Forbes a 490-plus margin over Wheeler, while Grifton gave its townsman candidates an advantage of slightly more than 300.

In the sheriff's contest, Andrews swept all precincts except Winterville, home precinct of his opponent, W. Randolph Harris. Unofficial totals showed Andrews received 6,238 votes to Harris' 1,819.

R. Guy Jackson, challenging Gardner, could post victories in only two precincts, Ayden and Grifton, while the incumbent swept the remaining 23 to secure re-nomination by an unofficial total of 5,184 to 2,198.

In constable duels, incumbent Frank Peaden beat Edgar Peaden in Falkland Township by 132 to 29; Pactolus Constable Clarence Harris Jr. edged R. P. Woolard, 144 to 134; and incumbent Grimesland Constable S. Elijah Heath defeated S. T.

Hodges, 200 to 130. In the Grifton constable race, where the death two weeks ago of incumbent Walter R. Joyner there was the possibility of a run-off pending a decision by State Board of Elections Secretary R. C. Maxwell.

Spain said today he was uncertain whether the 55 votes cast for Willie Faulkner would be included in determining if H. H. Adams 215 votes constituted a majority. If Faulkner's votes were counted, Maroon Knowlton Jr., who received 148 votes, would be entitled to a second primary.

Winterville's constable voting accorded Hennis Shivers 405 votes, a clear majority of the 689-vote four-way contest.

Vehicle Safety Check Lanes Operating In City On Tuesday

Four free vehicle safety check lanes sponsored by the Pitt County Safety Council, will be operated in Greenville Tuesday with free inspection lanes conducted in Ayden, Bethel and Farmville on Thursday.

Luther Moore, chairman of the vehicle safety program, said the Greenville lanes will be in operation at the Farmer's Warehouse on North Greene St., East Carolina College Memorial Gymnasium on East 10th St., on Charles St., at the intersection of 14th and on Dickinson Ave. at Shack's Electric Company.

Local civic clubs have been asked to help defray the expense of operating the lanes by supplying funds with which to hire lane attendants, while the Pitt County Insurance Exchange is supplying the necessary inspection blanks, safety check stickers, and other printed material needed.

An annual project for the Safety Council, the lanes will be manned by mechanics, supplied by the automobile dealers association, paid attendants aiding with the check, and representatives of the local law enforcement agencies, including police and state highway patrol.

The check lanes will be in operation from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., closing for an hour at lunch. Free soft drinks will be given to persons coming through the inspection lanes.

Included in the items to be checked are lights, horn, windshield wipers, brakes and tires.

In Ayden, Bethel and Farmville, the vehicle inspection lanes will be in operation Thursday, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., with one hour out for lunch also. Personnel to operate the lanes will be supplied by the individual towns. Chairman Moore said the Safety Council hopes for a good turnout of motorists this year, noting that the inspection program last spring had to be postponed several times due to bad weather and was not as successful as in previous years.

He noted that the inspection lanes "are completely voluntary but we hope that motorists will be interested enough in safety on the highways to take advantage of this service."

Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Paul Toll, organist, and Robert Tilley, soloist.

Food Tax Question Didn't Figure

With the Democratic primary in North Carolina now a matter of record, it appears evident that the campaign for legislative seats did not hinge on the food tax question as many people had earlier predicted.

Of the 11 incumbents defeated in their bid for re-election to the House in their respective counties, six either opposed the food tax directly in the last session of the General Assembly or offered alternate tax proposals. The other five were regarded as favoring the sales tax on food which was used to finance the state's quality education program.

Prior to the legislative campaigns there had been wide speculation throughout the state that the matter of sales tax on food would develop as the deciding issue throughout the state. As the legislative campaigns developed across North Carolina, the food tax issue failed to emerge as the dominant question debated by candidates. The election results Saturday failed to reflect any ground swell of voter reaction against legislators who had given support to the sales tax on food in the 1961 General Assem-blly. Republicans in North Carolina have asserted they intend to make the issue one of the keys in the general election campaigns between now and November. But in this connection the question will become a partisan issue which must be regarded as different from its becoming the focal point of a family fight within the Democratic party. In scattered counties throughout the state where there will be run-offs for party nominations for legislative posts, the issue could yet emerge as a principal factor. Up to this point, however, it has not proved to be an effective wedge for prying incumbents from the seats they held in the 1961 General Assembly.

On the basis of Saturday's results in the Democratic primary, one must conclude there will be no major effort in the 1963 legislative session to repeal the sales tax on food or to sidetrack the program of improving the quality of the state's public schools.

At least indirectly in Saturday's Democratic primary the voters of the state appeared to give their continued approval to both programs.

Highway Deaths Still Unsolved

By PHIL ELLIS, Executive Director N. C. Traffic Safety Council Guest Columnist

In tribal societies a not uncommon threat to life is the man-eating lion or tiger. These sick or wounded beasts, no longer able to prey upon quick-footed animals, enter villages to carry off livestock and sometimes even members of the tribe.

When the cry "Man-eater!" goes out, it becomes the duty of all able-bodied men of the community to organize a hunt. They give up their other pursuits until the marauder is killed and the threat to the tribe is eliminated.

Tonight in North Carolina another killer stalks our by-ways. It takes a human life every seven hours and injures a citizen of our state every 15 minutes.

Strangely enough, the society—while organized against it—has yet to control decisively the devastation.

A modern society supports the necessary manpower to cope with its enemies. Civilized men pay taxes to support armies and police, rather than having to drop their own pursuits when danger appears.

Our problem is that in spite of the present efforts of our public officials, we are still killing more than 1200 persons and injuring 34,000 every year on our highways.

There is a temptation to believe that nothing more can be done—that after all, we cannot realistically hope to reduce further the number of traffic accidents. To quote a misguided phrase: "Accidents will happen."

Unfortunately, the killer is not so easy to identify as the lurking tiger or lion sought by the tribesmen. On our highways he takes the form of speed, alcohol, fatigue, mechanical defect, engineering fault, ignorance, anxiety and all the other factors which lead to more than 60,000 accidents a year in North Carolina.

This is not to say that the killer cannot be found. He is being described by statistics every day. Constantly we are getting to know him better.

The fact is that there is much more that can be done to prevent traffic accidents, much that will be successful in our state because it has worked elsewhere.

For the first time in North Carolina, an all-out coordinated attack on the killer is being mounted. All state agency chiefs who have direct traffic safety responsibilities are analyzing the traffic accident problem and recommending ways in which officials can do a more thorough job. Their recommendations will be called the Official Traffic Safety Action Program. Parts of that program will involve simple administrative action; other parts will involve action on the part of the General Assembly to provide more tools and resources; and still other parts will involve direct votes of the people.

There is a further need. Members of the tribal society were quick to recognize the danger posed by the man-eating tiger. When the call went out, their decision to act was a simple and vital question of life or death.

Today the decision is still a life and death choice, but it is obscured by many complications. In a democracy we receive only the governmental services and action that we demand. Our population has not yet recognized the vital significance of the traffic accident problems. Our public officials can reduce accidents through coordinated programs of engineering, enforcement and education. But if citizens have neither the desire nor the energy to support the aims and needs of public officials, we cannot expect to see the death and injury toll reduced.

So the cry "Man-eater!" is going out again. In our sophisticated society the term is "citizen support."

While North Carolina officials analyze the problem and determine the ways to solution, private citizens need to be organized to support the vital tools of battle.

Citizen support for official action is the primary job of the N. C. Traffic Safety Council. Inc. Only through public understanding of action by officials can this action be successful.

What can the individual citizen do to help? Here's a start:

1) Be informed. Notice carefully news stories in which officials describe the way they are coping with traffic accidents. Pay special attention to news stories and advertisements which tell of North Carolina's Official Traffic Safety Action Program. Seek more information from the agencies involved.

2) Support the Action Program. When portions of the Action Program are announced, talk about the measures with your friends; demonstrate that you are in favor of them.

3) Enlist your organizations. Encourage civic clubs to which you belong to take an active role in safety affairs of the community and state. Join forces with others to form a citizens safety organization in your town. The Traffic Safety Council will help.

These steps are a far cry from the tribesman who drops his plow to grab his spear. But the modern man faces a far more deadly enemy than any beast which inhabits a jungle.

No Small School, And No Small Role In N.C.

East Carolina College's increasing importance to higher education in North Carolina was again attested to yesterday when the college awarded more than 1,000 degrees to its graduating class.

Although it is sometimes erroneously regarded as a "small school" in some parts of the state, it plays no small role in providing higher education for the young people of North Carolina. Neither does it play a small role in public education in the state, for without the qualified teachers graduating at East Carolina each year, North Carolina would find itself considerably more hard pressed to fill the teaching positions in its public schools.

The number of graduates at the college yesterday almost equalled the total number of students enrolled in the college slightly more than a decade and a half ago. During the intervening years East Carolina has become generally recognized as one of the major institutions of higher education in North Carolina and indeed in this section of the country. With each passing year it is called on to play an even more important part in the field of higher education in North Carolina.

With the continued support of citizens throughout the state who recognize its importance—plus the addition of 1,000 new alumni who received degrees yesterday—East Carolina College will be in a position to continue to forge ahead to provide greater service to North Carolina and its people.

Nineteen-Year Period Of Dedicated Service

The death Saturday of Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson brought to an end the career of a dedicated and conscientious public servant of the people of Pitt County.

For almost 19 years Sheriff Tyson had held the top law enforcement post of the county, and during that period has effected numerous improvements to provide better law enforcement and an unusual understanding of human problems. He served well his fellow citizens in an important public post.

Influencing The Business Trend

By RALPH ROBEY

One of our good lawyer friends has given us a copy of the fall issue of the Federal Bar Journal. This is a quarterly publication and this one is devoted to what is termed "Legal Aspects of Economic Development." But it is more than just the legal aspects. It covers most of the major ways by which the federal government has attempted to influence the business trend over the past several decades.

Specifically this issue of the Journal opens with a brief forward by the President of the Federal Bar Association and an introduction by George W. Ball, Under Secretary of State. Then follow articles in this order: "The Role of Government in Economic Development," by Leroy S. Wehrle, Staff Economist, Council of Economic Advisors.

"Tax Policy and Economic Development," by Walter A. Slovinski, now a member of a Washington law firm, but formerly employed by government. "Federal Aid in the Development of Agriculture," by Claude T. Coffman, Assistant to the Deputy General Counsel, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"U. S. Export and Import Programs," by Eugene M. Brademan, Director, Office of International Economic Programs, Department of Commerce.

"Financial Assistance to Business Enterprises," by Eleanor J. Stockwell, Economist, Capital Markets Section, Division of Research and Statistics, Federal Reserve System.

"Some Structural Features of U. S. Housing and Home Finance," by Robert C. Colwell, Economic Adviser to the Urban Renewal Administration, Housing and Home Finance Agency.

"Generation and Disposition of Electric Power by the Federal Government," by Charles A. Robinson, Jr., Staff Engineer and Staff Counsel of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

We, along with everyone else who follows current developments, have long known that the federal government was devoting a major portion of its efforts to affecting various aspects of business. But this journal discussion drove the point home harder than anything else we have seen, and bear in mind that it does not include an analysis of the regulatory agencies—the Federal Trade Commission, Interstate Commerce Com-

An Authority On Women

Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

On Saturday afternoons, when I go to the opera, I often have tea between Act 2 and 3, with a group that includes one of the world's greatest authorities about women. He is Dr. Virgil G. Damon, who says in "Look" magazine:

"After knowing some 40,000 to 50,000 women, I can say that many were worthy of far more respect and admiration than the men they loved."

It is something of a chore for a man to know one woman in all her changeabilities, but to have ministered to 40,000 or 50,000 of them and to survive to write about it, is an achievement of which few men can boast.

Dr. Damon's specialty, gynecology, is one of the most intimate of all medical relations. Few women bear children, certainly their first child, without an element of fear. Nevertheless, the mother instinct is so strong that women come back to that task, time after time, finding in it the greatest joy that a human female can discover upon this Earth.

It is true that more primitive women are reputed to go behind a haystack, bear their child and go back to work, but also large numbers of such women die of child-birth. And many children are born dead too. We have made such enormous progress in safeguarding both mother and child that such an expertise as Dr. Damon deals with is, indeed, an eye-opener to those of us, in this country, who take all our benefits for granted.

Dr. Damon has this to say about the present:

"A young woman doctor recently spoke out at a medical meeting against what she called the old-fashioned horse-and- buggy practice of house calls. She described them as inefficient, time-consuming and uneconomical. All of what she says is true. No doctor likes making house calls today, especially in big cities, where distances are great. You never can find a place to park your car, and the call on the sick patient invariably entangles you in the time-consuming process of refusing hospitality from the family without being rude. What might have been taken care of in an office in 15 minutes often stretches to two or three hours on a house call."

"No doctor can charge enough to make such calls pay. But I still think they are worthwhile. I grant you that there are selfish people who use a doctor, who have him come to them when they aren't really very sick and could just as well have come into the office. But you can't make hard and fast rules when you are dealing with suffering human beings. There is a place for healing through compassion; the old 'laying on of hands' still holds true."

Other Editors Saying Delays Labor Decision

(Kinston Free Press)

Federal Judge John D. Larkins Jr., has signed an order permitting the transfer of a suit to prevent removal of the Evans Manufacturing Company from Grifton to Pennsylvania to the U. S. Eastern District Court in Pennsylvania. This means a very vital decision, which is of interest and concern not only to North Carolinians but to the whole Nation, will be delayed again.

The case had been under study by the Eastern District Court at New Bern for several weeks. The issue at stake is whether a union can force a manufacturing plant to establish a union shop against the workers' will. At Grifton the employees rejected in a regular vote a proposal to organize a union local of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

When the Evans Company came from Pennsylvania to establish the operation at Grifton, the ILGWU contends a union shop was to have been established. The workers in the suit not pending have secured a temporary injunction against the Evans Company and the ILGWU to prevent a transfer of the operations back to Pennsylvania.

It is evident that Judge Larkins felt that some aspects of the case should at least be reviewed by the Pennsylvania District Court. It is an issue which North Carolinians would have welcomed a ruling on here so the matter could reach higher tribunals for review earlier. As it now stands it may be months or even years before the verdict will be clear.

The only gain from this delay is the continued operation of the Grifton plant during the interim. We trust this will not be affected by anything other than supply and demand until the whole issue can be cleared up.

Farmers To Bear Estes' Losses

By ELMER ROESSNER

A little-noticed phase of the Billie Sol Estes case is that the losses eventually will be borne, not by the finance companies he gulled, but by the West Texas farmers who pretended to buy the non-existent fertilizer tanks he mortgaged.

It is probable that a series of suits will demand that the farmers make-up the losses, and, tending that, surrender their farms to agents of the finance companies.

When that seems probable there will be a surge of indignation in West Texas and the farmers who are now glibly praising Estes as a boy who didn't do much wrong will be wrathful in demanding action against him.

HOW FARMERS PARTICIPATED

The basic Estes deal was this: He approached farmers and invited them to order tanks, signing notes to pay for them. Then he leased the tanks from the buyers, paying rental that would cover the farmers' installment and giving the farmer a premium.

These premiums were reported to be about 10 per cent of the deal. One farmer bought $100,000 worth of the nonexistent tanks and got a $10,000 bonus. Another signed up for $500,000 and got a $50,000 bonus.

Estes then took the farmers' orders to finance companies and sold their promissories. He is believed to have used the resulting cash, running into millions, for building and buying grain storage facilities, hoping that profits from government contracts would permit him to pay everybody off.

The sol set on the Estes empire when the finance companies discovered that most of the tanks did not exist.

WHO PAYS WHOM? At first blush, it seemed as if the finance companies were holding the bag. In fact, stock prices of some plummeted.

But now lawyers are thinking that the farmers may be the eventual losers. Their promissories were secured by imaginary tanks. If it can be shown that they did not have positive knowledge of the existence of those tanks, they may be per-

I saw a story on TV recently in the series "The Defenders," which, I see, won an Emmy. This had to do with a child run over by an automobile driven by a drunken girl.

The child's parents would not permit an operation or a blood transfusion and the child died. They said that it was against their religion. I know the value of blood transfusions from having had several, and I know that just as one calls in an architect to help build a house, or an electrician to put in proper wiring, so it is necessary to have a physician care for the human body, for the thousands of parts, for all the chemicals that move about in us. Without proper care, we might, particularly when one has passed the middle years, find ourselves in very grave difficulties.

Dr. Damon is not too strong for group medicine, which is becoming increasingly fashionable; to keep prices down. He says: "I can't believe it is in a patient's best interests to share her pregnancy with four doctors, perhaps grow closer to one than the rest and then suddenly have another doctor there when the baby is being born. Nor do I believe that a doctor is doing himself a service when he considers his own comfort ahead of his patient's welfare."

To have served so many women must give a man an extraordinary opportunity to discover the nature of women. I fear Damon is too scientific to generalize. He dodges the issue by saying that he is not a psychiatrist. But then, they, the head-shrinkers, only catch women on the rebound from experience.

Invest 2 Ways Today

By ROGER BABSON, BABSON PARK, Mass.—A recent weekly column of mine has created considerable criticism. My point was that both "speculating" and placing funds for safety and income can make "big money." What I stressed was the danger of attempting to mix the two forms of "investment."

WHAT IS GAMBLING? I am not referring to horse or dog racing—not to "betting" of any kind; but rather to buying into new ideas, new discoveries, and new scientific developments. In short, I would think that 80 percent of your stockholdings might be in dividend-paying issues quoted in your daily paper; and 20 percent in companies working on new scientific developments.

To make "big money" you should subscribe to such magazines as "Scientific American" or my own favorite the "Technology Review" put out by Massachusetts Institute of Technology of Cambridge, Mass. There are columns entitled "Trend of Affairs" which are especially helpful to a layman. I repeat, "big money" comes from "gambling"; and successful gambling comes from successful forecasting.

WHAT ABOUT DRUG STOCKS? The best way is to make friends of scientists and chemists and share your profit with them. They know about the wonderful new discoveries on the horizon—such as light rays—fuel cells—harnessing gravity—and bacteria. Invite such professors for lunch; beware of timid brokers and bankers who are always advising caution.

Successful drug companies are the big gamblers. Therefore you can invest in these companies and let them gamble for you! They are now all watching for a cancer cure. Some one of them will find the vaccine to prevent the "common cold"; another will discover the bacteria which will help young people mentally. What has been done for smallpox, diphtheria, and polio, can be done for almost everything else.

Just look back a few short years and see what has already been accomplished. Over two-thirds of the prescriptions which you and your neighbors take to the druggist this year will be for drugs and antibiotics that were not even in existence at the end of World War II. But what I want to "shout about" is tomorrow. The ethical drug industry last year spent over $214 million for research; that was four times larger than just 10 short years ago; and the amount spent annually by the drug companies has doubled since 1956. Tomorrow's big profit "killings" lie hidden in this mass of research!

DON'T SELECT ANY ONE DRUG COMPANY To my knowledge there are a dozen or more companies who are gambling the above large sums on research. Let me mention these: Abbott Laboratories, Lilly (Eli) Company, Pfizer (Chas.) & Co., Parke Davis & Co., Lederle (Division of American Cyanamid), E. H. Squibb (Division of Olin Mathieson), Smith, Kline & French Laboratories, Inc., Searle (G. D.) & Co., Schering Corp., Richardson-Merrell Inc., Merck & Co., Inc., and Sharpe & Dohme. It is impossible to know who

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS, GOD'S USE OF WEAKNESS AND FRAILTY

There is a famous picture entitled, "Flight into Egypt." It shows Joseph leading a little donkey upon which is seated the Virgin and the Babe. The scene is laid in the desert, with the sphinx and the pyramids constituting the background. Below the title of the picture are the two significant Latin words, "Anno Domini"—"In the Year of Our Lord."

These two Latin words signify that one sees depicted on this canvas the beginning of a new era in human history. In the year that the flight into Egypt occurred, the world's attention was centered on the grandeur of imperial Rome, and people were eagerly discussing world policies of the Roman Empire. But in God's sight, these things were as dead leaves falling from the trees in autumn. The significant thing was that a Babe had been born into the world, of a humble virgin, and from his birth human history was to re-date its events.

In 1800 the whole world was talking about Napoleon and his policies, but the birth of babes in that year—Abraham Lincoln, Charles Darwin, and Felix Mendelssohn—was to mean more to the nineteenth century than anything Napoleon thought or did.

"God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty."

has tried to stir up the American Nurses Association to demand better wages and working conditions.

"If you can make wages and working conditions competitive—if we all work at raising the economic standards of nursing—you will be able to attract additional women needed by your profession," she said.

All of us who have left our appellances on the cutting room floor know that nurses should be offered higher pay. If wages were better the abilities of the nurses might be better, too.

But if hospitals are going to compete with corporation executives for the smartest young women, then the competition Mrs. Peterson refers to will become real. As nursing pay rises, so will secretarial pay, so will production line wages.

Mrs. Peterson does not seem to understand that a rise in pay levels almost any place in the economy, whether of nurses or of executive vice presidents, affects every other pay level. No one, except a few astronauts occasionally, live in a vacuum today.

The Farm Scene

By S. C. WINCHESTER

Have you dug sweet potatoes and been disappointed because they had rotten spots and skins were brown with scurf? These diseases were on the roots of the plants when you put them in the field—you just couldn't see the symptoms. You probably bought the plants you used—non-certified plants at that—and knew nothing about them.

The way to prevent these diseases is simple—use "cut sprouts."

By cut sprouts we mean cutting the sprouts off above the ground. When watered and planted before extreme hot weather these cut sprouts live just about as well as plants that are pulled and set in the usual manner. The cut sprout method leaves the diseases, black rot and scurf, in the soil with the mother potato.

The stump of the plant you cut off from the bed will sprout out and produce new plants as quickly as if you had pulled the bed.

Another way to prevent black rot and scurf is to use certified plants. Certified plants are your assurance that certified seed were bedded and that they were brown under conditions that would cause them to be free of scurf and black rot.

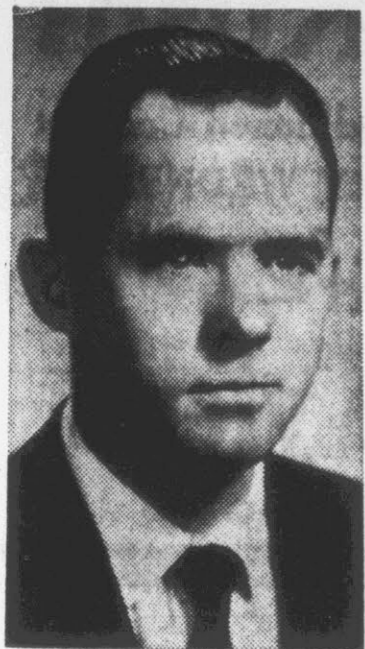

Control soil insects—wire worms, grubs, elongate flea beetles and Japanese beetle grubs—by using a good soil insecticide broadcast as a dust, spray, or granular, and disked into the soil about two weeks before planting. Broadcast two to six pounds Chloro-dane, two to three pounds heptachlor or Aldrin, or one to two pounds diethyl actual materials per acre.

Fertilize properly. In absence of a soil test a good general recommendation would be to use 350 pounds of a 6-12-6 fertilizer per acre and to side dress with 400 pounds 8-0-24 per acre. If plants at a later date show signs of plant food hunger a later application of nitrogen top dressing can be used, or use another application of 8-0-24.

Cultivate shallow and only as often as needed to control weeds and grass. Two cultivations are generally enough. "Lay-by" when vines are six to 10 inches long but before it is necessary to turn them. Push up a good wide and high bed. Later cultivation reduces yield. However, covering the tips of a few vines does not materially affect the yield.

Sweating Over Slide In Stocks

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Where will the stock market hit bottom? That question has the nation's millions of stockholders and thousands of brokers in a sweat.

The answer—which few are willing even to guess at—is vital to the economy.

The great slide has ripped an estimated $66 billion from the $393 billion aggregate worth of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange since the market hit its all-time high last November.

Repeated selling waves last week sent the market staggering to its worst loss in 30 years. The value loss for the week was $23.7 billion.

Investors unloaded stock at a terrific rate. A total of 22,988,850 shares changed hands.

Note Book

By HAZEL BAKER
Production Adjustment Clerk

By JEAN DEAL

Farmers in 1962 who request remeasurement of acreage or destroy excess acreage will again have to pay the cost. The charge, which is the same in all North Carolina counties, is as follows:

Remeasurement Charge: The charge to producers for remeasurement service will be $1 per acre with a minimum of $8 per farm. The deposit made to cover the expenses of remeasuring an initially determined or adjusted acreage shall be refunded when, because of an error in the determination of such acreage: (a) The acreage as determined is considered to be within the allotment or permitted acreage, or (b) The determination of acreage results in a change in the previously determined acreage of as much as three percent or half an acre, whichever is larger.

Disposition Charge: The minimum charge for checking the disposition of any excess acreage will be $5.00 per farm for one place, plus $1.00 for each additional place.

No per acre rate will be applicable for any commodity in charging producers for witnessing the disposition of excess acreage. For example, if a farm was in excess on tobacco only and the excess was destroyed in one place, the $5 minimum charge would cover the cost. If the excess were destroyed in two places, the cost would be $6. If the farm was in excess on tobacco and cotton and the excess destroyed in one place each, the charge would be only $6.

Any producer who is in excess of their peanut allotment and the excess is not disposed of at the time excess tobacco and cotton are disposed of there will be an extra charge of $5 minimum per farm plus $1 for each additional place. If an entire field of peanuts is to be hogged and this field is identified to the reporter at the time of the initial visit to the farm, there will be no charge to witness the disposition of the hogged peanuts. But, if the excess is not in a specified field, there will be an extra charge of $5 to revisit the farm in the fall to determine the final acreage before the harvest of peanuts.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank all farmers for their cooperation and assistance in years past in helping ASCS reporters promptly when their farm was visited during performance season. We feel sure this kind of assistance will be given again this year. We have the largest number of acres to measure this year ever measured in one season. We feel sure it will be done on time, but its going to require more effort of the reporters, farmers and office personnel. We now have 40 reporters working and will have approximately 80 by June 1st. We suggest that you get your field trimmed, squared up and be ready.

We would also like to stress the point that a producer has only seven days from date of Notice to take care of excess tobacco or he will have to market his tobacco on a red marketing card. Fifteen days apply to the Cotton and Feed Grain disposition.

Brokers said stock owners are frightened—by specific apprehensions and by shadowy anxieties.

Is another 1929—the year of the disastrous market crash—ahead? Most financial experts say no. Some say there is a possibility.

"There's absolutely no comparison," said Martin Gilbert, a partner in the big brokerage firm, Walston & Co. "1929 signalled the end of an economic boom."

"This is a psychological decline based on a political-business quarrel (sparked by the Kennedy administration's forcing of the steel industry to retreat from its price increase). It is also due to a readjustment of values placed on stocks. Business is still good."

Others see in the public's sudden suspicion of stocks the danger of contagion to the economy as a whole.

Much of the loss so far has been paper profits rolled up when the market was soaring. If the market continues to slump and wipes out hard cash, the result could be a reluctance to spend for automobiles, home appliances etc. Business would suffer, jobs would go down the drain.

How do brokers around the country assess the situation?

"I don't think it is yet dangerous but could become so if the psychological effect of the market decline would be to cause many people to curtail expenditures," said Bruce P. Dohrman, director of research for Reynolds & Co., San Francisco.

Ernest Ochs, statistician for Sutro Co., Los Angeles, advises against looking for an upturn soon.

"Business is good in the mass consumption market but has fallen off in capital goods. Unfortunately, hysteria sometimes takes place of reason and this prolongs the downturn."

F. J. Henry of Courts & Co., Atlanta, said it appears that the former over-valuation of stocks, excessive speculation, the political background and the uncertainty about earnings trends have been rather fully discounted or perhaps over-discounted by the tremendous readjustment in stock prices, (a8 ryyrbj28stock market gal 2

The decline has slashed as much as 50 per cent from the price of some stocks at their 1962 highs.

A spectacular loser has been International Business Machines—once the favorite of growth-minded investors. It has fallen from a high of $578.50 a share to $398 at the end of last week.

Locked Himself Out Of Station

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Radio announcer Sam Bishop put a 30-minute, tape-recorded religious program on the air Sunday and went next door to buy a pack of cigarettes.

Bishop found he had locked himself out. He hailed a cab and rode four miles to find another announcer and borrow his key. By the time he got back, the station had been off the air 40 minutes.

Tobacco

By S. J. WEEKS
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

Each year tobacco farmers face serious damage from hail, especially during the summer months.

It pays to keep trying after a hail storm levels tobacco crop. The ruined plant may look beyond recovery, but it is surprising what a sensible salvage program can do.

There have been cases where tobacco that was waist high when damaged by hail yielded 60 to 70 percent of a normal crop, even when all of the stalks in the field were down, and after being declared a total loss.

The extent of recovery will depend upon the date of damage, size of plant when injured, severity of damage, the weather and growing conditions following the damage, and last but by no means least, the grower's willingness and desire to grow a crop. Sufficient rainfall is highly important.

In a recovery program, there are four main steps:

(1) Clear out ruined leaves and broken-off parts of the plants. (2) Cut stalks off at six to eight inches from the ground. (3) Allow only one sucker to develop on each plant, and (4) Control weeds and grass with two light cultivations.

If these steps are followed, sucker growth tobacco of good cigarette quality can be produced. Go through the fields about seven to 10 days after the stalk cutting and remove all but the strongest and best looking suckers on each plant.

The percentage of the crop that can be saved from a cut-off crop varies with the length of time the tobacco has been planted. The recovery program is most effective if hail damage comes within six weeks of the time plants are set in the field. If hail comes after six weeks, the plants have less time to recover and ripen, but the grower may be able to pay for production costs by salvaging as late as six to eight weeks after planting.

If hail damage is only 40 to 50 percent, it is probably best not to cut the stalks at all. Broken leaves should be picked off and debris cleared away. Let the tobacco come into full flower and top very high.

These steps of a recovery program are fairly simple, and may enable the grower to realize substantial profits which would otherwise be lost. With the heaviest hail months just ahead, the grower could well benefit by keeping these recommendations in reserve against total loss.

Laotian Prince Goes Visiting Despite Rising Red Pressures

VIENTIANE (AP) — Pro-Western Prince Boun Oum left today on a three-day goodwill visit to the Philippines despite a major new rebel army thrust threatening government-held Houei Sai near the Thailand border.

The dominant member of Boun Oum's Cabinet, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, accompanied the prince. He dismissed the new rebel attack as of little importance.

The government leader left Laos in spite of a June 15 deadline set by neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma for agreement on a coalition government in Laos. he was "surprised by this push."

The United States and the Soviet Union back Souvanna's bid to form a government including Communists, neutralists and Boun Oum's rightists. Previous attempts at forming a coalition have repeatedly deadlocked.

American military sources said today several companies of rebel soldiers, believed to include North Vietnamese troops, are continuing their push against Houei Sai. However, there was no late news from the fighting area.

The sources said a government defensive outpost about 10 miles from the border town was overrun Sunday afternoon when the rebel drive began, breaking the since government troops were routed from northwest Laos.

Houei Sai was abandoned by government forces May 11 in the face of a rebel drive. However, the town was not occupied by the pro-Communist and neutralist forces. Government troops reoccupied the town.

Before leaving for the Philippines, Gen. Phoumi told reporters en these odds.

Wake up! The whole thought arouses me emotionally. We know what has happened during the past 50 years; well, I believe an equal number of wonderful things will happen during the next fifty. A handful of earth may save your life and it may come from Russia, China, or India.

A Very Lucky Hitter -- Gentile

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Sports Writer Baltimore's big Jim Gentile is a lousy hitter. So says Jim Gentile.

American league pitcher have an entirely different version of the story. The figures seem to support the pitchers. To wit: a .309 batting average (36 runs batted in second in the league) and a league-leading total of 15 home runs.

The 6-foot-4, 210-pound Gentile is unimpressed. "I'm a lousy hitter," he said. "But I have to admit I'm a lucky one." Lousy or lucky, the results are impressive. Take his last six games: 11 hits in 25 times at bat, six home runs and 11 runs batted in. Or take Sunday's game. He had three hits, including an 11th-inning homer, in the Orioles' 4-2 triumph over Boston.

Cleveland took sole possession of first place with a 5-3 triumph over Washington while New York split a pair with Detroit. The Yanks won the first 4-1, lost the second 5-1. Minnesota pulled to within a half-game of the top with a sweep over Chicago, 5-4 and 8-6. Los Angeles and Kansas City split, the A's taking the first 3-2, the Angels the second 6-3.

In the National League, San Francisco beat the New York Mets twice, 7-1 and 6-5; Los Angeles' Dodgers kept pace with two victories over Philadelphia 5-2 and 2-1; Cincinnati climbed into third with a 10-0 rout of Chicago; Milwaukee outlasted St. Louis 4-3 and Pittsburgh beat Houston 7-2.

Gentile, one of the league's most feared hitters, insists that his hitting prob' ms are very, very real. "Sometimes I get lucky," said the big basher, whose luck brought him 46 home runs, 141 runs batted in and a .302 average last season.

"I'm still not swinging the way I want to swing. I'm still making mistakes. I still have trouble about going for bad balls.

"I just hope to struggle through the rest of the season doing as well as I am now."

Russ Snyder broke the 2-2 tie at Boston with an 11th-inning homer, just one out before Gentile struggled to the plate and "got lucky" with his 15th homer. Brooks Robinson had an earlier home run for the Orioles.

Home runs by Tito Francona and Willie Kirkland staked Cleveland to a 5-1 lead in the fifth inning and the Indians took it from there in beating Washington and grabbing sole control of the top spot.

The Yankees fell a half-game off the pace when Detroit's Paul Foytack (3-1) stopped them on six hits in the nightcap. Foytack struck out eight and stranded 11 Yankee runners. A three-run eighth inning, featuring Chico Fernandez' two-run single put it out of reach. The Yanks won the first on Bill Skowron's three-run homer in the ninth.

Minnesota pulled to within a half game of Cleveland and 9 percentage points of New York with its sweep, but lost the services of catcher Earl Battey, who suffered a split finger. Rookie George Banks' two-run homer, his first in the majors, was the difference in the opener.

Harmon Killebrew hammered a three-run homer, his 11th, to highlight a four-run seventh inning won the nightcap for the Angels and gave them a split with Kansas City.

The A's spotted Los Angeles a 2-0 lead in the first, but came back to take it. A run-producing seventh inning singled by Joe Azcue climaxed the comeback behind the six-hit pitching of Dave Wickersham (5-1).

Villanova Team Is Best In East

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP)—Villanova's track and field team proved over the past weekend what everyone knew. It's the class of the East. But how about the nation?

Coach Jim (Jumbo) Elliott shook his head negatively when asked if his powerful forces could win the NCAA title at Eugene, Ore., June 15-16. Villanova, as expected, easily won the 86th annual IC4A championship on its home grounds Friday and Saturday.

But Elliott said he couldn't see how his lads could top Oregon's fine team next month. He even hedged on the chances of his sensational sprinter, Frank Budd, winning the 100 and 220 in the nationals.

Budd, the senior from Asbury Park, N.J., scored a double for the second straight year. He captured the 100 in 9.6, and the 220 in 20.6, each time beating his teammate Paul Drayton.

But the runner often referred to as the fastest human in the world had to share the spotlight with his teammates in Villanova's 49 1/2 to 25 1/2 edge over Yale.

Leon Pras won 120-hurdles in 14.2, Pat Traynor the 3,000 meter steeplechase in record time of 9:19.1, Doug Kerr the javelin with a throw of 224-10 1/2, and Rolando Cruz tied for the pole vault title at 15-6. Bill Joe finished second in the shot put to Gary Gubner of NYU, who broke the meet record with a toss of 61-1 1/2.

Robin Roberts Is Oriole Starter

BOSTON (AP)—Crafty veteran Robin Roberts—whose major league career appeared finished when he was cut adrift by the New York Yankees—was back in business today as a Baltimore starter.

The 35-year-old right-hander worked 7 2/3 innings Sunday in the Orioles' 4-2, 11-inning victory over the Boston Red Sox. He was not involved in the decision, but Manager Billy Hitchcock was impressed.

"In our setup, I feel we need five starters," Hitchcock said. "I think Roberts showed enough to put him in the regular rotation. I was very pleased with his showing."

The Orioles picked Roberts up last Monday as a free agent after he had spent three weeks shopping around after the Yankees decided he couldn't make the team.

He allowed eight hits and two runs Sunday in his first American League start and left nine Red Sox runners stranded.

Texaco And Elks Pick Up Wins In Little League

NORTH STATE

The Texaco little leaguers won their first contest of the season Saturday as they defeated Coca Cola by a score of 16-2. Bobby Hardy was the winning pitcher while Bill Rivers was credited with the loss.

Coca Cola opened the scoring in the top of the first inning as they tallied one run on three hits. Dick Clark started the ball game by hitting the first pitch into centerfield for a single. With one out, Ralph Vincent connected for a single to send Clark to third. William Moyer followed with a double to score Clark and produce Coca Cola's only run of the inning.

In the bottom of the first, Texaco came to bat to take complete control of the contest. Texaco scored five runs on three hits, three walks, and three errors. Bobby Hardy, Scott Hardy, Joe West, Henry Kidd, and Tom Jamieson all scored to give Texaco a 5-1 advantage. Bobby Hardy and Leon Peardon collected doubles in the inning to provide Texaco with hitting power.

Texaco returned in the second, third, and fourth frames to score two, three, and six runs respectively in each inning. Coca Cola was able to tally only one more run and it was in the top of the fifth frame.

Bobby Hardy, the winning pitcher, struck out nine, walked one, and allowed two runs on eight hits. The losing pitcher, Bill Rivers, struck out three, walked eleven, and allowed sixteen runs on ten hits.

In today's games, Coca Cola meets the Lions in Guy Smith Park at 4:30 while Security Life plays Pepsi Cola at Elm Street Park.

Ballplayer Cepeda Has Boxer's Qualifications

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Maybe Orlando Cepeda should try boxing.

Few things are rarer than an actual solid punch in the usual wrestling match-baseball brawl. But the fiery Giants' first baseman threw away the script in a battle royal with the New York Mets Sunday and landed a series of blows on Roger Craig that scored Cepeda points on nearly every observer's card.

"Sure I was mad at him; he never threw at me before," Cepeda darkly explained after 39,551 fans saw the wildest major league diamond battle ever staged here.

"I never try to hit any batter," countered Craig, who didn't even suit up after the tumultuous first game of a doubleheader and could not be found after the second game. "Those were brush back pitches."

Craig had floored Willie Mays twice in the first inning of the twin bill, but real trouble didn't ignite until the seventh round.

With Mays aboard on a single, Craig thumped Cepeda with a pitch in the back.

Cepeda circled past the mound on his way to first, reached the bag, then made a rush for the pitcher. Giants Manager Alvin Dark showed his Louisiana State football prowess with a sparkling tackle of Cepeda and trouble was temporarily avoided.

Craig then tried to pick Mays off second. Willie slid into Elio Chacon, spiked him in the lower left calf and Elio promptly socked him in the back.

"He wanted to get somebody," Chacos muttered later. "He gave me a spike so I hit him." Mays promptly dumped the 163-pound shortstop over his shoulder, fell on him and they began a painless wrestling match.

Dugouts and benches emptied. When Cepeda saw Craig start toward the struggling pair, he rushed toward the pitcher and punned him with a series of lefts and rights.

Peace-makers finally shoved the Giants' 200-pound Puerto Rican into right field. Felix Mantilla of the Mets led a brigade which broke up the Mays-Chacon struggle and order was restored after six minutes.

Palmer Absent, Casper Wins

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—When the king of golf is away, the gang will play—and profitably, too.

In the absence of Arnold Palmer, priming for the U.S. Open, Billy Casper, Sunday won the $50,000 "500" Festival Open with a record-smashing 264 total, 20 strokes under par.

Along with Casper, runner-up to Palmer in this year's PCA money-winning list, no fewer than five other golfers shattered the Speedway tourney record of 270 set by Doug Ford in 1960.

Ford, seeking a third straight Speedway title, didn't do so well. His 277 put him in a six-way tie for 29th and earned him only $291.

The hot-shooting Casper's $9,000 take swelled his 1962 purse to $41,208.

PREPARING TO ROLL AT "WORLD 600"—Cars of David Pearson (No. 3) and Fireball Roberts (22) are shown seconds before the starter's flag dropped Sunday. Roberts chalked up the fastest qualifying time but was plagued by engine trouble. Pearson led most of the way but his engine too sputtered in the final stages. Stacy Wins Charlotte World 600 In Makeshift Replacement Entry

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Grandfather Nelson Stacy, driving a racer that was put together in nine hours as a replacement for his regular car, won the World 600-mile stock car race here Sunday going away.

Stacy, 40-year-old World War II tank driver for Gen. Patton's 3rd Army in Africa, took home $28,500 plus lap money from the $110,000 in posted prize money. An estimated 50,000 saw the race.

He toured the 1½ mile highbanked Charlotte Motor Speedway at a record average of 125.599 miles per hour despite 18 laps driven under the caution flag.

Stacy's regular 1962 Ford, in which he won the $55,000 Rebel 300 at Darlington, S. C., two weeks ago, was declared ineligible because of a technicality last Wednesday. So was the car of teammate Fred Lorenzen of Elmhurst, Ill.

Car owners John Holman and Ralph Moody of Charlotte put together two new cars — using a "bunch of junk," as Moody put it — and Stacy and Lorenzen qualified them Thursday.

Lorenzen drove his to third place, half a lap behind Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Va., driving a 1962 Pontiac. Weatherly picked up second money of $10,480. Lorenzen $6,780. Thus, the Holman-Moody team won about $35,000, not including money posted by manufacturers.

Richard Petty of Randleman placed fourth in a 1962 Plymouth and won $4,750; Larry Frank, Greenville, S. C., was fifth and won $3,340.

The other 10 top finishers included Ned Jarrett of Conover, the 1961 NASCAR champion; David Pearson, Spartanburg, S. C., the defending World 600 champ; Marvin Panch, Daytona Beach, Fla.; Glen (Fireball) Roberts of Daytona Beach, and Bunkie Blackburn of Fayetteville.

Roberts, who started on the pole after a record 140.150 m.p.h. qualifying speed, had trouble with his 1962 Pontiac all day and led only briefly, never after the midway point.

Stacy, whose other major recent win was the 1961 Labor Day 500 at Darlington, grabbed the lead with seven laps to go after Pearson, who had led from the 27th lap, encountered engine trouble.

From then on, Stacy poured on the steam and was clocked in the final laps at better than 137 m.p.h. while his pit crew frantically sig-

First Workouts Given Indianapolis Entries

By DALE BURGESS Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The 33 starters in Wednesday's 500-mile auto race were allowed their first workout in eight days at the Speedway today and 32 of them were watching 1961 winner A. J. Foyt Jr. out of the corner of their eyes.

The husky Texan, U.S. Auto Club national champion the last two years, had been overshadowed in the qualifications by Parnelli Jones, defending national sprint car champ, who turned the old race track's first 150-mile-an-hour lap in the qualifications.

Then Foyt went out and beat Parnelli at his specialty Sunday on new Indianapolis Raceway Park's ¾-mile track, six miles west of the Speedway.

The field was full of 500 drivers but the 50-lap event was strictly a two-car race between Foyt and Jones, who had set a new qualifying record for the track, led 37 laps. Then Foyt squeezed past on a turn and won decisively in record time.

Elmer George, son-in-law of Speedway owner Tony Hulman, won a see-saw battle for third place from Bob Mathouser, and nalled him to slow down. Pearson, who had the outside pole position, apparently had the race won until his engine began sputtering on lap 373. Reeling off lap after lap at 137-138 m.p.h., Pearson suddenly lost power and limped home in seventh place.

"I was thinking about the money with 20 laps to go," said the 28-year-old Pearson, whose first major win as a stock car race driver was the 1961 World 600. "Then suddenly something happened to the engine and I'm finished."

Stacy said he almost didn't start the race. "I've always driven yellow cars, and this one was red. We didn't have time to repaint it. I started to go home."

He said he had driven his car "less than a tankful" before the race.

A five-car smashup on the second turn was the only serious accident of the hot, humid day. No one was injured in that mixup.

Winston-Salem Mauls Raleigh

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winston-Salem, pulling out of a slump, mauls Raleigh, 15-8, Sunday to maintain a tight race with Durham for the Carolina League lead.

The Bulls, half a game in the lead, showed fine form in a 2-1 victory over Kinston. Durham trailed until the eighth, when two scores assured the win.

The two other games went to extra innings. Rocky Mount edged Greensboro, 3-2, in 13 frames. Wilson got a 5-4 decision over Burlington in 10 innings.

Raleigh got 14 hits, including three home runs, off Winston-Salem pitcher Bobby Marr, but he notched the win just the same. His Red Sox mates picked two Raleigh hurlers for 19 hits, including three home runs, one of them a bases-loaded blow by Joe DeCandillo in a seven-run first inning.

Durham now has beaten Kinston five times this season. They meet again tonight.

Four straight hits after two were out in the 10th brought victory for Wilson, after the regulation game ended, 2-2.

Greensboro got a pair of runs in the ninth, to tie Rocky Mount, 2-2. Then in the 13th inning, Ron Pfender singled home Cesar Tovar to give Rocky Mount the win.

The games tonight: Raleigh at Winston-Salem, Greensboro at Rocky Mount, Burlington at Wilson, Kinston at Durham.

Clearing 16 Ft. In Pole Vault, Isn't All Glass

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — Clearing 16 feet in the pole vault isn't the cinch many thought it would be with the advent of the fiber glass pole.

John Uelses became the first man to clear the height this year when he cleared 16½ and then Dave Tork beat that showing with a 16-2 effort.

Yet in three head and head meetings the past three weekends, only Uelses has gone over 16 and now he's out of action an indefinite time with a sprained left ankle.

The vaulter, who cleared 15-6 on his first effort, suffered the injury trying for 16 in the California Relays here. He landed on the pole, the ankle collapsing under him. X-rays showed no fracture.

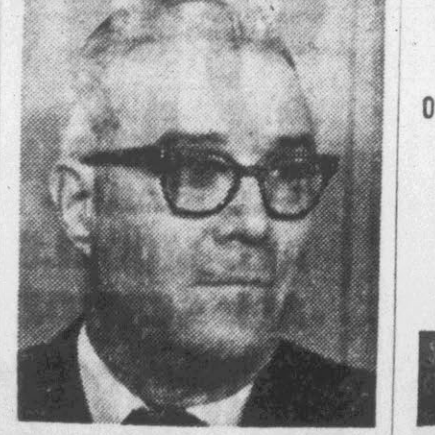

Uelses won the event since he cleared 15-6 on his first try while Ron Morris went over on his second effort and Tork needed three tries.

Boxer Injured In Training Session

HENDERSON, Nev. (AP) — A young middleweight boxer is in critical condition after collapsing during training.

Doctors said Freddie Perkins, 23, of Henderson, was still in a coma but that brain hemorrhaging had stopped.

Perkins collapsed Saturday while training for a 12-round Nevada State middleweight title fight. He was to have met champion Roxell Mosley of Las Vegas Tuesday.

Ancient Archie Takes On Pastrano In Los Angeles Sports Arena Bout

By MURRAY ROSE Associated Press Sports Writer

It's farewell to old St. Nicks and hello again to ancient Archie Moore tonight.

Welterweights Stefan Redl of Paterson, N.J., and Tony Fortuna of New York are featured in the final boxing card at New York's St. Nicholas Arena tonight. The 56-year-old boxing club, the nation's oldest fight pit, will be torn down to make way for a skyscraper.

Old Archie, 48 by the record book and perhaps as old as St. Nicks, takes on 26-year-old Willie Pastrano at the Los Angeles Sports Arena tonight.

If Willie the pastrami is geared to go his fastest, he's liable to have the San Diego veteran showing his years by the end of the 10-rounder. The Florida light-heavy, a pro 11 years despite his comparative youth, is one of the shiftiest fighters in the business. Willie is so hard to hit squarely he never has been floored in his long career.

No matter who wins, Archie most likely will need a long rest afterwards. Still the ancient one, recognized by California as world light heavyweight king, has to be the favorite on his seven-fight victory streak and his ability to cope with all styles.

Another good match on the Monday night card matches Eddie Machen, the No. 2 heavyweight contender from Portland, Ore., and Roger Rischer of Oakland, Calif., at San Francisco's Civic Auditorium.

Thailand's Pone Kingpetch, defends his world flyweight title against Japan's Kyo Noguchi, a left-hander, in Tokyo Wednesday night. This is Pone's third title defense and his second in Tokyo. A year ago he outpointed Japan's Mitsunori Seki.

Welterweights Stan Harrington of Honolulu and Charley Scott of Philadelphia meet in the television (ABC-TV 9 p.m., EST) 10-rounder at New York's Madison Square Garden Saturday night. Harrington, subbing for Argentina's Jorge Fernandez, has won five straight. This is his second New York appearance. In his debut he lost a 10-rounder the Mexican Gaspar Ortega.

Teddy Wright's well-earned victory over sub Phil Moyer of Portland, Ore., at Madison Square Garden Saturday night earned the Detroit a July television fight in the Garden with Fernandez, Wright, 153½, swept the first three rounds and went on to a unanimous decision over his 159¼ opponent. Moyer subbed for his brother Denny who pulled out because of an infected left ear.

THE DARK RIDER

A Racing Novel of Suspense by GERALDINE THAYER

CHAPTER 7

There was in the city of Louisville, Kentucky an air of polite, subdued excitement that would soon cease to be polite.

The hotels were already filling up, nearly every room had been reserved weeks before. Many of the traditional dances and balls had already been held, but the larger and more lavish ones were yet to take place.

The Derby brought a huge influx of visitors to the city, and each year they seemed to come in greater numbers.

As Julie Pendleton drove the station wagon through the crowded streets she saw a number of people she knew, but she made no attempt to stop. She was most anxious to tell her father exactly what had happened. He might not know the answers, but at least it would be comforting to tell him.

She parked outside the gate at the airport to wait until the mid-afternoon plane came in. Her father had sent a wire as he boarded it and she hadn't had much time to get here. That suited her because she also had little time in which to think and worry.

The big blue and white jet job roared in, taxied to the unloading space and she saw her father come down the steps. She always liked to watch him move, for she was inordinately proud of him. He was one of the foremost experts in horse racing and breeding and he carried himself with full confidence. He was slender and tall with thinning white hair and a face molded to look pleasant. He affected casual dress mostly, with a penchant for lightweight tweeds that usually got very baggy around the knees and elbows, as the sun was now. He saw her and his face broke into a smile and he waved.

She ran to meet him. She kissed him, then hung affectionately on his arm as they walked to the station wagon.

He settled himself in the seat. "Now, tell me about it. Right?"

"It seems so fantastic today," she said, "but it wasn't a fantasy last night. I can assure you."

After she had begun to tell her father of the events of the night before, he said, "And it looked like Boundbrook?"

"Yes. Just like Boundbrook. The same white face. The identical markings, but there was more than that. You know Boundbrook's old stride; the way he held his neck when he ran. This one ran exactly the same way."

"And someone was up?"

"Yes. I couldn't see who it was. The rider must have seen the car or seen me. He wheeled the horse and ran him off into the darkness. He was just swallowed up. As if he'd never existed, but he did. All of it happened. Dad."

"Get on with it," he said. "There must be an answer and maybe when I hear it all, I'll be able to make a guess."

"Well, I ran back to the car. I had the daylight scared out of me by then. I drove back to the garage. Britt had gone, but Casey Jeffries was there. I didn't tell him what happened. Not then, but he must have seen by my expression that I'd been frightened. He followed me home and I told him about what I'd seen."

"I take it the young man believed you."

"Yes. That is, I think he did. At any rate, he suggested we hunt Boundbrook and we did. We searched the pasture land and found him. He was sweaty. He'd been running hard—but Dad, he simply couldn't have run as fast as that horse I saw. It's absolutely impossible and I did not imagine the speed of the horse I watched."

"Go on, Julie. Get to the episode of Big Blue."

"That's what really frightened me. The other—I could have convinced myself it was just a whim of my imagination. But after Casey left, I heard the horses moving restlessly in the stable. I got your gun and went out to check. I looked in on Big Blue. He was acting very nervous. Up against the front of his stall someone had thrown a crude dummy, made of old clothing."

"And you went into the stall?"

"I was afraid he might hurt himself. I thought I had a good chance to get by him if I moved quickly enough. But after I was inside the stall, someone closed the door." She glanced at her father with a worried look.

"Who in the world would want you hurt?" he asked.

"The only answer I came up with is that I saw that horse and I wasn't supposed to and someone thought I might be less of a nuisance if I was hurt badly enough."

"Then that someone knew Big Blue—his tendency to squeeze and his general bad disposition." Julie started the car and backed it away from the gate. "Some-

Many Cases Heard In Superior Court

Pitt County Superior Court, Wednesday and Thursday disposed of the following cases:

Booker T. Payton, 36-year-old Grifton Negro, was given two two-year concurrent prison sentences after he pleaded guilty to multiple motor vehicle law violations and an assault charge.

Payton was charged with careless and reckless driving, no operator's license, speeding (90 m.p.h.) and failure to stop for a siren and red light. Judge Joseph W. Parker handed Payton a two-year road term for the speeding count and a second similar sentence for the assault charge. Judgement on other charges was suspended.

A Vanceboro Negro, Curtis Earl Harris, was sentenced to two terms of 7-10 years in prison after pleading guilty to one charge of auto larceny and not guilty to another that brought a jury verdict of guilty.

Judge Parker ordered the second term suspended for five years at the termination of the first sentence upon the condition that Harris violate no law for five years.

Walter Columbus Wells, 38-year-old Negro, 1216 Davenport St., Greenville, pleaded no contest to charges of felonious assault resulting in serious wounds. At the close of presentation of State's evidence, Judge Parker directed a verdict of not guilty.

Charles Ray Taylor, 22, of Route 1, Chocowinity, was given two concurrent six-month prison sentences suspended upon payment of costs after he pleaded guilty to charges of debauchery and false registration. Taylor pleaded guilty after Judge Parker denied a motion to quash the false registration charge.

Jesse James Hooks Jr., 36-year-old Winterville Negro, was convicted of drunken driving and speeding charges after he pleaded not guilty. Judge Parker continued judgement in the case upon Hooks' payment of a $100 fine and court costs.

The judge handed S. T. Atkinson, 39-year-old Negro, 313 Factory St., Greenville, a 60-day work sentence at the Pitt County Home after Atkinson pleaded guilty to charges of possession of non-tax-paid whiskey and possession of the illegal liquor for sale.

Rosecoe Aboustner Burkett, 48, Route 2, Box 707, Kinston, was convicted by jury on drunken driving charges. Judge Parker suspended his 90-day road sentence upon payment of a $100 fine and court costs.

James Harold Riggs, 18, Route 3, Box 231, Greenville, pleaded guilty to hit-and-run charges in which property damage only was involved and Judge Parker continued judgement in the case upon payment of costs.

A Kinston man, Edward Abbott Phillips, 34, 1008 Mt. Vernon Park, pleaded guilty of speeding charges and was taxed with costs.

Judge Parker directed verdicts of not guilty at the close of State's evidence presentation for Gordon Lee Temples, 46, of Zebulon and Alfonso Ross, 25, of Route 2, Ayden.

Both men had pleaded not guilty. Temples had been charged with falling to stop for a siren; Ross had faced drunken driving charges.

Sam Otis Worthington Jr., 26, 301 E. Eighth St., Greenville, pleaded guilty to speeding charges and was taxed with court costs. An action for assault and public drunkenness against 26-year-old Robersonville Negro Johnnie Jenkins was not pressed with leave.

Conflict Caused Cancellation

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Broadcasting Co. says the cancellation of a program on which an American Medical Association spokesman was to appear Sunday night resulted from a conflict with astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter's news conference.

The network said the AMA spokesman, Dr. Neal Annis of Miami, would appear at a later date on the pre-empted television program, "Meet the Press."

Annis was to have been interviewed about President Kennedy's plan for medical care for the aged under Social Security. The AMA opposes the plan.

Pays Homage To American Dead

WAREGEM, Belgium (AP)—U.S. Ambassador Douglas MacArthur II stood in Flanders Field Sunday and paid homage to the American dead of two world wars.

Speaking at a ceremony at the Waregem U.S. Military Cemetery, he said: "When there are forces abroad that would impose an atheistic and monolithic authoritarian system on the entire world let us keep in mind the lesson of the sacrifice of those who rest here quietly among friends in this green and beautiful corner of Flanders Field."

Belgian troops formed a guard of honor and fired a three-shot volley.

Follow-Up Shots Of Tetanus Toxoid Urged

Persons who have not completed their tetanus toxoid immunization have been urged by Pitt County Medical and Dental Society president, Dr. Charles Adams, to obtain the second shot now.

It has been estimated by the medical society that some 1,500 persons need the second injection at this time. Those who received the first of two toxoid shots at the April 4 or April 25 county-wide tetanus clinics are included in this estimation.

Citizens should go to their physicians of their choice. The health department provides immunization for medically indigent patients.

Members of the medical society have sent out reminders to persons whose tetanus "stubs" they have, that now is the time to complete their immunization.

Those receiving "booster" tetanus immunization at the county-wide clinics don't need further immunization at this time.

In a study of the tetanus project, the medical society has expressed the belief that at least 50 per cent of Pitt County's population has been completely immunized. Out of the 70,000 residents here, the pre-school age group of about 8,000 have adequate protection and some 20,000 school children are virtually up to date on tetanus immunization. In addition, the Pitt County Health Department gave 2,000 adults receiving surplus food, shots. Some 10,000 persons who received booster shots at the county-wide inoculations also are up to date.

The Pitt County Medical and Dental Society gave Dr. Tom Patterson of Farmville, chairman of the tetanus project, a rising vote of thanks for his work. The group also recognized the committee working with him: Dr. Earl Trevathan, Dr. Howard Gradis, Dr. John Futrell, Dr. D. L. Moore, Dr. John Newborn, Dr. Connel Garrenton.

Art Award For Edw. Lancaster $4.00

Edward E. Lancaster of Vanceboro, graduate of East Carolina College in May, 1961, won the Graduate Art Award in painting at the annual exhibition staged by the University of Oklahoma, according to information just received by the Department of Art here. The award was a cash prize given in recognition of outstanding work.

Mr. Lancaster has studied during 1961-1962 on a scholarship awarded by the University of Oklahoma and is now completing requirements for the degree of master of fine arts.

In February he was among students chosen as exhibitors in the "Focus on the Fine Arts" show staged at the university during its 1962 Fine Arts Festival.

An art major at East Carolina, Mr. Lancaster gave a one-man show at the college in April, 1961. Last February, as one of East Carolina's traveling art exhibitions, paintings and drawings by him were hung in the Peoples Bank of Rocky Mount.

While attending East Carolina, he was an outstanding participant in student activities and was among a small group of students chosen to represent the college in the 1961 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

He is the son of Mrs. Earle Lancaster of Vanceboro.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — American Telephone and other blue chips were battered downward in heavy selling early this afternoon as the stock market took another dive. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 3.60 at 221.00 with industrials down 5.00, rails down 1.00 and utilities down 2.70. Losses of fractions to 3 or 4 points were the general rule among most key stocks.

The market was irregularly lower at the opening, then widened its losses swiftly as selling snowballed amid a continued atmosphere of discouragement. Utilities continued their sharp downturn of last week. Steels, motors, rubbers, oils, chemicals and nonferrous metals fell back.

Tobaccos were clobbered. A published article over the weekend discussed possible action by the Federal Trade Commission to ward labeling cigarettes with respect to health hazards. The ticker tape ran 35 minutes late as the session entered the afternoon, exceeding the 29-year record of 34 minutes set May 14. AT&T sank more than 3 points at worst after a delayed opening. AT&T was affected like other utilities by published comment that the Federal Power Commission is planning a crackdown on utilities.

Among other utilities, Houston Light & Power and Consolidated Natural Gas fell 4 points or so. IBM tumbled 1 1/2 to a new yearly low of 384 before recovering 4 points or so. Liggett & Myers showed a loss of more than 3 points while Lorillard and Reynolds Tobacco cut similar losses to under 3 points. American Tobacco was off more than 2.

General Motors held its loss to a fraction. Ford dropped a point or more. Most losses of the steels were held within a point. Du Pont, Union Carbide, Pfizer and Schering lost more than 2 apiece.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was down 9.86 at 602.02. Prices declined in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange. Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds showed scant change.

Graduates Hear Rev. L.A. Miller

"The sense of destiny comes early to one who accepts the challenge of meditation and inspiration," the Rev. Lawrence A. Miller, pastor of York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church, told graduating seniors of C. M. Eppes High School during the baccalaureate sermon last night.

The services were held at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. Principal W. H. Davenport introduced the guest speaker.

Topic for the sermon was "Sense of Destiny." The Rev. Mr. Miller said that the sense of destiny completely engrosses one, but only when one has accepted with himself "an aim, a purpose, and then a goal." One must stop and chart his way through, he advised plan carefully and then take inventory.

If one does not do this, he does not have a goal, the Rev. Mr. Miller said, for there is no where to reach.

Making a third point, the minister said "There must be thorough preparation, and in order for one to be prepared, he must not fall by the wayside but continue with the struggles of life." He continued, "In order to keep with the struggles of life, one must seek after truth, just as Jesus did when he said, 'I am the Way and the Truth and the Life.'"

Two Weekend Wrecks In Pitt

The car, a total loss, ran into a ditch when the operator apparently fell asleep, Trooper Winslow reported. Spain was charged with reckless driving. In the second mishap, an estimated $100 damage was done to each of two vehicles which collided at Ballards Cross Roads about 7:25 p.m. Sunday.

Drivers involved were identified as Robert Alton McLawhorn, 59, of Route 1, Greenville, and Donald Ray Warren, 17, of Route 3, Greenville. Warren was charged with failure to yield the right of way in the collision. Pit. Winslow was the investigating officer.

Students Are Told Of Pressures In Living

The Rev. Irby Jackson, delivering the Rose High School baccalaureate sermon on "The Pressure Is On," told graduating seniors they will "always be facing certain pressures in life."

He asked seniors how they will react to the pressures, which he grouped in four categories: attitude of conformity, attitude of capitulation before the pressures of life; challenge to conquest amid pressures of life; and choice as connected with the pressures.

The Rev. Mr. Jackson explained that he meant by the attitude of conformity that people are prone to conform to the standards and mores around them, instead of exercising individuality.

The five-day weather forecast is for temperatures slightly above normal and about a half-inch of rainfall occurring during the first part of the week.

Today's temperatures have ranged from 60 at 4 a.m. to 68 at 8 a.m., Hill said. The Tar River level has remained low at 3.1 feet.
