A Lot Of Smoke Brought Out Firemen

LOTS OF SMOKE . . . came billowing from the Furniture Exchange, located on Dickinson Ave. last night as firemen extinguished a blaze in the firm's mattress and springs sterilizing room. Fire officers said three mattresses were burned and smoke damage done to the remainder of the store from the blaze, confined to the small enclosed area. Box 123 at the intersection of Dickinson and Grande Aves. was sounded for the fire. (Reflector Photo by Stuart Savage)

OAS, Moslem Leaders Are Establishing Contact

ALGIERS (AP)—Official French sources reported today that the terrorist European Secret Army Organization and the Moslem Front of National Liberation definitely have made contact on the future of Algeria. The French sources said word of "feelers" contacts was received in a message addressed to French officials in Algiers in connection with the mysterious secret army truce, now in its third day. "The message was official," the informants said. "Contacts have been established. They are preliminary and on a low level but they exist. . . . Some sources said the secret army called the truce, only occasionally broken, to impress on the Moslems that peace in Algeria depends on the terrorist organiza-

Eisenhower Rushes To Defense Of Former Cabinet Member In Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower says he is ready to be crucified if George M. Humphrey, his secretary of the Treasury, ever did a crooked thing. Eisenhower came to Humphrey's defense Friday after Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., had said his Senate armed services subcommittee would try to find out if companies headed by Humphrey had made exorbitant profits on stockpiled nickel. Government contracts with the companies were negotiated during the Truman administration and were signed in January 1953, shortly before Humphrey joined the Eisenhower Cabinet. Eisenhower was asked for comment by newsmen after holding a Republican strategy session with eight of his former Cabinet members. Humphrey included, and with congressional leaders. "If Secretary Humphrey ever did a dishonest thing, then I am ready to mount on the cross, and you can put the nails in and the spear," Eisenhower said heatedly. "He never did a crooked thing." The former president also defended his tending of the government's stockpile of critical material and said operations were carried on under laws "enacted long before I got there." There was no immediate comment from Humphrey. Symington said his subcommittee expects to be ready for public hearings on the nickel contracts by the end of the month. The companies' records have been subpoenaed, and Chief Counsel R. C. Coburn said the former secretary may be called as a witness. The companies concerned are the M. A. Hanna Co. of Cleveland, which Humphrey heads, and two subsidiaries, the Hanna Mining Co. and the Hanna Nickel Smelting Co. In other developments Friday: 1. The Office of Emergency Planning, which carries on stockpiling operations, fired John D. Morgan Jr. as a consultant and asked the Justice Department to look into what it termed an apparent conflict of interest violation brought out in the investigation. This referred to testimony that

Health Risks Due Nuclear Fallout Slightly Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fallout from nuclear testing has slightly increased the health risks faced by Americans, the Federal Radiation Council says. Birth defects in future generations are likely because of radiation released by test detonations, the council said in a report made public Friday. And, for persons now alive, the report said, fallout may mean an increased danger of leukemia or bone cancer. But it added: "Compared to the number of these same adverse biological effects occurring wholly apart from testing, the additional cases that might be caused by testing are a very small quantity. "We expect there will be some genetic effects; other effects such as leukemia and cancer are more speculative and may not occur at all." If fallout causes additional cases of leukemia, the council said, the individual American stands at the most a chance of 1 in 100,000 of developing the disease because of it. And if some cases of bone cancer can be blamed on fallout, his maximum risk is estimated as 1 in 300,000. As for hereditary damage, the maximum risk for an infant born to Americans now alive is one in a million, the council said. Data on which the report is based were turned over to President Kennedy before he gave the signal for a U.S. atmospheric test series now under way in the Pacific. The report does not cover fallout produced by these tests. Its estimates are based only on fallout released through the end of 1961. By genetic damage, the council said, it meant congenital malformations, blindness, deafness, muscular dystrophy, and mental diseases. "In addition to the gross defects, the council said, "there may be an unknown but probably a considerably larger number of mutations with less obvious effects such as minor physical abnormalities, mild disease, impairment of physiological functions and reduced resistance to infection or other stresses of life. "Part of this damage will re-

Bert Bennett Re-Elected As Demo Chairman

RALEIGH (AP)—State Democratic Chairman Bert Bennett Jr. re-elected Friday to a two-year term, has predicted victory for the Democratic party in the battles with Republicans next November. Bennett told an organizational meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee on Friday he "has no doubts" of party victory. He and Mrs. J. Henry Cromatic of Charlotte, vice chairman, were re-elected unanimously. In a 45-minute session, the committee also unanimously named Chief Justice E. B. Denny of North Carolina, and Associate Supreme Court Justice Susie Sharp as party nominees for these posts in the November election. Gov. Sanford promoted Denny from associate justice to chief justice and appointed Miss Sharp to the high court following the retirement of Chief Justice J. Wallace Winborne. Since Winborne's resignation came after the time for filing for the May 26 primary had expired the executive committee had to name the nominees. A total of 12 of the 210 committee members attended the session. Following his re-election, Bennett reappointed Lamar Gorder of Asheville as party secretary and Tom Davis of Selma as executive secretary. John Williams of Raleigh was named party treasurer to succeed Cliff Benson of Raleigh. Gov. Sanford spoke briefly, urging a strong party organization "to keep North Carolina and the nation moving forward."

Option Plan For Charlotte Pupils

CHARLOTTE (AP)—An option plan for assignment of pupils to schools, regardless of race, is the likely course here in the future, according to a school board official. The official, Lacy Ranson, made the comment after it was announced that the Charlotte-Mecklenburg County Board of Education had assigned 414 Negroes to seven predominantly white junior high and high schools. Ranson said the school board offered Negroes an option plan for the first time. The board gave 40 Negro parents who live near Dilworth Elementary school a choice of sending their children to predominantly white Dilworth, or to an all-Negro school. Twenty-four chose Dilworth. Ranson, who is chairman of the board's attendance area committee, said this is the likely course for the future. Ranson said the assignments were "in keeping with the general idea that the schools ultimately will be desegregated. We are trying to move in that direction, in keeping with court decisions, at a pace which is reasonable." The board created a white minority in one elementary school by assigning 61 white children in a student body of 432. Only 27 Negro students attended predominantly white schools this year.

Ports Director Dies Of Cancer

RALEIGH (AP)—D. Leon Williams, executive director of the State Ports Authority who died Friday, was lauded by Gov. Terry Sanford as a man who "leaves a remarkable record." Sanford said that during Williams' tenure, the state's "export-import trade expanded rapidly, increasing almost 50 per cent." Williams, 67, died in an Atlanta hospital of cancer. He had been in declining health since February when he underwent an operation. Graveside services were held today at Arlington Cemetery in Atlanta. Williams had been granted a 30-day leave - of - absence only this week for treatment of what his family said was "non-infectious hepatitis." News of his death came shortly after the Ports Authority members arrived here for a previously scheduled meeting to name an acting director. E. N. Richards of Raleigh, a member of the authority, was named to serve as acting director until a fulltime director can be selected. The authority expressed deep sorrow at his death, saying "he had served well and faithfully" as the SPA's executive director. Williams was director of the Georgia State Ports before being hired to head North Carolina's port operations in 1958. At the time the Georgia ports were undergoing a legislative probe, but Williams emerged from it unscathed.

Saturday Chores For Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP)—Wall Street broke its traditional Saturday calm today to mop up after one of the most exciting weeks in its history. Although closed to trading as usual, the New York Stock Exchange instructed brokers to have members of their staffs on its floor. The job is to handle the mountainous paper work that piled up during the heavy trading that accompanied the biggest plunge and the biggest rally since the crash year of 1929. Employees will be working overtime in broker's offices, too, in an effort to catch up. The market, although stalled Friday in a recovery drive, came out of the turbulent week about where it started. Profit-takers, who bought Monday and Tuesday morning during the slump, started selling Friday and turned a whopping rally into a moderate decline. The fact that a weekend was ahead made investors cautious. As a result, the market will enter next week at an important crossroads. Some Wall Street experts felt that the market was in need of a rest after its strenuous exertions. "We ought to start off all right and then have a decline Tuesday or Wednesday, testing the lows of last Tuesday," was the prediction of William R. White, analyst for the brokerage firm of Hornblower & Weeks. "Demand should then check the decline," he added. "That would afford an opportunity to build a base and have a summer advance." Benson B. Sloan of Harris, Upham & Co. agreed. "Historically, it appears that a rally that starts from such a high volume climax, as that of Tuesday is apt to lose its steam and possibly test the old lows after two or three days," he said. Another broker, Kenneth Ward of Hayden, Stone & Co., said, "A good part of the real money is still sitting on the sidelines waiting to see which way the cat is going to jump." Friday's trading was a mild affair compared with the rousing sessions of Monday, Tuesday and Thursday for Memorial Day. Trading dropped to 5.76 million shares, which normally would be considered very heavy, but it was light against the 10.71 million Thursday, 14.75 million Tuesday and 9.35 million Monday. The averages that are used to measure the market's movements wiped out their early week losses on the rally and wound up about where they stood at the close of the previous week. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped .10 to 225.40 Friday, a shade ahead of the 224.60 at which it had stood a week earlier. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined 2.31 to 611.05, a little below its 611.83 a week ago. Another average, Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, fell 25 to 59.33, just off its 59.47 close the prior week.

Arrested On Thursday, Got Him Again Friday

If practice makes perfect, as the old saying goes, a Greenville Negro should be pretty proficient in the area of transporting non-tax-paid whiskey—and getting caught at it. Alton Gray House, 25, of 1206 Ward St. was arrested by Pitt County ABC enforcers Thursday night with 12 gallons of illegal liquor. Last night, officers caught House, with two other Negroes, with six gallons of non-tax-paid spirits. J. M. Ward reported he and Walter Taylor were patrolling near Venters Cross Roads when they spotted the car in which House was a passenger. They gave chase and finally brought the fleeing vehicle to a halt near Ayden. House and the two other occupants of the auto, Clifton Forbes Jr., 33, of 601 Roosevelt Ave., Greenville, and Oren Tyson, 43, of RFD, Winterville, were charged with possession for sale and transporting non-tax-paid whiskey. In addition, Forbes, identified as the driver of the vehicle, was charged with speeding in excess of 75 miles per hour. Both Forbes and Tyson were placed under a $300 bond, while House was placed under a $400 bond on the charges. The case is scheduled to be heard in Pitt County Recorders Court Tuesday. The vehicle is being held pending action in the case by the court. Ward explained that House was arrested near Haddock's Cross Roads Friday morning with 12 gallons of non-tax-paid booze. He was placed under a $300 bond at that time for appearance in County Court Tuesday on charges of possession for sale and transporting illegal booze. The auto he was said to have operated at that time was also impounded until the case could be heard by the court.

Plan Memorial Rites Sunday

The Rev. W. J. Hadden Jr., pastor of Eighth Street Christian Church, will be speaker at the annual Memorial Day services to be held Sunday at 4:30 p.m. in Greenwood Cemetery, under sponsorship of the American Legion, Pitt County Post No. 39. He will be introduced by Ernest L. Avery, commander of the Post, who will also welcome guests. The Rev. Percy B. Upchurch, pastor of Memorial Baptist Church, will offer the prayer. Salute to the Colors will be performed by Battery "A", fourth Howitzer Battalion, 113th Artillery, North Carolina Army National Guard. Master sergeant is Mayo Allen. Lowering of the Colors will be performed by Boy Scouts. Buglers will be J. G. Proctor Jr. and Joe Bryan. Mrs. Jack Kittrell will direct singing of "America" and the "National Anthem." The Eighth Street Christian Church Choral Group will render a special hymn.

Over Two Inches Of Rain Here

Since last Saturday, over two inches of rain has fallen in Greenville, following a dry period of some weeks. John Buck of the Greenville Utilities Plant tabulated the week's rainfall up to midnight last night, at 2.38 inches. The weatherman has forecast possibility of scattered mostly afternoon and evening thundershowers and continued warm during the weekend. Temperatures here today were warm even during the early morning hours, registering 72 degrees at 4 a.m. Friday's high was 87 and the low temperature was 69 degrees. Buck reported the Tar River level is 3.4 feet.

Nuclear Altitude Blast Postponed

HONOLULU (AP)—Cloudy weather was believed to have forced the United States today to postpone the first explosion in the current high altitude nuclear test series over the Pacific. The shot was rescheduled for 3 a.m. EST Sunday, after a series of holds delayed it Friday night. It had originally been set for 10 p.m. (3 a.m. EST). No official reason was given for the one-day postponement. But the weather bureau said a layer of clouds blanketed almost half the sky over the test site at Johnston Island, 700 miles southwest of here. Officials at the headquarters of Joint Task Force 8, which is conducting the U.S. Pacific tests, were not talking. But it is known that clear weather is necessary to permit scientists to effectively photograph the explosion, expected to take place some 30 to 40 miles above the earth. The blast was to be the first of three and possibly four high altitude explosions. It was to have a force of less than one megaton—the equivalent of one million tons of TNT. Despite five separate holds, officials here were optimistic the bomb would be exploded. "Everyone is keyed up and ready and it looks like we will continue trying," a spokesman said 15 minutes before the postponement was announced. The explosion, when it is detonated, is expected to blow a hole in the ionosphere, a layer of radioactive dust and metal particles just beyond the stratosphere. The stratosphere reflects long distance radio communication waves as a mirror reflects light. If the weather is clear, the flash is expected to be visible in Hawaii.

Black Bear Shot In Wilmington

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—A skinny black bear stalked downtown Wilmington for several hours early Friday before a single shot fired by the city dog catcher ended its life. Where the bear came from and how it got on the fringes of the business district remained a puzzle. A cab driver spotted the bear on the corner of 5th and Market Streets, on the edge of the downtown business area. Police received three more bear sightings before the beast climbed high in a pecan tree and refused to budge. An animal expert from a nearby zoo joined the bear hunters at a safe distance from the tree. They finally decided the bear was too high in the tree to be rescued, and M. G. Currie, the city dog catcher, was ordered to shoot. He killed the bear with one shot in the head.

Sailors Coming, City Will Be Dry

CURACAO (AP)—They have news for 1,200 U.S. sailors due here Sunday for a three-day visit. The government has shut off the sale of liquor and beer. The government decreed the drought for Sunday, Monday and part of Tuesday because of elections Monday for a new government of this Dutch island off the coast of Venezuela.

Summer Term At ECC Will Open On June 11

With an anticipated peak enrollment of approximately 3,000 students, East Carolina College's 1962 Summer Term will open Monday, June 11, when registration will take place. Class work will begin Tuesday, June 12. Registrar John H. Horne stated today that indications are that this summer's total number of students will reach the 3,000 mark and so will compare favorably with a total of 2,330 for the same period in 1961. The summer session, which adds a fourth quarter to the regular academic year, is attended largely by students who are accelerating their program so as to complete their work in less than the usual twelve quarters in four years; teachers who are taking courses to enrich their instructional programs or to meet requirements for renewal of certification; graduate students; and students on academic probation, who must remove deficiencies before registering for the fall quarter. The 1962 Summer Term is divided into two sessions: the first, June 11-17, and the second, July 18-August 23. Major events will include a series of workshops, conferences, and clinics in various areas of educational interest. The Third Annual Grand Tour of Europe June 9-July 17 and the Fourth Annual American Travel Study Tour June 11-July 11, this year through the Northwest and to the World's Fair, are special educational attractions sponsored by the college Extension Division. Other events of interest include the Twelfth Annual Summer Music Camp July 22-August 4 and a National Science Foundation Summer Institute for Junior High School Teachers of Earth Science, Biology and Physics. During the 1962 Summer Term courses will be offered in fifteen departments of instruction and in the School of Business and the School of Nursing.

Good Basis For Hodges' Proposal

Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges, who on occasion has been accused of being out of step with the new frontier philosophy of the administration of which he is a part, may have become the center of a new controversy with his assertion that there should be a speed up of action pointed toward a tax cut this year.

Secretary Hodges made the assertion in connection with the steep stock market slide early this week. His statement was rebuffed later in the week by Secretary of Treasury Douglas Dillon who declared Hodges does not have administration backing in his call for an early tax reduction. More than that, Dillon left the vivid impression the sentiment expressed by Hodges is not shared by other cabinet members and high officials in the Kennedy administration.

In his statement, Secretary Hodges called for the tax cut and for other major tax revisions which would stimulate business in the United States. He made his assertion in the face of the stock market tumble, and likewise in the face of an estimated $7 billion deficit in federal spending during the current fiscal year. Dillon and other members of the administration have declared that a balanced federal budget is in prospect for the coming fiscal year, but will be possible only if there is a continued business upturn projected on the present tax structure.

With its plans for increased spending during the next fiscal year, the increasing pressure for the Kennedy administration to get government operations back into the black, and the slim prospect for a balanced budget even with the present tax structure, it is not difficult to understand how Hodges' statement ruffled the feathers of others in the Kennedy administration.

Notwithstanding these, however, the assertions of the Secretary of Commerce are sound. A realistic overhaul of the present tax structure is sorely needed. In many respects the structure is antiquated, jumbled conglomeration of ideas that have been put into effect from time to time without careful evaluation or coordination. At a time when it is really dipping into deficit spending to finance operations, and has plans for greater future spending, it is not surprising that the administration is reluctant to entertain any proposals that may result in reduced revenue even on a temporary basis. From the longrange standpoint, the proposal made by Commerce Secretary Hodges should not be disregarded. It has merit which deserves careful consideration.

Swiftness Of Hanging Was Most Surprising

The death of Adolph Eichmann at the end of an Israeli rope did not come as a surprise to most people who have followed the saga of Eichmann's arrest and trial for his role in Nazi extermination of six million Jews.

Perhaps the most surprising thing about the former Nazi chief's execution was the swiftness with which it was carried out following the rejection of his last plea for clemency to President Izhak Ben-Zvi of Israel.

Although there is little question about the dominant role Eichman played in the planned extermination of one race under the Nazi regime, the legal implications surrounding his capture and subsequent trial by Israeli courts will remain points of discussion among attorneys for years to come.

Except for the discussions of the case which are certain to crop up from time to time in future years, the Eichmann case has now ended. The master strategist who supervised the attempted extermination of a specific segment of the human race has paid the supreme penalty for his atrocities.

Foreign Couple Planning Return

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES

VISITORS — A young couple from West Germany visited briefly in North Carolina's capital city by chance rather than by design the other day — and liked what they found.

They plan to come back someday, perhaps next year, and stay longer and see more of North Carolina — something which the state and its tourist industry has been trying to promote among thousands of Europeans.

It is fairly safe to assume that between now and next Spring the young couple from Germany will tell others about America including the brief stop in North Carolina. And they may be as effective as the travel agents in Frankfurt who were contacted a few weeks ago in personal visits by North Carolinians interested in tourist promotion.

It does not reflect one way or another upon the recent N. C. Travel mission to Europe primarily, in fact, Otto and Ingrid Ketter had not heard about the mission nor the program aimed at increasing North Carolina's tourist business from abroad. It was purely by chance that they got off a bus in Raleigh.

The fact that the Kettlers came to North Carolina at all does prove the point that Europeans these days are going abroad, to new places, more and more of them to America, and that they have the money and leisure for travel.

CONTRASTS — This young couple, good-looking studious Otto and his attractive blonde wife came to America primarily to visit New York and Washington and to see Florida. They flew to New York, then chose to travel to Florida by bus to see the country and make stops.

Otto Ketter is an electrical engineer back home in Essen, which is an industrial city in the Ruhr, and he was impressed with the clean air and wide open space of the U.S. countryside.

They walked and window-shopped in downtown Raleigh after dinner, and wondered where the people were. Suburban living was a new experience, and after New York so was the absence of downtown nightlife. In New York, Otto observed, there were many people and few smiles. There were bright lights and sad faces.

In North Carolina, they noted things were not so hurried. Things were not so crowded. After hours, the business and commercial district was emptied of people — who went to homes in the suburbs or outlying residential districts.

On Fayetteville street in the morning, Otto and Ingrid found people cheerful, friendly and smiling. They were greeted and spoken to. Their English was limited, but flawless, and Otto thumbed through a thick little German-English dictionary. They visited shops and restaurants. In a Fayetteville street bank, they met Gerda Pleasants, a native of Germany who is the wife of Wake County Sheriff Bob Pleasants.

CAPITOL — A high point of the visit was the walk up Fayetteville street to the Capitol and inspection of the building. They found the House and Senate chambers interesting, but were more fascinated with explanation of the bicameral system and the legislative process, and also in the fact that the legislative chambers and even the office of the governor of the state were open to anyone who cared to come in.

They met and visited with several state officials, and toured the Hall of History. They were especially interested in North Carolina's geography, location of the cities, industries, the mountains and historic locations.

The network of highways across the state was impressive to them, and it came as a surprise to them to learn that North Carolina has Indians and Indian towns.

They signed the register. Otto and Ingrid Ketter, Janssensstrasse, 28A, Essen, Ruhr, Germany, and loaded themselves with North Carolina travel folders, including one printed in the German language.

Rusk Briefly Shows Anger

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ever since he took office Secretary of State Dean Rusk's press conference remarks have been so calm, unexciting, general and obvious that some newsmen have fallen asleep during the sessions.

This was because Rusk, who works in the closest collaboration with President Kennedy, seemed to regard himself more as the navigator of the foreign policy ship than the captain.

There has never been any doubt that Kennedy is the captain. The President has made the big pronouncements. Thursday for a change Rusk showed real irritation at Kennedy administration foreign policy critics, particularly when told Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., had accused the State Department of advocating a "no-win" rather than a "victory" policy in dealing with communism.

After citing all the problems the administration is trying to solve, Rusk called on the critics to offer some alternatives, instead of just criticism, if they have alternatives.

This moment of anger, so contrary to Rusk's policy of deliberate calm, is not likely to be repeated soon. If it were, his news conferences would be a little livelier.

His generally unheated and unsensational dealings with the press have made it a little hard for newsmen to get used to after being exposed for so long to a more colorful and flamboyant predecessor, John Foster Dulles.

In his almost year and a half in office Rusk has never once used such provocative statements as Dulles, "agonizing reappraisal" or "massive retaliation."

Yet, both men have had one thing in common: A feeling that they had to move around the world fast and often. But dissent in his job Rusk used a soft-pedal even before he got it. In January 1961, when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was questioning him before approving him, he was asked if he planned to spend most of his time in the department and let ambassadors do the work abroad.

Came the typical Rusk statement which closed no doors on whatever he might decide to do.

"I do believe that the secretary has an important role in the department, but sometimes has an important role, outside it," he said.

And there was this when a senator asked him what the new Kennedy administration planned to do, after it took office, about a couple of American airmen held captive by the Russians: "I think," Rusk said, "it would be important for the new administration to make every effort possible to obtain the release of these two airmen."

The Russians released them five days after Kennedy took office. When asked why Rusk has refrained from trying to make a more personal impact on the public mind, one of his aides said: "He hopes to be judged not on any single accomplishment but on his total performance so that when it comes time for him to step out it can be said of him that he did a good job."

In short, he has insisted upon operating as a foreign policy technician. This explains why he has been in no fights with Congress — as Secretaries Dulles and Dean Acheson were — or any publicly known quarrels with Allies.

Yet, he hasn't had a quiet moment. Always there has been Russia, and Red China, in addition to Cuba, Laos, Viet Nam, Latin America, the Congo, disarmament, nuclear testing.

His time in office has left marks on him. He looks older, a little more tired. He talks with conviction, never with passion. The anger he showed Thursday was hardly more than a temporary detour from urbanity.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

NAVIGATION BY THE STARS When navigation began many centuries ago, sailors crept only from one point of land to another. Scarcely ever did they venture out-of-sight-of-land. It was only when men began to sail by the stars that navigation, as we know it today, became possible.

People without religious faith had to creep through life, darting from one circumstance to the next. Such people are guided almost wholly by expediency. Life for them is not a voyage, their sails taut with the breeze, the prow of their ship fearfully plowing the waves, out but up — on the turmoil and chaos of the world. Happiness is sure only for those who make life a voyage and life eternal the distant harbor toward which the prow is set.

of safety to what appears to be another.

Christ came into the world to give people life and to give it more abundantly. For a person genuinely religious, life is a voyage — a distant point, there will be storms. There will be nights when the heavens are black and fearful. But about the Christian's whole life there is a religious sense of adventure and trust which arises from the fact that he steers his ship by the stars and knows for a certainty that because these stars are eternal his voyage will not fail.

Look up for guidance; do not but up — on the turmoil and chaos of the world. Happiness is sure only for those who make life a voyage and life eternal the distant harbor toward which the prow is set.

Joe College Is In Demand

NEW YORK (AP) — Is Joe College getting spoiled?

Many personnel executives think he is.

"University graduates today are not interested in starting at the bottom—they want a job as near the top as possible," grumbled one executive.

"Most of them don't ask what opportunities lie ahead. They want to know 'what's in it for me right now?'" They inquire about pension programs, medical care, bonuses, and all kinds of fringe benefits.

"They don't want to live in small towns. They don't want a job that requires them to travel from home much. They are less interested in what they can do for the corporation than in what they can get the corporation to do for them.

Other Editors Saying FDR Jr. Gets A Tax Bill

(Richmond Times Dispatch)

We sympathize with the tax troubles of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., really we do. The Internal Revenue Service says that in 1958 Mr. Roosevelt reported a taxable income of $29,026. His income was really $93,051, they say, so he still owes $38,736.

Well, before we chalk him down as the blackguardly son of a famous father, it would pay to look into the IRS charge. Mr. Roosevelt has no secret income from opium sales in Hong Kong at all; all of the figures were fully reported on his tax returns. The dispute is about which column the figures belong in. The largest amount at issue, $45,409, came from a partnership in which Mr. Roosevelt was involved in an automobile agency. Mr. Roosevelt says that this money was actually received by him in 1959, and it was reported in that year, and taxes paid on it in that year. IRS says that even though he didn't receive it, he earned it in 1958, and it should have been reported on the 1958 return.

The other $18,615 in contest was received from Dore Schary's play about the elder FDR and his family, "Smirise at Campobello."

We live in such an age. The frightened but tax-literate citizen now runs to a tax-adviser, as in darker ages the ignorant paid a fee to the Scribe. As sophisticated a man as Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., finds his name blackened even if his lawyers win a favorable settlement. He typifies the plight of the American today, but his name makes the irony more bitter: the sins of the father are visited upon the son.

We sympathize with Mr. Roosevelt, but it is a strange

"Sometimes they're so choosy you get the feeling the corporation isn't hiring them—they're hiring the corporation."

There is no doubt that ever since the World War II life has been getting rosier and rosier for Joe College as he makes an almost effortless step from the campus into business life.

A recent survey by the Family Economics Bureau of the Northwestern National Life Insurance Co., indicated 1962 graduates will get starting salaries $20 to $30 a month higher than those of a year ago.

The survey showed beginning salaries ranging from $450 to $500 a month awaited liberal arts or business school alumni. Graduates in engineering or science could look forward to even more—$565 to $580.

And a Ph. D. degree holder with some experience could expect from $900 to $1,000 a month. Ah, me: Those figures awaken a feeling of wry nostalgia in those of us who were graduated just a generation — 30 years ago.

It was a far, crueler world that faced the graduates of 1932. No personnel scouts from big firms stood in line to ask how they could make us happy.

That was still in the pit of the great depression, and no one seemed to want us—our alma mater, our parents, or the outside world. A sheepskin was no automatic passport to employment. You couldn't even look forward to a corner on which to sell apples—the best corners were already taken.

To cite a personal example, it was a full year after graduation that I landed my first job. It paid all of $32.50 a month, and I was so glad to get it I could have cried in gratitude.

Two and a half years after leaving college I had worked up to $100 a month; I had been away from the campus 11 full years before I got up to $100 a week.

Maybe Joe College is a bit spoiled, but maybe that isn't all bad either. It's a wonderful thing to be wanted, and to find a welcome market waiting for your talent and ability.

The class of 1962 is emerging into a better and more prosperous and exciting world than did the class of 1932—and that's a good thing, too.

Some Prefer Evade

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The argument in favor of a withholding tax, of any kind, is that there is considerable cheating in the payment of taxes. The American people are an honest people, but as every tax collector knows, in any country, most folks find it a pleasure to evade a tax, avoid a tax, find a loop-hole in a tax-law. This has been true from time immemorial and a tax collector is usually disliked not for his personality but on account of his profession. He is like a hangman.

Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois is a trained economist. He believes in the withholding method of collecting taxes as fair because there is an estimated cheating of $1,100,000,000 per year and therefore those who honestly pay are at a disadvantage as compared to those who manage to cheat. He favors using the withholding device with regard to dividends. He says:

"... the bill as written provides for either exemption or for quick quarterly refunds which in my judgement will mitigate almost all the objections which previously have been made against the provision. The fact is, that over 75 to 80 percent of those over 65, in my judgement, would be exempt from withholding, and an aged couple both over 65 would need investments of well over $100,000 even to be subject to withholding."

I dislike the withholding tax because I prefer to keep my earnings as long as I can and to manage my own money — however badly I may do it. Nevertheless, any citizen must agree that the tax evader is a cheat and that he cheats not the government but his fellow-citizens who pay their taxes as they may other bills.

But there is another point of view in all this and Senator Douglas might give it consideration. Actually tax evasion must amount to more than the $1,100,000,000 which we lose because the income taxes on dividends are not paid. The loss in tax collection from American money on deposit in Switzerland, West Germany, Liechtenstein, Monaco, Panama, Hong Kong and other places managed by bankers and brokers in those places must be much larger than one billion dollars, although I have been unable to get accurate figures.

These funds may be kept on deposit in foreign countries forever, and, although owned by Americans, pay no taxes because their transactions are on European exchanges although they deal in American securities. This form of cheating is altogether legal and will continue as long as lawyers and accountants know how to fix things.

Why penalize the American who keeps his money in the United States and uses it to expand and strengthen American industry and commerce?

Perhaps if the income tax were simplified and were not so brutally collected, involving huge bookkeeping costs and irksome man-hours spent by individuals and small businessmen, who can hardly afford the time or expert advice, there would be less cheating.

Would not a transactions tax be a suitable substitute for the income tax and would that not make the withholding tax unnecessary? American money held abroad could evade the income tax, but if any form of papers were moved, the transaction could be taxed immediately. In fact, if a transactions tax were used, the government would not have to wait for its money, as it would be paid immediately any transaction occurred.

There would be no reports, no questionnaires, no field men making spot checks, no accountants, no lawyers. A transaction would simply have no legality, no validity, unless the transaction stamp were affixed to the documents, be they nothing more involved than checks or receipts or contracts.

If there is a gap, as Senator Douglas points out, of between $4,900,000,000 and $5,200,000,000 between dividends and interest paid and the amount reported on income tax returns, obviously there is something very wrong with our system of

Industrial Construction Braked

By ELMER ROESSNER

The stock market has clouded the business horizon. About the only sure-fire prediction today is that the number of explanations of what really happened to the market will not be exceeded by the number of explanations.

However, a few things seem highly probable: Industrial construction slow-down. Almost every corporation with construction projects in early stages are adopting a wait-and-see attitude. They want to see the answers to these questions: Will money be available to complete the job? Will prices of materials drop? Will the new facilities pay off in the changing market? How ever, projects well on their way will be generally completed.

NEED FOR HOMES CONTINUES

Residential construction holding up. Starts in April and early May were up. April starts were 32 percent higher than those of April, 1960 and since most home construction is based on firm contracts, construction will continue. The swelling population requires more homes.

Government construction will pass the word—if it hasn't done so before this is printed—that government construction is to be maintained at the highest possible level provided by contracts and appropriations.

Tax cut hue. The stock market slide will revive demands for a law giving the President power to lower taxes in event of a recession. However, it is doubtful that it will be enacted unless things get much, much worse. Congress does not lightly surrender powers invested in it by the Constitution.

DEEPER MARKET PROBES
More investigations: The Securities and Exchange Commission investigation into brokers' practices is likely to be intensified and several Congressional committees are about to plunge into affairs of the stock market. These will have political potency; many voters believe the market dip was caused by efforts to squeeze out small investors. Surely, a lot of them were squeezed out and whipping boys are much in demand.

Western vacation boom: Fairs rarely make money, but the Seattle fair will make a lot of money for western hotel and motel owners, gas stations, restaurants all the way from the Steel Pier to Seattle. A record-setting number of auto tourists will take to the road this year and a high ratio of them will head fairwards. Tip: Make hotel and motel reservations in advance as often as possible; start early in the morning; quit early in the afternoon; keep looking up relatives where room rents are excessive.

New insurance probe: The Federal Trade Commission is considering a new investigation of direct-mail insurance advertisers. A Federal court decision upholds the right of the FTC to regulate mail solicitations in states where the insurers are not licensed and, since the decision has not been appealed, the FTC considers the law is on its side.

OLD PROMOTER PLANS NOVEL FAIR ATTRACTION

The Old Promoter confessed that he was looking for investors and I invited him to explain his proposition.

"I want to have a space capsule concession at the New York World's Fair," he said. "We'll seal the customer in a capsule, he'll have all the instruments he'll fly by wire, to fly manually, or to fly automatically. We'll even have a few space biscuits for him to eat. Furthermore, we'll play a tape recording of the radio instructions to Carpenter on his last flight."

"It really sounds like a profitable idea," I said. "All the thrills of a space trip without ever leaving the ground!" "What do you mean?" the Old One demanded. "Of course the customers will leave the ground. I am going to shoot them into orbit!" And with a grin and a handful of my cigars, he was gone.

Dodgers And Giants Now Tied

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
It's June, you know. You can tell just by looking at the National League standings. The Giants no longer own sole possession of first place.

It's not so much that San Francisco is slipping as it is that the Los Angeles Dodgers are off on a tear. But the result is the same as it has been for four years: The Giants threaten to run away and hide from the rest of the league all through May. Then June starts busting out all over. And the Giants seem to fade.

Oh, the Giants won Friday night, all right, beating the hapless New York Mets 9-6. But the rampaging Dodgers won two from Philadelphia, 11-4 and 8-5. The double victory pushed the Dodgers' winning string to 13—their longest since forsaking Brooklyn—and pulled them into a tie with the Giants for first place.

It was the first time since April 30 San Francisco hadn't been in sole control of the top spot. Streaking Cincinnati stopped Chicago 5-2, Pittsburgh beat Houston 8-4 for its sixth straight, and Bob Shaw and his Milwaukee mates shut out St. Louis 7-0 in the others.

In the American League, Cleveland held its one-game edge by belting Detroit 7-1, the second-place New York Yankees whipped the Los Angeles Angels 6-2, Chicago's White Sox edged Baltimore 3-2 in 11 innings, Washington nipped Minnesota 4-3 in 12 innings, and Kansas City walloped Boston 9-2.

Coca-Cola Optimist Game Called At End Of Second

Little League games yesterday were postponed because of rain. Only one game had been started when the rain came and that was the contest between Coca-Cola and Optimist.

The game was called at the end of the second inning after the Optimist had taken a sizeable lead.

In the top of the first frame, Coca-Cola's lead-off man, Dick Clark rapped a triple to right field. Kevin Price followed with a walk to put runners on first and third. However, the Optimist settled down to retire the next three batters to end the threat.

Stan Harrington To Fight Scott

Winston-Salem Downs Durham

The Winston-Salem Red Sox, who have had trouble coming up with a batting punch, finally found the hitting range Friday night.

Greenville's Mel Stottlemyre hurled a two-hitter in the 12th inning to defeat top place Durham 8-7.

Winston-Salem Red Sox, who have had trouble coming up with a batting punch, finally found the hitting range Friday night.

McGaha, at 35 the youngest manager in the league, sent Perry, 25, to the bullpen, brought him along slowly and currently has the right-hander in the regular rotation. Friday night Perry came up with his best performance, a four-hit job for a 7-1 victory over Detroit.

McGaha turned down an offer from the pro football Los Angeles Rams after he was graduated from Arkansas, signed on with the New York Knickerbockers, then left the pro game to devote his full-time efforts to playing baseball. The 1948 bus crash, injuring his shoulder, stopped that.

Betsy Rawls Has One-Stroke Lead

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—Betsy Rawls took a one-stroke lead into the second round of the $7,500 Babe Zaharias Open Golf Tournament today as she sought her third championship in four years.

Miss Rawls, the veteran from Spartanburg, S.C., shot a 1-under-par 72 Friday to take the lead in the first 18 holes.

In second place was Kathy Cornelius of Scottsdale, Ariz., who had a 73.

Chuck Hinton's homer, and Kansas City thumped Boston 9-2.

In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers stretched their winning streak to 13 games by sweeping a two-nighter from Philadelphia 11-4 and 8-5, moving into a first-place tie with San Francisco, 9-6 winner at New York. Cincinnati defeated Chicago's Cubs 5-2, Pittsburgh bopped Houston 8-4, and Milwaukee blanked St. Louis 7-0.

Indian's Rookie Manager Quickly Earning Respect

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
Rookie Cleveland Mgr. Mel McGaha, who passed up pro football, quit pro basketball, and then had his baseball playing days ended by a bus accident that killed four teammates, is quickly earning respect in his new career as field boss of the American League leading Indians.

Short on pitching when the season began with top winner Jim Grant in the Army, Gary Bell still bothered by a tender arm, and Jim Perry ineffective in spring training, McGaha shifted here, shuffled there, and came up with a workable staff.

McGaha, at 35 the youngest manager in the league, sent Perry, 25, to the bullpen, brought him along slowly and currently has the right-hander in the regular rotation. Friday night Perry came up with his best performance, a four-hit job for a 7-1 victory over Detroit.

I cannot help wondering if the withholding tax is quite the answer. Under present circumstances, folks need money for their worry stocks. And all stocks are presently worry stocks. The money that is withheld could be used by the person owning the stock.

The development of a new taxation system cannot be done overnight but it might be taken under advisement by the Committee on Banking and Currency which includes several knowledgeable Senators.

WE STICK TO OUR LASTS

There was a time when pharmacists often were called "Doc." Doubtless it was a complimentary gesture.

Even in this late day, the pharmacist frequently is asked to diagnose and prescribe by his customers.

But like the shoemaker, we pharmacists stick to our own lasts. We neither diagnose nor prescribe. These health team functions fall within the special province of physicians both by law and professional training.

Nice To Have Man Around--Especially A Cook

BEST FED PETS . . . Dr. Robert Williams and his daughter, Elizabeth, treat the family pets, Lucifer the cat, and Mickey the dog, to a late snack.

By MARTI MARTIN
Reflector Staff Writer

It's kind of nice to have a man around the house, and there is one Greenville family that can certainly vouch for this.

The family is the Robert W. Williams family. The house is at 1735 Beaumont Drive. And the man, Dr. Robert Williams, is an associate professor of social studies at East Carolina College.

Like most college professors, he finds the need to read, but often the book he's reading isn't history; it's a cookbook.

Since coming to Greenville three years ago, his day, or rather his family's day, has been Thursday. Every Thursday, and occasionally on weekends, Dr. Williams is king of the cuisine and grand chef of exotic foods.

He first became interested in cooking when he was stationed in Hawaii as a master sergeant in the Marines. It was there that he was first introduced to the Hawaiian forms of Chinese cooking which employ the use of a great deal of pineapple, mangoes, and coconuts.

Dr. Williams has been collecting recipes and cooking since 1945. It wasn't until he was stationed at Tientsin, China, however, that he finally became "hooked" forever as a connoisseur.

The American Red Cross in China started a cooking class and it was then that Dr. Williams had a chance to practice his culinary ideas.

Cooking Class
Dr. Williams said, "There were about 14 members in the cooking class, both men and women of many different nationalities, who met regularly for practice and instruction in cooking and introduction to new recipes."

"Five members of the class besides myself, continued meeting and cooking long after the original class had terminated. Some of the members were Marines, others were private citizens of Tientsin."

"Tientsin is a city located in Northern China and it is about the size of Chicago. There were many foreign concessions there so as a cooking class, we were able to pick up a variety of recipes. I can cook several Italian, French, French Creole, Chinese, Russian, German, Japanese, Hawaiian and Jewish dishes."

Serving in the Marines, Williams has been stationed in New Zealand, the South Pacific, Central Pacific, New Orleans, Hawaii and China. His specialties are Russian and Chinese foods.

"Thursday became my day to cook since my family has been here in Greenville," said Dr. Williams. "My wife, Elizabeth, seemed to be quite busy on Thursdays, so I took over the cooking--on that day."

"Occasionally I cook during the week on other days and sometimes during the weekend. Some of the dishes I cook take almost all day to prepare."

"Like most men in the kitchen, I use a lot of dishes while cooking. The preparation of Chinese food, however, gives me a good excuse to do so because of the tremendous amount of spices and chopped food that has to be added in small quantities at various stages in the meal preparation."

Grows Some Spices

Dr. Williams does not always have to search the spice corner of the grocery store because he raises some of the frequently used spices right in his own yard. At the present he is growing chives, parsley and mint in his yard and plans to add basil and thyme later on.

Perhaps two of his original recipes will be more indicative of what often happens to be served for dinner at the Dr. Williams' house on Thursday evening.

Dr. Williams' variation of a Chinese type of food: Sweet and Sour Pork Tientsin:

Ingredients: two pounds of lean pork, ginger, salt, pepper, soy sauce, corn oil and peanut oil, flour, onions and green peppers.

Cut pork into about one inch squares, pound thin, dip into soy sauce and then into mixture of flour seasoned with about one-half teaspoon of salt and a like amount of pepper and ginger. Saute onions and one-half cup of green peppers cut into small pieces. Then brown meat, using a mixture of one-half corn oil and one-half peanut oil.

Prepare a mixture meanwhile of the following ingredients: one cup of sugar, one-half cup vinegar, one teaspoon salt, a tablespoon of soy sauce, a teaspoon of lemon or lime juice, a teaspoon of catsup and a teaspoon of a finely chopped garlic.

Put sweet and sour sauce in with pork and simmer for about 15 minutes. Then add a tablespoon of cornstarch mixed with warm water. As the sauce begins to thicken, add one-half cup of mixed spring onions, green peppers and fresh tomaatoes. Remove while these last ingredients are warm but barely cooked. Serve with fried noodles or rice. Left-over cubes of ham or bit of shrimp may also be added.

with a recipe like the Sweet and Sour Pork Tientsin, it isn't hard to see why Dr. Williams sometimes spends the day preparing the main course for one meal or why he uses a lot of dishes in the meal preparation. Another of his original recipes is called Steak Marinade, Robert.

The ingredients are a rump steak or round steak, salt and pepper, thyme, onions, celery, bacon, pepper corns, dry red wine and flour.

Williams says, "If using round steak, pound it moderately. If it is rump steak, pound it unmercifully." Sprinkle with salt, pepper and a few pinches of thyme. Let it stand at room temperature for an hour, then place it in a flat shallow dish. Cover it with chopped onions, celery, bacon and some peppercorns. Add dry red wine to cover. Place in refrigerator and let stand for 24 hours. Remove meat, drain, rub (Continued on page 8)

ANYTHING GOES . . . Nothing is unusual in the kitchen when Dr. Robert Williams is the chef. His specialties are with Chinese and Russian recipes.

Dale Brooks Says Judo Is Growing As A Popular Sport Recreation Time In Farmville

A Greenville High School graduate and member of a Greenville family has made a name for himself, in Cleveland by his activities in building a judo club, an organization for fans of modernized jiu jitsu.

Dale Brooks, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. Brooks, 315 E. 11th St., joined with other judo enthusiasts in August, 1960, to form the Tomodachi Club of Cleveland.

Recent activities of the 120-member club have gained it wide publicity in the Cleveland area. The club, whose name is Japanese for "friends," during the spring hosted a "Shiai" (tournament) that included more than 200 participants from 75 clubs in the U. S. and Canada.

Brooks, who is the club's president, went to Cleveland about a year following his 1956 graduation from Greenville High School.

Brooks was in Greenville this week to attend the Rose High graduation of his sister, Barbara. After a few days with his family, originally a Cleveland family, he planned to return to his job in a Cleveland steel plant and his activities with his "Tomodachi Club."

In an interview with the Daily Reflector, he explained the difference in judo as a sport and jiu jitsu and karate as methods of self-defense and attack.

"In judo, when you throw a man, you try to help him fall so he doesn't hurt himself. And you try not to bend a joint.

"In jiu jitsu, you bend the joint the other way, try to break the arm and you drive the man into the ground.

"In karate, every movement is to kill. That's the byword of karate. It's the art of striking and kicking."

Brooks says he thinks judo some day will become an important spectator sport. "It is available to all ages," he says, "starting with the five- and six-year olds. The beauty of movement and mental spirit involved are what make it great competition."

The Tomodachi president says the purpose of judo, long interesting to Americans as a means of self-defense, is not primarily that of defense. The main objective is competitive sport, he says.

He explains: "Principles of judo can be applied to self-defense. But it is essentially a sport and a philosophy which teaches the participant strong self-confidence and calmness under fire."

The Tomodachi Club, under Brooks' presidency, has grown from its charter membership of 18 enthusiasts. Since it's organization, the club has outgrown its initial meeting quarters and has moved to a roomier address.

Through activities of such organizations as the Tomodachi Club, the former Greenville resident believes judo as a sport will continue to grow in American popularity. Rapid growth of his own organization seems to bear him out.

FARMVILLE -- If any Farmvillians find themselves uncomfortable when given a golden opportunity for recreation, perhaps they'll be much happier if they leave town for the summer.

On the other hand, those who enjoy a diversified summer recreation program, implemented in a systematic manner, can stay right at home and "have a ball" -- in fact, just about any kind of ball, including baseball, softball, basketball or volleyball.

Registration for classes of instruction in various games and sports began today as Farmville's streamlined summer recreation program got underway. It crystallized following intense interest on the part of the Town Commissioners, the energetic efforts of its youthful director and generous planning assistance from the N. C. Recreation Commission.

Farmville native Joe Flake Jr., 21-year-old rising senior in social studies at East Carolina College, speaks with a purposeful finality as he describes the diversified and coordinated plan for Farmville's summer play.

Flake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Flake, 108 Grimmersburg St. here, recalls the inception of this summer's program when the Commissioners' Recreation Committee, headed by Tommy Lang and including Sam Wainwright and Joseph D. Joyner, expressed interest in improving the program last July, soon after the new administration took over.

Plans began to take shape and progressed through the winter. At the town's request, Miss Virginia Gregory, an NCRC representative, met with Lang's committee and a definite, comprehensive program was soon ready for launching.

Flake was moved from his two-year-old position as swimming pool manager into the post of recreation director. Placed on his staff were Alan Benfield, athletic director; Will Jones III, in charge of many activities scheduled for the new National Guard Armory; and Ben Moore, swimming pool supervisor.

With a record appropriation for the recreation program provided by the town commissioners, Flake and his staff stood ready today for the kickoff of the town's most elaborate summer-fun program ever.

Flake eagerly anticipated today's formal opening of the 12-week program. The past weeks have been spent whipping final details into shape.

The swimming program has trained and certified more than 200 beginning swimmers. Flake expects at least 300 youngsters to register this summer.

The director says the program has been made as flexible as possible to include what Farmvillians seem to enjoy most. "We've set it up on the basis of what is called the 'highlight week system,'" Flake says.

The program's first week is "Know Your Community Week."

Following, according to schedule, are "Let's Get Wet Week," "On Wheels Week," "Track and Field Week," "Safety Week" and so on through a dozen special-emphasis weeks.

Activities available to Farmvillians through the program include croquet, chess, table tennis, horseshoes, cards, checkers, crafts and dancing.

"During its 12-week tenure, the program will be in operation six days a week and will include playoffs in competitive sports including softball and baseball. Flake says track and field competition has been planned along with a tennis tournament during the summer.

With the multi-faceted program ready for unveiling today, Flake believes the only ingredient missing from a successful municipal program is participation. After today, he's confident the recipe will be complete.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTE

Whoever has not made the acquaintance of Dr. Herbert Ratner should do so.

Dr. Ratner, a physician connected with Loyola University School of Medicine, comments upon his profession in the newest release in the series of interviews on the American Character from the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. The same material in slightly different form appeared in Saturday Review last week.

Dr. Ratner is a man of vivid language and strong opinions upon a variety of topics. Here are some of his views:

On the health of the American people: "... we are the wealthiest country in the world—yet one of the unhealthiest countries in the world. We are flabby, overweight, and have a lot of dental caries, flour-bation notwithstanding. Our gastrointestinal system operates like a sputtering gas engine. We can't sleep, we can't get going when we are awake, we have neurosis, we have high blood pressure. Neither our hearts nor our heads last as long as they should. Coronary disease at the peak of life has hit epidemic proportions. Suicide is one of the leading causes of death (fourth between the ages of 15 and 44)."

On our preoccupation with health: "We talk about health all the time. For the most part, all that has been accomplished is an increase in imaginary illnesses. The healthy man should not be wasting his time talking about health; he should be using health for the work he is meant to do, work that good health makes possible."

On activism in medicine: "Today people are not happy about the wise doctor who recommends that you do nothing because you have a self-limiting disease. They think he has really not earned a fee because they haven't seen him do anything; they have just heard him say a few words."

On medical education: "We are streamlining the educational process in the wrong direction by stressing the technological at the expense of the humanities. We have come a long way since the famous reply of Sydenham, a great English physician, to Sir Richard Blackmore's question about what medical books he should read. Sydenham simply answered, 'Read Don Quixote.'"

On use of available hospital facilities: "Studies show that it doesn't seem to make much difference how many hospital beds are put up in this country, they will always be filled. ... the number of people in hospital beds always rises to meet the number of beds available."

On the doctor-patient relationship: "Hippocrates said, 'and if there is an opportunity of serving one who is a stranger in financial straits, give full assistance to all such, for where there is love of man there is also love of art. For some patients though conscious that their condition is perilous, recover their health simply through their contentment with the goodness of the physician.'"

Incidentally, Dr. Ratner seems to take Hippocrates quite seriously.

Thanks to Frank Adams, we have something on the current controversy about Shakespeare which has been reported in the Washington Post. Nothing serious; just another effort to identify the writer of the plays. Dr. Safa Al-Khulufi of the University of London has discovered that Shakespeare was not an Englishman at all but an Arab (like Dr. Safa, and his name was actually Sheikh Zubair (say it aloud), who went to England from Barsa, southern Iraq.

As the Post says, this explains a lot, including Lady Macbeth's thinking of Arabian perfume to get Duncan's blood off her hands. It probably also explains "Shakespeare's" difficulty with English grammar (he had an awful time with the case of pronouns after "but.")

In England, according to the Herald-Tribune (how could the Kennedys have canceled their subscription to that paper?), there is a feeling that some of the greatest British writers performed a disservice to tourism by describing the local weather somewhat too vividly.

Sir Thomas Mebane of the British Travel and Holiday Association says, "Our climate has got a bad name. For that I put the initial blame on Charles Dickens."

A columnist in the Bookseller, however, blames it on Shakespeare: "I should not be surprised if the storm in 'King Lear' has made any number of potential tourists think twice before making for these shores." But if Shakespeare was really an Arab ... We'll let the Iraq Tourist Agency worry over that.

As Life showed last week, the third grade of P. S. 177, New York, has been having a ball with Picasso. They have visited two museums to view his works.

The inevitable teacher-inspired letters have followed. Considering the inhibitory effect of that sort of compulsion, some of them are pretty cute, e. g., "I think Absin the Drinker looks like a witch"; "I think you have the Precious feeling in the world."

How true.

Fifty million Americans are living in 128 cities.

Steak Marinade, Robert is good with browned potatoes and cole slaw. Rich Cooking Most of Dr. Williams' cooking is quite rich and requires a simple dessert. "When I do cook," he said, "I had rather concentrate on the main course and let my wife, Elizabeth, handle the dessert. She's a much better cook than I."

A message from the Treasury of a free people

You, too, can help put down a threat to freedom

Uncle Sam has had some pretty conscientious help in the "freedom department" over the years. Some of the best-known contributors were an expert horseman named Revere ... a group of amateur stevedores who made iced tea in Boston Harbor ... and a party of revolutionaries who created an unsplitable nation under the shadow of a cracked bell.

Today the freedom which those patriots won for us is being challenged. And freedom will always need brave men to defend and preserve it. Men and women, like you.

You can do your share toward defending freedom by buying United States Savings Bonds today. The dollars you invest this way go right to work for your country now, as well as for your future.

How about buying a $50 Savings Bond (the most popular size) next payday? The cost is only $37.50.

Best known for his midnight ride to Lexington, famous patriot Paul Revere also designed the first Continental currency, the first official seal of the Colonies, and the state seal of Massachusetts, still in use today.

10,000 FEWER FARMS
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The number of farms in Ohio is estimated to have dropped about 10,000 in the period from 1959 to 1961, say Ohio State University economists. They believe this took about 400,000 acres in farmland out of production.

Language groups of more than 10,000 people are difficult to find in Netherlands New Guinea which has a population of about 700,000.

Duke, Duchess Observe Their Silver Anniversary

By CHARLES L. WEST
NEW YORK (AP)—At a small shipboard champagne dinner party Sunday the only king ever voluntarily abdicated the throne of Britain and the woman for whom he did it will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary.

"We made it last," the Duke and Duchess of Windsor responded, almost in unison, just before embarking Friday on the liner United States for Europe. They had been asked whether they recalled predictions that their marriage would be short-lived.

On June 3, 1937, in a friend's chateau in France, the man who had ruled Britain for 324 days as Edward VIII and Wallis Simpson were married.

He gave up the crown and an income of more than $3 million a year to marry the twice-divorced American commoner. His love brought him a life of wandering from one fashionable Riviera to another—Paris, the Riviera and New York—punctuated only rarely by an unofficial visit to London.

"Are we happy?" he repeated a reported question. "We certainly are. Just look at us. We look happy, don't we?"

They did not discuss the events of their romance, which shocked a nation Dec. 2, 1936. The British press had imposed self-censorship on reporting the courtship, and only when it had reached the crisis—gave up the throne or Mrs. Simpson—did the British people learn what the rest of the world's newspaper readers had known for some time.

The public and political reaction, the duke noted in his memoirs several years later, left a "Community riven and divided." But the crown is a symbol of "unity and voluntary allegiance," he wrote.

"It is for this reason that I reject the notion put forward by some that, faced with a choice between love and duty, I chose love," he added. "I certainly married because I chose the path of love, but I abdicated because I chose the path of duty."

"I did not value the crown so lightly that I gave it and stepped away. I valued it so deeply that I surrendered it rather than risk any impairment of its prestige."

The luxury liner will be about midway on its voyage from New York to Le Havre when the duke and duchess sit down for the dinner party at the table customarily reserved for them on their frequent crossings. It is situated in the 40-seat restaurant on the promenade deck. The United States' chef is preparing a surprise anniversary cake.

They are traveling to Paris, where they own a town mansion and a country estate. Later this month each will celebrate a birthday, her 66th June 19 and his 68th four days later.

"The success of a marriage depends on temperament," the duchess said before sailing. "We share our worries and discuss them. There are many stumbling blocks, and you have to surmount them."

"You need a great deal of patience and understanding of each other's weaknesses."

Funeral Sunday For Mrs. J. O. Stokes
Mrs. Nina Hardee Stokes, 59, wife of J. O. Stokes, died Sunday morning at 3:30.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Sunday afternoon at four o'clock by the Rev. N. B. Hill Jr., Methodist minister of Burlington, assisted by the Rev. John Pearsall, Methodist minister of Robersonville. Burial will be in the Hamilton Cemetery.

THE DARK RIDER

A Racing Novel of Suspense by GERALDINE THAYER

CHAPTER 12
Like Ira Pendleton's farm, the Fabian place was set in the middle of rolling hills that appeared endless in their smooth green contours.

The house itself was more modern than the Pendleton mansion. Lorne Fabian liked to live a lavish life and a sumptuous home was an essential part of it. He gave large and extravagant parties, none of which ever compared to the annual pre-race affair, which rivaled anything in the entire county.

Half a mile from the two-story, stately pillared mansion, a strong gate was erected across the road and tonight two of Fabian's men were posted there.

Ira Pendleton, driving the car out of deference to Julie's formal gown, was waved to a stop. One of the men opened the door beside him.

"Evening, Mr. Pendleton," he said politely. "Evening, Miss Julie. Got a new rule tonight says nobody gets through the gate unless they give up their invite."

"I don't have one," Ira said. "My daughter does."

"May I see it, ma'am?" the man asked and Julie surrendered the printed invitation.

"You can go through, Miss Julie, but your pa can't."

"Now see here," Ira said. "All I'm going to do is drive my daughter to the door. Then I'll leave, not only promptly, but gladly."

"I'm real sorry, Mr. Pendleton," the man said.

"Well, what's she going to do—walk?"

"Reckon not, if you don't mind waitin' here, I'll drive her and bring the car back real quick. Best I can do for you, Mr. Fabian's real strict this year."

Ira climbed out of the car. "All right, if those are your orders, but I'd say they're rather high-handed. What's the matter—Lorne got something to hide up there?"

"I wouldn't know anything except I got orders. The guard settled behind the wheel. "Won't be but a few minutes."

"Dad, this is ridiculous," Julie said heatedly. "I've a good mind to go home with you."

"Nonsense," Ira replied and smiled reassuringly. "We both know Lorne Fabian."

The guard led Julie off at the door and rolled away in the car to return to the gate. As Julie walked up the wide porch stairs, the sound of the music reached out to wash away her annoyance.

She made an enchanting picture as she entered the large reception hall with beautifully curved twin staircases leading to the second floor. A maid received her of the stole just as Julie saw Britt and whatever dregs of irritation remained with her vanished as he strode forward and took her tenderly in his arms.

"I'm glad to see you, my beautiful darling," he said. "I was beginning to wonder if you weren't going to come."

"I almost didn't," she said strenuously. "Dad drove me over and wasn't even allowed inside the gate."

"I'm sorry about that," Britt said and there was no mistaking his sincerity. "I argued for an hour with Dad about posting a guard at the entrance. After this night, Julie, I promise you there'll be no more of that. Now please let me show you off to everybody."

She smiled and led Britt tenderly in to greet the guests. It was obviously going to be one of Lorne Fabian's best parties. Large bouquets of blue and yellow flowers—the Fabian colors—were everywhere. Britt moved away from her side to greet new guests and to make those already there feel at home. So far, Lorne Fabian hadn't appeared and Julie wondered why.

Suddenly, wanting to see him, she slipped away from the guests and entered the reception hall just as he entered it from a door beneath the staircase and attempted to move unnoticed to the stairway. He was dressed in riding pants, an ancient suede jacket over a red shirt and he still carried a quilt. When she called his name, he stopped and turned to wait for her.

"Good evening, Julie," he said, and no man could be pleasanter than Lorne Fabian when he wanted to be. "You're looking as beautiful as a soon-to-be bride should."

"Thank you, Mr. Fabian," she said. "I wanted to talk to you for a few minutes if you have the time."

Lorne showed a trace of impatience. "Well—I'm late and my guests—"

"They can wait. My problem cannot, Mr. Fabian."

For a moment she thought he was going to answer her tartly, but instead he smiled and nodded. "Come up to my study, Julie. I think I know what you want and you're quite right. It is important."

His study was done in leather, shining with polish and care. On the walls were photographs of his best horses, some of which had run in other Derbys—unsuccessfully.

He leaned against the large desk and waited for her to begin. Julie sat down slowly. She was determined not to hurry. To an extent, her future depended on this talk.

"I presume Britt told you we were going to be married."

First Church of Christ, Scientist
How the Christ, Truth, brings freedom from sickness and sin will be brought out at Christian Science church services this Sunday.

Scriptural readings in the Lesson—Sermon entitled "Christian Science" will contain this verse from Jeremiah (17): "Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved; for thou art my praise."

A correlative citation to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (p.142): "Truth is God's remedy for error of every kind, and Truth destroys only what is untrue. Hence the fact that, today, as yesterday, Christ casts out evils and heals the sick."
